Free Pictures To Be Shown At Dawson Co. Fair

Special Showing Of "Tobaccoland" Will Be Offered

Special Equipment Will Be Set Up On Fair Grounds For Showing Of Films

An announcement of a great deal of interest to people of Lamesa and Dawson County was made this week, with the information that the Texas Visual Education Company of Austin, will present some interesting March of Time pictures free of charge at the Dawson County Fair.

The fair which will be held October 23, 24 and 25, is rapidly gaining the spotlight of attention among the people of the County.

The free talking pictures which will be presented are "Tobaccoland, U. S. A." and "Fred Waring in 'Pleasure Time'." The films are March of Time productions and are sure to be highly interesting.

Among other things a picture story of tobacco farming will be shown; a visit to two great southern universities; a football game and rally; showing how cigarettes are made; the filming of an old-fashioned barbecue; and an opportunity to see how Tobaccoland lives and plays.

The other part of the picture shows how Fred Waring prepares for his nightly broadcasts, giving scenes behind the scenes for a big broadcast.

The company will furnish their own housing and seating arrangements, and complete projection equipment, which may also be used for making public announcements during the event.

Bradford Grocery Opens Friday

Attention is called to the ad of Bradford Grocery and Market in this issue of the Courier, announcing the opening of their new store. The new business is located in the Broughton building on North Main Street, one-half block north of the northeast corner of the square.

Perry Bradford, owner and operator of the store, is well known to Lamesa and Dawson County people, having been practically reared here. He has been in the grocery business at Big Spring for the past several years.

The new store is neat and clean and they have a brand new stock of groceries and new fixtures. Look up their ad and visit them this week end.

Another Maize Story For Bro. Ripley

And now comes another maize story that is really a maize story. H. L. Slover, heading maize on the Reed Farm, 8 miles southeast of Spangenberg, vouches for the authenticity, for he actually headed the maize and measured the land.

According to Slover, he headed 13,500 pounds of maize from 1.8 acres. On the same ratio if he had headed two acres the total yield would have been 15,000 pounds, or 7,500 pounds per acre.

And another thing about this maize was, that every third row was not planted. However, in measuring, the acreage was counted only on the total area and not on the number of rows. Actually, according to Slover, only two-thirds of each acre was planted to maize.

Terrapin Race To Be Staged At Ackerly

Ackerly is all agog over the big terrapin race scheduled to be held there next Saturday. The affair is being sponsored by the Ackerly P. T. A.

A total of $5.00 in cash and $9.00 in merchandise prizes are being offered to the winners, with the first prize being $5.00 cash. Contestants may furnish their own terrapins, or the P. T. A. will have them for sale at Ackerly. There will be an entrance fee of 50c for each terrapin entered and contestants may enter as many as they like.

All terrapins must be ready for numbering by 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the announcement stated. Proceeds from the event will be used by the Parent-Teachers Association there to carry on their work during the present school term.

Carl Rountree Is Elected President Of Judicial District Bar Association

Carl Rountree, prominent Lamesa attorney for many years, and one time member of the Texas Legislature, was recently chosen president of the 106th Judicial District Bar Association and was endorsed by lawyers present from all parts of the district, for director of the State Bar association from the 19th Congressional District.

Endorsement of Rountree for this responsible and important position came at the close of a meeting called in Tahoka by Louis B. Reed, Judge of the 106th Judicial District of Texas, for the purpose of studying and discussing the new Texas Rules of Civil Procedure which have been in effect since September 1, when W. W. Price, Brownfield attorney, made the suggestion that resulted in the organization of the 106th Judicial District Association.

Last Gap Will Receive Topping In Near Future

When Completed Lamesa To Have All-Weather Road To Martin County Seat

PECOS, Texas, Sept. 29 — The District Engineer for the State Highway Department announced today that the State Highway Commission has approved a program of work for the 1942 Secondary Highway Program.

The grading, drainage structures, and asphalt surfacing on State Highway 303 in Martin County, from Highway U. S. 80 north 1 mile, and then from 3.5 miles north of Stanton to near Lenora, was included in the approved program. This new construction will close the gap which is not paved north of Stanton. The estimated cost for this construction work, which is 10.1 miles long, is $114,000.00.

Plans and specifications are now being prepared and same should be completed within the next two months.

County To Use CCC Buildings Free Of Rent

County Judge Vernon D. Adcock received a telegram Wednesday authorizing Dawson County to use some of the CCC Buildings, recently vacated, for office use. W. P. A. projects, commodity store room, and offices for the old age assistance investigator, the case workers and charged.

It is estimated that the tax payers will be saved approximately $100.00 per month in rent, in this manner. The only requirement is that the County keep the grounds cleared of weeds and trash. No rent will be charged.

Judge Adcock stated the commission's court had been working several weeks toward securing these buildings and that this word was gratefully received.

Arthur Thweatt of Fort Worth is visiting with friends and attending to business in Lamesa this week.

First Conference Game Is Expected To See Biggest Crowd Of Present Season

Lobos Will Be Rated Underdogs As Injuries Give Coaches Gregg And Neill Painful Headaches

The Interscholastic League 3-AA football conference opens for Lamesa Friday night at 8:00 o'clock with the Odessa High School Bronchos as the opposition for the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes.

Odessa visitors are expected to be more numerous than from any competing school ever to engage Lamesa. The management from Odessa has requested 750 reserved seat tickets. There will be hundreds of general admission tickets purchased here at a lower cost and to these will be added the band of about another hundred, two uniformed pep squads from senior high and junior high schools, adding about three fleet of seven or eight big buses to hundred others, and requiring a transport them, and additional children not members of uniformed groups... to reach a total which would require two long special trains to accommodate if traveling by rail. The weather will not affect attendance from Odessa very much as they know football is "any kind of weather game" and are out to get their team into championship play. The Golden Tornadoes must be defeated by Odessa for them to continue with a perfect date. The Tornadoes have lost to Odessa for two straight years in conference openers and are of a mind to get on the winning side. The preparations this week have shown a determination pleasing to onlookers.

The Lamesa boys will meet heavier men as opponents, heavier than Plainview. Two 200 pound ends, a 200 pounder at fullback, heavy tackles and center for the Bronchos give them considerable weight advantage, which will have to be offset.

Rain Totaling Nearly Four Inches Falls

The rains came, and then they came again, in Dawson County this week.

There was a preliminary shower put on Sunday, and Monday, but the real event took place on Tuesday afternoon and night, when almost four inches of rain fell in less than twenty-four hours.

It began to rain shortly after noon Tuesday, and in less than two hours a total of 2.24 inches had fallen. The rain continued throughout most of the night to bring the total Wednesday morning to 3.72 inches.

The rain fell so hard and fast Tuesday afternoon that drainage facilities were overtaxed. In some instances, and water backed into the new Fox Food Market on North First Street. Only slight damage was reported by Mr. Fox, although it was necessary for him and his entire personnel to work diligently throughout the downpour to avoid serious damage.

It has not been learned by the Courier the extent of the area covered, but it is understood that the entire county, at least, was covered.

Wednesday afternoon the sun came through and it appeared as if the rains might be over for a time at least, but Thursday morning it was again cloudy, with a fine mist falling.

District Singing Will Be Held At Nolan Chapel

Announcement is made this week that the District Singing Convention will meet at the Nolan Chapel Church, Sunday, October 5th.

The affair will be held in the afternoon, according to C. H. Mansell, of O'Donnell, president of the association.

The First Sunday District Singing Association embraces Dawson, Lynn and Terry counties.

Announcement was also made by Tracy Campbell that the Semi-Annual Singing Convention will be held at Harmony School House on Sunday, October 19th.

Next Monday To See Extra Values As Merchants Of Town Observe Dollar Day

Next Monday is the First Monday in October, and as usual, will bring some of the outstanding values in West Texas to shoppers of this territory.

By looking over the ads in this issue of the Courier, you will find the outstanding values in all lines for this day.

Lamesa stores are piled high with reasonable, new merchandise, despite the fact that deliveries on many commodities are slow.

Regardless of your needs, you will find that in the local stores you can get what you want, and at prices that are in line with any you will find anywhere. Attention is also called to the large number of ads from the various food stores of Lamesa, offering you the greatest values in groceries in West Texas, for this week end.

Lamesa has long been noted for the extra values and good clean stocks of merchandise, and you will find that even in the face of a rising market, merchants here are continuing to maintain that reputation.

By all means look over the ads in this issue, shop them, and come to Lamesa to buy the needs for your entire family.

YOU'VE GOT A NEWSPAPER!

EDITOR'S NOTE—The week of October 1 to 8th is National Newspaper Week, and the following article is reproduced because it tells the story of the weekly newspaper in a most appropriate manner.

By HENRY BEETLE HOUGH

Editor of the Vineyard Gazette, Edgartown, Mass., and author of the widely read book, "Country Editor."

Did you ever stand across the street and watch the people who go into the weekly newspaper office? Some of them are old, some are children, and most of them are just ordinary citizens, men and women of the town. They are not principally customers, such as a store would have, but they go into the newspaper office or printshop on a variety of errands—with items of news which may concern births, marriages, or deaths, with changes of address for the mailing of the paper, with problems to talk over with the editor, with notices of articles lost or found.

Nowhere Else In The World

You can go into the newspaper office yourself, any time you like, and what you have to say will, the chances are a hundred to one, have some bearing upon what appears in the paper next week. This is a privilege you have which the people of hundreds of thousands of small towns in the world do not have. You've got a newspaper, and the freedom which surrounds this newspaper is mainly yours.

As a general rule it is what goes into a weekly paper that comes out. In the long run the community looks into the printed pages of its own newspaper as into a mirror, and that is what makes the paper so important. If you do not like what you see in the printed pages, the fault is partly yours, for you have not taken the trouble to put anything in—an item, a vote, an idea, a memory, something said, or something done.

In one sense of the word, the weekly paper is not published at all. It grows. It sends out roots, and the roots bring in whatever they can find of proper nourishment. The paper belongs, just as the church and the school belong. Just like them, it is part and parcel of the organic process of democracy—not democracy in theory, or written about in some professor's book, but real democracy, in the street, in the homes, in the business places, among men, women and children.

To Help You Understand

This is National Newspaper week, and some people may think the idea is a dodge to help the newspapers. But it is not. It is far from being that. It is an effort to help people understand that their newspapers are, and how they can get more value from them for their town and for themselves.

No newspaper in the world is as close to the people as your weekly paper is to your town. At other times in the history of the world, this might not seem important. There are a great many services which newspapers strive to perform, but perhaps there is no need to mention them now. Just this simple fact is the greatest fact of all. You've got a newspaper to speak for you, to report for you, to represent you.

This does not mean that you have to be one of the citizens going into the newspaper office, although that is a good place to go when you have something on your mind. The vote that you cast on election day is something which goes into the paper, not by itself, individually, but collectively.

A Free Marketplace

The work that you do gets into the paper, too, and if you look carefully you will see that the pages of the weekly newspaper are a kind of free marketplace. They are a marketplace for the thoughts of citizens, and a channel of communication, and in a modest way, enlightenment. Your town can do things through its newspaper, and you can, too, as an individual, in your own right, because—unlike so many submerged and darkened souls on the surface of this aching world—you've got a newspaper.

Extension Service Gives Recipes For Relishes

DIXIE RELISH
 1 quart chopped cabbage
 1 pint chopped white onion
 1 pint chopped sweet red pepper
 1 pint chopped sweet green pepper
 3 tablespoons of salt
 4 tablespoons mustard seed
 2 tablespoons celery seed (crush)
 1 quart cider vinegar
 3-4 cupful of sugar
 Soak the pepper in brine (one cupful of salt to one gallon of water) for 24 hours. Freshen in clear cold water for one or two hours. Drain well, remove seeds and coarse white sections. Chop separately and measure the chopped cabbage, peppers and onions before mixing. Add spices, sugar and vinegar. Let stand overnight covered in a crock or enameled vessel. Pack into small hot jars that have been sterilized. When ready to pack, drain the vinegar off the relish in order that the jar may be well packed. Pack the relish in the jars, pressing it carefully; then pour over it the vinegar which was drained off. Paddle the jar thoroughly to get every bubble out, and allow the vinegar to displace all air spaces. Garnish each jar with two slender strips of red pepper. Place these strips vertically on the seams in the jar on opposite sides. Cap, clamp and process in water bath for 15 minutes at 180 degrees F. (simmering).

CHOW-CHOW
 2 cupfuls onions (small white)
 2 cupfuls cauliflower, in small sections
 4 cupfuls string beans, cut
 12 green peppers, medium size
 1 red pepper
 5 teaspoonfuls celery seed
 4 teaspoonfuls mustard seed
 6 teaspoonfuls horseradish
 1 cupful sugar

2 cupfuls cider vinegar
 The vegetables for chow-chow are better if first cured in brine and freshened by standing in cold water to cover from twelve to twenty-four hours, depending upon the amount of salt extracted. Some salt must be allowed to remain in the vegetables. After they are freshened, they should be drained, well mixed, and chopped together. Heat the spices, vinegar, and sugar to 180 degrees F. Cover and allow to infuse for about one hour, then mix with the vegetables. Stir until well blended and let stand overnight. In the morning stir well and pack in sterilized jars. Seal and store in a cool place. If processing is done to seal the filled jars be careful not to raise the temperature of the water bath above 180 degrees F. and hold at this temperature for about 10 to 15 minutes. This processing will help to keep the pickles and seal the jars, but will soften the texture somewhat. This amount yields three quarts.

BEET RELISH
 1 quart chopped cabbage
 1 quart cooked, chopped beets
 1 cupful grated horseradish
 2 cupfuls sugar
 1 tablespoonful black pepper
 4 tablespoonfuls salt
 Mix ingredients, and cover with vinegar, heat mixture to the boiling point. Pack in jars and seal.

PEPPER RELISH
 Take one dozen sweet green peppers and one dozen sweet red peppers, and add three large onions, chopped fine. Cover with boiling water and let stand ten minutes, drain, cover again with hot water, and let come to a boil. Then let stand again. Drain dry and add three tablespoonfuls of salt, two pints of vinegar, and two cups of granulated sugar. Cook fifteen minutes and pack hot in jars, and process as for Dixie relish. Seal.

CORN RELISH

1 dozen ears of corn
 1 head of cabbage
 3 sweet red peppers
 3 sweet green peppers
 1 quart of vinegar
 1 cupful of sugar
 2 tablespoonfuls of mustard
 1 tablespoonful of salt
 1 tablespoonful of celery salt
 Cook the corn for three minutes in boiling water to set the milk. Cool and cut from the cob. Cook all together for 20 minutes. Pack into clean, hot jars, seal and process.
UNCOOKED TOMATO RELISH
 1-2 peck ripe tomatoes
 1 quart of cider vinegar
 6 green peppers
 6 sweet red peppers
 4 medium-sized onions
 1 cupful of finely chopped cabbage
 2 teaspoonfuls of celery seed
 1-2 teaspoonful of red pepper
 1 teaspoonful of ground cloves
 4 teaspoonfuls of mustard seed (yellow)
 5 tablespoonfuls of salt
 1 cupful of sugar
 Scald and peel tomatoes, chop all ingredients fine, add seasonings, mix well. Add the vinegar and allow to stand overnight. Next morning pack cold into clean hot jars, seal, and process.
N'IMPORT RELISH
 1 pint radish pulp
 1 cupful ground onions
 1-2 tablespoonful salt
 1-2 cupfuls vinegar
 1 cupful sugar
 1-2 teaspoonful tumeric
 1-2 teaspoonful grated nutmeg
 1-2 tablespoonful white mustard seed
 Wash radishes well, cut off tips, grind peel and pulp, and to one pint of ground pulp add one-half pint of ground onion. Mix well. Over this sprinkle salt. Let stand one hour. Squeeze dry, place in preserving kettle. Add vinegar, sugar, tumeric, nutmeg, and white mustard seed. Simmer for ten minutes. Pack in clean hot jars, seal, process for five minutes.

WHEELS OF THE SPIRIT SPOKE TOO LATE

BALTIMORE (AP) — A negro who described himself as an "amateur preacher," was brought into court for disturbing the peace with a curbstome sermon delivered at 4 a. m.

he explained to the judge, "you've got to let it out."

"And how does the spirit move you?"

"Like a little wheel, Judge."

So the preacher went free, after promising that the little wheel wouldn't turn between midnight and 6 a. m.

Two of Lamesa's 1941 Lobos have been signed by San Diego Padres for 1942, according to word received in Lamesa this week.

Kirby Jordan, slugging outfielder finished the season with the Padres and will play with them next season. Buck Tinsley, Lobo pitcher, has also been signed by the Padres. The following communication was received from Walter Buckel, Lobo third baseman, by a local fan:

No! Taxes Are Not High!

On Wednesday, many new taxes went into effect on many things which the people of the United States will buy every day.

We are all inclined to think that taxes are reaching a painful high in this country. But let us stop and consider just what these new taxes will pay for and see if they are too high. Let us make an imaginary trip to other sections of the world, and see how those people are faring in these precarious times.

In France, which has been over-run by the most brutal military force in the history of the world. On all sides we see poverty, privation and fear. Little children with pinched faces peer at us from every doorway, bewildered and afraid. Their future security and happiness presents a gloomy picture.

In England, which as yet retains its independence, but which is constantly menaced by the devastating force of Hitler's legions. Little children are afraid at their play. An airplane dropping overhead fills their hearts with dread and they scamper to the nearest air-raid shelter.

While in America we see people going about life in their normal way, mindful of the dangers that threaten freedom-loving people, but, calm and unafraid. Little children gather for their play. When a plane circles overhead, they pause only long enough to watch and admire its beauty as it sails through the air. They are unafraid, happy and contented, for their confidence in our great country and its government is unshaken.

So, the additional taxes which we will be called upon to pay, are not actually additionally expensive, but are investments in freedom and security. The money derived from this source is our safeguard that America shall remain free and her people able to carry on a normal, happy life such as our forefathers intended we should do. The additional tax which you will be called upon to pay for your theatre ticket, for instance, is your insurance and guarantee that you will be able to sit through and enjoy the entertainment, with no thought of having it interrupted by a sudden air raid from enemy planes.

No, my friends, taxes are not high in the United States, when we consider what we are buying. Peoples in other sections of the world would gladly pay ten times the tax we pay, if only they could but enjoy half the freedom, happiness and peace, which we enjoy, and which we will continue to have, for America united, will lead the world back to peace and happiness, after Hitlerism is relegated to the pages of history.

Change District Agents, Oct. 1st

Kate Adele Hill and Lida Cooper, Extension District agents, will exchange assignments effective October 1. Mildred Horton, vice director and state home demonstration agent announces.

Miss Hill, who has served District 5, comprising 19 counties in northeast Texas, since September 1937, will transfer to District 2 on the South Plains. Miss Cooper was appointed district agent in October, 1934, and has worked continuously in District 2, which includes 20 counties. Dawson County is a member of District 2.

HAROLD WILLIAMS TO WORK IN UNIVERSITY RADIO HOUSE

The "clear channel" signal will sound soon for twenty-five University of Texas students who have been accepted for apprentice work in the University's Radio House workshop.

Harold Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Williams of this city, was one of those accepted for the Workshop staff. For the next six weeks he will be enrolled in a laboratory training class, after which he will be ready to go on the air.

Remodeled from a half-century old barn, Radio House boasts two sound proof broadcasting chambers, reception, rehearsal, and observation rooms. Opening of broadcasts this fall marks the beginning of the third year of radio work at the University.

Radio House programs, directed by J. Howard Lumpkin, are almost entirely student produced. A script writer, secretary, engineer, and research assistant complete the no student staff. Workshop members, who were chosen only after a series of auditions in which over a hundred tried out, present all the dramatized portions of broadcasts as well as aiding in the technical side of production.

Plans for the coming year include a 26 week series of "goodwill" programs aimed at Mexico and Central America, to follow up a similar series of Latin American programs presented last summer.

Two programs a week will be given for the "Texas School of the Air". Last year, Radio House presented the weekly "Reading in Adventure" series of dramatizations, and this fall will add a weekly musical program. Plans are to use a student orchestra and chorus.

Later on, a writers laboratory will be organized under the direction of Mrs. Elithe Hamilton Beale. Radio House script writer. She is now in Central America gathering material for use in the Latin American series.

Dr. Cox Says:-

"The soft tissues of the mouth require careful watching as the teeth, to keep them in a healthy condition," according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"One of the more common diseases to which these soft tissues are subject is a germ disease known as 'Vincent's infection' also called 'trench mouth' from the fact that it was very prevalent among soldiers in crowded camps and trenches during the World War. These two names are given to the disease when it affects the gums and supporting structures of the teeth; sometimes it effects the throat and tonsils, in which case it is called 'Vincent's angina'.

"One peculiarity of the germs that cause 'trench mouth' and Vincent's angina is that they may live and thrive in the absence of oxygen. They enter the mouth and become fixed between the teeth, under the gum margin and beneath the margins of fillings and crowns. They grow in and about decayed teeth. They are more likely to be active and cause the disease to develop in mouths that are not kept clean and not well cared for than in clean, healthy mouths.

"The infection may be picked up through the use of common drinking cups, dishes or cooking utensils that have not been thoroughly cleaned, through drinking from unsanitary fountains and in other ways. It can be spread to others, just as colds are, through coughing and sneezing.

"The disease is highly contagious and spreads very easily from person to person. It is characterized by

IN MEMORY OF MR. ULYSS DALMONT, PIONEER PLAINSMAN

More than half century ago, while the moccasins tracks of Cynthia Ann Parker and her Comanche Chief Nacoma, in the vicinity of Cedar Lake, had hardly been obscured by time, and the embers of the camp fire of Billy the Kid had hardly cooled, a stripling lad, Missouri born, came to the great open spaces of Dawson and Gaines Counties, and immediately became one of that almost extinct species called "cowboy."

Not of the shooting, drinking, gambling, movie type, but of the energetic, honest, truthful, ambitious kind. He chose cattle raising as his calling. Nature had equipped him to succeed at whatever he may have chosen.

At that time modern conveniences had not made their debut on the Plains. No automobiles, telephones or electric lights, but loboes, rattlers, prairie dogs and sand storms were the sovereigns of the land.

The surface was just as it had been created during the uncounted preceding years. Lamesa, Lubbock, Littlefield, Tahoka, and Seminole were then unborn and perhaps not anticipated. Under these environments he married and established the greatest of human institutions, a home.

His neighbors for hundreds of miles in either direction would outnumber a well populated city block, and it was miles to the nearest town.

The wealthy cattlemen whose investments in this vicinity had preceded his coming, recognized in him one whom they needed, that their venture under his management might prove profitable, while they remained in comfort with the conveniences of the city. They employed him. He was faithful. Their investments brought even greater returns than they had been expecting, and in gratitude they gave him financial support that he might achieve success on his own account. He did, and became in his own right one of the leading cattlemen of this section.

He cast his lot with the country while it was in its primitive, virgin state, but neither he nor the country remained primitive. He led its progress and kept abreast or ahead of the times. By his tireless efforts, his thrift and good judgment he was able to provide himself and family with the latest and best of life's comforts and conveniences, including the best of educational facilities for his children. He built four new homes, which are outstanding for their architecture and taste in inside furnishings.

When advanced age came he disposed of his livestock interests and interested himself in fields requiring less physical exertion, and he demonstrated that he was as apt in the modern financial world as he had been successful on the broad, untamed prairies. Any banker or business man with whom he dealt will verify this. In all of his activities he sought only that which he had earned. His substantial resources were acquired mainly by his productive and boundless energy. He was not a speculator, but a developer. In his prime he did not look to subordinate to do the work, he did it himself, they helped. When the dreaded lobo wolf invaded his pasture, he did not wait until his herd was depleted, but immediately mounted his trained cowpony and literally chased the beast until he bleeding and sore gums, and finally by ulcers in the soft tissues. In acute form the disease is painful and causes great discomfort. In extreme cases the infection may spread through the entire system with very serious results.

"Of course, not all bleeding or sore gums or bad breath are due to 'trench mouth', but at the first indication of such symptoms — no matter what the cause — a doctor or dentist should be consulted promptly and his advice and instructions should be followed with the utmost care. Those who develop the disease must also take every precaution to keep from passing the infection on to others."

captured it, this on several occasions. I knew him intimately for more than 30 years. I prized his friendship while he was living. I shall ever cherish his memory. A volume could be written in commendation of the life of Ulyss Dalmont, the Individual.

Charley Proctor Gives History Of Cotton Oil Milling At Rotary Club

At the regular meeting of the Lamesa Rotary Club Friday at noon Charley Proctor, manager of the Lamesa Cotton Oil Company, was the principal speaker.

His address was highly interesting and because of the wealth of information which it contained, it is being reproduced in full in this issue of the Courier.

Another unusual feature of the program were short talks by Paul Harris, Tom Davis, and other famous characters in Rotary. While these men were not actually present for the program, their talks were presented by transcription.

Mr. Proctor's talk is given below:

The principles of Rotary inspire its members to render service. The principles of Rotary are, also, an inspiration to the members to know about their own communities; and the opportunity given to the individual members to talk about their respective business enables each business or industry represented to be better understood.

I come to you as a representative of the Cotton Oil Industry. The seed crushing trade is, probably, one of the oldest in the world and may be traced to a period many centuries before Christ. It is a disputed point whether the oil produced from the olive grown on the shores of the Mediterranean or that from the coconut palm grown further east can claim the greater antiquity. It is certain that cotton was used in India three thousand years ago. For centuries, the cotton plant was grown by man and only the lint or fiber was used. However, Chinese history shows that, in that country, cottonseed was crushed to secure oil for illumination and the residue of meats and hulls was fed to cattle.

The possibility of cottonseed as a source of edible oil was recognized in modern times by Great Britain in 1783. The invention of the cotton gin, by Eli Whitney, in 1793, greatly stimulated the search for ways to use cottonseed. The date of the building of the first cottonseed crushing mill in the United States is disputed; but there are records indicating that a mill operated in South Carolina as early as 1801. A mill was built at Natchez, Mississippi in 1834. In Texas, the first oil mill is reported to have been built at High Hill in 1867. The machinery from this mill was, later, moved to Weimar. Probably the oldest Cotton Oil Mill in Texas, that has operated continuously since its erection, is the H. Schumacher Oil Works, at Navasota, which was built in 1873. The first machinery used by this Navasota mill came from a mill erected at Galveston about 1870, and this machinery was made by a machinery company in Hull, England.

The difficulties of securing seed by wagon over unimproved roads, the lack of markets for the crude products, limited transportation facilities, and undeveloped oil-refining methods were factors that made for slow growth in the Cottonseed Crushing Industry; and, as late as 1857, we find that the States of Mississippi passed a law forbidding the accumulation of seed around gins or the dumping of seed into the rivers. Cottonseed, therefore, continued to be regarded mostly as a waste product until about 1880. At that time, the annual production of cotton in the United States was between 5,000,000 and 7,000,000 bales; and the Texas cotton production was, approximately, 800,000 bales. The amount of seed crushed in the United States, during that period, was between 180,000 and 220,000 tons annually. Just following this, we had a very rapid expansion of cotton production west of the Mississippi river; and, by 1899, the Texas production of cotton reached 2,500,000 bales. By 1908, the annual production of cotton in Texas was 3,500,000 bales. The annual crush of cottonseed reached a million tons in the United States by 1891; and two million tons by 1898. Between the years of 1902 and 1910, the average crush of cottonseed in the United States was from three to three and a half million tons. In 1911, we reached the four million ton mark.

The maximum production for any one season was that of 1937-38 when 6,325,000 tons were crushed in the United States. In that season, Texas mills crushed 1,601,267 tons of seed.

Of course, during the past few years, cotton acreage reduction has greatly lowered the amount of cottonseed available for crushing. In 1939-40 only 4,150,750 tons were crushed in the United States; and 962,087 tons in Texas. Last season (1940-41), 4,396,191 tons were crushed in the United States and 1,085,572 tons in Texas.

The cottonseed cake, meal and hulls were, from the beginning of seed crushing, used as a cattle feed, but the revenue from the crushing of seed for cattle-feed products alone was not sufficient to induce capital to invest extensively in the cottonseed crushing industry until the outlet for cottonseed oil was developed. Therefore, the improvement in refined methods of cottonseed oil was responsible for the first and most important expansion of the cottonseed crushing industry. In the early stages of the use of cottonseed oil as an edible product, it was mixed with lard. Later the process of hydrogenation was developed; and, today, shortening and margarine offer increased outlets for cottonseed oil.

Cottonseed meal or cake is one of the worlds most important sources of concentrated protein in the rations of all classes of livestock. Dairymen, beef cattle raisers, hog and sheep growers all find, in cottonseed meal or cake, the protein that they need to supplement their farm-grown grains in the production of meat and milk.

In the beginning, cottonseed hulls were thrown away as useless. Later, they were used as fuel at oil mills and gins. Still later, it was found that hulls are a splendid roughage for livestock. Experiment station results show hulls to be equal in feeding value to good quality prairie or Johnson grass hay, and that 100 pounds of hulls will replace 207 pounds of corn silage or 251 pounds of sorghum silage in fattening rations for beef cattle.

Linters were first used as stuffing material for horse collars, mattresses, etc., for batting, for low-grade yarns, and in making of felt. Later, the cellulose from the linters was found to be of great importance in the manufacturing of high explosives; and, today—at in the first World War—linters are one of the pounds of potash. Although the primary products that are made available by the cottonseed crushing mills number only four: Cottonseed meal or cake, cottonseed hulls, crude cottonseed oil, and linters; yet these primary products, when further refined and processed, become the basis for innumerable products that are used in our everyday life. Summing up: From the oil, we have shortening, margarine, salad and cooking oils, soaps, cosmetics, waxes, and many other products. From linters (to name only a few of the well-known products) we have rayon, lacquers, varnishes, cellophane, bakelite, collodion, photographic films, paper, plastics, and explosives and munitions. Cottonseed hulls—aside from furnishing roughage feed for livestock—are, also, used industrially as a source of furfural and xylose; and as an insulating material for refrigeration, etc. From the cottonseed meats, there is, also, manufactured a cottonseed flour that is used in the making of breads and cakes for human consumption. Of course, we are not forgetting that the oil mills have made available to the farmers and livestock producers and feeders, cottonseed meal and cake that are unexcelled among the world's feed products. The many phases of cottonseed crushing, manufacturing, refining, necessary to transform the raw material of the cottonseed into the myriad of finished products, and the distribution into the channels of trade have given employment to thousands of men and women. Truly, as we dig deeper into the treasures of the lowly cottonseed, we are filled with amazement that a single plant could contribute so bountifully to the needs of mankind.

Miss Jesse Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Moore of the McCarty community contributed to the program with a piano selection.

Mrs. Walter Jones aroused sincere feelings of loyalty in her talk as she told the club "What We Have to Defend."

The Club gave close attention to Mrs. Lex Brock when she gave an article from the McCall Magazine on "I Watched America Prepare for War." It was a story of America's defense boom towns, amusing at times but also serious, threatening and touching.

The club appreciated suggestions from its visitor, Miss Frances Ferguson.

With members studying to keep informed, and sewing and helping their town and nation in a most effective way, the club expects a most profitable year.
