News Media On Trial

OKLAHOM CITY (AP)- The Oklahoma Supreme Court has put the news media "on trial" by approving the use of newspaper and television cameras and radio and television recording equipment in courtrooms on a one-year trial basis.

The new rule, approved 6-3 by the court Wednesday, goes into effect Jan. 1 and sets strict guidelines for the use of cameras and recording equipment.

Vietnam Sends Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) - Vietnam has sent 10,000 to 15,000 reinforcements to its army facing Cambodia amid expectations of intensified fighting within the next few weeks, U.S. intelligence sources say.

These sources, who declined to be named, estimated that Vietnam now has about 10,000 fighting men in position to push deeper into Cambodia if Hanoi decides on such a move. The reinforcements are said to have arrived in southern Vietnam from the north within the last month.

The Vietnamese are reportedly in effective control of an irregular strip of territory on the Cambodian side of the border. However, most of their units are deployed in five Vietnamese provinces within striking distance of Cambodia, the sources said.

Fighting between the two one-time Communist allies - it began after their Indochinese victories of 1975 - has slowed during the rainy season, but U.S. intelligence sources say the Vietnamese have been conducting battalion-sized sweeps while Cambodian troops have staged small hit-and-run attacks into Vietnam.

In one recent action, the Cambodians were reported to have made an unsuccessful effort to recapture the town of Snuol, which the Vietnamese captured earlier this year.

You don't hear much about appendictis anymore, but we remember when it used to be a word that nobody liked to hear.

We noticed in a piece from the Texas Medical Association the other day that appendicitis is still with us, although many people may have the mistaken idea that it is a thing of the past. Antibiotics have taken some of the dread out of appendicitis, according to the TMA, although many physicians still agree that it can be treated only by surgery.

But with modern techniques and antibiotics which help the patient recover with few complications, appendicitis can be surmounted mostly with relative ease.

There was a time when an appendectomy was regarded as grave surgery and they didn't let the victim get out of bed for several days. But these operations were definitely considered progress in the medical world because appendictis had been a killer which was feared almost to the same extent that polio was in later years.

We remember relatives marveling over the fact that lives were being saved via appendectomies, whereas previously there had been many deaths attributed to "congestion."

There was criticism occasionally that some doctors were operating for appendicitis when it might not have been necessary, but there were few who were willing to take a chance when appendictis was suspected.

Any operation was a matter of grave concern in those days. But now, the surgery which corrects appendicitis is a precedure with relatively little risk, says the TMA. The patient usually is in the hospital less than a week and can usually count on being back to a normal routine in three week. And once the appendix is gone, there is no danger of recurrence.

This is one of the reasons that people nowadays live longer than their ancestors did as little as 50 years ago.

Israel Shakes Peace Effort

TEL AVI, Israel (AP)-- The Israel-Egyptian peace drive was shaken today when Israel announced it is strengthening existing Jewish settlements in the West Bank in apparent pique at the United States, and Egypt said it may recall its Washington peace negotiators for consultations.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance issued a statement in Washington saying the Carter administration was "deeply disturbed" by the Israeli move, which he called a "very serious" matter.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan acknowledged that the settlements decision may "make it more difficult" to reach final agreement with Egypt on a peace treaty.

Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil told reporters in Cairo a recall of the Egyptian negotiators would be "purely routine." But it would rule out the scheduled resumption of the peace talks Friday in Washington.

In another development today, Syria and Iraq signed a "charter for joint national action" to oppose the Camp David peace framework agreed to by Egypt and Israel. The alliance is particularly significant because it ends a long bitter feud between the rival factions of the Baath Socialist Party that rule the two Arab neighbors.

Israeli government officials said the decision to expand Jewish settlements in the West Bank of the Jordan River was made in angry reaction to statements made privately by Undersecretary of State Harold Saunders over the future of the Palestinian-populated zone.

In a closed meeting with West Bank Palestinian leaders last week, Saunders reportedly hinted that Israel might evacuate its West Bank enclaves at the end of the five-year transition period envisioned by the Camp David agreements. He also reportedly reaffirmed the U.S. position that Arab East Jerusalem, annexed by Israel after the 1967 war, is considered by Washington to be occupied territory.

"If you want to give the plan a name, you could call it the Saunders project," one Israeli official quipped about the settlements expansion.

The decision to build more apartments and send more Jewish families to settlements in the West Bank was made at a lengthy Israeli Cabinet meeting on the proposed treaty with Egypt but wasn't revealed until the end of late night political meetings.

From Labor, Business...

Carter Inflation Plan Is Picking Up Support

WASHINGTON (AP)- President Carter is picking up important support for his anti-inflation program from Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller and business and labor groups.

Miller, in a speech Wednesday night, called Carter's new program "a balanced, concerted and sustained program to fight inflation."

Miller's support was important to White House inflation fighters, who must avoid any collision course with the independent Federal Reserve's interest rate policies.

If labor and business will support Carter's program, Miller said, "it gives us running room to eradicate inflation."

Some business groups have pledged cooperation with the program, although many of them had opposed the idea of wage-price guidelines. Most of them like Carter's promises to cut government spending.

General Motors Corp. praised Carter for "his recognition that government must take the lead to slow inflation." It also applauded his rejection of mandatory wage-price controls.

And Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons said he would back the plan if "adjustments" were made in the wage standard and if the program helped moderate price rises.

"If this program establishes some credibility on the price side and adjustments are made on the wage standard, I am sure that the 2 million Teamster members and their families will do their share to assist in resolving this difficult problem," said Fitzsimmons.

Panel Accepts Lamesa Forfeit

The executive committee of District 3-AAA, University Interscholastic League, meeting in Snyder this morning, formally accepted Lamesa High School's offer to forfeit last Friday's football game to Sweetwater.

Lamesa won the game, 12-0, but later learned that one of its players who participated in the game was scholastically ineligible.

The forfeit means that Sweetwater, tomorrow night's foe of the Snyder Tigers in a game to be played on the Sweetwater field, now officially has one victory and no defeats in district play, the same as the Tigers.

Lamesa school officials said that in checking the eligibility lists prior to last Friday's game, the player who later proved to be ineligible had failing grades in two courses marked on his chart. Two failing grades normally means that a student is passing in three other courses. However, in this case, it was learned after the game that one of the remaining courses was a vocational course that did not carry a full academic credit. Thus, he was not making a passing grade in the three credits required by UIL rules.

The district committee met here in a called session to take action on the case. The committee voted to accept Lamesa's explanation of the incident and to accept its offer to forfeit the game to Sweetwater. During the called session, the committee also discussed tennis and baseball schedules for next spring.

Cub Rally For New Pack

The Lone Buffalo District Boy Scouts will conduct a cub scout recruiting rally this evening at 7:30 in West Elementary cafeteria with the hope of chartering a new Cub Scout Pack for the school.

At least one parent must accompany potential cub scouts to the rally since it is the regular policy to not receive registrations unless a parent is present to sign the registration form.

"Not only does this provide proper parental consent," according to scout officials, "but it creates an opportunity for dialog with the parents and Cubs together which emphasizes scouting's family-involving program.

"It cannot be stressed too much, that the registration rally is a critical point in the determination of whether the chartering of the new Cub Scout Pack can become a reality," they said.

Both Scout and school officials will be present at the rally to answer specific questions.

Arms Talks To Resume

WASHINGTON (AP)- President Carter plans to send Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance to Geneva next month for another round of strategic weapons limitation talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, according to U.S. sources.

The idea is to try to complete a treaty and have it signed at a summit meeting by Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev before the end of the year.

The treaty would limit each country to a total of 2,250 strategic bombers and inter-continential ballistic missiles. Soon after completion, U.S. and Soviet negotiators would get to work on a follow-up treaty with further cutbacks.

2nd Spraying Of Cotton Set

Plans have been completed to begin the second spraying in the boll weevil control program here Monday.

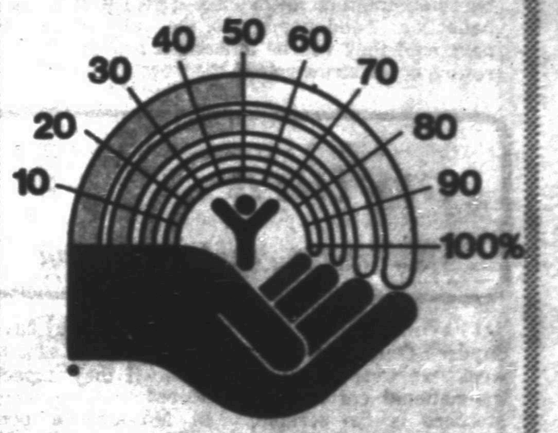

Milton Stephens, president of the Scurry County Producers Association, said the first spraying, which was completed last week, went off smoothly and that apparently it resulted in a good kill of boll weevils in area cotton fields.

The objective of the spraying program, which is coordinated by the producers association, is to reduce the number of boll weevils over wintering in the area. This, of course, is designed to curtail the boll weevil menace to the 1979 cotton crop.

The spray planes are scheduled to take off Monday morning as soon as the temperature reaches the desired level, provided there is not too much wind. The Randy Murphree Flying Service of Rotan has the spraying contract this year.

Stehens said the second spraying probably would begin east of Snyder.

discord in camelot

Camelot was the name of the capital city of Britain's legendary King Arthur. The city was celebrated as the ideal seat of an ideal government. Peace and tranquility between sovereign and knights and between subjects and their king and one another were its characteristics.

But one day ambition reared its ugly head. Human instinct for controversy surfaced. When knights met with their sovereign disputes arose. Tempers flared. Camelot became just another community of average human beings.

Something similar to that situation has developed in Washington. A public agency which has been much in the news and a source of considerable irritation to American citizens, charged with responsibility of managing business enterprises operated for profit and taxation, is suddenly faced with the possibility that its official wings may be clipped.

Involved is the Environmental Protection Agency. It was created by Congress to protect the public, as well as workers employed in private industry and members of the general citzenry, from unnecessary exposure to hazards to health and safety. The original purpose was good. Experience shows that private employers cannot be trusted to avoid unwarranted pollution and disregard for human safety in an advanced age of technology and wide use of pollution-creating devices.

But regulation has gone far beyond protection of the public interest in these areas. Bureaucrats, true to the nature of their vocation, have issued thousands of petty regulations that have no relation to safety or the elimination of pollutants from the environment.

President Carter, realizing that some billions of dollars in tax money can be saved and other billions saved to private business in cost of complying with meaningless regulations, has announced he will shortly issue executive orders designed to eliminate waste of money and man-power.

An immediate result is consternation among EPA executives. They see in the President's statement a promise to relax a long list of needless regulations, modification of others and a general streamlining of operations that will bring the situation into line with common sense and sound economics. Purpose is to save tax dollars and relieve private business of the cost of complying with, and reporting on, unnecessary regulations.

EPA top brass is unhappy. Hence the pertinence of the allusion of the legend about the legendary Kingdom of Camelot. President Carter is dealing with a basic cause of the crushing and ever-increasing misuse of public power.

how the era stands

Ratification or rejection of the ERA remains the exclusive preserve of state legislatures around the nation, but lawmakers in Florida and Nevada are certain to be carefully scrutinizing the outcome of referenda in those states this fall.

In Florida, voters will have an opportunity to approve or reject an equal rights amendment to the state constitution. Backers of the national ERA are campaigning furiously for the state version, hoping that Florida legislators who have thus far failed to ratify the federal amendment will be swayed by a favorable referendum outcome.

In Nevada, another non-ratified state, a non-binding referendum on the national ERA will be on the ballot Nov. 7 and members of the state legislature have said they will be influenced heavily by the results of the straw vote in their own districts.

my turn

by john long

At a meeting of the Snyder Coin Club last week, we were told that the national currency of Morocco is the scruple. The story was told for the truth, and I have no reason to doubt it. I only wish I could move there.

There, a person with 10 scruples would be better off than a person with only one scruple. And, no doubt, a person with one scruple would be better off than a person with no scruples. A person with no scruples, I think it could be reasoned, is a totally unscrupulous person.

There, also, one could coin some really catchy sayings. "A scruple saved is a scruple earned," doesn't sound bad to my ears.

Mothers, when sending their children off to carnivals, could offer such sage advice as "Don't spend all your scruples in one place." A wise woman would tell her children to be careful lest they lose their scruples.

When returning home a mother might ask her offspring, "Now where are your scruples? You haven't lost them, have you?"

Young businessmen might be told they have to spread their scruples around if they expect to succeed.

In Morocco, a person wouldn't invest in filthy lucre. He would invest in scruples. He certainly wouldn't go to church and brag about his scruples. He would go to his banker and talk of scrupulous thing. That way, he could develop a scrupulous regard for his belonging.

A rich man, or even a poor man for that matter, could spend his time by counting his scruples. In Morocco a person could be considered rich in direct proportion to his scruples.

If one were financially pressed, he might ask a friend to loan him a few scruples till the end of the week. The borrower might be considered the richer for the exchange.

If you walk down the street with 10 scruples in your pocket and lose one, it's no big deal. You'd still have nine scruples left.

And finally, the love of money is not the root of all evil in Morocco. There, when you love money, you really love scruples.

Someday I might invest my money in scruples and move to Morocco.

behind closed doors

An American Catholic of prominence had it right. A friend of mine, Father James Moriarty, director of the Catholic Television Network in Chicago, won a wager by predicting a week in advance precisely who would be the new Pope.

The biggest to-do in Chicago, though, was when an announcer at radio station WMFT rushed to his microphone excitedly to announce the election of "the first non-Catholic Pope."

You think that didn't light up the switchboard!

How long did the Cardinals take in selecting a new Pope--less than two days?

If they'd had TV cameras inside the Sistine Chapel, I doubt we'd have a new Pope yet.

These days we of the media, in the name of freedom of speech, demand access to the most sensitive deliberations to where our President has to go into hiding in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland in order to negotiate delicate diplomatic decisions.

To recommend closed door deliberations in a democratic country sounds inconsistent.

Yet the founders of our nation sequestered themselves in Independence Hall in Philadelphia and they even arranged to have straw strewn on the streets outside to muffle the distracting sounds of horses' hooves on the cobblestones.

In Rome, cloistered, 111 Cardinals were able to arrive at an historic decision of monumental significance within eight ballots--and then emerge smiling in unanimity.

Somewhere between the way they do it and the way we do it there must be a formula less autocratic than theirs and less cumbersome than ours.

The choice of the new Pope threw open Poland's doors for Catholic prelates to visit Rome and threw open Poland's windows for all of us to look in.

I'm fascinated by the improved view.

Billy Graham was there at the time and he was astonsihed by the degree to which the Christians are stubbornly thriving in a Communist country.

No nation in Eastern Europe has remained more fervently Catholic than Poland, despite the agressive atheism of its Communist rulers.

The Church has never lost the allegiance of the citizenry.

Despite governemntal opposition, overt and subtle, Polish Catholics built churches. Some magnificent ones. And dictatorship was impaled on their spires.

The world will continue now to examine this example of a Church maintaining its faith and its voice in the face of Communist hostility.

Infinitely more impressive than anything most of the rest of us have done to mouth pious expression of support for religious liberty are these gallant Poles who demanded it, would willingly have died for it and so hung on to it.

In a country with no free election--and without the force of arms--the church leaders and church people of Poland have prevailed.

Pope John-Paul II--lead on!

commentary

donald f. graff

"Will the last one to leave please turn off the lights?"

That bit of gallows would-be humor, applied a while back to the plights of Detroit, Cleveland and other problem-beset U.S. cities, a gross exaggeration.

As being heard today, however, applied to an African rather than American problem, it is considerably less so. Rhodesia is experiencing a population drain that, if it continues at the present rate, suggests virtual depopulation within a foreseeable future.

Impelled by worsening racial warfare and a weakening economy, more than a thousand Rhodesians per month have been packing up and pulling out of late.

That is white Rhodesians we are talking about. The Rhodesian government officially puts their numbers today at some 260,000 down from a peak of 270,000 when the British connection was severed 13 years ago. But that perhaps should charitably be described as wishful thinking. Washington, which has been keeping a very close and realistic eye on the Rhodesian situation, believes 230-250,000 is more like it.

In Rhodesia's case, giving or taking 10 thousand white in the population count is vital with blacks numbering an estimated at 6.7 million.

All this is appropos of the U.S. visit of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, invited by a conservative senate group to put his case before American public opinion and admitted reluctantly by the administration. The United States does not recognize his breakaway regime and, pledged under U.N. resolutions not to traffic with its members, has now gotten itself censured by the Security Council.

The Rhodesian situation is exquisitely complicated. But to simplify it to an extreme, the U.S. and Britain, making a case for the least violent settlement of central and southern Africa's racial conflicts, want an "all parties" agreement on Rhodesia's future, including in guerrillas based in neighboring black African countries who are waging the increasingly effective terrorist campaign against Rhodesian whites.

Smith, who not so long ago was vowing that not in a thousand years would there be black rule in Rhodesia, now heads a trasitional government with black representation, supposedly preparing for an eventual black takeover. The regime does not include the major guerilla groups, however, and its critics translate "transtion" as arranging for continued white domination.

But according to Smith, his government now meets Anglo-U.S. specifications. "I've done my part," he has reiterated to U.S. audiences, "what more do they want?"

Not a very good question from the official American view. A better one from the public's point of view might be why Americans, official or otherwise, should be much concerned at all about such a small and distant people.

The answer is that Rhodesia teeters on the brink of a racial disaster which, if not forestalled, would dwarf the horrors of the Congo not so many years back and present the nations of the West with an excruciating dilemma. Could they nevertheless stand by in the event of a full-scale black uprising that might mean extermination of the white population?

Smith, very well aware of the dilemma, is employing the deepening danger for Rhodesian whites for purposes of diplomatic blackmail. He is in effect defying the West either to accept his unacceptable policies and aid his regime, or to assume responsibility for a central African holocuast.

The painful point to consider is that back when Smith was pledging a white Rhodesia forever, his present policies might have been sufficient to head off open warfare and prepare the way to the gradual development of a multiracial community.

In today's grimly changed situation, they are too little and quite possibly disastrously too late.

a final word

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Now that the Congress is in adjournment until Jan. 15, 1979, this realease will be discontined.

Only in the closing days of the session, just concluded, were we really able to realize that never again, after 32 years, would we be participating in the daily activities of the Congress. Certainly, this does not mean we will not continue to have a great interest in all phases of our Government, both foreign and domestic. It does mean that we will not be in the daily whirl experienced over these years.

It has been an honor and a privilege to have served the people of the 17th Congressional District. The responsibility has at times seemed awesome. Naturally, one wishes to please his constituents. Satisfaction comes in helping people with their problems with the Government and there are many since there are so many programs with which people become involved -- such as veterans' benefits, farm programs, disability claims and the many facets of Social Security. Other calls for help come from those under all the rules and regulations with which they must cope in their business.

No human endeavor lacks frustrations and frequent disappointments but in this position there must be more than about any other. Not only is this the case in trying to do those things which appear best for the Nation, our State and our District but in trying to deal with the complexities of day-to-day operations of this huge Government.

One's judgement is constantly tested. Certain issues may have an attractive appeal when first presented but often the "fine print" may cast it in a perspective not readily discerned at an initial examination.

On matters involving national defense, foreign policy and domestic economic policy, what may seem right today can prove wrong tomorrow. Expert advisors can fail in their estimates of certain situations and often disagree with one another. When this occurs, choices have to be made, drawing on all available sources to reach a decision, finally relying on personal judgement.

To say that mistakes have not been made would indeed be a misrepresentation. To attmept to justify those errors would be to exacerbate the harm. In those instances when this has been true, we have sought to rectify, instead of justify.

In all the years in writing his bit, there has generally been favorable reaction for which we are grateful. Not always is there agreement and that is expected. An effort is always made to be factual and objective in discussing issues. While attempting to be informative in the essentials, it is elemental that opinions and philosophies be projected. In our opinion, it is essential that our system of representative-republic form of Government requires that your representative in the Congress reflect the views of his Constituents. It is also a responsibility to recognize the republic element and try, by interpreting the issues, to project his own opinions and philosophy in shaping those views.

Again, we are deeply grateful for the privilege of serving and fervently hope we have been worthy, to the greatest possible degree, of your trust and confidence.

Girl Scout Families Attend Weekend At Camp

Local Girl Scouts took their families to Family Weekend at Camp Boothe Oaks near Sweetwater. The weekend began Friday evening with a pot luck supper. Afterwards a film was shown and games were played. Saturday morning began with four Snyder Cadettes performing the flag ceremony. During the remainder of the morning, the group participated in hiking, making nature figures and volleyball. After lunch, activities included archery, making ozalid prints and more volley ball. A campfire highlighted the activities for the evening where Louise Ward of Abilene told stories of the stars.

Sunday morning the Cadettes helped conduct a Scouts Own, a ceremony based on friendship, then the group returned home.

Ballet Star Has Arthritis

MOSCOW (AP) - The Bolshoi Ballet Theater won't ask Maya Plisetskaya to step down, but its director says the company's prima ballerina has acute arthritis which could end a career that has spanned more than three decades.

"Whether she will retire is a question only she can answer," director Georgy Ivanov said at a press briefing Tuesday.

He said the 53-year-old ballerina is under treatment in a sanitarium and would not return to Moscow before the end of next month.

Ivanov described her illness as an arthritis of the joints, an acute form of it.

The Hermleigh Quilting Club met (as usual) for an all day of quilting on Monday. The club celebrated its fourth anniversary in September. Credit goes to Mrs. Thaba McMillan for calling and inviting interested persons to join. It was decided to limit membership to 15 ladies. The group has quilted over 223 quilts and held their first quilt show last year, with over 225 attending and most were from out of town. It has been suggested if other ladies are interested in quilting, to start another club, as 15 are about all that can quilt on two quilts at a time. If interested in organizing another club, contact Mrs. Oleta Jackson and she will designate a day to use the Hermleigh Center. Members of the Hermleigh Quilting Club are Mrs. Thabs McMillan, Mrs. Oleta Jackson, Mrs. Elree Baremore, Mrs. Dean Wemken, Mrs. Bertie Mae Herrley, Mrs. Roxie Soules, Mrs Dorothy Martin, Mrs. Josie Maule, Mrs. Rachel Lassiter, Mrs. Ophelia Hobbs, Mrs. Rella Young, Mrs. Clara Tate, Mrs. Ota Groves, Mrs. Leta Lloyd and Mrs. Adala Drennan.

Mrs. Rachel Lassiter and this correspondent visited with Mr. and Mrs. Dee Garner in Sweetwater last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Ayers and daughter Lisa from Eula, who attend church at Clyde, visited Central Baptist Church last Sunday evening. They were with the tour group along with Rev. Buddy Helm, who went to Old Mexico recently on a crusade. They showed slides and mentioned many interesting experiences.

The Town Meeting and dinner was held Tuesday evening at the High School A report was given on the fire truck project and $102.50 was collected by the children at the ballgame. To date over $400 has been given towards the purchase of a badly needed fire truck. This is not just for the townsite of Hermleigh; but for the entire Hermleigh community. Anyone caring to make a donation may pay it to Mrs. Jerva Farr, Mr. Simmons (Scho. Supt.), Boyce Jones Grocery or to the Hermleigh Community Fire Fund at the West Texas State Bank in Snyder. The next meeting has been changed to the first Tuesday after Thanksgiving, which is Nov. 25. A covered dish dinner is served at each meeting and all interested persons are welcome.

Sunday, Oct. 29 will be the last Sunday Rev. Rex Reynolds will preach at First Baptist Church and their friends are invited to the Hermleigh Community Center anytime after 1:30 or 2 p.m. for a farewell "get-together" and visitation time.

RITA EICKE

Miss Eicke At OCC

Rita Eicke, 1978 graduate of Snyder High School, has been chosen by the dean's office at Oklahoma Christian College to be featured at their High School Day, Oct. 28. One of six students to be featured, she will be singing popular songs as she accompanies herself at the piano.

In addition, Miss Eicke has been chosen as an envoy for the school. In this position, she will be giving tours of the campus, counseling new students and touring in several states. Students are chosen for this position in accordance with academic standing, involvement in school activities, spiritual attitude and leadership abilities.

She recently sang a solo at a "Gong Show" given by the college. She is also one of a group of 12 forming the Chamber Singers. This group has been featured at a banquet and college assembly.

Miss Eicke is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seabourn Eicke.

Old man Z who used to play the dummy in the bridge columns of the Twenties had made one of his rare appearances at the club.

There is nothing timid about the old man's bidding, as may be seen by his jump to four hearts without even one ace in his hand.

The nonagenarian (he admits to being 90) ruffed the second spade, drew trumps with two leads, ruffed dummy's last spade and went after diamonds. He cashed his king, entered dummy with the ace, led a third diamond and finessed his 10.

West chortled as he took his unguarded jack. "You would never have made that silly play when you were 80," he remarked.

"Quite the contrary," replied the aged expert. "I made this same play in Milton Work's column when I was just 35. It couldn't cost my contract because you are now caught in an end play."

Sure enough West was end played. A club lead would set up the king. A spade lead would allow a ruff and discard. If old Z had played his queen of diamonds and East had held the jack, the contract would have been set.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb. M.D.

Don't neglect exercise

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 30 years old, 5-feet-2 and weigh 128 pounds. I would like to get my weight down to 120 pounds. I work at a factory and I do a lot of walking, lifting heavy boxes and pushing a broom all day long. Could you send me a pamphlet on how much I can eat during the working day so I can keep my weight down to 120 pounds and not be so tired?

My mother weighs 146 and is 5-feet-4. She would like to get down to 140 pounds and keep that weight. She doesn't work. She's at home all day. I'd appreciate any information you can send.

DEAR READER — There is no magic amount of food you can eat to lose weight and not get tired. You have put your finger on an important point. People who diet often feel tired, particularly if they overdo it and try to lose weight too fast.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, that you asked for. It will provide you a basic diet plan of between 1200 and 1400 calories that you can use. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If you do a lot of physical work, that may not be enough calories for you as your goal should be to lose weight slowly. Everyone should think of fat as stored energy just like the cash balance in your checking account. What you eat increases your fat deposits and the work you do uses up your fat deposits. It's a straight balance situation.

The only way you can tell when you're working enough, or physically exercising enough, and limiting your diet sufficiently, is by what happens to your body fat stores. That's best judged by feeling how much fat is under the skin.

I think it's a big mistake for anyone to try to lose much more than a pound a week on any do-it-yourself dietary program. Any more than that will result in loss of muscles, weakness and other problems. A successful dietary program to lose weight should probably not be continued for more than about six or eight weeks at a time, after which a person should eat a normal maintenance diet for a few weeks to let their body adjust for any dietary deficiencies that may have occurred, then resume the diet program.

So, the answer to your question is to see what's happening to your body weight while you're dieting and exercising. If you're losing more than about a pound a week, that's probably too much. Certainly, if you're tired and weak at the same time it may be too much. If you're not losing anything, and that persists over a period of several weeks with your dietary and exercise routine, then you have not restricted your diet enough or else you're not doing enough physical activity.

I'd like to emphasize to all my readers not to neglect the value of physical exercise in helping to eliminate body fat. Most people, if they would just walk a mile and a half a day and not increase their dietary intake, will lose eight to 10 pounds in a year's time with such a program.

Brezhnev's Health Hindering Talks

LONDON (AP)-Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's difficulties with speech and other functions are hindering U.S. and Soviet negotiators in their efforts to reach a new strategic arms limitation agreement, the London Times reported today.

The newspaper said Brezhnev's health has become so uncertain that Western Observers believe he is no longer capable of serious negotiations.

Double-Digit Ugly Word To Carter

By JAMES R. GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Amy Carter has coined a new name for folks 10, 11 and 12 years old. Her father isn't very happy with it.

In fact, says the president, the phrase - a reminder of the difficulty of controlling inflation - is forbidden at the White House these days.

It all came up when Amy celebrated her 11th birthday a week ago. Carter related the tale a few days later at a political rally in Minneapolis.

John Travolta, star of the movies "Saturday Night Fever" and "Grease," was the guest of honor at a private birthday supper for Amy and a few friends.

It seems that Amy wanted to see the two movies but her parents decided she wasn't old enough.

"Well, Daddy, I would like to remind you that I am a pre-teen-ager," the youngster said, according to her father, prompting him to reply:

"'Amy, you have been a pre-teen-ager for a long time, ever since you were born.'"

"'Yes, but I am a double-digit pre-teen-ager,'" Carter said his daughter answered.

That prompted the president to remind his audience that "we don't let people use double digits around the White House anymore until we get inflation under control...."

Unlike some public speakers, Carter rarely appears to have any trouble keeping the length of his speeches under control.

When the White House releases a text of a speech in advance of its delivery, it rarely runs fewer than five pages or more than seven. That means, invariable, that the speech will take just about 20 minutes, give-or-take a minute, to deliver.

But when the president gives a speech without the benefit of a prepared text, the address still lasts about 20 minutes. Sometimes 18 minutes. Rarely more than 22 minutes. And you won't catch him looking down at his watch.

Now it can be told how the president manages this feat of timing.

Almost all of his speeches are delivered from a heavy, modern, bullet-proof lectern. The White House Communications Agency owns 12 of them and transports them around the country for presidential speeches.

A small digital clock is built into the upper right-hand corner, visible only to the speaker.

As the president begins a speech, he can push a small button that starts the clock running. It ticks away each second and minute and as it approaches 20:00, he can wind up the talk.

Suit Is Filed By Teamsters Local

ST. LOUIS (AP)-A Teamsters Union local has filed an $11 million suit, alleging that a television station accused its members of planning criminal actions to keep Coors beer out of the city.

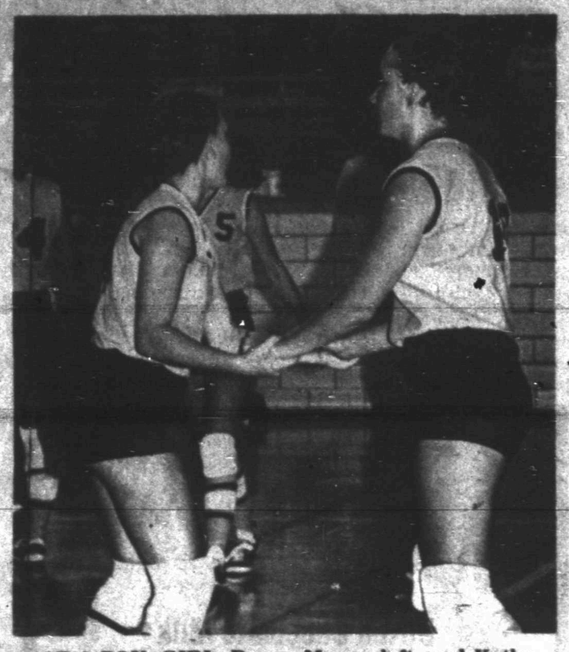

The suit was filed Wednesday in St. Louis Circuit Court in behalf of Brewery Drivers, Chauffeurs & Helpers Local 133, an affiliate of Teamsters International. The defendant, station KTVI, is owned by the Newhouse Broadcasting Corp. of New York.

National Basketball Association Roundup...

Vitale Heats Pistons, Refs Cool Him

By The Associated Press

Dick Vitale finally injected his vibrant personality into a National Basketball Association game - and was handed his first ejection.

Vitale, in his first season in the league, suffered physically and mentally as his Detroit Pistons lost their first five games of the season. He was on the bench for the first two games and in the hospital - because of a stomach disorder - for the last three.

He returned to the bench Wednesday night when the Pistons handed the Cleveland Cavaliers their first loss of the season, 110-105, but didn't last through three quarters.

With two minutes remaining in the third period, Vitale, who has promised to "revitalize" the slumbering Pistons, went wild after incurring his second technical foul of the game, resulting in automatic ejection. The technical was assessed when Vitale protested a personal foul against the Pistons' M.L. Carr.

The excitable Pistons' coach chased referee Tommy Nunez around the floor, threw down his jacket and threatened to fight the official. The feisty Vitale had to be restrained by police and team aides before being removed from the playing area.

"I coached my personality tonight," the angry Vitale said afterward. "This is the first time I have coached my personality since I have been in the league. I see too many players being protected and I'm going to fight when I think I'm right. Around the league, they're going to know who Dick Vitale is.

"I didn't lose my head. I'm just a fighter...to coach in this league, you've got to be crazy."

In some saner NBA games the unbeaten Seattle Super-Sonics trounced the Washington Bullets 121-92, the Philadelphia 76ers nipped the Atlanta Hawks 118-117, the Denver Nuggets defeated the Phoenix Suns 108-104, the Houston Rockets downed the New York Knicks 106-101, the San Diego Clippers topped the Milwaukee Bucks 125-116, the New Jersey Nets edged the Golden State Warriors 121-118 and the Kansas City Kings beat the New Orelans Jazz 114-109.

Bob Lanier's 26 points paced the Pistons, who rallied from a 71-59 deficit in the third quarter by outscoring Cleveland 17-1 for a 76-72 lead. Rookie John Long scored 11 of his 19 points during the burst.

Campy Russell and Austin Carr each scored 20 points for the Cavs.

Broncos Pick Up Seven-Year Vet

DENVER (AP) - The Denver Broncos have announced the signing of tight end Bob Moore, a seven-year veteran of the National Football League who played five seasons with Oakland and two with Tampa Bay.

Moore, 6-foot-3 and 225 pounds, was traded to Chicago in the offseason and was later released by the Bears.

A Stanford graduate, Moore replaced the injured Ron Egloff on the Denver roster.

Denver Coach Red Miller also said Wednesday that back-up quarterbacks Craig Penrose and Norris Weese both were throwing the ball at practice. Penrose should be ready to play Sunday at Seattle and Weese is continuing to recover from a dislocated kneecap, Miller said.

But Craig Morton will start at quarterback against the Seahawks, Miller said.

Denver, 5-3, is tied with Oakland for first place in the AFC Western Division.

Hargrove Says San Diego OK

DALLAS (AP) - Former Texas Ranger first baseman Mike Hargrove, dealt to the Padres in a five-player deal, said he was surprised and hurt, but looking forward to playing in San Diego.

"They probably did a good thing to trade me to the other league," Hargrove said. "If they hadn't I'd come in with a crowbar, a stick of dynamite and a shotgun and would have eaten first base if I had to help beat Texas."

Rumors of a trade circulated for weeks, but the Rangers made if official Wednesday announcing Hargrove, infielder Kurt Bevacqua and catcher Bill Fahey will go to San Diego for outfielder Oscar Gamble, catcher Dave Roberts, and an undisclosed amount of cash which two Dallas newspapers estimate at between $250,000 and $300,000.

"I knew it would come someday, but I'm surprised and hurt it happened this soon," said Hargrove, the American League Rookie of the Year in 1974. He finished 1978 with seven homers and a .251 average. Hargrove got the official word Tuesday night during a dinner with Corbett, reported the Dallas Times Herald.

"I'm not mad at anyone but (Eddie) Robinson. I cannot stand that man." said Hargrove, adding that he thought Robinsosn was the force behind the trade.

Gamble expressed his pleasure with the trade. "I hit better in the American league," said Gamble in a telephone interview from his Montgomery, Ala., home.

Gamble powered 31 home runs with the White Sox in 1977. But last season he finished with just seven homers and a .275 average.

Final Games Cancelled...

All Star Lineups For Pee Wees Set

Due to a series of rainy weather, which postponed several games, the remaining three contests in each league of the Boys' Club Pee Wee football schedule have been cancelled.

Practice for the All Star games, scheduled Nov. 4 at the Junior High Field, will begin today. Tickets for the three All-Star games may be obtained from any Pee Wee football player or at the Boys' Club.

Proceeds from the games will be used to take the players to the Texas Tech-Southern Methodist game Nov. 18 in Lubbock.

Below is a list of teams, practice times and sites and players for the All-Star games.

Spikers Begin Loop Play Here Tonight

With a 20-3 record in hand and a district championship to defend, Coach Joyce Elrod's varsity volleyball team begins 3-3A competition tonight.

The Lady Cats, who have won a district title in three of the past four seasons, will host Lamesa at 7 p.m. The match will be preceded by two others, a ninth grade (vs Big Spring) contest at 5, followed by a junior varsity match at 6.

"As far as common foes, Lamesa lost to Seminole and Denver City," said Elrod, whose Tigers are 2-0 against Seminole and 1-1 against Denver City this season. "But that doesn't really mean very much."

Lamesa is considered to have the best chance at knocking Snyder off the throne in district play this season. The Tors returned all but one player from last year.

"I'd say they'll probably be our strongest district opponent," said the coach.

While Snyder has captured the three district championships in recent years, the Tigers have failed to advance beyond regional play each time (they did go to state a number of years ago).

Grimsley Picks ...Texas Over SMU

By Will Grimsley
AP Special Correspondent

It was a theory of Bill Murray, the former Duke football coach, that when a team riding a victory crest suddenly stubbed its toe it plopped on its nose--not once but twice.

"The emotional letdown is tremendous," Murray said. "after such a loss, it's virtually impossible for a coach to get the team up the next week. If the foe is tough, count on another upset."

This rule of thumb is put to test again this week in the game between Arkansas, beaten by Texas, and rugged Houston. The Razorbacks are favored, but look out for the "let down jinx."

Last week's score: 39-13, .750. Season: 227-85, .731.

Nebraska 27, Oklahoma State 7: The Cornhuskers won't match the 641 yards gained against Colorado but should prevail.

Maryland 27, Duke 14: The Terrapins, counting the Hall of Fame Bowl, are gunning for No. 12 in a row.

Southern Cal 30, California 14: The Golden Bears must still be dazed over all those turnovers in the UCLA game.

Texas 30, Southern Methodist 21: The Longhorns refuse to be hypnotized by the Ford-Tolbert razzle-dazzle of SMU.

Michigan 28, Minnesota 7: The Wolverines imbibe freely from the Little Brown Jug.

Houston 25, Arkansas 20: The sharp-toothed Cougars put the bite on Lou Holtz' sense of humor.

8th Graders To Host B-Spring

Snyder's eighth grade volleyball teams, Black and Gold, will host Big Spring this evening at the junior high gym.

The Gold team will open the action at 5:30.

The duo will compete - along with the ninth grade - in a Snyder Volleyball Tournament which begins here Saturday.

The New York Yankees of 1929 were the first major league team to wear uniform numbers on a regular basis.

Grid Wars Enter 8th Week In Area Play

District battles pitting undefeated against undefeated highlight this week of area football. Snyder, Colorado City and Hermleigh all fight it out with at least a portion of their conference titles on the line.

Snyder, 5-2 for the season and 1-0 in district 3-3A play, travels to 2-5, 1-0 Sweetwater Friday in a crucial game for both teams. The Mustangs, who lost to Lamesa 12-0, were awarded a victory in that contest this week after it was determined that an ineligible player saw action for the Tornadoes (see related story).

The case varies drastically in District 6-AA where 5-1 Colorado City buses to 5-0-1 Stamford. Both are 3-0 in league play and both must face undefeated Coahoma later down the road. Guess what team will be studing this 7:30 p.m. Friday game with anticipation?

Still two other "heavies" tangle Friday night as 6-0 Trent hosts also unbeaten Hermleigh at 7 p.m. This one could go a long way in determining the District 3-B six-man title, with only a couple of teams left in that conference capable of an upset.

Over in District 3-B (11-man), Roby is not out of the running, but will have to rely on somebody knocking off tough Jayton before the Yellowhammer title hopes get any higher. Roby, 4-3 was tripped 14-6 last week by the Jaybirds and is now 1-1 in league warfare. The 'hammers play host to Sterling City (2-5, 1-1) Friday at 7:30.

Staying in that East zone for a second, the story is a different one coming out of Gail. The Borden County Coyotes are 0-7 for the season, and will be looking for their first win as they host Garden City 7:30 Friday.

On Saturday, the area's final homecoming celebration takes place in Hobbs (2-3, 1-1) as the Panthers welcome exes and winless Ira at 7 p.m.

Meanwhile, 4-3 Rotan will take a week's rest before playing Albany on Nov. 3.

Seattle Slew To Make Final Run

NEW YORK (AP)-Seattle Slew, the 1977 Triple Crown champion and Horse of the Year, will make the final start of his racing career Nov. 11 in the Stuyvesant Handicap at Aqueduct.

That announcement Wednesday was surprising because Slew had an opportunity to run in the more prestigious Washington, D.C. International Nov. 4 at Laurel, but his owners decided to bypass the 1½-mile race on grass, a surface on which the 4-year-old colt never has run.

"New York's been good to us and we'd rather go out in New York and retire him here," co-owner Mickey Taylor said.

Taylor said that after the 1⅛-mile Stuyvesant, to be run on the main surface, Slew would go to stud Dec. 1 at Spendthrift Farms in Kentucky.

"It would be nice to run him another year as good as he is right now, but an agreement was made in the spring to retire him as a 5-year-old and that's what we're going to do," said Taylor.

Slew will become a 5-year-old Jan. 1, the official birthday of every race horse.

Seattle Slew won six of seven starts last year.

In Sweetwater Friday At 7:30...

Tigers Face Revitalized Mustangs

A district committee decision, awarded this morning, has given Sweetwater new life, and that may be tough on Snyder come Friday when the two teams meet at Mustang Bowl.

The decision only confirmed what had been known most of the week, unofficially - that because of an ineligible player - Lamesa would have to forfeit its 12-0 victory over the Mustangs. So, seemingly out of the conference race late last week, Sweetwater suddenly has found itself with another chance.

"Oh, I think it will definately give them a boost," commented Snyder Coach Mike Jenkins, whose Tigers whipped Lake View last week 25-6 and also go into the 7:30 p.m. game 1-0 in district play. "But I think there are two reasons Sweetwater will be up for the game: By winning the game they thought they had lost, keeping them in the district race, and secondly, because they'll be playing Snyder. There is a great rivalry between the two teams. They've been playing each other a long time."

All which leads to another question. Will Snyder be down after defeating former champion Lake View when they meet the 2-5 (1-6 before the ruling) Mustangs?

"No, we really don't think the kids will have a letdown," said Jenkins. "It's just as much a rivalry for our kids as it is for theirs. We want to win district ourselves. We don't want to be in a position where we have to count on any other team.

"We're not approaching this game any different than any other one. We've worked hard all week. You know, I've said over and over that we want to improve every week. This has been our theme. We want to show improvement Friday over what we did last week and the week before that."

To improve on last week's victory would be little more than eliminating nagging mental mistakes which have plagued the Tigers all season - namely fumbles, which Snyder has a habit of losing, on first possessions.

Beyond that, only minor mistakes hurt the Tigers during last week's mele over the Chiefs. Their 366 yards offense was the most gained in two years, and the second half -6 yards rushing has been the least allowed by Snyder in almost as long.

But the coach points out that defeating the Mustangs won't be as easy as the Mustangs' 2-5 record indicates it might be.

"I've said all year Sweetwater would be a factor in district, and I still think so," said Jenkins. "They played (Fort) Stockton real well (three weeks ago) and beat Monahans after that. They've had some injuries that have hurt them. Heck, they'll probably have everyone healthy this week for us," he chuckled.

Interestingly enough, Snyder came out of the San Angelo game in perhaps the best shape it has been all season, injury-wise. Only defensive back Sid Sullenger - who also missed the Angelo game - will be out this week. Previously injured players Danny Doss, John Hanson and Tom Leura will be suited out, though probably confined to limited duty.

Highlighting the Sweetwater multiple wing-T offense will be 216-pound fullback Everett Todd, quarterback Kirby Head, linemen Todd Cooper (220), Trent Elliott (211), and end Beau Patterson (205). Keys defensively (5-2) are linebacker Todd, tackles Cooper and Lowell Williams, 220, and back Kervin Marchall.

Bellard Only Hurried Things

COLLEGE STATION (AP)-As far as former Texas A&M football Coach Emory Bellard is concerned, his resignation came just before regents were to ask him to quit.

"Tuesday morning after I arrived at the office, I was given some information from a very reliable source that the intentions of the president of the university and the Board of Regents were to ask me to relinquish my coaching duties at the end of the season, regardless of the outcome of the remaining games, and remain at Texas A&M as athletic director," Bellard said.

A later conversation with school President Dr. Jarvis Miller convinced him the information was correct, Bellard said.

Offensive coordinator Tom Wilson took over the coaching duties. His name had been prominent as a successor to Steve Sloan at Texas Tech, but the job went to Rex Dockery instead.

Bellard said he's through with athletics, but isn't sure what he will do in the future. In 6½ seasons, his Aggie teams won 75 percent of their games.

The resignation came after the team lost consecutive games to Houston and Baylor.

"I feel no animosity toward Texas A&M," Bellard said. "I truly love this university and most of all the people of Texas A&M. They have been great to me. I hope that I can be remembered as a good Aggie."

Most accusing fingers in the matter were pointed at an alumni group in Houston, but one Aggie supporter from Dallas went on record for Bellard.

"It must have come as a hell of a shock to everybody," Tom Dwyer said. "I know Emory Bellard did a hell of a job. I hate to see him persecuted in any way."

Aggie placekicker Tony Franklin denounced some recent student moves calling for Bellard's replacement. "A lot of students were really being crass," Franklin said. "Chicken bleep is the only way to describe it."

Tonight's Game Fine With Opposing Coaches

DALLAS (AP)-Dallas Coach Tom Landry and Minnesota Coach Bud Grant don't mind Thursday night "Monday Night" National Football League games.

"When television wants to put you on the air nationally it's an honor," said Grant. "That means you are a contending team or they wouldn't call.

"I'm sure it would be nice to play at 1 p.m. every Sunday but if you are a contending team you just have to bear the cross of unusual starting times. I'm not so sure Dallas has an advantage because we have to travel. The important thing was that we both played at home last Sunday. It (the travel) is not a major handicap."

Landry said "It's an honor to be asked. They don't ask you to play in games like this unless you have a good football team. I think we can recover our tiredness from Sunday but maybe our bruises won't heal as fast. I think we probably have a little advantage--I don't know how much--because they have to travel."

Then he laughed "knowing Bud they probably won't be here until the last minute anyway."

Playing on the artificial turf of Texas Stadium was a bigger worry to Grant.

"Well, it's a distinct disadvantage to play on your (the Cowboys') field coming off grass," said Grant. "It's a handicap we find it difficult to adjust to. There is so much more traction. It's a faster, finer, more precision type of game. A Tony Dorsett type field."

Landry countered saying "All I know is that we've been on grass twice and lost."

The Cowboys were seven-point favorites for the nationally televised 7:30 p.m. CDT kickoff with a sellout crowd of 65,000 expected in the stands.

Dallas (6-2) had a chance to move a half-game ahead of Washington in the National Conference Eastern Division with a victory while the Vikings (4-4) were trying to stay close to Green Bay in the NFC Central.

Beck Heads Up PGA Qualifiers

HUNTSVILLE (AP)-The par-71 Waterwood Country Club took a beating Wednesday from golfers trying to earn a PGA tour card in a qualifying tournament, but University of Georgia player Chip Beck did the most damage, taking the first-round lead with a 67 that broke the course record by three strokes.

"I started off slow, but I just told myself that if I played each hole the best I could...then I'd be alright," Beck said. "You can't relax on this course, because you can lose your lead as quick as you got it."

Beck wasn't the only shooter to break Keith Fergus' old record of 70.

The mark also fell to the second and third place finishers, with Robert Donald of Athens, Ga., firing a 68 and former tour player Tom McGinnis of Sylvania, Ohio, recording a 69.

Pro tour cards will go to the top 25 finishers in the four round tournament.

Win Over Hogs Packs Weight, Says Coach

AUSTIN (AP)-Texas Coach Fred Akers said Wednesday Texas' upset victory over Arkansas Saturday carried more importance than just a single Southwest Conference victory.

Texas moved up one place in the national college poll to No. 7 after coming from behind to defeat previously unbeaten Arkansas, 28-21. Arkansas fell from third to ninth.

The game, Akers told the Longhorn Club on Wednesday, "had a little something for everyone - for coaches, players and fans. It meant a great deal to us, obviously, the way we had to win it...and it goes a long way to building our young ball club."

Akers disclosed that Ron Bones, a defensive end who had been counted on to try containing Southern Methodist passer Mike Ford this Saturday, may miss the SMU game with an injured elbow.

Offensive tackle Craig Rider, praised for his pass blocking against Arkansas, has a hurt shoulder, Akers said.

He said Texas missed 16 tackles against Arkansas, "which is normally not like us, but part of that" is due to the elusiveness of such backs as Jerry Eckwood.

"Eckwood can cause you to be a foot short getting to him," said Akers.

He said Texas would rely on the usual defensive alignment to try to halt the sensational sophomore Ford, who has guided SMU to at least three touchdowns in every game this season.

"They're going to come in here throwing the ball, and it should be an exciting game," said Akers. "It will require a lot of patience and skill" for Texas to win. "I hope we have all our people ready by the weekend, because we're going to need them."

Tiger Twosome Play At Stadium Tonight

Snyder's junior varsity football unit resumes play tonight as the Tigers host Sweetwater, 7:30 at the high school stadium.

The contest will be preceded by a Snyder eighth grade Gold vs Sweetwater game, scheduled for 5:30.

Out of town, Snyder eighth grade Black and ninth grade teams will be welcomed by the Mustangs. Those games will be held at 5:30 and 7:30, respectively.

Key Witness Against Pornographer Killed

ATLANTA (AP) - Roger Dean Underhill, slain in a suburban ambush, was considered an "essential" witness against fugitive pornographer Michael Thevis, who four months ago was indicted for allegedly offering $10,000 to have Underhill killed.

Underhill, 50, and Atlanta grocer Issac Galanti, 48, were killed about noon Wednesday by shots fired from the ambush, police said.

"We believe they (the assailants) were already there" when Underhill and Galanti arrived at a wooded lot north of the city, said Fulton County Police Capt. Louis Graham.

Both men were gunned down with "shoulder weapons," such as shotguns or rifles, said James Dunn, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office.

Police believe "more than one" assailant was involved, said Graham, who added that no weapon had been recovered.

Galanti was dead when police arrived at the scene. Underhill was taken to Northside Hospital, where he died about six hours later.

Graham said the men were shot as Underhill was showing Galanti a vacant peice of property that he owned in an exclusive suburban neighborhood and that Galanti apparently wanted to buy.

Galanti, manger of Economy Super Market in Atlanta, was not believed to be connected with Thevis. "There is no evidence to support that," Graham said. "From what we have determined so far, the man was there on a legitimate business venture."

No arrests were made and authorities said they had no suspects.

Thevis, 46, head of a multi-million-dollar pornography business, escaped from a jail in New Albany, Ind., on April 28 and is still at large.

Campaign To Find Out If Smallpox Is Licked Begins

MERKA, Somalia (AP) - A one-year countdown starts today to see if smallpox, one of the five killer diseases to ravage the world since the dawn of history, is licked for good.

If by Oct. 26, 1979, no new cases are reported in six nations in East Africa and the Middle East, the World Health Organization will declare the disease wiped from the face of the earth.

The only remaining chance of infection would be from virus stocks stored in laboratories.

As recently as 1966, smallpox accounted for between 500,000 and 1,000,000 deaths a year worldwide.

Ali Maow Maalin, who has the dubious distinction of being the last man known to catch smallpox naturally, lives in this small town on the edge of the Indian Ocean.

Maalin, a 23-year-old hospital cook, was infected Oct. 26, 1977 during a three-minute ride in a jeep that was carryng two children with smallpox.

If there are no new cases in Somalia, Ethiopia, Kenya, Djibouti and North and South Yemen by the second anniversary of Ali's infection medical experts say they will consider the disease beaten.

"I am fully confident that in one year's time we will be able to confirm that the disease has disappeared," says Dr. Isao Arita, head of the WHO small pox eradication campaign.

Republicans Take Offensive In Texas Politics

By the Associated Press

Republicans took an offensive stand in Texas Wednesday, with Sen. John Tower calling challenger Bob Kruger a "slavish flunky" while attorney general hopeful Jim Baker branded opponent Mark White a user of "lame rhetoric."

Tower told a San Antonio news conferecne that Rep. Krueger has gone from portraying himself as an independent Democrat to "stressing party teamwork."

"That indicates to me that he is subordinating the idea of being an independent Texas senator to that of being a party hack, so to speak." Tower said.

Krueger parried by repeating his charge that Tower three times voted to raise his own pay while asking Americans to curtail their lifestyles.

Baker was on a card with White at a pair of lawyers' meetings in San Antonio.

He said White "has fallen back on such lame rhetoric as saying crime can be handled by educating people not to be ciminals. That's simply not enough. That's gobbledygook - a non-answer to a very serious problem. It just won't get the job done."

Over in the governor's race, Democrat John Hill said for the first time in history, county officials have joined together to endorse a gubernatorial candidate.

2 Questions Remain In Pipeline Explosion

BROOKSIDE VILLAGE (AP)--Two major questions remain unanswered in the wake of a gas pipeline explosion that killed five persons--what caused the destructive blast and where is Miss Ivey Beasley.

Philip Hogue of the National Transportation safety Board said Wednesday there was no evidence of maintenance or operating failure by the United Texas Transmission Co., owners of the 30-inch pipe that erupted near the Royal Trailer Park Tuesday.

Hogue said the inital investigation showed no failure by the company or any corrosion in the pipe, which is 25 years old.

Hogue added that the board's investigation would take three months and it would be detailed and thorough. "We will look into much more than the immediate cause of the explosion," he said.

The bodies of five victims were found in the predawn hours and 43 others were injured by the blast. All area residents affected by the blast have been accounted for except Miss Beasley, 65, whose small frame house leveled in the mushroom explosion.

Tom LeClere, a Pearland policemen, said "'ninety percent of the opinions out here are that she was in the house at the time of the fire. Her whole house was leveled except for some concrete stairs."

Firemen said the intense heat was capable of incinerating a human being. A friend visited Miss Beasley Monday night and saw the woman lock her front gate and return to her home. Miss Beasley's dogs were found dead near the home.

Joe Piotrowski, director of the Texas Railroad Commission's gas utility division, said the "cause is anybody's guess. You can't point a finger at anything. We can't see any negligence on anyone's part.

Piotrowski said the pipe was 20-25 years old "and appeared in excellent shape. You can compare it with the new pipe they are installing and cannot see any difference."

The ruptured section of pipeline was replaced with 8 feet of new pipe and was back in operation early Wednesday.

Singer For Rock Group On Probation

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)-Grace Slick, the 38-year-old lead singer for the Jefferson Starship rock group, was put on two years' probation by a judge who warned her she would be jailed if she drank alcohol during that period.

Marin County Municipal Judge Gary Thomas on Wednesday also ordered Miss Slick to attend semi-weekly meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous for six months and not to leave the state without permission.

Miss Slick was arrested at Corte Madera, near her Mill Valley home, on July 25 for allegedly being drunk in public while on probation. She pleaded no contest last month to charges she had violated probation imposed by Thomas in March following her conviction in January on a charge of drunken driving.

Lebanon Chief Topic As Pope, D'Estaing Confer

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY AP - Pope John Paul II an President Valery Giscard D'Estaing of France discussed a wide range of "burning world issues" today, including ways and means to bring about "peace in a unified Lebanon."

The French president, who was received for 45 minutes in the pontilff's first working audience for a chief of state, said he had discussed the wide range of subjects with the pontiff, including prospects for peace in war-torn Lebanon.

During a brief visit after the audience to the Basilica of St. John the Lateran, where French chiefs of state have been honorary canons since King Henry IV, Giscard d'Estaing said he agreed with the pope that "there is a great renewal of spirituality in the world at the moment.

"I was deeply moved by the beaming personality of John Paul II," Giscard d'Estaing added. "We also discussed and agreed on the universality of the faith and that each person is free to accede to the spirituality of his own faith."

The pontiff's predecessor - John Paul I - reportedly had planned to make a trip to Lebanon to underscore his personal commitment to the settlement of the internal strife.

The Sacred College of Cardinals, which ran the affairs of the church during the interregnum between John Paul I's death Sept. 28 and John Paul II's election Oct. 16, twice appealed for peace in Lebanon. The church recently received a plea for Lebanese Christians seeking the church's help in putting an end to the internal strife.

In his first papal speech on Oct. 17, John Paul II indicated that he would pay prompt attention to the Lebanese question. He spoke of the "grave" problem in the "the beloved land of Lebanon and its people who earnestly desire peace and liberty."

Last year, Giscard d'Estaing proposed sending French troops to Lebanon to act as a peacekeeping force in much the same way U.S. Marines intervened in the Moslem-Christian fighting in the 1950s.

French officials said at that time that they were willing to accept this responsibility in view of the long-standing ties between France and Lebanon, which go back not only to French colonial rule but to the Crusades.

The plan was welcomed by Lebanese Christian leader Pierre Gemayel and others but was vehemently opposed by the Moslem community and died quietly.

Some 37,000 persons died in the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war between the Christians and an alliance of Moslems and Palestinians. The Syrians ended the fighting 23 months ago, saved the Christians from defeat and prevented establishment of a radical regime on Syria's doorstep.

But the Israeli-backed Christian militias refused Syrian orders to disarm in February because the Moslems and Palestinians weren't told to give up their guns, and the Syrians began cracking down on Christian enclaves.

Eight months of elashes followed, culminating in a furious, 10-day bout in Beirut that left some 1,300 dead. The Beirut fighting tapered off after a cease-fire Oct. 7, but sporadic gunfire and shelling continue on a daily basis.

Ear-Splitting Roar Begins Critical Test

CORINNE, Utah (AP) - With an ear-splitting roar, more than a million pounds of solid rocket propellant sent a white-hot flame 400 yards up a sagebrush-covered hillside as the prototype motor for America's space shuttle program passed a critical test.

The motor, described as the standard workhorse for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's shuttle series, fired for 2:03 minutes Thursday. The blast from the 149-foot motor assembly anchored to a 20 million pound block of concrete, burned nearby vegetation down to bedrock.

Ira Student In Ensemble

SAN MARCOS – Angie Amato of Ira is a member of Southwest Texas State University's Trombone Ensemble.

Membership is open to all students, regardless of major, with the consent of the instructor.

The Ensemble presents concerts throughout the year and is directed by SWT music instructor Charles Hurt.

Ms. Amato, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Amato, plays the trombone, flute, piano and bassoon.

A three year veteran of the Snyder High School Band, she has also been the drum major for SWT's Marching Band for three years.

She is a music major at Southwest Texas.

Legionnaires Disease Traced

ATLANTA (AP)-An outbreak of Legionnaires disease here last July has been traced to an air conditioning unit at an Atlanta country club where eight golfers were stricken by the disease, health officials said.

All eight victims survived and there is no longer any danger of contamination.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Ward

Mrs. Derah Letitia Ward, 86, died at 3:10 p.m. Wednesday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Ward was a longtime resident of Moran, but recently had been residing at Snyder Oaks Nursing Home here.

Funeral arrangements were pending this morning, but services are due to be set at Moran, with burial in the Moran Cemetery.

Surviving are a daughter, Mary Ellen Wilkinson of Wichita Falls, and a son, Dr. Harry Ward of Snyder.

Malaga, Spain, was founded in the 12th century B.C. by the Phoenicians.

Woman's Intuition Bears No Fruition

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I suspect that my husband has been cheating on me for a long time, but I haven't been able to pin anything on him. I even hired a private detective to follow him, but he couldn't come up with a thing. It's just a feeling I have. My husband goes out a lot and tells me he is going to such and such a place, but he's never where he says he'll be, and that makes me suspicious.

I finally went to a lawyer, and he told me to grow up—that every man cheats on his wife at some time in his life. Is this true? I always believed my father was a faithful husband to my mother, and I've got brothers who I am sure wouldn't go out on their wives.

My lawyer says I should quit trying to catch my husband, and accept the fact that all men cheat. Do they?

CHICAGO TRIB READER

DEAR READER: No! There are plenty of married men who never cheat, and your husband could be one of them. The only thing you can be fairly sure of is that you lawyer cheats on his wife.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from CAN'T TELL HIM, the girl who couldn't tell her fiance that he had bad breath.

I, too, suffer from chronic bad breath, and it's ruining my life. I'm a young, attractive, single girl and a very clean person. My dental hygiene is excellent. I brush twice a day, and floss, too.

Commercial mouthwashes are worthless. Please, Abby, can you ask some of your doctor friends if I could have a medical problem? Perhaps it's a vitamin deficiency.

Please answer in your column because I'm sure there are many others who suffer from this terrible affliction.

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: Bad breath could be a symptom of so many physical ailments that it would take a full column to list them.

It could be poor nutrition, a vitamin deficiency, or emotional stress. But don't assume anything. Start with your physician. It's even possible that the affliction is only imaginary, in which case psychotherapy is the answer. Get help now and put an end to this needless suffering.

DEAR ABBY: Someone signed CLUTTERED MAILBOX IN L.A. wrote to complain because he had been finding a lot of leaflets, advertisements, political propaganda, etc., in his mailbox.

You said there was a law against using a mailbox for anything except mail for which postage had been paid to the U. S. Postal Service.

Well, I own my own mailbox—the U. S. Postal Service does not! And if I want to store chopped liver in it I would like to see anybody stop me!

IRRITATED IN SAN ANTONIO

CONFIDENTIAL TO J.C.: Yes, I know what one gets if he crosses a computer with an ape. A hairy reasoner.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Free On Bond

Charged with felony count of driving while intoxicated, Douglas Carroll Sawyer has been released from custody after posting a $1,500 bond.

He was arrested on the DWI charge Oct. 24 by troopers of the Department of Public Safety.

Defendant Acquitted

Michael Wayne London was acquitted Wednesday afternoon of a drunken driving charge. The acquittal was delivered by a five-man, one-woman jury in county court.

London, 18, a Bovina resident, was arrested on the driving while intoxicated charge Sept. 21. The trail began Tuesday morning.

Serving on the jury were Marshall Parham, Bill F. Sealy, Bernard Weems, Mrs. Clarence Wright, Tommy Strickland, and Gus Sterling.

The defendant was represented by Lubbock attorney Ray Fargason.

Two Mishaps Are Reported

Traffic accidents on Ave. L. and 32nd St. were investigated Wednesday by police.

The first was at 2:30 p.m. in the 2200 block of Ave. L. It involved a 1967 Plymouth driven by Linda Lee Fowler and a 1978 AMC driven by Brenda Biddle Gaddis. Minor damages were reported.

The second was in the 3400 block of 23rd St. at 8 p.m. There, reports show, a 1978 Oldsmobile driven by Willie Rogers was in collision with a fire hydrant. Minor damages were reported.

Probation Revoked

Ernest Flores Jr. was sentenced to serve a three-year term in the Texas Department of Correction Wednesday following a probation revocation held in 132nd District Court.

Flores had been placed on a probation last month on a burglary charge. The probation was revoked, records show, because of a subsequent arrest on a burglary charge.

He is alleged to have participated in the break-in of the Boys' Club Oct. 10.

New England colonists attacked Quebec in 1690.

WTC Riders Place High

LUBBOCK – Several members of the Western Texas College Rodeo Team got off to a good start Wednesday night in the opening round of the Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo.

Buddy Reynolds of WTC was the only entrant to make a successful ride in the saddle bronc event. He was credited with 62 points.

In bareback bronc riding, Ronnie Werner of WTC was marked for 63 and finished the evening as runnerup to the leader, Mike Street of West Texas State University.

In the girls breakaway roping, Tammy Matthews of WTC was third for the evening with a time of 5.17.

In team roping, Sammy Nunez and Bill Stockton of WTC placed second with 15.79.

The Texas Tech NIRA rodeo continues through Saturday night.

Booklet Explains How To Build Own Coffin

LOS ANGELES (AP)- How many people get a chance to build their own coffins?

Dale Zamzow wants to give more people that opportunity. So he has written an instruction booklet explaining how to design and build your own coffin.

"Caskets normally cost anywhere from $100 to $5,000," he said in a telephone interview. "But if you take my booklet, and add the cost of the materials, you can build one for around $50."

Zamzow, 45, estimates he has sold 200 sets of instructions through magazine and newspaper advertising in the past few months. He has the sneaking suspicion, however, that some people bought the booklets, which sell for $2.45 apiece, and sent them to friends as jokes.

But the systems analyst from San Jose is not kidding. In fact, he emphasizes the importance of planning ahead.

"It's so simple to make a coffin that I made the instructions sound complicated," he said.

For example, Zamzow points out, the booklet says to pick up part 714 and attach it to part 715, using item 12 and item 13.

"Actually, that means to nail two pieces of wood together with a hammer," he explains.

Zamzow recommends stained plywood as the most practicable material for people with simple coffin tastes, but says those with a more expensive flair can make one with gold leaf and diamonds on it.

He also issues a warning about the size of the coffin, especially to those who have a tendency to tuck away a few pounds with the years.

"If you plan to be more overweight than you are now when you die, you should increase the depth by two inches for each 25 pounds of weight gained," he said.

But what to do with the coffin while its builder owner is still living? According to Zamzow, it need not simply gather dust.

"One guy I know is temporarily using his as a liquor cabinet," he said. "It could also be used as a stereo set or a gun cabinet. Or if you're short of beds and your mother-in-law is coming to visit..."

Naturally, Zamzow has already built his own coffin. But because he doesn't think he'll be needing it for its intended purpose soon, he's put it to work elsewhere.

"Since I'm going to be cremated, I have a 1-foot-long, 4-inch-high casket for my ashes," He explains. "My wife, who designs dolls, is using it as a closet for doll clothes right now."

Three Old Religious Shows Passing Away

LOS ANGELES (AP)- In mid-January, three venerable Sunday morning CBS shows - "Lamp Unto My Feet," "Look Up and Live" and "Camera Three" - will expire at the respective ages of 30, 24 and 25 years.

And "Morning" will dawn. It's the name of the new 90-minute news and feature show CBS henceforth will air Sundays. It's also what CBS will call what now is the "CBS Morning News" on weekdays.

The latter show, still third in ratings in its hour against NBC's "Today" and ABC's "Good Morning America," also will get a new look that could include another anchor change after only a year.

There've been rumors Richard Threlkeld and Leslie Stahl, who succeeded Hughes Rudd and Bruce Morton as the shows co-anchors in the fall of 1977, may depart for other duties soon.

"Well it's possible," says Robert "Shad" Northshield, who last month became the executive producer of their show and is the guy who'll run the six-day "Morning" venture when it begins in 1979.

But he hastens to add there's been no decision. The Current "Morning News" anchors will be hoisted and others installed: "When I say it's not decided, I meant it hasn't been talked about.

"I know that Threlkeld and Stahl are absolutely going to be involved in the Sunday operation in a big way, and that's about all I know now." He was asked if they'd shift to Sunday-show hosting.

"Not necessarily, there may not even be anchors," he said by phone from New York. He said he wasn't trying to be vague, "it's just that we haven't even talked about it."

Everything still is in the planning stages, emphasized Northshield, 55, a respected ex-NBC News documentary, specials and "Today" producer who last year rejoined CBS, where he toiled in 1953-58.

Right now, he said, he's busy enough just trying to hire a staff, get office space and secure the gear needed for the new Sabbath show, which he likens to the Sunday edition of a daily newspaper.

"It'll have hard news, a review of the week's news, plus a lot of cultural stuff, the kinds of things you only get on Sundays in newspapers," said the former Chicago newspaperman.

It'll also probably have staff critics to criticize art, music, theater, movies and even TV, he added.

Pet Lion Kills Owner's Wife

TALLASSEE, Ala. (AP)- A pet lioness who broke free and fatally mauled her owner's wife had been restrained by a galvanized steel clasp that was inadequate to hold an animal of that size, says the Elmore County coroner.

Dr. Joseph Benson, the coroner, said the chain that held the lion was "more than adequate," but the clasp that bound the chain to the animal's collar "wasn't adequate at all."

Rickie Haynie, 28, the dead woman's husband, bought the lion from a Florida zoo last Sunday. He told officers he wanted to breed the new lion with a male lion he owned and sell the cubs to circuses.

Both animals were killed by officers following the attack.

Elmore County Sheriff Sidney Thrash said the lioness apparently broke the clasp when she lunged at 26-year-old Margaret Haynie as the woman walked past the animal's shelter near her home Tuesday.

Thrash said the lion killed Mrs. Haynie then dragged her body some 25 to 30 feet into the woods near her secluded home in rural Elmore County.

Haynie, a machinist who works nights in Tallassee, told police he last saw his wife alive when he went to bed Tuesday morning. He said he awoke sometime before noon and saw the lioness standing over his wife.

Haynie told police he first tried to scare the animal away with a whip. When that failed, he said he grabbed a .38-caliber pistol and fired five shots at the lion.

When the shots failed to stop the animal, Haynie said he called police. Officers responding to the call then shot and killed the lion with a rifle.

The male lion was killed on the instructions of a Montgomery Zoo official, who said the animal would not be accepted by any zoo and "can never, never be a pet."

Alabama's "vicious animals" statues apparently do not prohibit the ownership of lions.

"It's not against the law to own a lion as a pet," Thrash said. "It shouldn't be but it isn't. We executed the offender so I don't see where any charges can be filed."

In another incident Tuesday a pet lion escaped from his pen in Jourdanton, Texas, cut and scratched a pipeline worker slightly, stampeded a herd of cattle and then died, apparently from over-exertion.

Pope Pius III died in 1503, after less than one month as Pope.

Baloonists Crash Prison

COMSTOCK, N.Y. (AP)- When two men came over the wall at Great Meadow Correctional Facility, guards reacted by sharing the champagne.

It was an unscheduled landing by a hot air balloon carrying WTEN-TV meterologist Bob Kovachick and piloted by Phil Jackson.

Kovachick, who was doing a story on ballooning for the Albany television station, said they were forced down when they ran out of fuel.

So they broke out the champagne for guards - who checked their identification before allowing them to leave - in the ballonists' tradition of toasting the owner of property on which they land.
