Former Borden Residents 'Go Home' Today

The population of Borden County will almost double today as former residents gather for a homecoming at Gail.

The celebration is in honor of Mr. and Mrs. David Dorward one of the oldest resident couples of the county.

Dorward is owner and operator of Dorward's Drug Store, the center of Borden activities.

Mrs. Dorward has been Sunday school superintendent of the Gail Methodist Church for 35 years. The couple has been married 52 years.

Today's activities are to begin with services at the Gail Methodist Church. At noon, a barbecue will be held for all attending the homecoming, followed by an afternoon program at the new high school.

At the program, Mrs. C. C. Miller of Snyder will present a historical review and District Judge E. A. Bills of Littlefield will be main speaker.

Gail, which exprienced a building boom in 1918-20, at one time had about 1,200 residents, a few more than the entire county had when the 1950 census was taken. The town's population is now about 60.

Both the Dorwards have been residents of the county since the 1890s. He moved there as a cowboy for the old Square and Compass Ranch southwest of Post, and she moved there to establish her first school.

He has operated the drug store since their marriage 52 years ago and has what is probably the oldest serially - numbered pharmacist's license still in use in the state.

Contracts Let On Last Phase Of Park Work

Two contracts for all remaining phases of the county park project were awarded by the commissioners court Friday afternoon for a total of $32,692, about $600 below the architect-engineer's estimate.

J. D. Jones Construction Co. of Big Spring was awarded the contract on all phases except electrical wiring of a baseball field. His contract is for $17,498, more than $1,500 less than the next lowest bidder.

Southern Electric Co. of Snyder was awarded contract for lighting of Towle Park's hardball field for $15,194. This had been estimated by Butler - Brasher Engineering Co., designer of the park, at $16,000.

The Jones contract includes backstops for two softball and one hardball field, bleachers, six drinking fountains, three toilets, 20 barbecue pits, 20 picnic tables, and an entrance marker estimated to cost about $2,000.

Two other contractors submitted bids on all phases except electrical. They were A. P. Kasch & Son, Big Spring, for slightly more than $20,000, and G. A. Jones of Lamesa, little more than $19,000.

Contractors bidding on only a few items except electrical were George Kubala, Snyder, one item; E. L. Fikes, Snyder; O. E. Partain, Snyder; and Pete Nachlinger, Snyder.

F&S Electric Co., Lubbock, submitted a bid on electrical work for just under $16,000.

No combination of bids could have totaled less than those accepted, according to Turner Kimmel, representing Butler - Brasher.

Truce Talks Begin After 6-Month Lapse

PANMUNJOM, Sunday, April 25 (AP)—Long suspended Korean armistice talks are re-born today—within sight and sound of 84 more Allied and 500 Communist prisoners being exchanged after months of captivity.

The full truce delegations meet in their brown straw mat hut in Panmunjom in full dress sessions at 2 p.m. (midnight Saturday, EST) for the first time since Oct. 8.

If all goes on schedule 13 more returning sick and wounded Americans and 71 South Korean soldiers already will have arrived at Freedom Village by the time the generals and admirals meet.

Resumption of the armistice talks, plus new peace talk from Moscow, touched off a mood of optimism among Allied officers that this time the negotiators would find a formula for an armistice that would halt the bloody Korean War, which enters its 34th month today.

It was an optimism that could be crushed within hours by some new iron-fisted Communist demand —and no one here discounted that possibility.

DEPENDS ON REDS

It was also possible that the Communists might reply now to the Allied proposal to continue exchanging sick and wounded as long as hostilities last.

Today's exchange brings to 149 the number of disabled Americans sent home—29 more than the Reds first agreed to exchange. It also brings the number of repatriated South Koreans to 471.

In all the Reds have repatriated 584 Allied prisoners—79 more than they said would come back.

A South Korean office repatriate declared flatly that more than 1,000 sick and wounded South Koreans still were held at Manpo in North Korea on the Yalu River border of Manchuria.

Returning American prisoners have said there were still more seriously wounded buddies left in the camps. No figures have been given.

EARLY AGREEMENT

The U. N. Command agreed originally to hand back 5,800 Communists including 700 Chinese and the remainder North Koreans at the rate of 500 per day. All of the Chinese promised then have been sent home but about 200 more were reported in South Korean hospitals willing to be repatriated.

Last Oct. 8 Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief Allied negotiator, broke off the truce talks and walked stonily from the session, saying he would not come back until the Reds came up with something more than propaganda on the truce-blocking prisoner exchange issue.

The renewed full scale talks were agreed to after a series of encouraging notes exchanged by the top Allied and Communist commanders last month, including a Communist proposal that prisoners objecting to repatriation be handed over to a neutral state pending settlement of their future. The Communists have never satisfactorily explained what would be done with prisoners who still resist return to Red rule after being handed over to a neutral.

BARBARITY TOLD

American, Turkish, South Korean and other returning prisoners continued to tell grim accounts of death marches, lack of medical treatment and insufficient food that killed off thousands.

Latest A-Bomb Test Wrecks Drone Plane

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 25 (AP)—A drone plane crashed after being caught in the furious updraft of an atomic explosion which jolted 14 awed congressmen and 2,650 maneuvering troops early today.

The shot, touched off from a 300-foot tower at 4:30 a.m., was described by observers as the most powerful of the spring series. Windows rattled in this resort town, 75 miles southeast of Yucca Flat test site. And the flash was seen in San Francisco, 600 miles away.

Among 52 aircraft, including B47 and B50 bombers, aloft over the A-bomb range was an AD2 drone. Such aircraft carry instruments to obtain scientific data. Controlled from the ground, the drone attempted to pierce the thermal envelope—the fast-rising cone from the explosion.

Trapped in the raging updraft, the plane tossed helplessly and finally crashed.

After the searing heat blasts, the troops scrambled from trenches 4,000 yards from ground zero and advanced until radioactivity stopped them. Eight volunteer observers huddled in trenches an undisclosed distance nearer the blast, the seventh of the series. There were no casualties.

Congressmen at the Atomic Energy Commission control tower 10 miles from the blast point, said the detonation was the strongest of the series. Light bulbs and window panes of outbuildings were broken.

Another observer, Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, Air Force technical expert, spoke later on the "frightful magnitude" of the weapon and told newsmen:

"The principal deterrent to another world war is and will remain the offensive strength of our constantly improving atomic weapons and our ability to deliver them with accuracy and certainty by strategic air power against Soviet military might."

"I believe we can deal successfully with the Soviets only if we are strong . . . We must not let our guard down until peaceful actions support peaceful words and on a lasting basis," he added.

Besides a spectacular flash, which rivaled last week's beauty, today's detonation was climaxed by an unusual cloud formation. As the gigantic cloud ring boiled upward, a series of dazzling white icecaps formed on it. Two of these fanned outward around the rising mushroom stem, forming a double collar effect.

Ike Response To Newest Red Peace Offer Cautious

Union Told To Represent Non-Members Free

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) today threatened a union with loss of its bargaining rights unless it stops charging non-union members for handling grievances.

The case was the first such decision handed down by the NLRB.

The board gave the Independent Metal Workers Union 10 days to stop charging employes of the Hughes Tool Co., Houston, who are not members of the union a fee for handling their grievances with the firm.

The union established the fee system last year, insisting that non-members pay the union $15 for handling an ordinary grievance and $400 to take a grievance through arbitration.

The board held that the union, having been certified by the NLRB as the exclusive bargaining representative, was required to represent all employes.

Test For Deferment Of College Men Scheduled By Selective Service

College students requesting student deferments must take a qualification test, the Nolan - Scurry-Fisher selective service board at Sweetwater announced today.

The examinations will be accepted from those who were unable for reasons beyond their control, to take them on the regular schedule April 23 and last Dec. 4.

Application blanks may be secured from the selective service board or the college the student is attending. No applications postmarked later than May 11 will be accepted, the board said.

The examinations will be held May 21.

SEVEN KILLED IN MINE CAVE-IN

MEXICO CITY, April 25 (AP)—At least seven were known killed and an estimated 80 others trapped underground to night in a cave-in and fire at a mine.

The cave-in occurred at an American Smelting Company operation near Angangueo, Michoacan.

Sapet Appeals From Sentence Of 99 Years

BROWNWOOD, April 25 (AP)—Mario Sapet was sentenced to 99 years today in the South Texas slaying of a politician's son.

Sapet's motion for a new trial was rejected by Judge A. O. Newman in whose court the San Antonio bar owner was recently convicted.

Nattily dressed, Sapet received the sentence without visible emotion.

His attorney gave notice of appeal and was granted 90 days to appeal.

Sapet, once deputy sheriff under George Parr, South Texas political leader, was convicted on murder charges filed after Jacob Floyd Jr., was shot to death at Alice Sept. 8.

The shooting was planned not for the college student but for his father, an arch political enemy of Parr, the elder Floyd testified.

Floyd testified Nago Alaniz, also charged in the slaying, told him that "hired killers" were out to get him. Testimony indicated Alfredo Cervantez, a Mexican still at large, was the gunman who lurked in the Floyd garage to ambush the elder Floyd.

Says Maybe It's 'Concrete Step'

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP) — President Eisenhower today interpreted Moscow's latest peace statement as a possible sign that Russia may be ready to do "something concrete" about making settlements with the Western world.

The President's reaction was disclosed by Press Secretary James Hagerty who issued a statement which at the outset made clear that it reflected Eisenhower's views. Hagerty began by saying that he had "talked with the President" about an editorial in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda.

This might be a "first step toward something concrete," Hagerty said, and if it is the Kremlin will find the United States and other free nations "ready to work unceasingly for peace."

The Russian statement, which also was published in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, declared Russia is ready to enter into "business-like" discussions with the West to end great controversies. It made plain, however, that the Soviets are not retreating on the foreign policy.

FULL STATEMENT

Here is the White House statement:

"I have talked with the President about the Pravda editorial.

"Its milder tone is a welcome change from the usual vituperation against the United States and the free world.

"It is also significant that the world-wide interest in the President's (April 16) peace speech caused the Soviet leaders to reprint it in full for the Russian people.

"Of course the Pravda editorial cannot be considered a substitute for an official action by the Soviet leaders.

"Maybe this editorial is a first step toward something concrete. If so the free world will continue to wait for the definite steps that must be made if the Soviet leaders are sincerely interested in a cooperative solution to world problems.

"If the Soviet leaders take such steps they will find the United States and the other free nations, as always, ready to work unceasingly for peace."

The White House statement was issued after Eisenhower talked with Allen Dulles, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, and C. D. Jackson, presidential adviser on psychological warfare. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in Paris had no comment for reporters who questioned him.

From a Dulles spokesman, however, came the reaction that there was no need to comment on a newspaper editorial and if the Soviets wanted to take any specific steps or make any significant statements officially there were channels through which they could do so.

NATO COMMENT

The 14-nation North Atlantic Treaty Council came out with a statement that nothing the Soviets have said or done so far has lessened the Communist threat to the free world. It cited Red invasion of the autonomous Indochinese state of Laos as evidence of continuing aggression.

It appeared that real evidence of the Kremlin's intentions, whatever they are, may be found now or in the immediate future in two places far removed from both the American and Soviet capitals:

1. Renewal of truce talks at Panmunjom tonight meant that the Chinese and North Korean Communists would have to demonstrate in a few days whether they are willing to accept non-forcible repatriation of prisoners of war in order to break the long armistice deadlock. On their attitude on this point turns the possibility of ending the war in Korea.

2. In Indochina Ho Chi-minh's Red forces, with Chinese Communists and reportedly Soviet support in war materials are pressing hard to conquer completely the state of Laos. In all the years of the Indochina war this territory had not been invaded by the Reds and their so far successful drive to conquer it now has created a new military and political situation in Indochina. It is a situation which the United States apparently has developed no plans to deal with.

The invasion occurred two weeks ago. Three days ago the Reds unveiled a new "free Laos government" which indicates that their ultimate political objective is to establish a unit of Communist rule that could make claims not only on Laos but also on neighboring Thailand as well as the other Indochina states of Viet Nam and Cambodia.

PEOPLE'S UPRISING

Although the Indochina peoples have resented any vestige of French rule and the Reds reportedly have drawn much strength from them, U. S. diplomats say they have no evidence of any Laotian people participating in the allegedly popular uprising which is how the Reds have tried to present their invasion of Laos to the world.

Some diplomatic experts have wondered whether the broadening of the Communist operations in Indochina with the resultant greater threat to all Southeast Asia, was deliberately timed to coincide with renewed talk about ending the war in Korea. There can be no doubt that there is still a lot of suspicion in high places here about Communist maneuvers.

At the same time administration leaders are convinced: (1) The United States must demonstrate a sincere desire to obtain peace regardless of Russia's intentions, and (2) It must not overlook any real opportunity for settlements with the Soviets.

Also, there is a dominant belief that America and its Allies would make a fatal mistake if they adjusted their basic policies to the words instead of the actions of the Soviet bloc.

Presumably Dulles' role is to stress this aspect of the situation while the role of the President is to emphasize American interest in peace.

Red Peace Conditions Are Unpalatable To US

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The Soviet government, in a most spectacular way, has all but openly asked for a top-level meeting between Washington and Kremlin leaders, but in advance has laid down a price for world collaboration which eventually would turn out to be wholly unacceptable to the West.

In its mammoth statement in Pravda, mouthpiece of the Kremlin, the regime of Premier Georgi M. Malenkov has deliberately put forward the impression that Joseph Stalin and his works have been thrust aside and forgotten so far as international relations are concerned. But the text gives no such assurance. In fact, the impression it gives is just the reverse—that the USSR intends in the long run not to give an inch.

The full-page Pravda statement was a blitz to recapture the peace offensive initiative from the United States in the wake of President Eisenhower's recent strong statement and the widespread welcome given to it. But the statement represented other aims, too.

OLD POLICIES

There is virtually nothing in the statement—new though the words may sound—which is not an echo of past Soviet policy. The softening note is the official admission in the beginning that there were allies fighting with the USSR against Hitler in World War II. From there on, the statement is a poorly veiled recitation of the Soviet stand on international issues ever since the beginning of the cold war.

The AP correspondent in Moscow specifically cautions, in his dispatch, not to look upon this statement as a Pravda editorial. What it really seems to be, he says, is "a statement by the leadership of the Soviet Union" in response to President Eisenhower's address.

It will be studied carefully in Washington and West European capitals, where it cannot but stir the suspicion that the Malenkov regime still is playing for time, but has no intention of giving up what the USSR has grabbed in these past eight years. Malenkov's government, still entrenching itself internally and in the empire, says it will not enter any discussion on unconditional terms. It says it will make no preliminary demands, but adds that of course, it has claims.

LIST CLAIMS

Here are some of the claims:

1. Communist China must be admitted into the United Nations, and Formosa must be turned over to the Chinese Communist regime.

2. West Germany must be demilitarized and there will be discussion of unity only on Soviet terms —that is, discussion first of a peace treaty unifying all Germany, then of withdrawal of occupation forces, leaving a neutralized vacuum in the heartland of Europe, at the mercy of Communist expansion.

3. Recognition of the Soviet claim that it does not dominate and control all the European satellite Communist nations.

4. Recognition of the Soviet claim that it is innocent of any fifth column activities in "colonial and semi-colonial countries" and admission by the West that all revolutionary manifestations in these areas are simply nationalist "liberation movements."

5. Removal of trade obstacles which have been pinching the Communist world.

6. Acceptance of Soviet terms on an Austrian independence treaty. Pravda says this would be on "democratic" line, and in the Communist glossary, "democratic" means Soviet.

7. The breakup of the European Defense Community.

WELCOME TALKS

After laying down all these terms, the statement then says "the Soviet leaders will welcome any step of the U. S. government or any other country if it is directed toward a friendly settlement of contentious questions."

"This," says the statement, "testifies to the readiness of the Soviet side for a serious businesslike discusion of problems both by direct negotiations and, when necessary, within the framework of the United Nations."

This seems a bid to the top-level meeting. With the conditions laid down, such a meeting could hardly turn out to be anything more than another interminable debate in which the USSR once again would attempt to picture itself to the world as the only bulwark of peace.

Meanwhile, such a meeting would have a profound effect upon Western European and even American politics and economics. It would go far toward knocking the props out from under the European Defense Community once for all in Western Europe, and it would also go far toward inducing the United States and Britain to let down their guards. Such a meeting might even lead to a period of temporary peace.

But the Soviet Union would gain valuable time while at the same time disuniting and weakening the Western world.

The statement definitely abrogates Stalin's leadership. In speaking of the speeches of the top Soviet leaders March 9, it does not even mention that the occasion was the funeral of Stalin. The name of Stalin is not mentioned even once. But there is mention of the "beginning or end of an era."

In this, the statement says that the disappearance of any person from the scene does not mean that the Soviet foreign policy had not been "correct." That is—Stalin is gone, forgotten, but Soviet foreign policy remains the same. If the policy is the same now as it was before, the whole Pravda statement stands out clearly as a rather poor smokescreen. If anything comes of it, the chances are that it will be temporary.

200 Skeletons Found

BERLIN, April 25 (AP)—Workers clearing away rubble today found the skeletons of 200 victims of a giant Allied air raid buried in what had been a department store. City officials said a mass funeral would be held Tuesday. All means of identification had disappeared.

Sentell Favors New Tax to Pay For Salary Raises to Teachers

(Special to the Daily News)

AUSTIN, April 25 —A tax bill that will produce at least 66 million dollars for the next biennium must be passed this session if the teacher pay raise is to be more than the "empty gesture" Gov. Shivers has called it.

Final passage of the $600 teacher pay bill seems assured whenever its backers get ready to bring it up in the House for third reading and final vote. It passed the Senate several days ago and passed its second reading in the House Thursday.

Rep. C. F. Sentell, Snyder, said he would fight to the end to get some form of tax bill passed to meet the teacher pay raise.

'VOTING FOR A TAX'

"I want to study the tax proposals thoroughly before making any decision on the field of taxation," Sentell said. "But I will be voting for a tax when the time comes," he added.

Rep. Lamar Zivley of Temple, sponsor of the $600 teacher pay bill in the House, said he would wait to bring it up until he is sure it will not be killed because the comptroller could not certify it.

Under Texas law, the comptroller has to certify that there is money to cover all appropriations before the bill making those appropriations is valid. Until a tax is passed, it is certain the comptroller would not certify the $600 teacher raise, which will cost about 66 million dollars in the next two years.

West Texans indicate that they are most likely to back some form of tax on natural gas, preferably one that would catch the pipelines going out of the state.

At least one, Rep. Joe Burkett, Jr., Kerrville, said emphatically that he would vote against any and all new tax bills. He is sponsoring his own school legislation this session, a bill that would have repealed the Gilmer - Aikin law and set Texas' state contributions to local school districts at a fixed sum of about 68 million dollars.

AGAINST TAXES

Rep. W. G. Kirklin, Odessa, who fought passage of the pay bill Thursday, said he is against further taxation.

As member of the Revenue and Taxation Committee Kirklin has been studying the tax proposals carefully.

"If more taxes are passed I believe the Berry bill (an omnibus tax plan covering natural resources and beer) is the best "basis to use", Kirklin said. "Some items he includes would not produce enough revenue to pay for collection and should be eliminated," he said.

"Other items are carrying a fair share now and should not be in the bill. Oil should be omitted. I feel that any further tax on oil could be a threat to the economy of West Texas, Kirklin said. "But on the whole natural resources should carry the extra load."

Rep. Carroll Cobb of Seminole said that the Berry bill might be all right but is not "politically feasible."

"Every item in that bill would draw opposition from some members in the House and when it is all added up practically no one would vote for it," Cobb said.

Rep. Cobb added that he would go along with some type of tax bill directed as much as possible at the natural gas being piped out of the state.

ARMOR'S STAND

Rep. L. L. Armor, Sweetwater, says he would vote against any taxation other than on natural gas.

"I don't like to see any more taxes but if it has to come the best place is natural gas where much of the tax will be paid by out of state users. I will not vote for any other kind of tax," Armor said.

Rep. Hulon Brown of Midland voiced opposition to any added tax on oil but that gas might provide at least part of the tax problem.

"Natural resources should produce a fair share of revenue during the time that we have them. When our natural resources are used up tax revenue then will have to come from other sources," Brown said.

Rep. Truett Latimer of Abilene favors some "broad base tax plan" along the lines of the omnibus proposal offered by Rep. George Berry of Lubbock.

"I think we should pass only enough taxes to cover the essential needs and wait on the outcome of the court decision over the gas gathering tax. If that revenue is freed I would be willing to consider other appropriations even in a special session," Latimer said.

Rep. W. A. Stroman of San Angelo is presently against more taxes but is taking a "wait and see" attitude.

FOR GAS TAX

From Uvalde, Rep. Dolph Briscoe, Jr., is strongly behind a natural gas tax that will aim at

New Top Put On East Road

Crews of the State Highway Department are giving East Highway a double asphalt surface treatment which was postponed because of cool weather when the highway was widened last fall.

Homer Ray, department official here, said yesterday the project would probably be completed in about 10 days, depending on weather. The type asphalt being used cannot be rolled when temperature is below 40 degrees.

When the widening of the highway into four lanes was done last fall, the weather became too cool to roll regular asphalt, Ray said. Instead, a fluid type asphalt was put on the road to protect it through the winter.

U.S. Lacking Ammo For Full-Scale War

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—A Senate investigation has clearly revealed that the United States would have been in grave peril in the last two years from a lack of ammunition had the Korean conflict erupted into a world war.

The chilling evidence is this country didn't have enough ammunition in its stockpiles—certainly not in production—to fight a great war for any length of time. And without ammunition, American guns would have been useless hulks of steel.

The situation is improving rapidly after long delays, according to those who know, and there now is no danger in telling the story. But senators want to be sure such a thing never happens again. They would like to find out who was responsible for what they believe could have been a disastrous situation.

You can get long odds in this town the investigators never will be able to pin responsibility on any one man or small group of men in the Pentagon.

The plain truth is: So many people had a finger in this pie—from the top echelons of the Truman administration on down the line—that responsibility is virtually lost in a maze of red tape, policy directives, splintered authority, and miscalculations at all levels.

Sen. Harry S. Byrd (D-Va), an old hand at Senate inquiries, called the ammunition fumbling a "tragic series of errors" by both military and civilian defense chiefs. He says his main concern has not been with ammunition supply in Korea, but with the depleted condition of the national stockpile.

The story of the ammunition shortage is a vastly complicated one in which the hard work, unavoidable delays, and achievements of the military have been largely buried under the evidence of fumbling and red tape.

And over the whole effort, the record shows, there was a smothering blanket of inertia formed by the miscalculation in high places that the war would be a short one. That psychology had a deadening effect on the whole war effort.

NATO Will Still Rearm, But More Slowly Than U.S. Wants

PARIS, April 25 (AP)—The United States and its 13 allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization declared today that Communist peace moves still don't look genuine and Western rearmament will continue.

The decision was announced in the face of a new Soviet "peace gesture," the latest in a month long series that has made the NATO nations take a second look at their costly arms program.

The latest gesture was publication in Moscow's newspapers of a long response to President Eisenhower's April 16 speech—not a soft response, but not a hard one, as the diplomats here privately sensed it.

SECOND THREAT

It was the second jostling the North Atlantic Treaty Council received before it could conclude its three-day session this afternoon with adoption of a bright and cheery communique.

The first came yesterday when the upper house of the West German Parliament, the Bundesrat, voted postponement of ratification of the European Defense Community Treaty, the agency through which a half million West German troops were to be recruited for a six-nation army.

Though the Western buildup is to go on, the pace will not be up to that urged by U. S. military leaders. Despite American views, the council voted for a slow-down in rearmament.

"It was agreed that the development of sound national economies and the increase of military forces should be pursued concurrently," was the way the communique phrased it.

This was called a "long-term program." But British and French members, who have been balking at speedup proposals of the Americans, felt they had established their point of view.

SLOW DOWN?

Their view is that the danger of aggressive communism, while continuing great, does not call for desperate straining of the economy of the member nations to get strong enough at once to beat a Red onslaught.

The communique stressed the value of "collective defense."

"The council felt that there was every prospect that this policy, continued with firmness and patience, will create a basis for a just settlement of unresolved international problems," it said.

Nevertheless the council devoted a chunky part of its communique to saying it felt Russia still needed close watching.

CONFERENCE RESULTS

Hard accomplishments of the conference included:

1. Voting of a 550 million dollar plane contract to put factories in Britain, Belgium, Holland, France and Italy to work with the assurance that about half this production would be paid for in dollars.

2. Authorizing a military building program of 885 million dollars to be spread over a four-year period, with the United States promising to ask Congress for about 43 per cent of the money.

3. Approval of co-ordinated defense budgets of the various countries calling for spending well over 12 billion dollars this year in European defense. West Germany, not a member of NATO, has agreed to continue paying 142 million dollars monthly until Dec. 1 to help support Allied troops. Heavier burdens face her under the EDC later.

But failure to find a basis by which France and Germany can get along together militarily has enfeebled the community to such a degree that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson warned their colleagues Congress would demand a report this summer whether the program was a going concern or a flop.

Dulles gave them until June 30 to make a better showing on the European army plan, while Wilson said Congress would want to see more combat material develop from EDC contributions.

users of Texas gas in other states.

"That type of tax will give the biggest incentive to industry to move to Texas. If Texas gas gets expensive in Detroit some of those industries will move down here where they are closer to the source of supply," Briscoe said. "Some form of long-line tax will bring two-thirds of the revenue from out of state," Briscoe said.

Rep. A. J. Bishop Jr., Winters, said he was not ready to comment at this time.

The probem, as are all tax issues, is very touchy. There is little doubt in anybody's mind that an even bigger battle will develop over the bill to appropriate the money for the teacher pay raise than there was over the raise.

Thursday's battle was hottest over the $300 or $600 pay raise. After the $300 amendment was defeated opponents of the full raise turned to another strategy.

Their plan developed into joining the sponsors of the bill and going for final passage of the bill.

TO QUICK 'VETO'

They tried twice to suspend the House rules in order to vote on final passage of the bill that night The idea behind it, according to some members who did not wish to be quoted, was to get the bill to the comptroller before any tax bill could be passed.

Without an accompanying tax bill it was virtually certain that the comptroller would refuse to certify that funds were available and a veto by Gov. Shivers would follow.

Opponents are not willing to tip their hand on the strategy they will employ next week.

However, sponsors of the bill are far from convinced that the sudden shift of votes to their side indicated a change in attitude toward the full $600 pay raise.

No tax bill has come out of the Committee on Revenue and Taxation as yet and there is no indication that they will release one until the House instructs them to submit one or more of the proposals.

Damage Suit By Snyder Man To Be Heard

(Special to the Daily News)

SAN ANGELO—A personal injury damage suit of a Snyder man will be among 16 cases involving oil field accidents on the 44-case docket after federal court convenes here Monday.

I. D. Presson of Snyder is asking the court to award him total and permanent disability for injuries received in an accident at the Big Lake Oil Co. yard at Texon in Reagan County on Dec. 31, 1951. Presson was unloading 550-pound drums of pumping fluid when a drum slipped from a winch line and fell on his left foot.

He was working for the J. H. Rose Truck Line, Inc., which is insured by the Travelers Insurance Co.

Maximum damage payments under the workmens compensation laws of Texas are $10,025. Presson is asking that an award of industrial accident board at Austin be set aside in lieu of greater compensation.

The other 15 cases involving oil field accidents are against insurors of drilling and testing companies.

A total of 44 civil suits and two criminal cases will be heard in Federal Judge William Hawlet Atwell's court during week-long session. Twenty cases involve accidents while the plaintiffs were on the job. Seven are other type personal injury damage suits, 11 are land condemnation cases and nine are miscellaneous cases.

Vocation Day At School To Stress Career

Thursday will be "career day" for high school students here, when they will meet in discussion groups to learn about vocations in which they are interested.

Students will spend the entire day discussing various vocations, led by adults now working in those fields.

Frank Wilson, director of school curriculum and co-ordinator of the program, said this is the first such vocational guidance day held here.

Discussion leaders for the day will include Dean Dysert Holcomb of Texas Tech, who will head engineering; Dr. Rex Johnson, president of San Angelo College, business management; Dr. Bob Hargrove, Snyder dentist, medical; Mrs. Mildred Stokes, cashier of the Snyder National Bank, secretarial work; and Ralph Wesson, educational director of the First Baptist Church, music.

Other vocational fields will be agriculture, homemaking, computational vocations, construction and mechanical trades, teaching, social service, nursing and laboratory work, legal, artistic, and communications.

The students will first meet in a general assembly at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning, where Dr. Cecil Yarbrough, school superintendent, will brief them on the program. Dr. George Beamer, director of guidance and counselling at North Texas State College, will discuss some of the basic things for students to consider in choosing any vocation.

At 11 o'clock consultants and leaders will meet for a final planning session. At 12:45 students will go to the discussion group of their first choice, then they will go to a second group at 1:45 o'clock.

Each group will have a discussion leader, a classroom teacher, a leader from the student council, and several resource leaders.

Jury Panel To Hear Dallas Murder Case Completed After Week

DALLAS, April 25 (AP)—A jury to hear the Donald Hawkins Brown murder trial was completed today after almost six full days spent interviewing 170 veniremen.

Because the law bars taking of testimony on Sunday, the jury was locked up and all witnesses ordered to be on hand for opening of the trial at 9 a.m. Monday.

Brown faces a possible death in the slaying of Edwin Joe Campbell collector for a loan company that held a note on Brown's car. Campbell's body was found New Year's Eve in his automobile, which had been gasoline soaked and set afire on a South Dallas street. He had been shot four times in the head.

MUSIC SEASON ENDS

Hugh Thompson, right, Mrs. Armor McFarland and the Rev. Ronald Hubbard enjoy an after-the-concert joke following the performance of the Metropolitan baritone. Later Friday night a reception honoring the singer was given by Civic Association directors in the First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. McFarland served this season as association president and Mr. Hubbard as vice president. (Staff photograph)

French Group High Point Of Recital

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following criticism is written by Tom Phillips, University of Texas music school graduate, through co-operation with the Snyder Civic Music Association which supplies guest critics for each concert.

By TOM PHILLIPS

Friday night Hugh Thompson gave Snyder a truly fine performance in that he brought to our city the elements of musicianship so rarely seen or heard in this part of the state.

He had absolute control of his vocal abilities, with an evidence of how to utilize those abilities. Especially good was his "Songs of Travel," a Vaughn Williams trilogy in which every vocal effect is used. His extreme finesse in handling the simple phrases and the smoothness of his elision from the "simple" to the "heavy" proved to the audience that Hugh Thompson had every vocal difficulty mastered. "Songs of Travel," being somewhat similar to art songs in style, are masterpieces in vocal composition. Bravura sections—weighty chordal progressions, yet never becoming overpowering by a repeatedness for the contrapuntal or melodic line—are so delicate that the overall impression of the work is complete simplicity.

SCHUBERT SONGS

The German section was of the lighter side of the composers. "An die Musik" was composed by Schubert while he was still studying composition with Beethoven; he had not quite receded from his over-romantic moods. Mr. Thompson's treatment of "An die Musik' was, as the piece suggests, airy, never heavy but with, perhaps, too much nonchalance in his interpretations not only with the Schubert but with the Wolf and Richard Strauss. The final German selection, "Secret Invitation," Strauss, led beautifully into the French section: DuParc's "Invitation to a Journey."

Apparently Mr. Thompson is fond of singing French songs for this was by far his best section of the entire program. The post-romanticism of DuParc was not lost as Mr. Thompson seemed to have an especial feeling for this type of music. However, the high spot of the evening came with the performance of Faure's "The Prison" and Dubussy's "The Dames of Paris."

Both composers are of the impressionistic school complete with pedal points, rich harmonies, more emphasis on chordal movements rather than linear, all give the melodic line free wheeling. The performer has absolute rule over the melody while the accompanist has an equal amount of control over the accompaniment. His accompanist was Mr. Marvin McGee, piano instructor at Trinity University. The fact that they had met only a few hours before the concert and had only one rehearsal proves that both are not just performers—they are musicians. Mr. McGee played as fine an accompaniment as I have ever heard. The feeling for the artist's phrasings was amazing and made even more astounding after learning of the ONE rehearsal.

Mr. Thompson's opening selection was the "Prologue" from Pagliacci. I have waited to mention this work because of one point; despite Mr. Thompson's excellent rendition of this aria, we missed the Italian.

Indeed, it was a fine translation and, needless to say, we all understood why the purpose of the prologue, but arias should be sung in their original language. All the flavor, expressions, and even the melodic lines are lost. We shall grant Mr. Thompson with perfect English diction, but what about French, German and Italian—maybe next year.

Thus the final curtain fell on Civic Music Association for this year. Our programs as well as our artists have been extraordinarily good. The members of the association have all expressed their satisfaction with the concerts and every one is looking toward a future Civic Music Association program for the following concert season that will have no equal in West Texas.

T. G. Deffebach, 3113 Avenue T, was taken by Bolger ambulance from his home to Battenfield Hospital Thursday night. He was entered as a medical patient.

Fort Worth's New Airport Is Dedicated By Air Secretary

FORT WORTH, April 25 (AP)—Air Force Secretary Harold Talbott dedicated Greater Fort Worth International Airport today "as a manifestation of the spirit of Texas, of courage and of vision, of firm faith and hard work."

He called it "the spirit of America that made us free and strong."

The secretary, who represented President Eisenhower at the opening of the giant airdrome, spoke to a shirtsleeved throng from the observation deck of the Terminal Building.

Talbott described Amon Carter head of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, as "an early champion of air power and among the pioneers in civil aviation." He was one of the leaders in building the airport.

'DEFENSE BIGGEST BUSINESS'

Talbott told the thousands who attended the opening that "defense is the biggest business venture of our time—the business of getting America so well prepared as to deter aggression and to defeat the aggressor who refuses to be deterred.

"We believe that the principles of sound business that have contributed so greatly to the success of American enterprise can well be applied to the administration of national defense."

He called the job of national defense "only partly ours in Washington."

"It is only partly the job of our armed forces," he said. "It is basically a job for all loyal and patriotic Americans. Together all of us can do it and do it successfully.

PRAISES TWO TEXANS

"When I look out upon this magnificent air field with its splendid facilities, I am more convinced than ever that what the American people set out to do they can accomplish successfully."

He praised Navy Secretary R. B. Anderson and Sen. Lyndon Johnson, both Texans.

He said all those who have come in contact with Anderson, whose home is in Vernon, "have been deeply impressed by his sincerity, his logic, his loyalty and his devotion."

"I know you will be pleased to learn that those qualities that made him an outstanding lawyer, a successful business man and a respected civic leader among you back home are displaying themselves in his administration of the Department of Navy."

Talbott said Johnson's name never can be omitted "when we discuss national defense."

"Sen. Johnson is a tower of strength to the United States Air Force," said the secretary. "We are very proud of our stalwart champion from Texas."

DUBLIN, April 25 (AP)—Sinn Fein, a militant Irish Nationalist group, called on Irish cinema workers today to ban the film of Queen Elizabeth's coronation June 2 from Irish movie theaters.

Rent Control Bill Is Sent To President

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—The Senate sent to President Eisenhower today a bill to continue rent controls, in the areas where they still exist, until July 31. They had been due to expire next Thursday.

There are about 5,600,000 dwelling units affected—in 32 states—as compared with the peak number of 16 million under rent control in 1946 and eight million in late 1950.

Eisenhower had asked extension until Oct. 1 to give state and local governing bodies a chance to enact their own control measures if they want them. He is expected to sign the compromise providing the shorter period, however.

Of today's total, 4,300,000 units are in communities which voted last year to continue under federal control.

The remaining 1,300,000 are in areas designated as critical defense areas. The new bill provides for continuing until April 30, 1954, the controls in such areas, but so revises the standard of measurement that only about 600,000 are expected to qualify.

Heretofore critical defense areas were those in which defense activity, by the government or by private firms handling government contracts, caused critical housing shortages. The new definition limits the designation to areas where such shortages are created by government defense activity, not by private firms.

The change is effective Aug. 1, and requires a resurvey of present defense critical areas to see if they fit the new pattern.

Today's Senate action was by voice vote; the House approved the bill Thursday by a standing vote of 187 to 66.

Russian Offer To Negotiate Encouraging

LONDON, April 25 (AP)—Russia's reply to President Eisenhower, rejecting the Western position on most issues in the cold war but nevertheless offering to negotiate, today raised tepid hopes of a settlement among some of Europe's Western statesmen.

In Washington, a White House statement said the Russian pronouncement might be "a first step toward something concrete."

Some European quarters felt Russia might be willing to make some concessions.

On the face of it, however, the Soviet statement rejected many of Eisenhower's peace proposals.

West German government sources said the statement is disappointing and "fails to offer any evidence that Russia is willing to ease world tension with concrete deeds."

One government source in Bonn said this means that future Russian peace feelers should be regarded even more skeptically by the West.

But other Western observers studying the 4,800-word statement found some encouragement in the assertion that Soviet leaders will welcome "a serious, business-like discussion of problems both by direct negotiations, and when necessary, within the framework of the United Nations."

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault called the Soviet statement "very interesting" but declined further comment now.

The conservative Paris newspaper Le Monde noted "with satisfaction that the moderate and courteous tone of the USSR reply leaves the door open to further negotiations."

BEFORE GENERAL GRANT DIED

This picture of General Ulysses S. Grant, the 19th President of the United States, was made available April 24 by Stefan Lorant, Hungarian-born, naturalized American author and historian, who said it was taken July 20, 1885, three days before Grant died. The general is reading on the porch of Drexel Cottage, near Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where he died of throat cancer. Nine notes written by the general in his dying days when he was unable to talk are being given to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., by Mr. Lorant. The author explained he obtained the Grant material from a descendant of an old family friend of the general.

Taft Threatens Sunday Session If Talks On Tidelands Continue

By GARDNER L. BRIDGE

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—An implied threat to hold a Sunday session next week if the submerged offshore lands bill is not disposed of in round-the-clock Senate meetings starting Monday was voiced today by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio).

After an all night session that began Friday morning and produced a new marathon speaking record by Sen. Morse (Ind-Oe), Taft agreed to recess at 4 p.m., EST, "until 11 a. m. tomorrow."

QUOTES BIBLE

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) reminded the Republican leader that tomorrow was Sunday and asked if he did not believe in the Biblical reference to devoting the seventh day to rest.

Taft replied that he believed in it this week but was "not so sure about next week," and agreed to recess until 11 a.m. Monday. The session that started at 11 a.m. yesterday ended at 3:49 p.m. today.

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash), an opponent of the bill to establish state ownership of the oil-rich offshore lands, sometimes erroneously called the "tidelands," predicted a final vote might come by Thursday or Friday. All night sessions are planned next week.

The last Sunday session was June 20, 1948, when the Senate started out Friday morning and remained in session until 7:14 a.m. Sunday. In that session, Senators Langet (R-ND) and Taylor (D-Idaho) were opposing a draft bill.

Opponents of the submerged lands bill won a brief respite when Taft reversed an earlier stand and allowed the Senate to take up a bill extending rent controls, due to expire April 30.

This measure, fixing July 31 as the new expiration date, was passed in 36 minutes by voice vote and sent to the White House for President Eisenhower's signature.

Taft previously had insisted the submerged lands measure could not be sidetracked for any other legislation, and Sen. Knowland of California, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, said the ban would be reimposed now that the controls measure has passed.

Morse shattered all previous continuous speaking records by holding the floor for 22 hours and 26 minutes, starting at 11:40 a.m. yesterday and remaining on his feet until 10:06 a.m. today.

He said his primary purpose was to "focus public attention" on a bill which he says would "give away" billions of dollars worth of natural resources belonging to all the states.

After demonstrating his endurance, the Senate's lone independent member sat down and the floor was taken by Sen. Murray (D-Mont), one of a score of other opponents of the state ownership bill.

Murray started out by declaring that supporters of the measure will realize in time the "great mistake" they are making.

Before he was well under way, however, Taft read to the Senate a letter from President Eisenhower calling for prompt passage of the bill. Eisenhower said he was "deeply concerned" over the delay of his legislative program due to the prolonged debate over the submerged lands bill. The letter was made public last night.

The debate began on April 1 and has occupied the last 18 days of Senate meetings.

Under immediate discussion was an amendment proposed by Sen. Hill (D-Ala) and 21 other senators who favor federal ownership of the offshore oil lands. The amendment would provide for a federal aid-to-education fund financed by revenues from the oil lands.

Murray said that among other things this money would enable rural school buses to be equipped with two-way radios so that rescue parties could be directed to the buses when they become stranded in snowdrifts.

Murray spoke for four hours and 21 minutes.

In addition to the bill under debate, Morse discussed filibusters—he and other opponents of the measure deny they are conducting a real last-ditch filibuster—politics, conservation, education, and other matters.

One of his criticisms of the bill was his contention that its definitions of 'state boundaries are indefinite. He said recognition of states' boundaries beyond the territorial limit of three miles would invite reprisals by neighboring countries against American fishermen. Texas and Florida claim up to 10½ miles offshore.

At one point Morse contended "the big press of the country is lined up" with advocates of state ownership and that only after the long speechmaking began did the debate get much news coverage.

Tulsa Prepares Oil Industry's World's Fair

By KEITH K. KING

TULSA (AP)—The 100 million dollar International Petroleum Exposition opening here May 14 is billed without challenge as the "world's fair of the oil industry."

They call it also the "world's largest single industry show," a label well bulwarked by its 1,484 exhibitors, the 10 million dollar cost of preparation and the expected 500,000 attendance in the 10 days.

They point to at least half a dozen single displays in this year's show worth a million dollars each, more than 25 costing $100,000 each.

But the oil show is also one of the great entertainment diversions for industry folk who attend primarily to see the latest thing for finding, producing and processing petroleum.

To this business' global travelers, it's a sort of "old home week," a once-every-few years chance to freshen friendships founded anywhere there's oil or oil men.

It's a time for noisy, merry open houses at the big hotels, daily and nightly private parties in the homes of the oil-wealthy.

The welcome mat will be spread long and wide for visitors from abroad—"international delegates," the IPE management calls them.

The foreign groups, including government officials, top oil policy men, technologists and perhaps some diplomatic representatives, will be under the wing of one of the industry's best known societies, the Nomads.

Nomads belong to the National Oil Equipment Manufacturers and Delegates Society, one of whose requirements for membership is at least one trip outside the United States.

Members from New York, Los Angeles, Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth and Tulsa chapters will see to the guidance and entertainment of an estimated 800 visitors from at least 35 countries.

Pitner Qualifies For State Finals In 880

Keith Pitner, Snyder junior half-miler, qualified for the state finals in the 880-yard run yesterday when he finished second at the regional meet in Stephenville.

Pitner was behind Caldwell of Weatherford, who came in at 2:02.7, almost a second faster than Pitner ran when he was second at the Fort Worth meet. Pitner was also second in district running.

The state meet will be held May 8-9 at Austin. Pitner will suceed John Gary, former Snyder trackster, in state running in that event. Gary took fourth in state last year.

RELAY IS FOURTH

The Snyder mile relay team, which had placed first in district, ran fourth and did not qualify to go to state. First was Wichita Falls, followed by Arlington Heights, Northside, two Fort Worth teams. The Snyder team also took second at Odessa and fourth at Abilene.

Members of the relay team were Reagan White, Tommy Ivison, Deanie Floyd, and Naxey Davis. Brownwood won the meet with 36 points, followed by Abilene.

Campbell Over Mal Galletta

PINEHURST, N. C., April 25 (AP)—Bill Campbell, Huntington, W. Va., outfasted Mal Galletta, St. Albans, N. Y., today to win a 2 and 1 36-hole thriller in the finals of the North and South Amateur Golf Tournament.

One down after the first 18 holes, Campbell dropped the first hole this afternoon and then won five in a row starting with the fifth to take a three-hole lead with nine to play.

Then the little gamester dug in to take the 11th and 13th and was only one down at the 15th tee. Here Campbell delivered the shot that saved the tournament for him when he put his four iron tee shot six inches from the cup, just missing a hole in one on the 206-yard hole. Galletta's best was a par three and Campbell went 2-up again.

Mulloy Downs Larsen, Will Meet Seixas

HOUSTON, April 25 (AP)—Defending champion Gardnar Mulloy turned back Art Larsen in four sets today to meet Vic Seixas tomorrow for the River Oaks Tennis Tournament title.

Mulloy, seeking his third River Oaks championship, defeated his 1952 finals opponent, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Seixas, the nation's No. 2 player-eliminated sixth-ranked Billy Talbert in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

In facing Seixas tomorrow, Mulloy will be playing in his fourth River Oaks finals. Seixas last year bowed to Larsen in a five-set semi-finals match.

The turning point for Mulloy in his fourth set against the little Californian came in the eighth game in which Larsen blew a 40-love lead. Mulloy then produced his ugly service ace of the day while quickly wrapping up the 9th and final game.

Seixas required only 75 minutes to win. The Pennsylvanian had too wide a variety of shots for the New Yorker, six years his senior.

Joan Merciadlis, Modesto, Calif., and Ethel Norton, San Antonio, meet tomorrow in the woman's singles finals.

Miss Merciadlis today eliminated the defending champion, Gladys Heldman, Houston, while Miss Norton defeated Mrs. Peggy Eby Startzman, Houston. Both scores were 6-1, 6-1.

Phillies Nip Pirates For 7-6 Win With 3 Home Run Wallops

PHILADELPHIA, April 25 (AP)—Home run wallops by Earl Torgeson, Gran Hamner and Del Ennis offset some erratic pitching by Curt Simmons today as the Philadelphia Phillies turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-6.

The victory was the sixth straight for the National League's pace-setting Phillies.

Lefer Johnny Lindell, former New York Yankee outfielder who developed a worrisome knuckler while pitching in the Pacific Coast League last season, gave up only six hits—but they included Torgeson's lead-off home run in the second inning, and two-run homers by Hamner and Ennis in the fourth and fifth innings.

Furillo-Maglie Feud Mars Giants' Victory

BROOKLYN, April 25 (AP) — A near-fist fight between Brooklyn's Carl Furillo and New York's Sal Maglie almost stole the thunder from today's 7-5 come-from-behind Giant victory over the Dodgers on Avlin Dark's two-run single with the bases loaded in the eighth inning.

The bitterness that has been brewing between the rivals over the years erupted in the Dodgers' half of the third inning when Furillo flung his bat at Maglie following a close inside pitch by the Giant right-hander. The Dodger outfielder then charged out to the mound but Plate Umpire Larry Goetz and Giant catcher Sal Yvars restrained Furillo before any blows could be struck.

The game was delayed several moments as players had rushed out of both dugouts but Goetz, with the help of his three fellow umpires restored order in short time. Both belligerents were allowed to remain in the game and Maglie calmly proceeded to fan the still fuming Furillo.

"He threw at me," said Furillo after the game, "and I don't like being thrown at!"

"I didn't throw at Carl," declared Maglie later. "It was just a poor pitch. I was mad at myself for allowing Shuba (George) to get that base hit and didn't get the pitch where I wanted to. Heck, it was a let-up pitch and it didn't even come close to him. If I had really wanted to hit him, I would have thrown it harder and truer."

"The pitch slipped and the bat slipped," said Umpire Goetz.

Cubs Move Into Second Place With 10-Six Win

CHICAGO, April 25 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs blasted their way into second place in the National League today, smearing the St. Louis Cardinals, 10-6, on the strength of an eight run explosion in the fourth inning.

Preston Ward homered to launch the big fourth inning uprising. Then with one out, the Cubs hammered out seven consecutive singles — three shy of the league record for consecutive hits in one inning.

Rosen's Single Beats Tigers

CLEVELAND, April 25 (AP)—Al Rosen singled across the winning run in the eighth inning today as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Detroit Tigers, 4-3, for their third straight victory.

Early Wynn, the Indians' top winner last year with 23 victories, nailed his first triumph of the season, and his 10th straight over Detroit. He went all the way, scattering 10 Tiger hits and walking only two, both intentionally.

White Sox Beat St. Louis Browns 6-4

ST. LOUIS, April 25 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox got off to a quick start, scoring five runs in the first four innings today, and then weathered a pinch-hit grand slam home run by Dick Kryhoski to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 6-4.

Former Brownie Tommy Byrne entered the seventh inning with a 6-0 two-hit shutout when the roof caved in. Byrne, who had pitched hitless ball after the second inning, issued his sixth and seventh walks and was lifted in favor of Harry Dorish.

Bartzen Into Finals Of Paris Tourney

PARIS, April 25 (AP)—Budge Patty and his southpaw partner, Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, won the men's doubles title in the Paris International Tennis Tournament today by defeating Paul Remy and Jean Ducos de la Haille of France, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

Despite the loss of the first set, it was an easy victory. Patty and Bartzen will be on opposite sides of the net tomorrow when they meet in the singles final.

Milwaukee Drops Reds

MILWAUKEE, April 25 (AP) — A home run barrage accounting for seven runs brought the Milwaukee Braves an 8-4 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs today before 14,492 rain-soaked fans.

John Antonelli, Milwaukee lefty, blanked the visitors on five hits until the ninth. Then Bob Borkowski singled, Ted Kluszewski doubled, Jim Greengrass singled and Andy Semiick homered.

Thompson Hits Oil Importing

NEW ORLEANS, April 25 (AP)—Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, today said oil imports must be reduced or "our production will wither away."

He spoke at the spring meeting of the Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission here.

Representatives of 26 oil producing states and 13 governors, including Gov. Shivers of Texas, attended.

"During the past five months," Thompson said, "Texas has been forced to reduce her daily allowable oil production by 400,000 barrels per day because of excessive imports.

"That is exactly the amount imports have increased since April, 1952.

Bosox Losing Streak Ends, Beat A's 4-3

BOSTON, April 25 (AP)—Thanks to Carl Scheib's second wild pitch of the game, the Boston Red Sox today broke a four - game losing streak by nosing out the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-3.

Trailing, 3-2, in the fifth inning, Jim Piersall rallied the Red Sox by lashing a two-bagger against the left field wall. George Kell brought Piersall in with the tying run by doubling to right-center.

Kell advanced on Dick Gernert's fly to deep right and Scheib wild-pegged the former home with the deciding run.

Lefty Mel Parnell became the first Boston pitcher to go the distance this season. He limited the Athletics to five hits after getting away in wobbly fashion.

3-Run Homer By Woodling Puts Yanks In

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP)—Gene Woodling provided the big wallop, a three-run homer in the ninth, to carry the New York Yankees to a 4-2 victory over the Washington Senators today.

A ladies day audience of 24,536 saw the home team rip off its fifth straight victory. The loss was Washington's fourth in succession.

Al Sima, bespectacled left-hander who was a 24-game winner with Chattanooga of the Southern Association last year, was the victim.

Sima had a 2-1 lead entering the final inning and had held the Bombers to five hits.

He opened the session with a walk to Mickey Mantle and then yielded a single to Hank Bauer. Woodling twice bunted foul while trying to sacrifice, then swatted a 2-2 pitch deep into the right field bullpen. The chunky outfielder is the team's leading batter with a .438 average and top man in runs batted in, with nine.

Reliever Tom Gorman, who hurled only the Washington ninth, was the winning pitcher. Whitey Ford, the starter was removed for a pinch hitter in the home half of the eight. Ford, in his first start since the final game of the 1950 World Series, held the Nats to six hits.

Darrow Sets Record; ACC Wins At Drake

DES MOINES, Ia., April 25 (AP)—Shot-putter Darrow Hooper, 220-pounder from Texas A&M, shattered a 19-year-old meet record and Illinois hogged team laurels as the Drake Relays ended today in rain-sprinkled Drake Stadium.

Hooper, runner-up in the 1952 Olympics, produced the only new mark of the two-day meet with a 55-foot, 4⅛ inch toss which erased the 1934 record of 55-1½ by Jack Torrance of LSU.

Hooper emerged as the meet's only double winner, taking the discus yesterday with a flip of 164 feet, 7⅛ inches.

Illinois produced three relay winners and three individual champions to steal the spotlight from a Georgetown - Kansas feud which fizzled.

The meet had its 25-event program hard hit by Friday's downpour and today's persistent, windborne showers, although a closing crowd of 7,000 sat it out.

A much-publicized distance medley meeting between Georgetown and Kansas proved a dud when the Eastern quartet won by more than 100 yards.

In the college competition, Abilene Christian won three events—the 440, 880 and mile relays—leaving Loyola of Chicago, North Texas State and San Diego State to share the three other college division laurels.

Abilene's half-mile quartet, anchored by George Adrian, had a better winning time than the university division champion, Houston. Abilene was clocked in 1:28.4 compared with Houston's 1:28.5.

North Texas State won the college sprint medley.

Charles Holding of East Texas State and Dick Richardson of Bradley tied for first in the high jump at 6-1⅝.

Scramble For Pitchers Starts As City League Fills Rosters

Softball fans will get a preview of city league baseball this week when the 11 teams entered in loop play will hold practice games.

The games will be played tomorrow night through Wednesday night two each night. The teams are preparing for the league schedule, which will begin May 4 and last until about Aug. 10.

LOW ON HURLERS

Most players are signed to the rosters of the teams, but some are still looking around. Pitchers are at a minimum in Snyder, and all the teams have been working hard to sign them.

There were indications this week that both Zelmer Glover and Ted Masters, the two outstanding pitchers of the fastball league last year, will be playing with the Standard of Texas team. Glover was hurler for the champion Pasotex team last year, while Masters led pitching for American Legion. The two had only about seven losses between them and about 23 wins in the league schedule.

Clay Fagan, another top pitcher, will pitch for Humble, while both Erich Arnold and LeRoy Leard may be on the Lion Oil roster. Others include Grady Gafford for the Hermleigh squad, Potsi Neeper for Texaco, and Birch Raley for Magnolia.

Eddie Hight, a league commissioner, said he does not know who will pitch for Sunray, Sun Oil, Pan American Pipeline and DeMolays, nor does he know who Charlie White, another top hurler, will pitch for.

B&H AT HELM

The league will be operated this season by B & H Well Service under supervision of Ray Taylor. The lease on the veterans park is held by Humble Oil & Refining Co., which will leave it open Monday through Friday nights for the league and hold it on Saturday nights for its team to play outside games.

Humble has been improving the field during the past few weeks, adding an outfield fence and dugouts for the teams.

Pan American and Sunray will meet at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night, followed by Standard of Texas and Texaco at 9 o'clock.

Other practice games scheduled for this week include Sun Oil vs. Hermleigh and Magnola vs. DeMolays Tuesday night and Sunray vs. National Guard and Lion Oil vs. Humble Wednesday night.

NAIA Meet Is Set In Abilene June 5

ABILENE, April 25 (AP) — One hundred schools will send 300 athletes here June 5-6 for the spring meet of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. It is the largest intercollegiate group in the world with 500 colleges.

The meet will include track and field, golf and tennis.

Abilene Christian College will defend its track championship, San Jose State and Pepperdine are expected to defend their titles in tennis and North Texas State will be back in golf.

In the early days of New Mexico, sheep were raised for meat, and ranchers, having no good market for wool, permitted anyone who would do so to shear sheep for a dollar per 1,000 animals.

Native Dancer Wins $123,750 At Jamaica

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP)—The great grey Native Dancer ran his unbeaten string to 11 races in a row when he uncoiled a powerful stretch drive to capture the $123,750 Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

His brilliant performance solidified opinion already high, about his chances for a victory in the Kentucky Derby next Saturday at Louisville. This was the Dancer's richest race and he easily grabbed the $87,000 first prize in the wealthiest 3-year-old race ever staged in New York.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's speedy colt was given a superb ride by his Louisiana jockey, Eric Guerin.

He overhauled the pace-setting Tahitian King near the top of the stretch in the 29th running of this famous derby test. The crowd of 40,352, which had backed the Dancer and his stable mate, Social Outcast, down to 1 to 10 favoritism, gave a mighty cheer when the Vanderbilt Express began his move.

He edged ahead of Tahitian King, owned by Dallas oilman Ben Whitaker, and suddenly shot ahead in the final eighth of a mile to blast under the wire by a margin of 4½ lengths.

Tahitian King, rated right behind Native Dancer among the 1952 juveniles, managed to save second money of $20,000 by a head over the Saxon Stable's Invigorator. The latter was the second choice at 6 to 1. Invigorator, in turn, was three lengths before Social Outcast in the field of seven 3-year-olds.

5-Way Race To Bowling League Seen

Standings remained close in the men's bowling league last week as five teams still ranked high enough to have a chance at winning the title during the three remaining weeks of play.

Newman's Grill is still holding onto the top place after defeating Sun Oil No. 1 2,575 to 2,499. Goss Car Lot fell to fourth place by getting a game behind, but that team and Sun Oil No. 2 will play a postponed game Friday night.

Williams Jewelry and Snyder Wholesale, second and third place teams now, changed little as the wholesalers barely edged the jewelers 2,716 to 2,623.

Chuck Wagon still holds fifth place, even after losing to Permian Mud 2,556 to 2,549.

Other scores included Sun Pipeline No. 2 beating Sun Pipeline No. 1 by a score of 2,532 to 2,416, while Jackson Motor Sales rolled 2,629 by itself and won a forfeit from Lewis-Burney. last place team.

HIGH SCORERS

James Stewart of the Jackson squad tallied high series of the week with 589, followed by Don Hire of Williams Jewelry with 562 and Victor Baze of Permian Mud with 554.

Spring Drills Show Better Tiger Team

A little more speed, much more experience, and more boys to choose from make up early prospects for a 1953-54 high school football team.

The Tigers, who finished last in their first year of District 1AAA ball last year, had very few experienced boys. This year there are 19 lettermen ready for the next season, along with B squad and freshman team lettermen eager to find places on the A team.

PRACTICE GOING ON

The squad of 36 high school boys and more than 40 junior high boys who will be in high school next year finished the eighth day of the 30 day spring training period Friday. Their first drills were in fundamental blocking and tackling.

Last week they learned a little about the split-T offense used by the Tiger team. Tehy ran that offense against one type defense in scrimmage last week, and they will run it against another defense this week, Head Coach Speedy Moffett said.

Spirit is running high in the squad, Moffett said, pointing out that no boys have quit since training started.

Casualties have been few. Clarence Hough, a junior halfback, suffered a broken collar bone when he was tackled last week. Eddie Joyce, freshman lineman, broke his leg when he fell over a blocking dummy. Gerald Crawford, sophomore halfback and a regular last year, is out with the mumps.

EXPERIENCED MEN

Most of the basic team will be made up of experienced players next season. Moffett said, but a few who gained some experience on B squad and freshman team will see action. Possibles among them are Mike Gibson, a junior halfback, and Don McNew, freshman fullback.

Moffett said no quarterback has a definite place as a starter this early. All three of the top quarterbacks, Bernie Hagins, Joe Baxter, and Alan Snead, are looking good, he said.

The squads will continue workouts with only minor scrimmages this week until Friday, when they will hold a full scrimmage at the workout field at about 3:30 o'clock that afternoon.

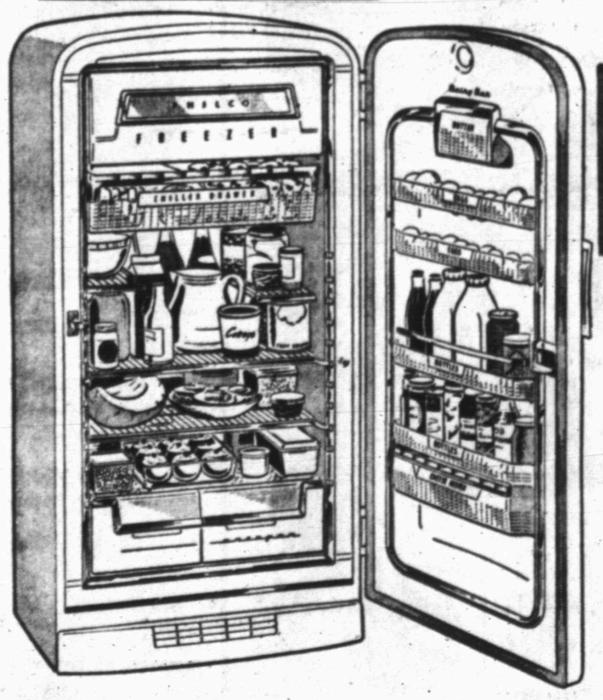

Another scrimmage will be held later on the workout field, then next year's team will meet the exes under lights May 15.

Rosson Will Head Scottish Rite Class

Renal B. Rosson, district attorney, was elected president of the 95th Scottish Rite class at El Paso last week.

Rosson and 14 other Snyder men were at El Paso all last week to receive their Scottish Rite degrees.

Elected officers with Rosson were the Rev. John Crawford of Lamesa, vice - president; Ralph Barron of Midland, secretary-treasurer; and the Rev. Charles Brinkley of Kermit, orator.

Williamson, P. E. Lewis, N. O. Starr, Ed Thompson, Johnny Watson, Bill Felts, and Ralph Tarrot, all of Snyder.

The men performed work on degrees last Monday through Thursday and attended a banquet for the entire group Thursday night. Wives who attended were entertained separately during the week.

Those from Snyder receiving degrees were Wayland Holt, Rosson, Frank Murray, Winfred Rushing, J. M. Newton, Martin Murphy, Clifford Knight, Lenoir Clarkson, Dee Pylant, Dan Gibson, Willis LaVier, Allen Davis, Ben Dennis,

RENAL B. ROSSON

J. E. Lock, and H. W. Benton.

Roscoe Storm Damages Truck

Extent of the damage to a Santa Fe Trails freight truck which blew off the highway between Inadale and Wastella last Wednesday was not known yesterday by D. V. Merritt, Jr., manager of the Snyder office of the firm.

Merritt said the tractor was badly damaged and was later towed to Fort Worth, but he added that the trailer was hitched to another tractor.

The truck was overturned when a tornado touched the Roscoe area Wednesday and a freak gust of wind picked the 21,000 pound transport off the pavement and set it down on its side 75 feet away in the ditch.

Bobby Crawford of Brownwood, driver of the truck, was only slightly injured.

Tax Cut Would Cause Deficit, Byrd Believes

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP) — Sen. Byrd (D-Va) said today the Eisenhower administration can cut the budget $6,800,000,000 without trimming military combat strength but must keep taxes high to escape a deficit.

The Virginia Democrat, long a voice of economy in Congress, offered a budget of $71,800,000,000, about 9 per cent under the $78,600,000,000 in spending recommended by former President Truman.

Although the Eisenhower administration has yet to come up with its own figures, Byrd, chairman of the Committee on Reduction of Non-Essential Expenditures, said the books can't be balanced for the year beginning next July 1 if Congress lets automatic tax reductions take effect.

The excess profits tax will go off business firms on July 1 and individual income levies will go down 10 per cent next Jan. 1 unless Congress acts.

Asserting that it would be "folly" to let this happen, Byrd proposed that both taxes be extended until July 1, 1954, a position Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, indicated he might support.

Byrd said he planned his proposed budget cuts so that they would involve no reduction in either major military procurement or armed force strength.

He proposed that military expenditures be limited to the $42,900,000,000 of the current fiscal year, instead of being stepped up to $45,400,000,000 requested by Truman—a saving in this instance of 2½ billion.

The Virginian figured domestic-civilian spending should total $24,200,000,000, a cut of $1,400,000,000 under the Truman estimates. He listed total foreign aid expenditures of $4,700,000,000, or $2,900,000,000 under Truman's figure.

To help revenues close the gap against outlays, Byrd proposed that government corporations, like the RFC, dispose of one billion in assets and turn the money into the Treasury.

Whitaker Trial Ordered Moved

LUBBOCK, April 25 (AP) — The murder trial of Walter Whitaker Jr., 21, was ordered moved to Vernon today.

Whitaker, former aviation cadet, is charged with murder in the strangulation Jan. 8 of Joyce Fern White, 18, of Lubbock.

He was arrested three weeks after the slaying and led officers to a shallow prairie grave holding the body.

Whitaker was stationed at Reese Air Force Base near here when the girl was killed. Later he was transferred to San Antonio as an aviation cadet. He is a member of a prominent Hartford, Conn., family.

The girl's body was nude. Sheriff Grady Harrist and Ranger Raymond Waters said the youth told them she was strangled after a quarrel over another girl.

Judge Victor Lindsey made the change of venue on his own motion. There was no objection.

He set June 22 as the date of the trial and announced he would trade benches with Judge Jesse Owens of Vernon.

Officers said Whitaker would be held in jail here until about June 20 when he will be transferred to Vernon for the trial.

Eleanor Browning, right, and Shirley McCowe n, left discuss with their instructor, Miss Vera Periman, the route they'll take to San Antonio Wednesday to attend the state convention of Future Homemakers of America. Eleanor is president of the local chapter and Shirley is vice president. Miss Periman is sponsor of the organization which includes 107 members in Snyder High School. (Lee Watson photographs)

First year students in Mrs. Farnk Jenkins' clothing classes are working on blouses to go with the skirts they have already completed. Linda Palmer, left, and Jane Rogers are joining seams at the sewing machines. The girls are to model their handiwork at a fashion show May 12.

Cooking and sewing aren't the only studies included in home making classes, and Pauline Caswell shows how garden flowers can be arranged to goodadvantage. Her triangular arrangement of these Dutch irises has a yellow flower for the center of interest. She and her classmates also learn how to plan informal parties and how to serve correctly.

Sovella Peek serves rolls to Anniece Hardy while Virginia Parrott and Betty Stewart wait to see if Sovella will remember to serve them from the left, as they have been taught. The home economics laboratory includes equipment such as the silver-plated flatware the Future Homemakers of America bought with money they earned running errands, baby-sitting and doing other odd jobs on "Hobo Day."

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

VOL. 3, No. 309 SNYDER, TEXAS, SUNDAY, APRIL 26, 1953

Homemaking Classes Today Teach More Than How To Cook And Sew

Whether their future lot will be to manage a rambling ranch home, efficiency apartment, or a home on wheels, the young women in high school homemaking classes are learning modern methods that will prepare them for housekeeping under almost any circumstances.

Snyder's high school homemaking classes, taught by Miss Vera Periman and Mrs. Frank Jenkins, will be moving soon to the laboratories in the new high school where adequate space is one of the outstanding features.

Texas homemaking students and teachers will exchange ideas next week when the Future Homemakers of America convention begins in San Antonio.

Eleanor Browning and Shirley McCowen, president and vice president, respectively, of the local organization will leave Wednesday with their sponsor, Miss Periman, to attend the convention.

Girls do not have to be homemaking students to belong to FHA, although the local chapter is comprised mostly of first, second or third year homemaking students.

SHOW IS HIGHLIGHT

Highlights in the FHA program locally are the fall and spring style shows held annually to exhibit the students' clothing work.

This year's spring show is scheduled for May 12 when a Peter Pan skit will be used as the vehicle to present student - made fashions. In conjunction with the show, homemaking students will sponsor a tea for eighth grade, girls and their mothers, putting to use the fundamentals of entertaining they have learned in classes.

"Homemaking " is a term which has progressed in the last decade along with improved household appliances. When mothers of the present crop of students studied how to cook and sew, the course was known as domestic science. Then came the era of home economics. Today almost all high schools refer to the course as homemakeing.

BASIC ARTS PLUS

In addition to the basic arts of cooking and sewing, the girls study how to plan parties, care for children, arrange flowers and set attractive tables. First year students here study how to prepare breakfasts, the fundamentals of vegetable cookery and personality improvement. Second year students learn how to buy and prepare meats and learn the fundamentals of food preservation. Child care and party planning enter the third year curriculum. First aid and budget planning are also taught.

Food freezers and metal foil are two of the outstanding improvements in the last decade, Miss Periman thinks. The local homemaking laboratories do not include a freezer, although the new refrigerator added to the laboratory will include a frozen food section. Other equipment in the new laboratories will include a Disposal, three electric and four gas stoves. The walls are blue with yellow tile trim and yellow cabinet work.

SUMMER WORK, TOO

Students are allowed to earn one-half credit toward graduation by carrying summer projects. Meal planning and preparation, gardening and redecoration are included in the list of projects the girls can choose. Last summer crafts classes were taught as part of the credit work, and a nursery school afforded girls the opportunity of gaining credit.

The clothing classes are stressing short cuts which formerly were used only by dressmakers or individuals who sewed. Mrs. Jenkins, says the Bishop method of clothing construction is becoming more popular in high school classes.

Included in the short cuts are machine basting when practical on materials it will not harm, she says.

Changes which have been noted in the field of clothing instruction are the advent of electric machines and patterns marked with instructions.

ADULT SEWING CLASES

Adults who missed out on clothing classes during their education will have an opportunity this summer of enrolling for beginners' sewing classes. Additional information can be secured by calling the high school. The class is scheduled to begin in early June and last three weeks, Mrs. Jenkins says.

The goal of clothing classes is to have one machine for each girl in the class so that more work can be accomplished.

Homemaking students have assisted in community projects including the recent appreciation banquet honoring past school board members.

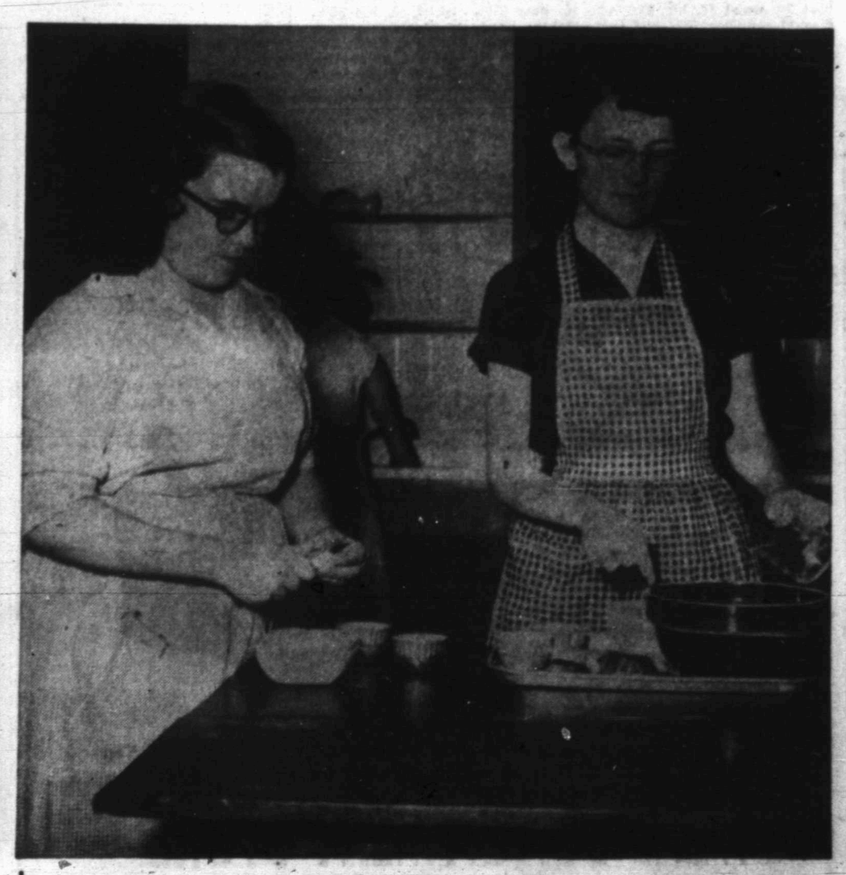

The girls assisted in serving and have also assisted at the Shriners' and distributive education banquets this year.

Basting garments are, left to right, Gay Smyers, Ann Porterfield, Dolores and Julia Cauble. Sewing classes have been held in a separate building from the high school but will be closer to other home making classes when the new school building is occupied about June 1. Future Homemakers of America bought a floor fan for the sewing classes with "Hobo Day" money.

Kay Birdsall, a first year home making student at Snyder High School, sifts flour into cake batter during a class period. The bowl seems to be adequate for the purpose, although Miss Vera Periman, foods teacher, says it is a "universal failing of students to try to mix in a thimble."

Gay Birdsall cuts apple for molded salads while Pat Matthews, another first year student, stirs water into gelatin powder. If the girls enroll for second year courses in home making, they will be among the first students to work in the new laboratories in the new high school building. Gay's twin sister is shown elsewhere on this page.

Toymakers Wed Playthings, Name Brand Home Products

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Little Miss Moppet won't be making mud pies in the back yard this year—she'll be baking real pies in the kitchen.

If toy experts are right, she'll not only be using the oven, but playing in the living room and boudoir as well.

More than 40 of the nation's leading toy specialists, representing the industry and childhood education institutions in the Toy Guidance Council, meeting in New York recently, voted to gamble $3,000,000 in orders that they are right.

They are predicting there will be a marriage between many name brand home products and children's playthings.

Some of the toys voted "outstanding examples of their type" included a cut-down-to-size pastry set using real cake mix and frosting; a doll set with real lipstick, eye shadow, face cream and an eyebrow pencil; a housekeeping set containing packages of real name brand cleaning and polishing products.

There is a doll feeding set with a package of real baby food and nursing bottles. A new shoe-shine kit comes with real shoe polish plus an attached bank in which to save the dimes Daddy gives Junior for shining his shoes. A new doctor and nurse kit has real band-aids, sterile bandages, medical cotton and adhesive tape.

There are dozens of other commercial tie-ins, one of the more intriguing involving the use of "Smokey the bear," favorite of the U.S. Forest Service, who will symbolize the 50th anniversary of the Teddy Bear this year. It took a special act of Congress to permit it. In all 250 toys were selected from over 7,000 submitted by 834 major U.S. manufacturers.

All the toys faced a series of authorities selected playthings for their fun value and sales appeal. Then the panel of educators, headed by Professor Emma D. Sheahy of Columbia University, took over to examine them for safety and durability qualities. No toys which did not meet all of the Toy Guidance Council standards were approved. These include, in addition to the two mentioned above, the ability to contribute in at least one respect toward the development of the child for whom it is intended.

The Council experts could not agree on whether to include space toys, which were popular last year, and compromised by including only two new ones: a buzzing, light ray gun and a new space telephone that rings, buzzes and actually works without batteries up to five miles away. All you need, of course, is five miles of wire.

The safety of toys was an important part of the experts' deliberation. A number of toys were excluded from the list because of toxic paints, non-durable construction, target games with sharp pointed darts, toys which used glass in its construction, toys which used explosives of any type, an an infant soft animal toy which had a musical crank extending dangerously from its body.

Mr. and Mrs. Medford Daniel Abbott, Jr.

Miss Wren, M. D. Abbott Married In Fish Home Here

Following a two-week wedding trip to New Mexico and Colorado, Mr. and Mrs. Medford Daniel Abbott, Jr., will be at home in Pawnee, Okla.

Mrs. Abbott is the former Miss Marvern Ross Wren of Littlefield, daughter of Mrs. Vera Hays Wren of Dallas. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Abbott, Sr., of Pawnee.

The Rev. E. K. Shepherd, pastor of the First Baptist Church, read the double - ring ceremony April 19 in the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walla D. Fish, 3110 Avenue U.

POWDER BLUE

Given in marriage by Mr. Fish, the bride wore a powder blue sharkskin lace dress over taffeta. The dress was fashioned with a fitted Empire strapless bodice and a fitted jacket. The full circular skirt was ballerina - length, and she wore a hat-hat of matching blue flowers. A shoulder - length veil fell from the hat.

She carried an ivory - bound Bible topped with a white orchid and stephanotis. The Bible belonged to Mrs. Bernie Jennings of Midland, who had carried it in her wedding, as had Mrs. L. W. Keesey, the matron of honor. The bride also carried a white lace-trimmed handkerchief which Mrs. Fish had carried in her wedding.

MISS HERLEY ATTENDS

Miss Glenna Dolley of Wheeler, Tex., was maid of honor. She wore a pink organdy ballerina - length dress styled with a wide boat neckline, fitted bodice and gathered skirt. She wore pink lace opera pumps and pink pearls, a gift of the bride. She carried a colonial bouquet of shattered blue gladioli with pink net trim.

Mrs. Keesey, matron of honor, of Artec, N.M., wore a blue dress styled like that of the maid of honor. She wore blue opera pumps, pearl necklace and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli with blue net trim.

Candlelighters were Mrs. Carroll Killingsworth of Wheeler and Mrs. Pat Hise. They were orchid organdy dresses, pearls and opera pumps and wore pink carnations on their wrists.

Harold Hise of Salem, Tex., was best man, and Bob Stockton, of Bethany, Okla., cousin of the bridegroom, was usher.

The ceremony was read before the fireplace flanked by wrought iron candelabra, and baskets of white gladioli and stock. The mantel was draped with crimson, lepidand white gladioli, and roses, sweet peas and gladioli were used in other arrangements throughout the home.

Mrs. Roy Sisler, pianist, and Miss Juanita Bullard of Littlefield presented music. Miss Bullard sang "Through the Years," "Because," and "Wedding Prayer."

RECEPTION FOLLOWS

At the reception immediately following in the home, the table was covered with a pastel organdy cloth over pink satin. White candles, yellow roses and sweet peas were also used in table arrangements.

Mrs. Jennings served cake and Mrs. Calvin Davis of Big Spring presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Princess Ricks and Mrs. J. R. Meadows also assisted in serving.

When the couple left on the wedding trip, the bride wore a rose beige poodle cloth suit with dark brown accessories and white orchid corsage.

The bride was graduated from Snyder High School and attended Texas State College for Women in Denton. She was formerly employed by the Farmers Home Association at Littlefield. The bridegroom was graduate from Sulfur High School and West Texas State College at Canyon. He served two years in the Navy and is engaged in stock farming.

SCULPTRESS DISPLAYS WORKS

Mrs. R. G. Tefft stands beside two of her piec es of sculpture. To the right is the plaster statue of a Negro woman which, she said, got scratched in moving. She holds the mask of her brother that she plans to mount on a plaque. (Staff photograph).

Snyder Sculptress Also Works With Paints, Home Decoration

Mrs. R. G. Tefft, telling of her fine art classes at the University of South Carolina, said the students never made copies of a work of art by someone else.

"You don't get your own feeling in it if you do," she said. One art class in sculpturing at the university furnished Alma, a Negro basketball player, as the model. The Snyder woman pointed out that each sculptor interpreted the model as he saw it and that no two people saw it alike. "That way she always came out differnet," Mrs. Tefft said.

Mrs. Tefft actually majored in interior decorating and minored in kindergarten work. She planned the decoration of their Snyder home at 124 Milburn. Eventually they hope to buy antiques they both like.

TO MAKE CASTING

When sculpturing Alma Mrs. Tefft first made a stand of pipe and wire. Next she placed on the stand "a barrel of clay, messy and gooey." After carving the head exactly as she wanted it, she rubbed olive oil and green soap over it and inserted metal pieces, dividing it into sections. Then she literally threw quick-set plaster with blueing in it on the clay model. The next coat of plaster was without blueing.

The sculptor said it was important to throw the plaster so it would get in the eyes and any deep or finely carved crevices. After the plaster drys for about two weeks it is pulled away from the face in sections.

More plaster was poured in the mold. If the sculptor is using metal it will be put on the outside of the mold, she said. After the plaster hardened Mrs. Tefft chipped away the first layer and, seeing the blue, knew she was close to the face. She then carefully chisled the rest of the mold away and worked in detail with sharp instruments. After sandpapering the head she rubbed it with burnt sienna and oil.

BROTHER'S FACE

She made a mask of her brother by putting quick-set plaster on his face that had been previously greased. Straws were inserted in his nostrils, and the rest of his face was completely covered. The mask hardned in about 15 minutes. It has such detail that even eyelashes show. Not long after that he was killed in the war.

One type sculpture which has little appeal for her is modern. In that kind of art the sculptor will bring out what he sees in the object. "To me no one else would ever see it that way," she said. Mrs. Tefft doesn't even care for ultra modern furniture.

Another form of art Mrs. Tefft enjoys is water painting. She uses native flowers to a large extent and other still life objects, such as peppers and fruits arranged with things like blocks of wood.

Mrs. Tefft hopes to do more sculpturing soon and said she also plans to take extension work from a college. At present she is directing her talents toward home movie work of 4-year-old Hallie and 6-year-old Bobbie.

"I never complete anything," she said, referring to training she took for a pilot's license. Actually all she lacks is one examination.

Big Names In International Scandal Book

(NO INNOCENCE ABROAD, by Michael Stern, Random House, New York, $3.)

"No Innocence Abroad" reads like a detective story, western thriller and political column and has as its main characters 10 of the biggest names ever to make news headlines.

The first chapter in Stern's 312-page book is about the late Freddie McEvoy who was described as Australian sportsman and millionaire playboy. In telling about a yacht that Freddie acquired from one of his lady admirers Stern says "I boarded the ebony black beauty in Cannes recently with an intimate friend of Freddie's who told me, 'Between ourseleves we call it the Black Swine. No reflection, you understand, because we loved Freddie very much. In any event it wouldn't have offended him because you couldn't insult him, if you had his money."

NOBLE ACT

At the end of his talk about Freddie, Stern says the attempt to save his wife's life was a brave and decent act but out of character. His first attempt at nobility killed him.

Stern also tells about Lucky Luciano who organized a dope ring in Italy where he had been deported from America. An Italian official told Stern Lucky set the Marshall Plan back two years.

One of his most interesting and touching stories is about the Sicilian Robin Hood, Giuliano who wrote a letter to Truman asking for arms. The reader received the impression that for the first time he is reading the true story of what happened. Giuliano's love life has been widely commented upon by other publications, but Stern brings out that the raider actually had no love affairs.

Stern isn't above taking cracks at other magazines and people. He called Fulton Oursler an editor "who discovered in the twilight of life that religious articles were more profitable than sexy ones." In his most fantastic story of all, the Gazelle Boy, Stern says "It was then I understood Time, the news magazine, had whipped up the unbeatable scoop: they had reported an event that hadn't happened yet."

TOO SPEEDY

The correspondent occasionally uses profanity. One instance, is in his tale about the thin, hairy boy who was supposedly found loping along at about fifty-miles-per-hour with gazelles. Stern debunks this ones.

Stern also writes about Roberto Rossellini, whom he advised not to import American critics to see the uncut version of "Stromboli." Virginia Hill, Countess Dorothy Di Frasso, Gulbenkian, George Dawson and Vincenzo Moscatelli.

In a few spots through the book he plugs only one thing and that was the man's magazine which picked up the tab for his adventures. D.K.

Seeking Slayer Of UT Student

AUSTIN, April 25 (AP) — Officers sought today a man who stabbed Charles Schwarz, 21, University of Texas student from Kerrville last night.

Schwarz was stabbed during an altercation at a drive-in, Detective Caradine Dipprey said. His wound was called superficial.

Dipprey said Schwarz and two other students were parked at the drive-in talking to three coeds in another car.

Dipprey said the students told him an argument arose with three other men in a third car parked nearby when the men made insulting remarks to the coeds.

One of the strange men approached the students' car, reached inside and stabbed Schwarz with a pocket knife, the report said.

Jolson Touch Heard In Brooks Waxings

By DOLORES KETCHERSID

Fans of the late Al Jolson may be turning to a newcomer to Swanee music, Norman Brooks, who recently cut "Hello Sunshine" for Zodiac.

It is doubtful that Brooks gets down on one knee like Jolson did. And he certainly doesn't let the orchestra almost finish a strain before he sings it. But still he gives his songs a Jolson touch.

" Hello Sunshime" is listed at No. 30 on the national poll. It has also been recorded by Buddy Cole and Gloria Woods.

On the opposite side Brooks, accompanied by the Lou Harold band, does an almost completely vocal "Your're My Baby."

LONG HAIR STEAL

Another classical has had it's main theme snatched to form the music for a popular score. "The Overture of William Tell" has been incorporated into Patti Page's new recording for Mercury called "Now That I'm in Love." The composers, Twomey, Wise and Weisman, slowed down the Lone Ranger theme song for dancing and even added a few original measures. Jack Rael conducted the orchestra.

On the other side Patti sings "Ooh! What You Do To Me" which has a South Seas beat with catchy lyrics.

Doris Day recently recorded a haunting song for Columbia, "Beautiful Music to Love By." It is a smooth, new melody with few instruments used in the interpretation. Paul Weston keeps it simple with an organ and bass.

On the opposite side Doris sings the familiar "When the Red, Red Robin Comes Bob, Bob, Bobbin' Along." Although the lively melody is mostly a vocal Weston's orchestra does take one chorus without Doris.

"No Help Wanted" which stayed at the top of the local hit parade for a number of weeks may have a successor in Red Foley and Ernest Tubb's "No Help Wanted No. 2." It falls in the same category as the first song recorded by the Carlisles. It has frequent mentions of the western stars in the lyrics.

On the other side is another hillbilly called "You're a Real Good Friend", also sung by the two men.

HORN FANS

Rafael Mendez has recorded an album reserved for trumpet music lovers Mendez solos in every song in it with Victor Young's orchestra. Dr. Edwin Franko Goldman ranked him with Jascha Heifetz and Fritz Kreisler. Mendez shows versatility with a night club rendition of "Valse Bluette" and a classical "Dark Eyes.' In his recording for Decca Mendez triple-tongues occasionally for fast numbers, and is careful never to blast.

Included in the album is "Hora Staccato," "Flight of the Bumble Bee," "Estrellita," and "Kejre Kati."

Popular records this week with local fans were:

"Mexican Joe," Jim Reeves.
"Doggie in the Window," Patti Page.
"I Believe," Frankie Laine.
"Seven Lonely Days," Georgia Gibbs.
"Till I Waltz Again With You," Teresa Brewer.
"Tell Me a Story," Frankie Laine, Jimmie Boyd.
"I Couldn't Keep From Crying," Marty Robbins.
"Hot Toddy," Ralph Flanagan.
"Your Cheatin' Heart," Joni James.
"Tell Me Your're Mine," the Gaylords.

Dr. Edward McCormick of Toledo, president-elect of the American Medical Association, is among the speakers.

More Kenya Murders

NAIROBI, Kenya, April 25 (AP)— An Italian sawmill operator and his wife and two children, 14 and 16, were found murdered today at an isolated sawmill in the Karatina district on the slopes of Mt. Kenya.

It was believed members of the terroristic Mau Mau secret society were responsible.

Unconscious Pilot Is Talked to Safety

SEOUL, April 25 (AP)—The Air Force told tonight the bizarre story of a Thunderjet that rocketed virtually uncontrolled through North Korean skies for nearly an hour before it's semi-conscious pilot was talked to safety by a far-away ground controller.

Lt. Richard Spaulding, of Ionia, Mich., was on a bombing mission over North Korea March 26 when his oxygen equipment went haywire..

Spaulding slipped into semi-consciousness and for an hour his speedy jet plane, virtually flying itself swooped, dipped, twisted and turned crazily.

Back at a mountain top ground control station, Capt. Clarence Bell of Van Horn, Texas, picked up the erratic action on his radar scope. Suspecting a pilot blackout, Bell took over.

In a cool, calm voice he repeated instructions to Spaulding over and over again.

First he directed Spaulding to a target area in North Korea and instructed him to drop his bombs. Those bombs had to be jettisoned before the plane could be landed safely.

Then he started talking Spaulding home, hoping to bring him down safely now that the Thunderjet's deadly bombs were dropped.

After minutes of patient instructions—"it seemed like hours," Bell said afterward—he got Spaulding lined up for a landing at an Allied air base, only to have the semi-conscious pilot suddenly refuse because "the runway isn't long enough."

Eventually Bell talked Spaulding to a second airfield and there completed the tricky let down and landing procedures.

Spaulding said later he did not recall dropping the bombs, nor refusing to land at the first field, nor the successful landing at the second.

Bell told of one particularly anxious moment.

"I had him just north of our nearest air base, when he suddenly asked me if he had released his bombs yet. Not knowing if he had or had not, I almost jumped off the mountain. I could just see that airbase after a couple of thousand pounders exploded in the center of it."

Another time, Bell related, Spaulding suddenly yelled into his radio mike, "My God, I've been globbered. I've had it."

"He was over a heavy anti-aircraft area and I thought he had been hit," Bell said. "But his plane continued to show up on my scope so I knew he was all right."

When the plane finally landed, rivets along the leading edge of the wing had popped out. Wing tip tanks were loose. Stabilizing fins at each end of the wing tanks had been curled back over the tips.

Modern Facial Masks Manage A Decent Look

BY VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Time was when a face mask gave sweethearts and husbands an-"ugh" complex.

The fact that their fair ladies visited beauty parlors for mud pack treatments appalled them.

Face packs were well known to the menfolk because they gave cartoonists and comic strip artists meat for their drawing boards. The artists managed to make the ladies look pretty gruesome.

Old-time mud packs were messy, but they did the job. Women were willing to endure the taunts of their menfolk in the interest of fair-skinned beauty.

The modern mask, however, is a thing of joy. It doesn't cake or harden. It can be done by a professional operator or at home in the privacy of the boudoir or bathroom. Homemade masks can be whipped up with pantry items such as the white of an egg or oatmeal or almond meal, but most girls prefer to use one that is prepared and available at cosmetics counters.

These are easy to use, providing directions are followed. One popular creamy mask is used in place of soap, by moistening the face with warm water and then applying a thin film of the mask. It is worked into the skin gently, allowed to remain three to five minutes until a tingling sensation is felt. Normal or oily skins may leave it on for ten minutes.

It is easy to remove the mask. Simply splash on lukewarm water with your hands or with a washcloth, making sure that all traces of the mask are removed. Medicated lotion may be applied later.

A mask and lotion treatment are good for teen-age skins. Adolescent skin problems may be helped by the lotion's hexachlorophene, the new antiseptic which helps reduce skin bacteria. The medicated lotion can be used on little blemishes or as a complete facial coverup.

A creamy mask may be removed easily with warm water, after which a medicated lotion may be applied to soothe the skin. A good treatment for adolescents.

Van Fleet Rejects Government Post

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) said today Gen. James Van Fleet has turned down an offer to serve as an expert for the Senate Appropriations Committee on military spending. He is the former Eighth Army commander.

IN LEGISLATIVE HUDDLE

They see each other every day, but they were together in Snyder again Friday night when Rep. David Ratliff, left, and Rep. Truett Latimer, right, came here for the West-Central Texas Gas and Oil Association banquet. Between them is Mrs. Ratliff. Ratliff is from Stamford, Latimer from Abilene.

TIPRO PRESIDENT HERE

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. McClatchy, left, are shown with old friends, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Bryant of San Angelo. Time Nears To 'Put Up Or Shut Up' On Teachers Pay

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN, April 25 (AP)—The Legislature has maneuvered itself a little closer to put up or shut up time.

It's got to put up some more money to pay for teacher salary raises, or shut up shop and go home.

Just how close it is to the critical hour of decision on taxes is anybody's guess now. The session could battle it out for weeks or even months.

A bill calling for $600 yearly increases in the base pay for public school teachers has passed the Senate and advanced to the point of final approval in House.

WHERE'S THE MONEY?

It halted there when its backers called for a slowdown to find an answer to the 66 million dollar question: Where's the money coming from?.

House proponents of a plan to increase the salaries only $300 a year argued themselves hoarse last week that it would be easier to raise 33 million dollars than 66 million. The $600 a year boys said never mind, there are ways of doing it that won't hurt anybody too much.

Water conservation crowded teachers pay for the spotlight this week.

SENATE FILIBUSTER

A 14-hour filibuster in the Senate held up a proposed amendment to finance local water-saving projects by water use taxes. It was part of a statewide drought-fighting plan offered the Legislature by the governor's committee that studied the problem.

The bill offering several ways of financing an 85 million dollar dam on the Canadian River to supply water for a dozen West Texas towns neared final passage. The House approved it and sent it back to the Senate with amendments.

The governor signed into law a bill creating the Northeast Texas Municipal Water District for a group of towns in that area.

GILMER-AIKIN ATTACK

Other developments this week:

1. Rep. Joe Burkett's bill virtually wiping out the Gilmer-Aikin school laws was approved by the House Appropriations Committee and awaits first floor debate.
2. The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill generally tightening up on beer and liquor controls. It was aimed partly at tough-joint taverns and provides such spots that are a threat to "morals and decency" may have their permits denied.
3. The House failed to give an amendment, abolishing the hard-to-collect auto property tax, enough votes for final approval there. It was just barely alive and may be brought up again.
4. New spending measures, including 3 million dollars for a new Eastham Prison Farm unit, were approved by the House Appropriations Committee. They further underlined the coming struggle over taxation.
5. The House argued about a proposal to speed up congressional redistricting, did nothing about it.

Painting Houses, Baseball Vie for Pastime Popularity

By DAVID G. BAREUTER
AP Real Estate Editor

PAINTING HOUSES at this time of the year rivals baseball as the national pastime. You probably have neighbors staging painting bees, with relatives lending a hand to give the old manse a new look. And around town you see the number of people having their houses freshened up with new paint enough to make any man want to get in and pitch.

Well, this spring paint-up, clean-up, fix-up custom probably was promoted primarily by the paint manufacturers. If so, we ought to take our hats off to them. Maybe their bright idea doesn't give us as much fun wielding a paint brush with our pitching arm but it certainly saves us a lot of hard earned cash by keeping the rain from rotting us out of house and home.

Giving the devil his due, you have to admit that the paint makers have greatly improved their product over the paint Grandpa used to use. Even though no paint will last forever, and the best will fail if they aren't put on right, modern house paints at least give far better service than paints gave half a century ago. This has been shown by government tests.

DON'T GET THE NOTION that the paint dealer is trying to "sell" you something when he urges you to spend a little more money for quality paint. The difference in price between what the trade calls "painters' lines" and top grade durable paints amounts to chicken feed. The "painters' lines" are manufactured to meet price competition. You can't expect them to come up to durable standards.

Figure it our for yourself. The biggest cost in painting your house is labor —the work of preparing the surface and applying the paint. While the whole job of painting your house will amount to several hundred dollars, the cost of the paint itself is only a fraction.

The average small house may call for eight or ten gallons of paint. The difference in cost between cheap paint and good quality paint runs no more than a dollar or two per gallon. It's certainly short-sighted to skimp on this difference when you figure the durability involved.

AS FOR LABOR COSTS, you know how times have changed. You ask and get more for your time than before World War II, and so do the painters. The only way you can save on this labor cost is to have the time and experience to do the job yourself in the right way at the right time.

Gambling on the weather is a big factor in a house painting job. Wood siding and trim has to be dry. If you have rain, you ought to wait for at least a week of sunny weather before you start to paint. Then it is best not to start the job if the weather is damp, foggy or cold. The temperature shouldn't be below 50, say the experts.

Two or three days should be allowed for drying between coats in clear warm weather-more time in damp or cold weather. Yet more than two weeks between coats is not considered good practice, since excessive drying can be as bad as not enough drying.

MANY READERS have written to this department about paint failures. You can't expect the best paint to hold when water gets behind it. Moisture in a wall, whether from leakage or indoor vapor pressure, will push any paint off in blisters.

This is especially noticeable in spring thaws after hard winters. Condensation blisters will be the most common on cold north walls of heated rooms-rarely appearing on unheated porch or garage walls.

Another form of paint failure is peeling, cracking or scaling, with no blisters. If this is not obviously caused by over-painting and appears only on south walls exposed to sunlight, it can be taken as a sign of poor quality paint.

Notaries Are To File Anew June 1 To 10

Notaries public who want their commissions renewed for the 1953-55 term should qualify for re-appointment by filing oaths at the county clerk's office between June 1 and June 10, Pat Johnston, clerk, said today.

Information received by Johnston from the secretary of state is that the law also requires all notaries applying for re-appointment to make bond with the clerk during this period. No matters concerning either re-appointment or new commission may be considered by the secretary of state without first having been acted upon by the clerk of the applicant's resident county.

Notaries public are commissioned for two-year terms, the next beginning June 1. All who are notaries now will be automatically re-appointed, but continuance of their re-appointment will depend on whether or not they qualify by making bond and filing oath, according to Howard Carney, secretary of state.

Those not now holding commissions but who want to be appointed must apply with their county clerks between May 1 and May 23, if their applications are to receive prompt consideration, the secretary said. Otherwise, a delay may be caused by the large number of re-appointments being approved.

A notary public must be 21 years old or older, a resident of the county for which he is commissioned. Exact names and permanent addresses are required in making application.

"A permanent address through which a notary may always be contacted is very important," Carney said, "because location of a notary or former notary may become necessary long after he has notarized a particular instrument."

Bond and clerk's fee total $4, Johnston said. Another expense of a notary is purchase of a seal, for which prices vary but are usually between $3 and $6.

Barrymore, 75, Begins New Career By Writing Novel

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lionel Barrymore, who will be 75 next Tuesday, thinks it's not too late to start a new career. His first novel will soon be on the bookstands.

Crusty old Lionel is the most versatile of the Barrymores. His compositions have been played by symphony orchestras, and his etchings and paintings have won acclaim. He is the only Barrymore who has won an Oscar for a staring role—in "A Free Soul" in 1931. (Sister Ethel won as a supporting player in 1944.) He also had an Academy nomination as a director.

The actor blows down his achievements in peppery language, claiming "I'm half dead anyway." But when I saw him in his car at the MGM gate, he betrayed a pride in his new novel, which is called "Mr. Cantonwine: A Moral Tale."

He displayed a copy of the book, which will be released May 19. Then he read the publisher's jacket blurb in his best histrionic style. It was a glowing report of the author's literary talent.

"Just print that," he suggested.

I suspected that his publisher might be prejudiced, so I asked him for more information about his writing career. He said he started out as a reporter on the old New York Telegraph. How long did he last?

"Long enough to hate all city editors," he replied. "I would go out to cover a big fire in Brooklyn and come back and write a big story. Two lines would turn up in the paper. Then I'd cover a murder in the Bronx, and I'd expect at least a column. The paper would carry two paragraphs.

"I hated that city editor's guts."

He added that he had long nurtured the idea for his book, which is a tale of adventure in the U. S. from 1835 to the Civil War. He once suggested it to playwright Zoe Akins, who said it wasn't her kind of story. She said he should tell it to Edgar Lee Masters.

"Of course, I knew his 'Spoon River Anthology' by heart and was thrilled at the idea," he remarked. "I made a date with Masters, but he didn't show up."

Barrymore abandoned the idea for years. A couple of years ago, he wrote his autobiography with Cameron Shipp. He told his idea for the novel to Shipp, who encouraged him to write it. He wrote the book in six months, using "a chewed-up pencil" for the job.

Like many actors, Barrymore has long admired authors. Among his earliest memories was his meeting with Mark Twain. Seven-year-old Lionel came up from Philadelphia to see his father, Maurice Barrymore, who was appearing in a New York play.

The actor took his son to a nearby saloon. There he introduced the boy to a Mr. Clemens. The name meant nothing to Lionel until he learned that the man was the author of "Huckleberry Finn." The enthusiastic lad regaled Twain with his own account of his favorite sequence in the book.

Although he is passing the three-quarter-century mark, the actor shows no signs of slowing down. He continues his radio show and does occasional movies, his latest being "Main Street to Broadway." He wouldn't mind tackling TV, but his studio won't let him.

"What they say is all right with me," he remarked. "I've been here a long time and I respect their judgment."

His 30-year tenure at MGM would set records except for the fact that Lewis Stone predates him slightly.

"We've both been here so long that we were too old to participate in the pension plan when it was started a few years ago," he said.

Manuel Hedges, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hedges of Snyder enlisted in the Naval Air Corps April 23 at the U.S. Naval Air Station at Dallas. A student at Arlington State College, he will report July 1 to Pensacola, Fla., for cadet training.

Rodeo Grounds Scene For Real West Texas Party

By SUE HOLMES

Delegations from Big Spring, Abilene, Breckenridge and other West Texas towns joined Snyderites Friday night for the West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association social gathering. The result was a real West Texas party at the rodeo grounds.

Probably the guest from farthest away was T. WILLIAM McMANAMY of the Chase National Bank in New York. He was being introduced by RALPH GEISENHONER local banker.

U. D. WALKER may still be shaking from his part in the entertainment. He was volunteered to stand while a whip-cracking artist of the Will Rogers tradition snapped a cigarette out of his mouth.

PEG MORELAND, one of the entertainers with the Early Bird Orchestra, caused some of the guests to reminisce about how long he had been in radio. JACK YOUNG said he remembered hearing him "25 or 30 years ago," he thought. His wife begged him to make it something more like 15 years ago.

TV TOPICS

Barbecued chicken with the trimmings was served chuck wagon style to about 375 guests who sat on the bleachers to eat. WILBUR ARD, leader of the Early Bird Orchestra, chatted during the meal about television and radio. He opined that TV had ruined comedians and other entertainers because they soon went through all their routines before the same audience. In other years, an actor could take his same show all around the country and play before different audiences. He pointed to Milton Berle as one of the literally played-out actors.

DISTAFF DRESSES

Among the dancers following the barbecue were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. MILBURN. A suit, violet stole and violets at her neckline were worn by Mrs. Milburn. Mrs. JACK WINTERS wore a black faille suit with gold and black printed silk tie. Mrs. JACK YOUNG wore a black linen dress with black velvet stole and black patent accessories. Mrs. G. B. CLARK, Jr., chose a natural linen bolero ensemble trimmed in black velvet. A rose dress with navy stole was worn by Mrs. WORTH SAYNER. Mrs. C. E. RABB'S turquoise shoes matched her blouse which was worn with a tan suit.

Among other guests greeted by C. T. McLAUGHLIN, vice president of the association, were FRANK KELLEY of Colorado City, for whom the Kelley Snyder oil field was named; Senator HARLEY SADLER and LESTER CLARK of Breckenridge, president of the association.

FROM THE FAR WEST

Seven wives went along to the Masonic meeting last week in El Paso and were entertained royally, according to Mrs. RENAL ROSSON. Enjoying a style show, tour of El Paso and Juarez and other entertainments were Mrs. J. W. W. PATTERSON, Mrs. J. E. SHIPP, Mrs. DAN GIBSON, Mrs. C. E. KNIGHT, Mrs. ALAN DAVIS, Mrs. MELVIN NEWTON, Mrs. WAYLAND HOLT and Mrs. Rosson.

GREEK GOINGS-ON

Mrs. TURNER KIMMEL has been in Lubbock assisting with initiation of a new Kappa Alpha Theta sorority chapter at Texas Tech. Mrs. Kimmel was a member at the University of Texas. Her husband will be initiated into Phi Delta Theta fraternity at Tech this week.

Unable to attend the oil party here Friday night, although her mother and father were among the hosts ,was Mrs. JOHN DeFORD of Abilene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. McLaughlin. She, too, was getting initiated at Tech. The old campus clubs there are becoming affiliated with national Greek letter fraternities and sororities.

At home among all the West Texans at the oil party Friday was Abilene's W. L. BLAKENEY, manager of this area of the Southwestern Bell. He was there with TRUMAN BLACK, local manager.

Having stole trouble was Mrs WALKER DABBS. "How do you eat barbecued chicken in a stole?" she inquired in the bleachers during the supper.

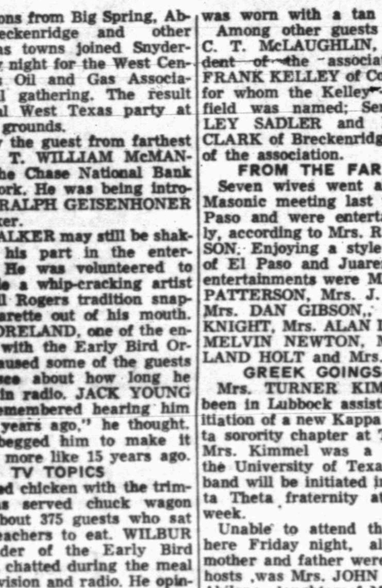

Up to their chins in politics were a little group circulating around the legislative contingent —Sen. HARLEY SADLER and Rep. TRUETT LATIMER of Abilene, and Rep. DAVID RATLIFF of Stamford. They were making themselves available for button - holing by those who wanted to know "what's going on in Austin."
