Beautiful Floats Compete For Cash Awards; Anton Band Is First Place Winner In That Division Of Contest

SANTA CLAUS and his retinue from the Northland visited Lubbock Friday and between 40,000 and 50,000 South Plains residents viewed his monster parade.

Estimates of the crowd viewing the parade varied but Lubbock Chamber of Commerce officials said a conservative guess would be from 40,000 to 50,000. Police Chief John Lemond and Riley Huie, marshal, said attendance was at least 50,000.

Santa Claus and his reindeer held the spotlight along the entire route, although the 37 floats drew the interested gaze of the thousands of visitors. The Three Wise Men and their camels, nursery-rhyme characters, clowns and historical characters were intermingled with the floats from Lubbock and nearby towns. Bands taking part were Olton, Anton, Lubbock High school and Texas Tech.

ABC Float Wins

The American Business club float received first prize of $25; City Federation of Women's clubs, $20; Kiwanis, $15; Rotary, fourth; American Legion auxiliary, fifth; Salvation Army, sixth; Texas Technological college school of agriculture, seventh, and Delphian clubs, eighth, all receiving $10. Floats entered by the Camp Fire girls, Atheneaum club, Delphian clubs and the Lions club tied for eighth place and the Delphian entry was awarded prize on a draw.

First prize of $50 went to the Anton municipal band in that division. Olton received $40 for its band.

Children commanded most of the vantage points along the route and hundreds of them shouted with glee as old Santa and his reindeer came by.

March Is Started

Shortly after eleven o'clock, the march got under way in the business district and proceeded west to Avenue Q where it turned south to Broadway and thence east to Ave. K where it wended its way to 13th and Ave., J, back to Broadway and Avenue J, back to Broadway and then to Avenue H where the group again turned south to Thirteenth, west to Texas, south to Fourteenth, east to Avenue G and thence back to its starting point.

Highways Abuzz

Highways leading into Lubbock were abuzz with cars throughout the morning as South Plains people came to view the pageant. It was estimated that between 15,000 and 20,000 people were here from over the territory. They came from as far west as Lovington, N. M., as far north as Plainview, northeast from Matador, South from O'Donnell, Lamesa, Slaton, southeast from Dickens and Spur and northeast from Muleshoe.

Scores of school buses from rural schools over the territory brought hundreds of children in to see the

Three Convicts Are Shot To Death In Farm House

Leavenworth Warden Is Wounded By Abductors

(By The Associated Press)

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Dec. 11. — Three escaped convicts—trapped in a farm house—were killed and three others were recaptured today after the sextet kidnaped and wounded Warden Thomas B. White of the Leavenworth federal penitentiary.

Prison authorities after a check-up tonight expressed belief that a seventh prisoner, Earl Thayer, who was sent to the penitentiary from Oklahoma City for mail robbery with convicts slain, also had escaped and is at large.

Coat Identified

Thayer could not be found in the prison. A coat identified as his was found near the farm house. Bloodhounds were dispatched in an attempt to pick up Thayer's trail.

James Galvin, assistant deputy warden, I. W. Mooney, prison guard, and an unidentified posseman were wounded and one of the captured trio also was shot during the chase. All are expected to recover.

Dead And Wounded

The dead: Will Green, George Curtis, Grover C. Durrill, each under 25-year sentence from Oklahoma City for mail robbery. Each had serviced six years and eight months of their terms.

The captured: Stanley Brown, sentenced from Fargo, N. D., for 15 years for robbing a post office.

Tom Underwood, sentenced to a 25-year term from Duluth, Minn., for robbery of a postoffice with firearms.

Charles Berta, sentenced from San Francisco, to a 25-year term for mail robbery. Berta was wounded.

Abduct Warden

Culbertsons Engulfed By Little Slams

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (Saturday)—Slams sent the lead of Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby over Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson up to 5650 in a twelve-rubber session ending at 12:47 a. m. today. The pair representing the "official" system on contract bridge in a 150-rubber test with the Culbertson system gained 3,835 points.

The rubber standing became 17 for Lenz and Jacoby to 11 for the Culbertsons, the 28th rubber going to the Culbertsons' credit because they had a larger point total although Lenz and Jacoby got the rubber bonus. At one time the lead of the "official" pair rose to 6,800.

Tickets told the story, though Lenz and Jacoby thought the Culbertsons failed to take advantage of good cards several times they had them. Here are the figures of the session's card holdings: Lenz and Jacoby 98 aces, 10 kings; the Culbertsons 82 aces, 76 kings.

The "official" pair successfully contracted for three little slams in the fourth session and the Culbertsons for one. On another occasion Lenz and Jacoby essayed a little slam, but picked the wrong make and were set a trick.

Assault Charges Filed On Friday

D. F. Maples, 55, of Amarillo, was charged with assault with intent to murder and his bond set at $500 Friday afternoon. The complaint was filed by County Attorney Vaugh E. Wilson in connection with the shooting of Maples' 15-year-old son, Paul, at a local hotel Thursday night. Maples had not made bond late Friday.

The boy, wounded in the left thigh, was dismissed Friday afternoon from West Texas hospital. He returned to the hotel in which the shooting occurred. The bullet, from a .25 calibre Mauser automatic, lodged against the thigh bone and unless complications arise will not be removed. An argument and scuffle over change from a $20 bill which Maples had paid for a hotel room was said by the boy to have caused the shooting.

Anonymous Circular Is Circulated On City Streets

AFTER an anonymous circular charging Lubbock high school authorities with failure to show proper courtesy to Tech coaches and football players in the matter of passes to the Lubbock-Abilene game today had been distributed by Tech students in the business district Friday afternoon, President Paul W. Horn of the college issued a statement in which he said the paper in no manner reflected sentiment of the college, the faculty, the athletes or the student body.

"The individuals responsible will be called to account for their poor judgment," he declared.

Conference Held

Dr. Horn's statement was issued after a conference with W. L. Stangel, chairman of the Tech athletic council, Don Maddox, president of the student association, Basil Hill, president of the "T" association and Jack Durham, captain of the football team for the past two seasons.

Dr. Horn termed the circular the work of "some irresponsible individual." He said he regretted the circulation of the paper and any effort to disturb the feeling between the college and the town.

"I merely make the statement that this in no manner reflects the sentiment of the college," his statement continued.

Students Admitted

"As a matter of fact, Tech college students who have purchased student activity tickets are admitted to the game for fifty cents. Students not having purchased such tickets pay full admission. This was exactly the case with our Tech football games."

Hoover Appeal Sounded For A United Nation

President Urges Congress And Entire Nation For Support Behind Program For Placing America On Right Path

Is Non-Partisan

Twelve Avenues Of Aid Given By Chief; Says First Steps On Road To Recovery Should Be Taken At Home

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—President Hoover tonight appealed to congress and the nation to throw their united support behind his program for setting America on the path to prosperity.

"It is a non-partisan program," he told newspaper men. "I am interested in its principles rather than its details. I appeal for unity of action for its consummation."

Definite Program

The recommendations to which he referred were contained partially in his message to congress. Others he has expounded over the last few months. Some already are in effect. Some await congressional action. Tonight he drew them all together and massed them in what he termed "a definite program for turning the tide of deflation."

Reading at times from a prepared statement, which he held steadily and from which he departed often, the president spoke swiftly but in a low even tone.

Restore Old Job

"The broad purpose of this program," he asserted, "is to restore the old job instead of create a made job, to help the worker at the desk as well as the bench, to restore their buying power for the farmers' products—in fact, turn the processes of liquidation and deflation and start the country forward all along the line.

"This program will effect favorably every man, woman and child—not a special class or any group."

Reiterating past statements so the country might have them all "thoroughly in mind," Mr. Hoover outlined the avenues of aid in brief as follows:

1. Drastic reduction of federal expenditures and a temporary tax increase.
2. Unemployment relief by united local action.
3. Continuance of part-time employment.
4. Strengthening of the federal

Major Game Of State Race Is Carded Here Today As Eagles And Westerners Go To Battle

Special Trains From Abilene And Amarillo Will Bring A Large Number Of Fans While Others Will Choose The Highway Route; Record Crowd Is Being Expected

EYES OF TEXAS football fans are focused on Tech field where this afternoon the major Texas Interscholastic League game this week will be played.

In one corner: Weldon Chapman's "Iron Men"—the Westerners, title holders of Districts One and Two.

In the other corner are Dewey Mayhew's Eagles, more familiarly known in Oil Belt circles as the Elephants, the best in Districts Three and Four.

Expect Record Crowd

When the thud of forward wall smashing forward wall begins to resound at Tech field shortly after 2:30 o'clock, there probably will be a record crowd in the stands. They are coming from Abilene—in a special train to reach here at 12:01 today—from Amarillo in extra coaches attached to regular trains and from practically every South Plains city in automobiles. In addition, reservations have been made for persons as far away as Fort Worth and Dallas.

Fully 80 per cent of Lubbock High school students will be present, said Principal R. W. Matthews and the rush made for reserved seats, which swept the desirable seats from the plat the first two days, indicate the thousands of Lubbock people who will attend.

Field Is Guarded

Tech field, practically dry for several days of sunshine and wind, rested under its canvas covering again last night and today will find the Eagles and Westerners clashing on a comparatively solid turf. One of these teams seems destined for more than a four-district title. The dope has it that from the game today will emerge a finalist in the state schoolboy race.

The weatherman last night forecast cloudy weather, with possible showers late in the afternoon today. The same billing was tagged for Thursday a week ago, but it was a fair day which saw the Westerners down Amarillo's best. Last night the reading was 50 degrees at 6 o'clock and comfortable weather is in sight for today.

Eagles Are Here

Coaches Dewey Mayhew and Pat Murphy and Supt. R. D. Green of Abilene and 30 Eagles arrived here Friday. With them came a few of the more ardent fans. Last night Mayhew tucked his players under the cover and promised the Westerners the best battle the Abilenians can muster.

Kane Tells Of Wife's Death

Visible Show Of Emotion Seen As Professor Leaps To Feet To Shout Denials; Grilled For Three Hours

(By The Associated Press)

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 11.—With visible emotion, Elisha Kent Kane today described to a jury the drowning of his wife, answered charges of culpability with assertions of heroic efforts to save her, and shouted denials to the judge of allegations of profanity made by his wife's relatives. He is on trial charged with her drowning.

Tears came to Kane's eyes as he testified he loved his wife and told of swimming with her to shore in a frantic effort to save her after she had gone down twice in the waters of Chesapeake Bay.

He leaped from the stand to rush to the judge's bench to shout denials of having used profanity or of ever having called his dog by the name of a deity. He later apologized to the court for his outburst, asserting his life for the past three months had been extremely trying. Professor Kane occupied the witness stand nearly three hours.

Salvation Army Kettles On Streets; Funds Aid Needy

"The money donated will be used for Christmas dinners," said Captain Wilson. "If there is any money left, it will be used in winter relief work, which will be heavy."

Texas Tornado Strikes Death Blows At Pair

Dozen Others Are Injured As Heavy Gale Sweeps Through Texarkana Section; Heavy Damage Is Reported

(By The Associated Press)

TEXARKANA, Dec. 11.—A miniature tornado struck a settlement north of here early today, killing two persons outright, injuring a dozen others and strewing the wreckage of dwelling houses and a church over the vicinity. Four houses were razed and practically every other building in the storm's path was damaged.

The bodies of J. E. Harding, 50, a meat cutter, and Mrs. Vera C. Perry, 32, were found in the ruins of their homes.

Child Unconscious

Harding's son Francis, 9, was taken to a hospital unconscious. He had not regained consciousness tonight. Physicians doubted whether he would recover. His skull was fractured.

Other persons severely injured were Harvey L. Perry, Texarkana bank teller and husband of the dead woman; Mrs. Harding, and a negro woman, Lulu Lollis.

Anna L. Harding, 8, and Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Campbell were treated for painful cuts and bruises. The other injuries were received by members of the Lollis family, whose log cabin was leveled.

Lasts Two Minutes

The tornado centered at a point about two miles north of Texarkana. It struck amid a heavy downpour of rain. John Murray, a resident of the settlement, said it lasted but two minutes, fading away to the north.

The church, which was a negro institution, was reduced to a mass of wreckage. The Harding and Campbell homes were demolished after being lifted bodily and hurled from their foundations.

Nervy Farmer "Durn Near Smothers" As He Is Held Captive By Convicts

(By The Associated Press)

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Dec. 11 After "durn near smothering" in his attic, Emerson Salsbury jumped from a window of his farm home into a withering rifle fire, and joined the posse which killed three escaped convicts who had taken refuge there after abducting and later wounding Warden T. B. White.

"I wasn't a bit worried about it," calmly remarked the lightly built farmer who just had witnessed the riddling by gunshot fire of the house where he was born 73 years ago.

"These men came up to the door with their guns and I asked them if they were hunters," Salsbury said.

" 'No, we're being hunted,' they told me. They told me to be quiet and they wouldn't hurt me."

Salsbury said the three convicts ordered him to keep away from the windows after they had established themselves in the kitchen, he then asked permission to go upstairs. Permission was denied him, until the fugitives decided they would establish themselves there.

"They made me lie down in a corner, but after a while I asked permission to go down stairs

HAVE your old clothes out on the porch this morning. The blowing of those whistles is to be your warning that the time is at hand.

* * *

These old clothes are going to help some Lubbock people to get through the winter more comfortably. There are some things hanging in every closet that might just as well be put to use. There are many families and individuals in the city who have no money and no clothes. The charities office is receiving calls every day and what you have will help meet the demand.

THIS IS THE DAY

WELL be seeing you at the ball game this afternoon. It isn't necessary to send out invitations. The chances are you will be out. If this game is as good as the one between Amarillo and Lubbock the other day, it will be historical. That was the best game I ever saw — even those who have attended a lot of big games said that much.

If these ball games keep up, this column is going to be classed along with the sports columns.

GETTING RITZY

PERHAPS you have heard of these people who are given orchids? All that class is one of which I know of, having just been presented with some by Overton W. Noble, who has a flower shop here.

* * *

All of which, I suppose, places me in the class with these movie actresses and such people. However, I must admit that I feel somewhat overpowered walking around with an orchid pinned to my coat lapel. As a matter of fact, being just who I am, I had never seen an orchid until last year and the blossoms remain novelties in my life. These buds on my desk are of two different kinds. One was produced by the plant after 15 years of growth. The other blossom was produced after seven years. Orchids are like that, you know. From what I know of the flowers, the blossoms seem to be in beauty in proportion to the number of years that it takes for the plant to bloom.

GETTING RITZIER

SINCE we are on the subject, this is one day when this department is getting ritzy. Miss Turner, who shares the corner we call an office, and I are sitting around before a couple of calavos.

Of course, you have eaten a lot of calavos but having only recently been introduced in this class, that pleasure will be the future for me. Until today I had not known that there was such a thing as a calavo and that the fruit has a flavor that is a part of mixture of fruit and nut flavors—something else that is to be verified!

THERE IS A SANTA

THERE is a Santa Claus. Ask the several thousand children who were so awed by his procession Friday morning that they didn't even speak when he came by. The grand old man, waving and calling to them, bestowing the heartiest smiles around, was almost too much for some of these children, under school rule. Having been admonished year after year to sleep tight on Christmas Eve so that Old Santa would not have to stop by, it was almost too much for them to see him riding in his sleigh and all.

SOME QUILTS TOO

I may have skipped over all the in-between paragraphs, so this is a reminder for you when you glance down to the end of this item. Don't forget to have those needed clothes out on the front porch for the people to pick up this morning. And, by the way, they can use quilts, blankets and other such things. Dressing people up for wintertime isn't the only essential. They need covers for the cold ones also.

Meeting Of Zone Five Holds Interest For Local Folk; Devotionals, Talks, Songs Form Program

An all-day meeting of Zone five in the Woman's Missionary society of the Lubbock Methodist district was held Thursday at Lamesa. Mrs. George C. Wolffarth, Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Bickley and Mrs. J. Frank Potts, all of this city, were in attendance.

Mrs. R. W. Fenton presided for the sessions in the absence of the leader, Mrs. W. B. Slaton, of Tahoka, who is ill.

The morning devotional was led by Rev. C. A. Bickley, presiding elder for the Lubbock Methodist district. A welcome address was made by Rev. William H. Wallace, jr., pastor of the church, and response was given by Mrs. Bickley.

Mrs. Wolffarth, who is district secretary, and Mrs. Potts, conference officer, spoke of their work. Mrs. G. A. Thomas, Lamesa, played an organ number and Mrs. E. E. Calloway, Tahoka, gave a reading.

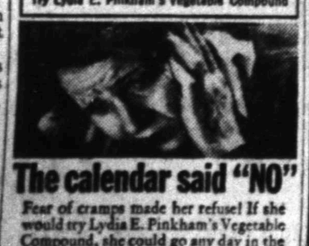

Lunch was served at the church.

In the afternoon Mrs. E. G. Cook of Draw had charge of the devotional lesson. Mrs. Bickley reported on the work of the Young Woman's circle and Mrs. Sam Smith, Lamesa, sang a vocal solo.

Zone five is composed of the following towns: Tahoka, Lamesa, O'Donnell, McCarty and Draw.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Gillette and children of Whitesboro are guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Wilson.

Society Plans To Meet In New Year

Regular meetings of the Epsilom Sigma Alpha, a national sorority among business women, will continue again in January, it was announced following a dinner attended by the group Thursday evening at Hotel Lubbock. The chapter has been disbanded for several months.

In an election, Miss Blanche Bean was named president with Miss Ruth Ford as secretary-treasurer. Miss Evelyn Porter is program chairman. Others who were at the dinner were Misses Stella Brown, Fay Stennett, Mattie Randolph, Mrs. Olive Fluke and Mrs. Steve Lee.

Christian Aid Officers Meet

Mrs. Mills Is Hostess At An Attractive Luncheon; Will Extend Election Date For Six Months

Mrs. R. A. Mills was hostess to members of the executive board of the First Christian General Aid society with a luncheon in her home Thursday. It was announced following the luncheon that officers who are serving now in the Aid society are to continue in their places for six more months, making their terms 18 months in length.

In order that officials in the General Aid and the Women's Missionary society in the church may start their terms simultaneously, this change was voted. In the past, the General Aid year has started in January and the W. M. S. year has started in July. By extending the aid officials' terms six more months and having a general election in June 1932, the two societies may have years that start at the same time.

Talks were made by various board members who were at the luncheon. These included the aid officials—Mrs. D. N. Leaverton, first vice-president; Mrs. Joe Coursey, second vice-president; Mrs. Townsen Waddill, secretary; Mrs. N. L. Benson, treasurer; the circle chairmen—Mrs. J. H. Eubanks, Circle 1; Mrs. J. O. Ballinger, Circle 2; Mrs. E. L. Pitts, Circle 3; Mrs. Coursey, Circle 4; the chairmen—Mrs. Arthur Brown, flower committee; Mrs. L. W. Squyres, membership committee; and other guests—Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Blake, Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Jennings, Mr. Mills. Of these, Mr. Blake is chairman of the official board of the church and Reverend Jennings is the pastor.

Rev. R. C. Campbell Writes Book On Sermons; Advance Copies Received

Advance copies of a 160 page book, entitled "Heaven or Hell—Which?" written by the Rev. R. C. Campbell, pastor of the First Baptist church here, have been received. The book is based upon a series of sermons which he has delivered from his Lubbock pulpit this year.

The message is based upon Christ's sermon on The Rich Man and Lazarus, according to the foreword. Fleming H. Hevell company of New York, Chicago, London and Edinburgh are publishers.

Introduction By Texan

Introduction to the volume has been written by Dr. L. R. Scarborough, prominent Baptist divine and president of Southwestern Baptist Seminary of Fort Worth. Doctor Scarborough is a West Texan, having ridden the ranges of this section prior to entering the ministry in which he has achieved a notable success.

In his introduction, Doctor Scarborough refers to the book's author as "a true man, a well-equipped man, a man of fine personal qualities with a shepherd heart and missionary passion. He loves God, lost souls, and delights to bring Christ and the sinner together in salvation and service."

Thirteen Chapters

The book has thirteen chapters. The volume is dedicated to "my dear father and mother, Robert P. and Lettie J. Campbell, whose love, prayers, devotion and sacrifices have cheered, encouraged and inspired me in my life and ministry".

In Mr. Campbell's foreword he acknowledges obligation to F. Y. Robnett, professor of English at Texas Technological college, as well as to Doctor Scarborough, and to Lacey R. Keele, of Dallas.

Rev. Mr. Campbell came to Lubbock in February of 1930, being in his 22nd month in the pastorate of First Baptist church, largest of the city's churches. He succeeded Dr. W. R. White here, coming to Lubbock after 14 months spent as pastor of the First Baptist church of Belton, where a large Baptist school for girls, Baylor-Belton, is located. He went to Belton from North Carolina, where he was reared.

In the ministry for 20 years, 14 of which have been spent as a regular pastor, Mr. Campbell did undergraduate work in Wake Forest, North Carolina, and in Carson and Newman, in Tennessee. His seminary work was done in the Baptist seminary at Ft. Worth.

All-State Berths At Stake In Lubbock-Abilene Game

Texas Schoolboy Grid Race Narrows Today; Army In Classic With Navy

Westerners And Eagles Greet Each Other Over Tech Battle Field In Important Go Today

Pitched Battle Between Individuals Expected Today With All-State Honors Resting On Outcome; Teams Practice Yesterday Afternoon For Last Time Before Contest

Once more the Lubbock gridiron stage is set for another epic struggle, but for the first time in Lubbock's history will two high school football teams clash in the quarter-finals of the Texas Interscholastic league race. The Lubbock Westerners, champions of Districts One and Two, will meet the Abilene Eagles, champions of Districts Three and Four for the high school gridiron supremacy of all West Texas at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon on the Texas Tech gridiron.

The Westerners, by playing their regular schedule and an additional pair of games in what is considered probably the toughest district in the state, won the championship of the northern Panhandle by defeating the Amarillo Sandies here in a second game between the clubs. Amarillo won the first game, which was played at Amarillo. It gave the Westerners their first district championship of history. Two days later they walloped Quanah to gain the bi-district title, although they are no further along as a result of the latter victory than the District 1 champion was last season prior to the division of districts.

OFFICIALS: Cheaney (Howard Payne) referee; Lipscomb (Centre College) umpire; Howell (Trinity University) headlinesman; Matthews (T. C. U.) field judge.

TIME OF GAME: 2:30 o'clock.

Due to their difficult schedule and to more or less serious injuries, a natural let down and the fact that it is all new stuff to them, the Westerners are rated underdogs in today's conflict. Abilene sends an undefeated team to Lubbock, a team which has won its way over another tough district to win the Oil Belt title with ten games. Injuries are said to be present on the Abilene lineup which may hamper the club here today.

In addition to being one of the most important games of the state, today's contest will more than likely determine several berths on the all-state team. Both Abilene and Lubbock possess in their lineups men who will make a strong bid for statewide supremacy.

Outstanding in the individual battles today is the personal scrap that is anticipated between Stanley Smith, touted center for Abilene, and Captain Bob Crawford, Lubbock's candidate for all-state center. The lads' play today largely will determine which shall get first call. Crawford's work so far this season has been most admirable. He will outweigh his adversary by eleven pounds, but Smith has been burning up the Oil Belt with his outstanding pivotal play.

Tackles To Fight

Wilson Groseclose, 189-pound Eagle tackle, is being especially groomed for all-state honors this season. He will line up facing big Bert Williams, 185-pound right tackle for Lubbock. Williams' work this season has been above reproach, and herein is seen another tough individual scrap today.

Abilene presents a pair of strong ends in Fats Allen and Ralph Balfanz, the latter a highly-touted wingman with ambitions of becoming all-state. He will play at left end, matching little Dalton Blagg of Lubbock. Allen will oppose big Bill Ed Watson, Lubbock star end who has been on the sidelines this week with an injured ankle. He was hurt in the game with Pampa and has not been able to practice this week.

The "battle of forward walls" will be extended to guard position with Cotton Welch, stocky little Westerner right guard, opposing Veryl Hughes, one of the Oil Belt's best. Kucholtz, who played a fine game with Abilene against Sweetwater in the bi-district game last week, probably will play at the other guard, opposing Melvin Griggs. Louis Spears will be faced with the problem of unseating Pete Barber, another all-state candidate for tackle, a 184-pounder with plenty of what it takes. Spears gained enough recognition against Amarillo to warrant his place at starting position.

Eagle Line Heavier

Abilene's line will be slightly heavier, outweighing Lubbock's forward wall an average of five pounds to the man. Both teams have been winning because of jam-up good line playing this season.

A little fellow by the name of Wyatt—Glynn Wyatt, No. 2 in the program—has been doing the bulk of Abilene's ground gaining this season if the records received here are correct. He is quarterback for the Eagles, a 146-pounder known for his slick hips and quick getaway, also a capable field general. O. H. Britton's chances for state recognition may be at stake against little Wyatt today.

Sad Sam Jones is another ground gainer for Abilene but he is reported as a member of the injured lists and not named in the probable starting lineup. In his stead, Lennon Blackmon will play at fullback, and they say Blackmon is a tough hombre.

Cecil Merrill and Mack Scoggin of Lubbock have come under the state's spotlight this season as a pair of the neatest halfbacks in the league. The pair should have its hands full this afternoon when they line up against Cecil Galbraith and Layton Airey, Abilene's halfbacks who are scheduled to do some tall toting today.

Eagles Come Yesterday

The Eagles arrived in Lubbock yesterday and spent a short time on the practice field as the final preparations for their game tomorrow. At the same time, the Westerners, out at Fair Park field, went through a routine of light drill, setting up exercises and a bit of passing and punting. Just what attack Coach Chapman plans to send against Mayhew's men this afternoon has not been made clear in practice this week. The Westerners have practiced on the defense for most of the week.

Abilene runs its plays from the popular short punt formation. It is Mayhew's pet formation with which he has won more than a few district and bi-district and quarter-final games, and he has been known to say that he can whip Chapman's double-wing-back system. There are records which bear out the statement. And a coaches' battle is likely to ensue this afternoon. Mayhew holds the upper hand, his Abilene teams having beaten Chapman's Cisco teams three times during the last four years.

Will History Repeat For Winner?

Waco Only Team To Have Winning Streak

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

As the football campaigns fade into history it becomes more difficult for Class A teams of the Texas Interscholastic League to win the state gridiron championship twice in succession.

After plastering Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm team 25 to 13 to win the school boy title last season, the Tyler Lions tried to repeat this year but faded from the competitive field in a first round bi-district battle by losing to Corsicana, 19 to 0.

Some day history may repeat, but the fact remains that it is going to require a great team to equal the consecutive state championship parade of the Waco Tigers who conquered the Texas Interscholastic field in 1925, 1926 and 1927. Those mighty teams were coached by Paul Tyson and won him fame as the wizard coach of school boy football talent.

The Waco Tigers climaxed their long stretch of championships in 1927 by beating the Cathedral Latin aggregation of Cleveland 44 to 12 for the National High school championship.

Trailing Through

Trailing through the bi-district races since 1921 when high school football first gained recognition, one finds the championship path has always been obstructed by powerful contenders, and that it has always required a team of almost college strength to win the title.

Here's how the championship races have ended the last ten years:

1921—Bryan, Texas, High school won the championship this year with one of the really fine teams of all time. Bryan whipped the Oak Cliff Leopards 35 to 13 at Dallas on an ideal football day. Chris Cortmeglie, later star fullback for Southern Methodist Mustangs, riddled the Oak Cliff line for long runs to make himself the sensation of the scholastic campaign.

1922—Waco breezed in the championship picture this year by playing the Temple Wildcats to a 3-3 tie. Temple had Jones and Wynne, two powerful smashing backs who were touted to beat Waco, but they could not outplay Waco's "Boody" Johnson, field goal artist.

From 1922 on, the Texas Interscholastic League state championship race has held its place in the football spotlight. Today it is one of the most interesting events of the Texas football season.

1923 — This year the Abilene Eagles and Waco Tigers played at Dallas for the title. Abilene won on a rain-soaked gridiron in the last five minutes of playing time when Pete Hanna, later a star at Centenary College, booted a field goal to give his team a 3 to 0 victory. "Boody" Johnson, Waco's field goal artist, tried for a field goal in the last second to tie the score but missed.

1924—On a cold, dreary day at Dallas, Howard Allen's mighty Oak Cliff Leopards, boasting such stars as Orval Rhodes, W. C. Lynch and Ira Hopper, whipped Waco 31 to 0 for the championship. Rhodes was later a star wing at the University of Texas. Lynch and Hopper later starred for the Southern Methodist Mustangs. This was the now famous "oil heater" game. Waco claiming that Oak Cliff players kept warm between halves by oil heaters while Waco players were forced to stand around in the cold.

The Big Waco Parade

1925—The start of the big Waco championship parade. It was this year that Paul Tyson's Tigers inaugurated their consecutive winning streak that finally landed them at the top as National Champions. This year, the finals saw Waco beat Forest Avenue of Dallas 20 to 7. Frank Ish, brilliant quarterback, featured in Waco's backfield. He had Meroney, Ryan and Horne as his secondary mates.

1926—Waco reaped revenge from Oak Cliff this year in a game at Waco by beating the Cliffers for the state championship, 20 to 7. This game featured two of the greatest backfield stars yet developed in the league in Roy Lumpkin, Oak Cliff fullback, and "Kitty" Katchart, Waco halfback. Katchart raced wild against the Leopards, while Lumpkin got away for one run of forty-five yards to score Oak Cliff's only touchdown. Lumpkin later starred for Georgia Tech and is now playing professional football. Katchart finished his grid career at Baylor University.

Grab National Crown

1927—The most glorious year of all for Waco, for the Tigers reached the pinnacle of school boy football. After beating Abilene 21 to 14 for the state scholastic championship, Waco challenged the undefeated Cathedral Latin team of Cleveland who claimed the National Championship. The game was played at Waco, and the Tigers, led by "Sonny Boy" McClelland, 132 pound left halfback, whipped the Cleveland team 44 to 12. Paul Tyson later said that the play of his team that day was perfect and that he never hoped to coach another its equal.

1928—This year saw the end of the championship trail for Waco. The Abilene Eagles, with "Loping Lucy" Phelps and Altman Smith, two all-star backs, smothered Port Arthur for the championship, 38 to 0.

1929—The League failed to produce a bona-fide champion. Port Arthur and Breckenridge met at Waco in the finals that resulted in a scoreless tie. The starting of the game was delayed two hours while snow plows cleared the gridiron of snow. When the game finally started, the gridiron was sloppy, water covered and resulted in a game of fumbles. The tie was never played off.

East Texas Bids

1930 — East Texas smashed into the championship class for the first time in the history of the league when the Tyler Lions, led by the broken field runs of Harry Johnson, quarterback, beat Greenville 27 to 6, Austin 44 to 0 and Amarillo 25 to 13 in bi-district competition to win the state championship.

Conklin Elected Tornado Captain

LAMESA, Dec. 11. (Special)—Members of the Golden Tornado local football club have elected F. Conklin as captain for the 1932 football season. Conklin was elected on the first ballot, he having forged himself into the limelight by his brilliant and spectacular playing at center during the past two games.

Treadway, 1931 captain, finishes high school here next spring. Marr, quarterback, also finishes. Most of the club will return next year, it is reported, and the outlook appears bright indeed for the Tornadoes as contenders as championship team again.

Ninety-Seven Yard Run For Score Helps Beat Crockett

CROCKETT, Dec. 11. (AP)—White of Dayton ran 97-yards for a touchdown in the first quarter and Dayton kept on scoring today to beat Crockett for the football championship of this region 27-6. The game was played on a muddy field.

Dayton won the championship of District 24 and 25 and Crockett was the representative of Districts 19 and 16.

Burton Ingwerson Resigns As Coach University Of Iowa

IOWA CITY, IA., Dec. 11. (AP)—Burton A. Ingwersen, head football coach at the University of Iowa since 1924, announced his resignation today.

Four Teams To Be Left After Today's Games

Lubbock-Abilene Is To Attract Wide Attention; Corsicana Entertains Austin; Greenville Meets Central

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Dec. 11.—Hard fighting school boy football teams of Corsicana, Austin, Greenville, Fort Worth Central, Lubbock, Abilene, Beaumont and Harlingen clash Saturday in games that will eliminate four contenders and put as many more in the semi-finals of the 1931 Texas Interscholastic league state championship race.

The banner attraction will be the Abilene and Lubbock battle at Lubbock, a game bringing together two powerful teams who rely on smashing ground formations for victories. The Lubbock "iron men" who played and won three major games within ten days to sweep into the quarterfinals,' are last minute favorites of West Texas critics, but the game resembles a toss-up.

Fort Worth Central's sharp-shooters of the air invade Greenville to battle the green-clad Lions who marched to the quarterfinals mostly on the efforts of husky Jay Arnold, one of the hardest driving fullbacks in the league. The game is a toss-up.

The Corsicana Tigers, who eliminated Tyler last Saturday 19-0 have another stay-at-home game today. The Tigers entertain the Austin Maroons and their scintillating "Pee Wee" Beard who is being touted as one of the best backs in the league. However, this Beard boy will have to show plenty to outstar Robert Wilson, Corsicana's versatile backfield star.

The Harlingen Cardinals, one of the smallest teams to yet play a quarterfinal game in the Texas Interscholastic league, are in Beaumont to bttle the Royal Purple team of that city. Beaumont rules a slight favorite. Harlingen's front wall will not average 155 pounds. The backfield will not average 154 pounds. The Royal Purple is in excellent condition for a hard battle and will probably get it from the Cardinals who rely on speed and determination to balance their lack of weight.

Columbia University Student Paper Would Banish Football

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (AP)—Spectator, Columbia student daily which has been conducting an editorial campaign against football, today demanded its abolition as an intercollegiate sport.

In an article titled "a plea for sanity" Spectator said:

"We ask for the abolition of intercollegiate football at Columbia and substitution in its place of intramural football. It is our opinion that so long as the intercollegiate game remains at Columbia the evils which we believe to be attendant upon it can never be effectively eradicated. To say that it is possible to purify the game is absurd. To ask any man that he be strictly ethical in a venture where substantial sums of money are involved is to ask of that man that of which he is constitutionally incapable."

Athletic Conferences Of Southwest And Texas In Annual Meeting Today

Thirty-Five Tech Freshmen Feted

Thirty-five Texas Tech athletes—they may correctly be called athletes now—played enough football of the right sort to gain exceptional and exclusive honors this fall. They are Del Morgan's Picadors, of the Texas Tech freshman footballers. Thirty-five of them are to receive freshman football numerals, or sweaters which mean as much to them as do varsity letters and the wider-ribbed sweaters do to the Matadors.

The old saw about "great oaks from little acorns grow" cannot apply to these Tech Picadors because there are no little acorns among the bunch. Nevertheless, they, some of them, are due to give the Matadors, some of them, a race to the dressing rooms for Matadors Only next fall when the football season opens. For all that can be known now, Coaches Cawthon and Dutchey Smith may pilot another sophomore team next year. But it is not altogether probable, however possible.

It is a good sign, the list given below, that Tech's athletic career will be perpetuated along the lines from which is started anew in 1931. The Picadors of 1931 ended a successful season, even if they did not win all their games. Off to a slow start because they were required to work against the varsity while the latter prepared for games of more importance, the Picadors finished the season by walloping the West Texas State Teachers college Buffalo yearlings and the Simmons University freshmen by decisive scores. There was power a plenty in those lines, and Coach Morgan had about three teams, any group of eleven being about as big and tough as any other eleven.

With the return next season of all these 35 gridsters, in addition to a veteran layout of regulars and shock troops which wound up a successful Matador season, a squad of more than fifty men is expected to make it hard on the coaches next fall when in the course of huamn events it becomes necessary to name the eleven outstanding as the "regulars."

Following is the list of freshmen gridsters who shall receive numeral sweaters, their positions, home towns and nick names. It is interesting to note that there are three sets of brothers in the ranks. They are the Morris brothers, Roy and G. B., from Seymour; Roy and Leonard Curfman from Electra and Gilmore boys, left and right end respectively, Braxton and Wilson. There is also a Woodrow Wilson, a Lemmons, a Miller, a Pool and a Tuck. Here they are:

Diegel Downs Jap To Become Golf Favorite

Defending Champion Eliminates Last Of Three Jap Pros Who Seek San Francisco Tourney Championship

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11. (AP)—Shooting unbeatable golf Leo Diegel, Auga Caliente, lower Calif., defending champion, defeated Rakuzo Asami of Yokohoma, open champion of Japan, 5 and 3 in the second round today of the $7,5000 San Francisco match play open championship. In the opening round the defending title holder disposed of Sid Harmon, Salt Lake City, 7 and 6.

Defeat of Asami removed the last of three invading Japanese pros. In this morning's first round T. Miyamoto of Osaka, was eliminated by Billy Burke, Greenwich, Conn., national open champion, after a thrilling battle. Burke won on the 20th green. K. Yasuda, Tokyo, failed to qualify for the match play round.

For the second time today Romie Espinosa of San Francisco furnished a major upset when he defeated Frank Walsh, Chicago, one up in the second round.

In this morning's first round Espinosa defeated Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, an outstanding performer, 3 and 2.

George Von Elm, Los Angeles, won his second round match from Joe Kirkwood, Chicago, one up. Fred Morrison, Beverly Hills, Cal., beat out Harry Cooper, New York, on the 19th.

Billie Burke, Greenwich, Conn., national open champion, won his second round match with a 2 to 1 victory over Jimmie Thomson of Colorado Springs.

Local Officials To Attend Parley At Dallas

DALLAS, Dec. 11. (AP)—The annual meetings of the Southwest Conference, Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association, Texas Conference, Lone Star Conference and the Texas Junior College Athletic association will be held at Dallas Saturday.

A proposal to change the number of games in the baseball schedule was anticipated at Saturday's meeting of officials of the Southwest Conference. Last year, the schedule of baseball games was reduced from twenty to ten games. The change was protested by Coach Billy Disch of the University of Texas.

Ruls governing conference swimming meets will be presented. Swimming was adopted as a conference sport last year.

The Texas Junior College Athletic association's chief discussion will be the enlargement of the conference. There is a possibility Texas Military college of Terrel will be accepted as bona-fide conference member.

Official football championships will be awarded in all conference meetings.

While not a member of any of the conferences, Texas Tech will be represented at the parley of conference officials and coaches at Dallas today by Head Coach P. W. Cawthon, Assistant Coach Dutchey Smith and possibly Dr. P. W. Horn, president of the college.

It is understood here that Tech will not apply for membership in either the Texas Conference or the T. I. A. A., an application last year to the Texas Conference having been turned down on the grounds that "Tech would be too strong for us within a few years." There is the possibility that the local representatives at today's meeting will seek admission into the Southwest Conference, though nothing definite was announced by Cawthon before he departed.

San Benito Beats Uvalde To Win Class B Regional Title

UVALDE, Dec. 11. (AP)—The San Benito High school grid team won its Class "B" regional game today by defeating the Uvalde High team 12-9.

The invading Greyhounds scored their winning touchdown in the last three minutes of play. Three passes, the last from Wright to Roberts, netted the marker.

San Benito made its first touchdown on a blocked punt after Captain Couser had put Uvalde into the lead with a field goal. Uvalde's only touchdown came in the third quarter at the end of an 80-yard march on straight football.

Horton Smith Cannot Collect Insurance For Painful Hurt

JOPLIN, Mo., Dec. 11. (AP)—Horton Smith, golf professional who received a fractured right wrist last night near San Francisco where he won medal honors yesterday in the $7,500 national match play open tournament, carried $15,000 insurance on his arms but cannot collect on the accident.

Smith's policy was good if one or both arms was permanently disabled. In a telephone conference today with his mother at Springfield, Mo., Smith said he was not seriously injured but would be unable to compete for several weeks.

The former Missouri golfer now is professional at the Oak Park Country club, Chicago.

The enrollment at Ohio State university exceeds 10,800.

Service Teams Meet In Yanks Stadium Today

Huge Crowd May Weather Storm And See Army-Navy Clash To Benefit Charity; Notables Reserve Seats

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The tramp-tramp-tramp of the Army corps and the regiment of Midshipmen rose faintly today over football's all but deserted fields, warning of the last great eastern spectacle of the gridiron season, the Army-Navy game.

Charity and the need of the unemployed again bring the two youthful branches of Uncle Sam's services together in the Yankee Stadium tomorrow, healing further the breach that developed four years ago, indicating animosities are all but forgotten, and the annual drama is back to stay.

Few features in football's annual riot of action and pageantry quite equal the thrills and color of the service duel against the background of the gray corps and the blue regiment, the crowd that will jam the big Yankee Stadium, the sparkle of the military, The pomp and splendor of the nation's officialdom.

Despite rain today and forecast of more tomorrow, at least 75,000 spectators, including a host of notables, are expected to witness the service battle. The capacity of the stadium is 80,000.

The gate receipts will be close to $400,000, of which approximately $350,000 will be distributed to charity by the two academies.

Notables who have engaged boxes for the game include Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Secretary Charles Francis Adams, Major General Douglas MacArthur, army chief of staff, and Governor H. H. Woodring of Kansas.

The national networks will broadcast details of the contest through some 150 stations.

Army is a favorite to win and continue its post-war domination of the service series, but the odds have shortened to 7 to 5. As a result of a rush of Navy backing this week. Oblivious to all this preliminary debate, however, the rival squads kept in seclusion most of the day in Westchester, prepared for a quick dash to the stadium tomorrow morning.

El Campo Bows To Bastrop In Class B Regional Title Bout

BASTROP, Dec. 11. (AP)—Bastrop High school won the Class B regional football championship embracing District 18, 21, 22 and 23 Friday afternoon by defeating El Campo High, 16 to 6.

Wright, flashy Bastrop back, scored both of his team's touchdowns, while Smith, Bastrop lineman, blocked an El Campo punt to score a safety.

Naifer scored El Campo's lone counter in the third period on an 18 yard end run.

Abilene Visits Us Today

FOR the first time in history, a Lubbock football team will meet an Abilene aggregation on the gridiron and Lubbock, today, will be favored by a visit from a very appreciable crowd of Abilenians.

Although they are less than 200 miles apart, Lubbock and Abilene have never been as close together as they might be and today offers representatives of both cities to increase their friendships and acquaintanceships, one with the other.

Lubbock should give her Abilene visitors a big helping of western hospitality—of the kind for which the plains are famous. Business interests of the two cities will have an opportunity to make more contacts and the tie between the two centers of population should be more firmly tied.

POST'S WISE DECISION

Business men of Post have decided—and we think quite logically—that work of the chamber of commerce there must go on. After experimenting with the organization for several months, during which there was no paid secretary and no dues were assessed, it was decided in a meeting Thursday night to revitalize and push ahead.

Chambers of commerce, like many other organizations, have had rough sledding in various sections of West Texas during the past year. In many towns they have been discontinued, due to "hard times."

It occurs to The Morning Avalanche that if ever a chamber of commerce is needed, it's "when the going is tough" instead of easy.

Decision of forward-looking Post may be taken as an indication of what will happen in many parts of the South Plains within the next few months, when citizens of places struggling along without a chamber of commerce, awaken to the need of such an organization.

The time to fight hardest is when the battle is at the climax.

MITCHELL ON BUSINESS

Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the National City Bank of New York, has expressed very aptly the great economic an social problem that faces the American people. Addressing a Senate committee on the proposal for an "economic plan" to end the business cycle, he declared:

"As long as we live under a system of individual liberty we are bound to have fluctuations in business. Freedom for the individual . . . involves, however, the freedom to make mistakes. Mistakes are among the penalties of freedom."

This is quite true; and when the individual involved is a great financier or industrialist, his mistakes can make many of his fellow-citizens suffer intensely. One of our greatest tasks, in the coming decade, will be to decide whether this individualism is worth the price we occasionally have to pay for it.

Practical Health Problems

GERMAN MEASLES VERY COMMON

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

AMONG the other conditions to which the name German is attached, after German pancakes and hamburger steak, is that variety of eruption of the skin which resembles measles, but which is not measles and which is far less serious than measles. German measles is a mild disease which begins with symptoms affecting the nose and throat, lasting two or three days. Following this mild manifestation there comes enlargement of the glands behind the ears and at the back of the head, and with this a very red eruption, spreading over the face and gradually thinning out over the rest of the body. The eruption usually starts and fades within a period of from 48 to 72 hours.

It is believed that this disease is spread from one person to another through the secretions from the mouth and nose, probably by direct contact of a truthful person with a patient or with articles freshly soiled with discharges from the nose or throat of the patient.

THE period of incubation of the disease is from 14 to 21 days. Usually it will be found that the person affected has been in contact with a case of the disease two or three weeks previously. While the disease is not serious, it is one of the most highly communicable of all of the diseases affecting man.

The disease, when it begins in a school or a home, spreads rapidly to almost everyone available. Because of its transient character and the relative mildness of the symptoms, it is likely that many cases of German measles are never reported, and indeed that many cases are much more frequent than is commonly believed. While German measles is likely to attack children much more often than adults, it is more frequent in adults than ordinary measles. The condition appears more commonly in the winter and in the spring and is much more frequent in city than in country areas.

Obviously the prevention of this condition involves the avoidance of contact with any of those who happen to have it. The treatment is unimportant, because most of the cases get well with just ordinary hygienic care.

However, it is never safe to hazard a guess that the condition is German measles and to overlook the necessity for medical attention, because quite frequently the condition is confused with scarlet fever, a very serious oversight in any instance in which it happens.

Fight Has Significance

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The fight between Congressman Bertrand H. Snell of New York and John Q. Tilson of Connecticut for the Republican leadership of the house of representatives may appear to be a tremendous commotion over nothing important, considering that the present Republican leadership of the lower congressional chamber is, after all, only a minority leadership.

A G.O.P. caucus nominated Snell for speaker, on a seventh ballot, but Snell and Tilson will battle it out again, after congress convenes, for floor leader, when the Democrats organize the house.)

This fight IS important, however, for the G. O. P. is likely enough to be in a majority again sooner or later, and the minority leader of today, according to time-honored precedent, will continue to lead them. He presumably would step into the speakership, in fact, a position reckoned by many politicians to be second only to the presidency.

Besides, even now, the Republicans, though in a minority in the popular branch of the national legislature, muster a very large minority, which is of especial importance because of the same partisan complexion as the administration.

• • •

TO THE respective futures of Congressmen Snell and Tilson, in particular, the struggle's outcome is of the most vital consequence.

It means, indeed, the victor's advance to a rating among the most potent of spokesmen in G.O.P. counsels; the loser's relegation to that of a mere has-been as a national factor and possibly to his elimination from public life altogether at the next election, for it is wholly probable that his defeat in the recent encounter will cost him enormously in prestige in his home district.

Incidentally, that the New Yorker and the nutmeg statesman clashed as they did at all, hints at an animosity which must long have been smoldering unsuspected in the group of Republican managers at the capital.

• • •

WITH THE overthrow of Cannonism, or one-man rule in the house of representatives, an interval of considerable legislative individualism ensued, as old-timers will recall, in house proceedings.

Then, finally, a new dictatorship grew up, during the regime of Speaker Longworth—not a one-man dictatorship, as in the day of Czar Reed and the early part of the Cannon era, but the dictatorship of a triumvirate, consisting of Speaker Longworth, Colonel Tilson, as majority floor leader, and Representative Snell, as chairman of the rules committee, the body responsible for framing the regulations by virtue of which Longworth and the colonel exercised their sway in open session.

Speaker Longworth was, in effect, the boss triumvir, with Colonel Tilson as his first and Congressman Snell as his second lieutenant.

There was no obvious distinction between them. Still, that order of (so to express it) seniority was tacitly recognized.

• • •

THE CONGRESSIONAL elections of 1930, as everyone saw, had badly shattered the triumvirate's power, since it was an authority which required a sizable majority back of it to function perfectly, and the 1930 result had reduced its margin to a number of votes it was possible to count on the fingers of one hand.

The G.O.P. lawmakers accordingly caucused early last spring and chose the already established group of three to take the helm as usual upon the convening of congress December 7 and handle it as effectively as possible.

This plan was upset by the death of Speaker Longworth. It was further upset by the death of several Republican representatives-elect; followed by the victory of enough Democrats, at special elections called to fill these vacancies, to throw the house majority, by a scant four or five ballots, to the Jeffersonian side of the chamber.

WITH Speaker Longworth's death trouble began.

Colonel Tilson took it for granted that he was scheduled, as ranking survivor of the triumvirate, to succeed Longworth at the head of the combination.

Representative Snell disputed the colonel's title to consider himself the ranking survivor and claimed the right to step into Longworth's shoes on his own account.

The dispute was an unpleasant one from the outset, due to the contention of the colonel and his friends that the New Englander's just rights were being questioned, from purely selfish motives, by one who, the colonel felt, should have been first to recognize them.

Relations between the two were not improved by circulation of the story that Snell had said his former collaborator, even though technically entitled to first consideration, lacked the ability to be trusted in a post of so much responsibility as the G. O. P.'s house leadership without a super-leader to guide him. Supporters of the colonel aggravated matters by reports of "urban machine" aid back of Snell's candidacy.

IT WAS, in short, so far from a friendly contest, that Washington opinion generally favors the theory of friction between the rivals dating back indefinitely, but reduced to a minimum during Speaker Longworth's day by the Ohioan's influence.

The White House is generally regarded as having favored Tilson. When he lost the speakership nomination, it was considered a blow to the chief executive.

Neither of the pair was very popular among house Republicans. Longworth was, and their dictation was acquiesced in because he dictated that it should be. The colonel, in the nature of his role as floor leader, frequently had to resort to arbitrary methods, which doubtless made him enemies. Snell is personally aloof and unapproachable, which is not true of the colonel.

On the whole, perhaps the colonel was the better liked of the two, but the New Yorker — freely known as "Hard-boiled Snell"—had the advantage in the absolute ruthlessness of his tactics. Whatever seemed needful to do to cripple the colonel's campaign, he unquestionably did. The colonel drew the line at various extremities to which he might have profited by resorting.

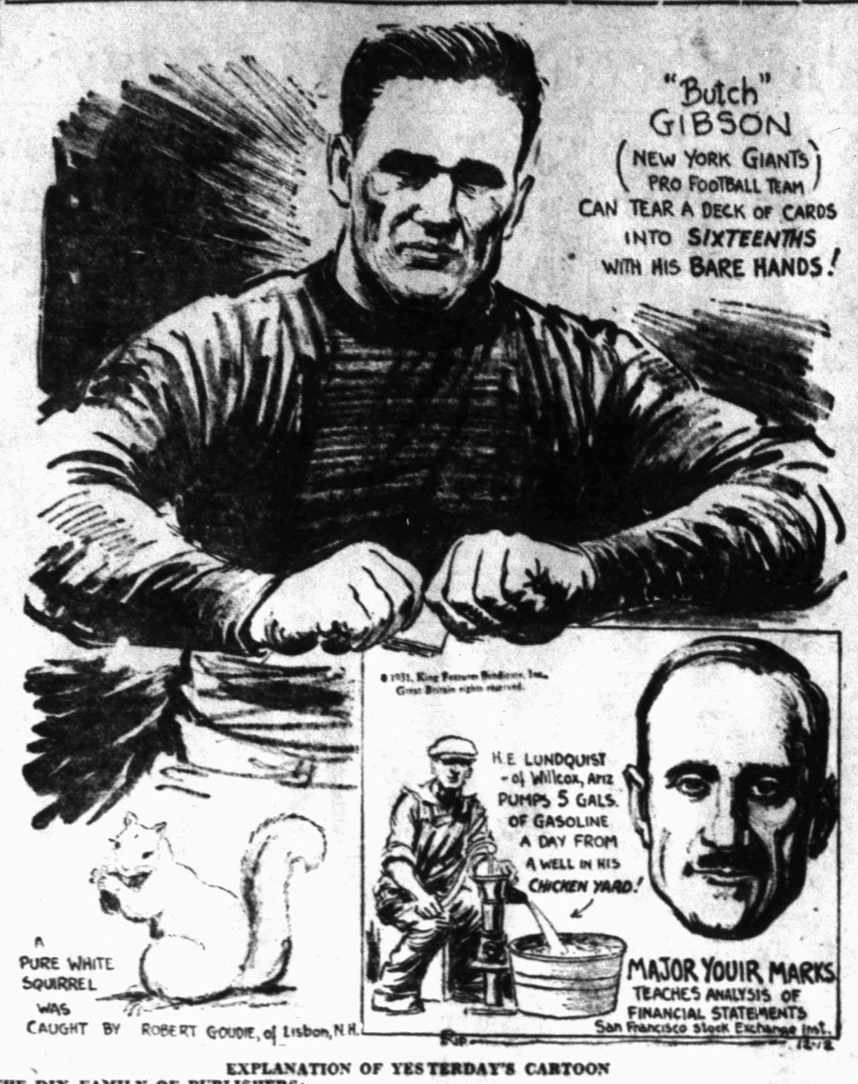

• • •

SNELL also was more pliable in making promises. The house, for one thing, despite wet claims, is still dry by a wide margin. Snell, whatever his personal views may be, always has rated as a dry standpatter. Tilson, without being vociferously so, is equally a stand-pat wet and always has been.

Snell is as conservative as Tilson, but nevertheless made pledges to the progressive element among the Republicans in favor of a liberalization of the house rules—demanded by them to prevent suppression of advanced social and economic legislation. Tilson never weakened appreciably in his contention that strict regulation is essential to make proceedings practicable in so large a body.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARY HARKNESS plots to catch THE FLY, who she believes "framed" her brother, EDDIE, with the murder of old MRS. JUPITER, and later ran Eddie down and killed him to keep him from talking.

She is aided by Bowen of the Star, Mary's fiance, DIRK RUYTHER, and his family object to the notoriety. They believe Eddie guilty, as do the police. The case is dropped.

BRUCE JUPITER, absent many years, returns from Europe with a woman friend. His father orders him out and makes Mary his heir. Bruce swears to rout Mary, who he thinks is a gold-digger.

Dirk forbids Mary to continue the investigation, refusing to believe in the existence of The Fly. He tells Mary that people are repeating Bruce's charges and says if she goes to Miami on the Jupiter yacht, as she plans, he will also believe them.

Mary goes, seeking The Fly, whose horse is running at Hialeah soon. Dirk shows attentions to his former sweetheart CORNELIA TABOR who is trying to win him back. In Miami Mary meets COUNT DE LOMA. De Loma is the name of the owner of The Fly's horse. She promises to dance with him at a hotel fete.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

"Nice chap," Bates remarked dryly, as De Loma departed. "What is he—Frenchman?" His bland gaze rested on Louise, who pretended not to have heard.

"Must we stay longer?" she appealed to Bruce, pouting. She put the gleaming carmine tips of two fingers on each temple. "My head—I must lie down."

Bruce paid the check. As Mary expected, the Countess made no further mention of her race track winnings. They might be the inspiration of the feast but they would never pay for it. She had been sure of that all along.

In the elevator, Bruce made some low-voiced plea which Mary did not catch, but it was refused with further protestations of illness. Bruce urged. The Countess' wail arose:

"But it is im-poss-i-ble! I am miserable. You do not know—tomorrow I will look at all the shorelines you wish to show me. Tonight, no."

Bruce retired into glum silence. The iron of jealousy apparently had entered into his soul and to soothe it he must make his inamorata demonstrated her devotion immediately by giving in to his whim.

Mary bade them all good night at the door of her room. Mr. Jupiter responded with a grunt—he was half asleep already, as the result of too much fresh air and too much food. He would not be curious about her comings and goings if she chose to steal out now and meet Bowen. The Countess would not be leaving her pillow, if her protestations if suffering were genuine. And Bruce would be dancing attendance upon his dear Louise, unless he had really forsaken the role of lap-dog. Mary doubted that.

The coast was clear. Mary put on dark, inconspicious clothes and hurried out to the rendezvous with Bowen. The Laurel Tearoom was a small, stuffy affair with a row of high-backed benches forming booths along one side. In the first of these, peering out worriedly, she saw him—and fell into the seat opposite with a gasp of relief. The wing of the chair hid her face from others in the room. She felt as if she had reached sanctuary.

Bowen looked at his wrist watch and raised eloquent eyes to the ceiling.

"If I were married to you," he said, "I'd cut your heart out. Where've you been for the last three hours? Look it." He pointed to the disorderly array of teacups, each with its wheel of yellow lemon and sodden teaball, that surrounded him in a semi-circle—and at the glass ash tray, filled and overflowing with twisted butts of defunct cigarets.

"I don't even like tea," he complained bitterly, "but it's all you can get in this place. And I had to make an attempt to drink the stuff or get thrown out of here. Where in the eternal interest of accuracy have you been?"

"With De Loma." Mary managed to gasp, her breath still short from running.

That sobered him. "De Loma! For God's sake! Where did you pick him up?"

Mary told him as coherently as she could, and at the finish sprung her even more startling news—that she had an engagement to meet him at the fete the following night.

"Listen, girl," Bowen said slowly and solemnly when she had finished, "We've got to go into a huddle over this, and not muff anything. We've had the breaks so far. If Lady Luck will just be with us a little longer . . . . Do the others know who De Loma is?"

"No, I'm afraid to tell Bruce. I don't know him well enough to know whether he could be trusted to help us play the game or not. He might snatch a gun and go looking for De Loma, but that's not what we want. Mr. Jupiter must know — but I haven't had a chance to tell him yet. I rushed right off to meet you."

"You and the tortoise," commented Bowen. "Well, let's think if it kills us. Have you got the necklace here?"

Mary hesitated only a second before replying, "Yes". She had lost the complete trust she had once given to everyone. Dirk had planted the germ of distrust thoroughly; hereafter, she would be frank, with reservations, even with Bowen.

"What kind of blow-out is that tomorrow night?" Bowen asked, with wrinkled brow. "What is a fete, anyhow? Fancy dress?"

"I haven't the least idea what the

Here Are Some Of "Excuses" Of The Elders

Sam Jones, the evangelist, once said "it is strange how many adults it takes to see that the children attend the circus."

Here are some of the "excuses" for coming to Lubbock on the occasion of the visit of Santa Claus to the South Plains:

DOUGLAS POUNDS, farmer and livestock breeder, Acuff.—I just had to come to town.

GEORGE W. NEIL, Brownfield attorney—I came down Thursday night so as to be sure and be here to welcome him. Told the folks I had official business in town.

C. E. BLEY, former mayor and merchant of Olton—Somebody had to drive the Olton High school band down here for the parade so I got the job.

JOHN C. MACKEY, federal production loan agent, Wichita Falls.—I am glad that I could arrange my business to be here Friday morning and I regret that my kids couldn't be here with me.

E. A. WALKER, Crosbyton attorney—It took my wife and our son to bring the grandson to Lubbock to see Santa Claus.

W. P. PULLINGIM, Lorenzo, rancher.—There wasn't any one left in Lorenzo, it semed to me, and I didn't want to be alone, so I came along.

R. L. HOOTEN, superintendent of schools at Shallowater.—We took a vote of all the children who expected to be here to see Santa and as there was only one who was not sure he was coming, I decided that I would not keep school just for him.

J. W. PIERCE, Houston, employe of state prison farm.—I was here visiting my daughter, so she persuaded me to stay over until Saturday before I started home.

V. V. TYER, Red River county and former Idalou cotton man.—I was over at Idalou this season with the co-op gin and as we were not running today I thought I'd just come over and see the crowd.

PATE HARDY, Shallowater—The rest of the town came down so I just came along. There was a corporal's guard left to do anything that had to be done.

J. B. WALLACE, federal grain inspector, Plainview—I had to see R. R. Stuard about some grain inspection so I came down. Mrs. Wallace came along to see that I found the Myrick building.

ARTHUR P. DUGGAN, Littlefield capitalist—I had to see my brother, Tom, about some important business, but I did not get around to his office until after lunch.

G. C. GRIDER, county judge at Tahoka—I came up to consult with the state highway engineer about some matters and just happened to be here in time for the parade.

HORACE DENHAM, farmer at Crosbyton—I have been here two weeks visiting but I remained over for the Santa Claus trip. Wouldn't have missed it for a farm in Crosby county.

S. W. SANFORD, former sheriff of Lynn county—There was very little business to do in Tahoka so I came along with Judge Grider.

MRS. DICK HYATT, business manager of the Ralls Banner—I had to come anyway to attend to some business, and this was as good a day to do it as any other day.

SANTA CLAUS, himself, North Pole—I wanted to see what the boys and girls of the South Plains looked like in the daytime. I saw and they are a good looking lot I must say.

Ambassador's notion of a fete would be," Mary returned. "I imagine it's going to be one of those ghastly affairs where society dowagers go about wearing paper hats and sucking lollypops. Why?"

"I was thinking about your costume. Will you have a chance to wear the necklace?"

"Do you think I'd better—so soon?"

"Soon?"

"Well, I've only just met him tonight. Wouldn't he think I was too trustful?"

"You'll have your party with you, won't you? What's trustful about that?"

"That's true. Well—"

"What's the matter? Scared?"

"Not exactly." She gulped. "He's—horrible, though. He gives me shivers when he looks at me . . . his eyes . . . like black coils . . . A shudder passed over her. "But if I must, I must. That's what I came here for."

"The sooner the better," Bowen advised. "The Ambassador won't put him up rent free much longer. They're wise to his kind. He was probably counting on that pony of his to recoup his finances. What a winning that would have been! He's probably spent all he got from the diamond rings and the bracelet he took from Mrs. Jupitter, if he has let go of them at all. He may be keeping them still, afraid to turn them over to a fence for fear of being double-crossed. Well, maybe they'll come in handy to pay his board-bill with—diamonds are swell security."

So that was what the dark little man was summoning De Loma about! A reckoning of his bill.

"But here's something I don't understand," Mary told him. "De Loma and the Countess are old friends. Do you suppose she could be an accomplice? She's been running around Europe with Bruce for two or three years—I've gathered that from their talk of different places they'd seen together. And The Fly has been busy right here in this country, for several years, you told me. Before that he claims to hail from South America. He looks Spanish enough. At least, he looks like Spaniards do in the movies— I don't know that I've ever seen a real one. He has those funny sideburns, and he's brown enough, goodness knows—"

"You don't have to go any farther than Rockaway to get a swell tan." Bowen reminded her. "I'm still digging away at his past—been putting in my spare time here going through the police morgue. I haven't set eyes on anyone yet that looks like him, but I haven't given up hope. He picked up that Spanish lingo somewhere, so why not in this part of the country? He may have come up from Cuba, or some of these other islands. They're full of polyglot 'Spaniards' — usually about one- third Spanish blood and two-thrids what-have-you. Not that it matters a damn if he's an Eskimo, but I've got a hunch that he left a nice little record behind in the place he started from. And I want to find it, wherever it is."

"But about tomorrow night—"

"Yes, that's what we've got to plan for, now. Have you got a costume?"

"No, but trust me to get one. There must be shops here—costumers who furnish the society crowd with fancy dress. I'll go as the Empress of All the Russias or Cleopatra or somebody addicted to wearing quarts of jewels, so that it will seem quite natural to trot the necklace out and show it off."

Bowen nodded. "That's the girl."

"And look—what do you think of this? I'll tell everyone it's just a bauble from the five and ten and I'll be just a poor enough liar that they'll know I'm lying. It will make people twice as sure it's the real thing, if I protest a lot and swear it isn't—"

Bowen nodded, approvingly. "Don't over-act, now, Juliet," he added. "Take it easy. Just a shade too much fuss over it, and De Loma will be afraid to touch it. He's cagey as the deuce, remember. Just because he seems to be eating out of your hand, don't think he's asleep . . . just that little coincidence of his acquaintance with your friend Louise is what's responsible for his walking right up to the gun, like that. Her being there lulled his suspicions, or he might have high-tailed it out of sight the minute he saw you in the hotel.'

"Well, that's something to thank Louise for, at any rate," Mary admitted grudgingly. "Otherwise, she's a blot. Bates thinks she's a crook. He's forgotten all about The Fly. Too busy trying to trip her up into making some sort of admission that will show him what her real game is."

"Oh, well, Louise is none of our affair. Bruce will give her the boot when he gets his land-legs and looks around this country a bit . . . some of these bathing beauties ought to make him drop his easel and run . . ."

"That reminds me," Mary interrupted. "I'm supposed to wangle a picture of her somehow—for Bates to carry next his heart, I think, though he says it's to send home to the New York police department. For a man who thinks he's out with the reincarnation of Catherine de Medici and the Borgia family, he's having a better time than any college sophomore I know!"

"Maybe they'll take a picture of the notables at the party tomorrow night. She'd be one of 'em if all you tell me about her is true."

"And if she has a bad conscience, she'll hide in the background and be unrecognizable. No, I've got to buy or borrow a camera, and walk right up to little Louise and say 'Let me snap you, darling, for my memory book! You look SO distingue!' Ugh!"

"Say!" Bowen was struck with an idea. "I've got a friend on the paper down here—frankly, he's been putting me up since I cut loose from the payroll and came down here. He has one of these cameras you hide in your pocket, and shoot when nobody knows it. If we could smuggle it in tomorrow night . . ."

"Bring it yourself!' Mary cried delightfully.

Bowen bent on her a look of unutterable reproof.

"Am I one of the idle rich?" He threw out his hands. "I hitch-hiked to this village, my dear lady, and I did not have a swallow-tail tied up in the handkerchief that served me as a trunk. Just a hobo, that's me. A darling of the gods like you can't realize what it is to be broke, I know—"

Mary put out her hand in quick sympathy. "I can realize you've done all this for me," she said. Like a flash she opened the bag she carried and took out a roll of bills which she thrust toward him.

"Hey! Hey! Put that back!" Bowen growled at her, turning scarlet. He tossed the money roughly into her lap. "I'm not whining. I'm having a swell time—honest! I'll probably get a job here on the same paper my friend's on, and stay a while. One week's pay and I'll be sitting on top the world. Swimming every morning before breakfast — swimming every night before I go to bed! Say! Why does anybody live in New York, anyway? No, I only meant to explain that $10 a plate is a little too steep a cover charge for little George just now, even if I had the duds to go with it. I didn't want you to think I was funking out at the last minute, though."

Mary sighed. "You ought to let me stake you," she insisted, gently. "It's my war you're fighting. Mr. Jupiter's, too. He'd insist on paying your expenses, if he knew."

"Forget it," Bowen ordered curtly. "We'll get the picture. I'll wait in the street till you and the others come out. You tip me off which one is her, and bing! We'll snap Her Highness' picture that way. And we'll do it tomorrow."

They left it at that for the present. Mary felt that she must get back before her absence was discovered. She was resolved Bowen should come to the party, anyhow. His presence would steady her. He promised to telephone her next day and hear what final arrangements had been made for the Fly's reception on board the "Gypsy"—if he could be lured abroad.

Back in the Ambassador lobby she turned aside for a minute at the magazine stand. If any of her party should meet her in the upper halls she had decided to say she had been unable to sleep and had gone down to buy something to read.

Town Tattle lay nearest her hand, but she drew away from it as if it would have burned her. Whatever shameful secrets it had to reveal, she didn't want to know them. And none of the lurid detective story magazine that hung berofe her seemed to offer anything half so exciting as her own life was proving. In the end, she bought a newspaper only, and stood a moment, holding it wide open before her at the society page.

Suddenly the smooth flow of a familiar voice made her lift her head with a start. Cautiously she lowered the paper and looked over its edge. Not ten feet away, with their backs toward her, the Countess and De Loma sat close together on a mulberry velvet lounge, deep in low-voiced conversation.

January closed at 6.10, March at 6.27 and May at 6.46, or 10 to 11 points net higher for the day.

Security Markets Experience A New Contraction As Stocks Find A Drag

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (AP)—The security markets experienced a further contraction today, although wheat and cotton closed higher.

Absence of investment support for bonds, which again were strikingly weak, seemed to impose a drag on stocks, for the share market twice tried to improve its position, each time unsuccessfully. There was a fair degree of steadiness at the opening and a little rally sponsored by the rails early in the afternoon, but neither interval of improvement attracted much following and final prices average a couple of points lower.

Utility, food, chemical and merchandising issues were especially spongy. U. S. Steel was a weak feature of the late dealings, losing 2 3-4 net.

of strenuous football in which they won the name of "Iron Men," there was the same determination. Team and coach alike were ready for a tough tussle, but one which, they said, they would make no less ferocious at the end than at the first whistle.

The Abilene special train, on which some 300 fans and the pep squad and band will ride, will leave at 8 o'clock this morning, leave Sweetwater at 10:15 and reach Lubbock a few minutes after noon. The group will leave at 7:30 tonight and reach home shortly after 11 o'clock.

Arrive At Noon

The Amarilloans will arrive about noon on No. 93 and will leave at 6:15 on No. 96, held two hours to facilitate the return trip.

An additional gate at Tech field has been completed and school officials hope that they have sidetracked the congestion which hampered handling of the crowd at the Amarillo game here. E. J. Lowrey, athletic manager, said last night that several hundred reserved seat tickets, in addition to general admission tickets, would go on sale at the field. He expects about 500 of the 1,000 tickets sent to Abilene to be returned and a few of the 250 sent to Amarillo. There are a few hundred tickets which have been on sale down town here not sold.

The game goes on the air from KFYO at Abilene. Whether KGRS at Amarillo also puts the game on the ether was not known here last night. KFYO operates on a frequency of 1420 kilocycles.

MIDDLEWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 11. (AP) — Cattle trade resulted in mostly a cleanup affair with only limited supplies offered. Medium to good short fed steers and yearlings comprised the bulk of receipts with steady to weak prices prevailing. Most offerings cleared at 4.50@7.50 with a few up to 8.25. Inbetween grades of light yearlings and fat heifers have been difficult to move this week, but demand for strictly good and choice medium and heavy weight steers was fairly broad. Country mess are evidently a bit dubious about the future of the fed steer trade and this connected with inclement weather conditions has influenced a very narrow outlet for stocker and feeder cattle. Today's trade found a slow, weak market considering the week's 25 to 50 decline. Most centers report prices present as a low point of the season. Bulk of replacement steers sell at 3.75@5.50 with a few choice kinds to 6.00.

Caney, so far as could be learned, had been about the tent prior to the discovery, since last Friday night.

J. D. Cooper of Livingston, a silent partner in the show, identified Brownlee as a veteran showman from Walla Walla, Wash., and Mrs. Smith was Brownlee's cook.

A small black tin box, which Cooper said had contained between $600 and $800 in cash, could not be found in the tent at New Caney.

Regret Incident

"The college regrets the incident as tending to disturb the friendly feeling between the college and the town," he concluded.

M. H. Duncan, superintendent of the Lubbock schools, declared that there had always been a feeling of friendliness between the college and high school and he hoped that it would always continue so. He termed the paper "the work of bolshevist students."

Student leaders at Tech said they were rather upset at the circulation of the paper and regretted the action.

Attractive floats featured the parade and judges had much difficulty in deciding the winning float. Prizes were awarded to the best floats.

After dismissal of the marchers, the thousands of visitors made their way into Lubbock stores where merchants experienced one of the busiest afternoons in their history.

The length of the parade was about a mile and a half and the march took about an hour and a half to complete.

No confusion of any sort marred the parade, although a slight delay or two was occasioned by the crowds getting too far into the streets.

Star of Faith in the parade was represented by Little Miss Virginia Lee Barr, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. I. E. Barr, 2212 15th street, while Prince of Love was represented by Frank Atcheson, jr., son of Mrs. Frank Atcheson, 2219 9th street.

Albert Thacher, originator and producer of the parade, said Friday that Lubbock had one of the largest crowds of the season. He said the turnout here was somewhat of a surprise to his company.

Needlework establishments in Porto Rico are having a heavy rush of business for this season of the year.

IDALOU SCOUTS HERE

Every member of Idalou's newly organized scout troop attended the Santa Claus pageant here Friday. They aided in handling the crowds. N. B. Wilkerson is scoutmaster and troop members are: Weldon Boyd, Jack Bradley, Jack Guess, P. L. Peeples, Troy Taylor, Wilson Turner, Earl Ward and Jack Wood.

NEWS BRIEFS

George E. Grimes, flying a Star Aircraft company plane for Phillips Petroleum company, stopped at Lubbock airport Friday afternoon long enough to refuel before continuing on his way to Crane City. He arrived at 1:15 o'clock from Borger and hopped off 20 minutes later.

Two men will be tried on counterfeiting charges and another will be tried on a charge of making and passing a split note in federal court here next week. J. P. Edgar deputy United States marshal, said Friday W. F. Badner and V. A. Wallace are alleged members of a counterfeiting ring. Dewitt D. Landers of Bell county is charged with passing the split note.

Hearing to determine whether a temporary restraining order against the city will be made permanent is set in 99th district court January 23. The case is styled E. J. Lillius vs. City of Lubbock, a suit attacking the city's ordinance regulating auction sales.

Judge Clark M Mullican Friday granted Lillius the temporary injunction. The suit is similar to that of Steagall Bros. a local jewelry company, against the city. Unless he sells his goods at austion, Lillius asserted in his petition, he will not be able to pay debts of his jewelry business. As in the Setagall's petition, specific parts of the ordinance were attacked.

C. A. Berry seeks $2,637.50 as damages for an alleged contract breached by J. H. Whiteside in a petition fild Friday in 99th district court. Berry alleges that Whitesides, a gin operator, made a contract with him to haul cotton seed and that the latter broke the contract.

Justice W. S. Clark is looking for the person who removed several bundles of groceries from his automobile parked in the 1200 block on Avenue J late Thursday.

"Would you like to try the man, if caught, in your court?" Judge Clark was asked.

"No," he replied, "I couldn't give him justice."

A Chevrolet coupe, stolen late Thursday from 2319 Thirteenth street, was abandoned about two miles southwest of Lubbock, police reported Friday. Edward Scott owned the automobile, which was not reported damaged.

Members of the Down Town Bible class at their meeting Sunday morning at the Lindsey Theatre will formulate plans for the Christmas cheer fund. Class officials are to submit a proposition whereby the class purchases 500 cans of Lubbock county food products at five cents a can. The food would be distributed among needy families at the Christmas season.

Issuance of a construction permit for the new federal building here Friday sent the city's construction total for this year past the half-million dollar mark. Cost of the building was estimated at $250,000 by the William McDonald Construction company, holders of the contract.

Completion date is listed as May 1. The brick and tile structure is being erected east of the courthouse. Building total for the year to date here is $571,510 in 154 permits.

H. W. Hale, charged with hijacking in Lamb county, was placed in the hospital ward of the Lubbock county jail Friday afternoon for treatment. Hale is suffering from blood poisoning contracted in his hand after a fellow inmate of the Lamb county jail jumped from a bunk and stepped on Hale's hand. Deputy Sheriff W. G. McGlamery brought Hale here.

Lubbock fire department members believe they received a false alarm early Friday evening.

The alarm, it was reported to the station, was telephoned from 1615 Twenty-Eighth street. There are no houses in that block, firemen found.

and get my coat. I have been sick. I was just getting over it. I was getting cold. They wouldn't let me get it but one of the men gave me his. I asked if I could go in the garret. I opened a door and found it was pretty full of tear gas."

Two hours after the prisoners prepared to defend themselves in Salsbury's home, the posse arrived.

After the firing began, Salsbury said he edged to a window and waved his handkerchief. This attracted so much fire, he fell back in a corner, "and I durn near smothered, too."

When the became extremely heavy, the farmer said, he edgd to the window again, dropped to the yard and rushed to an outbuilding where the posse had taken cover.

While Salsbury was under fire in his own home, a son, Frank, a mail carrier, joined the group attempting to capture the convicts.

"They treated me pretty fine. I knew if I didn't cross them I'd be all right. They did a great deal of talking pretty low. I couldn't hear what they said."

"I wasn't worried about it. They told me not to worry and they wouldn't hurt me.

"I hid my money, too, so they wouldn't get that."

Tobacco pipes manufactured last year in the United States had a value of $5,202,185.

Sidelights Found At Parade

FLOAT ATTRACTIVE

The Salvation army float attracted wide attention and much applause as it passed along the parade route. Frequently persons standing along the lines would applaud and Captain W. T. Wilson, corps commander, acknowledged the greetings by raising his hat.

CROWDS PATIENT

The crowd was unusually patient for its size. There was very little grumbling heard at the long wait for the various floats and specialities along the line.

BUSSES PRESENT

The presence of a large number of school busses indicated the distance which people traveled to see the performance. One of the busses from the Baileyboro district in Bailey county was here. Another one noted was from Clauene in Hockley county, Hurlwood, Olton and other districts closer to town brought their children here in school busses.

ARRIVE EARLY

Out of town visitors arrived early. Long before 10 o'clock parking space on Broadway and Main streets was hard to find. The closer to the hour of the parade starting, the scarcer the space for cars became. By 11 o'clock it was almost impossible to get any place within a block or two of the territory between 13th and 10th streets.

TWO DO HONORS

On the American Legion float Alfred M. Scott and Tom Carter did the honors, with a machine gun. Mr. Scott wore his jaunty khaki uniform while Mr. Carter was dressed as a "gob." Friends of the pair along the line kept up a rapidfire lot of questioning as to "where" their ammunition happened to be.

SQUARE POPULAR

The court house square was a popular place for people who wanted to see the parade twice. Hundreds of those who were waiting along Broadway for the marchers, when they saw them on Main going west, surged over to that street. As soon as the parade had passed they headed back to Broadway.

STORES CROWDED

Stores were crowded before the time for the parade to begin. Thousands of persons here took advantage of their early arrival to do some shopping. During the hour of the parade stores were quiet but as soon as the marchers had passed people began to visit stores again.

AWNINGS OCCUPIED

Favorite spots for the small boys to view the parade from included the wooden awnings along the route. Nearly every one had two or three occupants who thus had an unobstructed view. Hotel windows were other favorite places, the Hilton and Lubbock having lots of visitors. The top of the Palace theater building was another spot and many of the one-story business houses had as many as a dozen people watching the parade.

FAMILIES PRESENT

Numbers of farm truck, with chairs and benches to provide somewhat easier riding than merely standing up, were here. From many sections two or three families, grown folks and children, came in a truck. The early groups were able to get parking space along the line of march and the truck afforded a splendid point of observation.

CAFES ARE RUSHED

Restaurants and cafes did a land office business from as soon as the parade had passed a given point until mid-afternoon. Not many owners had anticipated an extra large crowd and were unprepared for being swamped. Seats at the counters and tables were at a premium.

SANTA ALL SMILES

Santa Claus in person received a rousing welcome all along the line of march. The old fellow, all smiles and happiness, bowed and waved greetings to young and old. He was greeted with applause and the younger generation could hardly be restrained from swamping his equipage. Some of the more skeptical were inclined to remark that the reindeer were not as large as they had been expecting.

FLOATS APPLAUDED

Floats of the several ladies clubs in the parade received much applause from the crowds as did those of the city's service clubs. Some real decorative work was done in preparing these floats for the occasion. Club members seeing their organization's display, started a round of applause.

WORK IS DEPICTED

One of the attractive floats was that of the 4-H club girls and boys. Prepared under the supervision of the county agents, D. F. Eaton, Miss Ruth Stockton and R. N. McClain, the work among the farm youth was depicted. Farmers applauded the floats vigorously.

MIRTH IS DRAWN

The funny figures drew as much admiration and laughter as any group in the line. The youngsters, especially the little tots, were taken with their appearance and said so in the usual child-like way. The older folks also enjoyed their appearance, but not in the proportion that the children did.

MANY BUY DUCATS

Some of the folks from other towns who found unexpectedly that business would bring them to Lubbock Saturday afternoon, sought to purchase pieces of pasteboard that would admit them to Tech field to inspect a dry field. Many delegates came down Friday to buy last minute tickets to the game this afternoon.

Funeral Services Held Up For Arrival Of Relatives

Funeral services for Miss Minnie P. Macmillan, director of nurses at Lubbock sanitarium for the past four years, are pending arrival of a sister, Miss Francis Macmillan, of Indianapolis. A niece of the Lubbock woman also is enroute from California.

Miss Macmillian, an elderly woman, died here Friday morning at 6 o'clock of pneumonia. A native of Canada, she came to Lubbock from California. Another sister lives in British Columbia, Canada. Miss Macmillan had been ill about four days, although her condition was not known generally until Thursday night. She lived at the sanitarium nurses home.
