

RFHS Pirate Coach Brian Connolly resigns

Cites lack of accomplishment as reason Saying, "We haven't accomplished the things I had hoped we would," Brian Connolly resigned as head football coach of the Rockport-Fulton High School Fighting Pirates.

Ask what he had hoped to accomplish, Connolly said, "I thought we could build a team that could be competitive in the district and that just hasn't happened."

Connolly says he felt a strong desire to leave a year ago but stayed hoping to develop this year's squad into a competitive team. "But that just didn't happen," said the coach.

Connolly said he feels the reason the team is not winning is the number of injuries received each season by the Pirates.

Connolly says he has a small team and doesn't have a large number of players to select from when an injury occurs and he feels that this is hurting the team and keeping the Pirates from being competitive.

Reflecting on his hopes of a winning team and a winning season Connolly says, "I've had five years here and it hasn't happened and now it's someone else's time to try."

Connolly's resignation comes at the end of a disappointing 3-7 season and a season that saw the injury problem magnified in the hard-hitting game against the Refugio Bobcats.

Drainage study ordered by council

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

A study of the drainage, now and in the past, of the Long Beach Canal area was ordered by Rockport's city council Tuesday as officials began a search for answers to growing drainage problems north of the city.

And in related action during the special meeting that began at 4 p.m. at City Hall, the council voted to initiate procedures for annexation of Traylor Avenue and Hwy. 35

North to the north line of Traylor to square off the city's boundaries.

Rockport's city council is expected to formally consider accepting a petition for the annexation of Traylor Avenue in its meeting Monday night, Nov. 22. Also on the agenda will be consideration of the dates for the two public hearings that must be held on the proposed annexation. The council meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. following a joint city council/planning and zoning public hearing at 7:15 p.m.

City Alderman W. B. Allen made the motion for a drainage study to be undertaken in an area including Live Oak

Harbor rewiring aired by ACND

By Ted Norman

In a special meeting of the Aransas County Navigation District Tuesday, Nov. 16, the commissioners heard a report from Joel Zapata of Central Power and Light Company on suggestions to rewire the electrical system at the Rockport Harbor.

Zapata told the board members that there are several ways to handle the electrical job but after a brief discussion between Zapata and the board members it was determined the best way would be an overhead system with meters in clusters of six installed around the harbor.

Several members of the board expressed a desire to go to an underground electrical system but ACND chairman Bobby Landrum reminded the board and Zapata that the seawall tiebacks and other lines would prevent this type of installation.

Zapata explained that CPL would provide an overhead service to the meters and supply the meters and meter boxes at no cost to the district. The district would have to fabricate the boards to hold the meter boxes and mount the meter boxes and provide for the electrical work from the CPL connection to the meters and on to each boat stall desiring electrical service.

The electrical rewiring project has been on hold for a couple of years, according to Landrum, and the commissioners said they feel it is time to move forward with the project.

After the discussion between the ACND board members and Zapata, the commissioners passed a motion to give harbor-master Bernie DeForest permission to pursue the matter and put the job out for bids.

The board also passed a motion to cancel a 20-year lease at Cove Harbor at the request of Bill Johnson, a long time lease holder at Cove Harbor who told the board, "oil related business is slow and I don't see it getting better and I can't see spending $300,000 if there isn't a chance of getting it back."

The board members consulted with attorney Reese Rozzell and he advised them that they could terminate the lease and the board members voted to do so.

Commissioner Holman told the board that they should reconsider their proposal to build a boat ramp on the east end of the north seawall of the Fulton Harbor.

Holman said the north wall of that harbor is in very poor condition and should be replaced, and he said when it is replaced it should be moved back about 70 feet to make room for some more boat slips. He said he believes the boat ramp should go on the west end of the wall.

Commissioner Dave Maguglin asked, "Kirk, why put the ramp where all the boats have to go through the harbor?"

"That's right Dave, it belongs right where it is and improve it," said Holman in response.

"There are a thousand ideas and the one you all propose is probably the worst one," said Holman.

When Holman suggested that the navigation district remove and relocate the Fulton Harbor seawall and create some new boat stalls Maguglin asked, "Are you trying to bankrupt the Aransas County Navigation District like you've been doing for the past 12 months?"

The district also took under consideration request by Gary Dreiss to turn his bait stand around and to turn the lease over to Bobby Shaw who is trying to buy the bait stand. The stand is the one near the west end of Fulton Harbor.

Landrum said the board would like to see the bait stand back like it was originally, with most of it out over the water. And he told Dreiss that if he gets a permit the ACND will give permission to turn the bait stand. Dreiss said he has a permit but has to send in $100 before the permit will be sent to him.

Commissioner Hillis Dominguez asked whose boat would be in the stall the bait stand would sit over and Dreiss replied,

City charter article review set

Proposed drafts of the articles in Rockport's city charter, now being prepared by the city charter commission, will be published each week in the Rockport

Pilot beginning with next week's Nov. 26 issue.

Initial drafts of articles 1 through 7 and Article 9 have been adopted by the charter commission as of the commission's last meeting on Nov. 15. Proposed articles 8 and 10-12 will be considered in future sessions of the commission which meets at 5 p.m. every Monday at Rockport's City Hall.

The proposed articles, and the chairman of the subcommittee appointed to draft each, are:

Article 1, form of city government and boundaries, Pat Brown.

Article 2, powers of the city, Gayle Atchley.

Article 3, city council, Marty Renfro.

Article 4, city administration, Tommy Griffith.

Article 5, nominations and elections, Curtis Kovacs.

Article 6, initiative, referendum and recall, J.C. Harlan.

Article 7, municipal finance, Richard McMakin.

Article 8, tax administration, Eddie Ratliff.

Article 9, boards and commissions, Ralph Winkelman.

Article 10, planning and zoning commission, Mary Lou Tiner.

Article 11, utility and public service franchises and licenses, Bill Walston.

Article 12, general and transitional provisions, Jerry Beattie.

The charter commission was elected and began meetings in August to draw up a proposed city charter for Rockport. If the charter is approved by city voters in the charter election that is now expected to be called next April, Rockport will become a home rule city.

Notable notes

City Hall to close

Rockport's City Hall will be closed Thursday, Nov. 25, in observance of Thanksgiving Day. Garbage pickups usually made on Thursday will be made on Wednesday, Nov. 24. No garbage pickups will be made on the holiday.

C of C to be closed

The Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce will be closed Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 25-27, for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Auditorium open house

Aransas County residents are invited to the open house for the new Rockport-Fulton High School Auditorium, remodeled high school and remodeled cafeteria on Omo-hundro Street from 3 until 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 21.

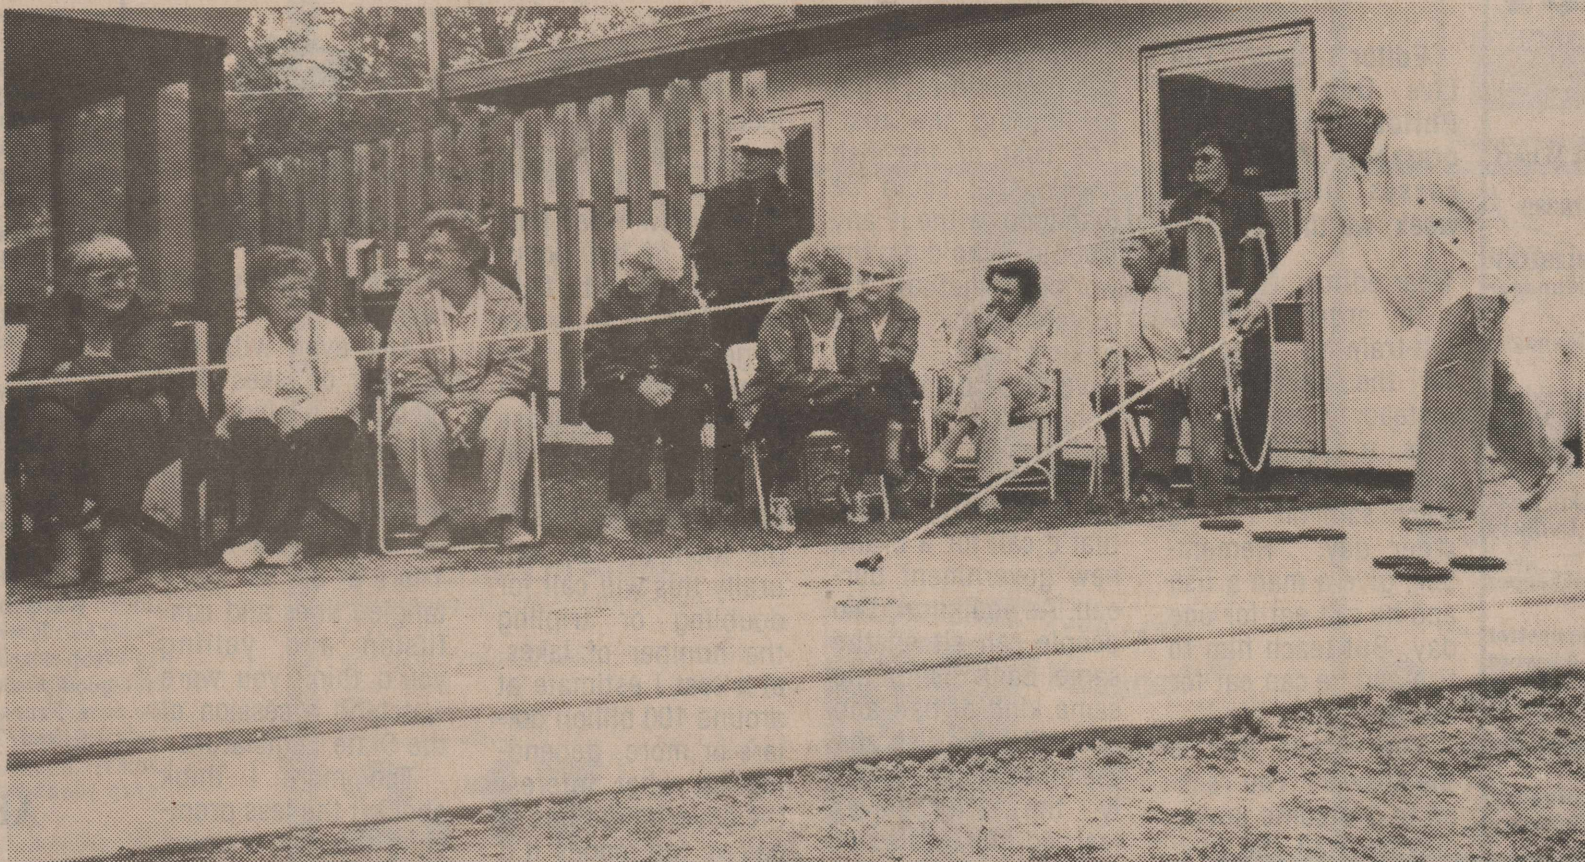

Bake sale

A bake sale will be held after each mass at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 20 and 21. The bake sale on Saturday will follow the 6 p.m. mass and the Sunday sale will follow the 7:30 a.m. mass and continue until noon. Cash donations will also be accepted with all proceeds going to help improve the Sacred Heart School library.

AARP dances

Rockport AARP chapter 1536 sponsors a dance every Thursday from 7-10 p.m. at the Paws and Taws building. Music is provided by Gene Rickles and the public is invited. There will be no dance on Thursday, Nov. 25, due to the Thanksgiving holiday.

Deadline for next week's Pilot Weekender will be 5 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 23, so the Pilot staff can spend Thanksgiving holiday with their families. The Rockport Pilot will be open Friday, Nov. 26.

Eliminate waste and save Social Security system

You've been hearing about the financially troubled Social Security fund and what eventually may happen to the system.

The millions of recipients of the retirement supplement are understandably worried about the fund's future because many of them depend on it for a living.

In the heat of political debate, there have been many proposed solutions, as well as cruel rumors that the Social Security system would soon be bankrupt and payments stopped.

Social Security faces a $60-$75 million cash shortage by the end of this decade. Next July, unless remedial action is taken, there won't be enough money in the retirement trust fund for the 32 million monthly benefit checks to go out on schedule.

The checks will be sent out a few days later after more payroll tax money is received, but if the condition persists within a year checks would be a month behind, eliminating a payment.

It would get worse until later this decade when scheduled tax increases take effect that would make up the shortfall. Additional tax raises scheduled for 1990 would put Social Security on firm ground until the 21st century, government economists believe.

However, this scenario is unlikely. Democrats and Republicans differ on Social Security financing. They agree the system will not be allowed to go into default.

Leaders of both parties know the greatest political mistake they could make would be to permit the Social Security system to go bankrupt. This would also cause suffering among the elderly of unimaginable magnitude.

This encouragement from U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., chief congressional spokesman for the elderly: "There's nothing to despair about the Social Security system. Congress has always stood by Social Security and always will." The big question Congress will have to answer when it convenes in January is whether the money to bail out the system will come from raising taxes, either directly or indirectly, or restraining growth of benefits. It is likely a combination of both alternatives will be considered.

A key battleground will be cost-of-living increases, which got the system in trouble when Congress approved automatic increases based on the assumption, which proved to be wrong, that wages would increase faster than prices.

Since taxes are based on wages and benefits on prices, congressmen reasoned the system would be sound. Ironically, lawmakers believed it would save money over the previous system of having Congress decide when benefit increases were justified.

But they are wrong. In 1980, for example, the average wage increase was eight percent while benefits rose 14.3 percent.

Combined with high unemployment, each one percent rise in the jobless rate means the Social Security system collects $2 billion less in taxes, and that miscalculation has virtually exhausted a once-comfortable surplus.

Although President Reagan stands against any tax increases next year, it is likely the immediate shortfall will be made up by a payroll tax increase.

If it were possible to eliminate part of the waste in government, enough money would be saved to finance the Social Security system and make a substantial payment on the national debt each month.

Close races

In one of the closest races in the 1982 general election, and there were several, incumbent Republican Gov. James R. "Big Jim" Thompson of Illinois defeated Democrat challenger Adlai Stevenson by only 6,960 votes out of 3.6 million.

The election was a cliff-hanger from start to finish with the count seesawing for almost four days after the polls closed. The final results were not known until state election officials told county clerks on the fourth day after the election to secure ballots.

Despite ballots having been found in a shopping bag and car trunk, there have been few allegations of fraud except those originating in the Thompson camp.

It is ironic that the victorious Thompson, who as a federal attorney helped spearhead an election cleanup drive in Illinois in the early 1970s, now appears to be one of the chief beneficiaries of the drive.

Stevenson challenged Thompson to submit evidence of alleged vote fraud, if he had any, to authorities or "shut up." The angry challenge came after Thompson told supporters he would not let the election be stolen from him in the official canvass. Results are to be certified Nov. 22.

Thompson appeared earlier to have garnered a safe margin of about 9,000 votes until a computer check of 14 Chicago precincts revealed thousands of previously unrecorded votes.

In those precincts, Stevenson led Thompson by 2,962 votes, which reduced the incumbent's margin to 6,960 votes. Returns now show Thompson polled

1,814,173 votes to Stevenson's 1,804,251, a difference of only 9,222 votes.

There were several other close contests in balloting across the nation in the off-year election.

For example, Democrat Tom Vandergriff won his race for the new North Texas 26th Congressional District seat after absentee ballots reversed an apparent loss and gave him a 434-vote victory over Republican Jim Bradshaw. A recount appears virtually certain, Bradshaw's supporters said.

A 434-vote victory sounds safe enough until you examine the totals: Vandergriff, former Arlington mayor, 69,797; Bradshaw, 69,363.

One of the most disheartening election results for Republicans was former student radical Tom Hayden's defeat of their candidate, insurance agent Bill Hawkins, for a Santa Monica, Calif., State Assembly seat.

Hayden is the husband of actress Jane Fonda. Both have been active in radical political causes for several years.

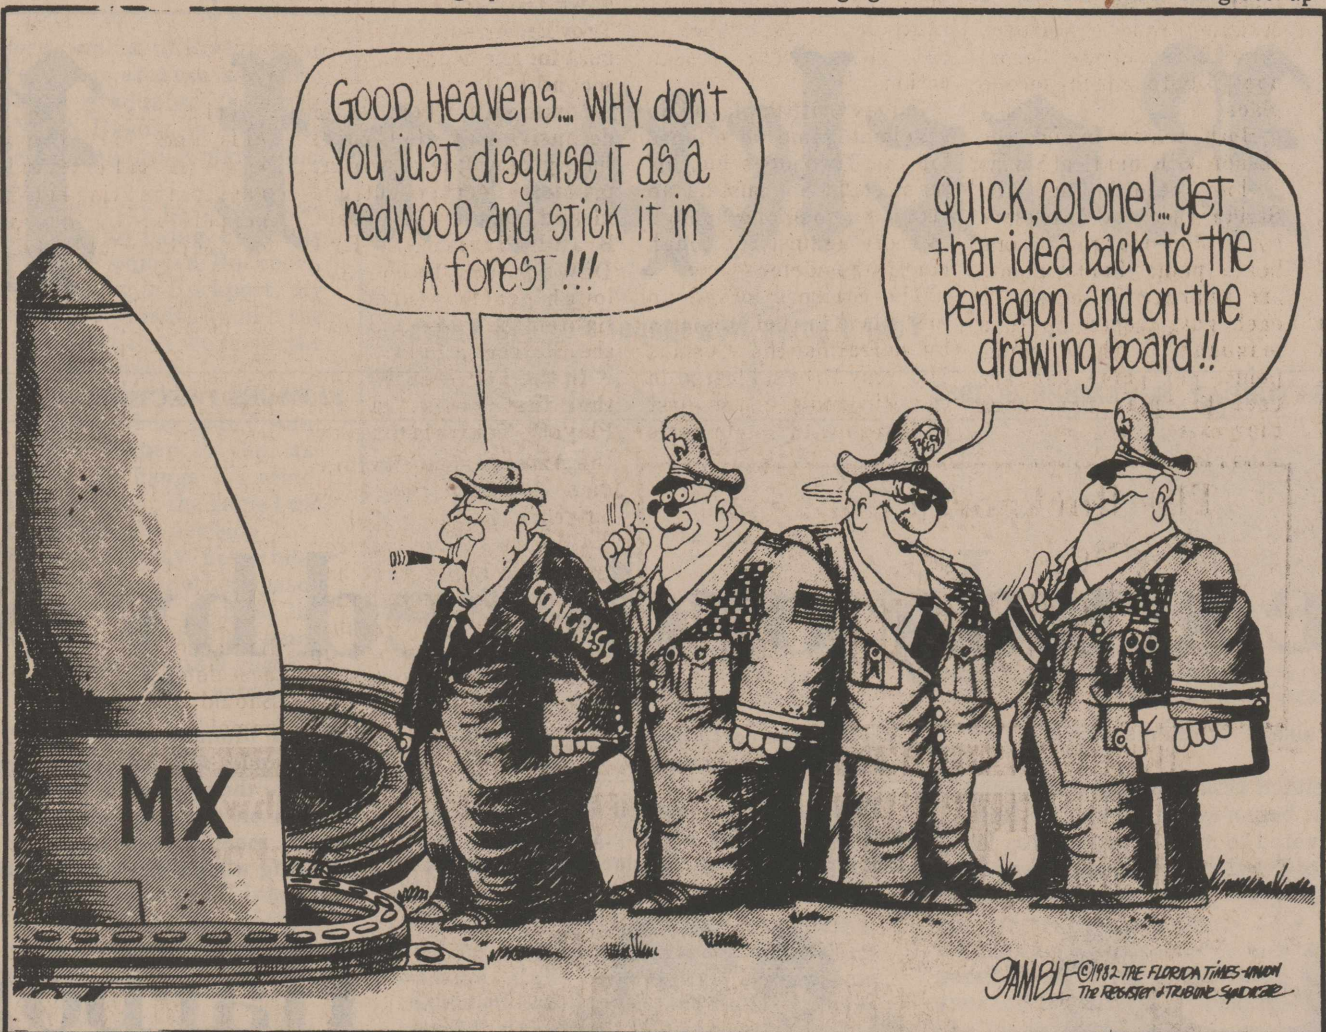

One of the greatest advantages of the democratic electoral process is that decisions can be reversed in due time if those elected to offices of public trust do not perform satisfactorily.

Austin at Wharf

EVEN AS WE started to raise Karakal's anchor, fog set in over the Intracoastal Waterway obscuring the trees on the north bank. A bit of bad luck, as we'd scheduled an unusually long day's run. We had anchored the evening before off the south bank, protected to a degree by an anchored dredge a few hundred yards to the east.

Not an ideal place, but with darkness approaching there was no alternative because the entrance to a slough just past the Gibbstown, La. bridge was blocked by dredging equipment. Fortunately the light southeasterly wind held us almost parallel to the bank. Shortly after eight in the morning the fog cleared and we were underway, three hundred miles from Rockport in 10 days. I dare say that those of you who complain of the 55 mph speed limit may regard us as idiots. We answer that we really see, absorb the passing scenery and traffic with delight, things which on the highway pass from memory in quick flashes.

So what, you will ask. When you want to go some place you want to get there. Very well, you are in the majority, but if we cruising folk are not legion, we are sufficiently numerous so that we find kindred spirits wherever we go. Besides, at least I have little regard for majorities. For example, were I writing my usual column I should be blasting away at the Texas majority who a few days ago elected to office sizable numbers of incompetents with twisted philosophies.

PERHAPS THEN IT might be in order to give a brief resume of Karakal's madcap crew. Begin with the Skipper. Guy Denton awakened one day with his thoughts on Karakal, docked for nearly two years at Watergate, near Houston. I can't tell you his exact thought, only the results. Not in a day but in fairly short order he gave up his medical practice and headed for Watergate. That was six years ago and Karakal has been his home ever since.

Home indeed. The yacht has been homesteaded, even as your house and mine. His longest stay in any place over those six years has been Rockport. He departed with us, his crew of three, exactly to the day, one year later. However, most of the time, since Karakal has been his home, has been spent in the Bahamas. Once he covered most of the Atlantic seaboard.

Marie Jones is a retired San Antonio businesswoman with a past love life. Her loves were flying, auto and speedboat racing and air conditioning. Following her retirement she lived for a time on an island in a lake near Seguin, but like the Skipper she had an awakening. Houses, she began to realize, are inanimate things bound securely to a single mooring. A ship, someone told her, is a living thing, forever in motion — the one born in the security of maturity, the other forever young. And so she sold her home, bought a trawler and settled in Rockport to dream. It was the Skipper who convinced her of the wisdom of joining Karakal.

Then Kitty and I. We have sailed our 24-foot sloop for a dozen years and have had the good fortune to crew, as now, for extended periods with friends in larger craft. Half a dozen years ago we gave up newspaper careers to concentrate as much as possible upon sailing.

SINCE DEPARTING Port Arthur three days ago, the wind has headed us and we have been under power. I have just come from my turn at the wheel. For several hours the waterway has been straight as an arrow, brown alongside, ahead tarnished pewter. On the banks the foliage is shades of red, yellow, green and silver. Overhead the sky is blue with occasional patches of fluffy white clouds. We watch flights of ducks and other waterfowl as well as land birds. Below the engine croons a drowsy tune — a drowsy tune. I think of an old sea song: "It's grand to lie on the hatches, On a glowing tropic night, When the sky is clear and the stars seem near, While down below the engines croon a drowsy tune, And the whole world is mystery."

This is living, at least for me. Each day that passes, I think, adds another year to my life. Impossible dream? Before this year is out I shall have spent close to 100 days of it cruising. I reluctantly confess that it is slightly impossible for a man to expect to live the better part of two centuries. Perhaps it is even a selfish dream, but one that does no harm to me, nor my fellow men.

Nuclear freeze

Proponents of a so-called nuclear weapons freeze failed to get a strong response in the 1982 general election.

Nuclear freeze resolutions on ballots in eight of nine states were supported by most voters, but they simply said in voting for the resolutions they would like to see the threat of nuclear war reduced.

There was no firm message to Congress to act on legislation that would freeze U.S. production, testing and deployment of nuclear weapons. This means the vote must be interpreted in light of the way some of the resolutions were worded.

For instance, in Milwaukee, voters were asked if they favored spending more on education, mass transit and help for the needy by cutting outlays for nuclear weapons.

Because of the way the resolution was phrased, four out of five voters agreed with it. Few people want to go on record opposing education, mass transit, and helping the poor.

The zeal of proponents of a nuclear weapons freeze to get public support for their position is understandable, but it will take a great deal more than a "straw vote" to get the job done.

Certainly no wants to do anything that would increase the nuclear war threat. Everything that can be done to prevent such a war should be done. However, resolutions are not of much use in disarmament discussions between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Unilateral action by the U.S. in freezing productions of nuclear weapons would be welcomed by the Soviet Union and almost certainly would place the U.S. in far greater danger than it is now.

The nuclear freeze resolution was voted down in Arizona, and in California it won by a narrow 52-48 margin. It was not on the Texas ballot.

Before a nuclear freeze would work, the Soviet Union would have to agree to accept on-site inspection of arms production facilities, which it is unlikely to do. For this and other reasons, it would be foolhardy for the U.S. to stop building or to reduce its nuclear arsenal in the absence of agreement by the Soviet Union to do the same.

The answer to the problem does not lie in ballot resolutions, but in meaningful negotiations by both sides until agreement is reached, which would include verifiable procedures that have in the past been unacceptable to the Soviet Union.

The public clamor, strengthened by results of the 1982 general election to reduce funds being spent on national defense, likely will grow louder as time approaches for Congress to convene.

To make serious cuts in defense spending at this juncture in the arms dispute might prove to be an unwise move for the U.S. unless those who are clamoring the loudest can convince the Kremlin to do likewise.

It seems to us the wisest course Congress could take, in light of the continuing massive arms buildup by the Soviet Union, would be to mount an all-out drive to reduce waste in military procurement and weapons control procedures.

There's not much doubt enough could be saved to satisfy the clamor for reduced arms expenditures without damaging the nation's defense efforts.

Fish program not very promising

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr farm discusses fishing this week, we think.

Dear editor:

In arguing for a job-training program for the unemployed, instead of leaf-raking jobs, a Congressman whose name I didn't catch said on TV the other day: "Remember, give a man a fish and he can eat for one day. But teach him to fish and he can eat for the rest of his life."

You reckon this is the answer? You reckon to overcome unemployment all the government has to do is hand out 11 million fish hooks?

While maybe this has possibilities, I got to figuring the cost. The cost of the fish hooks, that could be managed without any trouble. Who'd dig the worms, whether the private sector or the government, would have to be decided by Congress.

But as for teaching people how to fish, that'd call for a brand new government bureau. As you know, two people can sit on the same bank using the same kind of bait and one will catch fish and the other won't. Clearly, the latter never learned the basics of successful fishing and needs governmental training if he's going to eat fish the rest of his life and reduce the federal deficit.

And there's a more serious problem. I don't know what percentage of the population is already fishing, but it's pretty large, and you suddenly train and turn millions more loose with poles or rods and reels and the streams and lakes won't handle them all. So naturally this will call for doubling or tripling the number of lakes, at a cost I estimate at around 100 billion dollars or more, depending on what interest the government has to pay on the money it'd have to borrow. There's not a lake in this country the government actually paid cash for.

And even with the number of lakes doubled or tripled, I'm afraid the shores would still be lined three or four deep with hungry fishermen. There'd be so many tangled lines and confusion and yelling you'd think you were watching a session of the State Legislature.

The more I think about it the less promising this fish-training program seems.

Yours faithfully, J.A.

Letters

Recently, Miss Pat Blair visited the Gifted/Talented students in the seventh and eighth grade class at Rockport-Fulton Junior High School.

Miss Blair talked to us about some of the "do's" and "don'ts" in becoming a journalist. She, also, told us about the educational background necessary for becoming a newspaper reporter.

We greatly appreciated her taking time out of her busy schedule to come to speak to us. Thank you very much.

We think Miss Blair and The Rockport Pilot are "top-notch." Keep up the good work!

Allegro

Recently, the students in the Allegro Program, grades three through eight, of Aransas County Independent School District visited the Aransas County Public Library. The purpose of the trip was to acquaint the students with the library, especially with the reference section. The trip was beneficial in helping the students begin their units of study ranging from endangered species to space exploration and computers.

Mrs. Hammon, the public librarian, discussed the use of various books in the reference section and showed and explained to the students the use of the microfiche viewer. She also told the students she could obtain some special reference materials, if they needed them in their unit research, through the library system. In addition, the students were allowed to obtain library cards and to check out books.

Franklins fulfill goal of 'super' vacation

By PAT BLAIR
They drove through subtropical rain forests, they watched sheep being sheared, they saw flocks of wild cockatoos and parrots, they almost climbed the world's largest monolith...

In short, says Billie Franklin, she and her husband Dick did what they wanted to do — they had "a real, super vacation."

It all started last summer when the Franklins sold their Travel Trailer Haven park which they'd operated in Fulton for the past five years. They'd bought the trailer park when they first came to Aransas County, Billie said in an interview at their home on Rowe Street this past week, and they hadn't taken a vacation in all the time they'd owned it.

They decided it was time they had a vacation — a "super" vacation.

And they decided to spend it in Australia, because, said Billie, "we'd never been there."

Their only major concern, once they'd decided to go, was what to do about Legs, their great dane that "took up with us when we were operating the trailer park" and moved with them to Rowe Street. That problem was solved when some Winter Texans who knew the Franklins — and Legs — offered to park their "Fifth Wheel" across the street from the Franklins' residence and "great dane sit" until the Franklins returned. The arrangement worked out well, especially for Legs who moved right in with her sitters on the day they arrived, Billie said.

The trip itinerary called for Billie and Dick to fly from Corpus Christi to San Francisco and from there to Honolulu where they stayed three days "just to break that long flight," Billie said, and then on to Townsville on the northeast coast of Australia.

In Townsville, they rented a camper van and set out for a week to Cairne and the Atherton Tableland before returning to Townsville again. "One of the things that just blew my mind the moment we arrived in Australia," Billie said, "was that it was the middle of June and poinsettias were in bloom. Then of course I remembered that, in that part of the world, it was winter..."

She was further impressed during that part of what turned out to be a three-month trek through Australia and New Zealand, by the subtropical rain forests. "Huge stag-horn ferns were hanging from the trees — magnificent," she breathed. And of course there were the fields of sugarcane, banana plantations, pineapple fields, pawpaw groves.

Cairne, she recalled, reminded them of Corpus Christi. "Along the coastline there are beautiful sandy shores and small beautiful lush islands just offshore, part of the Great Barrier Reef. And waterfalls — you just can't see and do everything," she added. "We could've easily spent a year there and still not seen everything."

Among the things they did see — in profusion — were birds. "We saw sulphur-crested cockatoos," she enthused, "like the one on 'Baretta' flying in the wild." There were also wild parrots and once she and Dick were treated to a chorus by five kookaburras, called by the Australians "laughing jackass birds" because of their strange cry.

After they returned to Townsville, Billie said, they took a motorcoach into the outback. "A motorcoach," she explained, "is a bus with a restroom — but don't make the mistake of calling it a bus and don't call the driver a bus driver."

That leg of their trip took them to Alice Springs, the so-called "center of Australia," a country, Billie noted, "almost as large as the United States." One of the things that struck them during their three months in Australia and New Zealand, she added, is the amount of undeveloped area in the country. Australia has a population of around 15 million people and the population of the two islands that comprise New Zealand is about three and a half million people — "and 60 million sheep," Billie added.

While in the outback, Billie and Dick took a two-day tour to Ayers Rock, the world's largest monolith. "It's huge," Billie said, with Dick affirming its about 15 miles around the base. A chain stretches from bottom to top to provide handholds for those who want to try climbing it.

"I tried climbing it," Billie said, "but about two-thirds of the way up, I was breathing hard. I decided a trip to the top wasn't worth a heart attack, so I came down."

From Alice Springs, the Franklins went to Adelaide — "a beautiful city" — then on to Canberra, Australia's capital, and Sydney, "a lovely lady."

While in Sydney, Billie said, she and Dick stayed in King's Cross "which is part of the old section of the city. We realized later it was part of the Red Light District — which made our stay more interesting."

Their visit there included a day at the Toronga Park Zoo: "We saw kangaroos, wallabies, wombats, koalas, platypus — all the animals that are unique to Australia." The zoo includes a nocturnal house where the light are turned on at night and dimmed during the day to encourage the animals to be active during visitors' hours.

From Sydney, Billie and Dick flew to Melbourne and from there to Auckland, New Zealand, where they began their tour through that small country.

"New Zealand," Billie said, "consists of two large islands with several small islands dotting the coastline, and it has more natural beauty and fantastic scenery than any place we've ever been. On the North Island, we made a one-day coach trip to the very tip of the island and on our way back, on our right was the beach and the Tasman Sea and on the left, sand dunes and almost immediately — mountains. It was a very unusual experience."

It's a country of volcanic lakes and thermal areas. In to the Rotorua area, Billie said, all the hotels and parks can offer hot baths courtesy of the naturally-heated warm springs, geysers and hot mud pools.

In New Zealand, several thousand miles from home, the Franklins were reminded of Rockport and Aransas County when they looked up — by request — Don and Pat Smith, the parents of Pam Sherk of Lamar. "Pam told me, if we went to New Zealand, we could call her parents. They were lovely people — they took us sightseeing and home to dinner..."

"I called Pat one day," Billie added, "and she said she'd just talked to Pam. I felt like I was in touch with home."

It was in New Zealand, too, that the Franklins stopped one day at a farm to watch sheep being sheared. As it turned out, Dick says, the people had just sheared the last sheep, all but two rams, but because the Franklins had wanted to see a sheep being sheared, one of the rams was brought out and sheared on the spot. As a final token of the experience, the Franklins were given a handful of wool to take with them.

"The people of New Zealand are so warm and friendly," Billie emphasized during the interview. "We were invited into three different homes for dinner during our stay there — just by people we met casually."

In all, Billie said, she and Dick were on 14 different airplanes, a camper van, spent 14 days on a motorcoach and three hours on a ferry during their three months away. "We saw and did things we couldn't have done on a planned tour," she said, and though they eventually decided that three months was too long to travel, they have few regrets and a lot of memories to enjoy.

After they returned from their trip Down Under, they spent some time visiting friends and relatives in Texas but now they're home in Rockport for a while.

And now that they are home, says Billie, "We probably will get into some other type of business. We're not ready to sit and fold our hands."

Whatever they do in the near future, Billie says she and Dick don't plan any more three-month trips. "We thoroughly enjoyed it," she said, "but it made us appreciate home."

Salvation Army kicks off drive

The kickoff meeting for the Rockport Salvation Army Service Unit fund drive was held at Allied Live Oak Bank on Saturday, Nov. 13 at 10:30 a.m., Bob Hewes, service unit committee chairman and Aransas County sheriff announced today.

The goal of $4,000 will be used to pay for The Salvation Army's services for the less fortunate in this area.

"We are confident that our community will support the emergency fund program as generously as in the past," they said.

The committee chairman also revealed that Blas Ramirez and Jack Forrest will serve as campaign co-chairmen for the fund drive. The campaign

The committee, composed of business and civic leaders, carries out a year-round program of aid to people with emergency needs. Acting on behalf of The Salvation Army, the committee arranges for food, lodging, utilities or other basic necessities that a family or an individual might require in a crisis situation. The service unit committee also acts as liaison with The Salvation Army's statewide programs. Some of these services include summer outings for boys at the Army's Camp Hoblitzelle near Dallas; help for paroled prisoners; and emergency relief in time in natural disaster. Members of the committee are Bob Hewes, chairman; Tony Harden, treasurer; Rev. Charles Fake; Rev. John Bradshaw and Blas Ramirez.

The committee is still in need of volunteer workers and will accept all help. Please contact Bob Hewes at the sheriff's office or Mary Ann Evans at 729-9751.

Boehnke receives award

Walter Boehnke of Aransas Pass has been named Citizen of the Year for 1982 by the Chamber of Commerce of Aransas Pass for his civic contributions.

Boehnke, who is associated with Commercial Motors of Aransas Pass and has lived in Aransas Pass for the past 42 years, was one of the founders of the Live Oak Country Club and served as the second president of the club.

In addition, Boehnke is the deputy district governor for the local Lions Club, a former president of the Aransas Pass Chamber of Commerce, a past member of the Aransas Pass school board, and past president of the Ford Dealers Association.

Area man charged with theft

Reuben Ancira, an area resident, was charged with theft following his capture about an hour after he stole the cash box from No Jo's on FM 1069.

The incident occurred between 9 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 18, when Ancira reportedly reached over the counter, grabbed the cash box and ran.

Aransas County Sheriff Bob Hewes, deputies and reserve deputies from Aransas County, a deputy from Ingleside and the police chief and three police officers from Aransas Pass joined the chase that resulted in Ancira's arrest.

Aransas County Deputy Lee Wagoner said the cash box contained about $166.

'Nitron' aids rose growth

By Ted Brice
"The Garden Editor"

In November 1981 there was an article in the American Rose Society magazine about a new product called "Nitron." Your garden editor, who is a member of the American Rose Society and who grows show roses, was very interested in learning more about this new product called "Nitron." Within the last few months I have received many questions about Nitron from my readers.

Nitron is the product of Frank and Gay Finger of Larned, Kan. Finger has been and still is a farmer in Kansas and for many years he has been very familiar with the growing problems that we all are faced with each year. "Nitron" has been tested by many colleges and/or universities. Some of the reports back from these institutions as well as letters from users of Nitron are fantastic and in some cases hard to believe. As you know, the garden editor will write or speak only from his own personal experience.

I have soaked various seeds in Nitron from a few hours to overnight. This is truly amazing — within a few hours, in most instances, there was germination of the seed. This included Bluebonnet seed which has a very hard outer coat and normally needs this outer coat broken or at least scratched before planting.

We are all looking for better roses with larger blooms, healthier foliage, stronger stems which in turn means a stronger root system. This is exactly what I achieved when I used Nitron Formular A-35. I simply used 3/4 cup of Nitron per rose bush and watered it heavily.

This was done twice a year, in the spring and then again in the fall of the year. In checking the soil surrounding my rose bushes after this application of Nitron, I found that I was rid of all the unwanted toxins and salts. This enabled the rose bush to utilize all the fertilizer that I had applied and reduce my fertilizer cost while still producing top quality plants with fabulous blooms.

Another use of Nitron I discovered was to mix it with the water and foliar feed the bushes. Nitron reduced the alkaline in the water which in turn let the foliage absorb the fertilizer that I was applying and leaving cleaner-looking leaves.

This Nitron Formular A-35 is just what the doctor ordered for roses and seed. As your garden editor uses Nitron on other plant material he will report the results here in the garden editor column. At this time Nitron Formular A-35 appears to be what the gardeners have waited for, for many hundreds of years.

If you would like more information about Nitron Formular A-35 write to your Garden Editor c/o The Rockport Pilot, 1002 Wharf Street, Rockport, TX 78382.

Good gardening until next week from your garden editor Ted Brice!

A fool and his money are soon parted. The rest of us wait until income-tax time.

Construction is tentatively scheduled to begin sometime next year on the Seachase Condominiums, located at 800 Fulton Beach Rd. in Fulton. A secure, tree-laden haven with a window to Gulf fishing and water sports, Seachase offers the convenience of a maintenance-free condominium lifestyle.

Phase I consists of 58 units with two and three bedroom floor plans including such features as a woodburning fireplace; a refrigerator/freezer combination with ice-maker; dishwasher and disposal; double stainless steel kitchen sink; stacked washer and dryer; wet bar area; color coordinated wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, dining area and bedrooms; vinyl wall and floor coverings in kitchen and bathrooms; cable TV and prewired telephone outlets; private owner's closet with dead-bolt; smoke detectors; automatic garage door openers for those units with garage; wiring for ceiling fans in bedroom and living room areas; range, oven and microwave with overhead exhaust; full use of all recreational facilities; large air-conditioned dwelling areas (1,250 to 1,510 square feet); nine-foot ceiling heights; large balconies and some oversized patios available; ample parking with garages available; perimeter fencing, entrance design and other security-oriented features. In addition, the property will include two swimming pools and two tennis courts, as well as a marina with 61 boat slips in Aransas Bay.

Each owner will have a choice of four color schemes which include carpeting, wall and floor coverings provided by the developers.

The developers consist of three partners, D.P. (Pat) Buell, Robert (Bob) Callaway and the Richard Gill Company. Buell is currently the president of Buell Construction Company of Dallas, and has been involved in real estate development for over 20 years. Although the scope of his firm's activities is nationwide, Buell has been in Gulf Coast condominium development and construction since 1966.

Callaway is the president of the Robert Callaway Corporation of San Antonio. An architect and a planner by education and profession, Callaway brings 25 years of experience to the Seachase project.

The Richard Gill Company/Gill Savings Association is headquartered in San Antonio and has 19 branches in Texas. With over $600 million in assets and a 60-year banking history Gill brings knowledge and financial expertise to the Seachase development.

George R. Griffith, sales director, and Johnnie Smith sales assistant, are currently in charge of the sales division of the Seachase condominiums. The sales office is located at 800 Fulton Beach Rd.

Lack of processing adds to health food costs

By Jean Glowka

Q. Why do health foods and vitamins cost so much? I like to use them, but it just seems like I can't afford it.

A. "Health foods" cost more because it costs more to grow foods organically (using no pesticides or chemical fertilizers). Also many of the overprocessed, chemically treated, "nutritionally empty" packaged foods can be shipped farther and kept on store shelves longer without refrigeration. The fact that many of these so-called "foods" could not support the life of bug nor beast (because nutrients have been lost in processing) never occurs to most people — not to mention the possible danger of the different kinds and combinations of chemical preservatives. Unprocessed, untreated foods cost more to ship and to stock, and there's much more loss from spoilage. This drives up the price to retailer and consumer.

As for vitamins — they don't cost as much as you think. Most people find that when they improve their family's nutrition with "whole" foods and vitamins, they find themselves spending less and less on doctor bills, drug bills, dentist bills, etc. They don't spend on "empty calorie" junk food, soft drinks and sugar-filled snacks. Also, how can we really say what it's worth to us to look and feel on top of the world?

Q. Sometimes, about 15 minutes after I drink my daily protein drink, my skin gets sort of red and prickly for a few minutes. It doesn't hurt or anything, but I'm curious about what causes it. Would you know?

A. I imagine that you use brewer's yeast in your drink, and you're probably getting a "flush" from the niacin (a B vitamin) in the yeast. This is a rare occurrence, but it does happen occasionally. It won't hurt you. In fact, it's very good for your complexion.

Until next weeks, folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Please send questions to: Rt. 1, Box 437, Rockport, Tx. 78382.

Families holding the line on clothing budgets

COLLEGE STATION — Today's smart families constantly seek ways to hold the line on clothing budgets, according to Dr. Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Annual spending for clothing was estimated at $502 per person in 1981. This is an increase of $42 per person over 1980. Higher prices account for about $21 of the increase," she says.

Prices did not rise evenly, however, in all categories. Women's suits and infants' and toddlers' clothing increased more than other types of apparel, Vanderpoorten explains.

"Amount spent per person would be higher if American families were less innovative. They are doing two things to help hold the cost of clothing down — 'shopping smarter' and sewing more," she says.

To "shop smarter," alternative shopping patterns are being developed. More people are buying at "factory outlet" and "discount" stores where brand name clothing is sold at discount prices every day, she notes.

"A second shopping-habit change is buying at thrift stores and re-sale shops. Approximately 49 percent of all Americans — regardless of income — report they shop at second-hand stores because they find 'good buys' there," Vanderpoorten says.

Women have discovered that boys' and men's designer sportswear sells from 25 to 50 percent less than comparable women's wear. Buying in the boys' department saves money, she explains.

Another smart trend is the increasing number of clothes sewn at home.

"Sewing is up because women — and men — have found that they can get a good product for less money by making it themselves," Vanderpoorten adds.

Efforts to encourage and reward their customers are being launched by many fabric stores. Some are sponsoring beginning and specialty sewing classes, and also stocking a wider variety of fabrics, the specialist notes.

Klugman leads lung drive

Jack Klugman, star of TV's "Quincy," appears this season in a new role — as national honorary chairman of the American Lung Association, the Christmas Seal people.

And in this role the actor, who portrays on screen the gruff but lovable crusading forensic pathologist, is crusading for the Lung Association's annual Christmas Seal campaign. Christmas Seals were mailed into thousands of Texas homes during late September and early October.

"They're little enough," Klugman says of Christmas Seals, "but they pack a wallop. Christmas Seals enable the Lung Association to develop important programs to combat lung diseases in this country. I'm proud to be a part of the Lung Association family, and to urge Americans to support the fight for...

air and healthy lungs by answering their Christmas Seal appeal letters."

In an industry known for fast turnover of talent, Klugman's TV roles are of a legendary nature. His remembered "Oscar" in "The Odd Couple" lasted for a five-year period (with current syndication adding to the record) and his title role of "Quincy" has been a TV mainstay since 1976.

Christmas Seals are an American tradition. They can be placed on cards, seal letters, packages and presents. There are even gift tags included in this year's seals. Anyone who needs more Christmas Seals should contact the American Lung Association of Texas, 7701 N. Lamar, Suite 104, Austin, Texas 78751-1088, 512/458-2206.

Delta Kappa Gamma meets

The Gamma Psi chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society met Saturday, Nov. 13, at the Sheldon Library in Ingleside.

A skit, "A Thorn on the Red Rose of Delta Kappa Gamma," was presented by the membership committee.

Three members conducted a memorial service for deceased member Neane Barber of Refugio.

Vi Shirey, Gamma Psi member and Rockport resident, helped edit "Mathematics for Business," which has been published. The chairperson of the Bee County College office occupations division, Shirey also served as a consultant to the publisher, Scott, Foresman and Company.

Vivian Sheldon School, the fifth and sixth grade school in Ingleside was named for Gamma Psi member, Vivian Sheldon. Now retired, Sheldon taught school in Ingleside for 16 years and was a counselor for 10 years.

20th century need

By the Rev. Charles Fake
Pastor, Rockport First Baptist Church

Aren't you glad you're living in the Twentieth Century?

How exciting! This is the day of the astronaut and the Astro-dome, the television and the telephone, the automatic washer and the self-cleaning oven, the computer and the computer, the day scarcely dreamed of by past generations.

This is also the day of astronomical crime rates, televised wars, alcoholics and addicts, depression and suicide, devious schemes and demonic deviations.

We cannot pray to Technology, "Deliver us from evil." That's the Lord's work.

Some folks seem to believe our scientific age has outgrown God. The opposite is true.

Science gave us the awesome atomic arsenal which awaits, like a slave, its master's signal to annihilate. We never needed God more than we do today.

Help available for women in crisis

Women facing the crisis of an unplanned pregnancy can now call a toll-free number and get help. The number is 1-800-292-5713.

That number will put the caller in touch with Buckner Benevolences. Buckner's counselors are trained to handle the psychological, emotional and practical aspects of the problem.

All available options will be discussed in a thorough, confidential manner. The caller will receive help in making a decision and will be free to decide a course of action.

Buckner Pregnancy Counseling is part of the state-wide ministries of Buckner Baptist Benevolences.

Church of God observes 'Ushers Day'

The Ushers of Rockport's Church of God will celebrate their annual "Day" at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 21.

The Rev. V.L. Houston, pastor of New Hope Missionary Baptist Church in Bishop, will be guest speaker for the observance which will also feature special music by the New Hope Baptist Church Choir.

Guest ushers from St. Matthew Missionary Baptist Church of Houston and from New Hope Missionary Baptist will join the ushers of Rockport Church of God in the program.

Others participating in the program will be the Rockport Choir, the Rev. Melvin Ford of Aransas Pass who will deliver the invocation, the Macedonia Group choir from Aransas Pass, Rockport Church of God ushers Vera Predom, Rachel Luddington and Ruby Mitchell and Johnnie Mosely of the New Hope Missionary Baptist Church.

Host of the event will be the Rev. Percy Lewis, pastor of Rockport Church of God, who will also introduce the guest speaker.

Other senior ushers of the Rockport church area are Clara Hernandez, Paris Huff and Leslie Jones. Junior ushers are Bertha Jean Huff, Paula Sue Huff, Leon Kellough, Twila Lewis, Angela Walls and Tressa Walls.

choirs and handbell ringers will perform the anthem again at the community Thanksgiving service Tuesday evening, Nov. 23.

The third special event at First Presbyterian Sunday will be a Chuckwagon Dinner at 6 p.m. in the church's fellowship hall. Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for children age 12 and under and each family is asked to "dress western" and bring a large salad.

Western entertainment will be provided.

All services and activities are open to the community.

I lift up my eyes to the mountains; from where shall come my help? My help shall come from the Lord who made heaven and earth.

Food Fair

St. Peter's Episcopal Church will have its annual Food Fair Friday, Dec. 3, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the church.

Baked goods will be featured along with Christmas ornaments at the Fair. The specialty will be tamales which will be sold at $3.75 a dozen.

Orders for tamales are requested in advance and may be placed by calling 729-5687 or 729-2649.

Three special events will mark this Sunday, Nov. 21, at Rockport's First Presbyterian Church.

The "specials" will begin at the 8:30 a.m. worship services when the church will have the last of its "historic" (in this case, "futuristic") services. The early morning service will be patterned along the lines of a "probable" worship service in the year 2001 A.D., according to First Presbyterian pastor, the Rev. John Bradshaw.

At the 11 a.m. services, First Presbyterian's adult and junior choirs will be joined by handbell ringers from Rockport's First Baptist Church in presentation of a special anthem. The

The Door and The Key

The hopes and visions of mankind... the ideals to which we aspire.

Can we fulfill them? Is there a DOOR to our spiritual hunger?

Men say the Church is the Door! Jesus said He was!

No contradiction... Christ founded the Church!

But useless is the door without a key.

Why not gather the family together and head for your place of worship this week?

The decision to seek the Door—that is the KEY.

Wild turkey is a unique bird

Who doesn't love turkey for Thanksgiving dinner? But it's a shame that the domestic turkey is the only turkey most people have seen.

The wild turkey is much more interesting. It is a unique-looking bird with a huge brown body, long gray featherless neck and pitifully small head for the size of its body. What the head lacks in size it makes up for with protuberances and appendages. A caruncle, or wart-like projection sprouts from the middle of the forehead and can be extended when excited.

Heavy wattles hang from the chin and extend down the front of the neck. All this area can change color from white or gray to blue of bright red.

With such ludicrous head-gear, you'd expect the bird to be very ugly, yet it's huge body glows with metallic bronze feathers that change with the light, reflecting iridescent greens, golds, browns and even reds. The immediate reaction is "how lovely!"

But then, there are these idiotic beards of bristle-like feathers projecting from the center of the breast. They grow throughout the male's lifetime and are never shed. Older males may have beards that are 10-12 inches long. But these beards do wear down and break off from being dragged through the brush. Some females have beards too.

But then again, there is that glorious brown, striped with black, tail that the male fluffs into a fan to attract his harem. While strutting and showing off, he actually rattles his quills.

The original range of the turkey was across the whole country (with the exception of the northwest and northern prairie) and from Mexico to southern Canada.

But ever-greedy hunters extirpated them in many areas especially in states like New Jersey and other northern and northeastern areas. Habitat destruction added to their drastic decline. At one time (1951) the largest population density of turkeys was estimated to be 94 turkeys to the square mile on the Norias Division of the King Ranch.

Because we are still continuing to destroy habitats so drastically their population will probably never reach the 10,000,000 mark again, but conservation efforts by various groups have introduced and reintroduced turkeys in all 48 contiguous states plus Hawaii.

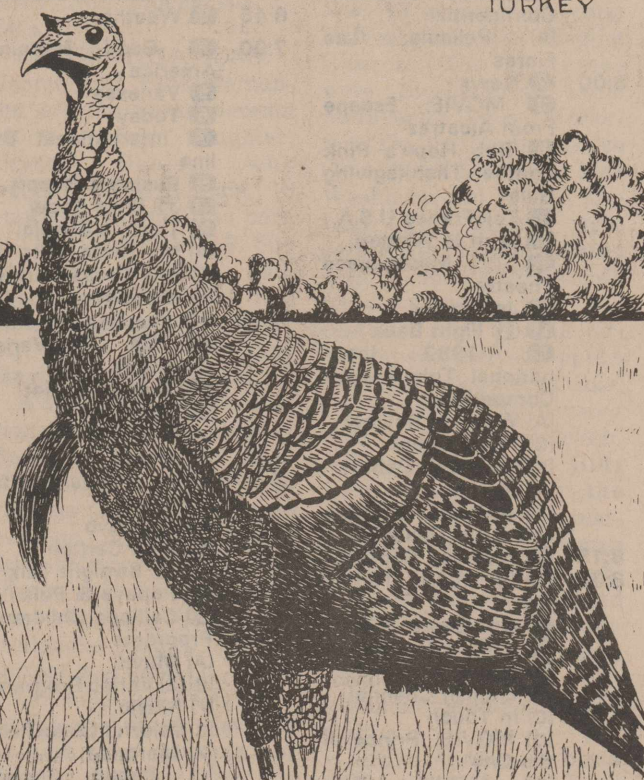

There are only two turkey species, both in the New World, one of which is our species. The other species is the ocellated turkey of the lowlands of Mexico, Belize and Guatemala.

There are six races of the North American wild turkey. The eastern turkey is our forested turkey recognized by its dark chestnut upper tail coverts and buffy tips on the tail feathers.

The South Mexican turkey is the race originally domesticated by the Indians and introduced into Europe and then brought back here. It has white tips to the upper tail coverts and the tail feathers are white-tipped too. These white-tipped tails persist in the present domestic turkeys.

Only the older and stronger males are able to keep and control a harem, usually up to five females. They often compete on a common strutting ground. The females are attracted by the vocal gobbling as well as by the strutting. Once the female has selected a tom, she stays in his territory.

The hen selects a depression, often at the base of a tree and lays 10-12 eggs. Chicks are precocial and are led from the nest about 24 hours after hatching. A chilling rain is critical during the first several weeks of their lives as they cannot survive the chill. Also, they need lots of protein so they search for grasshoppers and crickets in the grasslands rather than the forests.

Adults scratch among the leaf litter for seeds, nuts and acorns. They also eat fruits, corn and seeds, and in summer, many insects.

Turkeys roost in trees — usually the tallest in the area and usually one bird to a tree. I guess that explains the turkeys I've seen sitting on the telephone poles on the ranches. They look like turkey vultures up there!

Police report

Three accidents — two of them on Friday, Nov. 12 — kept Rockport police busy this past week.

Stonewall Vanwie of Rockport was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way and no driver's license following a three-car accident Friday at the intersection of Raht and Glass Ave.

Police said the accident occurred when Vanwie, turning left from Raht onto Glass, was in collision with a car driven by Paul C. Sorenson of Rockport. Sorenson's car was knocked into a car driven by Durand Austin Burr also of Rockport.

In another accident Friday about 11:38 p.m., a pickup driven by Rondal Ray Dominguez of Rockport and a car driven by Jose Angel Torres of Rockport were in collision as Torres was attempting a U-turn on Seabreeze.

Following an accident about 9:15 a.m. Monday, Rosano Garcia Martinez of Rockport was ticketed for improper backing and failure to show proof of liability.

Police said Martinez, southbound on Gagon, entered the intersection with Liberty when her car stalled. As she restarted the vehicle and attempted to back up, her car was in collision with a pickup driven by Melvin Bartie Hull of Rockport.

If most of us are ashamed of shabby clothes and shoddy furniture, let us be more ashamed of shoddy ideas and shoddy philosophies.

Harrison gets three years

Daniel Jonier Harrison was sentenced to three years with the Texas Department of Corrections and fined $750 after he pled guilty of Rape of a Child, in the district court of Judge Ronald M. Yeager Monday, Nov. 15.

Russell Burgner, charged with two counts of unlawful delivery of a controlled substance was sentenced to two terms of five years with the TDC.

Richard Hinton recieved five years with the TDC and was ordered to pay restitution after he pled guilty to burglary of a vehicle.

David Theodore, also charged with burglary of a vehicle had his charges reduced to a Class B misdemeanor and was sentenced to six months in the Aransas County Jail—probated, and given a $100 fine.

Another man charged with burglary of a vehicle, James Pope Jr., pled guilty to Class A theft—a misdemeanor. Pope was sentenced to one year in the Aransas County Jail—probated, and given a $1,000 fine.

Richard Barth pled guilty to unlawful possession of a controlled substance and was sentenced to five years with the TDC—probated, and given a $5,000 fine.

Escape attempt foiled

City, county and state law enforcement officials were called out Monday, Nov. 15, after Leonard Sanchez Martinez, a prisoner being held in Aransas County Jail, escaped from the jail's recreation yard about 2:58 p.m.

David L. Davis pled guilty to felony theft ($200/$10,000) and receiving stolen property. Davis was given a two-year deferred sentence and ordered to pay restitution.

On Nov. 16, Judge Yeager sentenced Wayland Scott Wright Jr. to a five-year sentence with the TDC—probated, after he pled guilty to sexual abuse. Wright voluntarily submitted to the Corpus Christi State School for five years.

Jailers reported that Martinez jumped the fence and ran. The Brownsville man was re-captured following pursuit by Rockport police, sheriff's deputies and Texas Department of Public Safety troopers.

Boat, motorcycle
reported stolen

A 16-foot sailboat valued at $1,800 and a motorcycle valued at $2,000 were reported stolen in Aransas County recently.

The sailboat was reported taken Nov. 12 from a dock behind the residence of the boat owner, Lonzo E. Taylor of Key Allegro. The motorcycle, belonging to Michael A. Baird, was reported taken between Nov. 9 and Nov. 10 from a local restaurant.

A depth finder valued at $200 was taken when the car of James M. Sparks was burglarized between Nov. 11 and Nov. 13. And Connie D. King reported a $50 revolver taken when her Hill Road residence in Aransas Pass was burglarized Nov. 13.

A surfer wallet and contents, valued at $15, was taken from the band hall at Rockport-Fulton

High School. The owner of the wallet, band student Shan Brooks Hutchison, told deputies the wallet was taken while he was playing in the band during the Nov. 12 football game. More than $1,400 in jewelry was reported taken when the residence of Cille Agler was burglarized Nov. 10.

A 12-volt battery and six-man tent were taken from a pickup belonging to Mike Kinser Nov. 8 while the vehicle was in the parking lot of an area bar.

A go-cart valued at $300 was reported taken Nov. 5 or 6 from the back yard of James May on Wildwood Street.

A gas can valued at $55 was taken from a boat belonging to James G. Goff Nov. 12 while the boat was docked off Fulton Beach Road.

Three tickets given in two accidents

Rockport police issued three traffic citations following two accidents in the city this past week. No injuries were reported in either.

Aurelio Fernandez of Rockport was ticketed for failure to signal intent and failure to show proof of liability following an accident about 6:30 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 18, at the intersection of Market and Austin.

Fernandez' car was in collision with a pickup driven by Kenneth L. Harwick of Rockport.

In an accident Tuesday, Dolf Jennings of Fulton was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way after his pickup was in collision with a vehicle driven by Isabell Rios Rinche of Rockport. That incident occurred at the intersection of Live Oak and Liberty about 4:45 p.m.

Coastal Bend Council of Governments

Reaching decisions and acting on them carry a risk. In city government, it is much easier for elected officials to ask for more information and continue to study a controversial issue than to bring the matter to a head. Yet delaying decisions frequently aggravates the problems.

Administrators say that one of the ways private citizens can best support good local government is to express appreciation to their elected officials when they have the strength to decide and act. That may be hard to do when that decision is not exactly as you would choose to have it. If the alternatives have been carefully considered and there is consensus, that's the best that can be asked. Few decisions can please everyone.

That displeasing of some percentage of the people is what makes it tempting to avoid decisions. Those who do nothing can often hang in there inconspicuously year after year. One of the clinches of government is, "the politician is the one who looked toward the next election, the statesman is the one who looks toward the next generation."

As a general rule, those who appear at council meetings have some specific action they want taken or avoided because of its importance to them individually or to their business. These are the voices the council hears. Maybe it is not reasonable to expect, but the individual office holders need to hear the voices of those whose interest is seeing to it that the community is benefited in the long run. Administrators point out that this really is going to be the best for the individuals and for their businesses. Not always today; sometimes a distant tomorrow.

When the budget is being considered, unpopular decisions sometimes have to be made. One city manager says there are two kinds of budgets, one that you might work up if you were leaving after next year and another that you would want to adopt if you planned to be in the community for years to come. Certainly it is good to hold down taxes and fees wherever that can happen. But the alternatives must include an analysis of greater cost involved in delaying a necessary action.

You may earn a place in your community's history for serving at a time when a fine structure is built and dedicated in festive ceremonies. Nobody has a ribbon cutting for replacing deteriorating pipe in underground systems. A bridge may look adequate when you drive across it, but the structure below the roadway may require strengthening. After a large amount of money is spent to make it safe, it still looks the same to those who drive across it and wonder where the money went.

The cities that are in trouble today are primarily those who did not spend money required for maintenance. The city's basic systems are a tremendous investment that will be lost if they are not maintained.

City administrators can recommend, but they can carry out only what the council authorizes. They see the resolve of their councils strengthened when they are made aware of support in the community for a tough decision.

Take the time to express your appreciation to a public official when you know that he or she did not duck a responsible action when it would have been easier to do so.

September sales boost tax collections

Sales in Rockport during September added $66,862.09 to city tax revenues this month as city officials received a check for that amount from State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

The money, the city's November earnings on its one percent city sales tax, was more than $2,000 more than the $64,531.76 collected for the same period last year. Rockport's total sales tax collections for 1982 to date amounted to $314,965.49, 5.93 percent higher than 1981 collections.

Fulton's September sales also boosted the November tax return by about $2,000 — from $4,274.20 in 1981 to $6,561.25 this month. Fulton's sales tax collections for the year to date — $39,812.01 — are 30.91 percent higher than for last year, Bullock reported.

The November sales tax returns in Aransas Pass amounted to $63,813.92, according to Bullock who reported the November, 1981, tax collections were $62,291.79. Year-to-date collections for Aransas Pass amount to $388,048.17, 16.41 percent ahead of last year.

Ingleside's tax collections for the year so far came to $123,269.61, about 2.80 percent above last year's collections. Ingleside too showed a slight increase in November sales tax returns, $25,333.15 compared to $24,890.23 in 1981.

Total sales tax checks for November amounted to $96.2 million, Bullock reported, adding the statewide total is up 9.3 percent over the 1981 total through the same date last year.

The optional one percent city sales taxes are levied by some 967 Texas cities. The taxes are collected by merchants along with the four percent state sales tax and are returned monthly to the cities from Bullock's office.

Resignation

The coach said that injuries always play a major role in keeping the Pirates from competing and he says that this year was no exception.

Connolly said at times it seems that the R-F Pirates suffer from a higher ratio of injuries than other teams in the district and coupled with a small squad with an inability to replace injured players makes it difficult to be competitive.

Small enrollment does not dictate that you can not be successful. But it creates problems that some of our competitors don't experience because they have large enrollments, and the more students you have the bigger the turnout for athletic programs," said Connolly.

Connolly said he was not asked to resign and he had a strong desire to leave a year ago, "But with a new batch of kids coming I changed my mind and decided to try one more time and that was really probably a mistake," said Connolly.

Connolly has been coaching for 12 years and says he wants to stay in the profession. Before coming to Rockport he coached for three years at Alice as a first assistant. Connolly graduated from the University of North Dakota in 1969. He says he would like to stay in 5-A high school coaching in Texas.

Connolly says he will try to find a place where his family will enjoy living, hopefully as much as they have enjoyed Rockport. "We have enjoyed staying in Rockport, my family likes the area, I personally like the area and it is with regret that we leave the Rockport area," said Connolly.

Connolly said he turned in his resignation Tuesday, Nov. 9 and said he didn't want anything that might happen in the last game of the season to change his mind. "Had we played well and won the game I did not want that to change my decision."

Connolly said that he may have been influenced last year to stay another season after the big win in the last game of the season. He said he didn't want the last game of the season to influence him this year, "I knew I wanted to leave," said Connolly.

Drainage

Plaza, the Harbor Oaks Shopping Village, part of an undeveloped 15 acres between Wal-Mart and Live Oak Plaza, Traylor Avenue and "the existing and pre-existing watersheds that drain naturally into Long Reach Canal."

The motion, seconded by Betty Jean Ward, was approved by 4-0 vote of the council.

The council then turned to consideration of an annexation request from Harbor Oaks Shopping Village. In response to a question from City Administrator Herman Johnson on whether the council wanted to initiate annexation procedures, Alderman Richard Beck said, "Contingent on the drainage problems being solved."

Rockport City Attorney Allen Lee pointed out the city would have to annex Traylor Avenue before it could consider annexing the proposed shopping village and said the city would have to have a request from the county to annex Traylor.

Mayor Burt Mills said he and Johnson had appeared before the county commissioners' court earlier this year and secured county approval for the Traylor Street annexation.

The question of annexation of any property north of Rockport is closely involved with growing drainage problems in that area resulting, at least in part, from development of that area, including Wal-Mart, Rockport Country Club Estates, Live Oak Plaza and proposed development of Harbor Oaks Shopping Village later next year.

In a workshop session Monday, council members were told that Wal-Mart will drain into Tule Ditch and that the first unit of Rockport Country Club Estates — which has been annexed into the city — is working on a retention system utilizing the golf course and lakes to alleviate drainage problems.

Urban Engineers, the city engineering firm, have proposed that the drainage from Harbor Oaks Shopping Village be channeled into Long Reach Canal if this is legally possible. Authorization of a drainage study of the area is the first step in determining that legality.

Urban has also proposed, again contingent on the legalities, that the city consider laying pipes under Hwy. 35 to eventually channel the drainage from Live Oak Plaza and other areas on that side of the highway into Long Reach Canal. Urban, during the council's workshop meeting Monday, said he believes the canal can handle this amount of water and Tule Ditch cannot.

At present, he said Monday, water from Live Oak Plaza — and Wal-Mart — is going down the highway and any water going onto the highway goes into Tule Ditch.

Johnson told the council Live Oak Plaza has requested annexation into the city whenever such annexation becomes possible. At present that area cannot be annexed because it is separated from the city limits by the 15 acres of undeveloped land.

Beck made the motion to initiate annexation procedures of Traylor Avenue from Hwy. 35 to Fulton Beach Road and of Hwy. 35 from the south end of Wal-Mart to the north line of Traylor. This was seconded by Alderman Murray McMillan and approved 4-0.

This was followed by an Allen-Ward motion to survey Traylor Avenue and Hwy. 35, also approved 4-0.

Johnson told the council during Tuesday's special meeting that a meeting has been set with county commissioners next Wednesday, Nov. 24, to discuss drainage problems affecting the county and the city.

Park board to view plans for beach improvement

Members of Rockport's city park board asked to see plans for proposed improvements to Rockport

Beach at their next, Dec. 15, meeting following an appearance before the board of Aransas County Navigation District Commissioner Hillis Dominguez Wednesday night.

Dominguez' appearance before the board came at the end of a meeting that also saw a long discussion with Memorial Park caretaker Joe McMillen and his wife on the park's needs and presentation of a petition from members of the Aransas County Soccer League asking help from the city in bringing the adult soccer field at Memorial Park into useable shape.

Dominguez appeared before the board members at the Nov. 17 meeting to outline that the ACND had done in its beach improvement program and to get input from park board members on the ACND's proposal to construct three small open-air pavilions on Rockport Beach just north of the navigation district office.

Dominguez said $50,000 of a matching-funds grant from the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department has been earmarked for construction of the three small pavilions.

Dominguez pointed out, "There has always been a need for some type of meeting building in this area," and invited the park board members to review the ACND's preliminary plans for the pavilions.

"I want to make sure that when we (the ACND) spend $50,000, the people will get $50,000 worth of use," Dominguez said.

McCague suggested that Dominguez bring the plans to the park board's next meeting.

Tom Harrison and Ricky Garcia, representing the adult soccer leagues in Aransas County, appeared before the park board with a petition requesting city assistance in improving the adult soccer field in Memorial Park.

Harrison said the field is in poor shape and needs levelling and grass seeding. He said the soccer association will maintain the field but it needs help in getting the initial improvements. "We're just as large an organization as some of the other organized sports in Rockport," Harrison said, "and they have better facilities."

Board members suggested Harrison and Garcia get more signatures on their petition and some cost estimates while board members talk to city officials about the request.

In response to questions from the board members, the McMillens suggested that city officials might consider additional designated parking areas and more metal stands for litter in the park. "Our park is increasing in population tremendously," McMillen said. McCague said he will get with city officials to discuss comments made by the McMillens concerning the park and its use.

In a report on the budget, McCague told park board members the 1982-83 budget consists of funds for custodial salaries, maintenance costs, $1,000 for resurfacing the tennis courts and $500 for playground equipment.

Although he pointed out the city budget can be amended if necessary, he said, "We're too late for this year. We need to start thinking about the next." Following a talk with City Secretary Helen Braffett, McCague said the park board should begin considering ideas for the 1983-84 budget after December.
