The SDN Column

The morale of Snyder School Board members got a boost the other day as they met for a special session to take care of several items of business that needed attention prior to the December regular meeting. They got a letter from the Snyder High School Student Council expressing appreciation for the facilities being provided at the high school in the building program which now is in the last stages of completion. It was a simple gesture, but the letter had the ring of sincerity and the school board members were pleased that the students not only recognized the fact that the facilities provided here are superior to most schools this size but would take the time and the initiative to advise the board of their approval and their appreciation.

The new student center is a facility that is unmatched in most schools, and one that students undoubtedly will use to good advantage. Of course, the same structure also houses a new library and there are other new facilities in the building program, but the student center is something that provides SHS students with something extra.

Back in the so-called good old days, public school facilities usually were limited to basic classrooms, plus an auditorium. When pupils were not in class, they were outside, if the weather permitted. When it rained or snowed, it was sheer bedlam.

Nowadays, with larger schools, it is more important than ever that the students have a place for between-classes activites, or for just plain loafing.

Ed Thompson, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, has raised an interesting question:

Why is it that people who have been urging more trade with Russia, China and Cuba have been arguing that 35 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas and $4.25 per barrel of oil was "gouging" the consumer, but that a deal with Russia for gas at $2.25 per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas and $14 per barrel of oil is a real bargain for the American consumer.

Now that Thanksgiving is past and attention is focused on Christmas—and football bowl games—we can count on hearing plenty of traditional Christmas music. A little mesage from the 50th state, which never has an opportunity for a "White" Christmas advises that the same Yuletide tunes will be heard in Hawaii, but you probably wouldn't recognize the worlds. "Silent Night" comes out "Po la' i e," and "Joy to the World" turns into "Po mai kai wa." And those Hawaiians don't have a partridge in a pear tree. Instead, they sing about a "Mynah bird in one papaya tree."—WACIL McNAIR.

PROPOSED NEW CHAMBER OFFICE—This sketch of a proposed new building to provide offices for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce was prepared by LaVerne Lee. The Chamber hopes to begin work soon on the new building at Twenty-third Street and Avenue R.

Chamber Plans Its Own Office

A special housing committee has announced plans for constructing office facilities for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

Plans are to erect a building on property at Avenue R and Twenty-third Street, which has been made available without cost to the Chamber of Commerce by Roger B. Mize.

Stanley Noah, who heads the special housing committee of the Chamber, said that tentative plans for a building had been approved by the committee and that an effort will be made beginning in the coming week to finance the project. It will be purely a Chamber of Commerce project, and members will be advised of the detailed plans for the project. There will be no goals or quotas, but all members of the Chamber of Commerce will be encouraged to participate in the financial effort.

The Chamber of Commerce also provides office space for the County Board of Development and will continue to do so in its new quarters. However, Chamber officials emphasized that the membership of the Chamber of Commerce will finance the building and that no tax funds from any source will be involved.

Noah said the Chamber's housing committee hoped that a substantial portion of the cost could be raised in the initial effort and that the remainder could be paid off in installments to be allocated from the Chamber's regular budget in lieu of paying rent.

The floor plan and an artist's rendition of the tentatively approved structure will be put on display in local banks. J. D. Hinton, local architeet, prepared th plans and the picture of the exterior of the proposed building was prepared by LaVerne Lee.

When the building is completed, it will bring the Chamber of Commerce and Board of County Development back near the central business district. The two agencies have had offices in Cogdell Center for the past year after moving out of city hall.

Serving with Noah on the Chamber of Commerce housing committee are John Jarrell, Henry Clark, Bill Sikes, Rex Robinson, John Thomas and Delbert Downing.

Pakistan, India End Trade Ban

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — In a major step toward normalizing their relations, India and Pakistan agreed today to end a nine-year ban on trade between the two countries.

"This is just a beginning," Pakistan Commerce Secretary Ahmed Naik said after signing a two-page protocol that commits the two subcontinent neighbors to lifting the embargo next Saturday. Commerce Secretary Y.T. Shah signed for India.

The protocol was heralded by both sides as an important step in the process of restoring and normalizing India-Pakistan relations, severed after the December 1971 war over Bangladesh, the former East Pakistan.

The trade embargo was a carryover from the India-Pakistan war fought in September 1965 over Kashmir. Trade relations were never re-established after that conflict.

Officials said that when the two-way trade was broken off in 1965, it totalled about $20 million a year.

The protocol, signed after four days of negotiations, outlined a specific timetable for resumption of trade.

The protocol said the trade would likely begin with cotton and rice from Pakistan for manufactured goods, iron ore and tea from India.

Santa Claus Due Monday

Santa Claus is scheduled to make his first appearance of the season Monday in Snyder's central business district.

The Chamber of Commerce reported that arrangements had been made for Santa to arrive at about 4 p.m. and he will be on hand to visit with youngsters around the square for the remainder of the afternoon.

Santa's appearance is one of the special events each year as community heads into the main thrust of the Christmas shopping season.

Demos Down To Hardnosed Bargaining

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats bound for Kansas City for their first, and maybe last, mini-convention are down to the last hardnosed bargaining that may spill over into a brawl — or reunite the party.

Either way, the meeting in Kansas City this week is likely to conclude six years of procedural strife which shattered the party, probably cost them the White House in 1968 and led to their worst defeat in 1972.

Going into the mini-convention, the reform wing and the old guard are so close to a compromise middle ground that whichever side loses is more likely to sulk than walk out.

The recent elections, in which Democrats romped over Watergate-hindered Republicans, has added impetus to the compromise drive and made it less appealing for dissidents to walk away from a winning party.

Insiders also report a growing weariness among Democrats with the bickering which began over the Vietnam war and exploded over the 1972 presidential nomination of George McGovern.

The conference will adopt a charter, the first ever for a major American political party, which is expected to preserve the essence of reform without most of the divisive features such as quotas.

The final charter will be a compromise which probably won't make anyone ecstatic but should freeze in ground rules which each side can live with and carry like a shield against the other.

The conference also will feature a day devoted fully to debating national issues and formulating Democratic opinions. The top one is likely to be a report, akin to a presidential-year platform plank, containing a party program for attacking the nation's economic ills.

Another feature will be a display of the party's 1976 presidential prospects. There will be special suites and booths for them, although only Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., has announced formally.

If there is to be a fight in Kansas City, it should begin when the Committee on Amendments and Rules decides on Wednesday and Thursday just what goes to the floor for a conference vote.

The actual floor debate on the charter comes Saturday with a possible spillover on Sunday. The issue debates come Friday and reports will be adopted Sunday.

The special commission which drew up the draft charter agreed last spring to present alternative versions of several especially controversial sections in order to give the convention a choice rather than asking it to vote commission recommendations up or down.

However, party officials now say these issues will be compromised in committee rather than fought out on the floor — exactly what the charter commission refused to do.

All parties to the struggle are vowing a fight for their pet causes in committee, with most saying they will drop it there if they lose. A few, however, are sure to press for a convention-floor showdown.

One major section expected to come out of committee in a compromise form covers regulations for picking national convention delegates — an "affirmative action" program designed to replace the 1972 mandatory quotas for women and minorities.

The charter group reported four alternatives ranging from the reimposition of quotas to a rule mildly prodding local parties to recruit the under-represented.

UMW Contract Pushed In Fields

By BOB ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — United Mine Workers officials began a campaign in the coal fields Saturday for approval of the proposed soft-coal contract and avoid a prolonged strike which could further cripple the nation's economy.

The nearly three-week-old strike has already idled at least 23,000 employes in other industries, mostly steel and railroad workers. Government economists say a four-week strike could idle as many as 400,000 persons.

The union has embarked on a wide-ranging effort to publicize the contract in the coal fields, beginning with district meetings of local officials today and with radio and television spots throughout the weekend.

The 120,000-member union will conduct secret balloting Monday with the results expected to be known late that night, UMW President Arnold Miller said. If ratified, the contract would take effect at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday.

Miller predicted the contract would receive approval from 60 per cent of the miners. But the agreement, calling for a 64 per cent increase in wages and benefits over a three-year period, could be in trouble in several coalfield regions.

At a meeting of about 100 miners in Logan County Friday, many expressed dissatisfaction with wage and pension provisions, as well as the absence of a clause on the right to strike over local issues.

A spokesman for the dissident Miners Committee to Defend the Right to Strike said a caravan of vehicles planned to meet at Beckley, W.Va., Saturday and drive through the southern West Virginia coalfields to express opposition to the contract.

On Friday, between 200 and 300 placard-carrying miners rallied in Bellaire, Ohio, to protest the contract.

An unsigned leaflet distributed at the meeting said of the proposed contract: "Some of its provisions are worse than the hated and bitterly resisted 1971 contract. We struck after the last contract to lessen the wage gap between the highest and lowest paid. This contract widens the gap more."

BODIES FOUND IN RUINS

Plant Blast Claims Two

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — Firemen pulled two charred bodies from the ruins of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. chemical plant after a series of explosions which destroyed 25 per cent of the $50 million complex, the Department of Public Safety said.

Relatives in Grand Island, Neb., said they were informed that one victim was Daryl Allen Harper, 35, of Beaumont, formerly of Grand Island.

The second body was not identified at once. Both bodies were badly charred.

Earlier Goodyear officials had said all workers at plant eight miles south of here on Interstate 10 had been accounted for including 10 injured.

But hours later a funeral home confirmed it received two badly burned bodies retrieved from beneath a tall tower which exploded during the fire.

Approximately 125 to 150 persons scattered from the plant shortly after 8 p.m. Friday after an explosion shook the isoprene unit and puffed massive fireballs 500 to 600 feet in the air, company spokesmen said.

Four smaller blasts rocked the plant as the fire spread.

C.T. Winchester, technical supervisor for Goodyear, said 15 to 18 workers briefly fought a fire in the isoprene unit before fleeing from the soon to explode facility. Isoprene is a volatile feed stock used in making synthetic rubber.

A spokesman at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where the injured were taken, said doctors treated and released eight persons.

Admitted and in serious condition was Ronnie Hively, 33, of Beaumont. Another man hospitalized, Harry Huebel, 23, of Nederland, was in good condition.

Some company officials estimated 25 per cent of the plant, burned. Other estimates ranged to 50 per cent.

"We have no idea what caused it at this time," Bob Rowley, a Goodyear public relations manager in Houston, said. "There will be a thorough investigation. We think there was a hydrocarbon leak in some part of the unit."

The first shock was the heaviest, felt as far away as 50 miles. It was followed by four more as the flames spread to catalytic cracking units.

Eyewitnesses said that two hours after the explosion flames still roared as high as 120 feet over the vessels, or towers, of the plant.

At times the fire appeared to subside, only to be fed by a new explosion and fanned by a cold wind gusting to 35 miles per hour.

Pipelines carrying chemicals and other materials to the plant were shut down after the first blast, company spokesmen said.

But Jefferson County sheriff's deputies ordered residents to evacuate an area west of the plant in a sparsely populated area eight miles southwest of Beaumont on Interstate 10. Several schools were opened to house the refugees.

Shortly after midnight firemen pronounced the fire controlled, though they refused to discount possible further explosions.

Ford Sets News Conference Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will conduct a nationally broadcast news confeence at 7:30 p.m. EST Monday in the fourth Washington location since he became chief executive.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Friday the conference would be held at an auditorium in the Old Executive Office Building next door to the White House.

Color Comics Are Inflation Victims

In an effort to compensate for rising costs of operation and soaring prices for supplies—especially newsprint—The Snyder Daily News is discontinuing its Sunday color comic section beginning with this issue.

Herbert Feather, publisher, said that several alternatives were considered before this decision was made. Ultimately, it boiled down to a substantial increase in subscription rates, or a significant alteration in the product that would result in reduction of costs.

Further studies indicated that, by discontinuing the color comic section in the Sunday issue and making a few changes in some contracts for regular syndicated features, the subscription rate could remain unchanged, at least for the present, and some new daily features could be added. Consequently, new features will begin appearing in the coming weeks in all issues of The Snyder Daily News.

A survey of other newspapers revealed that most had increased subscription rates sharply over the past one or two years, some of them posting increases two or three times. A few had discontinued syndicated features, including comics in efforts to hold the line, while others had discontinued features and increased subscription rates as well.

In announcing the decision to discontinue the Sunday color comics in The Snyder Daily News, Feather said the management of the newspaper believed that a big majority of its subscribers would prefer to do without color comics on Sunday over an increase in rates now. So, at this time, the subscription rates will remain unchanged.

US Growth Rate Close To Zero

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A United Nations study says that the natural population growth rate in the United Staates appears to be approaching "close to zero."

The 1974 report prepared by the U.N. Secretariat shows that birth rate in the United States declined from 17.7 per 1,000 in 1969 to 15.6 per 1,000 in 1972.

"Since the proportion of women of child-bearing age changed little during the period," says the report, "this fall in the crude birth rate represents a real decrease in fertility."

The report estimates the annual average population growth rate for the 1970-75 period in the United States at 0.9 per cent, compared to 1.3 per cent in the previous decade.

He expects bedroom entertainment

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single woman, age 36. A nice looking man rang my doorbell saying his car was stalled and he wanted to use my telephone to call for help.

I let him in, he made the call, and while waiting, I fixed coffee and we sat in my kitchen drinking coffee and getting acquainted. I really started to like this man.

He said he wasn't married and it would be nice to see me again. He gave me his name and phone number and I gave him mine. A week passed and he didn't call, so I called him and asked (in a joking way) if he had lost my number.

He said no, he was just going to call me. I asked him if he wanted to come over for supper that night and he said yes. He came, bringing a box of candy.

I'm sorry to say that he didn't waste much time letting me know he expected to be entertained in the bedroom. I said I wasn't that kind of person.

He left rather early and acted disappointed. He told me to call him if I ever changed my mind.

I really want to see him again, Abby, but I hate to call him. What do you suggest? MISSING HIM

DEAR MISSING: If you call him, he'll assume that you've decided to entertain him in the bedroom. Have you?

DEAR ABBY: My husband was a good football player in college, but he never was a star. Now he seems determined that our 16-year-old son, Jimmy, will be a star no matter what.

Last year Jimmy broke his leg in the middle of the football season. This year, during the first game, he tore the cartilage in his knee.

To my husband, Jimmy is merely "out for the season." He's already telling Jimmy, "Wait 'til next year, Tiger!"

I know Jimmy doesn't really share his father's enthusiasm for football, but he hates to let his father down.

I am afraid for Jimmy to play again next year. How can I handle this? OUTSIDE LINEBACKER

DEAR OUT: Have a mom-to-son talk with Jimmy. If he doesn't really want gridiron glory at the expense of his bones, then both of you dig in and make a goal line stand against your husband's obvious obsession. It's time Dad learned "You can't win 'em all."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 52-year-old live-in housekeeper for a middle-aged widower and his teen-age son. My problem concerns a woman I've never met. She keeps calling my employer from 10 P.M. until she gets him. (I usually go to bed at 10:30.)

If Mr. M. isn't home, I offer to take her number and have him call her when he comes in, but that isn't good enough. She rings up every 15 minutes until she gets him. Sometimes he doesn't get home until 1 A.M., so you can imagine what this does to my sleep. When she finally gets him, she talks for as long as an hour.

Last night he didn't get in until 1:15. After talking to her for half an hour, I heard him say that he was exhausted and he'd call her from his office on Monday. Ten minutes later she called again. She'd forgotten something.

What would you do with such a pest?

IRRITATED IN CALIF.

DEAR IRRITATED: All you can do is complain to your boss. If her calls are unwelcome, he could (a) get an unlisted number, or (b) ask her not to phone after 10. If he doesn't do "a" or "b", and your sleep is more important than your job, you could give him your notice.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SAGITTARIUS: Yours isn't a marriage — it's a business deal. And it can last as long as you're both satisfied.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Butz Is Forced To Apologize

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in three weeks, President Ford has felt compelled to call a top-level official on the carpet for making remarks seen as offensive by religious or ethnic groups.

Ford dressed down Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz on Friday for criticism of Pope Paul VI's position on birth control. Butz already had made a public explanation of his controversial remarks, but Ford told him that wasn't good enough and forced him to issue an apology.

On Nov. 14, Ford summoned Air Force Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to the Oval Office for a chewing-out for having talked publicly about Israeli supporters in the United States in a manner that some considered anti-Semitic. Brown already had apologized by the time Ford got to him.

In Butz's case, the agriculture chief first sought through a public statement to minimize his reported use of a mock-Italian accent at a breakfast meeting with reporters. He criticized the Pope's birth control stand by saying, "He no playa the game, he no maka the rules."

Butz said in his initial statement:

"There was never any intention in any of the discussion or in any remark to impugn the motives or the integrity of any religious group, ethnic group, or religious leader. I regret that some such interpretations have been made."

After getting his marching orders from Ford, Butz added, "and I sincerely apologize for any part I played in it."

There has been frequent speculation that Butz will be among the first of the holdovers from the Nixon administration to return to private life.

Miss Fitler Calls Engagement Off

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The young Welsh chauffeur engaged to 77-year-old millionairess Rachel Fitler has been put out of her house, and a member of her staff said the engagement is off.

Miss Fitler was not available for comment herself after police were called Friday to see that Michael Wilson, 29, left her fashionable estate. However, she had said the day before, "I sort of think it's too much for me."

"It's finished. The engagement is off. The whole thing is over," a member of Miss Fitler's staff said in a telephone interview.

Miss Fitler, maiden aunt of Happy Rockefeller, was described as "terribly upset" and did not herself confirm that the engagement has been irrevocably dissolved.

Miss Fitler, who shared in an $8 million family inheritance in 1931, revealed her engagement to Wilson last month after he had placed an announcement in a Welsh newspaper.

The member of Miss Fitler's staff said Wilson returned to her suburban Philadelphia estate Thanksgiving morning and entered through the kitchen.

"We put him out of the house then," said the staff member, who refused to be identified, "and he turned up again today (Friday). That's when we called the police."

A police spokesman said officers were called to investigate a "suspicious person" at the Fitler residence shortly before noon Friday. He said Wilson was found "picking up some personal items from the house" and left without incident.

Wilson, contacted at the Fitler estate while removing his belongings, said that "nothing was the matter" between him and Miss Fitler and that he had "no idea" when the marriage would be held. He would make no other comments. His whereabouts after he left the Fitler estate were not known.

Miss Fitler had become increasingly disturbed in recent weeks with Wilson's growing interest in her finances, a staff member said.

Miss Fitler met Wilson last winter in Palm Beach, Fla., where he was working in a hotel. He later became her chauffeur.

Texas Contracts Lowest

DALLAS (AP) — November contract awards in the construction industry in Texas dropped to their lowest level for that month of any year since 1967, the Texas Contractor will say Tuesday.

The industry magazine blamed what it called the uncertain economy.

At the same time, previous months hiked the 11-month total to the highest of record.

The magazine reports on all construction other than housing.

The November total was $100.3 million. The 11-month total is $2.2 billion.

The largest November contract was $22.6 million to Austin Bridge Co. of Dallas by the Texas Highway Department for the long delayed North Freeway in San Antonio, the magazine said.

The award was the largest contract ever let by the highway department and overshadowed the total award lettings with the remainder of the highway jobs totaling $6.4 million, Texas Contractor said.

The second largest award was $6.08 million to B. L. McGee, Inc., Austin, for additions to the Texas State Department of Health's headquarters building complex.

The magazine said the primary concern of the industry is the shortage of money and high interest rates in an extremely cautious economy.

Hopes More Will Seek Clemency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Charles E. Goodell of the Presidential Clemency Board has expressed hope that many more draft resisters and others will seek executive clemency once they understand how it works.

"They have already been punished — they have nothing to lose," Goodell said Friday as the White House announced that President Ford has granted full pardons to eight men and promised pardons to 10 more after they complete alternate civilian service.

"The task of formal forgiveness is under way," Ford said at a Cabinet Room ceremony at which he signed the pardon decrees. "I hope it marks the beginning of personal forgiveness in the hearts of all Americans troubled by Vietnam and its aftermath."

The White House provided the names of the 18 men along with summaries of their cases. But the names were not linked to the summaries because, as Ford said, that "would be a complete negation of his right to privacy." Citing the same reason, Goodell said the men's home address would not be disclosed.

Briscoe Creates Advisory Board

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe created a 20-member advisory board Saturday to recommend a plan each year for fighting crime in Texas.

The board replaces the Criminal Justice Council, which Briscoe stated in October 1971.

The advisory board also will administer approximately $36 million each year in federal and state anticrime funds.

L. O'Brien Thompson of Amarillo was named chairman of the advisory board, which will meet here Dec. 5-6.

Makes History

NEW YORK (AP) — Cyndy Meserve has become the first woman in the history of the National Collegiate Athletic Association to compete in a men's varsity basketball game.

Friday night she went on court for Pratt Institute in a game against Baruch College. Miss Meserve, 18, drew sporadic cheers in her one minute, 45 second appearances. She did not score any points.

Miss Meserve, a 5-foot-8 forward from Livermore Falls, Maine, got into a scramble for a loose ball with Baruch's 5-foot-11 Luis Blas, forcing a jump ball. Blas won the jump.

Baruch won the game 76-67.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN
Every year we read of deaths of young lovers or hunters who parked the car and left the motor and heater running. If the car stands in tall grass, snow, or is backed against an embankment, the poisonous carbon monoxide from the exhaust gradually rises thru the floor into the car and asphyxiates the occupants. Leaky mufflers or exhaust pipes will only hasten the death dealing process.

Hersey Pictures World Clogged With People

MY PETITION FOR MORE SPACE. By John Hersey. Knopf. 182 Pages. $5.95.

During the past few years more and more "main-stream" writers have been turning to science fiction in order to say what can't easily be said in the conventional novel, so it comes as no surprise to find John Hersey — of "A Bell for Adano" and "Hiroshima" fame — using the form in order to present his vision of a not very far off future in which the population has exploded.

The hero, if he may be called that, of Hersey's novel is a man named Poynter. Poynter lives in New Haven. Not the contemporary New Haven, but a future place where "every square inch of concrete and asphalt is taken up" and "it takes a walker 15 or 20 minutes to move a single block." Under the law in this computerized, bureaucratized future, a single person is allowed 8 feet by 12 of living space. Poynter has 7 by 11. So he has arisen before dawn and sandwiched himself into a line so crowded that one cannot turn to see the face of the person behind one to present a petition for more space.

The book, often reminiscent of the horrors Franz Kafka dreamed up, deals largely with what happens to Poynter as he stands in the line — his thoughts and his relationships with the people jammed against him, front, back and on each side. Seemingly static and yet not so, because as Poynter inches forward hour after hour the world of the line becomes the real world and what happens there — however insignificant — becomes magnified and frighteningly alive.

Hersey writes so effectively that by the time Poynter reaches the window at which he can present his petition the reader feels as if he too had just spent hours being crushed in a vise made of people. As for the scene in which Poynter presents his petition and engages in a verbal duel with the unseen bureaucrat who has the power to affirm or deny, it is a chilling look at what could very well happen in an overcrowded world choking in red tape.

Takes Job Seriously

BRISTOL, Conn. (AP) — "Girl," that's what college student Kathryn Anderson's male co-workers called her when she joined them during her vacation painting buildings for the local housing authority.

"It was difficult at first. They had to get used to me, get to know me," said 19-year-old Ms. Anderson, a title she prefers.

She said in an interview her first obstacle was convincing the men she worked with they would not have to do her work for her.

Richard Laviero, head of the housing authority's maintenance department, was among the early skeptics. He hesitated for a week before calling Ms. Anderson for an interview. He thought the work "too tough for a woman, you know, climbing ladders and lugging paint."

"But she surprised me and everyone else."

Alfred Catucci, housing authority executive director, said Ms. Anderson took her job "very seriously."

"Sometimes summer employes, because they know the job is only temporary, don't give it their best. But Kathy really takes pride in her work."

Ms. Anderson worked on a seven-member crew that paints on the average a two-story duplex each day.

Her foreman, Hank Barnum, praised her work, saying he'd "like to have five more like her."

Ms. Anderson said the heavy work was offset by "not being cooped up in an office" as she had been in previous summers.

She added that gaining acceptance from the men presented no special problem. She notes that she is one of 150 women in a sophomore class of 1,500 at Notre Dame University, where she majors in electrical engineering.

"I like to be able to pick the job I want," Ms. Anderson said.

And that kind of attitude combined with her hard work brought a first name reference and praise from co-worker Tom Jabs who said, "Kathy worked harder than any of the guys on the crew."

Arietta Found

VIENNA (AP) — Two early works of Josef Haydn have been discovered in the City Library of Vienna. H.C. Robbins Landon, musicologist and Haydn scholar, came across the scores in the only surviving copy of Count Erdoedy's Theater Almanac of 1788, which the library acquired in 1936. Neither piece is listed in the Hoboken Catalog of Haydn's music.

Both compositions are ariettas from Haydn operas that were introduced in Count Erdoedy's theater in Bratislava in 1786. One is a duet from "Orlando Palatine," first performed on May 22 of that year, and the other a song from "La vera costanza," given on Jan. 30.

Large dosage vitamin A is toxic to children and adults. Too much vitamin A causes excessive calcium in the blood as well as symptoms associated with a brain tumor, Mrs. Mary Sweeten, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, points out.

HOME FEATURED—One of the six homes to be featured on the 1974 Tour of Homes, sponsored by the Martha Ann Woman's Club, is that of Mrs. Josephine Randals. Pictured is a portion of the living room of this lovely home.

Randals Home To Be Toured

The Martha Ann Woman's Club announces the 1974 tour of homes to be held December 6 from 5:30 to 9 p.m.

One of the homes to be shown this year is the lovely home of Mrs. Josephine Randals.

When Mrs. Randals moved into her home in January of 1972 she completely remodeled. Walls were taken out, closets removed and new walls were added to replace doors.

The room receiving the most of the remodeling was the kitchen. Mrs. Randals had removed a large closet and converted this space into a breakfast nook and a china storage. But still needing more cabinet and counter space, she designed a moveable cabinet. This adds more space and also serves as a decoration island center.

Mrs. Randals' Artistic ability is displayed throughout the home. As you approach the front door, you will notice the tulip design stain glass windows.

Mrs. Randals designed these and had them made for her front door.

Throughout the home are beautiful paintings, several of which were done by Mrs. Randals.

The entire atmosphere of the home reflects the personality of its owner. Her love for the out of doors is shown from the wall paper in the kitchen to the landscape paintings in the living room.

An interesting antique in the entrance of the home is a coffer. As Mrs. Randals explained, a coffer was used as a treasure chest. The coffer, which looks like a modern toy box, had the lid covered to make it have the appearance of another piece of furniture. The age of the coffer is estimated to be well over two hundred years.

You will not want to miss a single room in this lovely four bedrooms home.

Tickets for the tour are $1.00 and can be purchased in advance or at the Woman's Club the evening of the tour, December 6.

Former Opera Star Teaching Singers

By ERIC WAHA

GRAZ, Austria (AP) — George London, former American operatic superstar, is one of the teachers at the "American Institute of Musical Studies" (AIMS) here.

"When you were once way up as a singer, you have the obligation of passing on your experience to others," London, now director of the National Opera Institute in Washington, said in an interview with The Associated Press.

AIMS holds the courses at the Teachers' Training Institute in this town in the south of Austria. The Institute accepts singers who have either completed studies or nearly finished.

Local newspapers described London as "one of the 10 to 12 superstars of the operatic stage." An illness forced him to give up his career as a singer several years ago. He sang the role of "Don Giovanni" when the war-damaged Vienna State Opera re-opened in 1955; he got rave reviews as "Boris Godunov" at the Moscow Bolshoi Opera.

The Montreal-born baritone grew up in Hollywood. He had his debut at the San Francisco Opera in 1943, as "Rigoletto."

"There are very, very gifted singers here," London exclaimed. "I don't regret at all that I came here, it gives me great pleasure. It is a good set-up."

He wanted to give the aspiring singers "an awareness at least, to the best of my ability, of what represents top standard in the opera field, understanding of styles in different operatic repertoire, interpretation at the highest level, also to some extent perhaps even a deeper understanding of their vocal, technical problems."

He added, "I want to tell them about what it takes to really start and go ahead in an operatic career."

AIMS has 140 students; 30 study for the orchestra, another 30 for the chorus, and 80 as "advanced vocalists."

The AIMS director is Richard Owens. Teachers of the "master classes" include American singers, such as Texas-born William Blankenship of the Vienna State Opera.

For the first time this year, the advanced vocalists of the Institute decided to perform a complete opera. They chose English composer Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas." Sharon Bookhout of New York sang the female title part, Mervin Wallace of New York and Louisiana that of the male one.

Other top singers in it were: Barbara Horn, Wichita, Kan., Pamela Sewell and Sue Smith, both of Boston, Beth Griffith, Midland, Tex., Lana Caradimas and Mimi Sherwin, both of New York, and Ralph Bruneau, Phoenix, Ariz.

McFall Predicts Space-Age Future

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In 1975 your crystal ball may show a satellite in your future. The drum-like spacecraft covered with solar cells that are spinning around the world may soon provide your home with space-age efficiency.

Within the decade with satellite antenna on your rooftop, you may be able to transmit your own letters, push buttons to get the latest news, do your shopping and banking and even school your children by means of the interaction of satellites, video, computers, microwaves and other electronic wonders. You may even conduct your business at home with the help of satellites.

So says Russell W. McFall, chairman of the board of Western Union, whose second domestic satellite has just been launched. He doesn't venture a guess on how the lady of the house will react to all that togetherness making inroads on her day, but we may soon know.

"It is all technically feasible now, but it is a question of how long it will take to change people's habits," he explained. The economy has a lot to do with it, too.

Business and government are big in the new electronic era and many of the tests that are being made by these users will eventually be enjoyed by smaller domestic users, he says.

McFall's conversation is an example of the changing vocabulary that might accompany our space-age lives. Such electronic terminology as transponders, earth stations, megabits, gigahertz, issue from his lips as he discusses upcoming possibilities.

For example, right now there is the capability for sending a letter into the mail system from a certain type of electric typewriter now being tested, he explains. That giant step toward an eventual home-to-home, do-it-yourself letter is also evident in the recent inauguration of the mailgram system — you dictate a letter to an operator over your telephone and it automatically goes to the post office for delivery the next day.

As for your newspaper, it will not need to fear a paper crunch in a satellite era, he maintains. It will still perform its main function, gathering and transmitting news, and you will no doubt pay for your newspaper subscription and whatever services you use — print-outs perhaps, of some things you may want to save — recipes, batting averages, weather forecasts, a news story, which may be obtained by pressing buttons.

Travel, too, will be "revolutionized by the adoption of such systems" he says. In addition to persons conducting conferences from home with their long-distance business contacts (as some do now from their offices on closed circuit television), a family can see more of its loved ones in far-off places. You'll merely dial to see your grandchildren or new grandchild without making the expensive trip every time.

"And you won't have their sticky hand prints on your furniture," McFall, a genial man, says facetiously. "When our own grandchildren go home, and my wife asks what we are going to do next, I always suggest that we begin by washing all the doorknobs," he laughs.

One advantage of a complete satellite system will be the dispersion of people from cities, McFall predicts. Instead of everyone being crammed onto 5 per cent of the land, any person may enjoy the good life by moving wherever he wants to move. He can still be in contact with the world.

His company welcomed "the revolution in communications" because it could no longer provide many personal services they had long given, walking dogs and even supplying a third and fourth for bridge.

"We regularly supplied 10 messengers in uniform to a retired Army colonel who felt the need to drill troops, but such special services have had to disappear with the upstairs maid."

McFall, who had been in the missile area before joining his present company, got the idea of instituting the domestic satellite system in 1966, he says. Six months ago after getting permission from the FCC, the company launched Westar, the first domestic communications satellite system in the United States. A back-up system has been recently put into space and a third is not too far off. But a two-satellite system costs $90 million. "More predictions may be in order as economics get better," McFall explained.

Quotable Women

By The Associated Press

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"You never realize that good things are going to be over some day. I grew up at this studio and it didn't seem unusual to see all those stars. Nowadays you'd never find so many names in one commissary. In fact, there aren't that many stars." Cyd Charisse, during a sentimental return to the MGM lot, scene of her movie debut, where she is working on a television show.

"I have women going everywhere. They are looking for equality in salaries, of course, and how the boss treats his secretary and how the sales girls are treated." Francois Giroud, France's secretary for women's affairs, speaking on "Meet the Press" about the condition of women and their treatment in France.

"This question of contrived versus real scarcity to me is the most important area this hearing can shed light on." Virginia H. Knauer, President Ford's special assistant for consumer affairs, speaking at a two-day conference in Washington on sugar prices.

"I feel absolutely shocked and numb. I cannot believe that my happiness has suddenly turned into sadness and confusion." Helen Morgan, giving up her crown as Miss World, due to the possibility of being mentioned in a divorce case.

Rites Set Monday For H. L. Hunt

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — H.L. Hunt, who parlayed a $5,000 inheritance into one of the world's greatest fortunes—often estimated at $2 billion—once said that anyone who knew how rich he was wasn't very rich.

Hunt said he did not know the amount of his fortune.

The oilman with the ultra-conservative political views and the deep-seated opinions on how money should be used, died Friday after a lengthy stay at Baylor Hospital here. He was admitted with a virus last September. The family declined to give the cause of his death.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Monday at the First Baptist Church in Dallas with burial at Sparkman-Hillcrest Memorial Park.

Hunt gave this formula for making money: "You have to be lucky. You have to be of an acquisitive nature, aggressive and thrifty."

He once was known as a big-time gambler, particularly on sports events. But he stopped gambling and smoking in his later years and he claimed he could have been five times richer had he never gambled.

Stories of his frugality are legion. He carried his lunch in a brown paper bag, walked blocks to and from his office to save 50 cents on parking fees and toured his home turning out unnecessary lights.

Conservatives viewed him as a great spokesman; liberals considered him a symbol of the far right and of big business.

But Hunt preferred to be known as a constructive. He said he aimed his money at better government and once told a national television audience that the last really good president was Calvin Coolidge.

H.L. HUNT

Hunt was the youngest of eight children of a Confederate war veteran. He was born Feb. 17, 1889.

He quit school at the fifth grade to roam the country working as a farm hand, lumberjack and cowboy. After five years of such a life he inherited $5,000.

That inheritance became the basis for what billionaire oilman J. Paul Getty called the largest independent oil fortune in the nation.

Hunt bought a plantation in Arkansas mostly for taxes and debts. But when Arkansas drillers struck oil, he headed for the fields.

By 1930 Hunt had his first million, but the big riches came at the East Texas oil field, greatest ever found to that time.

After slogging through the muddy East Texas oil fields in a Model T Ford buying and selling oil leases and watching over his drilling rigs, Hunt moved to Dallas.

There he bought an outsized replica of George Washington's Potomac home overlooking a lake in the city. He named his home Mount Vernon.

Later oilman Hunt diversified into such businesses as pecans, asphalt, canned chickens, roses, and cosmetics virtually guaranteed to keep users looking young.

"I've never tried to become the biggest oilman or anything else," he once said. "For all practical purposes a man with $200,000 is as well off as a man with $200 million. A millionaire who throws his money around is stupid."

The billionaire's first wife was Lyda Bunker Hunt, a native of Lake Village, Ark. His second wife, Ruth Ray Hunt, survives him. She is from Idabel, Okla.

He also is survived by five sons, Haroldson L. Hunt Jr., Nelson Bunker Hunt, W. Herbert Hunt, Lamar and Ray L. Hunt.

Five daughters also survive him: Mrs. A. G. (Margaret) Hill, Mrs. Hugo W. (Caroline) Schoellkopf Jr., Miss Ruth Jane Hunt, Mrs. Randall A. (Helen) Kreiling and Mrs. Mark A. (Swanee) Meeks.

There are signs that a titanic struggle may ensue over Hunt's empire. Earlier court cases involving various wiretap charges brought up that possibility.

Paul M. Rothermel, former top Hunt security boss, said two years ago in an interview that there is a struggle between the Hunt children by his first wife and the child by his second.

A judge has impounded some of the records in various suits bearing on the issue.

TEJAS COWBELLES BEEF PROMOTION:

The project of promoting "beef certificates" for holiday gifts being sponsored by the local unit of the Tejas Cowbelles is a very worthy idea. Not only will this help beef producers, but the recipients as well.

This is not a fund raising project in any way. The Cowbelles, Snyder National Bank receive no compensation at all, but are doing it as service to the industry and to the people.

This might be a good idea for the person who has everything, as well as the person who has little.

MORE ON GREENBUGS:

Damaging greenbug infestations do not occur at regular intervals in any predictable pattern. Whether we will have an outbreak of greenbugs this year, only time will tell. The preferred hosts of greenbugs are wheat, oats, barley, and rye; although they may occur on several other grasses and grain sorghum.

DESCRIPTION: The greenbugs are aphids, approximately one-sixteenth of an inch long, light green bodies with a dark green stripe down their back. The legs are green, except for the "feet" which are black. Greenbugs may be winged or wingless, with both forms in the same colony.

Greenbugs give birth to living young, and all offspring are females. The optimum temperature for greenbug reproduction is approximately 75 degrees F. Newly born greenbugs may begin reproduction in as short as seven days or as long as 30 days, depending on weather conditions and temperature. One female can produce about 80 offspring during a 25 day reproduction period. There may be 20 or more generations in a single growing season.

Greenbugs can reproduce at temperatures as low as 55 degrees F. At this temperature, natural enemies of greenbugs are not actively reproducing. This allows a buildup of greenbug infestations. Temperatures of 40-55 degrees F. or less reduces greenbug reproduction and activity. Some greenbugs are killed by overnight temperatures of 0 degrees F. Overnight freezes do little to greatly reduce the population of greenbugs. Continuous temperatures of 20 degrees F. or below for seven days or longer often reduce populations by 90 per cent or more.

Greenbugs suck plant juice and inject a toxin into the plant during the feeding process. This toxin causes the plant to turn yellow and enough toxin will cause the plant to die. This damage often occurs in localized spots. As infestations increase, plants die, and greenbugs move to uninfested plants, enlarging the affected area.

CONTROL: Insecticides needed for control will depend on the number of greenbugs, the vigor of the plants, the time of the year, the moisture conditions, the stage of growth, and the presence or absence of parasites and predators. Irrigated crops can usually withstand larger populations than can dry land. Most producers rely on observation as a means of determining when to apply control. Guides for controlling greenbugs are available in the County Extension Office and this contains a guideline to the economic threshold for control measures.

TREES FOR TEXAS LANDSCAPES:

"Trees for Texas Landscapes" is the name of a new publication by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and features information that should be of interest to most homeowners.

The publication lists more than 60 of the better trees suited to Texas conditions. It provides a rating of where these trees are best adapted and gives the outstanding characteristics of each.

With Arbor Day approaching (January 17), we encourage everyone interested in planting trees this fall and winter to come by the county Extension office for a copy of the publication.

WTC Class Will Study Hesse Novels

Four novels by Nobel Prize winner Hermann Hesse will be studied in Masterpieces of Literature to be offered in the mid-winter session at Western Texas College Dec. 31-Jan. 11.

Hesse is the most widely read novelist on the American campus today, Wendell Jones, instructor of the course, said. Hesse emphasized the plight of the individual in society and his struggles to retain his identity.

The novels to be studied are "Demian," "Steppenwolf," "Narziss and Goldmund" and "Siddharta." All the novels are short, Jones said, and all are available in paperback editions so that students planning to take the course can get copies and begin reading the novels before the class begins. There will be class discussion of the novelist and his works during class sessions.

The course is listed as English 233.

Registration for the mid-winter session is scheduled Dec. 13-31 in the registrar's office at WTC. Students enrolled at other colleges who attend the session will not be required to present transcripts. Minimum tuition is $25 plus fees if required.

Experts Say Oil Key To Long-Term Market Rally

EDITOR'S NOTE — Stock market prices have improved this fall. But does that mean the slump is over, that a bull market has begun? Probably not, the analysts say, until the uncertainty over oil is resolved.

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Oil makes everything run, even the Dow Jones average."

It was early last spring and the stockbroker who made that comment was in a light-hearted mood. The approaching end of the Arab oil embargo was setting of a vigorous rally on Wall Street.

The embargo is long past now. The cheery mood of March was dissolved in the steep stock market decline that drove the Dow Jones average to a 12-year-low of 584 on Oct. 4.

Stock prices have rallied since that date. The Dow Jones average was well above 650 by mid November.

But is this the beginning of a long-term bull market? There is a wide belief among experts that it isn't; that a bull market can't develop while oil prices and oil supply remain unresolved issues in the American economy.

Perhaps the recovery that stocks have shown since their low point on Oct. 4 will continue for a while longer, says Alan R. Shaw, vice president and director of market research at the brokerage firm of Harris, Upham & Co.

"But I don't think you're going to see a sustainable long-term rally, a major bull market, until you get some sort of policy or adjustment to the oil situation."

Other analysts interviewed expressed the same belief.

The core of the problem is the impact of oil on the economy. Rising oil prices cause inflation; and the combination of rising prices and uncertain supply from the Middle East contribute to a business slump.

The stock market is well known for its dislike of delicate situations. And, brokers point out, it has shown little enthusiasm for the answers to the oil problem proposed so far. These include conservation or rationing at home and intervention in the Middle East.

Many explanations were advanced for the sharp, 300-point decline in the Dow Jones industrial stocks average between March and October. Some of the explanations, such as bad weather in farm areas, had little to do with the oil situation.

But a surprising number did — enough to convince many analysts that oil uncertainties are the nearest thing to a common thread running through the market's miseries.

In early March, when the oil embargo was about to end, the stock market rallied in anticipation. The Dow Jones average spurted up 70 points. The potential effects of the dramatically higher costs for oil were overlooked, for the moment.

But since then, it has become increasingly difficult to forget.

Recent figures from the Commerce Department show that the nation imported less oil in the first eight months of this year than it did in the same 1973 period. Yet the cost of those imports jumped from $4.4 billion one year ago to $15.8 billion this year.

The result, as market analysts describe it, has been a two-pronged assault on investor confidence. First, the sharply elevated cost of oil adds to inflation, which drives people from the stock market. And second, the added cost strains the nation's finances.

"Oil prices provided the coup de grace on inflation," observes Lucien O. Hooper, a vice president at Thomson and McKinnon Auchincloss Kohlmeyer. He has spent 50 years on Wall Street.

"Our rate of inflation might well have been tolerable if this hadn't happened. It raises the prices of all plastics, all fertilizers, hurts every public utility company and just about every family's budget — certainly the budget of everybody who drives an automobile."

Inflation, in turn, has helped push up interest rates, analysts note, and high costs for borrowing raise the cost of doing business for companies in every corner of the economy. This discourages economic growth.

At recent rates, economists at New York's First National City Bank have projected, the U.S. trade deficit — the amount by which our import costs exceed the value of our exports — could be as much as $6 billion for 1974.

"This isn't just an economic problem. It becomes a social and political and psychological thing," says one Wall Street executive who asked anonimity because he felt some of the views he was expressing might be unpopular.

"The market is certainly trying to tell us something now — and maybe what it's saying is that the good deal we had, the days of cheap resources are over, and we're going to have to readjust our way of doing business and our way of living life."

Junior Editors' Quiz on BROWN SUGAR

QUESTION: How is brown sugar made?

* * *

ANSWER: Sugar is made by heating purified cane or beet juice in big pans until the liquid boils off or evaporates, leaving a heavy syrup. The syrup is then boiled in vacuum pans until it forms crystals. The brown sugar is made in the same manner as the granulated, but the syrup is boiled at a lower temperature. The result is sugar containing a considerable amount of syrup with a pleasant flavor and a soft texture.

Brown sugar comes in two types, light and dark. Light brown sugar is for baking, icings and candy, where a strong molasses flavor is not desired. Dark brown sugar is used in molasses cookies and in coarse spicy batters. It is also a favorite addition to baked beans. Brown sugar should be stored in an airtight container. It has a tendency to harden if it is stored for any length of time.

Pie In Eye Is Job

NEW YORK (AP) — Chief agent Rex Weiner takes his assignments seriously and guarantees the client who has contracted for his services a direct hit every time.

In the last several months, Weiner and his 12 attack men have zapped dozens of unsuspecting victims — with lemon meringue, banana cream and occasionally shaving cream pies.

These are the agents of "Pie-Kill Unlimited," an organization that considers it a high duty "to stamp out pomposity and to wreak light-hearted havoc."

For a fee of $40 and up, depending on the risks involved, Weiner's crew will throw a pie of negotiable flavor in someone's eye at offices, conventions and birthday parties.

"I strongly recommend a pie in the face. It's great therapy, especially for the unbearable ego," said 24-year-old Weiner, a former underground newspaper publisher.

Recalling the stunts of his more political days, Weiner said a week after the Watergate burglary he and his friends "bugged" Republican offices in New York — by releasing thousands of cockroaches at the headquarters of Committee to Reelect the President.

"Then I decided that politicians shouldn't have a monopoly on dirty tricksters," said Weiner who formed "Pie-Kill Unlimited" in June. "We cater to the private sector now."

Weiner assures his clients of the very best quality pies. The flavor is up to the client, but Weiner recommends the cream pies for the most delightful results.

Weiner prefers to be contacted by mail and then sets up a meeting with the client in a public place to guarantee confidentiality. The client must agree to all cleaning costs which can be kept to a minimum by using shaving cream pies instead of the tastier but more staining versions.

So far, said Weiner, none of the more than 50 lathered victims has threatened to sue.

Lower Turkey Prices Fail To Relieve Uncertainty

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Unsettled by predictions that the current recession may be the longest since World War II, Americans celebrated Thanksgiving with a sense of foreboding this past week.

Despite inflation, many knew they had reason to give thanks for past prosperity. But as to the future, there was greater anxiety than in many a year.

Not even the drop in turkey prices managed to relieve the uncertainty. To many it seemed more a quirk than a trend of the times.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, for example, said the current recession may be the longest since World War II.

He also foresaw unemployment rising from its current 6 per cent of the work force to or above 7 per cent by spring.

The government's index of leading economic indicators plunged 1.3 per cent in October, following the record drop of 3.3 per cent in September and a .9 per cent August decline. The three-month slide in the index, which signals future economic activity, is the first since 1970 and sharpest fall in many years.

President Ford's budget proposals to Congress, revealed Tuesday, were higher than his original estimates and led to speculation that the administration had shifted its primary economic goal from solving inflation to easing the recession or perhaps even stimulating the economy.

Ford's $302.2 billion budget was above the $300 billion figure he had previously said was necessary to whip inflation, and included social welfare cuts seen as unacceptable to Congress.

And Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told Congress that the nation needs "a policy of austerity" on oil if it is to solve the problem caused by high oil prices and the policies of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

Burns, dismissing the administration's voluntary conservation program as inadequate, added his voice to those calling for mandatory measures that may include substantially higher gasoline taxes, or taxes on imported crude oil and big auto horsepower.

But on the bright side, for the first time in six months, the nation scored a trade surplus in October, the Commerce Department reported. The seasonally-adjusted gain of $29.4 million compared with a deficit of $233.3 million the month previous and a surplus of nearly $600 million in October, 1973.

Many Vets Eligible For Education Aid

Veterans of the Spanish American War, World War I, World War II and the Korean War may still be eligible for educational benefits under a Texas law, Dan Dever, Veteran Outreach Coordinator at Western Texas College, said.

Under the Hazlewood Act, veterans of the above named wars may receive benefits for education from the state after their eligibility for federal funds through the Veterans Administration has expired. Veterans must have been legal residents of Texas at the time of entry into the Armed Forces and also for a period of not less than 12 months immediately preceding their registration. They must hold an honorable discharge.

These benefits also apply to the children of members of the Armed Forces who were killed in action or died while in service during World War II or the Korean War.

Eligible veterans qualifying for benefits under the Hazlewood Act are exempt from the payment of all fees except library and laboratory fees or similar deposits and fees, or charges for room and board. Veterans are not eligible until their eleigbility for federal funds has expired.

Veterans planning to use their benefits to enroll at Western Texas College are to present discharge papers to Dever, who will in turn certify them for admission under the Hazlewood Act. Dever is also available to give information about other educational programs for veterans. His office is in the WTC Administration Building and he may be reached by telephone at extension 270 at the college.

Overall Farm Prices Drop 1.5% Last Month

WASHINGTON (AP) — Better prices for milk, tomatoes and other commercial vegetables cushioned an overall drop in the prices farmers received for their products between mid-October and mid-November, the Agriculture Department reports.

But they could not offset declines in cattle, corn, soybeans, oranges and cotton prices enough to prevent a 1.5 per cent overall decline in the Crop Reporting Board's index, released Friday.

The index by mid-November of the prices farmers pay out for goods and services increased, however, by 1 per cent.

Using the average 1967 prices as a base, the prices received were 82 per cent higher for the period while prices paid were 78 per cent higher.

But the tight cost-price squeezes of the last year, after record gains in farm income during 1973, were illustrated by a 0.5 per cent rise in farm prices above November 1973 while farm living and business costs were 17 per cent higher.

Some indication of how those farm prices might translate into retail food prices in mid-November was given in the tables showing farm families paid an average of 3 per cent more for the food and tobacco they buy at retail.

Between the farm and supermarket, of course, are the costs and profits of middlemen processors, distributors and retailers-a share of the chain that USDA has said accounts for at least 80 per cent of this year's food prices increases.

Prices received for meat animals fell another 4 per cent for the month ending Nov. 15, with the average for all beef cattle at $28.30 per 100 pounds of live weight, down from mid-October's $30.50.

Hog prices were down 40 cents to an average $36.70 per 100 pounds but lamb prices gained $1.80 to average $34.90.

Overall, meat prices at the farm were 23 per cent below a year earlier.

The overall dairy products index increased 3 per cent, with most of the climb due to a rise in the price of milk sold to plants, from $8.25 per 100 pounds to $8.42. A year ago, the price was $8.66.

Wheat was up two cents to $4.87 a bushel, 67 cents above a year earlier.

But corn and soybeans hit by bad weather this year declined. The weather that forced prices up earlier, when supply problems were emphasized, caused quality problems that are reducing demand, along with lessened export pressure.

Corn fell to $3.32 a bushel from mid-October's record $3.45, although oats, barley and sorghum all rose by from 2 to 30 cents a bushel. Soybeans dropped from $8.17 a bushel to $7.44.

LETTER TO EDITOR

To The Daily News:

Sugar future prices expect to hit all-time high of one dollar a pound. It seems some of our good, conscientious Senators are going to investigate the sugar industry. About three years ago this was the news we read in our daily papers: The sugar beet farmers are going to switch to other crops on account of the depressed prices of sugar. The sugar companies close down about one half of their processing plants. Sugar future prices close under five cents a pound, first time since depression days.

My good Senators, three years ago is when the sugar industry needed investigating.

Last year our good, conscientious Senators decided to investigate the oil companies. Oil and gas skyrocketed to over seven dollars a barrel. In the 1930s to the late 1940s, billions of dollars of gas was flared because the price was too low to pay for building pipelines. My good Senators, the oil industry should have been investigated in the 1930s.

Every day we read of a dairy farmer quitting the dairy business on account of the price of milk is too low to justify continuing the dairy business.

My good Senators, now is the time to investigate the dairy business. Don't wait till there is no milk on the grocer's shelf.

Sr. Citizens Plan Bazaar

Senior Citizens are invited to participate in a bazaar being planned Dec. 10 in the Scurry County Museum Building at Western Texas College.

The bazaar is a project of the Senior Citizens Center Planning Committee. Senior Citizens who would like to participate are asked to call the office of Dr. James Tully, director of the Center, at Western Texas College so that plans can be made for display tables to be set up.

Each person selling items at the bazaar will be responsible for pricing and handling sales, and will keep all money from sales. All types of craft and novelty items may be included, as well as baked foods or jams and jellies.

San Diego Jail Is Plushest

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — They joke about breaking into San Diego's new Metropolitan Correctional Center instead of out.

Seldom have prisoners had it so good.

The "residents," as they are called, live comfortably in carpeted rooms with the trappings of a nice hotel: soothing music, free drinks at any hour, a lovely view either of San Diego Bay or downtown, comfortable beds and dressing tables.

In the penthouse gymnasium are ping pong tables, handball and volleyball courts.

No bars are visible although they are there — built into the walls of every room. The vertical windows are open but only four inches wide and 36 inches high.

The clothing issued to the prisoners, mostly pretrial detainees not yet convicted of a crime, look nothing like a prison uniform. The men get sports clothes and the women casual skirts, slacks and blouses, all in bright colors.

There is even color television and pool tables on each of the 12 levels of the $13-million jail.

Similar metropolitan correctional centers open next year in New York City and Chicago.

Genealogists Not Meeting

Western Texas Genealogical Association members have voted to cancel their December meeting, Mrs. Edna Miller, president, has announced. The Association will meet next on Jan. 28 for election of officers.

A group of periodical publications of interest to genealogists has been placed on shelves in the microfilm room at the WTC Learning Resource Center for use by the public, Mrs. Miller said. Persons who would like help in doing genealogical research are invited to contact Mrs. John Portis, Mrs. Fred Davis or other members of the Association. Braddock Dies At Age 68

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. (AP) — James J. Braddock, the pug-nosed boxer who rode a career of upset victories to the world's heavyweight championship, died Friday at his home. He was 68.

A shy, modest man who stumbled onto a pro boxing career then overcame financial obscurity and became known as the "Cinderella Man," Braddock won the title from Max Baer on June 13, 1935—typically, by upset.

The triumph was similar to the first day of his career.

The 20-year-old Braddock was working out on the pulley weights in a New Jersey gym when some promoters, anxious to buy the contract of a promising fighter named Harry Galfund, brought Galfund to the gym to watch him work. The quiet Braddock was the only competition to be found.

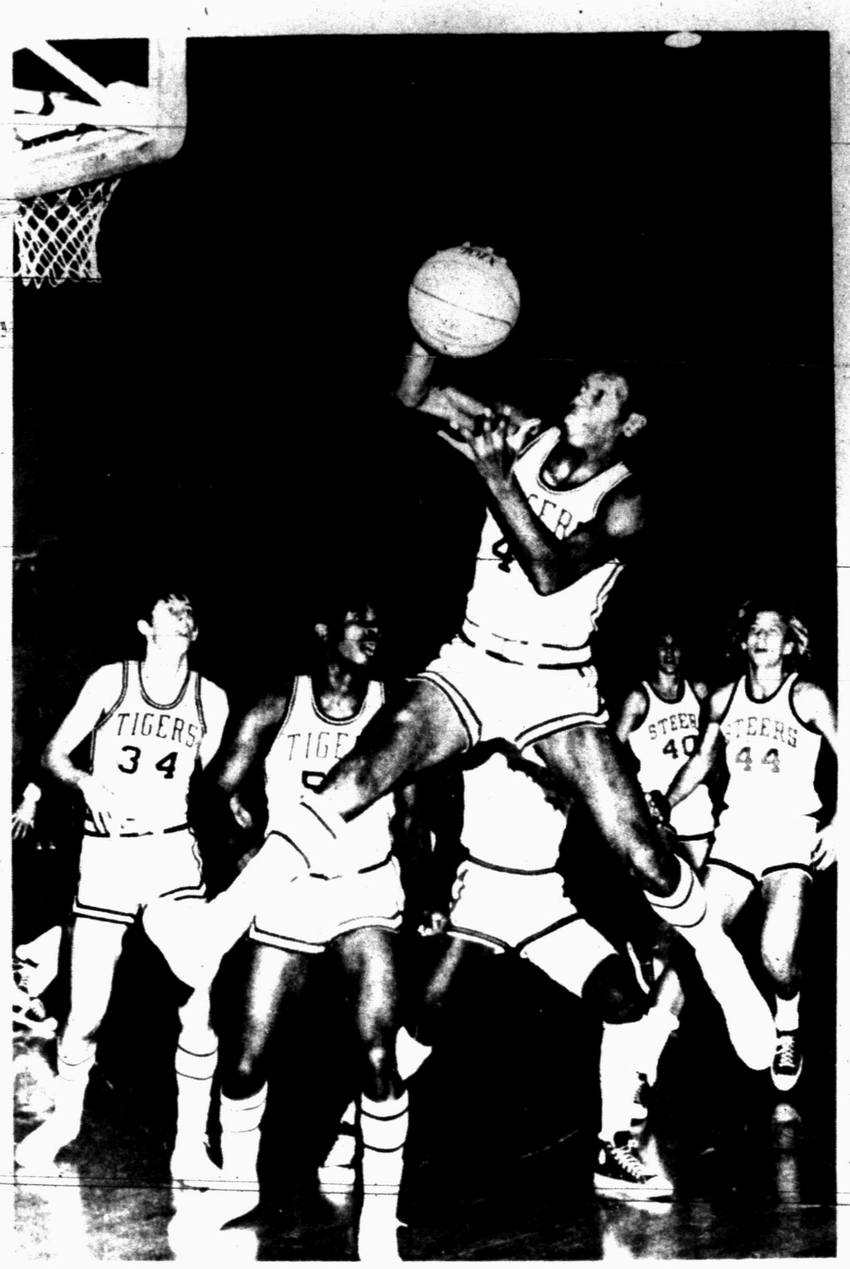
For $5, he agreed to spar with Galfund, who had been instructed to knock out his young opponent. After three rounds, Galfund was a bloody mess and James Braddock was a professional.

Braddock was a 10-1 underdog entering the big bout with Baer at the Long Island Bowl, just two years after his career appeared ended as the boxer worked on the New Jersey docks to support his wife and three children.

But the crown was not long in his possession. Just over two years later in Braddock's first defense, challenger Joe Louis took the title by surviving a first-round knockdown and coming back for a savage eighth-round knockout.

Braddock fought only once after that.

His record was 51 wins, 22 losses, three draws, seven no-decisions and two no contests—a career mark which earned him entry to the Boxing Hall of Fame in 1964.



GRABS BALL—Snyder High School's Chester Cobb (42) leaps high to grab the ball during the basketball contest with Big Spring here Friday night. He was outstanding during the game, scoring 28 points and grabbing 12 rebounds. In the background, are Randy Gressett (34) and Larry Johns (52) of the Tigers and Robert Aldredge (22), Bubba Stripling (40) and David Owens (44) of the Steers. Snyder won, 93-56, for its fourth straight victory. The Tigers will host Brownwood in the coliseum at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Tigers Rip Big Spring, 93-56 For 4th Straight

After a close first half, the Snyder Tigers cranked up their offense and used a tough defense to whip Big Spring's Steers, 93-56, for their fourth straight victory of the basketball season here Friday night.

The Steers are the third victim from District 5-4A for the Tigers. Their other win was over 1-AAA favorite Levelland.

It was a close contest for two periods. The Tigers took an early lead and the Steers were able to tie it up once in the initial period. Snyder held a 15-12 margin at the end of the frame. The lead changed twice and the score was tied twice in the second quarter as Snyder took a 37-33 halftime margin.

But it was all Snyder in the second half. The Tigers scored the first eight points in the second half and ended the period with a 64-42 margin. At one time in the fourth quarter the local lads held almost a 40 point lead.

"I'm proud of the way the team hustled, especially in the second half," said Coach Bob Moore. The Tigers used a three-quarter court press in the second half and caused numerous turnovers.

Snyder outshot he Steers, sinking 14 of 34 from the field for 41 per cent in the first half and 20 of 32 for 62 per cent in the second half. At the line, the Tigers put in 9 of 15 for 60 per cent in the first half and 16 of 22 for 72 per cent in the second half. Big Spring hit 10 of 39 for 25 percent from the floor in the first half and 8 of 31 for 25 per cent in the second half. At the line, they netted 13 of 23 for 56 per cent in the first half and 7 of 8 for 87 per cent in the second half.

The Tigers also held an edge in rebounds, taking 54 off the boards campared with 29 for the Steers. Larry Johns and Chester Cobb were high in this department with 13 and 12, respectively.

All of the Snyder boys got in the game, and all of them scored, led by Chester Cobb with 28 points. Larry Johns roped 17, Randy Gressett posted 14, and Kelly Ragland pitched in 10. James Zapp and Elroy Green led Big Spring with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Jim Ray scored all of his 9 points for Big Spring in the second period, and seven of them came at the line. However, Chester Cobb pitched in 10 of his 28 in the same period.

Two Big Spring boys—Zapp and Bobby Winters—fouled out, and three of the Tigers had four fouls each—Robert Alderete, Gressett and Roy Lee Carter.

Snyder's JV rallied to win its game, 69-64, after trailing 15-24 after one quarter and 34-35 at halftime. Snyder went ahead, 51-47, in the third period. Dane Witherspoon was high point man with 13 points while Earnest Brandon roped 11 points, and Loey Arnold put in 10. Harris, Arencibia and Woodard led the Big Spring JV with 17, 13 and 11 points, respectively.

The visitors won the sophomore contest, 44-42. They led 10-7 after one quarter, fell behind 16-18 at halftime, and the score was tied at 24-24 after three quarters and 40-40 at the end of regulation play. Big Spring's Sophs outscored Snyder 4-2 in overtime.

K. Johnson sparked Snyder with 15 points. Rubio and Jones led Big Spring with 15 and 12, respectively.

DAVID ALSOBROOK is the son of an ordained Nazarene pastor. The old saying about preacher's kids seemed to hold true with him. He fell away from the Church's teachings and used drugs in his early teens. He was booked with the police and practiced Karate and other martial arts.

David finally was led, through a series of happenings to a geniune, born-again experience. Next, Jesus baptized him in the Holy Ghost and called him to preach. To proclaim the mighty Word of God with signs following to confirm the Word.

Youth turn to God in meetings and burn their articles of witchcraft and worldliness; as many as five bonfires in one revival meeting that lasted four weeks; three hundred and fifty turn to the Lord as a result of Jesus being glorified through the taught Word and gifts of the Spirit operating through this man's ministry. David has been in full-time evangelistic teaching ministry since February of 1972.

Cards Eye First Title

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals can win the first National Football League title in their history—and the club's first since 1948, when it called Chicago home—with a victory Sunday over the Kansas City Chiefs.

The Cards, 9-2, hold a 1½-game lead in the National Conference East, thanks to Dallas' last-minute 24-23 victory over Washington on Thursday that dropped the runner-up Redskins' mark to 8-4.

If the Cards win, they could do no worse than tie Washington for first and, since they've beaten the 'Skins in their two meetings this year, they'd get the crown outright.

Several other teams can also clinch divisional crowns this weekend—but they'll need help to do so.

The Minnesota Vikings, 7-4, can take yet another NFC Central title if they beat New Orleans and second-place Green Bay, 6-5, loses to Philadelphia. Detroit was knocked out of the playoff picture with its 31-27 Thanksgiving Day loss to Denver.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, 8-2-1, can win the American Conference Central title if they whip Houston on Sunday and the Cincinnati Bengals, 7-4, lose in Miami on Monday night.

With both Western division championships already sewn up—Los Angeles in the NFC and Oakland in the AFC—that leaves only one other division up for grabs. And the grabbing for that one will probably go on through the rest of the season.

Miami and Buffalo are tied for the AFC East lead, each at 8-3. The Bills host Baltimore on Sunday and the Dolphins take on Cincinnati Monday night.

If the two clubs remain deadlocked the rest of the way, Miami would get the title since it beat the Bills twice.

In Sunday's other NFL games, it's New England at Oakland, Los Angeles at Atlanta, San Diego at the New York Jets, the New York Giants at Chicago and San Francisco at Cleveland.

The wild-card possibilities are still wide open.

In the AFC, Cincinnati and New England are 7-4 with the Patriots trailing Miami and Buffalo by one game. Even Denver has a shot, albeit a slender one since the Broncos are 6-5-1.

In the NFC, Dallas stayed in contention by beating the Redskins, raising its record to 7-5, one game back of Washington with two to go. And Green Bay, if it doesn't overtake Minnesota, can still take the wild card.

The Cardinals moved to St. Louis in 1960, 12 years after they'd won their last title. The Chicago Cardinals won it all in 1947, beating Philadelphia 28-21 for the league championship. They took the NFL's Western Division crown in 1948, then lost 7-0 to Philadelphia in the championship game.

Horns Give Bears Cotton Berth
Alabama Defeats Auburn, 17-13

By HOYT HARWELL
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, declaring himself four times happy with his second-ranked Alabama team's 17-13 victory over Auburn, says he believes the Crimson Tide is the nation's best football team.

The Friday decision over seventh-ranked Auburn gave Alabama an 11-0 record to take into its Jan. 1 rematch with Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl. It also gave the Tide its fourth consecutive Southeastern Conference crown, a record, and its 43rd victory in its last 44 regular-season games.

In Friday's other major football game, the Texas Longhorns beat Texas A&M 32-3.

The Tide will have to break a bowl jinx to have any hopes of a fourth national title under Bryant. Alabama has not won a bowl game since its 1966 team swamped Nebraska, although it came tantalizingly close in a 24-23 Sugar Bowl match with Notre Dame for the national title last season.

No. 1 Oklahoma is on probation and cannot play in a bowl, but the Sooners still face Oklahoma State in their quest for the championship.

"I said before the game I'd be happy with a one-point victory so now I'm four times happy," Bryant said. "We're not near as good as we're going to be now that we've got all our people back from injuries."

Auburn rallied in the final minutes after the Tide had frittered away several chances to put the game out of reach.

Alabama jumped to a 10-0 lead on a 45-yard pass from Richard Todd to Willie Shelby and a 36-yard field goal by Bucky Berrey. But Auburn came back to score on a short run by Secdrick McIntyre and lost a chance to deadlock the game when defensive end Leroy Cook blocked his third field goal of the year late in the first half.

Alabama drove 80 yards, capped by a 13-yard dash by Calvin Culliver, early in the third period and it appeared Auburn would be swamped.

Despite later scoring chances, that was all Alabama could put on the board, and Auburn came back on a drive to whittle it to 17-13, and got another chance late in the game.

However, Alabama end Mike Dubose forced a fumble and recovered it to preserve the victory, Alabama's 22nd in a row in regular season play since Auburn upset the Tide 17-16 two years ago.

Auburn, finishing at 9-2, goes to the Gator Bowl against Texas.

Texas shocked eighth-ranked Texas A&M by turning two fumble recoveries into touchdowns within a 12-second span of the game's opening minute.

The triumph cemented 16th-ranked Baylor's trip to the Cotton Bowl. Even if the 5-1 Bears were to lose to Rice today and tie Texas and Texas A&M for the Southwestern Conference title, Baylor would go to the bowl because they've never been in bowl competition and the other two have. Had the Aggies won, they'd have gotten the bowl bid for beating Baylor this season.

Bubba Bean fumbled on the Aggies' first possession and Travis Roach pounced on the ball at the A&M 23. Ray Clayborn dashed 18 yards for the score and after the same thing happened on A&M's next play from scrimmage, the Longhorns had a 14-0 lead with 54 seconds played.

The national television feast continued this Thanksgiving weekend with Army meeting Navy in their annual game, followed by No. 5 Notre Dame, 91, at No. 6 Southern California, 8-1-1.

The 15th-rated Houston Cougars were the only other ranked team in action, traveling to Tulsa.

Harvesting Gains Momentum On Plains

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Cotton harvesting on the state's western plains gained momentum last week, Dr. John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said.

Open weather on the plains also helped speed up sorghum harvesting, he said.

Peanut harvesting made good progress in West Central and Central Texas but yields and quality have been reduced by prolonged wet conditions, he said.

Soybeans awaited harvest in North Central, East and Southeast Texas and along the Upper Gulf Coast.

Good weather in the Panhandle allowed the sugar beet harvest to resume. About half the crop is still out and yields are good.

Sugarcane, citrus and fall vegetable harvesting remained active in the Rio Grande Valley. The citrus harvest is gaining momentum as the holiday season approaches, Hutchison said.

Livestock are in good condition throughout the state with good grazing available from wheat and oat pastures, he said. However, feeding is beginning in some sections.

District agricultural agents gave these reports:

Panhandle: Harvest operations are making good progress. The sorghum harvest is about 50 per cent. Sugar beet harvesting is at the half-way mark. Stocker cattle continue to move into wheat pastures and stubble fields.

South Plains: The sorghum harvest is about 90 per cent complete in northern counties and at the halfway point in the south. Yields are generally below average. Rust is damaging some wheat fields. Range and livestock conditions are good.

Rolling Plains: Harvesting of cotton, sorghum, peanuts and guar is active. Recent freezing temperatures will defoliate the cotton so that harvest operations can get into full swing. Rust and greenbugs are causing some damage in early wheat.

North Central: About 15 per cent of the cotton crop remains in the field. A major part of the soybean crop awaits harvesting and the peanut harvest is at the halfway point. Early planted grain fields are providing grazing for livestock.

Northeast: Some cotton, corn and peanuts remain to be harvested. Wheat and oats are making good growth and providing grazing. Frost has damaged fall vegetable gardens.

Far West: The cotton harvest is in full swing. Harvesting of a good pecan crop is underway. Livestock and range conditions are generally good. Small grains are providing grazing for cattle.

West Central: Some cotton is being harvested. Sorghum yields are down because of sprouted heads, midge and bird damage, and lodging. Most of the peanut crop has been harvested. Calving and lambing are active.

Central: Peanut fields and quality are down sharply because of wet weather. Small grains are providing good grazing for livestock. The recent frost killed tender vegetable plants.

EAST: Some peanuts remain to be harvested. Harvesting of a light pecan crop continues. Livestock conditions are fair to good with preparations under way to begin winter feeding.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: About 30 per cent of the soybean crop and 15 per cent of the second rice crop remain to be harvested. The pecan harvest is at the halfway mark. A few fields of wheat and oats remain to be seeded.

South Central: Farmers are completing the corn and peanut harvests. The pecan harvest is making good progress but the crop is light. Pasture and livestock conditions are generally above average.

Southwest: The soybean harvest is complete in Atascosa County. Harvesting of a good pecan crop is about complete. Tomatoes, green beans, squash, cucumbers, carrots, eggplant, peppers and citrus continue to move to market.

South: Flax planting is at the halfway point in Bee and Kleberg counties. Cucumbers are being harvested in Brooks and Kleberg counties. Cabbage and carrots are making good growth in the Rio Grande Valley. The fall sorghum crop looks good in Duval County.

Two Hurt In Mishap Here

Mrs. Mary C. Doak, 61, 2802 Thirty-second Street, sustained a fractured leg and Joe Morgan Simmons, 37, Amarillo, sustained facial lacerations in a two-car collision on the Old Lubbock Highway about 250 feet north of Huffman Avenue near the entrance to the Country Club at 5:55 p.m. Friday.

Both were taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Galyean Ambulance Service. Mrs. Doak later was transferred to Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene. Simmons was treated and released.

Investigating Highway Patrolmen said Simmons was driving a 1967 Model Pontiac that was in collision with a 1972 Model Oldsmobile driven by Mrs. Doak's husband, Herman E. Doak. She was a passenger in her husband's car.

Officers said Doak was traveling south towards town and the other motorist was making a U-turn at the time of the collision. There was considerable damage to both vehicles.

The highest price ever paid for a sculpture is the $380,000 given at the New York saleroom of Parke-Bernet, on May 5, 1971, for Edgar Degas's (1834-1917) bronze Petite Danseuse de Quatorze Ans, executed in an edition of about 12 casts in 1880.

Traffic Deaths Decline 20%

AUSTIN (AP) — The Department of Public Safety says there has been a 20 per cent decrease in traffic deaths and a 17 per cent decrease in the number of fatal accidents from the same time a year ago.

The number of persons killed in traffic accidents dropped from 3,306 by this time in 1973 to 2,653 so far in 1974.

IN REHEARSAL—Violence is a visual part of WTC's interpretation of Lillian Hellman's play "The Children's Hour". Here Jan Bellamy (right) brings an abrupt halt to a series of dangerous comments by slapping Donna Mraz. The two actresses are playing lead roles as the victims of a lie which eventually destroys their school and their personal lives. "The Children's Hour" is scheduled Dec. 11-14 in the WTC Fine Arts Theatre with curtain time at 8 o'clock nightly.

TENSE MOMENT—Dr. Cardin, played by Greg Patterson, and Martha, played by Donna Mraz, are shown in a visual statement of hatred and bitterness in a scene from "The Children's Hour" written by Lillian Hellman. "The Children's Hour" is a serious adult play about lies and their destructive force, and it will perform Dec. 11-14 as the second show of the season for the Western Texas College drama department.

Slides Hazards In Area Ditches

Construction workers who dig ditches in clay soils should guard against deadly land slides, a soils expert warned today.

"Several workmen are killed in Texas every year by the sudden, unexpected 'cave-ins' or slides," Dan Blackstock, soil scientist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service at Lubbock, said. "The problem is aggravated by the fact that most people assume all clay soils are stiff and will not slip.

"Fact is, some clay soils will kill you quicker than a sandy soil," Blackstock stressed.

"The cause of the slippages are freakish pressure plates hidden beneath the soil surface. Certain kinds of clay soils shrink and crack when dry, then swell when wet. After several weeks of dry weather, a heavy rain can cause some clay soils to swell as much as 20 percent in volume."

This constant shrinking and swelling through the years has caused pressure faces, or plates, to develop which are slick from sliding against each other. Technically, they are called "slickensides." They are as slick as their name indicates and extremely dangerous.

When a workman is in a pit near one of these faces, the soil may suddenly give way along the slickenside. Clay weighs about 95 pounds per cubic foot, so only a small slide can weigh several tons.

"We have had reports of workmen being killed by slides which covered them up to the shoulders only," Boackstock revealed. "The heavy soil simply crushes against their chest so tightly that they suffocate."

"And don't think that a ditch 3 feet deep can't kill you," Blackstock pointed out. "All a workman has to do is to be squatting or bending over in a shallow ditch when the slide hits. Then he is dead.

"We often dig deep pits in clay soils as a part of our soil survey work," Blackstock said. "We insist that the walls are shored up with 2" x 4"s. Some contractors use metal cages to protect workmen. But the point is, no one should enter a pit or ditch in clay soil deeper than 3 feet without some kind of protection."

Blackstock said soil surveys have been made by the Soil Conservation Service as part of the National Cooperative Soil Survey on about 70 percent of the land in Texas. These surveys reveal the location of soils with slickensides as well as a host of other valuable information.

"Our soil survey reveals that the Lipan, Mangum, Roscoe, Rowena, Stamford and Vernon soils in Scurry and Borden Counties are the most hazardous," Blackstock said.

Copies of the Soil Survey of Scurry County can be obtained from the Snyder Field Office, Soil Conservation Service, 3423 Avenue T in Snyder.

In Case Spain Wanted It Back

PORT ROYAL, Jamaica (AP) — Outstanding among the sights of Port Royal is Fort Charles, which is located on the site of a fort the English erected in 1656 to guard the entrance of Kingston Harbor in the event the disgruntled Spaniards decided to reclaim their stolen property.

Family Planning Unit Picks Board

The board for the Snyder Family Planning and Health Services was formed in Sweetwater, Nov. 26, at the Sweetwater Family Planning and Health Center. Rev. Henry Hartman was elected chairman, Ricardo Corrales vice-chairman, and Mrs. Marilyn Lancaster Secretary.

The purpose of the project is to help men and women who need and request information on how to plan for and space their children. The Family Planning Center will also provide information and help in the detection of cancer of the breast and uterus, and to help with other female disorders.

The Snyder Family Planning and Health Center will be located at Thirty-fourth and Avenue K in the same building as the Snyder Day Care Center.

At the meeting the board formed itself with the following members: Rev. Henry Hartman, Ricardo Corrales, Glen Davis, Mrs. Barbara Davis, Rev. John Gaston, Dr. Mary Hood, Mrs. Daisy Lewis, Dr. W.B. McSpadden, M.D., Mrs. Maria Patterson, Mrs. Judy Barkowsky, Mrs. Kay Albin, Mrs. Ann Noble and Mrs. Joy Loyd. A few other people will be invited to serve on the board.

The board hired Mrs. Etta Wilson and Mrs. Celia Berrera as community outreach workers. They will begin a month's training on Dec. 1, to begin home visitation early in January. Mrs. Katherine Eaton, R.N., was employed as the clinic nurse.

Mrs. Judy Barkowsky and Mrs. Kay Albin were appointed as volunteer coordinators. Volunteers needed are: receptionists on clinic nights, office workers during the week, babysitters during clinic hours, R.N.'s and L.V.N.'s who are willing to do birth control counseling, and other areas as needed. Volunteers are asked to call Mrs. Barkowsky at 573-2195 or Mrs. Albin at 573-8248.

Tentative plans are being made to open the clinic on the evening of Tuesday, January 21. A doctor will be present at each monthly clinic night. The next board meeting will be January 21, at the Snyder Day Care Center.
