Hance Denies Pipeline Bill Disputes States' Rights

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

U.S. REP. Kent Hance, known in his district as an ardent states' rights advocate, emphatically contends his legislation for federal suspension of California laws to allow completion of a controversial pipeline is not hypocritical.

"I'm a strong supporter of states' rights," the Lubbock Democrat insisted during an interview with The Avalanche-Journal.

"But," he qualified, "I think the state has a right to do what it wants to if it only affects that state. But for one state to be an obstructionist to the rest of the country is a violation of our interstate commerce clause in the Constitution."

Hance complains that California, through regulatory bureaucracy, is impeding completion of a California-to-Texas crude oil pipeline that would benefit the entire nation.

So, he recently introduced legislation that, if passed, would allow the federal government to waive California regulations impeding the $1 billion project.

Hance doesn't view his bill as a contradiction of his states' rights philosophy.

"The bill does not say that the federal government will impose laws on you requiring you to do things," Hance said. "It only says you can set aside regulations that are holding up the pipeline. The bill is not adding any controls to anyone."

The freshman Congressman added that responsibilities accompany states' rights. "What if in World War II California had said, 'We just don't want to send any soldiers?' Does that mean it can ignore the draft?"

Hance and Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio), which is building the pipeline to stretch from Long Beach, Calif., to Midland, claim California Gov. Jerry Brown arbitrarily is holding up the project by not granting permits.

Brown counters that the company does not want to obey state anti-pollution laws. "They don't want to clean up their garbage," Brown has said.

Hance's bill would pre-empt the remaining California permits the company has not obtained and would shorten court challenges against the project.

"The public out there is for the bill," Hance said.

"It's just the environmental groups and Gov. Brown" who are impediments, he said.

As for Brown's contention that Sohio, which already has secured more than 700 federal, state and local permits for the project, does not want to meet air quality control standards, Hance said:

"If the Environmental Protection Agency says the standards are being met, I think that pretty well" means they are.

"If the EPA says you're clean, you're more than clean," he added.

Also, Hance said, Sohio testified during Monday's hearing of his legislation that the company will install $80 million worth of air pollution control equipment that will leave the Los Angeles Basin with better quality air than it has now.

Hance claims Brown's motivation in

Amin's Men Force Back Tanzanians

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Tanzanian forces pounded the southern approaches to Kampala with heavy artillery fire Sunday after apparently being stopped by unexpected resistance from fresh Ugandan troops, exile sources and residents of the Ugandan capital said.

Travelers arriving from northeastern Uganda reported, meanwhile, that President Idi Amin's soldiers were rounding up members of two Christian tribes that have been persecuted repeatedly in the past for alleged disloyalty to the Moslem Ugandan strongman. Their fate was unknown.

Libyans Desert Amin

Amin's harsh eight-year rule seemed in its final hours Saturday when the last of an estimated 2,600 Libyan troops defending him were reported to have fled toward an air base in the north, evidently to fly back to Libya.

But exile sources said Sunday the invasion force of Tanzanian soldiers and anti-Amin Ugandan rebels had run into new opposition — the Bondo Battalion, loyal troops recently brought down from Amin's home area of West Nile province in northwestern Uganda.

These sources said the reinforcements were believed to have stalled the invaders along the road to Kampala from Entebbe, site of Uganda's international airport 21 miles to the south. The airport was reported captured by the invaders last week.

Though the invasion force, estimated to number some 7,000, has been in Kampala's southern and western outskirts for several days, it has not launched a final assault. Some observers said the Tanzanian commanders might be probing the capital first to ensure there were no traps or unexpected pockets of opposition.

Amin still has one other loyal battalion that has not seen action, exile sources say.

DERAILMENT SCENE — This is an aerial view of the Louisville and Nashville freight train that derailed and exploded Sunday, scattering the train just past the Yellow River near Crestview, Fla. By early Sunday afternoon about 5,000 persons had been evacuated from the surrounding area due to a cloud of burning material that ignited during the derailment. (AP Laserphoto)

Derailment Causes Train Explosions

Toxic Fumes Force Evacuations

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (AP) — Tank cars carrying acetone exploded and burned when a train loaded with hazardous chemicals derailed here Sunday, and thousands were evacuated as the wind spread thick yellow sulfur fumes over rural northwest Florida.

One injury was reported. A fisherman trekking through the woods near the wreck inhaled some of the fumes and was hospitalized for observation.

The accident involved a Louisville and Nashville Railroad freight train. The Federal Railroad Administration in February described the L&N, a subsidiary of Seaboard Coastline Railroad, as having "the worst record of any railroad in the country" in handling hazardous materials. Sixteen people died last year when an L&N train derailed in Wavery, Tenn.

80 Square Miles Evacuated

Okaloosa County Civil Defense Director Tom Nichols estimated that 5,000 people had fled homes or campsites in the 80-square-mile evacuation area, which includes several villages and about hald of the Blackwater River State Forest.

"It's a rural area and houses are scattered all through it," Florida Highway Patrol superviser Ray Belcher said. "It's about half woods, half farms."

The evacuees were placed for the night in schools, fire halls, a National Guard armory, and other public buildings.

Civil Defense officials put the approximately 9,000 residents of nearby Crestview on alert for possible evacuation as approaching thunderstorms threatened a wind-shift that would push the fumes in that direction.

Derailed On Wooden Trestle

The train derailed on a wooden trestle over the Yellow River shortly after 8 a.m. CST, scattering 27 tankers and one car of livestock feed along the tracks at the edge of the river, Bill Heffren, a spokesman for the railroad in Louisville, Ky., said.

The derailed cars carried sulfur, anhydrous ammonia, acetone, methanol, chlorine and carbolic acid, Heffren said. Except for the feed, "every bit of it is considered hazardous material," he said.

Civil defense officials also said there was liquefied petroleum gas on the train, though apparently not in the derailed cars.

Thick Smoke Widely Seen

Heffren said the acetone exploded and the sulfur caught fire. The thick smoke was visible for miles.

The chlorine tanker landed in the river, but wasn't believed to be leaking, Heffren said. The carbolic acid car was hanging partway off the burning wooden bridge.

Eight derailed cars sat atop the bridge, Heffren said.

The Air Force sent a fire control team from nearby Eglin Air Force Base, and it was not until they were able to get their equipment through the thick forest that the fire was put out. The railroad called in hazard-control crews from Jacksonville and Mobile, Ala.

Federal safety and pollution experts from Atlanta also were called to the scene.

The 118-car train was en route from New Orleans to Chattahoochee, Fla., where it would have been taken over by a Seaboard Coast Line crew for the run to Jacksonville, Heffren said.

The wreck site was on L&N's Pensacola and Atlantic subdivision, a stretch that the Federal Railroad Administration had just inspected for safety days ago, Charles Castner, a spokesman for L&N in Louisville, said.

"We know the train was moving at 30 mph in a 35 mph speed zone," Castner said.

Only Thursday, the entire L&N system had been placed under a "slow order" for trains carrying hazardous materials. The 30 mph speed limit on this subdivision was lifted Friday, however, after inspectors for the Federal Railroad Administration walked the tracks and reported them safe.

Slightly more than a year ago, some 3,500 people were evacuated near Youngstown, 60 miles east-southeast of Crestview, when an Atlanta & St. Andrews Bay Railroad Co. train derailed and released a cloud of chlorine gas that killed eight persons.

In November 1977, an L&N freight derailed in a suburb of Pennsacola and ruptured a tank car of anhydrous ammonia. Two people died after inhaling the fumes.

Loch Ness 'Cousin' Mystifies Soviets

By NIKKI FINKE

UST-NERA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A snake-headed, animal-eating creature said to glide through the frigid waters of a Siberian lake is mystifying Soviets who speculate it might be a relative of Scotland's Loch Ness monster.

Geologists, hunters and Siberian natives have reported sightings, but the creature has so far eluded scientific explorers in its lair deep in the coldest reaches of the eastern Soviet Union, 150 miles south of this gold-mining town.

While the creature is well-known among locals, it has come to wider attention because of a best-selling book about Siberia, "The Oymyakonsky Meridian," by Soviet journalist Anatoly Pankov.

The book describes the peculiarities and history of the Oymyakon region, the world's coldest inhabited place.

Pankov reports the many sightings of a creature in Lake Labinkir in the Siberian province of Yakutia, about 250 miles north of the Soviet eastern coast on the Sea of Okhotsk.

In an interview, Pankov said the first "trustworthy" sighting of the creature was in the 1960s when a group of geologists said they heard a "big splashing noise" and saw a long-necked creature with the head of a snake rising out of the murky lake's surface.

The animal glided about and "with a sound much like a child's cry," disappeared back into the 150-foot waters, Pankov said.

Other geologists claimed that while they were walking on a thin layer of ice over the lake they saw a long, grayish animal under the surface, unlike anything they had seen before, Pankov said.

In another incident at Labinkir, a group of reindeer herders claimed they saw a bird flying along the lake's surface and a giant pair of jaws emerge from the water "to snap it up," he said.

But he said the most spectacular sighting took place when a hunter shot a goose near Labinkir and sent his dog to fetch it. Suddenly, out of the depths of

Wounded Gunman Eludes Authorities

PAXTON, Ill. (AP) — An armed, wounded man eluded authorities Sunday after he escaped a fierce gun battle that left five persons dead, including two police officers and two of the gunman's brothers.

Only a few state and local police cars continued late Sunday to search the farmland of east-central Illinois for Monroe Lampkin, named in a murder warrant after the Saturday night gun battle, police said. More than 40 officers were involved in the hunt earlier.

Two of Lampkin's brothers Cleveland, 46, of Harvey, Ill., and Davis, 32, hometown unknown, were killed in the gunfire exchange, authorities said. A third was taken into custody.

Police found a two-mile trail of blood leading east-southeast from the site of the shootout along Interstate 57.

Search Continues Today

The search will continue today, although State Police Sgt. C.O. Struble said authorities stopped an airborne search early Sunday afternoon. He said tracking dogs were also called back and the number of men searching was reduced.

Major Joseph Ginter of the state police said more than 30 shots were fired Saturday night after State Trooper Michael McCarter, 32, and patrolman William Caisse, 32, of the Paxton Police Department stopped four speeding vehicles on Interstate 57 about two miles south of Paxton.

Struble said both Caisse and McCarter were shot and killed at close range. McCarter had been wounded in the leg and was in Caisse's squad car when his killer apparently opened the door and fired at him with a high-powered rifle, he said. Caisse's body was found beside the car.

McCarter's brother-in-law, Donald Vice, 43, was also shot to death. He had been riding with McCarter, Ginter said.

Paxton police officer Larry Hale, 27, of Paxton was wounded and listed in fair condition at a Champaign hospital Sunday.

Warrant May Be Faulty

Court papers used in obtaining the murder warrant alleged Monroe Lampkin, whose age and hometown were not available, shot McCarter, but authorities said Sunday night that Monroe Lampkin may have shot Vice instead.

Department of Law Enforcement spokesman Les Pauley said officials believe Davis Lampkin may have killed McCarter and Caisse.

Cleveland and Davis Lampkin were free pending appeal of a federal firearms conviction, but there were no warrants for the arrest of any of the brothers, state police investigator Clay Boyer said.

Another brother, Leroy Lampkin, died in a shootout with police in September 1976, police said.

Wounded Officer Shoots Brothers

Ginter said Hale responded to the scene after receiving a plea for help from the wounded officers. Ginter said Hale apparently shot and mortally wounded the two Lampkin brothers, one of whom died in a Champaign hospital about three hours after the gun battle.

McCarter and Hale fired their service revolvers, Ginter said, but Caisse's gun was never used.

Boyer said three .357-caliber Magnum pistols were found in two pickup trucks and a Thunderbird that McCarter had stopped.

When the shooting began, Ginter said, two of the four vehicles that had been stopped fled the scene.

One Dies, Two Hurt When Car Overturns

IDALOU (Special) — An Abernathy youth died, and two other Abernathy teen-agers were injured Sunday in a one-car rollover on a county dirt road about five miles northwest of Idalou.

Jimmy Olivarez, 17, died at 8:05 p.m. Sunday while undergoing treatment for head injuries in the emergency room at Methodist Hospital about two hours after the 6:10 p.m. mishap. Idalou Justice of the Peace Earl Yarbrough pronounced the youth dead at the hospital.

Leroy Eldredge Johnson, 17, and Josephine Delores Badley, 15, late Sunday were in undetermined condition in the emergency room of Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Johnson reportedly sustained a fractured leg and lacerations, and Miss Badley was reported to have suffered chest and internal injuries in the accident.

EMS crews from Idalou and Lubbock transported the three to the Lubbock hospitals.

According to Department of Public Safety reports, Johnson apparently lost control of a 1973 Oldsmobile and the car rolled over several times.

EMS attendants at the scene said the three had been thrown from the vehicle.

Services for Olivarez are pending with Chambers Funeral Home of Abernathy.

In another area fatality, a 15-year-old Groom youth was killed and five other teen-agers injured in a one-car rollover about 5:30 p.m. Sunday east of Groom.

Marion Ledwig, 15, was dead at 6 p.m. on arrival at Groom Memorial Hospital. The injured, all of Groom, are Madina Baggerman, 17; Carol Ledwig, 17; Betsy Krizan, 17; and Danielle Byrd, 16. All were in good condition late Sunday in Groom Memorial Hospital.

DPS reports show that the Jeep was southbound on a caliche road when the vehicle apparently skidded to the right, struck a six-foot embankment and flipped. All occupants were thrown from the vehicle.

Tech Ready To Pioneer Solar Irrigation Plan

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

HOPE FOR survival is on the horizon for dryland Pecos farmers if federal funding is received for an experimental solar irrigation project designed by Texas Tech University.

Tech has requested almost $4.5 million to build, install and operate the system that would use 102 modules to collect sunlight to generate power for pump irrigation systems in the dusty Reeves County town.

Dr. William M. Marcy, project director, said the project could begin June 1 if funding is granted. "Our chances (for funding) are better than 50-50," he added.

Although 17 groups have requested solar contracts from the Department of Energy, Tech is the only university to apply and its project is only one of two agricultural plans submitted.

About six contracts will be awarded between Sunday and May 1, he said.

Farm Land Donated

Although the experimental project will benefit only one farmer, who donated land for the system, Marcy said, "Ten years down the road there could be a cooperative of farmers building an economically feasible solar power plant."

The Trans-Pecos region is an area of rolling plains and 226 days of annual sunshine, but little rainfall.

"For all practical purposes it cannot be farmed without irrigation," said Marcy, a professor on Tech's department of systems faculty in the College of Engineering.

Water is available some 500 feet below the earth's surface but as the price of gas and electricity has risen, the cost of pumping water to the surface for irrigation has caused serious economic problems. Sixty percent of the farmland is out of production.

Electricity Costs Soar

"Two years ago we were paying $2,000 a month for electricity in summer months to irrigate, but now if I get out for less than $10,000 a month I'm doing good," said Mrs. Marvin G. Passmore on whose farm the proposed project would be built.

The Pecos area produces 17 per cent of the nation's cotton and 35 per cent of the nation's sorghum.

Although the land is blessed with a long growing season and water deep underground, the falling price of crops is making irrigation a very expensive means of survival.

"There's not many farmers left here," Mrs. Passmore said, explaining that it costs at least 45 cents per pound to grow cotton that may bring 50 cents per pound on the market.

But Jay Dycus, vice president of a Pecos bank that makes many agricultural loans to area farmers, is more optimistic.

"We're not about to dry up and blow away," he said.

The banker, who began looking into solar projects after the price of natural gas rose and made irrigation more expensive, said, "We get a minimum of a bale and a half per acre and there's not a county that can match that. We have a long growing season and a large quantity of water. Our only problem is the price of natural gas is up so high and our water is so deep it costs a lot more to farm here."

He acknowledged that some farmers have gone out of business, but he said others are able to continue farming by

ANTI-NUCLEAR PLANT DEMONSTRATION — Two mothers and their children carry signs in front of the State Capitol in Harrisburg, Pa., Sunday, joining other demonstrators urging the shutdown of the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant, where an accident caused radiation to leak into the atmosphere last week. (AP Laserphoto)

'Last Rites' Held For Reactor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Sign-carrying demonstrators conducted "last rites for Three Mile Island" nuclear plant Sunday on the Capitol steps, insisting it is time to bury the crippled facility.

Eleven miles away, engineers continued the tedious task of bringing the damaged reactor to cold shutdown, a job that authorities say could take at least five more days.

"The eyes of the world are on Harrisburg. We have come here to conduct the last rites for Three Mile Island," said William Vastine, coordinator of Three Mile Alert.

The anti-nuclear group fought Metropolitan Edison's building of the atomic plant eight years ago and at one time its membership had fallen to 15. But the protesters stood 1,000 strong Sunday.

"We will not pay for Met Ed's fission folly," said Vastine as men, women and children — their ranks swelled by some who traveled from as far away as Germany — cheered lustily.

The company is paying $1.1 million per day to buy electricity needed to replace power lost in the accident, but the bill has not yet been passed on to consumers. Utility officials say a 35 percent rate increase also may be needed to pay for the cleanup.

The crowd braved chilly temperatures to listen to protest songs and 15 speakers express outrage and fear in the aftermath of the worst accident in the nation's 22-year-old commerical nuclear program.

Handmade signs read: "Drop Dead, Met Ed," "No Nukes Is Good Nukes," "The Monster Is Crippled . . . Shoot It" and "TMI, Rotten To The Core." One young man wore a gas mask and carried this banner: "In Case Of Accident, Kiss Your Children Goodbye."

At the plant, chemicals were added to waste water contaminated with radioactive iodine, the last source of low-level radiation coming from an auxiliary building.

"It sort of traps the iodine in the water," said Jim Hanchett, spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The iodine can then be filtered and disposed of through normal operating procedures, Hanchett said.

He reported a slight increase in radiation Saturday night when technicians began siphoning gas from the primary cooling system. Work resumed after the leak was plugged.

The Harrisburg protest was one of several across the nation during the weekend.

Ten thousand people jammed San Francisco's Civic Center Plaza on Saturday to hear anti-nuclear pep talks from Ralph Nader and others opposed to the opening this month of the Diablo Canyon nuclear plant.

Another 3,000 protesters focused on nuclear weaponry at Groton, Conn., during the christening of the USS Ohio, the nation's first submarine armed with the Trident nuclear warhead.

There were protests in Seattle, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Bloomington, Ind., Ithaca, N.Y., Brooksville, Fla., and Lancaster, Pa.

In Harrisburg, Renny Cushman, a longshoreman from Seabrook, N.H., who represents the anti-nuclear Clamshell Alliance, joined the protest.

"Last week's accident really touched the hearts and nerves of a lot of people," he said. "It's going to show that a number of people are upset, angry and totally insulted that TMI can ever go on line again. It will be the beginning of the shutdown for all nukes in Pennsylvania and the nation."

Among those in the crowd was Dr. Geoffrey Corson, chief surgeon at Harrisburg's Polyclinic Hospital.

"They say only two or three people will die of cancer because of what happened," said Corson, attending his first protest ever. "If it were someone I loved, I wouldn't feel it was a fair exchange."

Advisory Board May Aid Panel

By RHONA SCHWARTZ
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The recent creation of a Human Relations Commission ad hoc advisory committee has boosted the chronically flagging morale of HRC members, who now say they are willing to work to solve minority problems.

Some members, however, say they remain skeptical as to whether the boost from the ad hoc committee really is the beginning of an active, viable commission.

HRC members candidly admit that the commission has not accomplished much in its six-year history. They mainly take credit for the passage of the Public Accommodations Ordinance, which prohibits discrimination in nightclubs.

The future of the commission appears to rest on the ad hoc committee, made up of representatives from community minority organizations. The committee, which met for the first March 28, is to act as a spur to the commission by bringing to it community problems and possible solutions.

At that first meeting, the committee came up with 14 items for the HRC to study.

Included in the list are investigating the city's fair employment ordinance; the district attorney's office's alleged policy of excluding blacks and Mexican-Americans from juries; minority hiring of police officers and firefighters; and, complaints that utility companies cut off service without explaining to minority customers that they may work out a payment plan.

The ad hoc committee also recommended that the commission make sure that streets in east Lubbock are adequately lighted and paved and that it alter school census forms to exclude the word "Negro."

Representatives from such organizations as the National Organization of Women, the American GI Forum, West Texas Legal Services, the National Lawyers Guild, the American Civil Liberties Union, League of United Latin-American Citizens and the Mexican-American Chamber of Commerce have pledged their support in finding solutions to these and other problems in Lubbock.

HRC chariman Theron Cole said he feels "pretty positive about the turnout at the ad hoc committee meeting and the issues the people there brought up."

The issues are ones that HRC can handle, he said, adding that the commission can "really expand tremendously with that kind of committee."

"HRC would have a hard time surviving without something like this because of our dismal record," Cole said. "The most important thing for us is to create a record for whether or not we're responsible for what we're doing."

Homero Rodriguez, chairman of HRC's Community Relations Committee, which heads up the ad hoc advisory board, said he, too, was pleased with the turnout. However, he voiced concern as to whether this will save the HRC.

"If the regular (HRC) members don't show up and lose interest, the advisory council will get the same feelings and apathy will creep in," Rodriguez said.

"I've had feedback coming in from representatives of other organizations (who were invited to join) but who didn't show," Rodriguez said. "They were sorry not for not showing up but for what they heard they missed."

The problems facing the HRC are "a lot bigger than what we saw (at the advisory meeting)," Cole said, adding that now the commission must make the problems and solutions visible.

Commission members were briefed about the advisory meeting at their monthly meeting last week, and all seemed favorably impressed with the list of potential problem areas.

Some of the advisory council's suggestions were passed on to HRC committees, and reports are expected at the next HRC meeting May 2.

Commission members discussed the Public Accommodations Ordinance, which Cole said has been dormant since November 1978 because copies of it are not posted in nightclubs.

HRC members disagreed on whether a provision was included in the ordinance stating that it must be displayed publicly, and decided to table further action until they find out.

The HRC also learned that permission has been given to present awards in the name of Lubbock's late Mayor Roy Bass to businesses that it believes deserve recognition for equal employment practices.

Senate To Take Up Prayer In Schools

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of Congress face key votes in both the Senate and House this week in the two work days they plan before heading home for an Easter recess.

The Senate will wrestle again with the problem of prayer in the schools.

The House resumes debate on a foreign aid bill and House leaders hope to complete action on it today.

Following a brief period for preliminary business, the Senate is expected to vote today on a motion to reconsider an amendment restoring voluntary prayers in public schools.

The measure was approved Thursday 47-37 and lobby groups for both sides are watching the issue carefully.

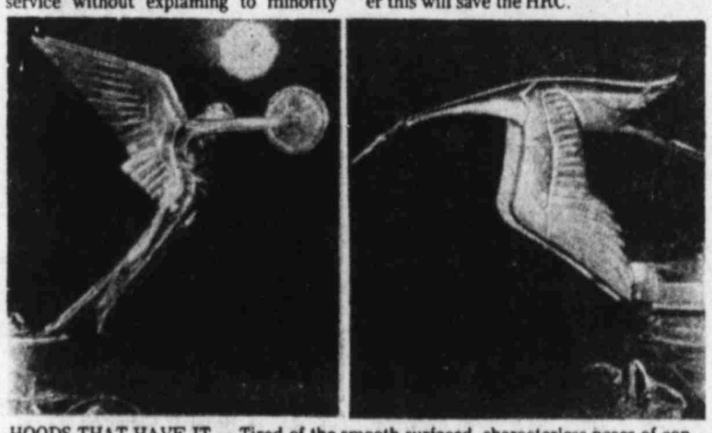

President Carter was asked about the measure over the weekend, and said, "in general, I think the government ought to stay out of the prayer business and let it be between a person and God and not let it be part of a school program . . . ."

The vote is likely to be close, with opponents of the measure counting on switches and support from some of the 16 senators who did not vote Thursday.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, who voted for the amendment by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said over the weekend that he will vote for reconsideration.

Byrd said he favors prayer in the schools but that the amendment is on the wrong bill — one to create a new cabinet-level Department of Education.

That bill may die, he said, if the amendment is not removed.

Tech's Publications, Reporter Honored

Special to the A-J

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Texas Tech University's student publications won high honors and University Daily reporter Tod Robberson was named the four-year college "Journalist of the Year" Saturday at the annual meeting of the Rocky Mountain Collegiate Press Association here.

La Ventana, Tech's yearbook, was awarded first place in general excellence for university yearbooks, winning awards in all 11 yearbook competition categories — the first time such a sweep of awards has occurred, according to RMCPA Executive Director Jeff Henderson. Co-editors of the 1978 La Ventana were Rosemary Robinson and Nancy Crewe.

The Universlty Daily was awarded third place in general excellence for university newspapers published at least three days a week, taking awards in 12 newspaper categories. The University of Kansas placed first in the division, followed by the University of Utah and Tech. Jay Rosser was UD editor through May 1978; Gary Skrehart has been editor since June 1978.

The newspaper competition included entries published between Feb. 2, 1978, and Feb. 1, 1979.

Robberson, a Houston junior journalism major, was entered in all four categories of the on-site writing competition, winning first place in news writing, second places in editorial writing and feature writing, and third place in headline writing.

The news story and editorial were based on a speech by an American Agriculture Movement lobbyist; the feature story was based on a speech by the Colorado commissioner of agriculture.

His overall score in the "live writing" events was the highest earned by a contestant in all four categories, thus earning him the "Journalist of the Year" designation. Henderson said Robberson was the first "Journalist of the Year" recipient to place as one of the top three winners in all on-site competition categories.

Robberson was also elected to the RMCPA Executive Council as one of two student at-large members.

The Rocky Mountain Collegiate Press Association includes 46 institutions in 12 states, with divisions for universities, senior colleges and two-year colleges. Tech first joined RMCPA in 1978, and was competing for only the second time.

— Newswriting, Chino Chapa, for his story on the controversy between the Southwest Conference and the Mutual Broadcasting System on game broadcast assignments to radio stations.

— Feature writing, Robberson, for his feature on gliders and gliding.

— General columns, Larry Elliott. This award is based on several columns submitted as one entry. Elliott is now a reporter for KCBD-TV.

— Humorous cartoon, Ricky Sales, for his "Homecoming Special" illustration.

— Black/white yearbook photograph, Karen Thom, for her picture of a dancer. This was the only award given in the category this year.

— Yearbook layout and yearbook theme, Elizabeth Edwin.

Other UD staffers winning awards were Skrehart, second place, brite; Chas. B. McDonald III, second place, sports columns (McDonald is now a sports writer for the A-J); Doug Pullen, second place, critical writing; UD staff, third place, typography, design and layout; Robberson, third place, newswriting; Domingo Ramirez, third place, sports news; Marian Herbst, third place, headline writing; and Joe Wilson, third place, advertising campaign.

The University Daily recently was awarded first place in general excellence for college/university newspapers in Texas by the Associated Press Managing Editors.

Among the other universities competing against Texas Tech's publications were the universities of Kansas, Utah, Oklahoma, Colorado, Wyoming and Arizona, the Air Force Academy, Utah State University, Montana State University and Arizona State University.

Showers Expected Over Plains

After a weekend of sunshine and hot afternoons, the South Plains will enjoy slightly cooler temperatures and widely scattered showers today.

A Pacific cold front that is moving across the region will bring increasing cloudiness and a 20 percent chance of rain. Temperatures today and Tuesday should reach into the lower 70s with lows expected in the upper 40s. Winds should be from the southeast at 10 to 15 mph.

The Lubbock National Weather Service, noting that a strong upper level disturbance accompanied by strong surface winds will move into the region by midweek, warns precautions should be taken to protect tender crops from possible damage.

Partly cloudy skies and cooler temperatures are expected elsewhere in the state today.

Across the country, snowfall made hazardous driving conditions Sunday in Michigan while a flood warning was posted in extreme southeastern Mississippi.

Light rain was reported along the coasts of Washington and Oregon with snow reported from eastern North Dakota to Michigan.

GRAFT HOTLINE INSTITUTED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Brock Adams has announced the establishment of a telephone "hotline" within his department to enable employees to report anonymously evidence of fraud, abuse or mismanagement.

In a memo to department employees, Adams said the hotline, coupled with the creation of an inspector general's office, would enable the department to work toward elimination of fraud and abuse within the government.

Girls Receive 'Licks' For Attempted Murder

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Five teenage girls at an evangelist's rehabilitation home say they tried to stab another girl to death at the facility less than a year ago and received "licks" and solitary confinement for their punishment.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times reported the incident in a copyright story for its Sunday editions.

The Rev. Lester Roloff says the five are now "among the sweetest girls on earth," and he describes them with affection as "my little murderers."

Each of the five girls now claims salvation, and Roloff says their new outlooks constitute one of his "greatest victories."

Roloff's Rebekah Home and other facilities for wayward children have been under scrutiny by the state in a continuing flap over inspections. Roloff has prevailed.

"Sometimes I can't believe we have come so far...changed so much," said Miss Loftis. She said she stood watch while the stabbing occurred.

Angie Griffin, 17 of Virginia, said the attack happened after the five had been at the home about a month. "We hated it here," she said. "We thought if maybe a girl would die, we'd all get to go home." Miss Griffin said she did the actual stabbing with a serrated kitchen knife while Rhonda Meyers, 15, and Kathy Ticer, 14, held the victim down. Miss Meyers is from Dayton, Ohio, and Miss Tice is from Corpus Christi.

Terrie Thomas, 17, of Cincinnati said she was the "mastermind" of the scheme. She said she was sent to the Roloff home by an Ohio court after she was arrested for armed robbery and receiving stolen property.

"The way I had it planned, if Misty didn't get killed, we would stab someone else until someone died and we could leave," Miss Thomas said. "We chose Misty because she was weak and wouldn't fight back."

The girls said they stole the weapon from the home's kitchen and hid it in a toilet tank.

"I was such a child of the devil," Miss Loftis said. "I was so excited about it. I couldn't wait for the stabbing to happen."

It happened on a Saturday night.

"We were sitting around and we just decided this was the right time," Miss Loftis said. "I tricked her (Misty) into going into the prayer room with me."

"Me and Kathy held her down while Angie stabbed her," said Miss Meyers.

"I stabbed her three times in the back," Miss Griffin said. "When I did it, my heart was so hard I didn't even feel guilty. When we got the whippings, I didn't even cry. The first time I cried was when Roloff said he still loved us."

Miss Loftis said she heard Misty cry, "Oh God, help me. They've stabbed me." The girls said they fled to their rooms, leaving the victim lying on the floor.

"After it happened, I was crying and shaking," said Miss Meyers. "I couldn't believe I had done it."

Misty was able to rise and maker her way to an office. The girls said she was treated with antibiotics and bandages at the home by staff members.

"We try to steer away from unnecessary publicity," Roloff said when asked why the girl was not taken to a hospital. "If it had been real serious, however, we would have taken her to the hospital.

"The police would have come out and we'd have lost all our girls. Why file charges and put them in a prison? We wanted another chance to help them. We loved them."

The victim's mother, Dorothy Hardman of Marysville, Kan., said the family was not notified of the stabbing until two days after it happened. "We were so frightened, we drove so hard to get down there," she said.

Mrs. Hardman said Roloff aides asked her, "You aren't going to press charges, are you?"

"They knew we were Christians and meek and didn't want to cause any trouble," Mrs. Hardman said.

She said they took their daughter to a Kansas doctor and were told one of the wounds "was deep enough that if it had been a little over, it would have been fatal."

The doctor, Donald Argo, said the wounds were large enough to have been "quite serious."

Mrs. Hardman said no compensation was offered by the Rebekah Home.

Rhonda Meyers said, "It's really a miracle we were saved. Misty's mother could have pressed charges...we'd have gone to prison, instead of staying here where we are loved."

Roloff said he gave each of the girls about five "licks."

"I told the girls they could take their camera and take pictures of their behinds and take it to the welfare people, but if they did, I'd go to the police and charge them with attempted murder," Roloff said.

"It was a risk, but it worked. If I had only rescued one of them, that would have been wonderful. But five of them — that's a miracle."

Outstanding Law Students Honored

G. Ben Woodward of Lubbock, son of U.S. District Court Judge Halbert O. Woodward, has received the George W. and Sarah H. Dupree Award, considered by the Texas Tech University School of Law to be its most prestigious honor.

The Law School Friday presented awards and honors to its outstanding students in ceremonies in the Forum of the Law Building.

The $100 Dupree award is presented to the member of the graduating class who, in the opinion of his colleagues, "best exemplifies the ability desired in one soon to join the legal profession." The recipient's name is added to a permanent plaque on display in the School of Law.

Law Professor Jerre S. Williams of The University of Texas School of Law and president-elect of the Association of American Law Schools, delivered the principal address at the ceremony over which Texas Tech Law Dean Frank W. Elliott presided.

Williams reminded law students they are entering the profession that is the "preserver and defender of the rule of law." He told them that the law must change to meet the changes of society, but that it must change in the right way.

"The Constitution was written to endure," he said, "but it was the intent of the writers and framers that it must adapt to the needs of the peoples it governs."

Law faternity Phi Alpha Delta awards went to professors Rodric B. Schoen as the outstanding professor of the first-year course and Reed Quilliam as the outstanding professor of an advanced course. Woodward took the award for outstanding scholarship, and Kennith L. McAlister, third-year student from Fort Worth, for being outstanding active member.

Phi Delta Phi awards were presented to Kathleen Billingsley of Waco as the outstanding graduating student, Anderson Carter of Lubbock and Carol Crabtree of Dallas as outstanding members, and Robert Barbee of Marshall and George Shaffer of San Antonio as scholarship recipients.

Terry Hudson of Cleburne was recognized as the outstanding member of Delta Theta Phi and W. Scott Wallace of Lubbock as outstanding scholar. The Law Caucus Achievement Award went to Nancy Garms of Amarillo and the Humanitarian Award to Professor Robert Davidow.

In the area of trial advocacy, Mike Charlton of Amarillo received the International Academy of Trial Lawyers Award, and Charles Bundren of Euless and Daniel R. Renner of Lamesa won the William R. Moss Trial Advocacy Award.

Board of Barristers awards were presented to Steven Watkins of Greenville, chairman; Roger McCrummen of Lubbock, vice chairman for appelate advocacy; Earl Harcrow of Lubbock, vice chairman for trial advocacy; Bill Helwig of Miles and Kennith McAlister of Fort Worth, general programs; and Eddie J. McConnell of Plainview, secretary.

Special recognition went to W. Michael Greene of Lubbock, Thomas J. Henry of Erie, Penna., and Kelly Utsinger of Odessa as members of the National Moot Court team and to members of the Texas Young Lawyers Association Moot Court team.

Terry Carr of Canadian, Linda Groves of Seagraves and Steve Harr of Lubbock were recognized for their service on the Client Counseling Team and Earl Harcrow of Lubbock, McAllister and McCrummen for service to the competition teams, the Board of Barristers and the Law School.

Mock Trial awards were presented to Charlton, Greene and McConnell. McConnell and Christopher Stokes of Dallas tied for the outstanding trial advocate of the Fall Mock Trial Competition. Randal G. Mathias of Dallas and John Rowley were honored as members of the winning team in the Spring Intraschool Moct Trial Competition. McConnell received the J. Hadley Edgar Trial Excellence Award.

First-year moot court competition winners Timothy C. Chovanec of Universal City and David B. Weinstein of Albuquerque, N.M., were presented certificates.

Others honored include spring intraschool moot court competition runner-up awards, Jay Goss of San Antonio and Rowley, third place team; Carol Crabtree, Harr and Richard Wardroup of Lubbock, team with best brief; Geary, Stahl & Spencer Moot Court awards, Charlton; Geary, Stahl & Spencer Moot Court Scholarship awards, Henry Hicks, Goss, Rowley, Crabtree, Wardroup, Bundren, Johnsen, Kerr and Utsinger.

Utsinger also received the Donald M. Hunt Outstanding Barrister Award. Order of Barristers Awards were presented to Billingsley, Greene Kerr, Utsinger and Watkins. Kerr also received the Student Bar Association Service Award.

Special awards associated with the Law Review were presented to Linda Grovers of Seagraves, Benny D. Campbell of Lubbock, John Browning of Wilmette, Ill., Joe Ross of Quail, Groves, Gary Blanscet of Pampa, Keith Russell of Ulysses, Lynn Alexander of Midland, and Daniel R. Barrett of Austin.

Charles Caddell of Lubbock, Katherine Campbell of Guam and Thomas Walston of Grapeland received Corpus Juris Secundum publication awards for contributions towards legal scholarship. Campbell received the Judge Meade F. Griffin Award for utilizing the "law school experience to improve and prepare for service to the profession and to mankind."

Herb Presents Health Hazards

CHICAGO (AP) — Prolonged use of the popular herb ginseng poses significant health hazards, a University of California study has found.

An estimated five million to six million Americans are estimated to use the herb, says Dr. Ronald K. Siegel of the department of psychiatry and biobehavioral sciences at the university's school of medicine in Los Angeles.

Siegel reports in the April 13 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association on a study of 133 users of ginseng over a period of two years.

It has been used for thousands of years, particularly in the Orient, where it has been used both as a tonic for restoration of strength and as a healing agent. In contemporary China it is used as a stimulant to increase metabolism and to regulate blood pressure and blood sugar.

In the United States the only recognized medical use is as a soothing skin ointment. However, there has been a growing interest in recent years and the herb is readily available in health food stores, markets and drugstores.

It is promoted as a healthful tonic, stimulant and aphrodisiac. The root usually is eaten and tastes sweet and aromatic, somewhat like licorice.

Siegel said he did the study after seeing a number of intoxications resulting from use of ginseng with the patients suffering from chronic insomnia, nervousness and loose stools, among other problems.

Most of the long-term users in his study reported stimulation and arousal, and a number of them experienced hypertension, nervousness, sleeplessness, skin eruptions and morning diarrhea.

Baseball Card Collection Beats Inflation Blues

BELMONT, Mass. (AP — At 32, Dr. Philip Levendusky collects baseball cards — to fight the depression brought on by inflation.

Levendusky, a psychologist who is in charge of McLean Hospital's behavior therapy clinic, says it is a way of "beating these inflation blues ... Buy inexpensive things that bring back special pleasure or bring back memories of happier times. They offer the little bits of reinforcement that one needs and which are harder to get when prices are high."

For Levendusky, that means back to baseball cards, the kind which come wrapped with cardboard-like bubble gum.

"I had 7,500 of them eight years ago before I went to graduate school and they got thrown out," he said. "I like to chew bubble gum, too."

Levendusky also proposes another another way to beat the "inflation blues" — one that sounds more conventional. His advice is to focus "on areas over which we have control. Think of ways in which you can make your pound of hamburger go further."

Building Tenant Releases Rats

SUFFERN, N.Y. (UPI) — It may be a few days before officials can exterminate all the 50 rats let loose in an apartment building by a tenant with "emotional problems."

Mayor Joseph Saverese said Georgette Smith, who was suffering from "family and emotional problems," freed the rats in the building Wednesday night.

Suffern is in Rockland County, 40 miles north of New York City.

Saverese said Mrs. Smith called police Wednesday afternoon and told them to come and take her two teen-age children away because she didn't want them around.

Two county social services workers went to the apartment and placed the children under county care.

"Sometime that evening she must have gone berserk and let the rats loose," Saverese said.

He said the woman apparently was breeding the rodents in a large aquarium.

"There were a few complaints but I think the neighbors thought there were only one or two and that they were hamsters," he said.

Mrs. Smith was taken to hospital for observation, but no charges were to be filed against her.

William Hassler, senior environmental health technician with the Rockland County Department of Health, said there was no way the department could have known about the rats.

AN EDITORIAL:

Nay To SB 983 And HB 941

A PIECE OF really bad legislation which, if enacted, would divert sales tax revenue away from the cities in which it is collected is under consideration in Austin.

Senate Bill 983 and its companion, House Bill 941, have been given a good chance of passage because they would benefit suburban communities—where the voters are—at the expense of central cities.

Simply put, the bills would allocate the 1 per cent city sales tax on the basis of population rather than return the revenue to the city in which it was collected.

The legislation would have cost Lubbock $306,000 in city revenue had it been in effect last year, according to a fiscal note attached to the bills. Dallas, though, would have lost $13 million.

IRONICALLY, the cities got themselves into this predicament by piggybacking their local sales tax onto the 4 percent state sales tax.

It made good fiscal sense to let a merchant remit the entire 5 percent to the state, which then charges the cities a small handling fee and returns to each its share of the proceeds.

Sen. Bill Meier, a Democrat from the Fort Worth suburb of Euless, is sponsoring the Senate bill. He claims "the current statutory scheme is inequitable to the taxpayer."

Saying his bill would "eliminate windfall tax revenues to undeserving municipalities," Meier says out-of-city purchasers who pay the sales tax are victims of "taxation without representation."

ALL THAT HAS A mighty patriotic ring to it, but in fact it rings hollow.

Thanks in part to other ill-conceived governmental practices, including taxation, the population has shifted from central cities to the suburbs.

This has left behind an inner core of poverty and of declining property tax revenues that is beginning to plague some Texas cities just as it has plagued older northeastern cities for years.

Sales tax revenues off money these suburbanites spend while using the streets, parks, theaters, water supplies, sanitary sewers, police protection and other municipal services when working and shopping in the central city are properly and fairly left now in the city where they are collected.

To take this money away from the central city and redistribute it back to the affluent suburbs would bring on greater urban decay and leave a greater burden on the central city poor.

SB 983 and HB 941 are not in the public interest.

AN EDITORIAL:

Looking Back To See Ahead

ARCHITECTS OF the SALT II treaty may have such an "emotional investment" in what they are doing that they have significantly overstated their ability to detect Soviet treaty violations.

Amrom Katz, former assistant director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, warned that the kinds of data that permit us to make strong and confident statements about what the Soviets are doing are usually late and seldom unequivocal.

"The bottom line is that we have never found anything that the Soviets have successfully hidden. To take any less cautious view than this in assessing SALT II," Katz advises, "would be a mistake."

KATZ SERVED from 1973-76 as head of the ACDA's verification and analysis bureau. His remarks were published this week by the non-partisan Heritage Foundation in a study entitled, "Verification and SALT: The State of the Art and the Art of the State."

Katz writes:

"There is no law of nature, nor military regulation, nor even a very good reason why the Soviets should not deploy covertly. They are not bound to cooperate with our intelligence system unless it is in their interest to do so." Yet, he argues:

"...We play down the possibility (that the Soviets would attempt to hide missiles). Smugness and complacency are guaranteed to yield overconfidence.

"This will be noted by our adversary and, by our behavior, we may be offering him a deal that he can't refuse."

The most important reason for the Soviets to hide a large number of ICBMs is that under the framework of Soviet strategic thought, they could easily invent a strategy for the use of a large number of ICBMs.

IT IS NOT just the ability of U.S. intelligence to detect violations that is of concern. What about our willingness to force the issue after violations have been detected? Would we abrogate the entire treaty in response to a single violation? Ponders Katz:

"Consider the situation wherein the evidence might be equivocal, the facts denied by one side, where the evidence is in a form that does not lend itself to ready exposition to the public. All evidence is not equally evidential; not all forms of evidence are equally clear, manifest, overt or plain."

Chief negotiator Paul Warnke assured the Senate that "the anticipated SALT II agreement is adequately verifiable." But intelligence technicians, in passing judgment on themselves, may not be the best judges of enemy intentions or achievement.

If our intelligence system cannot cope with the problem of massive covert deployment, we need to know now—not after we lay down our arms.

ART BUCHWALD:

Hug Makes Carter Feel As Snug As Bug In Rug

WASHINGTON—When President Carter flew back last weekend from his political trip to Wisconsin he was very depressed.

"It didn't go very well, did it?" he said to Jerry Rafshoon, his administrative aide in charge of Image-Making.

"I thought it went very well," Rafshoon said. "The crowds were warm, and the fund-raising was a big success."

"But nobody hugged me," Carter said.

"I didn't know you wanted to be hugged," Rafshoon said.

"Sadat always hugs me," Carter said. "So does Begin. Why can't my own people hug me?"

"Midwesterners don't hug people, Mr. President. Only Middle East leaders do that."

"HOW DO I know the Democrats in Wisconsin are really behind me if they don't hug me?"

"They're behind you, but you're President of the United States. The people in Wisconsin would feel they were being too forward if they hugged you. It would be like a Welshman hugging the Queen of England."

"Well, I think it's nice to be hugged by someone. I don't think we would have ever gotten a peace treaty, if Sadat, Begin and I hadn't hugged each other."

"I'm sorry, Mr. President. I didn't know you felt that way about it. If I had known, I would have had one of our advance people in Wisconsin find someone to hug you."

"IT WOULDN'T have the same meaning if it was planned. When Sadat and Begin used to hug me they did it on impulse. They really wanted to hug me. If you had arranged it, it wouldn't have meant the same thing."

"Mr. President, there are thousands of people in Wisconsin who would give their eyeteeth to hug you. I saw it when I was walking with you.

"But they were afraid that if they tried it the Secret Service would clonk them over the head."

"I understand that. But the governor of Wisconsin could have hugged me when I got off the plane."

"He's a Republican, Mr. President. He could have gotten himself in a lot of trouble if he had been photographed hugging you."

"THAT DIDN'T stop Sadat and Begin. They had a lot more to lose hugging me than the governor of Wisconsin. How does it look for my image if the governor of one of the most important states in the upcoming elections doesn't want to hug me?"

"We can't make a Republican governor hug you, Mr. President. But rest assured that the next Democratic governor who greets you will give you a big bear hug, or he won't get a federal nickel for his state."

"I don't want Jerry Brown to hug me," Carter said.

"Don't worry about that, Mr. President. Brown won't even hug his own father.

"On the other hand," said Rafshoon, "if we could get Teddy Kennedy to hug you, it might stop all these rumors that he's after your job."

"THAT'S GOOD thinking, Jerry. How do we do it?"

"We could tell him that we'll support his health bill in exchange for a hug on the White House Lawn."

"Who is meeting us at Andrews Air Force Base when we land?" the President wanted to know.

"Vice President Fritz Mondale."

"What do you think, Jerry?"

"I don't believe he should hug you after you return from just a trip to Wisconsin. It will look too much like a put-up job."

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

It's Upside 'Brown'

EVANS

WASHINGTON—Although backers of the balanced-budget movement hope the transcontinental trip to New Hampshire by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. will help their cause in New England, they ruefully complain that the charismatic Californian has done more harm than good so far.

Strategists for the constitutional amendment to require a balanced federal budget believe they might have won the support of the required three-fourths of all state legislatures by now if it had not been for Brown's unrequested endorsement.

They are sure the amendment would have carried in California had it not been for that state's governor.

The reason: Thanks to Brown's endorsement, the amendment lost the support of his enemies and President Carter's friends.

First on the list was California Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, who was moving toward support of the amendment but abruptly opposed it when it became exposed to the Brown-Carter crossfire.

Nevertheless, the balanced-budget movement eagerly pressed Brown to visit New Hampshire and hopes he will address other state legislatures. Their reasoning, as explained by one strategist:

"Since Jerry already has done us all the damage possible, we might as well get some benefit out of his campaigning ability."

A footnote: The balanced-budget movement is getting torpedoed by another famous Californian, tax-cut crusader Howard Jarvis.

The father of Proposition 13 makes no bones about his contempt for the constitutional amendment. On a recent visit to Washington, Jarvis lobbied against it with such notables as Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

THE QUESTION of who shall replace Patrick Lucey as Ambassador to Mexico has triggered a replay of last year's noxiously bitter Senate race in Texas between Republican Sen. John Tower and Democrat Bob Krueger.

Former Rep. Krueger, who speaks fluent Spanish, very much wants the Mexico City post. He has strong support from his influential fellow Texan, Ambassador Robert Strauss, as well as Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas.

But Tower, who barely edged out Krueger last year, is not about to be magnanimous in victory and is aggressively trying to veto Krueger. Tower's reason: An American of Latin ancestry ought to be ambassador to Mexico.

Tower's authority: No less than a statement to that effect made by Krueger during his Senate campaign.

A footnote: For far different reasons, Krueger is not the choice of State Department professionals.

They have made Lucey, who quit as governor of Wisconsin to become ambassador to Mexico in his first diplomatic post, the scapegoat for deteriorated U.S.-Mexican relations.

GRUMBLING IS mounting in the Senate Republican cloakroom against Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker's apparent decision not to step down as minority leader, as he previously indicated he would, once his campaign for the presidential nomination gets going.

The principal grumbling is coming from Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, national chairman of the Reagan campaign, and Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, a presidential hopeful in his own right.

But many other senators not directly connected with other campaigns believe Baker should step aside.

The change in plans is attributed to astute first-term Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, who has signed on as Baker's national campaign chairman.

FRONT-RUNNER Ronald Reagan was among the missing at the big "cattle show" of Republican presidential prospects in New Hampshire last Saturday indicating a set strategy from which he will not deviate.

Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah substituted for Reagan, who pleaded a three-month-old commitment for a party dinner in Bloomington, Ill., that night. But his absence confirms the forecast made to us by a Reagan insider:

"The governor (Reagan) will not appear on the same platform with any other Republican presidential candidate."

VETERAN REPUBLICAN operative Stuart Spencer has turned down numerous presidential campaign offers to serve as non-candidate Gerald R. Ford's agent in 1980.

Ford is not going to run in the primaries and knows the odds are very long against a brokered convention that would nominate him.

Nevertheless, he wants to maintain what he calls "leverage," to take advantage of any changes in conditions. Spencer, principal architect of his 1976 nomination, will help Ford do that.

An executive knows how to be wrapped up in his work without being tied down.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

CIA Due Overhaul

PRESIDENT CARTER must immediately order Adm. Stansfield Turner to reorganize our Central Intelligence Agency, an overstuffed, overlapping bureaucracy.

President Carter must be fed up with how the CIA fell on its face in Iran, Afghanistan, China, Cuba, etc. Intelligence's function is to protect the U.S. from surprise.

Any President must depend on the CIA. A President's brains are useless unless he can depend on eyes and ears throughout the world.

But the CIA—loaded with contradictions, self-protecting vagueness and trick formulas—consistently fails to tell President Carter what he needs to know to initiate action.

THE CIA HAS jurisdiction abroad, not in the U.S. Yet, totally unknown to our public, the CIA maintains secret offices in most major U. S. cities.

Its Langley, Va., headquarters—next to the Pentagon the largest in the Washington area—cost $46 million, exclusive of many extras.

When built, former CIA Deputy Director L.K. White testified to the House Appropriations Committee that it "put intelligence under one roof."

But, behind the scenes and costing America's taxpayers about $10 million, another CIA building, "No. 213," was set up at the Naval Gun Factory in southeast Washington.

Incredibly, each year the U. S. spends close to $6 billion on intelligence alone!

You find the Pentagon's worldwide Army, Navy and Air Force intelligence arms and an immense adjunct called the National Security Agency.

THE HARDLY known NSA operates largely from American embassies abroad, dealing in worldwide cryptography, the breaking of the codes of various nations. The NSA reports not only to the ambassador but to the U.S. Army.

Then you have the Intelligence Section of the State Department, likewise worldwide. Its chief reports directly to Under Secretary of State David D. Newsome.

Additional intelligence agencies spread all over the world. They spread and grow and are very costly to the suffering American taxpayer.

These include the Atomic Energy Commission, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, etc., and even the Department of Commerce.

There are so many hush-hush agencies that recently in West and East Berlin alone there are three U.S. intelligence agencies and their branches—most of them competing with one another.

INTELLIGENCE ACQUISITION is one thing, interpreting its importance is another, and its utilization is a third.

President Carter must order Admiral Turner to sweepingly reorganize the CIA and then the President must go after the other intelligence agencies.

Admiral Turner now faces about 300 resignations of top-flight CIA people. President Carter's directive should be able to cut at least a half-billion dollars from the disgraceful mess.

President Carter must now bring the CIA output closer to his needs than that of the so-called "40 Committee" (actually six officials of the National Security Council and himself).

JAY HARRIS:

A Climate Of Fear

THE FALLOUT from the Three Mile Island nuclear power station incident won't settle for months or years, if then.

The verbal and written controversy, that is. If we are to believe the scientist, the atomic fallout, steam, water, dust or whatever poses no further problems.

The Harrisburg, Penn., Syndrome, as it has been dubbed, is a classic case of "some bad news and some good news..." although there is a certain segment of the population which can't, or won't, find anything good in it.

It also is a classic case of how we take the unknown these days, dress it up in mass media coverage, toss in a tablespoon of fear and bias and come up with a holocaust, or if that doesn't come off, a "good show."

THIS IS NOT to belittle the danger of nuclear power plants or anything else which threatens body and soul.

But, it is to seek to put things in perspective in an Atomic Age in which we live on the edge of doom on one hand and enjoy the pot at the end of the rainbow on the other. In brief, we have the best of two worlds in many ways, and also the worst. In this age, they go together.

Two phone calls the other day point up the dilemma. A caller wanted to know if perhaps we were a bit irresponsible to suggest that "atomic alarmists" would make the most of the Three Mile Island mishap.

"After all," he chided, "the thing could blow and 10,000 people perish in an instant..." Another caller wanted to know: "Why did you put the story on Dr. Edward Teller inside? Why not out where people could read 'the other side' of it?"

DR. TELLER," the physicist known as the "father of the H-bomb," assailed the Pennsylvania governor and newsmen for their reactions to the accident.

"Media coverage of the Harrisburg accident has been like someone getting up in a crowded theater, waving his arms and crying out, 'There is no fire...yet...'" Dr. Teller said.

Dr. Teller, who is credited with breaking the bottleneck that inhibited development of the hydrogen bomb back in 1951, says that the potential risks of pursuing nuclear power are worth the rewards in inexpensive energy.

"There was no damage (at Harrisburg) except to the pocketbook," the noted physicist argues. "It is clear that the emergency systems worked and prevented a major emergency." Even after the "biggest" nuclear accident yet, he noted, no human life was lost.

OF COURSE, there is another side to the coin, including opinions of those equally well versed in the field.

Obviously, there was an emergency of more than minor proportions, part of it man-made. Just as obviously, unforeseen events took place, such as the hydrogen bubble. Things happened "which weren't supposed to happen."

But, was the danger as great as depicted? Was there a possibility—a real possibility—that the plant would explode and spread atomic radiation over a wide area?

Those are questions, along with many others, which need to be answered. But, while seeking the answers, perhaps as The Wall Street Journal suggests, the public and media needs to cool down along with the reactor.

The WSJ observed that while the drama went on, a lot of other things took place—such as a tornado which leveled half a town in Iowa. Boarding house fires killed 34 persons, many of them elderly, hundreds remained homeless in floods, and other tragic events took place without much fanfare.

"THIS IS NOT to trivialize the problems at Three Mile Island, which were undeniably serious," The WSJ said.

"But it is a useful note to strike in the wake of the hysteria we have been inundated with for the past week..." The paper noted that no sooner had nuclear critic George Wald heard of the incident than he got on a plane for Pennsylvania "getting as close as possible to the accident so he could tell us how dangerous it was."

"The usual politicians, led by California Gov. Jerry Brown, emitted the usual demogogy. Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden held a press conference to plug their latest cause and her latest film."

Then, the paper makes a most important point: "The truth is that we are not yet able to measure the dimensions of the Three Mile Island accident." The best engineers apparently did not think of everything. We need to take a hard look at what we have built, how to make it safer. But, to shut all such facilities down and hide won't work.

THE POINT IS that we have entered an age where we live with danger, and all too often accept it.

Millions still fly, and safely, despite air crashes. Millions all but live in their autos despite the fact we kill up to 50,000 Americans a year with them. Much of the public continues to smoke despite warnings of its effects.

"It is hard to believe that a democratic society would choose to give up 14 percent of its electricity to avoid future incidents like the one at Three Mile Island," The WSJ argues.

Or will it? This also is the Age of Protest and Anarchy in the Streets, from Washington to Tehran to Watts. It is an age born of Vietnam and it may not go away until the holocaust happens or we revert to the cave stage.

Certainly, every effort should be made to find out "what went wrong, why and what can be done to see that it doesn't happen again..." The public is entitled to "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth" in such cases.

But, in the process, we either harness this world in which we live, including our own emotions, ignorance and fears, or we return to a simpler life, if not the Dark Ages.

Garwood Makes Unceremonious Return

ADAMS, Ind. (AP) — There were no bands, no banners and no welcoming party as Marine Pfc. Robert R. Garwood came home in the silence of the night more than 13 years after he was captured in Vietnam.

While a typical Saturday night party blared at the American Legion post in nearby Greensburg, Garwood, 33, relaxed with his family away from the public glare aimed at him since he left Vietnam last month.

"The roads are still here. People are still the same. I was glad my hometown hasn't changed," he said in an interview Sunday. "There's no place like home."

Garwood woke up to "good ol' country cooking" of bacon and eggs, went to church with his family and made a nostalgic visit to his boyhood swimming hole.

"I've been dreaming about my family; dreaming, hoping and praying for 14 years. It's hard to put into words how I feel now. The only guy who knows is the guy above," he said.

"We're delighted. It's been quite an ordeal waiting for this day," his father, Jack Garwood, said Saturday night outside the mobile home where the family enjoyed a private reunion.

The homecoming had been kept a closely guarded secret by a family fearful of the curious and weary of public debate over whether Garwood should be hailed as a hero or deemed a deserter. The only outsiders waiting were a photographer and a reporter who had maintained a watch near the trailer through the evening.

Garwood, who faces charges of desertion and collaborating with the North Vietnamese, was reported missing in Vietnam in September 1965 after his bullet-ridden jeep was found deserted on a road.

He has been granted up to a month's convalescent leave and is free to travel. But he must notify the military of his location just like any other serviceman on leave. When his leave ends, he will be assigned to Camp Lejeune in North Carolina.

If he is convicted on the desertion charges, he could be executed.

An investigation into the charges against him is being conducted by the Naval Intelligence Service. Garwood must remain in the Marine Corps until the legal situation is resolved, said Lt. Col. Art Brill in a telephone interview from Washington.

Garwood attorney Dermot Foley said Garwood has denied the charges against him and insists he was held by the North Vietnamese against his will.

Garwood returned to the United States from Vietnam March 25.

He came home this weekend by car, a 300-mile trip from the Great Lakes Naval Station in Illinois, where he spent two weeks undergoing tests.

Garwood's family is mapping plans for the visit. "There's a lot of catching up to do," said the Marine, who plans to visit his mother's grave Easter Sunday. She died while he was missing in Vietnam.

Garwood's father, who has since remarried, added: "I hope everybody treats this thing like the people around here. They've been wonderful."

Neighbors were sympathetic to the family and unwilling to judge Garwood until the full story is known.

"I'm a mother of 11 children and 22 grandchildren and my heart aches for Jack and Helen Garwood," said Philomena Hermesch, who works as a cook with Mrs. Garwood at the Greensburg Nursing Home.

"I had a son in Vietnam. I know what those folks went through, and I don't think they should be crucified because of some charges being made. He's home, he's alive ... All those years of waiting are over. They thought he was dead and now they should enjoy their reunion," she said.

"The family has been harrassed and they don't deserve it," said David Page, who moved here three years after Garwood disappeared.

"And people shouldn't reach conclusions about Garwood, either," he added. "He was just a teen-ager when he joined the service. He and the family should just be left in peace and allowed to get the whole rotten mess straightened out."

Ford Power Leads Tractor Pull

Ford and Allison power dominated two days of truck and tractor pulling contests at the Lubbock Coliseum in connection with the area farm show which concluded Sunday.

Bill Boedeker of Waukomis, Okla., driving a Ford, won the competition in both the 6200 and 5800 classes, collecting $1,200 in prize money. Kenneth Sewell of Ravenna, Texas, also in a Ford, took third in both classes, while second spots were divided between Lee Farrell of St. Paul, Minn., in the 6200 division and Leon Haug of Frankfort, Kan., in the 5800.

The top three spots in the 5000 modified truck class went to the Leslie Ploeger/Horace Mercer entry from Gonzales; James Van Meter of McAdoo and Lyndon Wagner of Amarillo, respectively.

In the 7000 modified tractor class, Joe Wolf/James Griffin of Whitewright won Saturday with an Allison V12-powered Massey 44, trailed by Rodney Jones, Sonora, 454 Chevy, and Ploeger/Mercer, blown 454 Chevy. Top Friday night finishers were Gary Sporehase, Holyoke, Colo.; Gary Foster, Kress, and Larry Stewart, Crosbyton.

In the Saturday finale for 9000 class tractors, Allisons swept the field. Foster was first, followed by Ron Warschkow of Iowa Falls, Iowa, and Gary Porter of Hugoton, Kan.

Contest officials said total attendance for the two nights was 7,500.

Over in Memorial Coliseum, competition in the mini tractor pull Saturday afternoon was equally close and challenging.

In the five-pound stock class, first place went to Brandan Gallagher of Hereford with 144⅝ inches; second place, Britt Hoy of Whiteface, 129 9/16 inches; and third place, Mike Lewis of Whiteface, 127 15/16 inches.

Kirby Lewis of Lubbock took first place with 169¼ inches in the six-pound stock. Second place went to Jessie Moss of Levelland, 146 1/16 inches and third place to Bill Thomas of Morton, 143 inches.

In six open class (six-pound tractor pulling 125 pounds), James Hammett of Hereford placed first with 172⅞ inches; second place, Ed Hammett of Hereford, 171 15/16 inches; and third place, Bill Thomas of Morton, 157¼ inches.

Tech Artists Set Display Of Works

Artwork by 11 Texas Tech University art students will be exhibited in the 1979 Texas College Art show at Mountain View College in Dallas, April 1-27.

Entries in the competition were selected by jurors from Case-Western Reserve University and the Tyler Museum of Art.

The exhibition is an annual event. All students in Texas college and university art programs are eligible to submit work in any media. Works from Texas Tech, totaling 18 pieces, represent all facets of the studio art program.

Composer Johann Strauss was born in Austria in 1804.

Director Says NBG Lost No Money On Loans To Carter Firm

ATLANTA (AP) — A National Bank of Georgia director appointed under Securities and Exchange Commission orders said Sunday the bank "didn't lose a cent" on loans to the Carter Warehouse, even if NBG had to reimburse several smaller banks involved in the loan.

The Washington Post reported Sunday that NBG transferred $1.5 million of its $6.5 million in loans to President Carter's family warehouse to three smaller south Georgia banks in 1975, then had to dip into its own assets to repay those banks when the Carters fell behind in loan repayments.

"All of the Carter loans were ultimately paid off," Church Yearley said. "If the bank had to pay them off early, they were paid back by the warehouse. The bank didn't lose a cent."

A federal grand jury in Atlanta has been investigating the banking practices of Bert Lance, who headed NBG at the time of the peanut warehouse loans and later was Carter's budget director.

A special counsel, former U.S. Attorney Paul Curran of New York, has been appointed to investigate the peanut warehouse loans.

Yearley, one of two directors appointed under SEC direction to probe Lance's banking practices, said that whether NBG sold such a "loan participation" to the other banks was not in the scope of the investigation performed by him and Lindsey Hopkins III.

Such loan transfers among banks are legal and common, he said.

The Post said bank records on the arrangement have been subpoenaed by federal investigators checking NBG loans to the warehouse.

In a recent proxy report, NBG told its stockholders that the Justice Department "has interviewed certain persons now or formerly associated with NBG and has subpoenaed a number of NBG documents," but it did not go into detail.

The bank said the Justice Department had told NBG officials that the warehouse investigation is separate from the grand jury probe of Lance, who left his post as budget director after questions arose about his banking practices.

The Post quoted informed sources as saying that in December 1975 NBG sold a $1.5 million participation to the Commercial State Bank in Donalsonville and that bank in turn sold shares of $500,000 each to the Bank of Terrell in Dawson and the Citizens State Bank in Reynolds.

Outside banks participating in such arrangements help support the principal of the loan and share in profits when the loan is paid off.

Neither NBG President Robert Guyton nor William D. Hart, executive vice president, would comment on the report.

Attorney Charles Kirbo, Carter's close friend and adviser who is handling the president's 63 percent warehouse ownership in a "blind trust," could not be reached for comment.

U.S. Airlift Capability Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — With U.S. forces at their present level of more than 900 transport planes, it could take as long as 26 days to deploy the two lightest divisions in the U.S. army to the Persian Gulf, the Congressional Budget Office says.

Those divisions are the 82nd Airborne and the 101st Airmobile. If a heavy division as well as a light one were wanted, the deployment might take as long as five weeks.

Bits of the 82nd Airborne could be on the spot in two days, according to the study, but "their contribution would be more political than military until the rest of the force had arrived."

Defense Secretary Harold Brown told the Senate Armed Services Committee last year that if Americans were sent to the Middle East or the Persian Gulf to help a country against attack from a neighbor supported by the Soviets, the U.S. forces would have to be considerable. He spoke of several army divisions, plus amphibious Marine units and several air wings.

The Congressional Budget Office took no stand on the desirability of sending U.S. forces to the Persian Gulf or anywhere else. Its study, labeled a "background paper" bears the technical label: "U.S. Airlift Forces: Enhancement Alternatives for NATO and Non-NATO Contingencies."

But its calculations of time requirements and of the new spending that would be needed to shorten them, would have an important bearing on any decision for U.S. armed intervention to protect oil imports, if one ever has to be made.

According to the figures, the 82nd Airborne would take 13.4 days to get to the Persian Gulf, using both regular military transport and reserve civilian planes. Without the civilian reserve it would take 18.7 days. The 101st would take 12.9 or 18 days.

A mechanized division would take 22.1 days, or 27.6 without civilian help.

The Congressional Budget Office says very big purchases of new cargo planes would be required to cut the time down by one week for one division or by two weeks for a two-division force.

The study concludes that the decisions Congress makes for the 12 months starting in October — fiscal 1980 — will determine for many years what a U.S. military airlift will be able to do.

It envisages spending from $2.9 billion to $9.6 billion to increase capabilities.

Steel Industry Ups Polution Spending

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The nation's steel industry spent nearly $458 million for pollution controls in 1978, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute. From 1951 through 1978, steelmakers spent $3.7 million to install such equipment, the institute said.

A survey conducted by the institute found that $277.2 million went to air pollution control devices and $180.8 million to control water pollution. The industry has authorized pollution control expenditures of nearly $991.3 million in 1979 or later, the institute said in a statement released Saturday.

Tech Students Win Landscape Competition

Texas Tech University students have won first place awards in the third annual Associated Landscape Contractors of America Inc. (ALCA) student field day at Texas Tech University.

The field day recently was sponsored by ALCA and the Texas Tech student Horticulture Society.

Events included field trenching, sales presentations, interior plant identification, plant problems (insect, disease and environmental), erosion control, irrigation equipment, trenching equipment, tree climbing and safety and small engine trouble-shooting.

Winning first in individual competition were Michael Cheever of Fort Worth for interior plant identification; Tim Hayes of Illinois, business management problem; Jay Shirley of Farmers Branch, cut and fill estimation; and Baynetta McCurry of Plainview, plant problems.

Second in backhoe trenching went to Bruck Tollett, Sudan. Second in plant problems went to Cynthia Bilyea, Fort Worth.

Taking second in the rope and saddle tree climbing event and third in the landscape maintenance estimate was Vic White, Midland. Third place in the sales presentation went to Cindy Dennis, Corpus Christi, and Flynn Dennis, Bishop.

Other Texas Tech competitors included Mile Vorauer, San Antonio; Robert F. Powell, Hurst; and Mark H. Swafford, Amarillo.

Hearst Honeymoons Near Panama Canal

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Honeymooning Patricia Hearst and her husband, Bernard Shaw, had lunch with Panama's former head of state, Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos, and Panamanian officials on Contadora Island, vacationers returning from the resort island said.

They said Torrijos, who now heads the Panamanian military, arrived by helicopter late Saturday morning and left in the afternoon.

It was not clear when the honeymooning couple arrived on the island in Panama Bay.

Miss Hearst and Shaw, her former bodyguard, were married in California on April 1, shortly after her release from prison, where she had been serving a sentence for bank robbery.

Torrijos confirmed Thursday that they had arrived in Panama Wednesday and would be his guests during their stay.

The couple visited the Panama Canal locks at Miraflores on Thursday, arriving in a chauffeur-driven automobile of former American Ambassador Gabriel Lewis, who now heads Panama's Canal Authority.

CANADA

Canada is the world's second-largest country. Its seacoast, one of the longest in the world, includes 17,860 miles of mainland and 41,810 miles of islands. It includes all of the islands from near Greenland to near the Alaskan border.

Teamsters' Strike Tightens Grip On Automakers

DETROIT (AP) — A shortage of vital parts normally supplied by truck threatens to choke the auto industry as a Teamsters trucking lockout and strike enters its second week.

As the Labor Department kept watch over the strike's effects, it was estimated Sunday that 200,000 auto workers — or a quarter of the hourly work force — will be laid off this week. Elsewhere, the impact has been slight.

The industry — the five major U.S. manufacturers — already had laid off 56,275 workers last Friday and had 74,200 on short-hour shifts.

Today, Chrysler Corp., the No. 3 national automaker, will be virtually shut down. The company last week said 85,000 workers would be laid off at about 40 plants until a settlement between the trucking industry and the Teamsters Union is reached.

It "couldn't have come at a worse time," Chrysler president Lee A. Iacocca said at a luncheon last week launching the automaker's new advertising campaign and extended warranty plan.

Iacocca said the shutdown caused by the strike will cost the automaker "plenty."

Chrysler is trying to recover from a $205 million loss last year.

Bargaining is scheduled to resume today in Washington between officials representing 500 major trucking firms and 235,000 Teamsters. Two days of apparently fruitless negotiations broke off Friday. Both sides, divided largely over President Carter's anti-inflation wage guidelines, say they won't budge from bargaining positions that prompted the work stoppage.

Automakers depend on day-to-day shipments of supplies and parts for vehicle assembly because the huge assembly plants don't have room to hold large steel inventories.

Ford Motor Co. makes about 60 percent of its own steel, while General Motors Corp. relies exclusively on outside sources which have to be shipped into its plants.

Companywide layoffs at General Motors, the No. 1 automaker, totaled 30,100 last Friday.

Ford, after announcing the layoff of 650 workers at the end of last week, said another 3,000 employees at its Indianapolis steering gear plant would be furloughed today.

The only American plant of Volkswagen Manufacturing Corp., at Westmoreland, Pa., idled 4,000 workers when it shut down last week.

Workers at American Motors Corp. plants worked regular hours last week.

Automobiles and related products account for one-sixth of the nation's gross national product.

At the end of last week, there were no reported shortages of food or other key consumer goods and most industries reported that operations were near normal.

The union struck 73 major trucking firms March 31, when the old contract expired, and the industry responded by locking out workers. Industry bargainers say their last offer would boost wages and benefits 30 percent over three years, just over Carter's guidelines.

The wage guideline technically puts a 7 percent ceiling on annual wage and fringe benefit increases, but it has been loosened to accommodate a higher Teamsters settlement.

The union's demand for more frequent cost-of-living raises would put total contract increases 2 percent over the guidelines, the industry contended.

Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons has said he thinks the union's demands would comply with the guidelines.

Nuclear Power Project Okayed By Texas Voters

By United Press International

A decision by Austin voters to stay in the South Texas nuclear power project highlighted local elections across Texas in which unofficial returns also indicated the mayors of Fort Worth and El Paso were defeated.

At Fort Worth, Woodie Woods, a 58-year-old plumbing contractor, defeated Mayor Hugh Parmer by a 23-vote margin, 15,572 to 15,549. Woods victory marked the second time in as many years a one-term Fort Worth mayor has been unseated.

Parmer, who defeated Mayor Clif Overcash after he had served only one term, demanded a recount after the Saturday election. A recount was also being called for in El Paso where incumbent Ray Salazar was apparently defeated by former FBI agent Tom Westfall.

In unofficial votes, Westfall won by less than 1 percent, and Salazar asked his attorney to seek a recount.

Pasadena city councilman Verne Cox will face state Rep. Jim Clark in a runoff May 5 for mayor. Cox, a councilman for the past six years, received about 300 more votes than Clark, who has been representing Pasadena in the legislature for the past 13 years.

In other returns from Austin, Mayor Carole McClellan was re-elected with an overwhelming 78.8 percent of the vote. Mrs. McClellan received 41,191 votes and her opponent, Tom Baker, 11,030, or 21.12 percent. All the incumbent city council members were re-elected.

San Antonio Mayor Lila Cockrell easily won re-election, gathering better than 54 percent of the vote in a nine candidate field that included former mayor Charles Becker. Also re-elected were city councilmen Henry Cisneros, Joe Webb, Frank Wing, Bernardo Eureste, Joe Alderete and John Steen.

Insurance executive Gene Canavan won election to a vacated council seat, and stockbroker Henry Archer defeated incumbent Councilman Bob McDaniel and four other candidates for another seat on San Antonio's 11-member council.

Councilman Rudy Ortiz was narrowly defeated by attorney Bob Thompson and promised he would seek a recount. Ortiz lost by 84 votes out of nearly 8,300 cast.

Only one run-off election will be held for a city council seat. Councilwoman Helen Dutmer will face former councilman Bob Billa.

In the Galveston mayoral contest, councilmen Gus Manuel and Mel Rourke will meet in a runoff. Manuel, a decorator and salesman, received 3,055 votes, and Rourke, a private investigator, 2,340 votes.

Former Corpus Christi Mayor Jack Lubby, who was ousted from office by city council action last year, will face a runoff with retired Army Col. Luther Jones. Luby received 7,875 votes, and Jones 7,153.

Luby was elected to three terms as mayor of Corpus Christi, but was removed by a city ordinance when he ran last year against then-U.S. Rep. John Young. He has never officially relinquished his office.

A number of issues also faced Texas voters, among them the consolidation of Midland and Robert E. Lee High Schools, a controverisal question for the city of Midland. Voters decided that the schools should continue to be run independently. The vote was 5,243 against, and only 1,041 in favor.

In Arlington, voters defeated two hotly-contested issues, a proposal to elect council members from single-member districts and another to cover police and firemen by civil service.

Tech Professor Heads State Group

Dr. J. Dalton Tarwater of the Texas Tech University mathematics faculty has been elected president of the Texas Section of the Mathematical Association of America (MAA).

Tarwater, who joined the Tech faculty in 1968, has a special interest in algebra, and most of his scholarly publications are on that subject. He was chairman of Tech's mathematics department from 1973 to 1978.

He is listed in "Who's Who in the South and Southwest," "American Men of Science" and the "World Directory of Historians of Mathematics." He is Texas Tech's institutional representative to the Rocky Mountain Mathematics Consortium and is secretary-treasurer of that organization.

Tarwater was director of the 1973 Conference on History of American Mathematics; chairman of the MAA Special Bicentennial Publication Committee, 1976-77; and program committeeman for the MAA's 1976 annual meeting in San Antonio. Last year he was local arrangements chairman for the 81st annual meeting of the Texas Academy of Science of Texas Tech.

He has been a visiting lecturer for the MAA and an invited participant at several international mathematical meetings. He was an invited participant at the Workshop on Historical Evolution of Mathematics.

Chinese Freighter To Dock In Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — It has been 30 years since a ship flying the Chinese flag docked here, but officials say that will end April 18 when the freighter Liu Lin Hai arrives to pick up a load of corn.

The announcement was made by the National Council for United States-China Trade, Lykes Bros. Steamship Co. and the Port of Seattle. Lykes spokesman Dave Wenger said the company intends to develop a monthly call to the Port of Shanghai, where the Liu Lin Hai will deliver the first load of corn.

Silkwood Called Martyr Of Anti-Nuclear Cause

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Karen Silkwood's death in a 1974 auto crash established her as a martyr to anti-nuclear forces who contend her death was no accident.

Now, more than three years later, a nuclear accident in Pennsylvania has drawn new attention to the growing movement behind her cause and the $11.5 million suit filed on her behalf in federal court against her former employers.

Miss Silkwood was killed when her car ran off a deserted stretch of Oklahoma highway and hit a culvert the night of Nov. 13, 1974. Friends said she was on her way to meet with union investigator Steve Wodka and New York Times reporter David Burnham to present documentation of alleged safety abuses at the nuclear fuel plant where she worked as a lab technician.

A week earlier, tests had confirmed that Miss Silkwood, 28, and her apartment in Edmonton, Okla., were heavily contaminated with plutonium radiation.

The lawsuit filed on behalf of Miss Silkwood's estate against Kerr-McGee Corp., owners of the plant, alleges her contamination was due to negligence on the part of the company. Kerr-McGee attorneys claim she may have contaminated herself while spiking urine samples to embarrass the company and support her claims about lax safety precautions at the plant.

Experts have said that if welds on fuel rods made by Kerr-McGee are defective, as Miss Silkwood alleged, they might cause a nuclear disaster if they are ever used in the Richland, Wash., experimental fast-breeder reactor for which they were manufactured.

Public awareness and fear about nuclear accidents were heightened by the March 28 incident in which a cooling system failed and radiation leaked at the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor plant at Harrisburg, Pa.

A loose-knit coalition of feminist, civil rights, labor, environmental and anti-nuclear groups has created a Karen Silkwood fund to raise money for legal fees and related activities. Sara Nelson, fund spokeswoman and national labor task force coordinator for the National Orgnization for Women, said more than $200,000 had been raised by the end of 1978.

Miss Silkwood's death was officially ruled an accident, but her parents and top officials of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union alleged her car was forced off the road in a "scare tactic that got out of hand." An investigation by a private firm concluded that fresh dents in the rear of the auto support the possibility, though they don't confirm it.

Documents Miss Silkwood was said to have been carrying have never been found. Silkwood supporters say they believe Kerr-McGee supervisors searched the wrecked auto to recover the documents.

Without Miss Silkwood's testimony or the documents she was said to have compiled against Kerr-McGee, much of the evidence produced in the month-long trial so far has involved second-hand accounts of statements allegedly made by and to her.

When Miss Silkwood was hired at the Kerr-McGee plant near Crescent, Okla., following her divorce in 1972, she told her family and friends it was a new beginning, they said.

However, friends have said she became concerned about safety conditions at the plant and told them she was astonished by the casual attitude some employees had about radiation, apparently because they lacked knowledge of its dangers.

Miss Silkwood registered a confidential complaint about Kerr-McGee in September 1974 with the then-Atomic Energy Commission in Washington, and then told union officials that plant records on fuel rod quality control were being falsified. Union officials asked her to quietly gather proof of her claim. Kerr-McGee has since called this activity "spying on her employer."

During the first month of the trial, U.S. District Judge Frank G. Theis of Wichita, Kan., has allowed the introduction of allegations about 40 pounds of plutonium allegedly missing from the Kerr-McGee plant where Miss Silkwood was employed and about working conditions there. The trial before a jury of four men and two women could last another four weeks.

Kerr-McGee denies the plutonium is missing and claims much of it can be accounted for by calculating amounts still held up in plant piping systems. A former plant supervisor, however, testified he and co-workers spent hours flushing the piping with acid before the plant shut down in 1975. He said the material was never found.

Theis, when he introduced himself to attorneys for both sides, made it clear he was skeptical about some of the issues involved.

"There are an awful lot of ghosts in this case," he said. "Either I'm going to put them to rest once and for all, or they are going to get up and walk."

Solon Seeking Change In Mortgage, Loan Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The growing use of tax-emempt state and local bonds to finance low-interest home mortgages should be curtailed sharply to prevent the government from losing billions of dollars, a Wisconsin congressman said Sunday.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., also said the government should act to recapture large sums of tax money by barring deductions for mortgage interest and local property taxes on second homes.

"Wealthy taxpayers get Uncle Sam to defray up to 70 percent of their local property taxes and mortgage interest not only on their principal home, which is proper, but on endless second homes — country estates, ski lodges, seashore retreats," said the House Banking Committee chairman.

Reuss made his comments as he released a report by the Congressional Budget Office on a trend toward states and local communities issuing tax-exempt bonds for single-family home mortgages.

The report said 50 localities in 12 states have issued more than $1.6 billion in such bonds since Chicago launched the first program last July. State housing finance agencies in 23 states issued $2.7 billion in bonds in 1978, the office said.

The budget office study estimated that the tax exemption for the bonds will cost the Treasury $340 million in lost revenue in fiscal 1980, which starts Oct. 1., and as much as $2.1 billion in fiscal 1984.

Sale of the bonds also will drive up interest rates on other government borrowing, the office said.

"Tax-exempt bonds are a costly and inefficient form of subsidy at best," said Reuss. "And the wastefulness is compounded when they are used to finance low-interest mortgages for people with incomes of $40,000 a year or more."

Reuss suggested that the mortgage bond program be targeted at low-and moderate-income families and urged the Carter administration to speed submission of legislation to make such a change.

He also expressed support for a budget office proposal that would require homeowners to choose between benefitting from a low-interest mortgage program or taking the current mortgage interest tax deduction.

That choice, the office said, would effectively limit the bond program to low-and moderate-income families without requiring special government regulations.

Tech Schedules 'Senior Challenge'

The Texas Tech University Student Foundation will conduct its "Senior Challenge" fund-raising campaign Tuesday through Thursday, with collected funds to be used for support of on-campus activities such as recreational sports, freshmen orientation and academic recruiting.

Graduating seniors will be asked to contribute their $7 property deposits to the Student Foundation. They also will be requested to make a three-year pledge of $10 a year to foundation programs.

"Ninety-five percent of the money we raise will go for the intended purposes on campus," said Chris Seeker, Odessa junior and director of the foundation. "Approximately 5 percent of the funds raised will be used for operating costs."

The fund-raising effort, now in its third year, will offer this year's seniors a new twist. Those who donate their property deposits to the foundation will receive full membership benefits in the Ex-Students Association. Membership fee is usually $15.

The Student Foundation is a 55-member student organization that conducts projects to benefit Texas Tech. Members are appointed to the foundation on the basis of campus involvement and leadership abilities.

Poet Plans Second Campus Visit

Poet Galway Kinnell will make his second appearance at Texas Tech University at 8 p.m. today in Room 101 of the Mass Communication Building. The public is invited at no charge to hear Kinnell read from his works.

His visit to the university is co-sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts and several Texas colleges and universities. His first visit to Texas Tech drew an overflow audience, so his presentation Monday has been moved to a larger meeting room.

Dr. Wilkes Berry, chairman of the English Department, said Kinnell "is regarded everywhere as one of the very best readers of poetry, as well as an exciting and distinguished poet."

The poet will meet with interested students and faculty for an informal discussion about writing and about his poems at 3:30 p.m. Monday, in Room 120 of the English Building.

The Providence, R.I., native has taught at universities of Grenoble, France, Teheran, Iran, Chicago and New York.

He has received an award from the National Institute of Arts and Letters, a Guggenheim Fellowship, the Brandeis Creative Arts Award, the Poetry Society of America's Shelly Memorial Award, and the Award of Merit Medal for Poetry from American Academy of Arts and Letters.

Moot Court Winners Announced At Tech

First place winners of the Texas Tech University Law School moot court competition are Jon Kerr of Lubbock, Kelly Utsinger of Odessa, and Mike Greene of Arlington.

The 13-team competition concluded Friday with the finals as part of Law School Honors Day.

In the Moon Court of Criminals Appeals, Lubbock district court judges John McFall, Robert C. Wright and Denzil Bevers with a split decision awarded second place to the team of Steven Watkins of Greenville, Mike Charlton of Abilene, and Linda Groves of Lubbock.

The second place team argued for the state an imaginary aggravated rape case involving a San Antonio man. The case involved questions that have never been considered concerning statutory guidelines of rape and assault.

Study Indicates Reduction In Home Energy Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Homeowners could further cut their fuel bills and save vast amounts of energy with available conservation methods, but government needs to help more by removing bureaucratic hurdles and encouraging efficiency, says a congressional report.

The Office of Technology Assessment said in a study released Sunday that Americans have cut the rate of growth of home energy use dramatically in recent years.

The growth in residential energy use in the 1970s has been 2.6 percent a year, down from 4.6 percent annually in the 1960s. This growth is attributed mostly to increases in the number of households, indicating energy use per home remained about constant between 1970 and 1977, the report said.

This reduced growth rate already has saved 2.8 billion barrels of oil since 1970, the report said.

But if this record were further improved so that homeowners got the maximum energy and dollar savings from full use of available conservation techniques, Americans could save between 19 billion and 29 billion barrels of oil by the year 2000, the report said.

The OTA, the agency which advises Congress on technical matters and proposes policy options, noted that homeowners are more likely to adopt energy efficiency if they are convinced it will save them money.

The agency cautioned policymakers that appeals for sacrifice and suggestions that conservation will mean discomfort "may be ineffective, if not counterproductive."

The report said no adverse changes in lifestyle and comfort were necessary for substantial savings through better insulation, weather stripping, use of storm windows, turning to more efficient heating and cooling devices and other available methods.

But federal, state and local governments have to coordinate their conservation efforts better to push these options, the OTA said.

Some federal policies hinder state and local governments from doing their job in energy conservation programs, the report said.

The rapid pace of federal initiatives may not match local capabilities to implement them, said the study. States and localities, which best know local needs, sometimes are ignored in preparing federal guidelines and regulations, it continued.

Consumers need precise information on such things as local heating and cooling requirements in order to conserve and the OTA said the best sources of this data are local.

Addressing other issues, the report said low income families can spend up to half their budgets on energy during the heating season yet lose a significant part of this heat because of substandard housing.

The study said the poor probably could be helped more by programs to weatherize or improve their housing than by subsidizing utility bills.

But there is only enough current funding for weatherization programs to reach about 3 percent of all eligible homes each year, the study added.

The report also warned that as houses are tightened up to reduce heat loss, occupants could risk indoor air pollution from heating, cooking, smoking and household chemicals.

This potential problem needs further study, the report said, but control measures already exist — such as various air filters and heat-conserving ventilators — which could help reduce pollutant levels.

Force By Police Source Of Unrest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Disputes over the use of deadly force by police were a major source of racial unrest in 1978, a Justice Department report said Sunday.

The annual report of the department's Community Relations Service covers the agency's conciliation and mediation activities for fiscal 1978.

Addressing the issue in a foreword, agency Director Gilbert Pompa said, "Whether police routinely and unnecessarily use such force against minority groups was clearly the major issue affecting police-minority relations."

CRS was created under the 1964 Civil Rights Act to provide assistance to communities in resolving disputes about discrimination. Its main function is as a third-party intermediary, providing mediation and conciliation services or technical assistance.

Of 1,353 potentially serious racial incidents to which CRS responded last year, about one third involved disputes between minority groups and police, the report said. A majority of those were cases in which blacks, Hispanics and other minorities claimed police had no justification for the force used.

"Complaints of police use of excessive force — long an issue for blacks ,— increased for Hispanics by roughly 50 percent over the preceding year," Pompa noted.

The report said that after several police shootings in Texas and subsequent confrontations, CRS was able to bring together Texas police chiefs and Mexican-American leaders to explore ways to reduce friction.

As a result, several regional meetings are planned this year. The first was held last month in San Antonio, attended by approximately 200 police and Hispanic leaders.

Another high priority was aid to desegregating school systems. The report said in the first two weeks of September 1978, CRS assisted about 30 school districts with school openings under a desegregation plan without serious disruptions in any of these cities.

Among other areas where CRS provided assistance was affirmative action, community development, revenue sharing, and Indian hunting and fishing rights.

The report noted that the 1,353 alerts it responded to represented an increase of 400 incidents over the previous zear. It also discussed areas of potentially greater conflict in 1979, such as reaction to social service cutbacks because of local austerity measures and increased activity by the Ku Klux Klan and American Nazi Party.

Shark Threatens Beach Swimmers

HONOLULU (AP) — A pregnant six-foot shark ventured past a protective reef into picturesque Hanauma Bay Sunday, forcing authorities to close a popular swimming beach.

A Civil Defense van equipped with a loudspeaker was used to warn the hundreds of people who gather at the bay daily to stay out of the water, police said.

Authorities said they hoped the shark would move past the protective reef at high tide if efforts to capture it were not successful. The shark legally cannot be killed because the bay is a marine life preserve.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am 56 years old and receive a disability pension from the railroad. Under what conditions can I, as a disabled annuitant, qualify for early Medicare coverage? — E.C.

In order to qualify for Medicare coverage before age 65, an annuitant must be totally disabled or suffering from chronic kidney disease requiring dialysis or a transplant. The fact that an annuitant is initially awarded an occupational disability annuity does not preclude early Medicare coverage. The annuitant would qualify if his physical condition is actually such that he is totally disabled.

To qualify for pre-65 Medicare coverage, an annuitant must also meet certain earnings requirements. He must have worked in at least 20 of the 40 calendar quarters before becoming totally disabled.

Medicare coverage before age 65 is also available to employee annuitants, employees who have not retired but who meet certain minimum service requirements, spouses and dependent children if they suffer from chronic kidney disease requiring dialysis or a transplant.

HEARTLINE: I have just returned from the hospital after having an operation on my foot. I have already taken care of my portion of the hospital bill — I had to pay the first $160. Now my doctor tells me that I need another operation and I should have it done next month. Will I have to pay this $160 again when I go back to the hospital? — E.S.

You will not have to pay the first $160 hospital Part A deductible if you go back in the hospital within 60 days from the day that you were discharged. If your next period in the hospital does not start until after you have been home for 60 days straight, then you are starting a new benefit period and you would have to pay this $160.

For those people on Medicare, Heartline has developed a detailed book covering the whole Medicare program. Heartline's Guide to Medicare is written in question-and-answer form and contains all of the up-to-date information. This book covers many medical items and services that are covered by Medicare, complete information on the deductibles you have to pay, a sample Medicare claim form with detailed instructions on how to fill it out and a complete explanation on how the reasonable charges under Part B are figured. This book may be ordered by sending $1.75 to Heartline's Guide to Medicare, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. This book is completely guaranteed and if you are not satisfied your money will be refunded. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: I am 49 years old and I am disabled. My husband died last year. Can you tell me about the requirements for Social Security disabled widow's benefits? — K.N.

A widow is considered disabled only if she has an impairment which is so severe that it would prevent a person from working and is expected to last at least 12 months. Vocational factors such as age, education and previous work experience are not considered in deciding whether a widow is disabled.

In addition, a widow must have been disabled before the death of her husband or within seven years after his death. However, if the widow received mother's benefits for having a child in her care under 18, her disability must have begun within seven years after this benefit ended. If the widow meets the above requirements, she is eligible to apply for disabled widow's benefits at any age after age 50.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQJ75 ♡4 ◇AJ10 ♣AQJ9
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—If partner has as little as the two black kings for his two-over-one response, a small slam is a virtual certainty. Add the ace of hearts and you could easily have a grand slam. Since a jump to four clubs doesn't come close to expressing the trick-taking power of your hand, we suggest you first make a jump shift to three diamonds, followed by a vigorous raise in clubs.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKQJ97 ♡6 ◇AQ109 ♣63
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with three hearts. What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand is too strong for a mere competitive bid of three spades, for you need to find partner with only the king of diamonds to make game a laydown. Jump to four spades. Don't worry about missing a slam. You have made a strong bid and, if partner has enough for you to make twelve tricks, he won't pass.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9862 ♡7 ◇AK765 ♣KQ6
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♡	Dble.	?

What action do you take?

A.—Unless you know something about your partner that we don't, pass. If partner has anything resembling his bid, your minor-suit strength should make eight tricks a shoo-in. Any rescue activities on your part border on the absurd.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♡AKJ1076 ◇K92 ♠A843

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ◇	1 ♠	?

What do you bid now?

A.—The time to cue-bid is not yet at hand. The first thing you want to do is impress partner with the power of your heart suit, and the way to do that is to make a jump shift to three hearts. You can cue-bid your spade void at your next turn, followed by any additional cue-bids you feel appropriate to investigate grand slam possibilities.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKQJ109 ♡AK9 ◇6 ♣743
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	5 ♣	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Enough of this pussyfooting around. If you are playing rubber bridge, bid seven spades and collect your 150 honors. If you are playing duplicate, bid seven no trump because it is the higher scoring contract. Partner must surely be able to contribute five top tricks to your eight in either contract.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠2 ♡AQ93 ◇7653 ♣K965
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ◇	?

What action do you take?

A.—Double. We are not enamored with a penalty double with four low trumps, but what other choice do you have? A pass would be pusillanimous indeed, while a response in either of your four-card suits would be a distinct overstatement of the offensive potential of your hand. In view of your shortness in partner's suit, you have excellent defensive prospects, so the double might easily yield a 500-point profit.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q105 ♡QJ75 ◇A3 ♣9832
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ◇	Dble.	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Partner must have a very powerful hand indeed to jump to game opposite what could be a yarborough with only three hearts. Since you were close to a jump response to the takeout double, slam is a definite possibility. Signal your ambitions to partner by cue-bidding five diamonds.

Q.8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQJ ♡Q10952 ◇KJ93 ♣Q
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

What action do you take:

A.—Partner's four club bid is what is known in the trade as an "advance cue-bid." It agrees hearts as trumps and shows a maximum two no trump opening bid. With what should be 38 points between the two hands, we wouldn't blame you if you simply leaped to a grand slam. However, it cannot cost to check on aces first via Blackwood, then bid seven no trump if partner shows four so as to collect an additional 150 points for honors.

DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: How can one get rid of congested eustachian tubes when pills won't work? Everytime I swallow there is a clicking sound in my ears, and when I eat my ears itch. — E.B.

Let's take a minute to discuss these tubes. Most people who have taken airplane rides or gone up in an elevator in a tall building or traveled in the mountains have learned they have eustachian tubes. These are air passages from the throat to the ears, and their purpose is to maintain proper pressure in the ears. Since man's natural environment is not flying thousands of feet above the ground, maintaining correct pressure in flight becomes difficult.

A balloon will expand as it rises. If it gets too high it may even burst in an attempt to equalize inner pressure with the thinner atmosphere outside. Similar forces affect the eustachian tubes. In an airplane during ascent, air tends to rush in and force the eardrums to bulge outward. In descent the drums bulge inward.

Now, to your questions. A person like yourself, who has trouble at normal elevation, is dealing with a slightly different situation. Tubes can become blocked, causing pressure differences that create a feeling of fullness, unpleasant noises, and hearing loss. Fluid may accumulate in the ears. Allergy, infection (as in sinusitis) or enlarged adenoids may cause blockage. In some a tumor might be a cause.

You don't tell me what pills you are taking. Nasal decongestants (to shrink membranes), antihistamines (for allergy) and steam inhalation can help. Antibiotics may be needed if there is infection. Sometimes fluid is drawn out with a needle, or air blown into the tubes to clear the passages. These mechanical techniques usually give only temporary relief but can be performed if there is great pain. Ideally, the answer is to track down the specific cause of the blockage and treat that.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I was appalled to hear from so many old friends who had cataracts. What could be causing this? Color TV perhaps? Is there something in our way of life that is damaging our eyes? — E.K.M.

TV gets blamed for a lot of things, but it has nothing to do with cataracts. Cataracts (clouding of the eye lenses) is one of the unfortunate consequences of aging. The reason for the rise in cataracts is that people like yourself and your friends are living longer than they used to.

Dear Dr. Ruble: What is the value of sunflower seeds? — G.B.

They are a good source of protein and some of the polyunsaturated fats (the good kind). They have no magic qualities or curative powers.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have heard about eye banks being used for storing corneas, so they can be transplanted to others' eyes to help vision. What about cataracts? Is it possible to transplant a healthy lens that has become clouded by cataracts? — N.L.

Human lens transplants are impractical; there is an artificial lens available for insertion so that the problems of transplantation are avoided. The success rate of this procedure is put at about 80 percent in medical centers using it. The operation is still under study by federal officials but is available in a numbers of centers.

Dear Dr. Ruble: You suggest eating slowly to reduce stomach gas and bloat. How does the speed of eating relate to the problem? — Z.C.H.

You tend to swallow more often when you eat fast, and this results in more air entering the stomach and intestines. The fast eater, who wants to get a meal over with promptly, is usually the person who can belch "on demand." Some people are so hurried, they will hold a forkful of steaming food inside their mouths and suck air over the food to cool it or gasp for breath if it scalds the membranes inside the mouth. The best rule is to chew well and swallow slowly.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am in my 60s and recently have been experiencing what I thought were hot flashes. My doctor says I should not be having these at my age. I am sweating severely and am awakened three or four times at night. Can you comment? — Mrs. A.R.

Some women do have menopausal symptoms at your age. But sometimes symptoms of other conditions are attributed to menopause when in fact this is not the cause. With the other symptoms you have, and especially with the nocturnal awakenings, you should be checked for overactive thyroid. Heart palpitations and weight loss would be other signs of an overactive thyroid.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: We are a group of Chicago teenagers who believe the sex and drug test you ran (it was made up by Memphis kids) didn't cover all the problems we face today. So, we have made up a new (and we think better) test. We hope you will print it.

Thanks for all the help you give teens everywhere. — Readers From Birth Almost

1. Have you ever been out with a member of the opposite sex? — 1
2. Have you ever kissed? — 2
3. Have you ever Frenched? — 2
4. Have you ever made out in a light fashion? — 3
5. Have you ever made out in a reclining position? — 3
6. Have you ever gotten or given a hickey? — 2
7. Have you ever removed all your clothing while making out? — 5

Add up your "yes" point values and see how you rank.

Here's the verdict:

0-15 — Headed for Sainthood
16-35 — Normal and Decent
36-65 — Headed for Trouble if You Don't Shape Up Soon
66-85 — You're in Serious Trouble Right Now
86 and up — You're a Burned-Out Damned Fool

Sign us — Normal And Decent

Dear N. and D.: Not bad — but I take exception to some of your scoring. Why five points for stealing from a store or a stranger and eight points for stealing from someone "close"? I think it should be the other way 'round.

The couple plans to be married May 12 in the Elgin Avenue Baptist Church.

Hints from Heloise

HI THERE:

Do you know which way is up and which way is down? Most of us say YES. Right? Well, wrong.

I thought everyone knew when riding elevators which was up and which was down. Not so.

Recently while with a friend from New York, and you know how many elevators they have in New York, I discovered that he didn't know that a red arrow means down and white means up. I couldn't believe it, but he didn't know that.

Maybe it's only here in the South, but everywhere that I have been, a red light indicates down, and a white means up.

DEAR HELOISE:

Don't throw away those old parchment lamp shades for I have a trick to re-cover them that is so simple even a 10-year-old child can do it.

Cut a piece of suitable fabric (drapery remnants, etc.) to go around the shade. Pin it on, wrong side out. Trim to a ⅝ seam allowance.

Slip the fabric off the shade and sew the one seam.

Put it back on the shade, right side out, and take a fingernail file and tuck in the allowance at the top and bottom. Glue on a pretty fringe for trim and you have a lovely new shade.

It costs very little and is easily made. From the scraps I make a pillow to match, sometimes buying a little more fabric to make sure I have enough. — Lavene

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a marvelous hint on donning pantyhose...

There's not a time that I don't give them a good, old-fashioned sprinkling with water beforehand.

On like a glove they go. — Marge Fredericks

DEAR HELOISE:

I'm sure I'm not the only one who hates to scrub a ceramic slow-cooker Which has food stuck to the insides. So I tried this method and it works.

After removing the food, fill the pot with soapy dishwater and 'cook' for an hour or two.

Dump the water out and that burned-on food just wipes out! I was thrilled.

Hope this helps someone as much as some of your hints have helped me! — Monica Copeland

DEAR HELOISE:

Please help! I have dried white paint on my polyester slacks.

As the slacks aren't that old, I'm keeping my fingers crossed in hopes that you can come up with a solution as to how to get it off. Thanks loads... — Helen Archer

The solution is pre-wash spray (a petroleum-based one). At least I have been successful more than once using this to remove dried paint from clothes.

But, the trick is to rub the spot (and rub, and rub, and rub) between your fingers after each spraying.

This is a case of perserverance paying off so don't give up if the spot doesn't budge at first. You really do have to repeat the process of spraying and rubbing several times. Good luck! — Heloise

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I was in a fitting room the other day trying to decide on my annual dress. The salesperson zipped me up the back (she has signed an agreement never to publish) and commanded, "Now turn around."

As I did, something weird appeared between the hemline an the torso. The skirt flapped open and out came a thing that looked like an urn.

"What's that?" I gasped.

"It's your leg," she said dryly.

"Both of them?" I asked.

"One," she said softly.

If it isn't one part of my body that is being exploited by new fashions, it's another. Took me three months to get my arms ready for short sleeves. I'd lie flat on my back, put on a record of Lawrence Welk playing "Winchester Cathedral" and cross my arms vigorously. It hadn't occurred to me that while I was reducing my upper arms, my knees were growing together.

I explained to the salesperson that those of us who carried our babies low had this problem.

She said dresses this year all had the disco influence with slits and slashes and that I had better get my knees in shape for them. "The easiest way," she said, "Is the old doorknob exercise where you balance yourself on a doorknob, squat down to the floor and pull yourself up again ten times."

It's going to be wonderful walking across a room without making a noise like you're being followed.

It's going to be wonderful running with the dog and not sounding like a gym shoe with a loose sole.

To be able to cross your legs when all about you have prickly heat and can only make attempts at the knee and have to settle for the ankle.

The joy of slipping off your pantyhose and not having the sensation that the dyke just broke.

The exhilaration of standing up and having your knees join you instead of just sitting there.

To wear boots and not have your legs look like two nuclear bombs.

It's going to be wonderful when I can pull myself up by this doorknob and do nine more of these knee bends.

On second thought, maybe someone will do me a favor, open the door, and knock me unconscious.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Alan: "We have frequently pointed out that any time you give a player a chance to make a mistake he will make it."

Oswald: "It doesn't matter how good the player is. Looking back on 60 years of bridge, I can recall plenty of my own idiocies in spite of a natural desire to forget blunders and concentrate on brilliancies."

Alan: "Here is a steal made possible because both defenders nodded. The defense started with three rounds of clubs. South ruffed the third club and saw that he needed four heart tricks to make his contract, and because of entry problems, he had to establish hearts before clearing trumps. He was home if the suit broke 3-3 and could also succeed if hearts were 4-2 and the man with short hearts was also short in trumps."

Oswald: "Then, I assume he took an added chance. He cashed the jack of spades and ace-king of hearts, led a low trump to dummy's ace, played a third heart and was home when East didn't bother to ruff."

Alan: "West made the first defensive mistake. He followed to the first heart with the three spot to show an odd number of cards in the suit. These defenders were in the advanced player class. Also, East should really ruff that third heart. His little trump wasn't going to be worth anything later."

Clip 'n' Cook

Custard Sauce:
1¾ cups milk
6 egg yolks
½ cup orange juice
2 tsps. grated orange rind
¼ cup sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
1½ tsps. vanilla

Heat milk in top of double boiler over simmering water. In small bowl, beat egg yolks with orange juice, orange rind, sugar and salt. Stir about one third of the milk into egg yolk mixture. Add to milk in top of double boiler. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until custard thickens enough to coat a spoon. Stir in vanilla. Keep warm while preparing meringues.

Meringues:
3 egg whites, at room temperature
Dash salt
¼ cup sugar
1 tsp. grated orange rind
Sliced strawberries

In small mixing bowl, beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Add salt. Gradually beat in sugar a tablespoon at a time. Continue to beat until stiff peaks form. Over canned heat, heat to a boil 2 inches of water in bain marie portion of chafing dish. Drop meringue by tablespoonfuls onto simmering water. Poach meringues 3 to 5 minutes or until puffed and slightly dry to the touch. Remove from water with slotted spoon; set aside on plate. Replace water in bain marie with 2 inches hot water. Place chafing dish over bain marie and add meringues. Spoon warm custard sauce over each meringue; as skillet fills with custard, meringues will float. Heat until warmed. Sprinkle with orange rind and garnish with strawberries. Makes 6 servings.

Lofts Provide Necessary Space For Inner-City Inhabitants

NEW YORK (Special) — Next time someone cries, "Aloft! Aloft!" don't look up. Chances are they are only expounding on what has become an increasing solution to the space problem facing inner-city dwellers. For many, lofts are the answer to the cry. All over the country, abandoned warehouses, docks, factories — industrial buildings of all kinds — are being converted into living space both on a co-op and a rental basis.

The attraction is wide open spaces in the middle of the city, with high ceilings, hardwood floors and extremely sturdy building construction, usually at less expense on a foot-for-foot basis than apartments. Although they require a great deal of renovation at first (most newly converted lofts need plumbing, wiring and heating installations, at least, and those that don't usually come with a "fixture fee" to cover that initial renovation), loft livers find that there is no better way to live.

"It's like building your own home," says Susan Pear Meisel of the spacious loft of Manhatten's SoHo (south of Houston Street) district where she lives. "We can put as many or as few rooms in our space as we want, wherever we want then within the confines of our 3800 square feet. And we're right in SoHo where we want to be."

For Louis and Susan Meisel, being in the city is the key. And being in Soho is vital. susan is a painter and printmaker whose work is shown throughout the country, but originates from her Soho studio (also a loft), and Louis owns the Louis K. Meisel gallery in Soho. Many contemporary artists live and work in Soho, a number of whom are represented by Louis. So when Louis and Susan began looking for space, they had to consider both business an personal needs, and were able to combine their needs in the same building. Their loft is upstairs from the art gallery.

A major consideration in their search was their collection of art, which includes photo-realists and abstract illusionists like Kleemann, Lembeck, Havard, Estes and Bell. This collection is hand-picked by the Meisels as art they want to live with, so its display is of great concern. The loft affords large outer wall spaces, 12 feet high ceilings, plus the feeling of spaciousness created by highly polished maple floors throughout the living areas, giving the paintings perfect exposure. Some of the canvases are quite large, six by seven feet, for instance, and others are relatively small. Freedom to arrange them and light them for maximu enjoyment is important.

Another key reason for their choice was the amount of entertaining they do. Dinner parties for four to 200 guests are not uncommon, and Susan does most of the work and all of the planning herself. Therefore, she has a commercially fitted kitchen, with a large butcher block island counter (which also seats eight), a commerical refrigerator and stove, and a large and complete working area.

Up to 20 guests can be seated at the hand-made oak table in a dining area off the kitchen and next to the living room area. For larger gatherings, the table serves as a buffet. Recently, at a brunch for 200 contemporary artists and friends, it provided room for ample fare, with leftovers.

The maple floors, which are part of the original building and have been in use since 1895, are bare throughout the loft. They tie in all of the areas, giving a sense of warmth and unity to the large spaces. Other hardwood pieces, such as an antique oak rolltop desk, the dining table and the butcher blockisland, combine with plants, warm brown furniture and colorful accents to give a homey feeling to potentially cold areas.

Although there are no truly separate rooms, except the bathroom, the loft provides plenty of privacy. A full wall divides the living and dining areas from the game area and on the other sde of the dining area another wall divides the sleeping space. Doors aren't needed here, because the illusion of separate space is quite emphatic.

Not all loft owners are so keen on open areas instead of rooms. But for the Meisels, it fits their lifestyles perfectly. And the wonderful thing about loft living is creating the space in the way best suited to individual needs. No loft ever has to look like any other loft. Starting from scratch, one can indulge in unlimited fantasies and whims. It's a lofty temptation.

PECOS PROJECT — The Trans-Pecos photovoltaic experiment would use solar power in sunny hours and utility power for nighttime pumping of a deep-well irrigation system. A conversion system would turn the solar direct current to alternating current. The thermal heat rejection system would control the temperature of the solar cells. To keep the intense heat from the reflectors from burning out the solar cells, the system would be equipped with tubes carrying an antifreeze-type liquid. The fragile cells would be protected from hail by a strong glass cover.

Tech Awaits Funding Of Irrigation Project

being efficient and seeking higher prices for their products.

Because those are only short-term solutions, Dycus is anxious to explore new ideas for the area. "Solar is our best bet down here," he said.

Endorsed By Clements

The system designed by Tech, which has received the endorsement of Gov. Bill Clements, would provide 200,000 watts of alternating current power from 102 units reflecting sunlight. Utility power would be used on cloudy days and for nighttime irrigation.

"At noon we would be putting power back into the utility line and helping to carry the peak load," Marcy said.

The solar energy would run the motor that turns the shaft that turns the turbine to run the irrigation system, he said.

Because the deeper a water well is, the more power is needed to pump water to the surface, Marcy said the cost per gallon for irrigation water in Pecos is two to three times as much as in Lubbock.

"What we're doing doesn't do any good for Pecos in today's economy because what we're building is one of a kind and not mass produced," Marcy said. But if the system is proved to be successful, it easily could be mass produced.

Most of the hardware involved is stock steel, drive motors, gear boxes and other readily available items.

"We wanted to design a system that was not exotic, that an ordinary business could provide," Marcy said, adding that 20 Pecos companies have submitted bids to provide concrete, steel and other items.

"Seventy percent of the cost of this system is the cost of solar cells," he said. The largest cells manufactured are about one inch by one inch. The project covers 10 acres and the cells cost about $2.25 each. Because the cost of 10 acres of solar cells would be prohibitive, reflectors will be used to make more efficient use of few solar cells.

"Many companies make solar cells but in limited quantity," the Tech professor said. "But all places that make solid state, like Texas Instruments, have the potential for making solar cells."

Hail Protection Needed

The cells do not wear out, he said, but they are fragile and must be protected from hail and other force.

Each of the 102 modules will be computerized to turn itself upside down during hailstorms. Each unit contains a reflector some eight feet wide and 18 feet long.

The computerized system will cause the reflectors to rotate in a circle to catch the maximum amount of sunshine throughout the day.

The reflectors will be made of an aluminum-type material that Marcy said is strong and as rugged "as the wing of a 747 (airplane)."

If the program receives funding, Marcy said it could begin operating by June 1980.

"Hopefully by the mid-1980s it will be economically feasible," banker Dycus said.

And for farmers such as the Passmores, who say they can't afford more utility hikes, hope is no small matter.

Carter Energy Plan Sparks Hot Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's chief energy executive said Sunday that gasoline prices may have peaked for the year, but he agreed with a prediction by the chairman of the Senate Energy Committee that prices would near or exceed $1 a gallon by late 1981.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, in an interview on ABC's "Issues and Answers," said that because of President Carter's decision to decontrol oil prices gradually between now and September 1981, "I think that you have seen the worst of the increases in (gasoline) prices for this year."

"Next year is another matter," he continued. "As Sen. (Henry) Jackson indicated, by the end of 1981 consumer prices for gasoline could be 15 to 20 cents higher" — or $1 a gallon for most types of gasoline.

He said the phased decontrol of domestic oil prices would proceed whether or not Carter got his proposed windfall profits tax, but he thought public pressure would convince a reluctant Congress to enact such a law.

But Jackson, who was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he will fight to retain the present system of regulation on oil prices for at least two more years "in light of world conditions (in the Persian Gulf area) and in light of the terrible inflation problem we face in this country."

"It's going to be an uphill fight," the Washington Democrat said, "but it's a fight that should be fought."

Jackson complained that Carter's windfall profts tax proposal is virtually certain to be rewritten so the money is funneled back to the oil companies.

Carter has proposed taxing away 50 percent of the profits oil companies would receive from decontrol and putting the funds in a special account to develop mass transit and aid the poor.

The Energy Committee chairman also disputed claims that decontrol would result in increased production of U.S. oil, saying new sources already can be sold at world market prices, so the principal effect will be on existing supplies already developed.

He said that could push prices for domestic oil from older wells from the controlled level of about $6 per barrel to the world market price, possibly as high as $18 to $20 per barrel.

"That, to me, is unconscionable," he said.

However, the president of the American Petroleum Institute pledged Sunday that increased revenues from decontrol will be funneled back into the search for new supplies.

"The removal of these controls will absolutely guarantee development of oil in this country," API President Charles DiBona said. "We'll put not only any increase back in, but we'll borrow money to increase further production in the United States."

DiBona also indicated the oil industry will mount a major lobbying campaign against Carter's tax proposal.

"We do not agree that additional taxes are necessary," DiBona said. "We will state our case as clearly as we can."

He said existing tax laws will take more than the 50 percent Carter has proposed for the windfall tax. A 50 percent tax on top of existing taxes would leave very little to encourage exploration, DiBona said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Several Hurt By Tornado In Arkansas

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP) — At least 23 people were injured and about 50 homes destroyed Sunday when a tornado touched down in this southern Arkansas community, state officials said.

At least 10 people were injured when tornados hit in other parts of the state, authorities said. In Little Rock, Gov. Bill Clinton declared Camden a disaster area.

The Camden twister severely damaged a shopping center, a school and another 75 to 100 homes, according to Tommy Robinson, director of the state Department of Public Safety.

Police reported looting in the damaged residential area. It was not known if there were any arrests.

It was not known how seriously people were injured when the tornado struck the town of 16,000 about 5:40 p.m.

Churches in the area opened their doors Sunday night to take in residents seeking shelter. It was not known how many people were homeless following the tornado.

State police radio operator Herbert D. Larson said the 10-store shopping center "looks like it's completely wiped out. It's just pretty bad."

A hole was reported in a wall of the Fairview Elementary School.

State police blocked off roads to keep spectators out of the area until electricity and natural gas lines could be shut off, Larson said.

Palestinian Rocket Attack Thwarted

Anti-Egyptian Harangues Continue

A-J News Services

A Palestinian Soviet-made rocket aimed at the heart of the Jewish section of Jerusalem was discovered and dismantled by Israeli police Sunday. Syria, still bitter over Egypt's signing of a peace treaty with Israel, said President Anwar Sadat was "earmarked for destruction."

In Cairo, Sadat's interior minister warned the government would not permit opponents of the pact to "shake the security and satablity of the domestic front," and a small leftist party charged Sadat with endorsing "police suppression."

Also in Cairo, the government has frozen nearly $90 million in Arab League funds and plans to impound the League's archives while exhorting Egyptian employees of the League — estimated at 70 percent of the total — not to leave Cairo.

Palestinian Protest

The rocket found in Jerusalem was the latest apparent protest by Palestinians guerrillas against the treaty.

"The rocket was aimed in the direction of the center of the city," Jerusalem's Assistant Police Commander Menashe Golan said after the Katyusha rocket was safely dismantled.

The rocket was noticed by a passerby sited on a hill near the Armon Hanatziv neighborhood in the southern section of the city. A police engineer took it apart, Golan said.

Police closed off the area and used bloodhounds to search for other missiles but none were found.

Late Friday night, a powerful explosion destroyed a Jewish-owned seafood restaurant in the Arab section of Jerusalem, wounding 15 persons.

Syrian Official Predicts War

Syria's minister of information, Ahmed Iskandar Ahmed, said the Egyptian-Israeli treaty would bring war — not peace — to the Middle East.

"The treaty of treason is not a harbinger of peace, but a battle cry," Ahmed said in an interview with Monday Morning, an English-language Beirut newspaper.

"The next stage is bound to be one of war," he said, calling the treaty "a military alliance between the Sadat regime and Israel against the Arab nation."

"Syria ... Strong And United"

"Syria has never been as strong and united as it is now ... the regime that is earmarked for destruction is the Sadat regime."

Ahmed said, "We will spare no effort to destroy Sadat, his treason and his alliance with Israel," and said that would be an expression of "our love" for the Egyptian people by helping them "to rid themselves of this treachery."

Egyptian Official Warns Arabs

In Cairo, Egyptian Interior Minister Nabawi Ismail warned opponents of the treaty his security forces were aware of plans to disrupt the peace.

"We will show no tolerance in dealing with any attempt to shake the security and stability of the domestic front," Ismail said on the eve of Monday's debate by the 360-man National Assembly, which was expected to ratify the pact by an overwhelming majority.

Thousands of security forces have been on the alert for the past few weeks to guard against possible protests.

But the Nationalist Unionist Progressive Rally said in a protest statement, "police suppression directed against our party has reached a peak since we declared opposition to Sadat's visit to Jerusalem that led to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

"All suppressive methods were used to prevent our party's viewpoint from reaching the people's masses," the statement said. "Members of the party were detained hunereds of times. The party's offices were besieged, its members were searched and any literature they carried was confiscated....

"Security forces raided the party's headquarters three times during the past three monthss and seized printing machines and literature," the statement said.

The Rally, a leftist party that has two seats in the National Assembly, is led by Khaled Mohieddin, a member of the "free officers" junta that overthrew the Egyptian monarchy in 1952.

The moves against the Arab League, which has officially condemned the treaty between Egypt and Israel, could hamper the League's plan to withdraw its headquarters from Cairo and re-establish it in Tunis, Tunisia.

In addition, the Egyptian government formally announced Saturday that it would not withdraw from the League or its specialized agencies. The Arab nations, meeting last month in Baghdad, voted to suspend Egypt from the League.

Biologists Speculate On Lake Monster

the lake, a creature rose and caught the goose and then the dog.

Undaunted, the hunter made a fire on the shore, put some fiery coals atop a buoyant animal skin and pushed it out on the lake. The creature caught the skin in its mouth and went down with it.

But a short time later it reappeared, thrashing around wildly and "making terrible sounds, probably because he had swallowed the fire," Pankov said.

After an article on the creature appeared in the widely read Soviet newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda in the 1960s, many expeditions traveled to explore Labinkir's mysteries, but all failed to come up with any concrete evidence that the "monster" exists.

One scientific expedition that included divers and underwater photographers spent several summers trying to find the animal without success.

Some biologists speculate the animal could be descended from pre-historic dinosaurs who once roamed Siberia's depths.

British experts contend that Scotland's Loch Ness creature is also a descendant of a prehistoric family of aquatic creatures.

An American-led scientific expedition scanned Loch Ness with electronic equipment in 1976 and reported finding something sizeable in the waters. But unbelievers contend the pictures show only a tree trunk or a sunken boat.

Some Russians say their animal may be a giant "schuka," or northern pike. The fish grow to lengths of nine feet and are known to be carnivorous and aggressive, even attacking canoeists.

The Labinkir Lake creature is not the Soviet Union's only monster under debate. A mysterious 15-foot serpent is said to dwell in a remote mountain lake, Kok-Kol, in southern Kazakhstan.

Pankov said he personally believes that the Siberian creature may be related to a giant pike that "can pull down a large animal."

The Loch Ness creature was said to have been spotted by local residents as much as 1,500 years ago, and 258 sightings were recorded between 1961 and 1970.

Pankov writes that native Siberians have warned travelers for more than 100 years not to cross Labinkir Lake by canoe, for fear the creature will overturn the craft and kill them.

House Panel Slates Money Bill Action

AUSTIN (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee has resolved all but a few minor questions on a proposed $20 billion-plus state budget for the next two years, but the biggest unanswered question is whether Gov. Bill Clements will allow the Legislature to approve a spending bill that large.

Clements said earlier the $20.8 billion budget prepared by the Legislative Budget Board was unacceptable because it increased state spending too much over current levels.

The House committee scheduled another meeting today to make final decisions on funding for agricultural experiment stations and the agricultural extension service and some riders in the bill, and planned to take a final committee vote before the end of the day.

If the bill clears committee today as planned, it could be ready for consideration by the full House when the Legislature returns April 17 from its long Easter weekend.

Speaker Bill Clayton said he will not have a final total on the House's version of the state budget until the committee completes its deliberations, but said, "It looks like it will be just a little bit under the LBB budget."

Will it satisfy the governor?

"Well, I'm working on that," Clayton said. "I don't know just what that will take."

Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, noted the panel's version of the budget is considerably below the spending levels recommended by other House committees, which recommend appropriations for state agencies within their jurisdiction.

The budget writers may get a boost if President Carter's proposed deregulation of domestic oil prices generates the additional millions in state tax revenue some officials anticipate.

Carter's proposal is for a gradual deregulation, however, and officials were uncertain last week whether oil and gas prices would increase sufficiently to make a higher estimate of state revenue possible before the Legislature adjourns May 28.

The Legislatire can spend only the amount of money Comptroller Bob Bullock certifies will be available, and Bullock's staff began work immediately after Carter announced his new energy proposals to determine the fiscal impact on tax revenues in Texas.

More Deaths Reported In Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ten more persons, including several top officials in the shah's government, were executed by revolutionary firing squads Sunday and today, reports here said.

Tehran Radio reported early today that former air force commander Gen. Amir Hossein Rabii; Gen. Mohammad Ali Khajehnuri, a former section chief under the army chief of staff; Dr. Manuchehr Azmun, former minister of labor; and a senior police constable identified only as Balili, accused of killing people in a public bath, were the latest to be executed.

The radio said the four were all "corrupt to the core," and "traitors to the Iranian people."

Six others died before Islamic firing squads on Sunday, Tehran newspapers reported.

Sunday's six executions took place before dawn in four cities, the newspapers said. Those executed included two pro-shah army men, three of the shah's policemen and a landlord who was charged with illegally seizing land and raping several women.

State radio reports confirmed only that three of the executions had taken place.

The official execution toll stands at 80 since revolutionary tribunals began their work after the Feb. 12 fall of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's government. They include 17 military and police generals who served the deposed monarch.

Meanwhile, revolutionary officials said more than 20 were still on trial in Tehran.

Report Says White Males Control South

By DAVID ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A survey of boards and commissions that hold decision-making powers in 10 southern states showed Sunday that 60 percent had no black members and 50 percent no women.

The survey was made by the Southern Regional Council, a civil rights research group that examined 146 boards and commissions whose members are appointed and hold real — not advisory — regulatory powers.

In its report, entitled "The Segregated Governments of the South," the group concluded that 60 percent of the boards — or three out of five — had no black members.

It said women fared a little better, being excluded from 51 percent of the board's surveyed.

Boards included in the survey had more than 1,100 members, of which 101 were black and 135 were women.

"As in the past, its remains a southern fact of life that the color of skin and gender tell more about who is exercising the decision-making powers in southern government than do any other factors," said Steve Suitts, the group's executive director and author of the report.

The report surveyed appointed boards and commissions as of Jan. 1 in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

It did not include advisory boards that lack regulatory powers, or the governing boards of colleges and universities, which Suitts said were more likely to be segregated since the schools themselves have a persisting history of segregation.

The report noted that in the nearly 15 years since the passage of the Voting Rights Act, some 2,000 blacks had been elected to public office in the South. But it said they comprise only 2.5 percent of all public elected officials in the region, where approximately 20 percent of the population is black.

Among the appointed boards surveyed, the report said Alabama had the worst record on blacks — only two of 15 had black members.

In Mississippi, where blacks are nearly 40 percent of the state's population, boards have only 6 percent black members and 60 percent had no black members at all.

Florida had blacks on eight of the 14 boards surveyed.

As for women, Louisiana had the worst record — only two of the 13 boards surveyed had women and only one woman served on each board.

North Carolina had the highest percentage of women on boards, 23 percent, while in Florida 11 of 14 boards surveyed had women members.

delaying the project, which lacks only 150 miles out of the complete 1,000, is "politics."

New Hampshire, which holds the first presidential primary, each election year, has many environmentalist groups. "He's trying to show he's the strongest, most pro-environmentalist person in the country to get support for the presidential primary in New Hampshire," Hance claimed.

He insists Brown's views on the pipeline don't reflect those of the people of California. Noting that 62 per cent of Long Beach's voters approved the pipeline, Hance said, "Local government should have control. And local government in Long Beach voted for it.

"The rest of California is not even affected by it. So if you want to talk about local control, the local government in Long Beach should have more to say than the State of California," Hance insisted.

The Dimmitt native said he doesn't believe his bill sets a dangerous precedent for federal intervention. "It's an emergency project just like the Alaskan pipeline," he said, noting the language in his legislation is identical to that in the federal bill ordering the Alaskan project over that state's objections.

"The Alaskan pipeline would not have been built by today had the same legislation not been passed," he added.

One of the reasons for his bill, Hance said, is that if the situation is "not brought to the public's attention and pressure put on the people of California, nothing will ever happen. But with hearings, we may see the state of California clean up its act and start issuing permits. That's part of our gameplan."

Hance rejected the possibility that Texans would object if the federal government ordered the waiving of Texas regulations in a similar situation.

He also contended the project is more important to the nation as a whole than to Midland.

"Midland might add 50 jobs or 100 jobs, but it won't be a big project" to the West Texas city, he said, explaining most of the crude oil will be transported to Midwest refineries in such cities as Chicago and Cleveland.

From there the oil will be dispersed throughout the region at up to $3 a barrel less than what Sohio now charges, Hance said. He explained it costs that much more for the company to ship the oil from Alaska through the Panama Canal.

Hance, who said the bill will be voted on by the House within three weeks, predicts passage. But, he said, it will have a harder time in the Senate because Alan Cranston, D-Calif., will fight it.

The senior senator believes California "should have the right to do what it's doing," Hance explained.

He said he has had no indication whether President Carter supports the measure.

Washington Park Named For Edward R. Murrow

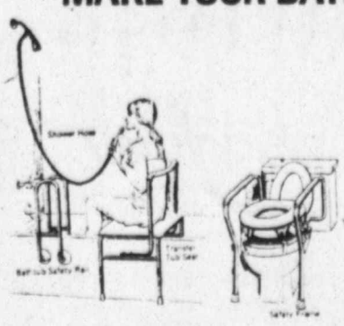

WASHINGTON (AP) — A triangular segment of parkland along Pennsylvania Avenue, one of the capital's busiest thoroughfares, will be named for the late Edward R. Murrow, it was announced Thursday.

"The most admired reporter of our times, Murrow developed new dimensions for radio and television news and set a standard for all who followed," said Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus.

He said the park chosen for honoring the longtime CBS network correspondent lies within view of Murrow's former offices at the U.S.I.A., which he headed from 1961-63. The U.S.I.A. is now known as the International Communications Agency.

Jesus, Disciples Share Last Supper On Passover

The Day Christ Died

8p.m., April 6, A.D. 30

The Apostles sorrowed and worried. Jesus had to die. They knew this because He had told them many times. But, like children gifted with exorbitant faith, they had been secretly certain that, when the time of trial arrived, Jesus would summon legions of avenging angels who would decimate His enemies.

Jusus bowed His head and clasped His hands. He was a Man with an inner worry, a secret and shocking knowledge, and He remained thus for a moment and then blurted the words: "Amen, amen I say to you, one of you will betray Me."

Mouths hung open; a few glared angrily at one and all; some sat up as though ready to flee. Each Apostle began to tap his own bosom and beg: "Is it I, Lord? Is it I."

Judas had stopped eating and was obviously as shocked as any of the rest of the company. He, too, has asked, in pained surprise: "Is it I, Lord?" and, like the others, he received no answer. Inwardly be trembled, feeling sure that someone in the entourage of the high priest had discussed the plot in the street, or perhaps told a follower of Jesus that one of the Apostles had promised to deliver Him to Caiphas in the dead of night. But did Jesus know who? Judas doubted it.

Smug, and now certain that he was not under suspicion, Judas asked again, "Is it I, Master?" Softly, the Nazarene murmured: "Thou hast said it."

Jesus continued to stare at Judas steadily, no rancor in His eyes, and He said: "That which you must do, do quickly."

The Judean stood. For a moment he looked down on the reclining figures of his friends and then, without adieu, he walked around the table, the leather purse swinging from his hand, and down the stairway and out into the night.

Judas hurried out into the street and walked to the home of Caiphas. The Apostles did not mention the fact when they wrote about this later, but Judas had to earn the thirty pieces of silver which Caiphas had promised, for this was the price of a slave. The high priest had accepted the offer only of Judas could effect the arrest of Jesus when the multitudes of His followers were not about.

THE LAST SUPPER — This illustration was reproduced in an engraving copied from a painting by the Italian master Raphael for a gallery in the Vatican in Rome.

This was the time, and what better time than when He was already inside the walls of the city? The courtyards of Caiphas and his father-in-law, Annas, adjoined by a common gate, and a servant studied the glistening face of Judas under a flickering yard light and told him to wait.

It was near the third hour of the night watch when Caiphas came out. Judas would have meant little to him, but for the chance that this mean little Judean mercenary might be ready to deliver up the Nazarene.

Caiphas asked by what right Judas expected an audience at this hour. The faithless one said that he bore good tidings, that Jesus and the Apostles were sitting at the Passover feast this moment, only three throws of a stone away from where the high priest stood.

Now Caiphas was both pleased and worried. He had not expected the opportunity to take this spurious Messiah so quickly. No arrangements had been made. The temple guards could be summoned in 10 minutes, but, in a case of this kind, it would be wise to ensure the cooperation of the Romans.

Caiphas told Judas to wait in the courtyard. The high priest hurried across the court to tell Annas the news and to get counsel.

In 10 minutes, Caiphas was back. He was curt now. The chief of the temple guards had been sent for and would arrive in a little while with a complement of men. They would wait with Judas for additional Roman legionaires. Caiphas himself would be off in a moment to seek personal audience with the procurator, Pilate, and ask him to assign a centurion to the job of assisting in the raid on the upstairs room.

The Passover proceeded in the upper room.

"Dear children," Jesus said softly, "a new commandment I give you. Love one another; as I love you, so I want you, too, to love one another. By this token all the world must know that you are My disciples — by cherishing love for one another. Only a little while longer am I with you. You will miss Me and, as I told the Jews, so I tell you at present: where I am going you cannot come."

The others looked to Simon Peter. He bent across the back of his Messiah and, trying to speak quietly, said: "Lord, where are you going?"

Jesus glanced briefly at the face of His chief disciple. "Where I am going," He said slowly, but loudly enough for all to hear, "you cannot at present follow Me. But you will follow Me later."

Simon Peter pressed one more question. "And why, Lord, cannot I follow You right now? I will lay down my life for You."

Jesus did not turn His head as He answered: "You will lay down your life for me?" He shook his head from side to side. "Before cockcrow you will disown me three times."

9 p.m., April 6, A.D. 30

Jerusalem was quiet. On the ramparts of Fortress Antonia a Roman guard folded his arms against the chill wind. His attention was diverted by the sentry at the twin west gates, who stepped into the roadway and bared his broadsword.

He watched the sentry, who spoke sharply to someone in the gloom outside the twin gates. In a moment the sentry was waving someone inside the huge courtyard, but whoever it was would come no further than under the twin gates. In the pale courtyard lights, the soldier on the ramparts could see that it was the burly chief of the temple guards.

The sentry spat. The Jews would not be here unless they wanted something of Pilate. The man on the ramparts wondered why the Jews did not come into the fortress. Then he remembered that these strange people felt unclean — sinners — if they entered the establishment of a Gentile.

10 p.m., April 6, A.D. 30

In the upper room of the house of Mark's father, the supper was coming to an end. Jesus stood. He placed the palm of His hand a few inches over the bread and His dark eyes turned upward. The whispered words of a blessing came from His barely parted lips. In the silence He gave thanks and broke the bread into fragments and passed among them, giving each of the eleven a morsal.

"This," he said, "is My body, which is about to be given for your sake. Take you and eat." He smiled down on them. "Do this as My memorial," He said. They now understood.

Jesus picked up a big metal chalice on the table. It was filled with wine mixed with water. He again lifted his eyes upward and murmured a second blessing. Then he gave thanks and passed around behind each one of them, handing them the cup in turn saying: "Drink you all of this. For this is My blood of the new testament, which shall be shed for many for the remission of sins."

Although these plain men had yet to acquire the superior knowledge which the Holy Ghost would give them, they knew that at this moment Jesus the Christ was establishing a new faith, a new pact with God, a means of salvation for all men; the God-man was offering Himself, in love, as the newly sacrified lamb.

Harrisburg Incident Places Agency Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission faces what may be an even greater challenge than the near-disaster at Three Mile Island — a fight for credibility and public confidence.

Critics and supporters alike say the five-year-old agency is going through the most crucial time in its history, with investigations into the accident at the nuclear plant in Pennsylvania expected to put the NRC on trial.

"Congress is going to ask, 'Can we depend on these people?'," said a prominent nuclear physicist, who is a supporter of the NRC and a key member of its advisory committee on reactor safety.

"It's a crucial time for them," he added, asking not to be identified by name. All five commission members are to appear this week at what is expected to be the first of a number of congressional hearings into the accident.

President Carter's special commission to look into the Three Mile Island accident also will focus on the agency's performance as it examines not only the accident but also "the nature and adequacy of the response...by all levels of government," according to a White House document.

The mere appointment of a presidential commission, say some NRC supporters, will have an effect of undercutting the regulatory agency.

Established in 1975, the NRC is charged with licensing nuclear plants, regulating their operation, and taking action when violations occur. While its predecessor, the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission, also had an official role of promoting nuclear power, the NRC does not.

But the agency's strongest critics claim the NRC has maintained, as one has said, "a mystifying, obstinate enthusiasm" for nuclear power at the expense of protecting the public. Many of its key staffers as well as Chairman Joseph M. Hendrie are former Atomic Energy Commission officials and strong advocates of atomic power, these critics argue.

And although the agency's performance at Three Mile Island near Harrisburg, Pa., has been praised, it also was marked by early confusion and conflicting statements. Furthermore, the causes for the accident — a broad range of human, mechanical and design flaws — opened questions about the NRC's monitoring procedures.

Henry Kendall, a professor of physics at the Massachusetts Institue of Technology, says the agency "has betrayed the public trust...(and) subordinated the problems of safety to the protection of the industry."

Kendall, a founding member of the Union of Concerned Scientists, which has been highly critical of the NRC, said the agency over the years has fought an attempt to lower radiation standards, lobbied against lifting the ceiling on insurance coverage in a nuclear accident, and "misrepresented the public on the hazards of nuclear power plants."

NRC spokesman Frank Ingram strongly denies any of the five commissioners or key staff members compromise their roles as regulators to promote nuclear power. One NRC source says that Hendrie has become particularly angry at what he believes to be unfair accusations.

Neither the five commissioners nor key staff members were available for interviews. Ingram said they are "too busy" dealing with the Three Mile Island situation and preparing for congressional hearings.

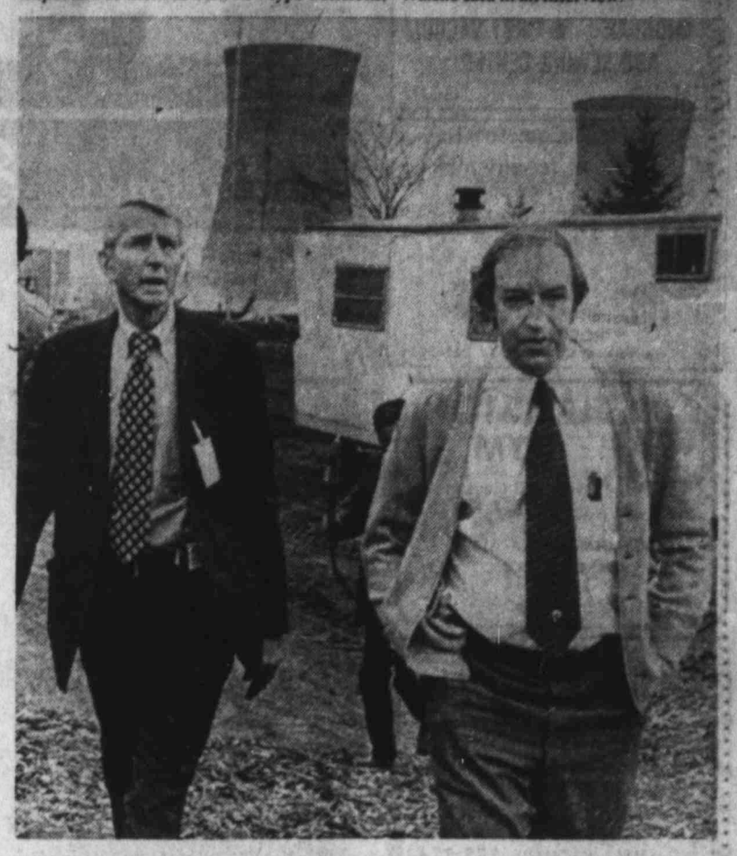

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., who will conduct some of those hearings and who has been a critic of the agency, believes, however, that a number of recent NRC decisions may indicate a tougher attitude on the part of the agency toward the nuclear industry.

Udall's aides cite the NRC closing last month of five nuclear plants in the East to check for the potential for earthquake damage, and its earlier rejection of the so-called Rasmussen Report, which for years had been a guide to nuclear power plant safety.

Carl Walske, president of the Atomic Industrial Forum, an industry association, refers to those same actions when he argues that the commissioners "certainly are not on the industry's side."

In fact, contends Walske, the commissioners often are "obsessed with this problem of credibility."

"They desparately want credibility and at times this credibility has even become as important to them as Solomon-type decisions," Walske said in an interview.

CENTO Alliance Nears End Of Road

B NEWS
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Monday Morning April 9, 1979

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — While Western nations mark the 30th anniversary of the North Atlantic Alliance this year, a U.S. Air Force general and a Turkish diplomat work in a dusty Ottoman-style palace to wind up the affairs of the Central Treaty Organization, another Western-backed alliance that won't live out its 25th year.

"The patient was in the oxygen tent for the past 15 years. Someone just pulled the plug," said a Turkish Foreign Ministry spokesman commenting on the demise of CENTO, the joint defense pact that linked Turkey, Iran, Pakistan and Britain, with the United States as an associate member.

Early this year, only a few months after holding CENTO naval exercises in its waters, Pakistan announced it was withdrawing from the pact.

In March, Iran's new revolutionary Islamic government followed Pakistan out of the fold. It said it was abandoning its CENTO ties, nurtured under the reign of exiled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, to join the ranks of the non-aligned nations.

Turkey delivered the coup de grace two weeks ago, announcing it was taking steps to dissolve the pact.

"If these two countries (Pakistan and Iran) no longer consider the pact useful, it also has no meaning for Turkey," said CENTO Secretary-General Kamran Gurun.

Gurun, a soft-spoken, silver-haired Turkish career diplomat with two years to go in his three-year term as secretary-general, has been entrusted with firing the 183-member CENTO staff after a meeting of ambassadors works out a timetable for phasing out the organization. A CENTO foreign ministers' meeting scheduled in Washington for April 18 has quietly been shelved.

"No one wants to have a corpse on their shoulders, so the faster it is done, the better," Gurun said in an interview.

CENTO was first established in 1955 as the Baghdad Pact between Iraq and Turkey as part of then-Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' Cold War policy of promoting anti-Soviet alliances. Britain, Iran and Pakistan joined later that year. Iraq pulled out after its revolution in 1958 and the organization was renamed CENTO in 1959.

The United States stayed in the background as an associate member, contributing 20 percent of the budget and promising to "take appropriate action, including the use of armed forces" if the Soviet Union or any other nation attacked the allied countries.

An American general served permanently as CENTO's military chief of staff. Air Force Gen. James A. Young currently holds the post, the last in line to do so. Young supervises the alliance's military affairs from what was once the office of Kemal Ataturk, founder of the Turkish Republic, in the historic old Parliament building that serves as CENTO headquarters.

CENTO did not have the unified armed forces of NATO, nor was there any of the standardization of weapons and equipment currently being carried out in the NATO forces.

About 60 CENTO military officers spent most of their time studying "mutually compatible defense plans." A series of yearly exercises tried to establish better links with NATO and among the individual members.

But CENTO's most notable recent achievements have been in the economic area, including the financing of a 280-mile, $100-million railway linking Turkey and Iran across towering mountains and giant Lake Van.

The organization's importance as a military alliance had been fading for years. Turkey was frequently angered because CENTO did not support it against Greece in the Cyprus dispute. Iran chided CENTO for failing to take action against subversion in the Persian Gulf, and Pakistan was irate when CENTO stood by during its wars with India over Kashmir and the creation of Bangladesh.

"Its ineffectiveness has been manifest," the late Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto bluntly told a CENTO summit meeting three years ago. "As early as 1962, Dr. Henry Kissinger termed CENTO and SEATO products of 'pact-itis.' Since this signal, major world developments have shaken the structure of the two alliances."

SEATO, or the Southeast Asia Treatory Organization — the United States, the Philippines, Thailand, Australia, New Zealand, France and Britain — dissolved itself after 19 years in 1975.

But Secretary-General Gurun claims CENTO proved its worth as a deterrent against the Soviet Union. "All you can say is that there were 24 years without an attack."

Western diplomats believe CENTO's death will probably mean little. As one diplomat put it, "Everyone realized it was defunct. Pakistan ran to the door and got there first. Everyone else followed suit."

'Non-Sexist' Version Of Encyclical Aired

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — National Catholic Reporter, claiming the Vatican's English translation of Pope John Paul II's first encyclical was sexist, has published a "non-sexist" version.

"Redemptor Hominis," the pope's recent letter to bishops outlining his policies, was called "Redeemer of Man" by the Vatican. The independent weekly published a version Saturday entitled "Redeemer of Humanity." The Reporter didn't criticize the pope's original text, written in his native Polish, but said the 24,000-word English-language text, translated from the Italian, contained 375 blatantly sexist phrases such as "sons of God," "man's history" and "man finds again." The newspaper translated them as "children of God," "human history" and "we find again."

Cambodians Report Town's Capture

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (AP) — Cambodian troops loyal to ousted Premier Pol Pot fought back along the Thai-Cambodian border Sunday, and said they regained control of the strategic town of Poipet from Vietnamese and Phnom Penh government forces.

The flag of the Vietnamese-supported Cambodian regime of President Heng Samrin was hauled down at the bridge marking the boundary between Poipet and this Thai town. The Pol Pot guerrillas said they virtually controlled the area around Poipet since overrunning the town Friday.

But no flag was hoisted at the border bridge to replace the Heng Samrin flag — a red banner with the five yellow towers of Cambodia's Angkor temple. This pointed up the fact that large areas near the border seemed to be controlled by neither side.

Thai military authorities confirmed that the Pol Pot forces apparently recaptured Poipet. They said there has been heavy fighting in the area since Friday morning, when 300-400 Pol Pot guerrillas attacked the town, driving almost 200 government troops based there across the border into Thailand.

On Sunday, rapid exchanges of small-arms fire and the crunch of mortars were heard constantly just inside Cambodia. Vietnamese infantrymen, supported by tanks, reportedly were moving along the highway to Poipet, while also fighting Pol Pot soldiers along the border.

Stray bullets from the fighting whizzed overhead on the Thai side and were collected by villagers as souvenirs.

Pol Pot troops, speaking briefly with a Thai photographer who crossed the border Sunday, said they had two battalions dug in around Poipet. They said they have been battling mostly Vietnamese troops, who were supported by four tanks.

Poipet fell to the Vietnamese and their Cambodian proteges in March as they moved to consolidate their conquest of Phnom Penh. Their combined forces attacked Cambodia on Christmas Day, ousted Pol Pot's pro-Chinese regime and installed the pro-Hanoi Heng Samrin government Jan. 7. Pol Pot loyalists have been waging a guerrilla war since then.

At Kok Sabaeng village, five miles south of Aranyaprathet, Pol Pot soldiers could be heard chattering just across the stream that marks the border. Occasionally, some would ford the river to get cigarettes from Thai village defense volunteers or would come down to the bank to drink the muddy water and wash.

Thai officials said Sunday that almost 1,000 war-weary Cambodian villagers and Pol Pot guerrillas have crossed into the southeastern Thai province of Trat, about 100 miles south of here, in an exodus that began last week when Cambodian government troops swept through the region of Battambang.

Thai border police said they tried but failed to persuade them to return to Cambodia, and they were taken into custody as refugees.

During the fighting, Thai authorities have had to protect villagers in border towns, and have isolated troops from both sides who have crossed the frontier. Recently 27 Pol Pot soldiers were sent back into Cambodia after a short stay in Thailand, while 187 soldiers of the new Cambodian government were still being detained in a temple in Aranyaprathet.

In addition, there is a well-established camp with about 4,000 refugees who fled Cambodia during Pol Pot's four years in power and 1,600 refugees in another camp who escaped after the latest government upheaval.

Several Thai villagers and military men have been killed or wounded in recent border incidents.

Villagers along the border have dug bunkers near their wooden houses. At Kok Sabaeng Sunday, people rested with their backs against sandbags or large rocks to shield themselves from bullets.

At a temple within sight of the border, the abbot of a Thai Buddhist temple pointed to a bullet-shattered glass case and the damaged eye of a bronze Buddha on the altar — silent testament to the fighting that occasionally has spilled over into Thailand.

Jerry Apodaca To Deliver Speech To Hispanic Group

Former Gov. Jerry Apodaca of New Mexico will deliver the keynote address to inaugurate United Mexican American Week this week at Texas Tech University.

The public is invited to hear Apodaca, New Mexico's first Hispanic governor since 1918, speak at 7:30 p.m. today in Room 109 of the Texas Tech School of Law. The visiting dignitary will be introduced by Lubbock's state Rep. Froy Salinas.

The week's activities are sponsored by the United Mexican American Students (UMAS) at Tech. There are some 450 Mexican American students on campus.

The remainder of the program will be conducted in the University Center and is free to the public except the Mariachi Dinner at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, with tickets priced at $3.50.

An authentic Mexican dress symposium featuring a collection of garments belonging to Maria Luisa Camacho de Lopez of San Antonio is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. The dresses will be modeled by Las Senoritas de COMA (Mexican American Chamber of Commerce). The presentation and program have been conducted by Gloria Madrid, Lubbock professional model.

The 1:30 p.m. program will feature a symposium of characteristics related to counseling Mexican American college-bound students which will be led by Drs. Jesse Zapata of the University of Texas at Austin and Patricio Jaramillo of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. Zapata and Jaramillo are psychologists.

Mexican bingo is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Senate Room of the UC.

Friday's activities will feature a Mexican food sampler with mariachi music in the UC Courtyard at noon and the Mariachi Dinner at 6:30 p.m. in the UC Ballroom. The music will be provided by the Mariachi de la Morenita band from San Antonio. The band is made up of 17 children, 5-14 years old.

This week's activities will conclude with an address by Houston native Leonel J. Castillo, commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service since May 1977. Prior to his federal appointment, Castillo served five years as comptroller for the City of Houston, an elected position. He supervised the fiscal affairs for the city which obtained AAA credit rating, and he managed the annual budget of more than $300 million. Castillo will speak at 7 p.m. in the UC Theatre.

Troops Execute Four Journalists

LONDON (AP) — Four journalists — two Swedes and two West Germans — were captured by Ugandan President Idi Amin's secret police and shot to death as they tried to sneak into the country, the London Daily Express reported in Monday's editions.

Other sources said the four had hired a boat and were attempting to enter the country by crossing Lake Victoria which lies on Uganda's eastern border.

The newspaper, quoting an unnamed United Nations source in Nairobi, Kenya, said the missing Germans were Hans Bollinger, a photographer for the French photo agency Gamma, and Wolfgang Stiens, a correspondent for Stern magazine.

Express reporter John Ellison said he had been told by sources in Uganda that the four had been shot.

Spokesmen for the Swedish newspapers Expressen and Svenska Dagblatt said the names of their missing correspondents were Arne Lemberg and Karl Bergman, respectively.

Western newsmen have been unable to enter Uganda which has been torn by war since last October when Amin's troops invaded Tanzania.

APPRECIATION REFLECTED IN SELECTION, PRICING — Sonja Jones of Jones Ornamental Decor relates how the Second Anniversary Sale of that firm is a gesture of warm appreciation of the customer confidence and trade that has resulted in the big store's growth in stock and capacity for service. 'Discount' prices have been further reduced by sale markdowns this month.

Triple Savings, Appreciation Mark Jones Ornamental Decor Anniversary

April marks the Second Anniversary of Jones Ornamental Decor, the "different" store at 3403 34th St., in Indiana Gardens.

This anniversary recognition focuses attention on several key situations:

(1) "We at Jones Ornamental Decor are most, most appreciative of the reception and the trade accorded us, enabling our growth in stock and service throughout these first two years. We want to thank all our friends in the entire South Plains and New Mexico area for helping us continue in the type establishment we provide."

Triple Savings Explained

(2) As a gesture of this appreciation, Jones Ornamental Decor is staging a month-long Anniversary Sale throughout April, with substantial savings posted on every item in the store (many drastically reduced in price).

(3) Upon its establishment, Jones Ornamental Decor pledged regular prices that would be most competitive. They followed through on this promise, but did more! Now, Jones has gone to a strictly "Discount" pricing policy!

(4) So . . . the big sale means three distinct price advantages: sale prices on already-discounted merchandise that already was marked at low Jones prices! It is a triple saving, for sure, presently enabled right here at advent of the outdoor season when so many of the Jones Ornamental Decor items can be especially appreciated and enjoyed.

All-Year Elegance

Featuring indoor-outdoor, all-season ornamental elegance for timeless charm and beauty, Jones Ornamental Decor is really a "showplace", and a visit there is of added benefit since the discount policy has been established . . . and now the Anniversary Sale!

The big store is open each weekday, with a late 9 p.m. Thursday closing.

The big showroom (with more than 5,000 sq. ft. space) is chock full of selective merchandise, and the open display, the easy access, off-street parking and other advantages make shopping at Jones Ornamental Decor a real treat.

The firm is home-owned and home-operated, essentially as a family operation. Wilburn Jones and wife, Sonja, are owners, with Mrs. Jones active in the management, assisted by children Jana, Mark and Randy, and other staffmembers.

Wilburn Jones owns Greer Iron Works, and custom construction of barbeque units, fireplace screens and log holders, fences, gates, etc., are among the specialties there, as is wrought iron and cast aluminum furniture.

See all that's new at Jones Ornamental Decor, Indiana Gardens, and profit to exceptional extent during April!

'Excelling Where It Counts' Is Sure At Elisabeth's Swedish Hair Design

Possibly in no season of the year is the best in beauty care more appreciated and more important than now — with Easter, Spring, Graduation and related activities prompting special attention.

And for this excellence in hair and beauty care, Elisabeth's Swedish Hair Design, 4630 50th St., Suite 106, phone 792-4688, is worthy of full consideration and reliance.

Dermodyn Facials

One of the key services at Elisabeth's in Lubbock Square is exceptional facial care enabled by the new Dermodyn steam machine for scientific treatments. It affords a truly deep-cleaning facial, with penetrating action on the skin, moistening of dead cells and dirt accumulation (all with lukewarm ionized vapor), a machine that does not generate ozone even in small amounts.

Staffmember Angel Smallwood, with European training, is specialist with this equipment, also offering facial waxing.

For true relaxation, for a facial to please, learn first-hand of Dermodyn advantages at Elisabeth's.

Nail Extension Choices

Theresa Cox is on hand as manicure specialist, with three methods of nail extension now available, each long-lasting and beautiful.

The entire staff represents true expertise in the field, and each is especially adept in the new Retro look, the fabulous new hair fashion designed by the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association (NHCA) and introduced recently in Las Vegas, with Elisabeth Pyron and staffmember Anita Shearer among those attending the showing of this glamorous and feminine style for spring/summer. Its soft curls, gentle waves and elegant shapes result in Retro Hair echoing the styles and fashions of Hollywood's golden era.

The new hair fashions can be styled for any length of hair but is particularly adaptable to the shorter lengths. The rich luster of well-conditioned, precision cut Retro Hair shows off the shortest styles to the best advantage.

(It is a pretty salon, too!)

Opened over two years ago by Elisabeth Pyron, a Jessie Lee graduate who later served as stylist at the Jessie Lee Salon, the shop has enjoyed remarkable acceptance.

The tremendously well qualified staff includes Elisabeth, Anita Shearer, Gay Sperry, Threresa Cox and Angel Smallwood.

Open Mondays through Saturdays, Elisabth's encourages appointments, but drop-ins are welcomed, too.

Both men and women customers are invited.

"For a really exhilarating experience, for modern hair care by skilled, proven staffmembers, for all the best in beauty services and the enjoyment of a pretty salon, acquaintance with Elisabeth's Swedish Hair Design at earliest convenience is recommended."

Crimmins' Baskin-Robbins Seen 'Out Of The Ordinary'

Preparation for Easter-related entertaining, picnics, parties and all . . . what a great time to turn to Crimmins' Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Store, 2902 50th St., for goodies sure to please!

Even though lots of cakes are kept on hand there, custom baking and decoration is a specialty. (All cakes involve the famous Baskin-Robbins ice cream, of course).

Crimmins' Baskin-Robbins, phone 799-9879, will custom bake an Easter cake on just one day notice, so there still is time! Chocolate or yellow cakes are available with any ice cream flavor in stock.

"Decoration is with your idea or ours; we really have some novel suggestions. See the 'hamburger' cake and others."

A cake to serve any size group can be specially prepared for you.

Some may not realize tht Crimmins' Baskin-Robbins bakes its own cakes and makes its own icing, inviting comparison with bakeries and other stores regarding size, value, goodness and price.

Prices To Please

As example of the sensible pricing, the Holly Hobby cake, 16 inches long and almost 4 inches deep, and with four pounds of ice cream, is just $13.95 (serving 24 or more people).

Cakes start at $6.95 (for 8-10 people).

And for that great ice cream; Baskin-Robbins is famous! Crimmins keeps at least 31 flavors on hand at all times, often having up to 48 flavors.

The Baskin-Robbins store at 2902 50th (just across from Dunlap's) for nearly two years has been owned and operated by the husband-wife team of Walter and Pat Crimmins, Lubbock residents for more than 20 years. The store essentially is a family operation, with Pat doing the baking and being assisted by daughter Shonni (student at South Plains College) in decorating.

Open Every Day

The store is open seven days a week, with 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. hours (extended until 11 p.m. of Fridays and Saturdays), and with longer summer hours scheduled upon closing of school.

"For assured freshness in special orders, for clever and expert decorative ideas, for service that clearly says 'we appreciate your trade,' dependence upon Crimmins' Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Store, 2902 50th St., is heartily invited.

Mahon Martinizing Cleaners Assure Finest Service, 'One Close To You'

"There is a Mahon Martinizing Cleaners easily accessible to you, no matter your Lubbock address, with these including the award-winning Martinizing facility featured in the March issue of American Drycleaner."

The same great services are available at each of the plants, whether at the newest and featured unit at 3322 83rd St. (one block east of Indiana on 83rd), at 30th and Slide, or at 49th and Knoxville.

With the outstanding physical facilities at each, and with the numerous services, the following outline of these advantages likely could be considered of special interest at this time:

Free Box Storage

(1) With the change of seasons, it is advisable to clean all garments before laying them away for the summer. With more wools and cottons very much in the picture, as well as leathers and suedes, proper cleaning before storage takes on added importance.

The Mahon Martinizing Cleaners offer free box storage within the shops, with only charge being the regular cleaning fee!

(2) Mahon Martinizing Cleaners are CCA (Community Club Awards) sponsors, inviting inquiry regarding the cash awards to participating clubs.

(3) There still is time for the finest in Easter cleaning. (Even the one-hour service, available on request, does not sacrifice the care and quality synonymous with Mahon Martinizing.

Pillows, Drapes

(4) Pillow renovation is another pride and service of the firms.

(5) Likely one's drapes demand cleaning at this season, and the Mahon Martinizing Cleaners are experts in this field, with the proper "know how" and equipment.

Steamex Rental

(6) Rental, at each facility, of Steamex Carpet Cleaners, is an added service.

(7) Customers seem to especially appreciate the ozone odor removal as another benefit at these Lubbock cleaners.

(8) And finally, one of the most important services is the cleanability, gentleness and other advantages of Valclene drycleaning. (If you have a problem garment, ask your cleaner to Valclene!)

Great for woolens, suedes and all, this quality, gentle cleaning assures a rich finish, keeping colors bright and making for longer garment life. Its low drying temperature eliminates the setting of stains; and wrinkles or breaks are not generated.

Capable staffs man each Martinizing facility. Among these are Scott Rickman, manager of the 83rd Street plant, with Billy Griffin as drycleaner; Johnnie Bates as manager on Slide Road, with Noah Reeves as drycleaner; and Sam Caddell, managing the Knoxville plant, with Mark McNally drycleaning.

Honors Explained

More about the signal honor accorded the newest of the Mahon Martinizing Cleaners, the one on 83rd Street:

American Drycleaner magazine devoted six pages in describing the functionally attractive design of the plant, operational procedures and other factors including how "the owner of this modernistic honor award-winning fabricare plant insists that his employees produce drycleaning of the highest quality and that patrons be given friendly service".

Attention was directed to the well planned floor arrangement, the efficient marking-in system, efficiency throughout production, spotless premises, Mahon's institutional-type advertising for which a definite budget is allocated; and full consideration of the customer, quoting owner Gordon Mahon as emphasizing "the customer's clothes are worth a lot to him. They're one of his important investments; we teach our counterpeople to handle customers' garments as if they were their own."

Isn't this the type drycleaners to which you should entrust your clothing?

A-1 Nursery's Lawn, Garden Savings Prove Boon To Area

For lawn and garden savings, A-1 Nursery stands tall!

To help one get off on the right foot in spring yard care, in landscaping, in planting, and all, A-1 initiates the season with not only a great selection but also prices to ease the cash outlay.

For example:

Rose Special

And a new shipment of roses with bushes as low as $2.88 each!

A super sale of pecans, 8 ft. to 10 ft. tall, regular $39.95, enables their purchase at $11.98!

Large tropicals, regular $29.95 are marked $12.88 or two for $25 (six to eight varieties are involved, in 10-in. pots).

Spring bulbs can be yours at low A-1 prices, too: cannas, in six colors, with three bulbs per package, are only $1.89; and dahlia, in six colors, two bulbs per package, also at $1.89; with elephant ears at $1.29; and gladiola bulbs in various colors, at 25 cents each or five for $1.

Pansies, regular $2.50 dozen, are $1.88 dozen.

Grass Seed

Grass seed values include Arizona hulled bermuda, regular $4.19, on sale at $3.49 per pound. Shady lawn mix, regular $3.99 lb., is marked $3.38; and Kentucky Fescue 31, regular $1.98, is sale priced at $1.25 per pound. A-1 also has dicondra seed at $7.89 per pound.

Easy To Find

Where is all this:

At A-1 Nursery, 7500 82nd St., phone 792-6070, open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. daily on weekdays, and 1:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. Sundays.

Prices are cash and carry, pickup at the nursery just southwest of the city.

A-1 has a tremendous selection in every department, well worth the drive to view and select . . . and save.

Long On Scene

Area residents have long benefitted from the landscape design, installation and maintenance services of A-1, plus such benefits as the new shipments and low early-season prices.

For more than two decades, area residents have been assisted by Winfred Self, owner and operator of A-1 Nursery, since 1973 at its present expanded quarters.

Everything in the modern nursery is coordinated for the very best in products and services. A complete line is stocked including trees, shrubs, vines, fertilizers, insecticides and numerous other nursery supplies.

The knowledge of Self and his experienced crew possibly is the biggest asset of A-1, however, as hundreds of customers can attest to the superior help there through the years.

"Come on out and see for yourself how A-1 Nursery can meet your individual preferences and needs, at a price you'll appreciate."

A super sale of Zipp brand fertilizers is now in effect, with still other savings, too numerous to list, in other departments at A-1. But hurry, for best selection!

A MODERN PROGRAM FOR 'YOUR' LAWN — Mike Henderson and Jay Hope of the a-Perm-o-Green Lawn firm in Lubbock call attention to the mobile spray unit that can revolutionize yard care 'for you, too' without exorbitant expense.

Maybe you've noticed . . .

A-Perm-o-Green is now available, here.

Yes, the a-Perm-o-Green lawn program can be yours . . . conveniently and economically.

The Texas-based franchise operation, the local unit at 3210 34th St., phone 795-5296, is managed by Rod Krebbs, 25-year Lubbock resident. Rod is a '77 graduate at Texas Tech.

Seeing the need of the services uniquely afforded by a-Perm-o-Green, the local operation was initiated in September as a locally-owned business.

Program Defined

Highlights of the program's advantages include:

A-Perm-o-Green's lawn treatment program utilizes a liquid mixture of nutrients, insecticides, fungicides and weed control substances scientifically developed by agronomists who understand your lawn and what it needs.

"Consisting of a precisely timed series of four to five annual feedings professionally applied by highly trained personnel, the a-Perm-o-Green lawn program provides an economical, efficient and effective way for homeowners to enjoy vigorous, healthy lawns.

No contract is involved, and a program can be terminated at anytime, after any number of applications.

Satisfaction is guaranteed.

Free Estimate

Free analysis and estimates are featured. Simply call 795-5296.

The cost is based upon square footage of the yard or lot to be treated, and "we'll just bet this fee is much less than you would have imagined."

"All in all, with a-Perm-o-Green lawn program, getting a beautiful lawn won't cost you a pretty penny. In fact, the annual cost, on the average, is substantially less than the cost of the homeowner attempting to maintain his own lawn with dry fertilizers, insecticides, fungicides and weed control. (And there is no investment for you in spreaders and other tools.)"

The a-Perm-o-Green representative, after measuring the size of your lawn, will give it a thorough analysis to determine its needs and problems. We at a-Perm-o-Green even take a close look and, if necessary, recommend changes in your mowing technique, and other factors that can affect a beautiful lawn.

Application of the a-Perm-o-Green lawn liquid fertilizer is advised at earliest possible date to get a head start on summer.

"May we explain our balanced program, our free estimates, our modest fee, our full qualifications, and all factors that can work toward a more beautiful lawn for you, our neighbor and good friend in Lubbock and area?

Multiple Truckloads Arctic Circle Coolers Swell Stock At Lellem Welch

Truckloads of those great Arctic Circle evaporative air coolers are arriving with regularity at Lellem Welch, Inc.!

This means that there is a complete stock, not only of these new units but also of accessories at the big home-owned and home-operated Lellem Welch firm at 1401 Ave. J in Lubbock.

Actually Welch is one of the largest Arctic Circle dealers in this part of the state and consequently stands ready to help one enter the warmer season — now — in a manner to save money and to conserve energy.

"Let Lellem Welch, Inc. give you the facts regarding economical, effective evaporative cooling, supplying complete units or parts as desired."

Stocked are pumps, padding, belts, motors, dollies, shafts, blowers, grills, and sides for evaporative cooler repair or update.

Multiple Sizes, Types

Stocked are evaporative conditioner from the 2,000 cfm of 12,500 cfm, including roof, window and gable type coolers, even mobile home coolers are available.

Parts play a very important part, so Welch tries to shock as many different parts as possible for the many different types of coolers on the market.

Help is available from Welch for the do-it-yourselfer" who wishes to do the installation.

Saving Pinpointed

And for savings, the Welch firm points out added savings if units are purchased before the price increases of April 15.

Evaportative coolers offer the ideal solution to a variety of residential, commercial and industrial cooling needs, anywhere that affordable cooling will increase in comfort and improve work efficiency.

"Evaporative coolers from Lellem Welch Inc. keep you cool . . . without keeping you broke!"

As for maintenance and repairs on evaporative coolers: the home handyperson can easily handle an evaporative cooler's simple maintenance — and pocket the savings on costly service calls. An occasional cleaning and a simple pad change once or twice a year are usually all that is required. When "old faithful" requires repairs, a full line of parts is available at Lellem Welch Inc. right here in Lubbock, 1401 Ave. J.

Of course Welch stocks much more than evaporative air conditioning . . . such as Eljer plumbing fixtures, Payne heating, Bradley faucets, Aprilair humidifiers, Space Guard air cleaners, and more. But with the balmy days fast approaching, emphasis is rightly focused on serving today's needs of the public that has learned to appreciate and desire the advantages of evaporative cooling, the Arctic Circle way.

"Lellem Welch Inc. is on the job to help you; may we have the opportunity."

And remember . . . evaporative cooling offers significant environmental advantages, as well as cost savings. Constant cool air movement pushes heat out, along with stale air, smoke, odors and pollution. The high volume of fresh, cool air helps one's body ventilate naturally. Evaporative cooling helps maintain natural humidity levels, so wood furniture and fabric fibers do not dry out prematurely. Since coolers do not require an airtight structure for maximum operating efficiency, you can leave doors or windows open; your house can "breathe".

With energy being so precious, and with the public now learning the implications of this, it is pointed out by Welch that "an evaporative cooler consumes only a fraction of the electrical energy required to operate refrigerated air conditioning. A typical residential evaporative cooler requires two small electric motors totalling between one-half and three-quarter horsepower; a comparable refrigeration unit requires three electric motors with a combined three and one-half horsepower".

A report on evaporative cooling notes that evaporative coolers presently installed in the western United States are estimated to save approximately 6-million barrels fuel oil equivalent per year in comparison to alternative cooling systems!

"Isn't now the time to install Arctic Circle evaporative cooling or to repair your present evaporative cooler for summer efficiency, savings and enjoyment?"

AVION. WITHOUT DOUBT — The aerodynamic design of Avion cuts wind resistance to a minimum, saving engine strain, improving fuel economy and handling easse. Check of the sale savings now at the Davis firm is invited.

Davis R.V. Service Center Sets 'Hail Damage' Markdowns

At Dealer Cost

This means that all hail-damaged units on the big Davis lot are marked at dealer invoice price, no more!

Included are seven new '79 Avion trailers including 28, 30, 32 and 34 ft. lengths.

Also select at the sale prices from three golden Falcon 5th wheels and three Golden Falcon trailers . . . all at invoice prices, remember.

And there is much at the Davis firm, 220 Paris Ave., near downtown Lubbock, that is not hail damaged, such as just-arrived units and more on the way.

Select from new and used pick-up shells, a cab-over camper, new Custom Craft shells, a price-discounted Jamboree Rally Motor home, and more.

Time For Service

Now is the time for recreational vehicle owners to have units serviced for summer use; Davis is an expert in this field, and a full crew is now on hand for service (but come early for minimum delays, before the rush season right upon us.)

Air Conditioners

Some extra good buys presently are arranged on Frigiking air conditioners.

And awnings, too, as well as a showroom full of accessories and parts that can make for greater vacation convenience and pleasure.

The Davis firm is located just east from Avenue Q and the Clovis-Amarillo "Y" in Lubbock, and prides in presenting exceptional values in every department.

A Unit For The Need

More about the new '79 units in stock in the well-recognized lines represented:

Outside, the new Avion is bright, anodized aluminum with sleek aerodynamic styling for both beauty and efficiency.

Inside, it offers "more active living space than any trailer its size, including standard features (not options) that set it apart. Examine the real wood throughout, the mortise and tenon construction, the tremendous storage space, the automatic water heater ignition system, dual holding tank water system, copper plumbing and all; you'll thrill at the new Avion with a floor plan seemingly designed just for you!

Enthusiasm for the '79 Wilderness trailers (produced by Fleetwood, world's largest manufacturer of recreational vehicles) is understandable, too. It is a travel trailer for all seasons, with built-in quality and convenience. Produced for families it features plenty of comfort plus cargo and storage for all of one's vacation belongings, and at a modest price.

Golden Falcon trailers have met wide acclaim, and Davis is proud to present models of these, too. Built and backed by Skyline, Golden Falcon models have "what you want and need." See them and compare.

In any event, Davis stocks all these great lines for one's selection and enjoyment for seasons to come.

Aside from the R.V. units, Davis stocks the needed accessories that make for vacation and trip comfort and convenience.

"See us for your needs in camper and trailer jacks (hydraulic, tongue, stabilizer and stack types).

Equalizer hitches are stocked and installed. Installation also is avilable on air conditioners and awnings.

The Davis firm services any make or brand of recreational vehicle, and it is wisely suggested that the units be kept in top condition for ready use as vacation and trip opportunities avail athemselves.

"Come by and learn the absolute truth . . . that Davis R.V. Service Center has everything for the person who appreciates the out-of-doors . . . everything for the recreational vehicle owner.

"Meet the owners-operators Mr. and Mrs. Boots Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Davis and profit accordingly. They opened the center back in mid-1973 and have consistently given their personal attention to every sale and service."

This personalized type of service has gained a wide and favorable reputation for the Davis R.V. Service Center.

Pastry Delights For Easter, Catering Among Considerations At Mrs. Camp's

For Easter pastries, cookies, cakes and all, why consider less than Mrs. Camp's, 4005 34th St., phone 792-2343!

At Mrs. Camp's, the delicious answer to every pastry need is present . . . for goodness any day and for the most elaborate of special occasions.

So, treat the children, family and friends to Easter delights from Mrs. Camp's where every operation is for finest preparation, display and service related to superior bakery products.

"Did you realize that Mrs. Camp's Pastry (long the solution to every pastry need) offers a really outstanding catering service?"

Catering for all occasions including weddings, anniversaries, birthdays, graduations and other group events is readily available from Mrs. Camp's where the Catering Department gets full attention of a dedicated staff and ownership.

Yes, complete to the glassware and silver, catering from Mrs. Camp's assures rightness in every detail.

David Yocum is the very capable manager of the department.

Charles and Frances Scarborough, owners of Mrs. Camp's, take special pride in the catering service they initiated some three years ago and which has been received in a gratifying manner.

Yocum and the long-known Mrs. Camp's ownership and staff invite inquiries for every reception need.

"We think you'll appreciate this service; call 792-2343 for details, or come by the attractive, spotless facility at 4005 34th St. where a large display hints of the completeness of the catering department.

Specializing in custom orders, Mrs. Camp's does "one job better", concentrating all efforts at this one location and this one field.

The custom party cakes, wedding cakes, anniversary cakes and many other products are not only the most delicious to be found, but they are veritable works of art. The skilled decorators create designs or use the customers' design in cakes for special occasions, baking and preparing on as little as one-day notice.

Only Pure Ingredients

Mrs. Camp's uses only pure ingredients in its many products.

Select from doughnuts, Danish rolls, French pastries, several varieties of Danish coffee cakes; and peanut brittle and divinity candy. Twenty-five varieties of cookies are prepared, with only pecans as nut ingredients.

All Mrs. Camp's products are baked and prepared right in the spotless kitchens of the facility.

Cakes and other bakery goodies are stocked in the cases at all times, and many decorative creations are in stock, sometimes eliminating need of special orders for a particular occasion.

Pies, cakes, tarts, etc., are the ultimate in goodness at Mrs. Camp's, open from 7:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays.

Business & Industrial Review

MEETING EVERY CARPET PREFERENCE — Hal Taylor and Nancy English at Tuftwick Carpet in southwest Lubbock call attention to special services augmenting the more familiar in-stock carpet value selection there. Tuftwick can provide Philadelphia carpeting in custom colors, manufacture and size.

Custom Manufactured Wool Carpeting Within Product Spectrum At Tuftwick

"Longtime recognition of Tuftwick Carpet, Inc. as a headquarters for attractive pricing, utmost in value, and always a wide selection is a matter of general knowledge.

"But in appreciating Tuftwick for its inflation-fighting prices, have you realized that this big firm at Slide Road and Brownfield Highway in Lubbock includes the most elegant wool carpets, even custom made for your own situation, along with its wide choices in other materials and grades?"

Finest 100 per cent wool carpet from Philadelphia Carpets, even in custom colors, is available at Tuftwick . . . so "let us custom make your carpet" is no idle claim there.

'To Your Specifications'

"Seriously, if you can't find the color you need, as example, consider custom carpet manufactured especially for you, to your exact specifications!

"Imagine . . . the exact color or any imaginable color, from the softest, most delicate color of your favorite rose to the deep rich auburn shade of your Irish setter! The exact style, weight and texture . . . even the exact shape, seamless and to 25 ft. width and 60 ft. length, can be yours!

"And you can purchase only what you need. Philadelphia Carpets makes your carpet to fit each particular room, seamlessly when the room is within the above size specifications.

Carpets of imported wools assure elegant beauty and natural soil resistance. Consider Flambeau, Presentation or Supremacy from Philadelphia and Tuftwick, now; you can thus have as good a carpet as is available on the market."

Tuftwick prides in the wide selection of quality carpet kept in stock at its southwest Lubbock store.

The wide stock and the special order service is Tuftwick's contribution to helping you fix up the home for spring and summer (and all-year) enjoyment. It is Tuftwick's way of saying "the very best to you; we want to help in your home beautification and in your budget."

"Low prices are the rule at Tuftwick, with extraordinary savings posted whenever possible.

Easy terms are available, with no money down, and with up to 36 months to pay!

Attractive Display

"If you have not been through the showrooms of the big Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., within the last few weeks, you are in for a real treat at your next visit."

First, there is a thrilling selection of patterns and materials.

Secondly, the prices and values simply cannot be beat.

Third reason for a trip to Tuftwick Carpet at Brownfield Highway and Slide Road could well be the most attractive display yet. Everything in the showroom has been conveniently displayed for easy viewing, comparison and selection. It is an attractive, inviting place in which to shop.

The basic reason for shopping Tuftwick has not changed, however, and that is the integrity and experience of a capable staff devoting all efforts to serve the customers' carpet needs as only possible with an experienced staff that "knows carpeting" and knows how to please in every transaction.

Jiffy Oil Change & Lubrication Cited For Convenience, Speed

Apparently there are a lot of folks glad that Jiffy Oil Change & Lubrication opened for service a few months ago at 82nd & University Avenue!

Expressions of "how convenient", "the cost is so reasonable", "It's so neat and efficient; my wife even looks forward to taking the car there" attest to the acceptance and appreciation of this modern business opened Oct. 16 by longtime Lubbock resident and auto service specialist Steve Paschall.

(Paschall has 13 years experience in related businesses, including ownership, and Jiffy Oil Change manager Larry Ogle was formerly for several years with a Lubbock auto dealership as a mechanic. Both Steve and Larry are on the job to serve old friends and new customers alike at the all-new Jiffy Oil Change & Lubrication, 82nd & University, phone 745-6190.

Featured at the facility are Quaker State and Texaco Havoline motor oils, Quaker State oil and air filters, Quaker State lubricants, and other major brand oils.

Charge cards accepted include Texaco, Visa and Master Charge.

What To Expect

The announcement from Jiffy Oil Change that really appeals is that:

"In less than 10 minutes we will (1) install up to 5 quarts of QS 30HD or Havoline 30HD, (2) install new Quaker State oil filter, (3) lubricate chassis, and (4) check all fluid levels for only $11.95! For only $1 more, QS 10-40 or Havoline 10-40 can be substituted."

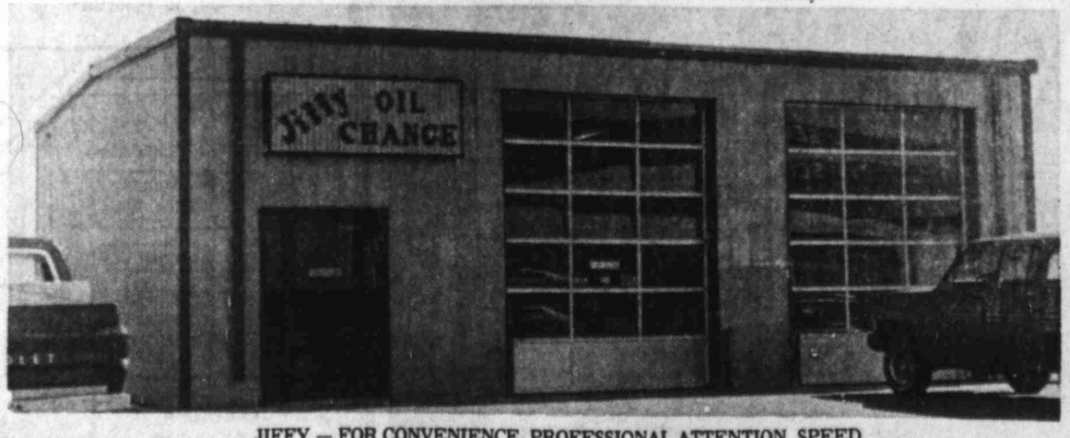

No Appointment Needed

Jiffy is open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturday, closed Sundays.

No appointment is necessary.

And also available and conveniently situated adjacent is Texaco self service gas, from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m., seven days a week.

"For a revelation in convenience, service and genuine appreciation of your trade, acquaintance is suggested immediately with Jiffy Oil Change at 82nd & University!"

Woolco Garden Center Stocked Fully For Season Preferences

Woolco's Garden Center is outstanding, offering a wide selection of growing stock, lawn and garden tools, fertilizers and patio decorations . . . all at low everyday Woolco prices.

"Inside our Garden Center, the customer will find a good selection of Briggs & Stratton lawnmowers; edgers and riding mowers from Dynamark. Also we stock and sell spreaders, lawn sweepers and garden wagons that attach to our riding mowers."

There is a wide choice in lawn and garden tools, garden hose, sprayers, hedge and grass shears, and more . . . (and remember, at famous low Woolco prices.)

Stock From West Coast

One gallon, two gallon and five gallon sizes of growing stock are on hand. Also there are Grade 1 and 1 1/2, one and two gallon roses. And bedding plants, geraniums, 3-in. potted plants, cacti and hanging baskets.

Blooming For Easter

Also, one can turn to Woolco for a selection of lawn fertilizers, Ortho chemicals, cow manure, Continental peat, potting soil, ammonium sulfate, sheep manure, Vigoro all-purpose fertilizer and Vigoro lawn fertilizer. These are stocked in the outside section of the Garden Center.

HAND TOOLS GALORE

There is a wide selection of plant foods and plant sprays, ready for season's needs.

The famous Weedeater brand of lawn trimmers is stocked, as is the promotional K & S weed trimmer line.

Select in the Garden Center from the wide choice of plastic and ceramic planters.

FOR OUTDOOR LIVING — Metal and wood outdoor furniture is stocked in profusion at Woolco. The pictured portable gas grill can further aid in outdoor pleasure; it all adds to the fact that Woolco is a customer-consideration center.

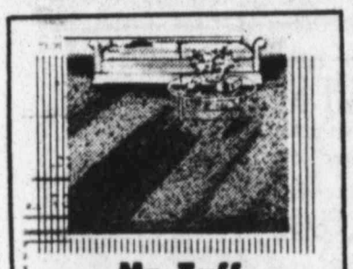

POWER TOOLS FOR LAWN AND GARDEN — Roxie Wunneburger of the Woolco Garden Center takes pride in the newest stock now on the floor there to aid in one's spring gardening needs. Note the tractor, mowers and even a trailer at right.

Pick Up Pals Includes Aero-Shields, Air Screens In Practical Accessories

"Pick Up Pals" — what an appropriate name for the enthusiastically received and relatively new firm at Broadway & Avenue Q in Lubbock!

Something in which everyone might well be interested right now is the selection of Aero-Shields and attached air screens at Pick Up Pals. In stock for Pick-ups and vans, and available for cars, the Aero-Shield and air screen can be quite a protection in the spring and summer months.

Custom fitted and made of unbreakable space-age polycarbonate, the Aero-Shield helps keep the windshield clear of bugs, snow, spray, grit and all.

It is guaranteed for two years against breakage and is available in five transparent colors.

Reduced Price

And when at Pick Up Pals, don't fail to check the Line-A-Beds, now in choice of black or white. And the prices . . . get this: Pick Up Pals has reduced its prices on Line-A-Beds! How refreshing, when everything seems to be going up!

"Small wonder that we've heard so many favorable comments about Pick Up Pals, the new firm at Broadway & Avenue Q in Lubbock!"

Opened about a month ago, this home-owned and home-operated business is said to be Lubbock's only dealer devoted strictly to pickup accessories.

And what accessories!

Such as the so-practical Line-A-Bed, the running boards, front grille guards, sun shields, aero shields, side rails, etc. . . functional protective accessories from the best pals your pickup ever had!

Line-A-Bed is the new liner protector for truck beds, vacuum molded as a tight-fitting insert and made from a high-density, extra high molecular weight polyolefin base material. Made of the same high-impact materials that go into crash helmets and football helmets, it is almost impossible to break or stain.

One solid piece covers and protects a pickup floor, headwell, sides and side rails. The Line-A-Bed is often used for auto parts delivery because of its durability!

What a way to protect one's pickup investment! And Pick Up Pals, at Broadway & Q stocks units to fit all import and all U.S. pickups. No long delays to wait for a unit; installation, when desired, most usually can be the same day ordered.

"Anyone who uses a pickup should consider a Line-A-Bed, whether the truck is for business, pleasure or combination. It is one of the few options available that returns your investment.

"If you use the truck for business, the revolutionary liner will return its cost in additional trade-in value, plus you still have the Line-A-Bed to put in your next truck," manager Steve Burleson points out.

"And if the truck is used as a recreational vehicle with a topper as cover, it reduces the danger of noxious fumes from fuel tanks and exhaust, as well as keeping out dust and moisture."

Running Boards

The running boards should come in for equal attention, with such features as construction of brite tread aluminum with skid-resistant surface, appearance of chrome-like finish but one that will not rust or peel, enabling easy entry and protecting the truck body from rock chips and mud splattering. (Front mud guards are included as are mounting brackets and hardware.)

Auxiliary Lighting

Or maybe the need is a bumper; Pick Up Pals keep a full line of bumpers; and a complete line of auxiliary lighting by Hella from Europe.

Grill guards are stocked and recommended, standing up to abuse and still looking good! Made of extruded aluminum, they have more elasticity than most metals and have tensile yield of 46,000 pounds per square inch.

Pick Up Pals is open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Fridays, and until 1 p.m. Saturdays. Installation is available on any product stocked.

Let manager Steve Burleson and his efficient staff open a whole new area of enjoyment of your pickup, slicking it up, protecting your investment and enabling new convenience . . . all at a cost likely less than imagined.

"Come by; you can't miss us at Broadway and Q, and look our products over; we think you'll like what you discover at Pick Up Pals." Phone 747-7099.

PKM Jewel Salon A Delightful 'Find' For Special Selection

Even with the already-extensive and elite stock that marks PKM Jewel Salon, added items have been arranged for the special needs of the season . . . Easter, graduation, Mothers Day, bridal events and all!

The new bridal sets are exquisite, and the custom design work by Henry Gibson, custom jeweler, is most desirable, to say the least.

(All custom jewelry work is done right in the store.)

All in all, it would seem that PKM was designed and stocked with this exciting season of the year particularly in mind.

"Truly different," PKM Jewel Salon, at 4509 50th St., phone 793-3291, is a one-of-its-kind establishment, proving in all aspects of its image and service that PKM is for 'now'!"

The unique firm is owned by the husband-wife team of Ron and Leesa Morgan, ably assisted by Donna Golightly and by Henry Gibson.

Visits to PKM are especially invited at this time, as its capable and dedicated owners and staff know that they can greatly assist in the gifting needs of this significant time of year . . . for events calling for absolutely the "right" and "wanted" selected. Why settle for less than such consideration; why settle for less than KPM?

Wide Gift Line

It is possible that some area residents, though recognizing PKM for the finest and most-desired jewelry presented there, have not discovered that the firm stocks a most discriminating choice in accessories for the home. A distinct department and room is devoted to art objects, brass items, crystal, etc., each item personally selected by PKM owner Ron Morgan as worthy of the firm and the clientele it serves and appreciates.

Gifts suitable for the man receive full attention, as for others of the family and for the home.

Custom Creations

Re-designing of family heirlooms is a specialty. And there is lots of work, too, with gold fashion jewelry, new stock items and custom creations.

Pearls are strong in style and more emphasis is noted on colored stones, among the trends noted by PKM that stocks and serves accordingly.

Special showings are arranged throughout the year, and one is invited to inquire for full details and dates for such showings as rubies and sapphires from Burma and Australia, custom mountings, custom-designed jewelry by masters of the art (known world-wide), and more.

The Morgans seem to have left nothing undone at PKM in providing a store and service to be appreciated.

(Decor alone could well be reason for a visit to PKM, but add to this the stunning arrangements and selections of diamond and gold jewelry, rare jewels, precious stones, loose diamonds, etc., at a "more affordable price" and one readily can recognize this as a store on which to rely . . . in any season.)

"Wouldn't now be a great time to utilize the advantages of The Christmas Shoppe, for Easter, for Mother's Day, for Graduation? Remember, the shop now occupies both upstairs and downstairs quarters at the east entry of Cactus Alley, just south off the Brownfield Highway at 2610 Salem Avenue in Lubbock."

SALES REPRESENTATIVE FOOD SERVICE
If You're Good — And You Know It —
Answer This Ad
You're an experienced, able sales professional. You can make it to the top on ability alone...but you want that high quality product line to boost your success even higher. You're either currently selling on straight commission for a food service product line, or you know you can do it — well — and are ready to try.

If you have several years experience selling for a manufacturer, distributor or broker — and are self-motivated, energetic and highly independent — you'll want to investigate this outstanding opportunity.

We're a high-profile company offering a broad line of super-quality specialty food products to end-user accounts. We offer the chance to do creative selling; an UNUSUALLY HIGH COMMISSION RATE OF 18%; complete benefits program; protected territories; and best of all, UNLIMITED EARNINGS. Individual programs available commensurate with individual background.

If you know you've got what it takes, and are actively looking or merely considering alternatives, we'd like to talk to you. Write us a brief letter and tell us about your background and earning goals.

UPSTAIRS, DOWNSTAIRS ... ENTERTAIN ON BOTH LEVELS
in an Aspen wood paneled living/den with fireplace and a second story gameroom, wet bar, den and sun porch. Add to the infinite variety of this immaculate custom-built home an isolated master suite with fireplace, commodious bath with sunken marble tub. There are also three bedrooms, two baths, a double rear entry garage and a brick wall around built up yard at its 8511 Louisville location.

RETREAT TO ONE AND A THIRD ACRES SLIDE ROAD SOUTH
where you will enjoy living in this "country charmer" brick home that is only a year old! There are three large bedrooms, two baths, double garage, basement and you may have horses! $71,950.

FIND UNCOMPROMISING SAGER QUALITY AT 5402 89TH
in a full energy packaged home that has living/den, large master bedroom, two other bedrooms and two baths. You will be delighted by the beautifully decorated interiors, covered patio and easy access rear entry double garage.

PRICED UNDER $30,000 AND THE VA EQUITY IS LOW for this 3-bedroom home on West 24th not too distant to Lubbock Christian College and Bowie/MacKenzie/Coronado schools. The large lot boasts many fruit trees and a deep well with pump.

EXCELLENT NEIGHBORHOOD AND LOCATION FOR WALKING to Haynes/Evans/Monterey schools on 53rd. The selling price is most reasonable for this home that has three bedrooms, two baths, washer/dryer, new humidifier, new dining room carpet and new concrete block patio among its many features.

WHY DENY YOURSELF THIS HOME'S PERFECT FLOOR PLAN?
Each family member will like the large kitchen/eating area, fireplace, gas grill of this well kept home with three bedrooms, two baths and double garage at 5808 16th. Frenship school bus stops at nearby corner.

A SHOWCASE OF FEATURES AT SOUTHWEST ADDRESS
See to believe the stunning features of this contemporary styled brick, near-new home. There are three large bedrooms, two baths, living and dining rooms, den, double garage and a swimming pool with filtering system. Den and kitchen have custom window shutters and there is a decorator's touch to every room. Circular drive and curbed flower beds allow low maintenance landscaping. Please call for appointment.

EXCITINGLY DIFFERENT IN A SPACIOUS SETTING
because this inviting home is on an extra large odd-shaped lot at 3305 89th and is superbly decorated in earth tones. In sparkling condition are living/den, built-in china cabinet in dining room, three bedrooms, two baths, double garage and large kitchen/eating areas. Pull down attic stairs, water softener and cable TV connection are among many conveniences.

Sign Up For Independence

When young people sign up for newspaper route work, they are really signing up for independence. The kind of independence that goes with earning your own money, running your own business and dealing with people on a one-to-one basis.

Our carriers are young business men and women. They provide a vital service, handle their own finances and reap a handsome profit from their efforts. What better training to prepare them for the future?

If you are interested in stepping into the business world and declaring your own independence, contact our carrier manager right now. He'll give you all of the important facts about carrier work. Then, if you are still interested, he'll provide the pen and show you where to sign . . . even if your name is John Hancock.

Police Investigate Sexual Abuse Charge

Juvenile officers Sunday were investigating the aggravated sexual abuse of two boys, which reportedly occurred at the Bean Elementary school ground Saturday afternoon.

The boys, 7 years old and 4 years old, told police they had been playing at the school when a man came up and told them he needed to talk to them. The boys said the man took them to the side of the school, where he threatened to kill them if they didn't remove their clothes. The man then sexually molested both children, according to police reports.

After the incident, the children reported the man told them to stay where they were and left.

The victims described the suspect as white, 18 to 25, with reddish-brown hair, blue eyes and "crooked, rotten teeth." They said he was wearing a green jogging suit.

Juvenile officers questioned a suspect in connection with the incident about 6 p.m. Saturday. However, after officers received a statement from him, he was released.

Sylvia Gutierrez, a waitress at the It'll Do Club, told officers that three Mexican-American men and two Mexican-American women assaulted her at the club about 2 a.m. Sunday. The waitress said the five suspects, all in their 20s, approached her and began hitting and kicking her, knocking her to the floor. Miss Gutierrez was treated and later released from Methodist Hospital.

Baulino Lopez, 47, of Lubbock told police that a black man armed with a knife robbed him of $360 between 11:30 a.m. and noon Saturday in the 700-block of 13th St.

Lopez reported that after putting a knife to his throat, the suspect cut his pants pocket and removed his billfold.

In reported burglaries and break-ins, Ralph Mojica of 1907 E. Colgate St. said thieves took $1,050 worth of property, including a color TV and stereo system, from his home between 5:30 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 a.m. Sunday.

Richard Powell of 2218 9th St. said someone broke into his place late Saturday or early Sunday and took a portable color TV. Burglars reportedly removed $350 worth of furniture from Jonathan Hoffman's vehicle, which was parked at 3313 80th St., sometime between 11 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Sunday.

Thieves made off with a color TV and guns, valued at $600, from Marvin Wayne White's residence at 2615 33rd St. sometime late Saturday or early Sunday, reports show.

Laurie Young said someone removed $500 worth of goods, including a purse, clothing and suitcase, from her vehicle, which was parked at 2404 10th St. early Sunday.

Burglars hauled off $2,290 worth of property from Arthur Caldwell Norman's residence at 6010 Norfolk Ave. between 8:30 p.m. and 11:35 p.m. Saturday, according to police reports.

Jessica Lynne Ellis of Mission told police that someone removed her purse, containing $700 in cash and more than $4,000 worth of jewelry, from her car, which was parked at the South Plains Fairgrounds, Friday night. Reports indicate the woman's empty purse was later found in Mackenzie Park.

Wreck Victim's Condition Critical

Ten-month-old Tina Marie McFadden of Lewisville remained in critical condition Sunday at Methodist Hospital with head injuries suffered in a two-car collision Saturday at the intersection of Quirt Avenue and U.S. 84, just southeast of Loop 289.

Her mother, Reland Duliese McFadden, 32, and Kathy Stewart, 25, of Irving were in serious condition Sunday at Methodist with injuries sustained in the same crash.

Others injured in the collision were Robert Letson, 12, of Route 10, Lubbock; Mary Melcher, 19, and Connie McCormick, 18, both of Slaton; and Brandie Lynn Letson, 11, of Lewisville. All were in satisfactory condition Sunday at Lubbock hospitals.

Robert Letson, Miss Melcher and Miss McCormick were being treated at St. Mary's Hospital, and Brandie Letson remained at Methodist.

Home Bonds Meeting Set

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Public discussion of a proposed single-family mortgage bond program — designed to give lower-to-moderate-income persons a chance at home ownership — has been scheduled for 2 p.m. today in room 108 of the Civic Center.

The Lubbock Housing Authority is considering the program, instituted by two Houston investment firms, which would provide for the sale of revenue bonds. Money from the sale of the bonds would be available through conventional lending institutions at an interest rate lower than the commercial rate.

Today's public meeting is designed as a sounding board for developers, builders, financers and lending institutions. Issuance of the bonds, if the program is approved, will be the responsibility of the Housing Authority and will not represent an obligation by the City of Lubbock.

Typically, the interest rates for mortgage loans which have been financed by single-family mortgage revenue bonds is 7 1/2 to 8 percent.

Loans would be available for the purchase of existing housing, new construction or the rehabilitation of existing structures. The program is designed for those people who are considered good credit risks but cannot afford payments at current interest rates.

Leslie O. Lynch Jr., representing Houston's Rauscher, Pierce, Refsnes, Inc., explained the loan program does not compete with individual institutions because the bonds would be sold at a tax-exempt rate.

Definition of the term "low-to-moderate income" would be left largely to the Housing Authority. The investment firms would determine the average cost of housing in Lubbock and develop a criteria for the loan based on available income.

No refinancing would be available through the program, Lynch said. However, it would allow as little as a 5 percent down payment on housing, with the balance being financed, he said.

Loans would be issued only for owner occupied single-family houses, duplexes or four-plexes.

Floyd Nabs GGO Title

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Ray Floyd, whose dramatic finish provided him with a one-shot victory Sunday in the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament, recalled his thoughts when he was standing on the 17th tee.

"I looked at the leader board and I was four under par and I told myself, 'Well, you've just got to birdie the last two holes. It's that simple.'

"I figured six under par was the number I had to shoot."

And that's just what he did.

With the wind gusting briskly and his adrenalin flowing, Floyd faced what was probably a two-iron shot on the par three 17th.

"I knew I was pumped up and I knew the wind was blowing," he said. "I've been out here (on the pro golf tour) 17 years. You learn some things in that time. Experience. You've heard it a 100 times. But it's there. It really shows. It was a two-iron shot. I hit a four-iron low, right through the wind."

It found the green and Floyd made the 20-foot birdie putt.

He also birdied the 18th, from bout 25 feet, just as he knew was necessary.

The birdie-birdie burst completed a five-under-par 67 and a comeback from a six-shot deficit. It also represented the lowest finishing score by a winner on the tour this year and the best come-from-behind performance.

"I've always been known as a guy who, when he gets ahead, is hard to catch. But in all the time I've been out here I haven't overcome a big deficit to win. It's about time I did," Floyd said.

Post Claims Narrow Victory

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Sandra Post won a tense tournament-long duel with Nancy Lopez by shooting a 70 Sunday to capture the $305,000 Dinah Shore Winners Circle for the second consecutive year.

Miss Post, a 30-year-old native of Canada who now lives in Florida, birdied three of the final eight holes. Mrs Lopez, who had entered the final round tied with Post for the lead, shot a closing 71, and lost her chance for a victory with a poor tee shot and bogey on the par-3 17th hole.

Miss Post finished 12-under-par at 276 in the 72-hole event at Mission Hills Country Club, a new record that was seven strokes better than the old Winners Circle standard.

A winner of only four tournaments during her 11 years on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, Miss Post became the first woman player to win the Winners Circle — the ladies' richest event — twice.

Pat Bradley, with a closing 69, and Donna White, who shot a final 70, tied for third place with 7-under-par scores of 281.

Judy Rankin shot a closing 73 to finish seven strokes behind the winner, JoAnne Carner had a 75 Sunday to finish 4-under-par, and Jo Ann Washam and Donna Young both finished 10 strokes off the pace.

Mrs Lopez collected $24,500 while Miss Bradley and Miss White got $15,000 each.

Miss Post said she did not really feel any pressure, "...until I got up to the 18th tee. But I felt good after I got on the

Spurs Win Division

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Larry Kenon's 36-point performance paced the San Antonio Spurs to their second straight National Basketball Association Central Division title Sunday with a 117-101 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The Spurs needed a win Sunday to clinch the title after falling to Houston, 123-106, Saturday night at Houston.

Kenon was supported by the NBA's leading scorer, George Gervin, who finished with 21 points. Reserve guard Mike Gale added 17.

The Spurs outscored the Cavaliers, 26-18 in the critical second quarter and went on to build leads reaching as high as 17 points in the final half.

Cleveland was sparked by Bingo Smith and Austin Carr, who each contributed 16 points.

Smith fouled out with 3:58 remaining in the third quarter to disrupt Cleveland's chances for an upset.

Yankee's Tommy John 'Sinks' Brewers 2-1

By The Associated Press

"Sinker, sinker, sinker," Milwaukee's Don Money muttered. The way he said it, it was a dirty word.

Tommy John, the object of Money's displeasure, had a slightly different explanation about his return to the American League Sunday after a seven-year absence.

"I threw almost exclusively fast balls. It sank sometimes and some were straight, but I had a good fast ball, movement-wise," John said after scattering six hits in seven innings and pitching the world champion New York Yankees to their first victory in three games, a 2-1 triumph over the Brewers.

John admitted to having butterflies — but said that was normal. "First-game-itis," he called it. "The first game you've got to get your feet on the ground whether it's your first game of the season, the first game of the playoffs or the first game of the World Series."

John's pinpoint control deserted him at the start.

"I thought I was on a boat out there," he said. "My foot was hitting tyhe ground either too soon or too late. The last five or six warmups and the first five pitches in the game didn't come anywhere near the strike zone.

"I'll pitch that way 90 percent of the time. If I have a problem, it'll be in the first three or four innings."

ANGELS 7, SEATTLE 5

Dan Ford knocked in three runs with two homers and a double and Carney Lansford's double in the eighth scored the winning run Sunday as the California Angels beat the Seattle Mariners 7-5.

Lansford doubled after Joe Rudi drew a walk off Seattle reliever Shane Rawley, 0-1, to break a 5-5 tie. Ford then hit his second homer of the afternoon in the ninth inning to cap the Angels' scoring.

California reliever Dave LaRoche, 1-0, got the victory.

The Mariners had tied the game at 5-5 with four runs in the bottom of the seventh, capped by Dan Meyer's two-out, two-run homer off LaRoche. LaRoche replaced starter Don Aase after Julio Cruz singled for Seattle's second run of the inning. Bob Stinson's groundout produced the first run.

The Angels had gone in front 5-1 in the top of the seventh when they turned an error and doubles by Rick Miller and Ford into two runs.

ASTROS' 2, BRAVES 0

Knuckleballer Joe Niekro scattered five hits and Houston jumped on rookie Rick Matula for two first-inning runs and a 2-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves Sunday that completed the Astros' three-game season-opening sweep.

Houston, which won 6-0 Saturday night on Ken Forsch's no-hitter, scored the only runs Niekro needed when Terry Puhl singled and moved to second on a grounder, Cesar Cedeno hit an RBI double to the wall in left-center field and Jose Cruz singled Cedeno home. It was Matula's first major league game.

It marked the third straight game Houston had opened with a two-run first inning and the Astros went on to extend their string of shutout innings to 21 straight against the Braves.

Niekro yielded a game-opening single to Jerry Royster but never was in serious trouble. Royster stole second base but no other Atlanta runner got past first the rest of the way.

Puhl led off Houston's first with a single to center field. He advanced to second base on Craig Reynold's ground out prior to Cedeno's run-scoring double, his second of the season. Cruz then followed with Houston's second run of the inning.

Niekro, 14-14 last season, never was seriously threatened by the Braves. He finished with seven strikeouts, no walks and his 13th career shutout.

Atlanta's Dale Murphy clubbed a single with one out in the second inning, but Houston's fourth doubleplay of the season ended that brief threat.

Matula scattered six hits in seven innings with three strikeouts and no walks. He allowed only one runner past first base after Cruz reached first on an error and stole second in the third inning.

PIRATES 5, EXPOS 4

Andre Dawson drove in three runs with a homer and a single to lead the Montreal Expos to a 5-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday.

The Pirates lost despite a two-run homer in the eighth inning by Willie Stargell that made him Pittsburgh's all-time leader with 870 extra-base hits, surpassing Honus Wagner.

The Expos trailed 2-1 into the seventh inning against Pirate starter Bruce Kison, who was yanked by Manager Chuck Tanner after he walked Chris Speier with one out in the seventh.

PHILLIES 3, CARDINALS 2

Larry Bowa had his first hit in 11 at-bats and scored two outs later on Mike Schmidt's sixth inning double to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 3-2 lead over the St. Louis Cardinal's in a National League game that was suspended by rain.

Under a newly adopted rule, the game will resume with the Cardinals at bat in the bottom of the sixth. Previously, the game would have reverted to a 2-2 tie with the rain wiping out the Phillies go-ahead run, and then would have been replayed in its entirety. The game, suspended after a 98-minute, wait will be completed on June 29.

CHICAGO 5, ORIOLES 1

Richard Wortham and Lerrin LaGrow, backed by a 10-hit Chicago attack, combined on a three-hitter and hurled the White Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Sunday.

Wortham, a 25-year-old left-hander, had a no-hitter until Larry Harlow sliced a double just inside the left-field line with one out in the sixth. Rick Dempsey, who had walked, took third on the hit, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ken Singleton.

LaGrow pitched out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam in the ninth to preserve Wortham's victory.

Chicago, which lost the first two games of the series, chased loser Dennis Martinez with a three-run rally in the seventh.

BOSOX 7, INDIANS 6

Jim Rice scored on Jack Brohamer's infield out in the 12th inning to give the Boston Red Sox a 7-6 victory over the Cleveland Indians Sunday.

Fred Lynn slammed a pair of two-run homers and Rice added a two-run single to give the Red Sox the lead three times during the first nine innings. However, Cleveland kept chipping away and finally tied the game in the bottom of the ninth on Toby Harrah's RBI single.

In the 12th, Rice reached base with one out on an infield single off Victor Cruz and Carl Yastrzemski and George Scott drew walks to load the bases before Brohamer bounced a ball to second baseman Duane Kuiper, allowing Rice to score.

Dick Drago, the last of four Boston pitchers, picked the victory with two innings of perfect relief.

ROYAL 8, BLUE JAYS 3

George Brett reached base five times and stole two bases for the Kansas City Royals to almost single-handidly destroy the Toronto Blue Jays 8-3.

The left-handed third baseman hammered the first Toronto pitch into right field for a triple and scored the day's first run on Darrell Porter's ground ball.

Paul Splittorff picked up his first win of the year for the Royals on the mound.

Brett walked in the third, stole second and scored on a single by Amos Otis. Brett's leadoff double in the seventh was wasted when he got caught in a rundown between third and home, but one batter later, Pete Lacock doubled off reliever Dave Lemanczyk to score Otis and Porter.

REDS 7, GIANTS 6

Rick Auerbach doubled and Joe Morgan drove him home with a 10th-inning single to give the Cincinnati Reds a 7-6 victory over the San Francisco Giants Sunday.

Auerbach, batting for winning reliever Doug Bair, doubled off reliever John Curtis to start the 10th. Two outs later George Foster hit his seventh career grand-slam home run in the fifth inning and two pitches later Dan Driessen homered to give Cincinnati a 6-5 lead. But Morgan stroked the game-winning single, his fourth hit of the game, to right field.

Mike Ivie led off the sixth for the Giants with a hit, his third of the game, and later scored on a single by Roger Metzger to tie it 6-6.

The first 11 runs in the game — five by San Francisco and six by Cincinnati — were unearned.

The Giants scored five times in the first inning when Bill North reached based on an error, Terry Whitfield walked and Jack Clark, Ivie, and Marc Hill all had hits. Metzger capped the inning with a two-run triple that chased Cincinnati starter Mike LaCoss.

TWINS 3, OAKLAND 1

Geoff Zahn pitched a three-hitter and the Minnesota Twins, capitalizing on early wildness by Oakland pitcher Mike Norris, beat the A's 3-1 Sunday to sweep the season-opening three-game series.

Minnesota scored two runs in the first inning without the benefit of a hit off Norris, who walked four batters and hit one in the inning. Two walks and a hit batter loaded the bases before Norris got the first out. Glenn Adams drove in the first run with a grounder to first and Norris walked Butch Wynegar to force in another run.

Wynegar would have been out on a pop foul, but first baseman Dave Revering was charged with a error when the ball fell near him untouched.

DODGERS 6, PADRES 5

Dave Lopes ripped a one-out home run in the bottom of the 12th inning Sunday, giving the Los Angeles Dodgers a 6-5 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Lopes' homer came off San Diego reliever Bob Shirley. Rookie Rick Sutcliffe earned his first major league victory, giving up three hits over the final five innings.

"I could have gone a couple of more innings if I had to," said Sutcliffe after the game. "My job is long relief so it's no big deal. This is the perfect position for me.

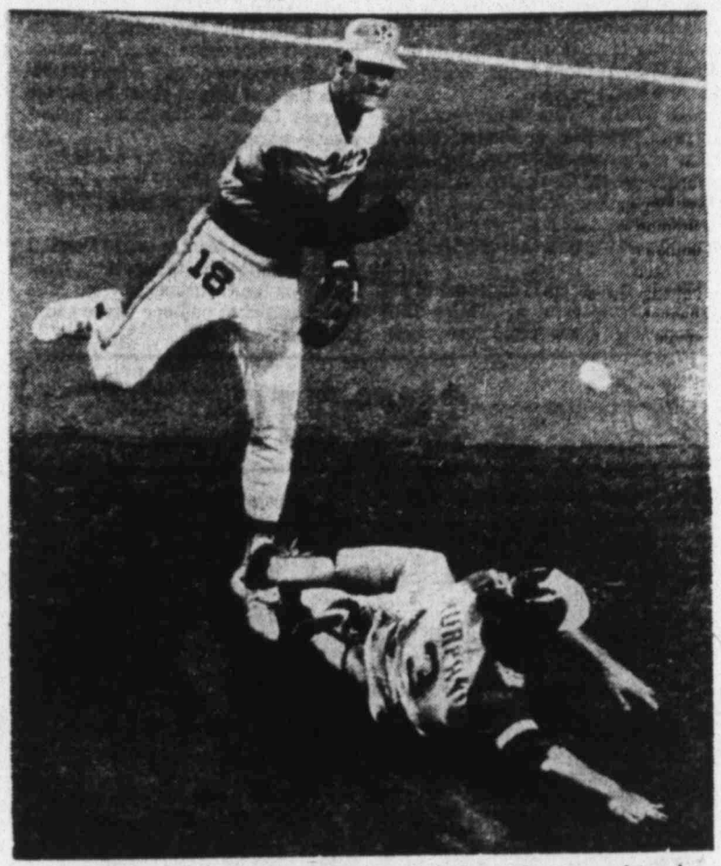

"I hope to be a starter one day when I'm ready but I'm glad to be doing this," added the 22-year-old right-hander. I'm here to learn."

RANGERS DELAYED

It was another false start for the Detroit Tigers and the Texas Rangers Sunday as cold weather and freezing rain forced the postponement of the American League contest.

Detroit was also forced to cancel its scheduled home opener on Thursday and again Friday because of inclement conditions.

Sunday's New York Mets-Chicago contest was also postponed because of a steady drizzle that fell in the windy city.

FIRES FOR TWO— Astro second-baseman, Art How, fires to first to complete a double play after Atlanta's Dale Murphy was forced at second Sunday in the final game of the Astros'-Braves series. Houston won 2-0 to take the series. (AP Laserphoto)

'Mysterious Insect' Helps Forsch In No-Hitter

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Ken Forsch overcame a pair of preseason shellings, a hamstring pull and other exotic maladies such as an insect bite prior to pitching the earliest no-hitter in major league history Saturday night against Atlanta.

All the frustrations of spring training melted away, however, as Forsch muted Atlanta bats for nine innings and faced only two more than the minimum batters — he walked two — en route to a memorable 6-0 victory.

But going into the season, Forsch would have been the last of the Astros' pitches expected to turn in a no-hit performance.

The 10-year veteran started spring training by pulling a hamstring muscle and later was sidelined briefly when he developed leg soreness.

Forsch, 0-3 during spring training, once was blasted for 14 hits by Minnesota in four innings and on another occasion Montreal pelted him for 13 hits over seven innings.

Then, two days before he was to make his first regular season start, a mysterious insect bite caused Forsch's left (non-pitching) elbow to swell and for a time he was a doubtful starter.

"I was really sick Thursday," Forsch recalled. "It was my worst day."

By Friday, however, Forsch decided he could pitch and took some good-natured ribbing from second baseman Art Howe.

"I told him I was tired of hearing about all his aches and pains," Howe said. "I told him 'Buddy, go out there and pitch a shutout.'"

Forsch surpassed the shutout plateau by several degrees.

—It was the earliest no-hitter in major league history. Cleveland's Bob Feller hurled a no-hitter on opening day in 1940, but the date was April 16.

—It marked the first time in major league history that a brother combination had thrown no-hitters. Forsch's brother Bob, of the St. Louis Cardinals, no-hit Philadelphia 5-0 last April 16.

—Forsch came within two batters of a perfect game. He walked Jeff Burroughs in the second inning and Barry Bonnell with two out in the eighth, both on 3-1 pitches.

—Forsch's performance was the 190th no-hitter in the major leagues. Cincinnati's Tom Seaver pitched the last previous no-hitter on June 16, 1978, against St. Louis.

"In my younger days, I probably couldn't have thrown a no-hitter," the 32-year-old Forsch said. "I mostly threw hard stuff and when you get into the seventh inning, it's hard to keep relying on fastballs every time."

Houston first baseman Bob Watson said, "That's the key, he's no longer just a thrower, he is a pitcher now."

Meanwhile, amid the mayhem of the postgame Astros' dressing room, pitcher Joe Niekro, scheduled to start the series finale against Atlanta Sunday, had a serious afterthought:

"I want to find that spider that bit Kenny," he said. "Maybe it'll help me, too."

HAPPY FOLKS— Houston Astros' pitcher Ken Forsch, right, is all smiles as he is congratulated by a jubilant teammate Joe Sambito after tossing a no-hitter Saturday night in the Astrodome. Forsch allowed only two men on base, both on walks. It was the earliest no-hitter ever thrown in the National League. (AP Laserphoto)

Aggies Claim No Wrongdoing In Car Deal

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas AM Athletic Director Marvin Tate said Sunday the school wants to make sure everything was "totally above board" in the automobile loan received by Texas AM football recruit Mack Moore.

"I certainly hope, when we look into it, that the player went through the proper channels," said Tate. "I hope everything will be like I expect it to be."

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Saturday in a copyright story by Jim Dent that the 6-foot-4, 250-pound defensive tackle received a loan normally reserved for preferred customers from the Bank of Dallas for a sports car one month after he transferred from San Francisco City College.

Moore has been one of the highlights of the Aggie spring drills, taking over a starting position. He had been put on the side with all-Southwest Conference Jacob Green but made such an impression that he was switched to right tackle.

The chairman of the board of the Bank of Dallas is J.L. Huffines Jr., a director of Texas AM's booster club and former president of the Aggie Club.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram said the car was purchased Feb. 22 at Huffines Chevrolet-Pontiac-Buick in Commerce. Huffines, a 1944 graduate of Texas AM, is owner of the dealership.

Moore is from Ferriday, La., where his father works as a junior high school principal.

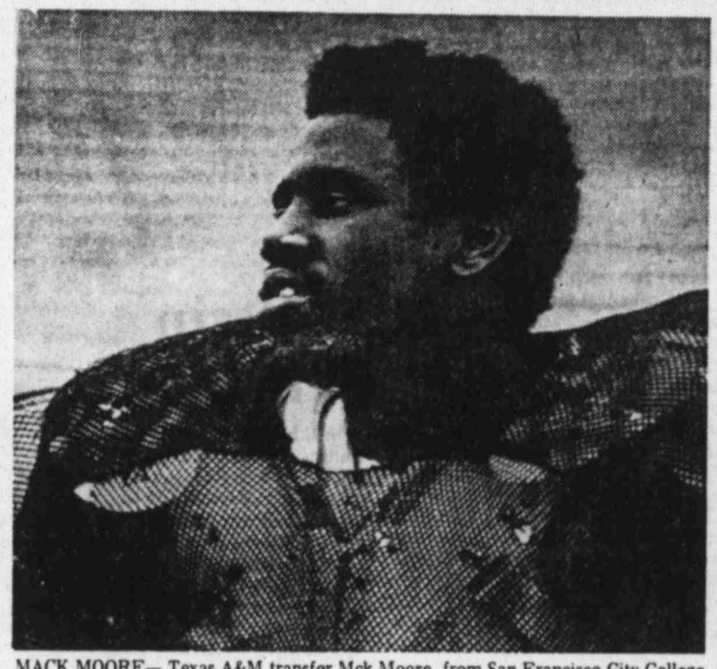

Texas AM football Coach Tom Wilson said "Mack's father is a high school principal and I think he should be financially able to buy his son a car. I'm not aware of any illegal financing. I don't feel like we have anything to worry about or hide."

In Louisiana, Moore's father said he bought the car for his son.

"I'm paying for it," said the elder Moore.

The NCAA's rule 3-1-(g)-5 states: "Special arrangements designed to provide a student-athlete, his relatives or other friends with extra benefits not made available to members of the student body in general or their relativess or friends are prohibited.

"Special arrangements specifically prohibited incude, but are not limited to: special discounts or payment arrangements, purchases, loans without interest, guarantees of bond, regular or periodic use of an automobile without (or at a reduced) charge..."

MACK MOORE— Texas A&M transfer Mck Moore, from San Francisco City College is currently the center of controversy in College Station. Moore recieved a special loan from a Dallas bank to buy a 1979 automobile. The Aggie athletic department has denied in wrongdoing in the incident. (AP Laserphoto)

PITCHERS SWAPPED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers obtained lefthanded pitcher Jerry Reuss from the Pittsburgh Pirates in exchange for righthander Rick Rhoden, the National League club announced Sunday. The transaction is effective Monday. Reuss, 29, was 3-2 with a 4.88 ERA last year with the Pirates. Previously, he pitched for St. Louis and Houston and has a 10-year career mark of 108-94.

Softball Event Set For Start

For the first time in more than two years, the Lubbock Parks & Recreation Department will sponsor a fast-pitch softball league.

The organizational meeting for the league will be next Wednesday, at 8 p.m. at the Hodges Community Center (42nd and University).

The first game in the eight-game season will be on May 7, and deadline for teams to enter the league is April 27. Entry fee is $125 per team.

In the slow-pitch division, more than 240 teams are currentlycompeting — up 75 from last year. Specifically there are 161 men's teams, 55 women's, and 25 church teams for a total of 31 separate divisions.

In the city-wide tournament held last weekend, Fluid Engineering finished first, Oakwood Methodist seocnd and Santa Fe third.

The summer season begins on July 6; entry deadline is June 15. The cost per team will be $175, recreation department officials reported.

Cowens Calls It Quits

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran Boston Celtics center Dave Cowens announced Sunday he would quit his dual role as player-coach to concentrate solely on playing in the 1979-80 National Basketball Association season.

"I made the decision and told the players before the game," Cowens said after the Celtics ended their worst season in NBA history with a 127-101 victory over the New Jersey Nets. "I feel I can't do the job total justice while trying to play too."

Cowens, who will be 31 in October, accepted the dual role as player-coach last November after Tom "Satch" Sanders was fired with the Celtics off to a 2-12 record.

Under Cowens, the team was 27-41.

"I'm not sorry I took the job," Cowens said. "It was a learning experience, and the job brought me a lot of enjoyment.

Pryor Finally Joins Stiking Umps, But Now Ordered Back To Work

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — National League umpire Paul Pryor was ordered to return to work Sunday by the Major League Umpires Association.

Pryor had been one of two major league umpires who had signed contracts to work in the 1979 season, along with American League rookie umpire Ted Hendry.

Pryor, who had signed a two-year pact, worked opening day in Cincinatti Wednesday and had been behind the plate Friday when the Philadelphia Phillies met the St. Louis Cardinals on the road.

But Saturday, claiming that the pressure of working while his colleagues picketed outside the stadium was too much for him, Pryor notitfied National League President Charles Feeney that he was resigning and would join the other striking umps.

Attorney Richie Phillips, who represents the umpires in their salary dispute with both the American and National leagues, said Sunday, "We have notified Pryor that he would bring severe penalties on himself if he fails to fullfull the terms of his contract."

Phillips said Pryor was told that to terminate his two-year agreement, estimated at better than $40,000 a year, he would have to give the National League 10 days notice.

Phillips said the umpires' association informed Pryor that he had no alternative but to comply with the contract and work 10 days counting Saturday.

"Pryor, on his off days between now and April 16 will carry picket signs (at other ballparks), and thereafter will carry a sign on a full-time basis," Phillips said.

Pryor, after informing the League he was resigning, described opening day in Cincinatti as the longest day in his life.

"I 've worked World Series games where the pressure was immense, playoff games, All-Star games, but nothing like this," he said.

Pryor said he wasn't afraid to cross the picket lines but there had been threats that started during spring training in Florida. He said they probably were from cranks and that he didn't recognize any of the voices over the telephone.

"But the message was clear," Pryor said. "They told me not to leave the hotel or I'd get knifed in the back. I can't live like that."

Pryor said he had decided to sign because he needed the money. He added, however, that now the issue was no longer money but how much a man can take. He said he was tired of sneaking in back doors.

"I may be throwing a two-year contract out the window," he said. "I may be taking a little over $80,000 and kissing it goodbye, but I think I'm doing what I have to do. It's a tough decision. But I've been making decisions all my life."

Bass Club Hosts April Tourney

The Lubbock Bass Club's two-man team bass tournament is scheduled for April 21-22 at Hubbard Creek Lake near Breckenridge.

First prize will be $1,000 cash, with $500 and $200 for second and third respectively. Valuaable merchandise prizes are guaranteed through 20th place for the fourth annual South Plains invitational tournament.

An entry fee of $40 per team will be required for the two day event. More information is available from: Lubbock Bass Club, P.O. Box 1584, Lubbock 79405. Mail entries must be postmarked by April 17. Entry fees are not refundable.

STRIKE THREE—Coronado pitcher Gene Segrest displays his winning form as he struckout 14 Lubbock High batters to garner the Avalanche-Journal's 4-AAAA player of the week honor. Segrest has only given up two runs in the last 30 innings.

Levelland Plays Favorite's Role

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Estacado baseball coach Vince Buffamonte claims there is a reasonable explanation for why the rest of the 1-AAA mentors couldn't be reached for comment Sunday night.

Said Buffamonte: "Now that the district season is upon us, they probably are staying in church a little longer."

So why isn't Buffamonte in church?

"It's not how long you spend," joked Buffamonte. "It's what you do with your time."

Looking at the standings, it doesn't take a sports writer to figure out who should take the loop crown. Levelland's 14-3 record is five games better than Estacado.

But that is nondistrict. Levelland didn't play as strong of a schedule as some of the other teams. So, to help you get better acquainted with each team, here is a scouting report:

Canyon Eagles—Good on basics. Are well disciplined, and defensively have the ability to steal hits. Good power hitting, fair base speed. Pitching is a little suspect with only one senior on the staff. However, the fact that the Eagles didn't get this year's coach until 12-games deep in the season could hurt their chances. After all, Canyon has been spending its time learning a new system.

Borger Bulldogs—Have been playing consistent defense and have solid pitching. However, the Bulldogs are having trouble with the bat. Borger has been able to get men on base, but the Bulldogs have failed to deliver the key hit to drive runners home. Borger's 4-11 record could also have affected the team's confidence, and the Bulldogs loop start will be an important factor as to how Borger will fare in the race.

Dumas Demons—Have strong pitching led by ace Kent Hazen. Also have excellent catching corps. Hitting has been consistent at times. However, the Demons could suffer from losing coach Kent Byerly during the first part of the season. Defense has been questionable at times.

Levelland Loboes—Run bases well and also advance runners well. Have the advantage of starting the loop season with momentum. Play together well as a group. The Loboes have the ability to force teams into making mistakes. Defense has been generally consistent. Pitching may determine Levelland's chances. If pitching holds out, the Loboes will be in the thick of things when the loop season is over.

Estacado Matadors—Pitching and defense have hurt the Matadors at times. Hitting has been consistent. Estacado has the long ball threat and also has good base speed. Not participating in baseball competition for 10-years makes the Matadors rather inexperienced and will hurt their chances of winning the title.

Dunbar Panthers—Have been playing better defense of late. Pitching has been suspect. Have good team speed. But, like Estacado, the Panthers have been absent from the diamond competition for a decade. Thus, inexperience will hamper the Panthers chances. Pitching is not overpowering and infield errors have especially hurt Dunbar.

1979 Predictions: 1. Levelland 2. Dumas 3. Estacado 4. Borger 5. Canyon 6. Dunbar

Gene Segrest, who struckout 14 batters and socked a home run to center field to lead the Coronado Mustangs to a doubleheader sweep of the Lubbock High Westerners, is the 4-AAAA player of the week.

Segrest, who walked just two batters, raised his record to 5-0. The Coronado righthander has only given up two runs in the last 30 innings of work as the Mustangs sit on top of the district race with a 2-0 record.

Raiders Get Unwanted Help, Drop Exhibition To Gold Sox

AMARILLO (Special— The Texas Tech baseball team went into the bottom of the ninth tied at six apiece with the Amarillo Gold Sox of the Texas League here Sunday night, but then a weird twist of fate snatched the game from their hands.

The Gold Sox inserted their own pitcher to hurl the final inning for the Amarillo club, Floyd Chiffer, since the Texas League opens play today and the Gold Sox coach wanted all of his pitchers to see some action.

And the Gold Sox ripped Chiffer for 3 runs to technically earn a 9-6 victory over the Techsters. But it was a moral victory for the Raiders who scored 5 runs in the top of the ninth to tie the game at six.

Tommy Inzer and Kenny Cogdell opened the ninth with singles before Jeff Harp ripped a double to score both of them. Harp soon scored on a ground out by Dan Hejl and Mike Farmer walked after that. John Keller finished the Tech scoring with a single that scored two more.

The Raiders got strong pitching performances from Steve Dennis and Gil Goulding before they got their unwanted help in the ninth.

Every man on the Raider squad played in the exhibition contest including assistant coach Jim Shankle.

The Amarillo club rocked the Raiders for 4 runs in the fourth but other than that the Raiders held the minor league club at bay.

Steve Dennis, Gil Goulding and Kevin Rucker, Dan Hejl for Tech; Greg Wilkes, John Yandle, Barry Biggerstaff, Fran Hirschy and Brad Shames, Tom Vessey.

Comeback

The collapse of Renner opened the way for Floyd's charge. Floyd remained four shots back of Wadkins at the turn, but played that side in 32, finishing with the birdie-birdie flourish that provided him with the title.

Seve Ballesteros, the young Spaniard who won this event a year ago, shot 70—290 and Lanny Wadkins, Bobby's older brother and the only two-time winner this year, was 77—296.

green and realized I wasn't going to three-putt.

"The victory means more to me than winning last year, I think," she continued, "because this time I realized as I walked up to the final putt on No. 18 that I had really won it. Last year, because of the playoff, it took some time to sink in."

Mrs Lopez said she was, "not disappointed to lose, but disappointed with my play on No. 17. I knew I was going to have to play well today to beat Sandra because she had been playing very well."

Mrs Lopez, the tour sensation with nine victories as a rookie last year, opened up a two-stroke lead at the turn Sunday with a 35 on the front nine. But Post, who had a 37 on the front, birdied No. 11, chipped in for another bird on No. 12, then got the lead on still another birdie with a 25-foot putt on No. 16.

The 22-year-old Mrs Lopez parred on the back side until she hit her first shot on the 167-yard No. 17 far right and into trouble. Her next shot left her a 25-foot putt from the fringe that she did not make.

But Mrs Lopez, playing in the group in front of Miss Post, put pressure on the leader when she made an 8-foot birdie putt on the final hole. However, Post hit her approach shot on the 502-yard, par-5 18th to within 10 feet of the hole, lagged close and made the tap-in.

Borg Whips McEnroe

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Sweden's Bjoern Borg defeated John McEnroe of the United States 6-4, 6-2 in the men's singles finals of a $175,000 World Championship Tennis tournament here before a capacity crowd of 8,000 in the Ahoy Sports Hall Sunday.

Except for the first two games of the second set, Borg completely outclassed McEnroe in their first encounter in a final on the WCT circuit this year. McEnroe, who double-faulted four times, simply proved no match for the 22-year-old Swede.

The victory netted Borg $30,000. McEnroe earned $15,000.

Waltrip Wins 500

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip won an incredible wheel-to-wheel duel with Richard Petty and Donnie Allison in the final five laps, taking a car length victory at the flag in Sunday's $180,000 Rebel 500 Grand National stock car race. Petty nipped Allison by inches for second place.

"I just didn't know what I was gonna do with Richard there at the end. He was so strong. This was some good old-fashioned South Carolina racing. You know then Donnie got his nose in there," the exhausted Waltrip said in Victory Circle. "I had visions of winning, visions of finishing third, visions of us all crashing. I didn't know how that one was gonna come out until I saw that checkered flag."

Waltrip, who came back after falling 20 seconds behind Petty midway through the race with a slowly deflating tire, regained the lead in the season's Winston Cup point standings from Bobby Allison with the thrilling victory.

"Actually I have to thank Donnie for helping me win this race," Waltrip said. "When that tire started to go down, I didn't know which one it was. We could have wasted a lot of time changing all four. But it was Donnie who signaled me which was going down."

Donnie Allison, the pole position starter, spent most of the race battling handling troubles. It was only the final 85 miles, when two caution flags allowed the field to bunch up, that Allison was able to make it a three-way race.

The trio battled each other and intermittent light rain the final miles.

There were seven official lead changes between Waltrip and Petty the last 85 miles.

FOUND HER NICHE — Actress Jane Fonda smiles at a recent party promoting her new film "The China Syndrome," in New York City. The actress says she believes so much in the movie that she gets high off helping it do well. Known as a political activist, Miss Fonda says she does not pump her Hollywood loot into causes, because any organization would collapse using her money as a crutch. Instead, she says, there is active fund-raising. "I've found my niche," she says. (AP Laserphoto)

Jane Fonda Finds Niche

NEW YORK (AP) — The chin came first, jutting out with purpose from a froth of toasty blonde curls. Then the smile.

It's all ice, but it quickly thaws with one straightforward handshake. "Hi! I'm Jane Fonda."

She slides into a chair and begins to smooth out imagined wrinkles in the tablecloth. She's ready to proceed.

"I'm healthy and I'm happy and I have very deep beliefs in what I do," she says. "Take 'The China Syndrome.' I believe in the movie so much that I get high off of helping it do well."

Miss Fonda was awaiting Monday night's Academy Award ceremonies with considerable interest. She was nominated for an Oscar for best actress for her role as the lonely military wife in "Coming Home."

She won an Oscar in 1972 as best actress for her performance in "Klute," and was nominated in the same category last year for "Julia," but did not win the award.

"'The China Syndrome' reflects controversy and several issues that are real and on people's minds," she says. "The film is reflecting reality."

The interview was just days before the nuclear plant accident at Harrisburg, Pa., that brought considerable public attention to Miss Fonda's latest film.

"Look," she says, "the government has just shut down five nuclear plants on the East Coast because they're dangerous. The more that happens, and the more people who are utterly terrified by the movie and confused, there could be a very potent impact."

The film tells of the perils of nuclear generation. Miss Fonda plays a television news reporter who covers fluff and wants more serious assignments. She witnesses an accident at a power plant and its resultant coverup.

"Much of our conditioning is based on the tremendous amount of public relations generally done by corporate powers in league with the government," she says.

"People seem to think I was an activist in the '60s. I wasn't," she says. "I didn't surface until the very end. But in those five short years of involvement in the antiwar movement, I found you only move forward like a turtle unless and until other conditions are ready for everything to happen."

She also learned a lot about herself. About the pampered princess of the Hollywood glitter factory, who had a famous and adored father and a mother who committed suicide in a sanitorium when Jane was young. About the willowy method actress who found herself in sex and comic roles and few serious and demanding ones.

"Since I was put to the test, I learned that I'm perfectly prepared to lose a career if that's what demanded, if that's what's necessary," she says in measured tones.

"I'm not afraid of being disliked for my views. I've learned that there's nothing more wonderful in life than committing yourself to a movement — to other beings who care with all of their being about making things better."

She's made that commitment through an organization that grew out of her husband Tom Hayden's unsuccessfkl senate race — the Campaign for Economic Democracy.

"It's a political struggle," she says. "It's about economic democracy — about allowing average people real democratic input into economic decision making, whether it's Bedford Stuyvesant or Queens or Santa Monica where I live."

The group lobbies, primarily on the solar energy issue, and recently on rent stabiliztion. CED candidates also run for public office.

Jane Fonda doesn't really fit into the day-to-day operations of CED because over the past few years, she's been making hit movies almost back to back. Nor does she pump her Hollywood loot into the cause, she says, because the organization would crumble using her money as a crutch. Instead, there is active fundraising.

"I've found my niche," she said. "No more do I wonder should I stop being an actress and become an organizer. That's not my place."

Louisiana Indians Sue For More Land

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Chitimacha Indian tribe has filed two new suits in U.S. District Court involving Louisiana land, raising to 7,000 the number of acres which the tribe seeks to recover from numerous owners.

Last year the tribe sued to regain more than 5,000 acres in St. Mary Parish. The latest suits, including one filed Friday, seek 2,000 acres in St. Mary and Iberville parishes.

The suits contend that when the U.S. bought the Louisiana Territory in 1803, the land became subject to the federal Indian Nonintercourse Act of 1790.

Oscar Producers Take Care To Eliminate 'The Unexpected'

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Vanessa Redgrave has not been asked to present an award at this year's Oscar ceremony.

Ordinarily, virtually all the previous year's winners are asked to make a presentation the following year. And Miss Redgravce won last year — but she also made an acceptance speach which caused havoc because some interpreted it as anti-Semitic.

To avoid any repetition of that, the decision was made to leave her off the invited guest list. Howard W. Koch, president of the Academy Of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, says that while "the unexpected makes news," the hope is always that the show goes off without any unexpected.

This year they are taking the usual precautions to guard against anything unexpected happening.

Since the year when Marlon Brando won and sent an Indian woman to the podium to accept for him (and, in the proces, delivered a speech about Indian affairs), the Oscar people no longer allow anybody to accept an award for anybody else.

"Sorrogates no longer accept awards," says Koch. "We don't want a Sacheen Littlefeather again."

And there may be (as there was last year, in the case of Woody Allen) winners who won't be there. Sometimes, they are kept away legitimately — working somewhere else, illness, whatever. But, more and more, there seems to be a feeling among many winners that they don't want the award. An anti-Oscar movement is creeping across the land.

"I have sympathy for George C. Scott and Woody Allen and some of them," says Koch. "I disagree with them but I understand how they feel. It would seem to me that to get an award from one's peers would be thrilling.

"But I understand them. Their reasons are valid. Some of them believe that there shouldn't be a competition at all. I know Woody Allen is simply a basically very shy man. I asked him to present an award six years ago and he said he'd die up there."

Koch says he admires the integrity of the Academy membership which votes for Oscar winners.

"The year Scott won," Koch says , "he had said he wouldn't accept it if he got it. And he had made that statement before the voting. And they voted for him anyway. They voted for Redgrave despite her politics and they voted for John Wayne despite his politics.

"They used to say that California people would never vote for a New York picture. But last year they voted for 'Annie Hall,' which was a New York picture.

"I think all that makes the Oscar's credibilty much stronger — people vote for the picture or the actor or the director they feel is the best, regardless of any other factor."

Koch also says that the big money spent by some studios on advertising campaigns (the ads run in the locally circulated trade papers, Variety and The Hollywood Reporter) don't work either. Again, he cites the case of "Annie Hall," which didn't spend any money on advertising, yet cleaned up on Oscar night.

There are problems ahead for the Oscars, Koch believes, mainly because it is getting more and more difficult to distinguish between motion pictures made for theatrical release and motion pictures made for other purposes.

At the moment, to qualify for an Oscar, a film must play at least a week in a Los Angeles theatre during the preceding calender year. But there is increasing presure on the Academy to include TV movies, and everyone believes that it is only a matter of time — and not very long, at that — before there will be movies made exclusively for pay-TV showing.

"In our lifetime," Koch says, "TV and movies will come closer together. There are a lot of arguments in favor of making TV movies eligible for Oscars right now."

As for the Oscar show on TV, Koch says that is "an impossible show, because there is absolutely no way to satisfy everyone."

John Wayne To Present Oscar For Best Film At Ceremony

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After a half-century of providing memorable moments, Oscar has a special one for Monday night's awards — the first public appearance by John Wayne since his Jan. 12 cancer operation.

"We're saving the best for the last," announced Oscar cast producer Jack Haley Jr., who said Wayne would appear at the end of the Academy Awards show to present the Oscar for best picture of 1978.

Wayne was reported to be relishing his return to the spotlight. The 71-year-old star underwent surgery to remove his stomach and gall bladder in a nine-hour operation at UCLA Medical Center. Since he had already lost a lung to cancer and had undergone open-heart surgery, there was concern for his survival.

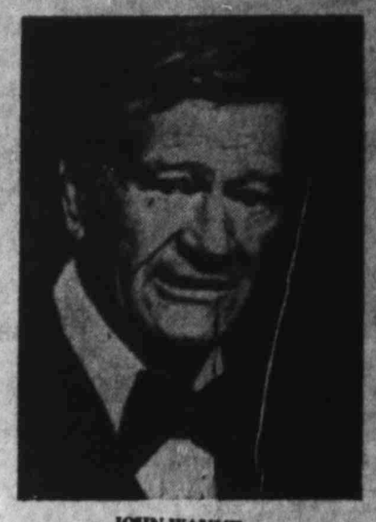

Last Tuesday, Wayne signaled his progress by flying to Mexicali for a visit with longtime friend Gov. Roberto de la Madrid of Baja California. Wayne told Daily Variety columnist Army Archerd, "I ate some hot food and had a shot of tequila." The actor added that he had run 60 yards and walked a mile on a recent morning and had gained back five of the 40 pounds he had lost.

In his first appearance for the Oscars, Johnny Carson will act as master of ceremonies. The Music Center ceremonies will be telecast on ABC beginning at 9 p.m. CST. The program is expected to last 2½ hours.

Wayne's appearance will highlight what is designed as an exercise in glamour for the 51st awards. Presenters will include other survivors of Hollywood's golden age: Audrey Hepburn, who will present a special award to veteran director King Vidor; Cary Grant, who will hand another award to Laurence Olivier; plus Ruby Keeler, Ginger Rogers, Yul Brynner, Lauren Bacall, Dean Martin, Kim Novak, Gregory Peck and two stars of the "Wizard of Oz," Jack Haley Sr. and Ray Bolger.

Producer Haley Jr. has also rounded up presenters from today's film scene: Richard Dreyfuss, Margot Kidder and Christopher Reeve of "Superman," Brooke Shields, Robby Benson, John Voight, and Ricky Schroder, the kid from "The Champ."

What film will be announced the winner by John Wayne? The oddsmakers have predicted a close race between "The Deer Hunter" and "Heaven Can Wait." But "Coming Home" could also score. Less likely are nominees "Midnight Express" and "An Unmarried Woman."

Actress Robbed Of Valuables

NEW YORK (AP) — A rarely awarded Swedish royal medal and antique silver were among valuables stolen Saturday from the East Side townhouse of Viveca Lindfors, the stage and screen star.

"I've just left a message on my telephone answering machine to all burglars — no use coming here, it's all gone," the dark-haired, Swedish-born actress said Sunday, with a mixture of anger and humor.

Miss Lindfors said the stolen medal was the Wasa Order, a 2-inch gold and enamel cross awarded her four years ago and which is supposed to be returned on the death of the recipient.

The order is bestowed infrequently outside of Sweden, said Miss Lindfors, who began acting in films here in 1947 and became an American citizen in 1950.

She said that another particularly painful loss among the stolen silverware, ornaments and jewelry was a 200-year-old cream pitcher.

Miss Lindfors said she would not offer a reward for return of the medal, but instead would put the money into more security for the house, on East 95th Street, which she's had for 26 years.

"I'm giving in and getting an iron gate," she said. The burglar got in through the front door of the four-story house.

Cheryl Ladd Indicates Hand Of Fate Helped Acting Career

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Cheryl Ladd stretches like a kitten and turns her face to receive the warm sun. Without hesitation, she acknowledges the instantaneous stardom that came two years ago when she joined "Charlie's Angels" as Farrah Fawcett-Majors' replacement.

A record contract, an exclusive pact with ABC, commercials, a deal for a TV movie and — now — her first special, have followed that fortuitous assignment. And, she says, "The part made all the difference in the world."

The journey from Huron, S.D., where Cheryl Stoppelmoor joined a traveling band as a singer when she was 17 has been a long one. After several years on the road, she landed in Hollywood and got her first job — as a singing voice for the "Josie and the Pussycats" cartoon series.

In the next seven years, she appeared in commercials, in TV series, several movies of the week, and two feature films.

"Every year got better," she says. "I took it a step at a time. That's the story of my life, which is good, I guess. It gives you some solid footing before you tackle the next step. I guess I'm an advocate of fate. It's always dealt me a good hand."

She stars in her first prime-time special Monday night on ABC, with Waylon Jennings and Ben Vereen as guests. It precedes the Academy Awards show on ABC in the East, and follows the Oscar ceremonies on the West Coast.

Mrs Ladd says when she is Kris Munroe on "Charlie's Angels," "I just play a real person, with real feelings, in very unrealistic situations. The show takes a lot of flak. ... In 23 shows, I've been in a bathing suit just three times. We're making headway.

"We have lots of glamor, but what works is that we're not sex objects. We're three women in a man's world who have integrity and use our feminity and personalities, not our sexuality.

"I think that's important for little girls to know," she says. "When I grew up I had three choices — I could play nurse, play mommie or play movie star. Now girls have more choices. I think that's why our show is popular."

"My producer had the great insight to go after that time slot," says Mrs. Ladd. Her producer is her husband, David Ladd. "He's the nicest producer I've ever worked for."

She married Ladd, the son of the late actor Alan Ladd, six years ago. They have a daughter, Jordan, 4.

Despite her fame, insiders at "Charlie's Angels" say Cheryl Ladd has remained basically a small town girl. "Although she's the most career-oriented, she's the least self-centered, the most generous and the best-liked by the crew," says one. "She's more aware of the people around her and how they may feel and how her behavior may affect them."

Mrs Ladd declines to discuss reports that all is not tranquil on the "Charlie's Angels" set between her, Kate Jackson and Jaclyn Smith. "I don't want to talk about it," she says, but nods her head when asked if that means there is something to the reports.

Mrs Ladd met her husband when both were in the theatrical movie "Jamaica Reef." "The picture was unsuccessful, but our relationship was successful," she says. That was in 1971, and they were married two years later.

Ladd's acting career has not flourished like hers, but Mrs Ladd says, "David's always wanted to produce. So now he's doing it sooner than he wanted. We have our own production company and he's finding fulfillment.

"We hope to find a terrific project we can star in together. We've decided that when we do work togeter it should be a

Veterinarian Recovers Ring

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — Dorothy Christy has her $1,000 antique ring back, Disney World has its bird back, and Dr. Earl Schobert has made veterinary history by apparently becoming the first man ever to extract a $1,000 antique ring from the gizzard of a rhea.

The affair began last week, when the lady was strolling down a nature walk at the amusement park in an area where several rhea — large flightless South American birds resembling ostrichs — were loitering.

Rheas look more or less alike, and Disney caretakers were unsure which rhea had the ring. They got that sorted out with a metal detector. Then they waited for the bird's digestive processes to return the ring, but it didn't show up.

So they took the rhea to Tampa veterinarian, Dr. Earl Schobert.

The veterinarian located the jewel in the bird's gizzard, and with the help of sedation and a long tube, the ring was captured.

The rhea returned to Disney World Thursday and Schobert said he was writing an article on his experience, which he believed unique, for a veterinary journal.

TUGGING AT TAXES

A tax system indexed to the cost of living has been adopted by several industrialized countries, including France, the Nethelands, Denmark, Israel, Luxembourg. Brazil and Canada. The Conference Board reports. The reason: salary increases meant to help workers keep up with inflation have pushed them into higher tax brackets. The new system requires them to pay extra taxes only on additional income that reflects real gains in purchasing power.

FATHER OF BRIDGES — Othmar Ammann, designer of the George Washington Bridge between New York and New Jersey executes a double handshake in 1962 with Gov. Richard Hughes of New Jersey, center, and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. In background is bust of Ammann, unveiled during ceremony opening the lower level of the bridge. Although Ammann went on to design the Verrazano Narrows Bridge, the longest suspension bridge ever built, his favorite "daughter" was always the George Washington Bridge. (AP Laserphoto)

Bridge-Builder 'Father' To Structures

STATEN ISLAND, N.Y. (AP) — Othmar Ammann once called the bridges he built his "daughters." Were that the case, the quiet, unassuming engineer was a prolific father.

From various windows of his Manhattan architectural office, to which he reported religiously until just before his death in 1965 at the age of 86, Ammann could see eight of his bridges.

To the north were hazy outlines of the Triborough, Whitestone and Throggs Neck bridges, to the south Staten Island's three bridges to New Jersey, off to the east the 4,710-foot George Washington Bridge — the bridge that made Ammann famous. And to the west, spanning a gateway to 7,000 ships each year, was Ammann's Verrazano Narrows Bridge, which remains the longest suspension bridge ever built.

Othmar Ammann, like another, more renowned scientist, was born in Europe a century ago this year — indeed, 12 days after Albert Einstein.

There was a quiet ceremony in Ammann's hometown of Schaffhausen, Switzerland, on March 26, his birthdate, and the Swiss government honored the engineer with a postage stamp — a portrait of the bespectacled Ammann with a suspension bridge — like Verrazano Narrows — in the background.

Opened in 1964, 10 months before Ammann's death, Verrazano Narrows, at $325 million the most expensive bridge ever built, was a fitting climax to 65 years of bridge-building.

Its 693-foot towers were so far apart — 4,260 feet — that Ammann had to account for the curvature of the earth in their construction. It contained enough cable to circle the earth five times, and there was enough concrete in its anchorages to pave a road from New York to Washington.

Though the bridge may have been his last and greatest bridge, it was not Ammann's most beloved.

His favorite "daughter" was the George Washington Bridge, a suspension bridge which juts off the New Jersey Palisades and swoops across the Hudson River, connecting Fort Lee to upper Manhattan. "I am so much in love with it," he once said, "that my wife says I am married to it."

In 1931, when the bridge opened, it nearly doubled in a single stroke the length of any existing bridge of any kind. The bridge was acclaimed a structural masterpiece — especially so in 1965 when a second deck was added, thanks to Ammann's foresight.

Ammann never would have seen it that way. For he was, in a friend's words, "the antithesis of the mighty structures he created," a soft-spoken Swiss who never betrayed the high code of engineers, most of whom believe it undignified to sell themselves.

"The greatness of a bridge is the extent to which it serves the public," Ammann said at a ceremony opening the Bayonne Bridge, less than a month after the George Washington Bridge had opened.

It all began in 1912, when Ammann was hired by Gustav Lindenthal, then the world's leading bridge-builder, to work on the design and construction of the Hell-Gate Bridge across the East River.

In 1925, Ammann joined the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey as chief engineer, and later was chief engineer for the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority. It wasn't until 1939 that Ammann, then 60, established his own architectural firm, still in business today.

Once, the aging Ammann carried a letter to a nearby post office. The clerk, recognizing the return address, looked up in amazement.

"Why, Mr. Ammann, you're a big man. Why don't you have one of your boys do this?" he asked.

At that, the old gentleman stretched to his full height and creased his eyebrows. "I can still do my own work," Othmar Ammann said.

Hill Says Clements Still Campaigning

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Attorney General John Hill says he wishes Gov. Bill Clements would get on with the business of governing the state and "stop trying to campaign."

"I don't know how to grade the job Clements has done so far because there has not been much substance to it yet," said Hill, who lost a bitter race to the Republican last November. "We've had a lot of activity, lots of traveling and news conferences and statements but I believe in dealing with issues ... what we can do to benefit the public. That's why you should hold public office not just to hold public office and spout off."

Hill said on a Sunday radio talk program that it was too soon to assess Clements' administration.

"There hasn't been anything emanating from it that is of hard substance in terms of progress or particular laws passed .

Anti-Cancer Compound Studied

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of stories dealing with cancer research grants in Texas. April has been declared "Cancer Control Month" nationwide. For further information on cancer questions, call 762-0825. Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society, Area I Office, 1902 Ave. M, Lubbock, 79405.)

DENTON (Special) — Scientists at North Texas State University here will take a second look at a rejected Chinese anti-cancer compound in their search for chemicals with greater cancer-killing potency and less harmful side effects.

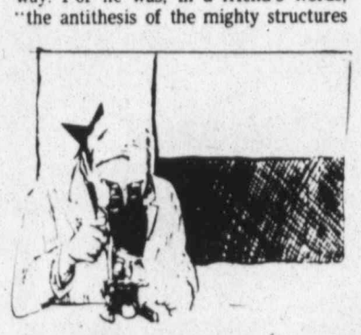

Dr. Robert E. Lyle, professor and chairman of the chemistry department at NTSU, said new studies will be made to produce a compound similar to Camptothecin, a chemical agent made from the bark of trees grown in mainland China and used there, experimentally, to treat cancer.

Lyle and his colleagues are seeking ways to overcome the poisonous side effects of powerful chemicals such as the antibiotic, adriamycin, commonly used to treat cancer in this country. His research is supported by an American Cancer Society grant.

Lyle's reseach team is now remodeling adriamycin, substituting a chemical bond of nitrogen rather than oxygen to hold the molecule together. It is thought that the bad side effects of adriamycin are due to "fragments" of the substance which break off during the antibiotic's passage into the cancer cell.

A less toxic analog of the Chinese compound, Camptothecin, will also be sought, using experiments made four years ago by Lyle and other scientists at the University of New Hampshire and Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York. These tests were suspended in the United States after it appeared that the compound, although extremely active against the cancer cell, was too toxic for human consumption. However, reports indicate that tests in China continued.

Chemists at North Texas State, also exploring chemicals that cause cancer, have found clues to why some known carcinogens found in food do not always cause cancer. Their studies have shown that nitrosamines can be so chemically bonded in the digestive tract that their cancer-causing ability is "shackled." Ordinarily nitrosamines, which can be formed from nitrites used to preserve food and amides produced by the digestive tract, are among the most potent carcinogens. Now it appears the body may disarm them.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I plan to invest in a no-load mutual fund — starting off with an investment of $200 and then adding $25 a month. I want to do this as a surprise for "later on" for my husband when he retires in 13 years. I would sort of hold out $25 a month from the grocery money, if you know what I mean.

We are both 46 and not badly off, financially. We are putting our two children through college, without dipping into savings. We have $35,000 in savings oertificates, $13,000 in U.S. Savings Bonds and $3,000 in a regular savings account. We owe $5,000 on the 4 1/2 percent mortgage on our home, worth about $60,000, and $15,000 on an 8 1/2 percent mortgage on our summer home, worth about $30,000.

What do you think of my idea for starting a mutual fund investment?

A. I think its great and urge you to go to it. But I have to add the strong words of caution that you should keep your secret no longer than April 15, 1980 — the deadline for filing your 1979 income tax return.

If you invest in that mutual fund now and it pays income dividends and-or capital gains distributions during 1979 as it has in previous years — you will be required to report the dividends and-or distributions on your income tax return.

Unless you and your husband file separate income tax returns or you blindfold him before he signs your joint return, he should learn about the mutual fund investment at tax time.

The fund you named in your letter has a good record in recent years. No world beater — but good. Your plan for steady investing should work out well. Your family finances are ripe for an investment of that type.

My suggestion is to start that investment program and, come tax time, smile and say "By the way, honey, there's something you should know."

Q. You wrote that young children don't have to pay income taxes and "won't even have to file (1978) income tax returns, if their income is less than $2,950." That's true, if their income was all "earned income" — such as wages and tips.

But if a child is claimed as a dependent on the parents' tax return and had "unearned income" from taxable dividends, interest and such, of $750 or more he or she is required to file a federal income tax return. Hadn't you better clarify this point?

A. Yes. You're correct, of course. Thinking back, it's easy to see that point should have been made in the column you question.

That column dealt with two teenagers who have taken part-time jobs and who are earning a fair amount of money — but less than $2,950 each. The kids are starting to invest their money and are beginning to get interest and dividends.

I have to admit that, putting that piece through the typewriter, I neglected thoughts of the time those two ambitious kids will collect $750 a year in interest and dividends — what the Internal Revenue Service calls "unearned income."

Maybe I have a mental block on that subject. No one will ever convince me that money earned on money isn't really "earned" — no matter what the revenooers call it.

Q. Before my husband's parents died, they gave our children Series E. U.S. Savings Bonds for Christmas and their birthdays. Our children are now ages 8 and 11. The bonds are in their names only.

We have been told that these bonds cannot be redeemed until the children become adults — 18 in our state. Is this true?

A. No. My experts at the Savings Bond Division, U.S. Treasury Department, say that children can redeem E bonds once they reach the "age of reason."

That age, they add, is a discretionary thing to be decided by the "paying agent" -- usually your local bank.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

B	21	14	17	6	17	15	14	20	13	21	22	10	6	25	8	13	27	5

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

Relieves Tormenting Rectal Pain And Itch, Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...Due to inflammation. Gives prompt, temporary relief from such burning itch and pain in many cases.

The burning itch and pain caused by infection and inflammation in hemorrhoidal tissues can cause much suffering. But there is an exclusive formulation that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from this itch and pain so that the sufferer is more comfortable again. It also actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation and infection.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center reported similar successful results in many cases. This is the same medication you can buy at any drug counter under the name Preparation H®.

Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed surface area and it doesn't sting or smart. In fact, it has very soothing qualities which make it especially helpful during the night when itching becomes more intense.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible

Luke 13: 15B-27 The Living Bible

You work on the Sabbath! Don't you untie your cattle from their stalls on the Sabbath and lead them out for water?

16 And is it wrong for Me, just because it is the Sabbath day, to free this Jewish woman from Satan's 18 years of bondage?"

17 This shamed His enemies. But the rest of the people rejoiced at the wonderful things He did.

18 Now He began teaching them again about the Kingdom of God: "What is the Kingdom like?" He asked. "How can I illustrate it?

19 It is like a tiny mustard seed planted in a garden; soon it grows into a tall bush, and the birds live among its branches . . . .

20, 21 It is like yeast kneaded into dough, which works unseen until it has risen high and light."

22 He went from city to city and village to village, teaching as He went, always pressing onward toward Jerusalem.

23 Someone asked Him, "Will only a few be saved?" And He replied,

24, 25 "The door to heaven is narrow. Work hard to get in, for the truth is, many will try to enter, but when the head of the house has locked the door, it will be too late. Then if you stand outside knocking and pleading, 'Lord, open the door for us,' He will reply, 'I do not know you.'

26 'But we ate with You, and You taught in our streets,' you will say.

27 And He will reply, 'I tell you, I don't know you. You can't come in here, guilty as you are. Go away.'
