More Japanese Soldiers Being Expected To Take Up Brunt Of Fighting; Bombers Darken Kiangwan Skies

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24. (Wednesday) —Japanese airmen bombed the Chinese stronghold at Kiangwan in a furious attack that shook the country side today, but again failed to blast out the Chinese who still swept the enemy with an ever-constant rifle and machine gun fire.

Two Chinese airplanes in turn bombed Japanese headquarters near Kiangwan, missing their target by only 100 feet.

The air attack was followed up by frenzied fighting. The Japanese had launched a desperate attempt to take Kiangwan in the darkness before dawn. Their batteries on the Kiangwan golf course opened fire on the Chinese postions, but the artillery attack brought them nothing.

Style Is Shifted

Then they shifted the style of their attack, in which for almost five days they had sought to capture Kiangwan, focal point midway of the Shanghai battle line from Chapei to Woosung, and took to the air in a spectacular offensive.

Headquarters of Lieutenant General Kenkichi Uyeda, Japanese commander, behind the Kiangwan lines, said more Japanese soldiers were expected to come to aid of his forces. How many would arrive and when was kept a secret.

A fleet of eight giant bombing planes darkened the skies over Kiangwan's northwest section and let loose the rain of blows that made the ground fairly tremble. They used 250-pound missiles in their attempt to obliterate the Chinese defenses and open a way for the Japanese to enter into the beleaguered village.

Heavy Damage

The raid lasted less than a half hour, causing tremendous damage to the Chinese positions.

How any Chinese survived the terrific blasts remained a mystery. But when the smoke and debris-Laden air partially cleared the Chinese still were there, continuing to pour rifle and machine gun bullets at the

Captured Six Hours Later, Man Confesses To Officers That He Beat Woman With Iron Pipe After Quarrel

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—Arrested at Santa Monica six hours after the finding of the battered body of Mrs. Anne Terrell, 35, under gravel floor of a private garage here, James A. Reed, 45, a chef, admitted tonight, police announced, he beat her to death with an iron bar after a quarrel.

Reed was brought to police headquarters here, and Mrs. Terrell's 11 year old daughter, Harriett, whom Reed said he took to Santa Monica February 12, several days after the slaying, was placed in care of juvenile authorities.

Body Is Unearthed

Clues led the authorities to Reed, alias James Reagen. Police, searching for stolen goods in the garage, unearthed the body. The articles were missing from the house where Reed, Mrs. Terrell and the little girl had been living, and the search was requested by the lessor of the place, Charles U. Loskamp.

Loskamp said that several weeks ago he became suspicious of his tenants and noted the numbers of automobiles stopping at the house. Through the owners of the automobiles the authorities identified and traced Reed and the girl.

Reed declared he drove his automobile past the house shortly after the body was found, saw a crowd there, knew the crime was discovered and decided to give himself up. He was about to do so, he said, when he was arrested.

American Shot Down In China

Robert Short, Plane Salesman, Is Victim Of Japanese Guns In Air Raid; Was The Sole Occupant Of Ship

(By The Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24. (Wednesday) —A young American airplane salesman, Robert Short, 27, who just had delivered a new fighting plane to the Chinese government, was shot down and killed in a skirmish with Japanese fliers over Soochow yesterday.

Short, whose former home was Tacoma, Wash., was the sole occupant of the plane he was flying when encountered by Japanese planes during an air raid over Soochow, where there is a Chinese military air field about 54 miles west of Shanghai.

Ordered To Return

His employer, L. E. Gale, said Short had gone to Nanking on Saturday with a new military plane the company had sold to the Chinese government. He was told to return to Shanghai immediately after delivering the plane and said he would.

Chinese aviation officers said the American knew all the pilots in Nanking and might have joined a Chinese squadron on an expedition to Soochow, where the Chinese ran into some Japanese planes and said they shot down one of them.

Judd Attorneys Are Seeking To Beat Arizona Law

(By The Associated Press)

PHOENIX, Ariz. Feb. 23.—An attack on the qualifications of a juror, and criticism of the state and the court, delayed temporarily today Arizona's attempt to dispose of the case of Winnie Ruth Judd, condemned to death for the slaying of Agnes Anne Leroi.

Pronouncement of the death sentence, set for today, was put over until tomorrow at request of County Attorney Lloyd J. Andrews, who said he needed time to make an answer to the claims of defense counsel, by which Mrs. Judd hopes to gain a new trial.

Affidavits Offered

The defense charged in affidavits that Dan Kleinman, Mesa, Ariz., one of the 12 men jurors voted to hang Mrs. Judd, came into the case biased and prejudiced.

In two of five affidavits submitted, B. H. Ward, a member of the county criminal division of the superior court jury panel but not a member of the Judd jury, and A. E. Parmer, Phoenix business man, were quoted as saying they had heard Kleinman intimate "bias and prejudice" against Mrs. Judd.

Ignorance Certified

Herman Lewkowitz, J. B. Zaversack, counsel for Mrs. Judd, and the condemned woman signed affidavits certifying their ignorance of the juror's alleged state of mind when he was seated.

Defense counsel also alleged general insufficiency of the evidence

Two Suspects Confess Theft

Signed Statements Of Pair In Jail Here Tell Of Burglary Of Dry Goods Store Sunday Morning At Amherst

Two youths have confessed, in signed statements, participation in burglary of a drygoods store and attempted burglary of a drug store early Sunday at Amherst, Burton S. Burks, assistant district attorney, said Tuesday.

Surprised by a young man, who slept in the drug store and had a rifle, three suspects were arrested there by peace officers. Two of the suspects subsequently were placed in the Lubbock county jail for safekeeping. An automobile, containing about $500 worth of merchandise from the drygoods store, was found about two blocks away soon after arrest of the trio, the Lamb county sheriff's department reported.

Each Suspect Young

Assistant District Attorney Burks said the two suspects held here said they and the third suspect, in jail in Lamb county, left Amarillo in the automobile Saturday night and arrived in Amherst early Sunday morning. Each suspect signing the confession said he was 17 years old, the assistant prosecutor said.

Although taken to Lubbock from Littlefield, the suspects allegedly effected the break-ins at Amherst, instead of Littlefield, as previously reported. Ownership of the automobile was undeterimned.

Navy's "Queen Of Skies" May Wear Tarnished Crown

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (AP)—The navy's "queen of the skies" the giant airship Akron—may have to continue her reign wearing a crown tarnished by controversy.

Today Representative McClintic (D., Okla.), chairman of the house naval subcommittee investigating charges that the biggest airship in the world was unsafe, said:

Prince Lennart And His Timid Commoner Fiancee Arrive In London; Declare They Likely May Live In America

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Exiled for his love of a commoner from the bosom of his family and his home in Sweden, his royal highness Prince Lennart of Sweden tonight brought his timid blonde fiancee to London to make her his wife.

Looking much like a college boy and his coed best girl, the abashed pair stepped from a continental train at Victoria station into the strange city neither had ever seen to find no one to meet them—except two hotel employes.

Dislikes London

The flashlights of 30 photographers went off at once and the fiancee of the prince—Miss Karin Nissvandt—hid her head on his shoulder while he blinked his eyes in astonishment.

In the twinkling of an eye the bashful girl and her prince were whisked away to a hotel.

"Miss Nissvandt does not like London," the prince said later after her two aunts and an uncle who had come along with them had bundled her off to a suite.

Declines To Answer

Prince Lennard declined to answer questions as to how deep is the estrangement between him and his father, Prince William, and his grandfather, King Gustav.

But no one from the Swedish embassy met the couple. His father is not coming for the wedding and after the ceremony the prince will be just plain Mr. Bernadotte.

It was in 1925 that the prince and Karin first met, he said.

"She was a little girl in pigtails just 13 years old," he recalled. "I

Prohibition Views Of Speaker Are Given Airing

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (AP) — A whirlwind of pre-convention presidential politics swept the country today, whipping down here and there to advance or stay the driving force behind five outright or possible candidates, four of them Democrats.

Two informal conferences at the capitol—the fiery "Jim" Reed of Missouri with Speaker Jack Garner and Postmaster General Brown with Senator Hiram Johnson — served only to increase speculation.

Governor Ritchie of Maryland carried his speaking campaign into Michigan.

Murray In Argument

Governor Murray of Oklahoma argued with Georgia officials about primary filing en route to an Indiana speaking date.

The prohibition views of Speaker Garner came up for airing today with Senator Sheppard, of Texas, replying to an inquiry with the assertion "his entire public record is ample assurance that he would give the country vigorous and thorough enforcement."

Sheppard replied to H. Beauchamp, Dallas, field secretary of the Sunday school board of the Southern Baptist church, that while Garner voted against submission of the eighteenth amendment to the states he voted for the Volstead enforcement act.

Made No Statement

"It is my opinion," Sheppard added, "that he has voted for every enforcement act since. Mr. Garner has made no statement as to his position on repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

Reed, who is counting on Missouri's support for the nomination at Chicago, demanded after his call

Cabinet Action Taken After Members Are Informed Of A Series Of Reversals Given By Chinese Troops

Japan Says That China Now Is Not Considered An Organized State But That Peace Would Receive A Welcome

BY GLENN BABB,
Associated Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Feb. 23.—The cabinet decided today to double the strength of the Shanghai expeditionary force.

The decision was reached after the ministers were informed the Chinese had stopped the Jaapnese onslaught. The army now has 25,000 men at Shanghai and the new reinforcements will bring it to 50,000.

Lieutenant General Kenkichi Uyeda, army commander in the field, refused to request more men, but Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japan's minister to China, and Vice Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, commander of the fleet in Shanghai waters, joined in the appeal.

Disdains Appeal

The war office explained General Uyeda had declined to ask for reinforceemnts in accordance with the Samurai code, which requires him to disdain any appeal for help.

The chief of staff and other high military officials, uneasy about the lack of progress made by the Japanese attackers, urged that additional men be sent. These officers were worried not only by inability of the Japanese forces to dispose of the Chinese 19th route army but also by alarming reports that units of General Kai-Shek's national guard, the best trained troops in China, were arriving at the front to join the 19th.

Japs To Outnumber Foes

Lieutenant General Sadao Arakt, minister of war, presented the reinforcement problem to the cabinet at a meeting early today.

Estimates here are that the Chinese have about 35,000 men in the Shanghai area. Thus, with the reinforcements, the Japanese will outnumber them 10 to 7.

Injury Is Fatal To Opera Singer

BERLIN, Feb. 23. (AP)—Madame Johanna Gadski, 59, noted opera singer, whose career was marred in the fervor of patriotism during the world war, died today of automobile accident injuries.

Three other persons were hurt in the collision, which occurred yesterday between a car driven by Mrs Geraldine Bangs, New York, and a street car. Mrs. Bangs underwent an operation today and physicians said her life was not in danger. Madame Gadski's husband, Capt. Hans Tauscher and her daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Busch, were not seriously hurt, but news of the singer's death was kept from them.

Madame Gadski came to New York on the insistence of Walter Damrosch in 1895, but soon worked up to the Metropolitan Opera company and later became one of the most celebrated "Bruenhildes" of the early twentieth century.

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

WHILE the author of this daily outburst tries to think of something to say: Cleaning out the top drawer to this desk should bring something to light, usually does when topics are hard to find . . . It was different, anyway, having the woman call and ask if she might lie about the party. Can't remember anyone else asking the privilege . . . So many organizations wanting all the press notices that are sent in, "If you would just run all the stories that our national or state headquarters send in, it would help so much," they say . . . If they could see this wastebasket and the janitor thinking aloud, "Youall sho needs anoder can over heah" . . . . But that's where this title of "editor" comes in. . . .

Looks like spring again, but pessimists such as this one know it can't last. Spring never lasts until May or June but the glorious burst of sunshine is welcome after a week of cold and rain . . . A reminder of that serious remark made by a staff member a couple of weeks ago when he came in displaying the blossom from an elm tree "If you ask me, the trees are mighty foolish to be putting on blossoms now" . . . . Hope this is another spring when the spirea comes out in a white cloud. . . .

SOME STATISTICS

AT A TIME when we have heard so much of creeds, dogmas, denominationalism, here are some interesting figures that appear in a current copy of the Methodist Sunday school magazine. The religious membership of the world is given here: Christians—Roman Catholics, 331,500,000; Orthodox Catholics, 144,000,000; Protestants, 206,900,000, making a grand total of 682,400,000; Non-Christian — Jews, 15,630,000; Mohammedans, 209,020,000; Buddists, 150,180,000; Hindus, 230,150,000; Confucianists and Taoists, 350,600,000; Shintoists, 25,000,000; Animists, 135,650,000; Miscalianeous, 50,870,000, making a grand total of 1,167,100,000.

There's food for thought there. One feels his insignificance in sitting around disputing about dogmas and tenets. Few of us have any acquaintanceship with religion and little more with Christianity. You, too, probably are entirely ignorant concerning the Animistic beliefs. Yet there are these 135,650,000 believers.

It is lucky that we have little idea of our vast ignorance, for, otherwise, we should be afraid to speak.

MISCELLANY

THAT Chevrolet company number 1234, inspires me to burst into song: the melody of a few years ago. "One, two, three, four" . . . . Some one here should introduce the bicycle fad. Keeping up such a machine should not be so expensive and it would be a means of transportation faster than walking. There would be three others to do the riding. Ruth Ford, Margaret Turner and this Angler. It could become a fad as horseback riding has this winter. . . .

Parking a bicycle after coming to work wouldn't be the problem that a horse or a car offers and the wheels could navigate the paved streets better than horses . . . .

DREAMS

LISTENING to a group of collegians talking about ambitions and desires is a reminder of how these things change . . . Those Sunday afternoons when we used to congregate in a dormitory room and dream of the days when we should have careers and money seem far away now. Few of us are doing the things we dreamed of and few of us have any desire to do these things now. The most insignificent incidents have a habit of shaping destinies. Later one may look back and see the influence or the trend of events.

There are people who have one ambition and work toward that particular thing always. Somehow, I don't regret changing aims. Trying different careers has an appeal.

People frequently ask us about newspaper work and express a belief that "I could do that because I've always had the knack of writing" or "my teachers always told me I should do newspaper work." All we can say is "try it, just like anything else." But, we know that the man was not very wrong who said that the newspaper reporter needs to know everything. He doesn't, but he finds occasions to use it all.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. (AP) — The weeding-out process continued today in one of the largest bridge tournaments ever held—the eastern bridge championships.

The first sessions, ending after midnight, left 96 pairs still in the running out of the total of 152 who paid the entrance fee for the Julian Goldman contract pair championship.

None of the "big shots" were swept away in the first eliminations. The "four horsemen" who won the Vanderbilt cup, Mrs. Ely Culbertson, Sidney Lenz, Commander Winfield Liggett, jr., and others who have dominating positions in the bridge world, came through safely.

The Hamilton club of Philadelphia and the women's whist club led the field with 15 1-2 match points.

Anniversary Of Red Army Commemorated In Russia

MOSCOW, Feb. 23. (AP) — Red flags floated from nearly every building in Soviet Russia today as the country commemorated the 14th anniversary of the organization of the red army.

Columns of newspaper space were devoted to reiterating the conutry's peaceful intentions, to which was added a warning that the Soviet must be prepared for "coming imperialistic attacks."

The day was not a holiday and no formal ceremonies were held in the red square but the people were reminded of the day's significance not only by flags and bunting but by the screaming headlines, pictures of Stalin and caustic editorial comment on the progress of the disarmament conference in the newspapers.

Theaters were thrown open to all soldiers and military personanages and a military motif provided the theme for most of their repertories.

With 300 freshmen already registered to attend the hodge podge which sophomore students are giving in their honor at the Dance Palace Friday night, bids will go on sale today to upper classmen and sophs. They may be purchased at the booth next to the postoffice in the ad building today, Thursday, and Friday. Those in charge have announced that all who want stag bids must reserve them early, as a limited number is available.

Fish boys who attend the dance have been asked to wear green ties and sport clothes. Soph men will not wear ties; corduroy trousers, and sweaters or jackets will complete their costumes. Sport dresses will be in order for all girls except the sophomores, who will wear linen or cotton frocks.

Sam Shumate's orchestra will furnish the music.

PHI PSI TO HONOR REGENT

John W. Carpenter, of Dallas, member of the Tech board of regents and called "the daddy of the textile engineering department," is to be made an honorary member of Phi Psi textile fraternity today. The honor will be conferred upon him following a meeting of the college board of directors this afternoon, and at the same time two former students, Charlie Woolridge and Jack Maddox, will also become members.

At a banquet tonight, Mr. Carpenter is to be presented a Matador blanket woven by students in the textile department. It is scarlet and black, and bears figures symbolic of the school. At this time the textile students also plan to give souvenir handkerchiefs in Tech colors to all members of the board of regents. Durene, the highest grade mercerized cotton, was used to make them.

Other projects of the textile engineering department for this year include manufacture of duck covers for animals in the aggie school, which will be used in the stock show in the spring; and manufacture of wool suiting, some of which has been completed.

Phi Psi maintains a student loan fund which is used to aid seniors in the department. Every graduate has voluntarily agreed to pay his dues for three years after leaving school to provide the fund. In addition to this, Mr. Carpenter also offers each a $250 cash prize to the sophomore textile student who has the highest average.

Sweetwater Youth Checker Champion

ABILENE, Feb. 23. (AP)—Clarence Ellison of Sweetwater, youngster who failed to qualify for the finals of the August tournament of West Texas checker players, took two straights from Raymond Dittrich of Winters, title defender and reigning favorite, to win the semifinal association championship this morning.

There were very few spectators to crown the winning player, as the final round which opened at nine o'clock last night did not close until 3 a. m.

Dittrich's defeat left him tied with two others, Grady Flint of Winters and C. T. Harness of Colorado, for second place.

EAGER TO TELL ABOUT HER STOMACH

"I want to tell others about my experience with Pape's Diapepsin," says Mrs. B. Eastman, 1200 California St., Denver, Colo. "I tried a lot of things for my indigestion, but none of them did any good. Then a friend persuaded me to take a few tablets of this wonderful preparation.

"Now I even eat cabbage without any distress afterwards. It used to cause real suffering. I am not nearly so nervous as I used to be; feel much stronger and better in every way."

A medicine must have real merit to bring forth enthusiastic statements like this. And when not one, but hundreds, even thousands, are telling the same story of success, there seems no reason to doubt the day-in and day-out reliability of Pape's Diapepsin to help stomach sufferers.

These harmless, candy-like tablets relieve the heartburn, nausea, gas, belching, headaches, dizziness and other symptoms of indigestion.

Youngsters Show Elders The Way In Houston Tourney

HOOKS AND SLIDES

by WILLIAM BRAUCHER

BEGINNING WITH "WHY?"

Why should critics of the manly art of self-defense froth at the mouth because Jack Dempsey elects of his own free will to become another Bat Nelson? (Ad Wolgast still is in a sanatorium somewhere training for a big fight.)

Why do American horses forget their noble estate and imagine they're billy goats as soon as they set foot upon British soil? (Sea Soldier ran last in his first appearance in England this year.)

Why do certain wrestlers, after slugging their opponents, look appealingly at the referee when they are themselves slugged? (One of the qualities of melodramatic perfidy is simulated cowardice.)

Why does it rain in Florida and California as soon as the ball clubs begin training, when every native son will tell you every year that such precipitation is unprecedented? (We are not really using words like this in the effort to fool you.)

This Levinsky may be a Kingfish, but he wouldn't bite on that Dempsey hook.

HAIL AND FAREWELL—

Why aren't the names of four players who appeared in the last world series on the roster of the Cardinals this year? (Because the Cardinals felt they could struggle along without Jake Flowers, Wally Roettger and Andy High, and because Burleigh Grimes was too expensive, with reasonable young men like Dean, Carleton and Starr coming up.)

Why do National League umpires shudder when they pick up the newspapers and read that Ty Cobb may come back to the majors as an owner-manager in Pittsburgh or Cincinnati? (Peace is golden.)

Why do golfers buy books, take lessons from professionals and then go out on the course and think up new ways to miss? (And what ever gave Ben Franklin the idea that he could bottle up electricity?)

Why did the new ruling against rabbit punching and heeling in football meet disfavor with quite a number of coaches using the Notre Dame system, including Hunk Anderson? (You don't suppose it was because Notre Dame players like to have their heads bashed in, do you?)

Why do baseball writers think duty compels them to write funny stories about J. Francis Hogan, catcher for the Giants, just because he weighs 290 pounds, or thereabouts? (Good comedy can become dreadful monotony with a little repetition.)

Why doesn't one of those Curley troupers throw Jim Londos? (If you think you can do the boss' job better than the boss, which of course you can, go and tell him so. Sure, go right ahead.)

Why were the golfers in the New Orleans Open recently bothered by high winds even though they were using that wonderful new larger-heavier ball? (Golfers always will be bothered by high winds, even if they use a 16-pound shot.)

Schmeling and Sharkey were required to post $25,000 each to convince the New York Boxing Commission they mean business. But when did a boxer mean anything else but business?

Maxie may have the title, but Dempsey is getting the dough.

Mr. Dempsey is almost as hard a man to convince as was William Jennings Bryan.

Moreland Gets Tie For Medal With Maguire

20-Year Old Defending Champ Gains On 16-Year Old Lad In Second Day; Title Play Begins Today

HOUSTON COUNTRY CLUB, HOUSTON, Feb. 23. (AP)—Two youngsters showed their elders the way today, and came home to tie for the medal in the Houston Country club's 18th annual invitation golf tournament.

Gus Moreland of Dallas, the 20-year old defending champion, and Willie Maguire, Jr., 16-year old son of the club's professional, each shot a 144 for the 36 holes of qualifying play. Willie had a 69 for yesterday's first 18, and a first rate chance to come out well ahead for medalist honors, but his putter faltered on the back nine today and he finished with 75.

Moreland took 70 yesterday, one over par, and 74 today, playing the more consistent game. They will play off for the medal Sunday.

Championship play begins tomorrow among players who made scores of 159 or better in the qualifying rounds.

Just one stroke behind Moreland and Maguire were Johnnie Dawson of Chicago and O. S. Carlton of Houston, with 145's. Dawson took a 72 today and Carlton a 74.

Putter Plays Tricks

Young MaGuire, an able putter ordinarily, had much trouble with his specialty. Having a fine par yesterday (par was fixed at 69 due to the shortening of two holes because of standing water) he turned up today anxious to repeat. All went well through number 9, where he was one over par, but at number 11 the putter first failed him and he took five strokes for the par four hole. He recovered in the next two, parring them, but lost another stroke at the 15th and lost his chances of winning by three-putting at the par three number 16, making a five there.

Moreland will play Fred Borsodi tomorrow and Maguire will play Mac Burnett of Austin.

While MaGuire and Moreland were having their triumphs, another prodigy, Reynolds Smith of Dallas, got safely within the championship bracket. The boy shot a 73 today to make up a total of 151.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. (AP)—If the season's finish speed creation, Gene Venzke, fails to throw the world's 1,500 meters record for a loss in the Knights of Columbus games here Saturday night, it will not be for lack of competition.

Leo Lermond and Frank Crowley, of the boys who had important business elsewhere when it came to chase Gene in the National A. A. U. mile last night, have promised faithfully to give the pride of Pottstown all the running he can use this time.

So has ran Conger, the American outdoor record holder at the distance. Carl Coan, University of Pennsylvania star, also may be there when Venzke lights out in quest of a new mark.

Venzke will be shooting at Conger's mark of 3:55, set on an outdoor track in a try-out for the last Olympics, and at Lloyd Hahn's indoor standard of 3:55 4-5, made in 1925.

Venzke is popularly credited with having eclipsed, or at least equalled Hahn's record for the distance already this winter. Last week, when he ran his record-smashing 5:10 mile in the New York A. C. games, it was estimated he passed the 1,500 meter line closed to 3:45.

Lermond, Crowley and Coan, smarting under criticism they received from last night's big crowd for their failure to run the featured mile, probably will run their legs off Saturday night in an effort to vindicate themselves. All three were scratched so they could run anchor miles for their club relay teams.

Leonard Sacks Reports Query From Johnston As To Most Likely Date For Big Bout; Jack Plans Training Camp

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 23. (AP)—A query from Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, about asking what date would suit Jack Dempsey for a "major boxing event," was announced here today by Leonard Sacks, Dempsey's manager.

He said he replied Dempsey was boxing only four rounds now, would take a rest after the end of his exhibition tour, and then establish training quarters some time in May.

Sacks said he also advised Johnston any offer he made when Dempsey was ready would be given consideration along with others already received. Sacks said Johnston's wife was not definite and was simply a feeler.

Oklahoma City Pooch Wins National Amateur Hunt Title

CLAREMORE, Okla., Feb. 23. (AP)—Showing performance far superior to his thirteen competitors, Bill's Bob, a pointer belonging to Cecil S. Proctor of Oklahoma City, worked up a National Amateur championship for his owner at the all-America field trials ending here today.

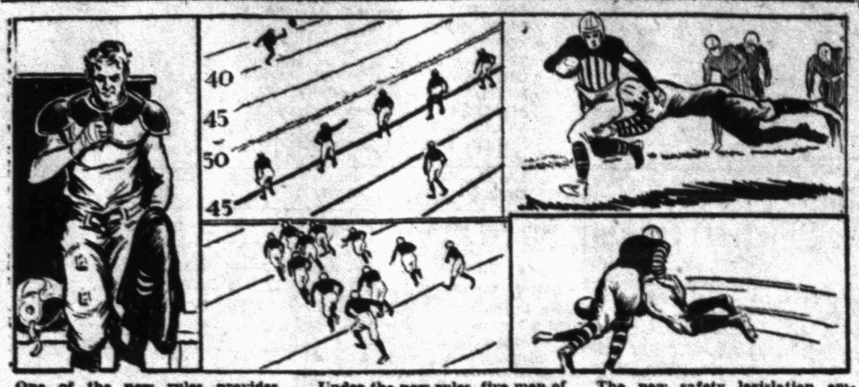

Bill's Bob, working a two-hour stretch yesterday, found two coveys and two singles. On a run-over today he found two more coveys. His nearest competitors found no more than two coveys, and he was so much better than the other dogs the judges declined to name a runner-up.

Tomorrow the midwest trials will begin, with nearly 80 pointers and setters entered.

GODDARD WINS LAP

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 23. (AP)—Emil St. Goddard, famed musher from The Pas, Man., captured the second 40-mile lap of the annual eastern international dog derby today and went into the lead in total elapsed time.

How The New Football Rules Are Supposed To Work

One of the new rules provides that when hard substances are used in the construction of thigh guards, shin guards and braces, they must be padded with felt, foam rubber or some other soft substance . . . and is meant to reduce the number of injuries caused in the past by equipment, such as leg pads, that often was as hard as steel.

Under the new rules, five men of the receiving team must stand on the 45-yard line, 15 yards from the kicker, who may place-kick, punt or dropkick. This is meant to abolish the flying wedge, shown below, formed when players could run back and set up a triangular interference around the ball carrier that often resulted in injuries to tacklers in its path.

The new safety legislation emphasizes the previous ruling prohibiting the flying tackle, pictured above, when a man could leave his feet, hurling his body at a ball carrier. The flying block, shown below, also has been forbidden. The flying blocker, forming interference for a ball carrier, is pictured hurling himself at a would-be tackler.

The rule providing that a substitute may enter the game in the period subsequent to his retirement is aimed at the danger of leaving groggy men in the game on the chance that they may recover. The rule should provide more rest for the players, and has been hailed by nearly all the coaches as a great benefit for colleges with small squads.

In 1932 the ball will be dead when any part of the ball carrier's body, except his hands or feet, touches the ground. That is expected to make the referee's decision that a man is down almost automatic. It is meant to prevent crawling which led to piling up of players on the body of the man they were trying to stop.

The "rabbit punch," delivered when a defensive lineman brought down his locked hands on the back of his opponent's neck or head, is forbidden by the new rule banning the use of hands for striking, though the hands still may be used for pushing. Players often have been knocked out by these punchers, or succumbed on subsequent plays.

Strickland Sets Pace As Baylor Keeps Abreast Of Frogs In Hectic Southwest Loop Basketball Race

(By The Associated Press)

WACO, Tex., Feb. 23.—The Baylor Bears again drew abreast of Texas Christian in the stirring Southwest Conference basketball race by defeating Rice tonight 36-23.

Captain Strickland of the Bruins arose from a sick bed to play most of the game. He got the tip off all of the way and played brilliantly at times although he tired towards the close.

The Bears led virtually the entire game and finished the contest with substitutes. Bubber Koch turned in a good defensive game for the Owls, covering Raymond Alford in excellent fashion. The floor work of Jake Hess, Rice forward, was beautiful to watch.

Bennie Clark of Baylor was high point man with 12. The shooting of Strickland in the early stages of the conflict was outstanding.

The Bears were ahead at the half 18-11.

Babe Ruth Plays With Walter Hagen In Florida Tournament; Three Tied End First Round

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 23. (AP)—Par figures were slapped about in the first round of the 54-hole St. Petersburg $1,500 open golf tournament today as Wiffy Cox of Brooklyn, Clayton Atbridge of Tampa, and Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., tied with 18-hole scores of 69 each, Par for the course is 72.

Joe Kirkwood, trick shot artist, was a stroke back of the leaders. Bracketed in third place with cards of 71 each were: Hugh Kirkpatrick, St. Petersburg; C. Doser, Rochester, N. Y.; Harry Cooper, Chicago; Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y.; Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine, Fla., and Billy Burke, Bellesir, Fla.

Babe Ruth, home run king, carded 78. He had trouble on the first hole, taking six against a par four and on the 18th requiring seven strokes on a par five. He played his round with Walter Hagen of Detroit, Mich., who shot 73. Gene Sarazen, a former national champion, who was to play with them did not appear.

Virginia Polytechnic Institute's boxing team this year has a letterman for each of the seven positions.

The witchery of an open fire.....

without smoke—odor—ashes

Thousands of years of rich tradition lie behind the open fireplace. There will never be a substitute for its magnetic charm; it is the natural center of the family circle. But science has found a welcome substitute for the smoke, soot, ashes and labor of a hearth fire—in Gas, the modern fuel. The Gas Heater increases the comfort and pleasure of fireplace heating and banishes the inconvenience.

A match is your kindling, and the Gas Heater orders its own fuel. When nights turn too cool to do without warmth, it floods the room with instant heat. Rich in radiant colors, it invites you to relax in reverie.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23. (AP)—Cotton developed considerable activity today particularly in the afternoon. Much lower cables than due, hedge selling and straddle trading between the markets caused a decline during the first hour of 11-13 points. For the rest of the morning the market was comparatively quiet and there was a slight rally of 4 points in early afternoon, but prices weakened sharply in late afternoon with a sharp break in stocks and the market closed barely steady showing net declines for the day of 14-17 points.

Liverpool is due to come in tomorrow on New Orleans 3-4 penny points down.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. (AP)—Cotton was generally lower today under realising of liquidation by recent buyers who seemed influenced by a falling off in demand from abroad, weakness of the grain and stock markets and the easier showing of Liverpool.

After selling off to 6.99 at the start, May rallied to 7.07 on trade buying and covering, but prices eased again, reaching the lowest of the day in late trading when there appeared to be some Wall street and southern selling. May closed at 6.98 with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 13 to 17 points.

Stocks Slip Slowly Backward In The Quietest Trading Since February 9

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. (AP)—Stocks slipped slowly backward today in the quietest trading since February 9.

Prices sagged fractionally at the opening, recovered and then lost heart, dropping to an emphatically weak close. The last hour was the most active period. Net losses in many instances ranged from 1 to more than 4 points, with the turnover 1,381,313 shares.

Brokerage houses which have been taking the view that the worst of the bear market was over found ground for calling the reaction a consolidation of the recent advance, pointing out that the list had still to complete a normal technical reaction from the mid-month rally.

Nevertheless, buying support was uninspiring, for shorts appeared to have regained their composure fully and there was nothing in the day's news to stimulate demand in anticipation of another upward flurry. Further profit-taking was doubtless a factor.

FORT WORTH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Feb. 23. (AP)—Keen demand was reported today for milo and kaffir while other offerings on the cash grain market here were fairly easily sold.

Quotations were as follows, basis carloads, freight paid, delivered Texas gulf ports, export rate, on group three points: Wheat, No. 1 ordinary hard milling 59-60 1-2; No. 1 hard 13 per cent protein 60-61; 14 per cent 62-63; 15 per cent 64-67; 16 per cent 66-71; sorghums No. 2 milo per 100 lbs. 76-77; No. 2 kaffir 77-78.

Delivered group one points: Corn, No. 2 mixed 39 1-2-40 1-2; No. 2 white 40 1-2-41 1-2; No. 3 yellow 47-48.

Delivered group three points, oats, No. 2 red 23-24 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 23. (AP)—Liquidating sales led to sharp setbacks in grain prices today, despite announcement that 1,500,000 bushels of North American wheat had been taken for overseas.

Constructive news from abroad exerted less influence than expected, and weakness of feedstuffs values had a bearish effect on wheat. No. 3 yellow corn was selling on an immediate delivery basis, 6 cents a bushel lower than May contracts, a market situation rarely met with at this time of year.

Wheat closed unsteady at almost the day's bottom level, 1- to - lower than Saturday's finish, corn 3-4 to 1 down, oats 1-2 to 1 off, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents decline.

Keeps Your Gasoline Tax High!

Your state could well afford to reduce its tax on gasoline if it could stop evasion of the gasoline tax law. To put it another way, your state could build many more miles of good roads each year if it were not for bootleg gasoline.

What is bootleg gasoline? It is gasoline on which the seller pays your state no tax. But the racketeer collects all or a part of the tax from you—and puts it in his own pocket. The racketeer robs not only your state but you! This theft of tax money means less money for state road funds and keeps your gasoline tax high.

Will you help stamp out this new racketeer? You may be buying bootleg gasoline and not know it! There's one way to be sure your tax money is going to your state and coming back to you in the form of good roads. That way is to buy nothing but reliable gasoline, sold under a familiar, respected brand name, backed by a dependable company who complies with the law.

The Economic Interest

WHILE sentiment in this country is wholly against war—for which we may all be thankful—people everywhere in the United States are interested in the fiasco in the Orient. Dispatches from Shanghai, Tokio, Harbin and other points are "eaten up" by otherwise peace loving Americans and it remained for The El Paso Times to be the first to characterize the interest.

On a recent editorial page, The Times chirruped:

"Nobody wants a war today—
At least, we're done with that;
The Jingoists can have their say,
They're talking through their hat.
Nobody wants to war and fight,
But men lie dead in flocks;
By Jove! You don't suppose it might Increase the price of stocks?"

That may be a pretty hardboiled way to look at it, but after all, it's a long way from here to Shanghai and China's teeming millions are impersonal to most of us.

One of the greatest bases of interest in the Chinese-Japanese rookus is the economic question. There's no denying it.

THE AKRON MISHAP

The unfortunate mishap which marred a trial flight of the dirigible Akron Monday lends credence to charges recently voiced in Washington that sloppy construction methods were permitted on the great liner of the clouds. While the incident may have been only an unavoidable circumstance, it never-the-less calls for an investigation of facts.

Tragedy has stalked in the wake of America's great dirigibles and during the construction of the Akron nasty stories went the rounds, telling of criminal syndicalism on the part of workmen who had been planted on their jobs to weaken the great ship by inserting faulty rivets. After the big ship was finished it was noised around Washington that the plans had not been followed exactly and the result was that the dirigible's displacement was not what it should be.

Whether or not there is a "nigger in the woodpile" concerning the Akron, the incident on Monday serves as a warning. The government must look after the matter with painstaking care.

TEXAS AND GARNER

Several months ago the Roosevelt camp in New York set out to do big things in Texas, appointing former Lieutenant-Governor T. Whit Davidson as the head of the New Yorker's workers in Texas. Since then, however, the political pot has been simmering merrily away and now Mr. Davidson has reported to his superiors that "the Texas delegation will be loyal to John Garner" and that the Rooseveltians "desire to co-operate."

In other words, Mr. Davidson has seen the handwriting on the wall. He has seen the trend of the times not only in Texas, but in a large part of the nation, as Democrats have begun to rally around the Garner standard in a great wave of enthusiasm.

If Garner is stopped at Chicago the Texas vote may go to Roosevelt—no one can say at this early date. But the Texas vote will go to "Uvalde Jack" just as long as he stays in the running—and that's where it should go.

Practical Health Problems

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three articles on "How to Care for Baby's Teeth" by Dr. Fishbein. The third will appear in The Morning Avalanche Thursday.

By Dr. Morris Fishbein Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

THE baby that is nursed by its mother gets the best food a baby can get. If it is not nursed by the mother, it will have to have a diet arranged so as to include the necessary substances.

The basis of all baby diets is milk, but milk is deficient in certain necessary substances, and these the doctor can provide for through modifications of the diet. He will tell the mother when the baby is to have orange and tomato juice and cod liver oil and the amount of each it should have.

The vegetables are in the first foods to be added to the baby's diet, and they should be started slowly in very small quantities. By the time the child is one year of age it can eat most vegetables; it can also be having fresh milk, fruit, zwieback or toast.

Many physicians and dentists believe that coarse foods strengthen the jaws and help in hardening the gums. When a new tooth is about to come in the coarse foods serve as a resistance against which the gums may work in order to permit the tooth to cut its way through.

If the child is excessively irritant when the teeth are coming in, it is wise to have the advice of the dentist of family physician.

The first teeth come in at the front of the mouth between the fifth and eighth months, as a rule. If they happen to be a little early, or late, there is no cause for worry.

The next teeth come in between the eighth and tenth months, and the others about the time of the first birthday.

Until the first teeth appear, the mouth of the child does well if let alone. After the first teeth appear, the gums and teeth may be wiped daily with a soft clean cloth dipped in water to which a little salt has been added. It is well to be exceedingly gentle.

About the eighteenth month a soft tooth brush may be substituted for the soft cloth, and as soon as the child is old enough it should learn to brush its teeth for itself. If the child likes the taste of toothpaste, it may have toothpaste. If it prefers the water with added salt, it may have that.

Most physicians and dentists are convinced that a toothpaste is of service only in cleaning and polishing the teeth and has little, if any, special value for preventing infection or counteracting acid.

"Wild Bill" A Showman

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Speaker John N. Garner had to be pointed to as a highly desirable eligible for the Democratic presidential nomination before he was generally thought of in that connection.

Governor W. H. Murray

Their attention having been called to him, his candidatorial suitability was apparent to plenty of folk.

Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma did not need to have attention directed his way. He attracted it. It is fair to say that he shows up under it pretty well. Still, he is no such Democratic presidential possibility as Speaker Garner, despite having been mentioned weeks ahead of the Texan.

AMONG the score or more of Democrats who have been presidentially suggested, Garner and Murray unquestionably are the two most colorful.

But there is this difference between them:

Garner's picturesque personality is so natural to him that seemingly he is unaware of it.

Maybe it would be unjust to refer to Murray's as an affectation. Nevertheless, the Oklahoman is an excellent showman. He is perfectly conscious that his ensemble is striking and clearly regards it (and correctly so) as perhaps his most valuable political asset.

"ALFALFA BILL" no sooner was sure of his majority for the Oklahoma governorship than he knew he was in the presidential limelight—in the edge of it, anyhow.

To move toward the center of it, all he could, was a matter of instinct with him.

An exceedingly modest man, "Texas Jack" plainly attributed his attainment of the speakership to seniority precedent rather than to any especial merit on his own part, and it appears never to have occurred to him to advertise himself presidentially on the strength of it. It was necessary for someone else to focus the initial publicity on him. It "took" immediately.

SPEAKER GARNER is a rough-and-ready individual.

He is as rough-and-ready in a silk "topper," swallowtail, boiled shirt and patent leathers as in the baggy, oldish sack suit which he wears ordinarily around the capitol.

He is no rougher-and-readier, however, in his customary pepper-and-salt sack outfit than in formal evening regalia.

It is true that he manifestly is acutely uncomfortable in "society" attire, which, much against his will, he has been forced to submit to a few times recently, to uphold the dignity of his post as presiding officer of the house of representatives. Nevertheless, regardless of the clothes he has on, there is no mistaking him for anyone except the original and only "Jack" Garner.

GOVERNOR MURRAY on the other hand, is as versatile as a chameleon.

Meeting the newspaper correspondents (and particularly the news photographers) on a recent visit to Washington (and presumably on tour in Oklahoma), he was the typical "Alfalfa Bill," direct from the soil—shrewd but crude. The cartoons one sees of him are not so much, caricatures as portraits—when he is playing his "Alfalfa Bill" role."

But meet Governor Murray that same evening—on his way to keep a "date" to address a select audience.

His cutaway fits him perfectly. His linen is immaculate. His pearl gray trousers are creased impeccably. To be sure, he still wears his four-gallon headpiece, obviously newly blocked and brushed till it shines like the veriest stovepipe, but its rakishness merely sets off the elegance of his raiment in other details.

Moreover, he will address that evening's audience in the language and with all the accents and intonations of as cultivated a gentleman as one will meet any day at the most exclusive gathering in Cambridge or New Haven.

I MET "Alfalfa Bill" once, some years ago, in the Argentine Republic.

He was down from Bolivia, where he had been attempting to found a colony, had just arrived from the Chaco, and what did he have on but a pair of native cotton trousers, supported by a broad sash such as the gauchos wear, drawn in tightly and buttoned around the ankles, and, on his feet, rope-soled alpargatoes! And he spoke a fairly good quality of Spanish, mixed with Mataco Indian expressions.

Oh, "Alfalfa Bill" knows how to adapt himself to his surroundings and his company.

IT MAY BE JUDGED, then, that Governor Murray is a wee bit theatrical.

Indeed, he probably reckons that he has to be, and he may be right about it. He is trying to horn into the presidential group, but lacks the money to stage an orthodox campaign, and doubtless is making the best use he can of such qualifications as he does possess to draw the notice of the public.

If there is some little smack of charlatanry in the effect he gives, is it not among the possibilities that he realizes it, but calculates that it is unavoidable.

At any rate, when he can afford to lay aside his showmanship, he does so, and undertakes to talk solid statesmanship—which he can do, if he estimates his audience as of the kind to appreciate it.

THAT "ALFALFA BILL" will win the Democratic presidential nomination is, of course, no probability whatever—is not even to be considered as a reasonable possibility.

And yet he is something more than a mere "favorite son."

Petitions for his nomination have been filed in five states already.

The old fellow has genuine ability, considerable sincerity and more courage than any two dozen of average politicians put together.

WHEN TALENTS FAIL

In El Paso the other day glaring handbills informed the world that Manuel Balderas was quite an expert at peering into the future. According to Sr. Balderas' own words, he was blessed with the ability to "produce love, to tell fortunes, to discover hidden treasures and to explain any problem"—but his powers apparently were not sufficient enough to warn him in advance that he was going to get into trouble.

Hailed before Justice R. B. Rawlins on a charge of "fortune telling," Balderas was stumped by the first question of the man on the bench.

"Can you foresee what I am about to do in your case?" his honor asked.

"I do not seem to be able to tell that," Balderas answered.

That was the straw that broke the camel's back. The verdict was $50 and costs.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

©1931 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSY McBRIDE, 19-year-old New York typist, marries JIM WALLACE the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin. Gypsy was been jilted by ALAN CROSBY, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art. Wallace's fiancee has broken their engagement to marry a richer man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has a thriving law practice. His relatives snub Gypsy. Alan Crosby writes to her but she returns the letter unopened. MARCIA LORING, Jim's former fiancee, marries BROCK PHILLIPS, millionaire's son.

Months pass and Brock Phillips is killed in a fall from a horse. Marcia consults Jim about financial affairs and later tells him her marriage to Phillips was a mistake. She declares she cares only for him. Hurt because she believes Jim has taken Marcia Phillips to lunch, Gypsy accepts FRANK GIBSON'S invitation to drive her home from a shopping trip. There is a collision and Gypsy's ankle is sprained. Jim is attentive during the days while the ankle is healing. Alan Crosby comes to see Gypsy and tells her he loves her. Jim's arrival interrupts the interview. Gypsy promises to meet Alan Monday afternoon. She keeps the appointment.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

Gypsy paused on the threshold of the large room and surveyed it. She could not have told what prompted her to suggest this meeting place. Perhaps it was Alan's interest in art. The room was used to exhibit traveling collections of paintings. Gypsy had been there once before to see the work of a group of Mexican artists.

The place had been almost deserted then. Now several couples were studying the pictures, standing or else leaning back in the row of camp chair down the center of the room.

She saw Alan and her heart quickened its beat. His back was toward her. Alen appeared to be absorbed in a canvas. He stood almost in the center of the room. How slender and well built he looked in the gray suit.

"Well, I've come," she said in a low voice.

He turned, smiling. "And I've been waiting since before three."

Two young women who looked as though they might be school teachers passed in front of them, sat down near by.

Crosby glanced down at Gypsy. "Isn't there some place," he asked, "where we might have a little more privacy—"

She nodded. "We'll try to find some place. This won't do."

They left the exhibition room. Outside a broad balcony looked down over the central office of the library. At the far end of the balcony there was a bench. Gypsy and Alan walked toward this bench and sat down.

"Now before you begin" Crosby said, trying to keep his voice low, "I want to tell you that the very day you left New York—the same day you were married, I guess—I tried to find you to tell you I was sorry for what had happened. I telephoned and Mrs. O'Hare told me you'd gone away. She wouldn't say where. It was after I went back there—after I lost my job—that she told me the real truth. Gypsy, whatever made you do it?"

"Do what?"

"Runaway from me the way you did. Without even saying goodby!"

"But, Alan, I didn't think you'd be interested. There was your new friend, Mrs. Langley—"

"Are you trying to remind me what a fool I've been? I admitted it, didn't I? Mrs. Langley! She was the worst of the lot, Gypsy. It was her fault I lost my job. She was the one who told me running around to parties all night was the way to get ahead in New York. Well, it wasn't long before she was through with a penniless artist! Picked up a violinist who could write love songs for her."

Suddenly Crosby stopped talking and looked at the girl. "What's the good of going on this way, Gypsy?" he said then pleadingly. "I've told you everything I've tried since you went away has been a failure. I've cursed myself a thousand times for an idiot. It isn't too late, darling. It isn't too late if we both have the courage! I—I love you so much!"

The girl turned away from him. "I'm sorry, Alan," she said slowly. "I came here to tell you that it will have to be goodby."

"But I'm never going to let you go again! Gypsy, if you'll come away with me there isn't anything we can't do in the whole world. I'll work hard. I'll make you proud of me. You can't have forgotten the wonderful days we used to have together! You can't say no, darling. Your heart won't let you!"

Still she was avoiding his eyes.

"You don't understand, Alan," she told him. "You see — it is my heart—"

Crosby stared at her. "You mean," he said slowly, "that you're happier here? You mean you love Jim Wallace?"

Misted lashes made the girl's eyes starry. She nodded. "Six months ago," she said, "if you'd told me all this everything would have been different. I cared so much for you then! I thought it was love. When you talked to me about Mrs. Langley—told me how beautiful she was—I was terribly jealous. That night I saw you with her I thought I didn't even want to live. I was miserable—oh, I thought no one in the world had ever been so unhappy! When I married Jim it was to get away. I was honest with him. He knew there was someone else I cared for. But he's wonderful, Alan. He didn't ask a single question about the other man. Even now he doesn't know. I've changed since

Letters To The Editor

Lubbock Man Writes About Garner And The Presidency

Editor, The Avalanche: John Nance Garner, better known as "Jack" Garner, of the 15th Congressional district of Texas, is the most out-standing Democrat in America today. His district consists of 23 counties, located mainly in the lower Rio Grande valley—has approximately one quarter million people of mixed nationalities, and is rich in bob-cats and sage grass; coyotes and deer; onions and angora goats.

It has been almost a third of a century since "Jack" Garner armed with his certificate of election, went to Washington to take a seat in the lower house of Congress. For years little was heard from the representative of the now famous "Magic Valley." His successive years in Congress have not been at all times without opposition, but his victories at the polls have been uniform. The 15th district has been the storm center of more election contests, perhaps, than any section of our great state. In all the litigation involving matters of fraud in election, however, John Garner has emerged triumphant and with a clean bill of health.

In the early years of Garner's public service there were only two products of his district that any sort of legislation could effect, viz: onions and angora goats. Garner at no time and in no way offended the Republican foe when he voted with them for protection of the mild onion and the meek goat. This often provoked a smile on the faces of the advocates of high tariff and likewise amused his Democratic colleagues.

In the long years in which Garner has been in Congress he has done more than merely draw his salary and campaign every two years for re-election. He has been a student, an investigator and an inquirer. He has been in Washington during the years of war and waste, of vast expenditure, when the credit of the nation was loaned to individuals. He has sought to correct evils, abolish abuses, inaugurate reforms—believing this not only the privilege but the duty of a Congressman. No man in the nation's capitol today holds the standard of responsibility higher than he. He believes his constituency and his country are entitled to the fruits of his experience. He votes according to his judgment and his conscience. He is a man of stainless integrity, of will and intellectual force. He reasons from the cornerstone of statement to the capstone of conclusion and when he has finished his discourse on pending legislation he patiently awaits the attacks of the opposition. He fills the Speaker's chair. He presides over the greatest assembly in all the world. He knows the history of legislation—the principles of free Democratic government. He understands the framework and foundations of law. He has breadth and scope; learning and logic and, above all has a sense of justice. With such a man in such a time as a leader there can be no doubt of Democratic victory in the 1932 campaign.

Yours sincerely,
J. R. HUMPHRIES,
Lubbock, Texas.

Local Woman Is Injured As Gasoline Becomes Ignited

Mrs. Tom Gill, 1963 Texas avenue, was burned on the legs and arms Tuesday morning when gasoline with which she was cleaning a dress became ignited. Burns on one arm were severe.

Firemen answered an alarm at 11:15 a. m. Fire Chief W. E. Twitty reported damage was negligible. Although burned painfully, Mrs. Gill was not in a serious condition, he reported.

CHANGE OF LIFE

FOR over fifty years, women have been taking Cardui for troubles like Mrs. M. C. Weatherford, of Tahlequah, Okla., describes below: "I had spells (during change of life) when I could not stand up. I had the headache all the time. I was dizzy and had attacks of nausea. I read about Cardui, so I got a bottle to try. It helped me so much that I continued to take it until I was entirely past the critical period of my life. I have given Cardui to my girls. It has been a wonderful medicine in my home."

Cardui is a mild, purely vegetable tonic.

...e come here. I'm not the same ...rl."

"What you're trying to tell me is ...at—well, that I'm out of it. Is ...at what you mean?"

"We can be friends, Alan."

He did not answer. Presently he ...icked up his hat, whirling it care...ssly.

"Well," he said in a tone of forc...d brightness, "I expect you'd like ...o have me get out of here, would...'t you? Sorry I've been such an ...diot—"

"You're not an idiot. Please don't ...alk that way, Alan. Promise me ...ou're going to feel that we're ...riends!"

"All right. We're friends. The ...ind who never see each other and ...end a card every Christmas. Do ...ou want a card with holly on it or ...ould you prefer angels?"

There was a note in his voice that ...rightened the girl.

"I don't want you to go away ...eeling like this," she told him. "You'll find another girl you care ...more for than you think you do for ...me. You see, it's really true—what ...you told me in New York. We were ...just youngsters when we had those ...good times together. I'll never forget ...them. They were wonderful; but it ...wasn't because of you or me. It was ...because we were at the age when ...we were beginning to find out how ...exciting the world is. I wish you'd ...come to see us when you're in town. ...Jim likes you."

Crosby rose. "It's all right, Gyp...sy," he said. "I know what you're ...trying to do. It's very kind of you. ...Suppose we just forget the last sad ...rites and let it go at that. I hope ...he'll be good to you. Goodby—"

He had walked a few yards when ...he turned and came back to her. ...He took Gypsy's hand.

"If there's every anything I can ...do for you," he said, "promise you'll ...let me know. I'd like to feel there's ...that chance for me. Will you do ...that?"

"Of course I will. It's sweet of you ...to say such a thing."

"I'm not just saying it. I mean ...it. Here—" he handed her a busi...ness card. "This address will reach ...me. Goodby, Gypsy. Good luck!"

For several minutes after he had ...gone the girl sat there. The balcony ...was shadowed and no one was near. ...She let the tears come and leaned ...back against the wall. Partings had ...always been hard for Gypsy. This ...one marked the termination of a ...precious part of her girlhood. It was ...something she would never know ...again. Alan was gone and so was ...the girl who had adored him.

Gypsy closed her eyes for a mo...ment. A dozen hazy memories ...crowded before her—moonlight on ...the boat to Coney Island with Alan ...beside her, dinner at Pietro's, danc...ing with Alan, sitting while Alan ...made numberless sketches, only to ...tear them up, late suppers in Mrs. ...O'Hara's kitchen. How far away all ...that seemed!

She opened her eyes, brushed ...away the tears and dabbed at her ...cheeks with a tiny powder puff. ...Gypsy signed. Then she went down ...the stairs to the first floor of the ...library.

A row of books with the placard, ...Timely and Interesting," above ...them, caught her attention. She re...membered a new biography which ...Jim had said he was anxious to read. ...It was not along the volumes on the ...desk.

Gypsy approached one of the girls ...behind the counter and asked for ...the book. It was listed but was "out"

As Gypsy turned away she noticed ...that by the clock in the entrance it ...was 10 minutes after four. By a sur...prising turn of the weather the day ...was cool. She decided to stop at the ...Plaza tea room for a cup of tea. It ...wasn't the tea she cared about. It ...was the chance to be alone a little ...longer. A chance to be alone with ...her thoughts.

She entered the tea room, and sat ...down at a table near the wall. A ...waitress asked for her order and ...presently returned with it.

A woman across the room smiled ...at Gypsy and the girl nodded. The ...woman was with two others and ...immediately turned back toward her ...companions.

Gypsy drank the hot tea. If any...one had told her six months ago ...that she was to send Alan Crosby ...away how she would have scoffed! ...Now he was gone and Gypsy's only ...feeling was one of pity for him. ...Alan would get over it, of course. ...He would get over it the same as ...she had.

That was the really amazing ...thing! She had recovered complete...ly from the spell of infatuation for ...Alan. How had it happened? When? ...She had no idea. Gypsy only knew ...that after the first few minutes ...Saturday, when the shock of seeing ...Alan again had worn away, she sud...denly was aware that the rest had ...gone too.

She did not love Alan Crosby. ...She did love Jim. She was amazed to discover that this feeling which she had called friendliness, loyalty, understanding—half a dozen different names—was something deeper. Oh, this was love now! She was sure of it. This was love that she felt for Jim Wallace.

Jim's kindness, his strength, that sturdy dependability which had never failed her, his gentleness came back to the girl in a hundred manifestations. How could she possibly have been so blind? She loved Jim. Did Jim feel the same way? Oh, she hoped so! She thought of his attentiveness during her illness. That must mean something.

There was a telephone booth in the rear of the tea room. Gypsy entered the booth. She gave the operator the number of Jim's office.

The secretary's voice answered.

"Is Mr. Wallace in?" Gypsy asked.

"Mr. Wallace has gone for the day," she was informed.

Disappointed, Gypsy returned to her seat. She had hoped to ride home with Jim. If he had gone all ready she ought to be on her way She paid the check, stepped out on the street and hailed a taxi.

Excitedly she began to plan for the evening. She would put on the printed chiffon dress. Jim had complimented her the first time she wore it. They would have dinner served by candlelight. Afterward when she and Jim were alone together they would sit on the davenport and talk.

Gypsy straightened. It occurred to her suddenly that there was only one way to let Jim know how much she cared for him. She would tell him the truth. She would tell him who Alan really was and that what she had mistaken for love was only infatuation, quickly killed.

When the cab stopped Gypsy gave the driver a bill and, without waiting for change, ran up the walk to the house.

"Mr. Wallace came in a while ago and went out again," Matilda informed her. "No, he didn't leave any message."

Gypsy was waiting for him, wearing the becoming chiffon frock and smiling, when Jim entered the house. It was after six o'clock.

"You look tired, dear," she told him.

Jim sank into a chair facing her. "Gypsy," he said in an oddly unnatural voice, "I want you to free me"

Ruffner Talks On Program Of Lions

Walter S. Ruffner, president of the American Business club, told members of the Lions club Tuesday at Hotel Hilton that Japan is in China today because of the increase of anti-Japanese feeling in that country and the chance to acquire additional territory. L. W. Bell was in charge of the program.

"The Japs saw the handwriting on the wall and the yellow hand was doing the writing," Mr. Ruffner said. "They could see this Anti-Japanese feeling growing and they had to get in there and stop it just like you would put out a prairie fire. Incidentally, they will probably acquire a little territory while they're there."

Mr. Ruffner told of a number of peculiarities of both the Chinese and Japanese which he observed while in the U. S. consular service for a number of years.

"The Japanese are a proud people and you can't insult them, like the United States did with the 1924 immigration act; and get away with it," he said. "As soon as they're ready we'll probably hear from them. Right now I doubt if they think they can get away with it."

Mr. Ruffner also recounted a few of experiences while in the service in Germany.

Preceeding Mr. Ruffner's talk, Miss Ruth Rylander gave two vocal selections. She was accompanied by Mrs. Paul Laverty.

Dana Bible Says New Grid Rules Won't Hinder Thrills

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 23. (AP)—Dana X. Bible, head football coach at the University of Nebraska, believes recent changes in the gridiron rules will not rob the spectators of any thrills and will make the game safer for players.

Bible, a member of the National football rules committee, does not picture the new regulations as a cure-all which will do away with the hospital squad and dispense with the services of team physicians. He believes any game which combines speed and contact carries a certain element of hazard.

Gabby Street Offers First Hand Lessons To Teachout

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 20. (AP)—Manager Gabby Street of the Cardinals today took Pitcher Bud Teachout under his wing and gave him some personal instruction.

Street said Teachout, who was obtained from the Chicago Cubs, would be given every opportunity to fill a hole in the regular left hand pitching staff of the Cardinals.

"I believe Teachout may have lost his stuff last year because he was pitching too many cross-fires," Street said. "We would like to have another southpaw on the staff to pair with Hallahan."

Geneva its reply to the note of the League of Nations council of February 16 in which the council appealed to Japan to end the conflict. The reply contained the declaration "The Japanese government does not and can not consider that China is an 'organized people' within the meaning of the League of Nations covenant."

Treated As State

By common consent the Japanese answer said, China has been treated as an organized state, but "fictions can not last forever nor can they be tolerated when they become grave sources of practical danger."

"The time has inevitably come," the reply continued, "when realities, rather than fictions, must be reckoned with. If Japan had no interests there it might be possible to continue indefinitely respecting the fiction that the region is occupied by 'an organized people.' Japan, however, has enormous interests there and it is impossible longer to treat the chaos in China as if it were order.

Not Easy Work

"The Japanese government does not pretend it is easy to work out the implications and consequences of this situation. It is not easy, but it is necessary. We must face the facts, and the fundamental fact is that there is not unified control in China and no authority entitled to claim entire control."

In conclusion, the government repudiated what it called the "stigma" which the world is attempting to attach to Japan of favoring or desiring war. If the efforts of the 12 neutral powers on the council, the note said, should succeed in bringing about a pacific attitude on the part of China, nowhere will more sincere delight be felt than in Japan.

Chinese Hold

Japanese positions.

After the planes had flown up and down the Chinese lines, systematically bombing them, the Japanese batteries again opened fire and a general advance of armored cars, tanks and infantry was ordered.

The bombers came out of the Japanese air field on the northeast border of the international settlement of Shanghai. They flew low over the Chinese lines, disregarding the machine guns which spat a steady stream of bullets at the huge warbirds, apparently without effect.

Tore Up Earth

Maneuvering into position, a Japanese pilot would look over the side of his plane. Then he would signal to other members of the crew controlling the bombs, of which each ship carried two. A huge missile would shoot to the earth. Within a few moments it would shake the ground and a column of dirt and debris would shoot skyward a hundred yards.

The bombers departed and several smaller planes appeared high above the line. They began dropping smaller missile, which, in comparison with the enormous explosives of the first onslaught, seemed like toys.

Then the area for a while settled back into comparative inactivity, disregarding the fieldmen and machine gunners who, apparently tireless and sleepless, always were on hand.

Japanese officials said two additional army divisions—about 22,000 men—would sail from Japan in the near future and that with their arrival Lieutenant General Uyeda would be superseded by a full general.

Twenty-six thousand people could stand at one time under the roof of St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

Pat M. Neff

was campaigning for the governorship, the late Dr. S. P. Brooks said of him:

Praised By Brooks

"Such training as he had in the country, in the rural school, in the college and law classes, in the hard knocks of adversity, has prepared him well to love the ambitious youths of Texas who seek to tread the thorny paths of knowledge to high civic usefulness."

Dr Brooks was in his heydey then, his recommendation of Neff for the chief executiveship bristling with sincerity born of association when the two were studying together as roommates at Baylor, years ago.

Former Governor Neff was born Nov. 26, 1871, in McGregor county. His parents were Virginians who settled in Texas in 1852. His mother lived at the old home and Neff visited her weekly. She died at the age of 90 a few weeks after her son became governor.

Degree In 1894

The son attended a country district school and later went to Baylor university. There he met Dr. Brooks and the friendship was formed between two men who both were destined to become presidents of the institution.

Neff obtained his bachelor of arts degree at Baylor in 1894, received a bachelor of laws degree from the University of Texas in 1897, and in 1898, a master of arts degree at Baylor.

Howard Payne college at Brownwood and Austin college at Sherman conferred the honorary degree of doctor of laws on him in 1921 and Baylor university bestowed this honor in 1923.

Served As Trustee

Early in this century Neff was named a trustee of Baylor university and has served on that board continuously since that time. When the late Dr. B. H. Carroll retired from the presidency of the board of trustees in 1903, Neff was elected in his stead.

In 1899, he married Miss Myrtle Manier of Lovelady. They have two children, Miss Hallie Maude Neff and Pat M. Neff, jr., the latter a practicing attorney in Waco.

After receiving the M. A. degree from Baylor, Neff opened a law office in Waco and maintained it until 1921, when he was elected governor.

Extensive Law Practice

He was prosecuting attorney of McLennan county from 1906 to 1912; member of the Texas house of representatives from 1901 to 1905; and speaker of the house from 1903 to 1905; he served as governor from 1921 to 1925—two terms; and was appointed by President Coolidge as a member of the United States board of mediation, serving from March, 1927, to January, 1929.

The former governor returned to Waco and had resumed his law practice when Governor Dan Moody named him as a member of the Texas railroad commission on Nov. 1, 1929. He was elected to the office in the fall of 1930. He served as chairman of the commission for a time.

Neff was state chairman of the league to enforce peace and was grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias in Texas in 1918-19. He is a Democrat, a Shriner and a member of the Lions and Rotary clubs.

Politics

on Garner that the convention made a candidate who "represents America and American policies."

However, the Missourian insisted he did not discuss politics with his Texas friend, who he said he held in high esteem.

Exchange Greetings

Brown, the administration's political chieftain, exchanged greetings with Senator Johnson just about the time reports were going around that the Californian would enter the Ohio primary against President Hoover.

"I am not discussing politics at present," Johnson said. There were indications nothing significant took place in his brief talk with the cabinet member.

At St. Louis, Oklahoma's governor told interviewers that he had been ruled out of the Georgia primary "either because the United States mail broke down or the Georgia politicians purposely didn't open my letter with a declaration of candidacy."

Bill Is Barred

This declaration arrived in Savannah today, hours after the entry lists were declared closed. State committee officials said this barred "Alfalfa Bill" from contesting with Governor Roosevelt for the Georgia delegation, but Murray plans to stump the state nevertheless.

Speaking at Ann Arbor, Governor Ritchie, who will have Maryland's votes for the nomination, called for a return to "first principles" of government.

Issues as well as personalities were brought within the range of the day's developments. Governor Murray, writing to Senator Wheeler, (D., Mont.), advocated the senator's bill for free coinage of silver, but expressed a fear it would not pass.

Adopted By Star

Brought from England to the United States by Constance Bennett, movie star, wife of the Marquis de la Falaise, the cute three-year-old youngster shown above with his nurse has been the subject of much speculation since his adoption by the star. Miss Bennett has revealed that the child is the son of a London couple, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Armstrong, who were killed in an automobile accident. He has been renamed Peter Armstrong Bennett.

Reichstag Snaps Under Big Strain; Leader Is Excluded

BERLIN, Feb. 23. (AP)—The Reichstag snapped under the strain of presidential politics today and when the bedlam subsided Adolf Hitler's chief lieutenant had been excluded for offering "a serious insult to the head of the state," President Von Hindenburg.

The fiery Joseph Goebbels had taken the floor to discuss fixing the date of the presidential elections for March 13, but instead launched into a violent tirade against the president, declaring he had left the voters in the lurch.

Abandonment Of Fort D. A. Russell Is To Be Delayed

ODESSA, Feb. 23. (AP)—A wire was received from Washington late today to the effect that the war department, according to General Douglas MacArthur had held up its order abandoning Fort D. A. Russell at Marfa until January 1, 1933.

Congressman R. E. Thomason of El Paso renewed his effort to have the order cancelled entirely.

"The Land Of Peace" Takes Its Place On Map As The Child Of War; Former Boy Emperor Is Ruler

(By The Associated Press)

Ankuo—"The Land of Peace"—takes its place on the world's maps as the child of war.

The ancient empire of the Manchus virtually has been reborn in the establishment of the independent state of Ankuo, to be ruled over nominally, at least, by the descendant of the powerful Manchu rulers who reached out in the seventeenth century to seize the Dragon Throne of China.

Ankuo, which declared its independence both of China and Japan in a formal declaration by the executive committee of the Northeast February 18, embraces all of Manchuria, and its vague western boundaries may include also parts of Inner Mongolia.

It was from this homeland that the ancestors of Henry Pu-Yi, the westernized "Boy Emperor" of the old China, reached out to establish the powerful Manchu dynasty at Peking.

Their rule of China lasted four centuries—just long enough for Henry Pu-Yi to have a few years of homage as an infant occupant of the Dragon Throne.

Then the dynasty toppled in the revolution of 1911. Since then Henry Pu-Yi has been a throneless emperor, save for one abortive attempt to re-establish the empire.

With the birth of Ankuo, however the way again was opened for him to occupy a throne in his ancestors' homeland.

The circumstances of the birth of the new state recall how Korea, the former "hermit kingdom" occupying the peninsula southeast of Manchuria, went through similar experiences following the 1894-5 war between Japan and China and the crashing conflict a decade later between Japan and Russia.

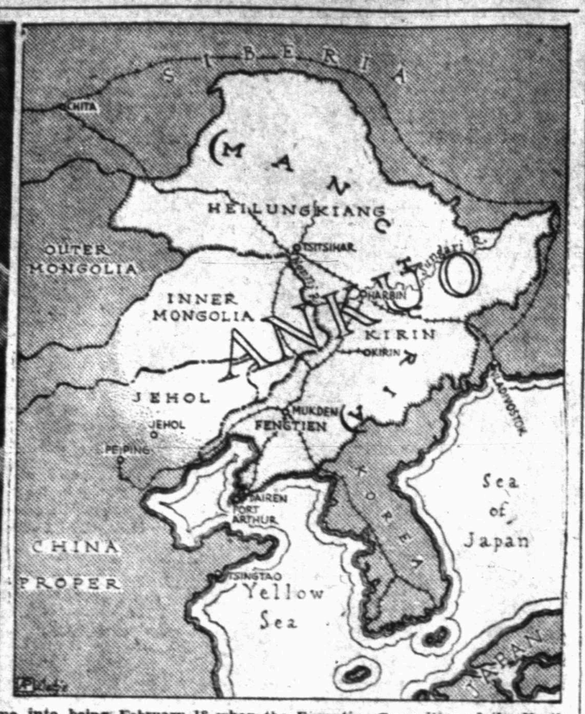

When Port Arthur first went under Russian control, Japan thought of Korea as a Muscovite "dagger pointed at her heart." So the ancient land, with a history dating back to the twelfth century, B. C. became a bone of contention between Tokio and Peking. Its disposition was the immediate cause of the 1894-5 war.

The treaty that ended those hostilities embraced a Chinese recognition of the independence of Korea, and the Treaty of Portsmouth, which Theodore Roosevelt engineered between Moscow and Tokyo, recognized Japan's paramount interest in the peninsula.

The Korean monarch gradually became only a puppet, and in 1910 the country was quietly annexed to Japan with the consent of its own government.

Two sculptures in stucco, fashioned in central Asia about 1,500 years ago, have been bought by the St. Louis art museum.

The new Republic of Ankuo came into being February 18 when the Executive Committee of the Northeast formally declared its independence both of China and Japan, and adopted as its flag the five-barred banner of the old Manchu dynasty in China, with the rising sun of Japan superimposed. Henry Pu-Yi (left), former "boy emperor" of China and scion of the ancient Manchu rulers, was reported chosen as head of the new state, which embraces all of Manchuria and possibly parts of Inner Mongolia.

Six or eight members of Tasker H. Bliss camp No. 50, Lubbock unit of the United Spanish War Veterans intend to attend the 1932 state convention of Spanish war veterans at Sweetwater from June 12 through the 15th, J. T. Stanfill, commander of the Lubbock camp, said.

Members of George Green camp No. 48 of Sweetwater are preparing to entertain the convention and civic clubs are cooperating, the Sweetwater Board of City Development has reported.

A barbecue, an old fiddlers contest in which cowboy songs of West Texas will be conspicuous, and a dance are on the convention program.

Gray Fox Found In Dickens Area But None Killed

(By Staff Correspondent)

DICKENS, Feb. 23.—Hunters here report the presence in a constantly increasing number of a gray fox, the first time that this animal has been seen in Dickens county.

According to reports these animals have been seen frequently in the Croton "brakes" a few miles east of Dickens. Up to a few years ago, not more than two or three, hunters say, these animals were unknown.

Now in the rough country there have been seen within the past few months, a number of these animals. They are shy and do not let hunters get close to them.

O. D. Cardwell, Post, district No. 8 deputy warden, when here a few days ago, learned about the animals. He said that as far as he knew there was no law against kinlling the animals.

"The pelts cannot be sold except during the season, which is December and January," Mr. Cardwell added. "The pelt cannot be taken except in those two months. The law is clear on that."

So far no cases have been recorded of any animals being killed.
