Militants hand over hostages

By The Associated Press

Iranian militants met with Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today and then turned over "responsibility" for their 52 American captives to the government. U.S. officials, who are considering Iranian terms for their release, said the development was encouraging.

"We will from now on delegate responsibility for the (hostages') safeguarding to the government and will engage in the most important current issue of the revolution, defense of the Islamic homeland," Tehran Radio quoted a statement from the militants as saying. The militants were referring to Iran's current border war with Iraq.

Plans for the physical transfer of the hostages will be worked out following a "meeting before midnight" (3:30 p.m. EST) between the government and the militants, officials of the Iranian prime minister's office reported.

The militants' statement said the government during that meeting would "introduce (their) representative for delivery of the American spies."

The aides to the prime minister said Algeria was delegated to handle talks with Washington and the captives' release if the U.S. government meets Iran's demands. They said that in the meantime Iran will continue to have custody of the hostages, who will "remain where they are," presumably meaning the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

In Washington, White House press secretary Jody Powell said the transfer "will be a very positive sign," and presidential aide Jack Watson, interviewed on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," called the transfer plans "a very positive development."

Representatives of the Islamic militants who seized the American Embassy and its staff last Nov. 4, 366 days ago, met for two hours today with Khomeini following the approval Sunday by the Majlis, Iran's parliament, of terms for the release of the Americans.

Tehran Radio said Khomeini later thanked the students and added: "This service that these youths have made — and seized these corrupt people and kept them — crushed all fears in the mind of the people and in the minds of the peoples of nations and governments, and the monstrous picture they had drawn of the superpowers is torn."

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai met with Algeria's ambassador in Tehran, and the two agreed Algeria would take care of the hostages, Pars said.

"In this meeting it was decided that the Moslem and brother country of Algeria will take care of the U.S. hostages," Pars said of th 30-minute session between Rajai and Abdul Karim Gharaib.

"In reply, the Algerian ambassador said we wish that Algeria will be able to do all it can to fulfill the desires of the government of Iran and to safeguard Iran's interests and expand bilateral relations as much as possible."

The ambassadors of Switzerland and West Germany also met with Rajai this morning, Pars said, and the Swiss ambassador submitted a message from President Carter to Rajai, but there were no immediate details, the agency said.

A senior aide to Rajai said the official English-language text of the conditions which the Majlis agreed on for the release of the Americans would be given late today or early Tuesday to the Algerian Embassy for delivery to the U.S. government.

Algeria handles Iranian interests in the United States while Switzerland represents the United States in Tehran.

Rajai's aide said his government had no plans to deal directly with the United States or to include U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim in the negotiations. He said Iran's ideas would be put forth by a committee made up of the prime minister, senior officials of the Foreign Ministry and Behzad Nabavi, the minister of state for executive affairs.

The Majlis turned responsibility for the crisis over to the government after adopting the recommendations of a special parliamentary committee named to draw up terms for the release of the captive Americans.

President Carter said the Majlis conditions were a "significant development" that "offer a positive basis" for ending the hostage crisis. But Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie told ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" arrangements to free the hostages "are obviously going to be time-consuming" and may not be completed by Election Day.

Proposed constitutional amendments reviewed

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Staff Writer

Tuesday, Texas voters have more than the responsibility of deciding the most capable persons to run the state — they must also decide whether or not nine possible amendments to the state constitution should be ratified.

Here is a brief synopsis with pro and con arguments of each proposed amendment.

1. AUTHORIZATION OF UNMANNED TELLER MACHINES FOR BANKS WITHIN COUNTY OR CITY OF THE BANK'S MAIN LOCATION.

This amendment would allow permit state and national banks to establish and operated electronic teller machines located away from the bank building, as long as it remained in the city or county of the business.

PRO — Unmanned teller machines will be convenient for customers, will allow banks to serve larger areas, increase competition and allow competition with savings and loan associations. Savings and loans may have more than one business location, while banks are restricted to only one.

CON — Cost of installing a network of these machines would be passed on to the consumer, raising service costs; the amendment would provide a loophole for the long-standing prohibition against branch banking in Texas and may — instead of increasing competition — allow a large bank to serve the entire community, forcing smaller banks out of business.

2. GRANTING A STATE'S RIGHT OF APPEAL IN CRIMINAL CASES FROM CERTAIN RULINGS BY A TRIAL COURT.

If passed, the amendment would allow the state a limited right of appeal in a criminal case, allowing the state to appeal pre-trial motions before the conclusion of the trial.

PRO — By granting this limited right of appeal, an effective way to test the constitutionality of some statutes and the legality of certain pretrial practices would help the state also receive a fair trial; would provide the defendant with a method of stopping criminal action at an early stage if his contentions on appeal are correct; and the amendment, if passed, will help eliminate the tendency of some judges to rule in favor of the defense to avoid an appeal court's review of their ruling.

CON — Duration of the trial will be longer with a state appeal; the court case load and the costs of the criminal justice system would be increased; and frivolous appeals could be used to stall a trial.

If approved, however, the double jeopardy clause would still keep the state from appealing an acquittal.

3. SINGLE APPRAISAL BOARD AND BOARD OF EQUALIZATION FOR EACH COUNTY FOR AD VALOREM TAXES.

This provision would require single boards for each county and a single entity in each county to appraise property for all the cities, school districts and special districts in each county.

PRO — Money is being wasted by the separate appraisal offices and tax boards; that the equalization board would be impartial.

CON — Counties should continue to have the option of joining the appraisal districts; taxes would increase and the amendment would eliminate direct control by the electorate of officials who appraise and equalize; and rural taxes will increase, because of the domination by urban cities and school districts.

4. AUTHORIZATION OF BINGO GAMES FOR CHARITIES ON A LOCAL OPTION ELECTION BASIS.

This law, if approved, will required the proceeds be spent in Texas for charity, the games be limited to one location on property owned or leased by the organization; the game be conducted by members of the organization and the proceeds must be reported quarterly to the state comptroller.

PRO — Bingo games benefit public welfare. Each community can decide whether to permit the games. A community could legalize, within limits, a current practice in many towns, already given tacit approval by authorities. If prohibited, many would lose a source of social activity.

CON — It would be difficult to eliminate possible fraud; could involve organized crime; could have a bad effect on poor people; and the games discourage the "hard work" ethic by encouraging people to try for an "easy" dollar through gambling.

5. GRANT OF A BUDGET EXECUTION POWER TO THE GOVERN, WITH THE APPROVAL OF A BUDGET EXECUTION COMMITTEE.

This amendment would authorize the governor to have fiscal control over the expenditure of state funds.

PRO — More than $10 billion a year is spent by the state with no central direction or control. It is time to put the chief executive in charge. Spiraling costs of government could be curtailed by allowing the governor to cut unnecessary spending. The governor should be more able to see ways to improve cost-effectiveness and without these powers, the governor is not allowed control of state spending.

CON — The present system has kept spending under reasonable control with fairly low tax burdens. Therefore, the law is not necessary. The "veto" power already gives the governor power over state spending, along with the checks system now in the constutition. Under the amendment, every attempt by the governor to exercise fiscal control must be approved by the budget committee, which will probably thwart any tampering with its own work.

6. ALLOWING THE GOVERNOR TO REMOVE APPOINTED OFFICERS WITH THE CONSENT OF THE SENATE: AND ALLOW THE GOVERNOR TO CALL A SPECIAL SESSION OF THE SENATE FOR THIS PURPOSE.

Two - thirds of the senate must approve the action according to this amendment, and the special removal session cannot last more than two days.

PRO — Current methods for removing officers are long, costly and difficult. This method will be simpler and quicker. It will also give the governor more control over the actions of the more than 200 executive agencies.

CON — It will not give the governor that much control and it could, in fact, give the chief executive too much power.

7. AUTHORITY OF A COUNTY TO PERFORM PRIVATE ROAD WORK.

This amendment would give any county — population 5,000 or less — the right to build private roads with a "reasonable" charge to be used only for the construction and maintenance.

PRO — It would help counties to perform private road work, where now it is impossible to hire a private contractor; it would defray increased costs to small counties and might avoid tax increases; and would be a permissive law giving counties the right to decide for themselves.

CON — The amendment might be misused to allow county governments to reward friends with cheap road work, would put counties in direct competion with private contractors. The proposal is rigid because of the 5,000 population limit and may require that another amendment to include more populous counties.

8. CHANGE OF NAMES FOR COURTS OF CIVIL APPEALS AND THE NAMES AND QUALIFICATIONS OF SUPREME COURT JUSTICES AND TO DESIGNATE JURISDICTION AND AUTHORITY OF APPELLATE COURTS.

PRO — One court of criminal appeals is not enough; the system of intermediate appellate courts has been successful; the present criminal appeal court caseload would be divided among 14 regional courts; appellate courts handling both civil and criminal matters would be more just; and problems in clarification of qualifications for a supreme court judge and a vacancy in the office of the chief justice would be solved by certain changes proposed in Article V of the constitution.

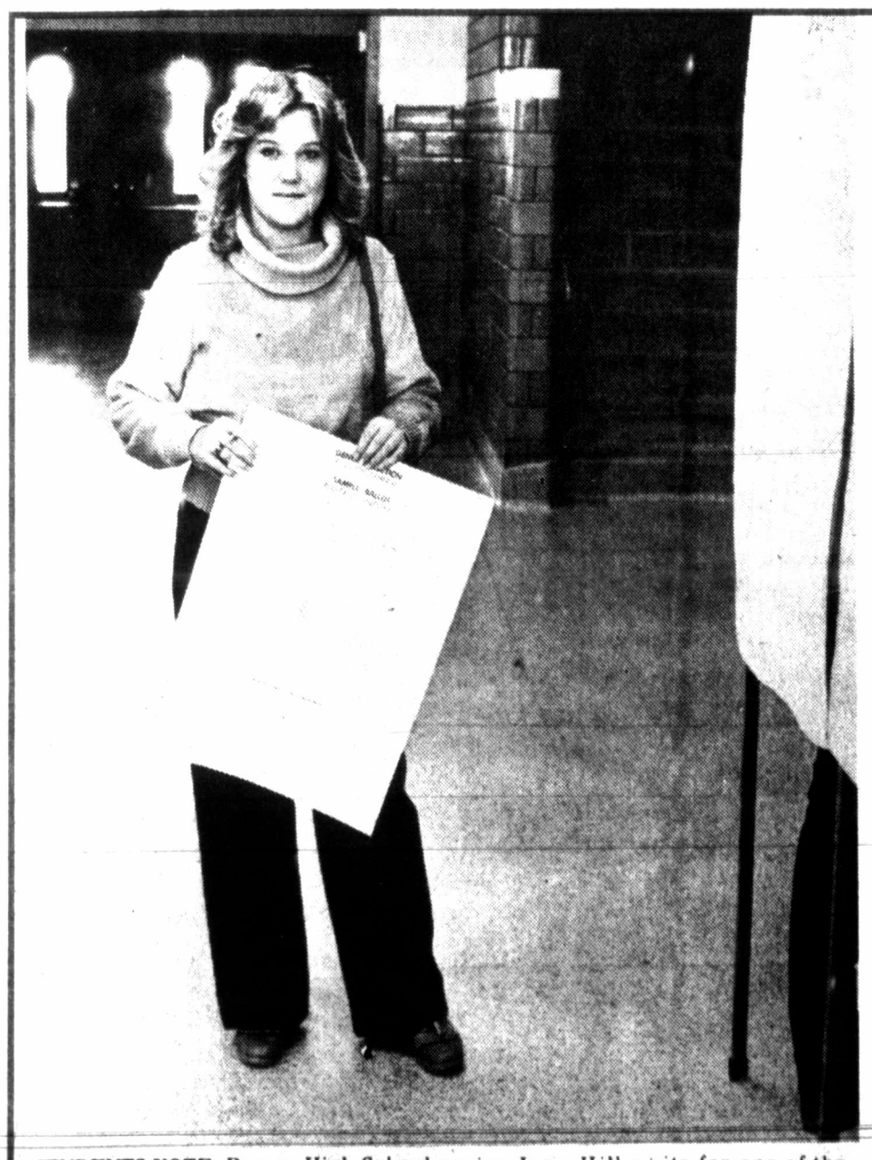

CON — The one-step system of appeallate review is the most efficient system; an additional court in the appeals process would be more complex and delaying; addition of criminal cases to the civil case load may create even more problems; a judge cannot become an expert in every kind of law; and there is no need to change the provisions in Article V.

9. CONVERSION OF MARITAL COMMUNITY PROPERTY TO SEPARATE PROPERTY.

This amendment would change some of the legal effects of the Texas marital community property system and create new procedures for deviation from the system.

PRO — The amendment would allow more freedom in alternative property arrangements; benefits from property would be owned by the spouse who owns the property; and the proposal would simplify the process of converting community property to separate property.

CON — There is no need to change the community property system. The degree of change from the system permitted by the amendment would be so great, it would create an entirely new system of marital property law in the state causing even more confusion. With few safeguards, the amendment could allow an unscrupulous spouse to take property rights from the other.

Students favor Reagan

If it was up to the students at Pampa High School and Pampa Middle School, GOP candidate Ronald Reagan would be the victor of Tuesday's presidential election.

The Reagan - Bush ticket won a resounding victory at the two schools, with Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale coming in a poor second.

In fact, Republicans won all three of the races voted on by the students.

The results of the mock election indicated that 65 percent of those PHS students who registered to vote, actually did make the all important effort.

Only partial results from PHS were available today. However, the winners in Friday's mock election as made available from PHS sources were: For the Presidential race, Ronald Reagan with 78 percent of the vote or 284 to Jimmy Carter with 17 percent of the vote with 63, Ed Clark with .02 percent or 8 votes, and John Anderson with .03 percent or 10 votes; for Congressman, Ron Slover with 56 percent of the vote or 183 to Jack Hightower with 44 percent or 146 votes; Texas State Senate, Bob Price with 69 percent of the vote with 237 to Sarpalius with 31 percent of the vote with 146.

At the Middle School, Reagan - Bush garnered 394 of the 542 total votes. Carter - Mondale came next with a total vote of 137.

Hostage families refuse optimism

By The Associated Press

For the families of America's hostages, the past year has been one of agonizing anxiety and gut-wrenching disappointments. And despite optimistic developments in Tehran that hint at the release of the 52 captives, their families in the Texas area say they refuse to be optimistic.

"I've been on that yo-yo string before," said Johnny McKeel of Balch Springs, just southeast of Dallas. His son is Marine Sgt. Johnny McKeel Jr. Then he said, "The only people we listen to are the Marines. The state department tells the Marines and the Marines tell us."

The Iranian Parliment voted Sunday to free the 52 hostages if the United States meets four conditions set down by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and a parlimentary committee. President Carter said later the action "appears to offer a postive basis" for the release, but he could not predict when that release might come.

"We have had no official word from anybody other than what we've seen on the television," McKeel said.

"I think the television and the media has screwed up. They've been wrong 98 percent of the time," he said. "I think they have made statements, and it hasn't come true, so it shows they didn't know what they were talking about."

David Engelmann says he idolizes his captive brother, Navy Lt. Commander Robert Engelmann of Hurst, but is "skeptical of all this talk about an imminent hostage release."

"Considering the latest news that the Majlis (Iranian Parliment) has a set of conditions, it's a step in the right direction. Things are definitely looking up," said Engelmann, a reporter for the Plano Daily Star-Courier. "But I'm not going to get worked up over it."

He said he and his parents, Miriam and Ardo Engelmann of Hurst, have been disappointed too often in the year since Engelmann was taken captive.

"Sometimes we get our hopes up and the next day they would just be dashed away," the young Engelmann said Sunday. "After awhile, we just refuse to get our hopes up. I don't want to be pessimistic about it but I'm not going to start lining up a band or making plans for a parade.

"When he (Robert) gets out of the country (Iran), that's when I'll start making plans. It just got too emotionally nerve-wracking to go up and down, to get your hopes up and then be disappointed. Just to save ourselves emotionally, we just refuse to get optimistic."

Engelmann said his brother was not on military activity in Tehran, but "was mostly just pushing papers. Like, a lot of his work was selling the cars that Americans left behind when they fled the country."

Marianne Stevens, sister of hostage William B. Royer Jr., of Houston said her 49-year-old brother was an English teacher at the embassy before it was seized. Director mf the Iran-American Society, he was sent to Iran in September of 1979.

"We're just going to play everything by ear," Mrs. Stevens said. "We're going to be very patient, and we're going to say our prayers that they really will release the hostages."

Royer's mother, Dorothy Royer, of the Houston island city of West University Place, could not be reached for comment Sunday.

Mrs. Stevens said they have received about 12 letters from Royer since the takeover, but have not heard from him since June 20.

Robert Olof Bluecker, 52, of North Little Rock, Arkansas, is a state department economic officer specializing in oil. A career diplomat since 1957, he arrived in Tehran only one week before the embassy takeover.

"I hope they're they're getting out, but I'm not counting on it until I hear about it," said Bluecker's mother, Hazel Albin of Little Rock, Ark. "It's too upsetting to hear they're going to get out and nothing happens."

Even if the hostages are released in the next day or so, Mrs. Albin said "I don't think that would be soon enough (to have an effect on the outcome of the election)."

Marine Cpl. Steven Williams Kirtley, 22, has been a guard at the embassy since June of 1979.

"When my son calls and tells me he's coming home, I'll believe it," said his mother, Mrs. Troy Kirtley, also of Little Rock. "I'm afraid to get excited."

Mae Johnson of Meers, Okla., aunt of hostage Frederick Lee Kupke of Francesville, Ind., said, "We have mixed feelings. We can't understand why our United States didn't move before it did. It's ironic that it comes at this late date."

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Dense fog reduced visibility to less than a mile over much of the Texas coastal plains early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a traveler's advisory.

Forecasters said that the fog created hazardous driving conditions and said visibility was limited to only a few feet in some areas of the coastal bend.

The remainder of Texas was to have clear skies and mild temperatures today. Highs were to be in the 70s and 80s.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 40s in the Panhandle to the 60s along the coast. Extremes ranged from 39 at Marfa in the mountains of Southwest Texas to 61 at both Brownsville and McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Staubach causes furor with 'Amy and the bomb' remark

DALLAS (AP) — Politically they're on opposite sides of the fence, but former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach, now a CBS Sports commentator, and President Carter do have one thing in common.

They both have a daughter named Amy and both have spoke about their daughters on television.

When President Carter remarked during the nationally televised debate with Republican Ronald Reagan that he had discussed nuclear proliferation with his daughter, Amy, it gave Republican pundits a field day.

When Staubach told a television audience about his conversation with his daughter about another type of bomb, the kind thrown by National Football League quarterbacks, it created a furor.

Staubach was working as color commentator Sunday with Frank Glieber, a CBS announcer, during the game between the Dallas Cowboys and St. Louis Cardinals.

Glieber, who also works as a Dallas sportscaster, encouraged Staubach to discuss means of stopping the Cardinals' high-powered offense.

"Talk about stopping this Cardinal offense," Glieber said to the retired NFL quarterback.

"In fact, I talked to my daughter Amy this morning about it, and she said the No. 1 problem was the bomb," Staubach replied.

The "bomb" Staubach had discussed with his daughter was a long touchdown pass such as the one Cardinal quarterback Jim Hart threw against the Cowboys.

The similarity of the remark by Staubach to the one by Carter during the debate touched off a furor. A CBS sports official in New York reportedly called the television booth at Busch Memorial Stadium in St. Louis and told Staubach, "No more politics."

A CBS spokesman said today in New York that Jim Harrington, vice president for programming administration for CBS sports, received a call from a person who identified himself as deputy director for the Carter-Mondale campaign committee. The spokesman said they had no way of knowing if the caller was legitimate.

At that point, however, Chuck Milton, executive producer for football for CBS, called the game producer in St. Louis to tell Staubach "don't make any other political comments."

The NY studios got about 15 calls from the Texas area complaining about it, the spokesman said.

Staubach has endorsed Reagan and has appeared on stage with him at several political rallies in Texas.

KDFW-TV, the Dallas CBS affiliate in Dallas, reported receiving several calls from angry Carter supporters.

"Good for them. I've been hot about Carter for four years," Staubach replied.

"Johnny Carson has done it (poked fun at the Carter debate remark) every night on NBC. Why don't they call him?"

Texas voter turnout crucial in outcome of national election

By The Associated Press

Workers in the Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan political camps here finally agree on one thing: voter turnout in Tuesday's election is crucial to both candidates.

But, predictably, that's where the agreement ends. Reagan workers are hoping for a large, but not record-breaking turnout and Carter workers say they more people at the polls the better.

Texas has been the target of some of the heaviest campaigning in the state's history as Carter and Reagan forces try to tip the delicate balance that would drop 26 electoral votes in their column.

"Most would agreed a large turnout is favorable to the Democrats and a smaller turnout benefits the Republicans," said Rick Shelby, state campaign director for the Reagan-George Bush ticket. "That is what I am most interested in monitoring on election day.

"We hope it (turnout) would not go above 4.25 million ... if by noon on election day it is obvious we are going to have a record turnout, I'm going to be very concerned."

But a record is just what Carter-Walter Mondale state field director Tom Henderson is hoping for.

"Turnout it the key in this state, the absolute key ... anything less than 65 percent (of registered voters), we have problems," he said. "Anything over 65 percent is a good sign for us."

Shelby said Reagan will need a 100,000-vote margin over Carter in Dallas and Harris Counties to offset Carter's expected good showing in the Democratic areas of East Texas, including the heavily unionized Orange-Port Arthur-Beaumont triangle, South Texas and the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Henderson, however, said Reagan will need a 200,000-vote margin over Carter in Dallas and Houston to offset Carter strength in Democratic strongholds of South Texas and East Texas.

Asian herders yearn for homes in Alaska

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (AP) — A tribe of nomads who have fled communism for half a century — from the Soviet Union to Afghanistan to Pakistan — harbors a dream to settle in Alaska, along with their thousands of sheep and camels and yaks.

Rahman Qul, leader of the Kirghiz tribesmen, last May traveled to the U.S. consulate in Peshawar to present a letter addressed to President Carter requesting permission to settle the remnants of his tribe in the "land of freedom" — particularly in that part known as Alaska.

Qul, a man in his 60s, told a consulate official he first heard of Alaska about five years ago when a U.N. wildlife expert — an American named Ron Peters, he said — showed him photos of Alaska's mountains.

Qul says his tribe lived a spartan existence in Afghanistan, surviving on the milk, meat and wool derived from their animals. They heated their round yurts — tents of skins stretched over poles — with sheep dung, which was also their cooking fuel.

But since the tribe of some 1,400 people migrated two years ago, more than 150 — mainly children and the elderly — have died. Qul blames the deaths on the change in climate from the 17,000-foot heights of Afghanistan to the relatively low level of 7,000 feet near the town of Gilgit, 351 miles northeast of here.

The summers are hotter than the Kirghiz are used to, and malaria has taken many lives. Qul fears many more may die if they remain.

In addition, Qul told Philip Covington, the U.S. vice consul in Peshawar and a former Peace Corps volunteer in Afghanistan, that the tribesmen were losing their sense of community and cultural identity because they had been forced to find non-traditional employment.

For all these reasons, he wants to resettle his tribe amid the vast, under-populated areas of Alaska.

Qul, a quick-witted herdsman with a knack for business, has himself prospered in Pakistan. He traded some of his livestock and opened a shop in Gilgit dealing in tribal handicrafts, carpets and fabrics.

Staffers for Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said a Khirghiz representative contacted them last year, asking help from the senator. The nomads later applied through normal diplomatic channels for permission to immigrate.

Haida Boucher, Gravel's administrative assistant, said she had kept Gravel advised of the Kirghiz situation but added that he had taken no active role.

"My own feeling was that until we knew what kind of federal or state land might be available to them — would it be adequate for a nomadic tribe? — nothing further could be done," said Mrs. Boucher.

U.S. diplomats in Pakistan say Qul also has not yet received a reply from his letter to Carter.

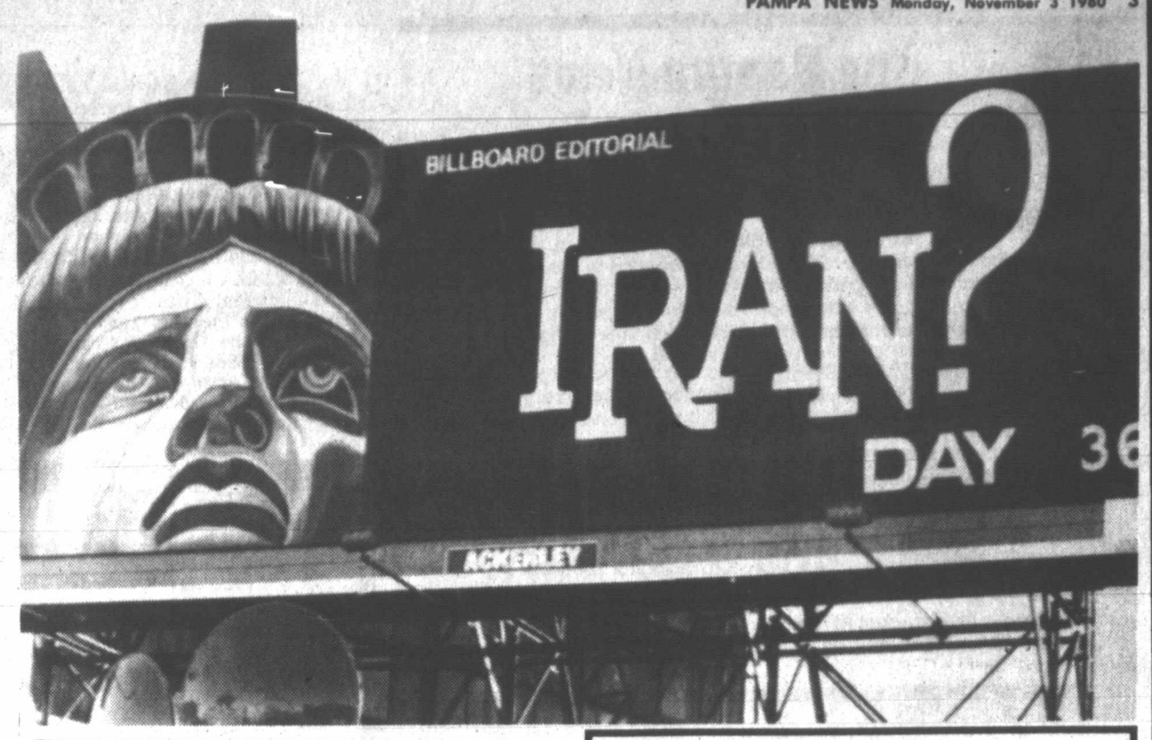

"This is a classic ethnic tragedy," said a State Department official in Washington. "But as a government we don't have the instruments to cope with this problem."

He said Pakistan had some 1.2 million Afghan refugees and the United States could not single out a tribal minority for aid.

Current legislation allows for the immigration of about 2,400 Afghan refugees each year. To permit the Kirghiz to settle in Alaska as a group would use up half the annual quota, said the official, who did not want to be identified.

An additional obstacle, he said, is that existing law requires all refugees to have sponsors.

The official said special legislation would be the only solution but that the administration was not inclined at present to come up with its own proposal.

Court clears way for Cubans, Haitians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today cleared the way for the transfer of more than 650 Cuban and Haitian refugees from Florida to Puerto Rico.

The justices, without comment, turned down emergency requests by the Puerto Rican government and a group of the island's residents aimed at blocking the transfer.

At the same time, the court set aside a temporary postponement that had been granted by Justice William J. Brennan Jr. on Oct. 24.

The State Department originally had planned to start the transfer from a Dade County, Fla., refugee camp to Fort Allen in Juana Diaz, Puerto Rico, last week.

The Carter administration wants to transfer as many as 2,000 refugees to Fort Allen, thus closing down the Dade County camp and reducing the number of refugees being held at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

About 120,000 Cuban refugees and some 6,000 Haitian refugees have entered the United States since last April. They are being held at makeshift centers until sponsors can be found for them.

Two federal trial judges ruled against the transfer but the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals earlier this month reversed those rulings and approved the government's plans.

Filing an emergency request with Brennan on behalf of "residents of poor areas surrounding Fort Allen," lawyer Pedro Varela of Hato Rey, Puerto Rico, accused the Carter administration of playing politics.

His request and one filed on behalf of Puerto Rico Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo argued that the proposed transfer would present "serious public health, public order and environmental consequences" for the Juana Diaz area.

In urging the justices to allow the transfer to begin immediately, the Justice Department argued that President Carter was authorized under the Refugee Educational Assistance Act to order such a move.

Station attendant could still cash in on Howard Hughes

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Jurors didn't believe service-station operator Melvin Dummar when he told them why billionaire Howard Hughes would name him in a will, but Dummar may cash in on his story yet.

Dummar's tale of picking up a disheveled Hughes in the desert in 1968 and giving him a lift to Las Vegas has been made into a movie, "Melvin and Howard," and Dummar is hoping that his share of the proceeds will finance a venture into country-and-western singing.

"They've made it kind of a comedy," Dummar said. "It has me laughing, it has me crying, it has things that really happened."

What really happened is a matter of some dispute.

Dummar says he dropped Hughes off at a hotel where he was known to stay and gave him a quarter, thinking he was destitute.

Hughes, a pioneering aviator and movie mogul, died on April 5, 1976, after being put aboard a plane in Acapulco, Mexico. Hughes, a lanky six-footer, weighed barely 90 pounds at the time.

On April 27, 1976, a document mysteriously arrived at Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City and it appeared to be Hughes's will. Dummar first said that he did not know where the will had come from, but later said he dropped the will off at the church after receiving a copy of it from a Hughes' courier, LeVane Forsyth.

In June 1978, a Las Vegas jury threw out the three-page, hand-scrawled will, under which Dummar was to receive a one-sixteenth share of the Hughes estate. A valid will has never been certified.

Dummar, 36, of Willard, Utah, admits he didn't tell the truth about the "Mormon Will" at first, but still believes it is genuine. He said he has given up any hopes of sharing in Hughes' estate.

"I wish I'd handled it differently," he said. "I was so darned scared that they were going to accuse me of writing the will, and that's what they did anyway."

Dummar was operating a service station at the time and then moved on to work with a beer distributor. He is now employed by a wholesale fish company and said he is slated to become its Pacific Northwest marketing representative. He has been on a nationwide tour to promote the film.

But the one thing Dummar says he really wants is a chance to make it big in country and western music.

That will take money, he says, and so far he hasn't gotten much money out of the picture, which stars Jason Robards as Hughes and Paul Le Mat as Dummar.

Dummar says singing has always been one of his hobbies and maintains that he even sang with Hughes as they drove towards Las Vegas.

That incident was the one part of the movie that wasn't quite accurate, Dummar says.

The movie depicts Dummar cadging Hughes into singing a Christmas song, about a "souped-up" sleigh, that Dummar wrote. Actually, Dummar says, he and Hughes just sang together.

Reapportionment: shift of power

It may not have occurred to many Texans that the reason the liberal forces are so strongly intent on seizing the statehouse in the Nov. 4 election is they are in a panic. This may be the last time around for the liberals to have a chance to sit in the driver's seat of Texas — at least for the remaining years of this decade.

We are referring to the political power shift that will come in the United States with reapportionment.

The little known processes of reapportionment and redistricting, by which congressional and state legislative districts are reconstituted, will begin in 1981.

And one can be assured that the outcome will shape national and state politics for the whole decade.

The reallocation (reapportionment) of seats to states and areas within the state, will take place as the results of the 1980 Census are made final.

At this writing, it is known that the power in the U.S. House of Representatives will shift from the North to the South, and from the East to the West.

This means that the Sunbelt, of which Texas is a part, will gain more power, and the liberal Frostbelt will be a big loser.

The growth states not only include Texas in the Southwest, but also Arizona. Both are Sunbelt states. Other Sunbelt growth states are Florida, in the South, and California in the West. All these states will show a gain of considerable power in reapportionment and they definitely should give strength to the conservative power of Congress.

It is with this knowledge that the liberals are making such desperate drives to retain or gain their footing in the Texas statehouse and in Texas representation in the U.S. Congress.

If they should succeed in establishing or re - establishing their liberal hold on Texas politics, then they would have a few more years to effect their liberal and quite often socialistic activities.

But if in the Nov. 4 elections, the conservative elements in Texas sweep the polls, then Texas likely will play a major role in the strong conservative power than could come to the Congress following reapportionment.

In this light, reapportionment may in more ways than one effect at least a temporary salvation of the nation and be the instrument by which the country's plunge into socialism may be averted. This is something for Texans to think about.

Taking a look at the proposed amendments

Even if we believed that the ills of man could be cured at the polls in political elections, we still would make no pretense of extraordinary powers of intelligentsia giving us the ability or the right to tell anyone how he should vote. That is only one of the reasons why we don't endorse political candidates.

Occasionally, however, we have "unendorsed" a few candidates for political office. Not that we have urged our readers to go to the polls and vote against them, it was just that their performance was so undesirable we felt you should know why we arrived at such a conclusion.

Realistica 'y, however, the General Election will be held Nov. 4, and a certain percentage of our citizens will vote, regardless of what we may say. That is their privilege.

Texas voters will find nine proposed amendments to the state constitution on the ballot. Typically, they are written in the vague and ambiguous language of the bureaucracy, making them difficult to understand.

(1) Would permit the legislature to authorize banks to use unmanned teller machines within the county or city of their domicile on a shared basis to serve public convenience. This involves no tax money, it is an added service by the banks to their customers. Competing banks would be permitted to offer a similar service merely by sharing the costs.

(2) Would grant the state the right of appeal in criminal cases from certain pretrial rulings of the trial court.

(3) Would require a single property appraisal and a single board of equalization within each county for ad valorem tax purposes.

(4) Would permit the legislature to authorize and regulate bingo games for charitable purposes (such as churches, veterans' groups, etc.) on a local option basis.

(5) Would authorize the legislature to grant budget execution powers to the governor, subject to approval by a budget execution committee consisting of the lieutenant governor, House speaker and four members of the legislature.

(6) Would authorize the governor to remove appointed officers with the advice and consent of the senate.

(7) Would authorize counties with a population of 5,000 or less to perform private road work if a reasonable charge is imposed.

(8) Would change the name of the 14 Courts of Civil Appeals to Courts of Appeals and allow them to consider appeals from criminal convictions.

(9) Would authorize the conversion of certain marital community property into separate property by allowing spouses to agree that income from separate property is to be separate property.

The Presidency

By Anthony Harrigan

The modern presidency transcends a single individual. Hundreds of staff members are attached to the office of the President. They make decisions affecting everything from foreign affairs to welfare. The presidency, in today's terms, is an embodiment of a public philosophy.

Much more is involved in the presidential race than a political contest between two men with different styles. Two markedly different views of the country and its future are offered to the American people. The voters must decide not simply whether they like Mr. Carter or Mr. Reagan as individuals but what public philosophy they want to shape this nation in the years ahead.

The American people are not of one mind as to the right course in foreign and domestic policy. No matter which candidate and philosophy wins at the polls, the opposing philosophy will continue to have adherents.

Mr. Carter's public philosophy has deep roots in the New Deal of the 1930s and in the tradition of state intervention in economic development under President Truman's Fair Deal, President Kennedy's New Frontier and President Johnson's Great Society. This tradition holds that the solution to public problems lies with massive federal spending and equally massive federal direction of the nation's energies through ever - expanding government departments.

Mr. Reagan's public philosophy is the classic American philosophy that the best government is the least government. His record, as Governor of California, clearly shows that he believes in limited government, not only in expenditures but in regard to bureaucratic controls.

What do the American people want? Which public philosophy do they wish to be controlling during the next four years?

Few voters are philosophers or serious students of government. Most people -- at least a great many -- vote in response to the economic conditions they face. Today, they face serious inflation, high unemployment, and declining job opportunities for the future.

Election night the mood of the American people will be spelled out in terms of the decisive electoral votes. Yet, as one looks ahead now, one wonders if the majority of Americans continue to believe that massive federal spending and more federal direction offer anything of value to this nation. The signs of economic decay, caused by excessive federal spending, are all around us. National resources have been poured into the expansion of government. The private, productive sector of the economy has suffered cruelly.

Are the American people satisfied with the quality of leadership, not only in the White House but in the State Department and the scores of departments and agencies that deal with domestic matters?

In the past, there were some truly remarkable men in these public posts. It is hard to think of any prominent federal officials today who command the respect and confidence of the public. The American people seem to be very aware of the waste and mismanagement of their tax dollars.

The American people are a pragmatic people. They are more interested in results than promises. The results of the existing public policy and philosophy have been alarming -- inflation and unemployment, plus great weakness abroad. It would not be surprising, therefore, if the American electorate decided it was time for a change.

To vote or not to vote?

By Robert LeFevre

The time has come, in this year of 1980, when it may be your patriotic duty NOT to vote. That is, if you love your country.

The difficulty with explaining this is found in the fact that most people equate their country with their government and presume that to support the one they must support the other.

But when one's government has become so vast, so disorganized, so intrusive, so costly, so frightened, so without policy and direction, so without meaning, the government itself is destroying the country, and to save the latter we must do everything in our power to restrain the former.

The politicians are now going to great lengths to let you know that your vote "counts." They are telling you, in effect, as they once campaigned with slogans: "We don't care how you vote, but vote!"

The truth is the politicians DON'T care which way you vote. Not really. Not so long as you keep voting. If a given politician misses victory this year, he can come back later and so can his party.

So, how do you let the politicians know that you are tired of them altogether?

How do you tell them you don't care who plays the leading role in a drama, based on grand theft, that you are tired of paying for?

There is one absolutely sure - fire way of closing a play that is offensive. DON'T GO! Stay home. Sit on your hands.

In a sense, refusing to vote is another way of voting. For if you don't vote you are registering a protest, not against Mr. Carter, or Mr. Reagan, or Mr. Anderson, or some other. You are registering a protest against the play itself. That is the message which must be given.

I long ago made up my mind that I'd be sitting this election out. I don't propose to help select a cast I don't wish to hire, to act in a play I wish to see closed.

The reason I'm doing it is because I love my country. I am doing my best to see that it endures.

The political prostitutes

by Paul Harvey

Political campaigning is unbecoming.

I'd recommend some more dignified system except that I can't think of one.

If there has been less mud - slinging in the 1980 campaign there has been no less willingness to promise everybody everything.

It's demeaning, degrading and disgusting to see a president of the United States grovel at the feet of factions.

And to hear his challenger repeatedly contradict his own earlier utterances.

In the days when political campaigns were conducted from the back platform of a railroad train it was possible for candidates to promise higher farm prices in Kansas and lower food prices in Kansas City and not get caught.

Today's instant worldwide communication should shame these fellows into being consistent -- but it hasn't.

President Carter in the coal country of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois drew cheers with his promise to "replace Arab oil with Pennsylvania (or Ohio or Illinois) coal."

Miners might have asked, "Why hasn't he?" But they just cheered.

Reagan went before audiences of elderly in California asserting his enthusiasm for Social Security which historically he has deplored.

Getting into bed with anybody for votes is political prostitution. Yet you'll hear the candidates -- in a single city, in a single day -- pledging their undying allegiance to blacks, Latins, Polish, Jews, Greeks -- and marching in the Columbus Day parade.

President Carter, whose support for Palestinians is on the public record, promises Jewish voters in New York that if the U.N. supports the Palestinians he will pull us out of the U.N.

And Reagan -- who opposed the government bailout of Chrysler -- now tells Detroit's unemployed that he vigorously supports that bailout.

If all this has not made American voters cynical it has at least caused them to discount most campaign oratory.

It used to be axiomatic in politics that the voter quickly forgets what you've done for him, wants instead to know what you are "going to do" for him.

In other words, he responded more to promises than to past performance.

I think not this time.

This time President Carter and those with whom he surrounded himself will be judged alongside Reagan's California administration and those with whom he surrounded himself.

Instead of selling our votes for more promissory notes, Americans are going to look at the RBI records.

I know I will.

In defense of government

By P. Dean Russell

Some of the worst evils in this world are committed by persons on government payrolls. This includes the official acts of the agents of Genghis Khan, Stalin and Hitler — as well as those of the Shah and the Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran. It also includes such official acts as the Inquisition in Spain, the various slaughters recorded in the Old Testament, and the Russian soldiers in Afghanistan today.

The evil that's committed in the name of government includes ec nomic destruction along with human destruction. To cite but one of hundreds of similar examples, just look around you at the results of government housing programs. For more than half - a - century now, our officials have poured hundreds of billions of our tax dollars into programs to clean up slums and to help the people who live in them. As a direct result of these governmental activities, we now have more slums (and more slum dwellers) than ever before.

These destructive governmental activities have been going on for many thousands of years. The trend appears to be increasing.

I have several friends and acquaintances who have reached the conclusion that the only way to stop this continuing evil is to get rid of the institution that's causing it, i.e., to ablish government itself. But even though I understand their motivation, it's literally impossible for any person or group of persons to abolish government. When they try, they are faced by a sort of "catch 22," i.e., the persons who abolish government ARE the government, and there's no possible way to get around it.

You see, government is not an object. It's a process. And it happens in one form or another when two or more people first meet and decide to cooperate or not to cooperate, as the case may be. It can't be abolished (even in theory) for this simple reason: Government is, however, a people acting together as individuals. The only situation in which "no government" can exist is when no human beings ever do anything with (or for or against) other human beings. Even then, government hasn't been abolished; it just doesn't exist.

Thus the only option open to successful rebels (whether by ballot or bullet) is to change the form of their new government and, of course, to repeal laws they don't like and to add laws they do like.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Nov. 3, the 308th day of 1980. There are 58 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 3, 1976 president Gerald Ford conceded to Jimmy Carter and offered the president-elect his "complete and wholehearted support" in the transition to a new national government.

On this date:

In 1896, Idaho granted full suffrage to women.

In 1903, Panama declared its independence from Colombia, with the support of the United States.

In 1936, President Franklin Roosevelt's new deal won a vote of confidence at the polls. Roosevelt's opponent, Alf Landon, carried only two states — Maine and Vermont.

And in 1955, Iran joined the Iraq-Turkey pact.

Five years ago, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller told President Gerald Ford that he would not be his running mate in 1976.

One year ago, thousands of soldiers, policemen and civilians joined the funeral procession route of South Korea's assassinated President Park Chung-Hee

Thought for today: I always prefer to believe the best of everybody — it saves so much trouble. — Rudyard Kipling, English writer (1865-1936).

Polls show national race too close to call

Ronald Reagan's huge margins of the summer over Jimmy Carter evaporated long ago, leaving the 1980 presidential race too close to call in the final national polls' measures of the voters.

With the decision only hours, not days away, undecided Americans still could swing the victory to Reagan or Carter, as the contest has narrowed in the tradition of hard-fought presidential races of years past.

Carter's shot at four more years also rests on whether those who support him will actually get out and pull the lever for the incumbent. The final polls suggest many potential Carter voters may not go to the ballot box and thus a former California governor might take the White House.

All the national polls gauging these final days were taken before the latest series of developments Sunday concerning the Americans held hostage in Iran. Those developments could sway millions of votes, making these polls only of historical interest.

The latest national survey by CBS News and the New York Times said the race was a dead heat. The poll, taken Oct. 30-Nov. 1 gave Reagan 44 percent and Carter 43 percent. Independent presidential candidate John Anderson drew 8 percent. Others and undecided made up 5 percent of the 2,264 registered voters interviewed.

A new Gallup poll said Reagan had the backing of 46 percent of the likely voters, while Carter was supported by 43 percent. Independent presidential candidate John Anderson drew 7 percent; 1 percent named others and 3 percent of the more than 3,500 persons interviewed from Oct. 30 through Nov. 1 were not sure.

By allocating the undecided vote, the Gallup organization said the poll put the final standings at Reagan 47 percent; Carter 44 percent; Anderson 8 percent and others 1 percent.

The latest available ABC News-Louis Harris poll put Reagan at 45 percent and Carter at 40 percent. Anderson drew 10 percent, 1 percent named others and 4 percent were not sure. That poll, conducted Oct. 31 through Nov. 1, is based on interviews with 2,994 likely voters.

Man shot during traffic jam

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — A 31-year-old man was shot to death after an altercation with a driver in snarled traffic leaving the Wurstfest weekend activities, police said.

The victim was identified as Timothy Joe Nelson, of Austin. The Travis County medical examiner ruled Nelson was shot to death shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday.

New Braunfels police Lt. F. Roque said Nelson and several friends in a van apparently tried to ease into a steady flow of traffic following the Saturday night festival.

Witnesses told police a man got out of the van and began to bang on cars and shout obscenities at drivers, Roque said. After arguing with the driver of one car, the man punched the car's windshield, shattering the glass, Roque said.

Shootings kill officer, wound Houston deputy

HOUSTON (AP) — A policeman was killed and a sheriff's deputy seriously wounded in separate shootings Sunday.

Officer Michael W. Rivers, 32, of suburban Hedwig Village was shot to death early Sunday as he and other officers sought to question two men on a shopping center parking lot. Investigators said both men escaped.

Police said Deputy David Kaup, 27, was shot Sunday night when he stopped two men carrying a television set out a side entrance at an apartment complex where he lives.

In the exchange of gunfire, a 32-year-old man was wounded and Kaup, despite left and right side wounds, held the second man until other officers arrived.

Chicken loving crowd boos speaker

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A crowd invited to a political rally devoured 1,000 free fried chicken dinners, then booed a pro-Ronald Reagan speaker off the stage before he could speak.

When the black lawmaker attempted to speak, the crowd began shouting and booing, drowning Williams' attempts. Williams left the rally and immediately went to the San Antonio airport, where he left without commenting on the incident.

The rally was gathered as the largest meeting of black voters in the city's history and was sponsored by the National Black Voters for a Republican Congress.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: A policeman's wife, signed JEALOUS, recently wrote that her husband was on squad car duty from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. with a "cute, single, bright, funny partner." She was upset that the two of them were riding around together all night, frequently "bored," so she asked her husband to request a male partner. When he refused, she sought my advice.

I told her to quit nagging her husband; that she had nothing to worry about.

Well, my mail has been running 100 to 1 against my advice. A few sample letters in agreement with me:

DEAR ABBY: Applause, applause! Your answer to JEALOUS was right on! I've been married to a policeman for 12 years, so I know what I'm talking about. He's worked the graveyard shift with female partners, but I wasn't jealous.

Wouldn't the two of them be rather conspicuous snuggling in a parking lot in a patrol car? Or checking into a motel for a few hours in uniform? And how would they handle answering the car radio and making calls in the middle of a romantic encounter?

I am far more worried about the prospect of my husband being taken from me by a strung-out dope addict, a trigger-happy robber or some belligerent drunks in a domestic squabble than by a "cute, single, bright, funny police-woman."

NOT JEALOUS IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you told JEALOUS not to get worked up because her husband worked nights with a woman partner. Nowadays nearly every job involves contact with the opposite sex. Women are fighting fires, flying airplanes, working on oil rigs and marching alongside men in the military, too.

If JEALOUS thinks she will eliminate temptation by demanding that her policeman husband work with men only, she's dreaming. A man in uniform is like a magnet to most women. If he's going to cheat, he's not about to risk doing it on the job. He'll meet her off the job when they're both out of uniform.

REALIST IN JERSEY

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for reassuring the jealous wife that her husband's female partner didn't necessarily represent a threat to her marriage.

Most women who choose police work as a career are anything but feminine. They're rough, tough and strong. In fact, you have to look closely to tell whether they're male or female in uniform. They're just not the type to fool around on duty. They have too much to lose. It's still more difficult for a woman to be hired for the force than a man. After going through all that rigorous training she won't take the chance of blowing it, and they are watched closely.

I am not a police officer, but I have worked with the department for nearly 20 years, during which time I've had lots of time to size up the situation.

NO TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR ABBY: One good piece of advice you gave JEALOUS was to ride along one night to observe her husband and his partner on the job.

I happen to be a female flight instructor and have at times sensed a jealous wife, although I am a happily married woman.

I encourage my married male students to invite their wives to ride in the back seat on long cross-country flights. This cures them. When they see me at work and get to know me, they realize I'm all business and the jealousy disappears.

Many men have told me they didn't like the idea of having a female flight instructor, but after they get into the plane with me and find out that I am an excellent instructor, they forget that I am a woman.

Once a policeman's wife sees her husband doing his job, she will realize he doesn't have the time to fool around.

Handling game for safety and quality

DALLAS — Game meat provides double pleasure — the sport of the hunt, as well as a variation in the flavor of table meat.

Basically, you can use the same safe handling practices with game meat and birds as you do with domestic meat and poultry. However, there are a few extra precautions you need to take, especially with freshly killed game, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Most general recommendations are the same for handling game animals and game birds. And, when handled properly and safely, game meat can add variety, character and nutrition to meals the year around.

The best meat comes from a healthy animal, not one that is sluggish or hot from running. One that appears alert, moves quickly and is free from old wounds is apt to yield the best meat.

The most crucial period for preserving the natural flavor of game meat is the first six hours after the kill. This time is vital to the quality of the meat, so it is important to remove the entrails quickly. Wipe the body cavity thoroughly with a clean cloth or wash and wipe dry. Be sure the cavity surface is thoroughly dry. It should be in a well-ventilated place to begin the cooling process.

The undesirable strong flavor so often associated with wild meat is due to: 1) inadequate bleeding, 2) carelessness or delay in dressing, 3) failure to cool the carcass promptly and thoroughly and 4) wounds causing the blood to spread along the membranes.

Prompt cleaning of the body cavity and cooling will retain the natural meat flavor and help prevent growth of dangerous bacteria. Meat sours rapidly when warm and moist. According to USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service, two bacteria are especially notorious for causing food poisoning in meat and fowl. Salmonella and clostridium perfringens can develop and grow rapidly when the meat is not cooled properly.

Here are some tips from the Food Safety and Quality Service to help keep your game meat safe once you get it home.

If you cut the game yourself, be sure to wash your hands, utensils, containers and work surfaces with hot water and soap before they come into contact with the raw meat. If you keep the germs off the meat, you avoid problems. Don't handle the meat if you have infected cuts and sores.

When cutting the meat, trim off any remaining fat. Fat from wild game tends to become rancid quickly. Also cut away blood-shot and badly bruised or discolored areas to prevent extensive spoilage.

After handling the raw game, wash hands, utensils, containers and work surfaces again with hot water and soap. Germs from raw meat can spread to cooked meat or other foods say FSQS meat specialists.

When cooking your game be sure to cook ground meat thoroughly. It is handled more often in preparation than other cuts, and germs get mixed into it. Also cook game birds thoroughly. Never partially cook them and finish cooking them later. It is safest to cook stuffing outside the bird. But, if you prefer to stuff, do it just before roasting. Refrigerate the leftover meat and stuffing in separate dishes — as soon as possible.

With the proper care and safety this hunting season, you can have all the rewards of a successful hunt without worries of food poisoning.

Arts-In-Action slated

AMARILLO — Amarillo Chamber of Commerce Arts-In-Action officials urge area artists to get their entries in for the ninth annual Arts-In-Action to take place this month.

Inquiries have come from nine states and the Arts-In-Action Committee, headed by Steve Messenger, is in the process of jurying artists and craftsmen for the show.

"In a juried show artists and craftsmen submit their work for re-screening. Only those whose work exhibits high quality in craftsmanship and creativity are elected for Arts-In-Action. We expect the final number of artists to be near 150 for the ninth annual show," Messenger said.

"Space is fast filling up and we urge prospective entrants to send their applications in to the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce at 1000 S. Polk, Amarillo, as soon as possible," said Donald L. Renner, Civic Affairs Manager for the Chamber of Commerce.

To enter the jurying process, entrants must complete an entry form available at the Chamber of Commerce offices, and send it along with photographs in color and black and white to the Arts-In-Action Committee for consideration.

Arts-In-Action is a project of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce Fine Arts Council headed by Bill Brollier. It will be Nov. 22-23 in the Amarillo Civic Center exhibit hall. Hours for the event are 12 noon to 9 p.m. Nov. 22 and 12 noon to 6 p.m. Nov. 23. Public admission is free.

Trims may save life

By Joanne Schreiber

As the youngsters settle into the school routine, the days are growing steadily shorter in all parts of the country. Soon, students on foot or on bikes will be going and coming to classes and school activities in semi-darkness. Visibility will be reduced and the danger of accidents will increase.

The National Safety Council and the American Automobile Association, both concerned with safety, are now recommending the use of reflector-type trimmings on outerwear. While trimmed garments are now available in ready-to-wear, the reflector ribbons are available over the counter, so you can add your own safety trim to your youngsters' clothes. For example, a reflective ribbon by C.M. Offray is offered in a wide range of fashion colors, in stripes and designs. By day, it is a bright and attractive ribbon trim. At night, thanks to a special reflective material applied to the ribbon, it will reflect light brilliantly when automobile headlights are directed at it. It is packaged in one-yard lengths, for about $1.50 — a small price to pay for your child's safety.

If you are sewing a jacket — perhaps a down jacket from one of the many kits — stitch the ribbon to the garment sections before joining sections or adding stuffing.

Be sure the ribbon is visible from all sides. Run it around the hem of the jacket, around the arms in a double strip and add an extra band across the back. The ribbon is easy to stitch on, with simple topstitching down each side. For added decorative impact, the ribbon may be stitched on with a decorative machine stitch.

If you are adding trim to a readymade jacket, you may have to open some seams to be sure the ribbon is firmly stitched in place. Ribbon trim may also be glued to sneakers, run down the side seam of jeans, or stitched to form a design on a sweatshirt. If your youngster bikes with a knapsack, add some ribbon trim to the knapsack for extra visibility.

And if your pet goes out at night, tie some ribbon around his neck. It may save his life.

Main-dish brisket is mellow

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

MAIN-DISH BRISKET

Mild and mellow — a welcome change from spicy fare.

- 2-pound thin-cut beef brisket
- 2 large onions, thinly sliced
- 4 medium carrots, pared and thinly sliced
- 2 large ribs celery minus leaves, thinly sliced
- Garlic cloves to taste, thinly sliced
- 2 beef bouillon cubes dissolved in 2 cups boiling water
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Paprika

Shave excess fat from top of brisket so fat is in a thin, even layer. Prepare a 9 by 5 by 4-inch clay pot according to manufacturer's directions. In the bottom of the pot mix together the remaining ingredients except the paprika. Place the brisket, fat side up, over the vegetables and bouillon; sprinkle brisket generously with the paprika. Cover with the clay-pot top. Place in a cold oven. Turn heat control to 425 degrees; bake until meat is quite tender — 2 hours. Carve brisket thin and serve with the vegetables and broth in wide soup plates accompanied by forks and soup spoons. Makes 4 generous servings.

'For every pound of fat you add to your body, you add somewhere between 200 and 1,000 miles of additional capillaries just to feed the cells in the body. If you take the minimum, 200 miles for each pound, that means that fifteen pounds of excess weight adds an extra 3,000 miles to the distance that blood must be pumped each day. That is equal to the distance from one coast of the United States to the other. That is a tremendous amount of extra, unnecessary work to impose upon your heart.

If you are carrying around an extra ten or fifteen pounds, consider what effect this has on your body and energy level. Diet Center can help you develop a proper diet to keep you at a slim, healthy weight for the rest of your life.

Burglar killed in break-in

Police search for stashed loot

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A bragging young burglar who delighted in breaking into homes while the owners slept and may have been responsible for 2,000 thefts is keeping police guessing even after his death.

Paul Hass, 22, who had been arrested several times, told authorities with pride that he was the North Shore Burglar of Long Island, N.Y., the Gunbarrel Burglar of Colorado and the Malibu Burglar of California.

"He was a premier burglar," said Boulder County sheriff's detective Carroll Allison, who tracked Hass for weeks in 1979 during a rash of break-ins at expensive homes. "That was his profession. Just as some kids grow up to be a doctor, Paul Hass grew up to be a burglar."

Hass was slain Oct. 21, when Westport, Conn., homeowner Irving Kaye shot him once in the back of the head during a break-in, officials say.

Now police are trying to figure out where all the loot from his burglaries is stashed.

Lt. Bruce Goodman of the Boulder sheriff's department says he's convinced Hass rented safe deposit boxes throughout the country. Some of them may never be found since Hass often changed identities, using stolen driver's licenses and other identification cards, Goodman says.

"If we could put all our cases together, I'm sure we could solve 1,000 to 2,000 burglaries," said Sgt. Ronald Rafferty of the Suffolk County, N.Y., police department.

Hass, who violated probation in New York, was arrested in Boulder in 1979. He was being held in connection with the Colorado break-ins, but had not been convicted of them. Authorities said he told them about his exploits before escaping from jail shortly before Christmas of 1979. He remained at large until his death.

In Connecticut, Westport Police Lt. Ron Malone said Hass was suspected in a rash of burglaries during the nine days before he was killed.

Authorities said Kaye, a wealthy manufacturer of pool tables, was awakened by noise and noticed his television set missing.

Hass was shot near an indoor swimming pool in the home. Authorities said they found $2,700 in his pocket.

Officers who had been assigned the job of tracking Hass said he operated on the theory that when people are home, the money is there. Hass would break in while the owners slept, picking up purses and wallets. He had told friends in Boulder that he would go into bedrooms and take money while people slept.

Hass struck 60 times in 60 days in the Boulder area.

BRITISH SEAMEN STRIKE

LONDON (AP) — About 12,000 British seaman began a one-day strike today, virtually halting British shipping from England, to protest moves by the Cunard line to transfer two of its three cruise ships to a Bahamian flag of convenience and hire lower-paid foreign crews.

The strike forced the Townsend Thorenson ferry service to cancel all channel crossings between England and France, and Britain's other major operator, Sealink, said it was reducing service to the continent by half. Sealink said it would use only those ships manned by French and Belgian crews.

"No passenger or merchant ship operated by British seamen will sail from a British port during the stoppage," said John McGill chief of the National Union of Seamen. "We have the complete support of all our members."

The NUS has 40,000 members in all. But only 12,000 are involved in the strike, since it is illegal for seamen to strike when outside Britain.

SPANISH DEMONSTRATION

SAN SEBASTIAN (AP) — Some 10,000 demonstrators took to the streets of this Basque capital to demand an end to terrorism by Basque separatists, but they were attacked by about 350 Basque militants supporting the guerrilla war of terror, police said.

Hundreds battled in the streets Sunday before police moved in to disperse the militants with rubber bullets and smoke grenades. The anti-terror demonstrators dispersed after marching through the city, police said.

No arrests or injuries were reported.

OIL BLOCKAGE BROKEN

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indian troops broke up a 10-month-old blockade of oil installations in the northeastern state of Assam.

The troops Sunday removed Hindu demonstrators who had closed the state's oil wells and its pipeline to back demands for the expulsion of millions of illegal Moslem immigrants from neighboring Bangladesh, the United News of India said.

Survey shows sugar price doubled

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Sugar prices took another leap last month, rising to their highest level in almost six years, according to an Associated Press.

Marketbasket survey which found that a five-pound sack of sugar costs twice as much today as it did at the start of the year.

The rise in sugar helped boost the average price of a random marketbasket of grocery items by almost half a percent last month. If it had not been for the increase in sugar prices, the AP found, supermarket bills would have dropped by more than 1 percent during October.

The AP survey is based on a list of 14 commonly purchased food and non-food items, selected at random. Prices were first checked at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

The latest survey indicated that the marketbasket total increased at the checklist store in six cities during October, rising an average of 2 percent. The bill decreased in seven cities, down an average of nine-tenths of a percent. On an overall basis, the average bill at the start of November was four-tenths of a percent higher than it was a month earlier. During September, in contrast, the marketbasket bill was unchanged.

When sugar was removed from the list, the picture changed. The AP price check found the marketbasket bill without sugar increased in five cities and decreased in eight, for an overall drop of 1.1 percent.

The price of a five-pound sack of sugar went up last month at the checklist store in 11 of the cities surveyed by the AP, rising to an average of $2.84. At the start of the year the average price of a five-pound sack of sugar at the checklist stores was $1.42. The price of sugar is approaching the all-time high of about $3 for a five-pound sack, reached at the start of 1975.

The price increase is caused by an increase in demand. Sugar consumption is expected to outstrip sugar production during the current year, forcing exporters to dip into stockpiles to satisfy the global sweet tooth.

The AP survey results were not weighted according to population density or in terms of what portion of a family's actual grocery spending each items represents. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. A 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was on the original list, but was dropped when the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

National Briefs

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Everything went according to plan when the center section of a dam on the South Fork of the Toutle River gave way and released water that built up as a result of activity at Mount St. Helens, engineers said.

The section was designed to break when impounded water reached a certain height and to release the water at a rate that would control flooding. It did so Saturday, said Kay Piotrzkowski of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The dam caught debris running off from the mountain. The volcano's May 18 eruption dumped tons of ash on the area and stripped the land of trees and vegetation which normally would control runoff from rain and snowmelt.

CHICAGO (AP) — A fire that swept through a two-story house on the city's South Side last week has claimed its 10th victim, a 7-month-old boy, officials say.

Devon Anderson, who died Sunday, had been in critical condition at the University of Chicago Hospital since Tuesday's fire, which also killed his two brothers and a sister and six other children. The boy's mother, Brenda Boyd, 29, remained hospitalized in fair condition, a hospital spokesman said.

Police are still investigating the blaze. Initially, police investigators said the fire was set, but on Sunday said they had no evidence of arson.

EAST MEADOW, N.Y. (AP) — A teen-aged woman who set herself afire two weeks ago and ran across the field during a school soccer match has died at Nassau County Medical Center, hospital officials said.

Peggy Hayes, 19, of Nesconset, parked her car behind the Great Hollow Junior High School on Oct. 17, set herself ablaze and then ran across the athletic field, officials said.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

November 4, 1980

Although you will be lucky in many ways this coming year, you're apt to be more fortunate in love, the most important of all. If you are unattached, the times ahead look very encouraging indeed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Feeling sorry for yourself is not one of your characteristics, but today you might feel wronged even if you weren't. Avoid emotionalism. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not discuss something about which you feel enthusiastic with a negative friend today. His or her blues could cloud your optimism.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be sure you know what you want today, or you may strive very hard for something only to find it matters very little after you've attained it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Unless you have total faith in your ideas and plans today, it will be difficult for you to win the support of others. Think "win" — and try.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be realistic in what you expect from others today, or you could be severely disappointed. Put yourself in their shoes for the proper perspective.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're supportive of those for whom you care today, yet you may only act in a lukewarm fashion. Go all-out instead of taking half-measures.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Although you won't try to neglect responsibilities today, your heart won't be completely in your work. A poor attitude can make difficult tasks tougher.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) At social gatherings you're usually the one who really knows how to enjoy yourself, but today you might be just a shade too choosy as to whom you communicate with.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try not to be overly protective of those in your charge today. Your intentions will be good, but they'll find the restraints a trifle binding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally you express yourself in ways which offer encouragement to others, but today your praise may lack its customary sincerity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Those who come to you for help today are likely to receive more advice than substance. Parting with money will be a painful experience for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have excellent leadership qualities which will be obvious to everyone except you today. Don't rain on your own parade.

NAMES IN THE NEWS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — For the first time in 16 years, George Wallace isn't running in a presidential campaign. And to hear him tell it, his name may never appear on a ballot again.

But from Mobile to Dothan to Bridgeport to Florence, the talk among old-time state politicians is that Wallace, a three-time governor of Alabama, will hit the campaign trail in 1982 for governor or some other office.

"He hasn't said he will run again, but we have gotten the word to keep the wheels of the Wallace campaign well-oiled. We are doing that," said a long-time aide.

"I'll never say never," Wallace said in an interview, puffing on his ever-present cigar. "But right now, I have no intentions of running again. All things have to come to an end. I have served my time and that time is now over."

Wallace, 61, sought the presidency four times in his career — 1964, 1968, 1972 and 1976. Wallace is a paraplegic, a victim of a 1972 assassination attempt while campaigning for president in Laurel, Md.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Doctors will decide within two weeks whether to remove a dead tumor on Steve McQueen's neck, according to the man who is helping to guide the actor's treatment for cancer.

The surgery could be performed when McQueen returns to the Mexican hospital where he has been undergoing a nutrition-based therapy.

William Kelley of the International Health Institution in Dallas, interviewed Saturday by the Los Angeles Times, said a decision on whether to operate would be made within two weeks.

"One tumor on his neck is probably dead and may have to be removed," the health consultant said.

McQueen was admitted to the hospital in August. While at home, Kelley said he was supposed to be following the same regimen as at the hospital, including an organic diet, coffee enemas, large doses of vitamins, the controversial drug Laetrile, and intramuscular injections of animal cells believed to trigger human antibodies.

"He just wanted to get back and see his chickens and his horses and his motorcycles," Kelley said. "It can get pretty lonely and boring living in a hospital."

On the lighter side

There's a new luxury in town hall

FORESTBURG, N.Y. (AP) — An era has come to an end in Sullivan County.

Since the turn of the century, residents of this town who attended meetings at their old town hall had to use an outhouse at the back of the building when discussions dragged on too long.

That all ended Sunday when several hundred people turned out to dedicate a new town hall built with the help of $200,000 in federal funds.

"And it has indoor plumbing," said one of Forestburg's 500 residents.

—— 1980 Is Banner Year for Button Maker

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ed Horn, one of the world's largest producers of political buttons, says 1980 has been his greatest year.

"Business is fantastic," he said. "The only year that came close was 1978. The Democrats are scared to death, and the Republicans smell blood.

"Democrats who spent a minimum amount of money in the past are now spending a lot. In areas where Republicans were sacrificial lambs, this year they're running with money and claws because they're smelling that they have a chance."

Horn's Badge Co. in suburban Glenside is one of only a dozen businesses in the nation that specialize in political buttons, bumper stickers and posters. Horn fills orders from all over the world.

Confidentiality is the name of his game. He starts making buttons long before the candidate tells the public he's in the race.

"A button can turn around and stick a candidate," said Horn on Saturday, recalling the "Nixon's the One" item he made for the Committee to Re-elect the President in 1972.

After Watergate, when some demanded Richard Nixon's impeachment, tha same button was worn by anti-Nixon forces.

"It took on a totally different meaning," Horn said.

Experience is the issue.

The 80's. As we enter a new decade, we face serious and growing challenges in the economy, energy, agriculture, education. To solve these problems—to make the important decisions which will affect all our lives for years to come—will take more than just good intentions. It'll take experience and leadership.

The kind of experience and leadership we have in Bob Price.

Bob Price. Farmer, rancher, businessman. Experienced as our former congressman for eight years. Effective as our state senator for the last three years. A leader in Austin.

Energy

Bob Price knows we must fully and rapidly develop alternate sources of energy to help control inflation and expand the area's economy. As a member of the Senate Natural Resources Committee, he passed bills to encourage production and sale of gasohol utilizing Texas grain crops (S.B. 988) and to promote solar and wind-powered energy production (S.B. 204).

The Economy

As our congressman for eight years, Bob Price worked for policies to promote more jobs and better wages for our area's working men and women. As our State Senator, Bob continues to reach these goals through legislation which encourages new industry; through tax and budget reform and through elimination of governmental interference and over-regulation of business.

Education

Bob Price is committed to quality public education and fair wages for teachers, and feels these goals can be accomplished without increasing taxes. Bob knows that we must properly train the future leaders of Texas in the schools of today.

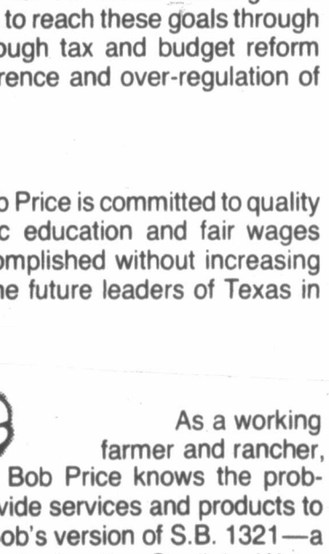

Agriculture

As a working farmer and rancher, Bob Price knows the problems facing this vital industry and those who provide services and products to the agricultural community. In the last session, Bob's version of S.B. 1321—a landmark piece of legislation—provided authority for the Ogallala Water Import Authority which will allow planning for desperately needed water for the area. Bob also passed the Family Farm Security Act which was overwhelmingly approved by voters in November, 1979.

We face one of the most important peacetime elections in years. On November 4th, remember:

Experience is the issue.

Bob Price is the answer.

Steelers snap losing streak

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It wasn't very stylish. In fact, it was very un-Pittsburghlike. But it was enough.

"We got a win. It's been a month since the last one. This feels good," defensive tackle Joe Greene said after the Steelers, still in the uncomfortable position of a place elsewhere than first, ended a three-game tailspin — their worst in four seasons — by edging the Green Bay Packers 22-20 Sunday.

"We won. I don't care how we did it. It's a good feeling and hopefully it's a turning point in ...," added Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw. In fact, they won it by the margin of a safety, one of two first-quarter blunders by rookie Buddy Aydelette of the Packers, whose errant snaps of the ball in punting situations led to nine of the Steelers' points.

A loss Sunday would have matched Pittsburgh's longest nosedive since 1969, when Chuck Noll became the Steelers' coach and began his odyssey with a 1-13 season. "We'd lost three games in a row," Noll said. "After that, any kind of victory is impressive. We're headed in the right direction. We are starting to get it back."

Elsewhere in the National Football League it was Houston 20, Denver 16; San Diego 31, Cincinnati 14; Oakland 16, Miami 10; New England 34, the New York Jets 21; Atlanta 30, Buffalo 13; Los Angeles 45, New Orleans 31; Philadelphia 27, Seattle 20; Dallas 27, St. Louis 24; Detroit 17, San Francisco 13; Tampa Bay 30, the New York Giants 13; Baltimore 31, Kansas City 24, and Minnesota 39, Washington 14. Chicago visits the Cleveland Browns tonight.

"I thought our team played darn well," Coach Bart Starr of the Packers said. "It's unfortunate that nine points came as a result of breakdowns. It's something we have to live with and do our best to overcome."

Bradshaw gave Pittsburgh its first touchdown with a second-period 7-yard pass to Lynn Swann, returning after missing three games with a cracked rib. And after Matt Bahr kicked two field goals to put the Steelers on top 15-14, Bradshaw gave them what turned out to be the winning TD on a 4-yard pass to Rocky Bleier with less than five minutes to play. Lynn Dickey passed for all three Green Bay TDs.

"When you get a chance to play, you do the best you can," said Bleier, who replaced hobbling Franco Harris and rushed four consecutive times for 38 yards before catching Bradshaw's TD toss. "Other backs are bigger, they're stronger, they're faster and they're younger. They should play," Bleier added. "But I have an opportunity to contribute and be a benefit to the team in situations like that."

On Green Bay's first possession, Aydelette snapped the ball way over the head of punter David Beverly and through the end zone for a safety and a 2-0 Pittsburgh lead. And in the second period, Aydelette's snap was high, Beverly jumped up and caught it and, rather than try a punt, threw an incomplete pass. The Steelers took over in Green Bay territory and wound up with Swann's TD catch.

Oilers 20, Broncos 16

Houston's Earl Campbell was a mile high against Denver's superb rushing defense. He didn't become the first NFL player ever to gain 200 or more yards in three consecutive games, but he gained 157 yards and scored two touchdowns.

"There are a lot of imposters, but there ain't but one Earl Campbell," said Coach Bum Phillips after the Oilers took sole possession — temporarily, anyway — of first place in the American Conference's Central Division. They're a game ahead of the Steelers and one-half ahead of the Browns.

Chargers 31, Bengals 14

The AFC Central is the only division to have just one team with a losing record — Cincinnati. The Bengals double-covered San Diego's game-breaker, John Jefferson, in the first half, so Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts picked them apart with passes to tight end Kellen Winslow. Then, when Cincinnati's attention shifted to Winslow, Fouts killed 'em with TD tosses of 9 and 16 yards to Jefferson in the third period.

The only "failure" in the game was Fouts' failure to match his own record of four consecutive 300-yard passing games, finishing with 270 yards. "We're not in this game for records," he snorted. "We're just trying to win games."

Raiders 16, Dolphins 10

Oakland, written off before the season as an also-ran, remained in a first-place tie with the Chargers at the top of the AFC West as Jim Plunkett, written off a few years ago as a washed up quarterback, continued his remarkable comeback.

He threw threw first-half touchdown passes of 13 yards to Raymond Chester and 17 yards to Bob Chandler to guide the Raiders to their fourth consecutive triumph since taking over for Dan Pastorini, out for the year with a broken leg.

Patriots 34, Jets 21

New England moved into first place all by itself in the AFC East, compliments of the Jets and Atlanta.

The Jets dug themselves a nice little hole before the game was more than 12 minutes old, falling behind 17-0 on Steve Grogan's 33-yard xt3tpass to Russ Francis, a 75-yard punt return for a TD by Roland James and a field goal by John Smith. It ballooned to 24-0 in the second quarter when Grogan and Stanley Morgan teamed on a 9-yard TD toss.

Falcons 30, Bills 14

While Buffalo was falling out of a first-place tie, Atlanta was staying in one, with Los Angeles in the National Conference West as Lynn Cain ran for two touchdowns and Tim Mazzetti kicked three field goals for the Falcons, who wiped out the Bills' early 14-point lead.

Rams 45, Saints 31

Quarterback Vince Ferragamo, who is looking to renegotiate his contract with the Rams, gave the front office something to think about when he pierced the winless Saints' secondary for five TD passes, tying a club record.

He didn't go for a sixth, he said, "because I'm interested in winning ball games. I'm not interested in setting records."

Eagles 27, Seahawks 20

"Eight years in this league, and I haven't had an easy one yet," Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski said after his 5-yard pass to Billy Campfield put the Eagles ahead of Seattle with 2:43 to play and kept the Eagles the team with the best record in the league, 8-1.

Cowboys 27, Cardinals 24

Dallas, one game behind the Eagles in the NFC East, cut it even closer as Danny White flipped a 28-yard TD pass to Tony Hill with 45 seconds left to beat the Cardinals.

It wiped out St. Louis' lead built on Jim Hart's 34-yard scoring pass to Mel Gray early in the final period.

Lions 17, 49ers 13

Detroit's Gary Danielson also played it cozy, scoring on an 8-yard quarterback keeper with 3:42 left in the game to vault the Lions past San Francisco. Danielson also teamed with rookie running back Billy Sims on a 41-yard scoring pass in the first quarter.

Bucs 30, Giants 13

Ricky Bell ran for 130 yards and a pair of touchdowns and Garo Yepremian kicked three field goals as Tampa Bay handed the Giants their eighth successive setback.

Colts 31, Chiefs 24

Last week Baltimore's offensive line allowed Bert Jones to be sacked 12 times in a loss to St. Louis. This time the Colts protected him perfectly and were rewarded by him with two scoring passes. And the Baltimore defensive line did its share with 10 quarterback sacks against Kansas City.

Vikings 39, Redskins 14

The Vikings, whose scoring was limited to just one field goal in their last two games, turned to Steve Dils as their starting quarterback because of Tommy Kramer's injured hand. Dils, in his first pro start ever, came through with two TD passes against the Redskins.

"I'm just as surprised as anybody," he said.

Harvesters end volleyball season

Pampa fall to Amarillo High, 15-5, 15-13, 15-13, to wrap up the volleyball season for the Harvesters.

Despite the loss, Pampa coach Lynn Wolfe said the Harvesters looked better than they have in several matches.

"We played a great game," Wolfe said. There were some long rallies. Both teams picked up some hard serves in the backcourt."

Time was a factor in all three matches.

It was 15-5 in the first game with 20 seconds on the clock and 15-13 in the second game when time expired.

With three seconds to go and Pampa trailing, 14-12, Susan Richardson's serve pulled the Harvesters to within one in the final game.

"Jeanette Britt showed a lot of maturity for us," Wolfe said. "She played one of her better games."

The Harvesters closed the season with a overall record of 24-6 and a district mark of 2-2.

"It looks like we'll finish right in the middle of district," Wolfe said. "If Tascosa wins Tuesday, they will be in a playoff with Amarillo High for the title."

Tiger League grid roundup

The Raiders edged the Redskins, 14-13, and the Rams slipped past the Colts, 13-6, in overtime during Tiger League football tournament action last week.

With the score tied at 6-all at the end of four quarters, Ronnie Lyles scored on an eight-yard end sweep to give the Rams the overtime win. The Rams defense then held the Colts four downs inside the ten.

The two teams traded scores in the regulation contest on Dickie Dale's 55-yard run for the Rams and Rodney Kelley's 10-yard scamper for the Colts.

In the Redskins-Raiders game, Rodney Harris got the Redskins on the scoreboard first when he ran back an interception 60 yards for the TD.

It was the Redskins' turn next as Ruben Ramirez scored on a 10-yard run.

Russ Rabel added the final score for the Raiders on a five-yard run.

In the final games of the regular season, the Redskins downed the Colts, 14-7, and the Raiders defeated the Packers, 6-0, in three overtimes.

Alabama loss caps incredible weekend

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Defending national champion Alabama's 6-3 loss to Mississippi State in Jackson Saturday was not your everyday loss — Bear Bryant had something to complain about.

"I know it's going to be a lot tougher beating us the next time," Bryant said Sunday. "If not, I'll go back to plowing."

The Bulldog victory, the first in 22 years versus the Crimson Tide:

—Halted the nation's longest winning streak at 28.

—Kept "The Coach" from getting his 304th career victory.

—Dampened the Tide's bid to become the first team in college football history to win three consecutive national championships.

—Limited an awesome ground attack that had been averaging over 300 yards per game to just over 100 yards.

After 28 Saturday afternoons, including two national championships, Bryant has explained why his forces have won. Saturday, there were new questions and answers.

"Before the game, I didn't think we were serious enough," Bryant said. "They (the players) were carrying on Friday night on the bus like somebody had escaped from the idiot house."

But Bryant wasn't the only one disturbed.

"I just can't accept it," said freshman running back Linnie Patrick, who recalled his immediate postgame reaction: "I just wanted to cry.

"Towards the end of the game, I just wanted to throw up," Patrick said. "This game is something people will talk about for 50 years. I just can't believe it. I don't want to believe it. It's no fun to lose."

There were others suffering from disbelief.

"It's sad. It's very sad," said split end Jesse Bendross. "I really thought we could pull it out at the end."

Bendross said the worst part of losing will be facing the students and fans of Alabama.

"It's going to be rough. I'm going to be ashamed to face people after this," he said. "At the end, I thought about all those people at home listening to it on the radio.

"They're so used to us winning, I hope nobody tries to kill themselves."

It wasn't quite that bad, but the fans were upset.

Pampa fourth in district c-c meet

Pampa finished fourth in the District 3-5A cross-country meet Saturday at Amarillo's Thompson Park, but Joe Murray finished third individually to qualify for regionals.

"We just didn't do what we were supposed to do," Pampa coach Wendell Palmer said. "Our overall times were slow. We just didn't seem to have enough energy for that extra push."

Tascosa won the district title followed by Amarillo High and then Palo Duro.

Don Braswell finished seventh for the Harvesters.

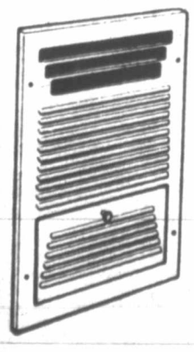

Murray competes in regional competition Saturday in Lubbock.

HIS MOTIVATION

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Hank Bauer of the San Diego Chargers is one of the shorter backs in the National Football League, standing 5-11 and weighing 200 pounds. He thinks his lack of height is one of the reasons for his success, eight touchdowns in 1979.

"I probably have a short-man complex," Bauer said. "I'm trying to knock down the big men all the time. I come from a small school (California Lutheran). I was a free agent. I've got a chip on my shoulder. Maybe that's my motivating factor."

Vote for Greater Banking Convenience

Passage of Proposition 1 on the November 4th ballot will open the door to even greater banking convenience. This simple change in the law will allow Texas banks to place unmanned teller machines at convenient locations for faster service, night or day. These teller machines are becoming a convenient option for handling routine banking business.

"Round-the-clock banking at unmanned tellers is convenient, safe and a positive step toward avoiding unnecessary credit card use. . .moreover, it is an energy saver — instead of traveling across town to a bank, an unmanned teller can be built in your neighborhood."
— San Angelo Standard-Times

Proposition 1 "will make life easier for bank customers. . .(it) will eliminate many, if not all, of the tortuous lines seen clogging drive-in bank lanes."
— Houston Chronicle

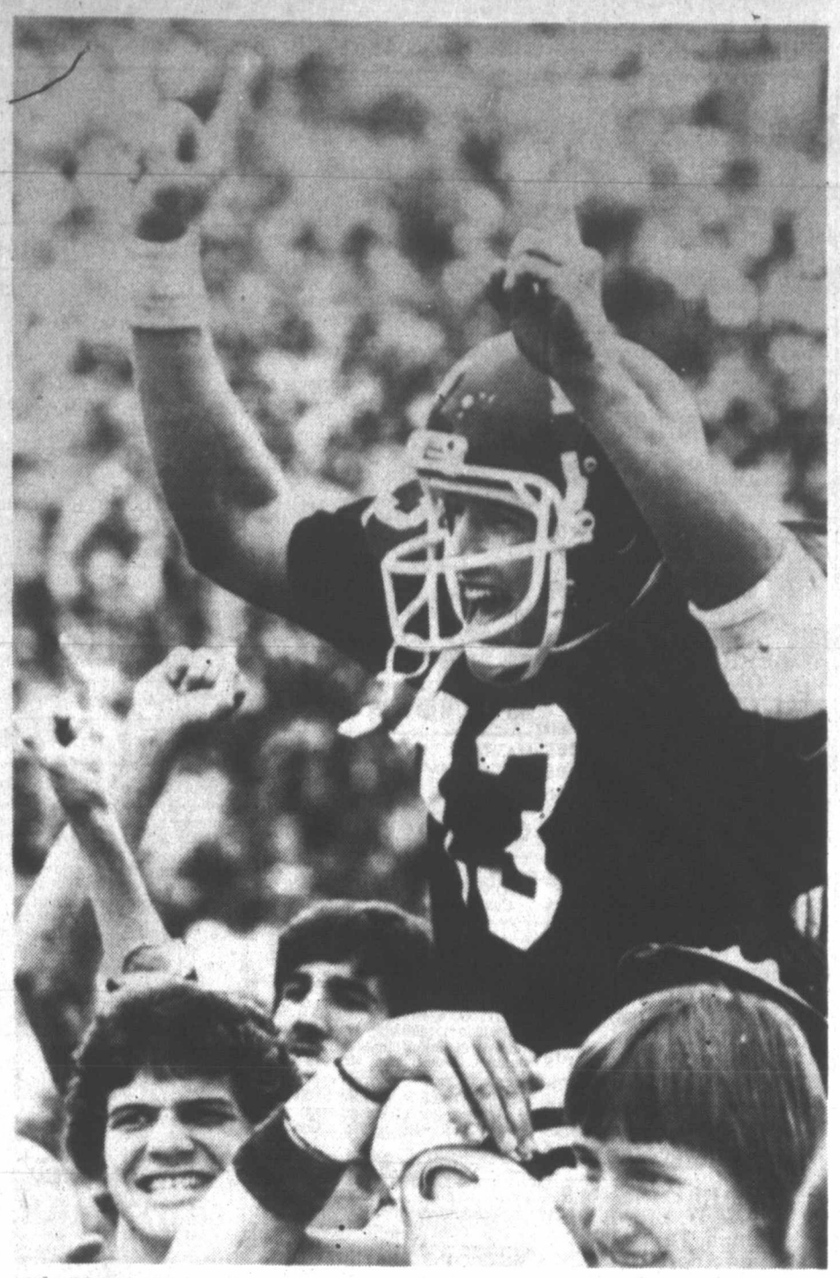

Proposition 1 "has gained widespread support as the amendment faces voters Nov. 4."
— Orange Leader

"Off-premises unmanned teller machines should be approved by Texas voters."
— San Antonio Light

People in forty other states already have this convenient banking choice. It's time Texans did, too.

Upset week in college football

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The king of college football is dead. Long live the king.

Does anyone know who that might be?

Third-ranked Notre Dame and No.4 Georgia, the only unbeaten-untied major teams left, are in line to jump to the top of the Associated Press ratings in the wake of a fantastic rash of upsets over the weekend that claimed top-rated Alabama and runner-up UCLA among the victims.

Sixth-ranked North Carolina and No.10 Baylor also had their perfect records come to an embarassing halt while No. 12 Texas, 14th-rated South Carolina and No.15 Missouri also went down the tubes, although South Carolina and Missouri at least had the decency to lose to other ranked teams.

This was the tale of devastation that swept through the Top Twenty: Mississippi State 6, Alabama 3; Arizona 23, UCLA 17; 16th-ranked Oklahoma 41, North Carolina 7; San Jose State 30, Baylor 22; Georgia 13, South Carolina 10; eighth-ranked Nebraska 38, Missouri 16, and Texas Tech 24, Texas 20.

Alabama Coach Bear Bryant and Baylor linebacker Mike Singletary summed it up for the losers.

"Maybe the Good Lord intended it that way," Bryant said. "There is a purpose for everything," echoed Singletary, "and maybe this will be good for us."

It certainly will benefit the winners, as follows:

—Mississippi State remained in the running for the Southeastern Conference crown and a Sugar Bowl berth and almost surely will get a bowl bid of some sort.

—Arizona proved it belongs in the Pacific-10 Conference, even though the Wildcats are on probation and ineligible for the Rose Bowl this year.

—Oklahoma showed it can still run the football as well as anybody, churning out 495 yards against North Carolina's supposedly rugged defense.

—San Jose State struck another blow for the lesser-known conferences and put the Pacific Coast Athletic Association on the map.

—Texas Tech may have helped dispel the rumors that Coach Rex Dockery's job is in jeopardy.

—Georgia moved squarely into the national championship picture, with Florida, Auburn and Georgia Tech standing between the Bulldogs and their first perfect regular season since 1946.

—And Nebraska took a half-game lead over Oklahoma in the Big Eight race while knocking Missouri out of a share of the lead.

Meanwhile, Notre Dame torpedoed Navy 33-0 as Jim Stone, replacing the injured Phil Carter for the fourth game in a row, carried 33 times for 211 yards and became the first Notre Dame player to rush for 100 yards in four consecutive outings. Stone ran 12 yards for one touchdown and set up another with a 73-yard sweep.

"This is the youngest team I've coached since high school," said Dan Devine. "But it's probably also the closest-knit team I've ever coached."

Georgia freshman Herschel Walker won his nationally televised rushing duel with South Carolina George Rogers, 219 yards to 168, thanks to a 76-yard touchdown burst in the opening minute of the third period.

"It was no battle — Georgia won the game," said Rogers. "I don't know my capabilities yet," said Walker, who became the 13th freshman in NCAA history to rush for 1,000 yards.

Meanwhile, fifth-ranked Florida State battered Tulsa 45-2, No. 7 Southern California mauled California 60-7 and ninth-ranked Ohio State trimmed Michigan State 48-16.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Pitt blasted Syracuse 43-6, No. 13 Penn State whipped Miami, Fla., 27-12, No. 17 Brigham Young buried Texas-El Paso 83-7, No. 18 Michigan crushed Indiana 35-0, No. 19 Southern Methodist blanked Texas A&M 27-0 and No. 20 Purdue outlasted Northwestern 52-31.

Alabama's 28-game winning streak, the nation's longest, came to an end when Mississippi State put a severe crimp in the Crimson Tide's dream of an unprecedented third consecutive national championship, thanks to second-half field goals of 37 and 22 yards by Dana Moore.

"I would put a flat-out '10' on our team, just like Bo Derek," Coach Emory Bellard chortled during Mississippi State's wild dressing room celebration. "Alabama has the No. 1 defensive team in the country and I would have to put us up there after this game, too."

The Bulldogs held Alabama to 116 yards rushing and 64 through the air and defensive end Billy Jackson preserved the victory by recovering 'Bama quarterback Don Jacobs' fumble — the Tide's fourth turnover — at the MSU 3-yard line with six seconds left.

Arizona's Tom Tunnicliffe threw his second touchdown pass, a 39-yarder to Bill Nettling in the third period, as the Wildcats erased UCLA's 17-14 halftime advantage. He also passed 11 yards to Bob Carter in the second quarter.

"That's the greatest upset I've ever been part of," said Arizona Coach Larry Smith.

Oklahoma riddled North Carolina's vaunted defense with quarterback J.C. Watts scoring on runs of 42, 7 and 1 yard and David Overstreet adding dashes of 23 and 29. Watts finished with 139 yards on 18 carries as Oklahoma didn't complete either of its two passes.

"When you gain 495 yards on the ground against the team that has allowed only 538 all year, you know you have done a great job," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer.

Baylor's loss to San Jose State came on the heels of the Bears' best start (7-0) in 81 years. They led 22-16 but lost when San Jose's Gerald Willhite ran for touchdowns of 2 and 6 yards in the final period.

"This is my greatest win in 28 years of coaching," said San Jose's Jack Elway.

A BIG CLIMB

Cowboys escape with narrow win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Coach Tom Landry called the play "amazing." Wide receiver Drew Pearson said "It's better to be lucky than good." And Tony Hill, the hero himself, didn't even know it was fourth down.

With just 45 seconds left, Hill leaped in front of cornerback Roger Wehrli to corral a Danny White pass and cap a 69-yard drive. The 28-yard scoring strike allowed the Dallas Cowboys to escape Sunday with a 27-24 win over St. Louis in a game which saw the lead change hands five times.

"Tony just made a great catch," said White. "I felt some pressure and I let the ball go earlier than I wanted to. Tony hadn't made his move yet."

Hill also said he was planning to make a cut when the ball was thrown.

"I just jumped up and caught it," the wide receiver said. "I didn't know where Wehrli was. My concentration was on the ball.

"I didn't even know it was fourth down."

Landry said the Cowboys were "fortunate to win" the battle with arch-rival St. Louis.

"It was amazing he caught it," Landry said. "The ball just fluttered and he just outjumped him."

Pearson, the secondary receiver on the play, saw the winning touchdown and offered his better-to-be-lucky-than-good description. "I thought Roger stumbled a little bit. But it was that kind of day. So many things can go wrong or right."

Wehrli offered no excuses. "He walled me off and I couldn't get around him. I saw the ball at the last second."

The White-to-Hill heroics was not the only big play by the Cowboys. They appeared doomed earlier when St. Louis had the ball — and a 17-13 lead — on the Cowboy 16-yard line early in the fourth quarter. But on second and ten, Cowboy pressure on St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart forced a pass that went off the hands of running back Ottis Anderson and into the arms of Dallas safety Dennis Thurman.

Thurman galloped 78 yards for a touchdown that gave the Cowboys a 20-17 lead.

"That interception gave us new life," said Landry.

But the Cardinals bounced right back into a 24-20 lead as Hart hit Pat Tilley with a 46-yard bomb, and then connected with Mel Gray four plays later for a 34-yard touchdown with nine minutes remaining.

On two subsequent possessions, St. Louis kept the ball on the ground and couldn't pick up a first down.

After the Cardinals punted the second time, White connected with Pearson for 22 and 15 yards to set up the clincher to Hill.

The Cardinals moved to the Dallas 40 with 20 seconds remaining, but Hart was sacked twice to move St. Louis out of range for a possible tying field goal.

INDIVIDUAL LEADERS
RUSHING — Dallas, Dorsett 16-43, Newhouse 5-9, Springs 3-6. St. Louis, Anderson 22-92, Morris 8-42, Harrell 3-1 0.

Overwhelmingly endorsed by 82% of the Texas lawyers.

Vote to Keep Judge Will Garwood on the Texas Supreme Court

Judge Will Garwood has widespread support from Democrats, Republicans, Independents, three former governors, four former attorneys general, 11 former Supreme Court justices, 15 Texas Bar presidents.

Texas lawyers endorsed Judge Garwood by 82%. He won local judicial preference polls by 86% in Dallas, 86% in Houston and 80% in Fort Worth.

Judge Garwood is the choice of so many because he's fair-minded, non-partisan and better suited to the job through personal qualifications and superior training.

He has over twenty years experience in private civil law practice. He served with the Judge Advocate General's Corps, U.S. Army, and was first in his class every year at The University of Texas School of Law, receiving his LLB with honors.

"The appointment of Will Garwood to the Texas Supreme Court sounds like a chapter of Texas history repeating itself. The Garwoods have a long record in the judiciary. Will Garwood's grandfather, Hiram Garwood, was county judge of Bastrop County in 1888 and at one time president of the Texas Bar Association. W. St. John Garwood, son of the county judge and father of the new associate justice, was the first Houstonian to be named to the Texas Supreme Court in 80 years . . . This three-generation record of public service is in the finest Texas tradition"
– HOUSTON POST

"Garwood's legal credentials are, to put it modestly, magnificent."
– DALLAS MORNING NEWS

KEEP JUDGE GARWOOD

Look for the name Garwood on the ballot. It's worth the effort.

Pol. Adv. paid for by Texans for Judge Will Garwood, a Nonpartisan Committee: Duncan Osborne, Treasurer; 121 East 8th, Suite 318, Austin, Texas 78701.

FATHER - SON TEAMS. Father - son teams in the oil fields are rare, but Rig No. 37, located southeast of Higgins in Hemphill County, has two father - son teams who work the same shift. The four (above) are father O. T. Ash and son Steve Ash and son Jacky Courange and father Joe Courange, all of Canadian. The elder Ash has served with the company 25 years and the elder Courange 15 years. Both said the greatest change in the oil fields has been the accent on safety.

Five killed in head-on crash

DAYTON, Texas (AP) — A head-on collision between a car and a van killed five Southeast Texas residents just outside Dayton late Sunday night, a DPS spokesman in Austin said.

Killed were Mark Allen Klunk, 29, of Houston; an unidentified white male about 19; George Michael Calhoun, 29, and his wife Sandra, 25, both of Dayton; and George Michael Calhoun Jr., the couple's three months old son.

DPS Spokesman Bill Carter said the van burst into flames after the collision.
