On The BEAM

By J. W. King, Sr.

Hoarding food or any other commodity is as good a way to help Joe Staln and his stooges that I know of.

American peopleare peculiar. Some of them are downright selfish. If some have a feeling something may become scarce they go in a hurry to stock up Such action is nothing but selfishness. Even if a commodity is pleatiful if enough people buy and hoard it, the commodity becomes scarce on the market and the price goes up. What the hoarder does is to make his neighbor suffer. His neighbor is patroitic and sensible-He doesn't run down and buy "just to be sure he has plenty". He wants his neighbor to have his share of the commodity.

Maybe you think you are not selfish but if you are a hoarder you are selfish. If your wants are satisfied your neighbor can do without so far as you are concerned.

Buying up something and hoarding it is silly; it is unpatriotic; it causes scarcity; it causes high prices; it causes inflation; it helps the enemy. Why do it?

Who Will Harvest This Years Cotton

The boll weevil and other cotton pests are getting ready to enjoy another year of high living at the expense of Texas cotton farmers.

When the boll weevil lives high, the cotton farmer's income dwindles. This means that farmers have less money to spend for the things they need and for the little luxuries that go to make up good living. The Boll weevil gets fat and the cotton farmer gets poor. Income of businesses patronized by thecotton farmer is reduced.

According to an unofficial estimate of the Nationl Cotton Council, insect losses for the Cotton Belt last year totaled aproximately $470,111,000.

In Texas these losses amounted to $39,635,000, or about $228 per cotton farm. Pests destroyed an estimated four per cent of the crop.

What percentage of this year's coton crop will the boll weevil and his greedy running mates consume?

Our entomologists warn that in many areas the threat of boll weevil damage during this season is even greater than it was at this time last year. Losses in 1949 were the highest in 22 years.

In the face of this threat, farmers are advised to stock up on poison and get their equipment ready for a furious fight.

The cotton industry is callin, for an all-out war to control boll weevil and other pests this season, asking for a concentrated state-by-state, county-by county and community-by-community battle. It is seeking to enlist not only farmers and other members of the cotton industry but also bankers, merchants, civic clubs, farm organizations, and other agencies. This campaign is important to all of us in this cotton producing area. It deserves full support.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

UN Flag Ordered Flown In Korea; Gen. MacArthur Named Commander Of International Forces in Area

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

UNITED NATIONS:
Fights Aggression

There are moments in the march of current events that make history. In the eyes of many political observers such a moment occurred recently when Secretary General of the United Nations, Trygve Lie, picked up the three by five-foot blue and white UN flag and handed it to Warren R. Austin, chief U. S. delegate to the UN, and asked him to send it to General Douglas MacArthur.

The Security Council had just authorized the UN flag be flown alongside national standards in operations against the Red Korean invaders.

And as he handed the flag to Austin, he said:

"Bring it back when the job is done."

On these words hinge the hopes of the free world. Observers saw in them a belief that the United Nations effort in Korea will be successful and at last a world organization has been formed that will endure and protect the minorities for generations to come.

Observers were particularly impressed because it climaxed firm and positive action by the community of nations to secure world peace.

Up to this point the United Nations had:

(1) Demanded the withdrawal of Communist invaders from South Korea.

(2) Quickly endorsed the United States action of sending aid to South Korea and called upon all members of the United Nations to render assistance to carry out the police action against the Communists.

(3) Appointed General MacArthur commander of international forces in Korea.

The historic flag which Lie handed to Ambassador Austin was the one that flew over the headquarters of Dr. Ralph Bunche during his successful mediation of the Arab-Israeli war. It is the visible symbol of the first military sanctions ever levied against an aggressor by a world organization.

THAT SMELL:
Not The Russians

Four towns in Illinois and three in Iowa provided the nation with a chuckle, but it was not funny at the time at least to residents of those towns.

A foul smell crept through Moline, East Moline, Selvis and Rock Island, Ill., and then spread across the border into Muscatine, Bettendorf and Davenport, Iowa.

Some residents went into hysterics, one man insisted to Selvis police that "the Russians are flying over and gassing us," citizens were forced from their beds and from taverns, police switchboards were jammed with calls and firemen kept on a near-emergency basis. Scores of Moline residents jumped into their cars and drove in their night clothes to high ground and fresher air.

When the excitement died down investigation disclosed the odor resulted from a leak in a tank of entalarm being hauled through the area on a truck headed west. Entalarm is an ordorant used to inject a smell into natural gas, normally odorless, to permit detection of leaks. It is not injurious but can cause nausea.

REORGANIZATION:
New Plan Killed

President Truman's plan to create a new department of health, education and security has been killed by the house. It was, incidentally, the first time this session the house has rejected a reorganization plan. The senate has killed six.

The house adopted, 249 to 71, a resolution of disapproval of the measure. It was killed apparently by opponents who argued it would be a step toward "socialized medicine."

Democrats who supported the plan, however, denied it had any bearing on socialized medicine. They said only congress could bring this about by passing necessary legislation.

RETAIL PRICES:
Up Another Notch

The Korean situation was not the only worry of Americans during the past week or so. Living costs went up another notch with the prices of meat and bread being increased in retail stores.

Cocoa, coffee, sugar, hides and tin continued upward, cotton soared to $15 a bale, and cattle went to the highest price level in a year. It is all blamed on the Korean war, but other factors entered in.

UN Flag

The blue and white flag of the United Nations has been sent to Korea to be flown by troops battling the Communist invaders from North Korea. Gen. Douglas MacArthur has been named commander in chief of the United Nations forces.

KOREA:
The Tide Flows

Military observers, still watching the Soviet Union for any signs of open participation in the Korean war, were of the opinion the tide has begun to flow—against the aggressors.

During the first two weeks of the conflict South Korean and American troops, acting under orders of the United Nations, took a beating. But as the battle went into the third week, American arms—guns, tanks and planes—and U.S. soldiers stemmed the rush of the Communist armies.

At a point some 50 to 60 miles south of Seoul, capital of South Korea which fell into the hands of the invaders a few days after the sneak attack, American and Communist troops met.

At first American troops were forced to withdraw before Red tanks. And at the moment when it seemed the invaders might break through again, U. S. big guns and tanks, plus fresh foot soldiers poured into the area. The attack was stopped and many observers believe the counter attack will come as the stream of supplies increase.

A big factor in the blunted Communist attack was the U. S., British and Australian air forces. Fighters and bombers carried out continuous attacks upon tanks, roads, and bridges. They ripped open Communist positions with low flying rocket and machine gun attack. The big bombers blasted away at supply lines and communication centers. Their blows were felt by the invaders and will spearhead the inevitable counter attack.

Meanwhile, American divisions within the United States were being readied to move to the Far East. General MacArthur had, at the beginning of the conflict, four divisions in Japan. He has already drawn upon them and troops within the country will replace those from Japan plus reinforcements for the battle area.

TRUTH CAMPAIGN:
Counteract Propaganda

For years Communist propaganda has been spread around the world, but no one seems to know just how much of the story of democracy has reached the enslaved peoples of the world. Now the state department has announced plans for "a great campaign of truth" to counter Moscow's broadsides of propaganda against the United States and other democratic nations.

Secretary of State Acheson told about the plan in testimony before a senate foreign-relations subcommittee. General Eisenhower also testified before the committee, declaring, "Truth could almost be classified as our T-bomb (truth-bomb) in this warfare."

General Marshall, who also testified, said he is firmly convinced that "we must confine ourselves to the truth" and that we must meet the Soviet procedure in what is called their conquest of the minds of people.

Acheson told the senators the Communist campaign of vilification "jeopardizes the security of the United States and is a threat to the security of the free world."

"The cynical aggression of communism in Korea, and the falsehoods that have preceded and accompanied it, make inescapably clear the importance of the campaign of truth," he said.

Economy

Economically the nation seemed in much better condition as the labor department reported signs pointing to record-breaking employment this year, exceeding the 1948 peak of 61,600,000.

Secretary Tobin said much of the nonagricultural employment gain stemmed from seasonal activities, intensified especially in the construction industry which is enjoying record-breaking activity.

MANPOWER:
Draft in Effect

The recently enacted draft law has been put into effect. President Truman ordered an expansion of the fighting forces in view of the Korea situation through enlistment or the draft.

Immediately after the President's order, spokesmen for the army, navy and air force said they would be happy to get all their required manpower through enlistments alone if possible. Whether or not enlistments will fill the armed forces needs will be determined within the next two weeks.

Just how much the armed forces will be expanded has been kept secret. Presumably it could run as high as 547,482 men, bringing the services to 2,005,882.

There is also the possibility that reserves will be called up, although spokesmen for the services said none will be ordered to duty at present without their consent.

A spokesman for the Pentagon said the enactment of the draft law was necessary to meet "the situation in Korea," and "constitutes a first step to build up to full operating strength the units of the army, navy and air force to be used in the Korean operation, to provide further maintenance and support therefor, and to replace units to be moved to Korea."

Just how far the United States will go in building up its forces depends entirely upon developments in the Far East and other danger points, military observers reported.

RAILROADS:
Strike and Crash

Two items of railroad news were in the public mind, one bad and one good.

The A F L switchmen's union agreed to end its strike against four midwest and western railroads. The fifth continued its walkout, but returned to wark after President Truman ordered the army to take over.

The switchmen made no bones about why they were calling off the strike. As they put it, we are calling it off "because of the threat of direct government action."

Truman had scored again. The day before he had told his weekly press conference at Washington that the union had better halt the strike or else. Evidently the union didn't like that "or else."

On the bad side, two high speed Santa Fe railway streamliners, streaking eastward side by side, one traveling at 90 miles an hour and the other seventy, bumped midsections in a freakish accident.

Nine dead and 75 injured were carried from the twisted metal cars in the Illinois collision.

JUMPING JACK:
Sets Chute Record

Sgt. John (Jumping Jack) Sweitch set out to break the world's record parachute leaps in a single day, which he did with 107 drops. If he proved anything else it was the fact the human body will take a lot of punishment and that some people seem to get pleasure out of risking their necks.

The sergeant, with the aid of his buddies of the 82nd Airborne Division, made 107 drops in 10 hours, an average of one every six minutes.

He twisted his ankle and sprained his knee on the 51st jump and slowed down long enough to have his leg taped. After each jump, a jeep and a pickup truck met him. The jeep rushed him back to the Piper Cub plane which took him aloft again, while the truck took his chutes to the hangar where his six buddies were kept busy repacking them.

The sergeant's only complaint during the endurance test was he would be all right "if he could survive the jeep rides."

Korea

U.S. infantry and artillery rushed into Korea in an effort to stem the Communist advance. Later reports indicated good results from increasing supplies of big guns and troops.

COLOMBIA:
Quake Toll 270

Five successive earthquakes in Colombia, some 200 miles northeast of Bogota, is reported to have killed 270 persons, injured some 500, and left 40,000 homeless.

Ten towns in north central Colombia were reported destroyed with property damage estimated at approximately $20,700,000.

Additional damage and loss of life may be revealed when a final survey of the area is made.

GOOD CITIZEN

Laws Are Rules People Make So They May Live in Harmony

This is the fourth of a series of ten articles from the booklet "Good Citizen" published by The American Heritage Foundation concerning the rights and duties of an American.

THE THIRD promise of a good citizen: I will respect and obey the laws. I will assist public officials in preventing crime and the courts in giving evidence.

Laws are rules people make so they can live together without stepping on each other's toes.

The simplest law of all, perhaps, is the traffic light. When it is green it's supposed to protect you against the other fellow. When it is red it's supposed to protect the other person from you.

Ours is a government of laws—not men.

Our constitution guarantees that our laws may be made in one way, and one way only, by the people, through their elected representatives—not by one man, or a few men, or by any appointed group.

No man in this country is so big that he is above the law, and none so insignificant that he cannot look to the law for protection.

A good citizen cooperates with the law. He assists public agents in preventing crime, and the courts in giving evidence.

A good citizen does not evade the law. He does not say, "I know somebody who can fix my ticket."

Laws necessarily change with needs of the times. A good citizen's attitude toward a law which he regards as unfair, unreasonable and out of step with the times is that of working to get it changed—but obeying it while it is on the books.

There is the letter of the law—and the spirit of the law.

You cannot make men good by laws, and the hope of law and order is grounded in the reverence of a majority of people for justice, truth and goodness. But, in the final analysis, a law has teeth in it. Using federal offenses as an example, one great historian says,

"If you refuse long enough to make out a correct income tax return and refuse to obey an order to appear in court, you will get a touch of government power. Three or four husky fellows will take you by the scruff of the neck and the seat of the pants and hustle you into a police van motored by the power of internal combustion."

To guard against hasty and ill-advised action or the concentration of powers in any one man or body of men, a system of checks and balances is provided by the federal constitution. Of these:

It would take six years completely to replace the elected branches of the federal government composed exclusively of members of one party by the members of another.

This is due to the fact that: The President is elected for four years; the members of the house of representatives are elected every two years, and one-third of the senators are elected every two years but for a six-year term.

Laws passed either by the senate or by the house of representatives must be approved by a majority of the other body

The President can veto laws enacted by congress, and his veto can be overridden only by a two-thirds vote of each house.

The courts have the right to interpret laws passed by congress and to review the legality of acts of officers of the government charged with the administration. In many cases the courts have held acts of congress invalid as being in conflict with a provision of the constitution.

The senate has the power to review and reject Presidential appointments of diplomatic, judicial, and certain other officers of the government, as well as the power to approve or reject treaties with foreign governments.

The house of representatives has the power to impeach and the senate the place of trial and to remove from office all civil officers of the United States including even the President.

Star Dust
STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

NANCY OLSON'S career so far has been one of those amazing Hollywood success stories; a talent scout saw her in a play at the University of California, two years ago; she had a screen test the next day, a Paramount contract the day after that. One month later she was co-starring with Randolph Scott in 20th Century-Fox's "Canadian Pacific." She had a fine role in "Sunset Boulevard," her second film, so perfectly suited to her that she wore her own clothes. "Union Station" is her third. But it hasn't all been just luck. Young Nancy has both beauty and talent, and has worked hard in college dramatic courses to get experience.

Sen. Alexander Wiley, of the special senate committee investigating interstate crime, held a screening of Columbia's "711 Ocean Drive" for Sen. Kefauver and the other members. The film, starring Edmond O'Brien and Joanne Dru, exposes the techniques and methods used by horse racing wire services to disseminate their illegal information throughout the country.

Matt McHugh was cast as a hard-boiled sheriff in "Return of the Frontiersman" because he looks more like a cowboy than most cowboys do. But Mat, born and raised on New York's Tenth Avenue, had never mounted a horse or carried a gun before the picture started. The brother of Frank McHugh, he appears in support of Gordon MacRae, Rory Calhoun, Julie London and Jack Holt.

THE FICTION CORNER

TABLES TURNED

By Richard H. Wilkinson

FLIRTING was second nature with Deborah Bellamy. No one would have guessed, after one glance at her gay, laughing face, after one look into her mocking, tantalizing eyes, that inwardly she was afraid. Afraid that sometime some one of her victims was going to turn the tables. That is to say, she knew that one day she was going to fall in love with one of the men with whom she flirted. And that, she knew, would be the end. The end to all her gay, reckless happiness. She never dreamed—that this man would prove to be a cowboy, named Lon Fairweather.

3-Minute Fiction

Deborah had joined a party who planned a month's vacation at a dude ranch in Wyoming. Lon was the foreman. He was tall, fair, handsome. After one look into his sober blue eyes, Deborah began to lay her snares.

Lon was different, but he was also human. Hence he succumbed to her wiles, just as had the others. The night he told Deborah of his love they were seated on a high boulder overlooking a hemmed-in lake.

Something about the beauty and grandeur of the scene stirred Deborah's soul. She found herself listening to Lon's love-making more soberly than was her custom.

"Oh, Lon," she said a little breathlessly, "Not now . . ."

She pushed him away and ran up the path toward the ranch house. Once back in her room she faced herself in the mirror and laughed.

She found herself listening to Lon's love-making a little more soberly than was her custom.

In the days that followed Lon persisted in occupying her thoughts. Some what in desperation she cast about for escape. And then a plan came to mind. She'd ask him to come to New York. She'd get him on home ground, compare him with the sort of life she was used to.

The idea seemed a good one and strangely enough Lon agreed to come—in the fall.

FALL CAME, and she planned a party. She invited all those who had been at the Double O Bar that summer.

Lon arrived in due time and called at Deborah's apartment. She was a little taken aback at the ease and grace with which he wore his smart new tuxedo, and in spite of herself she thrilled when he swept her into his arms.

The dinner was set for 8. At 7:30 the guests began to arrive. Lon was surprised when he saw that the men wore chaps and high-heeled boots; that the women were garbed in divided riding skirts and gay-colored blouses.

A butler came to the door and yelled: "Come and get it, cowboy!"

Deborah felt a little uneasy as Lon escorted her to her seat. Her uneasiness grew as he looked slightly puzzled upon discovering there was no silverware at his place save a broad-bladed knife. He hesitated, watching in amazement as the other guests picked up their knives, and with suppressed chuckles began to scoop up peas and shove them into their mouths. He watched as they poured coffee from their cups and drank from their saucers.

"I understand," he said, looking directly at Deborah. "And I regret I can't appreciate the humor of the thing. You see," he added, "we westerners have had it drilled into us by you easterners, that we're crude and have no manners. "But," he paused and made a little, perfunctory bow toward Deborah. "Now I know something else; know that whatever other manners you folks might have you don't know the meaning of hospitality."

And with this he carefully placed his napkin on the table, ushed back his chair and strode from the room.

"Lon! Lon!" she called. "Please come back. It was all my fault. I'm sorry. Please!"

But Lon was already through the door and halfway down the stairs.

Above, on the landing Deborah stood as if dazed. There was a terrible gnawing sensation inside of her, a great, desolate, miserable feeling. She knew then that Lon Fairweather had been the man she was afraid of meeting.

Television Versus IQ—It Can Be Made Cultural Medium

By BILLY ROSE

As an old blab merchant, I seldom pay much attention to the other fellow's speeches, and when I do it's generally to take umbrage rather than notice.

This week, however, I'd like to turn coat and tables on myself and do some hefty hollering about a speech on the future of television recently delivered by Dr. Millard Faught, an economist, at the University Club of Chicago. I happened to pop-eye a copy of it the other day, and while I haven't the space to give you the whole 4,000 words, here's a bit of the cream off the top.

To begin with, Dr Faught axioms that TV can be used for a lot of things besides selling eyewash, mouthwash and hogwash, and insists that its full potentialities will never be realized if we allow it to be taken over lock, stock and antenna by the hucksters. In his opinion, the new dingus can do an unprecedented job for us in a dozen esthetic fields providing, of course, that a method can be devised whereby someone besides the advertiser foots part of the bill.

Billy Rose

The gimmick he suggests is a television box office operating on a pay-as-you-see-it basis, and the one he specifically mentions in his speech—Phonevision—is due to be tested in Chicago this fall with the blessings of the F.C.C.

LEAVING ELECTRONIC doubletalk out of it, Phonevision, which was recently demonstrated for me, is simply this: a system whereby 99 per cent of an image is telecast free of charge, but shows up on the home screen as so much hash. To unscramble the picture one picks up the phone and asks the operator to pipe in the missing 1 per cent through a gadget on his set hooked up to his telephone line.

At the end of the month, the charge for this service is included in his phone bill, and the gross take divvied betwen the television station, the creator of the program, and the phone company.

According to Dr. Faught, Phonevision—or some equivalent device—will make it possible to collect millions of dollars in a single evening for, let us say, the Red Cross by putting on one nationwide benefit video show. It will enable our sick-unto-death Hollywood studios to quintuple their audiences and double their grosses, and also make possible 10-million-dollar gates for championship fights and World Series games. But, opines the good doctor, its most eye-bugging impact will be on education.

By bringing the classroom into the home, it will be possible for 100,000 students simultaneously to take the same beginners' course in Spanish, or child care, or interior decorating, whereas the average class on campus today consists of from 25 to 50 students.

YOU-SEE revenue from these home extension courses would provide the monies for new university buildings, laboratories, scholarships and teachers' salaries, and once and for all our colleges could stop passing the hat. Education, the doc goes on to say, is our best bet to stand off totalitarianism, despite which it's probably the most obsoletely merchandized comodity in our society.

The economist stresses that he has no quarrel with the advertisers, but maintains that if they're the only source of revenue, TV is a cinch to wind up the same sort of cultural pigmy that radio is.

The living room, he argues, is probably the room farthest removed from the marketplace, and if Joe Jones and his missus want something in it besides cornflake and Cuticura commercials, they'll have to contribute the pennies to make it possible. The government could probably be pressured into doing it for them, but who with an IQ above zero, asks Dr. Faught, wants political appointees messing with our educational processes and cultural preferences?

I particularly like the last line of his speech: "Never in the history of the communicative arts was there a greater premium on foresight."

Cherokee Chiefs Worried About Tribe Illiteracy

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. — Cherokee leaders are greatly worried about illiteracy in the tribe. As a result leaders are urging the founding of a non-profit organization to promote the education, cultural development and rehabilitation of the Cherokees in Oklahoma.

The Cherokee conception of literacy implies an acquaintance with both the Cherokee and English language.

At the time DeSoto first set foot on America, the Cherokees were a prosperous people, located in the lower Appalachian region. Their social and political institutions were well developed.

After the white man settled in the east, they acquired live stock, planted cotton, purchased slaves, accepted Christianity, built churches and schools, drew up written constitutions and formulated their own legal codes.

Trail of Tears

Sequoyah put his native language into writing and the tribe acquired a two-ply literacy.

The Cherokees were becoming more and more firmly established as instruments in the economic development of the south when Andrew Jackson ordered them to clear out to make way for the whites.

Their "Trail of Tears" led west and thousands of displaced Americans were on the march to what is now Oklahoma.

At the end of the trail they again set up their own school system. The first public school law in the new country was enacted by the Cherokees in 1832. It provided for the establishing of English language schools. One of their leaders, John Ross, proposed legislation providing for two seminaries, one for males and one for females.

Their doors were opened in 1851 and the western Cherokees were ready to resume their cultural march.

More than 600 alumni of these two schools held a reunion recently. The session's topical note was expressed by Chief W. W. Keller who pointed out that until comparatively recent years nearly every member of the tribe could read and write the Cherokee language. A majority could read and write English.

Most Progressive Tribe

He attributed the situation today to the fact that the government had discouraged the teaching of the Cherokee language and had frowned on the printing of newspapers or other publications in Cherokee.

"The government," he declared, "did not wish us to continue living with our own culture but they failed to replace it. The result is that today many children of full blood do not speak English and therefore find a language problem in school."

He then called for the founding of the non-profit organization to promote education.

The Cherokees have been called the most progressive of all American Indian tribes. Men and women of Cherokee blood, notably the late Senator Robert L. Dwen, have risen to places of leadership in political, cultural and industrial fields.

Blind Child Grows Large Strawberry for Princess

EAST GRINSTEAD, England — Six-year-old Roger Williams, heard that Princess Margaret was going to visit the East Grinstead home tor children where he lived.

Roger is blind, but he wanted to give the princess a worthy gift. He decided to make her a gift of the biggest, reddest, sweetest strawberry ever raised in East Grinstead from his own little garden patch.

He put up a fearsome scarecrow to guard his plants and covered them with netting to make sure the birds couldn't get them.

When the princess arrived Roger asked anxiously, "Do you like strawberries?"

"I love them," she said.

Carefully Roger pulled away the netting and picked his prize strawberry. He wrapped it in a leaf and gave it to the princess.

"I knew it would be ready in time," he said happily.

The princess patted Roger's head, thanked him and walked on, carrying the biggest, reddest, sweetest strawberry ever raised in East Grinstead.

Lone Marine Holds Down Former Jap Base of Truk

NEW YORK—One lone United States marine sergeant holds the responsibility in seeing that law is enforced on an island in the Pacific.

The marine is Sergeant William W. Sims, of Bell Gardens, Calif. The island—Truk, a former Japanese stronghold.

The sergeant holds drills and inspections to keep alert the small detachment of Truk policemen in his charge. As right-hand man, he selected Sergeant Ru, a native Trukese, who spreads the marine's commands to his men.

Woman Develops Full Time Business From Make-Believe Trees

ST. LOUIS—Mrs. Henry C. Carpenter was disgusted with the make-believe miniature trees that her husband purchased to use on his model train set—and it led to a thriving business.

Mr. Carpenter bought some make-believe trees to add a realistic touch to his layout. "They were just awful," his wife said. "They weren't realistic. You could spot them as phonies a mile off and they crumbled if you did more than stare at them."

As a result, Mrs. Carpenter threw the trees in the ash can and went out in the country looking for material to make better ones. He brought home several plant varieties.

By trial-and-error method she eventually made some trees that did the trick. Pretty soon she found herself making all sorts of scale-model miniatures, including shrubs, flowers, scenic background and tunnels.

Model-train hobbyists were impressed with the results and urged her to go into business. She did by selling some of them her work on the spot. Then she went to local dealers and got quite a few orders.

Three years later, Mrs. Carpenter finds herself with a full-time business, a shop in her back yard shed. So far she has sold 50,000 miniatures.

The secret of her success is a liquid preservative into which she dips her handmade products. The liquid is a secret which she will not disclose.

Mrs. Carpenter reports that others beside model railroaders are beginning to show interest in her work.

Architects are starting to buy them for model projects and they're even being used with doll houses, she reports.

Right now she is busy getting lined up for the next Christmas season rush.

"I have even put Henry to work," Mrs. Carpenter said. "He isn't bad—for a man, that is."

Deputy Wants Bathing Suit Banned to Egyptian Women

CAIRO, Egypt—If Mohamed El Karni Bey has his way, no Egyptian woman will be seen in a bathing suit or arm in arm with her husband.

He made a motion in the Egyptian chamber of deputies that all women over 16 years be forbidden to appear in bathing suits or to mix with men on beaches, or to walk arm in arm with their husbands in the streets.

He also expressed the opinion that women's clothes should cover their whole body, except the face and hands, and should not mold figures tightly.

Child Travels 1,800 Miles Alone; Unworried by Trip

CHICAGO, Ill.—Six-year-old Carol Berg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Berg of near Chicago, completed an 1,800 mile bus trip alone and was calm and unworried when there was no one on hand to meet her.

When Carol arrived in Chicago from Las Vegas after a bus ride of three days and two nights, she calmly read stories to her three dolls until attendants at the bus depot found her. They called police when they learned her plight.

Carol had $2 and two letters. One letter was from her mother, one from her aunt who put her on the bus in Las Vegas. Both identified her. Police took Carol to the juvenile home to wait until her parents arrived.

Later Monday the parents called Chicago police, explaining they had just received a telegram from Carol's aunt giving the girl's arrival time. Reassured by police, the Bergs drove to Chicago and collected their daughter and her three dolls.

Motorist and Youth Settle Trial With Ice Cream Soda

NEW YORK—Clarence A. Powell obeyed an impulse entertained hundreds of times by motorists throughout the country. He shook and slapped a little boy who threw a rock at his automobile.

Powell was driving down the street when five-year-old Ronnie Evans threw the stone. After the shaking, Powell was haled into court by the boy's mother.

Magistrate Edward Thompson ruled that a little boy couldn't know everything and besides punishment should be left to the boy's parents.

Mrs. Evans agreed. She had spanked the boy for throwing the stone.

But all's well that ends well. After a conference the magistrate decided the case could be settled with an ice cream soda.

He showed Ronnie the jail and told him that little boys would never have to stay there if they didn't throw stones. Then to Powell he said: "I'll tell you what we'll do. If you'll buy Ronnie a great big chocolate ice cream soda we'll forget the whole thing."

Powell agreed and he and Ronnie went down the court house steps hand-in-hand.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Easily Made Night Clothes Relief to Family Budget

By Ertta Haley

TAKE A GOOD look at your clothing budget, those of you who have big families. Is it out of line and hard to meet?

You may not have enough time to sew all the clothes for all the members of the family, but if you can make your own night clothes, such as gowns, house robes and pajamas, you can relieve a lot of strain on the family's clothing budget.

These are easy garments to make, and you can frequently press old clothing, pieces of remnant or good but inexpensive pieces of material into service.

Gowns and pajamas are usually given to beginners so they can learn to sew, so you need not worry about their being difficult to make, if you are inexperienced at sewing. If you feel pressed for time, then this is a job that will require little of precious time and energy.

With home sewing, you can make garments that are suitable and fitting, as well as those which will offer few laundering problems. With good materials and carefully chosen styles, you can also eliminate many mending problems, which will be a saving in time for you later.

For warm weather, choose lighter weight materials such as seersucker broadcloth and percale. Nainsook, batiste and voile may be used for girls' gowns.

Old robes discarded by older members of the family frequently yield enough serviceable material to make garments for the younger set. These will not have to be ripped at the seams. The new garment can be cut from back or front, especially if it's a small size.

Make tot's pajamas . . . . .

Robes should provide warmth, but they shouldn't be too bulky, as this makes them difficult to sew and uncomfortable to wear.

Choose Correct Patterns For Children's Pajamas

One of the best aspects of being able to sew pajamas at home for youngsters is that you can assure proper and comfortable fit. This is decidedly important, especially if the child is a chubby and has difficulty in getting ready-made clothes.

The legs on the pajamas should be comfortable without bagging; Shoulders and neck should fit smoothly to have proper set and comfort in the garment. The armholes should be roomy to accomodate different sleeping positions, and the crotch must be long enough.

Smaller children do best in two-piece pajamas that button at the waistline. Two pairs of pants, and one top are usually ideally suited to the youngster four-years old or younger.

If you desire, you can also make the younger child's pajamas in a style that has a back belt which slips through the side seam belt loops and ties in front. In this way, buttons are eliminated and the child can tie the pajama in front and requires little help.

One-piece pajamas require less material than two-piece and can be used in the four to seven year age group. After this, two-piece pajamas are preferred again, but if they are made in a middy style top, buttons again can be eliminated. When there are no buttons, you can cut down button and buttonhole sewing, and thus make mending and ironing much easier.

If you're planning making pajamas for colder weather, make those for tots with feet so they may have greater protection and warmth. Some of the older children may prefer them, too, if the climate is cold.

Gowns for girls may be of ankle or above ankle length, especially and robes in suitable styles.

for warm weather. If these are made with elastic in the waist the gown stays on better.

Use Appropriate Materials For Children's Clothing

If you have a growing family, chances are that there are always materials around the house that can be pressed to use for such items as night clothes. Now is a good time to check through storeroom, closets and drawers, so that you can make space for some things which will be purchased this fall.

Seersucker, percale or broadcloth bedspreads frequently yield materials for night clothing. If there is not enough material in the spread for both pajama parts, use something that will harmonize with what you have.

A broadcloth top can easily go with seersucker pants, or two contrasting cottons, one in print, and the other in a solid, might well go together.

If you have enough material for both pajamas and robe, then by all means make the three-piece outfit, as it will thrill the child.

Cotton flannel materials are excellent when you make cool weather materials. Choose masculine prints for the boys, no matter how young they are. Flowered prints and plaids are nice for the girls, either by themselves or combined with a solid color to match one color in print or plaid.

Dad's old house robe or a lightweight suit in a flannel would make appropriate robes for the boys when cut down. A robe in dark blue or gray would be good even for girls, especially if piped in bright red or maroon, for the girls.

Chenille, purchased by the yard, or cut from an old spread, might also be used to make robes. It's warm without being too bulky, and is excellent to use after a bath.

Durable Construction Helps Clothes Wear

You'll encounter no great construction difficulties with pajamas or nightgowns because the seams are straight and simple. The stitches should be adjusted to weight of material and thread, as for any other clothing.

Simple seams may be used in the pajama top, but flat fell or French seams are usually employed in the pants, as they give better tailoring, more comfort and wear.

If you're using elastic bands at the pants' waist, make certain it's of good quality, so it doesn't have to be changed during the life of the garment. It should be tight enough to keep the pants on, but not too restricting as this interferes with sleeping comfort.

Buttons which will not withstand laundering are a poor investment on clothing such as this which needs frequent laundering. Have them simple but durable, and with buttonholes that will accomodate them readily.

Trimming Should Conform To Style of Garment

Trimmings are not at all essential on pajamas and nightgowns, but if they are used should be of the simplest variety. Contrasting bands are seen on sleeves and sometimes at the pants' ends, the latter being used to lengthen them when the child gets too tall.

Classic Button Style

This brightly becoming New York dress of crease-resistant and packable nylon and rayon is designed for many types of women's figures. Azalea - colored with glass buttons in blending pink march down the front. The neckline and belt are neatly stitched.

Mother-in-Law's Acts Are Legal

By Will Bernard, LL.B.

Must the Mother-in-Law Help to Make the Marriage a Success?

A young man married a girl whom his mother considered a social inferior. After the wedding, the mother continued to treat her son's wife very coldly—making no effort to establish a friendly feeling in the family. The marriage didn't last long, and the girl finally sued her mother-in-law for alienation of affections. However, the court turned down her claim. The judge said that the mother-in-law's conduct, whether wise or unwise, was still legal. His Honor explained: "Parents may hold aloof from their son's wife, may decline to recognize her, may show no interest in her. The law doesn't require anything from in-laws, except that they don't meddle with the domestic felicity of the young couple."

May a Judge Act Gallantly Toward a Female Witness?

Injured in a night club brawl, a girl sued the management for damages. At the trial, she appeared in the courtroom with a nurse. The judge realized that the girl was still ailing so he handed the nurse, a blanket and pillow to help make the girl comfortable on the witness stand. When the jury brought in a verdict against the night club owner, he immediately filed an appeal. He claimed that the judge's gallantry was improper because it showed prejudice on behalf of the girl. But the upper court found nothing wrong in the judge's behavior. The court said that a judge can be quite impartial—and still show a little simple courtesy!

Would the Courts Enforce A Purely Moral Obligation?

Just before his death, a broker asked his business partner to "look after my wife when I'm gone." Solemnly the partner promised to do so. Soon after the broker died, the partner realized that the company's future was none too bright. He sold his share — but did nothing about the interest of his partner's widow. It wasn't long before she realized that she had been left "holding the bag." Angrily she sued the partner for damages, claiming that he had broken his deathbed promise to her husband. But the court refused to do anything about it. The judge said the partner's promise was unenforceable because it was based on mere "friendship and good will" — instead of some legal obligation.

If a Workman is Stabbed By a Maniac, May He Collect Compensation?

A laundryman finished making a delivery, and started back toward his truck. Just then a maniac appeared on the sidewalk, wielding a knife with great ferocity. He rushed up to the laundryman and, before other bystanders could restrain him, inflicted several wounds on the man's shoulder. When the victim later tried to collect workmen's compensation for his injuries, the company opposed the claim on the ground that the mishap had no connection with the job. But the court disagreed and granted the claim. The judge pointed out that a laundryman's duties require him to be on the street at times, and therefore he should be protected against "street risks."

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Girl's Mother Is too Ambitious

TODAY'S rather sad and difficult appeal comes from a St. Louis girl of 15. She is not strictly a resident of that city, but her father works there, and she does not want her particular suburban town identified. Hers is an old and subtle problem, and I am not sure I can help with it, although I have met it hundreds of times.

"My mother is everything that is sweet, generous, tactful," writes Norma. "She is small, dainty, and most amazingly capable. She loves home, Daddy and me; she keeps everything fresh and sweet, is merry and affectionate, and everyone loves her.

"I am tall, steady and practical in type—my father's child. I am shy, making friends slowly, and getting confused in any social crisis. I am completely happy with books, walks, fishing trips with my father, and a few girl friends. We board three men students from a nearby business school, and I like those we have now, but all three are five or six years older than I, and all have girls. Mother would not want me to fall in love with this type of boy, however, so she doesn't worry about that.

Doesn't Belong

"My trouble is that my mother is ambitious for me. She comes from a family higher in the social scale than Dad's; she had every advantage as a girl, and many beaux. Lots of her old friends are nice to me, and invite me to their children's affairs, but I do not belong there. I haven't the right clothes and if I did have I wouldn't wear them the right way; they are absorbed in their own friendships, and I feel what I am, an unwelcome outsider.

"Mother can't see it. She slaves and sacrifices to get me what girls have, and I don't want any of it! She coaxes invitations from people giving ski parties, house parties, dances. Then she coaxes me to go, and afterward questions me so eagerly about the good time I had that it hurts me to tell her I am an absolute dud. I come home sick with humiliation and anger, and I simply can't crush her with the truth.

"Every little while she gives a dinner for the children of her friends. They go to private schools; I don't, so we have nothing in common. Sometimes the girls accept and the boys don't; and for days she is at the telephone trying to match up girls and boys. With her friends she is always pretending that we usually have a servant, we are just camping in this house until Dad gets a very important promotion, and so on and on.

Can't Bear This

"I feel so sorry for her, and for me! My father loves her so much, and is so easy going and so happy in his home, that everything she does is right, and he just agrees with both of us. But I feel as if I couldn't bear years of this, until I am older, can take a job, and perhaps marry some quiet man that no other girl wants. How can I save my mother all the fussing and money worry and risk of snubs and disappointments that all this means, and live the quietly happy life that is right near me, and yet so far away."

Poor little 15-year-old Norma, this really is a hard situation. Often love complicates an affair like this, for the last thing you want to do is hurt your mother, and yet you can't help hurting her all the time. She evidently is resigned to the fact that your father is not ever going to give her the luxury she once had, but she is fighting to gain it for you. Already she is dreaming of a distinguished marriage; you must have the big house and the servants and the trips and honors she will never have.

My suggestion is that you compromise. Give in occasionally, go off determined to enjoy one of these deadly affairs at which, in spite of the fact that you are, I suspect, infinitely superior in most ways to other youngsters, you simply can't seem to get in, to get started, to show them your real self.

Then develop your own social group. Do this by attending evening classes and really working hard at architecture, Spanish, drama. You'll meet real people; a spectacled, shabby boy who wants to write poetry, a hard-working young giant who means to be a big doctor some day, a merry little couple painting tomorrow's masterpieces in an attic, a middle-aged widower wistful for something more than the drudgery of office days. And presently you'll find the man who will rescue you from your mother's fluttered, anxious plans.

Colors Clue To Personality

Blue for Introverts, Red Indicates Vigor

NEW YORK—Picking personality types from the colors a person prefers is a new parlor pastime.

A house decorated predominately in blue, for instance, would indicate that the owner was introverted, intelligent, conservative and maybe just a bit lazy.

That is part of the color theory included in Faber Birren's new book, "Color Psychology and Color Therapy." Biren, who is 49, has been experimenting with color since his college days and has written 14 books on the subject.

Yellow, he says, is the color of the high minded. The yellow type is inclined to be stand-offish, though he makes lasting friendships.

Red indicates a hearty, vigorous person "who is likely to run roughshod over other people's feelings," Birren advises the person who prefers red to marry someone who likes blue or green, since they're the more conservative, stable types.

If you're thinking of repainting the children's room in pink, maybe you'd better pause for a second thought.

"It's the goal of most Americans to make pink personalities of their children," Birren says. He characterizes a pink personality as one who likes life and who is interested in the world, but doesn't want to be reminded that it isn't a kind and gentle world.

The pink woman, he says, probably has been pampered and protected since she was a child.

Slot Machine Always Wins, Player Learns Hard Way

JASPER, Ind.—William Summers, of Washingon, Ind., found out what millions have already learned: you can't beat a "one armed bandit."

Summers lost on a nickel slot machine at the Moose lodge for about five hours. He got so mad he picked up the quarter machine and walked out. On the way to his car, he slugged a bartender who tried to stop him.

Ernest Jean Hopper, 219 Russell St., Covington, Kentucky, is 10 years old and in the fourth grade and her mother can't get over the change in Ernest Jean's disposition since she has been taking HADACOL. Being in the right disposition to attend school is as important as having the proper books.

Here is Ernest Jean's own statement: "I have been taking HADACOL for sometime. My Daddy took HADACOL and it really helped him. Then Mother started me taking HADACOL. Before Mother started me taking HADACOL I was underweight, nervous, and I didn't want to eat at all. Mother says that since I have been taking HADACOL I have an entirely different disposition. I know I sleep much better and enjoy my food and now Mother lets me listen to all the mystery programs I want to and I don't get a bit nervous. Daddy says HADACOL has helped us so much that he is never going to let us be without HADACOL."

HADACOL Is Wonderful

and there are countless thousands of folks all over the country to prove it. HADACOL can help you, too, if you will just give it a chance. If remarkable HADACOL doesn't help you, your money will be refunded.

If you suffer from stomach distress, nervousness, insomnia, constipation, aches and pains of neuritis, or a general run-down condition, caused by a deficiency of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin, and Iron, let HADACOL help you.

You Owe It To Yourself

. . . to give HADACOL a chance. Refuse substitutes. Don't let anyone tell you something else is "just as good." Insist on the genuine HADACOL. No risk involved . . . because HADACOL is sold only on a strict money-back guarantee. You'll feel great with the first few bottles you take or your money back. Trial size, only $1.25. Large Family or Hospital size, $3.50.

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied.—Adv.

FARMING AND SAFETY

It should come as a distinct shock to everyone to learn that farming is the third most hazardous occupation in America. Farmers have always known their job is a hard one, calling for long hours, careful planning, and a keen understanding of the close relationship between nature and science that are necessary to produce enough food each year to feed 150,000,000 citizens—not to mention much of the rest of the world.

However, perhaps even the farmer does not realize how hazardouws his job really is. According to the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies, which is cooperating with the President's Conference on Industrial Safety to emphasize the need for greater occupational safety, one farmer in every 15 is temporarily or permanently injured while plowing a field, milking a cow, riding a tractor, or doing any number of other chores

Last year in America, more than 300,000 farmers suffered disabling injuries on their jobs. 4,400 others weren't so lucky. They were killed by falls, machinery, animals, or other "potential hazards."

Statistics show that 22 per cent of disabling injuries on farms occurred last year between January and March, 26 percent from April to June, 31 percent from July to September, and 21 percent in the last quarter of the year. Naturally, as these figures indicate, the summer months are the most hazardous months of the year for the working farmer.

Unless care is taken, accidents will kill an average of 48 American farm residents, every day during the next 12 months. These deaths and accidents on our farms cost the nation $75,000,000 each year. Who can measure the added cost in human lives and human suffering? Farmers everywhere might well remember these figures.

Questions and Answers

Q. Would an American serviceman, paralyzed from the waist down because of action in Korea, be entitled to the special VA benefits of an automobile and a grant for buying or building a home designed for "wheelchair living"?

A. He could not get the car, for the law limits motor vehicles at Government expense to World War II veterans only. But he might be elgible for the housing grant, if he meets the other requirements of the law authorizing special housing.

Q—I want to take a GI Bill course in automobile mechanics. Where can I get a list of nearby schools approved to give this training?

A--The VA regional office near est your home maintains up to date lists of all schools, located within its jurisdictional area, approved by State Approving Agencies to offer GI Bill training.

Q—If I apply for GI Bill training before the July 25, 1951 cut off date, will I be able to start my course sometime after that date?

A—No. Under the law, you actually must be in training on that date. The exceptions are interruptions of training beyond your control, such as summer vacations, illnesses and the like.

Q—Some years ago, I served on active training duty in the National Guard for 15 days. During that period I suffered a disease that resulted in a disability. Am I elgible for disability compensation?

A—No. Public Law 108 states that you must serve for periods "in excess of 30 days" in order to be elgible for compensation for disability resulting from disease. On the other hand, there is no minimum time limit in the case of disability resulting from injury while on active or training duty with the National Guard.

BY GRANTLAND RICE

The Thundering Herd Is Back

IN A FEW DAYS NOW, close to a thousand mammoths, mastodons and gazelles will be turned loose on the public domain. These represent the pro football crop for 1950, with peace finally established. There will be 13 teams in action, where each squad will be large at least in the earlier days of practice, before the pruning knife falls.

Grantland Rice

Just what the aggregate weight of these 13 squads will be is beyond our guess but the weights run from 155 to 285 pounds and there are more players over 200 than under 200. The 13 head coaches and their aids have a tough job to face in reducing the oil and fat content where steaming blubber must be taken off in tons.

The new season will open with a Philadelphia explosion where Eagles and Browns are figured to draw some 100,000 clients. So many players, good and average, have been shifted around, back and forth, that it is only a raw guess now to start picking any winners, but you can be pretty sure the Eagles, Browns and Bears will be up there. Bo McMillin's Detroit squad will be another effective outfit, especially with Leon Hart's 270 pounds in the cast.

Hart may not weigh quite that much but it won't be far away, according to Frank Leahy's judgment last fall. "The boy is still growing," Frank said, when Hart reached 260. "He is only 20 years old."

Among those who will be featured this season are Van Buren of the Eagles, Lujack of the Bears, Waterfield of the Rams, Graham of the Browns, Conerly of the Giants, and other good passers with the Yankees, Colts, etc.

Both leagues are well fixed for passers but the Eagles still look to have the better passing and running combination for an all-around attack. The others, however, getting first call in the draft have all been well strengthened where Greasy Neale had to stand pat—or nearly so.

The Williams Goal

Ted Williams has apparently fixed both eyes on the Babe Ruth home-run mark of 60.

Ted sensed the fact that 1950 was about as good a season as any other with the ball at least giving a good imitation of jack rabbit in action.

Ted also remembered that he isn't getting any younger. He will be 32 years old in October, which isn't venerable, but which also isn't too youthful.

In other years Ted has mixed his home-run hitting with more attention to mere base hits. This season he is really giving it the full treatment at a time where as Ford Frick says — "Even the pitchers are trying for home runs."

Williams will have plenty in the way of competition the rest of the way from Rosen, Kiner, Dropo, Stephens, Campanella, Snider and a few others, including DiMaggio and Easter. But from the way long Ted is taking his cut at the ball, he is the one more likely to reach the goal, if anyone does.

Ralph Kiner is leading the National league and he is sure to pick up his pace later. As a rule he falls into the groove after July Fourth. A year ago he hit 20 home runs the last 30 days of the season. The same output in 1950 might just push Kiner over the top. He is the one drawing factor the Pirates have left for the season.

It might interest Joe McCarthy to know that no manager ever left the scene with a better press than the departing Red Sox leader drew around the circuit.

Maybe a manager who wins nine pennants and seven world series doesn't need too many boosts.

What's With Baseball?

It has become pretty evident that something has been shaken loose from the baseball we all knew as it is now played in the two big leagues and the leading minors.

Either an extra charge of TNT has been inserted in the ball or an extra zip has been removed from pitching arms, something is wrong—to break the news mildly.

We have the Red Sox scoring 20 runs against the Browns in one game and a day later the Red Sox piling up 29 runs against the same team. Then the Cleveland Indians pile up 14 runs in the first inning against Mr. Mack's disintegrating Athletics who have hit the soapy chute at record speed.

Is this baseball or cricket? Scores ranging from 12 to 16 runs are common. Few pitchers ever complete seven innings.

The pitching can't be that bad.

THE HOME TOWN REPORTER IN WASHINGTON

WALTER SHEAD, WNU Correspondent

New GOP Candidate

RECENTLY this reporter sat in a lush, walnut-panelled office high in Chicago's towering Board of Trade building and listened with some amazement to the political and economic pronouncements of one of the oracles of that part of industry which is particularly allied with agriculture.

This man, a tall, lanky pipe-smoker who is listed by the treasury department as among the first 10 in the nation in earned income, spoke with pontifical pessimism about the devalued dollar; with fear concerning the worth of his insurance policies and even of his government bonds; with some heated antagonism concerning labor and some labor leaders and unions. He recalled with satisfaction how some years ago he had settled a strike which affected some of his industrial plants by "removing the cause." He just took a trip around the world.

And while this man's philosophy and conclusions were directly at variance with the recent findings of the committee for economic development, his views indicated that his thinking has not changed with the times nor from those advocated by many men in his position during the last quarter of a century.

At least, however, he did have a new thought from a political standpoint. Of course he is a Republican in politics and if, by any chance of political legerdemain such a thing possibly happens, remember you read it in this column first. Here in effect is what he said:

"The Republican party cannot accept Senator Taft for the presidency. We cannot take General Eisenhower or Dewey or Governor Warren. We must have a man who has worked with his hands, a man who is a fighter, a man who is close to the soil, some entirely new blood in the political picture, and that man is Allan B. Kline. He must be the man."

Of course you folks in the rural areas know Allen B. Kline. In case you don't he is an Iowa farmer, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, particular foe of Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan and the Brannan farm program and, who, some declare, was slated to be secretary of agriculture had Tom Dewey been elected president in 1948.

Iowa Battle Looms

Kline's traditionally Republican state of Iowa, however, has not been doing so well from the GOP standpoint recently. Iowans elected a Democratic senator in Guy M. Gillette last time and President Truman even carried the state.

The political dopesters, however, say GOP Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper stands a good chance of reelection over former Under-Secretary of Agriculture Albert J. Loveland, who resigned to run for the Democratic nomination.

The issue there, agriculturally speaking, is over the Brannan plan. So Kline's first hurdle will be the reelection of Senator Hickenlooper and getting Iowa back in the Republican column.

Campaign Humor

Victor Johnston, popular publicity director for the GOP senatorial campaign committee, who recently tailed President Truman's tour of the country via airplane, came up with a humorous campaign statement. In commenting upon the age and the lack of young men and women in the Young Republican organization Johnston remarked: "We are now busily organizing an alumni of the Young Republican organization."

Criticizes Truman

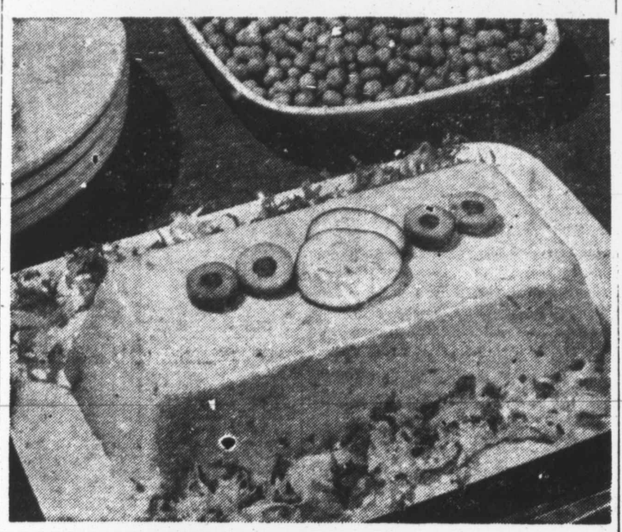

Former President Herbert Hoover, in commenting upon the Korean situation and the President's declaration, asserted the nation should give full support and unity of thought in backing the president and the government in this time of crisis. Sen. Robert A. Taft, chairman of the Republican policy committee in the senate, and Sen. Kenneth Wherry, Republican floor leader in the senate, not only questioned the President's authority in his sending the fleet and troops to Korea, but they demanded the resignation of Secretary of State Dean Acheson, striving even now to hamper his effectiveness. In like manner, Sen. Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, also continued to call for Acheson's resignation.

Political Background

His next hurdle likely would be his own political background insofar as the GOP leadership is concerned. He recently told a press conference at which this reporter was present: "I am the kind of a Republican who voted for Al Smith in '28 and who voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt in '32 and '36." And while that indicates independence and a lot of people would commend him for it, it does not go down too well with the GOP.

Serve Taste-Tempting Salads for Summer
(See Recipes Below)

Salad Days

THERE'S NOTHING quite so cooling as a jellied salad brightly garnished with crisp greens. There's nothing quite so delicious as well chilled fruit or vegetables attractively arranged on frosty looking lettuce, watercress or endive.

You can make a meal out of a salad that's protein-rich, or, if you prefer, you can combine both the salad and dessert course into a luscious fruit salad.

- ½ cup mayonnaise

Soften gelatin in ½ cup water. Combine soup and remaining water; heat to boiling. Remove from heat. Add softened gelatin and cream cheese; beat with rotary beater until smooth. Cool. Add onion, salmon and mayonnaise. Pour salad into a greased 8-½ inch mold. Chill thoroughly.

Layer 2: Soften gelatin in cold water. Place over boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add to balance of ingredients and mix well. Spread over first layer. Chill again until firm.

Broiled Sandwiches Make Good Summer Meals

Scrambled eggs, mixed with some grated onion, chopped green pepper and prepared horseradish, to which are added some bologna strips make a delicious and filling hot sandwich.

Sliced hard-cooked eggs placed on toast slices, then topped with a slice of cheese and broiled until the cheese melts, adds variety to summer lunches.

Grated American cheese mixed with chopped green pepper, diced onion, chopped hard-cooked eggs, stuffed olives and seasoned with catsup makes a good mixture to spread on buns. Broil until cheese bubbles.

Sauteed, corned beef hash makes a hearty luncheon sandwich when served on toasted, buttered bread or buns. Spread the hash with tartar sauce and top with lettuce and another piece of bread or top half of the bun.

Great Man's Faith

Lesson for July 30, 1950

NO MAN is too busy to serve God. He may think he is, but the excuse will not stand. There are too many busy men who do serve God. One of the most famous men in history is a shining example. If ever a King was "too busy" to attend to religion, David would have been the man. His kingdom was a new one, cemented together from tribes that had been at one another's throats not so long before. He was surrounded by enemies who kept him at war most of the time. He was commander-in-chief of the army, chief justice of such courts as there were, chief executive in civic affairs; and furthermore, the times were not "normal" but turbulent in the extreme. Still he had time for religion. He led in that as in everything else.

Dr. Foreman

Public Religion

THE first thing he did as king was to conquer the "unconquerable" city of Jerusalem, which had been in enemy hands for hundreds of years. And the next thing he did was to bring the Ark to Jerusalem and settle it there, making Jerusalem not only the civil but the religious capital of the nation.

In an almost spectacular way the king made himself sponsor for the organized religion of his people. For centuries before David, the Ark and all the formal worship that went with it had been stuck off in minor towns, inaccessible and unpopular, in fact disregarded by most of the people, as the book of Judges shows.

Now David, by bringing the Ark to Jerusalem and selecting for it a site on the city's highest hill, made sure that in his realm religion would never be an obscure thing. Sometimes we hear people say, "I believe in Christianity but not in the church." That is like saying "I believe in justice but not in the courts." "I believe in love but not in marriage." "I believe in education but not in schools."

David knew that if organized public religion has to hide in holes and corners, it will not only lose respect, but people will soon forget all about it. The Ark was not an idol; neither is the Church. But if the Ark then, and the Church now, do anything else for religion, at least they keep it out where people can't help knowing about it.

Private Religion

DAVID knew, as some of his successors did not, that public worship is not the whole of religion. His personal relationships were controlled by his religious faith.

Take the case of Mephibosheth (chap. 9) for instance. If David had followed the usual pattern, he would have had poor Mephibosheth beheaded before breakfast. For the young man was the one remaining grandson (so far as we knew then) of David's bitter enemy, King Saul.

In those days you always went on the principle that if a man was your enemy, so were all his relatives. It was generally true, too; and under the customs of those days Mephibosheth might have been expected to plan revenge, sooner or later, for his grandfather's and father's deaths.

David did not let him sink into obscurity but gave him what we would call a pension, a princely one too, treating him as if he were one of his own family.

The Inner Life

WELL, religion has its outside but it also has its inside. Public worship and loving your neighbors are not the root of religion but its fruit. The roots of it are deep within the soul. And David had that true faith which comes from within.

He was humble, not proud, as Psalm 24 shows. Great king though he was, he knew there is only one King of Glory. He was confident, as every leader must be; but his confidence was based not on himself but on his God. (II Sam. 22, which is re-written as Psalm 18.)

And when David sinned, as he shamefully did, he did not make excuses for himself or sink with easy satisfaction into his worst self. If to be a saint is to be without sin, then David was no saint (and you are one?). But if being a saint means that in spite of sin one comes to have the cleansing kind of experience that Psalm 51 records, then David was a man after God's own heart.

Mrs. Ann Poling, 609 Delaware St., Indianapolis, Indiana, who was suffering from deficiencies of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Iron, and Niacin, smiles as she pours herself another cup of coffee. Mrs. Poling says life lately is like it used to be years ago . . . "that is, of course, since I've been taking HADACOL." She can't get over what a difference HADACOL has made in her outlook on life.

Mrs. Poling says: "Three months ago a good friend of mine told me about HADACOL—she knew how much stomach distress I have had. Any type of food that was fried or that had acid in it I just couldn't eat. It affected my sleep, too. In fact, I couldn't have been in a worse condition. When I ate what I wanted to I felt miserable and when I didn't eat these things—I didn't have a proper diet and still felt bad. Then, when I started taking HADACOL, I felt better immediately. I've got a bottle in the house now—and will continue to keep HADACOL from now on. I have told many folks about HADACOL—and they all thank me for telling them about HADACOL. They all have gotten wonderful results from HADACOL like I have. Now I eat anything I want and get a good night's sleep. I can't praise HADACOL enough."
