Local units advised of escaped prisoner

From Local, Wire Reports

A 35-year-old male suspect — serving a 41-year sentence for a murder which occurred in Sweetwater in 1977 — escaped from the TDC's Coffield Unit around noon Tuesday but was recaptured by Anderson County Sheriff's officers in nearby Palestine shortly after midnight.

Scurry County and other West Texas law enforcment agencies had been notified to be on the lookout for Billy Wayne Williams — who reports indicate has relatives living in Colorado City — after he apparently walked away from his prison job station during a

Prison violence again erupts at TDC

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Three guards trying to confiscate a contraband electric fan were held hostage for more than an hour Tuesday night by about a dozen inmates, a Texas prison spokesman said.

After the guards were released about 10 p.m., prison officials discovered a 29-year-old inmate had been stabbed, said Phil Guthrie, spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections.

Richard Gallegos, 28; Richard Anderson, 45; and Craig Ragland, 21; all guards at the Ramsey 1 Unit near Rosharon in southeast Texas; suffered only minor scratches in the incident, Guthrie said.

The inmate, serving a 30-year sentence for a burglary conviction, was in "extremely critical" condition at the unit infirmary, Guthrie said. The inmate's name was being withheld until relatives could be notified, he said.

Earlier Tuesday, a 20-year-old inmate at the TDC's Coffield Unit near Palestine in northern Texas was stabbed and another convict slipped away from his job at the unit's packing plant, officials said.

Guthrie said prison officials did not know what prompted the hostage incident, which began about 8:30 p.m.

As the guards were unlocking a cell to remove the fan, another prisoner wielding a knife managed to get out of his cell, Guthrie said.

The inmate took the keys and unlocked about 15 other cells, Guthrie said. The guards then were handcuffed and held captive in a cellblock walkway, he said.

Prison officials talked with the inmates and convinced the inmates to release the guards and return to their cells, Guthrie said.

Councilman opts not to seek office

Gene Thomas, whose unchallenged bid for his first full term on the Snyder City Council was interrupted by a job promotion and accompanying transfer, indicated to city officials Tuesday he is withdrawing from the race.

As the deadline to file for Thomas' place 1 seat passed March 6, he was unopposed on the ballot. Two days later, however, word was received from officials with Chevron U.S.A. that Thomas, superintendent for SACROC operations here, would be relocating at an unspecified time in the future to Denver.

He will be serving in a division manager's capacity there for Chevron.

Following the news of his impending transfer, two write-in candidates for his place 1 position surfaced, in order of filing, David Hines and Gary Roberts.

In his letter sent to Mayor Rod Waller Tuesday, Thomas noted, "I request that voters consider the write-in candidates who are seeking election."

In his statement, he said, "Because I will not be able to serve a complete two year term I have decided not to campaign."

Thomas assumed the council post effect June 12, an appointment required after then-councilman Gayle McPherson moved from the city. McPherson, an engineer with SACROC, was transferred to Denver also.

With Saturday's council vote, Thomas' name will still be the only one listed for the place 1 position. The ballot provides space for the names of write-in candidates, however.

Also on the city ballot, both unopposed for new terms, are Councilmen Truett Bryan, place 2; and Mickey Nunley, place 5.

Candidates reply to SDN questions

A Snyder Daily News tradition continues with this issue as candidates for contested races for the Snyder city council and school board answer questions related to their candidacy.

On page 5 inside, the two write-in candidates for place 1 on the city council offer their views. Responding to the SDN questionnaire are, in order of filing, David Hines and Gary Roberts.

Hines announced his candidacy March 13 and Roberts followed March 22. Incumbent Councilman Gene Thomas, whose name will be the only one listed on the ballot Saturday for place 1, indicated he would be withdrawing from the race Tuesday (see related story).

With Thursday's issue, the SDN will feature replies from the four candidates now seeking two seats on the school board. They are Lillie Sullivan, incumbent for place 1, challenged by Judy Davis; and Frank Williams and Mike Jordan, both seeking the place 2 seat. Incumbent Leslie Butler opted not to seek re-election.

Four specific questions were asked each candidate. They were also given the option for "additional comments" if they chose to.

Questions asked were:

—State specific goal you would like to see accomplished if elected.

—What do you consider the most pressing problem facing the city or school?

—Outline the solution to this need.

—Briefly define the role of a city councilman or school trustee.

CONCERT BAND AWARDS — The Snyder High School Concert Band (second group) under the direction of SHS Assistant Band Director Cliff Franklin captured their second UIL Sweepstakes Award ever Tuesday by earning first division (superior) ratings in concert and sightreading contests at Sweetwater. AD board purchases equipment

Purchase of a cathode ray tube (CRT) computer terminal was approved Tuesday by members of the Scurry County Appraisal District Board of Directors.

Meeting in the appraisal office, the board also voted to purchase a CRT stand for approximately $300 and a digitizer stand for some $800. Estimated cost for the CRT is $1,900. Even though the items were included in this year's budget, Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler requested a board vote.

In other action, members agreed to allow Northwestern National Life Insurance Company to carry the retirement plan established for district employees.

Kemper Investors Life Insurance Company carried the original retirement program. The change locally came at the suggestion of Plan Data Company, overseers of retirement programs for all the appraisal districts in the state.

As board trustees, Peveler and chairman Kenneth Wilson can authorize the change without board approval. Other board members expressed tentative approval during a dinner meeting in March. Wilson said that even though approval was not legally required, the board took an official vote to have the change recorded in the minutes.

Members made the change because Kemper's interest rates are determined at the company's discretion. The company offered lower interest rates to its established accounts while allowing higher incentives to new business.

Bands 'sweep' contest

The Snyder High School and Junior High school bands scored a clean "sweep" Tuesday — picking up sweepstakes awards for all three bands — in UIL Regional Concert and Sightreading Contests in Sweetwater.

The three Snyder Bands — two from the high school and the junior high eighth grade band — were the only entrants in the competition to capture the sweepstakes awards.

At the high school level, the bands must earn first division (superior) ratings in both the concert and sightreading competitions as well as fall marching contests to claim the sweepstakes trophies.

In the junior high division, the band must earn the first division ratings in the concert and sightreading competitions only since no marching event is held.

The SHS Symphonic Band (first group) is under the direction of Sam Robertson while SHS Assistant Band Director Clifford Franklin serves as director of the Concert Band (second group).

Tuesday's contest in Sweetwater was limited to class AAAA

Absentee count rises

The last two days of absentee balloting saw the local turnout more than double and possibly a record number set at the school district.

As the deadline passed Tuesday, some 91 absentee votes were counted at the school administration building. Ann Walton, absentee clerk, said it was the largest turnout in her memory.

As of last Friday, only 34 absentee votes had been cast for the school board ballot, which features two contested races.

At city hall, some 51 absentee votes were counted. This number was also substantially higher than last Friday's total, when 15 votes were noted.

The polls for both elections will be combined Saturday at city hall. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Real car trouble is when the engine won't start and the payments won't stop."

This embarrassing moment came from Sammie Scott of Snyder who wrote:

"It occurred several years ago around Christmas. I had purchased a spray can of snow to use in making Christmas arrangements. When I got ready to use the snow, the can sprayed for a few seconds and then quit. I turned the can upside down, shook it and did everything I could think of to get it to spray again.

"I took the can back to the store and explained the problem to the cashier. I thought I would show her it would not spray, so I held the can up and pressed the nozzle.

"I was embarrassed when the snow came out and hit the cashier's smock. She did let me have another can of snow."

Emmett T. Askins of Snyder has been semi-retired for several years. This has allowed he and wife, Helen, to do some traveling around the world.

Emmett and Helen were in Switzerland when his most embarrassing moment occurred. Emmett had risen early that morning in order to get ready to catch a train to continue on their European tour. One must remember that European trains run on a precision schedule and wait for no one.

At the train station, Emmett suggested to Helen that she hold their place in line to have the passports checked while he located a men's room.

Helen took her place in the rear of the line and it appeared that Emmett would have ample time before she reached the front of the line.

Emmett was gone what seemed like an eternity because he had the passports and Helen had advanced to the counter. Emmett was red-faced when he returned, and Helen insisted on an explanation.

"I've sold hundreds of Hanes underwear in my life," Emmett said. Still puzzled, Helen sought additional explanation. "Any pair I've ever sold had the Hanes label in the back. This morning when I dressed in the dark, I put my underwear on backwards because the Hanes folks moved the label to the front."

Classes will dismiss early

Classes for Snyder school students will dismiss early Thursday as a four-day Easter weekend begins.

Dismissal Thursday will be at 2:45 p.m. at all grade levels.

Students will then be out of class both Friday and Monday. A normal schedule will resume next Tuesday.

That day was to be a holiday also for students with teachers originally scheduled for in-service.

Tuesday will be a regular class day, however, and will serve as a makeup for a snow day missed here Feb. 1.

The Easter weekend marks the final holiday for students before the end of school. The last day of classes this year is May 17, the same day as graduation ceremonies for SHS seniors.

Ask Us

Q. — How many people voted in last year's city and school races?

A. — A heavy turnout was noted for both. For the school trustee election, some 1,400 votes were counted, and at the city, 1,100. Regarding this, absentee voting counted this year is higher than figures noted during 1984. The absentee counts last year were 71 at the school and 51 at the city. The figures this spring are 91 and 51 respectively.

Sides meet

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators met for 2½ hours today in their second session on strategic nuclear weapons since the superpower arms talks divided into three working groups last week.

The meeting took place at the Soviet mission, a brief U.S. statement said.

Under a confidentiality rule agreed to by both sides, the U.S. statement gave no further details.

One killed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A bar patron, apparently disgruntled because he had been thrown out of the Doll House Lounge, returned early today with a rifle and opened fire, killing a man, police said.

Two men were wounded in the shooting spree at 1:07 a.m. today, said police officer Ricardo Valdes.

Killed was the nightclub's bouncer Ronald Lopez, 22, of San Antonio, Valdes said.

Robert Hernandez, 37, was grazed in the head and hospitalized in stable condition at Medical Center Hospital.

Joe Vargas, 42, was wounded in the arm. He was treated and released at the same hospital.

Valdes said the suspect, believed to be between 25 and 30 years of age, was bothering dancers at the nightclub.

"He was told three times to stop by the bouncer. Then the bouncer asked him to leave. Shortly after he came back with a .270-caliber rifle and started shooting," Valdes said.

FAA says quirk not chemical, caused fireball in test crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four months after a flame-suppressing fuel additive failed to prevent a huge fireball during the test crash of a jetliner, the government says the failure resulted from a quirk in the way the plane hit the ground and not necessarily the performance of the retardant.

The airlines, which have argued the additive is expensive and could interfere with engine performance, have cited the Federal Aviation Administration's test in the California desert last Dec. 1 as proof that the substance does not work.

The FAA was within weeks of proposing that the additive known as AMK, be required by the airlines when the highly publicized test crash at Edwards Air Force Base caught embarrassed agency officials by surprise last Dec. 1.

FAA Administrator Donald Engen said Tuesday that the agency will continue to test AMK, but that no regulation would be pursued immediately.

"We have to ask ourselves, 'How effective is that fuel?'" Engen told the House Science and Technology aviation subcommittee.

Asked by Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., subcommittee chairman, whether he has ruled out a future role for AMK, Engen replied: "I certainly would not want to rule out anything."

The FAA chief said the test crash, using a remotely controlled Boeing 720 full of electronically monitored dummies, showed conclusively that AMK does not interfere with engine performance.

And, he said, although the fireball engulfed the plane, the additive "performed perfectly" as far as what could be expected under the circumstances of the crash. He said AMK reduced the intensity of the flames, which engulfed the plane within seconds of impact.

The FAA said the fireball erupted because of a fluke in the way the four-engine plane hit the ground.

Reaches wrong destination

LOS ANGELES (AP) — All Michael Lewis had bargained for was a one-hour connecting flight to Oakland, but less than 10 minutes after takeoff he realized he was on a 12-hour flight instead — to Auckland, New Zealand.

The Sacramento college student had settled back in his seat, thinking he was on the last, 400-mile leg of a trip home from Europe.

But the pilot came onto the public-address system shortly after the plane left Los Angeles on Monday and thanked the passengers for taking the flight to New Zealand.

Lewis, 21, said he bolted out of his chair when he realized he was taking a 6,500-mile side trip to the South Pacific on Air New Zealand.

"I got all panicky and told the stewardess, who didn't believe me at first," he said Tuesday after returning to California.

"Then they figured out that because they (New Zealanders) pronounce Auckland like Oakland, I probably got a boarding pass without them checking," he said.

Most Family Histories Reveal Some Treasure and Some Trash

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "Missing Link" wrote: "My children, now middle-aged, are demanding that I write a family history, as I've had a very successful, colorful life, have traveled extensively and have many grandchildren. I have avoided doing so because I was illegitimate and had a very unhappy and humiliating childhood. Should I confess all to the entire family and brazen it out? As for friends, I doubt that they would care. I'm nearly 75 and have few contemporaries left."

My husband assumed "Missing Link" was a woman, and I assumed it was a man. Who is right?

TANYA

DEAR TANYA: You are. Interestingly enough, my readers were almost evenly divided concerning my advice. I said, "It's a fascinating story and part of their heritage. If you fear that your family will think less of you, you're wrong. They will probably think more of you."

Here's a typical letter from a reader who agreed with me:

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for advising "Missing Link" to tell his life story. A year before my father died, I was able to convince him to tape-record several long conversations we had concerning his life. Although he died a very wealthy, self-made man, he talked for hours about his failures, his disappointments, his regrets and the lessons he had learned over the years. (His successes had been well-publicized.)

I had his monologue transcribed into a book, and I added appropriate pictures. I plan to give them to his grandchildren next Christmas. This will be a gift that money can't buy.

Pass this idea on, Abby. So much history is lost forever because most people are reluctant to admit their human failings.

NO LINKS MISSING

DEAR NO LINKS: Read on for an opposing view:

DEAR ABBY: You advised "Missing Link," the 75-year-old woman, to go ahead and write her memoirs—the bad with the good.

You must have a screw loose. If I were to tell the true story of my life, the rattling of skeletons in my closet could be heard in the next county.

I have been a prostitute, a drunk, a con artist, a felon and a drug user. Fortunately I was able to leave all that behind me.

If I ever write my life story, I wouldn't want anyone to read it [illegible] 56.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. G., WATERVILLE, MAINE: Concerning disciplining a child, nobody said it better than Philip Wylie in his essay titled, "Why a Child Is Important":

"To give a child material things and withhold discipline is more cruel than to strangle it. For such a child is headed for a lifetime of emotional strangulation—a walking death. Parents who leave untouched the immense problem of child discipline and substitute the abundant gifts do not actually love their children at all. They love things."

Japan reacts to plan

TOKYO (AP) — Japan reacted sharply today to growing pressure in the U.S. Congress for retaliatory trade legislation, charging that a Senate committee vote for tariffs and quotas was discriminatory, and hastily dispatching a senior official to Washington.

Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone was quoted by the Kyodo news agency as saying Tuesday's vote in the Senate Finance Committee was "very severe," and that Japan must make efforts to prevent the United States from taking stern measures against Japan.

The Senate committee vote 12-4 for mandatory tariffs and quotas unless Japan further opens its markets to U.S. exports.

Also on Tuesday, the U.S. House of Representatives urged Reagan in a non-binding resolution approved by a vote of 394-19 to take "all appropriate action" to gain new markets for U.S. products.

Resolution sponsors said plans by Japanese auto makers to boost exports to the United States by 25 percent demanded a tough response.

Japan's Foreign Ministry issued a statement saying "the legislation that passed yesterday in the Senate Finance Committee is not only a discrimination against Japan, but a threat against the free trade system."

"We are strongly concerned with the bill. We strongly hope that this bill will not be enacted on behalf of U.S.-Japan relations and on global trade," it said.

The Senate committee action reflected the growing pressure within Congress to force Japan to drop barriers that have helped create a trade imbalance that grew to $36.8 billion in Japan's favor last year.

If approved by Congress, the measure would compel President Reagan to retaliate with tariffs and quotas unless he could obtain full compensation for alleged "unfair trade practices" by the Japanese.

Also today, Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe decided to send Deputy Minister for Foreign Affairs Reishi Teshima to Washington on Thursday to discuss the congressional action, a Foreign Ministry official said.

Teenager received heart transplant

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Doctors today transplanted a heart into an Indiana teen-ager kept alive five days by two plastic pumps assisting his own diseased heart.

Michael C. Jones, 16, was in critical condition after the pumps, known as ventricular assist devices, were removed and the donor heart began beating, said David Fleming, a spokesman for Jewish Hospital.

"The medical team is upbeat and glad to be over this hurdle," Fleming said after the operation was completed early today.

The VADs were attached to Jones' heart Thursday, more than a week after an unidentified virus attacked his heart, causing five cardiac arrests. His chance of survival, even with the new heart, is only 20 percent, Fleming said.

The transplant began at 8:45 p.m. Tuesday and was completed at 1:45 a.m. today, Fleming said. The donor heart began beating on its own about 11 p.m.

Q. — We were told we would have no trouble with the plumbing system in our new house because the owner had replaced the cesspool with a modern septic tank. It was important to us because we had so much trouble with the cesspool in our previous house. Now, we find we are having similar trouble and must have the septic tank pumped out, just as we did with the cesspool. Were we wrong in thinking this kind of trouble would not occur with a septic tank?

A. — Yes. Pumping out a septic tank is sometimes necessary. Waste material in a septic tank is decomposed gradually by bacteria, but solid materials which are nondegradable do not decompose. When enough accumulates, it must be pumped out professionally. You can lengthen the period between the pumpings if everyone in the household knows which materials do not belong in a toilet or sink. You can get a list of these materials by writing to the Small Homes Council, University of Illinois at UrbanaChampaign, One East Saint Mary's Road, Champaign, IL 61820 or the University of Minnesota, Agricultural Extension Service, 3 Coffey Hall, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55108.

Q. — I enjoyed your article about log homes some time ago and your recent one about steel-framed houses. One thing I did not see was the kind of wood that is superior when building a log home or having it built.

A. — Different types of wood have different characteristics, so it is very difficult to select one as superior for a log home. The most common species used include cedar, pine, fir, spruce and cypress. Each can be used to construct a structurally sound log house. Most manufacturers offer the kind most plentiful in their areas.

SEEDS VULNERABLE IN COLD SOIL

Crops often have a hard time becoming established due to cold soils and severe seedling disease. Understanding what is happening may help farmers and gardeners deal effectively with the problem.

First, seedling disease is more severe when soils are cold even though this is not the basic cause. When plants are placed at a disadvantage and soil borne disease organisms are favored, an ideal condition exists for the seedling disease complex.

Seeds function differently in cold soils than they do in warm soils. In cold soils germination is slow and seedlings emerge slowly, making them vulnerable to soil organisms over a longer period of time. During that time microorganisms may produce seed decay, or pre- or post-emergence damping-off. A skippy stand may result.

Seed quality is a most important consideration. High quality seed have a better chance of producing a healthy seedling in a cold soil. Weak seed may lose nutrients from their cell walls, thus attracting soil pathogens that feed on the nutrients. Generally, a cold test is used to tell which seed lots are of high quality.

Replanting is often necessary when seedling disease reduces the stand below acceptable levels. Remember, however, that destruction of an existing stand will cause the crop to be later, making it more vulnerable to hot temperatures, drouth and insect attack. In some cases it may be best to retain the skippy stand if the crop in question has the ability to compensate.

Harbor seals can dive to depths of 300 feet, perhaps even deeper. Normal dives last a few minutes, but harbor seals and some other seals can stay under water for as long as onehalf hour.

OPEN LETTER TO THE VOTERS OF IRA SCHOOL DISTRICT

I graduated from Ira High School in 1964--a third generation student of Ira schools. I have lived all my life in the Ira community where I have been active in community and school activities. I have been a member of the Ira PTA for over 10 years and have served as an officer and as chairman of various activities.

I was appointed by the commissioners court to serve two years on the Scurry County welfare board. I also worked with youth as an adult 4-H leader. My husband, Bob, and I have two children currently attending Ira school. Kaila is a 10th grader and Chuck an 8th grader. We are members of the Ira Methodist Church.

I am employed by Dr. Bid Cooper. I have served as bookkeeper and financial advisor for the Cogdell hospital auxiliary for the past 10 years. I have worked for over 22 years in public accounting, bookkeeping and audit. Several years were spent with a CPA firm where I was active in general audits of counties and schools.

A well-meaning person said recently if I were a man with the above qualifications, he would surely vote for me for the Ira school board. Could it be that the Ira community is ready for a change? Maybe the best man for the job is a WOMAN. I would like to have an opportunity to serve.

If one is wrong, the other isn't

By James Jacoby

Let's talk about a conservative bridge game. Today's auction actually started with three passes. We might have to wait until the next century to find a cast of characters that would pass on those cards in the first three positions. But that is what happened.

North did open in fourth seat. And previously timid South bid four hearts. That is not a bad contract. He needs to find some cards right, or guess them right.

Declarer won the opening lead with dummy's ace. The favorable location of the K-J of hearts enabled South to draw trump in two leads. Now what? It appears that there are some guesses to be made in the black suits. I find this deal interesting because there is no way that a wide-awake declarer should go set, no matter what his guess is on the high-card position of the first black suit he attacks. He needs to make just two assumptions: East would have opened the bidding with two aces in addition to the heart K-J, and West would also have opened with two aces in addition to the diamond K-Q.

Suppose declarer leads a spade to dummy's jack, losing to East's queen. Back comes a spade to West's ace, but now declarer knows that the club ace is with East, and he will hope that East does not have the club queen. Suppose instead that South plays a club to dummy's king, losing to East's ace. Now he is certain that East can't hold the spade ace, and South will play the spades correctly.

Replies offered for council seats

David Hines

candidate place 1 city council

Q. — State specific goal you would like to see accomplished if elected.

A. — As the originator of the National Guard project to clean up Line Park, I would like to see it completed as a nice park that the citizens of Snyder could enjoy and use daily. The National Guard should be commended for their effort. What they have done should help greatly to eliminate water from backing into Snyder and causing flooding. It would be very nice if this clean-up program could be extended on Deep Creek south, past the old city dumpground.

Q. — What do you consider the most pressing problem facing the city?

A. — When I look at pressing problems, I think of the four largest investments that the city has. Streets are the largest (plus) water and filtration plant, sewage disposal system and garbage department.

Q. — Outline the solution to this need.

A. — The streets do need some repair, but with a joint effort between the city and county. They have installed a large heated asphalt tank, which makes possible storing asphalt and not hauling on demand from Big Spring, as in the past.

The employees of the city should be commended in the area of the water and filtration plant. With the lake as low as it is and for the people of Snyder to have the quality of water we have, is something to be proud of.

The sewage disposal system has no apparent pressing problems.

They are doing very well with the garbage department with the new landfill in operation. I do feel the city should give all the backing possible to the 1611 truck route. However, I do think the truck route should start at Hwy. 180 and go south. I don't think it should go through the already congested oil field area from Hwy. 84 to Hwy. 180. The reason for this is to end any convicting thoughts of Houston St. becoming a truck route. I would like to add, all the above are being done with a very low tax rate, something like one-third of Sweetwater's tax rate, for example.

Q. — Briefly define the role of a city councilman.

A. — I feel that a city councilman should be able to listen open mindedly to the pros and cons of each issue before him and vote what he feels is best for Snyder and the majority of the people in this good city.

Other comments:

I ran for the Snyder city council in 1978, losing by only four votes to an appointed incumbent. He was transferred within six months. I ran again in 1984. Out of approximately 1,080 votes cast, I lost to my friend Troy Williamson by only 80 votes. I would like to add that I am neither for nor against any group. If elected I would look and vote on each issue as presented to the council, always with the majority of the people of Snyder in mind.

candidate place 1 city council

Q. — State specific goal you would like to see accomplished if elected.

A. — I would like to see a street repair program implemented. If a program is already established, I would continue to support it as funds would allow. Also a program established which would promote the positive aspects of our police and fire departments.

Q. — What do you consider the most pressing problem facing the city?

A. — The City of Snyder is faced with the problem of providing services the citizens have come to expect on diminishing funds, and rising costs of labor and materials.

Q. — Outline the solution to this need.

A. — I believe the citizens of our community must be informed of the fact that Snyder may reach the point which may require a cutback in services which we enjoy, and at times take for granted. I see nothing wrong with the involvement of civic clubs, organizations and the private sector in matters involving cleanup and general repair of facilities made available to us each day. It has become too easy to expect our local government to take care of certain items which concerned groups and individual citizens could be allowed to handle.

Q. — Briefly define the role of a city councilman.

A. — A city councilman should to the best of his or her ability be receptive to the needs of the citizens. The decisions which are required should be made with the thought of what is best for the city as a whole. A councilman should work with peers in a cooperative manner, never losing respect for another person's opinion. A councilman should support a final decision made by the council even if it differs from a personal opinion.

Texas Briefs

Disagree on inspection fee hike

AUSTIN (AP) — It's somewhat short of open warfare, but state leaders are beginning to differ on where to get the money to balance the state budget.

Speaker Gib Lewis and the House Appropriations Committee think the motor vehicle inspection fee should be raised from the current $5.25 to $10. Gov. Mark White, mindful of last year's increase in vehicle registration fees, thinks that's a bad idea.

"We raised the registration fees. That was not my idea. I didn't want it. I'm very concerned about raising any other fees on basic transportation," White said Tuesday during a quick visit to the House.

Earlier, in a meeting at the Governor's Mansion, he gave the same message.

The inspection fee increase is part of a $200 million package tentatively approved by the appropriations committee. Lewis said Tuesday a higher inspection fee would mean money for the state and money for the inspectors.

Inspectors now keep $3.25 of the $5.25 fee. They would get $6 of the $10 fee. The increase would bring the state an additional $24 million.

'Happy hour' to subcommittee

AUSTIN (AP) — The so-called "battle of the bars" over popular happy hours has been sent to a subcommittee of the House Liquor Regulation Committee.

Backers of a bill by Rep. Gary Thompson, D-Abilene, said Tuesday new strict curbs should be drawn to prevent excessive alcohlic consumption during "happy hours."

Opponents want more time to see if a new restriction of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission against two-for-one drinks will control the late afternoon and late night drink promotions.

"The new rule fails to touch most happy hour promotions that cause excessive consumption of liquor," said Thompson.

Also sent to subcommittee was Rep. Billy Hall's measure that would prescribe DWI penalties for intoxicated locomotive engineers and crew members.

"I was amazed to find we have state laws about driving intoxicated on our highways but none for those who operate our railways. This would make the same penalties for both," said the Laredo Democrat.

House supports homeport bill

AUSTIN (AP) — House members planned a final vote today on a $96.1 million package of enticements aimed at showing the U.S. Navy that Texas wants to be home to the USS Wisconsin and the battleship's support group.

Navy officials are expected to announce a decision next month on a city for the Gulf of Mexico homeport that would bring a $100 million construction budget and a $60 million annual payroll.

"The other states have made promises, but they don't have legislative background to support those promises," Rep. Ashley Smith, R-Houston, told the House on Tuesday.

His bill, tentatively approved on voice vote Tuesday, points out what money the state has to back any Texas city selected for the port. The money, to be transferred from existing state funds, would be used for highways, education, recreation, construction and criminal justice aide for the selected area.

The measure also would grant sales tax exemptions for materials purchased to build the facility.

"This tells the Navy that Texas means business," said Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi and a co-sponsor.

El Paso Rep. Paul Moreno said he was "philosophically opposed" to the bill because it backs "creation of more bases and weapons."

Mandatory sentencing supported

AUSTIN (AP) — A woman who said she was molested for nine years as a child says she could support mass executions for those who sexually abused children.

Ramona Benson, a 31-year mother and student at Texas A&M University, supported a bill to force persons convicted of sexually abusing a child to serve at least one-third of their prison sentence.

"The problem is that I am here today so I can speak for this bill but I would just as soon come and speak for mass executions," said Ms. Benson.

She appeared Tuesday at a news conference with Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, and several women who presented two petitions to Brown.

One petition, with 2,405 names, called for mandatory prison sentences for child molesters. A petition with 1,060 names protested the early release from prison of man convicted of abuse of a 2½-year-old child in the Killeen area.

Previously, a petition with over 7,500 names had been presented to Brown, who said Tuesday, "This is an area that the public is no longer going to tolerate."

Debbie Combs of Bryan-College Station said over half of the people convicted of child abuse are released on probation or "merely fined." She said 21 other states have mandatory sentencing in child abuse cases, which "tears at the moral society of America."

Bill would create credit card fee

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has approved a bill that would allow Texas banks to charge their credit cardholders an annual fee, anticipated at $18 to $25, according to bill sponsor Ed Howard.

Howard, D-Texarkana, said Tuesday the fee is needed to keep major credit card issuers from moving out of Texas.

He said First City and MBank already had moved their credit card operations to other states, transferring nearly 500 jobs to South Dakota and Delaware, which have no restrictions on fees.

He said additional services offered by out-of-state banks that charge a credit card fee include discounts on travel insurance and auto rentals and other tourist discounts.

"I don't consider this a tax, senator," said Howard. "There's a difference in a tax and a fee, and if you don't want it, you don't have to use the card."

Pupils confront Hobby over tuition

AUSTIN (AP) — Angry college students, who swarmed through Capitol hallways and packed the Senate chamber to protest proposed tuition hikes, remained unconvinced after confronting Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"No more Hobby, no more Hobby," they shouted Tuesday after Hobby explained his reasons for recommending tuition be tripled.

The protestors also converged on Gov. Mark White's office, where they stood outside chanting: "Veto, veto, veto."

The confrontation with Hobby occurred after some 2,000 students — many shouting "One, two, three four, we don't want to pay no more" — had marched from the University of Texas campus to the Capitol for a rally.

"We will fight back. Let our protest be heard from the Capitol dome to the (UT) Tower," UT student Susan Dale told the crowd. "We are here to fight for the rights of students today, tomorrow."

When a group of students found Hobby in a second-floor hallway after the rally, he defended raising tuition at Texas colleges and universities.

"Do you really think an increase from 50th among the 50 states to 48th is a drastic increase?" asked Hobby, who has proposed tripling tuition from $4 per semester hour to $12 beginning this fall. His plan also calls for an additional $4 per hour increase in 1986.

Scientists theorize life is from clay

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — The theory that life arose from a chemical soup in the oceans is being challenged by scientists who have found evidence that a common clay possesses basic properties essential to the generation of life.

"The functional attributes that we associate with life are not necessarily confined to organic systems," said Lelia Coyne, a San Jose State University chemist who led the research team.

The researchers have verified that clay can store and transfer energy, which would allow it to act as a chemical factory for the generation of life, they told a symposium Tuesday at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center.

The "clay-life theory," first proposed in the 1960s by chemist Graham Cairns-Smith of the University of Glasgow, challenges the long-favored notion that life emerged from the primordial oceans after millions of years of chemical reactions between simple organic molecules.

It also is reminiscent of the Bible's account of the Creation in Genesis, which says "And the Lord God formed man of dust of the ground," and refers to it commonly as clay.

Cairns-Smith said Tuesday he believes that clay was not just a catalyst for life but the actual "low-tech" material that gave rise to progressively more sophisticated or "high-tech" life forms.

"The recognition that many of the specific functions of living systems can be performed by inorganic molecular systems is forcing us to re-examine, at a real fundamental level, the definition of life," Ms. Coyne said.

Cockroaches invade Capitol Hill quarters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The way Rep. Silvio Conte tells it, there are so many cockroaches in the nooks and crannies of congressional power on Capitol Hill that when he opens his office door late at night the roaches are waltzing his desk around the room.

Brigades of roaches are on the march, he said, "at least a trillion of them."

So, fueled with a stream of one-liners, wearing plastic bugs and encouraged by a gift of 35,000 roach traps from a home-district "roach-buster" manufacturer, the congressman launched his "Conte-Crush-a-Cockroach Campaign" Tuesday on the marble steps of the House of Representatives.

While tourists asked, "What is that man doing?" Conte, helped by an aide, stripped off his blue blazer with the seal of the House on the breast pocket and pulled on an exterminator's white jumpsuit dotted with large pinned-on plastic bugs.

He appealed to President Reagan to enlist in the cockroach war "to get rid of as many of the troublesome cockroaches that run around the halls of Congress as possible."

"So please join me in this war on Capitol cockroaches and — squash one for the Gipper," Conte told the wondering crowd.

As he talked, peering out from beneath a white cap emblazoned with an anti-roach symbol, he brandished two yellow flyswatters and a large cannister of bug spray. Two publicists stood behind him with giant photo blowups of roaches climbing over a cucumber and cheese.

"I don't believe this," one was overheard to say, presumably off the record.

Catheter opens blocked artery

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've had angina for about 15 months, and I have good days and bad ones. I wear two 10 mg. Transderm patches and carry Nitrostat everywhere I go. I've had a heart catheterization and am on treatments. The angina is all in my chest, where I have those little nagging pains.

Is the balloon procedure ever performed in the chest? If so, I'll ask my doctor about it. He thinks I'm doing OK, but I don't.

DEAR READER — Anginal heart pain usually is caused by fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries to the heart. In many cases, since the blood flow through the clogged artery cannot be increased adequately, exercise will induce the pain. In some cases, the coronary artery may go into spasm, causing a temporary obstruction and resulting in anginal pain. In other cases, fatty-cholesterol deposits and spasm are both present. The deposits seem to make the arteries more susceptible to coronary spasm.

Yes, it is possible to open obstructed coronary arteries with a balloon. The procedure is called coronary angioplasty. A catheter (hollow tube) is passed through the arteries into the obstructed coronary artery. On the tip of the catheter is a collapsed balloon. When the tip is in place at the point of obstruction, the balloon can be expanded. This pressure squeezes the fatty-cholesterol material back into the wall of the artery, which opens the artery for normal circulation.

A recent report from Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., said that of 514 coronary angioplasty cases, one-third required a repeat angioplasty; some had the procedure done three times. However, in the right case, this is a successful alternative to coronary bypass operations.

Not everyone can have coronary angioplasty done. It is used only for short, localized areas of obstruction. If there is severe obstruction throughout the length of the coronary artery, the procedure cannot be used successfully.

I'm glad that you have gotten some relief from your angina. You will want to read The Health Letter 17-10, What You Need to Know About Heart Attacks. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My sister-in-law, 64, follows a diet that contains no butter, margarine, sugar or salt. She originally did this to lose 15 pounds. She's 5 feet 2 and now weighs 115, but still follows the diet. Could any problem arise from such a diet? She takes a water pill, too.

Her husband (my brother) is 76 and also is on the diet. He had an ulcer at the opening of his stomach and into the small intestine. Would this diet be harmful for him? What is the value of fats in the diet?

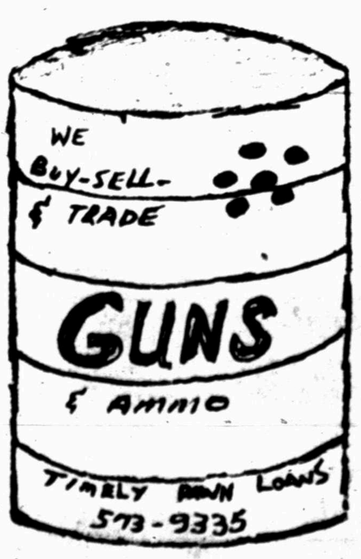

DEAR READER — There are enough fats in other foods to meet all the body's fat-intake requirements. The body does need a small amount of unsaturated fats, but the amount required is so small that it is almost impossible to avoid getting it. Otherwise, fats are primarily a good source of calories, and if one wants to cut calories, it helps to eliminate fat and sugar. In a balanced diet, various foods contain enough sodium to make additional salt unnecessary.

Your sister-in-law's diet is fine if it provides a balanced diet from all four food groups, and it should not be a problem for someone who has had an ulcer.

More loans will not solve farm crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The financial crisis that endangers one in four American farmers will not be solved by loaning them more money, concludes a new study by the Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies, a Washington policy research group.

Any solution to farmers' woes will hinge on future U.S. agriculture policy, along with other factors that are far more difficult to control, the center said in paper on the farm debt crisis released Tuesday.

Those factors include a growing federal budget deficit, a tight supply of money and credit, high interest rates, dropping land values and the strong value of the dollar compared to foreign currencies.

"Any one of these developments would dramatically reduce the ability of many thousands of farmers to survive through 1985," according to the report, titled "Down, Down, Down on the Farm."

"A combination of some or all of these developments would return the credit crisis to the front burner — and turn the flame up even higher," said the document.

Echoing gloomy forecasts from many analysts, the center said: "As bad as current conditions are, they could well deteriorate further." It said experts assembled for a policy rountable this winter "found little to suggest that a significant improvement in the farm economy will occur this year or in 1986."

The participants "also agreed that financial stress for full-time commercial farmers will become even more severe if current agricultural economic conditions persist for another two years," the report said.

The problems of American farmers, particularly those in the grain belt of the Midwest, are by now well chronicled: high debt and interest rates coupled with low values for commodities and farmland are squeezing thousands out of business every month.

In its analysis, the moderate-to-liberal think tank contended the problem is primarily one of solvency rather than liquidity; that is, farmers are suffering not primarily from a lack of cash flow in an otherwise sound operation, but from an erosion of their capital and collateral bases.

"Thus the primary issue is not more credit," the center contended. "It is rather the extent to which government can (or should) intervene to alter the underlying forces driving so many farmers toward insolvency."

The government cannot come to the rescue with higher price support programs, the report concluded. Despite political pressure to do so, there are equally strong pressures to cut federal deficit spending — a step it said might be more beneficial to farmers in the long run.

Besides, commodity prices would have to be boosted by 32 percent to restore profitability to endangered commercial-size farms, it noted, citing recent Agriculture Department estimates.

Although you prefer to operate independently, you will do quite well in partnerships in the year ahead. Valuable alliances will be established for a specific objective.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Avoid teaming up with anybne today who thinks in petty terms. You need associates who can inspire you to do things on a grand scale. Major changes are in store for Aries in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Results will be rewarding today in career situations where you exercise your own judgment. When you rely on the advice of others, you could go adrift.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When socializing with pals today, say nothing uncomplimentary about a mutual friend who isn't present. Your remarks will be repeated and distorted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Lady Luck will be supportive of your efforts today in situations where you are unselfishly trying to help others, as well as yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you expect tolerance and consideration from people you'll deal with today, you must make it a point to overlook the little things they do that you find annoying.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be hesitant to spend dollars today if it can earn you more. A little seed money might be required to prime the pump for something larger.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Listen to the thoughts and suggestions of companions today but don't discount the quality of your own ideas. Chances are your judgment is keener than theirs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something you play a minor role in may prove beneficial today. Lady Luck will do the heavy work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Life seldom offers sure things; you're well aware of this. Fortunately today, however, your hopes will be based upon realistic factors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a better doer today than a thinker. Once you spring into action, any self-doubts that plague you will be brushed aside.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you're presently involved in has far greater potential than you may realize. Take time to review your immediate circumstances.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Financial conditions are promising for you today, so don't settle for small returns if you have an opportunity to go for something larger. Think big.

Interest renewed in old treatment

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Putting patients in a fancy "baking oven" to help kill cancer cells proved safe in preliminary studies, renewing interest in the once-risky process of heating the entire body instead of just tumors, researchers say.

By heating the whole body, along with radiation or chemotherapy, it is possible to attack cancers that have spread throughout the body — something that can't be done when heat is applied with electrodes only to localized tumors, according to Dr. H. Ian Robins of the University of Wisconsin.

Earlier efforts to utilize whole-body heat through baths of water or wax or by putting a person in space suit-like heating devices fell from favor several years ago because it was hard to avoid overheating that caused harmful side effects and death.

"We reasoned that a radiant heat system — the kind of heat we get from the sun or a light bulb — might solve our problems," Robins said Tuesday during the American Cancer Society's annual science writers' seminar.

So Robins and Enthermics Inc. of Menomonee Falls, Wis., developed the oven — which looks like an iron lung machine and is called a "radiant heat device" — to allow precise control of body temperature.

He said the device has been used more than 160 times on about 30 patients without causing death and the other adverse side effects of previous whole-body heating methods, which included heart failure, abnormal heart rhythm, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, nerve damage, strokes, seizures, bleeding, burns and sores.

The preliminary studies, approved by the Food and Drug Administration and funded by the National Cancer Institute, were aimed only at proving the device's safety.

INS arranges for boy's parents to stay

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A "humanitarian" arrangement will allow the illegal alien parents of a 4-year-old American citizen with a heart defect to remain in this country at least for another six months, immigration officials say.

But if they agree to an official deportation for a day, the parents must forfeit the opportunity to apply next year for a permanent deportation stay.

Al Giugni, director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service's El Paso district, said Tuesday the plan was "the fairest solution" in the case, which has received widespread attention.

Raul and Guadalupe Tena and their 6-year-old daughter, Daniella, will be deported Friday at 11 a.m. at the Columbus, N.M., port of entry, Giugni said.

However, after they have entered Mexico, they will be allowed to return to the United States for at least six months, he said.

The family has been living in Las Cruces, N.M., about 45 miles north of El Paso, since 1979.

They have been fighting deportation because their son, Victor, has a congenital heart defect, which doctors say would not be treated properly if they were returned to Mexico.

Victor is an American citizen. Although he does not face deportation, the Tenas have said they would not return to Mexico without him.

At a news conference, Giugni said the six-month stay was based on "humanitarian reasons."

It also was decided upon to give INS officials more time to evaluate Victor's medical condition, he said.

Any treatment the boy receives during that time is to be reported to immigration officials by the family, he said.

In October, Giugni said, his agency will review the case and make another determination on whether to deport the Tenas and their daughter.

"It's all contingent on the health of the young man," he said.

The family must physically enter Mexico Friday for an official deportation, Giugni said.

By law, illegal residents who have lived in the United States for at least seven years can apply for permanent deportation stays, Giugni said.

The Tenas would be eligible next year, he said.

"By deporting them, they are losing this opportunity," he said.

The Tenas have no telephone in Las Cruces and could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

An attorney for the family, Nelson Smith of El Paso, said, "I think the immigration service has made an honest attempt to recognize the child's needs."

He said he had not spoken with the family about the arrangement, but "the mother has said her concern only was the boy's health."

Deportation for the family was to be in February, but was halted after U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., intervened in the case and was able to get Victor's medical reports to immigration officials, Giugni said.

He said the family previously had not provided adequate medical records to prove Victor would not receive necessary treatment for his condition in Mexico.

If in October the service determines Victor could not receive the medical treatment he needs in Mexico, the Tenas' time in this country could be extended, he said.

Domenici said Tuesday, "I was very pleased that the INS was able to enforce their laws while at the same time exercising compassion for the young boy and his family."

Russians planning program

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Unmanned spacecraft bearing the flag of the Soviet Union will probe two planets, map the moon, look at famed Halley's Comet and perhaps even explore a major asteroid, all within the next decade, according to a NASA expert.

Mike Duke, a lunar and planetary scientist at the Johnson Space Center, said the Soviets are devoting a great deal of attention and effort to exploring the inner planets in the solar system using unmanned probes.

"The Soviet program seems to take more of their national attention than it does in this country," said Duke.

Duke talked with a group of Soviet scientists who attended a conference on lunar and planetary studies at the Johnson Space Center in March.

Among the projects planned by the Soviets, said Duke, are:

— A 1986 two-stage craft that would explore both the planet Venus and the comet Halley.

— A 1988 mission to Phobos, a moon orbiting the planet Mars.

— A 1989 lunar orbiter that would circle the moon's poles.

Duke said the Phobos mission would put a spacecraft within a few hundred feet of the surface of the Martian moon, which has a low gravity field. The craft, in effect, would become another moon of Mars, orbiting very close to Phobos.

Once in place, the craft would hit the moon's surface with laser beams. An instrument on the craft will analyze the laser light bounced off Phobos to determine soil composition.

"Nobody's tried that before," said Duke, noting that the process works in the laboratory.

A Soviet craft in polar orbit of the Earth's moon, said Duke, will produce a map and gather composition data in areas not studied during America's Apollo program.

Shade tree borers can cause damage

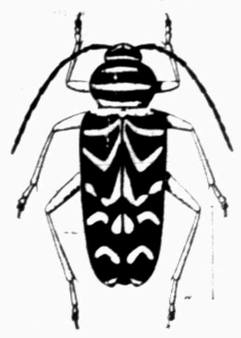

By DEANNA MYERS
County Entomologist

Shade tree borers are one of the most difficult pests to control. It is much better to try and prevent borer infestation than to try and control an infestation.

The best prevention of borer attack is to keep your trees well watered and fertilized and to prune dead and dying branches. Borers generally attack trees weakened or injued by transplant shock, drouth, flooding, soil fills, mechanical damage, or disease.

Another thing which can be done to prevent borer attack is to select trees and shrubs suited to the climate and not as susceptible to borer attack. Ash, cottonwood, linden, soft maple and soft poplar are especially susceptible to borer attack.

Also, the trunks of newly transplanted trees should be protected with nursery wrapping paper, burlap, aluminum foil or newspaper. Spray trunks with an insecticide containing lindane

ROUND-HEADED BORER

(use wettable powder formulation) before wrapping. Keep the wrapping on all year and replace it if it gets torn. Older trees may be protected by making spray applications of lindane or chlorpyripos (Dursban R) in April, May, mid-July and late August.

If your tree has become infested there is no guarantee you will be able to kill the borers. If only a few trees are involved, you may be able to control the borers by mechanically worming the trees. The tunnels should be located and cleaned out with a sharp knife or wire probe. When locating holes to clean out look for holes packed with sawdust-like frass or with sap-exuding. A hole which you can see into is one that the larvae have completely developed and the adult has already emerged.

There is more than one type of borer which attacks trees. The most common ones belong to the roundhead or longhorned beetle and flatheaded or metallic beetle groups. The various species of beetles composing these groups vary in color and size. The larvae of these beetles are the stage which causes tree damage.

Morality rating hurt city, candidate says

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — A group's grading of candidates on the basis of how much morality they're judged to have is a blight on the reputation of this southeast Dallas suburb, Mayor Brunhilde Nystrom says.

On a morality scale of 0 to 15, Ms. Nystrom was given a rating of 4.73, and her opponent in Saturday's city elections was given a 12.87. Two other candidates also got significantly higher ratings than their opponents.

The mayor and City Council candidate Steve Bennett, who also received low marks for morality, character and citizenship, said they doubt the evaluation, mailed community-wide, will influence voters. But they expressed concern about a small group's effect on the city's reputation.

"This just perpetuates Mesquite's image as a stupid, backward, one-horse town, and it isn't any of those things," Bennett told the Dallas Times Herald.

Ms. Nystrom calls the ratings "vindictive" punishment for her vote last year to liberalize liquor ordinances against the wishes of the city's religious leaders.

Ms. Nystrom's opponent in Saturday's election got a rating of 12.87. Bennett got a character rating of 6.66, but his opponent, Patt Delk, got a rating of 12.13 points.

Candidates received questionnaires two weeks ago from the "Intelivote Network" political action committee, with a cover letter from Mesquite resident John Guthrie. According to the letter, Guthrie planned to share the results with "friends and acquaintances."

The questionnaire asked candidates for a brief statement of their religious beliefs and a list of civic and religious group memberships. It also asked whether pornography, gambling and prostitution should be severely prohibited or restricted by law and whether homosexuals should be permitted to be hired as city employees.

Ms. Nystrom and two other council members said they never spoke to members of the group and refused to return the questionnaires.

William Brown, 36, one of the evaluators, said he and 14 other "conservative Christian men" used newspaper clippings and campaign literature to rate the candidates who declined to participate.

Murder charged on tip

HITCHCOCK, Texas (AP) — Acting on an informant's tip, Galveston County authorities have arrested a 38-year-old Hitchcock man and charged him with murder in connection with the Aug. 5, 1983 death of his former girlfriend.

Johnnie Mae Gillis, 25, was found dead after being run over by a train about a half block from a Hitchcock bar where she was last reported seen alive, and her death had been considered accidental for more than a year.

Ethelbart Sheppard was arrested without incident Tuesday morning at a mobile home in this town, 10 miles northwest of Galveston, of about 7,000 people.

Lawmakers oppose burning wastes in Gulf of Mexico

AUSTIN (AP) — A group of state lawmakers, saying Texans are upset with a federal proposal to burn toxic wastes in the Gulf of Mexico, want the plan proved safe before it is allowed to proceed.

"The EPA thought we were a little sleepy community and coast and that we paid very little attention to what was going on. They thought they'd go out there and run around with those ships and burn it, and we'd never realize what they were doing," said Rep. Don Lee, D-Harlingen.

Lee and other lawmakers introduced a resolution that would urge Congress to impose a moratorium on granting permits to burn toxic wastes at sea until research has determined the effects.

"We need to put our foot down and fire a shot over the bow of the EPA and tell them this kind of management is not only unacceptable — we're not going to stand for it," said Rep. Tommy Adkisson, D-San Antonio.

"We want to send a message to EPA officials in Washington that Texans will not tolerate any kind of toxic burns in the Gulf until we know more about ocean incineration and its effects on the environment," Lee added.

The proposal for offshore incineration came as concerns grew over the safety of disposing of hazardous waste materials. The plan became controversial more than two years ago, when the Environmental Protection Agency announced it was looking at Gulf waters for the program.

The EPA has said that in some cases it would be safer to burn the material at sea than to continue to store the hazardous products on land.

An EPA hearing at Brownsville drew some 6,000 opponents, and the lawmakers said that shows how strongly the public feels about the issue.

Describing that hearing as "the largest in the history of the EPA," Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said many Texans are worried about effects the burning might have on both the tourism and fishing industries.

Ninth victim added

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Marilyn Hartman, a schoolteacher found strangled in her home in October, has been added to the list of slain and missing women that a special city police task force is investigating, officials say.

The similarities between her case and others, specifically the cause of death and that she was killed in southwest Fort Worth, prompted task force members to include her as the ninth victim, officials said at a Tuesday news conference.

Police last week added the names of Regina Suzanne Grover, 26, whose body was found Dec. 23 under a bridge in north Fort Worth; Ginger Lynn Hayden, 18, who was found stabbed 57 times in her bedroom Sept. 5; and Kathryn Elaine Jackson, 32, who was found strangled in her bathtub Nov. 26.

"The task force is focusing on nine deaths, but we have other victims who may be added," Deputy Chief C.E. Hogue said.

In 12-inning marathon...

Tigers edge Tornadoes, 8-7

By BILL McCLELLAN

LAMESA -- No one was ready to admit that Tuesday night's shakey performance here was a carryover from the rained out game with Fort Stockton, but they were in agreement that putting the first district contest of the season behind them was a bonus.

"I think this will get the butterflies out of the way," admitted Charlie Bollinger, who pitched seven and two-thirds innings to pick up an 8-7, 12-inning victory over Lamesa.

The win, which took four hours to construct, puts the eighth-ranked Tigers at 12-3 on the season and 1-0 now in District 2-4A play. Snyder now hosts Fort Stockton at 8 p.m. Thursday in a makeup game.

In other games Tuesday, Pecos ripped Monahans 16-6 via the 10-run rule, and Andrews blanked Fort Stockton 4-0.

"Boy, I thought that game was never going to end," said a relieved Coach Albert Lewis after left fielder Willie Greathouse made a running, one-handed catch to close out Lamesa's final gasp in the bottom of the 12th.

"I don't really think the Fort Stockton game had anything to do with it, but there's no question we weren't very sharp tonight," he said. "Defensively we really struggled and we were having trouble finding Gonzales (losing pitcher Johnny Gonzales). We needed to get that one behind us."

Snyder had trailed 2-0 after four innings when rain cancelled last Friday's scheduled opener with Fort Stockton and the Tigers seemed to have a lack of confidence going into last night's contest.

Bollinger had different ideas about the reason for Snyder's slow start.

"I think some of our younger players don't have the confidence some of us have yet," said the senior righthander. "This will help out. I think we'll settle down."

Steve Parker scored the eventual winning run when he raced home on a passed ball with two out in the top of the seventh. Hunter had flied out to start the inning, but Jimmy Cain made it to first base on an error by the third baseman. After Justin Webb also flied out, Parker singled up the middle. Chris Fryer followed with a slow infield single that allowed Cain to come home with the go-ahead run and sent Parker to third.

Lamesa countered in the bottom of the stanza when Johnny Gonzales walked and Pancho Morin singled to put the would-be tying run aboard. Gregg Hogg hit into a fielder's choice that caught Morin at second, but Johnny Gonzales scored when the Tigers went for a double play and the relay throw got past first-sacker Parker. Danny Gonzales then hit into another fielder's choice for the second out, and when Greathouse ran down Joe Lopez's foul fly ball to short left field, the game was over.

Greathouse's grab was just one of several fine fielding efforts by the Tigers. Jay Mayo knocked down a bloop single to short left and threw out a runner coming home in the first inning. In the 11th, Gilbert Arredondo hit a deep fly ball that popped out of rightfielder Webb's glove but centerfielder Bobby Velasquez alertly scooped it out of the air for a key out.

Snyder had fashioned a 4-0 lead in the top of the fourth. The Tigers used a couple of walks and singles, and several wild pitches to score the runs.

Lamesa countered with four hits and used three errors to tally five runs in the fifth inning, going ahead when relief pitcher Cain was charged with a balk.

The Tigers came back to lock the totals again in the sixth as Webb launched a home run over the left field fence, 5-5.

Snyder took the lead back in the seventh. Catcher Jimmy Hunter provided the go-ahead single to score Bobby Velasquez who had reached on a basehit and advanced on a single by Bollinger.

Lamesa was able to push the game into extra innings in the bottom of the stanza, however. Cain had gotten first-up Chris Mason to fly out, but walked Gilbert Arredondo and Kenneth Williams to put runners in position. Snyder coaches then brought in Bollinger and he struck out Johnny Gonzales and Morin. Bollinger's final pitch got past Hunter, however, and Morin reached first base safely while Arredondo came across with the tying run. Bollinger got out of the inning by taking Hogg unassisted.

Bollinger, now 5-0 on the season, started the game but left the mound after two innings, only to retake the mound in the seventh. He gave up five hits and struck out 10 batters. Cain pitched three innings and allowed three hits. Webb went the other one and one-third and did not allow a hit.

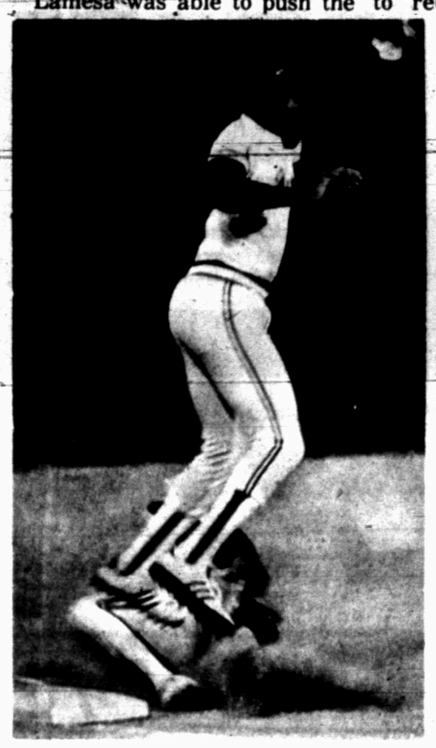

Bollinger had struggled early on the mound, but pitched well when he returned.

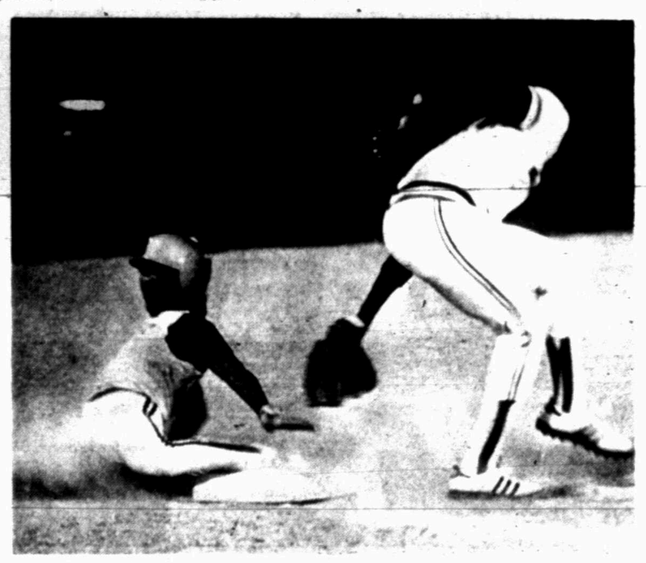

"I felt good when I came back in," said last year's district MVP. "Maybe the fact that I was under more pressure had something to do with it. I think I throw better when I know the pressure is on."

Johnny Gonzales, 4-3, went 10 and one-third innings for Lamesa. He gave up eight hits and struck out 14 batters. Arredondo pitched one and two-thirds innings and allowed one hit.

Snyder collected nine hits; two each by Bollinger and Parker, and one apiece from Webb, Velasquez, Hunter, Fryer and Greathouse. Lopez led Lamesa with three singles. Johnny Gonzales had two.

Lamesa, 5-8 now and 0-1 in district play, will make up its rained-out game with Pecos at 7 p.m. Thursday in Lamesa.

SAFE AT THIRD -- Snyder's Bobby Velasquez slides under the would-be tag at third during Tuesday night's District 2-4A game with Lamesa. Snyder won the contest 8-7 in 12 innings and will now host Fort Stockton in a makeup game here Thursday. Shown for Lamesa is Kenneth Williams. (SDN Staff Photos by Bill McClellan)

2-4A baseball roundup

Snyder and Pecos are both in the district win column today, but got that way using different means.

Snyder went the long route, nipping Lamesa 8-7 in 12 innings. Pecos went the short path. The Eagles slapped Monahans 16-6 in five.

Those outcomes, coupled with Andrews' 4-0 shutout of Fort Stockton, leaves Snyder, Pecos and the Mustangs as the only undefeated teams in 2-4A. Andrews leads the standings with a 2-0 mark. Snyder and Pecos, whose opening games were rained out last Friday, are 1-0.

In makeup games Thursday, Snyder hosts Fort Stockton at 8 and Lamesa entertains Pecos at 7.

Shay Morris, author of last week's 15-0 no-hitter against Monahans, hurled a one-hitter in helping the 8-6 Mustangs past Fort Stockton on Tuesday.

Elias Peyan was the WP for Pecos while Charles Bollinger took mound honors for the Tigers of Snyder.

Freeman challenges some of state's best

AUSTIN -- Snyder standout Kyle Freeman will compete in the shot put and discus at the Texas Relays this weekend here.

Freeman has thrown the shot 55-7 and the discus 170-2. Qualifying distances for the prestigious meet are 55-0 and 161-0 respectively.

"As well as Kyle has been throwing, if he does have a chance to get back to state, I think this will be to his advantage," said Coach Kevin Wiseman. "He's never been to Memorial Stadium or Austin before and competing in a track meet there is a little awesome if you've never done it."

Freeman is scheduled to throw the shot at 3 p.m. Friday and the discus 10 a.m. Saturday.

The events will be held against other qualifiers from across the state. There are no class divisions such as 4A or 5A.

"He'll be competing against kids from 5A as well as 4A and all the others and it should be a good test for him," said the coach.

The rest of the Tiger track team will be competing in the Oil Patch Relays at Andrews on Thursday.

Tigers will compete in Oil Patch Relays

ANDREWS -- Snyder's Tigers will compete with Andrews, Big Spring, Lamesa and Lovington, N.M. in the Oil Patch Relays here Thursday.

Snyder eighth grade boys will also vie in the single-day event.

The slate opens at 5 p.m. with the high jump, pole vault and discus. The shot and long jump are scheduled at 7, to be followed by the 400 meter relay, shuttle-hurdle relay, sprint medley, distance medley, 3200 relay, 800 relay and 1600 relay.

There are no individual running events.

"This is a chance for everybody to run in the relays. It's a team concept," said Snyder Coach Kevin Wiseman. "The emphasis is on team. It's a long track season and this meet comes at a good time for us. We're just looking for a good time and to enjoy ourselves. There's no pressure at this meet."

Even the field events are held as team events. Each school may enter three individuals in each field event and the winning school is determined by how its competitors' distances or heights measure up when added together.

"We're going to make sure we have three in every event," said Wiseman. "It's going to be difficult for us to compete in some events like the shot and discus, because Kyle (Freeman) won't be at the meet, and he's one of the best in the area."

Freeman will be competing in this weekend's Texas Relays at Austin.

Wiseman said he was hoping Reggie Price, who suffered a head injury several weeks ago, would be back to compete in the pole vault, however.

Sutton leaves Razorbacks for Wildcats of Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - Eddie Sutton says he "would have crawled all the way to Lexington" for a shot at being University of Kentucky basketball coach. So when the Wildcats called, Sutton jumped.

Sutton, who two weeks ago told the Arkansas Legislature he wanted to retire with the Razorbacks, took charge Tuesday of Kentucky's Wildcats, winning unanimous approval as successor to Joe B. Hall.

Sutton, 49, boosted Arkansas from the basement to the top of the Southwest Conference since 1975, capping his career with a string of nine 20-win seasons and trips to the NCAA Tournament.

"They couldn't get Bobby (Knight) or Dean (Smith) or Denny (Crum) or John (Thompson), so I guess I was next on the list," Sutton joked, referring, respectively, to the coaches of Indiana, North Carolina, Louisville and Georgetown.

"All my life, I have grown to the point where this is where I belong," he told about 150 reporters, Kentucky administrators and trustees and members of the Athletics Association board. "This is where I want to be."

Sutton said the selection committee, headed by Kentucky Athletic Director Cliff Hagan and President Otis Singletary, contacted him Monday. Before Georgetown and Villanova tipped off for the NCAA title in Rupp Arena Monday night, he said, it was all wrapped up except for Tuesday's vote by the Athletics Association board.

"When Dr. Singletary called me, believe me, I would have crawled all the way to Lexington," said Sutton, sporting a Wildcat necktie.

"Fortunately, I was already here for the Final Four. If you had seen the smile on my face (Monday night) at the game, you would have known. This is the No. 1 coaching job in America, and that includes the NBA."

Sutton, who coached five years at Creighton before going to Arkansas, started out at Arkansas with 17-9 and 19-9 seasons.

Shot clock is approved

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - Shoot it or lose it, the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee decided.

The panel's decision Tuesday means Monday night's championship game - won by Villanova, master of the delay game - will be the last without the 45-second shot clock. The clock - forcing teams to shoot or forfeit the ball within 45 seconds of taking possession - will stay on the whole game, all season long.

Twenty-five conferences - 19 of them Division I - experimented with the clock this season, but it was not used in the NCAA Tournament.

During a wrap-up meeting after the Final Four in Lexington, the Rules Committee also stiffened penalties for intentional fouls, banned printed matter on T-shirts and made it a rule that the score is final once a referee leaves the floor after a game.

That had been an interpretation of the rules for years, said Edward F. Steitz, secretary-editor of the committee. The committee made it official after confusion resulted in a victory being awarded to, taken away from and then given back to West Virginia.

Approve budget cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget negotiators for the White House and the Senate Republican leadership are turning to the "hot button" issues of education, defense and Social Security after reaching tentative agreement on a package of farm program cuts designed to save about $14 billion through 1988.

"They seem to have worked something out" on the controversial farm issue, Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., told reporters Tuesday evening. Other sources close to the talks confirmed the tentative agreement and said it would save slightly less than $3 billion from price supports, crop insurance and other farm programs next year, and an estimated $14 billion through 1988.

Several other sources stressed that the agreement was contingent upon completion of an overall deficit reduction package of $55 billion to $60 billion next year and roughly $300 billion over three years, including a sizeable cutback in President Reagan's defense buildup.

Even so, the apparent resolution of the farm issue was the first solid indication of progress since the Reagan administration and the Senate GOP leadership began an intensive effort last week to resolve their differences on a 1986 budget.

Without changes in spending — or a tax increase that Reagan has ruled out — deficits are projected at $230 billion next year.

Word of progress also came at a critical time in the secret talks, with Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole saying he intends to bring a deficit reduction plan to the Senate floor by April 22, even if no agreement is reached by then with the White House.

Dole said the goal of the talks remains to come up with a package of spending cuts that "the White House can support and not just tacitly approve." But barring that, he said, "we'll do the best we can to get a fairly good consensus and then bring it up" on the floor of the Senate.

The farm proposal would cut $8 billion from federal farm price supports over three years, according to a source who asked not to be indentified.

Soldiers release inmates

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli soldiers released 752 inmates from a prison camp today as part of a plan to withdraw from southern Lebanon, Israel Radio said. Other soldiers and a convoy of armored vehicles raided a Shiite Moslem town near Tyre.

Timur Goksel, a spokesman for U.N. peacekeeping forces in southern Lebanon said an Israeli force entered the village of Teir Zebna 8½ miles east of Tyre, rounded up 300 men for questioning, and searched houses and shops.

He said Ghanaian soldiers from the U.N. force were present. Security forces, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the Israeli force consisted of 200 soldiers and about 35 vehicles, including a bulldozer used in past raids to demolish houses where the Israelis claim they found weapons.

Israeli media said another 1,000 to 1,200 inmates of the Ansar prison camp were bused Tuesday to a new detention center inside Israel. Defense officials were quoted as saying their release would depend on whether guerrillas continue to attack Israeli forces as they complete their withdrawal.

Israel Radio said in a report from the prison camp, 12 miles north of the Israeli border, that soldiers evacuated the camp and have begun dismantling the barbed wire compound built soon after Israel invaded Lebanon in June 1982.

In keeping with the inmates' request, Israel bused about 450 of them out of the occupation zone, the radio said. The rest elected to return to their homes in the occupied territory, it said.

Many of the inmates sang nationalist songs and declared that they would fight the Israelis, the radio reported.

Three-vehicle mishap on College Tuesday

A three-vehicle accident was reported in Snyder Tuesday, one of two accidents investigated by police during the day.

The three-vehicle mishap occurred at the intersection of 27th St. and College Ave. Vehicles involved were a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Thomas Solis Jr. of 1303 Ave. N, a 1980 Volvo driven by Louis Benavides of Lubbock and a 1978 Mercury driven by Vera Meador McClanahan of 1918 Coleman Ave.

That accident occurred at 10:56 a.m.

The day's second mishap was reported at 6:33 p.m. at the intersection of 30th St. and College Ave.

Involved in it were a 1980 Buick driven by Edward Harvey Harrell of Rt. 1, Snyder and a 1964 Rambler and utility trailer driven by Lenard Oscar Allums of 2911 College Ave.

No injuries resulted from either accident.

disturbance at the prison Tuesday morning.

He was convicted in 1983 in Sweetwater of the 1977 shooting of his common law wife, Caroline Davis Williams, on March 15, 1977.

Anderson County sheriff's officers managed to stop Williams driving a white pickup truck into Palestine shortly after midnight Tuesday night.

Reports indicate officers chased the pickup a few miles before stopping it around 12:30 a.m.

House, Senate join together

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressure on the Reagan administration to overcome Japanese trade barriers is gaining momentum in Congress, where the House joined the Senate in clamoring for retaliatory tariffs and quotas if needed.

"This tells the Japanese and the president that enough is enough," Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., declared Tuesday as the House approved 394-19 a nonbinding resolution urging "all appropriate action" by Reagan to end an alleged freezeout of numerous U.S. products.

In the Senate, the Finance Committee voted 12-4 to force Reagan to use his trade powers to push the Japanese for market access. The bill would compel Reagan to strike back with tariffs and quotas unless he could obtain compensation for sales lost because of alleged Japanese "unfair trade practices."

It was a stronger version of a non-binding measure approved on the floor Thursday.

Sweetwater scored a third division (good) for their concert performance and a second division (excellent) in the sightreading competition.

Lakeview scored third division ratings in both phases of the competition.

Earning a first division rating in the junior high competition in addition to the Snyder group was Colorado City Junior High which scored a first division in the concert performance and a second division in the sightreading.

Prison violence occurs Tuesday

Meanwhile, authorities early today recaptured convicted murderer Billy Wayne Williams, 35, who was discovered missing from the Coffield Unit about noon on Tuesday, said TDC officials said.

Anderson County sheriff's officers found Williams driving a white pickup truck into Palestine, sheriff's spokeswoman Barbara Hart said. The vehicle was reported stolen Tuesday night by a Tennesee Colony man, she said.

Guthrie said the officers chased the pickup a few miles before stopping it about 12:30 a.m.

"They chased him a short distance adn he ran the pickup into something -I don't know what," Guthrie said.

Authorities said the inmate was not injured.

Sheriff's officers had set up roadblocks Tuesday during their search.

At one roadblock, a deputy suffered minor injuries Tuesday evening after he was struck by a hit-and-run driver, but authorities said today the prisoner was not driving the car.

Another Coffield inmate, Roland Griffin, was in stable condition after being stabbed about 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Guthrie said Griffin, serving a 20-year sentence for burglary from Dallas County, was stabbed with a seven-inch, handmade knife as he walked into a dayroom. A suspect has been placed in pre-hearing detention, Guthrie said.

Griffin was stabbed once in the abdomen and was reported to be in stable condition at a Palestine hospital, Guthrie said.

There have been 68 non-fatal stabbings and eight inmate deaths this year within the Texas prison system, he said.

One killed in escape attempt

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A murder suspect who "should have been shackled so tight he could hardly breathe" was hospitalized under heavy guard today after an escape attempt in which he killed an attorney and wounded a bailiff, officials said.

Ronnie Lee Gardner was being taken to the Metropolitan Hall of Justice for a hearing on a first-degree murder charge when the state's key witness "walked up and handed him a gun," said Salt Lake County Sheriff Pete Hayward.

Gardner, 23, was shot in the shoulder by a prison guard before he opened fire and was surrounded and captured moments later in front of the downtown Metropolitan Hall of Justice, Hayward said.

"It appeared to be well-planned," he said, adding that a bag containing men's clothing was found under a sink in the women's basement restroom.

An unarmed woman arrested on foot a mile away and identified by Hayward as Darcy Perry, 34, was under arrest today and likely would face a capital homicide charge for slipping Garner the gun, Hayward said.

Gardner, who had a record of escapes, had two prison guards accompanying him instead of the usual one and his hands shackled at the waist, and Hayward said, "He should have been shackled so tight he could hardly breathe."

Shot in the shoulder, and with blood streaming down his clothes, Gardner confronted bailiff Nicholas G. Kirk, 58, who was unarmed and had just stepped off an elevator, the sheriff said. Kirk was shot below the belt buckle.

Gardner then fled into a clerk's office, where attorneys Michael J. Burdell, 36, and Robert Macri were getting court files.

"He had the gun. Blood was starting to come out and he said, 'I'm hit,'" Macri said. "I just thought it was a bad April Fool's joke."

Gardner fired and "I smelled the powder and felt the breeze of the passing bullet" that hit Burdell in the eye, Macri said. "Mike said, 'Oh my God' and that was it." Burdell died in surgery 45 minutes later.

After running up a staircase, Gardner left the building and was surrounded by five or six policemen with drawn weapons. Ordered to drop his revolver, Gardner tossed it aside and obeyed another order to lie down.

Hayward said four shots were fired in all, and that one from Gardner's gun narrowly missed a clerk in the basement office.

Gardner was in serious condition today and under heavy guard at University of Utah Hospital, from which he once escaped, said hospital spokesman John Dwan. "Security is a very real concern," Dwan said.

Kirk was in critical condition today at LDS Hospital, officials said.

Gardner had been charged in the death of Melvyn J. Otterstrom, 37, who was shot in the face during a robbery at a Salt Lake City tavern Oct. 9. He was being taken to the courthouse Tuesday for a hearing on a motion.

He faces 16 felony charges in offenses between Aug. 6, when he escaped from the hospital, and his arrest in November, authorities said.

Gardner was captured in November at the house where Ms. Perry was arrested Tuesday, Hayward said.

Grass blaze extinguished

Snyder firemen were called to extinguish a grass fire east of the city Tuesday night.

No significant property damage resulted from the blaze which was reported near the Beacon Motel on the East Highway at 10 p.m.

Loan applications local for housing corporation

Home loan applications may be made locally for some $15.5 million offered to persons of low to moderate income in the 15-county area served through the West Central Texas Housing Finance Corporation.

Six lenders in the 15-county area are accepting these applications, and Snyder's Homestate Savings is affiliated with one of these--Drew Mortgage Company of Abilene.

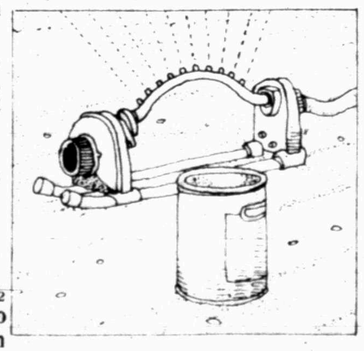

The funds are designed to aid individuals with an annual family income of less than $40,000 and who are determined to be "first time" home owners under provisions of the loan program.

Get more from your garden

Techniques to make it all easier

By Dick Raymond

I've been gardening all my life, yet I think of myself as a lazy gardener. If there's an easier way, I go for it.

There are certain essential steps of garden care, and I've got some suggestions for simplifying them. If you make the steps easy, I always figure, there's more likelihood they'll get done.

Let's say some bugs invade my garden. I don't panic. I wait a day or so, and see what happens. No reason to spray at first sign. Plants are rugged and can withstand some damage. Garden-fresh vegetables taste so good there's no point throwing away slightly damaged goods. Simply cut off the insect-bitten parts and enjoy the rest.

In each region, there are one or two insects to take seriously. For me, it's the cabbage worm. They can wreak havoc with broccoli and cauliflower as well as with cabbage plants. I spray with Dipel, a non-toxic substance that does the job beautifully. I also dust and spray my tomatoes and potatoes for beetles and mites. But for the most part, I take a wait-and-see attitude.

Under-watering is the biggest cause of garden failure. Plants need that weekly inch. There are lots of good watering devices for sale. Buy one. Set the sprinkler up and forget it for a few hours.

Use mulch by mid-summer, especially around your tomato plants, which need lots of moisture. This, too, saves on watering time. Better yet, plant much of your garden, as I do, in wide rows — with seeds or transplants from 16 inches to 3 feet apart. As long as plants are thinned to the point where they'll just be touching outer leaves when mature, this crowding or "clustering" will shade the ground, keep the soil cool and moist, prevent evaporation, produce healthier crops, and stagger the harvest over a longer period.

As I pick the first mature head lettuce or carrot, the younger ones have more room to grow. I can sit in one place and pick more within my arm's reach when I'm surrounded by wide rows — instead of having to skip like a jack rabbit up and down rows planted "single file."

Judge voids results from sheriff's race

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — Because of a large number of contested ballots by Texas A&M students, a state district judge has voided the results of November's Brazos County sheriff's race and ordered candidates Howard Hill and Ronnie Miller to race each other a second time.

Judge Arthur Lesher of Houston would not comment after he ordered a second election Tuesday, but said in his order he found a enough illegal votes to change the outcome of the race that Miller won.

Miller's attorney, Chris Kling, says he will ask the Court of Civil Appeals in Houston to prohibit the county from calling another election — tentatively scheduled for Aug. 10 — until appeals have been exhausted.

Miller will remain in office in the meantime, the secretary of state's office said Tuesday.

Hill, a Democrat, lost to his Republican opponent by 162 votes in the general election. He filed suit in December, claiming that more than 450 people — mostly Texas A&M University students — voted illegally.

During the trial, the list of challenged voters dropped to about 390.

"I'm elated right now," Hill said after Tuesday's ruling. "We felt sure all the time that we were right about the illegal voting."

But Miller said he felt the ruling, which came after five days of hearings, was premature.

"I don't think that this thing was carried to the point it should have been carried," Miller said. "We had the list (of challenged voters) down from about 480 to less than 400. I think we should have gone through the whole list of voters to see if they did vote illegally."

Hill's motion for a new election was based on his contention that more than 200 people voted without trying to register. He also claimed that some voters registered late, voted in the wrong precinct or voted after their names had been purged from voter rolls.

Because Lesher declared only the general election void, only Hill and Miller are eligible to run in a special election, state officials said.

During World War II, in 1941, Britain declared war on Finland, Romania and Hungary.

Plant turns garbage into energy, dollars

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — They come from Los Angeles and New York, from Canada and Germany, to see this city's 13-year-old trash-to-steam plant, hoping to find how to dispose of their own city's garbage.

"I should start charging, as an additional revenue source, for tours," Mayor Stephen Reed said, jokingly, of the two-furnace facility.

The plant, located on a knoll on the south side of town, can burn 740 tons of garbage daily, the amount that would be produced by a city of 423,000. Harrisburg itself has a population of about 55,000.

The heat produces steam that is sold for revenue. One day officials hope the plant will generate electricity, too.

"We're going to see a good many of the plants built in this country during the rest of this century," said Charles Johnson, technical director of the National Solid Wastes Management Association in Washington.

Although less than 5 percent of the nation's trash is now hauled to such plants, they could be handling 25 percent of the country's garbage within 10 years while landfill space continues to diminish, he said.

Getting rid of trash is becoming an acute problem in many communities. In Pennsylvania alone the number of operating landfills has plummeted from more than 1,000 in 1970 to about 115 today. Sites close when they reach capacity or do not meet regulations. New landfills are often blocked by opposition from local residents.

"We are, in fact, promoting trash to steam," said David Mashek, a Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources spokesman. "They will probably increase in importance in future years." Trash-powered facilities are being planned in some suburban Philadelphia counties and in Erie, he said.

The city-run plant in Harrisburg is "sort of a pioneer" that has become "rather famous," Johnson said. It is one of about 12 large trash-to-steam plants in the United States that burn more than 500 tons of waste daily.

Trucks pull up to the facility and dump cereal boxes, beer bottles, busted toilet seats and all the other elements of household garbage into a 30-foot deep pit, with refuse spilling over into a holding room.

Capital murder filed in socialite's murder

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — Capital murder complaints filed against two suspects in the shotgun slaying of socialite Grace Beadel allege the victim's step-grandson promised to pay $10,000 to have his grandparents murdered.

Authorities filed the complaint late Saturday night with Justice of the Peace Joe Bob Morgan.

Lawmen allege the execution was planned by Michael Gillett and carried out by Gary Zachary in hopes Gillette "would gain a substantial sum of money from the estate" of wealthy businessman J.R. Beadel Sr. Gillett and Zachary are still at large, officials said.

Grace Beadel, 73, bled to death within minutes after she was shot at close range March 18. She and her husband had answered their home's doorbell together when a gunman fired a shotgun through the screen door.

Beadel, 80, was slightly injured in the attack.

The complaint alleges 20-year-old Zachary was the trigger man. Both Gillett and Zachary are residents of the Dallas area and were last seen Sunday afternoon in the western Idaho farming community of Middleton, Canyon County Deputy Sheriff Chris Smith of Middleton said.

Smith said the men were visiting relatives of Gillett's ex-wife.

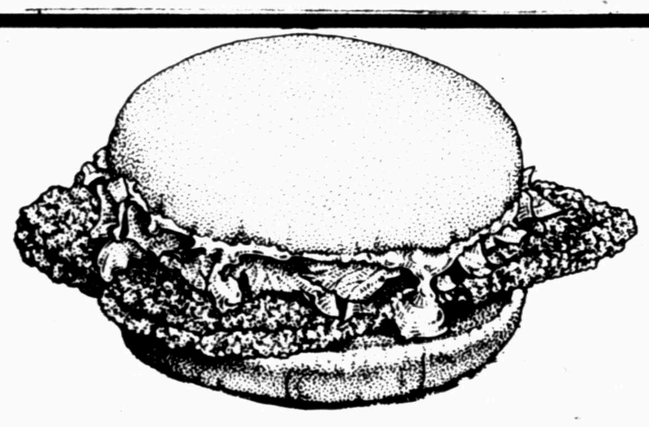

"We flew a light airplane over a mountainous area (Monday) where we thought they might be, but we found nothing," Smith said. "We're really at a standstill unless we get something more to go on. They could be miles from here by now."

The pair was still believed to be in a stolen 1983 Toyota pickup truck that they were driving Sunday, Smith said.

The electric company can help me take care of myself. (If I ever need any help.)

Let's face it, at my age things can sneak up on you, and you may need some help. The electric company understands that.

That's why they'll arrange it so your bill payment can wait until your social security check arrives.

And their Special Energy Program makes sure someone doesn't overlook monthly bills. There's even a program to help provide essential energy services in a real emergency.

Right now, I don't need all this help to take care of myself. But I get a kick out of knowing it's there.
