

City Schools To Begin Enrollment Thurs., August 31

New Courses Added To Curriculum; Outstanding Year Predicted

Although work for the Wellington schools does not begin until Monday, Sept. 4, enrollment of pupils in the high school will begin Thursday morning, August 31, at 8 o'clock. Junior High School and the ward schools will not begin enrollment until Monday at 9 o'clock, John L. Beard, superintendent, announced this week.

With this in mind, Mr. Beard released the enrollment schedule for the enrollment and made various announcements concerning the opening period of the school. "The administrative staff, faculty and the board of trustees are highly optimistic concerning this year's work, which is expected to be the best in the history of the school," he said.

The student body will enjoy a wider range of choice in the selection of subjects. The following new subjects will be offered: agriculture, general science, general mathematics, community civics, occupations, sociology, Texas history, commercial arithmetic, commercial law, band, choral singing, and physical education. The high school will have an activity period which will be devoted to assembly programs, club work, homeroom activities, pep squad, band, glee club and school newspaper. This period offers many opportunities for pupil creative work, development of talents, self-expression, self-control, self-reliance and individual growth through pupil conceived and pupil conducted activities. It offers the opportunity for pupils to practice the desirable qualities of citizenship in unselfish service. These activities are just as worthwhile as the students make them, it was pointed out by the superintendent.

Pupils will enroll according to the following schedule:

- Seniors from 8 o'clock until 12 o'clock Thursday morning, August 31.
- Juniors from 1 o'clock until 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, August 31.
- Sophomores from 8 o'clock until 12 o'clock Friday morning, Sept. 1.

Four Stages Of Peach Growth Found On Tree

Peaches in four different stages of development, but all coming off the same tree, were shown Saturday by R. A. Talley, who lives north of Wellington.

Smallest of the peaches was less than an inch in diameter. Another, unusually large in size, was ready for gathering. Of the other peaches, one was about half grown and the other somewhat smaller.

It looked like my tree couldn't get it up its mind," Mr. Talley commented, "but at least, I never seen anything like this

Comes From California To See Daughter 95-Year-Old Pioneer Returns

By MARY PETERS

John Manning, who is 95 years old, is here visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. P. Rippetoe, of the Cottonwood community. Mr. Manning is a pioneer of Texas and Greer County, which was once Texas but now Oklahoma. He points to his own good health and long life as a blessing of the old days. He thinks people live too fast now and prefers Prohibition days to cocktail bars.

Mr. Manning was born in Parie County, Missouri, on October 11, 1844. In September 1862 he was a volunteer in the Confederate army. He served in the fourth Arkansas Battalion, Company H, under Major Holliday.

Mr. Manning says he was in the battle of Murfreesboro, Tennessee, with four hundred men in the battalion. The battle went on for six days and at its close there were only two hundred and twenty-six men of the battalion who retreated to Shelbyville, Tennessee, for winter quarters.

In August 1863 the army went to Jackson, Mississippi, and threw us breastworks. After five days fighting they saw that they would be surrounded by the enemy, so at 5 o'clock on August 22, 1863, orders came to wrap all the spindles of the wagon wheels in blankets in order to make less noise and at dark the army crossed the Pearl River, poured a barrel of turpentine on the bridge and burned it. "Then," says Mr. Manning, "we were where Moses was when he crossed the Red Sea: there was water between us and the enemy!"

On March 31, 1870, John Manning and Miss Nancy Ellen Bailey were married at Little Rock, Ark. They came to Texas in 1873 and located in what is now Hamilton County and considered East Texas but at that time was West Texas. After two years they emigrated to Grayson County and eight years later to Montague County. In 1893 Mr. Manning, with his family, moved to Greer County. Then there was no Hollis and Mr. Manning says he saw the town grow up and the county become a part of Oklahoma. In 1923 he came to Wellington to live with his daughter, Mrs. J. P. Rippetoe. In 1933 he left here and went to Costa Mesa, Calif., where still makes his home with a daughter.

Mr. Manning is the father of six children, four girls and two boys. Four are living and two dead. He has 26 living grandchildren and 88 great grandchildren. There are eleven great great grandchildren.

Mr. Manning is still "up and about his work," his hobbies being raising corn and tending rabbits. He says he has never had a very sick spell and never had a doctor until he was 70 years old. At this age, Mr. Manning is still full of life and fun and he still loves to relate his experiences of early days.

Rotarians Honor Governor

FHA Field Man Due Here Sat.

In order to acquaint lenders, dealers and others interested with the new Federal Housing Administration legislation passed during the recent session of the Congress and to provide them with detailed information concerning loans for building and modernizing homes, a representative of FHA is scheduled to be in Wellington Saturday, August 26, a news release from Dallas stated early this week.

Although local lumbermen had received no information concerning the visit, it was expected that plans for the visit would arrive here within the next day or two. "The recent reduction of the FHA interest rate from 5% to 4% has caused a decided increase in inquiries regarding residential construction and every (Continued on Page Twelve)

Falls Result In Broken Arms For Quail Children

Two Quail children have broken arms received in falls while playing during the past week.

Wanda Melton, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Melton, broke both bones in her left arm last Tuesday when she stepped on a rock, stumbled and fell, striking her arm in such a manner that the bones were broken. Mr. and Mrs. Melton were in Amarillo at the time, and the little girl was staying with a neighbor.

Ten-year-old Virgil Anglin, who lives on Route One, Quail, was thrown from a horse which he was riding Sunday, breaking one bone in his right arm. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Anglin. Both children are recovering as rapidly as possible.

List School Bus Routes Next Week

Following numerous inquiries concerning the bus routes of the Wellington Schools, John L. Beard announced late Tuesday that routings had not yet been completed, but that it was planned to have these ready for announcement in next week's Wellington Leader.

"We plan to extend the bus routes this year to pick up more children in the various sections of the district, and to increase the service rendered by the buses in other ways," Mr. Beard said.

These plans will be worked out at a meeting of the school board and school administrative officers Friday evening.

Salvation Of World Peace Depends On Individual, Warns Arrant

"The peace on earth hangs by a thread, and it is for Rotary to do all it can to provide the peace we need!"

With this, Hiram Arrant, governor of the 127th district of Rotary, struck the note uppermost in the minds of the world when he spoke before Rotarians and Rotaryans at a banquet given in his honor Tuesday evening, August 22.

The occasion was Gov. Arrant's official visit to the Wellington Club.

Continuing, he told the group that the salvation of peace depended upon each individual, and that each must do his part to bring about a solution to the problems of political unrest. He illustrated his talk by telling how the heads of two South American countries several years ago averted war through their friendship, which had sprung up through their membership in Rotary.

Mixing humor with facts, Gov. Arrant left the topic of peace to give a brief history of Rotary and the ways in which it may serve. Commending the local club for its activity in spite of the short time it has been organized, the speaker (Continued on Page Twelve)

Amarillo Couple Opens Cafe Here

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Scott of Amarillo early this week announced the opening of the Tip Top Cafe on West Ninth street in the Lowry building. The cafe has been closed for several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott are experienced in the restaurant and cafe business, having operated a popular eating shop in Amarillo for several years.

"After we sold our place in Amarillo, we drove over the country looking for a location—and Wellington looked good to us," said Mr. Scott.

"We would greatly appreciate the people of Wellington coming by and getting acquainted with us, and we in turn will do all we can to please you," the new owners added.

Highway Patrol Shakeup Effectuated

A shakeup in the highway patrol in this division and the elimination of the Shamrock headquarters late last week resulted in Wellington receiving all future patrol service from the Childress station.

In addition, the date on which the highway patrolmen will be here has been changed from Friday afternoon until Saturday afternoon from 1 until 2 o'clock.

Patrolman J. L. Pingenot, who has been in charge of Collingsworth and Childress counties, has been transferred to Childress. Patrolman Charles H. Ballard left the service at the time the change was made.

In making announcements of these changes, Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the department of public safety, pointed out that the changes were made because (Continued on Page Twelve)

Nicholson Opens Revival Service

Revival services under the direction of Rev. James E. Nicholson, assisted by Rev. J. W. Russell of Quail, are scheduled to open Wednesday night, August 23, in Wellington.

The services will be conducted in a large tent at the corner of Ninth and Dalhart streets.

Rev. Nicholson was formerly the Old Age Assistance Investigator in Wellington, but he resigned that place recently to devote his entire time to ministerial work. Both he and Rev. Russell are well known over the entire county. They are affiliated with the Missionary Church, but Mr. Nicholson pointed out that the revival is being held independent of any church organization here.

"We extend a most cordial invitation to every person in Wellington to be present and to take active part in this revival. Your work will not only help us, but it will help you," he said. The revival will continue for two weeks.

Club Women And 4-H Members Plan Fair September 2

Educational Booths And Project Exhibits Will Be Featured

Educational booth and displays of work completed during the year will be featured when women of the Home Demonstration Clubs of the county and boys and girls 4-H clubs hold their annual fair in Wellington Saturday, September 2.

This is the second year that the women have conducted such a fair, however, the 4-H clubs did not participate in the event last year.

"Plans are being worked out entirely by the clubs," Miss Margaret Moser, county home demonstration agent, explained. "It is destined to give a cross section not only of what they study in their club work, but what they practice in their homes."

The educational exhibits will be featured by the women, with each club working up its own exhibit. In addition, a domestic science and domestic arts division will be shown, including canned fruits and vegetables, handwork and foods.

The boys and girls will show projects which they have completed, or on which they are working during this year. This will include livestock and poultry as well as clothing and other articles.

Ribbons will be awarded the winning booths and products and these will be taken to Amarillo for exhibition in the Tri-State Fair from September 18 to 23.

The location of the fair has not been announced, although it will be in one of the vacant business buildings, it was indicated.

Mr. Hooper is from Archer City. He received his B. A. degree from Hardin-Simmons University this spring, majoring in (Continued on Page Twelve)

Flea Hoppers Damaging Cotton In This County

It's not the grasshoppers nor the dry weather that's doing the most damage to cotton crops here—it's flea hoppers, asserted W. K. Cottingham, county agent, early this week.

"From the examination of fields in different communities, and from reports that have come in from other sections, it seems that the infestation is spreading over almost all the county, and in some sections, the damage is reaching serious proportions," he added.

"There's only one practical method of fighting flea hoppers known in this section. That is dusting the cotton plants with sulphur," he recommended, adding that all farmers who plan to use this method must order sulphur from some sulphur company.

The flea hoppers, it was pointed

Court Readjusts Precinct Lines

Three Boxes Dropped A Year Ago Are Re-established

Changing of the boundaries of the commissioners precinct and the re-establishment of three voting precincts in the county were announced following the meeting of the commissioners court Friday, August 18. The court had been recessed since the preceding Monday.

After standing for a number of years, the commissioners precinct lines were changed by the court at its August meeting in 1938, with all the territory south of Salt Fork of Red River forming precinct one and three and all the territory north of Salt Fork forming precincts two and four. At the same time, six of the existing voting precincts were eliminated.

At Friday's meeting, the voting precincts of Nicholson, Lillie and Rolla were re-established and their boundaries were set by the court, according to Judge C. C. Bishop, County Judge. This raises the number of voting boxes of the county to seventeen.

Salt Fork of Red River was retained as the dividing line from east to west for the Commissioners' Precincts and a line running through the exact center of the county from north to south was established to determine boundaries.

"This will result in Precinct One, which includes Wellington and Dodson, being the smallest in the county, while Precinct Two, in the northeast part of the county, will be the largest.

An adjustment of the amount of money each precinct was to receive out of the county ad valorem tax fund was made by the four commissioners after the changing of the precinct boundaries," Judge Bishop said.

Members of the Commissioners' Court include Judge Bishop, N. C. Tennison for Precinct One, Jason Young for Precinct Two, Bert Weaver for Precinct Three, and C. E. Strong for Precinct Four. (Continued on Page Twelve)

Vacation Time Not Over, Warns Pigg As Local Plans Completed

August 15 marks the opening of the Ford Dealers Annual National Used Car Clearance Sale, according to announcement made today by Kelly Pigg of the Collingsworth Motor Company in Wellington.

"The sale, in which Ford Dealers all over the United States will take part, has never been held this early before," reports Mr. Pigg. "The advanced date will make it possible for many buyers to obtain better cars before vacation trips and before the Labor Day holidays. The sale will run through September 30, and will be promoted by national and local newspaper and direct mail advertising."

"As in other years," Mr. Pigg said, "this clearance sale will feature sharp reductions in used car prices. Of equal importance to buyers is the fact that all late model cars are specially reconditioned and many are sold with a written guarantee. Included in the sale is a wide variety of makes and models as well as a large number of trucks and commercial cars."

Preparations for the annual event at the Collingsworth Motor Company are virtually completed according to Mr. Pigg, who indicated that besides arranging a special used car display, the company is identifying the display with signs and banners of the type used by other Ford Dealers participating throughout the country.

Farm Security Notes

By EDNA PETTIT

Probably nowhere on earth is the dynasty of King Cotton more securely established than it is in the American kitchen. Over and over it appears there. It is part of oilcloth, the window shades, the cookbook bindings, and even the floor covering. But most important of all, cotton makes up nearly all housedresses—cotton fabrics are inexpensive, easy to launder, durable, and cool.

The easiest housedresses to wash and iron are cut simply and made of materials such as gingham, percale, chambray, seersucker, and medium-weight broadcloth. It is easier to keep a dress in condition if there is no superfluous trim. Buttons, buckles, and slide fasteners should be as durable as the dress material. The pockets should be stitched flat, reinforced on the corners, and set where they are not likely to be in the way. Frilly pockets and long sashes are kitchen hazards, because they are likely to catch on pan handles, door latches, cupboard knobs, and handles or fixtures on the stove.

Housedresses should fit neatly, but not tightly. Sometimes attractive dresses are never the same again after the first washing. Common laundry tragedies are colorful materials that fade and dresses that shrink so they no longer fit. One should take advantage of information on labels before buying dresses or yard materials.

A label guaranteeing colorfastness should state exactly to what the color is fast. Cottons for housedresses should be colorfast to light, washing, and perspiration. The most dependable shrinkage guarantees are those that tell how much the dress or material will shrink in terms of per cent. If this "residual shrinkage" is not over one or two per cent, washing will not alter the fit enough to worry about.

Cotton is also a good material for kitchen curtains. A specially treated lintless cotton material has been introduced on the market for dish towels.

Cotton fabrics catch fire so easily that it is a good idea to fireproof pot lifters, curtains near the stove, and ironing board covers. Dissolve three ounces of boric acid and seven ounces of borax in two quarts of hot water. Saturate the dry clean articles to be fireproofed in this solution. Iron after the treated fabric is dry. Repeat the treatment each time the fabric is washed.

City State Bank Buys Harvesters For Customers

Machines Perform Multiple Job And Are Adaptable To Trench Silos

Announcement has been made by officials of the City State Bank of the purchase of two ensilage harvesters. These machines, purchased for customers of the bank, cut, chop and load in one operation, and those farmers using trench silos will derive a definite benefit from the harvesters.

Due to the fact that the time within which the feed must be cut, co-operation on the part of all the farmers of each of the communities was urged by the personnel of the bank.

Urging that the trench silos be dug before time for the ensilage to be put in, the following table was given to help those not now familiar with trench silos in determining the size needed:

Bottom Width	Top Width	Cap. Ft.	Lgt. (Tons)
4 feet	8 feet	8 feet	.85
6 feet	10 feet	8 feet	1.1
8 feet	12 feet	8 feet	1.4
10 feet	12 feet	8 feet	1.7

On the average about 57 cubic feet of ensilage makes one ton. Dairy men usually figure about 35 pounds of ensilage required each day for each cow.

A farmer digging a trench silo finds that there is no loss of weight in the feed placed in one, that there farmer digging a trench silo finds that there is no loss of weight in the feed placed in one, that there is little, if any, spoilage in the stored product and that stored feed can be used for fattening and finishing beef cattle without any supplemental ration, such as cottonseed meal. Feed is not subject to weevil or rodent damage, and cannot burn.

A moderate charge is to be made on the ensilage harvesters and any official at the bank will be glad to supply full information about their usage.

HINTS ON FALL GARDEN

As a factor for health and a factor in reducing the grocery bill, the fall garden presents a strong appeal. The successful production of fall vegetables usually depends upon how well the soil has been prepared and if the moisture supply is adequate. If the soil moisture is adequate, the fall garden should be a continuation of the summer garden. However, in the late summer the moisture is usually limited, and the garden spot must be prepared so as to hold all the moisture possible.

Remove The Weeds. If they are merely turned under, moulding and heating takes place which dries out the top soil and prevents thorough cultivation.

Plow Shallow. The soil should be plowed shallow to a depth of four or five inches.

Apply Fertilizer. In most barn lots during August and September you will find a thick layer of trampled manure that has dried out. This material is largely a mass of vegetation fiber, that has lost the acid that burns plants. After plowing the garden, spread a coating of one to three inches thick of this "summer manure" from the barn lot. Then rebreak or disk and harrow until it is well mixed into the soil. This spongy material will greatly increase the water holding capacity of the soil and prevent packing. For a one-half acre garden, especially where the soil is inclined to be cloddy, ten to twelve loads of barnyard manure is not too much. If manure is not available, those who live in wooded areas may secure leaf mold and add it at the same rate and secure good results. In sandy soils a 6-12-6 commercial fertilizer may be applied at the rate of 3 to 4 lbs. for each 100 feet of row. Fall gardens need commercial fertilizer to stimulate quick growth, because of the relative slowness with which the plant food elements are made soluble in this season of comparative inactivity of the soil bacteria.

Lay Off Wide Rows. Don't make the mistake of making the rows too close together. Have them wide enough apart so that the gentle mule or horse can be used for plowing the garden later whenever necessary.

Open The Ditches. Be sure that all the ditches are open so that this winter the water will not stand and water-log the soil, preventing the growth and development of your vegetables.

Protect From Heat. Protection from the burning rays of the sun will stimulate growth in the plants. For starting the slow maturing vegetables, such as tomatoes, peppers, and cabbage, artificial shade may be provided by driving a few stakes into the ground, connecting these with hay wire, and spreading out or bran sacks over the top. If sacks are not available, cut small branches off of trees with the leaves on and place over the framework. The cover should be three to four feet from the ground.

Have Plenty of Seed. It is advisable to secure one-fourth more seed for the fall garden than for the spring garden, since germination of the seed at the fall season is poor, consequently an extra quantity of seed will be necessary to secure a good stand.

Stimulate Germination. Seed with hard seed coat, such as spinach, should be soaked in warm water over night before planting. To encourage sprouting, seed potatoes may be treated with 1 pint of ethylene chlorhydrin to four gallons of water. This solution is enough to treat five bushels of potatoes. Cut the seed in the usual way, about eight hours before planting. Even small potatoes should be cut on one side. Dip the seed in the solution and place in a barrel or tight box and cover for eight hours. Plant immediately.

SUGGESTED VEGETABLES FOR THE FALL GARDEN

Irish potatoes, turnips, carrots (Denvers Half Long), beets (Detroit Dark Red), Swiss Chard, pinto beans, onion sets, endive, mustard (Giant Southern Curled), Cabbage (All Head or Copenhagen Market).

ATTENTION City State Bank Customers

Because of the limited time within which the feed crop must be cut, we ask our customers to co-operate with each other to the end that plenty of trucks and labor be on hand in each community to keep the machine running at full capacity. To do this, groups can be formed of our customers in each community who can work as a unit until the feed of that particular group has been cut, chopped and placed in your TRENCH SILO. The machine can then be moved to another group in another locality. THE TIME IS LIMITED.

The following data may be of help to those not now familiar with Trench Silos:

DIMENSIONS OF SILO		CAPACITY PER FOOT LENGTH
Width at Bottom	Width at Top	Depth	Tons
4 feet	8 feet	8 feet	.85
6 feet	10 feet	8 feet	1.1
8 feet	12 feet	8 feet	1.4
10 feet	12 feet	8 feet	1.7

On the average about 57 cubic feet of silage makes one ton. On the average 1 cubic foot of silage weighs about 35 pounds. Dairy men frequently figure about 35 lbs. (or 1 cubic foot) of silage per day for each cow.

A TRENCH SILO—

Can be built for emergencies

May be of any desired size and the capacity increased later

Is fire and wind proof and filled at low cost

The ensilage is easy to get out

Can be used year after year

Very little, if any, material needs to be purchased

The purpose of our buying these two ensilage harvesters was to be of some practical benefit to our customers. This ideal has been, and will be, the constant purpose of

Deck's DIDACTICS

By H. D. W.

Another crisis is at hand in Europe. Most of the people I talk to on the streets of Wellington think there will be no war this fall. With the memory of Munich only one year old, they have a deep cynicism concerning Hitler and Stalin, England and France and everything else concerning the European and Asiatic situation. The skepticism of motives and the hope of temporary peace are well founded.

I presume that the main editorial in the Star Telegram Wednesday morning was written by Charles Benson, formerly of The Wellington Times and The Wellington Leader. He says, in part:

When the world recovers from its astonishment over the Easter stroke of Germany in making a nonaggression pact with Soviet Russia, it may be discovered that the agreement of two major powers not to make war upon each other will be a turning point in history toward peace.

The analysis reported from Budapest appears the most sensible, where officials of South-eastern Europe are quoted as saying that the German-Soviet pact is a possible turning point in world history. In this profound change, Germany and Russia should assume the importance of greater world powers. Japan's fate should be uncertain. The Soviet-German pact should make the import of the Munich retreat fully clear.

The annual budget for Collingsworth County was set at $100,812, approximately $19,000.00 less than last year. If the past any guide to the future both the county and the school will exceed their anticipated budget. This is due to the fact that officials can foresee all of the emergencies and events that will require the expenditures of money. The school opening will be held next Tuesday.

The City of Wellington is the only local unit of government that does not exceed its anticipated budget. This is due to the simple reason that the city does not anticipate. In fact, it does not make an annual budget and send it to the state. This is because the city government does not use tax money to run the city government. Operations of the city government such as the fire department, police and sanitation, etc., are paid for out of profits of the water system. Taxes are used to apply only on the bonded indebtedness.

Due to the fact that I have forgotten about the city business, I phoned up Bura Handley and asked him when this business of operating the city on water revenue first started. I wanted to know how long it had been since the city collected a tax and put part of it in the general fund for operating expenses. Later Bura came back and laughed in my face. "It was first started in the administration of a fellow named Wells," he said. I hung up quickly as I could get him off the line.

Inspired by the determination of its president, James McNeely, to stimulate balanced farming in this county, the State Bank purchased two plow cutters last week to be used in preparing feed for hogs. It is constructive work designed to improve conditions in this farming area. Doneghy also went to the bank to get a table for hogs and feeding that a number of farmers had difficulty in obtaining from any source. Personally, I went to Jim Doneghy's getting up early in the morning, his walking and his eating tables when there is good to be eaten, but I am being more and more convinced of his sincere and innocent desire to bring about better conditions in Collingsworth County. I greatly admire any man who does that kind of work for his community.

In named R. E. Sikes came to me about promoting FHA in Wellington. I told him I was most anxious and that my yard were too. I mention the fact that many of the had been rejected. He said that rental values were too low. A have known that all

Want Ad Brings Watch Back To Owner

If there was any doubt in Hollis Porter's mind about the effectiveness of The Wellington Leader Want Ads, it was removed after the watch which he lost had been returned to him through this medium.

The watch was lost at one of the softball games last week. Finder was Jimmie Gillespie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gillespie.

"Of course I'm glad to get the watch back," exclaimed Mr. Porter. "But I didn't know that little ad could act so effectively—and so quickly."

along.

A crop is coming up this fall and the drastic shortage of houses will increase rental values. Then this town will start to build FHA homes. The carpenters and the painters and the contractors will go to work. Those who have moved away will come back and there will be better paid people working and the song of the turtle will be heard in the land. Actually I never have known what that last phrase means, but since it comes from the Bible it has sounded good to me always.

Unless war comes to us, better times are ahead. Let's quit worrying about war and do the best we can. After all, Roosevelt and Hull will decide what this country is going to do until Congress meets again. The thing for us to do is to do that job which is before us.

Dewey Ellis, who was in the army during the world war, was just in. I asked him what he thought. He said: "If England backs down now, the English people will lose faith in their government and the British empire will disintegrate. The whole picture would be different today if Anthony Eden had been in charge. Chamberlain represents the old school of protecting the ruling class. Eden wanted to defend the pax Britannica regardless of what it cost British business. Chamberlain has tried to defend the interest of big business, and his nation may have to pay a great price for his decision."

DISREGARDING A TAX LAW

Sam Bassett, a hard-headed Houston lumberman, has gone to court and proved something nearly everybody knew, but which stands a severe reflection on Texas' pretense of abiding by its constitution and laws.

Mr. Bassett brought out that Texans uniformly fail to render for ad valorem taxes their money in the bank. Out of probably 50 million dollars of money in banks, a half-million rendition would be unusual.

His controversy brought out also that of the millions of valid mortgages that are bringing in interest, none is rendered for property taxation.

He reminds us that more productive wealth escapes than is levied upon, as the little farmowner, the owner of a lot in the city or a home, fails to evade the tax assessor, even when the mortgage-holder owns more of the property than the occupant.

The assessors gave it up as a hopeless job; but when they did, they interpreted the constitution for themselves and abandoned the effort to live up to its clear words.

Now if somebody else will come up and prove what is known—that the man who owns a home or other taxed property also pays a property tax on his automobile, but the fellow who gets a free ride by the tax assessor's office also escapes the several dollars of ad valorem tax on his car, the case will be complete.

The question is, whether those responsible will do anything about it.—Wichita Falls Record-News.

KEEP THE MOWER BUSY

By T. C. Richardson, Associate Editor
Farm and Ranch

Breeder-Feeder Association

Late summer weeds—gum weed, sunflower, ragweed, broomweed, cotton weed, and various other tribes of worthless plants which shade the grass and rob it of needed moisture—are now in the prime for blooming and seed bearing over a large part of the Southwest. Look down under this rank growth and we find grass struggling to survive, when if it had the ground to itself it would furnish several times as much grazing for the rest of the summer, and would be thickening up for next year's growth.

Just as weeds come into full flower is the best time to mow the pasture, but since there may be several species, which do not all mature at the same time, the practical thing to do is to mow whenever time can be spared for it rather than not mow at all, even if some weeds are not far enough advanced and others have already made seed. There is still time for the grass to derive a great deal of benefit this fall from the destruction of its weed competitors at this season of the year.

I wish every farm operator in the Southwest could see the results of pasture mowing, as it is practiced by their fellow-farmers under all conditions. It is not as easy to count the returns from a good pasture as from a cotton patch, but thousands who have had a few years experience know by their general economic improvement that good pastures pay, without keeping "books" on it.

The weed crop is not tolerated in the cotton field, and we spend hours and days of sweaty labor plowing, and hoeing to give the cotton all the soil fertility and available moisture. A farmer who permits the weeds to "take" his cotton is looked upon as shiftless, and gets little sympathy from his neighbors for his low cotton yields. But grass is also a "crop," and a paying crop with the help of livestock. What kind of cross-eyed reasoning, or lack of reasoning is it, that allows the weeds to rob the pastures while fighting them to the last ditch in the fields?

As a matter of fact the same amount of labor and time devoted to improving the pastures and the care of the livestock to graze them is paying many farmers more than time in the fields. A mower will kill a million weeds while a hoe is killing hundreds, and a man and team can cover several acres with a mower in the time necessary to hoe an acre of row crops. If we Southerners were as lazy as some of our northern critics think us, we would be using more mowers and fewer hoes!

It takes a good mower in good condition to cut hay, especially of the finer grasses. A good mower is desirable of course, for any kind of a mowing job, but that old machine with broken guards and a dull sickle will do to cut weeds with, if a better one is not available. A good many farmers are buying second-hand mowers to use in pasture work, and I have not yet seen one who kept his mower busy from one to three times a year on his pastures who doesn't think it a good investment.

There is hardly a community in which one or more farmers are not demonstrating the value of mowing as a means of increasing pasture profits. If it isn't being done on the farms, the same sort of demonstration may be seen on the rights of way, where the highway departments mow the roadsides once or twice in the season. There are miles of highways in the Southwest which have better grass than the pastures across the fence for no other reason than the occasional mowing which gives the grass a chance to do its best. What the highway authorities can do as a means of encouraging grass in order to check erosion, land owners can also do, for that purpose and for the increased forage.

PRESIDENT VS. 76th CONGRESS

WASHINGTON. — Although the session ended in a flare-up of revolt, the seven months of the 76th Congress saw the administration break just about even on its legislative program.

It was denied some things that it wanted very much, but it got some other things that it wanted equally. And it still has a chance—next winter, or earlier—to make a new fight for some of the things it didn't get.

Tabulating the gains and losses of the Roosevelt administration in this Congress, you get something like this: CONGRESS GAVE THE PRESIDENT—

His long-sought power to reorganize the government (in slightly modified form).

His big national defense program, which went through at a cost of close to $2,000,000,000.

The money that was needed—$51,500,000—for TVA's purchase of private electric power properties.

Modification and liberalization of the Social Security Act along the lines the administration desired.

Extension of the President's monetary powers, plus continuation to 1941 of such agencies as the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Import-Export Bank.

CONGRESS LICKED THE PRESIDENT ON—

His proposal to revise the neutrality law and permit him to aid the democracies by "steps short of war."

His big lend-aid program. His $300,000,000 addition to the U. S. Housing Authority's program.

His pet undistributed-profits tax, which was knocked out of the tax bill.

The House investigation of the Labor Board, which the administration strongly opposed.

Continuation of the life of the famous Dies committee, which the administration would have liked to see discontinued.

On a couple of controversial subjects, the result was just about a toss-up. Thus, while the WPA bill was not at all what the administration wanted, it was better than the administration seemed likely to get last winter, when a widespread sentiment to revamp the work-relief program entirely and get back to direct, state-administered relief was growing rapidly in Congress.

And although the administration failed to get the amendments it wanted to the Wage-Hour law, it prevented the conservative coalition in the House from putting through its amendments. Against the Labor Board and Dies Investigations may be balanced the fact that the LaFollette committee finally won an extension of its life.

One point often overlooked in the rebuffs received by the administration is that some of them, at least, were brought on by poor strategy.

One of the staunchest New Dealers in the Senate remarked that the spend-aid bill should have been brought in early in the session, if at all. It aroused little enthusiasm, he pointed out, and made many enemies; under such circumstances, its doom was practically certain when it came in late and was presented without much in the way of advance warning.

Neither the spend-aid bill nor the neutrality law revision is dead. Both can be taken up again, and undoubtedly will be, when Congress reconvenes in January. There is some chance, indeed, that a special session may be called in the fall to consider them.

IT NEVER FAILS TO HAPPEN...

A Man Who Forgot God

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for August 27.
Text: II Chronicles 26:3-5, 16-21.

One wonders at times why, with so many fine passages in the Bible which are clear and beyond any question as to their meaning and their application to life today, the distinguished Christian leaders who have selected the lessons should have gone so far out of their way to choose a passage which inevitably involves questions and difficulties. It is not often that one has such a complain to make concerning the lessons, for most of them are at least very clear in their application. But if any teacher feels himself in difficulties with this lesson, he may take some comfort from the fact that commentators, like the present writer, also do not find it easy.

The facts as recorded in the lesson are simple. Uzziah began to reign as king of Judah when he was 16 years old, and he reigned for 52 years. On the whole his rule is recorded as good, and it is stated that it was right in the eyes of the Lord "according to all that his father Amaziah had done." We are told also that he set himself to seek God in the days of Zechariah, and that as long as he sought God he prospered.

The record goes on to say that when he was strong and his heart was lifted up, he turned from this good course and acted correctly. It is especially charged against him that he went into the temple to burn incense upon the altar. The priests, who regarded this as their sacred and holy right, strongly opposed him, and we are told when Uzziah was angry and was proceeding with the censer in his hand to burn incense he was suddenly stricken with leprosy.

The story leaves one with some embarrassing questions. The record we have was probably written by some priestly writer. Was Uzziah's offense a real sin, an act of paganism, or was it merely an ecclesiastical offense, a matter of authority and privilege? It is easy, of course, to modernize the lesson and make it a case of the head of the state invading and interfering in the offices of religion and to have an offense against our modern American idea of the separation of church and state. But somehow, one would like to have Uzziah's side of the story.

Also, are we to teach the young that when they do wrong judgment will come upon them thus quickly and severely? The Bible itself, in its whole teaching, is in conflict with that idea. It teaches clearly enough that sin finds man out, and that evil-doing inevitably and surely brings evil consequences. But it also teaches that these are not always apparent. The Bible speaks of the wicked flourishing and spreading himself like the green bay tree, while at the same time it presents to us the saints of God suffering cruelly and unjustly, but sacrificially, for the sins of others.

If we are to teach a lesson like this with any realism, it must be in the atmosphere of this larger experience and teaching of the Bible. One wishes that lessons were chosen with the purpose of this making the larger aspects of the main highways of Scripture more emphasized and with less attention to the by-ways and by-paths.

WHY Humble Oil & Refining Co. Reduced the Price of Crude

This statement is published as a paid advertisement by Humble Oil & Refining Company for the benefit of those who are interested and not acquainted with the facts.

On August 11 the Humble Company posted reductions in the prices at which it purchased crude oil in Texas and New Mexico by amounts ranging from 5c to 32c per barrel, and averaging 18.5c per barrel. In view of the fact that this action on our part has been severely criticized before the public, we outline below the facts and reasons on which it was based:

1. On August 1 the quantities of crude oil listed below, aggregating 218,920 barrels daily in Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas, were moving to market at prices substantially below the Humble's postings for similar crudes:

AREA	BBLs. DAY
Texas—
West Central	37,000
Gulf Coast	22,600
Southwest	16,900
East Central	12,800
East Texas Field	6,850
Panhandle	1,500
Total Texas	97,650
South Louisiana	81,920
North Louisiana and Arkansas	39,350
Total	218,920

2. The amount of crude moving below Humble's postings was greatly increased when on August 10 the Sinclair-Prairie Company posted a reduction of 20c per barrel affecting the oil produced and purchased by it in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas, which action was followed immediately by reductions in the price made by a number of smaller purchasers. These reductions applied to more than 150,000 barrels of oil. This, added to that mentioned in the preceding paragraph, equals 368,000 barrels. In the three States in which Humble operates, Texas, New Mexico, and Louisiana, the aggregate volume of oil moving below Humble's prices approximated 17 1/2% of the total current production in those States.

3. The movement of constantly increasing quantities over the past year or more of crude produced in the new Illinois fields, reaching a total of 300,000 barrels daily on August 1, on a price basis substantially lower than Humble's postings in its territory, exerted a progressively depressing effect on the crude oil market. The effect was felt in Texas; and actually since April 1 Humble has lost 10,000 barrels per day of business absorbed by Illinois crude. This loss of business was in addition to that lost by Humble as a result of the movement of crude at low prices in the territory where we operate.

4. On August 11, therefore, the total volume of oil moving at prices below those of the Humble was approximately 668,000 barrels.

5. The crude oil market has been under pressure for more than a year. The price adjustments made last October did not remove fully the disparity between Humble's prices and those of some oil moving in its markets. Since that time the volumes of crude moving below our prices have increased steadily, with the result that when the reductions of Sinclair-Prairie and others came on August 10, affecting approximately 150,000 barrels of crude per day, conditions were so bad that we were compelled to reduce our prices to meet this competition. In no case are our new postings lower than the Sinclair-Prairie postings for similar crudes.

6. The Humble Company is primarily a producer of oil. Its crude oil properties constitute its principal asset. Its net production averages 133,000 barrels a day. We are also crude oil merchants and purchase, at our posted prices, 251,000 barrels of crude oil daily in Texas and New Mexico. These prices also govern the price at which we sell the oil which we produce. Because of our large production we are vitally interested in the maintenance of fair prices.

Our refineries consume something near the amount of oil which we produce. As a consequence, with respect to our purchases we are in the same position as a merchant dealing in any commodity. To continue in business, we can not over a long period of time pay higher prices than our competitors. We are compelled to meet competition. The price of oil, like that of other commodities, is subject to change with market conditions. These are simple and fundamental business principles. We were reluctant to cut the price of crude, not alone because of its adverse effect on our own earnings, but also because of its effect on our customers and upon the industry and the state at large. Under these circumstances, we could not continue to pay the prices we had been paying.

7. As a matter of policy the Humble Company maintains stocks of crude oil very slightly in excess of the amount required as working stocks to carry on operations. We do not believe in storage of oil above ground but in production of oil currently as required for market. We do not speculate in oil. We have no desire to buy oil at any price to accumulate for storage.

8. We think the price for oil brought about by the competitive conditions above mentioned is lower than should be realized. In our opinion the flood of oil from Illinois and Louisiana, most of which is being produced wastefully, in violation of conservation principles, is primarily responsible for the market conditions which necessitated our price reductions. It is our hope that these conditions will be corrected and that the market will improve.

Miss Corder Gives Review Of Book On Charm

Charming in her own manner, Miss Ruth Corder of Gladewater, gave a review Tuesday afternoon, August 22, on the current book, "Charm," by Marjorie Wilson. The event was sponsored by the Junior Auxiliary of the American Legion.

Miss Corder is the daughter of Mrs. A. B. Corder, nee Miss Ruth Aaron, and is a niece of Calvin Aaron of this county. She is a graduate of Fairmont School for girls in Washington, D. C. Highly successful in East Texas as a reviewer, Miss Corder won her audience immediately, giving clear cut definitions of Miss Wilson's version of charm.

To be charming Miss Corder interpreted Miss Wilson as saying one should be highly interested in other people. The easy way to acquire this would be to fill your actions with so many good deeds that the negative side would be omitted.

Quoting the author Miss Corder gave specific examples of how to develop charm, stating that your station in life had no bearing on your ability to please people.

Miss Corder will be here again in the fall and definite plans for her review at that time will be announced.

Review Of "All This And Heaven Too" Given At Legion Meeting By Mrs. Ray Wall

By MRS. CLARK ANDERSON
Mrs. Ray Wall of Galveston reviewed "All This, And Heaven Too" for an appreciative audience at the American Legion Hut last Thursday evening.

The delightful style of the author, Rachael Field, lost nothing in the retelling. The author had dipped her pen in the memories of her own childhood and the truths and legends woven around her great-aunt by marriage, "Henrietta Desportes, beloved wife of Henry Field."

Henrietta Desportes was a French girl, educated and charming. When the book opens she is governess to the nine Praslin children, sons and daughters of the Duc and Duchesse de Praslin. For six unhappy years, lightened only by the love of her charges and the consideration of the Duc himself, she guided the destinies of the Praslin children. The Duchesse de Praslin was a semi-invalid ridden by fierce jealousies centering mostly around her children. Having lost her hold over her husband and children alike by her tempestuous moods she turned to Henrietta as the object of her resentment and jealous accusations. Because of her love for the unhappy children Henrietta stayed on in spite of the wagging tongues of gossip loving Paris.

Mrs. Wall touched lightly on the unpleasant scenes in the first part of the book, saying simply that at the end of six years Henrietta Desportes was awakened in the night at the home of friends and arrested in connection with the brutal murder of the Duchesse. Eight days after her arrest the Duc was dead of arsenic poisoning. With the murdered and the murderer both mute the young woman was left to defend herself as best she could. The record of that trial, the most famous in French history, is to be read today by any who care to. Henrietta Desportes entered the courtroom and eloquently plead her own defense without counsel. She was acquitted by the courts but never by the people of Paris, most of whom preferred to believe her guilty. She was recognized and pointed at wherever she went.

Sore at heart, trusting no one, she was in danger of becoming a recluse when she met Henry Field, a kindly young preacher from America. This meeting changed her whole life.

The last half of the book deals with the life of Mrs. Henry Field. The experiences of the pretty French girl as the wife of a minister in America and her difficulties in dealing with situations arising from her inexperience are tender and amusing. The audience smiled with Mrs. Wall over Henrietta's appearance at a week of prayer assembly in a ruffled, bottle green taffeta ball gown, under the impression that she had received a party invitation. She made many mistakes but she learned quickly.

Swimming Party And Picnic Honors Jeane Baker

Through the story like a glowing thread runs the love of Henry Field for his charming and volatile wife. Of Puritan ancestry, Henry Field was as upright himself as he was gentle and forgiving of the foibles of others. Under his tutelage and because of her native sweetness and purity Henrietta Desportes Field became an angel of mercy to all who knew her.

According to Mrs. Wall, it is the last half of the book that makes it truly worth reading. It shows a pleasant cross section of life and a sturdiness of character that is truly American and it tells much of the history of a famous American family.

Fans Shout As To Wichita Falls Oil Bowl

Two Skyrockets Leave On August 28 To Practice For Game Sept. 4

Wellington football fans won't have to wait until September 22 to see their enthusiasm to come up already started rising since announcement that two favorites of all time will take part in the annual Oil Bowl charity game at Wichita Falls Monday, Sept.

Playing for the West Texas team will be Don Austin in the backfield and Walter Nelson at guard position. This game was defeated last year by the Masked Temple of Wichita Falls, and proceeds will be given to the Scottish Children's Hospital in Dallas. An array of talent lined up by the East and the West Texas will arrive in Wichita Falls August 28 with such unqualified recommendations that the question may simmer down to which side overrated its players.

Coach L. C. Wood of Cameron, who handled the East team last year when it nearly nosed out the West Texans, will again direct that group. Grady Graves, whose Crowell Wildcats are district contenders from year to year, will have charge of the West. Both mentors insist their 1939 aggregations will be stronger than the ones which met at Wichita Falls last year.

The squad rosters as released to Wichita Falls sports writers, include the following:

West Texas—Backs, Don Austin, Wellington; Durwood Neville, Angelo; Raymond Joy, Crowell; Henry Ledbetter, Newcastle; Sam Shaw, Haskell; Malcolm Peterson, Newcastle; J. L. Gobson, Pampa; Ends, Beck Ezell, Wink; Ed Fitzgerald, Crowell; Tom Warden, Brownfield; Jack Roberts, Albany. Tackles, Merle Newman, McLean; Jack Brock, Gillicoth; Ed Gafford, Crowell; Alvin Williams, Lockney; Guards, Walter Nelson, Wellington; Harry Elliott, Burk Burnett; Gaynell Gregory, Albany; Scott, Haskell; Centers, Williams, Stamford; John Ballew, Wink.

East Texas—Backs, Lewis Mayne, Cuero; Dean Bagley, San Saba; Fritz Lobpries, Schulenburg; Willie Zapalac, Belleville; A. Weems, Rockdale; Walter Taylor, Homer Pittman; Ends, Leslie Tiner, Edison; Guards, Charles Miller, Belton; Ray Mulholland, Belton; Clifford Jues, Cameron; Alec Lazek, Jaramon; Centers, Beau Jones, Proesbeck; Harris Patillo, Yoakum.

Rev. Cook is an enthusiastic song leader and Rev. Shannon is already well known over this country. A cordial invitation is extended to every person in this and all surrounding communities to attend the services, said J. F. Skaggs, who is helping with the plans.

O'Brien Gives Collegians Slight Edge Over Giants

Davey O'Brien . . . he'll pitch strikes against pros.

By IRVING DIX

They call it the "dream game" and that's just exactly what it should be the night of August 30 when the College All-Stars meet the New York Giants in the annual charity game at Soldier Field.

There isn't a coach in the land who wouldn't give five years of his career to handle the material assembled under the expert eye of Elmer Layden, Notre Dame mentor, who was chosen in a nationwide poll to direct last year's collegians.

Aiding Layden are Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin, Carl Snavely of Cornell, Maj. Bob Neyland, of Tennessee and Slip Madigan of St. Marys.

The world championship Giants would like to uphold the prestige of the play-for-pay game, but they'll have their hands full with the gang across the scrimmage line.

The Washington Redskins, Sammy Baugh and all, met with disaster in last year's classic and grid experts are granting a slight edge to the collegians again this trip.

Fans the nation over elected an all-star backfield that is truly All-America in versatility.

County Workers Urged To Stay Away From Calif.

Agricultural workers in the Wellington area were urged recently not to go to California in search of work, by O. H. Williams, manager of the Childress office of the Texas State Employment Service. "To go with the mere hope of finding work there will result in disappointment and hardships for most migratory workers," Mr. Williams said.

Agricultural workers entering California increased from approximately 2,000 in January to more than 5,000 in June, according to records of the United States Employment Service. The June total

Resume Allowance For Soldiers Who Reenlist In Army

Sergeant R. A. Jackson, Army Recruiting Officer in Amarillo, has been advised from his District Recruiting Headquarters, Fort Bliss, Texas, that payment of the re-enlistment allowance has been resumed.

Payment of this allowance was suspended June 30, 1933 as an economy measure, and the non-payment continued to date.

Restoration of payment means that every soldier honorably discharged from a three year enlistment, who re-enlists within three months thereafter will be paid $75.00 the day he enlists.

Ex-soldiers who have been discharged since the latter part of May are eligible to receive this bonus, provided their re-enlistment can be accomplished before they have been out of the service three months.

9 o'clock until 12 o'clock.

Sixth grade pupils will enroll Monday afternoon from 1 o'clock until 4 o'clock.

Enrollment in the two elementary schools will be completed Monday morning, Sept. 4, from 9 o'clock until 12 o'clock.

It is necessary for all high school students to enroll at the time mentioned above, because classes will be filled and enrollment completed for each class at the time scheduled.

No student may classify as a senior in the high school who does not have at least eleven affiliated credits. Juniors will be required to have at least seven affiliated credits and sophomores at least three.

All new pupils are requested to bring their transfer of credits when they enroll in the high school. This does not apply to students from schools in this county as the county superintendent's office has already sent their transcripts.

An ink fee of twenty-five cents in the junior and senior high will be required when the pupil enrolls. To parents it was explained that this is the fee for the entire year, and that the student needs no ink of his own, and that every student who has attended this school before knows the economy and convenience of this custom.

Of interest to patrons with children in the grade school division was the announcement that the dividing line for the ward schools will again be drawn at East avenue and will run entirely across the Wellington Independent School District. First, second and third grade pupils living on the east side of East avenue will go to East Side school, and all on the west side of East avenue will go to West Side school. No exception will be made along this line. If transfers are necessary in order to balance the teaching load of the instructors, such changes will be made at a later date, and not during enrollment.

The new course in Vocational Agriculture in the High School will be open to all boys. Each student taking Vocational Agriculture will be eligible for membership in the Future Farmers of America organization. Students taking Vocational Agriculture will not only study the theory of farming, but they will be required to practice doing the things they study in books, magazines and bulletins.

The object of Vocational Agriculture in the high school is to fit boys for farm life. When a boy finishes the course in Vocational Agriculture, he should be able to go on a farm as owner or renter and successfully apply practical and improved practices in farming. In order to be able to go on a farm and succeed, a boy must get plenty of practical experience with the farm problems as well as the theory of farming. Therefore, each boy taking Vocational Agriculture will be required to carry projects in order to get the practical experience. Students taking Agriculture will also go out on the farm and actually kill hogs, terrace land and prune trees—to get this practice, and learn to do the things studied in the class room.

World history has been introduced into many high schools for several years, and it is being introduced here this year. It is a one credit combination course for the ninth grade and replaces both Ancient and Medieval history. Public speaking will be introduced this year if possible, and next year if not this. This is a very valuable course to develop personality, leadership, and prepare young people to adapt themselves to a situation requiring public appearances. Public speaking is not a new course because it has been taught for many years in other schools. Community civics or citizenship is an eighth grade subject that gives one-half credit, and is taught as a one semester course. This is a new course that fits into the social science field and helps make better citizens of our girls and boys.

general business course. It is designed to give the elementary law governing business. Occupations is a new course, and carries one-half credit in the eighth grade to go with the community civics to make a complete credit. This course is sometimes called vocations, because it gives a cross section of the leading vocations, and makes an attempt at assisting the student to determine the choice of a vocation. It is a very valuable and practical course for the young high school student. Band will be accredited in the high school this year. Also, choral singing will be accredited if it is at all possible. There is no finer social influence on the lives of young people than good music. This is the beginning of a complete program of music and music appreciation that will be developed to include every girl and boy in the entire system.

Physical and health education is required by Texas law, and will be introduced into the schools this year. All students will be required to take the health instruction, and only students with a signed certificate from a medical doctor will be exempt from the physical exercises. Plans are being made to accredit this course but no definite announcement can be made at this time about the credit.

Art, mechanical drawing, diversified occupations, journalism, junior business training and industrial training cannot be introduced this year. Some of these courses will be added each year until the students in the Wellington High School will have as wide a field of offerings to choose from as any high school in the State.

Special subjects will have private teachers giving lessons for tuition. Mrs. John C. Harper will teach piano, Mrs. Fred C. Decker will teach expression, and others

Continue Giving Vaccinations To Indigent Children

That inoculation of indigent children for smallpox, typhoid fever and diphtheria will be given again Saturday, and for as long as is necessary was announced this week. The giving of the inoculations is sponsored by the St. Joseph's Hospital Auxiliary and are given at the hospital.

A total of 130 children have been given the vaccines, approximately 40 coming for the first time on Saturday, according to Mrs. Chas. B. Jones.

For the first time in five years, all eligible colored children in town have been included in the group to receive inoculations, she added.

Wanda Lou Fleming was confined to a local hospital early this week, where she had her tonsils removed.
