Ginsburg nominated for Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton today selected Judge Ruth Bader Ginsburg for his first Supreme Court vacancy, White House officials said, ending a three-month search by turning to a onetime crusader for women's rights with a reputation as a moderate jurist.

Ginsburg quickly accepted the president's offer, the officials said, and Clinton scheduled a 2 p.m. EDT news conference to announce the first Supreme Court nomination by a Democratic president in a generation.

If confirmed by the Senate, Ginsburg, 60, would take the seat of retiring Justice Byron White and become the second woman on the high court, joining Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

Ginsburg got the offer after the White House spent the weekend reviewing her background. Officials said Clinton picked from Ginsburg, Judge Stephen Breyer of Boston and Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt.

Clinton called Breyer and Babbitt this morning to inform them of his decision, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

On Capitol Hill, several senators predicted Ginsburg would have little trouble being confirmed, including Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah, ranking Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Harvard Law School Professor Alan Dershowitz, however, said today he thought Ginsburg was "a very average judge. ... I think the president is clearly reaching down to put her on the court."

As a judge, Ginsburg's reputation is as a moderate, but she was considered a liberal during her years as a practicing attorney, which included seven years as general counsel to the American Civil Liberties Union.

Late last week, Breyer appeared the favorite, visiting the White House for an interview with Clinton just hours after being released from a Boston-area hospital. Over

Q—How does the rainfall amount this year for Snyder compare with the past year or two?

A—According to figures from the water plant, Snyder has received 9.06 inches so far in 1993. That compares to June 12 figures of 16.31 inches last year, and 8.27 inches in 1991.

In Brief

Fatal accident

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities say they are not liable for the death of a 5-year-old boy whose mother's car was struck by a stolen vehicle being chased by an Aldine school district police officer.

Andre Martel Turner of Houston was pronounced dead at Hermann Hospital late Saturday. His mother, Alice Turner-Perkins, was treated and released, hospital officials said.

Aldine Independent School District assistant superintendent Roy Smith said a district police officer was chasing the car that plowed into the family's vehicle.

Smith said the officer, who was on a regular patrol, gave chase after seeing the stolen Cadillac, carrying two teen-agers, weave in traffic.

When the teens saw the officer, they pulled in front of the police car and clipped it while fleeing.

The officer slowed when he realized the teens would not slow down, Smith said.

The Cadillac, however, ran a red light and broadsided Turner-Perkins' car, authorities said.

The teens, one of whom appeared to have been seriously injured in the wreck, fled the accident scene into a wooded area. They had not been captured by Monday, said Harris County sheriff's deputy Steve Conroy.

Smith said the school district can not be responsible for the fatal accident.

High court to decide blockade dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether abortion rights advocates may use a federal racketeering law to sue protesters who block women's access to abortion clinics.

The court said it will review a ruling that spared Operation Rescue and other anti-abortion groups from being sued under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act.

Today's action came five months after the high court handed a major setback to the abortion rights movement, ruling that federal judges cannot stop abortion clinic blockades.

The appeal acted on today was filed by the National Organization for Women and abortion clinic owners.

It said the anti-abortion groups comprise "a nationwide criminal conspiracy of extremists" bent on "unlawful and violent methods" to drive abortion clinics out of business.

Asked for its views, the Clinton administration said a federal appeals court was wrong in ruling that the federal law could not be used to sue Operation Rescue.

The RICO law, enacted in 1970, originally was aimed at organized crime but increasingly is used in lawsuits involving just about any business dispute.

The law bans "any person employed or associated with any enterprise in ... interstate or foreign commerce ... to participate in a pattern of racketeering activity."

Under RICO, a pattern of racketeering amounts to two or more "predicate acts" from a long list of underlying crimes, including extortion.

Numerous lawsuits accused Operation Rescue and the other anti-abortion groups of extortion by use of arson, bombings, destruction of property, assault and battery, trespass and harassment.

The legal strategy of using the RICO law has had mixed results.

Federal courts in New York and Philadelphia have hit Operation Rescue and other anti-abortion groups with huge fines for RICO violations.

Telethon nets $1,860 for UW

Scurry County United Way has reached about 70 percent of its goal, thanks to recent donations and Sunday's telethon.

The telethon raised $1,860, far short of its goal of $18,000, but hopefully was a key factor in helping rebuilding United Way here, officials said.

"We really appreciate all those who donated to help these agencies and to the individuals, groups and businesses who gave their time," said Mike Sanders, treasurer of Oil Patch Foster Parents, one of the five agencies currently served by United Way.

Others are Snyder Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse (SCADA), Snyder Child Day Care, Scurry County Boys Club and the Noah Project.

The goal for the year is $60,000. About 70 percent of that has been received or pledged, said Sanders.

Anyone wishing to make a donation can mail it in to Scurry County United Way at P.O. Box 1411, or bring it to SCADA on the west side of the courthouse square.

Scurry County United Way is also in the process of reforming for the coming year. Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer board member is urged to call Sanders in the evening at 573-6585, or any of the five United Way agencies during normal working hours.

766 enrolled through WTC summer classes

Summer enrollment at Western Texas College is 766, according to figures released by the college.

That figure is down by 100 students in comparison to the summer of 1992. However, the number of credit students enrolled this summer is 695, compared to 683 a year ago.

Academic contact hours are 49,952 for the summer. Vocational-technical hours are 10,624, more than 1,000 above last year's 9,536.

Of the 766 students, 273 are in the Price Daniel or French Robertson prison units. The enrollment shows 60 percent men and 40 percent women. However, without the male inmates, enrollment would be 37 percent male and 63 percent female.

There are 184 students enrolled from Scurry County, 46 from Mitchell and 40 from Haskell. Other area counties providing a large number of students are Nolan with 29, Knox with 28, Runnels with 24 and Crosby with 23.

Driver's ed, bids among long agenda facing WTC trustees

Some $90,000 in expenses, an enrollment report and discussion of the driver's education program are among the 20 agenda items facing Western Texas College's board of trustees this evening.

The board meets at 5:45 in the administration building board room.

An increase in the number of hours a student must drive and a lack of funds for replacement vehicles is causing the college to rethink its driver's education program. The program, which Western Texas accepted responsibility for from Snyder ISD several years ago, is currently operating at a loss.

College officials also cite an increased demand on the Continuing Education Department as being a problem.

Tonight, trustees are expected to discuss available options, which include increasing fees to cover costs and having the program administered outside the Continuing Ed department, or to eliminate the program.

Trustees will consider at least seven agenda items which involve some expense, including ratification of the expenditure of $18,158 to purchase an air control system for heating and cooling. The decision to purchase the system came as the result of a leak that developed in the air line in the present system.

The board will also consider accepting a bid of $19,230 for the expansion of the campus telephone system. The expansion will allow telephone service to each room in the dormitory. College officials have projected that the initial cost can be recovered within two or three years through commission on long distance service.

One other major expense the college faces is $20,000 for a water system to provide effluent wa-

Rocket launcher targeted; civilian woman said killed

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — U.S. helicopter gunships fired at least three missiles onto Mogadishu's teeming streets today to destroy a mobile rocket launcher, but one missed its target and reportedly killed a woman selling tea.

Cobra helicopters thundered overhead and the sounds of the missiles exploding boomed across the city as U.N. troops made their first daytime raid against targets of militia leader Mohamed Farrah Aidid. During the attack, hundreds of Somalis gathered in a city square to protest the killing Sunday of 14 anti-U.N. protesters by Pakistani troops.

Military officials have waged war on Aidid targets for three straight nights and say the attacks were timed to prevent civilian casualties. But Lt. Col. Kevin McGovern said there was no policy against daytime attacks such as that on the BM21 122mm multiple-rocket launcher.

"It indiscriminately kills everyone in the area, so it's a high-priority target," he told reporters. The missiles were launched at about 10:45 a.m.

One missile failed to explode, and hours later was nose-down in the dirt on one of Mogadishu's narrow, unpaved alleys.

The others hit the rocket-launcher, which is capable of firing 36 rockets at once and was sitting inside the walls of a nearby compound. A woman selling tea under a tree a few hundred yards from the rocket launcher suffered a severe head wound when one missile landed, and witnesses said she died.

Residents across the street from where the missile launcher was stored said the equipment had been left by former dictator Mohammed Siad Barre's army two years ago and was not operational.

Reporters who inspected the Soviet-made missile launcher said it appeared to have been a rusted relic that could not have been fired. It contained no rockets in its firing tubes.

The attack was sure to increase tensions across the city, where many Somalis who once supported U.N. intervention to control warring clans now see the world body as a U.S.-led force out to crush Aidid.

"Clinton down! Clinton down!" protesters chanted today.

County okays bills, minutes

Scurry County commissioners addressed two routine items when they met this morning.

The court approved payment of bills and minutes for its June 7, meeting.

Commissioner Jerry Gannaway reported that the meeting he held last Thursday concerning rural trash collection "went well." He said that an estimated 55 people attended. He also said several signed trash collection contracts with Rural Refuse, a trash collection service owned and operated by John Williamson and based in Hermleigh.

A meeting on rural trash collection is scheduled tonight at 7 in the Fluvanna Community Center. According to commissioners, meetings will also be held Tuesday in the Union Community Center and Thursday in the Ira Community Center.

Chamber board to meet with BCD this afternoon

Snyder Chamber of Commerce will meet with the Board of County Development during the chamber's June meeting, set for 4 p.m. today.

According to Chamber Manager Ricky Fritz, members of the BCD would like to discuss chamber operations. The BCD funds approximately 50 percent of the chamber.

"They want some input if the chamber is going to change directions," Fritz said.

The chamber went before the city council last Monday and asked for $33,000 in hotel-motel tax funds. During the city council meeting, board members said that there had been increasing pressure from the membership for the chamber to change its direction and focus more on jobs.

The chamber presented the council with a plan that would allow the chamber to hire an assitant to run a Convention and Tourism Bureau and free Fritz to concentrate on jobs for Snyder.

City council members unanimously voted to table the matter until next month's meeting, saying they would like more time to discuss the matter with other economic development committee chairpersons.

Campbell has much to do in short time

OTTAWA (AP) — Kim Campbell, the defense minister chosen as Canada's first woman prime minister, has little time to persuade Canadians to return her and her Progressive Conservatives to power in the fall.

The 46-year-old lawyer from Vancouver was elected party leader Sunday at the Conservative convention, succeeding Brian Mulroney as party chief and prime minister. Mulroney is expected to officially step aside in a week to 10 days.

Beaming after a narrow second-ballot win over Environmental Minister Jean Charest, she was joined on the victory podium with her father George as the party faithful chanted "Campbell!"

She paid tribute to Mulroney, who brought her into the Cabinet as a rookie lawmaker in 1989 and gave her a chance to eventually govern this nation of 27 million people.

"She's a person of great leadership skills and great integrity," Mulroney said.

Campbell's first priorities will be to help heal the Progressive Conservative Party after a bruising three-month leadership contest. She also must get her political and governmental house in order before the economic summit of the seven major industrialized powers July 7-9 in Tokyo.

Campbell promised Canadians "good government, with thoughtful policies, honestly presented, openly arrived at, and implemented with competence and with care for every cent of your tax dollar."

Campbell, who rose from a member of the British Columbia legislature to prime minister in less than five years, faces some daunting problems.

Canada is only beginning to emerge from a long recession and the divisive pain of two failed attempts to appease disgruntled factions in French-speaking Quebec by modifying the constitution. The country suffers from 11.4 percent unemployment and a persistently stagnant business sector.

Campbell defeated Charest on the second convention ballot, 1,817 to 1,630.

Alberta lawmaker Jim Edwards sealed the Quebec Cabinet minister's fate with a surprise move to Campbell on the final ballot.

Polls had long given Campbell a wide lead, but Charest, 34, ran a strong late campaign and turned an expected Campbell coronation into a real race.

Politicians pitch potshots at Perot

HOUSTON (AP) — To those who thought United We Stand America appeared divided, group members say it's just growing pains.

"We realize that's the price you pay for moving up in the polls," says Sharon Holman, a spokeswoman for the organization's founder Ross Perot.

Frank Luntz, Perot's former pollster, knows all about the divisiveness, but he says it's pointless to dwell on it.

"The press may be focusing more on the internal operations, but the public is focusing on Perot as the messenger for change, and that's not going to change," Luntz said.

It's been seven months since Perot finished third in the three-man presidential race, but the independent political maverick's familiar face and folksy twang are still everywhere.

Perot also seems to be taking as many hits as when he was on the campaign trail but analysts say the barbs only fuel his message.

Republican consultant Eddie Mahe told The Houston Post he's amazed every time he sees an elected official publicly berate Perot.

He says the only thing more astonishing is that Perot keeps getting invitations to hold news conferences and testify at hearings, giving him an even bigger forum.

"They're playing right into his hands," said conservative grassroots organizer Richard Viguerie.

Perot agrees.

After he was criticized for his views last week, Perot said, "These irresponsible statements will energize millions of working Americans to become active in United We Stand America ... .

"Observing the emotional reactions of these congressmen, one cannot help but recall the old Arkansas saying, 'The hit dog always hollers.'"

The pros say there's only one way of handling Perot: ignore him.

"Throughout history, it's been shown that the way to deal with a third party challenge is to cut the legs out from under them by taking away their issues," Viguerie said.

"You have to steal the issues and run with them yourself. You don't attack. You just do it. You just make yourself the instrument of change."

Your Birthday

Tuesday, June 15, 1993

In the year ahead you could be quite lucky in arrangements where you use partners to a limited degree. You might set up several situations where you're the principle and they provide minor support.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Accept favors from others today as graciously as you granted them in the past. As you know from your own experience, there is joy and gratification in giving. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your potential for achieving your objectives is very good today, because you'll be a realistic visionary. Your practical conceptions will be reachable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be quite lucky today in competitive arrangements, especially if the stakes are substantial. Motivation is the thing that will give you your plus power.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your sphere of influence is quite a bit larger than you may realize at this time. Today there's a chance someone may play back an idea you originally conceived and told another.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be reluctant to lend a helping hand to others if they request your assistance today. You're in a cycle where the good you do will be returned to you in greater measure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you have a way of making positive gestures to persons with whom you deal on a one-to-one basis that they will not readily forget. It will make them feel indebted to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to worry today about things that may never happen. Actually, the aspects are trending in your favor where conclusive end results are concerned. Be optimistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do something fun today that permits you an opportunity to exercise both your mental and physical faculties. A social, competitive team sport would be perfect.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your chances for adding to your resources look rather good today if you have continuity of purpose and stick-to-itiveness. You must finish what you start.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Lady Luck tends to favor you today if you do that which you're capable of doing instead of depending upon others. Be self- reliant and you should be successful.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Two unrelated circumstances might develop today that could enhance your financial well being. Don't waste time if you see or sense something profitable building up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Involvements with friends could have political overtones today, but this shouldn't upset you. When it comes to politicizing you'll be equivalent to the best.

Fathers Would Treasure A Letter From the Heart

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: This coming Sunday, June 20, is Father's Day. If you're a little short on cash, don't worry, because I have a gift suggestion that is guaranteed to make a big hit with every man who has ever fathered a child — and it doesn't cost a dime!

It doesn't matter if you're 8 years old or 60. If you're lucky enough to have a father, sit down and write your dad a letter. Tell him how much he has meant to you over the years. Do not be shy about telling him how much you love him, and why. It doesn't have to be a literary masterpiece — just a few sentences will do. Of course, if you are in a sentimental mood, go ahead and express the thoughts you may have found difficult to verbalize. And when you sign the letter, be sure to add the date.

Long after the neckties, shirts, wallet and cologne are worn and discarded, I'll bet your Father's Day gift remains tucked away for safekeeping with his most important papers.

How do I know? Because mine was.

LOVE, ABBY

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Now that summer is here, we are once again looking forward to going to our place at Lake Okoboji. Several years ago, you had a poem in your column titled "Our Place at the Lake." It fit our situation to a T. We clipped it and had it framed, and hung it on the wall of our summer cottage. Everyone who saw it thought it was wonderful.

Now we can't find it. (Someone must have stolen it.) Will you please run it again? Thanks.

ABBY FANS IN IOWA

DEAR FANS: The poem was written by Sylvia Lewis Kinney (now Bundy). And here it is:

OUR PLACE AT THE LAKE

June is past, so is July,
August is ended — likewise I.
The pattering feet of summer and sun
Are over, complete, exhausted, done!
I've fed the young as well as the old,
I've cooled the warm, I've warmed the cold,
The wounded and weeping I have consoled,
The tender and touchy I have cajoled.
I have steeled the scared, I have scared the bold,
I have bit my tongue till it was controlled.
I've broiled the steak, I have casseroled,
And the grocer thinks I am made of gold.
(The other bills I have pigeon-holed.)
And frankly, friends, I am ready to fold!
Next time I live I'll make the most
Of being the guest, not the host.

Female astronauts still minority after 10 years

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Ten years ago this week, after 22 years and 57 men, America sent a woman into space.

Jane Fonda, Gloria Steinem and congresswomen gathered at Kennedy Space Center on June 18, 1983, to witness, and celebrate, the end of America's most vaunted brotherhood. Many wore T-shirts that said: "Ride, Sally Ride."

Eighteen women have followed Ride into space. A 19th died trying.

"It is a historic moment. It is a historic date," said Eileen Collins, an Air Force pilot who was flying C-141s overseas that day.

Collins was so impressed that before the year was out, she had filled out an astronaut application. She is now awaiting her assignment to be NASA's first female shuttle pilot.

Ride didn't like the attention heaped on her in 1983, and she doesn't like it a decade later. She now is a physics professor and director of the California Space Institute. She rarely grants interviews. Her secretary said Ride would not talk to reporters on the occasion of this anniversary.

Ride, now 42, was bombarded with questions before her much-publicized flight with four men aboard Challenger, 20 years after Russian cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova became the first woman in space.

One man asked whether Ride wept when things went wrong. Another reporter asked if she planned to have children, and another wondered if she'd wear a bra in space. Her reply? "There is no sag in zero-g."

At one point, Ride complained, "It's too bad this society isn't further along and this is still such a big deal."

Flight crew operations director David Leestma, who flew with Ride on her second and last shuttle trip in 1984, said it was "pretty obvious she did not look forward to media sessions."

NASA's 35-member Astronaut Class of '78 — the largest and most diverse because of the impending shuttle program — was the first to include women. Each of the six female candidates had an M.D. or Ph.D.

"There was a sense of, 'Oh, gosh, we've got these women and what do we do with them?'" recalled Dr. M. Rhea Seddon, one of the original six who will make her third shuttle flight in September.

"We just worked it all out."

Ride's wish for women to fly in space and be no big deal has come true, for the most part.

"We don't even think about it anymore," said chief astronaut Robert "Hoot" Gibson, Seddon's husband.

Nevertheless, female astronauts are still a minority. Of the 198 people who have flown on U.S. spaceships since Alan Shepard's 1961 rocket ride, only 20 have been women.

Men presently outnumber women 73-to-15 in NASA's astronaut corps. Added to this in August, after one year of training, will be the 21 male and three female candidates in the Astronaut Class of '92.

Men outnumber women 46-to-2 as American spacewalkers.

And men outnumber women, without fail, on shuttle missions. Columbia in 1991 carried the most women at one time — three. Four men also flew.

The ill-fated Challenger had two women on board when it exploded shortly after liftoff in 1986 — Judith Resnik, who became the second American woman in space in 1984, and schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe.

Gay soldier hopes telling story has made difference

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Ousted Army Sgt. Joe Zuniga, who announced he was gay at a recent gay civil rights' march in Washington, says his father has closed their lines of communication.

Their only conversation was a brief phone call shortly after the coming-out speech. Retired military man Salvador Zuniga told his son then, "I love you," but has refused to see his son since then.

"I believe he will come to terms with it some day," said Zuniga, the 6th Army Soldier of the Year. "I'm his son."

Zuniga's father isn't the only one tuning him out. His fellow soldiers turned from friends to foes, and treated him as an outcast during his last days in the service, he said.

Zuniga is different from most gays in that he claims never to have had an intimate homosexual experience, but simply came to grips with his feelings.

Zuniga, a San Antonio native, says he believes the personal appeal he's made to President Clinton to lift the ban on lesbians and gays in the military already has made a difference.

He says his decision to come out of the closet was aimed at exposing the fallacy of the Pentagon's argument that gays and lesbians are unfit to serve their country.

"There must be at least one American who has read a headline saying 'Soldier of the Year booted out of the Army' and seen the irrationality of the policy," Zuniga said.

The 24-year-old, who accepted an honorable discharge so he could tell his story free of military constraints, is embarking on a two-month nationwide speaking tour.

Zuniga, who is in the process of getting a divorce from his wife, said he was unaware of his homosexuality when he joined the Army.

"It was just something that had been repressed for so long and finally had to come out," he said.

Can you see the play?

By Phillip Alder

Graham Wallace, in "The Art of Thought," wrote, "The little girl had the making of a poet in her who, being told to be sure of her meaning before she spoke, said: 'How can I know what I think till I see what I say?' "

I have often said that you cannot find the right play — or bid — unless you think of it. Today's deal is an excellent example. It is culled from the March/April issue of Bridge Today magazine (call 216-371-5849 for subscription details). It was reported by English expert Martin Hoffman.

In five diamonds, declarer won the spade lead with dummy's ace, ruffed the spade two in hand and drew trumps. He cashed dummy's club ace, played a club to his king and led a third club toward dummy's jack. However, East won the trick and played his remaining top club. Declarer ruffed but couldn't avoid losing two heart tricks. Was South unlucky or did he misplay?

North, not having an immediate forcing diamond raise available, temporized with two clubs. After that, North-South might have reached three no-trump, but without the advantage of seeing all the cards, it isn't easy.

South's line of play was reasonable, but there is a much better one. Win the first trick with the spade ace, draw two rounds of trumps, cash the club king and play a club to dummy's ace. When the queen doesn't drop, lead dummy's spade two and discard your last club. Whatever happens now, you will lose only two tricks.

Congratulations if you spotted this beautiful loser-on-loser play.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Braves 12, Expos 10

The Braves slammed nine hits, including two each from Mac McGraw, Garrett Griswold and Toby Delce, on their way to Friday's Junior League win.

Rusty Carter, Jeremy Fudge and John McHaney each rapped a single in support of winning pitcher Chad Carter.

The Expos managed four hits on the night, two singles from James Tatom, and a hit apiece by Zack Briseno and Jason Loper.

Tommy Fields was the losing pitcher.

Yankees 14, Pirates 13

The Yankees, behind a thre-hit performance by winning ptcher Chris Thomas, and a single apiece from Dustin Fish, Ben Brown and Thomas, moved to 5-5 on the season with Friday's win over the Pirates.

The Pirates, now 7-3, gave losing pitcher Jerod Rinehart just four hits in offensive support. Eric Rodriguez drilled twin singles, and Steve Rivera and Kelly Gentry each knocked a hit.

FARM LEAGUE

Giants 14, Yankees 6

Ryan Braziel belted a homer and two singles, and Blake Bell doubled and singled to make a winner of Landon Day in Saturday's Farm League regular-season finale.

Diego Hernandez and Jeremy Stark each lifted a single for the Giants.

The Yankees were led by Josh Levens' three hits, including a double, two extra-base knocks by Clay Preston, and a double from losing pitcher John Martinez. Patrick Vincent, Adam Roemisch and Derrick Rushing each chipped in a single.

The Snyder Farm League Tournament begins today at Towle Park with the Yankees facing the Braves on the Farm League Diamond and the Indians squaring off with the White Sox at Logan Field. Both games start at 6 p.m. The Giants battle the Athletics at 7:30 p.m. at Logan Field.

The Rangers have a first-round bye and will take on the winner of the Giants-Athletics contest at 6 p.m. Thursday.

The tourney champ will be crowned June 21.

Cardinals 14, Abilene Northern No. 2 2

Michael Diaz gave up just three hits Saturday as the Cardinals slammed Abilene Northern No. 2 in the first round of play at the District V Minor League Tournament in Abilene.

The Cards ripped six hits in the win.

The Cardinals, who finished second in the regular-season Farm League race, will take on Abilene Eastern No. 2, a 25-1 winner over Baird on Saturday, in a 6 p.m. Tuesday tilt at Western Little League Complex.

Sweetwater No. 2 9, Cubs 7

Brent Bake slammed a homer for the Cubs, but that wasn't enough as they were eliminated from the District V Minor League Tournament Saturday by Sweetwater No. 2.

Sweetwater's Noe Espinosa scattered five hits in a winning effort. The Cubs' Heath Pinkerton, Justin Humphries and Shay Franks combined to give up four hits. Franks was saddled with the loss.

The Cubs are the Snyder Farm League regular-season champions.

Pavlik hurls Rangers past Indians

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers' pitching staff, still reeling from a 15-hit battering by the Cleveland Indians, received a well-timed lift from righthander Roger Pavlik Sunday night.

Pavlik threw eight innings of four-hit shutout ball and Ivan Rodriguez backed him with a two-run homer and three RBIs as the Rangers beat the Cleveland Indians, 5-1.

"For the past two weeks, he's been as encouraging as anything that's happened," Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy said. "He's had two good outings on this homestand and that really picked us up. He's got four quality pitches and he's learning to make adjustments."

Pavlik (3-2) allowed only three runners to reach second, striking out six and walking two as Texas snapped a four-game losing streak.

Pavlik worked out of a jam in the sixth, issuing a one-out walk to Wayne Kirby and hitting Carlos Baerga with a pitch. But Pavlik got Albert Belle, who shares the major league home run leadership, to ground into a double play to end the threat.

"I was throwing sliders away and was able to get the ground ball," said Pavlik, who had a streak of 13 consecutive scoreless innings until he was charged with a run in the ninth.

When Pavlik gave up a leadoff double to Carlos Baerga in the ninth, Kennedy brought in Tom Henke from the bullpen. Henke gave up an infield single to Belle and a two-out RBI single to Jeff Treadway before retiring pinch hitter Thomas Howard on a ground-out to end the game.

Texas starters had posted victories in only six of their previous 31 assignments, a stretch in which the starters' earned run average soared from 3.33 to 4.45.

The Rangers jumped on starter Jose Mesa (5-4) for a 3-0 first-inning lead.

"Mesa's location in the first was poor," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said. "He threw fastballs down the middle and the Rangers did what they're were supposed to do."

The Indians had won five of their previous six games, including the first two games of the three-game series.

Suns beat Bulls in triple OT

CHICAGO (AP) — The Phoenix Suns — down but determined — made sure the NBA finals didn't end in the shortest possible time by winning one of the longest playoff games in history.

It was, Charles Barkley said, "the greatest basketball game I ever played in."

"We were so focused on sweep that we really didn't put the work into a sweep," Michael Jordan said. "It was a great game, but I can't say it was the best game I've played in, because it was a loss."

No adversity was too great for the Suns as they beat Chicago 129-121 in triple overtime Sunday night to cut the Bulls lead to 2-1 in the best-of-7 series.

The Suns had become the first team to lose the first two games of a final series at home, then faced the next three on the road. Sweep talk was sweeping Chicago. A third straight title seemed certain.

Point guard Kevin Johnson, the key to the Suns offense, was coming off two bad performances. So he played all but the last 27 seconds of the 63-minute game and scored 25 points with nine assists and seven rebounds. He also made some strong defensive plays while guarding Jordan, who has five inches on Johnson.

Barkley fought through a painful right elbow that was drained a half hour before the game. But he played 52 minutes and 31 points and 19 rebounds and made a critical steal and two dunks in the third overtime.

Dan Majerle had a miserable shooting night in Game 2, but hit six of eight shots from 3-point range and finished with 28 points Sunday. Majerle guarded Scottie Pippen, not Jordan, for much of the night.

The Suns scored just two points in the last 6:20 of the fourth quarter and only 11 in the first two overtimes. But they kept scrapping until everything clicked in the third overtime, when they made three steals in the last three minutes.

"The Bulls are a very good team. They played a tough game against us," Phoenix forward Tom Chambers said. "But it was nice to come back and show them we could win."

"These are two great teams playing," said Phoenix coach Paul Westphal, who played for the Suns in that 1976 game. "I don't think it particularly matters where the games are."

The road team has won the first three games and the next two are in Chicago on Wednesday and Friday night. Phoenix had the NBA's best road record. A sixth game, if necessary, would be in Phoenix next Sunday.

Chicago, which had a six-game winning streak broken, was led by Jordan with 44 points. But he made only 19 of 43 shots.

Scottie Pippen added 26 points and B.J. Armstrong 21 for Chicago, which shot just nine free throws, making six. Phoenix made 22 of 31 from the line.

Chicago coach Phil Jackson said when asked about the discrepancy. "Don't bring it up."

The Suns seemed secure when they opened the fourth quarter with a 15-5 run to take a 101-90 lead with 6:20 to go. Chicago cut that to 103-100, then sent the game into overtime tied at 103 on Horace Grant's 3-point play with 1:33 left.

With the score tied at 107, [illegible] in the last five seconds of the first overtime. Then, with Chicago ahead 114-110, Barkley scored with 32 seconds left in the second overtime and Majerle forced another period by connecting from the right corner with 3.2 seconds to go.

Scott Williams and Johnson traded layups and Jordan hit a 14-footer that gave the Bulls their last lead, 118-116 with 3:42 to go.

Collier earns spot on Texas team

ABILENE — Snyder cowboy Bronc Collier has earned a place on the Texas High School Rodeo team by virtue of his performace at the THSRA finals here last week.

Collier capped off the week-long rodeo with a 65-point saddle bronc ride in Saturday's finals. The score was one point behind event winner Rance Bray of Dumas. Collier tied Kilgore's Lane Barber and Brook Bearden of Dumas for second place.

The Texas rodeo team has won the national competition seven of the last ten years, including the last two in a row.

The National Finals will be held in July in Wyoming.

Bichette leads Rockies to sweep over Houston

DENVER (AP) — Dante Bichette was content to let the warm glow of appreciation sweep over him, not daring to question it.

Having starred with both his bat and his glove in the Colorado Rockies' 9-1 victory over the Houston Astros on Sunday, Bichette could scarcely believe his good fortune.

"Baseball is a streaky game," Bichette said. "I've been on a good streak lately, and I'll just ride it out. It's almost a stroke of luck when you get on a streak like that."

Bichette has had two straight four-hit games, raising his batting average to .325. He set a team record with seven straight hits by reaching safely n his last four at-bats Saturday and his first three Sunday. He flied out in the seventh to end the streak, but then added an RBI single in the eighth.

He also made two running catches Sunday at the right-field wall.

The Rockies' triumph was historic. Not only did the Rockies post a franchise-record third straight victory, they also swept a series for the first time in their history.

Andres Galarraga hit a two-run homer and drove in three runs, and Bruce Ruffin (3-2) limited the Astros to five hits through 6 2-3 innings.

Colorado got to Greg Swindell (5-6) for four straight hits in the first inning, including Galarraga's ninth homer, a 424-footer to left field.

The Rockies added a run in the third on Jerald Clark's RBI double, then scored six times in the eighth.

Singh claims Buick crown

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — It's a long way from the poverty of northern Borneo's rain forest to the wooded, wealthy suburbs of Westchester County, but Vijay Singh has arrived.

Of East Indian ancestry and a native of Fiji, Singh literally has golfed his way around the world and, on Sunday, captured his first tournament on the PGA Tour at age 30, beating Mark Wiebe in a playoff in the Buick Classic.

"Every win is a great win, and winning in the United States will give me a lot more status next year," said Singh, who has won on the European, African and Asian tours.

Singh and Wiebe both shot 5-under-par 66s, equaling the low round of the tournament, for four-round totals of 4-under 280 as Westchester Country Club's West Course yielded low scores grudgingly.

Singh won with a birdie on the third playoff hole, the 444-yard, par-4 11th, toughest hole on the course.

Despite losing, Wiebe said, "I'm tickled. I shot 75 in the second round, and I'm in a playoff. The course played like a bear all week. It's a great tuneup for the U.S. Open."

The Open begins Thursday at Baltusrol in neighboring New Jersey.

Defending champion David Frost of South Africa also shot 66 for 281, tied with Lee Janzen, the third-round co-leader who shot 1-over 72. Mike Smith (68) and Tom Lehman (69) were tied at 282.

Duffy Waldorf, who shared the lead at the beginning of the day with Janzen, shot 75 and finished at 284.

Little League tourney starts

Little League champions, the Indians, will represent Snyder in the annual County Baseball Tournament, which gets under way today in Sweetwater.

Snyder's first-round game in the single-elimination tourney will be against Rotan at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Today's openers include Anson versus Merkel at 6 p.m., and Hamlin against host Sweetwater at 8 p.m..

In Tuesday's other first-round tilt, Colorado City will face Stonewall-Kent at 8. p.m.

The tournament semifinals will be played Wednesday, followed by the championship game at 7 p.m. Thursday.

The Indians earned a 15-1 regular-season mark in Snyder Little League play.

Brain cancer...

Former astronaut Deke Slayton dies

LEAGUE CITY, Texas (AP) — Donald K. "Deke" Slayton, an original Mercury Seven astronaut who waited 16 years to fly in space has died of brain cancer.

The 69-year-old Wisconsin native died in his sleep at about 3:20 a.m. CDT Sunday with at his Texas home with his wife Bobbie by his side, said Howard Benedict, executive director of the Mercury Seven Foundation.

Slayton was diagnosed as having a brain tumor last year. Medical treatment forced the cancer into remission, but the disease recently reappeared.

A World War II combat pilot, Slayton was selected by NASA in 1959 as one of America's seven original astronauts, who years later became the subjects of Tom Wolfe's book "The Right Stuff."

Slayton was assigned to the second Project Mercury orbital mission in 1962 — the first went to John Glenn — but was grounded by an irregular heartbeat. Scott Carpenter flew instead.

"We're all shook up about it," Carpenter of Vail, Colo. said Sunday. "There's not much else to say except to mourn the passing of a dear, dear comrade."

"We've lost a dear friend today," said Walter "Wally" Schirra Jr. of Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., another former Mercury astronaut.

Alan Shepard of Houston was out-of-state Sunday and could not be immediately reached by The Associated Press for comment. A handful of cars were parked outside the Slaytons' residence at South Shore Harbour, a country club subdivision.

Slayton had supervised NASA's astronaut corps, first as chief astronaut and then as director of flight crew operations during the Apollo moon missions. He was in charge of choosing the Apollo crews: who was flying with whom, and in what order.

"He was a prince of a guy — everybody's favorite," said Benedict, who's been writing a book about the early days of the space program with Jay Barbree, Slayton and Alan Shepard, the first American in space.

Eventually, Slayton overcame his heart problem and was restored to flight status in 1972. But it was a brutal blow to a man who had trained since 1959 for a job he wasn't able to perform until the Apollo-Soyuz mission in 1975.

"He was so damn mad," Benedict recalls. "They pulled him off about a month before (the 1962 mission). He was, to use his words, pretty pissed off. But he held it in. He didn't want to get anybody at NASA mad at him."

At age 51, Slayton made his first and only space flight with two other Americans during the Apollo-Soyuz mission, in which U.S. and Soviet spacecraft linked in space. It was the first international human space voyage and the last Apollo flight.

Slayton relished his nine days in space. He served as Apollo docking module pilot.

"It's worth waiting 16 years for," he said.

Slayton joked while in orbit that the flight was so problem-free "I haven't done anything my 91-year-old aunt up in Wisconsin couldn't have done equally well."

During descent, however, the crew forgot to flip some switches and gas from the steering jets filled the cabin. Astronaut Vance Brand passed out when Apollo splashed down in the Pacific. Slayton and commander Thomas Stafford quickly donned gas masks and put one on Brand, who recovered.

After his flight, Slayton became manager of the space shuttle approach and landing tests at Edwards Air Force Base in California. He later served as manager for orbital flight tests until his retirement from NASA in 1982.

For the past decade, Slayton was president of Space Services Inc. of Houston, now a subsidiary of EER Systems Inc. He founded the company to develop rockets for small commercial payloads.

Flying was a lifelong ambition for Slayton.

The Sparta, Wis., native joined the Air Force in 1942 and received his wings a year later. During World War II, he flew 56 combat missions in Europe as a B-25 pilot with the 340th Bombardment Group. He later joined the 319th Bombardment Group in Okinawa and flew seven combat missions over Japan in A-26s.

After the war, he studied aeronautical engineering at the University of Minnesota, earning a bachelor's degree in 1949, and joined Boeing Aircraft Co. in Seattle. He was recalled to active duty in the Minnesota Air National Guard in 1951, remained in the Air Force and attended test pilot school at Edwards. He was a test pilot there from 1956 to 1959, when he was named an astronaut.

Slayton lived in League City, Texas, not far from the Johnson Space Center. Survivors include his wife, Bobbie; sons, Kent, 36, and Jim, all of Houston; and a daughter, Stacey, of Houston.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

Harris County SO poor reputation for solving crimes

HOUSTON (AP) — Some victims say the Harris County Sheriff's Department is so inept at crime solving that it makes their situation even worse.

Becky Wiley's daughter and young playmate were stabbed to death nearly 11 months ago. Since then, Ms. Wiley's comments have been repeated throughout the criminal courthouse: "If I ever get killed, be sure to drag me into the city."

Ms. Wiley was referring to the fact the Houston Police Department investigates crimes committed within city lines.

Sheriff Johnny Klevenhagen said he knows the saying, and has heard it throughout his 30 years with the department. But he says it is based on unfair and often erroneous courthouse gossip.

Klevenhagen says he would stack his detectives against any other homicide division nationwide. He adds that he has requested additional detectives for the division every year in recent memory, but has been turned down by the Harris County Commissioners Court.

Others say the sheriff's department deserves the soiled reputation.

"If I had a loved one killed, I'd want the homicide division of the Houston Police Department to investigate," said District Attorney John B. Holmes Jr. "They are capable of doing the most professional job of solving such a crime."

But sheriff's officials point with pride to the division's statistics for the current year: through the end of May, county homicide detectives had cleared 21 of their 26 cases.

That percentage ranks favorably compared to the annual national average clearance rate for police agencies which tends to fall between 60 percent and 70 percent, according to FBI statistics.

"It's coming together, it's working," Klevenhagen said. "Just give us some easy cases."

No big winner in latest lotto

By The Associated Press

No tickets have correctly matched all six numbers drawn for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials say.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 3, 10, 28, 34, 40 and 43.

There were 163 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,129. There were 8,322 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $80.

And there were 142,952 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $9 million.

Sales from Wednesday to Saturday's draw were $7.19 million.

Feinstein speaks to Stanford grads

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Dianne Feinstein urged graduates of Stanford University not to accept the notion that America is in decline.

"The prediction that the next generation will live a lesser life than their parents is a threat but not a destiny unless we by our inaction make it so," Feinstein said during commencement exercises Sunday.

Old Chestnuts

Chestnuts, the hard calluses on the inner sides of horses' forelegs, are believed to be the survivals of scent glands, which are common in many four-legged animals. Over time, however, horses' chestnuts lost this function.

Fighting, shelling reported in Sarajevo

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Gorazde shuddered under relentless mortar and artillery attacks today, and officials there said Serbs were closing in on eastern Bosnia's last Muslim-defended enclave.

The city, home to as many as 70,000 residents and refugees, is one of six "safe areas" designated by the United Nations to protect Bosnia's Muslims.

Sarajevo also resounded with ingoing and outgoing mortar and artillery rounds today. But the airlift of aid resumed after a one-day suspension because of shelling of the runway Sunday.

Fahrudin Becic, speaking on ham radio today from Gorazde, said Serbs had killed 66 people and wounded more than 100 in the previous 24 hours and had moved to within 21/2 miles of city limits.

More than 200 people needed "urgent evacuation," Becic said, adding that a large number of sick and wounded were dying because of a lack of medication.

At least 52 people were reported killed Sunday in an artillery attack on a makeshift hospital in Gorazde. Becic said that attack left the hospital a "mixture of pieces of dead bodies, bricks and plaster."

ter for use on the golf course. The college has been pumping effluent water from a holding pond at the treatment plant. However, a new treatment plant is being constructed which will eliminate the holding pond.

The college can get the water from a "wet well" at the new treatment plant. Officials have determined that construction of the wet well and pipeline can be handled by the company building the treatment plant. Trustees will consider approval of this action tonight.

Other bids to be considered are for repair of shower stalls in the dormitory; repair of the swimming pool; long distance service in the dormitory; installation of a Local Area Network (LAN) in the computer lab; computer equipment for the counseling office, special needs coordinator and office careers; and the bank depository.

Also under action items are approval of board minutes, the financial report, the 1993-94 catalog and the summer small class report.

Under information, the board will hear updates on the conversion to the new computer system and on various maintenance projects, and pre-bid consideration for a recruiting brochure.

The board will also hear about a safety award presentation and set a date for a budget work session.

Senate Democrats jockey for positions on new tax bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Senate Democrats want to raise corporate income taxes more and close business tax loopholes to make up for revenue lost from scaling back energy taxes.

But Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said Sunday he and 10 other Democratic senators have made clear in a letter to the chairman of Finance Committee that they would oppose any tax package that shifts the burden from the wealthy to elderly and the middle class.

"We're not trying to ... block or hold things up, but we want to help the president get his program through," Harkin said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Harkin suggested that revenue lost from abandoning President Clinton's proposed broad-based energy tax might be made up by raising the corporate tax rate to 36 or 37 percent and ending a variety of tax benefits for business. The House-passed bill increases the corporate income rate from the present 34 percent to 35 percent.

A similar approach was suggested by Democratic Sens. Max Baucus of Montana and Bill Bradley of New Jersey.

Baucus, who like many western lawmakers opposes the transportation fuel tax being considered, offered a proposal Sunday to scuttle all energy taxes and replace the revenue with a higher corporate tax, elimination of a variety of tax breaks for business, and $16 billion in additional Medicare cuts.

"Either everybody should pay an energy tax or nobody should pay," Baucus said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Bradley, appearing on the same program, called for closing tax loopholes that allow special interests and corporations to pay less tax.

Syringes found inside several Diet Pepsi cans

SEATTLE (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is warning consumers in four states to examine cans of Diet Pepsi and pour the soda into a glass before drinking.

The warning Sunday came after syringes were found last week inside two sealed cans of the soda.

The hypodermic needles were in cans that had been bottled six months apart, said Susan Herbert, a spokeswoman for Alpac Corp., the regional bottler and distributor for Pepsi.

No injuries were reported, and initial laboratory analysis showed no sign of contamination in the cans, the Food and Drug Administration said.

"Consumers are the last line of defense in something like this. They simply have to be aware," said Roger Lowell, district director of the FDA. He suggested Diet Pepsi drinkers pour the soda into a glass before they drink it, and examine cans for signs of tampering.

The FDA said in a statement that consumers in Washington, Oregon, Alaska, Hawaii and Guam, where Alpac distributes, should inspect Diet Pepsi cans closely.

The acidity of the soft drink would kill almost any bacteria or virus, Lowell said.

FDA investigators spent the weekend at the Alpac warehouse and bottling works, interviewing managers and checking employee files. The investigators are trying to determine if any past or present workers have diabetes or otherwise need to give themselves injections.

the weekend, it was disclosed that he had failed to pay Social Security taxes for an elderly woman who did housecleaning for him.

But most senators and women's groups said the mistake should not be disqualifying, and the White House officials today insisted Clinton did not pass over Breyer because of the tax controversy. "He just chose Ginsburg, that's it," said one of the officials.

Ginsburg was appointed to the federal bench in 1980 by President Carter. On the appeals court in the nation's capital, she has developed a reputation as a centrist, staking out a middle ground between more liberal Carter appointees and conservatives named to judgeships by former President Reagan.

In a 1984 ruling, she voted to dismiss the complaint of a sailor who was dismissed from the military for engaging in homosexual activity. Ginsburg voted that the sailor's constitutional rights had not been violated.

Clinton has pledged to lift the ban on gays in the military, but has said he does not favor changes in the code of conduct that prohibits homosexual activity by military personnel.

Another area likely to draw attention is Ginsburg's views on abortion rights. She is considered an abortion rights supporter, meeting Clinton's pledge that his nominee would support a woman's right to terminate a pregnancy.

But last year she invoked the ire of women's groups by questioning the landmark 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling that guaranteed abortion rights.

Before she was named to the bench by Carter, Ginsburg was best known as a crusading lawyer for women's rights. She argued several early sexual-bias cases before the nation's highest court.

A graduate of Cornell University and Columbia Law School, Ginsburg is married and has two children. She was born in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Ginsburg would be the second woman on the court, and if confirmed would sit with Justice Sandra Day O'Connor. She would be the only Jewish justice.

How to control intestinal gas

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a healthy 33-year-old, non-smoking, female homemaker who suffers from flatulence. It doesn't matter what I eat, everything gives me gas that is always accompanied by a very unpleasant odor. Is there a prescription I can take for control?

DEAR READER: Intestinal gas is a common medical problem. Although it can be associated with various diseases, such as tumors and ulcers, it's usually caused by certain foods in the diet; carbonated beverages, legumes and beans are major gas producers. Also, people with flatulence tend to eat quickly, chew their food inadequately and swallow large amounts of air. Once this air traverses the intestine, it takes on an unpleasant odor when it is passed.

I suggest the following: Eat slowly, chew your food, be careful not to swallow air, avoid gas-producing foods (including sugar-free chewing gum and candy), try a compound such as simethicone (available as non-prescription Gas-X), or consider using Beano-O (an over-the-counter natural product that reduces gas). In my experience, prescription drugs for flatulence, such as Librax, are no more effective than the non-prescription products I mentioned.

If these suggestions are ineffective, ask your doctor for specific advice based on your physical examination.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Digestive Gas." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A cousin's daughter has Gaucher's disease. Treatment includes steroids. Any information on this disease would be appreciated.

DEAR READER: Gaucher's disease is an uncommon, inherited metabolic abnormality that results in an excessive accumulation of a fatty substance in certain cells in the body. This causes liver and spleen enlargement, swollen lymph glands, bone pain, skin pigmentation, a deficiency of blood cells, and hemorrhage. Although children may be affected early in life, the disease may not become evident until adulthood.

The diagnosis is made by biopsy. The condition can be confirmed before birth by analysis of the amniotic fluid.

Treatment consists of intravenous administration of the enzyme (glucocerebrosidase) that Gaucher's patients lack. Steroids are not effective therapy. Blood transfusions and surgical removal of the spleen may be necessary to combat complications.

Poll says southerners feel children influenced by TV

ATLANTA (AP) — Adults who grew up in the South remember the big influences on them: parents and religion. But a new poll says adults believe those influences have been reversed in only one generation.

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution poll, which questioned adults about their childhoods and their opinions of today's children, says adults believe their children are influenced more by television and peers and less by family than they were.

The poll said 38 percent of Southerners believe that family has a great deal of influence on today's youngsters, while 88 percent said the family greatly influenced them as children.

Only 10 percent of those polled said the mass media had a great deal of influence on them when they were growing up, but 63 percent said the media greatly influence children today.

The poll, which appeared in the newspaper Sunday, was based on telephone interviews with 1,084 adults in Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia between Feb. 1 and March 21.

It was conducted by the Center for the Study of the American South at the University of North Carolina and has a 3 percent margin of error.

"Parents have lost the authority," said Lynn Simonoff, a Richmond, Va., mother of two teenagers. "I think kids snub authority these days."

Joanna Hall, a hairdresser from Raleigh, N.C., and the mother of six grown children, said children don't care as much about family and religion as she did.

"It's more or less where religion is not as important to families as it was at one time, and humanism has crept into our society," she said. "If it feels good to you, you do it, and it doesn't matter if it hurts Mama's feelings."

In the South, nearly half of all children grow up in two-parent, two-worker families. One in four grows up in two-parent, one-worker homes, about as many as live in single-parent homes.

"To the extent that children find themselves in situations where they're not governed by the family, like day-care centers or other caregivers outside the family, they are being influenced by others," said child psychologist and author Lawrence Balter.

"However, I do think that the family is the primary source of instilling values and standards in children," he said.

Many parents overestimate the influence television and music have on their children, said child psychologist Robert R. Butterworth.

"The parents have to blame somebody," he said. "Maybe it's a way of relieving their guilt because they're working so much."

The youngest people polled did not think they were influenced that much by TV, music and peers. Only 18 percent of those between 18-29 said media had a great deal of influence on them.

Experts look for terrorism to get worse

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Toxins funneled through air conditioning vents? Nuclear materials detonated on a city street? A missile fired at an airport?

It used to be the stuff of science fiction and thriller novels. No more, say American and international terrorism experts who gathered here last week at the Pentagon's request to map the future of terrorism.

Their conclusion: Prospects for terrorist attacks are ever-expanding and increasingly chilling.

The U.S. government, worried that it lacks a long-term strategy to deal with catastrophic attacks at home and abroad, has undertaken an ambitious project to divine the future of terrorism until 2010: Who will carry out attacks, how, when and where, and against whom?

"We need to know the array of things that can slam dunk us, even those eventualities that appear a remote threat but could have devastating impact," said Air Force Col. E. Douglas Menarchik, terrorism policy director at the Department of Defense.

The grim future predicted by terrorism experts stands in contrast to current statistics: In 1992, according to an annual State Department report, the number of international terrorist attacks dropped to 361 — the lowest level in 17 years.

But experts argue that the number of domestic terrorist attacks around the world is constantly growing and can affect U.S. interests even if Americans aren't targeted. And, they say, statistics are misleading because a devastating attack like the 1988 killing of 270 people on Pan Am flight 103 is counted the same as a grenade attack on an American Express office in Europe that shatters two windows.

Primarily, these experts contend that the downward trend is being reversed by two major developments: the disintegration of the Soviet bloc that is spawning national and ethnic strife in Europe, and the rise of Muslim militancy in the Middle East.

The latter has spread its tentacles as far as New York. The February bombing of the World Trade Center — allegedly the work of fervent Muslims — brought home to Americans that they were no longer immune from the terrorism that has plagued Europe and the Middle East.

"The United States is a target of hatred and enmity for many people around the world," said Alberto Coll, deputy assistant secretary of defense for special operations and low-intensity conflict.

The unrest in Europe, a result of powerful nationalist forces and massive immigration flows, is of great concern to terrorism specialists who note that it was a single assassin's bullet in a destabilized Europe that launched World War I in 1914.

Growing neo-Nazi terrorism in Germany could end up killing more people than the Marxist groups active in the 1970s, said Paul Wilkinson, a British counter-terrorism specialist. Already this year, he said, 22 people have been killed.

German fascist groups have in the past had loose contacts with white supremacists in the United States, said Bruce Hoffman, a terrorism expert at the Rand Corporation. Hoffman and others said American groups could become emboldened by the growing strength of their European soulmates.

Brian Jenkins, a worldwide authority on terrorism, believes terrorists will stick to well-proven methods such as car bombs, assassinations and kidnappings. But others said terrorists would be tempted by the availability of nuclear and chemical materials, as well as missiles, from former Soviet arsenals no longer under firm control.

Child murderer to be released from prison

AUSTIN (AP) — Convicted murderer Raul Meza Jr. is scheduled to be released from prison a week from today and Don Page says trouble is likely to follow.

Page knows firsthand the pain Meza is capable of causing. The 32-year-old Meza is behind bars for having killed Kendra Page on Jan. 3, 1982, an attack that gripped and shook this city.

"When he gets out, someone is going to get hurt," said Don Page, Kendra's father. "I just don't know who or when."

Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle said Meza's release "is a frightening thought. He is a very dangerous man."

"It's always possible for people to change, but with certain people it is not likely. I don't know, and have no way of knowing, what change if any Meza has undergone. Redemption is always possible as long as there's something to work with. I'm not going to hold my breath."

Meza has received permission from state officials to move to Uvalde, a town of 14,000 about 83 miles west of San Antonio.

He is scheduled to be released on June 21 after the time he has served and the good-conduct time he has earned now equal his 30-year prison sentence.

The parole board, which voted unanimously seven times to deny Meza parole, "kept him legally as long as they could," said Dan Guerra, spokesman for the criminal justice department's division of pardons and parole.

"This is not a parole. This was not a discretionary decision," Guerra said.

Kendra had been strangled and sexually assaulted. The 8-year-old's body was found behind an elementary school with her jeans off but her shoes on. Meza, who had earlier been sentenced for shooting a convenience store clerk, came forward three days later.

By the time Meza is released, he would have served 34 years on paper, Guerra said.

Four years were added to Meza's sentence in 1990 after he was prosecuted for concealing a weapon in prison.

Zain, colleagues defend testimony

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Former West Virginia state police serologist Fred Zain and his colleagues in Texas dispute new allegations that he slanted his testimony to help convict suspects.

"I have confidence in the man. Until I see some hard evidence, I'm not going to get concerned," said Robert Fisher, assistant district attorney in Comal County, Texas.

The West Virginia Supreme Court two weeks ago appointed a special judge to review hundreds of murder and rape cases handled by Zain during his 13 years with the state police.

The probe stems from allegations that Zain falsified evidence in the prosecution of Glen Dale Woodall, a Huntington man who spent five years in prison for two 1987 rapes of which he was exonerated last year. Zain has denied the allegations.

Two Texas defense attorneys alleged last week that Zain falsified evidence in their clients' cases.

"I'm looking at a pattern of behavior going back to 1985 where he makes reports saying what the police want to fit with the case," said Stanley Schneider, a Houston attorney.

Schneider says Zain contradicted himself while testifying in the trial of Jack Davis, who was convicted of murder in 1990, when Zain was working for the Bexar County, Texas, medical examiner's Office.

Davis was sentenced to life in prison for the 1989 slaying of Kathie Blonis, who was found strangled and mutilated in her apartment in New Braunfels, Texas. Davis was the maintenance man for the apartment building.

Zain first testified that blood samples on a piece of carpet in Blonis' apartment were consistent with Davis' blood type and that none of Blonis' blood was present, according to court records. He later testified that most of the blood was Blonis'.

"I have five different stories from him," Schneider said.

Zain said the two statements were answers to different questions.

"There was no misunderstanding when I spoke to Schneider about it before," Zain said.

Another attorney, Ben Sudderth, said Zain's interpretation of evidence in the 1981 rape and murder of Donna Mae Inlow made it appear that his client, Jesus Flores, was the killer.

Jesus Aleman Flores was arrested after Inlow was murdered in Brownwood, Texas.

Initial tests on Flores' hair, blood and saliva samples did not link him to the crime, Sudderth said.

Tainted city water sends scores of people to hospital

MOUNT PLEASANT, Texas (AP) — Officials are trying to decide how too much of a caustic soda got released into Mount Pleasant's water supply, making water so alkaline filled that it burned all who came into contact with it, sending more than 150 people to the hospital.

"We really don't know yet what caused it. We have too many variables to take care of before we can begin figuring it out," said Mike Hall, acting city manager in this town of 12,000 about 110 miles east of Dallas.

The most severe injuries treated Sunday at Titus County Memorial Hospital were two cases of second-degree burns, which included some blistering, said Wayne Ogburn, hospital administrator.

All the patients were treated and released, Ogburn said. Many suffered minor skin irritations, nausea, vomiting and mouth irritations, Ogburn said.

"Many people were hurt while showering or washing, and several drank the water," he said. "We gave them either bottled water or fruit juice to ease the symptoms."

Hall said the problem began around noon

"We had a malfunction with one of our chemicals used to treat the water supply, to adjust the pH. We distributed too much caustic soda for some reason," he said. "We don't know how much was released.

The pH level determines whether water is neutral, acidic or alkalinic. The overloading of caustic soda rose produced a high level of alkalinity.

"The fire department said they had a call from some residents that the water felt funny — it was slick or slimy and irritating their skin," Hall said.

Hall said the soda release was shut off around 12:45 p.m.

City Councilman Brian Lee said a two-mile by one-mile area in the central part of the city, just south of the water treatment plant, was the worst hit.

This area, lying roughly between downtown and Interstate 30, includes the hospital and several major restaurants and department stores.

This is the second water problem in Mount Pleasant in a few months. The town was without water for three days in April when the main distribution line began leaking, Hall said.

The radio quiz show "Information Please!" made its debut in 1938 on the NBC Blue Network.

Graduate student studies rare falcons

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Chris Perez is going to be doing some serious bird watching soon.

Perez, 28, a Mercedes native and a graduate student at New Mexico State University at Las Cruces, will monitor the movements of three aplomado falcons that were released last week at Laguna Atascosa National Wildlife Refuge.

The falcons are expected to make their homes somewhere in the refuge's 45,000 acres, but they could soar across the Rio Grande Valley, South Texas, or head into Mexico.

"It's going to be a tough job," Perez told the Brownsville Herald. "But it is very important for the survival of the aplomado falcon species."

Aplomado falcons have been on the endangered species list since March 1986. There have been no known nestings of the species in the United States since the early 1950s.

The birds once lived in large numbers on the southern plains, from Texas to Arizona. Aplomado populations started dwindling in the 1940s, their disappearance attributed to loss of habitat and the use of pesticides.

Three aplomado falcon chicks were released last week at Laguna Atascosa in a joint effort by the Nebraska-based Peregrine Fund and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to repopulate the species.

"Though we know that the falcons reared in captivity can successfully be reintroduced to the wild, we have questions that we need to answer about the aplomado. I hope to answer some of those questions," Perez said.

Armed with special radio equipment, Perez will try to determine where the falcons spend most of their time during different stages of development. Data collected in the next few months will help establish how far aplomados will disperse and what kind of habitat they will choose.

Studies have shown that naturally occurring species prefer to live in savannas — areas with low, brushy vegetation and isolated trees or perching areas.

"We'll see if the released falcons, which were born in captivity, behave like natural occurring species," Perez said.

Another study is being done in Mexico, near Chihuahua city, where there is a natural aplomado falcon population. The Chihuahua study will be compared with Laguna Atascosa study, he said.

Radio transmitters have been installed in the newly released chicks to allow Perez to monitor the birds' movement during the first few weeks.

The results of Perez's investigation will help aplomado recovery program coordinators modify their plans, if necessary, and determine whether the program could succeed elsewhere. Perez will use the investigation to write his thesis.

If Perez can't receive radio signals from the birds, he may have to rent a plane and seek the signal from the air, he said.

The ultimate goal of the aplomado falcon recovery program is to repopulate aplomados to the point that they can be taken off the endangered species list.

Parker still looks like frontierman

BELLA VISTA, Ark. (AP) — The hair has some gray in it and the face has a few lines, but Fess Parker can still pass for the king of the wild frontier — even without the coonskin hat.

And if that's how people think of him, it's just fine with the 66-year-old actor, who built a career playing frontiersmen: Davy Crocket in the 1954-55 series on ABC, and Daniel Boone in the 1964-1970 series on NBC.

See Tom's Marine for boating needs

Tom's Marine Sales and Service, located at 315 Coliseum Drive, can help you with all your boating needs. Even though boats and motors are not stocked anymore, Tom can order just about anything you want and it doesn't take but a few days to get it in. In only one day, you can get exactly what you need in the way of skis, ski ropes, life jackets, ski jackets, fishing equipment and boating accessories.

If your boat and motor needs to be repaired or serviced, then Tom's is the place to go. He can get it in tiptop shape for the summer months ahead.

Lawn care is a major concern right now and at Tom's Marine you'll find a large selection of Lawn Boy mowers, edgers and trimmers. Riding mowers and tractors are also available. Tom always services what he sells and he repairs MTD, Murray and Simplicity mowers. He also carries the largest selection of mower blades in Scurry County.

At Tom's Marine, you'll find Sthil chainsaws and trimmers and Tom can also service saws and brushcutters by Poulan and Shindawa. He can build chains to fit any saw and he carries carbide chains and chainsaw accessories.

If you are tired of having to get out of the car in all kinds of weather to open or close the garage door, then let Tom install a Genie Garage Door Opener and you won't have to get wet, cold or windblown again.

Home, vehicle and personal Quorum Security Monitors are available at Tom's Marine and they are portable and can be self installed. They detect shock waves, have a battery backup and there are no monitoring fees. Tom knows all about this new wave against crime and he'll be glad to provide you with all the information you need to choose just the right system for your needs.

Pure air and water are on everyone's mind these days and the NSA Bacteriostatic Water Treatment System removes chlorine, bad taste and odor, reduces undissolved particles and inhibits bacteria growth. The Environmental Air System has been designed to produce optimal results in your home or office. These systems come in various sizes and capacities so there's sure to be one to fit your home or office needs.

Tom is now carrying a new, larger trampoline and he also has mats for all brands of trampolines.

At Tom's Marine, you'll find all kinds of small engine parts and Tom repairs small engines such as B&S, Tecumseh, Kohler and Wisconsin. He also does pump and Magneto repair.

Give Tom Machen a call at 573-6562 or go by 315 Coliseum Drive. He's sure to have something you need and if he doesn't, he can get it.

Branagh plans 'Frankenstein'

DALLAS (AP) — Kenneth Branagh says the monster in his version of "Frankenstein" will be different from previous movie incarnations.

"We're going for a look very far removed from the Boris Karloff, bolts-in-the-neck, square-head thing," the Irish-born actor-director-producer told The Dallas Morning News.

Branagh is directing and acting in the recently announced movie, and Robert De Niro will play the monster. Francis Ford Coppola will produce the film.
