MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

BY H. N. F.

Senator Thomas A. Watson of Georgia has made the discovery that Andrew W. Mellon of Pennsylvania is holding the office of secretary of the treasury in violation of the law and can be arrested for retaining the place if any one sees fit to swear out a warrant charging him with the offense. And the law which Mr. Mellon is violating according to this wild man from Georgia prohibits the secretary of the treasury from "engaging in any kind of business or commerce." In addition to this the senator from Georgia has made the discovery that Andrew W. Mellon is one of the wealthiest individuals in the country. Is it a crime for an American citizen to accumulate wealth? Is it a crime for one of the foremost business men of America to hold high office? Is Andrew Mellon engaging in any kind of business or commerce that would be a violation of his oath of office? Senator Watson of Georgia is a paranoiac on the subject of notoriety. He is as spectacular as he is vindictive, as venemous as he is voluminous and ever a seeker for the center of the stage. Andrew W. Mellon is not a politician. He is not popular with the politicians of the Inner the Outs. He favored funding the foreign loans. He fought for his own plan. Senators of both parties criticized his plan and condemned the man. He bluntly told the congressional leaders that he could not find the cash to pay the soldiers if the bonus bill was put over. He recommended, unofficially, a way out. His plan was turned down. Now President Harding has been compelled to take the bull by the horns. He recommends the sales tax and the congressional leaders all along have been rejecting the sales tax. Now if the former soldier is to be given a bonus why shouldn't all the people pay the tax? Why should selected classes or interests pay the tax? All the people were interested in the outcome of the World's War, former service men fought for the rights and interests of all the people and all the people should be taxed if a bonus is to be paid. President Harding is to be congratulated. He was face to face with a crisis and he made his recommendation. Secretary Andrew W. Mellon is to be congratulated. He declined to be brow-beaten or bull-dozed by congressional leaders who placed their political fortunes first and the interests of the tax-paying people second. A sales tax is coming, not alone for the soldier bonus payment but for the billions that will be necessary in the years to come to liquidate the cost of the war and to meet the operating expenses of the government.

Value of American exports in the first month of the new year dropped to the lowest level recorded since August, 1915. Imports total is slightly higher and yet the falling off in the case of both exports and imports was due in a large degree to the decrease in prices. That is, the shrinkage was in values but not in volume. Marked improvements toward the end of January in business conditions in the United States indicates renewed activity as soon as inventory and tax adjustments are made this month according to a department of commerce survey issued this week. While declines still were noted in the past two

WILL DISPOSING OF $1,000,000 ESTATE DECLARED INVALID

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The will of Amos F. Eno, disposing of an estate of $13,000,000, largely to Columbia University and other public institutions here tonight, was declared invalid by a jury in surrogate's court which found that the testator was of unsound mind when the instrument was executed June 18, 1915.

FORMER JUDGE AT OKMULGEE STILL MISSING

Efforts to Trace Christopher at Kansas City and Chicago Have Thus Far Been Fruitless.

Wife and Daughter of Missing Jurist Exhibit Concern as to His Motive in Drafting Will.

By Associated Press.

OKMULGEE, Okla., Feb. 16.—With 24 talesmen selected, twelve of whom will be chosen on February 27 to compose the new grand jury which at that time will begin an inquiry into the failure of the Bank of Commerce here, and work rapidly going ahead under the supervision of State Attorney General Short, looking toward a reorganization of the defunct bank, Okmulgee tonight was quietly awaiting the next development in the situation growing out of the dismissal in superior court last Thursday by Judge H. R. Christopher of a grand jury which was about to complete an investigation into the failed bank's affairs.

Of outstanding interest here is the whereabouts of Judge Christopher who left Coyle, Oklahoma, Monday afternoon presumably for Okmulgee and who has not been seen or heard from since Tuesday morning. At that time he was in Kansas City, Missouri, but efforts to trace him there and at Chicago, his old home, so far have been unsuccessful.

His wife, young son and married daughter, returned here last night from Coyle but they are apparently as ignorant as to his whereabouts as other persons here. Mrs. Christopher, who is slightly ill, and Mrs. Porter, the daughter, said today they did not know where the judge is and both exhibited some concern when questioned as to his motive in making his will, which they said he drafted before leaving Coyle.

Although neither has received word from him since Monday, they said, both were presistent in expressing belief that the judge "is safe somewhere."

The grand jury panel which was drawn today by the sheriff and court clerk was ordered to report to District Judge Mark L. Bozarth on February 27 and the investigation into the bank failure immediately is to be launched after the jury is formed, about three weeks will be required to examine all evidence in the case, according to County Attorney James Hepburn. A report of its findings is expected soon afterwards, he said.

JURY INDICTS 17 IN ALLEGED SWINDLE CASE

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Leslie Harrington and sixteen others who were alleged to have helped him in "borrowing" a sum estimated at $7,000,000 from poor investors, mostly of foreign extraction, were named in true bills returned by the grand jury today, according to officials in the state attorney's office.

All named, it was reported, were charged with operating a confidence game and evidence was heard which it was predicted, would result in the voting of fourteen more true bills tomorrow.

Similar action was expected, according to officials of the state's attorney's office, against Raymond J. Bischoff, on whose operations Harrington was said to have modeled his, and into whose affairs an investigation has been in progress for several days.

Bischoff has estimated his own liabilities at $4,500,000, with assets of less than $1,000 in cash. Others, however, have estimated Bischoff's liabilities at approximately $7,000,000—all collected in the form of loans during the past two years by the 25-year-old promoter.

At the same time, the belief was expressed by some in the state's attorney's office that the losses of the thousands of poor investors who trusted their money to Harrington and Bischoff might run as high as $14,000,000.

This sum, it was expected, would be increased by an investigation now being made of several small concerns who imitated the methods of Harrington and Bischoff.

MAYFIELD TO OPEN SENATE CAMPAIGN LATE NEXT MONTH

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 16.—Earle B. Mayfield, railroad commissioner, who is a candidate for U. S. senator, will open his campaign at Waxahachie on Saturday, March 25, he said today. He is a candidate for the place now held by Senator Charles Culberson.

RATE CUT TO APPLY ON MUNICIPAL PROJECTS

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 16.—The reduced rates on sand and gravel for federal, state and county projects will also apply on municipal project after March 20, the railroad commission announced today. The railroads granted these rates after urgent insistence by the commission, it was stated.

THINK FORMER WICHITAN TO BE MURDER VICTIM

Police Get Wire From Mississippi Officers With Identification Clue Which Leads to This City.

Name Plate on Key Ring Gives Name of Mrs. Ada Drury, Afterward Mrs. T. P. Converse.

Cremation and possible murder of a woman who formerly resided in Wichita Falls is indicated in a message received by local police from officers at Hazelhurst, Miss., Thursday afternoon. According to the message the only identification consisted in the name plate on a key ring with the name and address of "Ada Drury, Wichita Falls."

Investigations by City Detective Jack Miller and other police officers and by representatives of the Record News elicited the information from people who knew the dead woman here that Ada Drury was the name of Mrs. Thomas P. Converse before her marriage.

While here she lived at three different places, according to information obtained from different sources—800 Lamar, 504 Scott and at the Archer Inn, 1104 Scott. None of those who knew her had any knowledge of her under about 18 months to two years time.

Converse, according to Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Baker, with whom the couple roomed while living at 504 Scott, was a geologist, driller and promoter who was active over this section during the boom. Mrs. Converse roomed at the Baker rooming house while her husband spent the greater part of his time in the field, the wife occasionally accompanying her husband on his field trips. The last information the Bakers had of Converse he was working near Wellington. Mrs. Converse heard from her mother regularly under the name of Drury, Mrs. Baker said, but could not remember the post mark on the mother's letters. She said her mother did not know of her marriage to Converse.

Mrs. Converse is described as a rather good looking woman, about 27 or 30 years of age, a brunette inclined to stockiness of build, height five feet four and weight about 140.

Additional details are being sought by police and local papers, both here and at Hazlehurst. The chief of police has requested that all who have any information which may throw light on the subject telephone him at the city hall.

2,000 RUBLES NEEDED TO BRING ONE LETTER

(By International News Service)

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 16.—A registered letter from Russia, bearing enough stamps to have bought an automobile at pre-war exchange, was received at the Newark postoffice today.

There were 500 stamps attached to the back of the envelope and held together in stips by metal fasteners. Each stamp was worth four rubles, making the total value of the stamps 2,000 rubles. At the normal rate of exchange, at which each ruble was worth fifty-one and a half cents, the stamps on the letter were worth over $1,000.

A registered letter may be sent from the United States to Russia for 15 cents.

KENYON BILL RETURNED TO LABOR COMMITTEE

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The senate late today recommitted to its labor committee the Kenyon bill to give the president power to speed up in slack times and retard in prosperous times construction of public works, as an aid to employment conditions. The action was taken after an amendment had been adopted which Senator Kenyon, republican, of Iowa, author of the bill, said destroyed the measure. It was believed that the return of the measure to that committee means its death.

Iowa Park Meeting Is Brief One

Special to the Record News.

IOWA PARK, Feb. 16.—Some information obtained from Iowa Park folks here took all the pep out of a "mass meeting of tax payers of water improvement district No. 1," called by parties from Wichita Falls here tonight, and reported to be for the purpose of "oratorically skinning the hide" off the directors of the project. The information which was given after the meeting had been called to order was that all the taxpayers in district No. 1 lived in the city of Wichita Falls, and that district No. 2, which included Iowa Park, was not taxed for the bond issue which is building the project.

In spite of this setback several of the "orators" from Wichita Falls unburdened themselves of expressions of bucolic dissatisfaction with the way Messrs. Kemp, Noble and others are building the project before moving an early adjournment and wending their way back to the "City That Faith Built."

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND'S DAUGHTER ENTERS MOVIES IN ELINOR GLYN FILM

Because Elinor Glyn believes that society parts in society dramas should be enacted by real social leaders, Miss Natalie Hays Hammond, daughter of John Hays Hammond, has made her film debut in Mrs. Glyn's new production, "Beyond the Rocks." The photo shows Mrs. Glyn and Miss Hammond discussing the portrayal of Miss Hammond's part in the studio on the Pacific coast.

FEDERAL JUDGE DISBARS FISHER FOR HALF YEAR

Attorney General Expected to Act in Case of Federal Official Convicted on Contempt Charge.

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 16.—What action the attorney general's department will take in the case of Hugh C. Fisher, district attorney for the federal western district of Louisiana, disbarred from that court for six months on conviction of contempt of court, is the question agitating the minds of Shreveport and the entire district. Henry W. Robinson of New Orleans, special representative of the attorney general sat throughout the trials, lasting since Monday and has already forwarded preliminary reports.

Mr. Fisher was suspended by Judge J. C. Hutcheson of the southern district of Texas, special judge with the statement that if at the end of the suspension should he exhibit sincere change of heart relative to the statements in his affidavit for recusation of Judge Jack of this district, he might be reinstated. The affidavit was the basis of contempt of court and disbarment proceedings on which Mr. Fisher was convicted. In it he accused Judge Jack of being a "bench politician" "maliciously and illegally using his office" and other such phases.

Denying reports said to have emanated from Shreveport that he would resign, Mr. Fisher stated Thursday night that to the contrary he will appeal his case to the higher court probably toward the expiration of the 90 days granted for that purpose by Judge Hutcheson.

R. A. Giddens, refe ee of the state republican committee in the fourth district on whose recommendations distribution of federal patronage is made in the district was fined $1,000 payable in 30 days or 60 days in the Caddo Parish jail for contempt of court in threatening Mr. Fisher with the loss of his job did he not fulfill an alleged promise to dismiss an embezzlement charge against his son-in-law, Tracy S. LeMoyne who was convicted after Fisher had refeused to meet the demand. It was not proven during the hearings that Fisher ever made any such promise.

No action was taken in the investigation of the alleged corrupt practices charges against Emile Kuntz, national republican committeeman and collector of customs at New Orleans, Giddens & Fisher. No evidence to show that there had been any corruption coming out during the trial. Judge Hutcheson remarks, however, that it was evident the three had left a New Orleans conference with "a happy understanding that all was well."

BUCK GARRETT'S FATE STILL IN HANDS OF JURY

By Associated Press.

ARDMORE, Okla., Feb. 16.—The jury holding the fate of Buck Garrett, temporarily suspended sheriff of Carter county, charged by the state with alleged misconduct in office was put to bed late tonight without having reached a verdict, and deliberations will be resumed at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The state seeks Garrett's removal from office. Testimony was completed shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon and the case was given the jury at 3:30 o'clock without argument, after Special Judge E. D. Oldfield of Oklahoma county, presiding had reviewed the case in extensive instructions to the jury.

Three-fourths concurrence in the balloting is sufficient for a verdict he said.

SENATE WOULD KNOW MORE ON PACIFIC TREATY

Resolution Is Adopted Asking Harding to Impart All Available Information Concerning Pact.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Senate debate on the four-power Pacific treaty began today with a preliminary tilt resulting in a request to President Harding for all available information as to how the treaty was negotiated.

An hour of general discussioin which brought to the surface various cross currents of senate opinioin, but failed to develop definitely the relative strength of supporters and opponents of the treaty, preceded adoption of the formal request for information, which had the support of republican and democratic leaders and was approved without a record vote.

While it awaited the president's reply, the foreign relations committee decided to go ahead with other treaties resulting from the arms negotiations in the hope that all of them might be pressed to ratification without considerable delay. At a meeting late in the day, the committee completed its reading of the naval limitation and submarine treaties without uncovering any indications of opposition. Tomorrow it will read through the general far eastern and Chinese tariff pacts.

Senator Underwood, explaining why no record of the negotiations was kept, declared the discussions could not be carried on in a public way because they concerned principally the abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, which the American delegation could speak of only by private suggestion.

Declaring himself "amazed" that no minutes of so important a discussion had been kept, Senator Hitchcock replied that his resolution at least might result in some light being thrown on certain questions raised in regard to interpretation of the treaty terms. Senator Johnson, republican, California, also declared a further explanation was due the senate and the American people.

When President Harding will reply to the resolution was uncertain tonight in view of the absence of Secretary Hughes, who has gone to Bermuda.

It was indicated, however, that action would be taken as quickly as possible because of the president's desire to have ratification of the treaties completed without delay. Senate leaders have not altered their intention of bringing the four power treaty up for ratification first.

BEVERIDGE ENTERS RACE IN INDIANA FOR SENATE PLACE

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 16.—Albert J. Beveridge, formally announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for United States senator from Indiana today.

STORM GREETS HARDING'S PLAN FOR BONUS TAX

Leaders of Agricultural Bloc Outspoken Against Sales Tax as Recommended by President.

Representatives Garner and Garrett Charge Effort Is Made Toward Reducing Taxes on Wealth.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Pay the soldier's bonus with a general sales tax, or postpone the legislation was President Harding's advice today to congress.

Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means committee, and Chairman McCumber of the senate finance committee said they did not think the bonus would be postponed, but were silent as to a sales tax.

Leaders of the agricultural bloc were outspoken, however, against this tax and threatened to counter with a program which would include re-enactment of the excess profits and higher income surtaxes and an increase in inheritance and some other such taxes.

This plan also was favored by some democratic leaders.

Proponents of a sales tax professed to be confident that a majority of the members would come to accept this levy rather than see the bonus program defeated.

There seemed to be a disposition on all sides to move slowly. The president's letter, addressed to Representative Fordney, was read at a joint meeting of republican members of the house committee.

It was announced that those members would meet tomorrow, but it was indicated that the tax question would not be taken up immediately. Officers of the American Legion will be called in first, it was said, to give their views as to Mr. Harding's suggestion that instead of extending the cash payments over two and one-half years, payments be deferred until "the day when we may safely undertake to pay at once in full."

Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the democratic leader in the house, and Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking democrat of the house ways and means committee, issued a formal statement in which they asserted that "there has been from the beginning a purpose upon the part of the republicans to engraft the sales tax system upon the country, so that there may be a gradual reduction of the taxes on wealth."

STEWART LAND RECEIVERSHIP ADJUDGED VOID

By Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 16.—Judge Robert E. Lewis, United States circuit judge, today sustained a motion in the federal court here setting aside the receivership of the Stewart Farm Mortgage company. The motion alleged that the appointment of the receiver was "improvidently made upon the application of complainants not creditors of the company," but who were interested with the officers of the company in obtaining the receivership. Charges that the company was insolvent and that part of its real estate holdings were transferred with intent to defraud creditors also were sustained in the motion.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the Stewart company February 10. Six officers of the Stewart company, which include the Stewart Farm Mortgage company, the Edinburg Irrigation company and the W. E. Stewart Land company, were indicted by a federal grand jury last December for alleged land frauds in Texas.

Numerous suits were filed against the company before and after the indictment. The affairs of the company were placed in the hands of a receiver by Judge Lewis in orders to bring into one court all suits against the company.

Arthur C. Popham, who was appointed receiver January 7, was allowed $2,500 for his services. Under terms of the order setting the receivership aside, Popham is given until February 20 to make a complete report of disbursements and file an inventory of the assets of the company.

WILL MEET PRISONER AT JAIL DOOR WITH WARRANT

By Associated Press.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Feb. 16. According to information from the district attorney's office William Robertson will be arrested yesterday when he is released from the federal penitentiary, where he served a term for selling drugs in northern Texas.

The warrant for Roberson's arrest charges him with violating the Harrison drug act in Oklahoma.

TAR AND FEATHERS TO BE ADVOCATED BY LOCAL PASTOR

Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker Declares Will Advocate Its Application in Certain Cases at His Sunday Night Service Open to Men Only.

Will Follow With Challenge to Men in Audience to Tell Who Should Be So Treated; Will Quote Verbatim From Police Docket.

"Tar and Feathers" in certain cases will be advocated by Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, in his pulpit Sunday night in the third of his sermon series on "What Is Happening Right Here in Wichita Falls," Dr. Knickerbocker indicated to a representative of The Record News Thursday. The service will be for men only, he announced. The advocacy of tar and feathers will be in connection with the question which he will ask the congregation at the service, and which he will also answer in his sermon: "Ought tar and feathers ever to be used on violators of law by determined citizens?"

Dr. Knickerbocker further indicated that he would challenge the men in his congregation, following that question, to say if there is anyone in Wichita Falls who ought to be tarred and feathered.

"The written announcement of this service furnished by Dr. Knickerbocker follows:

"We are going to have a 'Men Only' service at my church Sunday night. I make it for men only because I am certain that otherwise the crowd couldn't possibly get in the church. Besides that, I have some things to say that I want to say to red blooded men only. I am going to tell some stories of seduction and marital infidelity, etc., that ought to rouse any man who has got a heart more courageous than a rabbit's. So any man who is afraid of his shadow will not be interested. I think the members of the Ku Klux Klan will be very much interested and they are especially invited to be present.

"I am going to ask and answer two questions: 'Should horsewhipping and tar and feathers ever be administered by citizens to incorrigible criminals?' Still more personal, 'If they should, is there anyone in Wichita Falls that ought to be tarred and feathered?' I am going to discuss the subject. What's going on in Wichita Falls, and make some startling revelations. By way of a preinde, I am going to read a few pages from the police blotter. That's the book where a record of the daily arrests is kept. I expected to use the book itself but Mr. Fitts informs me that the City Council voted that they had no authority to loan it to me, so I will do the next best thing, and that is have my stenographer copy a few pages verbatim, ad liberatum.

"All who think that they are emphatically opposed to what they are pleased to term mob law are especially invited to be present and hear this discussion. I am going to lay down some propositions and prove them from the scriptures and philosophy and logic. These propositions will probably contradict the superficial notions of a great many people.

"I would be glad if there are a number of men who have got nerve enough to do it, who will write me their opinion on this subject, answering the questions whether they think tar and feathers are ever justifiable and if so, what sort of folks ought to have them poured on them. My own answer to these questions I will say now will be unequivocal, pointed and absolute. In the words of Hezekiah Ebinezer Stebbins, 'The time has come when something has to be did'."

OFFICIALS ARE CHARGED WITH LAW VIOLATION

Eight City and County Officers Are Arrested for Alleged Failure to Enforce Pro Law.

By Associated Press.

NEWPORT, Ky., Feb. 16.—Two city officials of Newport, including the mayor, and three officials of Campbell county were arrested today by Kentucky state guardsmen on charges of conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law. A sixth official named in the warrants had not been located tonight.

Those arrested were Mayor Joseph Hermann and Chief of Police Frank Dregel of Newport and County Attorney Conrad Marx, County Detective Edward Hamilton and County Patrolman Charles Bullett, of Campbell county. County Patrolman John Sheeran is being sought by the soldiers.

The men were arraigned before United States Commissioner O. H. Roetken, at Covington, and released on bond of $2,500 each. All cases were set for preliminary hearing March 15, except that of Mayor Hermann, who will be given a hearing March 27.

The arrests were made on warrants sworn to by John F. Marcum, United States prohibition enforcement officer, at the direction of Sawyer Smith, Covington, United States district attorney for Northern Kentucky.

Smith intimated after the arrests that other officials are to be brought into the federal net before the drive is over.

The penalty for conviction of the charges provides for a maximum of two years in prison and a fine of $2,000. The trials are to be held before a federal judge.

A total of eight officials now are under arrest on federal charges growing out of the raids. County Judge Wm. C. Buten and City Patrolman Charles Hamilton were arrested several days ago.

It was explained that the real charge against the officials is failure to attempt to stop violations of the prohibition law.

Society Woman Out-Generals Bold Burglar

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Mrs. Henry W. Butler—society woman and broker's wife—this afternoon appeared in court and identified John Hardcastle, a negro, as the burglar she had, by a trick, induced to return $50,000 worth of jewelry he pocketed after breaking into the Butler apartment on East 82nd street. He was held without bail.

Her husband out of town, Mrs. Butler was sleeping in the apartment last night with her daughter and three servants when she was awakened by a draught. Switching on the lights, she found a negro standing at her dresser.

"A word from you and I'll kill you" said the burglar, as Mrs. Butler sat up in bed.

"I am not going to make an outcry," said Mrs. Butler. "I wish you would make no noise, for my daughter is very ill in the next room."

"You may have all that stuff. You see that is just some things I bought in a five and ten cent store for a masque ball. Altogether they are not worth fifty cents."

"You mean that this stuff ain't no good?"

"That is just what I mean," said Mrs. Butler.

"Well, then I don't want it," replied the burglar climbing out of the window and descending to the street.

Mrs. Butler then telephone the police and Hardcastle was arrested in a doorway.

MINERS WILL BACK DEMANDS ASSERTS LEWIS

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 16.—A wage policy of accepting no reductions of wages for soft coal miners and demanding increases for anthracite workers, backed up by a threat of nation-wide strike on April 1st., will be adopted by the United Mine Workers of America convention now in session here by an almost unanimous vote, of the delegates, according to a statement issued tonight by President John L. Lewis.

The convention today completed the work of seating delegates. Its action cleared the way for a roll call vote, requiring all of tomorrow's sessions, to decide whether Alexander Howat and other expelled Kansas miners shall have an opportunity to appeal to the convention for their reinstatement in the union. Howat's supporters lost ground today when they saw that anti-Howat delegates from Kansas had been seated as delegates by convention act last Tuesday.

For two days the Kansas case has blocked the convention and Mr. Lewis' statement said, "the public should not become anxious because of the delay in reaching an approval of the report of the wage agbie committee," outlining the union's policy.

NORTH MEXICO MILITARY ZONE IS AGAIN QUIET

Revolutionary Flurry Has Passed According to General Martinez, Commander of District.

Fort Bliss Assumed Air of Expectancy Thursday Although No Troops Were Ordered Moved.

By Associated Press.

EL PASO, Feb. 16.—The northern military zone of Mexico is now quiet with no sign of revolutionary activity, said General Eugenio Martinez, zone commander, who arrived in Juarez from Chihuahua late today. The general traveled in a private car attached to the regular passenger train which was accompanied only by the usual train guard. The northern zone consists of the states of Chihuahua, Durango and the Laguna district of Coahuila.

"The border posts will not be strengthened," said General Martinez, as the present force had demonstrated its ability to cope with the situation. The revolutionary flurry has passed. Leaders of the revolt had been captured and two of the principals, General Arthur Ruiz, and Captain J. L. Perez, have been put to death.

"These men went to Francisco Villa on his ranch at Canutillo. Villa told them he would remain loyal to the government. They were arrested at Chihuahua and escaped only to be recaptured at a station forty kilometers south of Chihuahua. They were shot by a firing squad Monday morning."

General Martinez admitted that Rosalio Hernandez, chief of staff of Villa, had revolted at Santa Rosalia and taken the field with a number of men. This force, the general said had dwindled and Hernandez, accompanied only by a handful of men, now is on the Coahuila border where his capture is momentarily expected.

Troops of the first cavalry division at Fort Bliss continue to be held in readiness for emergency. Trucks were loaded with emergency supplies and a general air of expectancy hung over the post during the day. Several small tanks were loaded on automobile trailors and two armored railroads with guns mounted in turrets were moved from a siding from the 82nd field artillery grounds.

United States army airplanes have been unusually active along the border in the vicinity of El Paso for the last two days.

Officers at Fort Bliss today declined to comment on the war-like preparations beyond stating that no orders for a troop movement had been received.

RICKARD PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO JURY CHARGES

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The Supreme court grand jury today returned two indictments against George L. (Tex) Lickard, boxing promoter, charging him with rape in the second degree, assault in the second degree and abducting two 15-year-old girls —Alice Ruck and Sarah Shoenfeld.

Twenty minutes later the man who had staged the Dempsey-Carpentier fight and other big bouts appeared at the criminal courts building with his lawyers and plead not guilty. The district attorney's office announced that it would be content with the $10,000 bail furnished when Rickard was arraigned in magistrate court Saturday on complaint preferred by the society for the prevention of cruelty to children.

Rickard appeared free from worry when he appeared before Justice Wasservogel. He waived reading of the indictments and listened attentively while his counsel asked and obtained a week in which to study the papers of the case, and to prepare any motions he might care to make. The court directed that any such motions be promptly referred.

Rickard declined to discuss the case, which grew out of alleged attacks made on the girls both in the Tower of Madison Square Garden and in an apartment of West 47th street. The case had been before the grand jury for nearly a week. In the event of a verdict of guilty, a sentence of ten years could be imposed for any one of the offenses charged.

LONDON SOON TO VIEW STATUTE OF WASHINGTON

(By International News Service)

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The bronze statue of George Washington, which was recently presented to England by the people of Virginia and which was damaged in transit, is now being put to rights on its site in Trafalgar square and will soon be revealed to the people of London in all its glory.

SCHOOL DAYS By DWIG

SOLONS WOULD VISIT MUSCLE SHOALS SCENE

Motion Pictures Suggested as a More Economical Method of Informing the Committees on Subject.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—First consideration by the senate agriculture committee of the Ford offer for purchase and lease of the government's properties at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, resulted today in the presentation to the senate of a "resolution asking authority for the 17 committeemen to inspect personally the projects in Alabama. A suggestion by Representative Miller, republican, Washington, that the house military committeemen who are investigating the offer, also visit the properties, was tentatively considered by that body, but no formal action was taken.

The senate resolution was referred to the auditing committee. Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, chairman of the agriculture committee, explained that he wouldn't request immediate action. Members of both the senate and house committees believe that a visit to Muscle Shoals would enable them to solve more intelligently the question.

Appropriations necessary to meet the expenses of the two groups were said to be the chief reasons the house committee reserved decision on Mr. Miller's suggestion. Chairman Kahn said he believed it possible for members of the house and senate to visualize Muscle Shoals by use of motion pictures, and arranged to give a movie show and invite all interested.

J. W. Worthington, chairman of the executive committee of the Tennessee river improvement association, and adviser to Mr. Ford on the Muscle Shoals transaction, was the only witness heard today by the military committee. He offered the use of a film which, he said, depicted the development of Muscle Shoals from the time the first soil was turned to the present, and revealed the various plants and power projects as they stand now. The offer was accepted by the committee and action on the suggestion for a visit was deferred until after the picture had been seen.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF RESERVE BANKS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Combined resources and liabilities of the twelve federal banks at the close of business February 15 were reported tonight by the federal reserve board in thousands of dollars as follows:

Resources.

Total gold held by banks	$ 913,614

Numerous Distinguished Persons Duped by Man Whom Police Term "World's Champion Impersonator"

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Calling him the world's champion impersonator of interesting people, the New York police have joined the department of justice in searching for Stephan Weinberg, whose list of distinguished dupes include President Harding, Princess Watima, Dr. Adolf Lorenz, Mayor Hylan and Harold McCormick.

In the national capital the versatile young impersonator is wanted for accepting White House hospitality in the guise of "Commander Stanley Wyman, U. S. N., official escort to the Princess Fatima." In New York he is being sought for a series o. daring pranks played to the discomfiture of a succession of notables since 1913.

The record of Weinberg's escapades reads like a movie producer's list of suggested plots for five reel adventure thrillers. It is alleged to reveal him in the following roles:

In 1913 dined in New York as the United States consul to Morocco.

In 1915 impressive in the make-up of "special representative in the United States for the Republic of San Salvador." He gave a sumptuous banquet to the vice-president of that country at one of the largest New York hotels.

Shortly after as "Lieutenant Commander Ethan Allen Weinberg, consul general for Roumania," he paid an official visit to the battleship Wyoming at anchor in the Hudson river and repaid the courtesies he received on board by dining the ship's officers at the Astor hotel. The guests reported the affair as a huge success, but the hotel management was less enthusiastic because the host of the occasion skipped out without th formality of settling the bill.

Next in 1918, as "Lieutenant Royale St. Cyre," he appeared along the Rialto, in the uniform of a dashing young army aviator, breaking into print under newspaper headlines announcing this marriage to an actress and their plans to be divorced and then "adopt" one another.

He saw the inside of a penal institution some time later, convicted of forging the name of United States Senator Cald to papers recommending him when he went to Brooklyn to "inspect" a national guard armory. He was released on his prison record for good conduct.

In his immaculate uniform, Weinberg got himself accepted without question by Princess Fatima when she came here last July after a voice over the telephone informed the sultana that he had the indorsement of the chief of police of New York. Also he is said to have bolstered his reputation with the princess by intimating a sort of connection between himself and J. P. Morgan, the financier. When Dr. Lorenz came to America to work for charity it was Weinberg who got himself appointed secretary to the famous Austrian only to lose his position and his title of "doctor" when Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner, notified Dr. Lorenz that he was an imposter. Complaints had been made that he collected $100 fees from applicants for the great surgeon's treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson H. Price left Thursday night for New York city via New Orleans. They will visit Chicago, Toledo, and Detroit and stop in Iowa for a short visit with Mrs. Price's grandmother on their return trip.

E. A. Miller, of Waco, who with Homer Sanderford of this city is interested in the management of the Walk-Over Boot Shop, is a visitor in Wichita Falls. Miller has two great interests in life, shoes and golf—and whenever he visits Wichita Falls he is confronted with the same daily problem of deciding whether to spend the day downtown or at the local country club. Miller waves a neat golf club, and on several occasions has furnished stiff opposition for some of the best players here.

Julian Montgomery, city engineer, is expected back today from Amarillo where he spent Wednesday and Thursday on private business matters.

Mrs. Joe Hamilton of Prescott, Arkansas, is the guest of Mrs. H. F. Nichols.

Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Collard, 2414 Ninth street, announce the arrival of an eight pound baby daughter, Thursday morning.

"Ups and Downs" will be the subject of Dr. David Goldberg's sermon at the Temple Israel tonight, beginning at 8 o'clock when a special musical program will be a feature.

Recently she became the wife of a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago

Autoists Are Summoned to Police Court

Twenty-five drivers of automobiles were notified Thursday to report to the police station for violations of the traffic rules. In connection with the tagging of the twenty-five cars Police Commissioner Fitts announced that the campaign to secure a more rigid enforcement of traffic rules would continue.

Officers have been furnished with blank tags with instructions to fill themout and attach to cars whenever they are discovered parked with some violation of parking rules evident. According to Commissioner Fitts the down town parking rules must be obeyed.

Automobile owners finding tags on their cars are requested to report to the police station at once. Failure to do so will result in warrants being issued for the arrest of the owner of the car. Heavier penalties will be assessed in cases where violators of the traffic rules fail to report to the station.

Obituary

MRS. LOUISE ANDERSON

The body of Mrs. Louise Anderson of Burkburnett, who died early Thursday morning at a local hospital, was taken to Ravia, Oklahoma, for burial Thursday night. Mrs. Anderson was brought to the hospital Sunday. She is survived by her husband and three small children. She formerly lived in Ravia.

E. C. BROWN

E. C. Brown, aged 65 years, died Thursday at the home of L. N. Carrol, 1007 Fourteenth street. Funeral services will be held from the residence this afternoon at 3 o'clock in charge of the Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the First M. E. church, south. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

The deceased is survived by his wife, one son, R. E. Brown of Phoenix, Arizona, and three daughters, Mrs. L. G. Cook and Mrs. C. Dooley of this city; Mrs. Virgil Miller of Hillsboro, Texas.

Rosemont, being protected by its perpetual care plan and State Charter, will stand forever, while ordinary cemeteries fail and pass. Investigate this advantage. 308 City National Bank Bldg. Phone 2947.—Adv.

SINGLE DAY SEES FINISH OF FINGER HOME

Not a Stick of Lumber on Ground at 8:00 o'Clock Thursday; Last Nail Is Driven Before 6 P. M.

75 Workmen Donate Labor as Share in Home Given Survivors of Man Who Gave Life for Child.

Donating their work, 75 carpenters and other artisans yesterday within one working day, started and finished the cottage which represents the gift of the people of Wichita Falls to Mrs. B. M. Finger and her four children. The building was erected on a lot on Grant street near the Sam Houston school, the gift of R. M. Waggoner and J. A. Kemp. B. M. Finger, the father, died several weeks ago as the result of burns incurred in a vain attempt to rescue an infant son when the house in which the family was then living burned at an early hour in the morning. The infant and its father died within 24 hours of each other.

Not a stick of the lumber was on the lot at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. The last nail in the last rear step was driven before 6 o'clock in the afternoon. The house is complete except for the papering and painting, which will be done today. The property is worth around $3,000.

The lumber and all materials were purchased from local dealers for cost. The lot and work was donated, as above brought out, and the money for the materials was secured through contributions by local church congregations under the leadership of Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker and Rev. J. Lem Keevil.

W. B. McNeeley played the part of general contractor in the building of the house, dividing the workmen up into squads and assigning a definite task to each and appointing a foreman over each gang of workmen. The foremen and the work each was in charge as follows:

W. O. Griffin prepared the foundation and flooring.

E. J. Angel, superintended the roof construction.

H. C. Bain, the framing and side walls.

S. A. Roser, siding.

W. E. Morgan, inside ceiling.

E. F. Eubanks, shingling.

George Dunn, windows and screens.

G. L. Allen, doors and frames.

Seven plumbers were on the job and they completed their work long before the day was over. They were George Winburn, E. F. Kaufman, M. C. Foley, Charles Hughes A. H. McClellan, L. F. Coates and I. F. Nunn. All the labor was furnished free and the material used was supplied at actual cost.

This morning Eric Bruno and 2 painters and paperhangers will complete the structure.

Electricians were on the scene Thursday as soon as the structure was far enough advanced for them to proceed and had Mrs. Finger moved in last night, the electric lights were available. Mr. McNeely said the electricians failed to come around and introduce themselves to him, so was unable to give their names. They were from the Ever Ready Electric company.

HE WOULD PROVE IT

Manager—I thought you said you could do that job in an hour?

Cassidy—Bedad, I'll do that job in an hour if it takes me all day.

ORDINANCE AT BURKBURNETT HELD INVALID

The city of Burkburnett can no longer enforce its recently passed ordinance regulating the operation of domino parlors in that city.

Judge Ed Napier of the 78th district court Thursday made permanent the temporary injunction granted D. I. M. Jones and Henry Perdue, proprietors of a domino parlor at Burkburnett, restraining the city from enforcing the ordinance, which is said to be unique in city legislation.

The ordinance made it unlawful for proprietors to charge for games. Judge Napier, in his decision, stated that while there was no doubt that cities had the right to make certain regulations in the operation of domino parlors, a provision for no charges was in effect legislating the parlors out of business. He held this provision of the ordinance to be illegal.

The temporary injunction was granted by Judge Napier two weeks ago on motion of the plaintiffs who contended that their domino parlor had been closed by the officers at Burkburnett after the new ordinance became effective.

Nazarenes to Hold Special Revival Meet

A special gospel campaign will begin at the Church of the Nazarene, corner Fifth and Bluff streets Friday night, according to an announcement.

The evangelist will be Rev. John W. Hipp of Altus, Oklahoma, who will be assisted by Rev. George W. Moore and Rev. Carey Grimes of Bonham, Texas.

"This campaign will be launched for the salvation of the many people of Wichita Falls who are unsaved and not members of any church," says the pastor, Rev. W. H. Phillips.

Night services will begin at 7:15 o'clock, and after the first week there will be two services a day, one beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning, according to the announcement.

BAIL IS PROVIDED WITH WAGON LOAD OF HALF DOLLARS

By Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 16.—An express wagon load of silver half dollars—$2,000 worth of them—was brought to the Oakland police station by George Bruno, manager of an Italian bank, to provide bail money for Lorenzo Cuissi, under arrest today on a charge of failing to render assistance to a woman run down by his automobile. All other money in the bank was locked in a time vault.

Two police officers were several hours counting the half dollars and Guissi was not freed until they had completed their task.

HEROIC ACTION BY SERGEANT SAVES OFFICER

By Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Feb. 16.—Heroic action by Sergeant Emmett T. Collins, at Ellington Field, this morning probably saved the life of Captain George Tinsley, when his plane crashed into a building, and quick work on the part of the entire personnel of the field prevented what appeared likely to be a disastrous fire.

Captain Tinsley's plane struck a hangar as he was trying to land, bounced off and crashed through the glass walls of a gymnasium. Sergeant Collins, who was near, rushed into the gymnasium and dragged Captain Tinsley out of the wreckage just before the engine exploded.

The explosion set fire to the gymnasium. The building was destroyed but work of the entire force at the field and of fire apparatus from Houston, prevented a spread of the flames, despite the heavy wind.

Says Sold Him Worthless Oil Stock; Suing

Alleging that the defendants misrepresented the value of certain oil stock which he purchased from them, G. H. Cox, of Tulsa, brought suit in the 78th district court Thursday against Robert Hamilton and John G. Johnston of this city for $2,000 damages.

In his petition the plaintiff alleges that in 1918 the defendants endeavored to sell him stock of the St. Louis-Texas Development company at the par value of $100 a share. He alleges that he refused to purchase the stock, but later he purchased it at $200 a share, the defendants assuring him in writing that he would not lose by the investment.

According to the plaintiff's petition he purchased $2,000 worth of the stock. He alleges that the company is now insolvent and that it had never received any dividends or return of any part of the original investment.

SIGHT OF BLIND GIRL IS RESTORED BY BLOW ON EYE

By Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 16.—A blow over the left eye, blind since babyhood, brought sight back to Miss Maud Ann Naismith here last night when she and her brother were performing gymnastic stunts at their home.

Miss Naismith is a daughter of Professor John Naismith, physical director of the University of Kansas and inventor of the game of basketball.

She came here from Kansas recently to live with her brother "Jack," physical director in one of the high schools here. She is 17 and pretty and for more than twelve years has been unable to see with her left eye. The defect was not noticeable and her eyes are most attractive.

While going through some exercises with her brother in their apartment last night Miss Naismith bumped her eye on a bar. Instantly her sight was restored.

months the department states that there was a continued improvement in fundamental conditions and a spirit of optimism prevails in practically every industry that augurs well for the future. Another condition of fundamental importance for business recovery the survey states is the fact that prices remained relatively staple for the past six months and that the buying public is gradually coming to realize that the big vertical drop in prices is over. There will probably be further recessions according to the survey as business is done on a more economical basis and margins are reduced, but on most commodities it is expected that these movements will be spread over a relatively long period of time.

Abraham Lincoln was indeed a marvelous man. Representative W. R. Green of Iowa in an address to the House, declared that the Civil War president never varied his policy, never changed a principle, never misjudged the needs of the hour and never so much as thought of shaping his course for his own political interests. Another Lincoln is needed—a Lincoln who will not "shape his course for his own political interests."

Church going has kept pace with the increases in crime and movie scandals. Despite moral and economic upsets following the war, 4,070,340 new members have been added to the church rolls during the last five years, according to a survey just completed by the federal council of churches of Christ in America. Of this gain, one million members were added last year. Every day in the last five years an average of 2,178 persons joined the various churches, the survey reveals. During the same period, an average of three congregations have been organized daily. An average of four and one-half persons a day entered the ministry. The total religious constituency of the country (including all members and adherents) according to the survey, is 93,858,096. In detail, statistics show the Protestants count 74,795,226; Roman Catholics, 17,885,846; Jews, 1,120,000; eastern orthodox (Greek and Russian), 411,054; Latter Day Saints (Mormons), 1,646,170. The total church membership of the country, according to latest available figures, is 45,997,199. This is an increase of 4,070,340 since 1916 and indicates a gain of more than a million members for the last twelve months. The several religious bodies report 233,404 congregations manned by 200,090 ministers. The difference of 33,014 is believed not to indicate a shortage of pastors because in rural districts many ministers have charge of two or more churches. For the first time in history, Baptists have passed Methodists in total membership, the survey reveals. Baptists, showing their greatest increase in the South, now have 7,835,250 members against a Methodist membership of 7,797,991. Roman Catholics have gained 2,163,831 members and adherents. They have 16,580 churches manned by 21,643 priests. The Salvation Army, with a reported membership of 35,969, shows an increase of only sixty-five persons since 1918.

What is pronounced by representatives of the United States geological survey to be the thickest strata of potash ever known in the world has been discovered near Porterville, Texas, by the Pinal Dome Oil corporation of California. The solid deposit of potash salts was encountered at a depth of 960 feet and was found to be eight hundred feet thick, while the salts mixed with other formation extended to a further depth of twelve hundred feet. Steps are now being taken to prove the area that may be underlaid by the potash deposit. This will be done by means of core drills. It is stated that the purity of the potash is unusually high. The fact that potash in Germany is successfully mined on a very large scale from a depth of two thousand feet leads to the conclusion that the commercial possibilities of the deposit found near Porterville are very great, provided, of course, it covers much of an underground area. The scene of the discovery is in Loving county, within a few miles of the New Mexico state line and about twenty-five miles north of Pecos. It was while drilling a wildcat oil well that the Pinal Dome Oil corporation came upon the potash strata. This well is now forty-four hundred feet deep, and one of its remarkable features is that not a sign of water was encountered until a depth of thirty-five hundred feet was reached.

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

THE PACIFIC.

The wide and blue Pacific comes slopping to my door; some seas are most terrific, the way they surge and roar; but this old languid ocean is never in commotion; it seems to have the notion that effort is a bore. Upon its breast no ripple for days may be described; it looks so calm a cripple might swim to t'other side; I hear old salts relating wild tales of skating for days without abating, and feel that they have lied. I've sat and watched the briny for ages, from my coop; it's always still and shiny, and like a sea of soup; unbroken, calm, it glitters, save where some finny critters, emerging from the bitters, emit a fishlike whoop. I've longed to see the billows in wild commotion roll, while I sat 'neath the willows with my long fishingpole; but, sluggish still and quiet, the sea, as I loaf by it, puts up no startling riot designed to stir the soul. It scarcely even shivers, it stagnates, gray and grim, and I know Kansas rivers that have more pep and vim; with seaweed it is crusted, with seaweed red and rusted, and gulls that look disgusted along its surface skim. A long, long time I've waited to see this ocean wake, and now I know I'm fated to find my hope a fake; and while the famed Atlantic is prone to spasms frantic, and kicks up storms gigantic, this sea jams down the brake.

The Magic Lantern show at the Wild Onion school house Saturday night was well attended, and proved to be both interesting and instructive. One of the main slides was a bird's-eye view of the Atlantic Ocean, and the show man explained that on account of the size of the stage only a portion of the ocean could be shown.

WHY JUMPER, THE HARE, WAS NOT AFRAID

The most surprising thing about the meeting of Buster Bear with the other little people of the Green Forest was that he was introduced by Jumper the Hare. Now, you know Jumper the Hare is very, very timid. Everybody knows that. He is so timid that some people say he is afraid of his own shadow. Of course, this isn't true, but it is true that he is very, very timid. So no one could understand how it happened that he dared to introduce Buster Bear. In fact, he didn't seem any more afraid of Buster than were Jimmy Skunk and Prickly Porky the Porcupine. But every one knows why they are not afraid; Jimmy has a little bag of scent and Prickly Porky has a thousand little spears to make other people even those a great deal bigger than they are, respect them.

But Jumper the Hare has nothing of the kind. He has nothing with which to win respect save his long legs, and as he uses those to run away with, of course he never wins respect with them, for you know people who run away are seldom respected. So it was that when Jumper appeared not in the least afraid of Buster Bear and introduced him as a friend, the other little people, most of whom were frightened almost to death, couldn't understand it at all. Peter Rabbit wasn't there at the time, but, of course, he heard of it, and it puzzled him more than it did any one else. He is timid himself, is Peter Rabbit, but he isn't as timid as his big cousin Jumper. And yet here was he himself having little cold chills of fright at the very thought of those great claws of Buster Bear, while Jumper was not afraid at all. It was too much for Peter, and the first chance he got he asked Jumper about it.

Jumper smiled. "Why," said he, "Buster Bear comes from the Great Woods where I came from, and I know all about him and he knows all about me. So we are friends."

Peter scratched his head thoughtfully. Somehow he didn't understand any better than before. "Aren't you afraid of those great, big, cruel claws?" he asked.

Jumper shook his head. "No," said he. "Why should I be afraid of them?"

"Because they can tear you all to pieces!" yelled Peter promptly.

"But they can't" cried Jumper happily. "That is just what they can't do, and that is why I am not afraid!"

"I don't see why they can't," persisted Peter.

"Because they can't catch me!" Jumper made a long jump, a very long jump, twice as long a jump as Peter could make, as if to show why those cruel claws could not catch him. Peter began to see what Jumper the Hare meant.

"You mean you are not afraid of Buster Bear because you think Buster cannot catch you; is that it?" asked Peter.

Jumper nodded his head so fast that he made his long ears flop. "That's just it!" said he. "Buster Bear can't catch me. I know it and he knows it, and so he doesn't waste and time trying. Instead we are very good friends. The only things to be afraid of in this world are things you know may hurt you, no matter how sharp you watch out. Now, I am afraid of Granny Fox and Old Man Coyote, because they are so sly and swift that I am never sure that I am safe from them. But Buster Bear is not swift enough or sly enough to make me afraid. When you have known Buster as long as I have you will know that he isn't half so terrible as he looks, and that he really can be very nice and no end of fun. I'm not afraid of Buster because I've learned how to keep out of his way, and when you've learned the same thing you won't be afraid either."

Peter looked as if he would like to believe it, but found it a little more than he could quite credit.

To Acquire Skill

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

"Practice makes perfect" is an old and often quoted saying. But it is a true saying only with important reservations. And, indeed, every-day observation shows that there are many people who, no matter how assiduously they practice this or that activity, never arrive at anything like perfection.

One reason may be that they are practising along wrong lines as a result of having been taught wrongly to begin with. The better the teacher the more apt the pupil, holds true of the acquisition of skill as of acquiring intellectual knowledge.

That is why, in business establishments where skill in the handling of materials, the running of machinery, etc., is of great importance, care usually is taken to select the most expert workers as instructors of novices.

It is appreciated that the novice will learn not merely through conscious attention to what the instructor tells him, but still more through unconscious imitation of the latter's movements. Repeated imitation of these movements—that is, practice—will then gradually give the novice a high degree of skill.

If, however, the instructor be none too expert himself, the tendency on the novice's part will be to imitate unconsciously his teacher's faulty movements.

Practice under this condition can hardly make for perfection. To gain that there will have to be another period of conscious relearning under some other instructor, or by intelligent self-direction on the learner's part.

It must also be remembered that there is such a thing as overpractice. This makes, not for skill, but for decreased efficiency. Every athlete who has had the experience of "going stale" will appreciate the truth of this.

On the other hand, it is important not to confuse a period of "stale-period of mere arrest of progress," due to overpractice, with a The one calls for prompt cessation from practice for a time, the other indicates rather a need for more faithful practice.

Certainly the arrest period should not be taken as a reason for discouragement. As explained by E. J. Swift:

"Periods of arrest in progress are intervals for consolidating the information or skill won by the learner during his advance, but not well organized because he was too busy making gains.

"This cessation of progress, however, is only apparent. It is not a real arrest, for during this time the facts and information are being automatized for ready use."

Swift also remarks, after pointing out that nearly every learner is subject to such periods of seeming non-improvement:

"In the case of certain individuals especially adapted to a given piece of work progress may be continuous to a high level of efficiency."

Which reminds me that, as concerns various activities—painting, the playing of music, etc.—there are some persons naturally so ill-adapted to them that no amount of practice will insure perfection in their case. Fortunately, however, their deficient adaptation usually becomes soon evident to themselves or their instructors, and they turn to something else.

With these reservations, then, the dictum that practice makes perfect may be said to hold good. And he who practices faithfully, but not too persistently, and with a good model for imitation, may reasonably count on acquiring the skill he craves.

LADDIE BOY REBUKES THE PRESIDENT; SAYS INTERVIEW WAS NOT AUTHIRZED

Laddie Boy, the White House airedale, who gave his first interview to the public through this column a year ago, now come forward with a denial of the views credited to him in a letter from President Harding to a magazine.

o o o

The "First Dog of the Land" denies authorizing any statement by the president, and insists it may cost the Republican party the airedale vote.

o o o

"I deny the authenticity of the inferview with me as given by the president," writes Laddie Boy. "I was not even consulted by Warren with regard to the advisibility of any statement from me at this time. To be sure, I have had several informal talks with the president of late, but upon each occasion I was careful to say: 'Now, remember, Gamaliel, this is not for publication, and don't quote me.' The president assured me he would respect my wishes.

"A White House dog has to be extremely careful what he says, and be always ready with a denial whether he said it or not, if you get what I mean.

o o o

"The president quotes me as saying that I like the life here, and that I get on famously with the politicians. It's all bunk. Of all places for a dog to seek happiness Washington is the worst. There's too much hemming and hawing, too much hesitation and debate about everything. Why, before the president throws me a bone he first takes it up with his cabinet for approval. There isn't a member of the administration who would give me a platter of meat scraps without first carefully considering whether it would be strictly in line with party poliey.

"I don't blame Warren so much. Congress watches everything he does and if he should buy me a 1922 dog license without referring it to the proper committee there'd be the devil to pay.

"And some senators are so obstinate. Take Senator Lodge, for instance. I never get a promise of a dog biscuit from the president that I don't fear Lodge will get up in the senate and oppose it or tack on some amendment requiring that England and Japan autograph each biscuit before I get a crack at it.

o o o

"Even now there is pending in the senate the matter of some fleapowder. I need it; the president has approved it and yet Senator Borah is preventing immediate action on the ground he was not consulted. Well, why should he be consulted? I thought I, not he, had the fleas. But you never can tell down here!

o o o

"There is one thing I'm glad of, and that is that I came in with a Republican administration. If I had been left over from the Wilson administration I'd certainly lead a harder life than I do now. A Republican congress would probably see that I never ate.

o o o

"And another thing. Life for a dog down here is too formal and stiff. I never get the least bit playful with the president or anybody else without having a secret fear that I may be getting the administration in wrong. As a matter of fact I'm under a cloud now. One day recently I happened to go into the coatroom and pick up a funny looking object. I dragged it out on the lawn and had the best morning's fun I've had since coming to Washington. How was I to know it was Mr. Balfour's hat?

"Believe me it's a tough life. There's but one matter that cheers me up; the president and all the other big chiefs down here are always talking about a bone-us bill. If this bone-us bill is what it sounds like to me the outlook for eats is pretty good. Hot dog, as the saying goes, and best wishes.

LADDIE BOY.

"P. S.—Giving out a statement like this is poor politics, but the president drove me to it."

HORS D'OEUVRES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

Hors d'Oeuvres literally means out of work.

The technical meaning is those little bits of eatables with which we commence a meal.

The term is French, of course, as the French are authorities upon matters gustatory.

At the midday meal in a French restaurant one usually begins with the hors d'oeuvres.

They are not much used in England or in Germany.

You will find them, however, in Italy, known as antepasti. You will find them also—or you did find them in former days—in great abundance in Russia and in the Orient. And the farther you get east the more piquant the hors d'oeuvres will become.

Whatever makes eating a more refined and tasteful performance is worth while. So a few words about hors d'oeuvres may not be out of place.

Any housewife can prepare them, as they are an excellent means of utilizing scraps. It should be remembered, however, that they should be always freshly made.

Fish, being usually highly flavored, form an important element in hors d'oeuvres. As, for instance, anchovies caviare (the salted roe of sturgeon), herring, tunny, shrimps, and the like. They should always be served in small portions and appetizingly arranged.

Among other hors d'oeuvres used by the French, are cucumbers (sliced finely and covered with vinegar), small mushrooms, cabbage slaw, watercress, small beans, small slices of summer sausage (such as cervelat, Bologna and the like), slices of tongue and asparagus tips.

Pickled mushrooms and artichokes are much used in Italy, and they serve their anchovies and other small fish in piquant sauces.

All throughout the Balkans hors d'oeuvres are much in favor. And in the old days in Russia were the zakouskis.

It used to be the fashion in Russian families for the guests to help themselves at a small side table where there was a tempting array of salted fish, salted nuts, pickles and salads, which were taken standing accompanied by little glasses of vodka, a strong liquor, which is now prohibited. But very probably that sort of thing in Russia is all over.

The array of hors d'oeuvres in some of the French restaurants was so extensive that the patrons got in the habit of making a meal of them, so that often now an extra charge is made for them unless other food is ordered afterwards.

Of course, you are not expected to eat heartily of the hors d'oeuvres. They are for picking, and to satisfy your appetite with them is supposed to be "indelicate."

The conversation during the hors d'oeuvres period of the meal is supposed to be quite frivolous, in keeping with the character of the food.

To those who are disposed to make the most out of the little things in life and to neglect no touch of refinement that can redeem the necessity of nourishment from grossness, hors d'oeuvres form possibly a subject of some interest.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

AN EGG THAT WAS "DIFFERENT"

Mary Anne had been ill so long and had taken eggs in so many forms that she rebelled one afternoon and said that she would scream if any one approached her with an egg again for at least a week.

Mary Anne's mother was taking care of her, and she had a good many things to do, besides serving Mary Anne's meals.

But she realized that the most important part of caring for the sick is feeding them intelligently, because diet has wrested the laurels from the "bitters" of yesteryear.

So she went rather thoughtfully downstairs and decided to forget all about Mary Anne's antipathy to eggs, until ten time.

No More Mention of Eggs.

"Then, perhaps, I will be able to think of something," she decided.

So, during the short winter afternoon, nothing further was said about nourishment.

Mary Anne slept for a time, and then her mother gave her a warm sponge bath between blankets in the bed, and rubbed her tired aching body with talcum powder, and patted and plumped the pillows into a state of cool freshness.

She brushed the child's hair, tied it with a new ribbon, and gave her her 4 o'clock medicine, and took her temperature.

Prepares An "Egg-Nest."

Then she went downstairs, and by the time it was 5 o'clock, which was the sick child's supper hour, Mary Anne's mother had remembered the "egg nest" that had been served to her once when she was ill in the hospital. So she proceeded to make an egg nest for the child's supper.

First the tray was prepared with its snowy scrap of linen, its pink rose, and its pretty china, which was part of the trick of coaxing Mary Anne to eat.

A glass of milk was put to heat in a double boiler, and two slices of golden brown toast were prepared. One was cut round, the other into points, like flower petals.

An egg was separated and the white beaten to a stiff froth. The white was slightly salted. Then it was placed (raw) exactly in the center of the round of buttered toast, and a little depression made in its foamy white center. The unbroken yolk of the egg was then slipped into the hollow of the white of egg, a scrap of butter having been first placed in the depression.

Pleases Mary Anne's Palate.

The toast and egg was placed in a moderate oven for four minutes, which was long enough for Mary Anne's mother to fill a glass with hot milk, place it on the tray, and butter the points of toast that were like flower petals.

The egg and toast, taken from the oven, looked like a waterlily marooned on a piece of toast, after the toast petals had been placed around it. The "egg nest" was a fluff of golden brown.

And after one surprised glance at the tray, Mary Anne took her fork and demolished the "egg nest" completely.

"It is so good," she said, eating the last scrap.

Which was her mother's reward.

THE ACCOMPLISHED DAY DREAM

The Jacksons had kept boarders for more than thirty years. There are boarding houses with luxurious appointments, a retinue of trained servants, the presiding genius at their head a cross between an enthroned queen and a general issuing orders to his subordinate officers. But when the average woman "keeps boarders" usually she has no accessories or ease or elegance, and except for an occasional woman in to clean, she does her own work.

So Mrs. Jackson cooked and baked, and did the marketing, patched old bedquilts, darned sun-rotted window curtains and turned carpets worn threadbare to prevent them going into holes. Imogene, the daughter, one of those women who seem always to be middle-aged, did up the men boarders' rooms in the morning—it was emphatically understood that the women boarders attended to their own—waited on table, answered the telephone when it was answered and kept the accounts. "Papa" in his wheel chair since a "stroke" left him paralyzed from the waist down, peeled potatoes on the back porch and discussed politics on the front one with old Elihu Adams—the boarder who occupied what Imogene facetiously called "the bridal chamber"—discussions that sometimes waxed so violent that their raised voices nearly ended in blows.

Yet in spite of the treadmill drudgery of the days, weeks and months that made up the years, it was not the endlessness of the work that Mrs. Jackson complained of. It was the endlessness of the boarders. The fact that papa and Imogene and she never had any life of their own.

"I'd be willin' to feed 'em, and sweep 'em, and keep 'em as reasonably warm as can be expected with the present price of coal," she would wearily sigh, "if only at stated intervals I could lock 'em all in their rooms and leave 'em locked. But, as it is, there's not an hour in the day that I can sit down for a minute's peaceful solitude without Miss Myrtle Finch comin' to talk to me about her family connections, or Mrs. Krupchild appearin' to tell me some grievance. And you know what the evenings are, Imogene. Never a chance for we three to enjoy ourselves 'in fam'millie.' Always old Elihu Adams borrin' over your papa like a buzz fly over butter to get him to play checkers, whether he has a mind to or not. And that pest of a Willie Jones tyin' you down to the piano stool to accompany him on his everlastin' piccolo, when you'd a sight rather read or embroider."

"Never mind, dearie," Imogene would try to cheer her. "Just wait till we can afford that little love-in-a-cottage home of our own we're going to have some day, then we'll chuck the whole outfit and live to ourselves."

"When the millennium comes, maybe," Mrs. Jackson would skeptically answer, little dreaming how soon the "millennium" was to take them by surprise.

For in the middle of one night the blind left over the Jackson house caught fire from impaired wiring, and so badly were the upstairs rooms gutted by water and chemicals their landlord decided that instead of putting them in repair he would take his fire insurance money and change the building into flats. Spurred by his example, the Jacksons in their turn determined to add the insurance money they received for their damaged household effects to their nest-egg savings and buy the long dreamed of home of their own.

It was a nice little bungalow in the outskirts of town, and with a small pension papa had from the company for which he had worked almost fifty years, and a little family income from careful investments, there was enough to meet its modest running expenses.

All the following summer the three of them were as happy as clams. They got up as late as they pleased, and two or three times Mrs. Jackson had her breakfast in bed, just to see how it felt. The housework of the tiny bungalow was mere child's play. Cooking for only themselves—meals eaten with picnic abandon and appetite on the honeysuckle-hung side porch—a positive joke, leaving hours of freedom for Mrs. Jackson and Imogene to take naps, to wash their hair, to trail about in their kimonos and do all sorts of other liberty-loving things denied to those who keep boarders and must always look presentable. And in the evenings they sat peacefully out on the front porch or read around the center table of the cozy living room.

It was a wonderful summer of complete relaxtion and perfect content. But with the autumn came a change in the spirit of the little bungalow. So subtle a one it was felt rather than seen. It was a sort of atmospheric state of mind, like the sultriness before a thunderstorm, or like the nervous restlessness of the leaves of wind-tossed trees before rain patters down.

For the first time Mrs. Jackson became critical of Imogene—the way she fixed her hair, the way her skirt hung, the loud way she raised her voice in talking—and for the first time Imogene answered her mother impatiently and lost her temper completely over her "everlasting nagging." As for papa's growing listlessness, the poor wheel-chair old man became as pepless as a wilted flower.

Neither Mrs. Jackson nor Imogene had the going-out habit, having been too tied down the many years they kept boarders to acquire it. But now two or three times a week Mrs. Jackson went downtown on shopping pretexts, although on her return she seldom had any more urgent purchase to display than a spool of silk or a ball of darning cotton.

"Anyhow, it gives one something to think about," she justified herself. "Watchin' the people on the downtown streets and hearin' them talk on the car comin' and goin' sort of breaks the monotony of your own thoughts."

And almost as often as her mother went "shopping" Imogene went to the movies. "It help to pass the time," she said when Mrs. Jackson commented unfavorably. "I'm bored to tears with nothing to do but twirl my thumbs."

It was coming out of the movies one afternoon that Imogene almost ran into Willie Jones. "He was so glad to see me I thought he was going to fall on my neck then and there," she laughingly remarked on her return. "He'd lost our address and hadn't the remotest idea how to find us. Isn't that just like Willie?"

"Has he seen Elihu Adams lately?" eagerly inquired papa.

"I didn't inquire, but Willie's coming out some evening this week with his piccolo, so you'll have an opportunity to ask him."

Elihu Adams had met with an accident early in the summer, Willie Jones reported; was knocked down by an automobile and was just about again on crutches. Willie had told him about meeting Imogene, and he said as soon as he was able to get on and off a car he was coming to see them.

It was some two weeks later that Mrs. Jackson came home from downtown one day fairly brimming over with excitement. "Who do you suppose I met in the Emporium?" she asked Imogene on the front porch. "Mrs. Knupchild and Miss Myrtle Finch. Upon my word they've both grown so thin and ghostly lookin' I most didn't know them. Mrs. Knupchild has changed her boarding place seven times and poor Miss Myrtle just has a room and eats around at cafeterias. And guess what, Imogene? Miss Lydia Allen, that well-to-do cousin of hers, has died recently and left Miss Myrtle her property. That pleasant lookin' house with bay windows on Pine and Fairview avenues we've always admired—furniture and all."

"The luck of some people!"

"I'm not sure whether it's a case of luck or white elephant," said Mrs. Jackson. "Myrtle Finch has boarded so long she doesn't know any more about running a house than a rabbit. Besides, it's too big for any lone woman to live in. There are six bedrooms."

"If we hadn't given up keeping boarders," mused Imogene, "there's not a house in town that would suit us so well."

"And Miss Myrtle would let us have it at a merely nominal rent if only we'd take it and board her," said Mrs. Jackson eagerly. "And Mrs. Knupchild 'most got down on her knees beggin' me to consider it, and, of course, Willie Jones would be here for——" What's that loud talkin' in the living room, Imogene?"

"Mr. Adams has got here at last," smilingly replied Imogene, "and he and papa are having a perfectly beautiful time playing checkers and disagreeing over Yap."

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

One of the favorite maxims of Postmaster General Will Hays is that "things do not happen. They are made to happen."

It has a lovely, eloquent sound—a good deal like Smiles on Self Help—and no one would dare say it isn't true, although nine out of ten of us do not believe that sort of thing at all. But, after all, there may be something in it. There's one thing mighty sure:

"Some things may be made to happen if you work at it hard enough."

Magdalena May is a young mulatto girl. Her color isn't quite to my taste—it's too much like a new saddle—but otherwise Magdalena May would pass for a good looking girl. She has intelligence, large, soft black eyes, a particularly pleasing voice and ambition. Magdalena May wants to be an artist. Not the sort of an artist who sits around in the front room painting on china, which then breaks in the kiln, but the sort of an artist who exhibits in large salons.

"You must study," said the teacher to whom she confided this ambition.

That was a good deal as though some one should say to me that I ought to make a new watch. Magdalena May's father is a whitewasher. Her mother was one of the best laundresses in our town until rheumatism twisted her knuckles. The family bankroll was not stretchable to the desired point. The girl might have been sent to an art teacher in the village for a term or two, but that would be all. Evidently her future was up to Magdalena May.

So she flew at it. She began to peddle hot rolls, cakes, cookies and home-made bread to the neighbors. They were the best I ever tasted. She carried them in a basket first. Then she got a pony cart and a dun-colored urchin in gilt buttons. Now she has an establishment, all plate glass and French coloring, and not one in a thousand of her customers knows that Magdalena May is just a young colored woman who wants to paint.

Her letters from Paris are interesting. Her teachers say she has a talent, at least. It is up to Magdalena May to work that talent into genius. I'm betting on Mademoiselle May.

SOCIETY

SOCIETY VAUDEVILLE PROVES SUCCESS.

Characterized as an unusually clever program, as well as a delightful social affair, the Society Vaudeville presented by the Council of Jewish Women under the direction of Miss Alzada Knickerbocker at the Kemp hotel Thursday evening proved one of the most enjoyable benefits given this season.

From the opening numbers the Overture by Loew's orchestra, and Prologue featuring Miss Pauline Brody of New York City, the talented sister of Mrs. Harry Schack, to the concluding number, a Song Jazz act by Miss Blumberg, the program was unusually entertaining and much talent was displayed.

Six small pupils of Miss Knickerbocker, Marion Proctor, Joline Woods, Harold Simmons, ——— Sanford, Bon Hardy Chambers and Deana Jean Greenberg, in costume, assisted Mrs. H. Goldstucker, in pantomime while she rendered "Old-Fashioned Melodies" in an old-fashioned costume. This was one of the prettiest numbers of the bill. Billy Mack and "Happy" Thomas presented a minstrel act, "The Black Spot," which was heartily applauded.

A short sketch in which Mrs. Charles Greenberg, Miss Pauline Brody, Miss Margie Schuster, Miss Elsie Cohen, Miss Irene Blumberg, Mrs. Harry Schack, Miss Lillian Ginsberg and Eugene Liepold were included in the caste, was a feature of the program, and all of the parts were well taken.

Mesdames Sam Kruger, M. Shain, Harry Schack and Charles Greenberg were hostesses for the occasion, and following the vaudeville, several hours were spent in dancing.

Music for the dancing, and accompaniments for the Vandeville was furnished by Loew's orchestra.

A nice sum was realized for the benefit of Temple Israel.

Miss Pauline Taylor, 717 Huff avenue, was hostess Wednesday afternoon to a delightful party for the little girls of her Sunday school class of the First Presbyterian church.

The house was prettily decorated in the valentine colors and motifs for the occasion and the afternoon pleasantly spent in playing games and contests.

At a late hour, dainty refreshments consisting of Eskimo pies, hot chocolate, cake and salted almonds were served to Misses Charlotte Robertson, Maxine Martin, Thelma Sfehlik, Margaret Kendall and Maude Naylor.

MRS. WHITE HOSTESS TO LOTUS CLUB.

Mrs. Felix White was hostess to the weekly meeting of the Lotus Bridge club at her home Wednesday afternoon when three tables of players enjoyed the games.

The house was prettily decorated in ferns and cut flowers for the occasion and the high score prize, a novelty vanity was won by Mrs. J. L. Nabb, who very graciously presented it to Mrs. Claud Williams. Mrs. Weinburg won the high guest prize, a dainty hand-made handkerchief.

At the close of the games, a salad plate was served to: Mesdames F. N. McClure, Otis Geers, C. C. Glover, Claud Williams, Bert Adrain, L. M. Clopton, W. F. Florain, J. L. Nabb, L. E. Stewart and Howard Knowles.

COMUS CLUB PLANS TWO DANCES.

Members of the younger society set are looking forward with pleasure to two delightful dances to be given this month by the Comus club. The first, an informal hop at the Kemp hotel Friday evening.

Tuesday evening, February 21, the club will entertain with one of the prettiest appointed balls of the social season, a George and Martha Washington dance.

A patriotic color scheme will be carried out in the decorations and the grand march which will be led by Mr. and Mrs. Jouette Bonner will begin promptly at 8:45 o'clock.

The affair will be given at the Kemp and music will be furnished by the Johnny Youngberg orchestra of Kansas City.

Guest cards may be secured by any club member upon application to either of the officers.

MRS. THORNBURGH HOSTESS TO SMART SET.

Complimenting Mrs. George B. Fuller, one of the club's most popular members who will leave soon for Houston to make her home, a delightful meeting was held by the Smart Set Bridge club at the home of Mrs. F. E. Thornburgh Thursday when the hostess entertained with a beautifully appointed 7 o'clock six-course luncheon and shower for the honoree.

The table was attractively decorated for the affair with a center piece consisting of a heart shaped basket filled with flowers from which streamers of red ribbon were strung to the chandelier and to the plates of each guest. The unique method of presenting the gifts was carried out by each guest pulling the ribbon after the luncheon, which raised a cover concealing a basket filled with dainty beautiful gifts. Mrs. Fuller's ribbon pulling the basket to her. The centerpiece was surrounded by pretty small baskets containing salted nuts.

The valentine suggestion was carried out in all the decorations and the lights subdued with the red shades cast a glow over the entire scene which was very effective.

On receipt of the many pretty gifts Mrs. Fuller expressed her sincere thanks to her club friends in her usual impressive manner.

Covers were laid for Mesdames Fuller, Carl Eckman, Rufus Kelley, Nat L. Inge, L. W. Whitham, L. W. Fritz and J. M. Sammons.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent in the usual games of bridge in which the high score favor, a cut glass creamer and sugar bowl was presented to Mrs. Inge.

Eskimo pies were served during the games.

MISS DOUGLAS TO SPEAK TO CLUB.

Miss Ruth Douglas, of C. J. A. Denton, who lectured at the high school Thursday, will lecture to the Girl's club in the auditorium this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The club extends an invitation to the public to hear Miss Douglas. Her subject will be "Opportunities and Professions Open to Young Women."

Fashions for Americans

The suit shown in the sketch is offered as a suggestion to the woman who is planning her late spring or early summer wardrobe, and who has a fondness for the suit of sports silk, linen or flannel. Except for southern resort wear, the first spring suit purchased by the average woman will be a more practical one of tricotine, cheviot or other wool fabric. The model shown would be very smart made either of a heavy sports silk or of flannel in white or color, or it would be good made of a heavy linen. The skirt is plain, and the coat, a slip-over, is slashed at either side and finished with embroidery in contrasting color, done on the upper part of the coat only.

There is every indication at the present time that the most popular type of suit for spring, that is for general wear, will be the well tailored model of tweed or cheviot. These suits are shown in innumerable colors and color blendings, and the fabrics unquestionably give good service. The two-piece affair, that is coat and skirt, is much featured, and many that combine a sleeveless, low-necked, straight line, loosely belted dress with a smartly tailored coat of the same fabric are also shown. A tailored silk or cotton blouse or a sleeved guimpe may be worn with the dress, and a very practical outfit for either street or sports wear is the result of the combination.

Suit manufacturers and designers have had a troublous time of it for many reasons. The one-piece dress long ago pushed the tailored suit out of first place for general wear, and no matter what they may do in the way of offering novelties and widely diversified lines, suit makers have not yet been able to regain for their products first place in milady's fancy. The sports or strictly tailored tweeds and cheviots and the clever little southern resort or warm weather models, such as the one sketched, are more nearly rivals of the one-piece dress than any that have been shown for some time.

Distinctly Smart Is This Little Suit of Heavy Silk Crepe, Flannel, or Linen.

Superwoman Admits Marriage With Boy Spouse Is Failure

Mrs. Mrs Robert Dickerman

(By International News Service)

BOSTON, Feb. 18.—Because she is a superwoman, Mrs. Eugenie Young Dickerman, forty-seven, says her shattered romance, with her 28-year-old husband, Robert Eliot Dickerman, was bound to fail.

"I am a superwoman And that is not my fortune, but my misfortune," she lamented today. "A superwoman cannot hope to hold the man she loves if he is her mental inferior."

The "boy husband" as Dickerman is known here, and his middle-aged bride separated shortly after their marriage July 4, 1919. Mrs. Dickerman is now suing her mother-in-law for $100,000 damages for alleged alienation of the "boy husband's" affections.

The history of her wrecked romance is being bared by letters read in open court.

Letters Bare Romance.

In one letter, written to her mother-in-law after young Dickerman had deserted their lovenest, the "superwoman," writes:

"We superwomen apparently are never mated with supermen. I crawl on my hands and knees to you both. Robert says I am too old, that you cannot accept me. However, the cat is out of the bag now, and I have no regrets.

"Tell him I love him and want him. And I cry out: 'My God, my God, why hast thou deserted me?'"

Robert Dickerman and his wife's son were "buddies," overseas. The two young men, it is said, were inseparable until Robert met his buddy's middle-aged mother in Paris, where she was a Red Cross worker. The son is reported to have objected to the marriage, and he and his young stepfather have not spoken to each other since, according to gossip.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Peggy Shaw is a rather new name in movieland and it is quite possible that she may be only eighteen as her press agent states. She is shown here with what is supposed to be her last doll which was given to her on her eighteenth birthday recently, which day also marked the completion of her first big picture. Her mother presented her with this huge walking and talking doll and told her it would be the last toy she would receive from her family. Dolls of all kinds have always been Peggy's hobby and there must be a lot of little girls who wish their hobby for dolls would bring them one like this.

Miss Shaw is now a full-fledged leading woman, her newest picture being "A Stage Romance" in which she supports William Farnum. Previous to her screen appearance she was with the Ziegfeld Follies. How quaint her sisters in the chorus must have thought her when they discovered her penchant for dolls.

RUSSELL RETURNS TO COAST.

William Russell has completed the longest vacation he has had in five years, and has returned to Hollywood with a manuscript upon which he will start work at once.

Russell came east with other Fox stars before Christmas intending to return with them. The east looked good to him, however, after three years' absence, and he remained more than a month.

UNIQUE THEATER PARTY.

Stars who broke into the films through beauty contests were entertained at a theater party in Los Angeles recently by Majel Coleman in compliment to Hope Hampton, who is starring in "Star Dust." Like Miss Hampton, the attractive Majel wended her way into screenland through a newspaper popularity contest. Gertrude Olmstead and Mary Philbin of Universal, came the same route, as did Violet Sheldon, who won a similar competition conducted by Thomas H. Ince.

WEST COAST GOSSIP.

Charles Ray is doing more studying than acting at present. He is giving an intensive study to the subject of his first picture to be made for United Artists, the Fairbanks, Pickford, Chaplin and Griffith combination, which he has just joined. He has one more picture to make for First National, however.

While on location, making scenes for a picture in northern California, Mack Sennett, the comedy producer, is said to have struck a vein of gold which promises to bring in a fortune. Sennett is given credit by many for already being the luckiest man in the motion picture field.

A Wife or a Profession?

BY CAROLYN BEECHER

CHAPTER II.

Howard Blake had brains, personality and seemingly a very strong will. Everything that would go for the making of a successful surgeon—his one dream. Before the wedding silver had come to its first polishing, however, he found himself combating, inhibiting, the persistent thought that perhaps he and Annette had made a mistake—oh, not in marrying, but in marrying so soon, in not waiting until he was established in his profession. He wondered if Annette too were not entertaining the same poisonous suspicion. For it was poisonous.

Annette was lonely and took no pains to hide it. Howard knew she was, but thought it her own fault, at least in part. He had tried to impress it upon her that there was no royal road to success in his profession, no short cuts, no chance for fame and financial returns over-night. He would have to move slowly toward his goal. But so that it was surely, he would be content were it not that Annette was dissatisfied. He was not quite ready to say her dissatisfaction was with him, but—it was there. It had to be reckoned with. He urged her to amuse herself, to interest herself in her music, in books and people. To her disgust he had even hinted that she might do the housework. It would keep her occupied.

We hear and read much of the small town girl or boy coming to New York and of their struggle with poverty, society or other and various things. But we seldom read or hear of the New York girl or boy after they are plucked up by the roots and transplanted in the middle west, the small town of east, north or south. The town the inhabitants of which seem to belong to a different world, and who dress and act in a strange manner unknown to one who has lived all her life in the metropolis.

Annette had a lovely trousseau and naturally she wanted to show it.

"I never expect to be married again," she had said when Howard had pleaded for a quiet wedding. And he had resigned himself to the inevitable. So they had a fashionable church wedding, a reception at the house and the regulation gifts displayed to their best advantage.

Her father had given her a check for three thousand dollars, with more than a hint that she could expect no more. She had married the man of her choice and it was his duty to take care of her. Which, by the way, is the feeling of most fathers even if unexpressed.

"Tuck it into the bank for a rainy day," he had said.

"We aren't going to have any rainy days, are we Howard?" she returned, with a loving glance at her bridegroom.

"Not if I can help it," had been his reply, earnestly given.

It had been a wonderful June day when they arrived at Clarkstown where they were to make their home.

"What more wonderful than a day in June with a June bride?" Howard asked smiling. But there was a hint of anxiety in his voice, an almost spoken wish that she would try to be pleased.

Annette scarcely heard what he was saying. She was looking with ill concealed digust at the rows of small houses, all just alike, at the unkempt plots of grass in front of the houses with gates swinging drunkenly on their hinges; and at the noisy, dirty children playing in the street.

"This part of the town, dear, is pretty bad. But the factory hands all live down here. Wait until you see where we are going to live. I am sure you will love it. I can recall the house perfectly from uncle's description, although I haven't seen it since I was a child."

Annette took refuge in silence. But a sudden turn brought them to a wide street shaded with low-branching elms, a street of clean looking houses with well kept lawns. The trees met over head and shielded them from the sun, which already gave promise of stifling days to come.

Annette gave a long sigh of relief and cudded a bit closer to Howard on the broad seat of the depot wagon which was conveying them to their future home.

"Not so bad, eh?" Howard questioned, putting an affectionate hand over hers as it lay idly in her lap.

"No—this is rather pretty."

Just then they drew up before a cottage set far back in a yard. There was no driveway, but a pebbled walk led up to the front door. The house evidently had been untenanted for some time and, until Howard Blake had told his uncle to rent it for him, neglected. The yard showed an attempt to make it more attractive, but the grass was mostly weedy stubble and the house and fences sadly needed paint. But the front porch was screened with glorious climbing roses and some gay bushes flaunted themselves beside the walk in a bold way as if to say: "Look at me! I am blooming to welcome you."

But Annette saw little of beauty. She was too busy looking at the weedy grass, the unpainted house.

"Oh, I do hope the inside won't be as unattractive as the outside!" she almost walled. "If it is I shall go mad!"

"I'm sure it won't be, and we'll paint the house and fences as soon as possible. Aren't the roses glorious?" Howard answered as he walked beside her up the path. "Welcome home, my darling. May you be very happy here with me," he added seriously. He had caught a glimpse of pouting lips.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES

Mother—Clarence, when I gave you and Edgar each an orange you both promised not to eat them until after dinner. Is it possible you have deceived me?

Clarence—No, mamma; I ate Edgar's and he ate mine.

"Now, children," said the Sunday school superintendent, "I want you to be perfectly still—so still that you can hear a pin drop."

For a moment silence reigned supreme, then a small urchin exclaimed, "Let 'er drop, mister."

THIN, FLAT HAIR GROWS LONG, THICK AND ABUNDANT

"Danderine" costs only 35 cents a bottle. One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair, and, in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy and luxuriant.—Adv.

Dan Duffy Is Got A Idea the University Five Eats Raw Meat

But Nick Gives Him the Inside Stuff on His Hotel Bill and Proves the Groggy Gaines Will Win Tonight; and the Meat and Hashed Browns Is Then on Dan.

BY "NICK" CARTER

'Long about four o'clock, me not having much to do on account they is a famine in news, I wanders into Dan Duffey's food joint down by the railroad station thinking it being close to pay day maybe I can stand Dan off for the crullers and Java, and so anyways I goes in and hails Dan, and when he sees me he likes to have a fit laffing, and so I says:

"Has you lost your vacuum tank?" me meaning that thing which is hitched to his shoulders by his neck, and he wipes the tears out of his eyes and tells me to order anything I want on the house because he ain't the kind of a guy what will refuse to set 'em up for a bird which is not got long to live, and—

"What d'ya mean ain't got long to live?" I asks, quick ordering a tenderloin steak with hashed browns and asparagus tips before he can change his mind about the eats being tin roof and so he says:

"Well, ain't you and the rest of them Gaines fellers going to play the University club at the Legion hall Friday night? Would youse prefer to have me send flowers to your missus or I should stand part of your funeral expense?"

Which I suppose this Dan Duffey thinks he is getting away with some smart stuff but right away I shows him where to head in at:

"It ill be-Hoovers the guest to insult his host, Dan Duffy," says I, sigh-toning him good and proper, "else wasn't I eating at your expense I would tell you what you are, which is a low-down shanty Irishman what is afraid to play in this City Basketball league for fear he would have to mix it some night with the Texhomas. Gimme a cup o' coffee, you Slim Feiner, before I loses my temper!"

"Can you beat a guy like that? Him knocking the Gaines quintet what is easily the fastest basketball team in this section only them is had perhaps a little hard luck what with me being sick with the flu when they beat the Knights of Columbus else they would of beat 'em worse, and anyways, I ain't afraid to play against Harry and Bill Viner, Tate, Harper, and Penrod and I quick tells Dan Duffey so.

"Them Viner boys ain't going to rough it with me." I tells Dan, "which the same they would be fools to do me stopping at their hotel and with a bill which is already more than I can handle and if they should get me good and sore I might walk out on 'em some night and leave 'em holding my set of Harvard Classics for payment which the same Harvard Classics I am still paying for myself."

And then Dan Duffey switches the talk to discussion of the other game Friday night which is between them North Methodists and the Legioners as near as I can remember and after we has agreed that it should be a swell game I gets up and heads for the door, and Dan Duffey says:

"Hey, here's your check," and I says,

"What check?" and he says.

"Tenderloin steak, hashed browns and asparagus tips and Java, one dollar and fifty-five cents," says he.

"It's on the house," says I.

"It's not," says he, "I have your word for it you'll be alive Saturday morning."

"Aw, what the?" says I, and slams the door from the outside.

And whilst I'm going up the street congratulating myself on getting a free meal out of that old skinflint which is a good friend of mine, I also ain't looking forward with no pleasure to that basketball game with them University clubbers.

The attention of those we dislike may be even worse than the neglect of our friends.

POURING IT ON 'EM

Yesterday's issue of the Sporting News contains an editorial on recent "cover-up" deals for the consummation of which Judge Landis slapped fines on Fort Worth, Houston and other minor and major league clubs. The editorial expresses the opinion of a writer who devotes his entire time to the study of baseball and who has no working interest in any other line of athletics. Here it is:

"BETRAYAL BY FRIENDS."

"What gets us is that leagues which subscribe to the draft as a principle and are willing and presumably glad to submit to its practical operations for the benefit there may be through having a player selected, seek to dodge that draft when it is put into actual operation.

"Here Commissioner Landis in the exercise of his duties fines a club of the Class A Texas league and a club of the Class B South Atlantic league for covering up players in attempts to evade the draft of those players. And those are two leagues presumably enthusiastically for the draft, willing to fight for it perhaps, if there should come a row over the issue that has been so much discussed of late.

"Surely when club magnates who are for the draft attempt to evade we have a right to raise a question concerning how much there was of "principle" in the first place actuating them in voting for the draft. And we are inclined to have more respect for open enemies of the draft than we have for those who profess to be its friends, yet betray the principle when put to the test.

"The punishment inflicted by Commissioner Landis is quite severe, but it is deserved. He should have added to the fines a lecture on the heinousness of the crime of betraying the draft in the house of its friends.

"We have no sympathy in this case for Paul LaGrave of Fort Worth nor for Felix Hayman of Charlotte; anyway LaGrave retains Pate, even if it does cost him $500, and Hayman gets quite a chunk of Boston money for Lloyd Smith after his $750 fine is taken out. But for Nate Rosenberg, who must assume the fine of $750 assessed against Joulfs, and for Roger Bresnahan, who is stung for $500 for assisting in covering up Pate, we have a certain amount of sympathy, though they are parties to the crime. It's tough to thus be mulcted for being a good fellow to a brother club owner. And it doesn't salve the sting any to know that for years and years everybody has been pulling the old gag and getting away with it.

"For LaGrave of Fort Worth, however, it just comes to mind, there is a certain consolation—hasn't Houston been fined for its cover up deal in the Stellbauer case? Will the honorable and upright Judge Crooker now refrain from calling the Fort Worth kettle black?"

The photographer naturally expects his patrons to take him seriously when he asks them to look pleasant.

POST SEASON CAGE TOURNEY BEING PLANNED

Losers in Bitterly-Fought League Games Seek Revenge; High School Wants Another Crack at Clara.

Although few of the players themselves have as yet been consulted on the matter, tentative plans have been made by the executive committee of the City Basketball league for a two-day, post-season "grudge tournament," in the course of which the Knights of Columbus will again face the Gaines five; the University club and the American Legion teams will battle; the Methodists will seek revenge on the Elks, and the local high school will once more face the speedy quintet of Clara high.

The games will, of course, have no bearing on the relative merits of the teams involved insofar as the league's season is concerned—but they will be staged simply to give the losers a second crack at teams that nosed 'em out in hard-fought earlier battles.

The American Legion has agreed to turn the hall over to the teams seeking revenge and glory, and the gate receipts will go toward paying for team uniforms. As the plan now stands, it is hoped to hold these red-hot battles on Friday and Saturday nights, March 3 and 4, with two games being played each night.

Some idea of how eager the losers are to get another crack at the winners may be gathered from the scores made in the earlier games, as follows:

Gaines 16; Knights of Columbus 10.
University club 24; Legion 20.
Elks 31; Methodists 27.
Clara Hi 32; Wichita Falls Hi 23.

Practically all of these games were decided in the closing minutes of play, and the losers all seem to have the same hunch; that in a second game they'd come out on top. All right, sergeant, throw 'em all in the same room, lock the door and suspend the rule on personal fouls. Holy Mexican plate lunch, what a battle!

HEILMANN AND LEONARD JOIN HOLDOUT RANKS

By Associated Press.

DETROIT, Feb. 16.—Harry Heilman, outfielder and leading batter of the American league, and Hubert "Hub" Leonard, pitcher, have refused to sign contracts calling for $10,000 and $9,000 respectively and the Detroit club declined to meet their request for $15,000 each for the coming season, Frank J. Navin, president of the Tigers, announced tonight.

Heilman retained his contract which called for an advance of $2,500 over the salary he received last year, according to President Navin, but wrote a letter asking for the additional $5,000. Leonard, he said, returned his contract in which the figures were the same as last year.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX GRAB TEXAS-BOUND RATTLER AND BRUIN SQUAD HEADS WEST

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—"Out of seventh place and into the first division" was the slogan of the Cubs and the White Sox as advance guards of the 1922 teams entrained today for Spring training quarters. The Cubs will train at Catalina Island, California, which is owned by William Wrigley, chief stockholder of the club, and the Sox will do their preparing at Seguin, Texas.

Pitchers and catchers of the Cubs were in the party which got away today. Outfielders and infielders will leave a week hence. The pitchers and catchers of the White Sox hit the trail for Hot Springs, where they will boil out for a week before joining the rest of the squad at Seguin.

After mid-season lats year Chicago ball fans were forced to live mostly on hopes of future seasons, for it was evident that neither the Sox nor the Bruins had much chance of cutting a swath in the 1921 pennant gambol. These expectations came true when both teams finished in seventh place in their respective leagues.

Nineteen twenty-two, however, is something else again and hope again flares in the breasts of loyal Chicago fans—than whom there are few more loyal.

Neither team is claiming a pennant as yet, although the moguls will be sorely disappointed if they fail to land in the first four. The White Sox are still very much in the experimental stage after the disaster that wrecked the team at the close of the 1920 season, and if they finish even a notch better than they did last year most of their adherents will be satisfied.

"I am not counting on anything or making any predictions for this year," said Owner Charles A. Comiskey, "but I will have a pennant winning team in 1923. Our youngsters are coming along, and if we have any luck in picking up new material the Sox will again be champions in the season after this."

Indications are that the line-up of the Alabaster Hose will be about the same as it was last year. The chief hope of Manager Kid Gleason is that he will bet a better brand of pitching this year than he did during the 1921 season.

Ray Schalk, as usual, will do the bulk of the catching, probably with George Lees and 'Yam' Yaryan as his aids. Earl Sheely will continue to guard first base, and the veteran Eddie Collins, still the kingpin of keystone performers, will be again the mainspring of the infield. Ernie Johnson will remain at shortstop unless some youthful phenom flashes across the training camp horizon, and Eddie Mulligan probably will stick to the hot corner, although a youngster who can hit would not have much trouble in relegating Mulligan to the bench. In the outfield Harry Hooper will be in right field unless he breaks both his legs or goes blind. Bib Falk, the lanky Texas collegian, probably will be the regular left fielder. Falk showed lots of promise last season and should improve. The centrefield job probably will be cared for jointly by Amos Strunk, still a nimble fly chaser and a .300 hitter; and Johnny Mostil, a youngster who banged the avocado for better than .300 in his first year up. There will be a bunch of infield and outfield recruits on hand, and perhaps a youngster may rise up and dislodge some of the veterans.

The pitching department will be headed by Red Faber, the able right-hander who turned in twenty-six victories for a seventh place club last year. Faber has had an operation to strengthen a weakened knee and thinks he will be good for thirty games this year. Dick Kerr, the vest-pocket lefthander, will be the other half of the staff. Kerr was a little wabbly at times last year but should be back in his stride this season.

Of the recruits, youngsters, prospects and hopes that will toil for a place on the hurling corps "Lefty" Russell, who was brought in from Sioux City near the close of the 1921 season, looks like a live one. "Shovel" Hodge, the altitudinous right-hander, has shone brilliantly at times, and Gleason believes he is due to steady down and be a regular pitcher. Wilkinson, Weinecke, Tesar, Kiefer, McWeeny, McWhorter, Robertson and a few others are the boys whose names are written on the "hope" side of the ledger.

URGES LABOR HERE BE GIVEN PREFERENCE

Attitude of General Contractors on Irrigation Labor Indicated in Letter to Sub-Contractors.

Preference to home labor on the irrigation project, wages and other conditions being equal between them and labor outside the district, is urged on the sub-contractors of the irrigation project regardless of lack of contract specifications to this end in a letter addressed to contractors by the W. E. Callahan Construction company, by E. S. Heyser, vice president.

Mr. Heyser points out that the people of Wichita Falls are at heavy expense for the construction of the project, and that there are a number of families here and elsewhere whose bread winners need the work. He urges that sub-contractors bring in only labor for positions demanding particular skill in some specialty ard to look after stock and equipment in transit.

Names of families whose heads need work can be obtained from the Salvation Army and from the Municipal Welfare board, the letter says.

Agitators will not be considered, nor will any agency or committee purported to represent laborers be recognized, the letter declares. The text of the letter follows:

"We have been requested by the directors of the Wichita County Water Improvement District No. 1 to give preference to the employment of home labor and we are in turn making this request of you.

"You, of course, realize that the citizens of Wichita Falls are being heavily taxed to pay for this improvement work, which has made your work and ours possible, and for your further information there is in Wichita Falls at this time a large number of unemployed men, with families, who are in dire need of work. The Welfare Council and Salvation Army have a list of these destitute families which they will gladly furnish to us upon request, and I sincerely hope that all of the subcontractors on this work will not import any labor other than that requiring particular skill or to take care of stock in moving to the work.

"That you may better understand the seriousness of this situation, it might be well for you to know that the Salvation Army is supplying bread to a large number of families in this city and that that is practically all these families have to eat.

"We appreciate the fact that there is nothing in your contract with us that makes it obligatory upon you to work home people, but we believe that, when the foregoing facts are presented to you that you will recognize the justice of employing home people. A great many of these men have been awaiting the beginning of this work with the expectation of having employment furnished to them and it will be a sore disappointment to them if same is not forthcoming.

"We are not recognizing any agitators, nor any agency or committee purporting to have any rights in the premises, and the rate of pay that you will be required to pay these men will not be in excess of what you would have to pay to any men from the outside.

"In order that our records may be complete, we will thank you to acknowledge receipt of this letter and advise us whether you can co-operate with us to the end of furnishing employment to home people.

Shoot to Kill, Cops Instructions

"Shoot to kill."

Such was the terrible and awe-inspiring order issued by Police Chief Morgan yesterday to all his men—and old officers on the force who would rather make an arrest than take a life shuddered.

However, these ownerless, unlicensed dogs have simply got to step running around. It's tough on the dogs, for lots of 'em are out of employment just now, as it were; many a perfectly friendly canine, with a tail just naturally designed to wag his enduring affection for someone, can't find a boss—can't find one to save his life, and therefore his life may be declared forfeit at any moment.

Last Saturday 56 dogs were killed at the city pound, while more than 60 are now in the pound with tomorrow set by the court as the date on which they must die. They're in the death cell, the poor homeless, tail-wagging little rogues that might be good canine citizens if each only had a master and a license tag.

Shoot to kill; that's the order. There are dogs suffering from rabies running wild, the police say, and the innocent dogs must suffer with the guilty. This is one of those times in the dog world when a feller needs a friend. Gosh, but it must be tough to be a friendly, ragged, dirty, brown-eyed, tail-wagging, little gutter-snipe puppy without a master.

Calomel Good But Treacherous

Next Dose May Salivate, Shock Liver or Attack Your Bones.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's "Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate. —Adv.

Hi Girls Club Hears Lecture On Opportunity

Speaking on the subject "Opportunities and profession open to young women," Miss Ruth Douglas spoke to a large representation of the Girls' club at the high school and others in an interesting and instructive lecture delivered at the high school auditorium Thursday afternoon. Miss Douglas also spoke to a large body of students at the high school during chapel hour Thursday morning.

As director of the department of commercial arts at C. I. A. Denton, Miss Douglas has proved a well informed and inspiring advisor along this line of work, and is thoroughly conversant with conditions which make for the success of young women in the business world.

She was brought here by the educational department of the Y. W. C. A. and will speak again Friday afternoon at 3:30 to the Girls' club at the high school, according to an announcement Thursday.

PIN IS REMOVED FROM GIRL'S LUNG

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16.—Little Louise Hoffenstein, who was brought from Wichita, Kan., to have a pin removed from her left lung, will return home in a few days a happy girl. At Jefferson hospital today the skill of a physician and the efficiency of one of the latest devices of science removed the pin which was traveling towards the 10-year-old girl's heart.

Five operations in the west had been unsuccessful.

The operation today lasted two minutes and no anaesthetic was used. A bronschoscope was inserted through the mouth and a pair of forceps lowered through the tube brought out the pin. The lung was not injured, doctors said.

The child swallowed the pin on December 20.

JUDGE DEFERS DECISION ON GRAND JURY

Hears Attorney's Motion to Quash Indictments on Account of Alleged Irregularities Thursday.

Sustaining of Motion by District Judge or on Appeal Would Make Necessary Rebilling 98 Cases.

The grand jury of the 30th district court which returned 98 indictments after being in session one month and which made a sensational written report concerning law enforcement conditions in the county was not legally convened and its findings are therefore void according to a motion filed by attorneys Thursday in the case of Hunter Russell, one of the men indicted.

The motion to quash the indictment was presented before Judge Ed Napier, special judge of the 30th district court by Ralph Mathis, local attorney representing Russell when the case was called for trial Thursday morning. After some testimony had been introduced by agreement of state and defense attorneys Judge Napier postponed further hearing on the motion until Saturday morning, continuing the trial. A jury late Thursday afternoon found Hunter guilty of forgery and sentenced him to two years in the penitentiary. He was alleged to have forged the name of Henry Hund, local filling station proprietor, to a check for $35.

Saturday morning state attorneys will reply to the motion of the defendant to quash. According to the consensus of legal opinion in the event the motion is sustained by Judge Napier Saturday or later on appeal by a higher court, not only will the indictment and conviction of Russell be reversed but the same result will follow in the case of all indictments returned. Contrary to some reports the quashing of the indictments would not serve to release all those under indictment. Attorneys said Thursday that a statutory provision required the judge quashing the indictment to hold the accused under bond pending the action of another grand jury.

It is assumed that in the event the motion was upheld the presiding judge would at once call another session of the grand jury holding all those indicted at the previous session under bond pending its action in all cases.

Several irregularities are alleged in the impaneling of the grand jury. It is first contended that Judge N. F. Weldon failed to appoint a jury commission during the June term of the 30th district court to select a grand jury for the following or December term. After having failed to do this it is contended that he failed to carry out the statutory requirements in such cases by ordering the sheriff to summon between 12 to 16 men to serve on the grand jury on the opening day of the December term. Instead of doing this it is alleged that he appointed a jury commission at that time naming his appointees three men living in this city when the statute requires them to be from different sections of the county.

It was also alleged that he did not administer the oath to the district clerk before delivering the grand jury list to him ater the jury commission had been completed. It is alleged that he in fact did not deliver the list to the district clerk but that it was done by a member of the jury commission.

District Clerk Kerr testified Thursday morning he did not remember that he was sworn before receiving the jury list. He also said that he thought Colonel Jones, a member of the commission, gave him the list and not Judge Weldon. The latter testified that he did administer the usual oath to the district clerk. Mr. Jones said that he did not remember whether it was Judge Weldon [illegible] Kerr to whom he turned over the list.

M. L. Tittle, county tax collector, testified that 30 per cent of the voters live outside of this city. This testimony was in support of the contention that at least one member of the jury commission which consists of three members should have lived outside this city.

THOUSANDS STRUGGLE TO WITNESS TAYLOR FUNERAL

One portion of the crowd watching removal of Taylor's body from church to hearse and view of floral offering from Mabel Normand.

A crowd estimated at 30,000 persons swarmed about the church and cemetery in Los Angeles to watch the funeral services at the burial of William Desmond Taylor, murdered movie director. British soldiers, some of whom can be seen in the left foreground of the upper photo, fired a volley at the grave. The floral offering sent by Mabel Normand, composed of pink roses and one of the largest ever seen in that city, was given the central position among the tributes.

BOTH SIDES FAVORED BY JURY VERDICT

A verdict in which both the contentions of plaintiff and defendant were in part sustained was rendered Thursday by a jury in the county court-at-law. According to the verdict, the plaintiff W. P. Honaker will receive judgment on a note for $650 against the defendant Violet Beardsley, former proprietor of the Elk hotel in this city.

The defendant was allowed $375 damages for the alleged wrong manner in which an attachment was served on her property in connection with an attempt to collect the note by the plaintiff. She was also allowed $200 for room rent.

Clerk Earns Office Limit During 1921

For the first time since the office was placed on a minimum and maximum salary basis, District Clerk A. F. Kerr Thursday turned over a check to the county treasurer representing excess fees collected by that office. The check was for $1,380.35, the amount being the excess fees for the year 1921.

The office was placed on the salary basis in 1919. Since that time until last year, the office has failed to earn the maximum salary of $2,750 allowed the clerk. The excess fees this year were due to collections of fees due in former years. After the $2,750 limit is reached, Mr. Kerr is allowed 25 per cent of the excess until a maximum fee or salary of $4,250 is reached. The office in previous years has seldom exceeded $2,000 in salary for the clerk.

RIGHT OF WAY THRU NIELSON LAND SECURED

Knotty Problem in Route of South Side Canal Solved by Agreement Land Owner; Surveys Progressing.

Right-of-way for the south side irrigation canal through the Nielson farm which lies between two pieces in the land of Herbert Griffin, to whose land the canal work had been confined before, was obtained by agreement with directors of the irrigation project early Thursday. This piece of the canal, which had been skipped by the sub-contractor at work on the canal, will be immediately put under construction, it is expected.

The route of the canal through the Nielson farm presented a rather knotty problem as, to obtain the proper elevation, it was necessary to pass between the house and the barn and other outbuildings on the land. In spite of this, the directors easily reached an agreement, the owner of the land realizing the benefit which would accrue to his holdings through the building of the project. The district will build a bridge over the canal here.

This farm will be readily recalled to anyone who has visited the diversion dam site and the scene of the work on the south side canal through the fact that the tenant on the farm charges a fee of 50 cents for all vehicles passing through the gate near his house. He has never made this charge against people connected with the irrigation district or the construction work, who have the right of passage as a result of the law which gives them the right of eminent domain, but has made it against visitors and others who have no connection with the work.

The gate is locked with a chain and padlock on account of the carelessness of people passing through in putting back the gates—an important thing in a stock country. The charge against those not connected with the project in a measure repays for the inconvenience to members of the family in opening the gates, and protects them through a larger volume of traffic than is necessary. The fact has given rise to an amusing charge against the irrigation district—that the officials exacted this fee from all visitors to the project. As a matter of fact, all access to the scene of activities, being over the ground of private owners, is through their tacit consent, save that of those connected with the project who have the right of passage under the law.

The final specifications are being made up in the local irrigation office for the second five-mile stretch of canal, which will be soon turned over to a second teaming contractor. The second ten-mile section, on which the engineers of the district are completing their field notes now, will be ready some time next week.

The engineer camp has been moved from the Griffin ranch to Holliday, while a resident engineer, Church, has been stationed at the storage dam site where operations will be under way in a short time. The party at Holliday is in charge of P. A. Welty, and under the general supervision of Captain H. F. McFarland, assistant chief engineer and in charge of all field work.

The stationmaster, hearing a crash on the platform, rushed out of his room just in time to see the express disappearing round the curve and a dishevelled young man sprawling out perfectly flat among a contusion of overturned milk cans and the scattered contents of his travelling bag. "Was he trying to catch a train?" the stationmaster asked of a small boy who stood by, admiring the scene.

"He did catch it," said the boy happily, "but it got away again."

I plucked an autumn leaf in the park and took it to the studio. Showing it to the man with the wonderful relatives, I said: "How's that for an imitation leaf made out of a very fine grade of leather?" "Le's see 't?" asked the man with the wonderful relatives. Passing his fingers over the tinted surface, he remarked: "My uncle used to make imitation leaves." "I suppose," I queried, "that they were much better than this one?" He looked at me in pity, and sneeringly said: "I'll say they was!"

A passenger in a first class carriage in England insisted on smoking. An angry man protested and when about to appeal to the guard the passenger got ahead of him with the remark: "Guard, I think you will find that this man is traveling with a third-class ticket."

It proved to be true and the sputtering one was put out. A spectator of the incident asked the passenger how he knew the man had a third-class ticket.

"Well," he explained, "it was sticking out of his pocket, and I noticed that it was the same color as mine.

The fierce-looking visitor from Belgium entered a London toy shop and gazed frigidly at the assistant, who hurried to her side.

"Er—um," would you mind saying that again?"

"Ze naked Edward," persisted the customer. "You have them in ze window."

"Great Bath buns," gasped the assistant. "We'll have the police here in a minute! Come outside and show me."

Once outside she pointed excitedly. "Zere you have him—what you call ze Teddy bare," she said.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—There was a little more activity in the raw sugar market and prices were firmer for Cubas, spot prices being established on the basis of 2 1-8c cost and freight equal to 3.73 for centrifugal while Porto Ricos were unchanged at 3.54 for centrifugal. There were sales late last night of 40,000 bags of Cubas to Canadian and outport refiners at 2 3-32c cost and freight, and 14,000 bags of Porto Ricos to a local refiner at 3.54 for centrifugal and today 91,000 bags of Cubas sold to a local refiner, believed to be against export business of refined at 2 1-8c cost and freight for February-March shipment equal to 3.73 for centrifugal and 6,400 bags of Porto Ricos afloat at 3.54 for centrifugal. The raw sugar futures market was fairly active and prices were firmer on covering and buying by Wall street and commission houses prompted by the strength in the spot market. Prices at the best of the day showed gains of 7 to 9 points, although there was a partial setback near the close under realizing and trade selling with final prices 4 to 6 points net higher. March closed at 2.21; May 2.40; July 2.57; September 2.70.

In refined there were no transactions in futures.

Final prices were unchanged at 5.50 for March and May 5.65 for July.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The money market again was the primary factor in the further irregular advance of stock market prices today. Commercial and industrial developments made no perceptible contribution to the forward movement.

Lively interest was displayed in the political situation. Traders evidently were of the opinion that the opposing views of the administration and congressional leaders would make for delay in the promotion of tax legislation.

Reductions of the bank of England rate from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent brought that rate to the level prevailing here and at other important federal reserve centers.

Withdrawal of $66,000,000 of deposits from local banks for treasury payment had no effect on the free offerings of call money. A 4 per cent rate ruled throughout the session in the open market and this was shaded to 3 3-4 in private loans.

Time funds were quotably unaltered at 4 3-4 to 5 per cent. A few loans for round amounts on high grade security extending into the middle of the year were reported, however, at the lower quotation.

Oils, notably Mexican petroleum, U. S. Steel, General Electric and several of the rails, including LeHigh Valley, were among the strongest stocks. Independent steels eased with motors, rubbers and some of the shippings, chemicals and sundry specialties. Sales amounted to 785,000 shares.

Exchange on London failed to reflect the lower bank rate, easing 1 3-4 cents for its recent high. Continental rails were mixed, aside from Dutch, Swedish and Norwegian bills, these showing further strength. The Montreal discount at this center was at its lowest in over two years.

Cotton

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Realizing operations on rather an extensive scale weakened the cotton market sharply today and in the late afternoon when price attained their lowest levels, the list was about $1.50 per bale under the previous night's close, with final quotations 34 to 38 points net lower and the tone barely steady. The west, Wall street, and local traders were notably free sellers throughout the day.

There was a steady opening to the market with prices 8 to 18 points lower, and further declines appeared shortly afterward because of weakness in foreign exchange and irregular opening in the stock market and offerings by spot houses. On this setback, May dropped to 17.42 at which level it met good support from New Orleans interests based on reports of an increased spot business there and rallied quietly, the whole market following with an advance that carried the May contract up to 17.68 and July 17.16, the entire list showing about 10 points rise from lowest on the forenoon.

For the balance of the day and up to the last hour the market was irregular within comparatively narrow limits. Weakness in the wheat market had much to do with the selling in cotton. A good many southern wires noting an improvement in spot conditions were received during the day but met with comparatively little response from the market owing to the disposition on the part of longs to reduce their lines. One of the wires from Dallas said the basis was higher owing to Liverpool and New England inquiry. Further reports of prospective shipments of cotton here from the south for delivery on March contract suggested that total deliveries might reach 50,000 bales providing that 40,000 bales already held here are re-tendered as anticipated. The local cotton goods market was reported to be a little better today. Exports today 40,809, making 3,622,749 so far this season. Port receipts 10,540. U. S. port stocks, 1,110,538.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 16.—Moderately wide reactions were brought about in the cotton market today through realizing sales from the long side mixed with selling to come from the middlewest from traders who were disappointed over the obstacles in the way of the passage of soldier bonus legislation. After a faint show of advancing on the first call, the market fell away but preserved a steady tone until the afternoon when it turned easy. Lowest prices of the session came on the close which was at net losses of 28 to 39 points. March closed at 16.40 and October at 15.70.

On the opening, March was 6 points up at 16.85, but other old crop months were only 1 to 2 points up and the advance tapered off completely by the time the new crops were reached, so that October's first trade was made at a loss of 5 points carrying that month off to 15.93. Better cables than due and reports from the spot department of large spot sales after hours in a way were helpful in the opening, but afterwards favorable news had little effect. Claims from Texas of a better spot demand, unfavorable weather over the belt and the reduction of the Bank of England rate to 4 1-2 per cent caused much comment but little buying.

LIVERPOOL SPOT COTTON

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 16.—Cotton spot good business; prices steady. Good middling 10.96; fully middling 10.50; middling 10.21; low middling 9.26; good ordinary 8.01; ordinary 7.26. Sales 10,000 bales, including 7,300 American. Receipts 1,000 bales, no American. Futures closed quiet and steady. March 10.00; May 10.02; July 10.02; October 9.74; December 9.62; January 9.57.

Grain

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Buyers backed away from wheat today, prices having risen to a new top record for the season. The market closed unsettled, 3-4c to 1 5-8c net lower, with May 1.39 1-2 to 1.39 3-4 and July 1.22 3-8 to 1.22 1-2. Corn finished unchanged to 1-2c net higher, oats unchanged to 1-2@5-8c down and provisions at gains varying from 15c to $1.30.

General selling characterized the wheat market during the last half of the day, whereas earlier the majority of traders were on the buying side. A substantial advance in Liverpool quotations formed the chief incentive for the upward swing with which the market here commenced and which kept up with unimpaired momentum until May had equalled the highest previous figures on the crop and July had surmounted the season record. Unfavorable weather and crop reports from the southwestern part of the domestic winter wheat region acted as a contributing bullish influence.

It became clear at this stage, however, that sentiment had undergone a decided change regarding wheat for at least the time being. Throughout the remainder of the day, the course of prices was down grade as a rule, with numerous weak holders attempting to unload and with commission houses pressing to sell.

Strength in the corn market was ascribed mainly to reports that the domestic disappearance of corn had been at a rate much beyond what the trade in general supposed. Both corn and oats touched new high price records for the season, but later were governed largely by the changes in wheat.

Provisions like grain, exceeded all recent high levels. Advances in the value of hogs were partly responsible, and so too was the monthly statement showing diminished stocks.

Export of linters were 65,055 bales, compared with 15,789.

DRY GOODS

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Gray cotton goods were more active in today's markets. Several low priced numbers of printed draperies were reduced 1¼c and 2c a yard. Bleached muslins were reported slightly firmer at Calcuttta and unchanged here. Wool goods were quiet and raw silk barely steady.

COFFEE

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The chief feature in them arket for coffee futures today was further evening up of the March interest, largely through switches to later deliveries. March was relatively steady at the start, selling up to 8.47 or two points net higher during the early trading but later reacted to 8.45, while later months eased off under scattering liquidation with September selling down to 8.62 or five points net lower. The general market opened net one point higher to four points lower, and closed net 7 points higher to 5 points lower. Sales, including exchanges were estimated at about 27,000 bags. March 8.44; May 8.52; July 8.60; September 8.62; December 8.70.

Spot coffee was reported in good demand with prices firm at 8¾ to 9 for Rio 7s and 12¼ to 12⅝ for Santos 4c.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Active short covering on the bullish census report on January, disappearance, along with the bulge in hog products carried cottonseed oil up 21 to 23 points. This advance brought out heavy selling for profits and some selling by refiners and most of the gain was wiped out before the close. Final bids were 3 to 7 points net higher. Sales 60,200 barrels. Prime crude 8.25@8.50; prime summer yellow spot 9.75; March 9.87; May 9.99; July 10.21 all bid.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE.
The State of Texas, County of Wichita.
Whereas, on the 14th day of December A. D. 1920, Harrison E. Bachman, Mary C. Bachman, W. J. Goodwin, W. F. May and Mrs. W. F. May, formerly Ruby Bachman, executed a certain Deed of Trust conveying to W. L. Robertson as trustee, and to his successor and substitute trustee the real estate hereinafter described, to secure Charles R. Daniel in the payment of the hereinafter described promissory notes and the debt therein described; said Deed of Trust being recorded in Volume No. 31, pages 269-271 of the Deed of Trust Records of Wichita County, Texas; and,
Whereas, the said W. L. Robertson after written demand upon him, on January 10th, A. D., 1922, has refused to execute and carry out the provisions contained in said Deed of Trust and the undersigned has been appointed substitute trustee in the place of said original trustee, upon the contingency and in the manner authorized by said Deed of Trust;
Whereas, by virtue of authority vested in me, as trustee, named and so appointed in the written instrument appointing me as substitute trustee and in said Deed of Trust executed and delivered on December 11th, A. D., 1920, by Harrison E. Bachman, Mary C. Bachman, W. J. Goodwin, W. F. May and Mrs. W. F. May, formerly Ruby Bachman, for better securing the payment of Five certain promissory notes described as follows: All of said notes dated December 11th, A. D., 1920; executed by Harrison E. Bachman and W. J. Goodwin, payable to the order of Charles R. Daniel, bearing 10 per cent interest from date and providing for 10 per cent on the principal and interest then due as attorneys' fees if sued upon or placed in the hands of an attorney for collection: Note No. 1 for the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) due on or before Six months after date; Note No. 2 for the sum of Six Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($6,250.00) due one year after date; Note No. 3 for the sum of Six Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($6,250.00) due two years after date; No. 4 for the sum of Six Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($6,250.00) due Three years after date; Note No. 5 for the sum of Six Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($6,250.00) due Four years after date; interest due and payable annually as it accrues, providing failure to pay either of said notes or any installment of interest thereon when due shall mature all of said notes, and in such event the owner and holder hereof may proceed to collect the same in the same manner as if the full time provided in said notes had expired.
And whereas, the said Charles R. Daniel is the holder and owner of all of said notes, and the said Harrison E. Bachman and W. J. Goodwin have made default in the payment of all interest and said Note No. 2, for the sum of Six Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($6,250.00) above described, due on December 11th, A. D., 1921 (Said Note No. 1 for the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00), due June 11th, A. D., 1921, having been extended to June 11th, A. D., 1922) and the same is now past due and unpaid, principal, interest and attorneys' fees, by reason thereof, and as provided in said Deed of Trust, the said Charles R. Daniel has declared each of said notes and all of said indebtedness immediately due and mature, and has heretofore notified the said Harrison E. Bachman and W. J. Goodwin, in writing; and whereas, each of said notes are now past due and unpaid, now aggregating principal, interest and attorneys fees, $34,655.43, and whereas, I have been requested by the said Charles R. Daniel to enforce said trust, I will offer for sale, between the legal hours thereof, to-wit: Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., at public auction to the highest bidder, on the First Tuesday in March, A. D. 1922 the same being the 7th day of March A. D., 1922 at the Court House door in the town of Wichita Falls, in Wichita county, Texas, the following described property, to-wit:
Being Fifty (50) by One Hundred (100) feet out of Lots Nos. Nine (9) and Ten (10) in Block No. One Hundred and Ninety Five (195) of the original town of Wichita Falls, Wichita county, Texas, according to the recorded map or plat thereof on record in the Deed Records of Wichita county, Texas, same being the West one-third (1-3) of said Lot No. Ten (10) and the West one-third (1-3) of the North Thirty (30) feet of said Lot No. Nine (9) in said Block; and described as follows: Beginning at the N. W. Corner of said Lot No. Ten (10); Thence East Fifty (50) feet; thence South One Hundred (100) feet; thence West Fifty (50) feet; thence North One Hundred (100) feet to the place of beginning. Same facing Fifty (50) feet on Tenth Street and One Hundred (100) feet on Indiana Avenue; together with all improvements thereon. Same being what is commonly known and called the Argonne Hotel; with all the rights, members and appurtenances thereto in anywise belonging.
Witness my hand this 23rd day of January, A. D., 1922.

MELLON VIEWS SENATE ATTACK AS GROUNDLESS

Legal Authorities Were Consulted Before Secretary of Treasury Accepted Appointment.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Basing his views on legal advice Secretary Mellon considers that he has not contravened the law prohibiting the secretary of the treasury from engaging in commerce or business, it was declared today by high administration officials in commenting on the attack on the secretary yesterday made by Senator Watson, democrat, Georgia.

The law was called to Mr. Mellon's attention, officials said, when he was considering the invitation of President Harding to join the cabinet. A number of legal authorities were consulted, it was declared, who gave it as their opinion that the mere ownership of stock in corporations did not consitute engaging, directly or indirectly, "in commerce or business."

Before accepting the treasury portfolio, officials said, "Mr. Mellon's only participation in business was up on the directorate of a number of banks and from these he resigned before entering Mr. Harding's cabinet.

Since becoming treasury secretary, Mr. Mellon, officials asserted, has not devoted a moment's time to private business.

The case of A. J. Stewart, nominated for secretary of the treasury by President Grant but whose nomination later was withdrawn, cited by Senator Watson, is regarded as of an entirely different nature as Mr. Stewart was an active merchant actually engaged in business at the time of the nomination.

Mr. Mellon was represented today as being of the opinion that under Senator Watson's interpretation of the law, none of the various secretaries of the treasury would have been eligible for the office unless they had lived on their salaries alone.

Health the Secret of Attraction

Women of today depend a good deal upon the modern modiste and a knowledge of the cosmetic art to make them attractive. Too often there exists beneath it all a suffering woman whose nervous laugh or forced smile covers a pang of agony caused by some feminine ill. To such a woman Lydia E. Pingham's Vegetable Compound will bring health and a happy relief from her suffering, that will make her far more attractive than costly gowns and cosmetics.

For nearly fifty years American women have relied upon this root and herb medicine to relieve their ailments.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—A boy 16 years old underwent a serious operation while listening to a phonograph playing "Livery Stable Blues" here yesterday. Only a local anaesthetic was used.

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 16.—The Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company announces a reduction of thirty cents in the price of Healdton crude oil, meeting the Magnolia company's price of $1 a barrel.

BRADENTOWN, Fla., Feb. 16.—Fire resulting from an explosion on the yacht Salome, owned by John Ringling, millionaire circus man, injured six persons last night and destroyed the vessel which was valued at $50,000.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—An immediate further reduction of 203 officers and 3,000 men in the American forces in Germany was announced today by the war department. There will be remaining in Germany after this reduction, a total of 169 officers and 2,217 men.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 16.—Crippled trolley and telephone service in Richmond and vicinity and similar conditions in many other parts of the state were reported here today as the result of last night's snow storm which resulted in a white covering of six inches depth.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—George Mohring, 22, and his brother Robert, 18, must attend church regularly and must get on their knees before their mother and beg forgiveness under the terms of a sentence imposed by Judge Boyer yesterday. The boys were arrested for the theft of automobile accessories.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Feb. 16.—The package of epsom salts from which Mrs. Edward Rhodes of Klaber Wash., administered fatal doses to her five children last Saturday, contained 10 per cent of an alkaloid poison, according to Herman Allen, prosecuting attorney of Louis county, following an analysis of the remainder by the state chemist.

FOREIGN.

MANAGUA, Nic., Feb. 16.—A contingent of American marines have arrived to replace the force at Campo Marte. The change is made because of the recent clashes between the marines and the Nicaragua police, in which several lives were lost.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The probability of a delay of three weeks in the opening of the Genoa economic conference was conceded in British official circles today. This was the first intimation in such circles that the French were likely to win their contention that it was impossible to start the conference on the date originally chosen, March 8.

Snappy Talks And Music Are Rotary Feature

Snappy talks by J. C. Mytinger on observations made on a recent business trip to Washington, and by Rev. Byron Hester of Electra, one of a delegation of prospective members of the Rotary club in process of organization at Electra, together with spirited singing of "Rotary Ann" and "McDonald's Farm" by the membership under the leadership of R. E. Shepherd featured the Thursday luncheon of the Rotary club. The meeting was one of the best recent meetings in point of attendance, 98 members and 10 visitors being in attendance.

Following the meeting, the board of directors of the club authorized Charles H. Reid and his committee to proceed with the building of the "Rotary Knot Hole Gang" grandstand at the Athletic park—a work through which the school boys whose behavior entitles them to the privilege, will see the Texas league games this season. A large part of the money has already been contributed by the membership and the directors felt that the rest would be forthcoming at once.

The movie world in general knew William Desmond Taylor, murdered movie director mainly as a successful director who wore his clothes well, who put pep into his work and whose personality interested most of the feminine stars in his productions. They were unaware of his mysterious past or personal affairs. Above Taylor is shown at work on one of his productions.

CHEAP MEAT FOR 'THE HUNGRY' IS HIS WAR CRY

Former Governor James E. Ferguson Has Established a Meat Market in Temple for All Consumers.

His Bosque County Ranch the Source of Supply; Hopes to Knock Out Middle Man and Packer.

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 16.—Former Governor James E. Ferguson has returned to the democratic party and is a candidate for the United States senate.

Former State Senator T. H. McGregor has returned to the democratic party but will not be a candidate for governor this year. McGregor made the race three years ago as the American party, candidate for governor and pulled 70,000 votes.

According to the political gossipers of Austin, Ferguson has established a Peoples Meat Market in the city of Temple and is offering direct competition with the agents of the big five packers. He gets his supply from his Bosque county ranch and has built up a very thriving and lucrative meat business.

He does not slaughter the meat animals or chop the meat for the consumers. His agents or employes attend to the slaughtering and the selling.

All the candidates for the senate with the exception of Clarence Ousley, are lawyers but the only candidate for the senate who is selling meat to the people is the former governor who was removed from office and disfranchised by his political adversaries.

Ferguson promises to make a statewide speaking campaign before the July primary and take the people into his confidence, running as a democrat and his friends say that his remarks will be more lurid and his performances more spectacular than his race for governor in bygone years.

There are 11 hundred thousand qualified voters in Texas this year and three hundred thousand political misfits if the statute politicians of the state have made the proper classification.

Republican leaders are going to place a state ticket in the field, name candidates for congress in the eighteen districts, a candidate for United States senator as well as candidates for all district and county offices. Regardless of conditions they are hopeful that their nominees for senator and governor will poll more than 250,000 votes on November election day.
