MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By H. N. F.

According to the wise men of the West, M. C. Nobles of Amarillo has earned the right to be called the father of the Amarillo gas field and it is asserted that he will receive the credit for being "the man whose faith and determination made possible the great oil field near Amarillo." M. C. Nobles in the fall of 1916 visited Oklahoma to look over an oil proposition. There he met Charles M. Gould, a geologist, who condemned the Oklahoma proposition as oil territory. Geologist Gould told Nobles that if he wanted to spend money in wildcatting for oil that there was located near Amarillo a most promising structure which he had discovered in 1904 while making a survey for the government to locate the water strata along the Canadian River. Nobles became interested; he interested Gould and the geologist was invited to Amarillo and after going over the territory north of the Canadian River the work of securing leases was begun. The first leases were obtained from Lee Bivins and R. B. Masterson, prominent ranchmen, in the fall of 1916. A company was organized and eight men were members of it. M. C. Nobles was made president, Dr. M. W. Cunningham, vice-president, and J. M. Neely, secretary-treasurer and then the activities began with the usual story of financial and other difficulties. Gas was discovered. Many wells were drilled but it was September, 1920, before natural gas was turned into the mains in Amarillo. None of the stock of the Amarillo Gas Company was sold by the company. Some of the stockholders, however, sold some of their shares. These shares had a par value of $10 and afterwards sold as high as $1,250. M. C. Nobles was the starter; M. C. Nobles never lost faith; M. C. Nobles is on the firing line today and Nobles and all the members of the original concern are confident that the Amarillo Oil Company will become one of the greatest producers of oil and gas in the Southwest. M. C. Nobles had vision; he had faith; he was and is a practical dreamer. Now he is a winner.

F. T. Smith of Amarillo is the head of the produce department of Swift & Co., at Amarillo. He says 10,000 Panhandle turkeys shipped from Amarillo graced 10,000 Thanksgiving tables of the East and that 20,000 turkeys will be shipped from Amarillo to the East for the Christmas trade. This reminds the editor of the Amarillo Tribune that "shipments of flour and produce, grown in the Panhandle of Texas, are numerous and aside from the furnishing of wheat and other grains from which the hungry are fed, the Panhandle contributes largely the meat provisions of the country—not only in chickens and turkeys but also beef and pork." This reminds H. N. F. of the sharp comment made by George Robinson of the Waco Times-Herald when Arthur Brisbane of the Hearst newspapers said: "There will be 50,000,000 people in California some day on account of its climate, its fruits and its vegetables," George Robinson is a native Texan. He has vision of mind as well as brilliancy of pen. George M. Bailey of the Houston Post agreed with Brisbane as to the California of the future. The Waco man handed the Hearst prophet and the Texas Colonel this budget of information: "The Texas climate is unsurpassed for the growing of fruits and vegetables. Aye, we would say, Brother George, that the Texas climate comes under the wire several laps ahead of all the rest. The Texas peach is rich beyond all telling. The Texas watermelon lays it over the nectar of the gods. And, Brother George, your fellowtownsman, Col. Frank Andrews, tells us that the grapefruit of the Lower Rio Grande Valley is superior to the Florida product, and we fully agree with him. As you well know, Brother George, great irrigation systems are either under way or are being projected throughout Texas. The contract has been let for the Wichita River project. The Rio Grande project is taking shape. There is also a considerable project out on the Rio Pecos. Here in Central Texas as the Rio Bosque project is the forerunner of many such enterprises. With the husbanding of the storm waters, Texas will run away from California in supplying the country with fruits and vegetables. Let's hurry 'em up, Brother George, confident that the subscribers to our papers won't forget us at the reaping time."

Colonel Thomas N. Jones of Tyler bobbed up serenely at Dallas last week where the Texas State Teachers Association was in convention assembled. Colonel Jones for thirty years has been a politician and a prophet when not engaged in the pratice of the law. The Colonel made an address to the 7,000 teachers. He charged that big financial and business interests of Texas were purposely opposing educational advancement in order to keep the people uneducated. Now where did the Smith County colonel get his dope? He talks like a Miss Annie Webb Blanton pamphlet. If this conspiracy exists why didn't he name the heads of the big financial and business interests of Texas? Why shoot in the air? Of course the Texas school teachers have gone on record as being opposed to the use of cigarettes. This is a free country. There is no law that compels teachers to smoke cigarettes. There is no law that compels teachers to smoke cigars. Another interesting topic was discussed —the bobbed hair and rolled stockings of the modern high school girl. Miss Edith L. Clark of the North Texas Normal School at Denton, hurled a bomb of dynamite at the opponents of the high school flapper. This is one of the things she said:

VANDERLIP HAS PLAN TO SOLVE DEBT QUESTION

Acknowledgement by Allies That Debt Is Just, First Principle Named by Noted Financier.

Easy Payments and Use of Money in Rehabilitating Europe Recommended as Desirable Step.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Recognition by the allies of their eleven billion dollar debt to America as a just debt, agreement by the country to easy payments and the money thus repaid to be used in rehabilitating Europe, was a plan proposed tonight by Frank A. Vanderlip, the New York banker, for settling the obligations of the war.

Mr. Vanderlip, who returned recently from Europe, where he made an exhaustive study of economic conditions, spoke before the Economic Club. He said he had discussed the debt with the leading responsible government ministers and financiers of Europe and nearly every nation admitted inability to pay.

The United States would be hurt as much by the rapid receipt of payment in the form of goods, the only possible form of payment in view of the demoralization of foreign exchange, he said, as the allied debtors would be harmed in making payment.

"The full consequences would be profound," he said, "if the payments could be made and were made with any degree of promptness. We need not look further than to contemplate merely the receipts of $500,000,000 a year of interest. If that came in the form of goods, our industrial situation would be upset in a way and to an extent we have not heretofore experienced. The effect upon our labor situation and the consequent social problems which would be raised would be menacing."

As the first postulate in his plan, Mr. Vanderlip said he would lay down the principle that the allied debt was a just debt, legally and morally and whether it could be paid or not, it should be gratefully and gratefully acknowledged as a just debt.

"Next, I would want America to be both an intelligent and a lenient creditor," he continued. "Terms of payment ought to be adapted to the means of the debtors. In that respect we should take the action of the allies in fixing terms of the indemnity as an example to be avoided rather than followed.

"The crux of my plan would lie in the disposition of the payments.

"I would have America make a bean-jeste; a grand gesture in international relationships. While de-

Death List at New Haven Now Stands at Five

By Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 28.—The death list resulting from last night's fire in the Rialto theater was increased to five tonight when Miss Mabel Moran of Derby and Allen Keith, a Yale student died in the New Haven hospital from burns received when flames swept the crowded moving picture house.

The police tonight arrested William L. Carroll, manager of the theater, on a warrant charging him with selling standing room admissions in violation of city and state laws.

Coroner Mix, after hearing witnesses at an inquest today said that the fire probably originated from burning incense which set fire to draperies used on the stage as a setting for the prologue of the film play being shown. The draperies were made of cheese cloth, the coroner said.

TRIAL OF GIRL OVER ELWELL KILLING BEGUN

By Associated Press.

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 28.—Miss Lena W. Clarke, former postmistress of West Palm Beach, charged with murder in connection with the death of Fred A. Miltimore, testified today she had appropriated $38,000 of postal funds to repay a loan to her by the late Joseph Elwell, New York sportsman. Elwell, who later was killed in New York under mysterious circumstances, advanced the money, Miss Clark said, to replace funds stolen by Miltimore in 1918 after he had drugged her brother Paul.

Miltimore was killed in a room at a local hotel which previously had been reserved in Miss Clarke's name. Testifying today, she declared that after she had slipped a drug into a glass of water which Miltimore ordered, she became dizzy remembered nothing more which occurred in the room.

Prepare to Condemn Waggoner Land; Only Slight Delay Expected

Directors for the irrigation district are proceeding with plans for the condemnation of the land which constitutes the site of the two reservoirs connected with the project, according to T. B. Noble, vice president of the district, and they expect to have the papers ready for presentation to the county judge in Baylor county within a few days.

Engineers of the project are now engaged in reducing the field notes to a form to be used in connection with the condemnation proceedings, and their filing is waiting on the completion of this work.

The condemnation proceedings were made necessary by the imposition of conditions by representatives of Mr. Waggoner, with whom an agreement had been previously announced, which in the opinion of the board constituted a "backing down" from the agreement by Mr. Waggoner.

Condemnation proceedings are not expected to delay the work over 30 days at the outside, in the opinion of Mr. Noble. After the filing of the proceedings the proceedure will be for the court to appoint a jury in view, who must look at the land, who will hear what testimony they desire, and who will then place a price on the land. As soon as this is done it will be possible to go to work, for should an appeal be taken bond can be given and work proceed.

It is not thought here that a jury fixing the value of the land could by any conceivable reasoning put as high a price upon it as the board agreed to pay Mr. Waggoner—the price being agreed upon save the delay which is now impending.

Had it not been for the attitude being taken by Waggoner the work could start within another week, according to Mr. Noble—or within the present month at the latest.

In the mean time a peculiar situation has arisen with regard to the depositing of money derived from the bond sales. Local banks say they do not want the money at the price—something over five per cent on daily balances—which was originally agreed upon.

They declare that the cost of carrying the money, with the cost of qualifying as a legal depository for irrigation funds, will amount to as much or more than they could reasonably expect from that part which can be loaned in their business. So, with the money to be available in the next two days, none of the local banks have qualified as a depositor.

JAPAN NEEDS HIGHER RATIO ASSERTS KATO

VICE ADMIRAL KATO, a member of the Japanese delegation.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—To safeguard properly the interests of the Japanese empire the ratio of 70 per cent in tonnage of capital ships is necessary, Vice Admiral Kanji Kato, president of the Japanese naval college and chief naval adviser to the Japanese delegation to the Washington conference, said to the Associated Press tonight in an interview.

Vice Admiral Kato, who is regarded as the leading Japanese authority on naval strategy, declared that the main issue for the conference on limitation of armament was the reduction of armament burdens.

PACKING MEN IN FT. WORTH CONDEMN CUT

Workers Vote to Support Butchers' Union in Event Threatened Strike Materializes.

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 28.—Condemning the wage cut, which went into effect Monday, approximately 800 employes of local packing plants voted unanimously to support the butcher workmen's union in the event of a strike, at a mass meeting held here tonight.

John Malone, vice president of the southwestern district of the union, declared he believed the strike would be called Thursday.

Attacking the so-called company unions and the Chicago conference, which brought about the reduction, Malone urged the employes to support the union. He pointed out that the credit for the increased pay and shorter hours enjoyed by the workmen had been the result of the union.

Malone prophesied that the packers would seek a still more far-reaching reduction before the first of the year and at the same time would seek to put back into force the 54-hour week. He urged the employes to show their indignation now.

Malone praised the Alschuler agreement, which was succeeded by the employes' conference plan.

NAVAL RATIO CONTROVERSY NEARS CLIMAX

"Irresistible" Force of Jap Demands Meeting "Immovable" Body of U. S. Proposals.

British Representatives Believed to Be in Accord With American Views for Most Part.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The Washington arms conference is approaching its first great decision. It was announced tonight by Vice Admiral Kato, chief Japanese naval expert, that Japan seeks a seventy per cent naval ratio. At the same time, it was announced with equal authority that the American delegation stood firmly on Secretary Hughes' "five-five-three" ratio proposal which means a sixty per cent status for Japan. The conference ultimately must reconcile these two views or accept one or the other to reach agreement on naval limitations.

Vice Admiral Kato said the seventy per cent ratio was the minimum necessary for Japanese security.

The view is that sixty per cent for Japan is the maximum naval strength that could be accepted in view of American liabilities in the Pacific.

Tomorrow the naval experts of the five powers will hold their first meeting in nearly a week. They have concluded their inter-group discussion of the American plan so far as its major factors are concerned. Developments today and tonight indicated that they would return the matter to the conference delegates without recommendations for important modifications.

The American experts are satisfied that the original estimates of naval strength on which the Hughes plan was based were correct. What form the committee report may take is not clear. Presumably, the British officers are in accord with the American view in many respects. The attitude of French and Italian experts has not been formally disclosed.

Yet there was some indication that action by the committee of experts to sustain the American estimate of naval facts and figures was expected. Whether the Japanese experts would submit minority views, in that case, was not known.

For competent American naval opinion, it may be said with authority although high officers cannot be quoted directly, that the "5-5-3" proposal is viewed as the absolute maximum of concession to Japan in view of American interests and liabilities in the Pacific. Naval opinion here holds that actual security would require a "10-5" ratio as against Japan, owing to distances, probable causes of conflict and similar matters.

For that reason, the American "5-5-3" plan is viewed as not only a written assurance of utter lack of any American purpose in the Pacific inimical to legitimate Japanese interests, but as an assumption of a similar friendly attitude on the part of Japan. On no other theory, to naval officers, would the proposal be warranted, backed as it is by the offer to scrap or discontinue more than twice the amount of new tonnage Japan is asked to abandon.

FOREIGN POSTAL SYSTEMS TO BE TAKEN FROM CHINA

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Taking its first step in the direction toward the liberation of China from foreign postoffices and postal systems from Chinese soil.

The decision was conditioned only on the maintenance by China of postal facilities of her own, including retention of the present domestic organization, by which a French co-director general acts as adviser to the Chinese postal authorities. January 1, 1923, virtually was agreed upon Japanese alone withholding final approval on that point pending consultation of Tokio.

Constituting the first concrete application of the principle of Chinese administrative integrity as delineated in the "four points" of Elihu Root, the postal agreement is expected to be followed tomorrow by another providing for gradual abolition of the system have set up their own courts in China and by a discussion of China's request that foreign troops quartered within her borders without treaty sanction be withdrawn.

PRO DIRECTOR FOR TEXAS ANNOUNCES WAR ON BOOTLEGGER

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 28.—"Illicit liquor traffic in Texas must go," David H. Morris, federal prohibition director for Texas, declared today in a statement declaring war on bootleggers and violators of the federal prohibition laws.

Mr. Morris has just returned from Washington where he conferred with federal prohibition commissioner R. A. Haynes. He said that Commissioner Haynes urged every effort be put forth to enforce the federal law in Texas and "that backed by an administration committed to strict law enforcement" he would leave no stone unturned to accomplish results.

"Illicit traffic with all reputed monetary gain, all violations as to manufacture and sale of apparatus for unlawful distilling must end," Mr. Morris said, "and in this task I shall have the aid of agents who have stood the severest tests, imperrious to outside influence."

CLAY COUNTY ROAD CAUSES BOARD SPLIT

Commissioners Refuse to Authorize Work on Part of Colorado-to-Gulf East From City.

Commissioner Kuntz Moves for Postponement When Agreement Fails; Want Different Roads Worked.

The long expected split in the county commissioner's court regarding paving to be done when the concrete road to the Red river from this city through Burkburnett is completed became a reality at the afternoon session of the court Monday.

The question came up for discussion when Pat Murphy, county auditor, brought up the matter of constructing the bridge across Holliday creek preparatory to the construction of the road from this city to the Clay county line when the Burkburnett highway is completed.

The motion of J. P. Jackson of this city, commissioner from Precinct 1, that the bridge be ordered in when the bridge gang completed their work on the Burkburnett road failed to obtain a second. Lee Prescott of Burkburnett, commissioner 2 stated that he was opposed to the construction of the road. He said that when the court consented to pave the Lake road at the request of local citizens it was agreed that the Clay county road would not be constructed under the present program for improved highways.

H. H. Haynes, commissioner from Precinct 4, commonly known as the Electra district moved that the road leading north out of Electra be paved after the Burkburnett road was completed. This motion also failed to obtain a second. At the suggestion of L. L. Kuntz of the Iowa Park Precinct 3, the discussion was dropped to be considered at a later meeting.

It is understood that residents living in different parts of the county as represented by the four commissioners are all contending that roads in their section should be paved before the present bond issue is expended. Burkburnett residents it is said will contend that the road leading west out of that city should be paved and in this they are said to be joined by Iowa Park residents who desire that a north road out of that town be paved to connect with it thus giving the two towns a concrete road connection.

With all commissioners desiring different roads to be paved it was apparent at the Monday meeting that a compromise will have to be made before paving work can continue after the Burkburnett road is completed.

NEW ORLEANS STRIKERS AND POLICE CLASH

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28.—Two hundred and fifty policemen battled for an hour late today with union sympathizers of the striking river front workers. The battle extended over a space of five blocks in the vicinity of the foot of Canal street. Numerous arrests were made and a number of injured were sent to hospitals.

The clash was the first serious disturbance that has marked the strike, in which 12,000 men are out. Rioting started when non-union workers began to leave their jobs for the day. Iron bars, bricks, clubs and fists were used freely by both sides.

Police reserves were called to the scene and plunged into the struggle. The official estimate is that at least twenty men were seriously beaten, although many of these had not reached hospitals for some time after the fight, preferring to make their escape down side streets. None of the injured cases reported will prove fatal, hospital authorities said.

Tonight heavy forces of harbor guards augmented the police on river front duty, and large reserves were held at the more central precinct stations.

WOMAN IS SOUGHT AS ACCOMPLICE IN TEXARKANA KILLING

By Associated Press.

TEXARKANA, Texas, Nov. 28.—T. F. Horton, charged with murder in conection with the killing of C. G. Norton and M. M. Boring here Saturday night, was taken to the Bowie county jail at Boston this morning, having been remanded without bail pending the action of the grand jury.

A warrant charging Mrs. Ora M. Brown, with being an accomplice in the murder has been issued and she is now being sought by the authorities. The double tragedy occurred in the home of John W. Howlett, father of Mrs. Brown, the latter having been present at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. Brown's 8-year-old son, Harry Hall, also a witness of the tragedy, was today placed under a $500 bond as a material witness.

CATTLE LOANS FROM RESERVE BANK SOUGHT

Agricultural Loan Association Now Operating in Texas Bears the Stench of Packing Houses Is Alleged in Message From Cattlemen of State.

Gov. Harding, After Conference With Rep. Hudspeth, Announces He Will Seek Legislation that Will Make Loans Available Where They Are Most Needed.

Special to The Record News.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A bill backed by Governor W. P. G. Harding, giving the federal reserve bank at Dallas and all other federal reserve banks power to loan money direct to cattlemen, will be pushed to enactment at the regular session of congress beginning next Monday, it was announced here today. The announcement was made following a long conference between Governor Harding and Congressman Claude B. Hudspeth, of Texas.

Hudspeth went to the treasury department to present to Governor Harding letters and telegrams in which it was alleged that the recently organized Agriculture-Livestock Loan company of Fort Worth, has passed under packer control, and that it is impossible for a cattleman to obtain a loan unless the packers are willing that he shall have it.

Hudspeth told Governor Harding that he knows nothing personally about the Fort Worth company, but that the charges of packer control have been made by reputable cattlemen. These letters, Hudspeth said, are from some of the best men in Texas and their burden is that the Fort Worth company has been turning down the very kind of loans that congress intended to promote when it passed the amendment to the war finance act.

"Apparently the men who could have obtained loans anyway without congressional action are the only ones getting relief at Fort Worth," Hudspeth said.

Governor Harding is said to have been indignant upon reading the communications. He told Hudspeth that he would back to the last, the plan for federal reserve banks to make the loans direct to cattlemen at 1 per cent more than regular bank rate. If the bill passes, this will make the Dallas bank rate to cattlemen six and one-half per cent.

"Enact this bill and I personally will go to Texas and see that the cattlemen get all the money they need," Harding declared.

The plan outlined by Hudspeth is identical with that originally urged by Frank Kell in the campaign initiated last summer for the purpose of calling attention to the plight of the cattlemen—urging direct loans and declaring that indirect loans through an organization would result only in opening avenues to the cattlemen who were in shape to get credit from the banks anyway. The Fort Worth plan, while not following the idea first backed by Mr. Kell, was in the nature of a compromise to secure the best terms possible, and was much more liberal toward the cattlemen than at first.

It has been an essential point in Mr. Kell's campaign that the loans should be made only to cattlemen in order to save breeding stock and calves—that steers of a year or older—the class into which Mr. Kell's own cattle fall, should stand on their own feet. The purpose was the saving of the future herds, declared by him to be a matter of national import. This course was urged in communications to Governor Harding and to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Hero of Famed "Lost Battalion" Lost Off Ship

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Lieutenant Colonel Charles W. Whittlesey, hero of the famous "lost battalion" has disappeared from the steamship Tolos on which he sailed Saturday for Havana, according to a wireless message received here today.

News of the famous soldier's disappearance came in the following message received from the Captain of the ship:

"Passenger named C. W. Whittlesey disappeared. Left several letters."

Officials of the United Fruit Line, operators of the ship, confirmed the fact that the passenger in question was Lieutenant Colonel Whittlesey, through his relatives.

Members of Mr. Whittlesey's law firm here were at a loss to account for his proposed visit to Cuba. When he left the offices of the firm Friday, he announced his intention, they said, of attending the Army-Navy game on the following day.

It has since been learned that Colonel Whittlesey purchased a ticket for Havana the following morning and sailed that day.

His business associates declared that his mind was clear and that he apparently was in good health when last seen. He seemed cheerful, they added and declared they were unable to explain his seemingly strange action in going away without notifying them of his plans.

The crisp, laconic reply:

"You go to hell," hurled into the teeth of a German officer who called on he and his men to surrender was the rhetorical battlefield classic which brought Colonel Whittlesey into fame overnight.

Surrounded in the Argonne with his command, the first battalion of the 308th infantry, 77th division, Whittlesey had been cut off for four days without food or fresh water. All but 87 men had been killed or wounded.

MOVIE ACTOR DENIES GUILT IN TESTIMONY

Arbuckle Declares He Is Innocent of Charge of Manslaughter for Which He Is on Trial.

Prosecution Will Begin Their Presentation of Rebuttal Testimony in Session of Court Today.

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—Roscoe Arbuckle, motion picture comedian, spoke his first lines today in a tragic drama of which he has been the central figure since its inception September 5, last. Arbuckle told from the witness stand his own story of the happenings at a party in his rooms at the Hotel St. Francis here, which preceded by a few days the death of Virginia Rappe, one of those who attended. It was at this party that the girl received injuries which caused her death, the prosecution contends, and it is that allegation that forms the basis of Arbuckle's trial, now drawing to a close on the charge of manslaughter.

The defense closed its case at 5:25 p. m. after a vain attempt to obtain admission into the record of a statement by George Glennon, house detective at the hotel St. Francis, which, it was contended, would exonerate Arbuckle of any responsibility for Miss Rappe's injuries.

Principal Scene

Every one concerned regarded today's developments as the principal scene of the drama.

Arbuckle's direct examination was completed in 20 minutes, his attorneys leading him over the ground to be covered in such a short time that it surprised many in the court room.

In a clear, loud voice, Arbuckle denied that he inflicted the injuries on Miss Rappe that have been charged against him.

"When I went into my room during the party to dress for an engagement I had with a friend, Mrs. May Taube, I found Miss Rappe on the bathroom floor writhing and moaning," he said. "When I opened the door of the bathroom it struck against her.

"I assisted her in the bathroom all I could. Then I placed her on the bed in my room, and continued to assist her. She was moaning and writhing and nothing she said could be understood by me."

"Where was Mrs. Delmont?" he was asked by his chief counsel.

Mrs. Bambina Maud Delmont, a guest at the party brought the original charge of murder against Arbuckle which was later reduced in a police court hearing to the manslaughter charge on trial.

"Mrs. Delmont appeared while we were trying to assist Miss Rappe. She told me to get away from Miss Rappe and I told her 'shut up or I will throw you out of the window,'" Arbuckle continued.

Arbuckle said he did not know that the party had been planned and that he did not know that it had become a reality until Miss Zeh Prevost, Miss Rappe, Alice Blake, Alfred Semnacher and other guests arrived.

"I wanted to get away," Arbuckle testified. "I danced for a while with Miss Blake and others. Virginia Rappe did not dance, although she ordered the music. She wanted a piano first, but the brought in a phonograph."

Arbuckle denied the truth of statements reported to have been made by him following the party, that he placed a piece of ice on Miss Rappe's body. He had found the ice on the girl's body, he explained, but was taken to task by Mrs. Delmont for picking it up, and thereupon put it down again.

At the conclusion of Arbuckle's testimony, the defense offered the deposition of Dr. Maurice H. Rosenburg of Chicago, which said that in 1913 he treated Miss Rappe for a bladder ailment. Miss Rappe died as the result of a bladder rupture said by the prosecution to have been caused by external force applied by Arbuckle. The defense alleges that the injury was the result of chronic condition. The prosecution resisted its introduction.

manding that the payment be made I would have America say that she is prepared for the present to forego the receipt of it."

Concerning what should be done with the money paid back, Mr. Vanderlip said:

"I would like to see every dollar that can ever be paid to us by our debtors for years to come devoted to the rehabilitation of European civilization that America can ever conceivably realize in full measure her destiny or can expect a full measure of prosperity for her people."

He believed a plan for the development of eastern Europe could be laid out, he said, comparable to the vision our forefathers had when the latent possibilities of our great west were unfolded to their minds.

"Everything the war has cost," he added, "everything an unwise peace is costing, can be recompensed and beyond that a great economic margin created, if eastern Europe can be put in order, can be helped and led wisely to handle its own problem if the people of eastern Europe can be made to comprehend their economic unity, if they can be brought to understand that in the welfare of all nations lies the highest prosperity of each."

To a program of this kind, he declared, he would devote for many years every dollar this country could get of the allied debt.

George A. Carden, a former Texan and for many years a resident of Dallas, has an investment of more than $700,000 in the Boone Oil Company and many men of prominence the country over are interested in these concerns which have merged with the Keystone-Ranger Production Company. Mr. Finley has charge of the refinery and the three casing head plants in Oklahoma which are owned by this organization.

The party is composed of many of the leading business men of Pittsburgh and this will be the first trip to the oil fields of the Southwest for many of the party.

Mr. Brown is well known to Texans, in fact, is a former Texan and his headquarters will be divided in the future with headquarters in the city of Dallas and the city of Houston.

A special train has been engaged to take the party to the local refinery and to Burkburnett and the program indicates that they will make a busy day of it with the dinner at the Kemp Hotel, the closing feature or act of the program.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

"There is much good even in the most flippant flapper. Much of the prattle and frivolity is mere bubble and after the effervescent silly giggling stage the girl grows into a young woman of whom we are justly proud." Boy, take this bunch of Japanese chrysanthemums to Miss Edith L. Clark, Denton, Texas.

Lieutenant Governor Lynch Davidson reiterates that he will not be a candidate for governor, that many things can happen between now and the next election to change the situation and "in the meantime it is my intention to co-operate and give all possible support to the present administration and the chief executive of the state." On the side he admitted that the senatorial race track to an on-looker "is apparently without any dangers hurldles." Why the sinister inference?

They are all coming to Texas. W. J. Webster of New York is president of the Atlas powder company. He says that the company has begun construction work on a new plant for the Darco corporation at Marshall, Texas. The corporation is controlled by the Atlas powder company. The plant has been designed to produce annually 6,000 tons of darco, a new type of refining carbon used in a wide range of industries. Land has been bought by the corporation with a supply of lignite adequate for continuous operation. These wise New Yorkers and New Englanders know more about the unexploited resources of Texas in an hour than grey haired natives have acquired in a lifetime.

LOUISIANA PUTS QUARANTINE ON TEXAS COTTON

Ruling Also Prohibits Delivery of Shipments From States of New Mexico and Arizona.

By Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 28.—A quarantine against the shipment of cotton from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico has been put in effect by the state of Louisiana through the department of agriculture, effective on the shipment of cotton and cottonseed into Louisiana. Cotton can be moved through Louisiana on a through bill of lading and it can be shipped through New Orleans on an export bill of lading but cannot be shipped on a local bill of lading.

This quarantine was made effective because of the appearance of the pink boll worm in Ellis and Grayson counties, Texas, according to W. E. Anderson, entomologist of the department of agriculture, and the appearance of the worm in New Mexico.

Mr. M. Anderson did not know how many bales of cotton this would affect for New Orleans.

TERRELL SAYS BOLL WORM CONDITION NOT ALARMING.

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Nov. 28.—Advices that Louisiana had quarantined against Texas cotton on account of pink boll war. minfestation were received by Commissioner of Agriculture George B. Terrell late Saturday, he said today. He said further that although the pest had been found in Texas the condition was not alarming and that he thought the quarantine would be lifted after the meetings of the Southern Entomologists association in Dallas on December 1 and the federal horticultural board on December 2.

UNITED CHARITY CAMPAIGN GETS START MONDAY

Hundred Workers Get Final Instructions at Dinner at Y. W. Cafeteria Monday Evening.

Mayor Cline and C. C. McDonald Make Pleas for Generous Support for Institutions Represented.

One hundred workers representing twenty-four teams with captains will start this morning on the campaign to raise $35,500, the amount representing the budget of the seven charitable and benevolent organizations, whose work is city wide in character.

When the campaign closes Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock it is hoped that every adult resident of the city financially able will have contributed his or her share and the city made a success of its first effort to fill the depleted coffers of its organized agents of mercy and service in one combined drive.

Confidence in the success of the drive was expressed at the dinner Monday night at the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria at which the workers with other special committees received their final instructions regarding the two day drive.

Representatives of the Boy Scouts, Y. W. C. A., Red Cross, Day Nursery, Salvation Army, Texas Children's Home and the Welfare Council, the seven organizations whose local units are to receive the benefit of the fund were also in attendance.

Mayor Walter D. Cline and C. C. McDonald, local attorney, delivered the two principal talks following the dinner with B. F. Johnson, chairman of the organization committee, concluding with detailed instructions to the workers as to the manner in which they should conduct their individual solicitations.

C. H. Clark, chairman of the general committee presided.

"As mayor of this city I can assure you that this united drive for all our more important charitable and benevolent organizations has the approval of our citizenship," Mayor Cline told the workers.

"I have not received a single criticism of the united drive and I have heard many express their approval of the method we are using to provide for those who need aid as given by the seven organizations.

"There is little difference between the success and the failure I have found," Mayor Cline said in explaining the work of the organizations as being primarily to help those temporarily in need to gain the same success as those who were being called upon to give.

The speaker said he favored the appointment of a general committee which would serve through the coming year and which would be responsible to the city for the manner in which the collected funds were dispersed. His plan called for reports by the several organizations benefiting to the general committee. The plan is in line with that of other leaders in the campaign.

"If you want a happy Christmas make your check to this united drive as large as you possibly can," C. C. McDonald declared in a strong appeal for success in the drive.

"We are told that the three great virtues are 'faith, hope and charity,' and the greatest of these is charity.'

"Charity means the giving of the head, heart and pocketbook. Charity begins at home and will begin in this tomorrow morning."

The speaker outlined the work of several of the organizations concerned in the drive.

R. P. O. FOR SOUTHERN IS AUTHORIZED

Railway mail service will be extended to all towns and citizens residing along the Wichita Falls & Southern railroad between Wichita Falls and Breckenridge, effective December 1, it was announced Monday by Postmaster Ed Howard. Two clerks of the railway mail service are to be assigned to these trains, daily except Sundays.

On Sundays pouch service is to be furnished these trains, as has been the daily custom since the road was opened for traffic during the summer.

The new service, according to the announcement will greatly increase the efficiency of the mail service to cities and towns along the road and eliminate the necessity for preparing some thirty pouches daily in Wichita Falls and Breckenridge for distribution to the different towns.

The assignment of the clerks to the trains also means that mail sent from one town to the other on the line can be delivered without first going to one of the terminal points.

OFFICIALS OF GULF PLEASED WITH LOCATION

Pleasure with the progressiven of Wichita Falls, as well a at the location of their North Texas headquarters here, in what they consider the strategical location for their operations, were expressed by ranking officials of the Gulf Production company on their visit here Monday for a conference on the affairs of the company.

Although no information on the nature of their visit, other than it was a regular conference, could be obtained, but it is expected in local oil circles that the visit will be followed by increased activity on the part of this company.

Among those who were in the party were F. A. Levoy of Pittsburgh, first vice president of the company; Underwood Nazro of Houston, second vice president; and Henry McCraw of Tulsa, vice president of the Gipsy, the Gulf subsidiary in Oklahoma.

In addition to the transaction of business in conference with W. B. Pyron, third vice president of the company, and in charge of the local office, the party received calls from a number of local oil and business men with whom they were acquainted, including Frank Kell, W. D. Cline and G. Clint Wood. The party were entertained at dinner at the Wichita club by Mayor Cline.

The Ava Development Company, Wichita Falls operators, are reported drilling around 650 feet in their test on the J. W. Culbertson land, a mile and a half north and east of the old Panther pool, and about two miles south and east of the town of Holliday.

Several highly favorable shallow showings have been encountered, it is stated. The test will go 2,000 feet unless production is found at a shallower depth, it is stated.

JUDGE ROGERS PROVES SELF STATISTICIAN

Shows Kiwanians County Court at Law Has Done Business at Rate Better Than $10,000 Per Day.

Court Well Up to Calendar, Tells Club; Formal Announcement of Kemp Day Made at Meeting.

Judge Guy Rogers, of the county court at law, qualified as the Roger W. Boisson of county court statistics, by his comprehensive report on the doings of his court during the 17 months or 408 days of its life in the principal talk to the Kiwanis club Monday noon at the Kemp hotel. Better than Roger, however, the judge put a little humor into his "statistics" (a word easy to spell but hard to pronounce) and even those who have paid fines in his court no doubt feel after his talk that perhaps his judgments are not so bad after all.

During the 17 months the county court at law, which was set up to relieve the strain on the original county court by trying all civil and criminal cases under county jurisdiction, has disposed of 1,054 civil cases out of 1,347 docketed, and has settled 932 criminal cases out of 1,046 brought up, Judge Rogers said.

Have Even Break.

Consulting his note book again Judge Rogers remarked the statistics showed that a man being tried before his court either on a civil or criminal case had an even break. Out of 932 criminal cases disposed of, he said, 470 were found guilty and given an average fine of $56 and an average jail sentence of five days, fourteen hours, thirty-seven minutes and thirty seconds in the county jail.

The average daily business of his court, that is the average number of cases filed daily, come to 5.8 cases.

Out of these 5.8 cases filed each day, 4.9 cases are tried, he declared. "So you see" the judge said, "I am keeping pretty close behind the business of the court."

The total amount of money involved in the decisions of the court in civil cases during the life of the court, he said, comes to $351,333 which when $52,000 in attorney fees are added makes a total of $414,573.

Money Involved.

For the criminal side of the court, financially speaking in terms of fines, court costs, etc, a total of $43,740 has been involved in the life of the court, the speaker said: The fines came to $16,380, he said, while the court costs made up $26,361 of the remainder.

Entertainment for the program was given by Klock Ryder, of the Lewis-Worth Stock company with two delightful readings. Miss Worth was also a guest of the club and responded to an invitation to speak with a few words of appreciation for the invitation to be present as a guest.

Harry Baum won $10 worth of stuff from his own store, offered by Leslie Martlew as the attendance prize. The silent boosts, cigars, were donated by Harry Naylor. Joe Stokes was the chairman of the day.

Following the luncheon the directors held a short business session to arrange plans for "Kemp Day" to be given by the club December 12, as recently announced.

PASSENGER MEN GATHER FOR SHOW

Wichita Falls was an attractive point to district and traveling passenger agents for railroads with offices in Dallas and Fort Worth and Houston, Monday on account of the fact that the Sells-Floto circus disbanding here necessitated something like 150 people buying transportation to points in the North and East.

These agents were on hand to urge the merits of their respective lines and to arrange the routing of the actors, and other circus employes to their homes.

Among the visiting railroad men in the city Monday were: E. A. Pennington, district passenger agent of the Southern Pacific with headquarters in Fort Worth; Fred Clark, traveling passenger agent of the C. & A., with headquarters in Dallas; Fred Jones, district passenger agent of the Illinois Central, with headquarters in Houston; L. J. Anderson, traveling passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Lines, with headquarters in Dallas; Sidney King, traveling passenger agent of the Wabash, with headquarters in Dallas; A. C. Ater, of Houston, traveling passenger agent of the Santa Fe; Frank Rogerman, of Dallas, traveling passenger agent of the B. & O.; V. B. Oneal, traveling passenger agent of the Katy Dallas office.

A special train of circus employes will be run out of Wichita Falls to Saint Louis on the Katy Tuesday at 11 p. m., from Saint Louis the passengers will change for their respective homes, most of them being in New York or Chicago, railroad officials say.

The arrangements for the special train are being made by V. B. Oneal, of Dallas, traveling passenger agent of the Katy, and H. G. Smith, division freight and passenger agent of this city. The special train will carry 6 cars and will run straight through to St. Louis, Mr. Smith said.

Choice Cuts
—and Others

A few months ago a newspaper man visited one of the wholesale markets of Swift & Company. He wanted to see a retailer buy a short loin of beef and then watch the retailer sell the porterhouse and sirloin steaks from it over his counter. He thought this would make a good story.

The head of the market took the reporter into the "cooler" where he showed him a high class side of beef. With a wooden skewer he marked off the short loin and said, "That is only 8 per cent of the weight of the whole side and it is selling for four times as much as this piece (and he marked off the "chuck," which is about one-fourth of the side of beef)."

The wide variation in the wholesale price of various cuts from the same side of beef is caused largely by demand for the so-called choicer cuts. The others are, of coufse, just as wholesome.

It seems as though more people than ever are demanding choicer cuts, and their demand sets the price If few people ask for the forequarter cuts, the price of forequarters will automatically drop to a figure low enough to induce people to buy because of cheapness.

Even though certain cuts sell for relatively high prices, other cuts, due to lack of demand, sell so low that our profit from all sources over a period of five years averaged only a fraction of a cent a pound.

It is competition between consumers for the choice cuts that keeps prices for those cuts relatively high; an equalizing demand for all parts of the carcass would benefit producer, packer, retailer and consumer.

Our average wholesale selling price of all products has fallen about 40 per cent since September 1920.

COTTON SEED CROP POOR..

The cotton seed crop of 1921 contains a larger percentage of seed that is of poor quality for planting purposes than is usually the case, according to information recently gathered by the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates. The premature opening of the cotton and the ravages of the boll weevil are the main reasons assigned for this condition.

Many cotton seed dealers who carried over small or no stocks from the 1920 crop are finding it somewhat difficult to obtain well matured and highly germinable seed from this year's crop. However, several large growers and distributers held their supply of 1920 crop seed intact and these supplies are now available for planting. On the whole, the quality of the 1920 crop seed for planting purposes, where such seed has been stored properly, is superior to that of the new crop.

More interest is being manifested in delinting, recleaning and grading cotton seed for planting purposes, and several large growers and dealers are employing one or more of these processes this season in an effort to improve the physical condition of the seed and to raise the percentage of the germination of their stocks. Data obtained by the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates indicate that where these operations are carried on judiciously in conjunction with a marked improvement in the quality of the seed for planting purposes is effected at a minimum of cost.

Viewing the situation as a whole, it appears that there will be sufficient seed of good quality to supply demand, provided an equitable distribution is effected. When making purchases of cotton seed for planting in 1922, farmers should, however, in the interest of the advancement of the cotton growing industry and of the greater net profit to themselves, insist on a statement from the seller as to its origin, varietal purity and the percentage of germination as determined by actual tests, the Federal experts say.

"Mr. Earl T. Williams has sold the Munday Times to a Mr. Kennedy of Sipe Springs and will give possession on the first of December," says the Goree Advocate. Mr. Williams will continue to work with the Times force, in the mechanical department, while Kennedy will take over the active management and editorial work. The Williams brothers, Earl and Virgil, bought the Times in April of 1920 and have made a success of the business during the time that they have been there. Earl states that he was not really wanting to sell, but made an offer that was accepted."

California having long led in the production of many fruits, including oranges, lemons, grapes and dates, has now taken the lead in peaches. The First National Bank of Los Angeles reports last year's peach crop amounted to 13,800,000 bushels, and enriched growers to the extent of $26,220,000. Approximately this crop was twice the size of that produced by the second state, Georgia, and six times that of New York, the third. Fresno county grew more peaches than the whole of Georgia by 25 per cent.

TOBACCO PRODUCTION HIGH.

According to the statisticians the various compaigns waged against tobacco in the last year had little effect on the production and consumption of the "weed" in this country. The enormous number of 62,000,000,000 cigarettes were produced in this country in 1920, of which 46,000,000,000 were consumed here and the remainder exported. This does not take into account the number of cigarettes consumed by smokers who "roll their own."

In addition to the vast amount of cigarettes produced in 1920, 20,515,096 cigars and 3,979,568 pounds of smoking, plug and twist tobacco were turned out.

Kentucky, with 550,000 acres and 467,500,000 pounds in 1920, led all tobacco-producing States, followed by North Carolina, with 582,000 acres and 384,120,000 pounds, and Virginia with 243,000 acres and 177,390,000 pounds. Prior to the Civil War Virginia led all other States in producing tobacco, but Kentucky usurped this distinction in 1869 and has led the field since.

The estimated average yield per acre for the United States in 1920 was 796 pounds, compared with 761 for 1919. Yields for the several States vary greatly, ranging from 1,510 for Pennsylvania to 600 pounds for Georgia. As a rule higher yields are obtained in localities producing the high-priced types used in the manufacture of cigars.

Although the United States is the greatest tobacco producing and manufacturing country in the world, considerable quantities of both unmanufactured tobacco and tobacco products are imported. The leaf imported is mostly devoted to the manufacture of high-grade cigars and certain brands of cigarettes. Cuba is the greatest contributor of leaf tobacco to the United States.

The number of tobacco factories in this country is approximately 13,591, of which 11,483 manufacture cigars, 237 make cigarettes, and 1,871 turn out tobacco and snuff. New York has the largest number of tobacco manufacturing concerns, followed by Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Wisconsin, in the order named.

As a revenue bringer to Uncle Sam tobacco ranks among the foremost, bringing in $294,267,609 in 1920 in the various forms of tobacco taxes. This was an increase of more than $80,000,000 over that of 1919, which in turn was larger than that imported for any prior year.

The old question arises: "Which comes first, the man or the dollar?" Jefferson said the man; Lincoln said the man; Roosevelt said the man; Harding said the man; that is what all the civilized nations say. The very essence of democracy is the superiority of the man over the money. Civilization itself depends upon the man's superiority; the whole trend of progress is in that direction. They used to imprison for debt; no civilized nation does that now. They still bombard cities for debt and kill innocent people for debt, but it is a waning custom and the Chinese question offers an opportunity for the adoption of a new policy.—William Jennings Bryan.

"Grayson county's cotton crop was about half what it was in 1920, or nearly 15,000 bales," says the Sherman Daily Democrat. "Next year the boll weevil will not be here in anything like the way he was this year, if the cotton stalks are buried or burned. To bury them the soil will be enriched with fertilizer and humus, giving back something to the soil."

What doth it profit a man to be good if he's good for nothing?

Christian nations: The nations that manufacture the most padlocks.

Nations could safely lose their arms if statesmen wouldn't lose their heads.

There isn't room in the same conference, however, for understanding and distrust.

The important thing is not to get back to a pre-war level, but to stay on the level.

WHAT HAPPENED NEXT TO CHATTERER

Were you ever terribly frightened? That was the way Chatterer the Red Squirrel felt. You see, he was caught in a wire rat-trap in Farmer Brown's corn crib. He was caught; there was no doubt about it! His sharp teeth were of no use at all on those hard wires. He could look out between them, but he couldn't get out. He was too frightened to think. His heart pounded against his sides until it hurt. He forgot all about that queer food he had so wanted to taste and which was right before him now. Indeed, he felt as if he never, never would want to eat again. What was going to happen to him now? What would Farmer Brown's boy do to him when he found him there?

Hark! What was that? It was a step just outside the door of the corn crib. Farmer Brown's boy was coming! Chatterer raced around his little wire prison and bit savagely at the hard wires. But it was of no use, no use at all. It only hurt his mouth cruelly. Then the door of the corn crib swung open and a flood of light poured in, and with it came Farmer Brown's boy.

"Hello!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's boy, as he caught sight of Chatterer. "So you are the thief who has been stealing our corn, and I thought it was a rat or a mouse. Well, well, you little red rascal, didn't you know that thieves come to no good end? You're pretty smart, for I never once though of you, but you were not so smart as you thought you were. Now I wonder what we had better do with you."

He picked up the trap with Chatterer in it and stepped out into the beautiful great out of doors. Chatterer could see across the dooryard to the Old Orchard and the familiar old stone wall, along which he had scampered so often. They looked just the same as ever, and yet—well, they didn't look just the same, for he couldn't look at them without seeing those cruel wires which were keeping him from them.

Farmer Brown's boy put the trap down on the ground and then began to call. "Puss, puss, puss," called Farmer Brown's boy. Chatterer's heart, which had been thumping so, almost stopped beating with fright. There was Black Pussy, whom he had so often teased and made fun of. Her yellow eyes had a hungry gleam as she walked around the trap and sniffed and sniffed. Never had Chatterer heard such a terrible sound as those hungry sniffs so close to him! Black Pussy tried to put a paw between the wire and Chatterer saw the great cruel claws. But Black Pussy couldn't get the paw between the wire because they were too close together.

"How would you like him for breakfast?" asked Farmer Brown's boy.

Black Pussy Tried to Put a Paw Between the Wires, and Chatterer Saw the Great, Cruel Claws.

"Meow," said Black Pussy, arching her back and rubbing against his legs.

"I suppose that means that you would like him very much," laughed Farmer Brown's boy. "Do you think you can catch him if I let him out?"

"Meow," replied Black Pussy again, and to poor Chatterer it seemed the awfullest sound he ever had heard.

"Well, we'll see about it by and by," said Farmer Brown's boy. "There's the breakfast bell, and I haven't fed the biddies yet."

With that he once more picked up the trap and started for the house.

Thought And Action

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

People would be a little bit more careful in their choice of reading matter, of amusement places, and of friends, if only they appreciated how inevitably the ideas which come to them from whatever they read, see, or hear affect their behavior.

That their behavior should inevitably be affected thereby is because of the psychological law that thought always passes over into action. To be sure, it may not immediately pass into action. But soon or late the transition will take place.

As William James once remarked, in the course of a lecture he was delivering to an audience of teachers:

"As I talk here and you listen, it might seem as if no action followed. You might call it a purely theoretic process, with no practical result.

"But it cannot take place at all and leave your conduct unaffected. If not today, then on some far future day, you will answer some question differently by reason of what you are thinking now.

"We cannot escape our destiny, which is practical; and even our most theoretic faculties contribute to its working out."

Of course, there is such a thing as a conflict of ideas, so that while one kind of thinking impels to conduct in one direction, another kind may impel to conduct in a very different direction.

In such an event the victory usually rests with the ideas most frequently entertained. It is this which gives special importance to right choice of friends, books, and places of amusement.

For, obviously, the more one consorts with people of a given type, the more one reads books of a certain sort, the more one resorts to amusement places of a particular kind, the greater will be the frequency with which one's mind entertains the ideas derived therefrom.

And correspondingly greater the likelihood, then, that the conduct will be shaped by these ideas, rather than by opposite ideas which happen to be less frequently entertained.

One might wish that this were not the case. But wishing does not make it any the less the case.

And since it is the case—since conduct is chiefly determined by frequency of thinking, and the latter by frequency of contacts with people and things—the course one should take with regard to choice of friends, books, and amusements becomes unmistakably evident.

Choose only those that help most frequently to right thinking. Else be not surprised if you are forever cheated of success, prosperity, and happiness.

REFRESHMENTS.

The Volstead law is on the books; it's there for keeps, I think; and wise men seek the babbling brooks when they would have a drink. For wise men know we cannot choose the laws that we'll obey; the ordinance forbidding booze has come, and come to stay; an epoch dry as dust has dawned, a juiceless age is born, and we must journey to the pond to get our morning horn. Oh, yes, in alley or in slum we yet may stain our breath, and buy a flash of bottled rum that's labeled Sudden Death; but who's so thirsty he'd elect to drink such booze, gadzooks? The Volstead law is not a dream, it largely looms, like fate; and we must seek the crystal stream when we would irrigate. Good citizens are earnest guys who bow to all the laws, though they may think some are unwise, and full of fatal flaws. They say, "To all the laws we'll yield, as blithely as we may; if they are punk they'll be repealed, and if they're good they'll stay; and he who'd flout them is a chump, he bores us with his yawps; and we shall journey to the pump to get our forty drops." — (Copyright by George Matthew Adams.)

NO. 5—THE LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS' STRIKE

What is a ladies' garment worker?

A ladies' garment worker is a worker who is responsible for the fact that so many men walking down the main streets of any city step directly into open coal holes or open cellarways.

Why do the men step into the open coal holes and cellarways?

Because they never are looking where they are going.

Does a ladies' garment worker work hard?

Not as hard as he used to. A garment worker can now make a ladies' garment in the same time that it formerly took to make a bandanna handkerchief.

Did the ladies' garment workers strike for shorter skirts or shorter hours?

Yes.

Then what did the garment workers strike for?

The struck against a wage cut. It is their claim that a dollar doesn't go as far as it used to. But neither does a skirt.

Are trained garment workers necessary for the production of ladies' skirts and suits?

If the tendency in Paris styles goes much farther the manufacturers can dismiss all the garment workers and hire bead stringers.

What if the garment workers' strike had lasted a long time? Wouldn't it have meant a great shortage in clothes for American women?

Yes, but you have only to look around you to realize that there is a great shortage even now.

What would you call such a situation?

We'd call it a naked shame.

Who in the strike showed the more backbone, the garment workers or their bosses?

The ladies who wear the garments.

Why does a garment workers' strike and a tobacco workers' strike remind you of the same thing?

Because they are both strippers.

If the worst came to the worst in a ladies' garment strike couldn't the ladies adopt knickerbockers?

Yes, but the danger is that the knickerbocker makers would go out in sympathy with the skirt and suit makers.

Will you answer a serious question?

Yes.

Is it true that the garment workers are so strong in the union spirit that they denounce any lady who wears anything except a union suit during a strike?

For that question you stay after school.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

CURING A "COLD"

Jane Brown was 10 years old and she had never had a cold in her life.

Jane went to public school, however, and one snowy day she came home with bright little flags of color in her plump cheeks, and a certain star-like shine in her eyes that her mother distrusted from the first.

Jane didn't want to go out and slide on the hill.

She didn't even want to go to the store for Mandy, who was making ginger cookies, and had run out of molasses.

This was bad enough, but when Jane refused to go to the store for molasses, and cried when she dragged her overshoes off, and left a little pool of snow water on the rug because she had thrown her snowy books on the floor, her mother took her temperature. She knew the child was sick.

Her temperature was nearer 103 than it had ever been in the short span of her life and her mother, with very acute fear in her heart, put the child to bed and sent for the doctor.

Mother Very Much Upset.

He was out of town and it was improbable, his wife said, that he would return before midnight, at least.

Jane's mother looked at the clock desperately.

Phantoms of pneumonia, pleurisy, croup, and bronchitis stalked through her mind.

Then she steadied herself with the common-sense assurance that it might only be a "cold," and began to apply the simple home remedies of which every mother has an instinctive, or it may be, a maternal knowledge.

Jane had a temperature. Therefore the thing to do was to give her a warm sponge bath in bed to soothe the twitching muscles, to relax the tense little, burning hot body, and to reduce the fever, to some extent at least.

How Mother Eased the Child.

Having undressed the child and placed her between blankets, the mother closed the window. While the atmosphere of the room was warming up she brought tepid water, tow, a sponge, a basin of ice water (in which she placed a muslin compress), a hot-water bottle, well protected, which she placed near the child's feet.

Wringing the compress from the cold water, she put it on the child's head, and proceeded swiftly to sponge her hot little body, between the blankets, using quantiti of water, and long, even strokes. The water dried almost at once on the child's hot skin.

After the bath Jane, in a warm nightgown, but between sheets, for blankets are too irritating to be next one's skin when one has a temperature, swallowed castor oil flavored with cinnamon and colored pink. It was not as good as it looked, but Jane was very drowsy and she scarcely knew that she had swallowed castor oil before she was drinking the orange juice that her mother held to her lips.

Child's Tense Muscles Relaxed.

And then she fell asleep. The sponge bath had made her drowsy, had relaxed the tense muscles just as her mother had hoped it would.

The window was opened wide, so wide that the snow blew in and made frost sparkles on the floor.

When the doctor came he simply approved the mother's treatment of the sick child, bent over the little sleeping figure, and said, "Keep her in bed for three days. Give her lots of water to drink, and lemonade and orange juice and all the ice cream she wants."

And at the end of three days Jane, a trifle pale perhaps, but almost better, declared that being sick in bed was rather fun, especially when one could have all the ice cream one could eat.

BANNEKER'S SUCCESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

Samuel Hopkins Adams has gotten out a novel called "Success."

Whatever Adams writes is worth reading, for he has imagination enough to other himself into the reader's mind, tell people what they want to know, and not go galloping along page after page for his own amusement while the impatient reader is waiting for him to come back and say what happened next.

One-third of this book, the first third, is excellent; the second third is fair to middling, and the last third is not much over 50 per cent.

Perhaps that is not the author's fault, for perhaps that is the way his hero turned out and the truthful narrator could not help himself.

In the first part of the book we are shown a strong, clear, and new character in fiction, and we follow him through 152 pages with the same interested delight with which we pursue the acquaintance of a new and charming friend.

The first part of the book is Banneker.

The last part of the book is Mr. Adams's ideas about journalism.

Half of the first part is interesting, and the last part might better have been put in an appendix, as Mark Twain once wrote a story and put all the weather and the descriptions in an appendix so that they who wanted the story could read it and those that wanted to know what kind of a day it was could be satisfied by turning over to the back of the book.

Journalism after all is just journalism. Very much as dry goods and boots and shoes are dry goods and boots and shoes. That is to say, it comes as near to being what the people want as a journalist can get it.

The editor and publisher get up their newspaper for the purpose of selling it, and in order to sell it they try to make it the sort of thing which the most people want.

By this natural law the newspaper becomes probably about the most dependable photograph of the public mind.

It is not an ideal thing. Perhaps it is not the sort of thing the people ought to read. It may not be altogether fair nor honest. It may be prejudiced. And it may be cheap and common.

But granting all these things, it is something more important than any of them. It is what the people want.

This is not a statement to be proved by argument; it is proved by the fact that they buy the paper and read it.

A man may take something for nothing which he does not want. A man may endure something which he may not want because he has to. But as a rule a man does not pay for something he does not want. And a newspaper which the people will not buy simply goes out of business and ceases to exist. So long as we have yellow minds, we must have yellow newspapers. And so long as some other minds are serious and intelligent and free and courageous, other newspapers or parts of them will be like that.

And this has not much to do with Banneker and his success, but then it has about as much to do with it as the third section of Mr. Adams's book.

However, all said and done, "Success" is a refreshing and original volume.

At least two-thirds of it is, and that is a good deal to say for any book.

The Daily Story

MOTHER TO MOTHER

Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner

The moment she took the letter out of the rural delivery box at the roadside Lizzie Andrews felt instinctively that it bore bad tidings. "Mother is worse," she said to herself, tearing the envelope open as she went up the drive to the ranch house. Yet the news of her mother's death that it contained was as great a shock as though she had not been expecting it any time for the last three months.

"We knew you couldn't come on," her sister Ellie wrote, "so we did not telegraph. She had not even written until the day after the funeral. "Everything was so upset with folks coming and going and all," explained Ellie, "and there was so much I had to see to that I just didn't have a spare minute."

Sorrow-stricken, but tearless, Lizzie Andrews sat on the step of the back porch, where she had limply dropped, the open letter in her shaking hand. Her mother dead and everything going on as though nothing had happened, the sky as blue, the flowers as blooming, and the birds twittering as happily as before she heard the creak of the mail wagon climbing the hill and had gone out to the gate so eager for her letter. Her mother not only dead, but buried. In the darkness of her thought her mind groped back to the date of the funeral. Thursday, the day of the Sunday school picnic, her mother was being buried—and she was on a picnic!

A noisy spluttering broke upon the sacred silence of her grief. Automatically Lizzie Andrews sprang to her feet and automatically attended the boilerful of clothes on the kitchen stove. As she put them through the rinsing water and hung them on the line every sound seemed a torturing cry from her heart—"mother is gone! I'll never see her again!"

If only she had got back east on a visit two years before, as she had planned. But just as she was getting ready Billy had been taken with typhoid. And the next spring when she began to make her preparations again Diana had trouble with her eyes and she had to go with her to the city for a long course of treatment at the oculist's. Then the new baby came.

It always had been that way. Whenever she planned a visit home, as she still called it, something had happened to prevent. Only twice during the fourteen years they had been out west, had she succeeded in making a flying trip east. And now the gates of opportunity hard shut in her face, for always it would be too late, and nobody really cared.

When she told him Ed tried to be kind and symphathetic, of course. But she knew he was only sorry because of her pain. That he did not share her grief. For when a year after their marriage Ed had decided upon coming out to California to live, her mother had strongly opposed the move, and he had never quite forgiven some of the things she had said—things that had stung the deeper because the event proved her mother's judgment better than his own.

And to Billy and Diana, who had been left on the ranch with their father on her last visit home, seven years before, their grandmother was little more than a name and at most a pictured face hung by their bed, which as kiddies they had been taught prayers.

Nor did her sister, Ellie really share with Lizzie Andrews in her sorrow. Instead, the letters were all about what Ellie had suffered—Ellie's nervousness, Ellie's sleeplessness, Ellie's worn-outness from the long weeks of nursing her mother in her last illness.

If only she could have worn herself out taking care of her, yearningly thought Lizzie Andrews, the little mother, who in the years gone by had lost so much sleep and had given so much of her strength taking care of her, for Lizzie had been a sickly baby, delicate throughout her childhood.

But she had not sat up with her mother a single night; had not even had a trivial part in the day's little ministries of a sickroom. Nor was it merely in her mother's last illness that she had failed her. In the past long stretch of years had she been with her, as Ellie had been; there were a hundred and one little things in which she could have given her mother—love and sympathy and understanding—the understanding that had come only when she became a mother herself. Instead, the summer after she left high school, in spite of all her mother could say against marrying so young, she had insisted upon marrying Ed, and a year later gone a whole continent away from her.

In the weeks that followed Lizzie Andrews went about her work as usual—except for the white, haggard look on her face, the infinite sadness in her eyes. But no matter how busy she kept her hands, no present task could hold her thoughts. They lived in the past. And constantly she recalled some self-sacrifice on her mother's part—some act of mother love and devotion—not with the sweetness of treasured memories, but as bitter self-accusations of morbid brooding. Her mother had given everything. She had given nothing in return. And now it was too late.

It was an unusually busy day. Besides her everyday work, Lizzie Andrews discovered her cake box was empty and had made a fresh batch of cookies. In the midst of her baking Billy had come into the kitchen and, perching on a corner of the table began to munch cookies by the wholesale. It always gave her a peculiar satisfaction to see Billy eat cookies. His appreciation was so complete. Not that he ever said anything. He did not even give one of his dear grins. Grins were too superficial. When Billy was most ecstatic he fairly scowled. He scowled now and moved his jaws with a masterfulness beautiful to watch.

After Lizzie did up the noonday dishes she tried on the new party dress she had been making for Diana. She'd had a lot of trouble over it. But Di looked lovely in it and took such girlish pleasure in her appearance that Lizzie Andrew's heart felt a warm glow for the rest of the afternoon. Tired and hot, she was in the midst of getting supper when the new baby woke up and cried. Dropping everything, she ran up the stairs to the nursery, where she had put it to sleep. The cry stopped the instant she entered the room and when she hung over the bed the new baby looked up and smiled at her.

It was her fifth baby, for two children had died, but Lizzie Andrews never failed to thrill at that sweetest of miracles in all a mother's experience. The first time that her baby looks smilingly up at her with real recognition in its love-lighted eyes.

And suddenly it came to her in a tremendous flood of tender comfort. Her mother had not given all and received nothing in return. From the beginning she had given back. The stir at heart and the thrill, such as her baby's smile and love-lighted look had given her. The warm glow she had received from Diana's happiness, the satisfaction that had been hers in Billy's gratification over the homely trifle of the cookies.

The act of loving is its own reward,
We mothers need no pity.

With tears set free for the first time since Ellie's letter brought its bad news, Lizzie Andrews stood before the dear picture the children had been taught to kiss, mother to mother, without agony of spirit of morbid self-blame.

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

You remember the old story of the Southern Colonel who was discovered by a friend at a health resort. The friend expressed surprise. He said the Colonel had always seemed healthy.

"Such," said the Colonel, "I was placed in a most embarrassing position the other day. The young lady on whom I has, suh, bestowed my affections, afteh listening to my remonstrances about a certain matter, said to me:

"Colonel, do you believe your eyes or do you believe your Baby?"

"And, suh, being a Southern gentleman, I had no option but to believe mah Baby. So I'm down here taking treatment for mah eyes."

"That's about the way I feel. I sat in what used to be the bar of the Country club the other night and listened to some of my younger friends. They all agreed that the modern girl is impossible. She asks too much, they said. It was impossible for a young man to get married, because the girls wanted to live on a scale that few young men could afford. When a young man of today entertains a girl, they said, he stays broke for the rest of the month.

"We used to take 'em to dinner, and maybe a little vaudeville afterward," said the boys. "Once in a while to a little, quiet, home-early dance. Now they want to lick up booze at fifteen dollars the contraband quart, and dine before the show, and take supper after it, and then dance in some jazz kennel until the sun begins to shine through the cashier's window. We cannot stand the matrimonial pace at that rate."

All the young men said the same thing. Three of them confessed that they had broken their engagements, with the consent and appropriation of the young women. Another said he was still engaged, but with no more probability of getting married than has an alligator. The foolishness, they admitted is not all on one side.

"Nobody," they said, "is getting married any more."

Yet the old minister who officated when our particular household was established tells me that there never was such a season for marriages. So far as he can see, too, the jazzy couples are just as painfully domestic as the old-fashioned sort after a few months of married life.

Is it possible that the world is not going to perdition after all?

T. E. L. CLASS TO HOLD DEBATE SUNDAY.

The T. E. L. class of the First Baptist church will hold a debate Sunday morning on the question, "That it requires greater faith, moral strength and will power to surmount adversities than it does to overcome the temptation that goes with what is ordinarily called financial success." Mrs. C. C. Jones will be leader for the affirmative and Mrs. J. L. Fox for the negative.

Each leader will select three helpers and the remainder of the class is expected to study the question from all points so that they may be able to talk on either side when called upon.

RECIPES

Roast Turkey.

To prepare the turkey, dress it thoroughly and rub, inside and out, with salt and pepper. Make a dressing as follows: To a loaf of stale bread, from which the crust has been removed, add enough warm water to soften. Chop it in the chopping bowl and add salt and pepper, ground sage, and butter to season. Stuff this into the turkey and sew up all openings. Spread butter, salt and pepper over the outside of the turkey and add a cup of hot water before putting it into the hot oven. When seered over a little, cover to steam it thoroughly until tender, then remove the cover and let it brown. A ten-pound turkey should roast about three hours. When making the gravy, drain off surplus grease, add the chopped giblets, previously cooked; add milk and thicken with flour.

Cranberry Sauce.

To one quart of cranberries, add one cup of water and cook merely until tender. Strain out skins and add two cups sugar without further cooking. Too much cooking gives a strong flavor to cranberries.

Frozen Fruit-Salad.

To one cup each of neatly cut, not mashed, orange, banana, and pineapple, add the following salad dressing: Beat three egg yolks, three tablespoons of sugar, teaspoon salt, half teaspoon each of white pepper and mustard, eight teaspoons vinegar. Beat well and place in bowl which is then set in hot water over fire until it thickens. Stir during the thickening process. Remove from fire and add a tablespoon of butter. When cold add a cup of whipped cream (measured after whipping). Pack in a mold and surround with chipped ice and salt, not too much salt or it will freeze too hard. Leave in mold four hours, then remove from mold, cut in slices and lay on lettuce leaf. Serve with dainty bread-and-butter sandwiches or cheese wafers.

Fashions for Americans

The group of accessories shown in the sketch includes a dainty little vestee and cuff set made of white broadcloth or fine velour, finished all about the edges with self cording and trimmed with a bit of line embroidery. Then there are a girdle made of black velvet ribbons, finished with tassels, and a sleevelet of dotted net trimmed with lace edging and insertion. The little lace ruffle extending from wrist to elbow is a pretty feature. Whether full length or short, these sleevelets are finished at the upper edge with snug elastic bands, so that they stay in place without being pinned to the garment they are to form a part of and finish. So many of the flared sleeves are featured in frocks and suits that the separate sleevelet is quite as important as the vestee or collar and cuff set this season, and many dainty things are offered by accessory designers.

Among the new inexpensive jewelery novelties may be noted an array of floral effects in the form of brooches, bracelets, lavallieres, hairpins, and combs, etc. The flowers are so dainty in form as to resemble ribbon flowers, and exquisite colorings are featured.

The newest bead girdles seen are also interesting. Shown in various widths and colorings plain net forms the foundation for these new girdles, the surface of the net being covered with tiny beads set on in many novel designs. Sometimes the ends are finished with deep fringe of beads in single or double strands, or a row of bead tassels may give the finishing touch. The advantage of one of these net and bead girdles is that it may be draped so gracefully about the waist. Bulkiness is absent.

Each week seems to see new and interesting things added to the accessories displays, emphasizing the importance of minor items of dress.

WOMAN-I-TORIALS

Cookery.

We housewives are of necessity buckling right down these days to "hard pan"—the fry pan. Brisk autumn winds blow up hearty appetites and these confront us voraciously three times a day. There's "no two ways about it," we HAVE to cook. Such being the case, we may dignify our labor with the pleasant viewpoint set forth by Ruskin:

Cookery means the knowledge of Medea, and of Circe, and of Helen and of the Queen of Sheba. It means knowledge of herbs and fruits and balms and spices and all that is healing and sweet in the fields and groves, and savory in meats. It means carefulness and inventiveness and willingness and readiness of appliances. It means the economy of your grandmothers and the science of the modern chemist; it means much testing and no wasting; it means English thoroughness and French art and Arabian hospitality; and, in fine, it means that you are to be perfectly and always ladies—loaf givers.

To-Club or Not-to-Club?

Are we clubbed to death, or is there still room for the clubbist to propagate his kind? Winter, the sociable season, the time for restful accomplishment, approaches and it behooves us to decide how we shall tackle things—as individuals or as organizations.

Some women say, "I find, if I want to learn anything, I can accomplish more if I sit down with my own little book and go at it." There is sense in this. Others reckon "In union there is strength," and inspiration, and accumulation of ideas—and fun. Also wise!

It is a "true fact" that the club movement is still on the increase. Unions of capitalists and of laborers, of students and of reformers, of artists and of pleasure seekers, of politicians and of health enthusiasts, still act together to bring about that which none of them could effect alone. Association, friendship, adds the touch of sweetness to life, and no lonely soul should languish for the lack of it. Some sort of two or three gathered together in the name of some uplifting enterprise should make every four corners blossom as the rose with the warmth of happy assembly. It is to-club, is it not?

CHAPTER XI.

"If putting money away, money that I earned, so that I might keep a home for you all is being deceitful, then I have deceived. It was my own money. I had a right to use it. But instead of using it I saved it for you—for you, mother, and you, dad—more than for the others. That interest must be paid or you will have no home. Sam and I together could not make enough to give you a home anywhere else. Who is going to pay that interest?" she asked again.

Suddenly her mother commenced to cry, hard, bitter sobs shaking her body.

"Don't cry, mother." Ruth begged. "Crying won't bring the money back." She began to feel that she had been guilty. Never but once before had she ever seen her mother weep. Not even when Dad lost his job.

"Nice pleasant time we're having!" Susan glibly remarked. "Nice party! I'm hungry. Don't we get any dinner because you found Ruthie's money?"

"You go set the table, dear; that's a good girl," Ruth replied. Frank, boyish Susan was her delight.

"Now, mother, that you have stopped crying we must plan what to do. First, Betty, that hat must go back. Is there anything else you have bought, mother, that can be returned?"

"If that hat and the other things mother bought me go back I go with them! I can earn money even if Ruth thinks I can't! I won't punch a time clock to do it either. There are other ways of making money," the sophistocated Betty declared.

"Oh, Betty!" The horror in Ruth's voice was unmistakable. "Keep your hat, dear, and the other things. We will find some way to meet the interest. We will live on twenty dollars, mother. That will let me save fifteen dollars a week for the five weeks—seventy-five dollars. Sam will have to let us have the rest when his money comes in. I am sorry, Sam. I wanted you to have all of yours this month. You need so many things."

"Twenty dollars to feed this family and pay gas bills and other things. I can't do it!" Mrs. Browning wailed. "You can't expect me to, Ruth. Deceiving us and earning thirty-five dollars—I can't get over it."

"Do keep still, mother? You will have to do as Ruth says. God knows what would become of us all if it wasn't for her. We are an ungrateful lot, every damn one of us!"

"Dont swear, Sam. I never brought my children up to deceive and swear. I don't see where such a strain comes from. It must be in your father's family somewhere. I know it never came from my side of the house."

"You will have to manage some way, mother," Ruth's listless voice broke in. "I will keep out only carfare. You can make a sandwich for my luncheon.

"It's a shame—" Sam interrupted, then stopped at a sign from Ruth. She had endured almost all of which she was capable.

"I have thought it was selfish in you to use lunch money. A sandwich would do nicely. But Sam wouldn't hear to it. He made a lot of talk about your needing something hot."

"She does too——"

"S-h-s, Sam." Ruth raised a warning finger. Then: "Then, you will have to make twenty dollars do—rather nineteen. My car fare is a dollar. Just as soon as the interest is paid you can have more. I start right away saving for the next six months, so I won't have to keep out only five dollars a week." Already she had decided that whatever she saved must go in the savings bank.

"I can't get over it, deceiving us like you have, Ruth. When you say your prayers tonight you better ask to be forgiven. I never thought—" The whining voice trailed faintly back into the room as Mary Browning answered an impatient call from Susan.

"I'm sorry, Ruthie."

Henry Browning spoke for the first time.

"Never mind, dad. It will come all right. I was frightened about be interest."

"I'm a pretty poor stick. I guess Hart was right when he called me 'driftwood.' There ain't no strength in me for any one to lean on, not any more."

"You'll get something to do pretty soon, dad; then you'll feel better. Don't worry about me. I don't mind—so very much." A twisted smile was all she could manage. A smile that caused Sam to gulp and try to swallow his Adam's apple.

"And Ruthie—you heard what Betty said—about—punching a time clock—and easier—ways. We must watch out for Betty, Ruth. She is too pretty for a poor man's girl—too pretty for her own safety." Then: "She loves pretty things too, Ruth. We must look out for her."

"We will, dad. She shall have all the pretty things I can get her." Then, frightened a bit by what her father had said, Ruth went in search of Betty, told her she looked lovely in the new hat; that she could keep it and all the other things.

IN BED EIGHT MONTHS

Cause—Change of Life. How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Got Me Up

Afton, Tenn.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. During the Change of Life I was in bed for eight months and had two good doctors treating me but they did me no good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did and in a short time felt better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me. Now when I feel weak and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good."—Mrs. A. KELLER, Afton, Tennessee.

Women from forty-five to fifty years of age should take warning from such symptoms as heat flashes, palpitation of the heart, smothering or fainting spells, or spots before the eyes, and prepare their system for this perfectly natural change by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has helped many, many women through this trying period, just as it did Mrs. Keller.

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE TO LEAD FIGHT AGAINST DRAFT

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—That a few fleecy clouds, which may possibly gather into an ominous storm, lie on the baseball horizon was the estimation gleaned yesterday from the casual conversation of Dr. Charles H. Strub, president of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League.

He conferred with Colonel T. L. Huston, vice president of the Yankees, in the offices of the latter team, concerning the possibility of the American League champions training out in the environs of the Golden Gate next spring.

Dr. Strub's minor object for his trip was the conversation with Colonel Huston just mentioned, and his major one was to attend the annual meeting of the National Association of Minor League Baseball Clubs, which is to convene at Buffalo, on December 5. He said that the Pacific Coast League, which is a class AA organization, was utterly opposed to the draft system of upbuilding major league ranks from the minors, chiefly on the ground that, in the case of his own league, the process had for its chief result the retention of minor league status for what the owners on the brink of the Pacific Ocean think is a potential third major league.

Dr. Strub called attention yesterday to the population upon which the Pacific Coast League teams draw. He said that the Los Angeles and Vernon teams, which are neighbors, had the support of 650,000 persons, while San Francisco and Oakland aggregated 786,000 population upon which these two clubs, which use the same baseball park, could draw. The remaining teams of the circuit are situated in communities of the sizes indicated: Salt Lake City, 118,000; Portland, 258,000; Seattle, 315,000; and Sacramento, 65,000.

Dr. Strub also said: "Now, with such large masses of people to draw upon, a very large percentage of whom are baseball fans, we think we can build up a genuine and flourishing league, if not prevented by the tapping of our veins of their richest blood through the process of the draft. We had good attendance throughout the circuit in the last season, the crowds reaching as high as 21,000 in numbers, and the enthusiasm was unflagging.

"In view of our prosperity and prospects, we are not willing to submit to the withdrawal at will of our choicest players for nominal sums by the majors. This sort of thing, of course, weakens not only the strength of the clubs but the interest of the fans. We shall make a fight on this point at Buffalo and hope to line up the leading minor leagues in our own attitude.

"I, myself—and I am speaking now for myself solely—would be perfectly willing to secede from organized baseball rather than to submit to the draft. I feel sure that I am not alone in that feeling too."

So, altogether, it looks like a merry time at Buffalo early next month, and at joint sessions later on in Manhattan.

President Strub denied the recent report that Detroit had pried loose from the San Francisco club Jim O'Connell, first baseman, and Jim Caveney, shortstop. He said that the entire Pacific Coast League was opposed to parting with star players.

CORNELL AND CALIFORNIA U. NOT TO PLAY?

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 28.—There is scant possibility, it was stated here today, that Cornell University will accept an invitation from Pasadena to send her undefeated football team to California to play in the annual New Year's East versus West game at Tournament Field, with the University of California as the opponent. The invitation from Pasadena came today, but, because of the absence of Graduate Manager Berry, it was impossible to learn what answer will be sent. It is understood from other sources, however, that Cornell will not accept the invitation, the season having officially closed with the game with University of Pennsylvania.

OFFICE SAFE AND $25 IN CASH IS TAKEN BY ROBBERS

Slight pay for considerable heavy lifting was received by bandits who robbed the Hillside Filling Station, Eighth and Burnett streets Sunday night removing bodily a heavy office safe which they are supposed to have transported away in an automobile, according to the report Monday of police. The thieves were reported to have obtained about $25.

Entrance was supposed to have been gained by removing an east side window, officers reporting that marks on the window sill indicated that the safe had been hoisted through that opening.

The case is being investigated by City Detectives Lenly Humphris and Bob Hembree, who expressed a belief that the safe had been rifled at some distant point.

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—Charles W. Paddock, holder of several world's records in sprint races, has reconsidered his decision never to run again and will attempt to lower the world's record for the 440-yard dash some time during the next season.

He will again represent the University of Southern California.

JINX WAS A GOOD MULE, BUT NOW HE HAS NO ARMY PALS

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Jinx, the stubborn one-eyed mule the West Point cadets borrowed from the Fort Bloom remount station for a football mascot, has been fired—kicked out.

Braying his dissatisfaction, Jinx started on his homeward journey without a wisp of hay or a single oat. His rear hoofs flew out in the general direction of two cadet muleteers, but missed.

If Jinx (he was named after the game) had won Saturdays game he would have been paraded through the ball room of a swell hotel and put up for the night in a commodious, hay-filled, oat-lined stall on the roof.

CINCINNATI U. BALL TEAM TO TOUR EAST

The University of Cincinnati team won the Ohio Conference championship in baseball two years in succession.

AUSTRALIAN CRITIC THINKS DAVIS CUP MAY BE LIFTED NEXT YEAR BY TENNIS STAR OF ANTIPODES

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—Indications that Norman E. Brookes and Gerald Patterson will accompany Australia's next challenging team for the Davis cup are contained in the comment of Austral, leading tennis critic of the Antipodes in a recent article in the Sydney Referee. As Austral's opinions are usually more or less semi-official they are bound to interest American devotees of the sport.

He intimates that James O. Anderson, who defeated William T. Tilden in the east-west matches following the national championship, is likely to return as one of the members of the challenging team and play singles in the Davis cup event and that Gerald Patterson, with a greatly improved backhand, will be ready to assist Anderson in a serious bid for the international trophy.

The veteran Brookes is to come back as captain of the team and the leading candidate for the Davis cup doubles matches with O'Hara Wood next in line for doubles and John B. Hawkes an alternate in singles. Beginning with an appreciation of Anderson's rapid progress toward the top of the tennis ladder, Austral's comment follows:

"J. O. Anderson's defeat of William T. Tilden opens up a fresh vista for the Australasian team of 1922. It brightens the prospects of the men of the Southern Cross actually and morally. Lawn tennis leaders will now concentrate on the greeat objective with renewed determination to relieve Uncle Sam of his Davis cup.

"Writing last week of Tilden's magnificent performances during the last fifteen months, I said that some day G. L. Patterson or J. O. Anderson might defeat him. One little thought that actually the next day one's surmise would prove a prophecy. It is truly magnificent. We never anticipated, when our team of colts went away, that they would return with such a fine record, and not one of us dreamed that any one of the team would have Tilden's scalp at his belt.

"Anderson evidently played his own game and at his top. As to the strength of his strokes, there has never been much doubt. In 1914, after my trip around the world, I wrote in this column that there was not a forehand drive in the world equal to his. Of course, that of W. M. Johnston, as we saw it at Auckland, is superior to anything we ever saw from Anderson, but his drive on the forehand must have improved vastly. In addition, he must have improved out of sight all around."

After saying that due allowance should be made for the fact that Tilden had doubtless "let down" after the strain of his championship matches, and that the importance of Anderson's victory should not be overemphasized, Austral continues:

"This win has changed the whole aspect of the next David cup match, if Anderson can manage to go across next year. That is just the rub. To go two years running is a big expense for a young fellow. Probably the difficulty will be got over, for with Anderson in such form and Patterson as he should be, and with Brookes and O'Hara, Wood and Hawkes and others to choose from for the doubles, we should go close indeed to even defeating America."

KAW, CORNELL BACK, LEADS GRID MEN AS INDIVIDUAL SCORER

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Leadership of college players of the east in individual scoring for the season Cornell back whose sensational showing against Penn last Thursday was just enough to nose out Malcolm Aldrich of Yale.

The Yale captain, however, carried off the honors in field goal kicking with five to his credit. Hanson of Cornell leads by a big margin in goals kicked from touchdowns, having made 27 accurate boots from the fifteen yard mark.

Kaw scored ninety points and Aldrich eighty-six.

REDS AND INDIANS PLAN BALL BATTLE FOR OHIO CROWN

CINCINNATI, Nov. 28.—A series of games next spring to decide the baseball championship of Ohio is being considered by the Cincinnati and Cleveland clubs. The Cincinnati Nationals will train at Mineral Wells, Texas, and the Cleveland Americans will practice at Dallas, Texas, less than four hours distance by rail. The games probably will be played at Dallas, Mineral Wells and Fort Worth, three in each city.

CITY QUINTET OF BURK 47; TIDAL FIVE 24

BURKBURNETT, Nov. 28.—Continuing its brilliant playing of the past week, the City quintet of the local basketball league, defeated the strong Tidal Western five here this evening by a score of 47 to 24. The game was hard-fought throughout, and a record number of fouls and the resultant free throws added considerably to the scores of both teams.

The line-up and summary:

Tidal Western		City

Shaffer	L. G.	Breman

THE FOOTBALL RAVEN

(Apologies to No One)

By "NICK" AND "PAT"

Once upon a midnight dreary,
As I pondered weak and weary
O'er a football game my team had lost
By a six to nothing score.
Suddenly there came a tapping.
'Twas an idea gently rapping
At the entrance to my think shop
'Way up on the topmost floor.

You poor simp, this idea told me,
As it started in to scold me,
You were nutty, crazy, betting
On your team the day before.
This Y. U. eleven's funny,
If you want to win some money
Bet your diamonds on the next game
That the rubes don't even score.

From that day, friends, I was wealthy,
First State bank account grew healthy,
Filthy lucre, unearned money,
That stuff I won some amount of.
Never once the Y. U.'s crossed me,
Every time they played they lost the Game by big top-heavy scores
That the referee lost count of.

This is not for publication
As a moral to the nation,
Though the moral that it carries
More than offsets lack of rhyme.
It is for our rival's guidance
When he undertakes to ride us
'Bout some game his team was handed
'Long about Thanksgiving time.

Maybe, now, the school you went to,
Or the one that you were sent to,
Had a course in gridiron tactics
Most complete and quite extensive.
If they win about twice yearly,
Backing them will cost you dearly:
LOVE, SOMETIMES, IS REAL EXPENSIVE!

SMOOTH OUT ANGLES IN BURK ROAD

The county commissioners' court in session on Monday did away with two more right angle curves and two other curves of lesser angle on the Burkburnett road when they accepted the offer of A. E. Frieberg for a right of way without cost across his farm at the north edge of the city limits.

As authorized by the court the concrete road instead of turning to the left the Panhandle Refining company corner will angle off to the left across the Frieberg and Abner Davis Refining company properties, striking the present road about a quarter mile north of the Lone Star Refining company property.

The new road will be approximately a mile and a quarter long and will shorten the distance to Burkburnett approximately 1800 feet, according to County Engineer Isbell.

The change will eliminate the present two right angle curves along the Panhandle Refining company property and north of the Lone Star Refining company property will do away with two other bad curves. According to Mr. Isbell the saving of 1800 feet of paving will more than pay the cost of two bridges that will have to be built with the new right of way.

The change has been under consideration by the commissioners' court for several months. The court was not in favor of purchasing the right of way but agreed to make the change when it was offered them without cost. In spite of the fact that work on the construction of the road will start within the next three weeks it is expected that the new right of way can be gotten in condition so that no delays will be necessary.

The court authorized the employment of a stenographer for the county attorney's office, the $100 monthly salary to come out of the fees of the office.

MAY REJECT ALL BIDS ON HOSPITAL

After ten bids had been opened and tabulated action on awarding the contract for the construction of the addition to the Wichita General hospital was postponed until today at a joint meeting of the county commissioners' court and the city council Monday.

Although the bids were opened in executive session and no announcement was made by members it is understood that the bids were regarded too high, the postponement until today being made until further tabulation could be made regarding the bids.

A crowd of 25 men representing contractors who had made bids waited outside the court room while the bids were being discussed. More bids were received than for any city or county improvement in the past several years, according to county officials.

BALK LINE BILLIARDS NOW TOO EASY FOR TITLE PLAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Is billiards about to undergo another revolutionary change? The question is furnishing a lively topic for debate about the clubs and rooms. There is the opinion that mastery of the 18.2 balk line method is at hand.

Once more American ingenuity appears to have solved the problem of almost limitless runs, after having been shown the basic mechanics of the possibility by Edouard Horemans, the Belgian professional.

The opinion appears to prevail that the world's championship at Chicago has furnished a partial answer. Every one of the competitors has put together massive runs. Jake Schaefer made 287, Willie Hoppe 186, Welker Cochran 172, and so on under conditions not entirely favorable to the topmost flights of accomplishment.

Now along comes John G. Hemmer and Joseph G. Davis, two of the foremost experts of Chicago, who express themselves in the Billiards Magazine as follows:

"Without detracting one whit from the merits of three cushion and pocket billiards, it generally has been conceded that balk line is the hardest game of the three styles to master. Its intricacies are many, especially the present style of 18.2.

"Originally, billiards was played with four balls and then with three. The experts obtained such complete mastery over the straight rail style of play, that others which included eight-inch, fourteen-inch cushion caroms, the championship game, and others were tried. The eight and fourteen-inch games were mastered and for a number of years 18.2 has been the standard style of play and while 18.1 was also used as a championship, it never was as popular as the 18.2 game.

"Now it begins to look as if the leading professionals have mastered the 18.2 game, or at least are on the road to mastery. When Horemans can run a 400-point game out from the break, as he did last month in New York, when Jake Schaefer can make a run of 486 as he did against McAndless, and when Willie Hoppe picks off a run of 390, as he did against Peterson at New York, it begins to look as if there was no limit to their possibilities, except from the physical strain of making such big runs.

"If the players in the world's championship can produce anything like this speed it will be possible for games to be won without the other fellow having more than a couple of shots, and this hardly will be interesting from the viewpoint of the onlooker."

There is more to this proposition than appears to most of the casual observers on the surface. The figures referred to are impressing. They have been surpassed by George H. Sutton, the handless billard player. This marvel, who is familiar to followers of the game in this city, compiled a run of 799 at 18.2 balk line in New York on January 17, of the prescent year. This run, which was part of an exhibition series of competitions, is claimed as a record.

The handless artist of the cue and ivory orbs has accomplished a number of other performances quite as surprising. His dexterity at straight rail billiards, discarded by the great players when the late Frank Ives invented a method that produced unlimited count, has produced a run of 3,009.

Another indication that 18.2 balk line is fast yielding, as snow before an April sun, is to be found in the impressive manipulation of Horemans. Whatever may be said of this professional as a match player, it is certain that his exhibitions have been astonishing and illuminating. The stocky little Belgian has put together an imposing cluster of 701 at the 18.2 balk line game, with a goodly company surrounding the table to vouch for its authenticity.

HARVARD VICTORY HAS NOT DIMMED TAD'S BRILLIANCY

Tad Jones.

Yale's failure to overcome its jinx and defeat Harvard after the most successful season in years was a sad blow to the sons of Old Eli. But the Crimson victory has not hurt Jones' prestige or detracted from the wonders Jones worked with the Yale team his year. Tad had made a winning team out of only fair material. The team was young—many of the players being second year men. Against Harvard's veteran, perfectly developed machine Tad's youngsters fell.

GREENLEAF TO DEFEND POOL TITLE NEXT MONTH

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Ralph Greenleaf, who won the world's pocket billiard championship for the third consecutive time in the recent tournament at Philadelphia, will defend his title in a challenge match here December 21, 22 and 23 against Arthur Woods, of Minneapolis. This match will consist of three blocks of 150 points each.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 28.—Lewis (Red) Lutz, a local catcher, will get a tryout with the Cincinnati Nationals next spring. Lutz has had experience in the Florida League, and with the Independent club of Greensboro, N. C.

COMEDY SCORES BIG AT WICHITA MONDAY NIGHT

"Comedy" is an overworked word to use in describing a play such as the "Misleading Lady" is, and by the same token "excellent" is a woefully insufficient term to characterize the way the Lewis-Worth company put it over on the opening night Monday, at the Wichita theater. But the reporter not being able to call to mind anything particularly brilliant to say about it will simply state it is one of the funniest plays that was ever invented to chase the gloom from the human family and that all through this comedy there runs the love strain, sometimes submerged but unconsciously revealing itself. And this love is the most "far gone" kind, where its victims do the most unheard of things and act, as they shouldn't.

It is one of these plays that starts out like it had a mission, a moral, a purpose, but all the good resolutions come to naught when the little unclothed boy with wings and a high silk hat steps on the scene. It is likewise a little akin to propaganda—that the woman who tries to make a fool out of serious minded man sometimes gets all she deserves. In this case the ending would leave one under the impression that such is the case because to all intents and purposes she and the fellow she put the boof sign on are in a regular movie "fadeout" when the final goes down.

Gene Lewis and Olga Worth again prove themselves to be true disciples of the art of grease paint in the parts of Jack Craigen, the kidnapper, and Helen Steels, the kidnapped.

But Klock Ryder, as Napoleon plays the part of the harmless nut with a finesse which leaves nothing to be desired. His antics make the smiles broaden until the roar of laughter comes without effort. Without a doubt is one of the best character actors which has honored a local stage—and there have been some pretty highly rated. The spians who have parked their trunks in the prop room of the Wichita theater in the years of its life.

Joe Remington, as Henry Tracy, the husband to be of the stage struck girl who pracises her vampishness on the young hero, plays his part with great ability. He succeeds in leaving no doubt but that a girl would be justified in leaving such an affianced.

The other members of the cast including Edward Beach, Ted Brackett, Jack Poty, Charles Lammers, Jack Emmerson, Robert Bell and Misses Lee Smith, Irene Daniel and Pauline De Roy, conduct themselves as to thoroughly be in harmony with the rest of the cast and although their individual appearance on the stage is infrequent, they have their part toward making the whole play thoroughly agreeable.

"The Misleading Lady" will be the attraction for the remainder of the week.

Premier Acts From Sells-Floto to Show in Bargain Day Street Carnival

Now that it is common knowledge that Stanislaus Zbyszko has successfully defended his heavyweight wrestling championship against the cunning brain (?) of "Strangler" Lewis, thereby lifting a heavy burden of anxiety from the heads of countless millions of freeborn folk, let us hie forth today and make merry in a mad, mad manner. Granted that all of us are merry, and half of us are mad, where then shall we hie?

Let us hie downtown, fellow citizens, and become participants in the frenzied frolic of the Sells-Floto-Circus - Chamber - of Commerce - Retail - Merchants'-Association street fair. Let us linger at 2:30 o'clock this gallumptious afternoon in the neighborhood of Eighth street and Scott avenue and see the "doings" on the big elevated platform. The Sells-Floto circus has "busted" for the 1921 season, but its paid-off merrymakers and thrill producers are still visitors in Wichita Falls—and a number of 'em will bravely and boldly mount upon said elevated platform and cavort right breezily for the entertainment of the public; and for once, by heck, it won't cost the dear public a single kopeck.

The Human Frog will croak (or whatever it is that constitutes his specialty); the Midget Acrobats will midget and acrobat; Miss Delno will attempt some staircase stunts, and the Monett Trio will tumble from one edge of the platform to the other—one of 'em might even tumble off the platform, thereby throwing in an extra thrill for which also there will be no charge.

It's trade day also, folks, and the stores of the city are offering bargains in this, that and t'other article needed in the mansion of the rich, the cottage of the poor, the hotel room of the traveling salesman, the suitcase of the discharged circus employe and the apartment of the bachelor.

So, let us make merry together in mad, mad manner, and hie forth. What, ho! Let us hie!

WOMEN STOPPED BY MASKED MEN; ALLOWED TO GO

"You are the wrong women. We were looking for three women in an automobile and thought you were them," two masked highwaymen told Mrs. Grace Higgins of 1515 Kemp boulevard, Miss Jim Covey and Mrs. C. A. Stuckney Monday night after they had stopped theem by running their automobile directly in the path of the machine driven by Mrs. Higgins.

According to Deputy Sheriffs Ollie McDonald and Ralph Hohatsch the hold-up occurred at Tenth and Holiday streets.

Mrs. Higgins asserted that after stopping their car the two bandits approached their car, holding a pistol or revolver pointed in their general direction.

Although all three occupants of the car had their purses in plain view neither of the men made any attempt to obtain them according to the report, but indicated that they were hunting women whom they would be able to recognie. The affair is being investigated by the police.

PAIN IN MUSCLES AND JOINTS CAUSED BY RHEUMATISM

To Get Genuine Relief You Must Clear Your Blood of Waste Products.

If we could keep our human bodies clean of the poisons which accumulate in them daily, and give them the full benefit of proper diet, we should live far beyond the average span of human life.

But alas! We realize only too often that we have an excess of waste products in our system. This poisonous waste matter not only causes a lowered vitality and many forms of skin disorders, but it also causes rheumatism—a disease that has no equal for pain. Genuine relief from the agonies of rheumatism can be had only by correcting the basic trouble—waste products.

Thousands and thousands of men and women during the past 50 years have cleared their blood of waste products with S. S. S. It is the ideal remedy for rheumatism, because it removes the poisonous waste matter which is causing the trouble. There are no bad after effects and the result is wonderful. Begin taking S. S. Council Passes Paving on Front On First Reading

The passing of the first reading of an ordinance authorizing the paving on Front street between Indiana and Ohio streets and a complaint filed by J. W. Hopper of this city in an effort to collect house rent from a member of the fire department, whom he alleged had contracted to live in the house for six months and had left after one month, constituted practically the only business accomplished at a short session of the city council Monday night.

The complaint of Hopper was passed without action by the council the members holding that the matter involved a personal contract between two parties, which should be settled between them or by legal action and not by arbitrary action of the council. Hopper contended that the man had signed a written agreement to live in the house for six months and should be forced to pay the rent for that period. The fireman was not present. It was said, however, that the fireman alleged that something was wrong with the electric wiring in the house and had moved out.

The council was adjourned to 9 o'clock Tuesday morning when the ordinance providing for laying the pavement on Front street, is to come up for its second reading. The ordinance was opened for hearing Monday night and no protest offered.

SERMONS OF DR. A. LICHTENSTEIN ARE HEARD BY MANY

"The Call of Salvation" is announced as the subject for the Tuesday evening sermon of Dr. A. Lichtenstein, Christian Jew, who is conducting a series of evangelistic services at the Floral Heights Presbyterian church. The services are reported attracting increasing attention and with people coming from considerable distances to hear the addresses.

Two young men were publicly offered for the ministry during the service Monday night by a father and mother. The services are being held under the auspices of the First Presbyterian church and the public is cordially invited to hear the sermons from a Christian Jew, who has been preaching the gospel for 40 years and has suffered isolation from practically all of his former friends and associates through his acceptance of the teachings of the New Testament, officials of the church announce.

CITY TEACHERS TO MEET WEDNESDAY

Topics of interest brought before the meeting of the State Teachers' association of Texas, convening in Dallas last week, will be brought before the teachers of Wichita Falls at a teachers' meeting to be held Wednesday afternoon at the Senior High school, it was announced Monday by Superintendent Lee Clark. A number of local teachers attended the meeting from here, and it is expected that these will be called on to make short talks.

A good attendance was reported at all city schools Monday, despite the rival attractions of the circus. Teachers and school board members announced that no more holidays can be granted until Christmas.

Injunction Is Granted Against Electric Co.

Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court Monday issued a temporary injunction restraining the Wichita Falls Electric company from stopping its service at the lease of the Harrel Production company in the northwest field, Burkburnett district, pending a hearing on certain irregularities as to charges made by the Harrel company.

The plaintiff charges that the company presented a bill for $135 for two months' service in violation of an agreement for a charge of $40 a month. The plaintiff alleges that the company has threatened to cut off their service unless the two months' bill was paid.

Experiments in legal execution show that a person expecting a shock will resist a shock that would kill one not expecting it.

Believe Thieves Fire Prairie to Permit Robbery

Believed to have set fire to a 100 acre pasture in order to cause the occupants of the house to leave robbers Sunday afternoon took about $300 in money from the home of Jim George, six miles northeast of Iowa Park according to reports here Monday.

The fire in the pasture was discovered about 4 p. m. It spread quickly to all parts of the 100 acre tract and required the efforts of all members of the George family with the aid of neighbors before it was gotten under control. No arrests have been made in connection with the robbery and there are no clues as to their identity it is understood.

JUDGE DIDN'T CRAVE ACQUAINTANCE WITH ARKANSAS "BITERS"

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 28.—Arkansas travelers" have b n the one irritation in an otherwise peaceful existence of Tishimingo Watson and Patrick Henry, negr , for some time.

The two lads recently left their home in Hope, Ark. Their destination was uncertain. They were seeking a "bath and relief from a shirtful of 'Arkansas bitters.'"

Traveling via the box-car route, Watson and Henry arrived in Kansas City. They journeyed out to a public bathhouse.

They were found by a patrolman stretched out on a park lawn, scantily clothed, busily engrossed in "reading their shirts."

Tishimingo endeavored to explain the circumstances to Judge Edward Fleming in the Municipal Court.

"Yo' Hono', no ahmy cootie is mo Bitefo' 'an dis heah Arkansaw sk'eer. Patrick Henry and I jes' decided to leave 'em behind. We was told about the bath out there whar the coppa caught us. They wasn't any watch in that place, so we went outside and tah'd pickin'."

"Out of court—get out of my court quick," Judge Fleming shrieked.

And Tishimingo and Henry made a hasty retreat.

Some Chest-Nuts

Old Phultboy was annoyed. To help a poor man he had given him a standing order for some turkeys and he hadn't got what he ordered.

"Hodge!" yelled Phultboy. "Some time ago I asked you to supply my family with turkeys, didn't I?"

"Yes, sir; thank you, sir:" replied Hodge, touching his cap.

"And I told you I wanted tame ones, not wild," continued Phultboy.

"Yes, sir; thank you, sir:" replied Hodge, again touching his cap.

"Well, that last one you sent us was a wild turkey!" stormed the exasperated buyer.

"No, sir; begging your pardon, sir, it wasn't!"

"But I found some shot in it!" screamed old Phultboy.

"Well, sir, begging your pardon, sir, that was a tame bird all right. That shot was meant for me."

Henry Ford said at a dinner in Dearborn: "The American farmer is the most prospective man in the world if you approach him with practical ideas—tractors, say. If you approach him with the idea of no value, he's apt to be sarcastic. 'Friend,' said a college professor to a farmer one summer day, 'what are you feeding those hogs?' 'Corn,' said the farmer. 'Are you feeding the corn, friend, wet or dry?' 'Dry.' Friend, friend, don't you know that if you wet the corn the hogs will digest it in half the time?' The farmer laughed. 'Look here,' he said, 'how much do you think a hog's time is worth'?"

Aarons had had a beautiful fire, a perfect fire. Curtains, hung ostensibly to keep dust from the shelves, had served to carry the flames right round the warehouse. Into the blackened shop stepped Umpstein, full of condolences.

"A bad job, Aarons, mein friend," he said—"a bad job!"

"Bad job!" exclaimed Aarons. "See here; how would you improve on it?"

Booth Tarkington, according to Gerald du Maurier, who knows him well, is an American patriot. Recently when he was in Italy a native spoke to him of Vesuvius.

"Well, anyway," said the Italian, "I'm sure you have nothing like Vesuvius in the United States."

"We've got Niagara Falls," said Tarkington, "which could put the blamed thing out in just about two minutes.

Senator Newberry said at a dinner in Washington: "People who accuse others often accuse themselves. It's like the case of the ugly hired girl. butcher's all flurried, one day. Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Rails and railway equipment continued to lead the irregular price movement on the stock exchange today. The recent broad demand for high grade and speculative bonds was well maintained.

The stock list met occasional setbacks however. Foreign oils eased in contract to domestic issues.

International remittances reacted favorably to unofficial reports that European bankers soon might meet to devise means of stabilizing their depreciated currencies in this country. German marks benefitted more than any other quotation.

Buying of rails seemed to be based in part on better tonnage reports. Sales totalled 875,000 shares.

The five per cent opening rate for call money relaxed to 4 1-2 per cent at noon with an abundance of private offerings at four per cent. Brokers reported large sums available for thirty and sixty day loans at last week's moderate concessions but the longer maturities held firm.

Liberty and victory issues again contributed predominatly to the heavy turn over in bonds. Total sales par value, $22,650,000.

Cotton

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—A renewal of liquidation caused further sharp declines in the cotton market during today's early trading, January contracts selling off to 17.11 or 46 points net lower and 139 points below the high level of last week. Offerings then became smaller and a covering movement developed which sent January up to 17.70 in the late trading or 59 points above the early low and 13 points net higher. That delivery closed at 17.65 with the general market closing firm at a net advance of 3 to 25 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 17 to 30 points owing to the continued weakness of Liverpool, reports of unfavorable trade conditions in Manchester and complaints of a continued poor demand with eclining tendency in the domestic goods market. Private cables reported increased hedge selling in Liverpool. Similar reports were received from New Orleans and there was also some hedge selling here accompanied by rumors that spot cotton could be purchased in some eastern belt sections on a tenderable basis. This promoted local selling as scattering commission house liquidation as a result of which December eased off to 17.28 and March to 17.08 during the middle of the morning. The market then showed the influence of a firmer technical position, as there was a distinct subsidence of selling pressure and the advance later in the day was accompanied by reports that trade and other strong interests had absorbed many contracts on the early decline. There was also bullish comment on the situation as to the pink boll worm in Texas and probably some buying on reports of a better tone in the stock market and foreign exchange rates.

The latter was attributed partly to reports that the reparations commission had called a conference of European bankers to discuss the stabilization of exchange rates. December rallied to 17.90 and March to 17.62 and the close was within a few points of the best. Reports that the state of Louisiana had issued quarantine regulations against cotton from New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas because of the pink boll worm were regarded as probably foreshadowing narrorer differences between New Orleans and New York.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28.—The pink boll worm was the big factor in the trading in cotton today and it brought the market out of a fairly wide decline to moderate net advances, the rise from the lowest of the session amounting to 71 points on January which sold as low as 16.40 and as high as 17.11, finally closing at 17.09. At the highest of the day the trading months were 5 to 27 points over the last quotations of Saturday, the close was at net gains of 5 to 25 points.

The early part of the day was featured by heavy pressure against the market which was on the opening, encouraged by a much lower Liverpool than due. Much liquidation came from the long side and as the price fell stop loss orders were caught. At first no great amount of attention was paid to the pink boll worm situation and when the market got 41 to 45 points under the close of Saturday, it was the realizing by shorts that checked the decline, rather than any other factor.

Baton Rouge wired the cotton exchange that the state of Louisiana had quarantined against New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas because of the pink boll worm. While it was stated that this would not interfere with the export movement of cotton through New Orleans from the quarantined area, it was generally accepted that it would prevent cotton from that area from coming on contract. This helped the price to some extent, but buying gradually increased on the fear the worm would restrict acreage this coming season and from now on might be a fresh influence of importance against the production of cotton.

LIVERPOOL SPOT COTTON.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 28.—Cotton spot quiet; prices easier. Good middling 11.77; fully middling 11.37; middling 10.97; low middling 9.67; good ordinary 7.92; ordinary 7.17. Sales 6,000 bales, including 5,500 American.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Cotton good were dull today with a weaker trend on some staple lines. Yarns were lower in the knitting divisions. Wools were quiet, burlaps dull and raw silk slightly higher.

Grain

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Heavy falling off in the estimated exportable surplus of Australia together with a record breaking low condition of the winter crop in Kansas did a good deal today to life the value of the wheat. Prices closed unsettled but 2 1-8 to 2 1-2 net higher with December 1.14 1-2 to 1.14 5-8 and May 1.17 3-4 to 1.17 7-8. Corn finished unchanged to 1-8c up. Oats unchanged to 3-8c off and provisions unchanged to 55c higher.

The wheat market was a big broad affair with a material increase of trade from the outside. A decrease in the United States visible supply total also was a bullish factor but the effect of this influence was diminished by announcement that the figures on the Galveston stock as given out omitted to take account of grain on track.

Corn and oats were relatively weak. Talk was current that the close of lake navigation would bring about stoppage of export business in corn.

Scantiness of offerings tended to strengthen provisions.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Early declines were followed by rallies in the coffee futures market today owing to renewal of near month support and reports that estimates of the Santos crop of 1922-23 had been placed at between five and five and one-half million bags by the Brazilian agricultural association. The market opened at a decline of 12 points on December and one to two points on later months, later selling five to 13 points net higher with March touching 8.38 and May 8.15. Closing prices were the best showing net advances of 5 to 15 points. Sales were estimated at about 33,000 bags. December 8.69; January 8.58; March 8.37; May 8.15; July 8.04; September 7.92.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 28.—Cattle sold to a very satisfactory demand Monday on a good steady basis and the calf trade was active at an advance of 25c. Receipts amounted to 3,000 head of cattle and 3,000 calves. Packers secured more than 1,000 head of cattle, exclusive of calves, before noon, and they also took over most of the calf offerings. Heavy calves brought 6.00 and light calves went at 6.25. Some steers sold at 5.50. Most of the cow and heifer supply came in mixed shipments and quality was rather inferior.

Although packers were opposed to granting an advance for hogs and secured practically nothing, shipper and order buyers were alert and took over a generous helping at an advance of around 10c. Striking an average, the market was steady to 10c higher. The best hogs going to the big packers stopped at 7.00, but the order buyers took over a car at 7.40 and several sales were made at 7.25 to 7.30. Most of the run cleared at 7.00 to 7.30. Pig prices were steady mostly, the top being 7.40 for a few. Hog receipts reached 1,000 head.

Sheep receipts were limited to 500 head, stockers making up most of the supply. The trade was very slow. Quotations:

BIG SPRING WATER RESERVOIR BEING GREATLY ENLARGED

BIG SPRING, Texas, Nov. 28.—Working of increasing the capacity of Big Spring's water reservoir from 600,000 gallons to 1,500,000 gallons will be completed next week, according to a statement furnished the West Texas Chamber of Commerce by W. R. Purser, mayor, Big Spring.

While the big shaft at the city water works has not been completed, progress now at hand shows that an inexhaustable supply of pure water has been located. The work of deepening this shaft is being continued, though it is a difficult task to keep the water lowered sufficiently to set necessary blasts of dynamite.

The city is now allowing the Texas and Pacific Railway the use of 100,000 gallons of water per day, which will tide the railroad over until they increase the railroad water supply.

THE STATE OF TEXAS.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County, Greeting:

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to summon Texas National Oil and Refining Corporation, W. D. Eglof, J. A. Dewitt, N. L. Stewart, Trustee, H. E. Granville, trustee; Jim Briscoe, J. E. Clark, Lee Price, Dee Conner, Jim Conner, R. A. Harthorn, Ed Price by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 89th District Court of Wichita County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the 1st Monday in January, A. D. 1922, the same being the 2nd day of January, A. D., 1922. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 21st day of November, A. That on April 20, 1921, Texas National Oil and Ref. Said note is past due and unpaid and has been placed with Weeks, Morrow and Francis for collection. That on May 25th 1921, plaintiff made an additional loan to Texas National Oil and Ref. That thereafter plaintiff at request of Texas National Oil and Ref. Corp. cleaned out the wells on Tract No. 2, and for such work said defendant incurred an additional debt to plaintiff of $1220.00, which is long past due and unpaid. That plaintiff filed his lien for last mentioned work, on September 3rd, 1921 (said debt having occurred on June 4th, 1921, and claimed a lien on Tract No. 2 for such labor; That defendant Burk Valley is owner of half interest in said tract No. 2 and liable for half of expense and plaintiff claims a lien against all of tract two for his debt of $1220.0. Herein Fail Not, but have before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

NOT HEAD OF KU KLUX KLAN, KNICKERBOCKER DECLARES; SAYS LAWS HELD IN CONTEMPT

Denial that he is the local head of the Ku Klux Klan was made Sunday by Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, in connection with his sermon, the "Majesty and Mockery of the Law," a stenographic transcript of which has been furnished The Record News.

Dr. Knickerbocker declared that he did not hold for or against the Ku Klux Klan—that many good men that he knew of were for it, and equally as good against it; that many bad men were against it.

He declared, however, that its organization was an indication of the times which are remarkable contempt for the law.

As for the Klan, he read a paragraph from its constitution and laws, declaring that the purposes enunciated there were good. The supporters of the Klan declared that they were good, he said, while enemies, or rather critics, claimed that at the best the order was "Jesuitical" in that it sought a bad means for achieving a desirable end.

Speaking of present lawlessness, he said:

It is not necessary for me to tell you, if you read anything and if you know anything about the present state of the whole world, including Wichita Falls and Texas and the United States, it is not necessary for me to give you evidence, that as an aftermath of the war there has been a tremendous breaking down of respect for law; there has been a tremendous license and liberty and a devilish freedom that is bidding fair to break down the foundations of the home, society and government.

There was never a time in the U. S. when there was so much freedom among the sexes. There was never a time when there was more concerted effort to break down the law embodied in the constitution of the United States, the law against the sale of liquor, and then there was never a time when there was as much light thinking, frivolous thinking about the serious things in social life and in moral life and in governmental life.

Places Blame.

Examining the causes for this condition, he placed the blame on judges, on lawyers, and on the people themselves.

He spoke of "drinking judges," whose sympathies, he said, are with the liquor crowd, and against the lawbreakers—breakers of the prohibition laws being declared the most numerous class.

"Perjury" on the part of witnesses and jurymen—perjury often through telling of only the part of the truth, and through doing only a part of the duty as jurymen—were given as the greatest obstacle to justice—quoting a local lawyer.

"I do not care what a man may think about the righteousness of any law, if he sits on a jury and gives anything but the merits of the case consideration, he is a liar—he is a perjurer—and sometimes it is necessary that there should be a lot of public opinion aroused in order to make those kinds of juries do their duty," he said.

And then again, some lawyers are responsible for the difficulty in enforcing the law. Some lawyers! I confess, as I look at what I suppose is the ethics of the law profession, I am at a loss to know upon what idealistic ground of righteousness those rules of ethics may be founded.

I mean I do not think it possibly can be right for any lawyer to try to get for his client anything but justice, a fair trial, upon the merits of his case.

I judge the thing by the standards of God's law and Book without going into the ethical conventions of law perhaps, but judging it by the rigid standards of God I do not see how a man can keep a clear conscience and clear a guilty criminal.

When the lawyers speak next Sunday night they may be able to tell me how it is done. As a layman that does not know anything about the philosophy of the situation I cannot see how a friend of society and good government and law can willfully use all the methods that are legitimate under the law, to clear a guilty man.

Blames Lawyers.

He told of a conversation with a lawyer who had, he boasted to him, cleared 39 murderers—never having a single conviction.

"You ought to be hung," I told him, and he thought I was joking—but I was not. A man who would clear 39 murderers is an enemy to society—he could not possibly have had 39 innocent men on his hands."

I am told that in our courts a little while ago there were about forty cases of felonies dismissed because the witnesses were gone, and why? No doubt because a favorite method had been used to postpone the case, and postpone the case, and postpone the case and keep on postponing the case until the witnesses are out of the country, until the case has gotton so cold and until the thing is so dead no conviction can be gotten.

According to the rule of God and the rule of righteousness, is that fair? Is it right? Delays! The delays of the law! My heavens! No wonder some times people are tempted to take the law in their hands, tempted to do it when they find out the reddest handed murderer, may have such strong counsel, so strong intellectually, so full of resources, so able to manipulate all the technicalities of the law at his disposal that after driving through the courts for years and years his client goes scott free.

Crowded Dockets

Speaking of crowded dockets and the delays in trials, he declared that if lawyers were only interested in securing justice for their clients, both sides would wish for speedy trials.

"The sheriff told me the other day that he and his department had taken in 27 stills," he continued.

Twenty-seven cases of illicit manufacture of liquor! I said you are doing a fine business. He said "Yes"; and then he said:

"I have been in office for more than a year and there has not been a bootlegger tried that I have arrested during all that time."

There is something the matter somewhere."

Speaking of the rules of evidence used in the courts, he declared that precedent had built up a set of rules which prevented the true facts in a case being laid before a court or jury, and declared that the whole structure should be scrapped and a few common sense principles instituted as a means of "getting somewhere."

Lawyers were urged by the preacher to so conduct their business that they could say they were never guilty of obstructing justice, and that they had constituted themselves the protectors of society, regardless of the selfish interest of their clients.

Ridicule

In discussing the public's share in the lack of law enforcement, he called attention to the efforts of a large number to deliberately, he declared, break down the law by ridicule, by misrepresentation, by making light of serious things.

The law of the Sabbath and the liquor law are the ones against which this is principally directed, he said. Their cry, he declared, is the time worn cry for "personal liberty." He quoted Walt Mason's Rippling Rhymes as showing how people lost by this course—a prose poem on "Bootleg Booze" and what happened to the one who bought it:

He bought a half pint in a wynd where bootleg booze is dear, he looked before, he looked behind, to see no cops were near; then took his drink—it made him blind, and he's been blind a year. He was a large and stately man, an athlete, trim and strong, built up along the Milo plan, no pistons hitting wrong; and now a sightless also ran, he toils and gropes along. He really didn't care for drink, he had no costly thirst; but he was aye a haughty gink, his motto, Freedom First"; he said, "I'll sip the scarlet ink, though all the statutes burst. My fathers fought at Bunker Hill that people might be free, and no outrageous Volstead bill can come and hogtie me; so mark my curves and watch me swill a bowl of graveyard tea." He poured the deadly bitters down, and then fell on the floor, and had a fit, and rent his gown, and his long whiskers tore; and though he hobbles through our town he'll see it never more. The bootleg merchants boost the tomb, and for the death-cart root; they kill the young men in their bloom, and do not care a hoot; the stuff they sell is liquid doom, distilled from Dead Sea fruit. It's made and sold by reckless knaves, this substitute for rye; its victims fill ten thousand graves, and hundreds daily die, and over them the willow waves, the sexton heaves a sigh.—Copyright by George Matthew Adams.

Says Public Guilty.

The public is guilty when it makes a joke of bootlegging, he said. He told of one member of his Houston church—a brother of one of the stewards, who had been killed over a quart of bootleg, and inquired as to how much of a joke that was to his wife and children.

Jerome K. Jerome's celebrated story of the children laughing at the carrying of a drunken woman—all but one little girl who looked on with tears in her eyes. Asked why she did not laugh as the others, she replied that the woman was her mother.

"I am glad to admit that it is not possible to save the world by prohibition," he said. "We prohibitionists never did believe that you are going to get a man to heaven by shutting the saloon. We simply think that it was in the interest of social sanitation, cleaning the way for a purer environment."

"You can get away with making a mockery of the law down here, but be not deceived, God is not mocked," he said later.

"There is too much sympathy for criminals and too little righteous indignation against lawbreakers."

In speaking of the public's share in the condition as he saw it, he said that it was largely through the public's not doing its duty with its votes and urged all men and women in the church to pay their poll taxes.

SNEAK THIEVES LOOT CLUB ROOM OF LEGION POST

Sneak thieves entered the club rooms of Pat Carrigan post, American legion during Sunday afternoon or night and stole a number of billiard balls and a bass drum, according to the report Monday to police.

Police were of the opinion that the thievery was the work of youths. A search was instituted for the loot.

Studio Players To Bring Two Readers Here

Two entertainers will be brought to Wichita Falls early in 1922 by the Studio Players, according to announcement from the club. Charles Thompson, who was originally announced for early in December, has changed his date to some time in March.

Miss Mary Agnes Doyle will appear in January. Miss Doyle will read "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

Mr. Thompson will probably give "Disraeli," which George Arliss has made celebrated in both England and America. Mr. Thompson is from the Currie School of Expression, Boston.

Rural Schools Topic of State Teachers' Assn.

Rural schools, their problems, and their outlook in the future was the principal subject of discussion at the State Teachers' meeting at Dallas according to Burl Bryant, county superintendent of schools who returned Monday from attendance at the three day session.

Mr. Bryant said the rural school problem seemed to be uttermost in the minds of a majority of the members of the state association in spite of the fact that a large number of those in attendance came from the faculties of city schools.

Mr. Bryant was appointed chairman of the committee on the "Professional Side of the County Superintendency." The committee during the coming year will collect data primarily on the amount of time the county superintendents of the state spend in personal supervision of the rural schools. It is contended by many state educators that the county superintendent with their office work do not have time for the necessary personal supervision.
