Some New Year Resolutions.

THE WIFE
Resolved am I for this new year
In no high bonnets to appear,
All costly wraps I'll now forego
And do away with idle show.
In husband's business I'll not mix
And get him in another "fix."
My shopping I'll curtail at once,
For well I know I am a dupe,
In scandals I shall no more speak;
I'll lecture but once a week.

THE HUSBAND
I am resolved this New Year's day
To go a new and better way.
No more the lodge shall I attend;
The homeward road by I'll mend.
While in the house I'll never smoke
Or tell my wife a "chestnut" joke.
I'll bear with patience all my ills
And swear no more at dry goods bills.

THE NEW YEAR
God give the health, prosperity and the greatest of all blessings—contentment.
A health to our future—a sign to our past.
We love, we remember, we hope to the last.
And for all the base ties that the almamuses hold,
While we're youth in our hearts,
we can never grow old!

Whist Club Entertained.
Mrs. W. F. Weeks entertained the Whist Club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Tenth street. Sixteen players participated in the games. In a cut Mrs. Scruggs was given the clubs favor and the guests favor went to Luncheon for Visiting Girls.

Miss Phoebe Bishop entertained with a 1 o'clock luncheon Friday in honor of Misses Bettie and Lillie Durrest of Fort Worth. Those at the table besides the hostess and hostesses, were Dr. and Mrs. Bishop, Misses Gorfline and Mathis, and Mrs. Gorfline.

An informal dance was enjoyed by about twenty couples of young society folk at the Elks Hall New Year's eve.
Katz's orchestra furnished the music and the evening's pleasure did not cease until the old year had passed into history.

BASEBALL STORIES.

Jouett Meekin, the former pitcher for the Giants, was the bait of Hurt's ever-ready wit. Meekin was an economical cuss, and in those days economical ball players weren't in favor with other members of the team.

After the game one day Meekin approached Tim and said: "Tim, I'm going to a masquerade ball tonight. What kind of costume would you advise me to wear?"

"Costume is it?" Quoth Mr. Hurt.
"Well, why don't you wear that Albert coat you've got those many years and go as a mirror?"

Tim Hurt wasn't easily buffaloed, but Oliver Patay Tobeen tried it one day at Cleveland. Baltimore was playing Cleveland and a big crowd was out. It swarmed over into right field, and ropes were stretched to keep the fans from encroaching too far into the playing field. Before the game Patay approached Hurt and said:

"Tim, see that big crowd in right field?"

"What of it?"

"Well, they're sore on you and so'm I, and if you give a bad decision against us I'm going to cut the ropes and let them at you."

Tim never said a word, but walked to his position.

Joe Kelly first man up for Baltimore, ripped a long liner into right field, easily foul by six or seven feet.

"Fair ball," roared Tim. "Run Joe, run!"

And when Kelley pulled up at third,
Tim walked to the Cleveland bench and said: "Now, Pat, you four-flushing, foolish baboon, cut the ropes."

But Pat didn't cut them.

Every spring many people wonder where the word "Yankees," as applied to the second team of a big baseball club, originated. Many, too, have wondered how it originated, for, while the words sounds familiar, it cannot be found in the dictionaries. Sam Erwin of Philadelphia, it appears is the guilty man. This word has been in existence since 1895. It was during the season when Erwin named the reserves as they were then called, the Yannigans, and it came about in this way:
according to Erwin:

"I had a pitcher with the team named Ed Meadows. We were barn-storming through the New England states at the time. On coming to the beach after each inning he would yell at me, 'Oh you Yanni-gans!' The name struck me as original, and I asked him what it meant."

"Hang if I know," he said, but he kept on using it. After the game, I thought it was a good name."

"Well, how is the Bear Brummett pitching today?"

Moore didn't reply until he shot a fast one at Barrett which "The Crab" bounced at and missed, and then he said:

"Oh pretty well, thank you; how is the Weary Willie of batter?"

"Sure!"

"What good did you do your constitute during your term?"

"Well, I did some of them mighty good."—Puck.

SUIT TO DISSOLVE
TOBACCO TRUSTTHE CASE ONE OF SPECIAL IN-TEREST, INVOLVING TECH-NICAL QUESTIONS.

BEFORE SUPREME COURT

Sent Up On Appeal Because Government Petition Was Not Dismissed.

The suit under the Sherman antitrust law to dissolve the so-called "Tobacco trust" was instituted in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York. The proceedings were brought by the Department of Justice against more than sixty corporations and a number of individual defendants headed by J. B.
Duke.

The process of organization of the combination alleged to be unlawful spread over many years. It began in January, 1890. Then the first American Tobacco Company was incorporated, for the purpose it is alleged, of taking over the business of five independent cigarette plants.

In 1892, the Continental Tobacco Co. was incorporated for the alleged purpose of taking over the plug tobacco business of five other plug tobacco concerns.

In 1900, the American Snuff Company was incorporated for the alleged purpose of taking over the snuff business of the American Tobacco Company and of two or three independent snuff manufacturers.

In 1901, the American Cigar Company was incorporated for the alleged purpose of taking over the cigar business of the American Tobacco Co.
and an independent manufacturer of cigars.

In the same year, the Consolidated Tobacco Company was incorporated for the alleged purpose of taking over as a holding company in exchange for its bonds substantially all of the stock of the American Tobacco Company and the Continental Tobacco Company.

In 1903, the American Stogie Company was incorporated for the alleged purpose of taking over the stogie business of the American Company, the American Tobacco Company, and the Continental Tobacco Company.

In 1904, the American Tobacco Company, the Continental Tobacco Company and the Consolidated Tobacco Company were merged into the present
American Tobacco Company.

It is alleged that in addition to this organization the American companies in 1902 entered into a contract with a British Company, the Imperial Tobacco Company, whereby the American companies were limited in their business to America and the British to Great Britain, except that the latter could buy leaf tobacco in the United States. It was alleged that the British-American Tobacco Company was organized to take over the export business of both the British and the American companies.

Testimony was presented to prove that the defendants produced 70 per cent of the smoking tobacco made in this country; 75 per cent of the cigarettes; 81 per cent of the plug and twist tobacco; 81 per cent of the fine-cut tobacco; 89 per cent of the little cigars; 96 per cent of the snuff; 95 per cent of the tobacco paste; 75 per cent of the tin foil and most of the tobacco extracts, boxes and containers.

Three of the four judges on the circuit bench united in a decree. This decree dismissed the petition as to the Imperial Company and the British-American Company, and the United Cigar Stores Company, which was claimed to be the retail branch of the organization. This action formed one of the grounds for appeal by the government to the Supreme Court.

The decree adjudged the other defendants to be parties to an unlawful combination, but said nothing about the monopolizing charges. This failure furnished another ground for appeal by the government. The American Tobacco Company, the American Snuff Company, P. Lorillard Company, R. J.
Reynolds Tobacco Company, Black well's Durham Tobacco Company and the Conley Tobacco Company were adjudged to hold shares in a number of specified tobacco corporations and exercised them from acquiring the plants or business or voting the shares of and from exercising control over these companies. The government was dissatisfied because the holding companies were not enjoined from collecting dividends from the subsidiary companies.

The defendants appealed to the Supreme Court because the petition of the government was not dismissed in toto.

A Set-Up Job.

"Are you the man from Sodder & Co's to do the repairing of the water pump?" asked Mr. Seabubs.

"Yes," replied the plumber, "and Mr.
Sodder says it will cost you $60."

"What? Why, he hasn't seen the job. He doesn't know how much it will cost!"

"Hebbs isn't, but he told me how much to do."—Catholic Standard and Times.

News Forecast for the Coming Week

Washington, Jan. 7.—The Interstate Commerce Commission will begin the hearing Monday of arguments in regard to the proposed advance in railroad rates, thus bringing to a close the most important public investigation of railroad business, methods and conditions that the country has ever known. The hearing of the arguments is expected to occupy the entire week. The case of the Eastern roads will be argued first and that of the Western roads after.

A conference of the steel manufacturers of the United States will meet in New York Monday to discuss prices and steel conditions. Whether concerted action will be taken looking toward a readjustment of prices downward for the purpose of reviving the slackening demand in the steel trade, is not known.

Two criminal cases in which women are the defendants and both of which have attracted wide attention are scheduled for trial. In Newark, N. J., Mrs. Caroline B. Martin is to be tried for the alleged murder of her daughter, Mrs. Oscar W. M. Sumal, whose body was found in bathtub in East Orange, in November 1909. At Wheeling, W. Va., Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenck is to be tried on a charge of attempting to poison her husband, a wealthy brewer. In the United States circuit court at Trenton, N. J., a hearing will be held on the extradition proceedings instituted in the case of Porter-Chariton, whom the Italian government is seeking to have returned to Italy to stand trial for the murder of his American wife at Lake Como last year. The $6,000,000 battleship Arkansas, one of the largest warships in the world, will be launched Saturday from the yards of her builders, the New York Shipbuilding Company at Camden, N. J.

The legislatures will begin their sessions in Arkansas, Texas, Alabama, Wisconsin, Washington, Oregon, South Carolina, Iowa, New Jersey, Kansas and several other states. Important developments are expected during the week in relation to the senatorial contests in New Jersey, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New York, Iowa, Ohio, and one or two other states.

In Oregon, Oklahoma and several other states the new governors will be inducted into office.

In Florida, for the fifth time within two years, a State-wide Democratic primary will be held Tuesday for the election of a United States senator, Senator Tallahassee, whose term expires, is not a candidate for re-election. The three candidates are W. A. Blount of Pensacola, and John N. Stockton and W. P. Bryan of Jacksonville.

The proceedings of Congress, the re-assembling of the Dominion parliament after the holiday recess, the meeting of the British Columbia legislature, the first national convention of women voters, to be held at Tacoma, the meeting of the National Tariff Commission in Washington, with President Taft as a speaker, the annual meeting of the National Civic Federation in New York City, at which an important report on proposed legislation for workmen's compensation will be presented and the convention of the National League of Commissioners of Charities in Minneapolis are among other matters that will receive attention in the news of the week.

"THIS IS MY 57th BIRTHDAY."

Viscount Gladstone.
Viscount Gladstone, who recently assumed office as first governor-general of the Union of South Africa, was born in London, Jan. 7, 1844, the youngest son of the famous statesman, William E. Gladstone. The son was educated at Eton and Oxford. From 1877 to 1880 he was lecturer in history at Keble College, and then became private secretary to his father. In 1881 he became a lord of the treasury, and then he was successively advanced to be financial secretary of the war office, undersecretary of the war office and first commissioner of works. From 1899 to 1905 he was chief whip to the Liberal party. In the latter year he became secretary of state for home affairs, and continued to hold that office until appointed governor-general of the new South African confederation.

Railway Officials to Tour South.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—More than 100 prominent railroad officials, representing many of the principal lines of the United States and Canada, left Chicago on a special train today for an extensive tour of the South. The objective point of the tour is Tampa, Fla., where the railroad men will take part in the annual convention of the National Association of Railway Agents.

Quick Wits Saved Diamond.

Henry G. Harrick of Red Oak, Ia., who was in the city Friday, is congratulating himself on the way his good fortune helped him a few days ago.

Harrick was riding on a Burlington train out of Red Oak into Omaha, and stepped into the toilet room to wash his hands. While he was soaping his fingers a diamond ring, valued at $100 slipped off a finger, falling through the basin to the roadbed.

Harrick looked out of the window and noticed that there was a broken telegraph pole at the side of the track. He went to the front end of the coach and swung off the moving train. He landed squarely on his feet, and then walked back along the track until he came to the broken telegraph pole. A short search located the "rock."—St. Louis City Journal.

New Rules.

Man with lamp-globe (to Jesse, who has been following him closely for two blocks)—see here! Why don't you pass me? You make me nervous, tagging at my heels!

Jesse—Shore, old man! Would it I could, but the rules this year won't let me get ahead of the man carrying the ball!—Puck.

BASEBALL NOTES

Fred Hunter, the Kansas City first baseman will be given a trial by the Pittsburgh club.

Toronto led the Eastern League in batting last season, with Rochester, the pennant winner, in third place. Third baseman Fullerton, who has signed with the New York Nationals, hit for .314 in the Michigan League last season.

"Miner" Brown of the Cubs, says there is no truth in the report that Orville Overall and the "Miner" intend to quit baseball.

Edgar Lennox, who has been released by Brooklyn to Louisville, will no doubt be a classy performer in the American Association.

The St. Louis Cardinals have released Fred ("Cy") Alberts to Terre Haute. "Cy" formerly pitched for Terre Haute and did good work.

Some time during the present month Boston Elks will tender a banquet to August Harman, chairman of the National Commission.

A tail-end game in the National League sells for $120,000, while the cellar champs of the American League set the buyers back just $600,000. What's the answer?

According to the new owners, the managers of the St. Louis Browns must be a man of integrity and also be of social standing. Do you reach that social standing?

There was no pennant for the championship Springfield team of the Three League of 1910. Instead, President Towner will present the champions with a huge silver cup.

A new name will have to be furnished the Boston Doves. Some of the scribbles call them the "Ten Pins," after Ted Penney, while others write for the Doves as the "Rustlers" and "Lillians" in honor of owner Russell. If the American Association places a club in Chicago, the major leagues will declare war. With the jumping of contracts and the boosting of salaries a baseball war would be a terrible thing for the players. No! You! What?

"Bugs" Raymond is at Dwight, Ill., where he will remain until ordered to return to McGraw at Marlin, Texas. It seems that Dwight is the place where they crowd the rough liquid out of the system.

Pitcher Jack Coombs of the Athletics scored 13 shutouts last season and heads the list in the American League. Walter Johnson of Washington and Russell Ford of New York are tie for second place, each with 8 runless games to his credit.

WITH THE BOXERS.

Australian sport writers are passing Bill Papke for what they term Bill's unfair tactics. Frankie Conley is willing to wager $20,000 to $10,000 that he can defeat Abe Attell in a twenty-round bout. Paddy Lavin, the Buffalo welterweight, is anxious to take on some good writer before the Armory A. A. of Boston.

From Ranch to Theatre.

From a ranch in Montana to the leading role in a metropolitan musical production sounds like a big jump. The mere thought of it is enough to set awheel the head of any ambitious young girl. In "The Flower of the Ranch," company, a musical comedy which ran at the Garrick Theatre Chicago, 220 nights, and is to visit this city soon, is little Nellie Waters, and the part she fills is the most important in the play.

Two years ago she was a little seventeen-year-old girl attending school at Billings, Montana. Her father, a ranch owner in the southeastern part of the state made annual visits to Chicago in the interest of the stock market. It was during one of the visits that Miss Waters, accompanying her father became acquainted with Miss Mable Barrison, who at that time was playing the part of "Flower" in "The Flower of the Ranch."

As the acquaintance became stronger Miss Barrison became attracted by the young woman's beauty, intelligence and refinement, and approached her father to allow her to enter the profession. At the parents' approval Miss Barrison saw her manager and there was room made for her in the chorus, where she developed into a graceful dancer. It was not thereafter that the understudy role of Flower was entrusted to her, and when Miss Barrison left the company to enter vaudeville, Miss Waters was assigned the most important role.

From her first performance she proved a decided success, not only in her dances, but she captivated the audiences with her grace, magnetism and singing dash throughout the play. Miss Waters will be seen as "Flower" in "The Flower of the Ranch" when that attraction visits this city on Saturday night January 7th.

The Climax.

Managers Metoyer and Stone inform us that they are negotiating with managers of "The Climax" for a one-night engagement. He says there is little chance of such a company having a date open. No matter whether we get them on their trip to San Francisco or return, let's get them. Remember, "was wind that made Chicago. Keep on blowing your horn."

So Different.

Columbus, having discovered America, had returned to Spain. "But where are your proofs?" demanded the incredulous. "Proofs?" he echoed; "that's what they wanted over there. They didn't believe there was any such country as Spain. Gentlemen, I have nothing to say."

Prudent refraining from cashing in on his discovery by going around delivering lectures at $5000 per night, he waited for time to vindicate him.—Chicago Tribune.

Stockholders Meeting.

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the Stockholders of First State Bank and Trust Company will be held at the office of said bank in Wichita Falls, Texas, on Tuesday, January 10, 1911, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing directors for the ensuing year, an also transacting such other business as may be properly presented.

MRS. SCHENCK'S TRIAL WILL BEGIN MONDAY

Must Answer Charge of Attempt to Poison Her Husband Last Fall.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 7.—All preparations have been practically completed and, unless some unforeseen contingency should arise, the trial of Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenck, who is charged with the attempt to poison her husband, John O. Schenck, a multimillionaire and president of the Schenck Packing Company, founded by his father, Fred Schenck, will begin in the Criminal Court in this city on Monday next. The trial had originally been set for December 19, of last year, but at the request of counsel for the defense Judge Jordan granted a postponement to January 9.

Owing to the wealth and social prominence of the Schenck family the case has attracted more than ordinary interest, not alone in this city, the home of the Schencks, but throughout the State and in much wider circles. The case presents many interesting features and it is expected the defense will make a bitter fight, relying upon a plea of insanity to save the defendant. It is believed that facts of the most sensational nature will be brought out in the course of the trial and there is no doubt that large crowds will fill the court room at every session of the court.

The case will be heard before Judge Lewis H. Jordan and a jury in the Criminal Court. Prosecuting Attorney J. Bernie Handan will conduct the case for the State, and will have the support of his assistants. The defense will be represented by J. J. F. O'Brien as leading counsel and several other prominent lawyers as advisors.

The Schenck family is well known in this part of the country and its history as a prominent social factor begins with Fred Schenck, who started in business nearly fifty years ago and accumulated a fortune estimated at twelve to fifteen millions in the pork packing industry. He founded the Schenck Packing Company and remained at its head until his son, John O. Schenck, who had been active in the business for a number of years, became president of the concern and its leading spirit. John was successful and his individual wealth is estimated at more than $4,000,000.

Mrs. Schenck, the daughter of F. C. Farnsworth, a plain carpenter, was a cook in the home of J. O. Tomlinson, a retired official of the Pennsylvania Railroad, when she first met Schenck. The latter was a personal friend of Tomlinson and at that time, about fifteen years ago, was a frequent visitor at the Tomlinson home. Schenck, then a young man of thirty, was attracted by Laura Farnsworth, then a pretty girl of twenty-five. It was easy for them to meet frequently and it caused little surprise, at least in the Tomlinson family, when Schenck proposed to the attractive cook and was accepted.

They were married and, to all outward appearances seemed to live happily together. Two children were born to them, Virginia, now twelve, and Robert, now seven years of age. Her husband's great wealth and his high social standing gave Mrs. Schenck considerable prestige and she found no difficulty in maintaining a leading position in society. She and her husband were members of the Wheeling Country Club and entertained a great deal in a manner befitting their wealth and social standing.

In the fall of last year Mr. Schenck became ill and, in spite of the most careful treatment by his physician, Dr. Frank L. Hupp, the condition of the patient did not improve. The symptoms were of such a nature that Dr. Hupp began to suspect that his patient was suffering from the effects of poisoning. Without betraying his suspicion, he sent some Lithia water, which Mr. Schenck was in the habit of drinking, to the chemists of John Hopkins University for analysis. Another sample he sent to chemists in New York.

When the chemists of John Hopkins University reported that the sample of Lithia water sent to them by Dr. Hupp had been found to contain arsenic, Dr. Hupp ordered the removal of his patient to the North Hospital and communicated the result of his investigation to the authorities. On November 9, Mrs. Schenck, who had vainly protested against the removal of her husband to the hospital, was arrested on a charge of attempted murder and her bail was fixed at $10,000. As she was unable to obtain bail, she was detained at the county jail. She was indicted and, while she was awaiting her trial, her husband who had been dangerously near death's door, slowly recovered and regained his health traveling in Europe. It is believed that Mr. Schenck will refuse to testify against his wife. The defense will try to prove that Mrs. Schenck was not of sound mind and that the insanity was hereditary in her family.

The Almanac Was Guilty.
Compilers of almanacs in France are legally responsible for the accuracy of their publications. This point was determined by a case tried in the days of Louis Philippe. Ouvrard, a well known army contractor, fell into difficulties and was severely pressed by his creditors. According to French law, debtors cannot be arrested between sunset and sunrise. One evening Ouvrard sallied forth in quest of as he stepped out of his house. He protested, and procured an almanac showing that it was three minutes past sunset. The bailiff produced another almanac, showing that the sun did not set for another nine minutes. On his release from prison, Ouvrard sued the publisher of the almanac, which had misled, and obtained damages.—London Chronicle.

Precautionary Measures.
"What's the idea for keeping your playing cards in the refrigerator?"

"It's a little precaution the boys agreed on," replied Three Finger Sam. "Some pretty queer hands were played, so we kept changing the pack, and if any stray cards got into the deal, we can recognize 'em by the temperature."

The Merchants Association of Amarillo have announced in one of the Amarillo papers a proposition that is sure to increase their business to a considerable extent. In short, the scheme is for each member of the Association to issue to each out-of-town purchaser a railway refund certificate, which certificate states the amount of purchase and for every dollar purchased the holder is entitled to a refund of one mile of railroad fare both ways amounts to $3.00 and he buys $35 worth of goods or merchandise, it entitles him to a rebate of $1.50, or one-half of his railway fare. In the event his purchases amount to as much as $100 and his railway fare is $3.00 the purchaser is entitled to a refund of the entire amount of railway fare, and retain one-half of his certificates issued on the $100 worth of goods purchased which certificates are good for a second trip to Amarillo, whether he makes any additional purchases or not. These certificates are issued by the merchants are cashed at a clearing house office established for that special purpose. It occurs to The Times that it is about the best plan yet formed and put into execution in the way of refunding to out-of-town purchasers a part or the entire amount of their railway fare, and is bound to appeal strongly to the buying public, and will increase to a considerable extent the trade territory of Amarillo merchants.

PROSPEROUS TEXAS

LEADS ALL OTHERS

Greatest Mileage of Railroad Construction During the Year Past.

Austin, Jan. 7.—Probably no bit of information having a statistical flavor was received with greater pleasure by those who have their hearts set for the development of the material resources of this state than the announcement that during the year 1910 Texas led all states in the number of new miles of railroad constructed in this country. While this is indeed gratifying to the people of Texas it need occasion no undue elation for the reason the natural conditions of this state are more inviting to railroad construction than can be found in any other state, and again, there is still a greater area of country unserved by railroads in Texas, that could and would support lines of transportation under normal conditions, than can be found in any other three states in this union.

While unquestionably, Texas ought to lead in the matter of additional miles of railroad constructed, at the same time taking a period covering a sufficient number of years to warrant comparisons being made, Texas has not progressed in the matter of railroad construction in the same proportion as this state has progressed in the matter of population.

Going back as far as 1890, official figures show that at that time Texas had a total railroad mileage of 8709, with a population of 2,535,533 or 25.7 persons to every mile in the state.

In 1900 a still better showing was brought to light by the census figures. Texas in that year having a population of 3,948,710, with a total railroad mileage of 9987, or 30.9 persons to every mile of railroad. During the decade between 1900 and 1910 Texas added additional railroad mileage until the total reached 13,819, while the population reached 3,896,542, making 28.2 persons to each mile of railroad in the state.

From another viewpoint the increase in population 1900 over 1890 was 36.37 per cent, while the increase in railroad mileage was 20.37 per cent, the increased railroad construction falling approximately 16 per cent short of the increased population. During the decade between 1900 and 1910 the population increased 27.81 per cent, while the railroads increased in mileage 40.93 per cent, showing the railroads gained 13.24 per cent greater than the increase in population.

Looking at the matter of population increase in Texas, the percentages show that from 1890 to 1900, the increase was 36.37 per cent, from 1900 to 1910 there was a decrease of 8.74 per cent, and from 1890 to 1910 the total increase in the number of people per mile was only 9.86 per cent. In other words, the increase in the cost of production, of maintenance and of operation of railroads that has taken place during the 20 years from 1890 to 1910—and this reaches a very large sum—must be cared for by only an increase of less than 10 per cent in the number of people served per mile of road.

Practically all authorities on rates agree on the single proposition that the largest contributing factor in the making of rates is to be found in the density of traffic. A heavy density of traffic can only follow, quite naturally, a corresponding density of population. Those who have kept in touch with the situation from the several viewpoints are not given to the opinion that the increase in production of Texas lands per acre will average a greater return, or yield a greater tonnage per acre, than the increase in population per inhabitant today than was the case twenty years ago. In fact, reckoning with the ravages of the boll weevil, there are not a few who contend that the average production of tonnage per acre per inhabitant in Texas is anything less today than it was twenty years ago, when this expensive pest had not made inroads on the cotton crop of this state.

Whether Texas has too many miles of railroad, or too few, also depends entirely on how this question is viewed. As an abstract proposition, taking the state as a whole, investors would be warranted in refusing to spend money on new Texas lines for several years, or until at least the population per mile reaches approximately the average of the United States, which is slightly under, as nearly as it can be computed, 400 inhabitants per mile. Not should it be avoided that new

Why This Tariff? Will some authority please tell us. It is designed to protect our American antique makers from the "pauper" antique makers of Europe? Or is it to equalize the difference in cost of production here and abroad? The reason must be found along these lines somewhere, or there is no reason. Every now and then we read of a dispute between an appraiser and a homecoming American as to the value of some antique which the latter bought on the other side; the appraiser can only approximate their worth, and the upshot is that the property is seized in the name of law and taken to the public stores. Ultimately, the owner may claim his own, provided he pays the duty which the authorities decide to charge, but is there sanity or even sense in the proceeding? Justice, of course, is too much to ask—yet, but a little of the acumen which a horse is supposed to possess would not, we should think, be wholly out of place in the work of tariff framing. Unless there is an antique trust in this country, which needs protection on the ground that it is an infant industry, any tariff on antiques, art objects of ancient workmanship, is robbery and nothing else. The American who buys such things abroad knows perfectly well that he can't buy them at home, yet the government fines him roundly because he doesn't. As a matter of equity, suppose we look at it this way: The buyer of the antique, bronze, marble or tapestry, has bought and paid for it. It is his. The transaction is closed to the satisfaction of buyer and seller both. What does the United States government give to that man in return for forcing him to pay again? Puck.

roads, penetrating unsettled sections must look for a succession of less years, while the country served is being developed. In such cases every principle of safe investment must be considered by those who would sell into sparsely settled sections, for the future alone can hold at best only an uncertain promise of returns. It is on this account that additional regulatory burdens sometimes bear with oppressive force upon those who are planning to secure relief from isolation, for every additional weight of restriction upon railroads and the agencies used by railroads, means that a handicap to just that amount must be overcome before the road that is already uninviting, except viewed through a mind that encompasses a long period of years, can be wrought into one of attractiveness for investors in railroad securities.

It is also a settled fact that no matter how inviting a new territory may be for projected lines, that it is far easier to thwart, through unnecessary handicaps, the building of such lines than it is to interest those who otherwise would avail themselves of the golden stores of the distant future. It is also lamentably a fact that frequently it takes years for measures that under different conditions would have the flavor of equity in them to be absorbed and assimilated by timid capital to the point of action, while the truth will still more regrettable is that it has been recorded in this state that where previous measures have been accepted as guaranteeing investments, by the time this period was reached legislative activity had added new phases to a proposition that defies quick analysis, and great plans have been turned away and have lost the name of action.

The Only Way.
When Gertrude Hoffman and her company were playing here a week ago one of her "brothers," who had unknowingly stopped at a boarding house in Pittsburg where there had been smallpox went up to a physician to be vaccinated.
She was very anxious to have it where the scar wouldn't show or be exposed when she appeared on the stage.
"Ah, yes," said the M. D. knocking his head. "What is your business?"
"Why, I'm with Gertrude Hoffman. One of her dancing girls, you know."
"Well," said the man of medicine, as he laid down the virus, "I guess if that's the case you'll have to take it internally."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Oreste Knew.
"We have fireless cookers, wireless telegraphs, wireless carriages, smokeless powder," the teacher passed on, in a listless way.
"Now can you name some of the other things?"
The little son of the Chicago woman, who had married a count, raised his hand.
"I know," he shouted.
"Well, Oreste, you may tell us." "Loveless marriages!" cried the youngster proudly.—Judge.

The Evening Newspaper.
A canvass of 135 department stores in cities of more than 75,000 population elicited from 102 the unequivocal opinion that the evening newspaper is a better advertising medium than the newspaper published in the morning. The reason is plain to see.
Six days of every week the morning paper is read by people on their way to their offices, and either left in the street car or tossed to one side in the office. The evening paper is carried home. The family reads it. Its contents are likely to be the subject of dinner-table discussion. When her day's household labor is ended, the wife sits down with the evening paper to read the news and search the advertisements for bargains.
The morning paper is a sort of casual caller. The evening paper is a visitor, a friend, a counselor and companion. Its influence is far stronger with its readers than the influence of the hastily read morning paper. That is why it produces so much better results for the advertiser.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Heavy Cost of Poor Roads.
Half the states in the Union are administering their roads business under the same road laws as prevailed in England when American was a British colony. This system of road administration provides for the payment of road taxes partly in labor, and the work is under the supervision of minor local road overseers without skill or knowledge of road building. It is only in the states that have broken away from the old system that any marked progress in road administration can be discerned.

It is time to advance the general movement for state and national aid in building highways. The National Government has power to construct great through lines of traffic across the continent and a system of National highways ought to be planned. Every state in the Union should adopt a definite and consistent plan of state aid in building main highways and state co-operation in the engineering department for local work of comparatively minor importance.

Good roads are to any locality what a good circulation of the blood is to the human body. They are the first step in developing any region and to lessen the cost of highway transportation is "conservation" of a most important variety, for it avoids waste, harms no one, and benefits everybody.—El Paso Herald.

GAINES-COLOQUITT

DIFFERENCE DENIED

Special to The Times

Ama, Texas, Jan. 7.—Rumors last night to the effect that Resonator Gaines had resigned as Chief Justice of the Texas Supreme Court just at the expiration of the Campbell administration because he had disagreed with Governor-elect Colquitt caused a commotion today between Mr. Colquitt and Mrs. Gaines, after which Mrs. Gaines made the statement that Mr. Gaines had resigned because he was in ill health, could not do the work of the court, and that he had always believed that when a Judge could not do the work of his court he should resign. She denied that Mr. Gaines was even familiar with the recent matters which were whispered about as causes for the resignation of the Chief Justice.

According to Mrs. Gaines, her husband has worried a great deal about the work of his court, which he could not carry out because of his illness.

Mrs. Gaines says that her husband is much improved today, since the worries of court are no longer bothering him. However, so one is permitted to see him.

Early this morning Associate Justice William Williams administered the oath of Chief Justice to Judge T. J. Brown and then Judge Brown performed his first official act as Chief Justice by swearing in Judge William F. Ramsey, who until this morning was a member of the Court of Criminal Appeals. The ceremonies were without ostentation, having occurred privately in the consultation room of the Supreme Court. As a result Judge Ramsey a full-fledged Supreme Judge and the Court of Criminal Appeals has but two members, Judges W. L. Davidson and A. J. Harper, the latter having just qualified.

Gov. Campbell has heard nothing from Judge W. H. Gill, of Houston, who was appointed as associate Judge Ramsey of the Court of Criminal Appeals. He is now in Houston. It has been said that Judge Gill would probably not accept the position, as he resigned the Chief Justiceship of the Galveston Court of Civil Appeals to go into the practice of law at Houston.

SLAYDEN TO MAKE SPEECH AT NEW YORK

Texas Congressman Will Talk to Republican Club of That City.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—The resolution introduced by Representative James L. Slayden in the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress adopted by that body in San Antonio, November 1, memorializing Congress to adopt a resolution instructing the American representatives in the next international peace conference to work for a binding treaty among the twenty-one American governments that these governments shall not attempt to increase their territory by conquest, has attracted attention in arbitration and peace movement circles.

Next Saturday afternoon, in New York City, this resolution will be considered by the Republican Club of New York, of which Seth Low is president and Representative Slayden, upon invitation, has consented to speak to his resolution before the club on that date.

The Republican Club of New York has inaugurated a series of Saturday afternoon discussions of non-partisan questions of National and International moment, and Saturday afternoon, Jan. 7, will be devoted to a consideration of the proposed arbitration court at The Hague, and kindred topics. The Slayden resolution will come in for a share of the debate.

The Texas Congressman, recently selected by Andrew Carnegie as a member of the board of trustees to direct the expenditure of over $10,000,000 given by Mr. Carnegie to promote international peace, has received letters from many of the leaders of the peace and arbitration movement approving his resolution. Four of the diplomatic representatives from South and Central America have informed Mr. Slayden that his resolution, if carried into a treaty, will do much toward settling international disputes among American governments and toward removing any lingering hostility than any suggestion hitherto made.

MEXICO REQUIRES CITIZENS TO REGISTER

Special to The Times.
Galveston, Texas, Jan. 7.—The Mexican government has issued orders that from this time forward the government will refuse to recognize claims of any nature filed by persons alleged to be Mexican citizens unless such person is registered in some Mexican consular office. This is designed, it is said, to protect both the United States and Mexico from complications growing out of the citizenship of so-called Mexicans in the future.

Would Cause Less Trouble.

KATY AGENTS TO SEE MORE OF THE STATE

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 7.—The convention of freight representatives of the Katy, which convenes in Fort Worth next Monday morning, January 9th, will mark an innovation in the meeting of officials of that department of the road. Heretofore the annual meeting has always been attended by representatives from different parts of the country, many of whom have probably never visited Texas and do not know actual conditions in the state which the road mainly serves.

In speaking of the convention this morning, B. H. Coombs, assistant general freight agent at Houston, said: "Changing the meeting place of the freight officials from St. Louis was a good idea indeed. It will bring men down here who have never been within the confines of the state and who do not know from actual observation existing conditions in the territory which the Katy traverses."

"Next Monday will be occupied with the business meeting. Here plans for promoting better service in the freight department, more telling methods of solicitation of business and all such matters relating to the welfare of the road, will be discussed."

The inspection of the various large cities in the state and the country surrounding them will begin. All of the representatives not located in the state and the various commercial agents within the borders, will participate. Tuesday, Dallas will be visited and the conditions there as well as the points of interest will be observed closely. Dallas will be left Wednesday morning and a daylight trip made to San Antonio, arriving here at 7:45 p. m. After a day has been spent in the Alamo City the party will go to Galveston, thence to Houston, where they will separate.

Those working outside the state who will attend the meeting and make the trip are:

W. B. Groseclose, assistant freight traffic manager at St. Louis; J. W. Allen, general freight agent at St. Louis; J. C. Finch, assistant general freight agent at Kansas City; L. B. Chipley, general freight agent for Kansas, with headquarters at Parsons; R. S. Fife, general eastern agent, New York; W. E. Green, commercial agent, Pittsburgh; O. L. Winslow, commercial agent, Detroit; J. J. Rogers, commercial agent, Chicago; R. L. Martin, commercial agent, Cincinnati; J. M. Whitford, commercial agent, Chattanooga; F. Pathorn, commercial agent, New Orleans; J. T. Bate, general agent, Los Angeles; J. W. McElroy, general agent, San Francisco; J. J. Dugan, commercial agent, Joplin; C. L. Hallie, commercial agent, Denver.

Freight representatives under the Texas jurisdiction called to participate in the Fort Worth conference are: J. L. West, general freight agent, Dallas; H. Coombs, assistant general freight agent, Houston; J. W. Graham, division freight agent, Greenville; H. Page, general agent, Dallas; J. W. White, commercial agent, Houston; J. P. Dillard, commercial agent, San Antonio; F. G. Abbe, commercial agent, Fort Worth; J. T. Roberts, commercial agent, Wichita Falls; W. C. Zender, commercial agent, Shreveport; W. D. SENATORIAL FIGHT IN CONNECTICUT

Strong Fight Being Made to Prevent the Re-Election of Senator Bulkeley.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 6.—The efforts of the opponents of United States Senator Bulkeley to prevent his re-election by the legislature which has just assembled here have brought about an exceedingly interesting personal contest in Connecticut. There are very powerful forces at work against him, and if he wins another term in the senate in spite of them all it will be a remarkable victory. No Connecticut politician has ever faced so formidable a combination as that which now confronts him.

This combination includes a rival aspirant backed by almost unlimited wealth, a large and influential section of the Connecticut press, the powerful New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, and the indirect influence of the Federal administration.

Morgan G. Bulkeley was elected to the United States senate in January, 1905, to succeed Gen. Joseph R. Hawley, having been mayor of Hartford from 1880 to 1888, and governor of Connecticut from 1888 to 1893. His principal competitor for the nomination in the legislature was the late Samuel Fessenden of Stamford. Senator Orville H. Platt died a few weeks after Senator Bulkeley took his seat in the senate, and another contest in the legislature took place immediately. A vigorous aspirant for Mr. Platt's seat appeared in the person of Allan W. Paige of Bridgeport, the two other candidates being Mr. Brandegee, then a member of the house of representatives, who finally won, and ex-Governor George P. McLean, who had been for many years very closely associated with Mr. Bulkeley. In the triangular contest Senator Bulkeley warmly supported Mr. McLean, who came within a few votes of obtaining the nomination in the legislative caucus.

In the present contest, ex-Governor McLean appears as the only competitor of Senator Bulkeley. From being the closest friends they have changed to the keenest of opponents. The McLean following give as the principal reason why Senator Bulkeley should retire at this time an alleged promise made by the Senator that he would, after one term in the senate, retire and make way for the younger man, and do whatever he could to bring about his election.

The attitude of the Federal administration toward Senator Bulkeley grows naturally out of the opposition of the Senator to the nomination of Mr. Taft as the successor of Theodore Roosevelt in 1908. It may be recalled that the Taft men were strong enough in Connecticut to prevent either of the United States senators being sent as delegates to the Chicago convention in that year. The support given by Senator Bulkeley to Senator Foraker of Ohio in the latter's defense of the Brownsville soldiers was another matter that did not tend to improve the relations between the Connecticut senator and the White House.

Ex-Governor McLean, who is fighting hard for the Bulkeley toga, has been one of the prominent men of Connecticut for many years. He began life as a reporter on a Hartford newspaper. His family was not rich and he had to make his own way in the world. He studied law, and entered the office of the Hartford lawyer, who was the principal representative of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, and who for many years, when there was important measures affecting that corporation before the legislature, had charge of all the arrangements by which victories were won over opposing interests and corporations.

Mr. McLean began to make money very rapidly in his profession. He became very active in politics, served several terms in the State legislature, was United States attorney for Connecticut from 1892 to 1896, and in 1901 was elected to the governorship serving two years.

Mr. McLean as governor took a strong stand in favor of a revision of the State constitution, in order to abolish the supremacy of the small towns in State affairs, while Senator Bulkeley ranged himself on the side of the small towns, which retained their power over the cities of the State, when a constitutional convention was called, through their control of the convention. This is believed to have been one of the potent reasons for the defeat of Mr. McLean in his contest to succeed Senator Platt in 1905. If Senator Bulkeley is victorious in his present fight for re-election he will owe his triumph largely to this same hold on the small towns.

STOCKMEN OPPOSE TARIFF REDUCTION

Wool Growers Agree to Come to the Fort Worth Convention and Aid Cowmen.

Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 6.—A movement to counteract any influence tending toward the removal of the tariff on livestock will be started during the American National Live Stock Convention, which opens in Fort Worth next Tuesday.

The members of the association are up in arms against the removal of the tariff. The demand for tariff reductions at present are widespread and the livestock interests propose to act in time.

The removal of the tariff, it will be urged, would bring American cattlemen into competition with Mexican and Argentine cattle that are fattened more cheaply because of the low price of grazing lands and the mild climate.

The tariff at present is $3.75 per valuation of $14 a head, and 27 1/2 per cent on the value above $14. This tariff at the present price of cattle is amply protective to the American producers. There are only three products upon which a lowering of the tariff are threatened. Secretary Tomlinson of the national association said Thursday. They are wool, meat and cattle and wood pulp. The livestock interests are not deeply concerned in the wood pulp tariff. But the National Wool Growers, meeting now in Portland, are emphatically against a reduction of the tariff on wool and will probably come to our convention with stringent recommendations.

It seems that the manufacturing interests and other interests of the eastern states are not content for the producers to share in the profits of the tariff, but we shall try to protect our interests. It is time for the manufacturers to bear part of the expense.

Although the invitations to thirty railroad managers to meet the livestock men in a conference on the proposed maximum and minimum rate system were only mailed out Saturday two of the roads have already announced that they will send representatives, and it is regarded as certain that all will respond.

W. W. Cook, president of the Arizona Cattle Growers' Association, and J. H. Mercer, Kansas livestock commissioner, are the latest notables to announce that they will attend the convention.

DIX HOPES TO SAVE $1,000,000 ANNUALLY

He Makes Some Recommendations for Retrenchments to the State Legislature.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6.—At least $1,000,000 a year is the sum Gov. Dix expects to save the State through the adoption of economies he submitted to the Legislature today. Suggestions for retrenchment by abolishing some State offices and consolidating others constituted the principal recommendations.

Both houses after electing their permanent officers for the session took a recess until Jan. 12. Chas. F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, returned to New York this evening. In the absence of Legislators, little if any campaigning will be done here during the recess by the various candidates for the United States Senatehip. In his message Gov. Dix says:

"A startling tendency of late is to increase annual expenditures, both of money raised by taxation and of money borrowed by the issue of bonds."

"Excessive taxation," he says, "is next door to criminality, for it inevitably breeds extravagance, waste and criminal corruption."

The proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution, permitting the imposition by Congress of an income tax is recommended by Gov. Dix. Election of United States Senators by popular vote is also favored.

In the Senate Thomas F. Grady, whose aspirations for majority leadership were defeated at the Democratic caucus, registered a silent protest against the election of Robert F. Wagner of New York to that office. When Senator Wagner was mentioned for president pro-tem, Senator Grady rose and walked out of the chamber without a word. Senator Wagner was elected leader by a strict party vote.

The reading of the Governor's message in both houses followed the formal organization. Both houses took a recess until Thursday, Jan. 12, at 8:30 p. m.

BAILEY TO SELL HORSES.

New York Paper Announces He Will Dispose of About 50 On His Kentucky Farm.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—Friends of Senator Bailey of Texas were surprised today to read in a New York paper that the junior Texas Senator, who is president of the American Association of Trotting Horse Breeders, has announced his intention to sell his horses, excepting the 25-year-old stallion Prodigal 2:5 sire of more than one hundred trotters and pacers in the 2:30 class.

The article says: "Senator Bailey owns a large stock farm near Lexington, Ky., of which he has about fifty fine horses, all of which he has consigned to the mid-winter sale to be held at Madison Square Garden on Jan. 30. In his collection are half a dozen young horses having records right around 2:10, together with several fast colts that gained records last season."

The sudden decision of Senator Bailey to close out his stud and retire as a breeder will occasion surprise

Item for Women.

Marlboro, Mass., June 1, 1910:—I can frankly say that Parian Sage has given me perfect satisfaction, and will highly recommend it as a hair grower and beautifier and a sure cure for dandruff. I also have recommended it to several people, and it has given wonderful results.—Mrs. G. Barreault, 26 Main St.

Cynthiana, Ky., June 2, 1910:—I have only used two bottles of Parian Sage and I find my hair has increased wonderfully in thickness and luxuriance and beauty. The dandruff all disappeared. I was wonderfully surprised, as I have tried many hair restorers, though I have found none that ever helped by hair except Parian Sage, so I can say it is worth all of the hair restorers I have ever found, and I will tell my friends about it. Gratefully your friend, Miss M. Clough, Box 212.

O. F. Marchman guarantees Parian Sage to kill dandruff, germs, eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp, or money back. It is the most delightful and refreshing hair dressing in the world and is not sticky or greasy. O. F. Marchman and druggists everywhere sell it for 50 cents a large bottle. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package.

Stray Topics From Little Old New York

New York, Jan. 7.—The recent display of energy and the authorities in dealing with the numerous and ramified fraternity of the Black Hand has caused general satisfaction and everywhere the hope is expressed that this outburst of energy will not subside until the whole business of the underworld is exterminated, and its members either deported or safely stowed away behind prison bars. The courts seem to be willing to aid in the good work by giving the blacksmiths and kidnapers the full limit of the law, and a few of the Italian criminals have already been put away for long terms, which practically mean the rest of their natural lives but here are scores, perhaps hundreds more who are still at large and boldly following their contemptible business.

Mobile skirts, that most insane of all varieties of fashion, are bad enough for walking purposes, but when it comes to dancing or skating, they are positively disastrous. Some ultra-fashionable young women actually had the foolishness to attempt skating in mobile skirts on the pond in Central Park the other day. It was not much of a success so far as skating was concerned, but the mischievous youngsters who were on the ice in swarms had no end of fun. It did not take them long to size up the situation. They knew the hobbled women were helpless and their escorts had their hands full to keep them in an upright position. Feeling themselves perfectly safe, therefore, the lightfooted youngsters skated rings around the foolish victims of a foolish fashion and added to their discomfort by jeering them and trying to upset them. The unhelpful spectators did not seem to have much sympathy with the victims and no attempt to interfere with the pranks of the youngsters.

Some time ago certain scientists made the startling statement that by slow degrees the women in the United States are becoming more manlike while the men are becoming more womanish. The statement was bitterly attacked and ridiculed by men as well as women, but since then many men and women have come to the conclusion that, after all, there may be some truth in the statement of the observing scientist. The suffragette movement with all its anomalies and eccentricities might well be accepted as a confirmation of that theory. However, there is a much stronger and more direct indication of a gradual change: It is the arrival of the pantalon-skirt. Only a short time ago some ingenious moulder of fashions invented a feminine garment consisting of a pair of irrespressible trousers, the rear of which flaps of material could be buttoned, so as to cover the space between the—pardon the expression—trousers. Now, another fashion expert in Paris, has invented another combination garment which consists of a skirt with pantalon arrangement hidden on the inside.

There are many new faces at the telephone switchboards in New York at present. This is by no means the result of a strike or due to a wholesale discharge of operators, but is caused by the fact that more than two hundred of the prettiest girls among the switchboard fairies started the New Year by getting married. Most of these prospective brides had given notice of their intention to quit on the last of the year in ample time to give the managers a chance to train a sufficient number of other girls to take the places of their now married predecessors.

IT'S ALWAYS SAD.
The Best Backs Are Bad When They Ache, and Wichita Falls People Know It.
A bad back is always bad. Bad at night when bedtime comes. Just as bad in the morning. Ever try Doan's Kidney Pills for it? Know they are for backache—for other kidney ills?
If you don't some Wichita Falls people do.
Read a case of it:
J. R. Hanson, 805 Seventh St., Wichita Falls, Texas, says: "My back was very lame and painful and I had headaches and dizzy spells. There was a dull, nagging pain across my kidneys and although I tried a great deal of medicine, I was unable to get relief until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. Often in the morning I felt depressed and after I had been sitting for awhile, I could not stand straight, owing to the pain in my back. Doan's Kidney Pills removed all these symptoms of kidney complaint and my experience was so satisfactory that I felt justified in recommending this remedy."

WILL YOU BE ONE.
My customers are my best advertisements. Every pair of glasses fitted by me sells others. Every day some one says: "Mrs. So-and-so is so well pleased with her glasses that I thought I would come to you." I am human—never satisfied. I want to add you to my chain. To fit you is to fit your friends. In the future all defects of the human eye that glasses will remedy.

Do You Have Peanut Butter on the table for every meal?

That question may sound strange to you for you may have not as yet come to the conclusion that peanut butter is anything but a luxury.
But there are dozens of women, yes, we presume hundreds in Wichita Falls who have peanut butter on their table for every meal and use it very liberally, some of them more than they use ordinary butter.
They do this because the entire family likes peanut butter and they know it is very wholesome for them, for all food authorities claim that peanut butter is one of the most wholesome that we have.
Beechhut brand is made from the very best of peanuts and is an easy spreader. It comes in 35c tins for the large size and 20c for the medium size. Let us send you a jar for this week and then keep it on hand regularly.

Are what we lecture on this evening. It is time to discard that old diary of dead-beats and open a new ledger. There are some people in the world who are so fond of red that they carry their balances in that color, and a yearling ledger gets to look like a lithograph of two colors delineating the wonderful accomplishments of Oyle Dillcock.

Get a new set of books today and separate the red from the black and charge the cardinal colored up to experience.

To Our PATRONS AND THE PUBLIC

We have re-opened our grocery and meat market in the quarters formerly occupied by the Star Meat Market at 908 Indiana Avenue where we will be glad to meet our old friends and extend a cordial invitation to the public to call on us. Since the fire that burned our store we have purchased a complete new stock. We are occupying these quarters only temporarily but will be prepared to give you the same good goods, treatment and service that has characterized our store in the past.

To My Friends:
I hope to be able to return the favors shown me, if I have not already done so, and if I am not in position to be of any service to you I shall try and return the favors by helping someone else that has had reverses as I had. If I can be of any service to you in any way, command me and I will gladly wish to thank all my friends for their kind words and wishes. Again, thanking you and wishing you much prosperity in all your undertakings, I remain, Very sincerely,
W. W. JACKSON.

COTTON BELT WRECK ENGINEER WAS KILLED

Special to The Times
Giffner, Tex., Jan. 7.—The engine of the southbound Cotton Belt passenger train No. 1 overturned at Giffner, four miles south of here this morning, and Engineer Higby was crushed to death. No others are reported killed or injured. Four coaches were derailed.

Removal Permit Asked.
Notices have been posted as required by law in which R. H. Martin asks of the county judge permission to move his saloon, known as the White Elephant, from its present location at 600 Seventh street to lot 12, block 177, which is the building formerly occupied by the Favorite Grocery Co. Mr. Martin already has a part of his fixtures in the building, but of course cannot transact business until a permit is granted.

Hearing on the matter in the event of objection to the removal, must be had before the county judge, and such objection must be filed not later than the 10th inst. It is understood that there is some opposition to a saloon being opened at the location proposed, but it is not known whether the matter has been presented to the judge in that nature of a protest.

Aviator Reported Lost
By Associated Press
Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—Didier Mason, a Frenchman who left in a biplane today to carry newspapers to Pomona and San Bernardino, sixty miles from Los Angeles, is reported lost somewhere in the mountains. He was last seen steering his machine over the San Jose hills out of his course. Hundreds of persons in automobiles are hunting for him.

LATER—A telephone message from Rochester, west of here, says that Mason had landed there to repair his biplane.
Bank Safe Dynamited.
By Associated Press
Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 7.—Robbers used dynamite to blow open the safe of the bank at Grannis, Ark., early today. Fifteen hundred in cash is believed to have been taken. The robbers made their escape.

LOCAL NEWS BREVITIES

MAY SECURE ENGINE AND BOILER WORKS

REPRESENTATIVE OF MISSISSIPPI COMPANY IN CITY TO INVESTIGATE ADVANTAGES OFFERED.

AN ESTABLISHED CONCERN

Company Has Plant in Active Operation But Desires to Move to Better Location.

Paul T. Jones, representing the Corinth Engine and Boiler Works, of Corinth, Miss., arrived here this afternoon to investigate conditions with a view of removing the plant to this city.

The matter came up before the Chamber of Commerce several weeks ago. The company proposes to move here provided citizens of Wichita Falls will subscribe $25,000 in stock of the company or will pay bonds to the same amount, to defray the cost of moving the plant and to provide suitable buildings.

The company values its plant at $100,000 and will employ between 150 and 250 men, most of whom are skilled mechanics.

The company manufactures stationary and gasoline engines and boilers of various descriptions. It does an extensive business in Mississippi and Louisiana.

Mr. Jones while in the city is the guest of W. M. Priddy.

The Chamber of Commerce has appointed a committee to investigate the proposition and it is believed that a satisfactory agreement can be reached.

A Card of Thanks.

To all my friends and patrons:
Upon retiring from the grocery business I desire to express my feeling of appreciation to all who have contributed in any way to the success of Trevaathan & Bland. I would like to tell each one of you personally how I appreciate your favors, but I hope that you know, without hearing me say so, that I appreciated them.

I have transferred all my interest and good will in the firm to Trevaathan Bros., and I feel sure they will pursue the same business policy that has characterized the old firm and will appreciate a continuance of your favors. I realize that you have made my success possible and I thank you all.
J. M. BLAND.
