3 school distri... higher rate to 'stay same'

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

In view of a declining tax base for the county overall, each of the three county school districts will be required to increase their respective tax rates this budget year just to maintain the same budget amount as 1984.

This fact was surfacing this week as local taxing entity's began receiving 1985 values from Scurry County Appraisal District authorities.

With these figures in hand, budget planners can look toward setting their respective tax rates — the figure multiplied times each $100 valuation to generate a local tax bill.

And the story for the Snyder, Hermleigh and Ira ISD's is more "pennies" on the rate just to maintain the status quo.

Hardest hit is Snyder ISD. Preliminary figures indicate as much as six pennies added to the rate to generate the same tax dollars as required last year.

Affected to a lesser degree is Ira, with a projected 2.4 "penny" increase; and Hermleigh, with a... additional 3.8 cents required to "stay the same."

Using current values and the budget set by each entity last year, to generate the same amount of tax dollars, Snyder ISD's rate would have to increase from 44.5 cents to 49.5 cents; Ira ISD from 49 cents to 51.4 cents; and Hermleigh ISD from 67.1 cents to 70.9 cents.

To a Snyder homeowner with a $50,000 value on his residence, a 6 penny increase in the rate will equal approximately $25 added to their tax bill.

More than 6 pennies will be added to the tax rate if budget increases occur, and in the case of Snyder ISD, salaries alone are now projected to add an additional $500,000 to the spending amount next school year.

This increase in salaries will affect the other two school districts also since it is part of mandates under House Bill 72 which will see all Texas teachers receiving a "step" pay raise with the new year.

Regarding the shrinking tax base, Snyder ISD will see its taxable property values shrink some 11.7 percent, down to just over $2 billion compared to in excess of $2.3 billion last year.

Oil-related values comprise the majority of the decline with Snyder ISD's oil values going from $1.8 billion to $1.5 billion.

For Ira ISD, the overall shrinkage is some 3.4 percent; while Hermleigh ISD's tax base will drop some 3.9 percent.

Its tax base is now estimated at $194 million, compared to

Q. — How were the July 4th fireworks paid for this year?

A. — Rental fees for the arts and crafts sales plus food and activity booths help defray these costs. In addition, some hotel-motel tax money will be used plus donations from local organizations and businesses. Two years ago, the chamber discontinued selling lottery tickets to help pay for the fireworks display.

OPEC seeking solution

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Oil ministers from 13 OPEC member nations met today in a downtown Vienna hotel in yet another effort to find a new pricing formula that would avert a further drop in oil prices.

The ministers convened without their aides, who usually participate in Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' meetings from the outset. The aides were expected to join the conference later in the day.

Analysts have said the conference may cause members to cut production to reduce the glut on the world market and make their crude competitive with that produced by non-OPEC members, such as Britain.

But United Arab Emirates oil minister Mana Saeed Oteiba said Thursday that the OPEC ministers would seek a different answer this time.

"We are suggesting a new way. This time we are not talking about prices or production," Oteiba told reporters.

"We are talking about income, constant income," he said following a meeting of the six-member OPEC monitoring committee.

Oteiba, who chairs the committee, would not elaborate on the steps it would propose to the full ministerial conference.

"This has to be looked at by the conference," he said.

In the wake of recent terror attacks in Europe and the Middle East, Austrian authorities imposed the tightest security ever seen for an OPEC session.

Members of the federal anti-terrorist squad armed with automatic weapons ringed the two luxury hotels where the member delegations were staying in central Vienna.

Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the influential Saudi Arabian oil minister, said on arrival in Vienna Thursday that his country would "defend prices."

Asked if he would consider a change in production limits, Yamani replied: "That's another matter."

Winners are plentiful with July 4th

"Winners" from Thursday's July 4th celebration here included more than the thousands of people who thronged Towle Park for a range of "free" events.

It was a-day of friendly competition for some, to include works entered in the Palette Club Art Show, which was on view in the Towle Park Barn.

Some 138 entries were noted in the art show.

For the kids there was competition also, to include bike decorating awards and the annual Jaycee fishing rodeo.

All who attended might be considered "winners," however, as a range of events were offered at no charge, courtesy of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

These included the July 4th parade; a flag raising ceremony conducted by members of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars; the Palette Club Art Show; displays of arts and crafts in the armory; some 10 hours worth of free country and western music; music with a religious theme at the south side of the Towle Park pond; and the closing fireworks display which included both set pieces and an aerial show of bursting bombs and bright flares.

Those named winners Thursday included youngsters entering the bike decorating con-

Litigant-prisoner release bid fails

Citing other charges pending against him in Tennessee, Judge Weldon Kirk of Sweetwater denied a writ of habeas corpus presented on behalf of Phillip Andre Harrison in 132nd District Court here Wednesday.

Harrison, who has also authored and filed a federal court lawsuit alleging civil rights violations by district court and local law officials, had filed the writ in a effort to win release from jail.

He is being held in Scurry County Jail on charges pending against him in Midland County for possession of gambling paraphernalia, a misdemeanor offense for which he was serving a 15-day sentence.

The 33-year-old suspect has been held here since May 3 as one of several prisoners being boarded by Midland at the Scurry County Jail.

In denying the motion, Judge Kirk noted that extradition proceedings for him have been initiated by the State of Tennessee and ordered the suspect held for eventual transfer to that jurisdiction.

Following the denial of the writ, Harrison — again representing himself — filed a notice of appeal of the ruling and asked the court to set an appeal bond in his case.

That bond was set at $100,000 and he remains in custody.

Judge Kirk was called to hear Harrison's motions after 132nd District Court Judge Gene Dulaney disqualified himself. Dulaney is one of the defendants in the federal civil rights lawsuit filed in a Lubbock court by the suspect earlier in the week.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Juvenile delinquency is the result of parents trying to raise their kids without starting from the bottom."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

It's vacation time and Jimmy Carr, in the Vernon Record, captured the spirit of the American family vacation.

It all happens despite meticulous planning to include mapping out the route using one of those multi-fold service station models they used to give away but now costs a buck.

Planning is absolutely necessary for trouble-free travel. Planning is done in the comfort of one's own home, while trying to follow this carefully-planned route and schedule, and still remain on speaking terms with other family members, is another matter entirely.

A typical pre-vacation briefing, with the help of a home computer, includes such things at leaving home at 7 a.m., having lunch in Ruidoso, and getting to Colorado Springs in plenty of time to get a room and have a swim in the luxurious motel ppol.

It's then three or four days in the mountains before heading home relaxed, refreshed and ready to go back to work. What's the problem?

–Families don't leave home at 7 a.m. It takes almost 'til noon to get all bags in the car, appliances turned off, doors locked, unlocked and then locked again. Did Mom really turn off the iron?

–It is a physical impossibility for a family to drive more than 100 miles without stopping for refreshments or other purposes. Arriving at a city in another state before lunch is out of the question.

–There is no such thing as "plenty of time to get a motel room." The nearest vacancy will be found in a town 32 miles away.

–Also, last-resort motels never have pools–luxurious or otherwise.

–Seeing the sights in a prime vacation spot may mean checking the haircut on the guy who's always in front of you in that long line. Wear good shoes for standing and shuffling and plan on seeing only half of what you had in mind.

–Instead of coming home relaxed and refreshed, the more appropriate description might be "bushed, bedraggled and broke."

The best vacation plan might be to study the maps, make elaborate plans, then spend two weeks in your own backyard.

In Brief

Jobless same

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment was stuck at 7.3 percent in June for the fifth consecutive month, the Labor Department reported today, the longest period the jobless rate has remained at the same level in more than 15 years.

The overall civilian unemployment rate would have gone up significantly if it had not been for the fact that nearly 600,000 people, mostly teen-agers, dropped out of the labor force last month. That offset generally stagnant job growth in a continued deterioration in the manufacturing sector, the Bureau of Labor Statistics figures showed.

The service sector continued to add employment in June with 85,000 new jobs.

But total employment, which had hit a record 106.96 million in May, fell to 106.37 million in June.

Teens held

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — Two teen-agers have been arrested on complaints of murder and armed robbery in the slayings of three grocery employees after police received a tip.

Bill R. Fox, 19, of Oklahoma City, and Mark Andrew Fowler, also 19, of The Village, a suburb, were arrested Thursday on complaints of robbery with a dangerous weapon and three complaints of murder, said Oklahoma County District Attorney Bob Macy.

No formal charges had been filed against the two, he said.

Jobless up

DALLAS (AP) — Teenagers seeking summer jobs and a sluggish state economy forced Texas unemployment up by .3 percent in June, federal officials said.

It was the third consecutive rise in the state's jobless rate, said Nic Santangelo, chief economic analyst for the Dallas office of the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The June unemployment rate, which is seasonally adjusted, was 7.2 percent, compared to 6.9 percent in May.

Texas observes 4th in style

by The Associated Press

From Willie Nelson's "picnic" near Austin to Sweetwater's impromptu, first-ever Fourth of July parade, millions of Texans braved a mix of rain and sunshine to help celebrate the nation's 209th birthday.

Some 12,000 people muddled around in a rain-soaked Austin field for Nelson's concert Thursday, but at least one problem usually associated with the event — heat prostration — never cropped up as the city tied its coolest July 4 high-temperature record of 79 degrees.

"The rain don't matter a bit," said Steve Johnson, a soaked Oklahoman standing in the middle the soggy field to hear Nelson and a couple of his friends — Neil Young, Kris Kristofferson, Johnny Cash, Jerry Jeff Walker and Waylon Jennings — perform at Nelson's 13th picnic since 1971.

And in Sweetwater, with less than three days notice, more than 100 people turned out to join in an impromptu Independence Day parade in this West Texas town Thursday morning.

The parade was the brainchild of Dr. Al Densmore, a Sweetwater resident who, disappointed that the town was planning no festivities for the Fourth of July, decided late Monday to plan a parade himself.

But Densmore, a dentist who is also a World War II veteran, never expected the parade to be as popular as it was.

"This is about 100 more (people) than I thought," he said. "I'm very thrilled."

Parades also trooped down main streets in scores of other Texas cities, but scattered showers and thunderstorms interrupted many celebrations as unstable moist air moved in from the Gulf of Mexico.

In San Antonio, officials said cloudy skies may have kept many away from the largest military procession held there since World War II. About 3,000 people turned out for the first-ever Independence Day Veterans Parade.

Skies were clearer in Dallas, where motorists jammed highways for hours to make their way into Fair Park for a spectacular fireworks show next to the Cotton Bowl.

In El Paso, a 50-gun salute at Fort Bliss honored the nation's 50 states. And at Chamizal National Memorial, a fireworks display topped events that included an arts festival and a rodeo.

About 500 spectators watched as 13 men and 13 women competed in the Eighth Annual Sun City Suntan Showoff Contest at an El Paso shopping mall. With judging based on contrast between tanned and untanned spots, contestants drew thunderous applause when showing tan lines.

As many as 10,000 turned out for a day at Lake Casa Blanca in Laredo. Highlighting the day's events were a concert by local performers, a pie contest, a fajita cook-off and bikini contests for men and women.

Search continues for convicted man

CLEBURNE, Texas (AP) — A man condemned to life in prison in the kidnapping of an Alvarado girl was still at large today after he scrambled over a barbed wire-tipped fence to freedom, authorities say.

James Wesley Foote, 34, scaled an eight-foot fence around the Johnson County Jail Thursday after being transferred there earlier this week for questioning in a robbery, Johnson County Chief Deputy Malcolm Southerland said.

Before that, Foote had been held in a Texas Department of Corrections unit after receiving a life sentence March 28 in the kidnapping of 13-year-old Amy McNiel.

Southerland said Foote, clad in orange TDC trousers and no shirt, climbed over the fence about 2 p.m. as he and about 50 other prisoners were in the jail's exercise yard.

"He had to be cut up pretty bad," he said. "We had a guard there but the guard was unable to stop him."

Roadblocks were erected throughout the area as more than 100 lawmen searched for Foote, but he was still at large shortly after midnight, Southerland said.

Foote, of Arlington, and Michael Lynn Mills of Dallas, 28, were convicted of aggravated kidnapping in the Jan. 11 abduction of Miss McNiel. The abductors were demanding a $100,000 ransom from her businessman father until she was rescued 2½ days later after a high-speed shootout.

Mills, too, was sentenced to life.

Others accused in the kidnapping were Daniel Walter Necker Jr., 21, of Mesquite, who was convicted and sentenced to 30 years; George Thomas Barnes, 21, of Dallas, who is undergoing mental observation to determine if he is competent to stand trial; and Lisa Anne Bouvier, 19, of Balch Springs, who is awaiting trial in the Johnson County Jail, Southerland said.

At the trial, Miss McNiel described how Foote pushed her up against the back window of a car during a running gun battle with authorities.

"I tried to get down on the floorboard, but James Foote said that if they saw me, they might stop shooting," Miss McNiel said.

After a chase of speeds reaching 100 mph, the shootout ended in East Texas with a Texas Ranger and a deputy sheriff racing through a hail of gunfire to rescue the girl.

All five defendants face additional charges of attempted capital murder in Hopkins County, where they were arrested at the end of the gunfight, and in Titus County.

Reports indicate coup attempt has failed

CONAKRY, Guinea (AP) — Radio Conakry said today an attempt to overthrow the 15-month-old military government had failed and the army was in control.

There was no word on the fate of former Prime Minister Col. Diarra Traore, who announced hours earlier that he had seized control of the impoverished West African country. There were no reports of violence.

Since late Thursday, the radio had been alternating martial music with an announcement by Traore that he had overthrown the government of President Lansana Conte. The broadcasts were monitored in neighboring Ivory Coast and by the British Broadcasting Corp. in London.

Couple Gives Parents a Key And Opens Door to Trouble

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents live next door. We gave them a key to our house in case of emergencies. This was the worst mistake we ever made. Before they had the key we had a good relationship, but no more.

His father is a very early riser, so he lets himself into our home while we are still in bed. He reads our mail and invades our privacy. His mother also lets herself in and looks around. Last Sunday morning I walked into our kitchen stark naked and my father-in-law was standing there! We never know when they are going to surprise us. When we have company, they walk in as though they lived here.

We hate to hurt their feelings, so we haven't said anything to them, but we will not feel comfortable until we get our key back.

Have you any suggestions?

NEEDS PRIVACY

DEAR NEEDS: Yes. With as much diplomacy as he can muster, your husband must tell his parents that their surprise visits are disturbing and often inconvenient, so would they please return the house key. It won't be easy, but it's the only way you can regain your privacy.

DEAR ABBY: A good friend came to visit me with her two children, both under 3 years of age. By the time they left, my stereo was damaged, my carpet stained, an antique clock broken—and that was just in the living room. The rest of the house looked like a tornado went through it. All this occurred while my friend sat and talked, apparently oblivious to the whole thing.

I was afraid if I asked her to control her kids or leave, our friendship would be over because she is very sensitive about her kids.

Please don't think I'm an old fuddy-duddy who hates kids. I'm not. I love kids, and hope to have my own someday. However, my husband and I have worked hard to furnish our home and don't appreciate it being destroyed by kids like hers. I'm beginning to wonder if the friendship is worth it.

READY TO SCREAM

DEAR READY: Screaming will not restore your clock, repair your stereo and clean your carpet. Kids usually tear around like tornados because they are bored. A few toys and some coloring books in full view of you and their mother might be helpful. And should the child get out of line, a firm reprimand would not be out of order.

DEAR ABBY: I have one child who is 8 years old. We live next door to a family with six kids. (I'll call them the Joneses.) My daughter plays with the Jones girl, who is also 8. Whenever I give the girls a treat and one of the other Jones kids sees it, the news spreads like wildfire, then Mrs. Jones sends one of her kids over here to get treats for the rest of her kids who are in the house watching TV or whatever. They say, "Our mom says one of us can't have anything unless we all have it; everything has to be fair and equal!"

Abby, I came from a family of nine kids, and when a playmate's parent gave one of us a treat, we said "Thank you" and felt grateful; we'd never dream of asking for eight more for the kids at home.

I am raising my daughter to know that she can't have everything her playmates have—that life is not always "fair and equal," but Mrs. Jones is putting me in a terrible position.

So how do I handle this?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Tell Mrs. Jones that you admire her for treating all her children equally, but a neighbor who gives one child a special treat should not be expected to provide all the brothers and sisters with identical treats. And if Mrs. Jones doesn't understand, don't give her child treats where she will be seen and envied.

Public outrage over slayings prompts higher reward offers

DALLAS (AP) — Although highly publicized rewards as much as $205,000 often go uncollected and most-wanted criminals uncaught, police say they solve scores of less spectacular crimes every year with tips bought for less than $100.

"Reward money talks," Arlington police Sgt. John Coffel says. "This is a capitalistic society."

And that talk is getting louder, officials say — as public outrage over criminal activity rises, so are the amounts and number of rewards.

The day after police discovered 14-year-old Jennifer Day's body dumped in a field, outraged citizens and business leaders pledged $42,000 for information leading to the arrest of her killer.

And rewards totaling $205,000 await the person who provides information leading to whoever is reponsible for the disappearances and slayings of nine young women in Fort Worth.

Yet officials say people who donate to reward funds must realize their money probably will wind up padding the pockets of unscrupulous characters.

Scurry Charter Chapter ABWA presents check

The Scurry Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association met June 27 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

The guest speaker was Melinda Drum with Scoop. She informed the club members the organization currently has two girls who have been placed there by the state. They are involved in the local school system and various activities.

The program started in February of this year. She told the group that there are five levels the girls must go through. For example, she explained, it's all right to get mad but not to throw things. The girls are aided with these various levels through counciling. They are allowed to stay until they are 18 years of age.

She stressed that not only are workers needed, but the operation needs a big sister program and encouraged anyone who might be able to take one of the girls shopping or home for a visit to contact a member of the staff.

It takes $5,877 per month to operate the home and all donations are welcome.

Grace Bryant with "Prince House" presented the vocational talk for the evening.

During the business meeting it was announced that the national American Business Women's Association meeting would be held Oct. 9-13 in San Angelo.

One new base is just a pearly wash, usable alone or under tinted makeup. It is to even and brighten skin tone while moisturizing.

Another is called a sportswear day cream.

South had such a strong hand that he made an artificial jump shift to three clubs after North had made a one-spade response. The jump shift showed 19 or more points and was forcing to game. When North raised to four clubs, South was impelled into slam. Not that he minded. After all, if the diamond finesse wasn't working, maybe the heart finesse would be successful. And that's what happened.

Declarer won the club ace, played a spade to the king and took a finesse in diamonds. West won the king and continued clubs. Declarer drew trumps, got to dummy with a spade, and took the heart finesse. When that held, he claimed the rest of the tricks. The West player probably still doesn't know that he almost surely could have set the slam. All he had to do was pull a wrong card. That is facetious, but do you see the trap that a shrewd West can set for declarer?

Go back to trick three, when South played a diamond to the queen. Just let West casually play low. Which of us, as South, would not now return to dummy and play another diamond? After all, surely the diamond king is with East.

Remember the concept. When declarer has a very strong hand and very few entries in dummy, don't be in a hurry to take your sure trump trick on the first lead of the suit. Maybe you can persuade the declarer to waste his only remaining entry to take what you know to be a losing finesse.

The damp and humid weather in some parts of Texas is conducive to mold growth and the musty odor that goes with it. But even in drier parts of the state, any damp, warm, poorly aired and poorly lighted place such as a shower stall can take on a musty odor.

Take special precaution to get rid of musty odors as soon as possible not only to rid the house of offensive odors but also to prevent damaging mold growth.

Sometimes the odors will disappear if the area is well heated and dried or if it can be cleaned, aired and fumigated. If it will not harm the article, dry it in the sun.

On concrete floors, tiled walls and floors, and bathrooms, get rid of mustiness by scrubbing with a diluted solution of ½ to 1 cup of liquid household bleach to a gallon of water. Rinse with clean water and wipe as dry as possible. Wash quickly and carefully on plastic and asphalt tile to avoid spotting the surface. Keep doors open until walls and floors are thoroughly dried.

Excellent commercial products are available for removing and inhibiting mildew growth. Other household products that are effective in absorbing odors are baking soda, talcum powder, silica gel and charcoal. Using vinegar rinse water in cleaning or washing articles is also effective in controlling odor.

For musty furniture, first vacuum the furniture, especially the drawers. Fresh air and ventilation may also remove some of the musty smell.

If the odor was caused by smoke, it may be necessary to seal in the odor. Once it is in the grain of wood it's difficult to remove. Sand the drawers lightly, then vacuum and apply a thin coat of varnish or other finish. Commercial products such as oil or wintergreen may also help camouflage the odor.

Texas grain sorghum producers will vote in August to decide if they want to expand the check-off territory from the existing 29 High Plains counties under the jurisdiction of the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board.

To learn more about the upcoming grain sorghum referendum, producers in Scurry and surrounding counties will want to attend an informational meeting conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service on July 9 at 9:30 a.m. at the TAMU Research and Extension Center in Lubbock.

Producers will hear from an extension economist regarding the current feed grain situation and outlook and the changing sorghum production trends in the state. Also, the mechanics and timing of the referendum voting process will be discussed, including recent changes in the commodity referendum law.

Following these discussions, Texas Grain Sorghum Board representatives will present information on the existing grain sorghum check-off program and the potential outcome of a total statewide effort. Producers will have ample time to ask questions about the program.

Texas observes 4th in style

by The Associated Press

From Willie Nelson's "picnic" near Austin to Sweetwater's impromptu, first-ever Fourth of July parade, millions of Texans braved a mix of rain and sunshine to help celebrate the nation's 209th birthday.

Some 12,000 people muddled around in a rain-soaked Austin field for Nelson's concert Thursday, but at least one problem usually associated with the event — heat prostration — never cropped up as the city tied its coolest July 4 high-temperature record of 79 degrees.

"The rain don't matter a bit," said Steve Johnson, a soaked Oklahoman standing in the middle the soggy field to hear Nelson and a couple of his friends — Neil Young, Kris Kristofferson, Johnny Cash, Jerry Jeff Walker and Waylon Jennings — perform at Nelson's 13th picnic since 1971.

And in Sweetwater, with less than three days notice, more than 100 people turned out to join in an impromptu Independence Day parade in this West Texas town Thursday morning.

The parade was the brainchild of Dr. Al Densmore, a Sweetwater resident who, disappointed that the town was planning no festivities for the Fourth of July, decided late Monday to plan a parade himself.

But Densmore, a dentist who is also a World War II veteran, never expected the parade to be as popular as it was.

"This is about 100 more (people) than I thought," he said. "I'm very thrilled."

Parades also trooped down main streets in scores of other Texas cities, but scattered showers and thunderstorms interrupted many celebrations as unstable moist air moved in from the Gulf of Mexico.

In San Antonio, officials said cloudy skies may have kept many away from the largest military procession held there since World War II. About 3,000 people turned out for the first-ever Independence Day Veterans Parade.

Skies were clearer in Dallas, where motorists jammed highways for hours to make their way into Fair Park for a spectacular fireworks show next to the Cotton Bowl.

In El Paso, a 50-gun salute at Fort Bliss honored the nation's 50 states. And at Chamizal National Memorial, a fireworks display topped events that included an arts festival and a rodeo.

About 500 spectators watched as 13 men and 13 women competed in the Eighth Annual Sun City Suntan Showoff Contest at an El Paso shopping mall. With judging based on contrast between tanned and untanned spots, contestants drew thunderous applause when showing tan lines.

As many as 10,000 turned out for a day at Lake Casa Blanca in Laredo. Highlighting the day's events were a concert by local performers, a pie contest, a fajita cook-off and bikini contests for men and women.

Search continues for convicted man

CLEBURNE, Texas (AP) — A man condemned to life in prison in the kidnapping of an Alvarado girl was still at large today after he scrambled over a barbed wire-tipped fence to freedom, authorities say.

James Wesley Foote, 34, scaled an eight-foot fence around the Johnson County Jail Thursday after being transferred there earlier this week for questioning in a robbery, Johnson County Chief Deputy Malcolm Southerland said.

Before that, Foote had been held in a Texas Department of Corrections unit after receiving a life sentence March 28 in the kidnapping of 13-year-old Amy McNiel.

Southerland said Foote, clad in orange TDC trousers and no shirt, climbed over the fence about 2 p.m. as he and about 50 other prisoners were in the jail's exercise yard.

"He had to be cut up pretty bad," he said. "We had a guard there but the guard was unable to stop him."

Roadblocks were erected throughout the area as more than 100 lawmen searched for Foote, but he was still at large shortly after midnight, Southerland said.

Foote, of Arlington, and Michael Lynn Mills of Dallas, 28, were convicted of aggravated kidnapping in the Jan. 11 abduction of Miss McNiel. The abductors were demanding a $100,000 ransom from her businessman father until she was rescued 2½ days later after a high-speed shootout.

Mills, too, was sentenced to life.

Others accused in the kidnapping were Daniel Walter Necker Jr., 21, of Mesquite, who was convicted and sentenced to 30 years; George Thomas Barnes, 21, of Dallas, who is undergoing mental observation to determine if he is competent to stand trial; and Lisa Anne Bouvier, 19, of Balch Springs, who is awaiting trial in the Johnson County Jail, Southerland said.

At the trial, Miss McNiel described how Foote pushed her up against the back window of a car during a running gun battle with authorities.

"I tried to get down on the floorboard, but James Foote said that if they saw me, they might stop shooting," Miss McNiel said.

After a chase of speeds reaching 100 mph, the shootout ended in East Texas with a Texas Ranger and a deputy sheriff racing through a hail of gunfire to rescue the girl.

All five defendants face additional charges of attempted capital murder in Hopkins County, where they were arrested at the end of the gunfight, and in Titus County.

Reports indicate coup attempt has failed

CONAKRY, Guinea (AP) — Radio Conakry said today an attempt to overthrow the 15-month-old military government had failed and the army was in control.

There was no word on the fate of former Prime Minister Col. Diarra Traore, who announced hours earlier that he had seized control of the impoverished West African country. There were no reports of violence.

Since late Thursday, the radio had been alternating martial music with an announcement by Traore that he had overthrown the government of President Lansana Conte. The broadcasts were monitored in neighboring Ivory Coast and by the British Broadcasting Corp. in London.

Couple Gives Parents a Key And Opens Door to Trouble

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents live next door. We gave them a key to our house in case of emergencies. This was the worst mistake we ever made. Before they had the key we had a good relationship, but no more.

His father is a very early riser, so he lets himself into our home while we are still in bed. He reads our mail and invades our privacy. His mother also lets herself in and looks around. Last Sunday morning I walked into our kitchen stark naked and my father-in-law was standing there! We never know when they are going to surprise us. When we have company, they walk in as though they lived here.

We hate to hurt their feelings, so we haven't said anything to them, but we will not feel comfortable until we get our key back.

Have you any suggestions?

NEEDS PRIVACY

DEAR NEEDS: Yes. With as much diplomacy as he can muster, your husband must tell his parents that their surprise visits are disturbing and often inconvenient, so would they please return the house key. It won't be easy, but it's the only way you can regain your privacy.

DEAR ABBY: A good friend came to visit me with her two children, both under 3 years of age. By the time they left, my stereo was damaged, my carpet stained, an antique clock broken—and that was just in the living room. The rest of the house looked like a tornado went through it. All this occurred while my friend sat and talked, apparently oblivious to the whole thing.

I was afraid if I asked her to control her kids or leave, our friendship would be over because she is very sensitive about her kids.

Please don't think I'm an old fuddy-duddy who hates kids. I'm not. I love kids, and hope to have my own someday. However, my husband and I have worked hard to furnish our home and don't appreciate it being destroyed by kids like hers. I'm beginning to wonder if the friendship is worth it.

Surely I'm not the only one with this problem. A printed solution might help.

READY TO SCREAM

DEAR READY: Screaming will not restore your clock, repair your stereo and clean your carpet. Kids usually tear around like tornados because they are bored. A few toys and some coloring books in full view of you and their mother might be helpful. And should the child get out of line, a firm reprimand would not be out of order.

DEAR ABBY: I have one child who is 8 years old. We live next door to a family with six kids. (I'll call them the Joneses.) My daughter plays with the Jones girl, who is also 8. Whenever I give the girls a treat and one of the other Jones kids sees it, the news spreads like wildfire, then Mrs. Jones sends one of her kids over here to get treats for the rest of her kids who are in the house watching TV or whatever. They say, "Our mom says one of us can't have anything unless we all have it; everything has to be fair and equal!"

Abby, I came from a family of nine kids, and when a playmate's parent gave one of us a treat, we said "Thank you" and felt grateful; we'd never dream of asking for eight more for the kids at home!

I am raising my daughter to know that she can't have everything her playmates have—that life is not always "fair and equal," but Mrs. Jones is putting me in a terrible position.

So how do I handle this?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Tell Mrs. Jones that you admire her for treating all her children equally, but a neighbor who gives one child a special treat should not be expected to provide all the brothers and sisters with identical treats. And if Mrs. Jones doesn't understand, don't give her child treats where she will be seen and envied.

Public outrage over slayings prompts higher reward offers

DALLAS (AP) — Although highly publicized rewards as much as $205,000 often go uncollected and most-wanted criminals uncaught, police say they solve scores of less spectacular crimes every year with tips bought for less than $100.

"Reward money talks," Arlington police Sgt. John Coffel says. "This is a capitalistic society."

And that talk is getting louder, officials say — as public outrage over criminal activity rises, so are the amounts and number of rewards.

The day after police discovered 14-year-old Jennifer Day's body dumped in a field, outraged citizens and business leaders pledged $42,000 for information leading to the arrest of her killer.

And rewards totaling $205,000 await the person who provides information leading to whoever is reponsible for the disappearances and slayings of nine young women in Fort Worth.

Yet officials say people who donate to reward funds must realize their money probably will wind up padding the pockets of unscrupulous characters.

Scurry Charter Chapter ABWA presents check

The Scurry Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association met June 27 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

The guest speaker was Melinda Drum with Scoop. She informed the club members the organization currently has two girls who have been placed there by the state. They are involved in the local school system and various activities.

The program started in February of this year. She told the group that there are five levels the girls must go through. For example, she explained, it's all right to get mad but not to throw things. The girls are aided with these various levels through counciling. They are allowed to stay until they are 18 years of age.

She stressed that not only are workers needed, but the operation needs a big sister program and encouraged anyone who might be able to take one of the girls shopping or home for a visit to contact a member of the staff.

It takes $5,877 per month to operate the home and all donations are welcome.

Grace Bryant with "Prince House" presented the vocational talk for the evening.

During the business meeting it was announced that the national American Business Women's Association meeting would be held Oct. 9-13 in San Angelo.

Foundation changes

Some cosmetics houses are adding sheer tint to day creams, while others are removing the color from foundations. It all adds up to a change in summer makeup bases to bring them closer to being skin treatments.

One new base is just a pearly wash, usable alone or under tinted makeup. It is to even and brighten skin tone while moisturizing.

Another is called a sportswear day cream.

BRIDGE

James Jacoby

South had such a strong hand that he made an artificial jump shift to three clubs after North had made a one-spade response. The jump shift showed 19 or more points and was forcing to game. When North raised to four clubs, South was impelled into slam. Not that he minded. After all, if the diamond finesse wasn't working, maybe the heart finesse would be successful. And that's what happened.

Declarer won the club ace, played a spade to the king and took a finesse in diamonds. West won the king and continued clubs. Declarer drew trumps, got to dummy with a spade, and took the heart finesse. When that held, he claimed the rest of the tricks. The West player probably still doesn't know that he almost surely could have set the slam. All he had to do was pull a wrong card. That is facetious, but do you see the trap that a shrewd West can set for declarer?

Go back to trick three, when South played a diamond to the queen. Just let West casually play low. Which of us, as South, would not now return to dummy and play another diamond? After all, surely the diamond king is with East.

Remember the concept. When declarer has a very strong hand and very few entries in dummy, don't be in a hurry to take your sure trump trick on the first lead of the suit. Maybe you can persuade the declarer to waste his only remaining entry to take what you know to be a losing finesse.

The damp and humid weather in some parts of Texas is conducive to mold growth and the musty odor that goes with it. But even in drier parts of the state, any damp, warm, poorly aired and poorly lighted place such as a shower stall can take on a musty odor.

Take special precaution to get rid of musty odors as soon as possible not only to rid the house of offensive odors but also to prevent damaging mold growth.

Sometimes the odors will disappear if the area is well heated and dried or if it can be cleaned, aired and fumigated. If it will not harm the article, dry it in the sun.

On concrete floors, tiled walls and floors, and bathrooms, get rid of mustiness by scrubbing with a diluted solution of ½ to 1 cup of liquid household bleach to a gallon of water. Rinse with clean water and wipe as dry as possible. Wash quickly and carefully on plastic and asphalt tile to avoid spotting the surface. Keep doors open until walls and floors are thoroughly dried.

Excellent commercial products are available for removing and inhibiting mildew growth. Other household products that are effective in absorbing odors are baking soda, talcum powder, silica gel and charcoal. Using vinegar in rinse water in cleaning or washing articles is also effective in controlling odor.

For musty furniture, first vacuum the furniture, especially the drawers. Fresh air and ventilation may also remove some of the musty smell.

If the odor was caused by smoke, it may be necessary to seal in the odor. Once it is in the grain of wood it's difficult to remove. Sand the drawers lightly, then vacuum and apply a thin coat of varnish or other finish. Commercial products such as oil or wintergreen may also help camouflage the odor.

Texas grain sorghum producers will vote in August to decide if they want to expand the check-off territory from the existing 29 High Plains counties under the jurisdiction of the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board.

To learn more about the upcoming grain sorghum referendum, producers in Scurry and surrounding counties will want to attend an informational meeting conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service on July 9 at 9:30 a.m. at the TAMU Research and Extension Center in Lubbock.

Producers will hear from an extension economist regarding the current feed grain situation and outlook and the changing sorghum production trends in the state. Also, the mechanics and timing of the referendum voting process will be discussed, including recent changes in the commodity referendum law.

Following these discussions, Texas Grain Sorghum Board representatives will present information on the existing grain sorghum check-off program and the potential outcome of a total statewide effort. Producers will have ample time to ask questions about the program.

For additional information, please contact the County Extension Office.

"Just one more question. Does your insurance cover needless surgery?"

DENNIS THE MENACE

"WORMS DON'T HAVE A VERY GOOD JOB, DO THEY?"

'Great White Shark' shares leadership role at Canadian

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) - Greg Norman, the powerful Australian known to his fellow touring golf pros as "The Great White Shark," posed a question, and then provided an answer.

"Is it time to get another shark attack going? I sure hope so."

Norman, slowed by a bout with a virus early this year, made his first big move of the season with a 5-under-par 67 that provided him with a share of the first round lead Thursday in the $650,000 Canadian Open.

Norman, the defending titleholder, built his score by dominating the par-5 holes on the Glen Abbey Golf Club course. He reached three of them using irons for his second shots, got into a greenside bunker in two strokes on the other and played the long holes five under par with three birdies and an eagle. He missed a second eagle when he two-putted from five feet.

He was tied for the top spot with tour sophomore Jim Gallagher, who plays most of his golf on the Tournament Players Series, a secondary tour, and got into the field for the Canadian national championship by invitation.

Johnny Miller, a former U.S. and British Open champion who hasn't won in two years, had an eagle-par-birdie finish that gave him a 68, one shot off the pace.

Bruce Lietzke, a two-time Canadian Open winner, led a group at 69. Also at that figure were current leading money-winner Curtis Strange, Allen Miller, Bob Tway, Brett Upper and Pat McGowan.

Jack Nicklaus, six times a runnerup but never a winner in the Canadian Open, opened with a 70 on the course he designed in suburban Toronto as a permanent home for this tournament.

PGA champion Lee Trevino, ambushed by a triple-bogey 7 on the ninth, struggled to a 75.

Hargroves claim first place win at scramble

The Hargrove klan plus one took top honors in the Fourth of July Scramble, held at Snyder Country Club on Thursday.

Mark, Bob, Bobbie and Patty Hargrove teamed with Archie Boudreau to win the event with a score of 57.

Taking second place were Finnie Seale, J.D. Hinton, Bill Seale, Morris Light and Gertrude League with a 69.

Placing third, with a 61, were Lanny Wadleigh, Herb Reed, Ethel Wadleigh, Suzy Reed and Jack Cypert.

A putting contest was held in conjunction with the scramble. First place went to Lanny Wadleigh and second to Glenn Patterson.

Snyder Black to host Post club, 7 Saturday

Snyder Black, the local Babe Ruth League team, will entertain Post in a previously unscheduled game 7 p.m. Saturday at Moffett Field, Coach Albert Lewis said.

The Black team scheduled the game to compensate for a contest in which Spur forfeited to Snyder. League rules state that each team must play 10 games.

Saturday's game here will be the final home contest of the season for the Black team.

The remainder of Snyder's season schedule includes the game Saturday at Moffett Field and these others:

- July 9, at Brownfield, 7:30 p.m.
- July 13, double header at Post, beginning at 5 p.m.

The team is hoping to qualify for the Babe Ruth State Tournament, to be held July 22-27 in Andrews.

Lloyd ready for Navratilova

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - While defending women's titlist Martina Navratilova prepared once again to meet arch-rival and co-top seed Chris Evert Lloyd in the final of the Wimbledon tennis championships, Peter Fleming sprang to the defense of the vanquished men's champion, John McEnroe.

McEnroe was hammered to a straight sets defeat by Kevin Curren in the quarterfinals of the men's singles, the worst post-war loss for a defending Wimbledon champion.

"I certainly do not expect the way he played here to be a long-standing situation," said Fleming after he and McEnroe, his long-time friend and doubles partner, won their quarterfinal match Thursday. "I expect him to be playing extremely well by the U.S. Open."

The South African-born Curren, who received American citizenship earlier this year, continued his bid for a first men's singles title today by taking on veteran Jimmy Connors, a three-time winner, in one semifinal.

In the other, West Germany's Boris Becker, the youngest player ever to reach the last four here, faced Sweden's Anders Jarryd. Becker, 17, was just two steps away from becoming the first non-seeded player to win the title.

In women's semifinal matches Thursday, Lloyd crushed 18-year-old Kathy Rinaldi 6-2, 6-0 by exploiting the teen-ager's lack of variation and inexperience of the big occasion.

Navratilova, meanwhile, had to battle before overcoming Zina Garrison 6-4, 7-6 in the other all-American semifinal.

Lloyd, who trails Navratilova 33-32 in previous matches and is yet to beat her in four Wimbledon finals, is feeling confident as she tries to add Wimbledon to her French and Australian titles. A victory would send Lloyd to the U.S. Open bidding to become the fourth woman to win the Grand Slam.

"I am playing my best, maybe because in the back of my mind I know I'm not going to be playing for five or 10 more years," said Lloyd, who has won Wimbledon three times and is a nine-time finalist.

The 28-year-old Navratilova is going for her fourth consecutive Wimbledon singles crown and sixth overall.

Like McEnroe, she has been at the top of the sport for many years.

"I can relate to what McEnroe's going through," Navratilova said.

Watermelons recalled after some illnesses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California grocers responding to a state-ordered recall stopped selling watermelons during the peak Fourth of July sales season after more than 35 people in three states became ill from melons apparently tainted by pesticide.

Fifteen to 17 people became ill after eating striped watermelons in the Portland, Ore., area, including part of southwest Washington; 21 illnesses were reported in California by people eating green melons, health officials said Thursday.

"The numbers are fluid and they'll probably get bigger," said California Department of Health spokesman Peter Weisser.

The state health department issued the recall late Thursday afternoon during the melon's peak of popularity — the Fourth of July holiday. Officials also urged people not to eat melons already purchased.

Dr. Kenneth Kizer, health department director, said Thursday that he made the move to guard against further illness.

"It's a statewide recall that means all watermelons are recalled as a precautionary measure," Kizer said in a telephone interview from Sacramento. "Occurrences in Oregon came from people who ate striped watermelons, but the ones here in California have been from solid green watermelons."

The illness, which induced symptoms including nausea, diarrhea, dizziness and muscle spasms, was not considered life-threatening, and was consistent with exposure to pesticides, said Dr. Larry Foster of the Oregon Health Division.

The melons may have been contaminated by the pesticide aldicarb, Weisser said.

Traces of the pesticide, sold under the brand name Temik, were found in melons taken from a grocery store and a wholesaler's warehouse, said Dalton Hobbs, spokesman for the Oregon Agriculture Department.

The pesticide is approved for use on some fruit but not for watermelons, Hobbs said. It was suspected that the melons became contaminated by absorbing the chemical through the roots, he added.

United Grocers, based in Milwaukie, Ore., ordered all watermelons recalled Wednesday.

Because of the different types of melons people ate before becoming ill, Kizer said investigators worried that contaminated melons might be coming from different areas.

Conditions at detention centers criticized

PORT ISABEL, Texas (AP) — With immigrations courts swamped by swelling numbers of aliens seeking U.S. asylum, detention centers used to house them are filling to capacity and prompting increasingly vocal complaints, officials say.

"The system is at its max," U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman Duke Austin said. "We don't have a lot of available detention space. It's a tremendous problem."

Port Isabel is home to one of the INS' "processing centers" for illegal aliens, the largest of 12 in the nation and one of five in Texas. With surveillance cameras, barbed-wire fences and electronically controlled doors, the compound looks more like a prison.

Here, as many as 582 men and 100 women apprehended while trying to enter the United States illegally await deportation hearings after refusing to return voluntarily to their native countries.

Because of a steady rise in the number of aliens seeking asylum since a new refugee law passed in 1980, immigration courts are now overburdened, and detention centers across the nation are forced to keep 2,000 aliens for an average of three to four weeks — and in some cases, six months to a year.

Even with the opening of four new facilities in the past two years, the INS can't keep up with the flow of illegal aliens into the country and must house another 1,000 of them in the nation's city and county jails.

And as the number of aliens being held grows, so have complaints about conditions inside the centers, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

Immigration attorneys say some centers are overcrowded, medical care is inadequate, aliens are coerced into signing voluntary deportation forms and access to attorneys is limited.

Nationwide, lawyers have filed six suits over conditions at some of the INS facilities.

One suit, filed in 1981, charges that aliens being kept at the old Lubbock city jail, now closed, were not given blankets in winter and had to burn trash to stay warm. It also says as many as 16 detainees were kept in cells built for half that many.

Nerve problem causes numbness

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have had an increased numbness in both my hands for three or four years. In the winter they improve. Now they bother me at night. My fingers get so numb that I can't even thread a needle and my palm hurts. Can this be treated? I am 60 and use my hands a lot, gardening and sewing.

DEAR READER — What you describe sounds like a common and potentially serious condition, neuropathy, the malfunction of the nerves leading to your hands.

This progressive disability can result from lack of circulation — as you can easily experience by crossing your legs and waiting for your foot to fall asleep. If nerves are deprived of blood nutrients and oxygen, they will go all funny; numbness and tingling may result. Later, weakness may develop. Possibly you have a blockage in the arteries leading to the nerves in your hands.

Nerves will tingle if they are compressed. So, as well as seeking a vascular cause for your problem, you will have to determine whether the nerves to your hands are being pinched. This constriction can occur anywhere along the courses of the nerves — from your neck, down the arms and through the wrists.

Your symptoms seem quite pronounced, so I think it is appropriate for you to see a doctor, particularly a neurologist — one who specializes in diseases of nerves. In all likelihood, he will be able to identify not only the source of your problem but also its location. You may need to undergo special testing, like neck X-rays and electromyography — a method of mapping out nerve and muscle malfunction. The trouble may be well worth the inconvenience and expense, however, because treatment to remove the obstruction or compression is usually successful.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 88 and have hardening of the arteries. My hands become numb in even slightly cold weather. What can be done about this?

DEAR READER — You seem to have a purely circulatory problem. As people age, arteries to various parts of the body become plugged with cholesterol deposits and these narrowed vessels cannot supply adequate oxygen and heat to certain organs, particularly hands and feet. Although your condition may be difficult to correct, there are certain things you can do to help the numbness. Avoid extreme cold. Use mittens and gloves. Stop smoking. Above all, make every attempt to keep your hands warm, no matter what the weather is. This way, you will prevent vasoconstriction (spasm of the small arteries). Finally, there are certain drugs that may enhance your circulation. Ask your doctor about them.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Kidnap victim's body discovered

FERRARA, Italy (AP) — Police said they recovered a body on Thursday believed to be the remains of a wealthy Italian dentist kidnapped near this northern town in March 1984.

Police said they were led to the site outside Ferrara by a Sardinian shepherd, a purported member of a kidnapping ring who was arrested this week. The body was buried in a hole and covered with cement months ago, they said.

Police believe the kidnap victim, dentist Giorgio Molinari, 58, of Bodeno, may have been fatally injured when he resisted abduction. He had been hit on the head by bandits who stopped him as he was driving home with his daughter.

His family refused to pay ransom when the kidnappers failed to prove Molinari was alive.

Births

A baby girl was born to Rick and Gearl Dean Wemken of Route 1 Box 222 at 10 a.m. July 3 in Codgell Memorial Hospital. She weighed five pounds 15 ounces.

Cyrus Field, the promoter of the Atlantic cable, was born in 1819.

Ex-hostages talk of ordeal

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Vicente Garza could not get to work soon enough.

Twelve hours after arriving in this South Texas city, the man who had been held captive for more than two weeks in Beirut was busy at work.

"This is business every morning whenever I'm here in Laredo," Garza told a news conference Thursday. "I make my rounds. I made them this morning. In fact, I wanted to make sure I wouldn't forget about my job."

Garza is a developer and president of Associated Cos., which operates several retail and grocery stores in South Texas.

Garza and his son-in-law, Robert Trautmann Jr., were among 39 Americans held in Beirut since the hijacking of a Trans World Airlines jet over the Mediterranean on June 14. They were released earlier this week and Trautmann and Garza arrived in Laredo on Wednesday night.

A crowd of about 600 greeted the pair as they stepped off the plane into a pouring rain and talked briefly to reporters.

At the news conference at a shopping mall on Thursday, Trautmann, also a developer, said he supported the Reagan administration's handling of their captivity, did not fully agree with statements made by a hostage spokesman and does not favor military retaliation.

Asked how he would unwind, Trautmann said, "Just really do what I did before I took a vacation. Just fall back in a daily routine, getting up, going to work and trying to stay busy, trying trying to forget about it.

"But I don't think I'll ever forget it," he said.

Both Garza and Trautmann expressed concern for the seven remaining American hostages in Beirut and urged their quick release.

About 200 people watched as the two men, frequently smiling, told of their captivity.

Garza said he was lucky that his group was housed in various private homes. He said the eight members of the group were very professional and did not think too much about escaping.

Garza, seen several times on television, wore a tie and appeared very neat during his captivity. He said that was possible because the hostages had hot water and lived in homes of Christians, who would be considered middle-class in American standards.

Trautmann and three others, however, were held in a basement during most of their captivity.

Inmate to die Tuesday

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Henry Martinez Porter, scheduled to be executed early Tuesday for killing a policeman, has ordered a to halt attempts to delay the execution, the San Antonio Light reported today.

"Henry doesn't want me to make any efforts for a stay of execution or a request of executive clemency," Porter's attorney, Dennis Tor of Corpus Christi, told the Light after talking with the condemned man Thursday.

Porter, 43, of San Antonio was sentenced to die for the Nov. 29, 1975, shooting death of Fort Worth policeman Henry Mailloux.

"Henry said he has accepted the fact (of his death), and he is at peace with himself," Tor said said in a telephone interview. "He doesn't want to be disturbed with false hope because of (appeals court) denials."

Tor said he would abide by Porter's wishes. But he said he intended to consult with American Civil Liberties Union attorney Gerald Goldstein of San Antonio, who often intervenes in such cases.

"I had talked with Jerry earlier but I was under the impression that I would take action," Tor said.

Porter twice has won stays of execution and his attorneys have said they have exhausted all feasible legal appeals.

Mailloux pulled over Porter for investigation of a series of armed robberies in Fort Worth. Porter said that when the officer threatened to shoot him, he fired at Mailloux. Porter also was wounded in the shootout.

Porter blames his criminal difficulties on a heroin habit that reached as much as $1,000 a day. He has insisted the shooting of Mailloux was self defense.

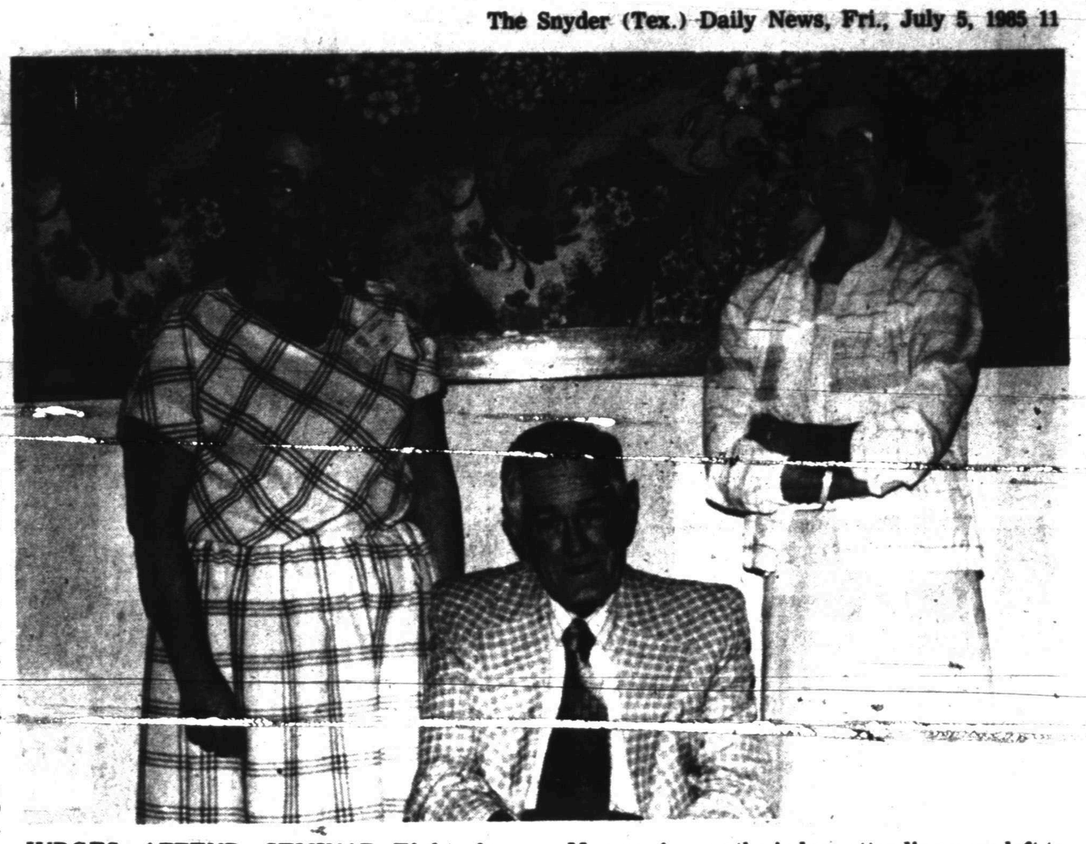

"I've never denied shooting the officer," he said in a death-row interview Wednesday.

Cocaine more deadly than heroin according to study

CHICAGO (AP) — Americans are finding "more intensive and destructive" ways to take cocaine, which claimed more than three times as many lives in 1984 as it did in 1980, says an official with the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

"There has been a striking increase in medical emergencies and deaths associated with the use of cocaine," wrote Dr. William Pollin in an editorial in today's Journal of the American Medical Assocation.

The editorial accompanied a report saying laboratory animals given free access to cocaine died at almost triple the rate of those given access to heroin. Such a result has "obvious implications for human drug abuse," the study's authors said.

Pollin, who recently stepped down as institute director, said in a telephone interview Thursday that deaths associated with cocaine numbered 169 in 1980, but the toll was 598 last year.

No firm numbers exist on whether numbers of users have increased, but "more intensive and destructive patterns of use" are clearly occurring, he wrote. Such patterns include preparing the drug with a technique called freebasing to allow it to be smoked, injecting the drug into the bloodstream and using cocaine in combination with other drugs, Pollin wrote.

"While many drug users recognize the inherent danger of opiate (including heroin) addiction, they fail to recognize the potential danger of long-term cocaine use," said Michael A. Bozarth and Roy A. Wise of Concordia University in Montreal, who conducted the study.

They implanted tubes in the necks of 23 rats so that each animal could press a lever in its cage to self-administer a set dose of drug into its bloodstream. The rats were divided into two groups, one for each drug.

After 30 days, 11 of the 12 cocaine-using rats were dead, a mortality rate of more than 90 percent, compared with only four of the 11 heroin-using rats, a mortality rate of 36 percent, the researchers reported.

Cocaine-using rats lost more weight and suffered a more marked decline in health than the heroin-using rats, said the researchers.

Ask The Preacher

...about miracles today

By Randall Gray

There are plenty of people these days who claim to be miracle workers. I remember my father confronting one of these people and asking if his miraculous ability included the power to drink poison with no ill-effects as the true miracle workers of scripture did (Mark 16:18).

The man said that he did have that power, but that to purposely test it would be "testing God," that he would have to drink the poison "inadvertently." So, Dad said, "Fine. I'll tell you what--I know where you work and I know you drink a lot of coffee. I'll sneak in the back way some morning and put some rat poison in your mug. Then you won't know it and the great miracle will be displayed!"

The man said, "Please don't do that."

I know this is a personal experience, but it illustrates the difference between true miracles (which have ceased according to 1st Cor. 13: 8-10) and the charlatans who operate today.

Panel finds 2 doctors guilty of misconduct

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A medical panel today found two white government doctors guilty of misconduct in the 1977 death of black leader Steve Biko.

It ruled that the two failed to provide adequate care shortly before Biko died in police custody.

Biko's death made the black consciousness leader a martyr in the struggle against white-minority rule.

The decision came as hundreds of people demonstrated in Johannesburg today in a new case involving racial unrest in South Africa — the slayings last week of Matthew Goniwe and three other black anti-apartheid activists.

In anti-apartheid violence today, national police headquarters in Pretoria said that 79 blacks were arrested in Colesberg, a small town in northern Cape Province, on charges of public violence.

A black policeman in Colesberg shot and killed four blacks among a crowd who attacked his home Wednesday.

In New Brighton, a black township near the Cape Province industrial center of Port Elizabeth, police said United Democratic Front members attacked a member of the Azanian Peoples Organization, a rival anti-apartheid group, with axes, knives and spades. The victim was reported in critical condition.

The South African Medical and Dental Council ruled in Pretoria in the Biko case against District Surgeons Benjamin Tucker and Ivor Lang. It banned Tucker from practicing medicine for three months, but suspended the sentence for two years. In a lesser punishment, it reprimanded Lang.

Both doctors could have been barred from practice.

Biko's widow, Nontsikelelo, said in King William's Town, where she has worked as a nurse, that she was "happy the truth has at last come out." She added, "I expected the sentences to be heavier."

An inquiry at the time found Biko probably died of injuries received in a scuffle with police.

The medical council investigated the doctors' conduct in the death only after being ordered to do so this year by the Transvaal Province Supreme Court.

A five-doctor panel found Tucker guilty of disgraceful professional conduct and Lang guilty of improper conduct.

It said Tucker failed to examine the injured Biko properly, and let police move Biko 750 miles by road from Port Elizabeth to a prison hospital in Pretoria.

It said Lang failed to notice a wound on Biko's forehead and failed to keep adequate medical records on Biko.

Tucker and Lang were in charge of Biko's medical treatment for five days before he died on Sept. 12, 1977. They were cleared of other charges.

In Johannesburg, hundreds of white students and others opposed to apartheid — the race segregation system under which South Africa's 5 million whites rule 22 million blacks — displayed placards reading, "Stop right-wing death squads," and, "Stop political assassinations." Riot police assembled nearby but did not intervene during the hour-long demonstration.

The demonstrators stood singly to avoid violating a 9-year-old ban on outdoor group protest meetings.

Goniwe was a 38-year-old teacher whose dismissal in early 1984 in Cradock, in Cape Province, set off a long school boycott. The boycott served as a model for mass protests against what blacks said were inferior schools and against government-imposed rent increases in black communities across the country.

Goniwe and three companions disappeared June 27 while driving to Cradock. Their stabbed and burned bodies were later found near Goniwe's burned-out car.

Leaders of the United Democratic Front, a nationwide multiracial, anti-apartheid coalition, told a news conference Thursday they believed pro-government death squads killed Goniwe and the three others.

The government denied Thursday what it said were "callous insinuations" of official involvement in the Goniwe slayings.

Groups including the Black Sash, Johannesburg Democratic Action Committee and the Detainees Parents Support Committee said in a statement Thursday night: "The chilling parallels with the activities of Latin American 'death squads' forces us to ask whether the South African government or its agents are resorting to ever more brutal methods to silence opposition."

Friday fire false alarm

Snyder firemen were dispatched Friday morning to what turned out to be a false alarm, reported at 10:15 a.m. as a house fire.

Firemen arriving at 1609 15th St. discovered the residents were intentionally burning old chicken nests, however. The fire was reported by a neighbor.

2 hit-and-runs since July 3rd

Four minor traffic mishaps, including two hit-and-run incidents, were reported to Snyder police Wednesday and Thursday.

Involved in the first, reported at 9:48 a.m. Wednesday in the 3900 Block of Ave. O, was a 1979 Ford owned by Thereasa Rudloff of the Gulf Coast Apartments.

The Rudloff vehicle had apparently been struck by an unidentified vehicle while parked at the apartment complex.

Velma Pinkerton of Rt. 3, Snyder filed the second hit-and-run report at 2:45 p.m. Wednesday.

According to the report, Pinkerton was driving a 1978 Chevrolet at the intersection of 25th St. and College Ave. when her car was struck by another vehicle which fled the scene.

The 4600 Block of College Ave. was the scene of a minor two vehicle collision at 11:45 a.m. Thursday.

Involved in it were 1980 Chevrolet driven by Travis Don Trammel of Jayton and a 1982 Oldsmobile driven by Marvin Hart Hanson Jr. of Hermleigh.

Thursday's final accident was reported at 7:35 p.m. in the 3000 Block of North Towle Park Road.

Involved in it were a 1979 Ford driven by Kenneth Wilson Panter of Snyder which struck a parked 1981 Ford owned by Jose Ozuna of Rt. 3, Snyder.

Three injured in minor wreck

Three persons sustained minor injuries in a two-vehicle collision at the intersection of 13th St. and College Ave. Wednesday.

Listed as suffering minor injuries on the police accident report were a 34-year-old man, a 31-year-old woman and a 12-year-old girl, all riding in a 1981 Oldsmobile. The driver of this vehicle was listed as Kenneth Wayne Smith of Rt. 1.

They were in collision at 2:39 p.m. with a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Bob Hawes of 2801 33rd St.

All three were said treated for their injuries and released from the hospital.

Fireworks calls are 4th activity

Police report a relatively quiet July 4th. Despite numerous calls about illegal popping of fireworks in the city, there were no reports of more serious criminal activity Wednesday or Thursday.

Ten suspects were arrested during the holiday period on various misdemeanor charges including five for public intoxication Thursday evening.

Two subjects were jailed for driving while intoxicated and one for being intoxicated on a premises licensed to sell alcohol.

One man was arrested Thursday for soliciting without a permit and another suspect was booked on warrants for unpaid traffic fines.

Ex-hostage says...

Americans should retaliate

HOUSTON (AP) — Former TWA hostage Allyn Conwell says he is in full accord with the United States wanting to retaliate against the Shiite hijackers and those who murdered Navy diver Robert Stethem.

Conwell, 39, told reporters at an invitation-only press conference Thursday, he totally supports the Reagan administration's efforts to seek retaliation.

"I have absolutely no sympathy for and I have absolutely no understanding of the act of murder. I have no compassion for understanding of and I have never voiced any compassion, sympathy, understanding or tolerance for murderers or the hijackers," Conwell said.

He said the comments he made at a Damascus press conference, which were construed as being sympathetic to the Shiites, dealt with only one group — the Amal militia.

"They entered this situation reluctantly," Conwell said. The other Shiite groups consisted of the hijackers and supporters of the hijackers, he said.

Conwell said the Amal were wrong in holding them hostage, but he said he understood how they would consider the holding of Americans equal to that of Israel holding 700 Shiites as prisoners.

"(Nabih) Berri and the Amal were acting against the law," Conwell said. "I also think the Israelites were working against the law."

As elected spokesman for the American hostages, Conwell said he was used to a certain degree by the Amal.

Conwell has been the target of much criticism by former hostages for the "sympathetic" comments he made about his captors and for the apparent special treatment given him by the Amal.

"Apparently, after reviewing tape there is tremendous amount of confusion over my role as spokesman — perhaps some debate over my political affiliation. I want to clear this up as soon as possible," Conwell said as his wife, Olga, and brother, Ron, sat next to him.

Several former captives have said they didn't agree with Conwell's statements about the cause of the Amal, who held the passengers and three crew members of TWA flight 847 for 17 days.

Some hostages also have said Conwell received special treatment compared with the rest of the 38 hostages. Criticisms made about Conwell included that he had a separate room, had his laundry done for him while others did theirs in a sink, had better food and was privileged to drive a car.

Conwell, however, said that he was treated no differently than any of the other hostages. The only exception, he said, was that he ate a few slices of watermelon once.

"There were no special considerations afforded to me," Conwell said. "I slept with and lived with my fellow hostages when I was able to sleep."

His role as spokesman called for less sleep because he was taken by the captors to visit all the hostages during the night, Conwell said. He wasn't allowed to visit the others during the day because of security reasons, he said.

Conwell said he drove a car for about five to seven minutes but that it wasn't his idea.

The eloquently-spoken Conwell said he had seen the "slanderous remarks" made by fellow hostage Peter Hill of Hoffman Estates, Ill., accusing him of being naive about the Amal. He said the allegations made by Hill caused him a great deal of concern.

Officials eye sanctuary freedom train

DENVER (AP) — Immigration officials are watching, but are not moving against anyone participating in a public "Freedom Train" protesting U.S. treatment of Central America's refugees, a movement spokesman says.

"We are here to say the sanctuary movement is alive and well, and will not be intimidated," the Rev. John Fish, head of the Midwest Region of Sanctuary Churches, said here Wednesday.

The movement with more than 200 churches and synagogues participating, calls for protection and shelter for refugees from El Salvador and Guatemala.

Supporters are protesting U.S. deportation of citizens of Central America's countries back to torture, imprisonment and death, Fish said.

Fish, speaking on the west steps of the state Capitol, said the group does its work in public, while the U.S. Government "does evil work" in "covert ways and in secret budgets."

"Our government is indicting brothers and sisters for transporting refugees — while our government is transporting 40,000 of them back," he said.

Two Sanctuary workers in Texas have been conviced for helping Central Americans and a dozen more face trial in Arizona in September.

Fish said the federal government "indicts for aiding and abetting ... yet our government aids and abets their killers."

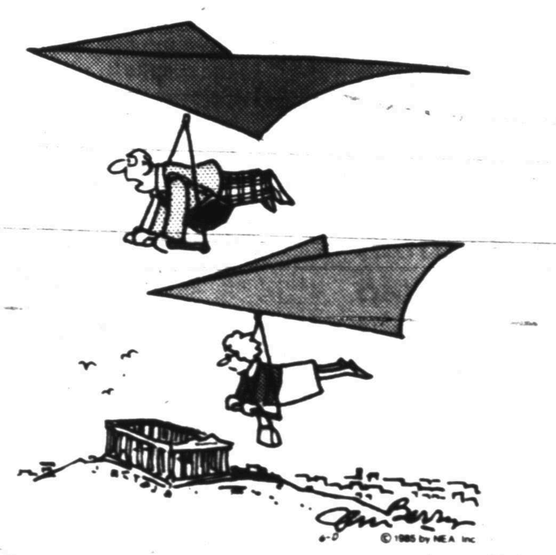

Eight Salvadoran and Guatemalan refugees, their faces concealed by handkerchiefs, and more than a dozen sanctuary workers joined in the rally as the caravan stopped in Denver. It stopped earlier in Colorado Springs on its trip from Phoenix, Ariz., to Northampton, Mass.

Stops are scheduled for more than 20 cities, and Fish estimated 3,000 supporters will help escort the caravan, and 10,000 spectators will hear refugees speak.

Dan Dale, a Chicago coordinator for the Sanctuary movement, said the federal attorneys prosecuting those who helped refugees have been successful in limiting defense arguments.

The steamship Portland was lost off Cape Cod in 1898. There was a loss of 157 lives.
