Astronaut In Triumphant Return To His Homeland

Big Scientific Message From Glenn's Trip Is 'Space Travel Is For People'

By CHARLES E. TAYLOR

GRAND TURK ISLAND, Bahamas (UPI) — Space travel is for people as well as robot machines, and ordinary mortals will be able to make the trip as well as superman like John H. Glenn Jr.

That was the big scientific message today from astronaut Glenn's historic triple orbit of earth on Tuesday.

In the void beyond the earth's atmosphere and on out toward the moon and planets, humans will be thinking, inquisitive, industrious beings — not just passive passengers leaving the work to automatic equipment.

With all its portents for future exploration, this conclusion was spread fully on the record during two days and nights of intensive interviews and examinations of Glenn on this remote British isle.

Doctors and other specialists wound up this first phase of their studies of America's first orbital flier before Glenn's departure to Cape Canaveral for joyous celebrations with President Kennedy and tens of thousands of elated countrymen.

He was far more nervous about all that, it seemed to his colleagues, than about the space voyage which sent American hopes and prestige soaring into an orbit of their own — and filled volumes with technical data that pointed to the usefulness of man-in-space.

Try as they might, examiners could find nothing wrong with Glenn. Vertigo? Nausea? Nothing of the sort happened during four hours, 56 minutes of weightlessness.

Said Dr. William K. Douglas, astronauts' physician: "I would have no hesitation about letting my son (who is 14) or my wife take a trip like Glenn's. "Anybody from 6 to 60 could ride as a passenger" and be unharmed by the stresses of such a flight.

Said Lt. Col. Edward Knoblock, biochemist from Walter Reed Army Hospital: "There is no doubt now about man being able to function in space."

What had Glenn done to bring on these rather unqualified comments?

First and foremost, he had controlled his spacecraft manually when troubles plagued the automatic controls. He had been able to think normally, make an astonishing number and variety of scientific observations as he plunged along at 17,500 miles an hour, and perform the daring feat of turning his ship completely around while in orbit.

So curious did Glenn become about a rash of particles resembling "fireflies" scudding past his ship, that he maneuvered it with little jet controls on the second orbit until it turned 180 degrees.

Experts already were deducing that astronauts, not completely automatic devices, will navigate moon ships and will perform rendezvous in orbit with other spacecraft.

The wisdom of sending men out to do jobs that some thought machines could do as well has been debated hotly since the U.S. space program started.

"Glenn's performance was the best answer to the doubters," Douglas said.

Though he was busy "driving" the craft more than half of its time in orbit, Glenn was able to make acute observations of a sort of Saturn-like ring about the earth that also had intrigued Russian cosmonaut Gherman Titov.

He also returned information on earth's cloud cover that experts rated more useful than obtained from the unmanned Tiros weather satellite.

He found he could eat all right, but had trouble re-loading his camera when film floated out of reach in the gravity-free environment of the spacecraft.

On one key point, Glenn was every bit the old airplane pilot—the same aviator who first flew a plane across the United States at supersonic speed. His ship, he said, was too much cluttered with automatic equipment. Much could be removed, with astronauts taking over the functions it performed. Pilots for many long years have complained about overloading of their planes' gadgetry.

What Glenn would like to do now, after all that work in space, would be to "go back up there and just look around." He recommended humorously that the next astronaut, Donald (Deke) Slayton, "leave everything at home and just go look."

Countdown Is Nearing Zero Hour In 'Most Courteous Employe' Election

The countdown of votes in The Pampa News election campaign to decide Pampa's "Friendliest, Most Courteous" man and woman employe was nearing zero - hour this afternoon.

Tabulators have been busy with the tedious vote-counting task ever since the balloting ended Feb. 15.

Names of new nominees were found in the last votes counted.

At noon today there had been a total of 757 nominees listed in the campaign. The vote counting still was going on.

The campaign to find Pampa's "Friendliest, Most Courteous" employes started on Jan. 1 and continued for six weeks.

The tabulators were able to keep up with the vote count in the first four weeks of the election, but as the deadline drew near for balloting, a veritable avalanche of votes flooded the News office in the final days to put the tabulators far behind in their work.

The man and woman employes who receive the greatest number of votes will be awarded $50 in cash and a framed certificate designating the honor bestowed upon them.

In addition, 25 men and 25 women employes each will be presented with an honorable mention cer-

Conflicts Threaten Meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The mounting conflict between Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the West over how to open next month's disarmament talks threatens to sabotage the conference before it begins.

President Kennedy Thursday night authorized the State Department to publicly reject a tough new Khrushchev demand that the 18-nation Geneva conference on arms control open with a summit session.

The department said Kennedy stood by the proposal he and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan had made to begin the Geneva talks at the foreign ministers' level. They promised to consider a summit meeting later if progress warranted.

A formal note rejecting Khrushchev's second bid will go to Moscow within the next 24 to 28 hours, officials said.

The State Department said the United States felt that its present position was still the "proper one" and Kennedy wanted no premature summit.

The department acted swiftly to slap down Khrushchev's new summit bid, issuing its statement less than 12 hours after receiving the Soviet message and before the Kremlin had even made it public.

Khrushchev's message was described as extremely tough in tone and quite argumentative. It ran about 2,500 words, and argued that disarmament was too important a subject to be left to lesser officials. Macmillan received a similar note from Moscow.

Officials said the Soviet note

'Most Dangerous' Blizzard Hits Plains Area

By United Press International

A blizzard called winter's "most dangerous" veered into the high plains of Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado today. Severe thunderstorms and at least one tornado pounded Dixie.

However, the blizzard appeared weakening and warnings were cancelled in parts of Iowa, Kansas and the Dakotas by the U.S. Weather Bureau.

Severe thunderstorm warnings were up this morning in parts of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

A fog blanket which snarled plane travel along the East Coast from Maine to Virginia Thursday appeared to be lifting early today.

Sub-zero cold continued in the Dakotas and Montana in the wake of Thursday's blizzard.

Freezing drizzle veneered highways with ice in parts of northern New England.

A tornado touched down Thursday night in Marion County, South Carolina, injuring a tenant farmer's wife and damaging 60 tobacco barns and sheds. Some farm homes reported roof damage.

Winds up to 50 miles an hour accompanied the blizzard as it swirled southward from Montana and the Dakotas.

Bulletin

Five people were hospitalized here shortly after noon today as the result of a two-car collision 4½ miles east of Miami. In a local hospital were an unidentified man and wife and two of their four children who were riding in a westbound automobile bearing South Dakota license, and a man named O'Loughlan, who was driving west on Highway 30 when the mishap occurred.

JFK Gives A Medal; Family Gives Love

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. returned in triumph to this spaceport today to receive the embraces of his family, a medal from his President, and the first of many frenzied tributes from his hero-worshipping countrymen.

The 40-year-old Marine, who soared three times around the earth three days ago to become America's first man in orbit, came back at 8:40 a.m. from Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas.

There, since Tuesday's 81,000-mile flight, his doctors and other scientists had sought to glean from his quick brain every significant detail of his four hours and 56 minutes in space.

Almost the first thing the sandy-haired spaceman did on leaving the plane which brought him back was to embrace his wife Anna, who was radiant in an all-red suit. The two stood at the foot of the ramp arm in arm, both smiling happily.

Then the Glenn children, 16-year-old David and 14-year-old Carolyn, got into the act, all but overpowering their famous father with hugs and kisses.

As the crowd assembled at Patrick Air Force Base broke into a thunder of cheering and applause, the astronaut grinned broadly and waved.

A moment later he was weeping tears of happiness. He had told his colleagues that, unlike Tuesday's pioneer leap into space, today's schedule of reunions and honors had made him "a wee bit nervous."

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who had joined Glenn at Grand Turk for the flight, was the first off the plane, the astronaut following.

Thousands of persons lined the 14-mile route from the landing field to the cape launching site where Glenn had blasted off on an Atlas rocket.

President Kennedy flew from Palm Beach to the cape at 10:27 a.m. Glenn and the vice president walked past a long line of Air Force honor guardsmen, standing stiffly at attention, to greet the President as a band played "Hail to the Chief." Then the Marine Corps hymn.

Shortly after the President and Glenn clasped hands, the crowd of spectators surged forward and completely engulfed them.

Eventually, however, the two men were able to get to their car and drive to the Mercury control center where the fateful decision on Glenn's flight were made on Tuesday.

There Christopher C. Kraft, flight director for the Mercury program, explained to the President how tracking stations around the world kept constantly in touch with the astronaut.

Kennedy appeared to enjoy the visit. He smiled and laughed often.

From the control center, the party went to Launch Pad 14 where Glenn roared into the sky at 9:47 a. m. Tuesday.

Glenn sat in the back seat of a convertible with Kennedy on one side and Maj. Gen. Leighton I.

BACKSTAGE AT THE MINSTRELS — The audience out front sees a one-hour and 45-minute show that starts when the curtain rises at 8 p.m. But, there's a lot of activity going on backstage in the make-up rooms that begins two hours earlier. Lions Minstrel Show Warm Entertainment

Pampans who gave up television for live entertainment last night were warmly rewarded by the annual Lions Club minstrel show in Pampa Junior High School auditorium.

"Ragtime Jubilee," a black and tan production with a company of 60 singers, dancers and blackface comedians, will give another performance tonight. If you are looking for an evening of fun, lively music and songs, and excellent dancing — the Junior High auditorium will be the place to find it. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

The opening night performance went off well under the deft direction of Max Presnell.

There were some show stoppers. These included Majunta Hills' very fine rendition of "Tired" and "Come Home, Bill Bailey."

In the same category were the vocal numbers by Leatrice Clements and Dorothy Walker.

Among the male songsters Rufe Jordan and Jim Edminster won their share of the applause. Coy Palmer at the xylophone and Nat Lunsford playing the banjo were among the opening night pleasers.

For precision dancing, the seven "Dancing Dolls" scored a hit as did the dancing duo of Judy Robison and Paula Sealy, the "Cotton Club Cuties" and the solo tap dance of 11-year-old Donna Glass from McLean. Other dancers in the "Dancing Dolls" number in addition to the Misses Robinson and Sealy, were Glynette Dawkins, Larue Nation, Leslie Watkins, Cheryl Ammerman and Jane Wells.

In the strictly instrumental end of the minstrel, the work of the Dixieland Band, comprised of Bernice Hatcher, piano; Bill Atkinson, bass; Willis Stark, trumpet; Pinky Powell, drums; Tommy Adkins, guitar, C. C. Mandeville, sax, and E. O. (Red) Wedgeworth and Henry Gruben, trombones, was outstanding.

Wynne Veale, as Mr. Interlocutor, handled his end men well. He had a little difficulty with a couple of the funsters trying to slip in jokes that were not in the script.

'Fur' Salesman Investigated For Swindling

A man who gave his latest address as Guthrie, Okla., was being held in the Carson County jail at Panhandle today for investigation of swindling in connection with the sale of furs.

Carson County Sheriff John Nunn at Panhandle said this forenoon the suspect was picked up at a Pampa motel yesterday by Patrolman Pat Patterson of the Pampa police department.

Pampa police turned the suspected swindler over to Texas Ranger Bill Henslee who released him to the Carson County sheriff's department.

Ranger Henslee said the suspect also was being checked in connection with a fur robbery about a month ago in Enid, Okla., but so far had not been directly connected with it.

He is being held at Panhandle on a complaint filed by Mrs. Hugh Johnson, wife of a Panhandle plumber. Sheriff Nunn said the suspect sold a fur coat of inferior grade to Mrs. Johnson for about three or four times what it was actually worth.

Ranger Henslee said from information that could be obtained, the phony fur salesman obtains his furs from a New York concern that specializes in repairing old fur coats and selling them for new.

"They last about a week and the fur begins falling out," Henslee said.

The man also is reported to have made sales of coats and stoles in Pampa within the last week or two, and attempted to make some "sales" in Lefors.

Union Heads Seeking New Federal Agency

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — AFL-CIO leaders said today they will seek legislation that would create a new federal agency to guarantee that workers will receive pension benefits negotiated in union contracts.

The executive council of the labor federation was expected to endorse such a proposal and order its attorney to begin drafting a bill for introduction in Congress.

Walter P. Reuther, auto workers' president, said that thousands of workers lose retirement benefits each year when companies go out of business without enough funds to meet their pension obligations.

He noted that the U.S. government has created the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) to protect the savings of depositors in banks through a system of reinsurance.

"The catastrophe faced by workers when pension rights are swept away by business failure is as great as they faced by the saver during the bank failures of the early 1930s," Reuther said in an interview.

Under the Reuther-backed plan, corporations would be required to pay a small premium to the government that would spread the cost of the pension reinsurance system among all of the nation's employers with retirement programs.

He said that pension rights of retired workers and those a few years from retirement should be fully insured and partial protection provided for all workers with any accrued benefits.

In another development a group of rail union leaders reiterated their strong opposition to railroad mergers following a meeting with

New Clues Are Investigated In Bank Robbery

FBI authorities and the Wheeler County sheriff's department today were following some new clues and leads in connection with the $1,000 robbery of the First State Bank at Mobeetie Tuesday night.

Texas Ranger Bill Henslee, Pampa, who also is working on the case, said today authorities have leads which extend as far as California.

Ranger Henslee also stated that the possibility is being investigated that the job may have been pulled by the same gang that robbed the Mobeetie bank in a smiliar fashion on Nov. 10, 1952.

The Tuesday night burglary of the bank resulted in the theft of some $1,000 in silver from one of two vaults which the thieves broke into after gaining entrance to the building by prying open a rear door.

City Fire Credit Rate Same As It Was One Year Ago

Fire Chief Ernest Winborne said today indications are that Pampa's fire insurance credit rate of 5 per cent, now in effect, will start climbing again this year if the city's fire loss figure can be held down.

The fire chief also pointed out that the 5 per cent credit rate figure released by the State Insurance Board yesterday, was not a drop over last year's figure.

"It is the same," Chief Winborne said. "We were at 5 per cent last year and we have held our own. I believe that we will start back up this year."

The drop in Pampa's fire credit rating was figured over a five-year period. Pampa's rating was 25 per cent in 1957 and the drop was at the rate of 5 per cent a year during the succeeding years to 1961 when it reached 5 per cent. This was due, the fire chief pointed out, to an unusual rash of major fires in Pampa during that five - year period.

"We did not drop suddenly from 25 per cent to 5 per cent," Chief Winborne explained. "The figure for Pampa this year was just the same as it was last year."

The State Insurance Board figures for other surrounding towns and cities in the North Texas area show the following credit ratings:

Amarillo, 0; Borger, 5; Childress, minus - 15; Plainview, 15; Hereford, 10; Canyon, 20; Dalhart, 25; Lubbock, 15; Vernon, 0; Wichita Falls, 5.

It was pointed out that Pampa's credit rate of 5 per cent was higher than Amarillo and the same as Borger, Pampa's two nearest neighboring cities.

Man Held For Investigation In 'Black-Face' Car Theft

Police said they didn't think their man got the idea from end men in the Lions Club minstrel, but they were holding a "black-face" suspect on a charge of car theft.

The man, 42-year-old Wallace Smith of Post, Texas, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. W. Graham this forenoon. He was placed under $1,500 bond and is being held in county jail for grand jury action.

He was arrested last night in Miami by Deputy Sheriff Jess Lawson after he had abandond an automobile allegedly stolen from Adell Myers, an assistant cashier at the First National Bank of Pampa.

Police Chief Jim Conner said the car was stolen from in front of the Myers' residence, 342 Jean St., about 8:35 p.m. last night and Smith was arrested in Miami shortly after 9:30 p.m.

The police chief said Deputy Lawson had reported he found Smith trying to take another car parked on the street in Miami.

Chief Conner said Smith admitted, when questioned, that something had gone wrong with the Myers car and he was attempting to get another one. Conner said Smith told him he had been released from jail at Amarillo on Tuesday and had spent Wednesday and Thursday in Pampa.

Smith told Chief Conner he remembered entering a box car and blackening his face and hands with carbon black early last night. This, he told police, was to conceal his identity.

Pamphlet Tells How To Manage Women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While leafing through a stack of congressional newsletters, I ran across an item that set me all atwitter.

The Small Business Administration, it said, had published a pamphlet explaining "How to manage women."

Now here, I exclaimed to myself, is a federal agency that understands the meaning of public service. Rarely does one find the government showing such an awareness of what the citizenry needs.

The SBA pamphlet obviously would be of value not only to small businessmen, but to large businessmen and even non-businessmen, possibly including newspapermen.

I mean, it is common knowledge that women have been getting more unmanageable by the hour. Feeling that there was not a moment to lose, I beat it over to the SBA headquarters to pick up a copy of the pamphlet.

I found upon my arrival that a lot of other male minds had been running in the same channel. The agency already had exhausted its supply of the pamphlets and had a big backlog of orders on file.

Fortunately, I was able to borrow a copy and immediately undertook to memorize its contents. I wanted to be well briefed on the subject before I went home that night.

Sad to relate, the pamphlet is a bit too narrow in scope for my purposes. It deals primarily with managing women employes, rather than with women in general.

Nevertheless, it sets forth some broad principles (no pun intended) that can be applied non-commercially by substituting the word "husband" where the word "employer" appears.

"Women," the pamphlet says, "are different. They tend to personalize situations . . . Some women magnify minor details because they often feel that they are the center around which other people revolve."

Women like to be praised and dislike being corrected, particularly in front of other women. They become annoyed when rushed and are touchy about working overtime.

Above all, women resent anything that makes them suspect they are being treated unfairly. They don't function well unless convinced that they are on equal terms with men.

In an effort to help an employer cope with these traits, the pamphlet lists 22 hints that supposedly will aid in the management of women. It seems to me, however, that the whole thing can be summed up in one sentence:

Don't treat a woman like a woman, but at the same time make certain you don't treat her like a man.

Now, We Take You To A Man Who Watched T-V Too Much Too Long

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I don't know about you, but I must have spent too much time listening to the radio during astronaut John Glenn's space flight Tuesday.

The radio has been long since turned off but I keep on hearing voices, and this is what they seem to be saying:

"...This is Harvey Lungbuster back here at radio network control where we're still awaiting word on whether the astronaut has landed.

"It's a beautiful day on the Florida coast. The sky is blue and the ocean is green. Let's switch now to Sammy Peavine aboard the aircraft carrier."

"This is Sammy Peavine aboard the aircraft carrier. It's a beautiful day out here on the Atlantic. The sky is blue and the ocean is green. Otherwise, we can't see a thing, Harvey."

"Well, tell us what you can't see, Sammy."

"Right, Harvey. I can't see the look of relief on the astronaut's face as he floats gently down from orbit, assuming, of course, that his parachute opened okay.

"Or, assuming that he has already hit the water, I can't see him sitting calmly in the capsule waiting for the destroyer to pick him up.

"This is Sammy Peavine aboard the aircraft carrier returning you to Harvey Lungbuster at radio network control."

"Thank you, Sammy. We've just heard an eyewitness report from Sammy Peavine aboard the aircraft carrier. And this is Harvey Lungbuster back here at radio network control.

"Let's switch now to Dorothy Wallflower, who is standing by the home of the astronaut's family."

"This is Dorothy Wallflower at the home of the astronaut's family. It's a beautiful day. The sky is blue and the grass is green. However, the family is still in the house, Harvey, and we don't know what they're doing."

"What do you imagine they're doing, Dorothy?"

"I imagine they're sticking pretty close to the television set, Harvey. They must be feeling mighty tense right now, but mighty proud, too.

"This is Dorothy Wallflower at the home of the astronaut's family returning you to Harvey Lungbuster at radio network control."

"We've just had the latest report on the astronaut's family from Dorothy Wallflower. And this is Harvey Lungbuster back here in radio network control.

"I have with me space expert, Horace Figurehead, who's going to tell us again how much the capsule weighs. That will kill a little more time while we're awaiting word on whether the astronaut has landed.

"In the meantime, we switch you to..."

Frank Sinatra, Juliet Prowse In Break-Up

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A "conflict in career interests" today was blamed for the break-up of the Romeo and Juliet romance of Frank Sinatra and dancer Juliet Prowse.

"Juliet Prowse and Frank Sinatra today disclosed they have called off their wedding plans," the couple announced in a joint statement issued Thursday. "A conflict in career interests led us to make this decision. We both feel it is wiser to make this move now rather than later."

For Miss Prowse, there were no tears. She was busy rehearsing for a television show when the announcement was made public.

"No tears whatsoever," a spokesman for the 25-year-old South African dancer said. "She's beautiful, she's fine."

Donald O'Connor, who hosts the show which costars Miss Prowse, said "You couldn't tell a thing. She worked just as hard as she did on other days."

The first signs of discord in the romance came shortly after the couple announced their engagement. Sinatra, 46, said Miss Prowse would give up her career to become a housewife.

A few days later Miss Prowse told United Press International she intended to continue her career after her marriage.

On Tuesday, Sinatra and Miss Prowse told UPI they would be married within the next month and honeymoon on a world trip.

Derivation

Bandana is a word derived from Hindustani. The word "bandhnu" was applied to a method of dyeing in which parts of a cloth were bunched together in order not to receive the dye, producing a calico effect, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

show are Sam Jacobson, Bill McComas, Norman Henry, P. O. Gaut, Tom Snow, and Pinky Shultz.

The vocal chorus of Pampa men and women was featured in several numbers and they did themselves proud. The 50 or more voices blended well and the audience especially liked the "76 Trombones" number.

One of the added features at last night's show was the spontaneous act that developed when End Man Sam Jacobsen invited Janelle Blakemore, a lovely member of the chorus, to join him in a demonstration of The Twist. The audience liked it, and although it wasn't in the script, they should keep it in tonight.

All in all, it's a well - rounded local talent show far above the average. Last night's audience—the house was about three-fourths filled — enjoyed it to the fullest. Ed Flood, business manager for the show, said indications are that a sell-out audience will be on hand tonight.

● Meeting

questioned Kennedy's sincerity in going forward with disarmament conference plans at a time when, according to press reports, the United States was preparing to resume nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

American officials said Khrushchev's note left open the possibility that he might go to Geneva even if Kennedy and Macmillan refused to attend. But he did not specifically say so.

The U.S. statement said that a "large majority" of the 18 countries scheduled to attend the Geneva meeting had turned down Khrushchev's original proposal, made Feb. 10, that heads of state or government attend the conference.

Officials said that outside of the Communist bloc only Burma had accepted the proposal.

The nations to be represented at the arms talks include five Communist countries, five NATO members and eight belonging to neither bloc.

The Communist nations are Russia, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Romania and Bulgaria. The Western powers are the United States, Britain, France, Canada and Italy. The unaligned nations scheduled to participate are Brazil, Mexico, Ethiopia, Nigeria, United Arab Republic, India, Burma and Sweden.

Truck-Train Collision Hurts One

Miller A. Jewell, 63, 1041 Prairie Dr., escaped serious injury today when the truck he was driving collided with a Ft. Worth-Denver freight train one mile south of the city on Highway 273.

Investigating officers said Jewell, an employe for the Windsor Well Servicing Company, Pampa, was driving a company boiler truck east on State Highway 273 at 9:10 a.m. when the accident occurred.

Officers said Jewell apparently did not see the 5-car freight train traveling north as it approached the intersection and pulled in front of the engine. The truck was struck on the right side just behind the driver's seat.

Jewell was taken by ambulance to Highland General Hospital where he was treated for minor cuts and released.

The truck was heavily damaged, according to Highway Patrol officers who are still investigating the accident.

heads of the Pennsylvania and New York Systems.

Pennsylvania board chairman James M. Symes and NYC president Alfred E. Perlman flew to Miami to tell the labor group how the proposed consolidation of the two railroads would affect jobs of their 125,000 employes.

They issued a joint statement with the union leaders after a 90-minute talk to say that no negotiations were started although views were exchanged on problems connected with the merger plan.

"There was no point in talking about burial arrangements, because we are not ready to be killed," one union official said afterwards.

Perlman and Symes apparently hoped to soften union opposition to the merger with some job security assurances.

The labor chiefs, however, vowed to continue their battle. They believe that the railroads want to create three giant systems in the East built around the Pennsy-Central, Chesapeake & Ohio-Baltimore & Ohio, and the Norfolk & Western lines.

This would slash service and stifle competition in the industry, the union leaders contended.

Church Slates Song Service

Still More Break-Ins Reported

It was the same old story again petty thieves breaking into cars and an attempt at burglary of a grocery store that failed.

W. P. Cross, 408 N. Zimmer, notified police that someone stole a rotary cap and damaged the condenser and points in the engine of a parked car at the N. Zimmer address.

Sammy Green, 433 Graham, reported someone stole a 22-calibre rifle and two tires from a car parked in the driveway at his home.

Thieves tried to break open the back door of the S and J Grocery, 600 E. Frederic, last night but apparently were frightened away before gaining entrance.

Mrs. W. L. Christian, 520 N. Russell, reported the family was absent from home about two hours Wednesday night and during that time someone broke a pane of glass in the front door and enetred the house. Mrs. Christian said there was evidence that several drawers had been opened in a dresser, but nothing was found missing.

Rain, Wind Slams Into East Texas

By United Press International

Torrential rains and destructive winds swept East Texas today during a severe thunderstorm forecast.

A windstorm hit the town of Waskom, on the Louisiana border, about dawn. It blew a trailer house partially off its foundation and littered streets with downed trees, signs and debris. The occupants of the trailer were not hurt.

Rain fell across wide areas of East, Central and Northeast Texas but it was expected to end by tonight, when a cold front was due.

Most of West Texas had fair skies.

The Canadian air that brought blizzard warnings for parts of Kansas was expected to drop temperatures in North Texas to the lowest point in weeks and bring snow to the Panhandle and South Plains.

● Glenn

Davis, commander of the Atlantic missile range, on the other.

At the pad, B. G. McNabb, a representative of General Dynamics Corp., which makes the Atlas, gave Kennedy a hard-top hat and made him an honorary member of the launch crew.

Glenn told the smiling President, "Welcome aboard." Glenn went on to give "my heartfelt thanks to the launch crew" which triggered him into space.

At Hangar S, where the astronauts live in the weeks and months of rigorous training before a flight, a gigantic crowd assembled for the medal - pinning ceremony.

By the platform was Glenn's Friendship 7 spacecraft, bearing the scorch marks of space flight. Flanking it was the new unmarked craft which will carry astronaut Donald K. Slayton into orbit in the next two months or so.

When he entered the gate to the test center, Glenn grinningly removed his pass from his pocket and held it up for the guard.

Mrs. Glenn, perched between her husband and the vice president atop the back seat of a convertible, smiled delightedly at the shouting crowds.

Occasionally knots of people swarmed on to the parade route, and motorcycle police had to herd them back. Signs saying "Well done, John," and "We're proud, John," greeted the astronaut.

Several cars back, the two Glenn children rode in an open car, also waving to the spectators.

The town of Cocoa Beach, lying between the cape and Patrick, has a normal population of about 7,000. Today its numbers were swollen many times by those assembled to do Glenn honor.

Glenn quickly recovered control of his emotions. Vice President Johnson made a speech of welcome, and the astronaut made this response:

"I'm glad to be aboard. I'm very proud, of course, the way the flight turned out. We've stressed all along the flight was not a one-man effort."

Glenn cited the "tremendous spirit" of everyone in the Mercury man-in-space program. He said he felt that in receiving the acclaim of the nation he was merely the "representative of the project."

"For all of you," he told his Mercury colleagues, "I am your representative on this, and I hope we can do a good job in the future."

Johnson told Glenn he must feel happy to be able to "do something that two presidents were not able to do."

He was referring to the fact that both Presidents Eisenhower Eisenhower and Kennedy had tried to get the Russians to cooperate in the exploration of space. Not until Glen's magnificent flight did Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev make a similar overture.

The ride to the launch site to receive NASA's distinguished service medal from President Kennedy was the first of many triumphal processions in store for Glenn.

The crowd had been swelling since the small hours. Cocoa Beach police estimated the number at 100,000. To help the little two-traffic - light town cope with the throng, cities from many parts of Florida sent police.

As Glenn rode with the vice president, bands blared, horns screamed, and spectators yelled and waved. Glenn repaid them with his now famous freckled grin.

Religious Exercises Okay In The Schools?

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Is there a place in public schools for prayers, Bible reading and other religious observances?

That question is being argued throughout America, in sermons and editorials, at school board hearings and PTA meetings, in kaffee klatches and court rooms.

At whatever level the debate is joined, it usually involves three distinct issues:

1. Are religious exercises in public schools constitutional?

2. Are they fair to children of minority faiths?

3. Do they help or hinder a child's religious training?

The issue of constitutionality will soon come before the U.S. Supreme Court. It has accepted for review a case in which Jewish, Unitarian and agnostic parents challenge the use in New York state schools of the following prayer:

"Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country."

The prayer was carefully designed to be "non-sectarian." But the protesting parents assert that its use puts public schools in the position of "favoring religious belief over non-belief." And that, they contend, a tax-supported institution is forbidden by the Constitution to do.

It is futile to guess how the Supreme Court will rule.

Related to the constitutional issue is the question of fairness to children of minority faiths. The prevailing practice in many communities is to recite the Lord's Prayer at school opening exercises. Thus, a Jewish child may be compelled to recite a Christian prayer.

This objection is met in many schools by giving each child the option of declining to participate in religious exercises which are contrary to his own traditions or beliefs.

But many Jewish parents feel this is a cruel joke. To refuse to take part in a school ceremony, they say, brands a child as "different" at an age when he is desperately anxious to conform.

Some schools have tried to resolve the problem by building their religious exercises around Old Testament readings which are common to Jewish and Christian traditions. They also take pains to offset a Christmas pageant with a Hanukah observance, and to recognize both Easter and the Passover.

This effort to please everyone also has encountered sharp criticism from some Jewish and Christian leaders. They feel it may be more of a handicap than a help to genuine religious education.

Their viewpoint was expressed by the Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington in a recent letter asking school boards in the nation's capital and its vicinity to ban all religious observances.

'New Life In The Church' Is Subject

"New Life In The Church," will be the sermon topic Dr. Hubert Bratcher, pastor of the First Methodist Church, will preach on at the two morning services this Sunday morning.

The special music for the 8:45 a.m. service will be furnished by the Junior Choir and the Sanctuary Singers will furnish the special music for the 11 a.m. service.

The Sunday night service at 7:15 p.m. will be conducted by Earl R. Cooper, associate minister.

Baptism Set Sunday Evening

Joe Allison, pastor of the Highland Baptist Church, which is affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention, has chosen for the Sunday Morning Worship Service the subject, "My Church Reaching Out." The sermon is formed around the scripture as found in Acts 2:1-8.

At the Sunday Evening Worship Service, the church will observe the Ordinance of Baptism at 7:30 p.m., which is to be followed by the sermon, "A Church with an Open Dor." The scripture will be read as found in Revelation 3:7-13.

Both the Junior and Senior Choirs, assisted by the congregation, directed by Brother Roy Harper, minister of music, assisted by Mrs. Donald Stafford and Mrs. Ann Winegeart, will furnish the music for both services.

North America, with about 20 per cent of the earth's cultivated area, has 7.5 per cent of the world's population.

Church May Pay Income Tax Though Not Required

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI)— The South Texas Presbytery, which concluded a two-day meeting Tuesday, is studying a proposal that it pay federal income tax even though it is not required by law to do so.

The First Presbyterian Church of Taft, one of 65 Gulf Coast churches at the meeting, made the suggestion. It was referred to a committee for study.

"Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's," the church quoted from the Bible in its proposed resolution.

The Taft church urged voluntary payment of taxes on investment revenue and said also that presbyterians should not compete with private enterprise.

The proposed resolution is not expected to come up again until the June meeting.

The South Texas group of churches has about $68,000 on deposit with a savings and loan firm. The fund is used to finance presbytery work with low interest loans.

Church organizations, as nonprofit bodies, are not required to pay federal tax on income.

Powers Story Being Studied At Inquiry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Somewhere — the place is a secret— an unprecedented, formal inquiry is going on today into the story of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

The panel is headed by an eminent judge — E. Barrett Prettyman — and includes "outstanding citizens" not yet named.

The choice of the panel appeared to reflect an administration effort to give the official U.S. report on Powers the highest stamp of impartiality and judicial credibility.

The Powers case has raised issues ranging from the reputation of a man and what his back pay should be, to the security of a nation, the extent of Soviet weapons development and the degree to which U.S. intelligence systems may have been compromised.

The panel was apparently chosen to report on these issues in a way which would reduce as much as possible lingering doubts among the American public and subsequent rumors and recriminations.

All signs so far indicate that Powers himself will be cleared of any failure to fulfill his contract or carry out his instructions.

The form of the inquiry was revealed by President Kennedy at his news conference Wednesday in what seemed a slip of the tongue.

"There is, as you know," Kennedy said, "a board of inquiry which is examining whether Mr. Powers completed his contract. That board. . .is under the leadership of Judge Prettyman and represents outstanding citizens."

Reporters had not known that Elijah Barrett Prettyman, 70, recently retired from the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia and a jurist of national reputation, was in the case, and had not known much more, on the record, than the fact that an inquiry was going on.

Pumped for information on what was meant by completing "his contract", U.S. officials replied, "The contract is classified."

But they indicated that on this question hinges a subsidiary legal issue of which of two possible accountings should determine Powers' back pay for the 18 months since his ill-starred flight.

Kennedy told newsmen Powers "has been cooperating fully" with the U.S. investigation. The inquiry, he said, will be completed by the middle of next week, and Powers then will be available to Congress and to the press.

Kennedy added: "I must say that there is so far no evidence that he did not comply with his contract."

Police Don't Like TV Show

GALVESTON (UPI)—The Galveston Municipal Police Association believes the television series "Car 54, Where are You" is a discredit to police officers, and wants the National Broadcasting Co. to discontinue it.

The association sent NBC officials a resolution in which it said members felt the TV program depicts officers in an absurd light and tends to generate a lack of respect and contempt for police departments in general.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — L. O. Hooper, of W. E. Hutton & Co., feels that demand for stocks right now is "indifferent" and that buyers "do not feel aggressive."

At the same time, the analysi maintains the supply of shares is not large, and those who are selling are not pressing their offerings.

He suspects that the early February rally was technical rather than fundamental, and that some further testing of the January lows may be necessary. Hooper also sticks to his earlier projection that the second half of the year should be better for the stock market than the first six months.

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. says there is ample evidence here that there is sufficient buying power to overcome the 718-720 resistance level in the D-J industrial average. "It seems to us that it will take only a little more absorption of offerings before prices wend their way up again."

Smilen & Safian's analysis of stock market trends says last week's weakness in growth stocks should be regarded as an anticipated normal reaction after a strong rebound. "It is not the forerunner of further weakness" and "the outlook for growth stocks is very favorable for the short-term and the long-term," it says.

'Brotherhood' To Be Emphasized

Brotherhood will be stressed at Christian Science church services Sunday.

Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Mind" will include this advice of Paul: "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment" (1 Cor. 1).

One of the correlative citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (pp. 469-470): "With one Father, even God, the whole family of man would be brethren; and with one Mind and that God, or good, the brotherhood of man would consist of Love and Truth, and have unity of Principle and spiritual power which constitute divine Science."

Lay-Preacher At 1st Presbyterian

The First Presbyterian Church will have Reginald C. Hillier, Lay-Preacher of Amarillo, as guest speaker for the 11 a.m. Worship Service Sunday. He will speak on "The Supreme Offering," using as his text a part of verse 31, chapter 12, 1st Corinthians, "A still more excellent way." The Choir will sing the anthem "O Divine Redeemer" by Gounod. Sunday Church School will be at 9:45 a.m.

A Congregational Dinner will be held in the Church, at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

First Church Of Christian Scientist

901 N. Frost

"For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any twoedged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Hebrews 4:12).

Indifference to divine law ,the word of God, robs mankind of the blessings conferred upon him by his heavenly Father. Instead of an awareness of the presence and power of God, there is a tendency among many to consider Him as afar off, wholly indifferent to man; and that God has little, if anything, to do with man's well-being. Such a misconception has clouded all history. Moses recognized this the blessing to be found in the promised land, he admonishd them not to think "in thine heart, My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth. But, he added, "thou shalt remember the Lord thy God" (Deuteronomy 8:17,18). And our great Master, Christ Jesus, said (John 14:10): "The words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works."

Creation is the expression of God's word. The man who is conscious of God's presence and the power of His word, divine law, is inspired in his thoughts and in his actions. In this manner the word of Truth, God, permeates his entire experience. He learns to live in the constant expectancy of good, not evil; of health and harmony, not sickness and discord; of happiness and contentment, not worry and fear. Such a man confidently turns to God in every need and his prayers are answered.

How does one gain the understanding of man's true relationship to God? Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, has written in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 272): "The spiritual sense of truth must be gained before Truth can be understood. This sense is assmilated only as we are honest, unselfish, loving and meek. In the soil of an 'honest and good heart' the seed must be sown; else it beareth not much fruit, for the swinish element in human nature uproots it. Jesus said: 'Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures' The spritual sense of the Scriptures brings out the scientific sense, and is the new tongue referred to in the last chapter of Mark's Gospel."

Colonial Touch Adds Interest To Entryway

Handsome and functional, this modern version of a dry sink doubles as room divider, storage piece and plant stand. Soft green-painted base with antiqued gold decorations combines with light brown wood. The top is laminated plastic exactly matched to wood grain and tone and able to withstand water spills.

KAY SHERWOOD

If your home boasts a separate entrance hall or foyer you can thank your lucky stars for the practical as well as the social advantages of such a floor plan.

But what about those of us not so fortunate? Entering the living room directly from the outdoors is awkward. I miss a front hall, too, in mushy weather when family and guests alike troop in, trailing evidences of the storm across the carpet.

The problem is to define an area for arrivals and departures, to set it apart from the living room and, in bad weather, to corral the muss.

Room-dividing furniture can be of help. An ample supply of plastic protectors or colorful washable rugs at the door for emergency use are necessary. An attractive bench or window seat will encourage people to pause and remove boots, hats and coats near the door.

For modern interiors, room dividers are not so hard to find. Sleek combinations of cabinet and open shelf units in metal or wood are available in a goodly range of prices. Filigree screens in individual panels which anchor from floor to ceiling with an extension rod adjustment could be tailored to mark off one side of a front entry.

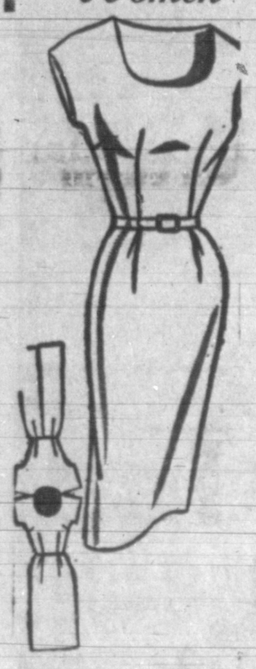

Room dividing pieces compatible with traditional furniture have not been so easy to find. One new design which forecasts more attention to this problem is one with an Early American background. This is reminisent of the old-fashioned dry sink but larger.

It does, in fact, have a copper-lined dry sink well adjacent to a modern wood - grained laminated plastic top. Below is a bavinet with adjustable shelves and at one end, an open book shelf.

Another modern touch: Completely hidden, big, free - wheeling casters that make it as easy to push as a baby carriage. In line with much new furniture, this piece may be had in a painted finish, a soft Quaker green with gold decorations.

In a more formal vein are tall bookcase - storage units which can become room dividers by virtue of their finished backs, tapered slightly so that two or three could be used together to form as an interesting wall. The backs are planned to display pictures, tapestries or wallpaper.

Dear Abby....

Daughter's Asking For Long Engagement

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a cuckoo 24 - year - old daughter who is so good - looking people are always asking her how come she isn't in pictures or on television. She is going with a man of a different religion. He told her that as long as his mother is alive she shouldn't expect marriage. The dummy says she is satisfied to wait. How can a mother convince her daughter she is throwing her life away? She won't listen to me.

MOTHER OF A SAP

DEAR MOTHER: She won't listen to me, either. Pray that she'll smarten up one of these days and realize that she has agreed to the longest wait in the world. It may not be forever, but it will seem like it.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know what a wife should do when her husband rolls over, hugs, kisses her and calls her by another woman's name in his sleep.

My husband did this and when I asked him about it he said he can't help what he dreams. I say a person dreams about what he has done. Am I wrong or not?

FORTY

DEAR FORTY: There is no telling what a person "dreams about", It can be something he has done, something he wishes to do, something he has never done or something he would never do. Don't hold a man responsible for what he dreams if he behaves himself when he's awake.

DEAR ABBY: I have looked everywhere for the answer to this question, but have yet to find it. My husband does a lot of public speaking and I am usually seated with him at the speakers' table. Should I applaud when he is introduced and when he has finished speaking? I am very proud of him and would like very much to applaud, but I have watched the wives of governors and city officials sit in stony silence while the audience applauded their husbands. Which is "correct"?

PROUD WIFE

DEAR PROUD: Applaud. Don't worry about what others think. It's better to show honest pride than hypocritical humility.

DEAR ABBY: I read somewhere that you were 43 years old. So how come you use your high school graduation picture with your column? I think you're trying to mislead your public.

WILFRED

DEAR WILFRED: My picture is comparatively recent, and I think you're a living doll.

How is the world treating you? Unload your problems on Abby, care of this paper.

Career Girls Can Sew And Enjoy Doing It, Too

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Business girls not only sew, but enjoy it. Two college graduates who have just recently taken position in business appeared at a party in smart, truly beautiful dresses. They had difficulty making anyone believe that they had made their dresses.

Their explanations proved my rule:

If you take $20 worth of lovely fabric, add to it $20 worth of style through the right choice of pattern and fabric for each other and for you, and add another $20 worth of time and good workmanship—you will have a dress easily worth $59.95.

This same formula works for business dresses, suits, and play clothes. Figure out the cost and value of a skirt. Buy $5 worth of fabric — one length of 54 inches is usually sufficient. Put $5 worth of style into it through your choice of pattern and its suit-ability to fabric. Add $5 worth of careful workmanship, and you have a skirt worth easily $15.

Business girls — all women, in fact — should avoid looking like a price tag. For example, no one should be able to say, "Her dress couldn't have cost more than $10.95," — or, "Her skirt — well, she didn't get a bargain if she paid more than $4.95 for it."

Right styling, good workmanship, and lovely fabrics are essential to every successful garment, and each garment has its value according to these ingredients.

The business girl who has a noon hour in which to shop should watch for remnants, should make friends with the people in the yard goods departments, and have not only their help but their cooperation in buying values.

And the business girl should study the pattern books, keep a record of numbers that she feels would be good designs for her. She should make a note of the yardage required and then keep an eye open for bargain buys in fabric.

A business girl should sew for relaxation and a change of pace from her job. If planned wisely, sewing can be the best therapy in the world.

I'd appreciate hearing from business girls who make their own clothes. I'd like to know how they plan a dress, what economies they are able to effect, and how long they have been sewing.

Dear Mrs. Picken: I wish to make a three-piece spring suit of linen: straight skirt, overblouse, and box jacket. Could you tell me what lining would be best, and also if all pieces should be lined? —D. L. L.

Dear D. L. L.: I would not line a linen suit. I think it would be bulky and would not clean or press as nicely as unlined linen does.

I'd use a hem in the bottom 2¼-inches deep, and hems of 1½-inches in the bottoms of the jacket and sleeves, but I would not use a lining.

I think if you tailor all your hems and seams nicely you will find that the suit is much better without a lining.

Do you have a sewing problem? Send it to Mary Brooks Picken, care of this newspaper. While Mrs. Picken cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in the column.

'I Resign' Adult Way Of 'Not Playing'

It has become quite the thing — especially in Washington — for anyone who doesn't like the policy of a private club regarding who can and who can't belong, to send in his resignation.

In the New Frontier "I resign" seems to have a connotation of moral courage.

When we were kids and our neighborhood gang played games we always had rules. If you did this you were "out," if you did that you had to miss your turn — and so on.

We made the rules for our small society. But every now and then a kid moved into the neighborhood who wanted to change the rules. The new kid had to be a mighty persuasive talker even to get a hearing. Usually the change of rules was vetoed.

And right then and there we found out what kind of a kid we had taken into our neighborhood circle. If he or she accepted the rule of the majority and played by those rules — we figured he was O.K. and a good sport.

But if the new boy or girl said "If you don't play my way I'm going home" we just yelled back, "Well, go on." And that was that.

We didn't figure the kid who wouldn't play if he couldn't make the rules had moral fiber. We figured he was a spoil-sport — and good riddance.

But times change — and the "I won't play" boys — at least in the big playground of national politics — seem to think they are some kind of heroes simply because they use the word "resign" instead of "quit."

It doesn't take any kind of courag to resign from anything. "I resign" is just a grown-up way of saying, "I won't play."

The Mature Parent

Oppose Conscience ...Imperial Marriage

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Since my husband's first wfie died two months ago, her children have been living with an aunt. The older one — a girl of 13 — is especially jealous of me. Yet not a day goes by that my husband doesn't say it's my duty to open our home to them. I am only 27 years old myself. I did not marry on the understanding that I had to raise another woman's children. Please write a column on the injustice of what my husband wants me to do.

ANSWER: Are you by any chance trying to organize an end to your marriage?

For a person of 27 years you seem to know very little about the human conscience. It is not a complicated thing. It works quite simply. It makes us hate anyone who forces us to do what we feel that it is wrong to do.

Clearly your husband feels that it is wrong to deny his home to his now half-orphaned children. It may be a noble feeling; it may be a silly and impractical one. Which, it is doesn't matter. What matters is that he believes it is wrong to refuse them his home—and all the king's horses and all the king's men will not put your marriage together again if you force him to do it.

If you do, his sense of loyalty to you will begin to weaken. Though he may agree to your wish, the knowledge that you have compelled him to do what he feels is wrong will breed distrust of his affection for you. Instead of the wife he loves, he will begin to see you as his fellow - conspirator against the rights of his children —and end by hating you for making him hate himself.

So I urge you both to consult a marriage counselor who may be able to help you work out some solution you can both accept.

In the meantime I suggest that you look at your attitude toward Time and Change. Nobody on earth can promise you unchanging circumstances. As Time has moved you from childhood to womanhood, changing your circumstances regardless of your wishes, so it now moves your husband and his children, changing their situation through the death of the mother regardless of their wises.

We are not Peter Pans, you know. We do not live in a clockless fairyland were Time stands still, but in a real, human world where we all have to learn to submit to altering circumstances.

Memphis State Completes List

United Press International

Memphis State wound up with the final "at-large" berth in the NCAA basketball tournament and Holy Cross clinched a bid to the National Invitation Tournament—with a losing effort!

Officials of the NCAA championship announced early Thursday night that Memphis State had accepted an invitation to meet Creighton in the first round of the Midwest regionals, thus completing the commitments for their tournament.

Memphis State was the ninth independent team named to the NCAA jamboree. The other 16 berths in the 25-team field will be filled by conference champions.

Holy Cross dropped an 84-80 verdict to New York University at Madison Square Garden Thursday night but showed enough class in losing to the NCAA-bound Violets to rate a return engagement in the NIT. The Crusaders bowed to Providence, the eventual champion, in the semifinals of last year's NIT.

Jack (The Shot) Foley, the nation's second-leading scorer, tossed in 39 points and sparked a Holy Cross rally that carried the Crusaders from a nine-point deficit to within 82-80 of NYU wih 40 seconds remaining.

However, Bill Canavan of the over-anxious Crusaders then fouled NYU's Don Blaha, who converted two free throws to wrap it up for the Violets.

Bill (The Hill) McGill, who is fighting to maintain his lead over Foley in the national scoring race, tallied 35 points as Utah downed Utah State, 78-76, and took over sole possession of first place in the Skyline Conference race.

Utah is ineligible for the NCAA tournament, so the bid will go either to Utah State or Colorado State, now tied for second place.

In other major games on Thursday night's thin schedule, Dave De Busschere scored seven of Detroit's 11 points in overtime to give the NCAA-bound Titans a 63-59 victory over Iona; Providence scored a 96-85 victory over Scranton, LSU whipped Tulane, 70-57, and Miami (Fla.) beat Tulsa, 83-66.

Eight teams were selected as "at large" entries in the NCAA small college tournament. They are Southern Illinois, sixth in the UPI small college ratings; Arkansas State, Evansville, Lamar Tech, Valparaiso, Youngstown (Ohio), Nebraska Wesleyan and Lincoln.

They joined Florida A&M in the 32-team field. Florida A&M was the first of 11 conference winners which qualified automatically for the tournament, which opens March 9 with four regional playoffs.

Three Tied In Tourney With 68's

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Handsome Doug Sanders, the Ojai, Calif., golfer with the unorthodox swing, today appeared the man to beat as the $30,000 New Orleans Open moved into the second round of play.

Sanders, the tournament's defending champion, sliced four strokes off the par 72 City Park course Thursday to tie with little known Ed Oldfield and Wes Ellis for the first-round lead.

But for an erratic putter, Sanders easily could have been alone at the head of the pack. He missed an eagle on the fourth hole when he failed to sink a 30-inch putt. He also missed a two-foot putt on No. 7 and with it a chance for another birdie.

But the weather threw an element of uncertainty over the tournament. Scattered showers were forecast throughout the day today and a cold front was expected to hit New Orleans tonight, threatening to drop temperatures to near freezing in this usually balmy city.

Despite threatening weather and gusty winds Thursday morning, Sanders fashioned four birdies and five pars on the outgoing nine for a sizzling 33. On the back nine, he carded a 35.

Oldfield and Ellis were surprising names among a field that included hot-shooting Phil Rodgers, young Jack Nicklaus and Dow Finsterwald.

Celtics Number Is Down To Magic Six

By United Press International

The magic number for the Boston Celtics' clinching of a sixth consecutive Eastern Division title in the National Basketball Association is down to six.

The Celtics moved to within easy shooting distance of their target Thursday night when they whipped the Syracuse Nationals, 134-106, before 3,006 fans at Providence, R.I. Any combination of Celtic victories and Philadelphia Warriors' losses totaling "six" will clinch for Boston.

Bob Cousy scored 32 points and Bill Russell pulled down 36 rebounds to pace the Celtics, who had a 78-61 lead at halftime. Johnny Kerr tallied 26 points for the Nationals.

Wilt Chamberlain scored 61 points to lead the Warriors to a 139-121 triumph over the St. Louis Hawks, and the Los Angeles Lakers shaded the New York Knickerbockers, 118-116, in other Thursday night games.

Chamberlain made 21 field goals and 19 of a league record 34 free throw attempts in amassing his point total. Paul Arizin added 31 points for the Warriors and Cliff Hagan had 37 for the Hawks.

Frank Selvy scored eight points in succession, beginning with 4:20 to go, to lead the Lakers to their triumph over the Knicks. Willie Naulls and Richie Guerin each had 32 points for New York.

Axe II Winner At San Marcos

By United Press International

The recent rainstorms which plagued Southern California didn't do much good for anyone—unless you want to study the case of a little-known horse.

While Los Angeles was inundated late last month, The Axe II responded to the wet going by winning the San Marcos Handicap for the first American stakes win of his career. And taking advantage of another rainsoaked course at Santa Anita Thursday, the English-trained colt romped to victory in the $58,100 Washington's Birthday Handicap.

Willie Shoemaker, who was in Florida two days ago for an unsuccessful mission on Crimson Satan in the Everglades, returned to his western base to enjoy an easy ride aboard The Axe II and complete a personal triple for the day.

The Axe II was bred in Kentucky but shipped to England as a yearling and learned his racing abroad on the grass. He negotiated the mile and one-half turf course in 2:37 while beating the favored Oink by two and three-quarter lengths and he returned $8.80, $4.60 and $4.00. Dusky Damion was third.

The favored Cavalanche romped to an easy three and one-half length victory over Flying Johnnie with Rough Note finishing third in the $19,200 Florida Breeders Stakes at Hialeah.

Avelino Gomez guided Cavalanche over the seven furlongs in 1:24 and the winner paid $5.20, $3.60 and $3.00. Cavalanche, a 3-year-old son of Bolivar II, was well-placed throughout and won as he pleased in the stretch.

Harvey stroked his way to a 5 and 4 victory over Orie Van Daalen, Grand Rapids, Mich., with one-under-par golf in Thursday's opening round of match play.

Crooks had to go 20 holes to beat John Eisenger, Bethesda, Md., 1 up.

Others surviving for today's second round competition included Jeff Alpert, Woodbridge, Conn.; Joe Manzo, Medford, Mass.; Dr. Frank Bellino, Youngstown, Ohio; James Myer, Haddonfield, N.J.; Joe Miller, Hamilton, Ohio; John Morrell, Elgin, Ill.; Chris Kappas, Jacksonville, Fla.; Don Smith, Greensboro; Tommy Amidon, Winter Park, Fla.; Dr. John McKey, Orlando, Fla., and Walter Martowski, Ludlow, Mass.

Burdette, Kaline In Major League Folds

United Press International

It's a f'r piece from Tampa, Fla., to Spencer, W. Va., and the Cincinnati Reds and 21-game winner Joey Jay are even "f'r'r" apart than that.

Jay, who scored the Reds' only victory in last year's World Series in addition to being their first 20-game winner since 1947, officially became a holdout Thursday when the National League champions' pitchers and catchers began working out at Tampa.

Jay, who is a partner in an oil drilling company, was tending to business in Spencer and, according to friends, "not even considering signing because he and the club are far apart."

A prolonged holdout by Jay would be considered quite serious because the 6-foot, 4-inch, 225-pound right-hander must train carefully and work regularly in order to remain at his pitching weight. Inactivity was the chief cause of his failure to develop into a consistent winner with the Milwaukee Braves, from whom the Reds obtained him after the 1960 season.

It wasn't a fruitless day for general manager Bill DeWitt, however, because he did sign Vada Pinson, whose .343 average made him the league's second leading hitter in 1961.

The Braves and the Detroit Tigers, meanwhile, each landed one of their key players when pitcher Lew Burdette and outfielder Al Kaline agreed to terms.

Burdette, who had an 18-11 record in 1961 and has averaged 17 victories a season since 1952, signed for an estimated $40,000. Usually one of the last Braves to sign, he yielded only 33 walks in 272 innings last season.

Kaline, who batted .324 along with 19 home runs and 82 runs batted in last season, is understood to have received a $12,000 raise to $50,000. Outfielder Rocky Colavito, first-baseman Norm Cash and pitcher Paul Foytack are the Tiger stars still unsigned.

The New York Mets reported that Felix Mantilla had agreed to terms, and the St. Louis Cardinals announced the signing of 39-year-old outfielder Minnie Minoso.

Maris Ready To Start Back Home

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Roger Maris, the man who topped Babe Ruth's 60 homers in one season, may be taking a "Ruthian walkout" on the New York Yankees in the next few days.

Indications here Thursday night were that salary negotiations between Maris and general manager Roy Hamey had reached an explosive stage and that the new home run king is ready to pack his bags and return home if he doesn't reach a salary agreement on Feb. 28.

Maris is understood to be demanding between $75,000 and $80,000 while the Yankees are standing fast at an offer between $60,000 and $67,000. Maris earned about $38,000 in 1961, after winning the 1960 American League most valuable player award in his first season with the Yankees.

The Yankees are insisting that Maris accept the club policy of gradual but steady increases for its stars. Maris is maintaining that he should be paid strictly in accordance with his performance of the 1961 season.

ORTH SIGNS

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Bears today announced the signing of tackle Gregg Orth, Indiana University, for the 1962 season. Orth was a free agent.

Talent scout George Allen said he believed Orth, 6-5 and 225 pounds, could develop into a line backer. He played linebacker, defensive end and tackle for the Hoosiers.

Two Are Tied In Caracas Open Action

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Jacky Cupit of Longview, Tex., and Ernie Vossler of Oklahoma City shared the lead today as the Caracas Open entered the second round.

Cupit and Vossler shot identical rounds of 33-34—67 Thursday to lead by two strokes over Angel Miguel of Spain, who shot a 69.

George Knudson of Toronto, Buster Cupit of Fort Smith, Ark., Don Whitt of San Diego, Calif., Pete Cooper of Branford, Fla., and Bob Gajda of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., were deadlocked at 70.

Ron Bakich of Jamesburg, N.J. scored a hole-in-one on the 192-yard second hole to collect a bonus of $1,000.

Lemm Named To Cardinal Post

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Wally Lemm, the new head football coach of the St. Louis Cardinals, lost little time in getting down to business Thursday after being named to the post in a surprise announcement which yanked him away from a similar position with the champion Houston Oilers of the American Football League.

The 42-year-old coach was picked by Cardinal owners Charles (Stormy) and Bill Bidwill to fill the shoes of Frank (Pop) Ivy, who resigned with two games left last season.

"It's like a boyhood dream come true," Lemm said after his switch from Houston, the first time in pro football history a coach has left a championship club. What made it more unusual was that Lemm switched leagues in the change.

Lemm, who said his first job would be to organize a staff, huddled Thursday night with his new bosses. He said during a news conference that the Cardinals had "good material" and should show improvement next season over their 7-7 record. He said he hoped to add two of his assistants at Houston to his staff, Joe Spencer and Walt Schlinkman.

Delaney Is Out Of Big Mile Race

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Irish miler Ron Delaney won't race against record-holder Jim Beatty in the indoor mile at Saturday night's national AAU championships in New York because of an injury which may keep him out of competition for several months.

Delaney Thursday night announced his withdrawal from the race at Madison Square Garden because of an injured Achilles tendon in his left leg.

The 26-year-old miler said he injured his leg in practice about nine days ago but disregarded it until the pain grew progressively worse.

Pampa Cindermen In Ft. Stockton Meet

Pampa High School's cinder team loosens up their muscles Saturday when they journey to Fort Stockton to take part in the Invitational meet.

The thinclads, coached by Dwaine Lyon and Norman Phillips, boned up for the upcoming meet with a good showing against Dumas Tuesday in an exhibition affair.

A total of 35 boys came out for the team this year but only nine hopefuls will be toeing the mark and taking part in the field events on the morrow. The Pampa cindermen will take part in a total of eight track and five field events at Ft. Stockton.

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilites in harmony with the above moral principles.

Preserving Revolution

On the two preceding editorial pages we have been reproducing Patrick Henry's great oration with comments which we trust are appropriate.

This greatest of his speeches was only six paragraphs in length and we conclude our quotation and observation with this essay.

"It is in vain, sir, to extenuate the matter. Gentlemen may cry, Peace, Peace — but there is no peace. The war is actually begun! The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms! Our brethren are already in the field! Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

It is fitting, we believe, to note that following this remarkable eloquence, the revolutionary group in Virginia went on to adopt the military measures Henry advocated. And, since Henry always pictured himself as a man of action, it is not surprising to learn that he resigned his post as a representative and commanded the first organization of the Revolutionary Army in Virginia.

Later, he was to rediscover that his real service to his country was to be in the realm of ideas and ideals and he ultimately returned to the speaker's platform.

What concerns us principally at this juncture is the true merit of Henry's expressions, not as a call to war, but as a call to truth.

Scholars who have reviewed the revolutionary period are largely in agreement that the great contribution to human progress which was made at this time had only a minor relationship to the actual military engagements which ensued. Altho Henry himself did not fully realize it, his greatness came, not because he asked for war, but because he asked for an end to compromise. He asked for and received a commitment, not to overthrow the British king, but to establish a system in which freedom would exist.

Indeed, if one cares to review what he said once more, it will be found that Henry's observations were constantly directed against the "British ministry," the government itself, and not the king, whom Henry held in high regard.

In a very real sense, Henry was opposing the bureaucracy of his day, even as men of similar mold oppose the present bureaucracy.

Against the timidity of the times, he offered bravery. Against weakness, he offered strength. Against the arguments for compromise, temporizing and delay, he offered immediacy, a clear-cut issue and human liberty itself. There is much to be learned from Patrick Henry which is applicable in our own times.

Today, as of yore, the inhabitants of this land are oppressed, regulated and taxed into impotence. But there is still a strange reluctance to say so. Entreaties to cut taxes are met with smiles, assurances, and further inroads against our incomes.

The naked fact is glossed over by means of subsidies, benefactions, welfare and paternalism. Our own bureaucracy has greater craft than the British bureaucracy under Lord North. Altho we are blanketed by a host of military preparations; and are told that this preparation is aimed at a foreign enemy, many in America have come to see that liberty itself is moving into eclipse and that our enemy must be anyone who deprives us of our rights to life, to liberty and property. In this regard the British bureaucratic system circa 1775, and the American bureaucratic system in close parallel.

Nor at this time would a simple call to arms suffice. Indeed, a call to universal holocaust may come at any time. But such a call, if it comes now, and tho it comes buttressed with appeals to liberty, will be of dubious merit. The perpetuation of the American revolution in the spiritual sense is far more important than any diversion of American troops to foreign climes which might be urged.

We need to see our present situation with the clarity and singleness of vision vouchsafed to Patrick Henry. Liberty is at stake. And the alternates, as Henry stated, are either slavery or death.

No Ceiling At All

The new proposal to raise the debt ceiling ought to be instructive. What kind of a ceiling is it that can be raised at will whenever the president wants it pushed up?

Urban Affairs Mass Bribery

In certain quarters the realization is beginning to dawn that the operation of government in these United States is a political operation designed to get votes and not to serve the best interests of Americans.

Comments of this nature in prior times have frequently been brushed aside as evidence of pique, as a sort of ironic humor, or as stemming from just plain cussedness.

Now there is a somewhat wide-eyed examination of the thought and the growing cry of: "Things are getting pretty bad, aren't they?"

Certainly, "things" are not getting better very fast. But one thing is happening for which we can be grateful. More and more people are beginning to peer thru the mist and fog of government to see the working political engines. And what they see is educational if not reassuring.

Take the current move by the Kennedy administration to install a Department of Urban Affairs at cabinet level. The interests of the American people cannot possibly be served by such a department. The interests of the American people call, nay, clamor, for a surcease of excessive government, excessive regulation, excessive taxation.

What is the administration answer? More government, more regulation, more taxation.

Why is Mr. Kennedy embarked upon a program which, in its effects, will produce growing harm and further injure the American future and general well being? There is one answer and only one.

The Department of Urban Affairs is designed to win an election along about 1964. How would such a department do this?

It would do this thru the simple expedient of offering bribe money to city officials in large and politically crucial cities. This would come under the heading of "federal aid." City officials, intent upon keeping their own jobs, and convinced that such retention rests upon making a "good showing," are already hard put to finance their own costly schemes.

A handout from Uncle who has the army at his back when it comes to collecting taxes, seems such a safe, sure way. And by this means, one can have the distinction of being "in favor" of all the wonderful goodies government dreams of providing. It is a much happier position for a politician to be in than to be known as an "aginner," someone who is in opposition to one or more administrative policies.

Here's how it works.

There are about 12 large states (population - wise) whose voting records indicate that the major cities in the states normally control elections.

These states include: California, Minnesota, Missouri, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Maryland.

The prior-named states, together, offer a combined electoral vote of 260. And if the big city states can be swung behind the Kennedy band-wagon in 1964, the administration has an excellent chance of perpetuating itself. To win an election in this country, all that is needed is 268 electoral votes.

The proposed Urban Affairs Department will have lots of your money to play with. Kennedy proposes that the public housing agency (with $390 million in its budget), the federal mortgage programs (with $2,878 million of spending money), the community facilities agency (with $530 million on tap), and the slum clearance agency (with $552 millon tonance agency (with $552 million to throw around), can all be united in one giant agency for buying votes.

After winning approval in Congress the new department could gradually assume other functions, too. It could take over urban renewal, grab onto mass transportation media, usurp the educational structure, take over civil defense, crime control, water supply, air pollution control and conceivably even such things as airports and golf courses.

The arm of the federal government would have been strengthened enormously. The risk involved in obtaining tax money locally could be reduced. And biggest plum of all, the election would have been won, in a perfectly grand instance of nearly universal patronage.

Local politicians will probably promote the scheme since it will tend to provide them with sinecures. The federal government will squander money to make it possible. And only the people will suffer.

How fine for the politicians.

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER
L. H. D.

I conceive it to be my duty to help inform the public and to warn of serious developments taking place among us. For instance, under the pressure of many of the best people in our country the power and the functions of U.N. are being steadily increased. At the same time that organization has adopted the population of member countries as a basis for the distribution of U.N. employees. That puts more and more Communists in charge of the activities of the U.N., which are carried on mainly at our expense, and which so vitally affect the lives of everyone of us both domestically and on the foreign scene.

For example, a Russian Communist has set up study programs now in operation in some of our high schools. UNESCO, largely carried on by Communists, and those who share their ideology, is worming its program farther and farther into our whole American school system.

The U.N. appointees in charge of driving out or suppressing the freedom-loving, Western - oriented leaders in Congo and supplanting them with Communists or neutrals are, in large part, themselves Communists or Communist front people.

Congressman Dorn does well to advise that we should create a crisis of our own by demanding free elections in Eastern Europe, North Korea, North Viet Nam and Cuba. Let us rattle our rockets and demand freedom for the enslaved peoples in these areas.

Instead of carefully avoiding any incitement to riot in Communist lands, if we would encourage it, aid it and continually threaten the Kremlin with intervention on behalf of these oppressed peoples, we could probably destroy communism in a short time. We have already missed opportunities to have done so.

Why are we so protective of communism? Why not eagerly seize every opportunity to make headway against it?

Communism has declared war to the death against us. They plead for peace and strive to avoid a general war, which they know would destroy them, but are, nevertheless, determined to destroy us and have chosen the cold war only because that is the only way they can win. If we are so devoted to the easy life that we will not arouse ourselves, we shall perish.

Easing of Red Military Pressures in Laos, Vietnam, Berlin—

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

Kennedy's Price for Summit

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy is setting a stiff price for a heads-of-government summit conference with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Before agreeing to take part in a meeting this spring, the President wants iron-clad assurances from the Kremlin leader that growing Communist military pressure in Laos, South Vietnam and West Berlin will be eased.

These stern conditions were set out by the President in a private message sent Khrushchev. The note was delivered in Moscow by Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson. At the time this column was being written, the Communist dictator had not yet replied.

The President also outlined his position in a transatlantic phone call to Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan. They discussed a "late April or early, May" meeting if the assurances were forthcoming from the Soviet leader.

In their talks, the President expressed his deep concern about the growing Communist military build-up of heavy arms and large numbers of Communist North Vietnam troops in Laos and South Vietnam.

He told Macmillan that the situation in Laos was particularly dangerous because the Russians were airlifting tanks and 120mm artillery pieces into the battle area.

For instance: One U.S. reconnaissance plane spotted 26 Soviet-made tanks carefully hidden in a parking area in northern Laos. Also, the Communist Pathet Lao rebels used 120mm guns in shelling one key defense position of the Royal Laotian Army.

Since the forces of the pro-U.S. Laotian government cannot match this new Soviet fire power, the President indicated that he must either get Khrushchev to halt this arms flow or the U.S. must match the Russian build-up to keep Laos from falling to the Communists.

He confirmed reports of a build-up of Communist North Vietnam troops in Laos, estimating that their number now totals about 12,000 — or 2,000 above published estimates.

MORE RED INTRIGUE — The Soviets are also using the southern part of Laos to increase their flow of arms into South Vietnam.

U.S. Intelligence estimates now reveal that North Vietnamese troops operating in South Vietnam are being supplied with Czech-made anti-aircraft guns.

These guns, which will be used to shoot down U.S.-flown helicopters, are being airlifted aboard Soviet planes to five airfields in Laos. They are then moved over land to Communist strongpoints in South Vietnam.

The President told Macmillan that this traffic must be stopped if the Russians want to keep the war from spreading into North Vietnam.

In discussing West Berlin, the President took the stand that the Soviets must end their harassing flights in the air corridors leading to that city if Khrushchev expects him to sit down at the same conference table.

The two Western leaders also discussed ways and means of convincing President Charles de Gaulle to take part in the parley should one be arranged.

MORE ON LAOS — An intriguing diplomatic situation is developing in the backstage negotiations now going on to form a neutral three-party coalition government in Laos.

Premier Prince Boun Oum, present head of the Royal Government, has agreed under pressure from the State Department to let neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma appoint officials to the key Interior and Defense positions under certain limitations.

These conditions include the Premier's right to a veto power over the appointments if he doesn't like them.

In exchange for this concession, the U.S.-backed Prince has asked Secretary of State Dean Rusk to get Prince Souvanna Phouma to send him the names of the persons he expects to appoint to these strategic positions.

In arguing for this veto right, Prince Boun Oum cabled Rusk that it would be suicide for him to turn over control of his 70,000 U.S.-armed troops and 3,000 security police to Defense and Interior Ministers who might turn out to be Communists.

"How could your government ask any official to take that risk?" the Prince questioned Secretary Rusk in his message.

The State Department is still working on Rusk's reply. Informal U.S. overtures to Prince Souvanna Phouma for the names of his proposed appointees have produced no response.

THE POWERS CASE — Pilot Francis Gary Powers told his CIA questioners that Soviet jet fighters twice tried to intercept his high-flying U-2 reconaissance plane during his ill-fated flight in May of 1960. However, the Red interceptors were unable to climb to the altitude at which he was flying. Maryland's Governor Millard Tawes has let the White House know that he is burned up about not being informed that Powers was being kept in his state. "I didn't know about Powers' presence on the Eastern shore until I read about it in the newspaper," the Governor told one aide. Speaker John McCormack, D, Mass., has notified President Kennedy that the House Armed Services and Foreign Affairs Committees want "equal time" in quizzing Powers.

INVITATION TO ATTACK
REV. AUGUST W. BRUSTAT
Ph.D.
(Christian Economics)

The Final Secret of Pearl Harbor. By Rear Admiral Robert A. Theobald, USN, ret. (Third printing.) The Devin-Adair Co., New York, N.Y. 204 pp. $3.50.

On December 7, 1960, 19 years after the Pearl Harbor disaster, a radio program rebroadcast some of the recorded voices of that December 7, 1941 when the Japanese attacked our Hawaiian outpost. One of the voices was that of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who solemnly intoned that the Japanese had attacked us without provocation and without warning. This documented historical record gives the lie to that pronouncement.

In those World War II days before we became embroiled, our national leaders deliberately broke neutrality laws, e.g., by delivering 50 destroyers to Britain, by lend-leasing and convoying war material to one of the belligerents, and by blockading Japan.

The Japanese code — designated the "Purple Code" — had been broken, and while the information contained in the decoded message was relayed to Manila and other areas, it was withheld from our military leaders in Hawaii. Official Washington knew when the Kurusu-Nomura negotiations collapsed that war with Japan was not only inevitable but imminent. Not one word of warning or alert, however, was issued to Admiral Kimmel and General Short in Hawaii.

The strange doings and actions of the then Chief of Staff, General George C. Marshall, and Admiral Stark, especially on the morning of December 7, 1941; the warning that had been issued by Ambassador Grew from Tokyo; and by Sorge via the Kremlin as late as October, 1941; and other substantiated historical evidences as well, give eloquent testimony to Admiral Theobald's summary.

"Our main deduction is that President Roosevelt forced Japan to war by unrelenting diplomatic-economic pressure, and enticed that country to initiate hostilities with a surprise attack by holding the Pacific Fleet in Hawaiian waters as an invitation to that attack."

Unscrupulous national leaders, guilty of collusion, deception, and the blood of innocent men, will one day be answerable for their actions before the bar of Divine Justice.

TRUTH-FORUM

With Ed Delaney

Something like a United States of Europe, discussed by their statesmen for years, may be nearer realization than some of us imagine. It would have marked effect on our country, both politically and economically. President Kennedy is aware of this. Recently he suggested a study of our tariff policies with the view of possibly making adjustments to meet new world conditions.

The so-called "Common Market" which the major countries of Western Europe have about brought into function, means in essence, that tariff barriers would be lifted between the member countries. Goods would move freely between Europe's nations as they do between the 50 states of our Union. The Western European standard of living is improving rapidly. Cocoa Cola signs and advertisements of other typically American products are everywhere, indicating the trend of the times. The Common Market can be to our profit if we shape our tariff policies accordingly.

But more than that, the Common Market tends to erase much of Europe's nationalism which can be petty at times and can lead to wars as history has recorded so often in past centuries. One of the most ardent advocates of unity for European nations is Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the German Federal Republic. Over 30 years ago he stressed the need for European unity when he was mayor of Cologne. Had his views materialized then, probably there would not have been a World War II.

Now regarded as one of the most astute anti - communist statesmen of Europe, Adenauer observes that "the age of nationals states has come to an end. A new age is dawning in which men will look beyond the borders of their own country and work with other nations for the true aims of humanity. Whoever fails to realize this is beyond help. An age of peace and co - operation will dawn when nationalist ideas are banned from politics.

"Nationalism, no matter where and in what form it appears, violates the divine order. It makes the state an idol — for every people its own state. One of the fundamental principles of Christianity is the love of neighbor, respect for our neighbors. That principle does not apply only to individuals; it applies also to the attitudes toward other nations. Because nationalism violates this principle of Christianity, we must never again be dominated by nationalism."

Adenauer is saying, in effect, that the basic laws of Christianity, if adhered to by nations, will eradicate the dangers inherent in "nationalist" policies. That respect for the rights of our neighbor states must be our policy. The lifting of trade barriers will make for greater unity among the countries of western Europe and can advance the day when they will be good neighbors with no thought of military aggression.

However, that unity is diametrically opposed to the policy of the anti-Christian and anti - God regimes of the Soviet and its satellites to the east of those European countries. Until the communist menace is destroyed the western neighbors must man their defenses.

How Many Readers Can Remember 'Way Back When

By HENRY McLEMORE

Once a month or so I get a letter from a reader asking how old I am.

Usually the writer makes a guess as to how long I have been around, and the range is surprising. I have had my age estimated as 12, 17, 98, 45, and 114.

None of these is correct. I always answer the letters by ducking the issue, but giving a clue by saying I REMEMBER WHEN—

Every grocery store had a penny candy counter where such wonderful treats as candy pies in little tin dishes were sold, along with jelly beans, licorice whips, bright yellow corn kernels, and jawbreakers.

A buttonhook was standard equipment in every home.

Boys wore long, black, ribbed stockings and had a devil of a time keeping them up.

A boy's first pair of long pants was a tremendous event, and he usually wore them for the first time on Sunday, and thought the whole world was looking at him as he went along.

It was madness to take a motor trip without a kit ready and at hand for repairing flat tires. I can smell the glue of those kits, and set the little coconut grater sort of thing you used to roughen the tires, just as if I were by the side of a dusty road right now.

All automobiles carred a "trouble lamp," which had a long cord so the driver could inspect faded road signs to find out where he was.

A fellow was lucky to get 25 cents for mowing a lawn half the size of a football field, and 50 cents was enough to have a bang-up day at a county fair.

Corset covers and boudoir caps were big sellers.

Picture shows (for kids) were a nickel at a matinee and a dime at night.

The circus parade was the year's biggest event, unless one's town was lucky enough to have Chautauqua for a week or ten days. I can hear those Swiss bell - ringers now, and the thunderous tones of the principal lecturer.

There were such things as the "'ol swimmin' hole."

Bruises and cuts on a boy's knee needed the licking of his dog to ensure a quick cure.

Billy goats were sincerely believed to eat tin cans.

A Daisy air rifle was nearly every boy's dream.

Emptying the pan under the icebox was a daily chore. And hanging out the ice sign for the ice man was a morning must.

The player piano was to be heard throughout the land.

Dresses were cut out from Butterrick patterns on the dining room table.

It took a man and boy to carry $7 worth of groceries from a store.

Banana splits were fifteen cents.

The railroad butcher (with his glass lanterns and pistols filled with candy) was the No. 1 man on a train, and a ride on the observation car was a million-dollar thrill.

Wrist watches were a novelty.

Five miles was a long way to have to go for quail hunting.

A boy could pick up as much as fifty cents on Saturday delivering samples of cereal, soap, etc.

That'll give you an idea of when I was born.

FOR SANTA CLAUS

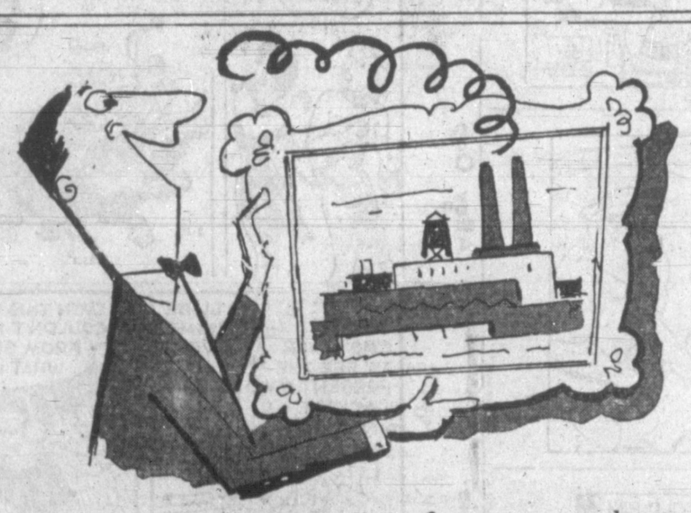

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Santa Claus has received a belated Christmas present from the Indiana Alcoholic Beverage Commission.

The commission voted to defer judgment in the case of the Santa Claus, Ind., American Legion post on a charge of selling liquor to non-members.

WINTER EXPRESS—Leaving a cloud of ice crystals in its wake, a huge Convair 880-M plows through a man-made 'winter" on the runway at Federal Aviation Agency's experimental center in Atlantic City. Dubbed "Winter Wonderland Express" by ground crews, the jet was undergoing slush tests to prove safe take-off and landing conditions. Tons of crushed ice were spread on the runway by a 115-man crew to simulate bad weather.

Two-Time Loser Decides He'll Try For Third

LONDON (UPI)—A 54-year - old Englishman whose two "wives died within hours of each other and were both buried on the same afternoon advertised this week for a third.

Stanley Fuller-Wall said he was just "too lonely for words" since the two women who knew him as their husband passed away. Their deaths ended 18 years of a double life for Fuller-Wall.

"I am looking for a woman under 30 with intellect and refinement," he told United Press International in an interview. "I'd like her well-built, weighing about (150 pounds;."

He said he had received 15 marriage proposals "from women wanting to share this 12-room mansion of mine—but I want a girl with refinement."

Fuller-Wall said he would like his future wife to be under 30 "because not only do I want love and companionship, but I would like to start another family."

Love and children were separate in the double life of Fuller-Wall. Neither of the two women he lived with knew of the other's existence.

"As a "country squire," Fuller-Wall was legally married to "82-year-old Angel. He lived in a suburban London mansion with her and posed as a stockbroker. When she died, he inherited $98,000 from her.

"She gave me no children, but I loved her very much," he said.

In London was Nellie, who bore him five children. He supported this family, visiting regularly in old clothes and pretending to support them from odd jobs.

"But there was never any real love between us," he said, "and now the children say they don't want to see me again."

When both women were buried the same afternoon he made an agonizing decision and attended Angel's funeral.

Walter Rogers Reports

WHAT IS THE BILL OF RIGHTS?

How many Americans know the answer to this question? Each day brings forth on the radio, the television, and the newspapers new suggestions and observations about Communism, what it means, what it stands for, and how to defend against it.

Personally, I have always been a member of the school of thought that the best defense is a good offense. When I was in high school our football coach told me one day that you could not win a football game unless you could get your hands on the ball. In other words, you can't make a touchdown so long as the opposition has the ball. I began to wonder recently if perhaps we were not giving too much free advertising to Communism and paying too little attention to the priceless heritage that we have. Hence, I set out in a limited way to find out what the average American knows about his country.

Feeling that the key to Americanism is the Bill of Rights, I chose it for the key question to be asked. I made a point of asking total strangers in different areas of our economy this question: "Where could I find the Bill of Rights?" The right answer is simple. It is, "The Bill of Rights is the first ten amendments to the Constitution of the United States." Out of thirty imes tha I posed this question, I got the right answer seven times. In all fairness, I should say that I did not pose this question to people that were known to me to be so connected with the government or with the legal profession that they would probably know the answer. On the other hand, the ones I put the question to were total strangers to me and the test was conducted over a period of approximately six months in different areas of the nation.

The answers ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. One was a complete recitation of the Bill of Rights, which came from a bewhiskered fellow wearing tennis shoes. He not only recited the ten amendments word for word, but followed me around for ten minutes undertaking to give me additional information for which I had not asked. This experience caused me to suspend the test for about two weeks.

The other extreme in answers could be the one which I got from a cab driver. He advised me that he did not know that the Bill of Rights was lost. This opened a very interesting conversation, because I explained to him that there was quite a division of opinion in this country on the subject. I found out that he had no idea where to look for the Bill of Rights, but he assured me that he would look it up and read it word for word.

In view of these experiences, and for fear that some may not have had the opportunity to have access to a copy of the Constitution, I felt that it would be nice if everyone could have a copy of the Bill of Rights to refer to on occasion. Hence, I am including it in this newsletter and hope it will be taken up by all as the best weapon against Communism; the affirmative approach against ideologies that would destroy the dignity of Man; the hallmark of freedom; and the recognition of the individual dignity of a human being.

British Doctor Says Women Live Longest

LONDON (UPI) — A British doctor reports that women generally live longer than men because "a woman's work is never done."

Writing in today's issue of Family Doctor, Dr. Robert Kemp said, "It is the women who have by far the best chance of living right to the end of their lives. Anybody who stops an old lady from working is doing her a very great wrong."

Kemp said men should be persuaded to keep on working as long as they are able. He gave four points for successful retirement for men:

Learn to read books to keep from becoming bored.

Keep up appearance and stick to a routine.

Make new friends.

Benefits Expanded For Elderly

A recent change in the social security law has made additional older workers in the Panhandle eligible for benefits, according to Hal Geldon, district manager of the Amarillo Social Security Office. This change, he said, reduces the amount of time a person needs to work to qualify for benefits.

To illustrate, Geldon pointed out that men reaching 65 or women reaching 62 in 1962 need only 2¾ years of social security work. Those who are older may need as little as 1½ years of work under social security to qualify for payments.

This change in the law also affects those who have been turned down before because they didn't have enough work to qualify at the time they applied. These workers should write to their social security office right away, Geldon said. The Amarillo Social Security Office is located at 1006 Adams St.
