Combined equipment location announced

The Precinct 4 county barn on Texas Hwy. 208 has been chosen to house consolidated equipment and personnel, Scurry County commissioners announced Friday.

The change is to become effective Jan. 1, 1992. The court will formally act on the plan during its Nov. 12 meeting.

There has been some public confusion on the plan and its purpose, said commissioners.

The purpose of the consolidation in the road and bridge department is to eliminate the duplication of equipment that now exists, explained commissioners.

The consolidation is expected to eventually eliminate approximately 22 pieces of equipment and two employee positions. A crew pusher, selected from present road and bridge department employees, will supervise the combined crew (see COUNTY, page 12A)

County redistricting plan sent to Justice Department

The county's redistricting plan was mailed Friday night to the U.S. Justice Department for approval.

Commissioners finalized the paper work in a Friday afternoon meeting for the plan, which will create a minority district. The proposal was then to be forwarded to the U.S. Justice Department for approval.

Minor changes required in the plan were made by "nunc pro tunc" orders. The changes were the result of description discrepancies submitted by Bickerstaff, Heath and Smiley, the Austin law firm charged with creating a minority precinct and submitting the plan to the Justice Department.

The plan, approved by the court in September, will see significant boundary changes in Precincts 1 and 4 to create a minority-dominated district as mandated by the Justice Department.

Minor boundary changes will be made in Precincts 2 and 3.

Precinct 1 will become the minority precinct with a total minority population of 52.8 percent. Currently, the precinct has a minority population of just under 46 percent.

In addition, the court approved nunc pro tunc orders for justice of the peace and election voting precincts, both part of the redistricting plan.

Judge Bob Doolittle presided. Present were commissioners C.D. Gray Jr., Roy Idom, Jerry Morgan and Jerry Gannaway.

In activity Monday, commissioners are planning a week-long work session on several pending county items including insurance, the impending 911 emergency system, purchase of right-of-way and the county law library.

Also listed for the session are Tex Pool investments, the county coliseum and county airport. No formal action will be taken.

Nursing home here cited for violations

A Snyder nursing home has been cited and fined by state regulators for violation of health and safety standards.

Snyder Nursing Center, located on the Big Spring highway, has been cited following a four-day inspection that ended Oct. 15 after a complaint filed on behalf of a nursing home resident.

Nursing home regulation in Texas has come under fire recently including criticism by Gov. Ann Richards for lax oversight. Nursing homes have also been the subject of national TV shows.

Dot Cole, a provider sanctions coordinator with the Texas Department of Human Services, said Friday that liquidated damages had been imposed against Snyder Nursing Center for failure to meet health and safety standards required for Medicaid program participation.

Cole said the fine is $5 per day for each Medicaid-certified bed. There are 76 such beds at Snyder Nursing Center, resulting in a daily fine of $380.

Cole said inspectors were at the home four days in October and filed a survey report that resulted in the agency action. A report of the survey findings was posted at the care center.

Cole said that when deficiencies are corrected, the nursing center may ask for a reinspection. Agency officials in Austin, Wichita Falls and Abilene said that a new survey has yet to be requested. The law requires a reinspection within five days of a request.

An employee at Snyder Nursing Center referred all questions to administrator Sandra Givens who lives in Abilene.

Violations cited include failure to provide medical-related social services. Examples were needed assistance for a grieving resident who had experienced the death of a family member, needed help for a resident with behavioral problems, and needed help for a resident refusing to take medication.

Also cited was food preparation that did not "conserve nutritional value, flavor and appearance." An example was scorched broccoli (see VIOLATIONS, page 12A)

'Brilliant loner' kills four, then self on Iowa campus

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — A student described as a brilliant loner went on a shooting rampage at the University of Iowa after being passed over for an academic honor. He killed a rival student, three professors and himself.

The student, Gang Lu, also critically wounded a university administrator and another staffer Friday before shooting himself to death, said Ann Rhodes, vice president of university relations.

Lu, a physics department graduate student from China, had filed a complaint with the academic affairs office when his department didn't nominate his doctoral dissertation for a competition to choose the university's best dissertation, Rhodes said.

The dissertation by the student Lu killed Friday was nominated instead.

Classmates said Lu was a loner who took pride in his studies.

"He was brilliant, always did perfect work, straight A's," said

450 cast ballots in early period

Some 450 Scurry County citizens exercised their right to vote for or against 13 constitutional amendments during the early balloting period which ended Friday at the county courthouse.

Only 292 people had voted prior to Friday, meaning that more than 150 cast their ballots on the final day. Eight mail ballots were still out, election officials at the county clerk's office noted.

Polls open at four locations in the county for the Tuesday, Nov. 5 election:

—Precinct 1: North side of Scurry County Coliseum. Voting boxes 14, 15 and 16.

—Precinct 2: Scurry County Library. Voting boxes 5, 6, 17 and 18.

—Precinct 3: Towle Park Barn. Voting boxes 7, 8, 9 and 19.

—Precinct 4: South side of Scurry County Coliseum. Voting boxes 10, 11, 12 and 13.

Of special interest locally is Proposition 4 which calls for the issuance of up to $1.1 billion in general obligation bonds for new prison and mental health facilities.

Also on the ballot is Proposition 11 which would authorize a state lottery. Other key Propositions include No. 6, which would create the Texas Ethics Commission and No. 13 which would allow the issuance of $3 million in general obligation bonds to provide educational loans to students.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday.

American West exhibit to open at museum here

"Artists of the American West," opens in a traveling exhibit Sunday at Scurry County Museum on the Western Texas College campus.

A reception scheduled for the opening from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. will also mark the start of the Museum Association's annual membership drive. There is no charge for admission to the museum and the public is invited to attend.

The exhibit includes 48 hand-colored lithographs and wood engravings by such world class artists as Karl Bodmer, George Catlin, Albert Bierstadt, Fredric Remington, John J. Audubon and John Mix Stanley. It presents the works of many of the first artists to work west of the Mississippi and provides a vivid picture of the American West at a time when the native cultures were beginning to feel the impact of the advance of white settlers.

Artists of the American West is toured under the auspices of ExhibitsUSA. ExhibitsUSA is a national division of Mid-America Arts Alliance, a non-profit regional arts organization, whose partners include the state arts agencies of Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas, the National Endowment for the Arts, and private contributors.

Information about the exhibit and special tours can be obtained by calling the museum at 573-6107. Gallery hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The museum is open from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. most Sundays but visitors are advised to call ahead for definite information.

The exhibit will be at the museum through Nov. 25.

SISD board to convene on Monday

Snyder public schools board of trustees will convene in executive session in the administration board room to discuss personnel at 12:30 p.m. Monday.

The session will be followed by a board workshop.

Topics to be addressed during the workshop include the nomination of a trustee to the Texas Association of School Boards (TASB) from Region 14, appraisal district board nominations and a class size waiver for the second grade at Stanfield Elementary.

Other items include a drug screening policy, a TASB policy update and dates for superintendent evaluation.

The board's regular November meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 14.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Progress is just wonderful...six-lane highways, one-way streets and four-way cold tablets."

Constitutional Amendments generally create only a minor amount of state-wide interest, however, we believe Proposition 4 on Tuesday's ballot may be the most important.

Proposition 4 calls for the approval of $1.1 billion in bonds to finance the construction of prison and mental health facilities in Texas.

For almost 10 years, Texans have been the victims of the state prison system dilemma commonly referred to as the "revolving door."

Because of federal court ceilings, each time a prisoner is put into the packed prison system, one inmate has to be released. Many of these have only served a fraction of their sentences.

Too often, these early-release inmates return to the streets of our cities and towns and commit additional crimes. While it costs some $13,000 to house an inmate in the state prison system, a felon running free may commit crimes that costs citizens some $500,000 a year. Such figures point to the economic benefits of more prison capacity.

A major factor in the state's growing crime problem is substance abuse. The bonds, if approved, also call for the construction of 12,000 substance abuse treatment beds. Such beds will allow for treatment of the cause, just not the symptoms.

Major crime is on the rise in Texas. So far, small West Texas cities have been spared much of the problems faced by big cities. Local law enforcement officials have warned that the problem will soon be out of control and in local neighborhoods unless swift action is taken.

Proposition 4 is an issue of public safety, and a yes vote will help ensure a way of life that we have come to enjoy in Texas. Proposition 4 is an investment in our future.

Bush recalls days as Texas oilfield worker

DALLAS (AP) — George Bush hasn't forgotten his friends in Texas and they haven't forgotten him.

The former West Texas oilman brought in a gusher of support Friday at a $1,000 a plate dinner that raised about $1 million for the president's reelection campaign.

Money made in the oil patch was well represented on the dais, with honored guests including

Mrs. H.L. Hunt of Dallas, Perry Bass of Fort Worth and former Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

Other industries were also represented by the presence of chicken czar Lonnie "Bo" Pilgrim and software magnate Sam Wyly.

Oil heir Ray Hunt, who organized the fund raiser, described it as a family reunion for Bush supporters, some of whom had supported Bush for decades.

"I do feel a lot of love in this room," said Bush, who moved to Odessa in 1948 and later lived in Midland and Houston.

During his dinner address, Bush blamed "liberal Democrats" for blocking his domestic agenda in Congress. The president also vowed that special values would help rebuild the economy, which he called "the lifeblood of the American dream."

Bush said the special values included: "Commitment to economic growth, a steadfast respect for the individual (and) a proud determination to carry faith and democracy to the rest of the world."

The president received an ovation when he said economic issues used to be simple issues involving people, not numbers.

"Your word was your bond," he said. "You shook hands with a guy in an oil field ... and it kept."

Bush said the sense of neighborhood, family, faith and patriotism was the true strength of America.

"It is in the neighborhoods, families of West Texas, in Dallas, in Houston, in South Texas, in the Panhandle, in Waco and wherever. It's a strength that comes from a simple source: freedom," he said.

However, Bush said, Democrats on congressional subcommittees were bottling up the legislation he had requested, especially the transportation and anti-crime bills.

'Storm' rations donated

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Hungry people in the Texas Panhandle will happily accept leftovers from Operation Desert Storm, thank you.

The U.S. government had sent to the Persian Gulf enough meals for soldiers to last 500 days of war. Operation Desert Storm's ground war lasted only five days.

Afterward, officials handling the rations and packaged foods, which were either already in the gulf or headed that direction, returned them to America.

The government gave half of the returned food to the Inter-agency Council on the Homeless, which in turn gave the food to Second Harvest to dispense among its 196 food banks nationwide.

Thanks to the High Plains Food Bank's affiliation with Second Harvest, a national network of food banks, hungry area residents will receive some of the food products and paper goods that originally were intended for soldiers.

"The product is free (to the food banks) like all Second Harvest products," said Janie Singleton, executive director of the High Plains Food Bank in Amarillo. "Freight costs us $1,400 a truckload, depending on where it comes from."

Amarillo already has received 100,000 pounds of food and anticipates receiving another 200,000 pounds from Operation Desert Share.

Ms. Singleton said the agency will receive various types of products, and she never knows what the next shipment will be until it arrives. But she thinks the 185 food bank member agencies in the area will be able to use any of the products.

"JESUS KNOWS"

By Homer Anderson

Glenn Baird of Bradford, Tennessee, was handsome and intelligent, the valedictorian of his high school graduating class. Then he began to suffer from hemophilia. First his arm was removed, then he lost the use of one eye. Then it was difficult for him to walk. He expressed his faith in a poem called, "A Cripple Only Til Death," the last stanza of which reads,

I study for wisdom, I pray for contentment,
Into the future I cannot see.
But, Lord, keep me happy and free of resentment
For a cripple only til death, I shall be.

Do you ever wonder when you suffer if Jesus knows how you feel? If you lose your spouse or child to death, how can He understand since He never Married? Different things make us laugh, but we all know laughter. Different things make us weep, but we all know sorrow. In the Garden of Gethsemane, Jesus told His disciples, "My soul is deeply grieved to the point of death" (Mark 14:34).

If there is a thorn in your path, remember Jesus wore them on His brow. He sees, He knows, He understands. Yes, Jesus cares! "For we do not have a High Priest who cannot sympathize with our weakness, but one who has been tempted in all things as we are, yet without sin" (Hebrews 4:15).

A Bright Spot
in our hometown...

Hubert W. Cargile

Hubert W. Cargile has been a standard for community service in Snyder for more than 40 years. His record of civic involvement has earned him respect all over Texas.

Hubert Cargile has been associated with West Texas State Bank since its organization in January of 1950. He served as president for 15 years and as chairman of the board until 1975 when he became senior chairman of the board.

He is also a charter member of the Colonial Hill Baptist Church where he has served as a deacon and church treasurer. He was a teacher of junior high boys for approximately 30 years.

A member of the Snyder Kiwanis Club for 42 years, he served as president in 1951. He is a member of the chamber of commerce and served as president in 1954. In 1973 he was the recipient of the chamber's outstanding citizen award and in 1979 he was honored with the Snyder Mayor's Award for community development.

For a number of years he served as a director, representing the City of Snyder, on the board of the Colorado River Municipal Water District. He also served on the executive board of the Boy Scouts, Buffalo Trail Council. In 1971, he was recipient of the Silver Beaver Award.

He has been a director and served as memorial chairman of the Scurry County unit of the American Cancer Society, and he is a past-president of the Scurry County Fair Association.

Mr. Cargile served for many years as treasurer of Snyder Little League, retiring in 1990. He is also a 32nd Degree Mason and a member of the Scurry County Masonic Lodge and the El Paso Scottish Rite Bodies.

Professional accomplishments include his service as chairman and member of the administrative and audit division of the Texas Bankers Association. He is also a past-president of the South Plains Bankers Association. In 1989, he was honored for 50 years of service to the banking industry by the Texas Bankers Association.

He and his late wife, Mary, established a scholarship for a graduate of a Scurry County high school to attend Western Texas College. Mr. Cargile also serves on the WTC Foundation Board.

Each month, Snyder National Bank honors a Scurry County citizen for community service. For November, Snyder National Bank is pleased to honor Hubert W. Cargile. Making the presentation is Joe Jackson, president of SNB.

Woman to claim inheritance

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A Soviet woman who last saw her brother during World War II and spent years trying to find him will claim his $140,000 inheritance from the state of Alaska, where he died 10 years ago with no known heirs.

Lydia Aristovich, 54, and her husband, Valery, were to arrive in San Francisco on Sunday to complete a chapter in the story of a family torn apart by war. She was 3 and her brother was 14 when the family was split up in 1941.

"She's ecstatic," said Cyril Volk, a San Francisco attorney who helped get the money. "Not only about the money, but she's happy to find out what happened to her brother."

Fisherman Victor Andre-Jeff was 54 when he died of a heart attack Nov. 12, 1981, on his boat in Homer. He left behind the boat and a hefty bank account, both of which were turned over to the state two years later.

Volk, a Soviet native whose specialty is hunting for Soviet heirs, was hired six years ago by a now-defunct heir-search firm. A Soviet law firm he contacted checked government records and ran newspaper ads, but with no luck.

Volk had given up when Mrs. Aristovich, who lives in St. Petersburg, called him early this year. He isn't sure how she got his number.

"I'd lost all hope of finding her," Volk said in a telephone interview Friday from San Francisco. "Then all of a sudden, in a blue moon, she calls me. I was surprised."

Firefighters battle last oil well fires in Kuwait

RAWDATEIN, Kuwait (AP) — Just three plumes of black and white smoke mar the skyline of Kuwait's northern oilfields where Canadian firefighters are expected to cap the emirate's last burning well on Saturday.

Gone are the midnight-black skies of last spring, when hundreds of burning wells spewed smoke from tons of unburned oil and other pollutants into the air. Although scientists are still studying the longterm effects, the predictions of a new global environmental catastrophe have not materialize.

The Canadian firm Safety Boss, which has capped more wells than any of the four U.S. and Canadian teams called in since March, is also expected to extinguish the last one.

The last three burning wells are in the Rawdatein and Sabriyya oil fields, 50 miles north of Kuwait City.

To commemorate the completion of the project, a well in the main Burgan oil field south of Kuwait City has been reignited and will be put out by the ruling emir, Sheik Jaber Al-Ahmed Al-Sabah, during a celebration next week.

Of Kuwait's 940 producing wells, 732 were damaged by the Iraqis, including 640 set ablaze with explosives.

Kuwait currently is extracting about 290,000 barrels of oil a day from 120 intact wells. Oil Ministry officials say output will rise to about 400,000 barrels a day by the end of the year.

Before the Iraqi invasion on Aug. 2, 1990, Kuwait's OPEC-set production quota was 1.5 million barrels a day.

At first, Kuwaitis estimated it would take until March to extinguish and cap all the damaged wells.

But as more firefighting teams and equipment were brought in, more water became available and the firefighters became more experienced, the well-capping rate rose dramatically — from about one every four days in March to as many as nine a day recently.

The global impact of the disaster has been less than initial predictions partly because the smoke from Kuwait's fires did not get into the highest reaches of the atmosphere, where it would have spread quickly over a wide area.

Still, black rain has been reported as far away as Pakistan, Turkey and Bulgaria. Kuwait's desert remains marred by soot and oil lakes, and wartime oil spills still foul the Persian Gulf shoreline.

The effects on people remain less clear. Although respiratory problems from air pollution have been studied in industrial regions of Europe and the United States, they involved smoke while most of Kuwait's plume was a vapor of unburned crude.

Scientists are still conducting studies, but some statistics are in. Walter J. Vreeland, an adviser to the Bahrain-based Environmental Protection Committee, estimated Kuwait's oil fires contributed just 2 percent of global carbon monoxide, which he termed "not significant."

2 candidates are anti-abortionists

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Pro-choice groups face the same dilemma in Pennsylvania's high-profile U.S. Senate race next week as their counterparts here: who to support when both candidates oppose abortion.

The dilemma is particularly touchy for women's rights groups seeking candidates to support as the subject of abortion becomes an increasingly greater political issue. Some groups argue that women should boycott elections where there is no pro-choice candidate, while others advocate supporting a "lesser-of-two-evils" candidate.

"You won't find any of the women's rights groups out beating the bushes for the lesser of two evils," said Patricia Ireland, executive vice president of the National Organization for Women. "It's a classic example of why we're looking at a strategy for a new party."

But Loretta Ucelli of the National Abortion Rights Action League disagreed.

Gilley mused about committing perfect crime

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Frank Gilley mused about committing the perfect crime on patrol a few weeks before Norman's 1970 double slaying on a lover's lane, a former fellow officer says.

Lexington's future remains uncertain

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A decision on which of three cities will be given the USS Lexington has been delayed so they can provide the Navy with more information on how they plan to protect the historic aircraft carrier from hurricanes, earthquakes and other natural disasters.

Quincy, Mass., where the Lexington was built; Mobile, Ala., and Corpus Christi, Texas, each want the World War II warship as a floating museum after it's decommissioning.

The Lexington's commissioning pennant will be lowered in a ceremony Friday at the Pensacola Naval Air Station where it has spent most of its 48 years as the Navy's training carrier.

The Naval Sea Systems Command was supposed to make a re-

"Gilley said he thought he could commit a crime and get away with it," former Norman officer Billy Martin testified Friday in Gilley's murder trial.

Gilley's comment was an unusual one for a rookie police officer, as was his inquiry about where young Norman couples went to park, Martin said.

"I had trained several rookie officers before that, and none of them ever asked me that question," he said.

Gilley, 55, who has been living in the Dallas suburb of DeSoto for most of the past 20 years, is charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the May 1970 shooting deaths of David Sloan, 21, of Amarillo, Texas, and Sheryl Benham, 19, of Oklahoma City.

Gilley's former wife testified she couldn't vouch for Gilley's whereabouts the night of May 9 and the morning of May 10.

Dortha Maple said she must have been out of town that weekend because old police department records show Gilley went to work at 4 a.m. for three days in a row, including May 10, 11 and 12 of 1970.

But, she testified, "there was never a time he went to work at 4 a.m. when I was home."

Ms. Maple said Gilley asked her last year, when she had called Gilley's mother, if she would testify for him if the case came to trial.

"He asked me if I remembered about the murders and I said, 'No,' and he said, 'I'll tell you what you remember,'" she testified.

In a bond reduction hearing last year in Dallas, Ms. Maple testified that Gilley was home in bed asleep with her the night the couple was killed.

"Did you testify to that because you remembered that or because Frank told you that?" District Attorney Tully McCoy asked.

"He told me I was with him. I had no reason to doubt him. He had never lied to me before," she said.

She said she later learned that Gilley had gone to work at 4 a.m. on May 10, that it was Mother's Day weekend and decided she must have been out of town.

"You either lied under oath then or you're lying now; isn't that right?" defense attorney Robert Perrine demanded.

"I didn't deliberately lie under oath," she answered.

Ms. Maple also testified that former Norman police Chief Bill Henslee, who offered Gilley a job with the department, frequently visited their home. He continued to come over about once a week after Gilley left the department. The two stayed in contact after Gilley moved back to Amarillo.

Witnesses have testified that Henslee fired Gilley days after the bodies were found and that Gilley was being investigated as a suspect by the end of the month. One witness, a former case investigator, accused Henslee of attempting to divert the probe away from Gilley.

Ms. Maple said she didn't know at the time that Gilley was a suspect. She said Gilley also told her he quit his job and didn't like living in Oklahoma.

She said Gilley was a good police officer.

Financial Focus

The Securities Act of 1933 was the first law enacted by Congress to regulate the securities market. It outlined the registration of securities prior to sale, disclosure of financial data in a prospectus, anti-fraud provisions and more.

In 1940, the Investment Company Act required registration and regulation of investment companies by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). The 1940 act further set the standards by which mutual funds operate in the areas of promotion, reporting to shareholders, pricing of securities, sale to the public and allocation of investments within their portfolios.

These two acts are still the most important pieces of securities legislation protecting the public. However, the pooled investment funds of tax-qualified pension plans at banks and insurance companies are exempt from regulation under the Securities Act of 1933 and the Investment Company Act of 1940.

John Collins, a spokesman for the Investment Company Institute (ICI), says the exemption was justified because at that time banks and insurance companies handled pension funds for more professional, sophisticated investors representing major corporations and pension plans.

Today, though, banks and insurance companies have taken an increasingly active role in directing investments for small employers through the use of defined contribution plans and 401-k plans. These employers, for the most part, are not professional investors. Like the general public, they need the protection of the Securities Act of 1933 and the Investment Company Act of 1940.

The banking and insurance industries oppose lifting the exemptions they currently enjoy. They argue that the pooled investment accounts are adequately covered by state and federal regulations.

This issue has yet to be resolved, but it will be interesting to see how it unfolds.

Former resident earns teacher of year award

Letha Bell, Wayside Middle School teacher, has been named Texas' Earth Science Teacher of the Year. A former resident and student, Bell is also the daughter of Joe and Muriel Vincent and the granddaughter of Connie Vincent, all of Snyder.

Bell received the award during a recent breakfast meeting. The award is sponsored by the Texas Section of the American Institute of Professional Geologists.

Dr. Carl Koenig, geology professor at A&M University and TESTA's representative, gave the award to Bell.

Bell also received several cash awards including $100 from Law Engineering, Inc., $150 from the American Institute of Professional Geologists (AIPG), and $100 from the Texas Section of the Association of Engineering Geologists.

The award also includes a sponsored trip to a professional geology conference and some geology materials for Bell's classroom at Wayside.

Bell received her bachelor's degree from Tarleton State University, where she also minored in chemistry. She received her Master's of Education degree from North Texas State University in the field of secondary education.

She taught for three years at Mineral Wells before joining the Eagle-Mountain-Saginaw ISD staff and has a total of 19 years of experience.

Bell has helped to develop the curriculum and operate a science camp for sixth grade top students at Camp Goddard in Oklahoma, helped to develop a curriculum for new honors life and earth science classes, and developed a curriculum that established 40 percent lab work before the state required it.

Her professional memberships include Texas State Teachers Association, Science Teachers Association of Texas, the National Education Association, and the state and national Earth Science Teachers Association.

Her awards include Regional Science Fair Teacher Award in 1987, 1988, and 1989, the Texas Educational Agency Energy and Environmental Education Award in 1981, American Red Cross Volunteer Award, Astronomer for a Day, Regional Science Fair Sponsorship Trip to the International Science Fair in Pittsburgh in 1989 and Chamber of Commerce Teacher of the Year nominee in 1988 and 1990.

Bell will be featured for her most recent accomplishment in the Journal of Geology Foundation. One Texas teacher is honored with the award each other. She is the first from the Metroplex to be chosen for the honor.

Reclaiming Control of Texas Prisons

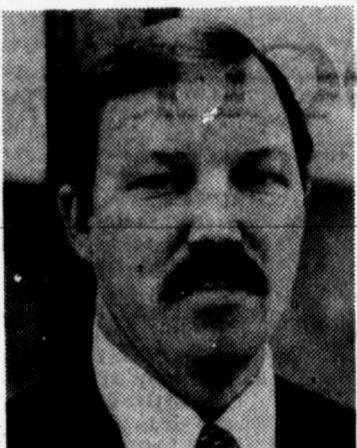

By DAN MORALES, Attorney General

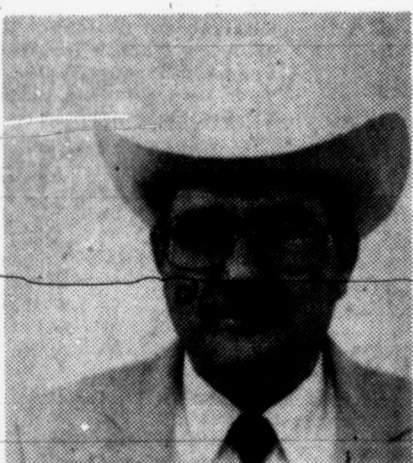

Gov. Ann Richards

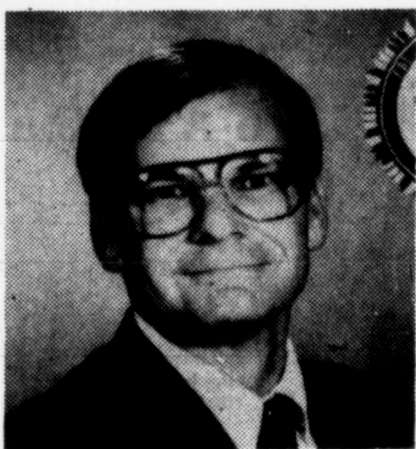

Rep. David Counts

DA Ernie Armstrong

Sheriff Keith Collier

Police Chief Lannie Lee

For nineteen long and costly years, our state prison system has been governed by outsiders. Texans have been forced to witness the evolution of an environment in which the rights of criminals seem to be more vigorously guarded than the rights of their victims.

Recent progress aimed at reversing this alarming trend could well be the catalyst to return control of our prisons to state leaders, while also restoring proper recognition and protection of the first right of every Texan: the right to be safe in our homes, in our businesses, and on our streets.

Last month, state and county officials settled the difficult jail overcrowding lawsuit. County jails across Texas have for too long been filled with state prisoners who cannot be sent to state facilities because of a desperate lack of available cells. In the wake of last month's settlement, we now have an historic opportunity to seize upon the momentum and take the next step toward reclaiming complete control of our prisons.

The history of the lawsuit that led to our loss of state control has been particularly arduous. On June 29, 1972, inmate David Ruiz filed a handwritten petition with Federal Judge William Wayne Justice, stating that living conditions in Texas prisons were unconstitutional. Two years later, his and seven other inmate petitions were consolidated into a class action lawsuit known as Ruiz v. Estelle, which cited overcrowding problems, the use of inmates as guards, inadequate health care, solitary confinement, and a host of other abuses. In December 1980, after a 161-day trial that included some 350 witnesses and more than 1,500 exhibits, Judge Justice declared the system unconstitutional, ordered sweeping reforms, and appointed a special federal master to oversee our prisons.

Today, our prison system is in compliance with federal standards in all aspects, and we are prepared to prove that we have a mechanism in place to ensure that they never again fall into unconstitutional disrepair.

In my second week on the job as Attorney General, I filed a motion to end the litigation and federal supervision because I don't believe Texans want to see the suit and outside control of our prisons drag on into yet another decade. During the recent legislative session, specific regulatory measures were enacted with the help of Governor Richards, Lt. Governor Bullock, Speaker Lewis, and their criminal justice leadership teams. These measures provide that, as our prison system grows to accommodate more prisoners, the availability of medical, recreational, academic, and other inmate facilities will grow in concert. The measures also put in place a structure that will closely monitor inmate population growth. And they modify our prison policies in such a way that Texas prisons can become more civilized and more cost effective with strict guidelines for inmate classification, staffing, nutrition, health care, disciplinary actions, facility maintenance, and other concerns.

In addition to these regulatory measures, the Legislature laid the groundwork for the construction of more than 25,000 additional prison cells to ensure that adequate space exists to house those individuals convicted of criminal acts.

An integral part of this initiative is the dedication of some 12,000 prison beds to confine and treat those criminals whose abuse of drugs and alcohol has affected their ability to follow society's laws. As many as 85 percent of those individuals who break our laws do so because of substance abuse. If we are to succeed in truly turning the tide of crime, we must close the revolving door that shuttles addiction-driven criminals in and out of our criminal justice system.

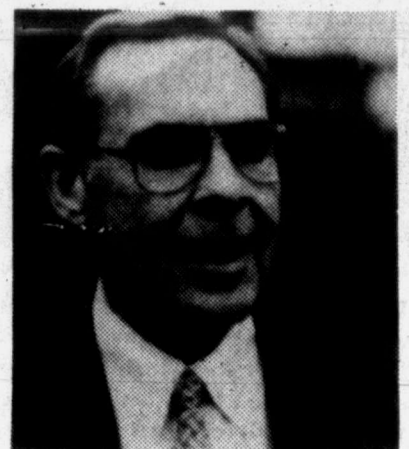

These actions represent the most comprehensive effort to date to address the needs of our criminal justice system and to end federal control of our state prisons. Texas voters will now be called upon to lend their support to this effort by approving the $1.1 billion bond package on the November 5 ballot to fund the construction of these new prison cells.

Voter approval of these bonds will ensure that our state's best effort is made to inject stability and predictability into our criminal justice system. It will also place Texas in the best position to end the Ruiz litigation once and for all. It is for these reasons that I encourage voters to exercise their right to vote and support Proposition 4 on November 5.

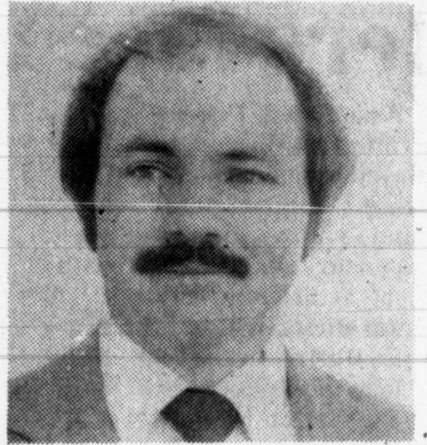

As the state's chief law enforcement official, I recognize that the coming years will bring no escape from the increasing numbers of Texans sent to our prisons, no escape from the need for more prison capacity and more jail cells, no escape from the need to choose very carefully from among the array of community-based sentencing options.

I believe, however, that we can now escape the specter of a prison system governed by the federal courts. The people of Texas are tired of the courts running our affairs, and they believe the time has come to put our policy-making authority back in the hands of those who have been duly-elected to represent the people of this state—where it belongs.

Voting yes on the November prison bond proposal is a critical step toward reclaiming control of Texas prisons.

Cave and Fields spark 35-6 clinching win over Frenship Tigers earn 2-4A playoff spot

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

A pair of unlikely heroes led the Snyder Tigers to a 35-6 trouncing of Frenship Friday night that clinched a second consecutive playoff appearance for coach David Baugh's SHS squad.

Sophomore quarterback Matt Cave completed six of seven passes for 112 yards and a touchdown and junior wingback Michael Fields rushed for 104 yards and two TDs on four carries.

"That's pretty good," said Baugh of the duo. "Matt looked like a dad-gum pro quarterback, three plays and a touchdown."

Cave's final scoring strike of the game came with under four minutes to go when he dropped back and hit split end Jason McAden for a 30-yard touchdown.

McAden's TD capped a 60-yard, three play drive in which Cave completed three straight passes.

The Snyder offense, behind Cave and Fields, racked up 365 yards while the Black and Gold defense was giving up just 139 yards to the visitors and holding the Frenship passing attack to a mere 40 yards.

Frenship's all-district split end Chris Matthews was shut out Friday, although Frenship quarterback Kendrick Hollie went his way eight times in the course of the game.

"I think the secondary did a great job," said defensive coordinator Jack Dorsett.

"Coach (Fred) Jackson did a great job of getting them ready. (SHS cornerback) Locadio Luera did a super job on Matthews. They didn't even throw to him late in the game."

"Whichever side Matthews came to," Baugh added, "our corners did a great job of jamming on him. We put them right there in his face and got them off their timing."

"Plus we had a little heat on the quarterback from time to time."

The SHS defense had its scoreless quarter streak broken at 10 when Hollie found Jamal Whitfield for a five-yard touchdown in the third period.

"I'm not disappointed," Dorsett said, "10 quarters is pretty good."

Coach Baugh is pleased with his team's effort thus far in the season.

"I'm proud of our team," he said. "In a lot of ways making the playoffs is a pretty big deal for this team. The kids have played hard and hung in there and they deserved to win. The kids have pulled themselves up. We don't have any real stars, except maybe (tight end-defensive end) Hayward (Clay)."

"But we're not thinking about

Snyder frosh fall to SA Lee

Snyder's freshmen Tigers fell to San Angelo Lee on Thursday, 43-34, in spite of Nathan Zalman's two touchdown runs and a 154-yard rushing performance by Jason McAden.

"Overall," said frosh coach Mike Meek, "we played a good game. We just made some critical mistakes and let them get some easy touchdowns."

Zalman's three-yard touchdown run in the second quarter and a 35-yard blast by Jason Miller set the tally at 28-12 Lee at halftime.

McAden opened the third quarter with an 80-yard TD jaunt followed by a successful two-point conversion by Zalman.

Zalman added a two-yard scoring run and Chris Mitchell dove in from two yards out and then scored the two-pointer.

The freshmen will be in Lamesa next Thursday for their final game of the 1991 season. Kickoff is set for 5 p.m.

the playoffs. We're thinking about Lamesa. We want to finish the regular season 7-3."

Things looked to be going the home team's way early Friday when Hollie fumbled the football on the first play from scrimmage.

Snyder's Locadio Luera recovered on the FHS 18.

With 9:21 to go in the opening quarter, fullback Wayland Harrison blasted the last three yards for the TD and the J. Parker PAT gave the Snyder Tigers a 7-0 lead.

Snyder struck again in the first period on one of Fields' TD jaunts.

On the first play following a Frenship punt, Fields scooted 68 yards through the visiting Tigers to set the margin at 14-0.

The Tiger defense got into the act in the second stanza when defensive tackle Chris Carrasco slammed Hollie down for a nine-yard loss and a safety.

Senior tailback Daniel Espinosa thundered the final four yards on a 35-yard trek to the end zone for Snyder with 1:31 to go before halftime, giving SHS a 22-0 advantage at intermission.

Frenship mounted its only drive of the evening to open the third quarter.

The visiting Tigers went 59 yards in 15 plays, ending with the Hollie-to-Whitfield score.

Fullback Dwayne Young, who wound up leading FHS on the ground with 85 yards on 15 carries, accounted for 28 rushing yards on the drive.

Fields' second touchdown, at 6:04 in the fourth, covered 14 yards and boosted the tally to 28-6.

The Cave TD pass to McAden followed about two minutes later to wind up the scoring.

NFL roundup...

Oilers face unbeaten 'Skins

by The Associated Press

The last time the Washington Redskins played a run-and-shoot team, they beat Detroit 45-0. Seven games and seven victories later, the Redskins try the run-and-shoot again at a different level.

The Houston Oilers, whose 7-1 record matches Buffalo as the best in the AFC, take their pass-happy offense, led by Warren Moon, to RFK Stadium Sunday against Washington, which is ranked third in the NFL defensively.

Defensive coordinator Richie Petitbon is skeptical about the run-and-shoot, but he says the Oilers are probably the only team that could take it to the Super Bowl.

"If everything's clicking in that thing, it's hard to stop," Petitbon said. "What you have to do is show them some different looks and make some plays."

Houston is No. 1 in the NFL in passing, with Moon throwing to Haywood Jeffries, Ernest Givins, Curtis Duncan and Drew Hill. All have at least 32 receptions at mid-season; Jeffries leads the NFL with 49.

"It's an offense you don't see every week, and that makes a big difference," Petitbon said. "The stuff we did against the Giants (in a 17-13 victory on Sunday) is useless."

Elsewhere Sunday, it's San Francisco at Atlanta, Cleveland at Cincinnati, Detroit at Chicago,

SHS JV rolls past Frenship

Snyder whipped Frenship, 34-6, in junior varsity football Thursday in what SHS coach Roland Hererra called "The Ice Bowl."

"There was a freshman game right before ours," he said, "but the ice reformed and just covered the field."

In spite of the coating on the field, Gilbert Orosco, running from the fullback spot, scored three times for the Tigers in the win.

Frenship took a 6-0 lead in the first period before Orosco drove in from 12 yards away, then tacked on the two-point PAT.

Orosco added a 50-yard TD run in the third quarter and a 15-yarder in the fourth.

Jim Pat Griffin scored for Snyder on a one-yard quarterback sneak and wingback Tony Hernandez scooted 35 yards for a third-quarter Tiger touchdown.

"The kids showed a lot of effort and a lot of character," Hererra said. "They played hard and really tough."

The SHS JV, now 5-4, will travel to Lamesa Thursday to wind up the grid season.

Game time at Tornado Stadium is 7 p.m.

Green Bay at the New York Jets, New England at Buffalo, Tampa Bay at Minnesota, Phoenix at Dallas, New Orleans at the Los Angeles Rams, Miami at Indianapolis and Pittsburgh at Denver. On Monday, the Giants are at Philadelphia.

Kansas City, the Los Angeles Raiders, San Diego and Seattle are off.

The Redskins are fifth in the NFL offensively but take the opposite tack. Washington is second in the league in rushing and has thrown the fewest passes, while the Oilers have run the ball less than any other winning team.

But the bottom line is that Washington and Houston are the only two teams that have scored 100 more points than they've allowed.

"If I had a choice, I'd rather play a more conventional offense," Redskins safety Brad Edwards said. "But at the same time, the ball will be in the air a lot and you'll have a chance to make plays or interceptions. It's going to be a busy day with receivers flying all over the place."

"Hopefully, our crowd will mess up their audibles."

The Lions and Bears, both 6-2, will battle for sole possession of first place in the NFC Central.

"I think the rivalry between the Bears and Lions has been good," Bears coach Mike Ditka said. "I think it will be a better rivalry now that both teams are pretty darn competitive."

"We feel we can play with the elite teams of the NFL," Lions coach Wayne Fontes said. "We're an improving team but the question is, how far have we come? This will be a big test for our young team."

Despite their record, the Lions have fared poorly in their two outdoor games on the road. Besides the big loss at Washington, they were ripped 35-3 at San Francisco two weeks ago.

Cards stop streak with 47-7 victory

HERMLEIGH — The Hermleigh Cardinals' season-long losing streak ended Friday when they pounded Highland, 47-7, in a District 6-A six-man football battle.

Daniel Hermosillo of the Cards started the onslaught with a one-yard TD run. Brendon Blair's PAT kick lifted Hermleigh to an 8-0 advantage to start the first quarter.

Hermosillo wound up the night with 66 yards rushing and three touchdowns on six carries. Teammate Chris Velasco added a pair of scoring runs, a 64-yarder from scrimmage and a 50-yard interception return.

The Cardinals are now 1-8 on the year and 1-3 in district action. Highland falls to 0-9 and 0-4.

Hermleigh winds up the season next week at Trent.

Borden Co. grabs post-season berth

LORAIN — Borden County exploded for 22 first-quarter points Friday en route to a 62-35 District 6-A six-man football win over Loraine.

The Coyotes, 6-3 in all games and 3-1 in district action, clinched a playoff spot behind Ira, who claimed the district crown Friday. Clint Wills of Borden County led the barrage, scoring on a 60-yard run and a 48-yard pass from Clint Monger.

Wills also threw three scoring tosses, one covering 53 yards to Monger, one to John Paul Harris for 55 yards, and the last a 65-yarder to Brandon Adcock.

Loraine scored twice in the second quarter but still trailed at the half, 36-13.

Frank Garcia scored three times for Loraine. His 55-, 65- and 22-yard TD runs paced the Bulldogs in the loss.

Borden County winds up the regular season Friday when the Coyotes host Highland.

Area wranglers compete in El Paso

Snyder area residents Leslie Ward, Terra Kay Bynum, Adam Brewster and Coke Hopping have qualified for the World Finals Rodeo in El Paso for the North American Rodeo Commission.

The rodeo started Friday and will run through Saturday, Nov. 9, and will consist of two go-rounds.

The finals in each event are scheduled for Nov. 9.

Cowboys representing the United States, Canada, Mexico and Australia will compete in the rodeo.

Ward was a qualifier in both the barrel racing and breakaway roping events. Bynum earned a berth at the rodeo in barrel racing, as well.

Brewster qualified as a bull rider and a bareback rider and Hopping claimed a spot as a saddle bronc specialist.

Westerners host opener on campus

Western Texas College's Westerners will be playing on campus against McMurry University's JV in their season opener Tuesday.

The Westerners, who usually play their home games at Scurry County Coliseum, will host McMurry in the WTC gym due to scheduling conflicts at the coliseum.

Game time is 8 p.m. and admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students.

WTC boosters set Monday meeting

Western Texas College Athletic Boosters will meet Monday for a Dutch-treat lunch at Golden Corral.

Anyone interested in sports at WTC is invited to attend.

Kings trade Owens to Warriors

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The rights to Billy Owens, the Sacramento Kings' unsigned top draft choice, were traded to the Golden State Warriors in exchange for Mitch Richmond, center Les Jepsen and a second-round draft pick in 1995.

Owens, a 6-foot-9 forward from Syracuse, was the third player taken in the NBA draft. The acquisition of his rights breaks up the Warriors' potent threesome of Richmond, Chris Mullin and Tim Hardaway, which combined to average 72.5 points a game last season.

Hershiser, Davis file as free agents

NEW YORK (AP) — Orel Hershiser, Glenn Davis and Alejandro Pena filed for free agency while Jim Gantner, Ken Griffey Sr., Dickie Thon and Bob Walk were made eligible to file.

A total of 10 players filed, raising the number of free agents to 67. Also filing were Dan Petry of Boston; Bert Blyleven, Donnie Hill and Dick Schofield of California; Jerry Don Gleaton of Detroit; Tom Candiotti of Toronto and Jay Howell of Los Angeles.

NBA roundup...

Washington knocks off Indy

by The Associated Press

The Washington Bullets, winless in eight preseason games, are expected to be awful this season. The Indiana Pacers are expected to make their biggest challenge ever in the Central Division.

Expectations had little to do with reality in Indianapolis on Friday night.

With Michael Adams posting 22 points, 12 assists and nine steals, the Bullets upset the Pacers 109-103 on opening night in the NBA.

Adams was the league's sixth-leading scorer with a 26.5 average last season for Denver, but he was expected to play a quieter role with Washington.

"I didn't think I would be scoring that much. We have a lot of guys to go to, and I am not just a go-to guy like I was in Denver," said Adams, who had seven points, five assists and two steals in the third quarter when Washington overcame a 12-point deficit to take the lead for good.

"We are all not that surprised," Adams said. "We just came out ready to play and thought we could win."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 111, Charlotte 108; Orlando 106, New York 96; Milwaukee 109, Detroit 99; Chicago 110, Philadelphia 90; Utah 112, Minnesota 97; Houston 126, the Los Angeles Lakers 121 in double overtime; San Antonio 140, Dallas 99; Golden State 108, Denver 105; Portland 117, Cleveland 106; Sacramento 94, the Los Angeles Clippers 90; and Phoenix 99, Seattle 95.

Pervis Ellison and Harvey Grant scored 18 points each for the Bullets, while Reggie Miller led Indiana with 21.

Indiana, 5-3 in the exhibition schedule, was shellshocked after going more than four minutes without a field goal and getting outscored 20-5 in the period.

"It's easy to say it's one of the biggest disappointments I've been through since I came here," Indiana coach Bob Hill said. "Our performance was lackadaisical and certainly not a team effort. We were awful, just awful."

"We played terrible," center Rik Smits said. "We did not take them lightly, but they were ready and they deserved to win."

Spurs 140, Mavericks 99

At San Antonio, David Robinson scored 24 points and Terry Cummings 22 as the Spurs came within four points of their all-time largest victory margin.

San Antonio was in control all the way, leading 73-45 at halftime and 105-73 at the end of the third quarter.

Sean Elliott scored 19 points for the Spurs. Fat Lever led the Mavericks with 17.

Rockets 126, Lakers 121

Houston survived 37 points and clutch shooting by James Worthy to beat Los Angeles at the Summit.

Worthy scored six of his 33 points in the final 1:59 of the second extra period for the Rockets. Worthy's 3-pointer at the buzzer forced the first overtime at 97-97 and he had two more 3-pointers in the final minute of the first overtime.

Hakeem Olajuwon had 29 points and got 18 rebounds for the Rockets. A.C. Green scored 28 points and Byron Scott 24 for Los Angeles.

Lakers guard Magic Johnson did not play because of illness and the Lakers lost forward Sam Perkins with 23 seconds left in the first period with an abrasion to his right cornea.

Bulls 110, 76ers 90

Chicago celebrated the unveiling of its first NBA championship banner with a rout of Philadelphia.

The Bulls got 26 points from Michael Jordan and 23 from Scottie Pippen and outscored the 76ers 32-14 in the second quarter. A 31-point lead early in the second half left no doubt of the outcome.

Charles Barkley had 18 points for the 76ers, 12 of them in the first quarter.

Celtics 111, Hornets 108

Larry Bird scored 10 of his 23 points in the fourth period as Boston withstood a Charlotte comeback to win its 13th straight home opener.

The Hornets, trailing 78-59 midway through the third quarter, rallied to 101-99 with five minutes remaining, but the Celtics hung on to spoil the debut of Allan Bristow, who stepped down from vice president to coach the Hornets.

Larry Johnson, Charlotte's No. 1 pick overall in the draft, sparked the Hornets' rally with 10 of his 14 points in the fourth period.

Dell Curry led the Hornets with 21 points.

Magic 106, Knicks 96

At Orlando, the Magic ruined Pat Riley's coaching debut as Nick Anderson scored 22 points and Scott Skiles had 17 points and 12 assists.

Anderson, 10-for-15 from the field, scored the last six points of the third period for Orlando, which improved its record against the Knicks to 5-2 over three seasons.

Patrick Ewing led the Knicks with 30 points and six blocked shots.

Jazz 112, Timberwolves 97

At Minneapolis, Karl Malone scored 16 of his 35 points and Jeff Malone 15 of his 25 in the third quarter as Utah outscored Minnesota 38-23 and went on to spoil the debut of Timberwolves coach Jimmy Rodgers.

The official attendance was a sold-out 19,006 only 6,973 fans actually showed, braving the worst snowstorm (more than 2 feet) in Minneapolis history.

John Stockton added 21 points and 12 assists for the Jazz, while Pooh Richardson had 20 points and 10 assists for Minnesota.

Bucks 109, Pistons 99

Milwaukee surprised Detroit at the Palace behind Dale Ellis' 24 points and a 52-37 rebounding advantage.

The Bucks took control of the game in the third quarter, outrebounding the Pistons 17-4 for a 77-68 lead.

Joe Dumars scored 20 points for the Pistons.

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) —

It's an ideal weekend for Craig Stadler, one that could only be better if he walks off with the trophy in the Tour Championship.

Stadler hasn't won in the United States since 1984, but right now it's not foremost on his mind.

Pinehurst has brought a smile to his face.

"There's a lot of money, obviously, not many players, we're playing early, we're playing in twosomes, we got around in three hours and 20 minutes, which is wonderful," Stadler, the golfer to catch for the rest of the weekend, said Friday.

Stadler has successive rounds of 68 for a 136 total, 6-under-par. He leads Nick Price, Paul Azinger and Russ Cochran by a shot with two rounds remaining.

"Great golf course, nice spot. If you've got to play golf, there are very few places I would rather be than here," he said. "It's a great week for us, especially the end of the year."

Maybe it was fun because Stadler managed to escape some of the trouble he put himself in on the Pinehurst No. 2 course.

"I got away with a few today," he admitted.

Stadler had three successive up-and-down pars on the front nine before reaching the ninth hole, where his tee shot missed the green on the par-3.

WTC golfers take sixth at Texarkana

TEXARKANA — Western Texas College golfers, paced by Pampa sophomore Mark Wood's 152 on 36 holes, finished sixth in the chilly Texarkana Invitational Golf Tournament Friday with a team-total 631.

"I couldn't even tell you who won," said WTC coach Milton Ham. "The conditions were just terrible, windy and cold. It was 14 degrees when we got off the course so we just jumped in the bus and came home."

Wood's total came on rounds of 73 and 79 while Ryan Teague, also from Pampa followed with a 76-81-157.

AIDS lawsuit winner could die during appeal

DALLAS (AP) — A man who won more than $750,000 in an AIDS discrimination case against his former employer, Southwestern Bell, said he fears he'll never see a penny of the award.

District Judge Gary Hall's ruling Thursday also ordered the phone company to reinstate Alan Rehwinkel by Dec. 2 and to stop discriminating against him because of his medical condition. AIDS is classified as a handicap under the state's Human Rights law.

Southwestern Bell will appeal the ruling, company attorney William Brown indicated. The company has contended that AIDS wasn't the reason it fired Rehwinkel.

"I don't feel too much of a victory," said Rehwinkel, 36, adding that twice he had to battle for his life while waiting for the case to go to trial.

"I'm taking a stand for all those people who are beaten down by this bullying," Rehwinkel, who is married and has a 6-year-old son, told The Dallas Morning News.

Southwestern Bell hired Rehwinkel, an architect, in 1979. He tested positive for the AIDS virus in 1985 and informed the company in January 1987.

According to testimony in the 3-day trial, Rehwinkel drove up to the company's Dallas office one day in September of 1988 to load items into his car.

Someone parked behind him and blocked his car, he said.

The parking lot attendant complained Rehwinkel was in an unauthorized spot. The company suspended Rehwinkel, told him to apologize and to pay the attendant $35. Rehwinkel complied. But when he was fired the same month, the parking incident was cited.

Company officials never mentioned Rehwinkel's medical condition, he said.

At the time, Rehwinkel earned more than $50,000 in pay and benefits.

The judgment includes $360,000 for lost wages, $300,000 for mental anguish and $97,000 in interest.

"This was a personnel matter," said Donna Snyder, an attorney for the phone company. "His medical condition had no part in this decision at all."

Ms. Snyder said the judge didn't award the judgment after hearing all of the evidence in the case but made its ruling "on a technicality," ruling that Southwestern Bell failed to file certain court documents on time, she said.

Ms. Snyder refused to say whether the parking log incident had anything to do with Rehwinkel's firing.

TEXANS TO VOTE ON 13 CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

The exact wording of the proposed constitutional amendments on the Nov. 5 ballot and summaries of the propositions:

BALLOT WORDING	WHAT IT MEANS
PROP. 1 The constitutional amendment allowing home-rule cities with a population of 5,000 or less to amend their charters by popular vote.	A home-rule city is a city that is able to govern itself, generally through the actions of a city council. This amendment would allow certain home-rule cities to continue to amend their charters through elections.
PROP. 2 The constitutional amendment mandating the repayment to the Department of Transportation of monies expended to assist the Texas Turnpike Authority in the construction, maintenance and operation of turnpikes, toll roads and toll bridges.	This will allow the Legislature to authorize the Texas Department of Transportation to spend money on turnpikes, toll roads or toll bridges of the Texas Turnpike Authority. The Department of Transportation may use any available money that it has for this purpose. If the department uses money from the state highway fund, it must be replaced by money collected by the Texas Turnpike Authority from tolls and turnpike revenue.
PROP. 3 The constitutional amendment to authorize the Legislature to further implement and enhance the administration of the veterans' housing assistance and land programs and to expand the investment authority of the Veterans' Land Board.	This will ease restrictions on certain investments. The Veterans' Land Board may invest any money that is not to be used for the payment of principal and interest on bonds, the purchase of lands or the payment of expenses.
PROP. 4 The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of up to $1.1 billion in general obligation bonds for acquiring, constructing or equipping new prisons or other punishment facilities to confine criminals, mental health and mental retardation institutions, and youth corrections institutions, for major repair or renovation of existing facilities of the institutions and for the acquisition of, major repair to, or renovation of other facilities for use as state prisons or other punishment facilities.	This will allow the state to issue up to $1.1 billion in general obligation bonds. The money from selling these bonds will be used for new prisons and substance abuse facilities, mental health and mental retardation institutions, and youth corrections institutions. The bonds and interest on the bonds will be paid from the first money coming into the state treasury that is not set aside by the state constitution for other purposes. A general obligation bond is a bond that is repaid from the state's general revenue fund. Most of the money in the fund comes from state taxes and fees.
PROP. 5 The constitutional amendment authorizing the exemption for ad valorem taxes of certain property in an enterprise zone.	This will allow a county, a junior college district or a municipality to exempt certain personal property from ad valorem taxation to encourage economic development in enterprise zones. An ad valorem tax is a tax imposed on the value of property. An enterprise zone is an area that has substantial poverty, unemployment and economic distress.
PROP. 6 The constitutional amendment creating the Texas Ethics Commission and authorizing the commission to recommend the salary for members of the Legislature and the lieutenant governor, subject to voter approval, and to set the per diem for those officials, subject to a limit.	This will establish a Texas Ethics Commission as a constitutional agency. The governor, lieutenant governor and speaker of the House will select the commission. It will monitor the conduct of state officials, can recommend pay raises for legislators and can independently set the amount of daily expenses legislators can receive. Any recommended change in salary must be submitted to state voters for approval.
PROP. 7 The constitutional amendment to allow the board of trustees of a statewide public retirement system to invest the funds of the system in a manner that the board considers prudent.	This will change the way in which the board of trustees of each statewide public retirement system can invest in the system's funds.
PROP. 8 The constitutional amendment authorizing the voters of this state to consider state debt questions in the form of ballot propositions that must clearly describe the amounts, purposes and sources of payment of the debt only after approval of the propositions by a two-thirds vote of each house of the Legislature.	This will require propositions that create debt to be approved by a two-thirds vote of the Legislature and a majority of the voters. However, when these propositions are passed, they will not become part of the state constitution. Instead, they will be enacted by statute. When the proposition is placed on the ballot, it must clearly describe the purpose of the debt, the cost of the debt and how the debt will be repaid.
PROP. 9 The constitutional amendment authorizing the commissioner of the general land office to issue patents for certain public free school fund land held in good faith under color of title for at least 50 years.	This will allow the land commissioner to give the legal title for public free school fund land to certain people. Public free school fund land is owned by the state. Any revenue that the land generates is placed in the Permanent School Fund.
PROP. 10 The constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to exempt from ad valorem taxes certain property of a non-profit corporation that supplies water or provides wastewater service.	This deals with property owned by a non-profit corporation that supplies water or provides wastewater services. This will allow the Legislature to exempt property that is owned by these corporations from ad valorem taxes.
PROP. 11 The constitutional amendment authorizing a state lottery.	This will allow the state to operate lotteries. The state also would be able to contract with other organizations that would operate lotteries on the state's behalf.
PROP. 12 The constitutional amendment to increase from 20 percent to 50 percent the percentage of Texas water development bonds previously authorized by Texas voters that may be issued for economically distressed areas.	This will provide that up to $250 million, rather than $100 million of the $500 million in water development bonds authorized in 1989, may be issued for subsidized loans and grants for water and sewer projects in economically distressed areas.
PROP. 13 The amendment providing the issuance of general obligation bonds not to exceed $300,000,000 to continue existing programs to provide educational loans to students, with repayments of student loans applied toward retirement of the bonds.	This will allow the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board to issue up to $300 million in general obligation bonds. The money from selling these bonds will be used to finance educational loans to students.

CATFISH CATCH — Jesse Lee of Texas Parks and Wildlife Department shows some of the over 300 catfish the department released into Towle Park last week. The release is part of the new program by the wildlife department in which urban ponds are stocked. Lee said it will be 18-24 months before the fish mature. (SDN Staff Photo)

Woman testifies in 2nd trial

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A woman on trial for the second time in the deaths of her ex-husband and his second wife told jurors that her husband called her insane when she first suspected he was having an affair.

"(He said) that I was crazy," Elisabeth Broderick testified Friday. "(He said) there was nothing going on; there never had been anything going on. I was delusional. I was imagining things."

She said he later admitted to an affair with his young office assistant, who he married after the couple divorced in 1986.

Broderick has acknowledged that she shot Daniel Broderick III, and his wife of six months, Linda Kolkena Broderick, at their home on Nov. 5, 1989.

She maintains she erupted in unplanned violence after suffering psychological abuse that began during her marriage and continued through the subsequent divorce and child-custody battles.

Prosecutors say the shootings were premeditated. They paint Broderick as a greedy, vindictive woman who wasn't satisfied with alimony of $16,000 per month.

Texas born ex-hostage dies after encounter with robber

ADELANTO, Calif. (AP) — John McKeel Jr., a Marine guard held hostage during the 1979 seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Iran, died early Saturday after he was shot twice in the head by an armed robber, authorities said.

McKeel, 38, a native of the Dallas suburb of Balch Springs, Texas, was unhooked from life support systems at 1:14 a.m., said John Lewis, spokesman for Victor Valley Community Hospital in Victorville.

McKeel was shot during a confrontation that occurred at 3 a.m.

Friday in his apartment, said police Sgt. Dave Gundersen.

McKeel was declared brain dead at 3:15 p.m. Friday, spokesman Lewis said, and a medical team removed his organs for transplant Friday night.

"I keep thinking I am going to wake up, and this is all a bad dream. It doesn't seem real," said his wife, Trudy.

and equipment.

A minimum number of employees and equipment will be left in the other three precinct barns to maintain roads and the combined crew and equipment will be scheduled to assist in the maintenance of the roads within each precinct, noted county officials.

"It is believed that the consolidation will be a cost effective program which will eliminate duplicate equipment, reduce fuel and repair costs and reduce the number of employees," said commissioners in a written statement.

Police make six arrests

Snyder police began investigating a report of a stolen vehicle Friday and made six arrests early Saturday morning.

At 8:49 p.m. Friday, Joe Estrada informed police that someone had apparently taken the family's 1982 Ford Supercab pickup after his wife parked it at 1100 26th St. Officers filed a report for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in connection with the theft of the pickup, which is described as cream colored with a brown hood.

Police also took a report of a hit-and-run at 10:10 p.m. at 2013 Ave. Z in which a vehicle left the scene after striking a mail box owned by the U.S. Post Office.

Five subjects were arrested in response to two disturbance calls from the Great Western Motel early Saturday morning.

At 12:49 a.m., officers arrested two 18-year-old males for public intoxication and a 23-year-old male for public intoxication and Abilene DPS warrants for expired license plate and failure to appear.

Police were called back to the motel at 1:23 a.m. where they arrested an 18-year-old male for public intoxication and a 16-year-old female for public intoxication.

The female, a juvenile, was later released to a guardian. All five males were transported to the county jail.

Officers also arrested a 21-year-old male for driving while intoxicated at 3:28 a.m. Saturday in the intersection of 21st St. and Ave. I. He was also transported to the county jail.

Snyder police also received four separate reports of citizens hearing gunshots at or near 37th St. and Ave. M, the First Baptist Church, 3800 Muriel Dr. and 34th St. and Ave. G between 8:51 p.m. and 9:17 p.m. Friday, but were unable to locate any problem.

Marine, Staff Sgt. McKeel was assigned to the U.S. Embassy in Tehran when it was overrun by Iranian militants in 1979. He and 51 other Americans were held captive at the embassy for 444 days.

Sgt. Gundersen said the confrontation ensued after a masked gunman accosted Vilawan Gorman, 36, as she walked from her car to her unit in the Californian Apartments, a 96-unit complex run by McKeel's wife, Trudy.

After surrendering about $30, Ms. Gorman fought with the robber, pulling off his mask. She recognized the assailant as a man who lived with a tenant in the complex, Gundersen said.

Ms. Gorman struggled free and ran to the McKeels' apartment, he said.

The gunman followed Ms. Gorman to the McKeels' where he demanded more money. After giving him another $30, McKeel and his wife struggled with the robber. The gunman fired four times, striking McKeel twice, Gundersen said.

soup containing raw broccoli.

Also cited was improper handling of linens, and over-sized beds that prevented the closure of doors to residents' rooms. The agency also criticized medical records, stating that eight of 15 admission records had loose papers attached

Acting on Ms. Gorman's identification, police later arrested Anthony L. Maddox, 21, at an apartment he shared with his girlfriend, Gundersen said.

Maddox was held without bail for investigation of murder and armed robbery.

The McKeels were married in 1985, said Debbie Paschal, a family friend and assistant manager at the apartments. The couple moved to California from Texas and had lived in Adelanto about 18 months.

McKeel helped his wife manage the apartments, Ms. Paschal said.

"He's a maintenance man, a landscaper, you name it," Ms. Paschal said. "He does a little bit of everything."

The couple had no children together. McKeel had a son from a previous marriage and Mrs.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Since Elvis Presley's untimely death in 1977, singers have imitated him, fans have reported sightings of him and authors have written countless words about alleged plots concerning the King of Rock and Roll.

Local residents no doubt had taken no more than a passing interest in the Elvis hysteria. Until recently that is. Since September Elvis Presley has made several appearances in the county.

Well, not the Elvis Presley, of course. But a convincing look-alike, a sophomore at Ira High School, has been imitating the singer so well that for a moment or two one almost thinks he could be the real thing.

Vernon Groce, a long-time Presley fan, put together a brief imitation of Presley for a drama class project. It has since led to several area appearances, and, who knows, it might lead to bigger and better things one day for Groce, who aspires to become an actor.

Groce said he got the idea of doing a Presley imitation because he had seen one in the movie "Heartbreak Hotel."

Since introduced to Elvis Presley's music as a youngster, Groce said he always admired The King. As the idea took root in Groce's thoughts he decided to adopt the look, complete with white sequined jump suit and long sideburns. Many of his accoutrements came from the prop department at Ira High School.

He also has a collection of Presley pictures and books.

He practiced his act for some two months before performing before the class. To get into the character, Groce watched Presley's movie and practiced his moves. He learned to sing such Presley hits as "All Shook Up," "Jailhouse Rock," and "Don't Be Cruel." When he performs, he sings along with the tapes.

If not for Sue Parham, drama instructor, Groce's first appearance as Elvis Presley might have been his last.

She encouraged her student to continue with the act. His next performance was for the Ira PTA September meeting. Three other Ira High School students served as backup for the PTA performance. They were Cory Belt, Cole Sterling and Ronal White.

Next was Ira's homecoming pep rally where Groce performed without backup. During White Buffalo Days, he performed two Presley tunes on the stage area in the coliseum while Ira's Combo Band took a break.

That was not only one of his biggest audiences but one of the most receptive.

By then Groce had taken on the role of Elvis Presley so thoroughly that a slight mishap with a mike which came apart in his hands as he sang did not cause him to break character.

To overcome any nervousness he might feel before going on stage, Groce said he practices moving his mouth the way he will when he sings.

He likes doing the Presley imitation because he prefers oldies by Presley and Chuck Berry to today's music. He also likes other older stars like comedians Red Skelton and Jerry Lewis. In fact, Groce said he likes the 1950s so well that he sometimes says he should have been born then.

His knowledge of the 1950s came from several sources, including his parents and movies. "It's a different time from now. I like it better," he said.

Groce has participated in one-act play productions and won all-star cast honorable mention recognition during zone competition last school year.

He has always enjoyed acting and even as a child took part in church programs where he did pantomimes.

Someday he would like to become an actor.

In addition to acting, Groce takes karate lessons and builds model cars.

Groce is the son of Gene and Shirley Groce of Dermott. His father is a guard at the Price Daniel Unit. They previously lived in Clairemont.

He also has two sisters, Gina Groce and Emily Arner.

Child's Dining Repertoire

NEW YORK (AP)—Can't get your kids to try new foods? Offer them at the beginning of the meal, when children are the most hungry, says a pamphlet on the subject, "Pleasing Picky Eaters' Tastebuds."

Kids still won't give that new food a taste? Take the food away and offer it again on another day. As children become more familiar with a new food, they are more likely to try it, says the Sugar Association's pamphlet.

— Cut food into small portions and serve it on a small plate.

— Make sure foods are not too hot or too cold.

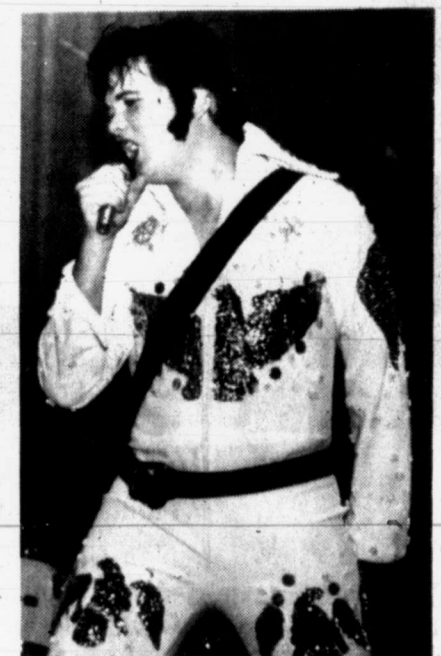

— Serve meals on colorful plates and placemats.

Another publication, "Feeding Kids Right Isn't Always Easy," a brochure from the "Healthy Start ... Food to Grow On" campaign, suggests serving a food your child doesn't enjoy with one that he or she does like to eat.

More important: Set a good example by eating well yourself. Whenever possible, eat meals as a family.

CHARLES AND WILMA SCOTT

Golden anniversary party held to honor local pair

Charles L. and Wilma E. Laws Scott of Snyder were honored by their children on their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception at Reta's Cake Shop on Oct. 26.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Gilliam of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Wade E. Scott, North Richland Hills; Mr. and Mrs. Gary L. Scott of Snyder; and Russell Scott of Houston.

Mr. Scott, the youngest of six children, was born on April 3, 1917, in Coleman on Fannie Marion Scott and Bertie Caldonia. Wilma Erleene Laws, the oldest of seven children, was born on Nov. 29, 1922, in Glen Cove to James Frank Laws and Catherine Laura Gulley.

They married at 7 p.m. on Oct. 31, 1941, in Coleman by the Rev. H.C. Bristow in North Coleman Baptist parsonage.

Following Pearl Harbor, Scott was transferred to Camp Blanding, Fla., and his wife joined him in the spring of 1942. Later he was sent to Fort Benning, Ga., then to maneuvers in the Carolinas, followed by a move to Massachusetts where his wife and daughter, Charlene, joined him.

The 36th Division went to Africa and the European Theater of Operations and his wife and daughter returned to Texas. During this time, Mrs. Scott worked in a defense plant and lived near Garland.

Following the war, the Scotts moved back to Coleman where three boys, Wade, Gary and Russell were born. Scott worked for the U.S. Corps of Engineers as project engineer at Hords Creek Lake Reservoir for several years.

As Proctor Lake Dam was nearing completion, Scott was transferred there and he and his family resided in Dublin.

After his retirement, they moved to Snyder and his wife began work as charge nurse in the coronary care unit at Cogdell Memorial Hospital in January of 1971.

Now, both retired, they enjoy two grandchildren, three adopted grandchildren, two step-grandchildren; two great-grandchildren, three adopted great-grandchildren and one step great-grandchild.

The purest form of declarer-play is one that guarantees the contract regardless of the lie of the opponents' cards. Sometimes, of course, as on today's deal, a slightly inferior line works also, but that doesn't stop a declarer who finds the best play from feeling pleased with himself.

If you would like to test yourself, cover the East-West cards and plan your play in three no-trump, West leading the club two, fourth-highest. The missing diamonds divide 3-2.

The hand was dealt during the final of the NWC World Junior Championship, which was won by USA-2.

The Canadian declarer, Fred Gitelman, found a very good line. He won the first trick with the club king, cashed the K-Q of diamonds and led a heart to the queen and king. Back came a club, removing South's last stopper. Declarer went into the dummy with a diamond to the ace and led a heart to the 10, losing to the jack. West cashed two club tricks, but the 3-3 heart break saw declarer home. He won one spade, two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs.

The American declarer, Brian Platnick, found the sure-trick line. He won the club lead and cashed the K-Q of diamonds to check the split. Then, trusting that the club two was an honest card, Platnick unblocked the club ace, played a diamond to dummy's ace and led the club 10 from the dummy.

The defenders were welcome to their two club tricks, but then a major-suit lead was forced, conceding a second trick in that suit and the ninth in all, without any guesses, finesse or splits.

Bush given team jersey for Minnesota Twins team

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush can add a Minnesota Twins team jersey that says No. 1 to the well-oiled glove he keeps in the Oval Office from his days as captain of the Yale baseball team.

Twins owner Carl Pohlad and manager Tom Kelly gave Bush the pinstriped jersey and a Kirby Puckett-model Louisville Slugger bat in a White House Rose Garden ceremony Thursday to honor the World Series champions.

"You showed why baseball is the most democratic of sports," the president said in remarks that also praised the losing Atlanta Braves. "What counts is the size of your hearts and your dreams."

The Twins defeated the Braves 1-0 in 10 innings Sunday in the seventh and final game of a series that capped a season in which both teams went from last to first in their divisions.

Belushi in Florida

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jim Belushi says his producers are filming "Beyond Suspicion" in Palm Beach County because "there's a sensuality in Florida we need for the movie."

"This is a sexy state ... and you have Pee-wee Herman," said the actor, referring to comic Paul Reubens' arrest earlier this year on an indecent exposure charge.

"I told my wife when she comes here, we aren't having sex here. We don't want to get arrested," said Belushi, who plays a detective in the police yarn about a murdered waitress whose lover is running for mayor.

Endorsements are rolling in for Edwards

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Gov. Edwin Edwards won more endorsements Friday while state Rep. David Duke's candidacy for governor drew more brickbats from a host of business and civic leaders, including the man considered the father of big-time sports in New Orleans.

Condemnation of the Duke candidacy came from Dave Dixon, the French Quarter art dealer who was instrumental in construction of the Louisiana Superdome and the awarding of a National Football League franchise to New Orleans.

Dixon said New Orleans' lucrative convention business would die and the city's sports industry would be hobbled were Duke to become governor.

"I have expertise in the convention and tourism industry, partly because our gallery does 95 percent of its business with visitors and partly because of my study of that industry when we were building the Superdome," Dixon said.

"Some people say that David Duke will hurt the convention industry. That's nonsense," Dixon said. "He won't hurt the convention industry. He'll eliminate it."

Duke, a Republican, was a Ku Klux Klan leader in the 1970s and an associate of neo-Nazis in the 1980s. Although he has said his racist days are behind him, business leaders have been lining up in large numbers behind three-term former Gov. Edwin Edwards, a Democrat.

Elected officials from Duke's home parish of Jefferson, in suburban New Orleans, ranged from the district attorney and sheriff to various town mayors and aldermen. They joined a woman's group, and a collection of representatives of the New Orleans tourist industry in endorsing

Edwards. "Jefferson Parish politics is a game unto itself," said Sheriff Harry Lee. "We never get together on anything, but we're together on this."

Tourism officials echoed Dixon in predicting that a Duke victory would result in the death of that industry, costing the city $2 billion annually and thousands of jobs.

Dr. Merve Trail brought letters from the Criminal Justice Statistics Association, which has a 1992 convention scheduled, the American Association of Otolaryngology, Head and Neck Surgeons, which plans several meetings in the city, and the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, which has a 1995 convention scheduled, saying they would not meet in Louisiana if Duke was elected.

"I'll have more by Monday," Trail predicted. "I can't tell you the number of calls I've had from people expressing concern. I haven't had one call from anyone saying they would come no matter what."

Duke repeatedly says the endorsements and criticism won't translate into votes for Edwards and adds that his campaign pledge of no new taxes would help the business climate in the state.

Although Edwards' past also is tinged with scandal, business leaders say he is better qualified than Duke and that Duke's image as a racist would cripple economic development in the state.

Negative AIDS test ends investigation

DALLAS (AP) — Police have closed the investigation of the "C.J." case and announced the woman who called a radio station and claimed to be intentionally infecting men with AIDS does not carry the virus.

Police officials Thursday said they will not press charges against the 29-year-old woman who they said began calling KKDA-AM in September, claiming to be C.J., the name signed to a letter printed earlier that month in Ebony magazine.

The search began after Ebony published the letter in which the woman said she was giving men AIDS to get revenge against the man who had infected her.

But police determined last week that the letter was written by a 15-year-old Dallas girl who also does not carry the AIDS virus. She told detectives that a relative had died of the disease and that she wrote the letter to heighten awareness about the virus.

Police said they consider the episode a hoax.

"There was no one out there infecting people," said Sgt. Jim Chandler, a spokesman for the department. "It wasn't a conspiracy, but they were doing it for publicity and it just steam rolled."

HBO buys daughter's story of mom who hired hitman

HOUSTON (AP) — Home Box Office has bought the rights to the saga of a woman convicted of plotting murder to help her daughter become a high school cheerleader, a family representative says.

Tony Harper, ex-husband of Wanda Webb Holloway, sold the film rights to "their family story" on behalf of himself and the couple's two children, Shanna and Shane Harper, for $137,000, said his attorney, Paula Gavrel Asher.

HBO officials in New York Thursday declined to comment on the deal, saying it is company policy not to discuss projects in development.

Mrs. Holloway was convicted in September of solicitation of capital murder. Prosecutors said she tried to hire a man to kill Verna Heath, the mother of Shanna Harper's chief cheerleader rival, Amber Heath, hoping the girl would drop out of competition. Mrs. Heath was not hurt.

Tony Harper made the film deal on the basis of being Shanna Harper's "joint managing conservator." A judge, who had to be involved because Shanna is a minor, gave the final go-ahead Thursday. The court will divide the $137,000 among Tony, Shanna and Shane Harper.

Mrs. Holloway could have made such a deal, but state law requires any payments made to convicted felons go to a victim-compensation fund.

Mrs. Holloway, who was sentenced to 15 years in prison and fined $10,000, is free on $75,000 bond, pending outcome of her appeal.

Harper, who was divorced from Wanda in 1981, said he made the film deal to recover expenses for such things as psychological therapy for the children.

"What I was trying to do was recoup some monies that had to be paid out because of this thing with Wanda," he said.

Ms. Asher said HBO and an independent production company, Between the Lines Inc., beat out offers from about 50 other producers.

Signs contract

LAS VEGAS (AP) — George Burns says he signed a five-year deal with the Riviera Hotel — instead of one for 10 years — because he wasn't sure the resort would last until 2001.

"They wanted to make it 10 years, but I said 'What's the hurry?'" the 96-year-old comic said. "I told them 'If you're still around, we'll talk.'"

Burns opened at the Riviera Thursday night with singer Pia Zadora.

Surge in cases follows criticism

AUSTIN (AP) — A month after Gov. Ann Richards blasted the state Department of Health for what she called lax oversight of nursing homes, the agency is preparing to send nine cases to the attorney general for pursuit of civil penalties.

In the past three years, the department had transferred eight similar cases, attorney general's spokesman Ron Dusek told the Dallas Times Herald.

The attorney general has the authority to seek civil penalties against nursing home owners. If conditions are sufficiently grievous, the office can ask a court to appoint a trustee to take over operations of the home until improvements are made.

She said the health department's "lazy bureaucrats" had ignored stories of abuse and deaths.

Inmate count grows

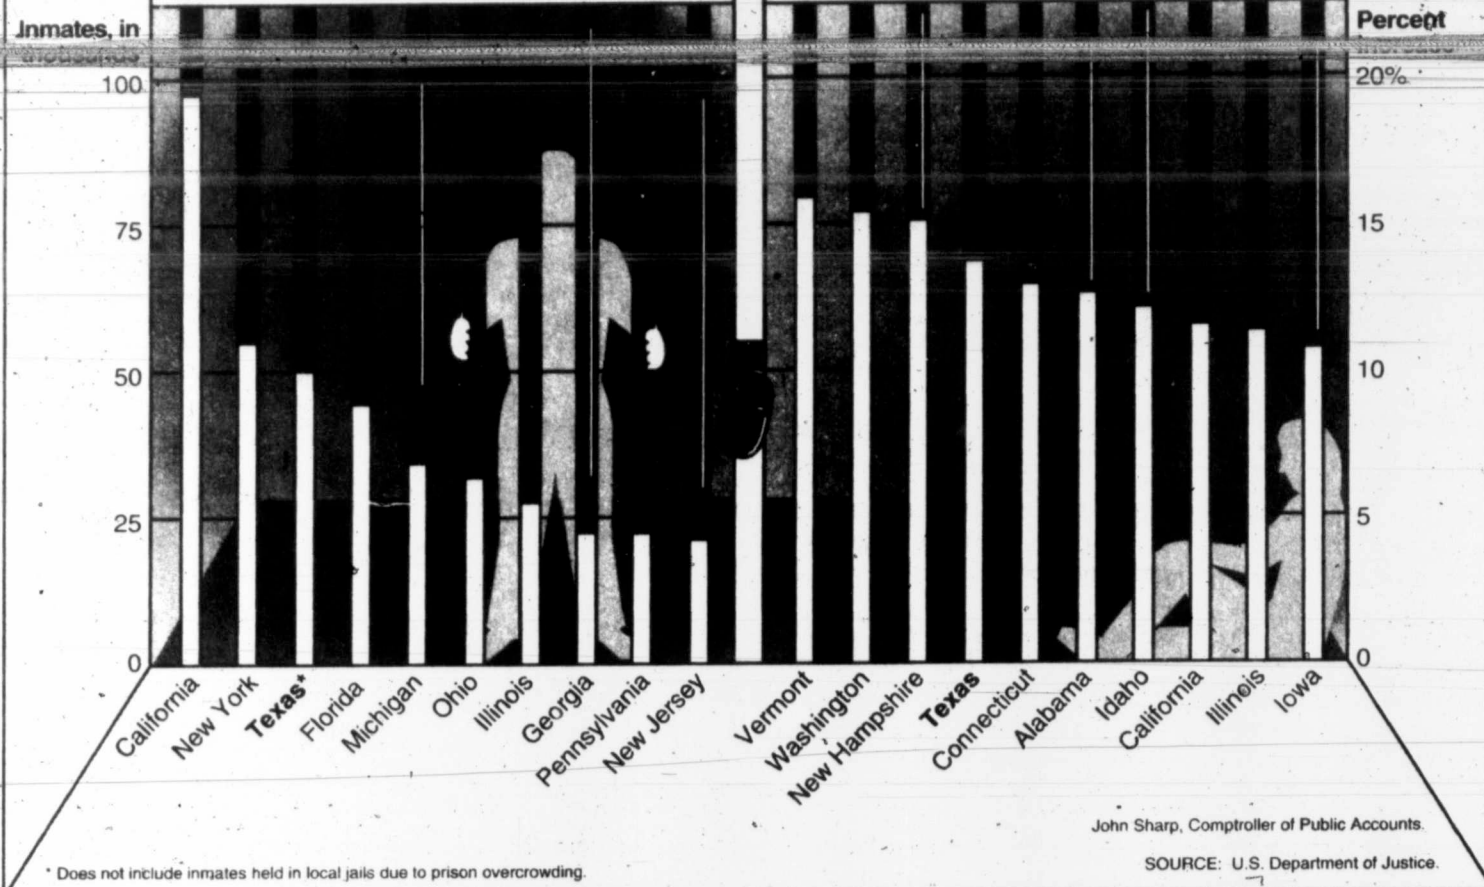

Texas has one of the largest and fastest-growing prison populations in the United States. The state ranked third in the number of inmates in custody at the end of 1990, and fourth in percentage increase since 1989. A survey by the U.S. Department of Justice shows that Texas' 50,042 inmates in custody were topped only by California's 97,309 and New York's 54,895. Of the 10 states with the most inmates, Texas and California had the fastest-growing prison populations.

10 states with the largest prison populations, year ending 1990

California had the largest inmate population in the nation with 97,309 inmates. Texas had the third-highest with 50,042.

10 states with the largest percent increase in prison population, 1989-90

Vermont had the largest increase in prisoners of all the states with 15.9 percent. Texas had the fourth-largest increase with 13.7 percent.

Support needed for prison bonds

By Governor Ann Richards

Our criminal justice system is broken. Texans are fed up with the spectacle of violent offenders being released from prison after serving only a fraction of their sentence.

County jails are backed up with state inmates, and our state penitentiaries operate like a revolving door — sending violent criminals back out onto the streets after they have served only a fraction of their sentence.

Including from the mail my office is receiving, I can assure you that most Texans recognize crime as the No. 1 problem facing this state. And Texans want to keep violent offenders off the streets.

One way to do that is to vote on November 5.

Proposition 4 authorizes the state to issue up to $1.1 billion in general obligation bonds to finance the cost of new prison facilities that will lock up 25,300 new prisoners. When you consider that our current prison capacity is right at 50,000, you can see what a difference these 15 new prisons will make. If we are going to keep violent offenders incarcerated, we must have the space for them.

New crime control laws also create a substance abuse felony punishment and provide space for 12,000 inmates punished under this provision. The money raised from the $1.1 billion bond issue can also be used in this effort to break the cycle of addiction and crime.

To ensure us additional prison space for violent criminals, we need you to vote yes on Proposition 4 on November 5.

There are other important issues on the ballot.

—Proposition 11 is the constitutional amendment that would authorize a state lottery.

If approved, a state lottery will pump about $500 million into the state treasury this biennium. That's half a billion dollars that can be put to good use educating our children, making our communities safe, creating jobs for Texas and providing health and human services to those Texans in need.

The lottery is that rarest of all beasts — a popular method of raising state revenue.

At this time in Texas history when we are making cuts in areas that we never dreamed of cutting before — when we are faced with increasing federal court orders to spend more state dollars on human services — we cannot pass up this opportunity to bring in much-needed revenue.

Remember, every dollar a lottery raises for the state is one less dollar we have to raise in taxation.

—Proposition 12 authorizes the state to upgrade the living conditions of those Texans living in unincorporated neighborhoods, or colonias, along the Texas-Mexico border. It grants the state the power to spend up to $250 million on loans and grants for water and sewer projects in the colonias.

Disease is rampant in these communities where children are forced to drink untreated water and raw sewage stands in the streets. We must have these bond monies available to eradicate these unacceptable conditions.

—Proposition 13 would allow the state to continue issuing up to $300 million in general obligation bonds to finance higher education loans to students. Voters must approve this amendment if we are going to continue funding the Hinson-Hazelwood student loan program. Since 1965, the state has loaned $580 million dollars to more than 200,000 Texas students through this program. It is one of the few state programs that is completely self-sufficient.

In fact, it's a money-maker — because Texas students have a good record of repaying these loans. It is one of the few programs we can offer middle income students. Texas must maintain its investment in education if we are to be prepared for the century ahead.

We need your support on these proposed amendments.

Please vote on November 5.

Letters To The Editor

To The Editor:

Let's see, do I have my facts straight? The chamber of commerce recently advertised, sold $100 tickets, and held a fundraiser where alcohol was freely served by individual request in violation of state law. Furthermore, the chamber failed to advertise or otherwise notify its ticket holders that alcohol would be available at the fundraiser. This resulted in a circumstance that pleasantly surprised some guests but angered others to the point that a misdemeanor complaint was lodged against the chamber.

From fact, I can only digress to assumption. And I assume the motive or motives for official legal action are pretty well laid out in the October 25 letter to the Snyder Daily News. These motives rest of the premise of "ludicrousness" — the unbelievability of a civic organization illegally serving alcohol in a community where a considerable (but not a totally successful) effort has been made to keep itself drug free. Also, there is the apparent "message" motive. In other words, what kind of "double standard" signal is being sent out to young people by the chamber's action?

On the surface, these are excellent points. But implied by this situation are some other far more troublesome conditions. They extend well beyond an ill-advised chamber action and an equally ill-advised reaction by the person or persons who filed the formal misdemeanor complaint. To a lot of folks, a defense of the chamber at this point may appear as advocacy of alcohol use. This is in no way my correlation and to those who can possibly distinguish between the two, let me say this: Yes, the chamber made an inappropriate decision by not checking out fully the legality of making available alcohol and by permitting unrestricted access to alcohol at the Pasture Party. But the basis of their decision apparently rested with their role as a constituency organization (composed of both drinkers and non-drinkers) that took into account expressed preferences on the issue. And I am assuming the logic ran something like this: Since we won't be forcing people to drink, the matter of "availability" is at worst, a debatable decision.

However, even more important is the fact that the chamber is the primary community organization that works hard for unity of purpose in areas of community pride

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

My mother says that all my life, I've done things the hard way. She's right, but I might add that it wasn't always by choice! I must say though, that there can be a real satisfaction in doing things the hard way. It makes you appreciate what you have and what you accomplish that much more.

Take living in the country. It ain't easy, I'm here to tell you. Especially when the kids get old enough to become involved in sports and school plays and choir concerts and whatnot. If the rehearsal or whatever is two hours or less, then it makes no sense to travel back and forth twice if you've got to drive an hour at a time to do it. So that means you've got to hang out in town someplace, and not everybody's mama lives in the same town they do! So you bug your friends; you browse the big discount stores; you cruise the video rentals; you visit the library; you sit out in the parking lot and read. Great fun — especially after putting in a full day's work first.

Sometimes you talk about moving to town, but that would mean selling the horses and getting rid of the cats and fencing up the dogs and — worst of all — having NEIGHBORS! It would mean looking out your front door, and instead of seeing a horizon and a sunset — you'd see somebody else's house and/or traffic. So you choose to do it the hard way. You stay.

Professionally, it's been a lot harder for me to be so isolated. If I lived in a major metropolitan area, like most of my successful writer friends do, I would have access to graduate-level writing courses at a big university; regular seminars and conferences featuring top-notch speakers; and big supportive writer's organizations to provide networking and critique groups. Even travel would be easier because there'd be an international airport handy.

All I've had, really, are cheer-leading friends and family; my own drive and ambition; and a subscription to "Writer's Digest." (I knew about those conferences and organizations, but most of the time I couldn't afford them anyway. There was always some country-type expense that took precedence.) Oh — and I've had books. Library books, book club books, paperback books — if I wanted to see how to write good suspense, I didn't need to attend a conference on it; all I had to do was read it.

A couple of days ago, I reached one of those glitches that come along in a novel, in which you are at a crossroads in the plot and are uncertain as to which direction to take with it. It could take a while to get on track again. Now, in the city, I guess I could have called up my critique group, read the manuscript out loud, and brainstormed. Or looked up some big-time writer to seek advice from. Or talked to some college prof, (who probably never submitted a manuscript for publication outside university presses in his life.)

But here's what I did: I took my notebook, a pen, and a book I needed to read by way of research on the Viking runes. And I went to the Chinaberry grove. Right now, all the trees are golden, and the leaves on the ground thick as pillows. I stretched out on the soft leafy ground and put my head on the Restin' Rock and looked up at the branches swaying against a blue sky. I could hear the wind coming like waves across the tops of the trees before it even got to the Chinaberry Grove. I could hear birds hop about on the ground. Occasionally a butterfly would flutter by.

The book turned out to be a real treasure, a thought-provoker. I'd read a while, rest the book on my stomach, stare up at the trees awhile. Sometimes my sheltie would come and rest his beautiful little head on my lap. An idea would strike, and I'd jot it down in the notebook. Yellow leaves would drift down and catch in my hair. I'd sit up and write a while and think a while and read a while. I finished the book on Viking runes. Brushed myself off, headed for home. I'd been gone three hours. I was completely relaxed and at peace with myself. The next day, I sat down and wrote a twelve-page chapter with scarcely so much as a typo. The book was on track again.

I think if my writer friends had any idea what it really means to do things the hard way — they'd move out here in droves.

LIP-SYNCHING

Our Language

Q. We've been studying RADAR and SONAR. How did we get those words?

A. RADAR and SONAR are acronyms, words formed from the first letters of a series of words. RADAR was first used during World War II as a shortened form of "radio detection and ranging" (take the first two letters of RADIO and the initials of the other words to spell out RADAR). In 1945, SONAR entered the language as an acronym for "sound navigation ranging." Do not use periods with either of these acronyms, or you'll fall into a RADAR trap.

and much-needed economic development. I think maybe the presence of alcohol at the Pasture Party was even a reflection of trying to be "all things to all people." Certainly, guests who were offended by the presence of alcohol at the Pasture Party had recourse of private complaint, public pronouncement, letter-to-the-editor or whatever. Seeking out and choosing the option of formal complaint certainly brings into focus questions about motive, community cohesiveness, and purpose.

I have lived in Snyder three years and during that time, I have heard about, read about, and had personal knowledge of alcohol-related suicides, automobile accidents, stabbings, gunshot wounds, domestic violence, and other drug induced tragedy. Just off the top of my head, I can think of at least two young people who have died in "one car roll-overs" during this period. In the aftermath, I observed some shaking of heads, a school system that little noticed, no letters to the editor or any other community outrage on the consequences of alcohol abuse. It took a Pasture Party to do that.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

To many politicians, Managed Health Care looks like the wave of the future; to many doctors, it looks like the undertow.

The scheme is catching on: Private insurance companies are increasingly making decisions, such as whether to allow operations, permit treatment or certify admissions to hospital. These decisions have traditionally been the prerogative of doctors; thus, insurers are, quite literally, practicing medicine. It is, they say, the only sensible way to control the cost of health care.

With more and more employers signing up for employee insurance benefits, I suppose it was inevitable that the insurers — who, after all, are in the business of making profits — would assume a more aggressive stance. Still, it's irritating to see the extent to which insurance companies want to call the shots by requiring pre-certification for any patient admitted to hospital and by insisting that emergency admissions be authorized at the time (or very soon after) the patient enters the hospital.

A few weeks ago, I had my first encounter with The System and, as you'll see, it wasn't pleasurable.

I was aroused from a sound sleep a little after 6 a.m. by the emergency-room doctor, who explained that one of my patients had been brought in and needed admission. The patient, a 50-year-old truck driver and heavy smoker, had experienced sudden constricting chest pain and cold sweats, the textbook presentation of an acute heart attack.

By the time I'd hurriedly dressed and arrived at hospital, he was free of pain — but the cardiogram confirmed the diagnosis. I examined him, began the necessary medicines, got him to the Intensive Care Unit for monitoring and satisfied myself that, for the time being anyway, the situation was stable. He asked me to telephone the insurance company later in the morning to make sure his health insurance benefits would be forthcoming.

So, about 10 a.m., my secretary put the call through and explained to the company representative that the patient was hospitalized in the ICU for a serious cardiac problem. This explanation wasn't enough. I had to talk to the young woman myself to verify what had happened.

"What's up?" I asked. (Frankly, I was a little annoyed to have my judgment questioned, a typical failing of most M.D.s.)

"Well," the woman replied, "I need to know more about the case." "Look," I answered somewhat testily, "Mr. B. had sudden severe chest pain and is now in the ICU because of a heart attack."

"When did the pain begin?" she asked. "Did it radiate to his arm? Was he nauseated? Is his heart in a normal rhythm? Did he..."

"Hold on," I interrupted. "Are you reading from a list?" I could almost see the frizzy blond hair and hear the popping chewing gum. This kid was as medically sophisticated as an avocado.

"Yes, I am," she answered, not the slightest bit provoked.

"Then I suggest you forget the list," I said, "because this guy's had a heart attack and if I hadn't admitted him to hospital, my butt would be in a huge malpractice suit. Got it?"

"OK, OK," she acknowledged, "we'll approve the admission. How many days will he be there?"

"Until he gets better!" I blurted as I slammed down the receiver, fearing I'd really lose it if I had to continue discussing the case with this high-school dropout.

Upon reflection, however, I realize it wasn't her fault; it was the hot summer day, the phase of the moon, the early-morning wake-up call — and The System, which isn't going to get better. So, I'll simply have to change my (rotten) attitude and alter my approach in the future. Still, it's galling to get the third degree for doing something right.

I don't relish such an adversarial position, even if it's for the good of the patient. And what, I ask myself, would I have done if the insurance company had not agreed to the admission? Instead of focusing my attention on the patient's medical problem where it belonged, I'd be involved in a lengthy and frustrating appeals process with a long paper chase. Ugh! I concluded. Is this truly the most appropriate way to save money?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Does a person ever return to normal after episodes of depression and anxiety, or does the body change to where it will only allow you to sleep for four or five hours a night?

DEAR READER: As a general rule, people's sleep patterns will return to normal after periods of stress, anxiety or depression. However, during the phase of insomnia, temporary help may be necessary.

To begin with, it's important to recognize and deal with whatever is causing the emotional disruption that leads to insomnia. Counseling may be helpful in overcoming short-term anxiety.

Also, depending on the cause of the upheaval, support groups are useful. For example, the trauma of divorce, separation, substance abuse, chronic fatigue and other issues can often be lessened by involvement in appropriate organizations.

Second, depression may require professional help, such as psychiatric intervention, and prescription drugs. Third, temporary use of sleeping medication may alleviate the fear and exhaustion caused by insomnia.

Not all patients need prescription pills; over-the-counter Benadryl, an anti-histamine, when taken (50-100 milligrams) at bedtime may re-establish a normal sleep cycle. If this is ineffective, examination by a physician (to discover any physical causes for insomnia) and prescription drugs (such as Halcion or Dalmane) may solve the problem. Remember, too, that sleep disorder clinics (usually available in major teaching centers) can be very useful resources.

I advise patients who have difficulty sleeping to work with their doctors — and the other services I listed — to find a solution. Most of us require more than five hours sleep at night. For those people cursed with insomnia, help is available.

To give you further information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Sleep-Wake Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Jobless rate in Texas goes to record high

DALLAS (AP) — The state jobless rate shot up to 7.9 percent in October, its highest since March 1988, the government said Friday.

Another 113,000 Texans were looking for work last month compared to September, according to a seasonally adjusted estimate by the Labor Department.

The unemployment rate was 6.6 percent in September and 5.9 percent in October last year.

But Nic Santangelo, analyst in the Dallas office of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, cautioned against reading too much into the jump.

"I know people are going to look at that big jump and say the economy is going down the tube in a bucket," Santangelo said.

"I don't know how much of it went up relative to pure labor market activity," Santangelo said. "My own feeling is that a large part of that change is due to technicalities."

NWS expected to drop pilot weather briefings

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — All but three of the 17 National Weather Service offices in Texas are expected to phase out weather briefings for pilots because of a lack of demand, officials say.

Currently, most of the briefings are for local pilots. However, Continental Express pilots also get briefings during threatening weather, according to Bob Head, a meteorologist with the NWS Victoria office, one of the three expected to continue the service.

"It's a bad deal overall," Head told the Victoria Advocate. "We're in the weather business and we've always briefed pilots. Now we're trying to downgrade the services we provide to the public."

Two other offices, in Corpus Christi and Port Arthur are expected to continue the service to pilots, Head said.

Other weather service offices dropping the service include Lubbock, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Brownsville, Del Rio, El Paso, Galveston, Houston, Midland, San Angelo and Wichita Falls.

Head said Victoria was spared because it does an average of 200 pilot weather briefings a month, one of the most active pilot briefing stations in Texas.

Weather briefings will still remain available to pilots from the Federal Aviation Administration Flight Service offices statewide.

Meteorologist-in-Charge Bill Cain of the Victoria weather office said he has not been officially informed of the change in pilot briefings. Jim Ward, area manager for the weather offices in South Texas, said he had not heard about the plans.

But Head said his union, the National Weather Service Employees Organization, learned of the phaseout through a letter from Melvin R. McLaughlin.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Conditions in general are rather run-of-the-mill for you today — unless you are materially motivated. If acquisition is your desire, your aims can be fulfilled.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be an attentive listener today in conversations with those whose ideas you respect. What you learn from them can be used to your advantage in the near future.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Repayment could begin at this time regarding a debt you've been trying to collect. The installments might be small, but they should be steady.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your involvements might appear to be a trifle frivolous to others, but you consider them to be constructive. This is the day when hard things can be done the easy way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your possibilities for achieving an extremely important objective are excellent today. You'll know how to adjust to developments, and your back-up plan could be just as effective as the original.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your ideas have real worth today; they should be of equal or superior value to the ideas of those individuals with whom you'll be involved. Don't sell yourself short.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Changes that occur today, especially those that are initiated by others, could prove beneficial in the long run.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you have to negotiate a matter of importance today, don't deal with individuals who are not empowered to make decisions. You'll be more fortunate dealing with those who can.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your fiscal picture is much better than you may realize at this time, provided you make a few positive adjustments. Construct a budget where your expenditures don't exceed your income.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Those you'll be involved with today will respect your organizational and managerial qualities. They'll know instinctively that when you take over the helm, you steer the right course.

Your Birthday

Nov. 3, 1991

Conditions look promising for you in the year ahead, but you can't afford to coast. Opportunities available to you will require time and effort to be properly developed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to be too demanding of your friends today, even though you would do more for them than they are prepared to do for you — if the roles were reversed. Keep your expectations within reasonable bounds. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Carefully evaluate your objectives today, or else you may strive very hard to achieve something you'll be displeased with after you attain it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A friendship could be jeopardized today — if it becomes competitive instead of compatible. Unfortunately, you might be the one who introduces confrontational elements.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's wise to analyze your alternatives from every angle, but don't be afflicted by "paralysis through analysis" today. Your later thoughts might not be as ingenious as your early ones.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you like very much might be a trifle more attentive to a casual acquaintance today than to you. Don't let jealousy cause you to react in an unbecoming manner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An agreement you enter into today may require major adjustments later — if it is not constructed fairly. Each party involved must have equal benefits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you intend to implement some new type of program today, be certain everyone involved thoroughly understands how it works. If this requisite isn't met, the program could fail in its early stages.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't attempt to turn a serious meeting into a social event today. This is one of those times when mixing business with pleasure could produce undesirable results.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If methods have been producing productive results, they should not be altered today. Instituting change merely for change's sake could prove counterproductive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Focus and concentration are essential to your success today. Don't let your mind drift to thoughts of something other than what you're working on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have to deal with individuals whose ideals and standards are not on a par with yours today. Don't take everything they say as gossip, though; check out the facts for yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Guard against the inclination to do things the hard way today, especially in business involvements. Just because something comes easy doesn't mean its worth is diminished.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1991 Universal Press Syndicate

Drunken Husband Gave Wife A Life Full of Harsh Lessons

DEAR ABBY: Twelve years ago, I received a personal letter from you in response to my frantic plea asking how to handle my alcoholic husband. You became my special friend. When my mother died, you called me at home. I will never forget that. Now I want to give something back; it's some advice to your readers from my own experience.

In a recent column, a John C. Seaman, referring to his personal experience with alcohol and drug abuse, said, "I recommend intervention to anyone who is frustrated by another person's drinking or using. You don't have to wait for someone to 'hit bottom,' which could ultimately be death." Those words hit close to home!

My husband's alcoholism ultimately led, although indirectly, to his death. For 12 years I tried to help him, and finally we agreed that he should enter an alcohol and drug abuse program in an area hospital. Six weeks after his release, he resumed drinking. I tried "tough love" and moved him out of our house, saying he could return when he got back on the program and quit drinking.

Well, he wasn't strong enough to quit drinking, nor was he strong enough to fight off the killer who knifed him to death in his motel apartment. It happened in the early hours of April 10, 1991. A drug-crazed man forced his way into my husband's apartment and stabbed him 14 times, then stuffed him into a closet!

Now I have to live with the fact that I let him down. I failed him. It is too late for intervention. So, Abby, please tell your readers to keep trying! Keep trying to rehabilitate your alcoholic or user. Where there is life, there is, at least, hope.

After death, you will want them back so badly, drunk or high, but alive! I, too, recommend intervention along with Mr. Seaman, not out of professional knowledge — but from harsh life experience.

Call a treatment center, as he suggests. Please do not give up!

Kindest regards to you, Abby, and love to all of your readers. You may print my name.

DIANE SMITH

DEAR DIANE: Please accept my condolences on the tragic death of your husband. For those readers who may have missed it, the 24-hour helpline of the McDonald Center for Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Treatment at Scripps Memorial Hospital in La Jolla, Calif., is: 1 (619) 458-4357. That call could be a lifesaver.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, who is 21 years old, is basically a fine person and he is usually very reasonable. He has a new girlfriend and she has been "sleeping over." Our son lives in our garage, which we have fixed up comfortably. He needed his privacy, and we needed peace and quiet. He feels that since he is in a separate area, it is OK to have his girlfriend sleep over, even though it goes against our values.

We have set certain rules for him and feel that as long as he is living in our house, he should discontinue this sleeping arrangement. He has always abided by our rules, but thinks we are off base on this.

What do you think?

LOVER BOY'S MOM

DEAR MOM: I think as long as your son is living in your house, he should abide by your rules.

DEAR ABBY: Recently our 3-year-old daughter ate almost a whole tube of a popular children's toothpaste. It is attractively packaged, in a fun shape, and tastes almost like candy or gum. I was more irritated than worried until a good friend advised me to call our regional poison control center immediately.

Poison control told us that the fluoride in the toothpaste was a toxic substance — at least when more than three ounces were consumed at one time by a 33-pound child. They advised us to give her syrup of ipecac (which we fortunately had in our locked medicine cabinet) to induce vomiting. They also told us that the vomiting would probably continue for several hours, along with diarrhea.

It was a long, upsetting night for all of us, but thanks to our friend and the doctors at the poison control center, our daughter is fine today.

Abby, please warn all parents that because a product does not have a warning label does not mean that it is safe for unsupervised use by children. Many household products are often left unlocked in bathroom cabinets and drawers, on counters, under sinks, often by the same unsuspecting parents who carefully lock up their medicines and cleaning supplies.

Please be more careful than I was. And if you don't have syrup of ipecac, purchase some today and post the number of your closest poison control center next to your telephone.

A WISER MOM IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR WISER MOM: Thank you for your helpful reminder to other parents. Phone numbers for your police department, fire department, poison control center and doctors should be clearly posted near every phone, especially in homes in which there are children. Ideally, children should be under constant supervision. But in reality, nobody can watch children 100 percent of the time.

DEAR ABBY: I am 5 foot 2 inches and weigh 90 pounds. I try very hard to gain weight, but my doctor tells me that I have an overactive metabolism, and that it will work itself out someday. I try to accept that and do whatever I can to stay healthy and gain weight.

What really bothers me is being called "skinny." People say mean things like, "Every time I see you, you look skinnier and skinnier," or they'll grab my arm, measure it with their fingers, and say, "Gee, your arms are skinny — you must eat like a bird." I could never imagine someone saying to an overweight person, "Every time I see you, you look fatter and fatter!"

Abby, the reason I am writing is to make people aware that it hurts a thin person to be called "skinny" as much as it hurts an overweight person to be called "fat." Also, it's just as hard for a thin person to gain weight as it is for an overweight person to lose weight. I wish people could start using words like "thin, slim, slender or petite," instead of "skinny, bony or scrawny."

SICK OF BEING CALLED SKINNY

DEAR SICK: Although most offenders are probably more thoughtless than intentionally mean-spirited, your message deserves to be heard.

Abby's family recipes are included in her cookbooklet. Send a long, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

SNYDER CHRISTMAS SCRIPT

This year the Chamber has joined up with American State Bank, Snyder National Bank, and West Texas State Bank to make a tremendous offer to our citizens.

They will be making Christmas loans with an interest rate of 6%. Instead of issuing money, the lenders will issue Snyder Script. Script is a type of currency that can be spent only with local, participating merchants. This will be a tremendous program to encourage Snyderites to shop at Snyder first. This money stays home to circulate instead of leaving our community. The Script will be handled like credit card charges. The merchants will make a separate deposit slip for the script, and 4% of the total will be withheld and collected by the banks. Vernon did a similar project last year and they loaned approximately $35,000.00.

If you would like to be a participating merchant, please call the Chamber office. We will come by to answer any additional questions you may have.

"LIGHT UP SNYDER" & CHRISTMAS PARADE

The Business Committee is busy with new and exciting ideas for the Christmas holidays this year. They plan to light up the courthouse and outline the square in lights. This is a promotion similar to one other cities have done and succeeded in drawing in thousands of visitors. Like any worthy project, this one will require lots of volunteer labor. They will also need some financial assistance. Lights are $55.00 for a case and $28.00 for a half case, and many merchants and individuals have already donated. If you are interested in helping or donating, please call the Chamber office or Committee & Project Chairman, Donna Gray.

The committee has also planned a lighted Christmas parade for Saturday, December 14. All entries must be lighted. To enter, call the Chamber office or Pat Cunningham, Parade Chairman. The Business Committee is encouraging the entire community to get involved to help make this a "Christmas to remember."

As we near the end of another year, we realize that some of our Chamber Board members will soon be at the completion of their terms. Many people do not realize the time and personal sacrifices involved with holding these positions. We would like to take this opportunity to say "Thank You" to our board members who have actively worked with the office staff for the growth and promotion of Snyder.

Officers and Directors

*Eddie Williams	President
Nelda Huddleston	President Elect
Terry Bowden	Vice President
Susan Neves	Treasurer
*Fran Farmer	Past President
Paula Gilbert	Director
Betty House	Director
Larry Schwarz	Director
Bobby Beard	Director
Jerry Baird	Director
*Gary Sisson	Director

Chamber Office Staff

Ricky Fritz	Exec. Director
Tricia McCasland	Exec Secretary
Sandra Morin	Office Assistant
Randy Head	AJRA Finals

*These directors terms will expire, however, Williams will remain on board as Past-President. Joe Sentell, who resigned earlier this year, also would have been at the end of his term.

The nominating committee has selected 4 persons to fill these terms. They recommended Les Woods, Donna Gray, Pearlene Stewart, and Travis Bunch. Notification of the right of petition will be sent to Chamber members. The new board members will be welcomed during a reception in December.

THANK YOU

We would like to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to all those involved with our "White Buffalo Days" Celebration, Roarin' Holler Pasture Party, and TDCJ Appreciation Day. They were all very successful events, and could not have been so without the help from our volunteers. THANK YOU!!

The Chamber office will be closed
Thursday and Friday,
November 28 & 29
in observation of the Thanksgiving Holiday.
Please have a Safe and Happy Thanksgiving!
