Big changes capped '85 session

AUSTIN (AP) — The 1985 Legislature finally has written it: The End.

Lawmakers — their stay under the Capitol dome extended beyond the regular session deadline to create a medical care plan for the poor — are headed for home.

At home, their fellow Texans will notice some big changes soon.

● If you've got money to spend, you can spend it on Sundays — unless you want a new car.

● If you do buy a car, it will be more expensive to use. The price is going up for a driver's license, a

White signs SWCID tuition bill

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White on Thursday signed into law a bill that will cut tuition for out-of-state students at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in Big Spring.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, and Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, won passage of the legislation which sets out-of-state tuition rates at the same level as those in other state-supported safety inspection sticker and personalized license plates.

● If you're a teen-ager planning colleges.

The new rate will become effective with the beginning of the fall semester.

Under the bill approved by the Legislature, tuition will be $40 per semester hour next fall and continue at that rate through the 1986-87 school year. Then it goes to an amount equal to 100 percent of the statewide average cost of education.

to attend a state university, plan on spending more. Tuition's going to triple this fall.

● If that's enough to drive a teen to drink, wait. The legal drinking age is going up too.

Lawmakers also decided to spend more money than ever before.

The pricetag for state government and its programs for the next two years reads $36.83 billion, a 13 percent increase over the $32.48 billion budgeted for 1984-85.

Officially, officials think it was a great year.

"I think we have come close to having one of the finest sessions that we've ever had," Gov. Mark White concluded five hours before he called lawmakers back into a special session.

Graduation

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Big Spring High School graduates had their eyes on the future as they completed their public school career Thursday night with commencement ceremonies in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The 233 graduates, clad in traditional black robes, marched onto the floor of the coliseum to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance." The ceremony marked not only the end of an era but the beginning of a new segment in their lives.

Blair Richardson, president of the senior class, said, "We are different people" than those who have gone before. "We are unique. We are the proud and excited graduating class of 1985."

Richardson told his classmates, "We must look forward to the future. We can succeed. We are the future." He wished his classmates, "Good luck in life and may you always have happiness."

Julie Miller, class salutatorian, said Thursday's graduation was the completion "of a goal that began 12 years ago." Although students "made many mistakes" along the way, "We learned a great deal from them."

Miller said, "We must continue to dream, look ahead and explore the possibilities. Tomorrow is ours to win or to lose."

Quang Van Mai, class valedictorian, praised those who helped him and other students throughout school. He cited "wonderful, caring teachers" who gave the graduates the chance to excel.

Mai said graduation is a reward for many years of hard work and that all the work will help prepare the graduates for the future.

"We will continue to grow so that we may better serve the world," Mai said. "This is only the beginning for all of us."

Council revises budget to meet capital expenses

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Increased capital outlays — one-time purchases of equipment — have caused the city's estimated general fund balances at the end of the year to plummet from the original budget figures.

The city, however, is on sound financial footing because regular operating expenses are less than city revenues, according to City Finance Director Tom Ferguson.

According to the city's revised budget, adopted by councilmen Tuesday, the city will end the year with a general fund balance of $84,822, down from the $291,047 originally predicted.

It began the fiscal year with $450,696 in the fund, $57,000 more than the original estimate of $393,335.

"We're not operating on a deficit. If you look at the total revenues and the total operating and maintenance expenditures, which is what you have to have to continue operating, the revenues exceed the expenses," Ferguson said. "The (increase in) capital outlays throws us into a deficit."

Total revenues for this year, under the revised budget, are $6.555 million. Total operating and maintenance expenses in the revised budget are estimated at $6.429 million.

In the original estimate, the city budgeted $6.6 million in revenues and $6.39 million in expenses for the general fund.

Ferguson attributes the slight decrease in revenues to a decrease in the motel-hotel tax revenues last year. Offsetting that decrease, however, was an increase in sales tax revenue for the city, caused when sales tax increases passed by the Legislature last summer took effect, he said.

The large increase in capital outlays from the general fund — it rose from the original estimate of $437,750 to the revised budget figure of $802,562 — can be attributed mainly to three items that together cost about $300,000, Ferguson said.

Construction of a new animal shelter, which cost $64,902 to build, and the purchase of a street sweeper at $84,000 were unplanned expenses, he said.

Although the funds have not been spent yet, the city also did not include the cost of renovation of the Municipal Auditorium in the original budget. Renovation of the roof and the addition of an air conditioning and heating system is expected to cost $150,000.

The remaining $100,000 in capital outlay increases is composed of the purchase of several items, according to the revised budget.

Councilmen did cut expenses in some areas, Ferguson said. One example is a decision to remodel a sanitation truck for $6,000 instead of purchasing a new machine.

Profits plowed under

Hunt County farmer being overwhelmed by hard times

FLOYD (AP) — Maynard Cheek and his wife, Hilda, have farmed for 30 years on his old family farm near this Hunt County town. They have raised cotton, milo and wheat on the 1,300 acre spread owned by his family since 1872.

And Cheek says he has seen crop prices stay virtually the same during these decades, while expenses have skyrocketed.

"In 1982, I had the second best cotton crop of all my time in the business. After it was over, I sat down with the calculator, and I found that it cost me $265 an acre, and I got $256 an acre, losing $9 in the process.

"Even in this good year, I had to depend on a government subsidy to break even. My greatest cost per acre was interest on borrowed money," Cheek said.

The vicious cycle of rising costs and small increase in price for farm products has forced Cheek and others into a credit-based existence, a downward spiral that gets worse each year, he says.

"This is a credit-based life. In my mother's time, if you made your crop with a profit and no loans from the bank, you were successful. Now, virtually every farmer and rancher bases his life on credit," Cheek said.

"I only know one or two farmers who have surplus cash at harvest time now. Harvest time comes, and you pay the notes and hope you can pay them off. We do not save money for the next year anymore because we never get our loans paid off from the last year. It's a downward spiral for most of us. No bank wants the farmer anymore."

He says the increased prices consumers pay for farm goods have not trickled back to the farm to any great extent.

"Wheat is the most dramatic example ... since 1954, wheat prices are still about the same now. With wheat, five percent of each dollar spent on a loaf of bread goes to the farmer. You could give your wheat to the store, and it wouldn't make any difference in the consumer's price. A man's cotton dress shirt goes for about $40 now, and the farmer gets maybe 35 cents of that. Somebody is making a killing, not the farmer."

"We farmers keep hearing about free markets, but there is no such thing anymore. I believe 15 percent of the Department of Agriculture's budget goes to the farmer, all the rest of it goes to many other such programs such as food stamps. I do not want to specifically pick on the food stamp program. The main point is that the farmer gets so little."

He says in recent years the financial strain has begun to tell in his family's lifestyle.

"We do not have a boat or a recreational vehicle. We used to take a trip every year or so, but in the last five years it has been impossible. We rarely go out to eat," Cheek said. "If things continue like this, in 15 or 20 years, farms will be taken over by the big corporations and its anyone's guess what will happen to food prices in the super-market then."

City dwellers often see the farm as a place of quiet solitude, where the pace is slow and life is good.

But Cheek says the farmer in today's business climate is under stress ... worrying about the bills, even taking the ultimate step, suicide, in the face of pressure.

"Living with the constant stress of paying back loans is taking the joy out of farming today. I get real depressed at times, but come out of it later. I know one man, four or five years ago, who took his life over debts," Cheek said.

For more than a century, the Cheek farm has been a family tradition carried through the generations by a love of the land and of the practice of farming.

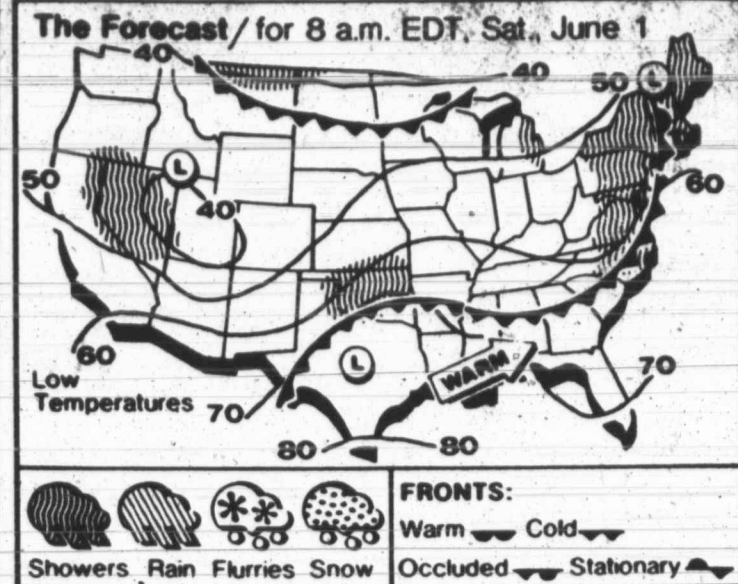

"I care for the soil. I want to leave it in a better condition than I found it. After generations of farming it gets to be a part of you," Cheek said.

Whether the Cheek legacy continues is not yet certain. There is a daughter, Jennifer, but a son died in an auto accident several years ago.

Perhaps the depth of Cheek's feelings on the farming situation might be understood by his answer as to whether or not he would have wanted his son to take his place on the farm.

"I have been a farmer my whole life."

Weather

Local

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies and hot temperatures with highs near 100. Isolated late afternoon thunderstorms are predicted with less than a 20 percent chance of rain. Tonight, skies will be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain. Lows will be in the lower 70s with southerly winds blowing 10 to 15 miles per hour. By Saturday, skies will be sunny and temperatures cooler with highs in the mid 90s. Southerly winds will be blowing 10 to 15 miles per hour.

State

A low-pressure system pumped Pacific moisture into the western half of Texas today, producing a veil of high clouds, but temperatures were expected to be hot with a chance of thunderstorms elsewhere through the weekend.

Meanwhile, a high-pressure area aloft continued to be the primary weather feature across the state, producing clear skies over North and South Central Texas and low-level clouds from coastal sections into southern and southeastern sections.

Low temperatures ranged from the mid 70s to lower 80s statewide. Extremes were 82 degrees at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport and 69 degrees at El Paso.

Winds were southerly at 5 to 10 mph across most of Texas, and northwest to west in the High Plains and the Panhandle.

Other readings at 5 a.m. were 74 at San Antonio, Stephenville and San Angelo; 76 at Waco and Wichita Falls; 71 at Amarillo and Lubbock; 75 at Midland and Abilene; 73 at Austin; and 78 at Brownsville.

Highs were expected to reach 102 degrees in North Texas, with partly cloudy skies through Saturday.

It should be partly cloudy to cloudy through Saturday in South Texas with isolated afternoon and evening thunderstorms in the Hill Country. Highs were expected in the 90s to near 100 degrees, with lows in the 70s.

Forecast

WEST TEXAS — Sunny days, partly cloudy tonight with isolated to widely scattered late afternoon and evening showers or thunderstorms through Saturday. Lows tonight 60s Panhandle and west of the mountains to upper 70s south. Highs Saturday near 104 valleys of southwest to mid 80s Panhandle.

Firefighters douse grassfires, gasoline spill

Firemen Thursday doused two grass fires, washed down a fuel spill and investigated an already extinguished fire in a caboose on a Missouri-Pacific Railroad train.

According to fire department reports, firefighters arrived at 8:59 p.m. at the caboose, located northeast of Presidio, to find the blaze already out.

Damage to the caboose was estimated at $75. Firefighters called Arson Investigator Burr Lea Settles to probe the cause of the fire.

• Firefighters extinguished a grass fire at 1204 College with three gallons of water Thursday evening, according to reports.

• Firefighters also extinguished a small grass fire in a vacant lot at 10th and Johnson.

• Three firefighters also washed down a fuel spill at 12:45 p.m. Thursday at the 7-Eleven store at 801 Gregg. They used 100 gallons to wash the fuel which spilled from an 18-wheeler tanker truck.

Four assaults reported to PD

Four assaults were reported to police Thursday, according to reports.

• A male juvenile was assaulted at 10 p.m. Thursday in the Montgomery Wards parking lot at Highland Mall. According to the police report, he was treated at Malone-Hogan Hospital by Dr. Harvey Dubiner for lacerations to the bridge of his nose, laceration to his right eye and an injury to his rear duct.

• Charles Lee White of the Sandia Gale Apartments told police that someone struck him in the face at 10:30 p.m. Thursday. He was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Brian Caplan for facial cuts, a bloody nose and bruises.

• Evelyn Hilton of 608 Lancaster told police that a man struck her with his hands and fists and scratched her with his fingernails at 3 a.m. today at 509 Donley.

According to the police report, she suffered numerous minor lacerations on her left wrist and forearm.

• Nancy Throckmorton of 1000 W. Fourth told police someone assaulted her at 10:30 a.m. Thursday. According to the report, she was treated at the Big Spring-Howard County Health Unit for a bruised eye and cuts on her face and nose.

• Mary Stuteville of 904 E. 14th told police that vandals damaged the wooden door to her backyard garage between Saturday and 10:45 a.m. Thursday. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

• Armando Lopez of 706 W. Sixth told police burglars broke into his house between 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. Thursday. Taken were: a 12-inch color television, valued at $300; a stereo receiver, valued at $50; and an 18-inch speaker, valued at $25.

• Nita Taylor of 2602 Barksdale told police someone broke a window at 2500 Dow between 2:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. Thursday, causing an estimated $50 in damages.

• Jimmy Lettler of 1209 Douglas told police a man he knows threatened him in a telephone call at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

• Fern Smith told police someone she knows has been making harassing phone calls to her between 2 a.m. May 9 and 9 a.m. Thursday.

The Vietnamese-born Mai praised the American education system. "America made it possible for us to have an education," he said.

Speaker Dr. Bob Riley, president of the Howard County Junior College District, quoted syndicated radio disc jockey Kasey Kasem with, "Keep your feet on the ground and reach for the stars."

Riley told the graduates to "dream big. We eventually become what we think about most of the time."

He cautioned the graduates not to become "non-winners. These people never really lose or win. They go through the motions of life. They are not committed to what they are doing."

Riley had tips for finding a career. "Find out the things you enjoy doing. Try to make a living at it."

Wendy's applies for permit

A San Angelo developer has applied for a building permit for a Wendy's Hamburgers fast food restaurant at 208 Gregg.

According to the permit application by Larry Lumpkin and Associates of San Angelo, the restaurant will have 2,844 square feet and a brick veneer. The building also will have a built-up roof, interior paneling and a suspended ceiling.

Construction costs are estimated at $180,000, the permit states. The franchise will be operated by Westwind Operations of San Angelo.

Lumpkin and Associates also have filed a permit for the construction of a Cousin's convenience store in the 400 block of Gregg. The company has already cleared both lots of vacant buildings.

Frustrated babies doing OK

ORANGE, Calif. — Three of the 10-day-old Frustrated babies continued to improve, while the condition of the other two surviving septuplets remained stable but unchanged, hospital officials said.

Delivered by Caesarean section May 21, all five babies have remained in critical condition on respirators, suffering from hyaline membrane disease — an inability to produce a fluid that keeps the lungs from collapsing.

The three infants who have been steadily improving are Patricia Ann, Stephen Earl and Richard Charles, spokeswoman Laura Johnson of Childrens Hospital of Orange County said Thursday.

The two others are James Martin, the most critical, and Bonnie Marie.

Gays sue top magazines

LOS ANGELES — Sponsors of an annual gay pride parade in the newly incorporated city of West Hollywood have sued Time, Newsweek and other magazines, charging discrimination because advertisements for this year's event were rejected.

The city, which has a large homosexual population, alleges in the suit that the publishers of Newsweek, Time, Sports Illustrated and U.S. News and World Report conspired to reject an advertisement for the June 23 Gay Pride festival and parade in West Hollywood.

The suit was filed this week in Los Angeles County Superior Court.

Meanwhile, another gay parade sponsor filed a lawsuit Thursday against the Long Beach City Council, accusing officials of violating civil rights for asking $18,000 in fees for a June 16 parade.

FBI nab survivalist head

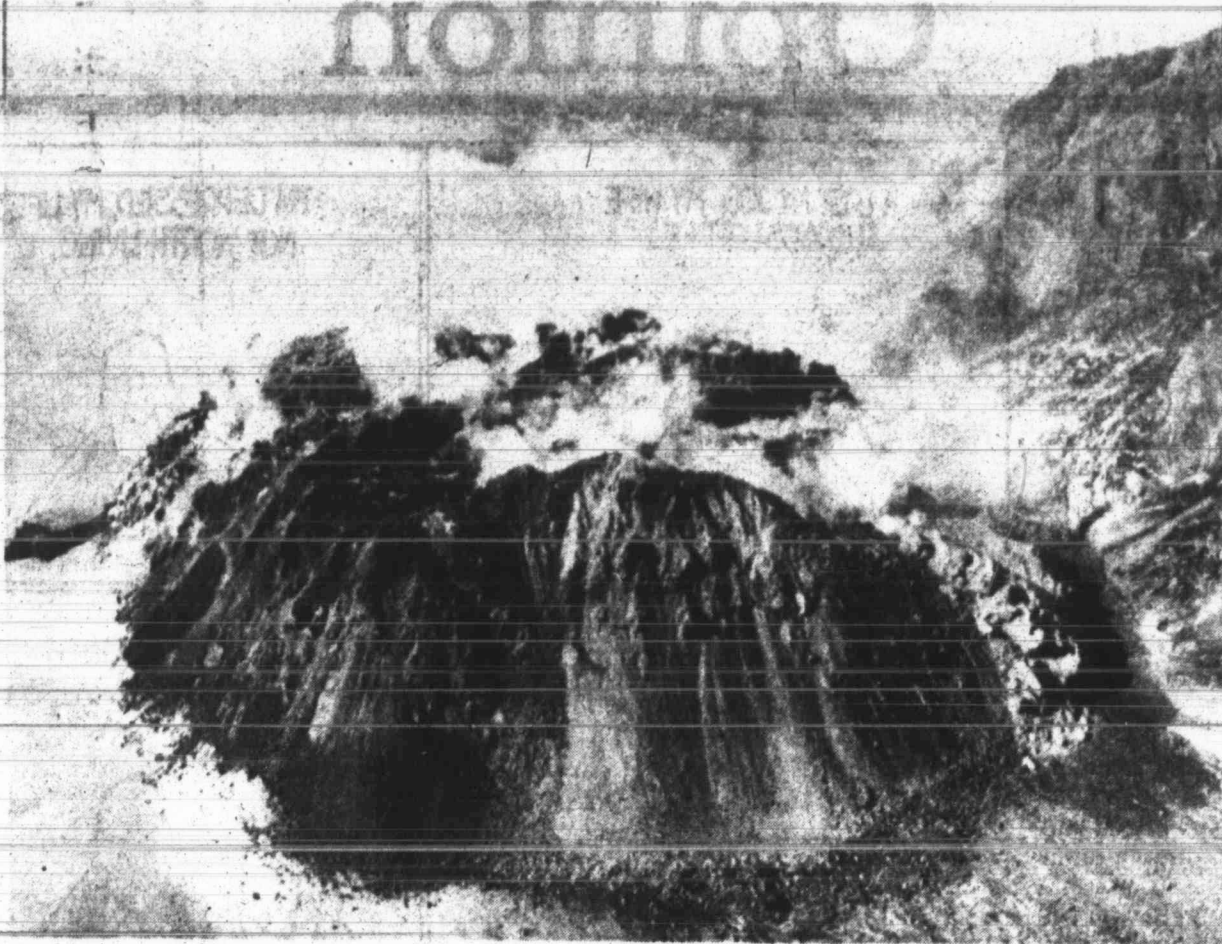

FORT SMITH, Ark. — The acting leader of a survivalist group known as the Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord was arrested today on weapons charges at the group's compound, officials said.

More arrests were expected, the FBI said.

Kerry Noble, a CSA elder, was arrested without incident after being indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury in Fort Smith, according to Bill Buford, a federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent in Little Rock.

Noble was being transferred to Fort Smith for a court appearance later today.

U.S. Attorney Asa Hutchinson said Noble was indicted on charges of illegal possession of weapons and interstate transportation of stolen property. Jack Knox of the FBI in Fayetteville said Noble was charged in a 20-count indictment with weapons violations.

The lava dome inside the crater of Mount St. Helens continues to grow Thursday as the eruption predicted for the Washington volcano got underway. The volcano last erupted Sept. 10, 1984.

Silence disrupted

Quake begins rumble at Mount St. Helens

VANCOUVER Wash. (AP) — Earthquakes beneath Mount St. Helens' towering lava dome increased in intensity but dropped in number as the quake began a gentle eruption, scientists said.

A new flow of molten rock on the lava dome's southeastern face, a sign that the eruption had begun, was spotted Thursday by a helicopter crew.

Earthquakes rumbling inside the lava dome increased in intensity Thursday, although they were occurring less frequently than 24 hours before, said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Thom Corcoran.

The largest quakes approached 3 on the open-ended Richter scale of ground motion, Corcoran said.

The eruption was first predicted a week and a half ago, but scientists had been unable to confirm the presence of lava because clouds had shrouded the 8,364-foot peak since Monday.

There was no sign of any explosions, but Steve Brantley of the U.S. Geological Survey said possible blasts within the crater have not been ruled out.

The "dome-building" eruption is the first for the southwest Washington volcano since a quiet oozing of lava on Sept. 10, 1984. The eight-month slumber was the longest since the mountain stirred to life five years ago, ending a 123-year dormant period.

On May 18, 1980, the mountain blasted 1,300 feet off its peak, devastated 230 square miles of land to the north and northwest and left 57 people dead or missing. The eruption dumped ash over much of the Pacific Northwest and lofted an ash cloud around the globe.

Brantley cautioned that the pattern of the mountain's current activity is different from previous dome-building eruptions, and scientists weren't predicting what would happen next.

Scientists had not pinpointed the start of the eruption, although Brantley said the new lobe "definitely was not there on Monday," the last time clouds parted and allowed crews a look inside the crater.

On May 20, scientists said an eruption could be expected within two weeks, and last Saturday they issued an alert that an eruption was imminent. They warned that heat from an eruption could melt snow in the crater and threaten a mudflow in the upper Toutle River Valley, but Brantley said no signs of that were spotted.

Belgium bars British

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The government today barred British soccer teams from playing in Belgium "until further notice," and the English soccer association announced it was withdrawing all its teams from European play.

The decisions followed a soccer riot here Wednesday, in which 38 people were killed.

The Belgian government spokesman Xavier Deswaef said its ban covered all English, Scottish, Welsh and Northern Ireland teams, professional or amateur, and stressed it applied only to soccer.

The English announcement made clear that only English teams were being withdrawn from play next season, and that the clubs from Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland were not being pulled out. Nor was the English national team.

The Belgian decision was announced after a regular Cabinet meeting at which ministers discussed the fatal Heysel stadium riot before a European Cup final between England's Liverpool and Italy's Juventus clubs.

Bangladesh storm victims

DHAKA, Bangladesh — At least 40 people have died of cholera during the last two days on the coastal islands of southern Bangladesh where a vicious storm killed an estimated 10,000 people, newspapers said today.

A government spokesman, Col. Abunazeem Amin Ahmed, said most of the those who perished in the cyclone were youngsters. "The majority are children because children are the most susceptible in a storm," he said at a briefing.

In Rome, the World Food Program, a relief program created by the United Nations, authorized spending $111.4 million to control flooding and increase food production in Bangladesh.

The money will pay for workers to dig canals, build dikes and construct roads in low-lying areas that suffer from recurring floods.

The Bengal-language newspaper Sangbad said at least 25 people died of cholera in Sonagazi, a city about 150 miles south of the capital hit hard by Saturday's storm.

Arms talks in full swing

GENEVA, Switzerland — U.S. and Soviet negotiators, moving quickly into detailed discussions in the second round of superpower arms talks, met for nearly three hours today in talks on strategic nuclear weapons.

The negotiating teams headed by John G. Tower and Victor P. Karpov, who also heads the overall Soviet delegation, met at the Soviet mission just one day after the round opened with a plenary session.

Shiite Moslems declare cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslems declared a cease-fire today in their war against Palestinian guerrillas, but started blasting the Chatilla refugee camp with artillery three hours later. A Palestinian spokesman said the neighboring Sabra camp had fallen.

The Palestinian spokesman said, "Sabra has fallen after heroic battles by our men" against Amal militiamen and Shiite soldiers of the Lebanese army's 6th Brigade.

Of the situation at Chatilla, he said: "We've been under fire since 2 p.m. The cease-fire has collapsed."

Amal, the Shiite militia that has led the 12-day-old assault on the camps, had said earlier its fighters would abide by the cease-fire at

Sabra, Chatilla and the Bourj el-Barajneh camp "even if it is one-sided."

It said its militiamen captured a 20-man Palestinian unit holding out in Sabra before dawn and was mopping up "small pockets of scattered resistance."

The truce announcement coincided with reports that President Hafez Assad of Syria had agreed to send his army back to Beirut to halt the bloody camp battles and snuff out Lebanon's 10-year Christian-Moslem civil war as well.

President Amin Gemayel returned to Beirut today after two days of talks with Assad.

Police said eight people were killed and 62 wounded in overnight fighting that preceded Amal's cease-fire declaration. This raised the known casualty toll to 427 killed and 1,956 injured since the camps war erupted May 19.

The Shiites attacked the Beirut refugee camps in a bid to prevent them from again becoming a stronghold of Palestinian guerillas. Hundreds of Palestinian guerrillas are reported to have filtered back into the camps since they were driven out by the 1982 Israel invasion.

Gemayel did not say whether the Syrians, ousted from Beirut by the Israelis in 1982, would return.

Radio Marti hitting Cuba where it hurts

Radio Marti, the Reagan administration's effort to counteract some of the propaganda Cubans hear from their own government, finally went on the air and promptly drove Fidel Castro right up the wall. That tells us that Castro understands more about Radio Marti than do some of its detractors in this country.

The critics on this side of the Florida Straits tend to regard Radio Marti as a pointless exercise in propaganda and, more importantly, an impediment to improving relations with the Castro government. They may have a point on the latter count. But then, the Reagan administration rightly doubts whether anything more than a bogus, or at best superficial, detente with the Castro regime is possible.

After all, Mr. Castro remains a convinced Marxist-Leninist allied with the Soviet Union and committed to the violent export of revolution from Ethiopia and Angola to Nicaragua and El Salvador. Where in that is there any real room for common ground with the United States?

Then too, a careful reading of Cuban diplomacy throughout Mr. Reagan's first term suggests that Castro has been playing a double game. Publicly, he blames the United States for the continuing enmity between Washington and Havana and hints that he wants better relations. Privately, he has spurned several very deliberate invitations to meet the United States halfway in reducing tensions in the Caribbean and Central America.

So, hopes for a real detente between Washington and Havana look ill-founded at best. That leaves the United States with little to lose by attacking the Castro dictatorship at one of its most vulnerable spots — the daily failure to tell the Cuban people the truth.

Israeli chaos spells economic disaster

The Israeli economy appears at first glance to be one of those perpetual motion machines that defies the laws of nature. We know from history that no system of production and exchange can operate satisfactorily in the chaos created by extremely high inflation.

Israel has that. Last week, the government reported that inflation in April reached an annual rate of 470 percent, up from recent months, though still below the 1,000 percent rate achieved at the peak. Yet the economy functions passably well.

You might expect to see Israelis going to the grocery pushing wheelbarrows full of currency, as Weimar Germany did. The reason they don't is that the economy has adapted itself, like some bizarre product of biological evolution, to this unnatural environment.

There are two basic means by which the Israelis mitigate the uncertainty created by chronic high inflation. The first is the indexation of almost all payments — wages, interest, government benefits — to the price level. Israelis are thus automatically insured against the loss of earning power that would otherwise occur.

The second means is use of the U.S. dollar to denominate prices. Though the government has tried to discourage the practice, the Israelis tend to price goods and services in terms of dollars rather than shekels, though they pay in the latter.

The use of a relatively stable currency as a staple of value minimizes the information problem created by constantly changing prices. Dollars also serve another purpose here — to encourage savings. Since they hold their value so well, compared to shekels, dollars are hoarded. So eager are Israelis to acquire them that a visitor can almost get by without ever making a purchase in shekels.

Israelis also speculate in dollars: Americans are frequently approached by locals offering to exchange shekels for dollars at 20 percent or 30 percent above the official rate.

Given all this, it isn't surprising that one plausible proposal for the economy is to simply do away with the Israeli currency and use dollars instead. Baffling as it appears, this phenomenal motion machine is plainly running down. After the growth of the 1960s, the Israeli standard of living hasn't risen at all since 1980.

The virulent inflation rate is as much a symptom as a cause of economic problems. Akiva Offenbacher, a senior economist at the Bank of Israel, (counterpart of the Federal Reserve), blames it on the country's insistence on consuming more than it produces, with the difference paid for out of foreign aid and government borrowing. Per capita, Israel has the highest foreign debt in the world. Interest payments account for roughly a third of the entire government budget.

Israel's persistent balance of payments deficits feed inflation by continually driving down the value of the shekel. Rather than allowing exchange rate to reflect supply and demand, the government fixes them, which leads to periodic devaluation. It tried to deal with the trade deficit through high tariffs on imported goods. In the case of luxury items, like cars and stereo equipment, these duties roughly triple the retail pricing.

American technicians zapped by African electric company

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — Several months ago, 38 Americans nuclear-reactor technicians packed up their families and went to work in South Africa, only to discover that they had broken the law by failing to get U.S. permission to make the move.

Two have reportedly returned to this country and the rest are stuck in a limbo of frustration and despair, legally unable to work at their new, high-paying jobs.

The nuclear experts were recruited by the South African Electricity Supply Commission to work at power stations in South Africa's expanding nuclear-energy program.

All the Americans insist that the South African recruiters never told them they would need specific authorization from the U.S. Energy Department to take the jobs, because South Africa is one of the countries that have refused to sign the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

In a closed meeting with Energy Department officials, the South Africans told somewhat conflicting stories. They said the Americans had indeed been told that they needed permission to accept the jobs. But they also said the jobs the Americans were doing were outside the law requiring authorization, so none was needed.

In March, the South Africans informed the Energy Department that the Americans had stopped working illegally. As a result, the South Africans said the Americans were given "a deadline to either start back to work or quit and leave," according to the minutes of the Energy Department meeting obtained by our associate Vicki Warren.

The Americans had two possible ways out of their predicament. One was to work at less sensitive jobs that do not require Energy Department permission. But the South Africans told U.S. officials that "we can't absorb all the Americans" into such jobs.

The other option was to get Energy Department approval after the fact, and this is what the Americans have tried to do with help from some members of Congress. But there is much opposition as assistance on Capitol Hill.

In fact, it was an investigation by Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., which discovered that the men were working in South Africa illegally. Markey has asked that the FBI find out who is lying: the Americans or their South African recruiters. Until that determination is made, Markey doesn't want the work permits issued.

An Energy Department "fact-finding" team recently returned from South Africa, but Energy Secretary John Herrington hasn't decided yet whether to grant the American technicians permission to work there. He did tell Markey privately that he does not intend to bring the FBI into the case.

Meanwhile, the Americans families are growing more desperate as the months go by. In a letter to the White House, one technician's wife told how she and her husband have agonized over the job offer, and finally decided to make the move from their comfortable farm home in Tennessee. They did so, she said, because of the financial rewards and because they thought living in a foreign country would be a valuable experience for their three young children.

"One month ago DOE notified my husband and other Americans they were possibly working illegally," she wrote. "This came as a surprise to us, and we were quite disturbed that we had not been previously notified of the law."

That, at least, is being belatedly remedied. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission recently sent power companies instructions to tell their employees that when recruiters come around from South Africa or seven other countries that haven't signed the non-proliferation treaty, recruits will need the government's permission to sign up.

A MOVING STORY: The General Accounting Office has asked the Justice Department to sue the recently departed chairman of the National Credit Union Administration, Edgar T. Callahan, to recover $21,250.37 in moving expenses he collected from the agency in 1981. Although the comptroller general has ruled twice that the credit union agency had no authority to pay the money, Callahan has refused to repay the government.

Callahan's lawyer and former general counsel of the agency, Wendell A. Sebastian, with whom he now operates a financial consulting firm in the Washington area, said the controversy is merely "a dispute between lawyers." A legal officer for the credit union agency agreed.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Around The Rim Backing a winner

Boston — a city with a haughty pride and unpredictable nature that breaks my heart.

And now it all comes back as the National Basketball Championship Series features the Boston Celtics against the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Celtics are gunning for an accomplishment that hasn't been equaled since they last did it in 1969. Win back-to-back NBA titles.

In 1969, I was rooting hard for the Los Angeles Lakers. It broke my heart in the seventh game when John Havlicek of Boston went on a torrid shooting spree as the underdog Celtics upset the Lakers to claim the crown.

I rooted for the baseball Red Sox in the 1975 World Series. They lost. I rooted for the Red Sox against the New York Yankees in the 1978 special playoff game that would determine the American League Eastern Division Champion. The Red Sox lost.

I rooted for Houston's Cougars to upset Doug Flutie's Boston College Eagle football team in this year's Cotton Bowl. Houston lost. Broke my heart.

In 1978, I met a beautiful woman from Boston who was thinking of moving to New York.

"Ask her out," a friend suggested to me. He knew my shyness would defeat such a notion. It did. I got tongue-tied when I spoke to her. I lost.

Remember the impossible dream team in 1967? The Boston Red Sox featuring Gentleman Jim Lomborg and Carl Yastrzemski. Boy, did I want them to win the World Series that year against St. Louis Cardinals. They lost it in the seventh game.

My older brother suggested to me in the fall of 1977 that I should pursue a romantic interest that had developed that summer. She was from Boston.

Yes — maybe I should. My letters were never answered. Phone calls were never returned. It was a lost situation.

The times have changed now. I'm a Celtics fan. I dislike the Red Sox. Doug Flutie is my idol. I've forgotten those women.

Go. Go. Go. Larry Bird and you other Celtics. You better not lose.

Lawmakers question fairness of tax reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tax-writers in the House of Representatives on Thursday embraced President Reagan's goal of a fairer, simpler income tax. But they peppered Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III with enough "but's" and "however's" to raise questions about what type of plan will ever pass.

"It is the American people who want, and who deserve, a new tax structure," Baker told the House Ways and Means Committee as his boss was delivering the same message to audiences in Virginia and Wisconsin. "They want simplicity and fairness — and they want it now."

Members of the committee, who will write the House version of the plan that Reagan outlined on Tuesday, praised the bulk of the president's proposals. But they questioned its treatment of married couples, the insurance industry, oil and natural gas, consumer interest, well-to-do tax dodgers and the deduction for state and local taxes.

Some raised questions about whether the plan continues what they perceive as the Reagan administration's unfairness to lower-income Americans.

Rep. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., said he paid $79,975 in tax last year but if Reagan's plan had been in effect, his tax bill would have dropped by $14,133. "It looks unfair ... with respect to my fellow citizens,"

'It is the American people who want, and who deserve, a new tax structure. They want simplicity and fairness — and they want it now.'

Treasury Secretary James Baker III

Jacobs said.

Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, complained that Reagan's bill would deliver far less simplification of the tax system than had been promised. In some cases, it would be more complex, he added — noting, for example, that a person who now is able to deduct union dues would only be allowed to deduct dues and other miscellaneous expenses that together exceed 1 percent of income.

Baker defended the plan to repeal the deduction allowed individuals for state and local taxes paid — an issue that could determine whether a major tax overhaul will be passed this year or next.

The administration views the deduction as a subsidy of a few high-tax states, Baker told Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., and is not concerned that the change — while allowing corporations to continue their deduction — would prompt many small businesses to convert to corporations.

The tone of the hearing was set by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the panel. Reagan's plan is monumental compared to present law, he said, and generally gets good marks for fairness, simplicity and halting abuses. Rostenkowski said the bill the committee eventually approves must:

—Reduce the maximum tax rates on individuals and businesses — but he set no targets. Reagan would cut the top rate on individuals from 50 percent to 35 percent, and on corporations from 46 percent to 33 percent.

—Reduce or eliminate deductions. Reagan's plan would do that.

—Not shift the tax burden from one income class to another. "No income group, particularly those in the middle and lower brackets, should be faced with higher taxes," Rostenkowski said.

—Put all businesses on essentially the same tax footing.

Baker said the administration is flexible, within reason. "We will work with the committee — we will look at anything," he promised.

But he rejected a few ideas advanced by committee members, including additional tax increases on the oil industry, retroactive tax increases on huge profitable corporations that paid nothing over the past few years, and re-imposing tax withholding on interest and dividends.

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., whose own plan of tax overhaul has broad support in the Democratic party, accused Reagan of trying to impose a bigger burden on the middle class. He said the president backed away from fairer provisions in the tax plan advanced by his own Treasury Department last November.

Baker said the administration would not favor Gephardt's idea of "closing more loopholes" and using the money to buy more tax cuts for middle-income Americans. Under the president's plan, the secretary said, "there is an overwhelming number of winners in every class — almost everybody wins."

People with incomes between $20,000 and $50,000 would get a 7.2 percent tax cut under Reagan's plan, while those making $50,000 or more would get 5.8 percent, Baker said. However, those statistics are based on what the Treasury calls "economic income" — a measure that counts far more items than most taxpayers would consider as income. That term includes welfare benefits, food stamps, increases in the value of property, employer-paid fringe benefits — even the "rental" value a person is assumed to receive for living in his own home.

The Treasury has not made public any statistics comparing the president's plan with current law on a more traditional basis, such as adjusted gross income.

Liquor petition signup tops 500

Citizens for a Choice will man booth at Heart of the City

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Proponents of an election to allow liquor by the drink sales in Justice of the Peace Precinct 1 say they have the support, but not the signatures, for the election.

To speed up the signature collection process, Citizens for a Choice will man a booth from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the Heart of the City Festival.

"We need people to remember to put their voter registration certificates in their wallets when they come to the festival," said group spokesman Micheal Russell.

In the second petition drive for the election, the newly formed Citizens for a Choice have collected 500 signatures; they need 2,421, according to spokesman Micheal Russell.

The deadline for the petition is June 17.

People can sign the petition at Classic Auto Sales at the intersection of Birdwell Lane and FM 700, Russell said. But one reason for the slow collection is the large percentage of signatures needed on the petition, Russell said.

"We need 25 percent of the registered voters in JP Precinct 1 (to sign the petition for the election)," he said. "In a normal city election, you barely get 25 percent to go and vote. It's hard to get 25 percent to go to one place and sign a petition."

Citizens for a Choice have a core of 15 to 20 volunteers, although they may have as many as 50 people working with the petition drive at any one time, Russell said.

According to Russell, the group has 75 petitions circulating in the precinct, and volunteers plan to go door-to-door in the next couple of weeks to people who signed the first petition.

"We know we have the support," Russell said. The group recently conducted a telephone poll of 1,500 people that showed 57 percent of the precinct residents favor the issue, with 11 percent undecided, he said.

"People haven't bothered to sign up. I think a lot of people believe it's a foregone conclusion because they favor it and their friends favor it. But unless they take the time to sign up, it's not going to make it on the ballot," Russell said.

PRESIDENT REAGAN waves after returning to Washington Thursday from Virginia and Wisconsin.

Reagan takes tax plan to the people

MALVERN, Pa. (AP) — President Reagan today called upon "the rest of America that exists beyond the shores of the Potomac" to defy the "Washington sophisticates and so-called tax experts" who say his tax overhaul plan will never pass Congress.

"Right now, the army of lobbyists and special interests are dug in around the Capitol building, firing every weapon in their arsenal in an attempt to shoot down our proposal for tax fairness and simplification," Reagan said in a speech prepared for delivery to employees of the Great Valley Corporate Center and their families.

The lobbyists, he said, are "allied with the Washington sophisticates and so-called tax experts who tell us that tax simplification will never pass, that it challenges too many of those special interests and takes away the special privileges of a powerful few who like the present tax code just fine."

"But I think the sophisticates, the lobbyists and the experts have forgotten one thing — they've forgotten about you," the president said. "They've forgotten about the rest of America that exists beyond the shores of the Potomac. So I think it's about time we reminded them."

"Let's make them hear what America thinks," he said.

The corporate center is a complex of high-technology and service industries occupying 32 buildings in a setting of rolling farmland southwest of Philadelphia.

Reagan said his tax plan would "totally revamp our nation's Rube Goldberg tax system and turn it into a model of efficiency and fairness that works for the new age of silicon chips ... and all the other marvels of this new technological era."

"It will mean that American technology can shoot ahead, and it will help America outproduce and out-compete anybody anywhere in the world," he said, also telling his audience that "America is truly on a high-tech highway, rolling full-speed ahead — and there ain't no stopping us now. ... We're going to make sure that American technology wins the race to the 21st century."

Describing the present tax code as "a maze of bureaucratic rules and regulations," he said that "nearly half of all Americans threw up their hands in dismay and went to get professional help on their taxes this year. Well, paying someone to figure out how much you owe the federal government in taxes just adds insult to injury. Don't you think America has had enough?"

"We're going to break apart the shackles and liberate America from tax bondage," Reagan said.

Dave Runkel, a spokesman for Pennsylvania's Republican Gov. Richard Thornburgh, said Reagan wanted to visit Pennsylvania because of his interest in advanced technology and because the state has an easily understood tax system with simple forms, a goal of the president's plan.

On Thursday, in 15-minute speeches in Williamsburg, Va., and Oshkosh, Wis., Reagan sounded the note of an outsider impatient with the Washington establishment.

Measles on steady increase

ATLANTA (AP) — Despite a 69 percent increase in U.S. measles cases last year, federal health researchers say elimination of the once-common childhood disease is still possible if young people will get their vaccinations.

The national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday that 2,534 cases of measles were reported in the United States last year, compared with 1,497 in 1983.

It has now been more than six years since then-Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano announced an initiative designed to wipe out the disease in the United States by 1982.

The 1984 numbers are far below those of the pre-vaccination days of the 1950s and early '60s, when more than 525,000 measles cases were reported each year. "Still, it's not the best we'd like to accomplish," said Don Stenhouse, a CDC measles specialist.

"We don't feel the recommended objectives have gone awry," Stenhouse said Thursday. "We just need to concentrate on the individuals who have not received the vaccine."

"We feel we certainly can eliminate indigenous measles within the next year or so."

A total of 874 cases, or 34 percent, last year were classified as preventable — occurring in someone between 16 months and 29 years old and without measles immunity or a valid reason not to be immunized.

CDC researchers say children under 16 months are too young to be vaccinated effectively, people born before 1956 are assumed to have natural immunity and are not targeted for vaccination, and some people have religious or health reasons why they should not be vaccinated.

Of the cases reported last year, 679, or 27 percent, occurred in children 10-14 years old. Another 650 cases, or 26 percent, were in Americans 15-19.

"School-aged children still comprise the majority of preventable cases," the CDC said. "Further efforts need to be directed at ensuring that all children covered by state school immunization laws are adequately immunized."

The CDC said 992 cases occurred in people who were believed to be adequately vaccinated. That, Stenhouse said, is to be expected; the vaccine is about 90 percent effective.

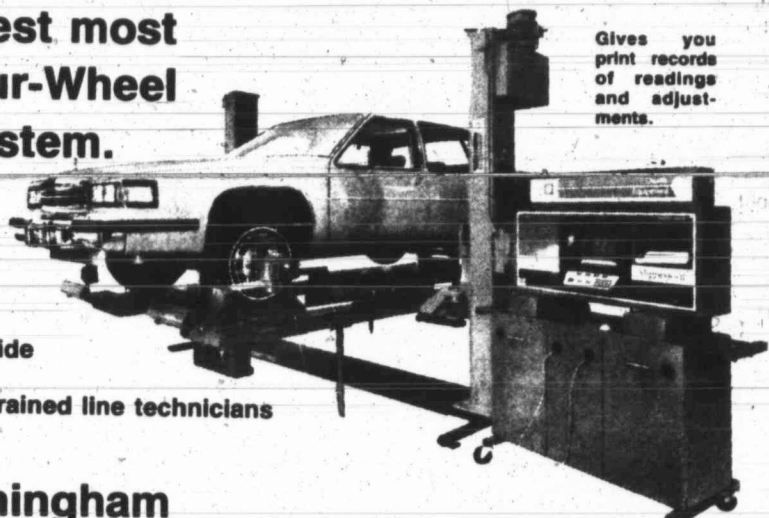

If the measles-age population is fully vaccinated, the few people not protected by the vaccine will not be exposed to the disease, he said.

"We have run into more problems now because of group exposures in school settings," particularly in colleges, Stenhouse said.

"As students (more widely vaccinated) come out of the current elementary schools, and go on to high school and college, obviously that will improve," he said. "But we hope to improve it more rapidly."

Brother Philip Odette, archivist for St. Edward's University, stands amongst a portion of the recorded history of the university.

Keeping history

Brother Philip Odette stays busy keeping track of Austin university

AUSTIN (AP) — Brother Philip Odette has spent 27 years keeping track of St. Edward's University.

His files, stacked floor to ceiling on the second floor of the St. Edward's library, can tell about everything from the fire that burned the main building in 1903 to the most recent baby shower for a St. Edward's employee.

They can tell of the volcanoes that formed the campus landscape 80 million years ago, the tornado that hit the campus 63 years ago, or the baccalaureate Mass Friday night at St. Ignatius Church.

Brother Philip has had the job of gathering and organizing the school's historical documents since his appointment as the university archivist in 1958.

But one of the most important documents in the archives is of his own making — a chronicle of events during the past 27 years, a day-by-day account of life on and around the South Austin campus.

The chronicle, neatly typed and kept in binders, reads like almost any diary — except that it is the diary of an institution. "As the chronicler, I keep a record of basically everything that happens," said Brother Philip, a quiet and friendly man who is a member of the Congregation of Holy Cross, which established the university in 1885 and still plays an important role on the campus.

"I have full authority for deciding what goes in it," he said.

"The only things I wouldn't put in would be anything that would be damaging to someone or rumors, things I couldn't back up with facts."

One event Brother Philip is sure to include in the entry this year is the centennial year commencement, with its 450 new graduates, the commencement speech by Cathy Weber, assistant professor, and the honorary degrees conferred on U.S. Rep. Jake Pickle and Brother Elmo Bransby, president of St. Edward's during the mid-1950s.

But no one can predict what else he will put down, because the chronicle goes far beyond recording the usual ceremonies and other official events of academic life.

The entry for July 1, 1959, for example, includes a brief essay on the balance of nature as reflected that summer in the varying populations of cotton rats and snakes near St. Edward's.

Ten days later, Brother Philip paused to take note of the long-awaited arrival on campus of the new university Chevrolet.

Jobless man gets citation for returning stolen money

MARSHALL (AP) — A jobless man with a wife and baby was cited by police for good citizenship for turning over $950 he found while picking up cans by the roadside.

"I know the money could have come in handy," said Donald Yeager, 19. "But it wasn't ours and we couldn't keep it. My father always told me never to take anything that didn't belong to me."

Yeager supports himself, his unemployed 19-year-old wife and their 3-month-old daughter by selling cans to recycling centers. He found the $950, which had been stolen from a local lumber company, in a discarded cash register drawer lying by a road while he was on a can-hunting expedition May 23.

"I didn't touch it. I jumped back on my bike and headed back to the house and called police," Yeager said.

Marshall Police Chief Chuck Williams presented Yeager with a citation for good citizenship Wednesday.

Pyle Lumber Co., which lost the money in a May 21 robbery, gave Yeager a $100 reward.

Spymasters

Former Navy officer heads list of persons caught selling secrets

By The Associated Press
The arrest of former Navy communications specialist John Anthony Walker Jr., his son and his brother are the latest in a recent spate of espionage cases to result in arrests in the United States. Among the recent cases:

- John Anthony Walker Jr., 47, retired Navy communications specialist; his son, Michael Walker, 22, seaman assigned to aircraft carrier Nimitz; Arthur James Walker, 50, John Walker's brother and a former Navy officer.
- Thomas Patrick Cavanagh, 40, sentenced to life in prison May 13, 1985, two months after confessing that he had tried to sell secret plans for the Stealth bomber to Soviet agents. The former Northrop Corp. employee, who unwittingly sold the material to FBI agents, said he was trying to clear up debts.

- Karl F. Koecher, 50, who worked for the Central Intelligence Agency from 1973 to 1977, indicted in December 1984 on charges that he and his wife, Hana, conspired to spy for their native Czechoslovakia. Mrs. Koecher was not charged and the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in February that she could not be compelled to testify against her husband.

- Richard W. Miller, an FBI agent, was arrested Oct. 3, 1984, in Los Angeles on charges of supplying data to a Soviet emigre who was charged with working for the KGB, the Soviet intelligence agency.

- Svetlana Ogorodnikov, 37, and her estranged husband, Nikolay Ogorodnikov, 51, were arrested Oct. 3 and are currently on trial on espionage charges. They are accused of working for the KGB to obtain secrets from Richard Miller.

Arthur James Walker is the latest person to be arrested by U.S. agents for spying. He is a retired Lt. Commander in the Navy.

CNN network goes Russian

ATLANTA (AP) — Turner Broadcasting System, which owns the 24-hour Cable News Network, says CNN will be able to exchange news and journalists with the Soviet Union under a new agreement.

"CNN becomes the first American news organization to be affiliated directly with television," the Eastern bloc consortium of television systems, the Atlanta-based broadcasting system announced Wednesday.

TBS Chairman Ted Turner signed the two-year agreement in Moscow this week with Sergei Lapin, chairman of the USSR State Committee for Television and Radio. The agreement calls for the two parties to act "in the spirit of friendship and goodwill to further international television cooperation."

Soviet diplomat disappears in Athens

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A senior Soviet diplomat who was due to fly home this week has disappeared in Athens and is believed to have sought asylum at a Western embassy, a government spokesman and police sources said Thursday.

Government spokesman Michalis Stathopoulos said Sergei Bokhane, 50, a first secretary at the Soviet Embassy, was last seen Saturday. He was posted to Athens in September 1982.

The police sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Bokhane drove away from his apartment near the embassy in the Psychiko suburb after telling his wife he would be back soon.

They said his wife reported him missing on Monday. The family was to have flown to Moscow this week on a private visit.

Bob Bobbitt appointed to Federal Council on Aging

AUSTIN — U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright recently announced the appointment of O.P. (Bob) Bobbitt of Austin to the Federal Council on Aging.

Wright said the formal appointment was made by House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill on Wright's strong personal recommendation.

"Bob Bobbitt is precisely the type of person we need on this important council," Wright said. "He comes with superb credentials — including the enthusiastic endorsement of my friend Bob Gibbons of Fort Worth, chairman of the Texas Board on Aging."

Bobbitt is executive director of the Texas Department on Aging, whose work is directed by Gibbons' board.

Wright said the major functions of the 15-member Federal Council on Aging are to review and evaluate Federal policies regarding older Americans and make recommendations to the President, Congress and the Administration on Aging.

Hershey honored at meeting, Cavnar installed as president

Mrs. Lester Hershey was honored with a gift during the Rosebud Garden Club meeting and luncheon at the Rock House Restaurant Tuesday.

Hershey has served as club president for the past year. Her family is moving to Jackson, Miss. Mrs. Gordon Cavnar was installed as the new president by Mrs. Clyde Thomas.

Cavnar scheduled volunteers to take turns during the summer watering the plants the members planted at Comanche Trail Park.

Members brought cookies to donate to the Big Spring State Hospital. The club adjourned for the summer.

Dear Abby

Fraud victim finds pin pal behind bars

DEAR ABBY: I started to correspond with a gentleman whose name I found in a magazine. He had advertised for a mature woman to be a pen pal.

I will not go into detail because I feel foolish and I don't want to identify myself, but after sending this man "gifts," which he asked for in a roundabout way, and several hundred dollars as "loans," I learned that I was writing to a man in prison!

My question to you, Dear Abby, is this: Why does the law permit prisons to use names and addresses that intentionally conceal the fact that they are prisons?

I think that when a prisoner wants to correspond with a stranger, he or she should not have the protection of a phony address.

What is your opinion?

DEFRAUDED IN FLORIDA

DEAR DEFRAUDED: Same as yours. I have been aware of this for some time, and have commented on it in this space. But thus far I've been unable to learn the justification for this blatant coverup. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago, we lost our beloved pet. She had been a constant companion and friend for 13 years. I can't believe how her death has affected me. Most people have a very hard time understanding that she was as much a part of my life and family as my husband and children, and I grieve for her as I would for any family member.

I feel as though I may need some sort of counseling, but I don't know where to turn. I'm having a difficult time getting on with my life.

Can you help me, please?

GRIEF STRICKEN

DEAR GRIEF STRICKEN: The pain one feels from having lost a beloved pet should be handled in the same way one copes with a human loss — through counseling.

Ask your veterinarian to put you in touch with a therapist who specializes in animal grief. There may even be a "pet-loss support group" where you can express your grief without embarrassment or fear of being put down for "crying on" as though you had lost a child. Animal-loss counseling is relatively new, so if it's not available in your area, regular counselors are also trained to help the grief-stricken. Meanwhile, please accept my sympathy.

Shingles 'cures' must begin early

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is there any help you can give me, as I am at the end of my rope? I had herpes zoster (shingles) over five years ago, a very bad and painful case that lasted three months. I actually couldn't get out of bed. I was left with what the doctor called post-herpetic neuralgia. I have suffered all these years without any relief. I even tried acupuncture without help. The pain is under my arm, from my breast across to the back. Is there a chance of relief? — R.G.

Post-herpetic neuralgia is a dreaded complication of shingles. It is pain that remains long after the shingles blisters have disappeared, and in a few unfortunate patients that pain can linger for many years. About half get rid of their pain in two months and 25 percent have pain for a year or longer. Whenever I discuss this topic I get mail reminding me of ways to prevent the neuralgia (nerve pain). I know of them, but sometimes don't mention them. Why? Because with even normal mail delay, the letter-writer is almost always beyond the help stage from some of the well-known therapies. I mention them here only for completeness. All must be used on patients at the time they first develop the shingles rash. One is to use cortisone (early in the infection). Another is to deaden the nerve centers deep in the body, and a third is use of a drug commonly used in Parkinson's disease — levodopa.

For those who are not fortunate enough to have such therapies brought into play soon enough, other things can be tried. Amitriptyline, carbamazepine, phenytoin, and baclofen may help alleviate pain. Or the offending nerves themselves can be deadened with novocaine drugs. Steroids have been used, as has neural stimulation with a battery-powered device.

I hope your long siege of shingles pain becomes part of your past — soon.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Regarding O.J.'s inquiry about her grandson's chronic bronchitis. I felt compelled to tell you our story. My 13-year-old son developed a severe bronchial cough. We were often up all night with it. A very good internist could not pinpoint the cause. Finally, before hospitalizing him for more of the unpleasant and expensive tests, we took him to an allergist. Over 98 substances were tested, all with negative results. We were so discouraged!

Then they did foods. Positive results popped up over and over. I won't elaborate on what they were, but the most severe was tomato. With elimination of that his bronchitis disappeared. Today, he is 25 and a college professor, and if he puts one teaspoon of catsup on a hamburger, within an hour he develops his bronchial cough. — Mrs. J.P.

I am impressed. Yours is a good example of how thorough the search for a cause of persistent cough in a child must be. Allergy is always worthy of exploration.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I was told that the ring at the top of my stomach is probably not tight enough and it's letting acid up into my esophagus. It causes a sour taste. Should I be on a gall bladder diet? — Miss D.K.

I don't see why. No one has said you have gall bladder trouble, have they? You want a list of foods to prevent heartburn. The doctor is referring to the sphincter muscle, where the end of the esophagus and stomach join. Certain foods can cause that muscle to relax. Those are the ones you have to avoid. A partial list includes fatty foods, chocolate, peppermint, alcohol, coffee, citrus — in fact any food that you can match up with symptoms of reflux.

Some other tips: Don't lie down after eating. Avoid nighttime snacks. Don't wear tight-fitting garments around your abdomen. Avoid stooping over, and keep the head part of your bed elevated a few inches.

Antacids can help if they are needed, and if they don't work you can get other medicine that halts the formation of excess stomach acid.

What a bright idea!

First Baptist Church has new music minister

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

Tim Thornton plans to make a family out of the congregation of the First Baptist Church of Big Spring.

New music minister at the church, Thornton's personal goal is "to not only encourage and lead people musically but to minister to them and lead them to minister to each other."

As director of the children's choir, the youth choir and the adult choir, "I'm involved in total music ministry," he said.

Thornton, 31, plans to have at least 60 regular singers in adult choir by Christmas and three active bell choirs by the beginning of next year.

Although Big Spring is the smallest town in which he's ever ministered, Thornton likes it here. "I feel confident with the people of West Texas," he said. Being raised in Tulsa and attending college in Lubbock has "helped me to be able to relate and associate with people in the area," he said.

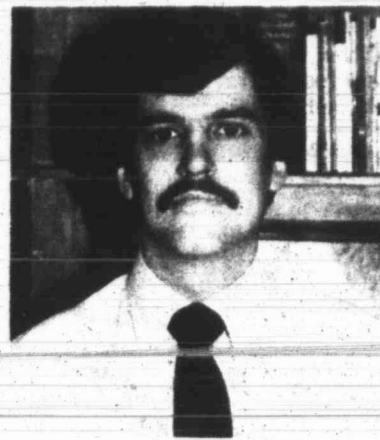

Thornton teases his wife Robyn about being his greatest fan. They have two sons, Matthew, 5, and Luke, 8 months.

"Just the fact that she takes care of the children and takes care of me makes her the vital link into my ministry," said Thornton. "I feel like maybe one day we'll end up on the mission field."

Before moving here a month ago, Thornton ministered in Amarillo for four years. He also ministered in Rapid City, S. D. for three years and served at a Fort Worth church while attending Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. While attending Texas Tech, he worked at a church in Lorenzo for three years.

As a sophomore in high school, Thornton decided to combine his musical talent with the ministry. His parents' Christian example guided him.

His hobbies include racquetball, hunting and collecting collector's plates. He also has an interest in antiques.

Vacation Bible School begins at Nazarene church

Vacation Bible School begins Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the First Church of the Nazarene. With the theme "Learning Through Bible Heroes," children will take a look at the lives of some outstanding Biblical characters.

Sessions Monday through Friday are from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Classes are designed for children three years of age through the 6th grade. All children are invited.

Opportunities for Bible study, music, crafts, scripture memorization and refreshments will be provided each night along with a closing exercise.

Carol Thompson is the director of the school with a staff of 25 persons. At 10:30 a.m. June 9, the children will present a V.B.S. program in the sanctuary.

The conference opens Tuesday with a communion service at 8:30 a.m. The first business session begins at 10 a.m. with the Bishop's State of the Church address scheduled for 11 a.m. There are business sessions scheduled each morning and afternoon except for Wednesday afternoon when the conference participants will have a spiritual growth workshop.

Other major events scheduled include the announcement of pastoral appointments for all the United Methodist Churches in Northwest Texas, and the ordination of deacons and elders.

The Northwest Texas Conference includes United Methodist churches in seven geographical districts, including Big Spring.

Hedges to be St. Mary's guest priest

The Rev. Robert B. Hedges, rector of Good Shepherd in San Angelo, will be guest priest for the 8 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. service Sunday at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 1001 Goliad. He will speak on "Incorporating New Members into the Church Family."

Following the 10:30 a.m. service, a covered dish luncheon will be served in the Parish Hall.

A 1961 graduate of Drake University, Hedges received his master of divinity in 1955 from General Theological Seminary in New York. Having served as curate, vicar and rector of churches in Des Moines, Iowa, he was a chaplain with the rank of colonel in the Army National Guard from 1956 to 1977.

In diocesan work, he has served as a deputy to General Convention and has experience as a member of Executive Council, Standing Committee, and chairman of the Armed Forces Division. In the diocese of Northwest Texas, he serves on the Evangelism Committee and is a Stewardship Consultant.

THE REV. ROBERT B. HEDGES
...guest priest

Ordained for 30 years, Hedges does special work in the areas of alcoholism, evangelism and stewardship.

Missionary to speak at First Assembly

The Rev. Warren Newberry, Assemblies of God missionary to Malawi, will speak at 10:45 a.m. Sunday at the First Assembly of God, 4th and Lancaster. The public is invited.

During their next 4-year term of missionary service, Newberry and wife Annette plan to upgrade the Bible school in Dedza, including the areas of curriculum, buildings and improved electricity.

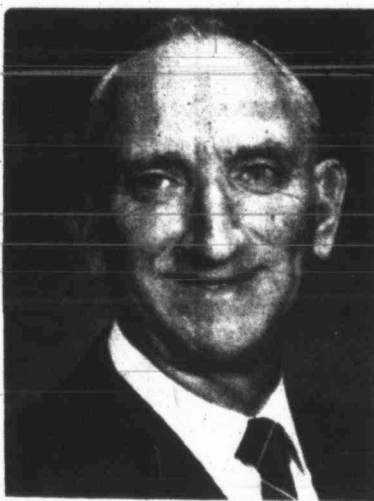

Missionaries to Malawi since 1968, Newberry served as the principal of the Bible school for 9 years and as teacher for 3 missionary terms. He also serves as the field chairman for the Assemblies of God missionary field fellowship in Malawi. His wife taught at the Bible school and directed the national Assemblies of God Women's Ministries program.

THE REV. WARREN NEWBERRY
...missionary to Malawi

Before becoming a missionary, the Newberrys pastored churches in Stanton and Dana Point, Calif.

Lackey to give program at dinner

COL. HANK LACKEY
...was stationed at Webb

Col. Hank Lackey will be the speaker for the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in the Cactus Room of the Student Union Building at Howard College. Cost is $5 per person. The program begins at 7:15 p.m. and is free.

Lackey, who used to be stationed at Webb Air Force Base, is a field representative for the Full Gospel Business Men and vice president of the Dayton, Ohio chapter.

His obsession for adventure drove him to race motorcycles and cars and pilot Air Force fighters for 24 years. He shares his humorous and tragic testimony of how his astonishing record of accomplishments left him unfulfilled and created tremendous turmoil for his family.

Vacation Bible school begins Monday

A new program has been prepared by Immaculate Heart of Mary Church for Vacation Bible School June 3-14. "In the Footsteps of Jesus" is the theme for the school to be each weekday from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.

Classes are offered for ages 3 years through 6th grade. With a back-to-basics approach to Christian living, Bible-based lessons will be taught.

Activities include: song time, Bible study, visual demonstrations, classroom interaction, craft making and recreation.

For more information call the parish office at 267-4124. All children, regardless of religious affiliation, are invited.

Baptist Temple to march in parade

Baptist Temple Church, 11th and Goliad, will be having Vacation Bible School Monday through Friday from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Children ages 4 years through 6th grade are invited to attend.

A parade will begin at 11th and Goliad Saturday at 10 a.m. Pre-registration will be held during the parade for Vacation Bible School.

Transportation is available by calling the church office at 267-8287 or Cindy Graves at 267-1430.

St. Paul Lutheran to honor its teachers

St. Paul Lutheran Church will honor its Sunday School and mid-week teachers Sunday with a pot luck dinner following the late worship service. All congregational members and guests are invited.

Woman's legs crushed by falling crane

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman who spent nearly six hours pinned under a 40-ton crane when it toppled near a posh shopping district could regain use of both her crushed legs, thanks to quick-thinking paramedics and her "calm and controlled" attitude, doctors say.

Brigitte Gerney, 49, was trapped against the rim of a foundation pit Thursday when the crane collapsed at a building site on Manhattan's fashionable Upper East Side. Rescue workers tried to lift the fallen crane with several other cranes before bringing one in large enough for the job.

Authorities said the collapsed crane was being used without proper permits, and its operator was arrested.

Dr. Daniel Baker, a plastic surgeon and friend of Mrs. Gerney's who was present during four hours of microsurgery at Bellevue Hospital, said there was an "extremely good" chance of saving her left leg and a "50-50" chance of saving the right.

Another surgeon, Dr. William Shaw, said Mrs. Gerney suffered compound fractures of most bones in both legs.

Doctors said that Mrs. Gerney's survival was due in large part to the actions of two Emergency Medical Service paramedics, Leonard Smith and Arthur Romano, who arrived minutes after the accident occurred.

The two paramedics began intravenous injections and ordered blood for transfusions, and Mrs. Gerney's condition stabilized.

CLAUS von BULOW
Murder trial underway.

Witnesses support case for von Bulow

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A parade of defense witnesses is supporting Claus von Bulow's claim that his wife's permanent coma was caused not by insulin injected by a greedy husband, but by her abuse of drugs and liquor.

Dr. Kurt Dubowski, a University of Oklahoma toxicologist, testified Wednesday at Von Bulow's attempted-murder retrial that his interpretation of Martha "Sunny" von Bulow's hospital records from the 1980 coma shows she ingested high levels of alcohol and barbiturates.

In his opening statement, defense lawyer Thomas P. Puccio said testimony such as Dubowski's would punch holes in prosecutors' theories about the cause of Mrs. von Bulow's coma in 1980 and one a year earlier.

Puccio said both were triggered by a lack of oxygen to the brain, the second time caused by the alcohol and drugs.

Von Bulow, 58, is charged with twice injecting his 53-year-old heiress wife with insulin during attempts on her life. His 1982 attempted-murder convictions were overturned last year on state constitutional grounds.

Puccio told reporters the defense, which opened its case Wednesday, might rest by early next week, but still has not decided whether von Bulow will testify.

"Ninety percent of our presentation is going to be medical and scientific," he said. Other testimony might come from von Bulow's 18-year-old daughter Cosima and family servants, Puccio added.

Hospital records show low levels of alcohol and drugs, amounts prosecution witnesses said could not have induced a coma.

Lakers batter Celts, 109-102

BOSTON (AP) — The contrasts were as striking as the difference between the time of day in which two games were played.

The most important of the changes was on the scoreboard, where the Los Angeles Lakers beat Boston 109-102 on a cool Thursday night to deadlock the National Basketball Association Championship Series at a game apiece.

The Celtics won the opener 148-114 in a steamy Boston Garden Monday afternoon.

The third game of the best-of-7 series will be in Inglewood, Calif., Sunday, with the fourth and fifth games also on the West Coast Wednesday and Friday.

The second game was marked by individual and team performances that were in sharp contrast to the opener.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, embarrassed by a 12-point, three-rebound, one-assist game Monday, came back with 30 points, 17 rebounds and eight assists in Game 2. Ten of his 15 baskets came on his patented sky hook.

"I don't feel that different," Abdul-Jabbar said. "It's only four days. I guess I have my ups and downs like everyone else."

Abdul-Jabbar had 12 points in the third quarter and 10 in the fourth to hold off a Boston charge from an 18-point halftime deficit. Three times in the final minutes, the Celtics closed to within four points.

"As soon as the game started, we were competing," the Lakers' 38-year-old center said. "When the other game started, we weren't even competing."

The Lakers also reignited their famed-out running game, continually beating Boston downcourt. On Monday, Los Angeles had three fast-break baskets in the first half while falling behind 79-49.

Besides the 48-point turnaround in the first half of both games and Abdul-Jabbar's reawakening, there were several other sharp differences in the two games.

Boston had 43 assists in the first game and 22 in the second; the Celtics went from a record-breaking .608 field-goal percentage to .451 and the Lakers went from a 33-43 rebounding deficit to a 58-53 rebounding advantage.

"Rebounding had something to do with it, but I think our defense was the main problem," said Larry Bird, who scored 22 of his 30 points in the second half to spark Boston's run. "We really didn't get back on defense the way we would have liked to and like we did in the first game."

"They were very physical and they just beat us on the offensive boards," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said of the Lakers. "That looked like us in reverse."

In fact, the whole game was a reverse of Boston's first-game rout.

The Celtics, trying to become the NBA's first repeat champs since 1969, trailed 79-62 with 4:50 left in the third quarter, but Bird started hitting to spark a run of eight straight Boston points that cut the deficit to nine. Then a three-point play by Bob McAdoo rebuilt LA's lead to 87-73 with 35 seconds left in the quarter.

Again, Boston tried to get back in it, three times cutting the margin to four points — 100-96, 102-98 and 104-100, the last with 2:16 to go in the game.

Michael Cooper, who had nine of his 22 points in the fourth quarter, hit from outside and McAdoo made a free throw to make it 107-100 with 1:17 left.

James Worthy scored 16 points for Los Angeles, but all of them came in the first half. In foul trouble, he finally fouled out with 5:05 remaining.

Robert Parish, troubled with an injured hip in the first half, came back with 18 points for the Celtics, while Danny Ainge, Kevin McHale and Dennis Johnson each had 15.

The opening minutes of the game were the exact opposite of what occurred in Monday's opener, when the Celtics jumped ahead 26-12, went on to a 30-point halftime lead and a 34-point victory.

This time, it was the Lakers who quickly pulled ahead by 14 points, collecting three fastbreak baskets in one 35-second stretch en route to a 28-14 lead with 3:08 left in the first quarter. Worthy had nine points and the Lakers pulled down 12 of the game's first 16 rebounds, in sharp contrast to Monday when Boston dominated inside.

KAREEM ABDUL-JABBAR makes a hook shot over LARRY BIRD Thursday night in the Boston Garden during the Lakers 109-102 victory over the Celtics. JABBAR, who at 38 is the oldest player in the NBA, had 30 points, 17 rebounds and 8 assists for the game.

The similarities between Games 1 and 2 ended at that point, however. Los Angeles had wilted, but Boston came back.

First, Bird scored four straight points to make it 30-20, then Ray Williams hit one basket and Johnson two from outside to close the gap to 31-26 at the end of the quarter. When Scott Wedman scored the first basket of the second period, the margin was down to three points.

But the Lakers quickly regained control.

Cooper had a three-point goal and a fastbreak layup to spark a 15-5 Los Angeles run that made it 46-33 at the 5:51 mark. Kupchak had five consecutive Los Angeles points during a 7-2 streak for a 55-40 advantage, and the Lakers closed off the half with three straight fastbreaks for their largest lead, 64-46.

Edmonton Oilers captain WAYNE GRETZKY holds the Stanley Cup trophy after his team defeated the Philadelphia Flyers 3-1 in Stanley Cup Championship action. The Oilers won the series 4-1.

Edmonton captures second Stanley Cup

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — When there is a point to be proven, who better to have on your side than a Wayne Gretzky? Or a Paul Coffey? Or a Grant Fuhr?

The Edmonton Oilers had them all — and lots more — and they used all the tools in their awesome arsenal Thursday night for an 8-3 rout of the Philadelphia Flyers to clinch their second consecutive Stanley Cup.

And, not that they needed any extra incentive, but they were still smarting from the comments they heard during the season and the playoffs.

"We have gotten a reputation of being arrogant and a flash in the pan," said Gretzky, the National Hockey League's brightest star and the winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as the playoffs' most valuable player. "We wanted to show people we are not a flash in the pan. We wanted the second one more than the first and we worked extremely hard to get it."

Gretzky was at his wondrous best Thursday night with a goal and three assists. He finished the playoffs with records for assists (30) and points (47).

"The goal-scorers receive all the glamor," he noted. "But it takes 20 guys going all out all the time to make a team. This is a real team. Certain guys do certain jobs. We all know the importance of each other."

Coffey, who had two goals and an assist to complete the playoffs with 12 goals, 25 assists and 37 points, all Stanley Cup marks for defensemen, felt elated and vindicated by the victory.

"We felt we wanted to stick it to a lot of people, particularly some of the Philly papers that said we didn't belong on the ice after the first game," said Coffey. The Oilers' only loss in the finals was in Game 1. "We really wanted to dominate them and we did."

"This is more special because everybody worked so hard to beat them," added Coffey, who revealed he played the finals with a cracked right foot.

Fuhr also established a post-season mark for victories with 15 — he started every Oilers' playoff game this spring, going 15-3.

"It's the best feeling I ever had," said Fuhr, who was injured and missed the final two wins over the New York Islanders in the Oilers' first Cup triumph last year. "It's definitely much sweeter. This is the best game we played all year."

Oilers Coach Glen Sather, who proclaimed his team the best in the world after it won a record 16th successive home playoff game, said Fuhr "is the greatest goalie I've ever seen play."

For the second straight night, Fuhr was forced to stop a penalty shot. In Game 4, he foiled Ron Suter and this time he stopped Flyers captain Dave Poulin late in the contest with the issue no longer in doubt. Fuhr is 4-for-4 against penalty shots in his career and nobody has scored on a penalty shot in the finals in four attempts.

Jari Kurri, Gretzky's right wing, tied the goals record for one playoff year with 19. Kurri got his only tally of the final round just 4:54 into the game to deadlock with Reggie Leach, who scored 19 for the 1976 Flyers.

Pima, San Jac in JUCO final

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Pima, jumping on hanging curve balls, forced a second championship game with San Jacinto in the National Junior College World Series Thursday night.

"I got my hits on a couple of hanging curves. They just made some pitching mistakes," said Pima second baseman Bob Babuca, who hit two run-scoring singles in the Aztecs' 9-4 victory over San Jacinto.

San Jacinto, until Thursday night, had cruised through the tournament. And the Gators were hoping they wouldn't fold like they did last year, when they lost twice at the end of the week.

Ken Sorensen, San Jacinto's starter against Pima, was the losing pitcher in last year's final game, when Southern Idaho's Shell Scott's home run beat the Gators, 9-7.

"It's hard to come back and do the same thing," Sorensen said after Thursday night's loss.

Both teams planned to start their aces Thursday night: Pima's Gil Heredia and San Jacinto's Steve Bowden.

All-District baseball announced

Three senior members of the Big Spring Steers baseball team were named to the 4-5A All-District baseball squad recently.

Steers shortstop Sammy Watson was named to the first team as a utility infielder. He led the Steers in batting with a .372 average and was one of the teams best fielders and base stealers. His batting average placed him in the top 20 of the district.

Second baseman Jerry Anderson was named to the second team. His .325 batting was second-best on the team behind Watson. He also hit with power, hitting two home runs. Anderson combined with Watson in turning numerous double plays for the Steers this season.

Centerfielder Jay Pirkle was Big Spring's third leading hitter with a .310 average. This helped him get named to the Honorable mention squad.

Pirkle, who is headed to Eastern New Mexico University on a football scholarship, was the Steers long-ball threat as he hit three homers for the season.

The first team was dominated by district champion Abilene Cooper, which placed five players on the first unit. District runner-up Midland Lee had three players selected to the team.

Cooper shortstop Nathan Jones was named the district's Most Valuable Player while Coach of the Year honors went to Cooper coach Andy Malone.

Fisk lifts White Sox over KC

CHICAGO — (AP) An encore was no small order for Chicago's Carlton Fisk, but he didn't have to wait long to get his home run deposited onto the left-field roof at venerable Comiskey Park was no small feat.

Fisk's homer, his 11th of the season and third in two nights, came in the fourth inning off Kansas City's Charlie Leibrandt following a single by Ron Kittle. It brought the White Sox back from a 3-2 deficit in a 4-3 victory over the Royals that left Tom Seaver, 5-3, just seven wins short of the coveted 300 mark.

"It was high and that's when the breeze helped it," Fisk said of the 33rd ball hit on the roof of the 75-year-old ballpark. "I hit it well enough to go for a homer, but not on the roof."

While Fisk's homer was sure to grab the headlines, his work behind the plate helped Seaver over the rough spots.

"I was ragged all night," the 40-year-old right-hander said. "If I pitch seven innings and give up three earned runs or less every time I go out I'll be very happy. Certainly those were not my goals 10 years ago, but they are now."

Seaver worked 7 1/3 innings, giving up eight hits and two walks with just one strikeout.

Elsewhere in an abbreviated American League schedule, it was Detroit 3, Oakland 2; Baltimore 8, Seattle 2; New York 3, California 1; and Boston 8, Minnesota 7 in 11 innings.

Tigers 3, A's 2

Detroit's Larry Herndon let his bat do the talking — literally. He hit a tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning to back the pitching of Walt Terrell and Willie Hernandez and then shrugged it off by saying, "I'd just really prefer not to talk about myself."

Herndon hit the first pitch into the lower right-field seats for his fourth homer, chasing Tim Lincecum, 1-1, who was making his second major league start.

Terrell, 6-1, gave up all seven hits and both Oakland runs, walking one and striking out four in seven innings. Hernandez earned his 11th save.

Birtas hit Kirk Gibson in the jaw in the third inning, splitting the Detroit outfielder's lower lip split in two places. It took 17 stitches to close the wound.

"I know Kirk very well," Birtas said. "It wasn't meant to sail in on him like that."

Alfredo Griffin accounted for the Oakland scoring with a two-run homer, his first.

Orioles 8, Mariners 2

The Baltimore Orioles were taking them — bases that is — one at a time until Eddie Murray's two-run, fifth-inning double restored some normalcy to a bizarre rally.

"It was just terrible baserunning," Fritz Connally said of his hesitant trip around the bases which required three hits to score him from second base. "It was a tough 180 feet."

Seattle reliever Salome Barojas, 3-5, walked Connally to open the inning with the score tied 1-1. Connally moved to second on a sacrifice, but then needed three outfield singles to score. He held up as balls hit by Floyd Rayford and Lee Lacy — both of whom had three hits — and Jim Dwyer all appeared catchable before falling safely.

Yankees 3, Angels 1

The New York Yankees, with Joe Cowley and Dave Righetti concocing a three-hitter, proved again they are fond of home cooking. The Yankees won their 10th straight game and ninth since Billy Martin replaced Yogi Berra as manager.

Cowley, 4-2, worked 7 2/3 innings, leaving after rookie Jack Howell hit his first major league homer. Righetti worked the final 1 1/3 innings, striking out four to gain his 10th save.

Dan Pasqua, called up earlier in the day, hit a fifth-inning leadoff homer in his second major league at-bat, giving the Yankees a 2-0 lead. The line shot to right field came on a 1-1 pitch from Ron Romanick, 6-2, who had won four straight decisions.

Red Sox 8, Twins 7

It was the same old story for Minnesota, three blown leads and another loss, the Twins' eighth straight.

Reliever Ron Davis, 1-5, hit two batters to set the stage for Jim Rice's run-scoring single with one out in the 11th inning.

First Glenn Hoffman was hit. Then Wade Boggs, who had a single, double and triple earlier, sacrificed Hoffman to second and, after Dwight Evans was hit by a pitch, Rice singled for his third game-winning RBI of the season.

The Red Sox, who got 5 2/3 innings of scoreless relief from Bob Stanley, 1-2, used the long ball to good advantage. Bill Buckner tied the game at 5-5 with his fifth homer, a three-run shot in the fifth, and Rich Gedman added his fourth in the sixth.

NL Roundup

Mets 2, Giants 1

The way he has been pitching there, Dwight Gooden should call Candlestick Park "home."

Striking out 14 batters and allowing but six hits in an overpowering performance, Gooden made another impressive showing in Candlestick Thursday, pitching the New York Mets to a 2-1 victory over the slump-ridden Giants.

"I really enjoy pitching here," Gooden said.

He should. Against the Giants last season, Gooden threw a five-hit shutout and struck out 12 at Candlestick. He also pitched two scoreless innings in the 1984 All-Star Game in the windy park, yielding one hit and notching three strikeouts.

While the Mets got their current road trip off to a good start with two victories in San Francisco, the Giants lost for the eighth time in the last 10 games.

Padres 5, Expos 4

Carmelo Martinez drove in four runs with a pair of home runs and unbeaten Andy Hawkins became the major leagues' first 10-game winner as San Diego downed Montreal.

With the help of Martinez' hitting, the Padres had a 4-1 lead after six innings. After the Expos pulled within 4-3 in the top of the eighth, San Diego scored the eventual winning run in the bottom of the inning when Steve Garvey and Terry Kennedy both singled and third baseman U.L. Washington booted Martinez' grounder.

Cardinals 6, Braves 0

Jack Clark hit his ninth homer and Joaquin Andujar claimed his ninth victory in a combined five-hit shutout with Bill Campbell as St. Louis beat Atlanta.

Andujar, 9-1, allowed five hits, walked one and struck out three before leaving after five innings when his right shoulder tightened.

It was Andujar's fifth victory in a row since losing to San Francisco on May 5 and his seventh straight over the Braves. Campbell held the Braves hitless and allowed one walk over the final four innings for his second save.

Phillies 6, Dodgers 1

John Denny earned his first victory in seven years over Los Angeles, scattering eight hits in pitching Philadelphia over the Dodgers. The Dodgers, who lead the NL in errors, committed three more, giving them 62 for the season and providing the Phillies with two unearned runs.

Denny, 2-5, the 1983 NL Cy Young Award winner, snapped a personal four-game losing streak as he out-pitched Fernando Valenzuela, 5-5. The victory was his second in nine career decisions against Los Angeles and his first against the Dodgers since July 22, 1978, when he was pitching for St. Louis.

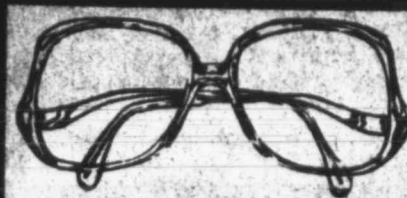

The Phillies broke a 1-1 tie in the third when Jeff Stone reached on a fielder's choice, stole second, took third on catcher Mike Scioscia's throwing error and came home when center fielder Ken Landreaux bobbled the ball for another error.

19-year old breaks triple jump record

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Wendy Brown, a 19-year-old freshman at the University of Southern California, broke the world best in the women's triple jump Thursday, clearing 44 feet, 6 1/2 inches on her first qualifying attempt in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

The multi-talented Brown, a high jumper, high hurdler and long jumper who also played basketball for Southern Cal last season, shattered the world outdoor best of 43-4 1/4 set last year by Terri Turner of the University of Texas.

The previous best ever was 44-4 by Brazil's Esmeralda Garcia of Florida State University during the 1985 NCAA Indoor Championships in March.

The triple jump, a relatively new event for women is held only in the United States, and is not recognized by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the world governing body of track and field. Therefore, there are no world records in the event.

"I knew I'd do well, but nothing like this," said Brown. "I expected 43 (feet), not 44."

"I didn't really warm up for the triple jump; I definitely was not going for a record. I don't know, maybe I should try that approach every time."

"I think I can do better than that in the final."

Brown, however was upset because she failed to qualify for the final in the high jump.

"Wendy is the most versatile young athlete in the United States today," said Fred LaPlante, Southern Cal's women's track coach. "She's a real determined competitor, just a very hard worker."

Earlier, Arkansas' Michael Conley took another big step toward an unprecedented second consecutive double in the horizontal jumps in the NCAA Championships by qualifying for the triple jump final.

Conley, winner of the long jump and the triple jump titles last year — and the winner of five NCAA indoor jump titles — leaped a conservative, wind-aided 52 feet, 10 1/4 inches in his only attempt in the triple jump qualifying toward Saturday's final.

Conley, with a career best of 57-5, was conserving his energy for Friday, when he will compete in the finals of the long jump, the 200-meter dash and the 400-meter relay.

Conley finished third overall in the 21-man triple jump qualifying field.

The best jump was 53-0 3/4 by John Williams of Southern Methodist.

Second was Byron Criddle of Houston at 52-11 1/4.

The qualifying jumps do not carry over into the final.

Conley's performances in the finals will be critical to Arkansas' chance of winning the team title for the first time in the meet's 64-year history.

In the men's 400-meter dash, Olympic silver medalist Gabriel Tiaoh of Washington State and the Ivory Coast and Michael Franks of Southern Illinois recorded the second- and third-fastest times in the world this year.

Tiaoh won his heat in 44.87, edging Franks, the bronze medalist in the 1983 World Championships, who was timed in 44.94. The winning time broke the stadium record of 45.23, set by Bert Cameron of Jamaica in 1980.

Arkansas freshman Roddie Haley, the world leader at 44.67, easily won his 400 heat in 45.77 in advancing into Saturday's final. The other heat winners were Nigerian Sunday Uti of Iowa State, the 1983 British Commonwealth Games champion, in 45.39, and Seton Hall's Andrew Valmon in 45.13, a personal best.

Michigan's Tom Wilcher posted the fastest time (13.52) in the three heats of the men's 110-meter high hurdles, while Arkansas' title chances suffered another damaging blow when Fred Cleary failed to make the final.

Nebraska's Rhonda Blanford, the collegiate leader this season, led the qualifiers in the women's 110 hurdles, with a wind-aided clocking of 12.90.

Olympian Sherri Howard of Cal State-Los Angeles had the fastest time (51.95) in the women's 400-meter qualifying, and Regina Cavanaugh of Rice produced the best throw (54-5 1/2) in the women's shot put qualifying.

Arkansas' fortunes finally improved in the men's high jump qualifying, as Bill Jasinski advanced to the final — with 11 others — while Washington State, expected to be the Razorbacks' closest pursuers, lost its two entrants, James Cunningham and Brett Lowery.

The Razorbacks also got Paul Donovan into the final of the men's 1,500, Marty Kobza into the final of the shot put and David Swain into the final of the 5,000, but were eliminated in the qualifying of the 1,000-meter relay.

Donovan finished second in his heat in 3:41.7, behind Abdi Bile Abdi of George Mason (3:41.5). Kobza heaved the shot 62-6 1/2, far short of No. 1 qualifier John Campbell of Louisiana Tech (67-2 1/4, a career best). And Swain finished third in his heat of the 5,000 in 14:11.24.

In the men's 100-meter qualifying, Missouri's Chidi Imoh of Nigeria was the fastest heat winner, clocking a wind-aided 10.07. Pittsburgh's Lee McRae was a close second to Imoh, posting the same time.

The fastest legal time was the 10.08 by Tennessee's Terry Scott. The other heat winners were Southern Cal's Darwin Cook (a wind-aided 10.10); Houston's Kirk Baptiste, the Olympic silver medalist (a wind-aided 10.12) and Syracuse's Mike Morris (10.12, a personal best).

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 1, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day and evening to attend to chores in a conscientious and pleasant fashion. Most everyone will be under tension and this could cause rifts in relationships.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you have any legal troubles, be sure to handle them wisely or you could lose a great deal. Avoid criticism.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Tread easily with a partner and be sure not to lose your temper, or there can be serious trouble. Retain the status quo.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try not to quarrel with co-workers and this becomes a good day. Make sure to take care of your health and not over-work.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Although you want to have a fine time, you may find it difficult to find right companions to go with you or it will be too costly.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Some error you may make in the outside world could prove costly, so be on your guard. Don't ask favors of a bigwig.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to prepare for the new conditions you want to come to fruition in the near future. A stranger may make a tempting offer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day for study and being more economical and avoiding snap judgment and quick investments. Be cautious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you think you can have everything your way today, you are sadly mistaken and will lose out by being stubborn.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep your equilibrium if obstacles arise in the path of your plans, as they are apt to.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A bosom buddy may be too busy to go out with you to usual fun places or be of assistance to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use much care in handling civic or public duties now or await a better day for such. Obey rules.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have many fine ideas now but should follow those that are a challenge to your fine mentality. Show that you have wisdom.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be full of charm and magnetism, but will also have a mind of his or her own and will be positive in going after what is desired, so be sure to give fine moral and ethical training early. This will be a person who will do well where protecting the interests of others is concerned.

Secretary of state names assistant

Big Spring native appointed to position

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Secretary of State Myra McDaniel on Wednesday appointed a Big Spring native as her assistant.

Duane E. Crowley, 41, an attorney who grew up in Big Spring, will begin his new duties as assistant secretary of state on June 3.

A 1976 graduate of the Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago-

Kent College of Law, Crowley also holds a bachelor of arts degree with a major in political science from the University of California.

Crowley comes from the Attorney General's office, where he has served as deputy chief of the law enforcement division since 1983.

Previously, he was general counsel of a consulting firm and an attorney in general practice. He served in the U.S. Air Force as a fighter pilot from 1966 to 1972.

"I am pleased that Duane Crowley has accepted this post. He is well qualified, and his appointment adds new excellence to the Secretary of State's staff and the administration of Gov. Mark White," McDaniel said.

Crowley is married and has three children.

Law officials bust speed labs

FORT WORTH (AP) — About $250,000 worth of chemicals and glassware were seized from two Fort Worth companies that may have supplied chemicals to clandestine amphetamine laboratories in Colorado, officials said.

Agents from the Texas Department of Public Safety, the federal Drug Enforcement Administration and the Tarrant County drug task force served search warrants for chemicals, records and assets that may be connected to two clandestine drug manufacturing operations that were shut down Friday in Colorado, said DPS Sgt. Ben Neel.

Similar supplies were seized in Killeen after indictments were handed down in Fort Worth, but there were no arrests, authorities said.

Neel said Texas DPS agents assisted in both Colorado raids — in Evergreen and Conifer — which resulted in seizure of amphetamines with a total street value of $46 million.

Inspectors say cotton harmed by herbicide

HOUSTON (AP) — Inspectors with the Texas Agriculture Department say they have an indication of the source of drifting herbicides that have damaged about 8,800 acres of cotton in Fort Bend County.

Ron White, assistant agriculture commissioner for regulation, said the cotton plants suffered moderate to severe damage from a hormone-type herbicide, probably 2,4-D, that drifted onto the fields.

"We're not ready to point any fingers yet," White told the Houston Post. "But our inspectors say they have some strong suspects, and they hope to have the investigation completed by Friday."

The drifting herbicide apparently came from multiple sources and involved several different applications, he said.

Improper aerial spraying is one possible source of the damage, White said, but ground applications could also be responsible.

"The normal herbicide used is 2,4-D, and it's one of the cheapest," he said. "A lot of people in that area use the stuff for spraying roadsides and other non-agricultural uses."

Doom members surrender to authorities

FORT WORTH (AP) — The last of eight members of the Legion of Doom group, accused of charges ranging from arson to animal cruelty, surrendered to authorities today.

James Harrison "Bubba" Mathis Jr., 18, reported to the Tarrant County pretrial release program, according to program director Hannibal Williams.

All eight of those named in Tuesday's indictment have been freed under the pretrial release program for first-time offenders.

Police said the Legion of Doom is a loosely-knit group, consisting mostly of athletes and honor students, that set out to punish drug users and thieves at Paschal High School in Fort Worth.

The eight teen-agers were named in a 33-count indictment with a variety of felony and misdemeanor charges.
