Six Die As Passenger Plane Crashes On Sand Bar After Losing Propeller

SHIP PLUNGES ONE MINUTE AFTER TAKEOFF

Cincinnati-Atlanta Airways Craft Crumples As Hub Breaks

PILOT LOSES FIGHT

Airman Struggles in Vain As Mishap Destroys Balance

CINCINNATI, Aug. 9. (AP)—Five men and one woman were killed here today when the Cincinnati-Atlanta airplane of the Embrey-Riddle division of American Airways crashed on the bank of the Little Miami river one minute after its takeoff from Lunken airport at 8:40 o'clock.

The dead:

William E. Keith and W. P. Brimberry, both of Atlanta, Ga.; V. B. Baum, Memphis, Tenn.; M. T. Odell, Cincinnati, pilot; Miss Wrenna D. Hughes and William J. Dewald, co-pilot, both of Fort Thomas, Ky.

Hub Breaks

A broke.. hub of the propeller on the right-hand motor of the Ford tri-motored plane caused the tragedy, airport officials said. The plane was in charge of Odell, who was transferred to the Cincinnati division of the American Airways Aug. 1 with Dewald.

In the minute which elapsed between the takeoff and the crash Odell staged a dramatic struggle with his controls. He was less than 500 feet in the air when the propeller was torn loose and fell from the plane. That lightened the load of the motor and caused it to revolve at such a terrific speed that it, too, was torn loose. With one propeller Odell experienced difficulty in managing the machine and apparently made for a sand bar in the Little Miami river near the airport.

Falls on Sand

He was unable to make the plane hold its altitude, however, and it fell on the sand and nosed over, killing the occupants instantly.

The passenger cabin was crushed like a shell when the plane overturned.

Gasoline was sprayed over the wreckage but Odell had shut off his motors before he died and there was no fire.

Allen Neff, 19, who lives near the scene of the accident, was fishing nearby with Howard Tucker, a friend. The young men jumped into the river when they saw the plane coming down and swam across. Neff tried to remove the bodies and other nearby residents sounded a fire alarm which brought life saving apparatus and firemen. All that was saved from the wreckage was the battered baggage of the passengers and the mail which also was carried by the plane.

The coroner immediately gave

Mad Bull Puts Halt To Work of Laying Out Practice Course

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 9.—While Charlie Wick and his negro helper, John Hagwood, and Wick's nephew, Frank Hardy of Frederick, Ill., were building a practice golf green on the Charlie Bohannan farm, north of Frederick, they were attacked by an infuriated bull. First skirmish was with Wick, who was knocked down and bruised. The negro came to his aid with an ax handle but the animal made an assault on the colored force, who was in turn knocked down. Wick and Hapgood fought a rear guard battle while they retreated to their automobile, leaving the bull in undisputed possession of the field.

Hardy, who stayed out of the fight, was not attacked by the bull.

U. S. LAUNCHES UTILITY QUIZ

Broad Inquiry Undertaken By Commission

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (AP)—The power commission embarked today upon an investigation of the entire electric power industry of the United States, going far beyond the companies which are under federal regulation.

This broad study was disclosed with an announcement by Vice Chairman Williamson that questionnaires had been mailed to all licensees of the commission and to the holding companies with which they are related to determine the management, control and financing of the licensed concerns.

Previously the investigation had been indicated in a less sweeping form.

Using a hitherto unexercised power, the commission will seek to learn the relations of companies not only within the electric industry but with other lines of business. It will seek to determine the economic relation of fuel-produced power to the hydro-electric energy which alone and in limited fashion comes under government supervision.

Other studies, as yet unannounced, are in prospect.

The new questionnaires demand a full accounting of the securities of every electric utility concern connected with a company holding federal license on a waterpower plant. They are to develop what issues carry voting power and in what individuals or corporations large voting power is vested.

The terms of all agreements for management, supervision or service between licensed and unlicensed companies must be shown. The links each company has with other concerns through overlapping directorates and executives must be shown.

At the same time the operating companies are asked to submit a

$15,000 LOSS FROM FIRE IN BUSINESS AREA

Wilkins Bakery Wrecked In Stubborn Blaze Here Early Sunday

SHOPS ARE DAMAGED

Mick's Furniture, Smokery, and Modern Appliance Firm Suffer

Fire wrecked the Wilkins bakery, 726 Seventh street, at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, and spread heavy damage to three adjoining business houses, the Modern Appliance company, dealers in Copeland electric refrigerators; the Smokery, a tobacco shop and domino parlor combined with a barber shop; and the Mick's Furniture company. Total damage was estimated at $15,000.

The blaze apparently originated in the bakery, sweeping upward through a skylight ventilator and spreading to the roof of the building, which housed the bakery, the appliance company and the domino parlor. The Mick's Furniture company is located in an adjoining building.

Two Alarms

The flames were making great headway when discovered, and before fire equipment arrived were leaping from the ventilator into the air. A second alarm was sounded on the arrival of firemen, who had great difficulty in reaching the source of the blaze, which was largely confined between the ceiling and roof.

Most of the damage caused by the fire was to the roof over the three concerns. Water and smoke caused heavy damage to the furniture company, although the blaze failed to spread to that building. Water and smoke also contributed largely to the damage done to the bakery, appliance concern and the domino parlor.

The nature of the blaze required firemen to climb to the roof of adjoining buildings to play water on the flames. Water from the hose leaked through the roof over the furniture store, damaging many articles of furniture and rugs.

The roof over the three other businesses caved in near the rear of the building.

Heavy Damage

Mark Walker, owner of the structure housing the bakery, appliance company and domino parlor, estimated damage to the building to be $5,000, including the roof and cracked window plates.

Operators of the Modern Appliance company said that damage to furniture, fixtures and five electric refrigerators was about $2,500.

C. F. Wilkins, owner of the Wilkins bakery, said the ovens, furniture and stock of his plant would be a total loss. He estimated the damage at approximately $8,000. Plans will be made immediately for rebuilding the plant, Mr. Wilkins said.

Water and smoke reaching the contents of the furniture store caused damage that is believed will result in a loss of about $1,200.

Damage to the Smokery was estimated at $300.

Definite origin of the blaze was undetermined. I. N. Austin, night patrol officer who turned in an alarm, said that the fire could have started either in the bakery or the appliance concern.

A large crowd returning home after a midnight show was attracted to the scene.

Fireman Injured

Bill Habern, son of Grover Habern, assistant fire chief, was overcome by smoke and fumes from the fire while he was combatting the blaze from inside one of the buildings. He was carried out by other firemen. He was reported to be resting well at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital Sunday night. Although his condition was not believed to be serious, it is expected that he will be confined at the hospital for several days.

Farm Board Weighs Loan to Fruit Industry Despite Dry Protests

By EARL L. SHAUB

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (US)—Ignoring the protest of the Methodist Board of Temperance, prohibition and public morals, members of the federal farm board admitted today they will give further consideration to the application of Fruit Industries, Ltd., for a loan of $1,000,000.

The Methodist board contends that such an act would encourage violation of the Volstead act since Fruit Industries, Ltd., for which Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt is attorney, sells a grape concentrate which, after proper handling in the home, turns into potent wine.

The whole controversy will flare before the coming congress, when both drys and anti-prohibitionists will demand that the vague interpretation of the Volstead act as it pertains to "fruit juices" manufactured in the home, be clarified.

There are ardent prohibitionists who agree that the board is within its rights and that the Volstead act makes an exception of wine manufactured and consumed in the home. This exception is made under the famous "fruit juices" clause which was written into the act by leading prohibitionists as a compromise when they felt the Volstead act could not pass without it.

When the Volstead act was passed by the house it made no exceptions of homemade beer and wine, although such exceptions had been

BRIDGE DIVING VICTIM DIES

J. D. Tate, 17, Succumbs To Injuries Here

J. D. Tate, 17, succumbed early Monday morning to a broken back received Wednesday when he dived from a 25-foot bridge while in swimming. He had fought valiantly for life at a hospital here for four days.

Funeral services have not been made.

The accident occurred at Dead Man's bridge, about six miles from Wichita Falls on the lateral road between the Seymour and Iowa Park highways.

With several companions young Tate was swimming in the pool of the Wichita river beneath the bridge. Climbing upon the rail of the bridge the youth dived into the water, and, apparently misjudging its depth, struck bottom. Severely injured, he would have drowned had not his friends pulled him from the stream.

First aid was rendered by a physician at Iowa Park, after which he was removed to the hospital here, where it was learned that the fourth and fifth vertebraes, near the shoulders, had been fractured.

He remained paralyzed below the shoulders until his death.

He resided with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Gilmore of Bacon Switch, near Iowa Park.

Police Nab Negro as He Prepares Stolen Chicken

A negro was in the city jail here Sunday following the theft early Sunday morning of nine chickens from the home of R. Michna, 1700 Monroe street.

The negro had been under the surveillance of police for some time who had previously suspected him of chicken stealing, according to Frank Burns, chief of police. When Mr. Michna reported the loss of his chickens, Detectives O. A. Roberson and Luke Hart immediately went to the home of the negro. The black, they said, was in the act of cleaning the last of the nine chickens.

Charges will be filed Monday, it was said.

BLOODY RIOTS CLIMAX VOTE IN GERMANY

18 Estimated Killed as Dissolution of Prussian Diet Fails

REDS OPEN BATTLE

Communists Take Police By Surprise in Volley From Housetops

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
(Copyt., 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—Police and Communists waged open war in the heart of Berlin tonight, writing a bloody climax to today's referendum supporting the present moderate Prussian government.

It was estimated the dead may reach 18, the wounded scores, in what looked for a time like a miniature revolution.

The crack of rifles, the cries of wounded and dying, and the hoarse shouts of men at war for three and a half hours turned the tense calm of the day into a night of terror.

Centrist Victory

Hardly had it become evident that Premier Otto Braun's Socialist-Catholic centrist government was victorious at the polls—the Fascist and Communist sponsors of the referendum calling for the dissolution of the Prussian diet having failed by 3,500,000 votes to carry their proposal—when a pitched battle broke out between police and Reds in the area around Buelow square.

At midnight police appeared to have the situation well in hand. They then announced that two police captains, one policeman, and from four to 15 Communists were slain in the fighting. They estimated the wounded on both sides at 10 seven of whom are expected to die. A later checkup it is believed will reveal a much greater casualty list.

Reds Open Fire

The battle broke out at 8:30 p. m., when Communists, gathered in front of the Karl Liebknicht house, their headquarters on the square, opened fire on police seeking to disperse them.

Taken by surprise at the suddenness and savagery of the attack, the police retreated momentarily. Colonel Heimansberg, commander of Berlin police, soon had 1,000 of his men on the scene. Under his direction they deployed through the square answering with rifle fire the desultory shots from the buildings facing the square in which the Reds had taken shelter.

The Communists stationed snipers in strategic positions on the roofs and in windows. The police riflemen were instructed to fire at every head that showed.

Estimate Difficult

Driven from building to building, as the police made sudden rushes, the Reds dragged their wounded and dead with them making it difficult to estimate the number of casualties.

The bitterest akirmish was waged outside the Red headquarters, which police finally succeeded in taking. They promptly suppressed the Red newspaper, Rote Fahn,

Hoover's Job Program Scored for 'Snail's Pace'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (US)—The Hoover's administration record of employment was severely criticized today by Representative Cannon, Democrat of Missouri, who declared the federal building program was going forward at a "snail-like" pace.

In a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, Cannon charged there has been "lamentable lagging" in preparing plans and specifications for new buildings so that only one-third as many men are at work on these projects as might otherwise be.

Federal employment agencies have done little to find employment for the idle, Cannon charged. While employment was found for 281,769 farm hands between April 1 and July 21, Cannon declared federal agencies placed 611,596 workers during the same period in 1929.

Cheap Politics Above Service To Texas

AN EDITORIAL

WITH ALMOST fiendish glee the senate of the Texas legislature Saturday voted to continue demoralization in the leading industry of the state when it defeated, beyond reconsideration, the last of the administration measures for conservation and proration of oil. It voted to bankrupt every independent oil operator in Texas. By its vote it struck a blow at a prostrate industry which was asking help to lift itself. It voted to repudiate bond obligations and to deny school children of Texas an opportunity for education. It may have voted to fasten more firmly the grip of predatory monopoly upon the most important industry of the state.

THE VOTE came at the very time when the legislature had the opportunity of performing a signal service to the oil industry of Texas and the nation and to all people of Texas. It came at a time when by cooperation with the efforts of other states it might have cured a sick industry and have been the start of a development that would have restored normal business in many industries. This vote, or rather the series of votes in the senate, did these things:

Made proration of oil production impossible.

Placed enforcement of whatever conservation measures are adopted in the hands of a body that has proven its incapacity.

Failed to provide such penalties and changes in the law as would discourage greedy violators from violating the laws to their own profit.

WE CANNOT understand the motives that have influenced the action of the Texas senate. It may have been from a desire to castigate a governor who has not shown any great political aptitude. It may have been influenced by a desire to serve the political ambitions of selfish men. It may have been influenced by a purpose to punish independent oil operators who are on the verge of bankruptcy. It may have been influenced by a desire to serve selfish monopolists. It may have been only plain ignorance but our own opinion is that it is an exhibition of cheap politics in the face of a great opportunity.

Woman Kills Mother And Children Before Chloroforming Self

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9. (AP)—Fortune and home swept away by a series of financial legal entanglements, Mrs. Florine Williams, widow of the motion picture actor, Earle Williams, was found fatally poisoned in a fashionable apartment here today. Dead in the room beside her were her mother, Mrs. Clarisse Walz, 80, and her two children, Joan Constance, 7, and Earle Jr., 4. Police described it as a suicide and murder pact.

Attendants in the apartment house entered the scene when a neighbor missed the laughter and frolic of the children and discovered a light burning. They found large pads of cotton saturated with chloroform over their faces. Mrs. Williams died at an emergency hospital.

On a table were found four letters, two in the handwriting of Mrs. Williams on the black edged mourning paper she had used since the death of her husband. The others were penciled in the infirm scrawl of the aged mother.

A series of financial difficulties, said by friends to be due to ignorance of business and bad advice by acquaintances, cost Mrs. Williams most of her fortune. Sale of her palatial home in the movie colony after a mortgage had been placed on it led to her arrest on a charge of grand theft. She pleaded guilty and was granted five years probation on promise to make good the loss. Other actions on checks issued, police said, without funds, had been settled through sale of jewels and furs and most of her wardrobe.

At a probation hearing in Los Angeles, Mrs. Williams' story of an infatuation with Wallace Harvey, promoter, was reported to the court by probation officers. Mrs. Williams said she gave him various sums of money to invest, fell "completely under his domination and was deeply in love with him," the report said. Six days before her son was born, Harvey left for New York, after asking her for more money, the report related.

Mrs. Williams had been working here in a film exchange as a clerk and had been attempting to sell the remaining treasures friends said, to meet outstanding obligations.

BELL RAISES OIL PRICE AGAIN

Independent Refiner Gives Crude Dime Boost

Crude oil will receive another 10-cent hike at 7 o'clock Monday morning when the Bell Oil and Gas company will post a top price of 52 cents per barrel at the well in Northern Texas, Southern, Oklahoma and in Gray county, Texas, according to information given The Record News Sunday evening by E. L. Potts, pipe line superintendent at Burkburnett for the Bell concern.

A differential of one-cent will be effective, Mr. Potts said, on purchase of crude with a gravity lower than 40. The company is purchasing more than 2,000 barrels daily in this section at present, according to his statement.

The advance announced for Monday morning is the second boost given to crude oil prices in this area directly by the Bell Oil and Gas company. Declaring that cuts instituted by major oil companies early in July were unjustified, and not occasioned by prevailing market conditions, the Bell company on

Mock Beheading Scene Ends In Girl's Death as Youth Drops Ax

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (US)—Funeral services for Miss Alschild Iverson, killed by an ax blade, while she gaily played Marie Antoinette in a mock guillotining, will be held Wednesday from her residence in Brooklyn.

Among the chief mourners will be Harold Finn, 19, of the Bronx, who playfully held an ax above Miss Iverson's bared white throat, only to have the ax slip from its handle so that its sharp-edged blade fell severing Miss Iverson's jugular vein.

Finn was held without bail today by Magistrate David Hirshfield, for an arraignment tomorrow on a charge of homicide. He stoutly protested his innocence of any intent to kill the pretty young girl.

All the others at the birthday party of Miss Astrid Larson, in Brooklyn, where Miss Iverson died to death, joined Finn in declaring the girl's death wholly an accident. It was considered probable the youth would be released tomorrow.

He spent a restless day in custody of police today bemoaning the prank that killed Miss Iverson. Someone had brought the ax into the room, declaring himself a "bouncer" for the merry party, which numbered about 20 girls and youths.

Finn, carrying on the joke, seized the ax and bade Miss Iverson kneel to receive the "death stroke." She knelt in mock solemnity. Finn lifted the ax as if to strike. An instant later Miss Iverson's party frock was encrimsoned from the accidental slash. She died before an ambulance arrived.

LAST MINUTE FIGHT ON TO SAVE INDUSTRY

Destruction of Independents Seen in Failure Of Special Bill

LEADERS TO AUSTIN

House Praised for Adopting Conservation Measure To Halt Waste

An indication of the oil industry's reaction to the bitter pill administered by the Texas senate in wrecking proposed conservation legislation was seen here Sunday in a resolution of condemnation passed by the North Texas Oil and Gas association. Steps were taken to make an eleventh hour fight for the desired legislation.

The resolution declared the senate's refusal to pass the administration bills resulted "in turning over the oil business of the state of Texas to certain major interests to the detriment and destruction of the independent operators and royalty owners." It condemned the action unqualifiedly.

The senate not only barred the governor's administration bill by adopting a substitute measure Saturday, but made the action irrevocable by passing the substitute. The substitute bill specifically prohibits proration.

That the turn of events at Austin has left oil men, particularly independents, incensed was plainly visible at the meeting here Sunday morning. During the session a number of talks were made, most of them dealing with alleged waste in East Texas which has brought the industry to its lowest ebb.

The association adopted plans for a last desperate stab at obtaining relief through the legislature. A committee of leading producers of this area was appointed to attend the last three days of the special session with the objective of bringing about a free conference of house and senate members in the hope of framing a bill which will be acceptable to both branches of the legislature.

Committee Departs

Members of this committee, who left here Sunday night for Austin, are J. S. Bridwell, C. P. McGaha, Dave Gray, L. H. Cullum, M. W. Blair, J. F. O'Donohoe, John Hampton, P. B. Flynn, W. B. Hamilton, T. F. Hunter, E. H. Eddleman, John Kilgore and C. B. Long.

Besides condemning the senate the resolution congratulated the house of representatives for its favorable action on the emergency oil measures and named the Gulf and Sinclair companies and "their henchmen claiming to be independents" as violators of existing conservation rules.

The text of the resolution follows:

"Whereas, at great expense to the people of this state the governor of Texas called the legislature in special session for the purpose of strengthening the conservation laws of this state in an effort to avert the collapse of the oil industry and the consequent loss to every citizen of Texas,

"Positive Detriment"

"And whereas the senate of Texas by its action Saturday tore down and practically destroyed the inadequate conservation laws which we now have, which action instead of benefiting the people of Texas, was a positive detriment to the best interests of every citizen of Texas.

"Therefore, be it resolved by the North Texas Oil and Gas association that the action of the senate Saturday resulting as it did in turning over the oil business of the state of Texas to certain major interests to the detriment and destruction of the independent oil operators and royalty owners, and the ultimate detriment of the people of the state of Texas, is unqualifiedly condemned.

"Be it further resolved that the effect of its action be called to the personal attention of every member of the senate immediately in order that in the three remaining days it may rescind its former action and yet by the enactment of adequate conservation laws save this natural resource for the benefit of the people of Texas.

"Be it further resolved that the house of representatives of the Texas legislature be congratulated in the effective manner in which it dealt with this problem for the interests of the people against the interests of greed and monopolies, represented by the Gulf, Sinclair and their henchmen claiming to be independents, who are now violating existing conservation rules.

"Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be given to the press and be mailed to each member of the senate and house."

PATMAN DEMANDS MINIMUM PRICES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (US)—President Hoover today was called upon to convene congress at once in special session to fix minimum prices on agricultural commodities and crude oil, to meet the drastic national crisis of over-production and demoralized markets.

The revolutionary demand was made in a telegram to the White House by Representative Wright Patman, veteran Texas Democrat.

It would fix for illustration, minimum prices of 20 cents a pound on cotton, a dollar a bushel for corn and wheat, and a dollar a barrel for oil.

It followed closely in the wreckage-strewn trail of the agriculture department's estimate yesterday of a bumper cotton crop for the present season, with 13,000,000 bales against 13,000,000 bales last year. Immediately upon publication of the report the already battered cotton markets plunged as much as $7 a bale.

As additional background behind the Patman demand there is the disastrous wheat situation in the West, where prices in the last two months have set new all-time low records and producers have been burning grain in the fields, rather than market it. It followed also the collapse of the oil market to such an extent that Governor Murray, of Oklahoma, has there taken the initiative on his own responsibility, promulgating an arbitrary price of $1 per barrel for crude oil in that state.

Patman's demand provides for a temporary absolute embargo on oil and price-fixed agricultural commodities.

It provides for partial marketing of all farm and oil products on a pro-rata basis, each producers to hold his share of the national surplus.

Tentatively, the Patman plan would allow farmers to market about 50 per cent of their current crop. They would lose heavily on the remaining 50 per cent, but would receive a fair price for the portion sold. This system, he contends, would serve to regulate production next year.

PLAN OF CAMPAIGN DISCUSSED AT AUSTIN

AUSTIN, Aug. 9. (AP)—The plan of campaign to be followed by administration forces in their fight to salvage something from the wreckage of their legislative program was discussed here tonight at a conference between Governor Sterling and house and senate floor leaders.

The conference started shortly after the governor returned from Houston.

Asked what he thought of the situation the governor said: "From the newspaper accounts of what happened in the senate yesterday, the independent operator might just as well hang up his hat and call it a day. If what I understand is true the independent operator will be forced out of business. I haven't had time to scrutinize the bill and do not wish to comment on it until I have had time."

Count Noses

The governor was not in the capitol when the senate threw a bombshell into the administration camp last night when it discarded the Wagstaff bill and substituted one highly objectionable to the governor's floor leaders.

The governor and his counsellors were counting legislative noses to determine the relative strength of the two factions which will tangle in the house tomorrow when the motion to concur in the senate amendments to the Wagstaff bill is made.

The senate substituted a bill by Senator Rawlings of Fort Worth diametrically opposed to the Wagstaff bill which would have permitted the state to prorate production. The Rawlings bill specifically prohibits proration.

Governor Sterling exhibited a sheaf of telegrams received from independent operators urging that something be done by the legislature for proration and its enforcement.

Burford Wires

One telegram signed by F. W. Burford, president of the East Texas Refining company, said: "The time has come when Texas must protect the interests of its individual business men or see us financially retired from the scene and turn the oil business over entirely to the selfish pirates who have no regard for the resources of the state."

Burford reported representatives of Oklahoma refineries were buying East Texas crude at ruinous prices.

"We would like to see the government of Texas show the protective courage manifested by the governor of Oklahoma," Burford said.

In conference with the governor were Senators Walter Woodward of Coleman and W. A. Williamson of San Antonio, and Representatives Alfred Petsch of Fredericksburg, R. M. Wagstaff of Abilene and A. P. Johnson of Carrizo Springs.

All Tricks Used

The last of the administration sanctioned bills was consigned to the legislative graveyard late last night when the senate refused to approve the administration bill to strengthen the conservation statutes, already passed by the house, and substituted one of its own, highly onerous to administration leaders.

Striking while the iron was hot and bringing into play all the tricks of parliamentary procedure, the senate delivered the final blow to the administration hopes when it substituted a bill by Senator Frank Rawlings for the house Wagstaff bill, 16 to 9.

The Rawlings bill would deny the state railroad commission the right to set an allowable production for each pool. The Wagstaff bill would have given the commission authority to prorate production.

The substitute bill was termed by Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman, senate floor leader, and Representative R. M. Wagstaff of Abilene, author of the house bill, as "spineless." Wagstaff stated it was no better than present conservation laws and that the legislature might as well adjourn tomorrow as far as the results of the session were concerned.

Substitute Doomed

Before the substitute bill can become a law it must be passed by the house and approved by the governor. That either of these two contingencies would be overcome successfully was a matter of speculation.

Leaders of the Wagstaff bill in the house said they believed the house would flatly refuse to accept the senate substitution owing to the overwhelming majority by which the Wagstaff bill was approved by the lower body.

Leaders of both factions frankly were dubious about getting any kind of a bill passed if the house called for a free conference committee to adjust the differences between the two bills. The highly controversial subject, the substantial majorities given each bill in its respective house and the limited time of the session all would work against any suitable compromise.

One of the main arguments to be advanced in favor of concurring on a new bill was that the bill would provide a means whereby wastage on gas could be stopped. The bill would authorize the commission to set an oil-gas ratio and would prohibit the blowing of gas into the air.

Waste Defined

The Rawlings bill gave several definitions of waste, including drowning with water any stratum capable of producing oil or gas, waste caused by improper drilling or producing methods, waste caused by equipping, locating, spacing or operating wells as to reduce or tend to reduce the ultimate recovery."

Shortly before the vote was taken on the Rawlings substitute an opinion from Fred Upchurch, assistant attorney general, was read in which he held certain provisions of the Wagstaff bill were unconstitutional. The bill, Upchurch stated, was inconsistent, in one place prohibiting consideration of market demand in prevention of physical waste while in another place it authorized proration in accordance "with the available market."

Wagstaff and Woodward, vigorously denied the bill contained any market demand feature.

Charges were made by Woodward that the Rawlings bill "would suit Harry Sinclair perfectly" and would permit depletion of the state's oil resources with no appreciable benefit to the state, royalty owners or producers. Sinclair has been reported as being the chief buyer of the cheap East Texas oil.

Opponents of the Rawlings substitute claimed it did not speed up court procedure and left the same antiquated legal machinery in force that had made enforcement of the present conservation statutes impossible. The Woodward bill would have given cases involving the commission the right-of-way in both the trial and appeals courts.

It also would have required operators complaining of the commission's orders to post bond to protect adjoining property owners from damage pending determination of suit to enjoin enforcement of the orders. The bond provision was one of the main objections to the Wagstaff bill.

The house tomorrow will face further debate on two more oil bills, one to levy a tax on oil and the other to authorize operation of oil pools on a unit basis without fear of violating the anti-trust laws. The unitization plan was recommended strongly as an effective method of preventing waste by several witnesses during the legislative investigation of the oil industry. It would permit operators in a pool to make agreements as to production and would cut costs by eliminating much unnecessary drilling, proponents argued.

Concurrence in senate amendments to the house pipe line bill also will be sought in the house tomorrow. The senate substituted the Pollard bill for the Davis house bill. Both carried similar provisions and would require ratable purchases and ratable taking of both gas and oil. Proponents will seek to obtain 100 votes to put the bill into immediate effect.

Bell Increases Crude Oil Price

July 16 restored a price of 37 cents per barrel. With the announcement of that price, the concern also declared its willingness to make all new connections possible "up to the limit of its refining capacity." Purchases of crude at the figure named was declared at that time to be "a very attractive investment."

Recent purchases of crude in the Wichita Falls territory, it was said, have been at 42 cents, two cents higher than the present prevailing price among other purchasers. The new figure to be posted Monday morning will represent a two-cent margin above the 50-cent flat quotation recently posted by the Sinclair Refining company, according to the information received.

According to Associated Press dispatches from Tulsa, the advance is to be made general throughout this section of Texas and Oklahoma, and has been occasioned by a definite strengthening of the gasoline market. The Bell Oil and Gas company has a large refining plant at Grandfield, Okla., is engaged in the construction of a skimming plant at Longview, and operates a refinery at Pampa.

Cuba Arms Coast After Revolutionary Rumors

HAVANA, Aug. 9. (US)—Cuba seethed with rumors of impending revolution today as the government, alarmed by reports of filibustering expeditions nipped along the New Jersey coast, spurred the army and navy to rigid precautionary measures.

The realization that Cuba's 2,000 miles of seacoast is particularly vulnerable to revolutionists arriving from foreign soil has prompted the navy department to assign a cruiser, gunboat and special launches equipped with machine guns to patrol duty, particularly along the eastern tip of the island. At the same time, the army has redoubled its vigilance in the interior.

OCEAN FLIER LONG OVERDUE

Fear Felt for Safety of Air Mail Pilot

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 10. (Monday)—(US)—Definite anxiety developed here with the arrival of midnight and no news from Parker D. Cramer, American airman, who was reported as having left Lerwick in the Shetland islands and expected to arrive here at 4:40 yesterday afternoon.

The only news of Cramer since his departure from Lerwick was a wireless message picked up at Blavand radio station early in the afternoon. It was said to have been sent by Cramer and announced that he believed he was at that time over Southern Norway and that he expected to reach Copenhagen shortly before 5 o'clock.

When his plane was reported over the Norwegian coast, a reception committee assembled at the airport to greet the flier who left Detroit, Mich., July 28 to blaze an air mail route across the North Atlantic.

Cramer was forced down at Lerwick, in the Shetland islands, Saturday night, en route from the Faroe islands. He took off from the Faroe islands at noon Saturday in an attempt to reach Bergen, Norway, from where he planned to fly to this city.

Shortly before midnight his monoplane passed over the Shetlands, but storms over the northern coast of Scotland forced him to beat his way back and seek haven at Lerwick.

Two Men Arrested In Forgery Attempt

Forgery charges will be filed here Monday against two Pampa, Texas, men arrested here late Saturday in connection with the passing of a forged check and the attempt to pass a second on the Gulf Production company, according to Frank Burns, chief of police.

One of the men was arrested as he left a clothier's here after he had attempted to pass a check for $70. His companion escaped among the crowds on the street but was later taken into custody at Burkburnett. They had previously cashed a check for a similar amount at a department store here.

Seven blank checks, used for pay rolls, were stolen several weeks ago from the Gulf office at Pampa, it was said. One of the checks was cashed there.

seriously debated. When the bill reached the senate it was felt that it was too severe to pass that body or to escape the veto of President Wilson.

Consequently wine and beer exceptions were again debated. An amendment making home made wine an exception was then written, but the word "wine" was too offensive to the late Wayne B. Wheeler, anti-saloon league czar, and he undertook to redraft it. After three days of thought he hit upon the euphonious term "fruit juices" and this was written in.

With this background, as well as the wording of the act, in mind, members of the farm board hold they are within their rights in aiding concerns that manufacture concentrates although the concentrates may turn to home made wine.

SERVANT HOUSE BURNS

which was already being made up for its early morning edition carrying the accusation that police had made an unwarranted attack on the Communists while they were assembling peacefully in their headquarters to receive the plebescite returns.

By midnight the police cordons that had been thrown around the embattled area were being withdrawn and citizens who fled the district at the first shots were returning to their homes.

First Outbreak

The guerilla warfare here was the first violent outbreak in an election day that had passed off much more quietly than anticipated. The only fatality during the day occurred at Cologne where a member of the "Steel Helmets," world war veterans organization was shot and killed in a dispute with a Communist.

Significant of the unrest throughout Germany as well as Prussia, however, was the announcement that the wreck of the Basle-Frankfort-Berlin passenger train last night in which 51 persons were injured, was the result of sabotage, investigators disclosing that the derailment was the result of an explosion which ripped away 10 feet of railroad.

The wave of radicalism in Prussia, the New York state of Germany, which reached its highwater mark in last September's reichstag elections, broke on the bigger army of non-voters who, urged by the government, stayed away from the polls today to prevent the National-ist-radical group sponsoring the referendum from rolling up the 51 per cent of the reichstag vote necessary to carry their proposal.

100 HURT WHEN TRAIN IS BOMBED

JUETERBOG, Germany, Aug. 9. (AP)—More than 100 pasengers were injured late last night when dynamiters, with the slogan "Hoch, revolution," bombed and derailed the crowded Basel-Frankfort-Berlin express and sent eight cars plunging down a 20-foot embankment.

The bomb was set off as the express rounded a curve. Two passengers were seriously injured, 18 had to be treated in a hospital and 100 others suffered less severe cuts and bruises.

Reichsbaun officials said the derailment obviously was the work of men skilled in handling high explosives. The wreckers hid in bushes about 700 feet from where the charge was placed on the track and the blast was set off electrically.

Five telegraph lines over which news of the wreck might have been quickly flashed over the country were cut and on the telegraph poles were posted copies of the national Socialist newspaper "Angriff" with "Hoch revolution!" scrawled across the first page.

list of all hydro or steam plants they operate which are not federally licensed. They must submit the names of the biggest commercial customers of their licensed plants, together with the gross revenue from these non-utility purchasers. Fifteen pages of questions are submitted and the requests for information are arranged so as to trace inter-corporate relationship even in cases where absolute control is not shown.

The corporate structure study is being conducted by Dr. W. M. splawn, educator, who last winter reported on railroad holding company systems for the house interstate commerce committee.

The study of power economics is to be conducted by the commission's own engineering staff. This is to disclose just how power is transmitted and sold both generally and as restricted to geographical divisions. The relationship of industrial rates to domestic and differences between classes of industrial customers also may be disclosed.

Army Buys U. S. Matches Despite Higher Cost

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (US)—The army and navy are buying American matches now, instead of foreign ones, even if they do cost more.

Recent advertisements for bids on 50 gross of boxes by the San Francisco supply depot brought offers of 69 cents a gross from a Dutch concern and 93 cents a gross from an American firm. It developed today, and the American firm got the order.

The ruling was on the strength of a provision in the last appropriation bill which stipulates preference to domestic goods.

Australian Sends Pure Gold to Pay Fees

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (US)—Money conditions of the middle ages were recalled today, when the National Geographic society received a thin sheet of 24-carat gold from an Australian in payment of fees.

In his letter accompanying the gold sheet, which measured 2¼ inches by 1⅝ inches, the member said:

"Sending metal seems like getting back to barter days, but exchange is getting worse—some seven shillings to the pound sterling now."

A test made of the bag of gold at the government assay office here revealed that it possessed a value of $10.07, being composed of 442.3 grains of gold and 33.3 grains of silver.

A bulletin issued by the society recalled when sheep were "small change," 10 of them being equal in value of one ox.

SPEND... AND SAVE MONEY

NOT so long ago a famous personage advised the American public "to spend." Another equally noted man retorted with the advice "save." Perhaps both were right, but the better policy would seem to be "spend wisely in order to save."

Spending wisely simply means to use your money for those things that you need, as the condition of your purse may warrant—and at the same time, to buy only those articles that have actually proved their quality and worth. By purchasing merchandise that gives the greatest value for the money, you secure the longest service and so save the price of a repurchase.

Thrift is a virtue, but so is wise investment. The advertising in this paper is a reliable guide as to where and when to get the utmost value for your money.

Advertising is a safe and trustworthy guide to sound investment. It has proved its reliability. You buy advertised wares every day—consciously or unconsciously. You buy by name, because you know that the advertised article has served you well in the past, and will continue to do so in the future.

Read the advertisements, that you may spend wisely—and save.

The pages of this newspaper carry the advertisements of reliable merchants and reliable manufacturers. Read them—take advantage of the opportunities they offer.

Favorite Recipes Of Wichita Women

For hot summer days, one of the favorite dishes Mrs. Walter K. Campbell chooses is pressed chicken, which may be prepared many hours in advance and put in the refrigerator or frigidaire all ready to serve for dinner.

Pressed Chicken

Cook the chicken, well seasoned, until it falls off the bone; cook until the liquid is very low then drain it off and let liquid stand until it jellies. Cut the chicken into small pieces with a pair of scissors; slice stuffed olives, hard-boiled eggs and celery with it; mix with the jellied liquid and put in refrigerator in an oblong pan so that when turned out, it may be sliced. Serve on a platter garnished with rings of pepper, lettuce leaves and a few spiced beets.

This is just the season to put up green corn relish, a recipe for which was given by Mrs. L. C. Blakely. It sounds good enough to make a hungry person's mouth water.

Green Corn Relish

Eighteen large ears of corn; one large head of cabbage; six green peppers; four good-sized onions; two quarts of vinegar; one-half pound ground mustard; two pounds of sugar; one-half scant cup of salt; one teaspoon of tumeric. Grind cabbage, pepper and onions; add all other ingredients and cook until tender. Add the corn and cook until done. Seal in jars.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

For the past year we have had countless experiences in ringing a number, waiting a moment and hearing "Special operator, what number are you calling?" We tell them, wondering wearily if this one too is gone and hear the question, "Are you calling John Doe?" and when we say yes, "That phone has been disconnected" is the answer we get.

Another family left town, or maybe another family with members out of work who regard the phone under such conditions as a superfluous luxury. It is disheartening to find so many phones disconnected.

But of late days, our midsummer tuned ears have heard a more cheerful note. Calling numbers that we know should not be disconnected, for the above reasons, we get the same special operator and hear a sentence that would sound like a knell in a schoolgirl or schoolboy's ears, "Temporarily suspended."

Another family away on a vacation; we picture them in so many places. In the Colorado mountains with foaming little pools—fishermen and women wading and casting for mountain trout.

On the coast where a sea breeze brings zest to life; where salt water bathing invigorates the body and change freshens the mind. Or maybe visiting somewhere in a far cool country which is something that on this August day is quite beyond our imagination.

Vacations may be spent in so many pleasant ways but we would ask only cool weather and rest. "Going places and seeing things" is not all that it sounds like when one is limited to time. Sometimes we envy those who do not have to count time.

This year so many Wichitans are spending the vacation period in trips to "cabins" at the lake. Each year a number from this city go to Creede, Colo., where fishing is the recognized sport.

We fancy we would like the Colorado fishing, for while one stays in the shade, he is cool. But deliver us from the fishing in boats on water where the August sun is turning it almost into lava. The fishing we remember with most zest was early morning trolling in the willows on a Mississippi lake, with two stalwart negroes rowing while we watched the trout leap from the water.

Then as the sun began to rise, back to a modern clubhouse where we might have a bath and eat a breakfast of fresh broiled fish, corn cakes and black coffee, which though it sounds indigestible, is food fit for the gods. Baths fit into our ideal vacation.

We have friends who are taking what they call "back yard vacations." Which goes to prove they are the right sort of people. For it has seemed to us that one may almost be classified by the condition of the back lawn—or of the garden.

From our windows we look down upon a little garden that is a picture worth making a trip to see. Gardens that begin to grow sere and weedy in August are the usual thing. But this one is green and hardy and new vegetables grow in it each month. Its paths are all swept and garnished and so far as we know, it has all been done by women. We've watched it often and never yet have we seen a man with a hoe.

Burk Class Honors Former Teacher In Program on Sunday

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Aug. 9.—The program in honor of W. G. (Pat) Morrison, given by the men's class of the Methodist Sunday school here Sunday, honored one of Burkburnett's most respected citizens.

Although Pat Morrison now resides in Electra, he has lived in Burkburnett for many years and was for about four years the teacher of the class. His nick name of "Pat" is not derived from his given name but is solely an acknowledgement of the fact that he was born in Ireland, in the town of Ballymote. An old citizen of Burkburnett who recently was in Ireland visited Pat Morrison's relations there who are people very much respected in the surrounding country.

Pat Morrison came to America when only a few years of age and has lived in Burkburnett and surrounding territory for about 10 years. During the last few years he has been in the automobile business and is now a partner in the Lambert-Morrison Motor company of Electra.

DONLEY TRIES BARTER PLAN

Farmers to Trade Produce For Plains Wheat

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, Aug. 9.—Donley county farmers are willing to resort to early day barter in the disposition of their surplus peas, corn, cucumbers, cantaloupes, tomatoes, melons and the like, according to County Agent Broun, who has been busy the past few days interviewing farmers in the various sections of the county.

The early prosperity of the American farmer came about by his first supplying his own crib and larder and then bartering his surplus produce for foodstuffs and feed he hadn't raised. This new application of an old idea is what the farmers of Donley county are trying to work out now.

Following the principles of successful farming as practiced by local farmers advocated by the extension service and backed up by bankers over all the state, the farmers in this county are canning all the peas, corn, cucumbers, cantaloupes, tomatoes, melons and other produce needed for family use this winter, but there is a surplus which if not disposed of at the proper stage is perishable.

According to County Agent Broun the plan is to set up a system of barter for the next few weeks between the surplus farm produce of Donley county and the surplus wheat of the Plains country. Donley county farmers need the wheat for feed and flour and the Plains need the peas, roasting ears, cucumbers, tomatoes, cantaloupes and watermelons.

With the farmers in every community sponsoring the plan and publicity going out through the papers, the bankers, county agents, chambers of commerce and others it is thought that a stream of trucks from this county loaded with produce would be invading the Plains and come home loaded with wheat, cheap wheat, but just as valuable to Donley county farm homes as the produce will be to the Plains homes.

The plan incorporates the selling of the idea to the Plains farmers as well, and it is thought that there will be hundreds of trucks loaded with wheat coming down into Donley looking for barter for the luscious garden and farm truck of this section.

Wheat can be traded for flour on the basis of three bushels for 100 pounds and since it does not take so many hundred pounds to supply the ordinary family with bread it is hoped that after the bread is supplied there will be lots of wheat fed to stock, hogs and chickens in whole or mixed form. This will help bridge over the period until the feed crops of this county mature this fall.

TILLMAN PLANS THREE LAKES

Murray's Plan for Jobless Gets Approval

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 9.—At least three lakes are expected to be constructed in Tillman county from funds furnished by the state and county, following out the plan of Gov. W. H. Murray to furnish work for the unemployed.

A lake or reservoir is expected to be made in each of the three commissioners' districts. Sites must be donated.

If the various counties adopt the lake idea of Murray's it is claimed by some who have studied the question that it will have a favorable effect on the climate and will prove beneficial to crops. A chain of lakes would lessen the intensity of the hot winds and if stocked with fish would furnish food.

GLIDER FLYING GAINING FAVOR

National Champion Tells Of Sail Planes

By ALBERT E. HASTINGS
National Champion Glider Pilot

ELMIRA, N. Y., Aug. 9. (AP)—Glider flying is like operating a sailboat. Its growing popularity is proved by the increased entry list in this year's national contest now being held here. Last year there were about 25 contestants and this year there are about 50.

The air currents are like the waves on the water and the pressure of the air on the wings like the wind on the sail canvas. A glider floats along gently up and down on the swells of the air as a sailboat glides over the surface of the water, rising and falling with the waves.

Control by "Feel"

Also like the experienced yachtsman, a pilot learns to control his ship by "feel." Almost unconsciously, he maneuvers his plane in a change of air currents before he realizes it.

On the take-off, a glider is shot into the air by two long rubber ropes, known as shock cords. They are stretched out in front in a "V" formation as a schoolboy would place a pebble in a slingshot. Once off the ground, the pilot looks for the air currents and sails about them in order to stay in the air or gain altitude.

There is no noise except for the swish of the air past the face. A pilot can talk to people on the hilltops but he must, in order to hear, put his head inside the cockpit which acts as a sounding board.

I have often been asked: "What does a pilot think about when he is up in the air?" Well, what does an automobile driver think about when he is driving along a smooth, open road?

Watched Street Cars

I remember during the endurance flight last year when I won the Edward S. Evans trophy by staying in the air more than 7½ hours I watched the trolley cars in the streets below. Elmira has the most unique cars. Each one is painted different colors and of different designs. Some are plaids, some rainbows and some are very modernistic.

While flying the course over South mountain here, I generally have companions. There are a number of hawks which accompany me on my flights. They take a formation a few feet off my wings and soar along with me. I follow their flits and study them as I know they are more experienced in soaring than I.

Glider flying is a comparatively young sport in this country. The Germans have become rather proficient because of the limitations put on airplanes after the war but the American utility glider is superior to the German sail plane and when our pilots become more experienced I think many of the records now held by Germany will be brought to this country.

Gliding and soaring are very safe. Gravity, which is the glider's motor, never fails and a ship is easy to handle in any kind of an emergency. During the past two years, I have made approximately 2,200 flights and my only accident was a minor one when my plane's wing tip was slightly damaged in landing on a stoney field near Binghamton last year.

Futility of Force

MEN WILL probably be talking about the lessons taught by the world war for a good many years. But Newton D. Baker the other day expressed the matter in his convocation address at the Williamstown Institute of Politics about as well as any one ever will.

"The first great revelation of the world war," said Mr. Baker, "was that the strongest nation, under modern convictions, dies, like a bee, when it uses its sting. The second great revelation of the world war was undoubtedly the universality of the disaster."

And the second point Mr. Baker amplified as follows:

"The song of the victor, as he contemplated his victim sitting in the ashes of desolation, died in his throat when he remembered the cost of his victory . . . There were too many widows' weeds mingled with the torch bearers in the victory parade, too many 'mutiles' seeking limited re-admission to factories and workshops, particularly there was too much dislocation in the processes of international industry and finance to permit any nation to feel itself safe from a overwhelming share in the common disaster."

Intelligent men have been saying precisely these things ever since the armistice. Except that he has put it much more forcefully, Mr. Baker has said nothing new. But the amazing thing is that we seem to be unable to shape our policies in accordance with these very evident truths.

Every one admits that war is about as costly to the victor as the vanquished—but every nation keeps right on preparing for future wars. Fleets, armies and air forces continue to grow; admirals and generals continue to talk about "security"; congresses and parliaments continue to insist on "adequate defense"—and these mocking truths continue to be ignored.

Our big task today is to understand that the old use of force in international affairs simply doesn't work any longer. When we once make ourselves realise, with Mr. Baker that "the strongest nation dies, like the bee, when it uses its sting," disarmament schemes can be expected to go forward rapidly.

Need Federal Help

THE occasional warning of pessimistic scientists that insects may yet inherit the earth is forcibly called to mind by the present plague of grasshoppers in the western farming states.

Reading of the devastation these pests have caused is almost like reading of the wreckage left by a maurading army.

In one whole county in South Dakota not a vestige of the summer farm crop remained when the grasshoppers had passed—not even a few grains of corn or a bit of alfalfa. Everything that is green and growing has been consumed—everything, down to bushes, flowers, weeds, sunflowers, even thistles, has been stripped here.

The worst of it is that there seems to be no way of checking the invading horde.

One western county spent $25,000 on poison mixtures—and lost its entire crop anyway. Seventy-five thousand dollars worth of poisoned bran preparations were scattered in another state without appreciably affecting the persistent creatures.

In one locality poison was spread by airplanes, and the grasshoppers died by the million; but the next day a new cloud of the insects arrived to take the place of the fallen, and things were as bad as before. In another locality the entire corn crop has been so heavily dusted with arsenic that the farmers have given up all hope of being able to use it for fodder this fall.

All in all, the grasshopper plague has become a national problem. It has struck a region already made financially weak by a long-continued agricultural depression, and the local authorities are admittedly unable to handle it. It seems to be a case for speedy and thorough federal action.

Men who have studied the devastated region say that relief could be had if the federal government would order to the scene the airplane equipment used in the boll weevil dusting campaign in the South. Uncle Sam, beyond a doubt, will soon be getting busy. The harassed farmer had troubles enough before the grasshopper arrived.

Short Route to Europe

THE LINDBERGHS visit to the new Canadian "boom town" of Churchill serves to call attention to the seaport which the dominion is developing on the supposedly barren and inhospitable shores of Hudson bay.

A new railway line to Churchill will shortly be giving the Canadian northwest a new and cheaper route to Europe. Grain from the far western ranches will go overseas from Churchill instead of from Montreal, the expense will be lower and Canadian wheat will have a better chance of competing in the world market.

The ordinary map of North America—especially if it is shown on Mercator's projection—makes the Churchill route to Europe look much longer than the other one. A glance at a globe shows the real situation. Besides, on the Churchill route the expensive rail haul is far shorter.

Portrait Man Talking to Himself

Well, some people's hard luck is another feller's Good Break . . . The crack-up of the round-the-world-plane saved Lloyd's from having to pay a bet to Mr. Herndon . . . If he had beaten the Post-Gatty record Lloyd's would have lost $500,000 . . . That Sylvia Sidney person looks much better since she shelved that excess tonnage . . . Funny, how one's luck changes . . . When they were making tests for Harry Richman's picture, "Puttin' on the Ritz," Joseph M. Schenck turned Sylvia's test down . . . She just finished making a flicker for Schenck, who paid her a mere $2,500 per week . . . Wonder why there isn't a law making workers work at nights instead of days during June, July and August? . . . It is so much more pleasant to do your stint without having to combat the torrid spell, too . . . Poor Mavis King . . . The heroine of all those night club brawls . . . "I wish," she just phoned, "you'd say something in the paper about me being at Flower hospital and that none of my so-called friends have given me a break just when I need it!" . . . Maybe that's why Ethel Merman doesn't waste her oil and gas on her car, and has $100,000 in all those banks after 22 months of warbling ditties . . . It must be grand to feel so secure . . . Then he had to find work so he could eat . . . When his stocks were leaping and bringing in tremendous profits Holtz couldn't be inspired to get comical or even to want to work . . . Why work for $2,000 a week when you could make more than that when your stocks jumped? . . . In fewer words, he had to go broke before he could finger money again . . . His ambitions were aroused—he got desperate . . . And bo!!—what the Broadway heavens.

"MARY FAITH"
by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Mary Faith, comely, young orphan, gives up her position as secretary to the wealthy Mark Nesbitt to marry Kimberly Farrell. Kim, a young, shiftless lawyer lives with his mother. When the latter objects to the marriage, Kim brusquely startles Mary Faith by breaking the engagement. Later, when he sees her with Mark Nesbitt in a jewelry store selecting a ring, his jealousy is aroused. The next morning, he appears at Mary Faith's boarding house and overwhelms her with his protestations of love. She again leaves her position and, after a hasty marriage, they spend an ecstatic two weeks' honeymoon in the house of Kim's aunt in the county. Returning home, Mary Faith goes to the Farrell apartment. Kim's friends, Claire and Jack Maldon, find Mary Faith a dull companion for their jazzy parties. Mary Faith realizes Kim is irritated by her failure to drink and gamble. During the winter, Kim attends the parties alone. Mary Faith takes care of their home but knows nothing of Kim's finances. When he hints at being pinched for money, Mary Faith accedes to his request for $60.

CHAPTER XIX

The next day Kim came home in the middle of the afternoon. His mother had gone to the library for a book and Mary Faith was sitting by the window, reading, when she saw his car stop in front of the building.

She opened the door for him and he dropped down on the window seat without stopping to take off his hat and coat. He was smiling and he took a cigaret out of his pocket and lit it.

"Well," he said, "you won't have to lend me the $60 I asked you for."

"How's that, Kim?" She had brought it home from the bank that morning and it was lying now in the bottom of the drawer where she kept her stockings and handkerchiefs.

"Well, I'll tell you why I wanted that money," he began slowly. "You know, I do a lot of collecting for the firm, and a couple of months ago I collected $60 from an old fellow named Grammas over on the west side."

He took a cigaret from his pocket and struck a match to it.

"I didn't turn it in at the office that day," his voice went slowly on, "and that night I lost every nickel of it playing cards at the Athletic club."

Mary Faith remembered the very night that it must have been. Kim had called her up and told her he was going to play poker with Jack Maldon and some friends of his and that she'd better not wait up for him—he was going to be late.

"I ought to have let everything else go and put that money back right away," Kim said, "but I didn't."

"You can put it back now!" Mary Faith got up from her chair. "I have it in my room. . . . I'll get it—"

He took hold of her wrist and pushed her back into her chair.

"No. It's too late now. You don't think I'm going to admit now that I took it, do you? You must be crazy," he said. "I told them that I turned it over to Miss Brown—she takes care of all that sort of stuff—and I'm never going to tell them anything else. That's my story and I'm stuck with it."

The next night he came home at dinner time and told her that McIntrae & Westover had let him out.

He was very bitter about it.

"When I think of the years I've wasted, working for them!" he said. "Hot-footing it all over town every day, collecting their bills and doing all the rest of their dirty work for them! Why, they haven't ever given me a chance to work on a decent case—and then, by gosh, the first time I don't turn in a piece of money the minute I get it, they kick me out!"

The next night he came home at dinner time and told her that McIntrae and Westover had let him out.

Mary Faith came and sat beside him, laying one of her hands over his. It was no longer white and smooth and pink-tipped as it had been in the days when she was Mark Nesbit's secretary, and it was still without a wedding ring.

"Why don't you take that $60 of mine and give it to Mr. McIntrae?" she asked him. "Why don't you go to him and make a clean breast of the whole thing, Kim? Everybody makes a misstep at some time or other in their lives, and there isn't a dishonest bone in your body, really." Her blue eyes pleaded with him, believed in him, trusted him.

But he wasn't looking at them. He was staring at the floor and his mouth was set in a hard stubborn line.

"No. I'll see him in Calcutta before I go near him," he said. "Besides I don't want his two-penny job any more. He can take it and give it to the office boy.—If I had any money I'd open an office of my own. I'd show them whether I'm a lawyer or not!"

He looked at her then. There was a question written in his face.

"How much would it take—how much money would it take?" Mary Faith asked.

"Well, I wouldn't be able to count on getting very many clients for the first two or three months. I'd have to have a thousand dollars, anyway. You see, it would cost something to keep this flat going and I couldn't rent a decent office for less than a hundred a month. Then I'd have to have a girl to answer the telephone and look after things when I wasn't there."

"All right. I have a thousand dollars and you can have it, Kim," Mary Faith said and watched the look of relief that swept across his face. "I can be your office girl, too, can't I?"

"Oh, no. I may be a poor sort of a husband, but I won't let my wife work in my office," he said promptly and firmly.

Then he caught her in his arms, crushing her close to him. "To think of a little thing like you saving all that money, when I've never saved a red cent!" he said huskily. "Why, you're nothing but a gadget!"

"A very thrifty gadget." Mary Faith laughed, and then sobered all at once. "When I saved that money I didn't know how much happiness I was saving up for myself, Kim," she said.

They didn't let his mother know that he had lost his position with McIntrae & Westover.

"There's no reason why we should," Mary Faith decided. "It will only make her miserable, Kim. We'll simply tell her that you've made up your mind to set up shop for yourself."

And that was what they told her.

"I suppose that was your brilliant idea," she said to Mary Faith the

Gall Bladder Troubles

The gall bladder is situated underneath the liver and is attached to a small duct which leads from the liver to the duodenum. The gall bladder serves the purpose of a small reservoir to hold the slowly formed bile which is discharged from the liver until it is needed in larger quantities for digestion, at which time the gall bladder goes through a series of contractions and discharges the bile into the intestines where it is needed.

When too much bile is manufactured by the liver, the gall bladder may become overworked, and it often becomes inflamed or enlarged. The gall bladder may also become infected from bacteria coming up the common bile duct from the intestines. By far the greatest number of gall bladder disorders arise from either catarrh of the gall bladder or a sluggishness due to lack of exercise. At least three-fourths of all gall bladder cases occur in women and most frequently over 30 years of age. It has been estimated that 25 per cent of all women over 60 years of age have gall stones. Over-eating, improper elimination, and lack of exercise are undoubtedly the important causes. Since the gall bladder acts as a storage vessel to hold the bile until it is needed for digestion, it becomes evident that, whenever there is a sluggish condition or the bile becomes thickened, disease of the gall bladder is likely. Should the small passage coming from the gall bladder become inflamed, there is a partial stoppage of the bile flow. The bile is necessarily retained in the gall bladder and some of it forced back into the liver. It may also be absorbed by the blood, causing a systematic poisoning, bringing on biliousness, headaches, nausea, and sometimes jaundice until the system can absorb the accumulated bile and throw it out through the kidneys or some other channel.

Inflammation of the gall bladder may exist with or without gall stones. It is often extremely difficult to diagnose between inflammation or catarrh of the gall bladder and gall stones. Even the x-ray cannot always be depended upon to discover gall stones.

There are two types of gall stones, one consisting largely of cholesterol pigments and the other consisting principally of lime and magnesium salts. The gall bladder seems to be able to hold some of these stones without special symptoms other than headaches and slight yellowness of the skin. The patients never appear perfectly healthy, however, and usually have a feeling of dullness or oppression in the stomach and right side.

One large gall stone is not likely to cause as much distress as several small ones. The reason for this is that the large one stays in the gall bladder and is prevented from injuring that organ by the bile acting as a lubricant. The smaller ones cause irritation by being able to escape from the gall bladder and make their way down the narrow bile duct into the intestines. The passing of a gall stone produces what is known as gall stone colic accompanied by violent pain. The colic does not always occur even though there are gall stones, but, when it does occur, it is often so intensely painful that to most patients it seems unbearable. Sometimes the gall bladder goes through an acute inflammatory process from the effect of numerous gall stones rubbing against it. The patients sometimes recover after an attack in a few days and do not notice any symptoms for a few months until another attack occurs.

(Look for the treatment of gall bladder troubles in tomorrow's article.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Fractured Tibia

Question—J. B. asks: "How long does it generally take for a fractured tibia, five inches above ankle, to heal, and what are the foods one should use to help in the process?"

Answer—It would be difficult for me to determine the length of time it would take for the bone to knit, without first carefully examining the fracture. The foods containing calcium, large quantities of which are found in cress, lettuce, spinach, cabbage, Swiss chard, turnips, lemons, oranges, milk, cottage cheese, asparagus and strawberries, are the most valuable to use during the repair of a fracture.

Sun Dried Whole Wheat Wafers

Question—Mrs. A. C. asks: "Will you give me your opinion of a whole wheat wafer made of genuine whole wheat flour, honey, almond butter and distilled water? The dough is rolled one-fourth inch thick, cut into wafers, and dried in the sun."

Answer — The combination of whole wheat flour and almond butter may be used, but the addition of honey might cause some gas. I do not believe that cereals are as easily digested when raw as when they are well cooked. Some raw foods are necessary to health, but one obtains the greatest benefit from the green vegetables and fruits.

Advice Before Marriage

Question—J. L. N. writes: "I am intending to get married soon, and wonder if there is any place I can get some helpful advice, as I am much in the dark about the subject."

Answer—There are a number of good books for newly married couples. Bernarr Macfadden has written several which would be helpful. A good book is "The Hygiene of Sex," by Von Gruber.

SPUDS WIN NIGHTCAP, 7-3 AFTER PANTHERS TAKE FIRST, 4-2

WHITE TURNS IN VICTORY

Whitworth Bests Pressnell In Opener

Special to The Record News.

FORT WORTH, Aug. 9.—After Dick Whitworth had tamed Wichita Falls 4 to 2 in the first game, the Spudders came back to take the nightcap from the Panthers, 7 to 3. An early start off Jinx Harris, rookie Panther right-hander, enabled the Spuds to win the second game.

Pressnell opposed Whitworth in the first game, while Les White was on the mound for the Spudders in the nightcap. Harris started for the Panthers, but was blasted from the mound in the first inning. Leon Chagnon went in and held the Spuds until the fifth when he was forced to the showers in favor of Paul Gribble.

Cats Score Early

Fort Worth took the lead in the opening game with a run in the first inning. Frey opened with a single to left and after Dalrymple had fouled out, stole second. Fitzgerald walked. Bennett doubled against the center field fence, scoring Frey and sending Fitzgerald to third. Brown hit a dunker back of short, which Scharein dropped but recovered in time to get Fitzgerald at the plate. The Spudders had been given a life in their half of the inning when Bennett dropped Allday's fly.

Scharein received credit for a triple in the second when Bennett failed in his attempt for a shoestring catch. Then Whitworth walked Euller, but no damage came from either. Two more Panther runs came in the inning when Dalrymple's triple to left found Krauss and Whitworth on the paths. Engle had walked. Krauss singled and Whitworth forced Engle at second before the three base wallop.

The third continued along the lines of the previous innings, but there was no scoring. There was little variation in the fourth. Brown bounced a double off the left field fence for the only excitement in the fifth inning.

Spuds Score Two

Frey lost Stanton's fly in the sun and it went for a double, starting the Spudders off to two runs in the sixth. Badgro singled to right, scoring Stanton and went to second on the throw-in. He scored on Fuss' single to left. Frey gave the Cats a single, but was caught stealing.

After the Spudders had gone out in order, the Cats added a run in the seventh. Dalrymple singled, went to second on Fitzgerald's sacrifice, to third on Bennett's fly and scored on Brown's single to center.

Only three Spudders faced Whitworth in the eighth, while the Cats got a life when Euller booted Baker's grounder, but nothing came of it.

The Spudders threatened in the ninth after one was down, but Whitworth breezed them across to strike out a pinch hitter and the next batter. Scharein singled to center and Euller walked to cause the tense moments, but Bradbury, batting for Pressnell, whiffed and Gerken did likewise.

Second Game

In the second game the Cats needed two pitchers to retire the Spudders in the first inning when three runs were scored. J. Harris tsarted and walked Gerken and Allday. Stanton singled to center to score both runners after Krauss' wide throw to second attempting to catch Allday off the bag had advanced them. Chagnon replaced J. Harris. Badgro sacrificed Stanton to second. He went to third on an infield out and scored on Fuss' single to center. White started off with a pair of strike outs at the Cats' expense. Baker's single after two were down was the only offensive work by either team in the second.

Both teams put the first runner on in the third, but neither scored. Gerken singled for the Spudders, while Krauss bounced the ball off the left field fence for only a single.

Bennett pulled a sensational one handed catch to keep the Spudders from scoring in the fourth. Bradbury had doubled to left when Fuss lined the ball to right field. Bennett raced over, grabbed the ball with one hand and then made a perfect throw to Engle, doubling Bradbury off second. Fitzgerald and Brown singled, but outs were properly placed to keep the Cats from scoring.

Spuds Chase Chagnon

The Spuds went on a spree in the fifth, chasing Chagnon. Euller opened with a home run over the left field fence. White tripled to right and scored on a foul to Bennett. Stanton singled and scored on Badgro's triple to right. Bradbury singled, scoring Badgro and Gribble came in to relieve Chagnon. He caused Fuss to lift a fly. Four hits gave the Cats two runs. Krauss singled and Carleton was sent to run for him. Gribble singled, sending Carleton to second. Frey flied out, but Dalrymple got a scratch hit to third, filling the bases. Carleton scored on Fitzgerald's fly to right. Bennett singled off the left field fence, scoring Gribble. Brown forced Bennett for the third out.

Gribble limited the Spudders to a single by White in the sixth. After two were down, Carleton spanked a single to right and scored on Gribble's double to center. Paul went to third on the play at the plate.

Allday walked to start the Spudder's seventh and took second on Stanton's sacrifice. Badgro singled through the box and Bradbury hit into a double play to end the inning. The Cats were helpless in their half of the final inning.

"Dizzy" Dean worked the last two rounds, warming up his priceless right arm for Wednesday night's title playoff contest here against Beaumont.

STEERS DIVIDE

DALLAS, Aug. 9. (AP)—Dallas and Shreveport divided a double-header here today. The locals won the first, a 13-inning battle, 1 to 0. The visitors won the second, 6 to 3, overtaking Dallas' early three-run lead.

The first game was one of the longest staged at Steer stadium. George Murray of Dallas and Lefty Lee for Shreveport went the route. The steers won in the 13th when James, first up, walked. Atwood sacrificed him to second and Loepp walked. Langford, up for the sixth time without a hit to his credit, lashed a single through the right side and James slid across the plate with the ball game one step ahead of Radcliff's perfect peg to Catcher Rowland.

The second game was a listless affair. The Steers got away with a three-run lead, but Lefty Minogue weakened and the Sports put down a hitting barrage that Minogue, Garland and Mallet could not stop. Scores:

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 9. (AP)—Good, bad and indifferent baseball featured today's twin bill here which was evenly divided by Galveston and Beaumont, the Pirates running up a 11 to 6 score to capture the first game while the Exporters snatched the nightcap, 6 to 5. Thurman had the better of four Exporter chunkers in the opener, scattering nine hits while his buddies were smacking out 15 at timely moments. Buck Marrow saved the second game for Goldstein when the Jewish right-hander weakened in the fifth. Goldy started the first game, too, but was blasted out of the box in the opening round. Bednar was the losing twirler in the afterpiece. White and Ballew each socked a couple of triples during the games. Scores:

Boosters Whip Star Transfer Nine, 4-2

Ronie Glidewell, ace of the I. O. Boosters, and Scoot Williams of Star Transfer, hooked up Sunday afternoon at Katy park in an airtight pitchers battle until Williams weakened in the seventh inning and gave way to Satterwhite while the Boosters won a 4 to 2 decision. Glidewell gave up only four hits while Williams was touched for six. Eddie Satterwhite turned in a neat bit of relief pitching for Star in the last inning. There was several bits of nice fielding during the game with Milton Marshall and Wesley Thompson leading the way in this department. Score:

MACKS WHIP YANKS. 5 TO 3

Grove Goes to Rescue Of Mahaffey

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (AP)—Wise Connie Mack fooled the fans by starting young Roy Mahaffey against the Yankees today but before the battle was over he had to call on the man everybody expected him to start, Lefty Grove, to protect the Athletics' lead and give the champions a 5 to 3 victory.

The Yanks won the series, however, two games to one, and that came close to pleasing the crowd of 50,000 that gave the last clash the aspect of a little world's series.

Simmons proved the big batting factor in the Athletics' triumph. In the third inning he clouted a home run with a man on base. He hit another homer in the seventh, completing the downfall of George Pipgras and bringing his total for the season to 19. He rapped out a single as well. Score:

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 9. (AP)—Detroit hammered three Cleveland pitchers for 14 hits today, including 12 off Sarge Connally, and won, 9 to 8. The game was a loosely pitched affair with both teams using three pitchers.

Falk's pinch hit home run in the eighth came with no one on base and failed to help the Cleveland cause. Hale also hit for the circuit. Eddie Morgan hit safely in three times at bat for a perfect day. Score:

Grocers Win Last Half League Title

Flip Hoskins spotted the Modern Woodmen three runs Sunday afternoon at Katy park, then pitched the scrappy little Sullivans grocery nine to an 11 to 3 victory and the championship of the last half in the City league.

Hoskins got away to a bad start in the first inning when three of the seven Woodmen hits were bunched for two runs, but after that the big left-hander was exceedingly stingy with base hits and seven men went down before him over the strikeout route. Specks Bell pitched nice ball for the Woodmen for eight innings, holding Sullivans to eight bingles.

Lois Anderson, the Sullivan speed king, was the co-star with the big left-handed mound ace. Anderson getting three singles and a double in five trips to the plate, stealing three bases, twice to bring the fans to their feet by stealing home. The hard-hitting J. C. Anderson seemed to shake his recent slump and slammed out two doubles and a single in five trips. Score:

CUBS DEFEAT CARDS, 1 TO 0

Guy Bush Holds Champs To Single Hit

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9. (AP)—Guy Bush barely missed baseball's hall of fame here today as the Chicago Cubs defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 1 to 0. Vincent Barton's home run in the second inning accounting for the only run of the game. The only hit Bush allowed the Cardinals went to George Watkins, who beat out a slow roller to English by the narrowest of margins.

The game ended the series in favor of the Cardinals two games to one and reduced the St. Louisians' lead over the second place Giants to seven games. The Cubs are just one percentage point behind the Giants.

Paul Derringer was nearly as good as Bush, allowing only three hits in the eight innings he pitched.

It was "Derringer day" at Sportsman's park and several hundred fans came from West Frankfort, Derringer's home town and from other parts of Southern Illinois. The Illinois fans presented big Paul with a radio set and a set of golf clubs instead of the traditional traveling bag. Score:

McCarty and McPhail Meet Today For Wichita Falls Singles Title

BIG SPRING, Texas, Aug. 9. (AP)—Tom McCarty of Wichita Falls won the singles championship of the West Texas tennis tournament here today in a nip and tuck battle with Ferguson of Midland.

Ferguson rallied sharply forcing McCarty to the limit before giving way.

The score was 6-3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3.

Ballard and Lowe, Abilene's doubles team, pulled the prize upset of the tourney when they triumphed over Cook and McPhail of Wichita Falls 6-1, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3, to win the doubles championship.

Cook and McPhail went into the finals strong favorites to win the title.

By BILL JENKINS

The city tennis tournament will reach a climax today when Tom McCarty and Raymond McPhail, back from a splendid showing in the West Texas tournament at Big Spring, will fight it out for the singles championship of Wichita Falls.

Both swept through the early rounds of the tournament last week. The final match is scheduled for 5:15 o'clock this afternoon on the Weeks park courts.

McCarty defeated McPhail in the tournament held at Big Spring last week, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. Although this was not overwhelming victory it will place McCarty in the position of favorite.

These two players have eliminated many capable netters in their advance to the finals. McCarty ousted the two Powers brothers, Oscar in the quarter-finals and Bill in the semifinals, while McPhail defeated Clifton Haynes and Charles Cook.

The only other matches scheduled for today are in the class A doubles. Bill Powers and Clifton Haynes will meet J. B. Hathorn and Isadore Cohen, while Al Parker and Clifford Hall will engage Lee Burgner and Dave Williamson. Both of these matches will be played on the Weeks park courts, the first at 5 p. m. and the second at 6:30 p. m.

Play has been completed in every division of the tournament with the exception of the class A singles and doubles. The finals of the doubles will be played Wednesday or Thursday.

Bull Fights in Spain Attract Charlie Chaplin

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Aug. 9. (US)—A crowd packing the bull ring here this afternoon rose to its feet and cheered wildly, with hundreds of Senoritas waving their hands, as Charlie Chaplin, from the front row, watched Spain's leading toreadors kill eight bulls.

Charlie was somewhat upset during the first fight, and closed his eyes and put his fingers in his ears as a huge bull crashed into a picador's horse. Later he gathered up interest in the fights as they proceeded.

"That's right," replied the other. "But now she's content to lay it down."—The Humorist.

next morning after Kim had left the house to hunt for an office. "But I think he'd have been much better off if he'd stayed right where he was, making $60 a week and having no responsibility at all! Suppose he fails—what then?"

"He won't fail. Don't you worry about his failing," Mary Faith said light-heartedly. She was very happy that morning.

She glad to have Kim away from the offices of McIntrae and Westover. Perhaps he wouldn't see so much of Jack Madden and his crowd of card-playing friends now that he was no longer working with them.

"And that Janet girl—" she went on thinking, as she rinsed the pink-sprigged china dishes and began to wipe them. "She won't be under his nose all day long any more, either." She never had asked Kim about the girl named Janet, but she always had a feeling that she was still working for McIntrae and Westover.

On Friday Kim drove her downtown to the Towers building and showed her the office he had rented. The Towers building was old and its elevator made Mary Faith think of a bird cage. A very old and rusty one.

"It's not much of a building," Kim said apologetically, "but I won't have to stay here forever."

His office was on the eighth floor. It was small and its one and only window looked out into the well of the building.

"I got it for 90 smackers a month," he announced proudly, "and I signed a lease for six months. By the end of that time I'll be able to afford a better place—what do you bet I won't?"

"I know you will," Mary Faith told him. "You're hard stuff, Kim, and you're sure to win out. The germ of failure just isn't in you!" She meant it with all her heart. Her confidence in him was boundless.

He showed her where his desk would stand and where his office girl's desk would stand. He took a ruler out of his coat pocket and measured the fall where he would put his filing cabinet and his bookcases.

When he had finished Mary Faith put out her hand for the ruler. "I'll measure the window and make you a pair of net sash curtains for it, Kim. And, Kim, let me tell you about a place where you can pick up a rug and whatever furniture for almost nothing. It's a second-hand store that deals in office furniture. I know about it because Mr. Nesbit sold some of our old desks there last year—"

"Don't talk to me about him," Kim said sharply. He was still jealous of Mark Nesbit. "He and his office furniture don't interest me a little bit."

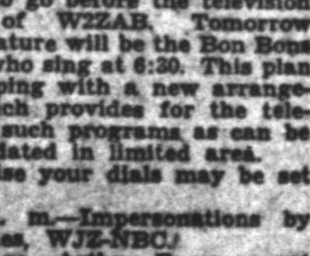

The office was all ready to be occupied on the last of April. On the first day of May, which was a Saturday, Kim took Mary Faith down to see it and she put up the cream-colored net curtains that she had made and presented him with a leather desk set that she had bought for a surprise.

"Did you hire an office girl?" she asked suddenly on their way home. Kim nodded.

"What's her name?"

"Miss McCune."

Garden Wall and Pen Name Screen 'Michael Strange'

"Michael Strange," who is Mrs. Harrison Tweed in private life, made a Georgetown garden in the national capital her workshop while writing the play which is scheduled for fall production in New York.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (AP)—A Georgetown garden, secluded and intimate, was workshop for Michael Strange in writing her drama, "The Byrons," scheduled for Broadway production this fall.

Washington caught only fleeting glimpses of her for the two summer months when she was finding isolation for her work behind the high brick walls that are Georgetown's boast.

There, in imagination, she relived the romantic life of Lady Byron, a role she herself was to portray in the first presentation of her play at Westchester playhouse.

Michael Strange has long had a habit of hiding behind a mannish-sounding pseudonym as well as behind garden walls to do her work.

Her contention has been that prominent women authors have traded too briskly on merely being prominent women authors.

She has therefore sent her work forth without benefit of feminine beauty or family background.

Of both she has a large assortment:

Beauty—a wealth of glinty-chestnut hair in natural waves; a smooth-tanned skin making even teeth appear still whiter; big brown eyes; slender figure; lithesome manner; and abundant poise.

Background—Born Blanche Oelrichs, daughter of Mrs. Charles M. Oelrichs of New York's smart set; best known as the former Mrs. John Barrymore; now, in private life, Mrs. Harrison Tweed of New York.

GASOLINE HAS BULLISH TONE

Uncertainty of Oil Supply Felt in Oklahoma

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 9.—Oklahoma refiners now are experiencing the first "bull" gasoline market which they have known for many months.

With the uncertainity of a continual crude oil supply, refiners have resorted to a policy of "cautious selling," the reverse of a situation exisitng for the last year in which it has been a buyer's market.

The price of U. S. Motor gasoline continues to advance as the supply of the product becomes tighter.

Oklahoma refiners continue to report the withdrawal of spot quotations, and each sale is made upon its own basis.

Common U. S. Motor gasoline sales are from 3¾ cents a gallon to 4 cents, in tankcar lots, f. o. b. group 3, with the possibility that the minimum price will exceed 4 cents a gallon today.

No one can foresee, as the shutdown movement continues to gather momentum, what the market will be when it opens Monday morning.

Those few refiners in Oklahoma who are depending on the stripper wells for their crude oil supply and who have it tied up by contract, are reaping the benefits of the present shut down.

Those refiners who must draw on their storage for the crude charges have practically restricted themselves to production in fulfillment of contractual obligations and will consider only a price from one-fourth cent to three-eighths cents above the quoted price for spot sales.

Because of the campaign in the last year to bring about a reduction of gasoline stocks, few of the smaller independent refiners will find themselves able to draw on a reserve of any size.

Chicago interests are quoting ruling price on U. S. Motor at 3¾ cents to 3¾ cents a gallon, with quotations subject to confirmation, but will find it necessary to hike these as no purchases can be made.

Natural gasoline today jumped above four cents a gallon for all grades, in tanker lots from Group 3. Grade double A is selling from 4⅛ cents to 4⅜ cents with Grade A 4⅜ cents to 4½ cents. Other grades are 4½ cents.

One manufacturer estimates that production in Oklahoma had been curtailed more than 50 per cent by the shut down.

All major manufacturers are in the market for material, but are finding they must pay the price asked if they get the gasoline

DANIEL PAYS PAUL TRIBUTE

Kay Class Told of His Conversion

Contrast between the life of Saul, citizen of Tarsus, and Paul, apostle of Jesus Christ, was drawn by Roy J. Daniel before members of the Kay Bible class of the First Methodist church Sunday morning.

Mr. Daniel's talk was a review of the life of Paul, "tent-maker and lawyer by training, but Christian missionary by conviction." The writings of Paul, he said, have come down to us "as gems of literature and as true exponents of Christian faith and doctrine."

The address in part was as follows:

"With our good friend Bill Murray over there in Oklahoma just across Red river carrying on the way he is—opening free bridges and closing down oil wells—it will be a little difficult this morning to talk to you about that saint and apostle of the long ago Saint Paul. But if Murray makes possible dollar oil there are many oil men in both Texas and Oklahoma who will favor Alfalfa Bill not only for the presidency but also for sainthood.

"I want to talk to you about Paul's life both 'fore' and 'aft'—both before the power of Christ came into his life and after that power made a new man of him. His 'fore' name was Saul; his 'aft' name was Paul.

"Saul was born at Tarsus. He said of his own home town that it was 'no mean city.' His parents were Jews, and his father had also acquired the coveted honor and protection of citizenship in the Roman empire. Thus Saul was also a Roman citizen by right of birth and inheritance from his father. As a youth he attended school in Tarsus, and during that period of his life he was taught the useful trade of tent-making. Every Hebrew boy was brought up to learn some useful trade—taught useful training for hands as well as for minds.

Studied Law

"After attending school in Tarsus the young man was sent to Jerusalem where he studied under Gamaliel, who was a great law teacher. He became thoroughly learned in the Mosaic law, and became a strict bigoted Pharisee. It is likely in his early twenties Saul became a member of the Jerusalem Sanhedrin, the governing body of the synagogue. He bitterly opposed the Christians. He went with the synagogue party that stoned Stephen to death, and held their garments while they did the dirty and dastardly work. Later he received permission and authority from the synagogue to go into the homes of Christians, to arrest them, to put them in chains, to drag them to Jerusalem for trial. He was given authority to arrest both men and women who had become followers of Christ. Now he not only had the authority but he used it to the great injury and fear and havoc to many hundreds in and around Jerusalem.

"Armed with authority and accompanied by assistants Saul set out from Jerusalem for Damascus, the oldest city in the world, to arrest any followers of Christ found in that city. On the road at noonday as the sun was beating down with all its might a strong light hit Saul and his followers and they were thrown from their horses into the dusty road. Saul saw Christ. Then he was stricken blind and he heard a voice saying, 'Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?' His companions heard voices but saw no man. Saul in his blind helplessness answered, 'Lord, what wilt thou have me do?' Saul was told to go into the city of Damascus and he would be told what to do. Saul obeyed. He was led to the house of Judas on the street called Straight and remained three days blinded. He spent those three days in prayer and meditation. At the end of that period of time his sight was restored. He looked upon Ananias and found the man he came to arrest and take to Jerusalem doing all he could for him and trying to be his friend. Ananias baptised Saul and he remained for awhile with the disciples in Damascus. Thru mercy was Saul changed from a blasphemer and a persecuter. Saul began to preach at Damascus, and the Jews there tried to take his life but he escaped by being lowered over the wall in a basket by some of his friends.

"After Saul became a Christian his name was changed to Paul. Paul wanted to carry the gospel to his own race but the call came to carry it to the Gentiles. Paul saw the man over in Macedonia facing toward Jerusalem and crying out, 'Come over and help us.' After his conversion Paul remained three years in Damascus. Then he returned to Jerusalem. The Christians in Jerusalem feared him. At first they doubted his change of heart and were afraid to trust or accept him in their meetings and councils. But he told them he claimed the title of apostle because he saw Christ in person on the Damascus road. Paul had a friend who came to his rescue and vouched for him. Barnabas told them that Paul had really changed and had become a Christian and was no longer the cruel, blood-thirsty persecutor of former days. A friend in need is a friend indeed. Barnabas was that kind of a friend to Paul when Paul sought connection with the Christian church in Jerusalem.

Preached as Prisoner

"Paul was educated in the Hebrew, Latin and Greek. In the great Greek city of Athens he talked to the people in Greek and told them that the god they ignorantly worshipped in the statue to the Unknown God was the God he came to reveal to them through His son Jesus Christ. In three main missionary journeys Paul carried the gospel to hundreds of cities and towns and won thousands to the church. One ambition of Paul's was to carry the gospel to Rome. That ambition came to be a reality although he went to Rome as a prisoner. After his arrest he had carried an appeal to Caesar on the grounds of his Roman citizenship and could not be denied. For two years in his own house, guarded by a detail of only one Roman soldier, he preached the gospel to all who came to see him and hear him.

"Paul was a short man in stature, and not very prepossessing in appearance. What he lacked in public speaking he made up for in writing—letter writing. He wrote many letters to the various churches he founded, and by means of those letters he kept burning the fires of Christianity. Those wonderful letters have come down to us in the Bible as gems of literature and as true exponents of Christian faith and doctrine.

"More religious books have been written about Paul than any other character in the Bible except Christ. Paul said that for him to live was to work for Christ. He was willing to die for his faith and did die for it when he was beheaded by order of the Roman Caesar, Nero. From all the wonderful things Paul wrote and spoke there is nothing more worthwhile for us to remember this morning than his statement: 'I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.' Let us try to carry out our visions and like Paul begin again.

"There is a land of beginning again,
Where skies are always blue;
Though we've made mistakes, that's true,
Let's forget the past and start life anew."

Boys Club Told Need Of Cleanliness of Heart

"Bodily cleanliness is right and proper, and keeps down disease within the body, but the most important cleanliness in life is that of the heart," Early Van Deventer told members of the Wichita Boys club Sunday morning.

Keeping the mind free from evil thoughts is a direct course to a clean and Godlike character, Mr. Van Deventer told his hearers.

"You will recall," he said, "that on an occasion related in the Bible, Jesus and His disciples were being criticised by religious leaders in Jerusalem because they ate with unwashed hands. Leaders in the Jewish religious practice at that time made a great fuss about having their hands clean. Often they washed the hands several times during a meal, and seemed to think they were doing their religious duty in such an act.

"Jesus read them a lesson about cleanliness. He told them that man is not defiled by what goes into his body but by what proceeds from his heart."

800 ATTEND UNION SERVICE

Montgomery Urges Use Of Talents for Christ

Worshippers numbering about 800 present Sunday night at the Memorial auditorium for the second union service of the month were admonished by Rev. J. E. Montgomery, pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church, to utilize their talents, however limited, for the service of Christ and the glory of their Maker.

The speaker chose for his text the second verse of the fourth chapter of Exodus, which reads: "And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand?" And he (Moses) said, 'A rod.'" A brief exposition of the passage set forth that the tremendous accomplishments of Moses for the Hebrew race and for the Christian faith which was to come were the result of his willingness to place his every ability in the hands of God.

Simple Weapons

Numerous illustrations were drawn from Biblical narratives to point the need for individual consecration of talent, and for trust in the power of God to render human agencies capable of superhuman accomplishment.

"In the book of Judges," the speaker said, "you read of Israel's delivery from the Philistine hosts through the valor of Shamgar. But the account does not relate that Shamgar's victory was the result of his possession of a stronger shield and longer spear than those of his enemies. His weapon was nothing more than an ox goad: the simple implement of a shepherd was converted into a conquering machine of war through Shamgar's devotion to Jehovah's cause.

"Our talents, like his weapon, may be negligible; but if we are willing to put our trust in God, we can bring great things to pass. David, a ruddy-faced shepherd lad, carried in his hand but the commonplace plaything of such boys—a slingshot. Yet when destruction in the person of the mighty Goliath threatened David's home and countrymen, the lad stepped into the breach with the only weapon in whose use he was vested. But added to the accuracy of his eye, the strength of his sinewed arm, watching over His people.

"The Scriptures tell us in a few words of a widow who quietly, almost fearfully, approached the offering box at the temple, and dropped therein a meager sum—two mites. In the work of that church, her contribution could do little in a material way. She knew it. Yet the devotion of her soul has moved countless Christians of subsequent generations to give thousands and millions for the same cause.

"Dorcas had for her equipment but needles and thread. Yet as she passed through the streets, making and mending garments for the needy, her deeds preached eloquent sermons of the Master who taught that loving service is the essence of living.

"Finally, the apostle Paul was challenged with the same question: What had he in his hand? Recognized Roman citizenship, high birth, extensive education and a naturally keen intellect. His answer was, 'Into the service of Jesus Christ I give my all; my life, my talent, my mind, my strength, all that I am and have.' Not Paul's talents, but his whole-souled consecration to the Savior, made of the proud youth from Tarsus the outstanding pillar of the church which rose upon the glorious foundation of a crucified Christ."

Miss Harriett Bradley, mezzo-soprano, sang "The Blind Ploughman," by Coningsby Clarke, accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, just before the sermon. The opening song service was conducted by B. D. Sartin, with Mrs. R. E. Shepherd at the piano. Leo M. Underwood's band gave a short concert of sacred numbers at the opening of the service. Harry Hines presided over the meeting.

Wilbarger Leaders Complete Crop Survey

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Aug. 9.—An inspection tour of five farm irrigation projects in Wilbarger county has just been completed by a group of Vernon business men and farmers, the tour being sponsored by the agriculture committee of the Vernon Chamber of Commerce, of which W. N. Martin is chairman.

The trip required two afternoons, and was made to acquaint leaders here with what is being done by irrigation in this county and to encourage development of the possibilities of this type of farming here.

Farms of L. A. Huddleston, J. H. Pettit, J. E. Stegall, S. W. McLarty and the W. T. Waggoner estate were visited.

The first four farms mentioned have projects varying from two acres to 25 acres under irrigation. Principal crops being grown are cantaloupes, tomatoes, potatoes, okra, peppers, peas, corn and alfalfa. Water is supplied from shallow wells, ranging from 25 to 40 feet deep, the water being pumped by electricity or gasoline engines. The water supply is plentiful and the soil is of a sandy nature and very fertile. Because of its sandy quality, no trouble is experienced through "water-logging."

The Waggoner irrigation project is yet incomplete. However, a huge dam on Beaver creek, 14 miles south of Vernon, has been completed and water is impounded covering 2,000 acres when the lake is full. It now has 18 feet of water and will be over 30 feet deep at the dam when filled.

KIWANIS PROGRAM

Discussion of business standards in the light of the Kiwanis code of ethics, directed by Dudley B. Foy and musical numbers by Miss Viola Grace Doern, violinist, will comprise the program to be heard by members of the Kiwanis club Monday noon at the Wichita club.

A short address by J. S. Hargett, general manager of the Wichita Mill and Elevator company, will be included in the consideration of business standards. Miss Doern will be accompanied by Mrs. Wayne Barker, pianist.

Wichita Woman In Serious Condition From Spider Bite

Bitten by a spider, Mrs. B. H. Conant, 908 Jalonie street, was in a serious condition at the Wichita General hospital Sunday afternoon.

Shortly after noon, it was said, Mrs. Conant picked up a slipper, running her hand into it, where the spider bit her on the tip of her finger.

Believing the bite to be not dangerous, the woman waited several hours before reporting to the hospital. Venom of the insect had then spread through the system.

Although serious, Mrs. Conant's condition is not critical, hospital attendants said, explaining time will be necessary to determine the outcome of the injury.

Young Bandit Robs Ice Dock at Quanah

QUANAH, Texas, Aug. 9.—A lone bandit, masked, held up the attendant and robbed the uptown ice dock of the West Texas Utilities of about $3 Friday morning, H. B. Benton, employe on duty, was forced to lie flat on the floor while the intruder searched the cash drawer. The robber attempted to make Benton open the safe but Benton declared he did not know the combination.

Benton stated the hijacker appeared to be a youth about 19 or 20. The description of the gunman fitted that given by Woodrow Tawater of the man who robbed the Gulf filling station on Main street a few days before. In both instances the hijacker displayed unusual nervousness and the procedure of handling his victims was the same. A few dollars was secured also at the Gulf station.
