Ask Us

Q—How does this year's registered voter turnout of 74 percent in Scurry County compare to previous presidential elections?

A—The county clerk's office did not have figures compiled, but 74 percent is expected to be one of the highest, and perhaps the highest in modern history for the county. In 1988, 69.5 percent turned out and in 1984, 73 percent turned out.

In Brief

Mauro debts

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro is on the brink of personal bankruptcy and is potentially liable to the federal government for more than $4 million in bad debts, a newspaper reported today.

Mauro ran President-elect Clinton's Texas campaign and frequently has been mentioned for a possible job in the new administration.

First American Bank of Bryan recently tried to seize the Austin bank account where Mauro deposits his state paychecks to get partial payment on a $424,736 judgment, the Houston Chronicle reported.

But First State Bank of Austin seized the account first because Mauro owes it money on a loan, according to Chris Kling, a lawyer representing the Bryan bank.

Speculation often focuses on Mauro giving up his state elective job to go to work in Clinton's new administration. But Mauro said it is premature to talk about that.

Local

Work day

The work day planned Saturday to put up Christmas lights around the square has been postponed one week until Nov. 14. Volunteers are needed.

Early release

Snyder ISD students will be released at 2 p.m. Monday. Buses will run their regular routes.

Teachers will meet from 2-4 p.m. on their respective campuses. Principals and teachers will utilize the time to continue work on their Campus Improvement Plan.

Homecoming

Residents, former residents and friends are invited to the Dunn Homecoming on Saturday, Nov. 14 at Dunn Community Center.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. Those attending are asked to bring sandwiches to be shared at a 5 p.m. supper. Mrs. E.M. Ashley is homecoming chairman.

19-cent minimum...

'Fair Share' plan to see taxes soar

Property owners within the Snyder Independent School District can expect to see taxes jump a minimum of 19 cents next year under the "Fair Share Plan" for funding public schools, according to Business Manager Lee McNair.

"Under their formula, it looks like we would have a minimum of a 19-cent tax rate increase for next year and probably another six or seven cents the following year," said McNair. "But that's also assuming our values stay pretty constant, which is not going to happen. That's why I say 19 cents is a minimum. It could be as much as 25 or 30 cents."

McNair and Snyder ISD Superintendent Dalton Moseley are to meet Monday with other school administrators and State Rep. David Counts in Knox City to study the plan thoroughly.

The "Fair Share Plan" was unveiled by Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and lame duck House Speaker Gib Lewis on Wednesday. It is seen by the state's top lawmakers as an answer to the current method of distributing tax money through County Education Districts, which was declared unconstitutional by the Texas Supreme Court.

The state leaders want lawmakers to approve the "Fair Share Plan" in a special session which begins next Tuesday. The 1993 Legislature convenes in regular session in January.

The court has given lawmakers until June 1, 1993, to come up with a new plan for equalizing school funding.

The "Fair Share Plan" would require a constitutional amendment, necessitating approval of two-thirds of the Legislature and voters. The amendment would:

—Abolish the CEDs.

—Establish an equity standard to prevent future court cases.

—Allow "recapture" of local tax dollars from wealthy districts. Some $400 million a year would be taken from the richest school districts and funneled into the

Ginning picks up amid cold weather

West Texas is well-known for its constantly changing weather conditions, and this year has been no different.

This week's cold spell is not expected to hurt many of the area cotton crops, according to local ginners who cranked up in late October for the 1992-93 ginning season.

"We were ready for a freeze so we can get rid of some of the leaves and get some cotton out," said Linda Cline of Farmer's Co-op Gin. "The crops are looking good in this area."

Farmer's Co-op has ginned approximately 900 bales since ginning began Oct. 14.

The favorable opinion concerning recent cold weather is not shared by all who have an interest in local crops, however.

Cynthia Grinslade of Inadale Co-op Gin said that many farmers think the cold weather is okay, but there are some crops that could use a little more warm weather. According to Grinslade, the Inadale Gin has ginned some 2,000 bales of an expected 14,000 for the year, and has recently brought in a night crew.

Some area producers were facing a bleak season, anyway, with cold, wet weather taking its toll on crops earlier this year, forcing many farmers to re-plant.

"This (cold weather) is going to kill a lot of cotton that would have been plowed up anyway," said Marlin Terrell of Paymaster Gin, which has ginned almost 700 bales to date. According to Terrell, any crop that is going to make has already made.

Farmers will see little relief, as forecasters predict that the cold weather will last throughout the weekend.

Heart Walk, Healthfest set Saturday

The annual Scurry County American Heart Walk is set for 10 a.m. Saturday in conjunction with Healthfest '92 at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Registration for the five-mile walk begins at 9:30 a.m. in the patio area of the hospital.

Prizes available to this year's walkers include an American Heart Walk T-shirt for those who turn in $75. A turkey and T-shirt will be given to anyone who raises $125.

Those raising $200 will be given an American Heart Walk sweatshirt, a turkey and a T-shirt. Walkers raising $400 or more will be eligible for an American Heart Walk carry-all bag in addition to the sweatshirt, T-shirt and turkey.

Pledges may be collected after the walk is over, but must be turned in by Thursday, Nov. 17. Walkers will be given credit according to how much money is turned in by that date.

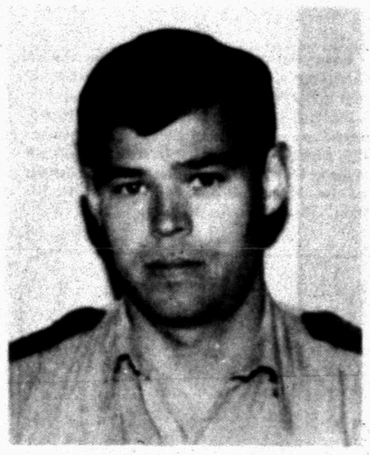

The walk is being held in conjunction with this year's health fair, scheduled from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Saturday at the hospital. Healthfest '92 will feature free and/or discounted health and laboratory screenings, tours, giveaways and prizes.

New officers named at Daniel Unit

New officers have recently been named at the Texas Department of Criminal Justice Price Daniel Unit as personnel changes continue due to the opening of other prison units across the state.

Three officers have been promoted to lieutenant at the unit, two of whom have been at the Snyder prison since it opened. A fourth employee has been promoted to sergeant within the ranks of the Daniel Unit.

Richard Phillips, who has worked at the Daniel Unit since its first day of operation, was promoted to lieutenant on Nov. 1. Phillips received his guard training in Huntsville and worked at the Ramsey II Unit prior to transferring to Snyder. He has worked with TDCJ for seven years.

Another new officer who has been at Daniel since its opening is Lt. Doug Wilkinson, who was promoted Sept. 1. Wilkinson was in the U.S. Air Force military police before signing on with TDCJ almost nine years ago. He served two-and-a-half years in Palestine at the Michael Unit and three years at Ramsey II before coming to Snyder.

Lt. Michael Hodgson is new to the Snyder area, having transferred to the Daniel Unit on Sept. 1, when he received his promotion.

Hodgson has been with TDCJ for over seven years. He went through guard academy at the Wallace Pack II Unit, where he served for over four years. Prior to coming to the Daniel Unit, he served two years in Amarillo at the Clements Unit.

Receiving an Aug. 4 promotion to sergeant was Jacky Simpson, who has been with TDCJ for three years, including two-and-a-half at the Snyder unit. Simpson also served at the Beto I Unit for six months following his training.

According to Warden Les Woods, more changes can be expected at the Daniel Unit, with personnel transferring out of Snyder and others coming in as other units open.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If you want a secret kept, keep it."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Currently there are at least three routes proposed for the connection of I-27 from Lubbock to I-20. One proposed route — and the most logical — is U.S. 84, connecting at Roscoe.

Folks in Howard and Dawson counties, naturally, favor U.S. 87, connecting at Big Spring. At the last highway commission meeting, a third route was suggested, U.S. 385, connecting somewhere near Midland and Odessa.

The editor at Andrews, located on U.S. 385, had this to say: "A local group has met with the Odessa district engineer to get the lowdown on the project.

"The study will cost $2.9 million will and take four or five years. And if finally approved, the actual project could take another 10 to 15 years.

"A group in Odessa is organizing to try and bring the extension into Midland Air Termial via Telephone Road which would siphon a lot of U.S. 385 traffic away from Andrews.

"If's that's ever approved, it could deliver a real hit to businesses...but the chamber has gone on record as being eternally interested in the project.

"We've often thought a detailed study was simply a handy tool for postponing a difficult decision, but in this case, it argues well for Andrews.

"Let's study it, and study it, and study it some more."

It may be back to two possible routes — and of course the more heavily traveled U.S. 84 is the most logical. In our opinion, save the study money and start construction.

Howard Clemmons, in Granbury's Hood County News, told about seeing this bumper snicker:

"If you're headed the wrong way — God don't mind if you make a U-turn."

Clinton team casts off power struggle reports

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — President-elect Clinton's team is minimizing reports of a power struggle among Clinton's high command as he assembles his White House staff.

"Grossly exaggerated," spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers said Thursday when asked about reports of infighting among Clinton's senior aides and speculation that campaign manager Mickey Kantor had been shut out of a power-wielding position.

Two senior Clinton aides said Kantor, who had been considered in the running for the transition director's job, was unlikely to get it. However, one of the sources said Kantor remained an influential adviser to Clinton. That source, like all others, spoke on condition of anonymity.

"I don't know where they come from," Myers said of the reports of infighting, and added that it was normal for speculation to run rampant about who would and wouldn't get a high-caliber job.

"This is fairly typical of transitions," she said.

Clinton, who ousted President Bush in Tuesday's election, was expected to announce a transition director as early as today. He met with a handful of aides about the transition Thursday, and did so much talking that his chronic raspy voice was back.

Clinton was keeping his transition thoughts close to the vest.

Dear Abby

Paying Isn't Part of Mom's Plan for Daughter's Wedding

By Abigail Van Buren

1992 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our 25-year-old daughter is engaged to be married. She has been living with her fiance since 1986. We live in California and she lives in New Jersey. She asked me to come to Jersey to help her plan her wedding. She wants a traditional church wedding with a wedding gown and tuxedo and reception for 100 people. (The cost is about $20,000.)

She and her fiance make $40,000 a year together. My husband and I make less. However, she knows that I came into an inheritance two years ago when my father died, but she doesn't know how much.

She and her fiance have no money saved up. When I visited her, I noticed they had plenty of money for beer, bingo and cigarettes.

I need your advice, Abby. Should I offer to pay for my daughter's wedding? If you say yes, I will accept that. If you say no, I will quit torturing myself with guilt because I honestly don't think I should, and I really don't want to.

MOM

DEAR MOM: A woman who has been living with her boyfriend for six years should not expect her parents to foot the bill for a traditional church wedding with gown, tuxedo, and a reception for 100 guests.

Your daughter declared her independence at age 19 when she left home to live with her boyfriend. Let her finance her own wedding, and don't feel guilty. And if you cave in and pick up the tab, I suggest you put aside a little extra to get your head examined.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I read with great interest the letter from the woman who, sparked by her upcoming 20th high school reunion, was able to track down her high school sweetheart. Luckily, she ended up getting engaged to him, and now has wedding bells in her future.

Many years ago during World War II, when I was in England, I became friendly with an American airman. We shared not only friendship, but the dangers and uncertainties of war. As fate would have it, we were separated, and for nearly half a century we've had no communication.

I married, raised a family, worked a job, and was too busy to dwell on that romantic interlude. Now that I am alone again, I find myself thinking of him, wondering if he's still alive, if his life has been happy, and wondering if he would like to hear from me. Not being sure of where he is, I have made some halfhearted attempts to locate him.

Abby, do you think I should leave well enough alone, or should I go for it, so I can finally put the past to rest?

I can't sign my name, so I will sign it with the title of our favorite song ...

"IT'S BEEN A LONG, LONG TIME"

DEAR "IT'S": I say, try to locate that American airman. And if you should find him and you meet again, please give me an update.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I need some advice on a very delicate situation at my house.

Whenever I call one of my local relatives on the phone, her husband shamelessly listens in on the extension. At times, he has even corrected something his wife has said, or added something to it. I find this very irritating. Appparently, his wife doesn't mind because she has never asked him to please get off the phone.

Abby, I do not call this relative to have a three-way conversation with her husband. Furthermore, I think this is a blatant invasion of my privacy. Sometimes I may want to tell her something in confidence.

Any suggestions you can offer will be greatly appreciated.

MABLE IN MOBILE

DEAR MABLE: Tell your relative that you are uncomfortable and sometimes inhibited about telephone conversations with her — and tell her why. Be up-front; tell her that while she may have no objections, you have.

Gang rape aquittal stirs public outcry

JERUSALEM (AP) — "Her life was destroyed. They went free. Remember them!" read the newspaper ad.

Above the half-page ad were pictures of "them" — six clean-cut young Israelis who had just been acquitted of gang-raping a 14-year-old girl. The events occurred over four days in 1988 on a kibbutz in northern Israel.

The ad published Thursday reflected the massive public outcry over the judge's ruling Monday that the prosecution had failed to prove conclusively that the girl didn't consent to sex.

The furor is dominating radio call-in shows and parlor conversation, and shows a growing sensitivity to the hardships of women in a traditionally male-dominated society.

The Organization of Rape Crisis Centers, which published the newspaper ad, says it has received dozens of sympathetic calls. But the centers also say they are receiving fewer calls from rape victims, who may see the verdict as evidence they should not try to pursue their own cases in court.

Newspaper editorials have urged the state attorney to appeal the verdict, members of Parliament say they will submit tougher legislation to protect rape victims and the judge is besieged by angry phone calls, some of them threatening.

"It's the most powerful outrage over any court judgment I remember," says veteran legal commentator Moshe Negbi. "I think there is a feeling that the legal system didn't reflect the people's moral sense of justice."

Defendant Dan Landau says: "Even though I was acquitted, the media is dealing with us as if we are guilty. It's a lynch mob."

Landau told Israel radio he was a bystander during the four days in August 1988 that the defendants, then 16 and 17 years old, spent with the girl in and around Kibbutz Shomrat, a communal farm in northern Israel.

The girl lived there at the time, as did two of the defendants, and has since left.

Other defendants have acknowledged having intercourse with her, but claim she was a willing partner. The girl told the court the boys threatened to humiliate her in public if she spurned them.

Haifa District Court Judge Micha Lindenstrauss said he had no choice but to acquit because the prosecution had failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the girl had sex against her will.

However, in his 100-page ruling he said the boys treated the girl "in a bestial and nauseating manner" and escaped punishment "by the skin of their teeth."

Lindenstrauss' critics say he should at least have convicted the youths of sexually abusing an under-age girl. Negbi says that in such circumstances, consent is irrelevant.

The ruling has raised questions about whether Israel's judicial system is equipped to properly prosecute rape cases.

Haifa prosecutors initially feared the girl's testimony wasn't strong enough, and took the case to trial only after critical media reports and intervention by the state attorney.

The trial opened in 1990.

Lawmaker touts new drunken driving bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The mother of a drunken-driving victim has supported a bill to automatically suspend the driver's license of anyone arrested for drunken driving who fails a blood-alcohol test or refuses to take one.

"We have to start deterring drunk drivers before this happens," said Joyce Hunt, who displayed graphic photographs of the injuries sustained by her 7-year-old son in the alcohol-related crash three years ago. She said he was left a paraplegic.

"I want you to imagine how much pain he went through, and how much pain I went through when this happened," she said Thursday. "My child underwent 18 major operations to sustain life, all because someone chose to drink and drive."

The bill is by Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo. She said she would attempt for the fourth time to win approval of the bill in the regular legislative session that begins in January.

A license-revocation measure was approved by the House in last year's regular session, and in the Senate in two subsequent special sessions. But it has never passed both chambers as required for passage.

Under the bill, drivers with suspended licenses would immediately get a temporary driving permit valid for 40 days.

That would allow them time to request a hearing on whether the suspension was valid. If the suspension was upheld, it could last from 90 days to one year, depending on whether a driver had a previous offense.

After serving the suspension, drivers would have to pay a reinstatement fee of $100 to get back their license. Supporters say this would allow the system to pay for itself and generate funds for the state.

The license revocation would be separate from any criminal court proceedings against the driver.

In 1991, 1,249 people were killed and 33,856 were injured in alcohol-related crashes in Texas. Ms. Zaffirini estimated her measure would save 100 to 150 lives, saying that drunken driving has decreased in the 31 states with such laws.

She said she believes she will have enough votes in the Legislature to pass the bill, but that it's important for such key players as committee chairmen to support it. The previous measures died in committee.

Iacocca says he, Perot joked about third party run

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca says he and Ross Perot joked in early 1990 that the Texas billionaire should launch a third-party run for president.

"I didn't know at the time that Ross was going to go ahead and ... do it," Iacocca told The Detroit News in today's editions.

Perot got 19 percent of the vote in this week's presidential election, the best showing by a third-party candidate since Theodore Roosevelt in 1912.

Your Birthday

Nov. 7, 1992

Probabilities for having things work out to your ultimate satisfaction are exceptionally good in the year ahead. This could be especially true when dealing with tangibles, such as money or goods.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Everything has its price today, and this will be especially true where your objectives are concerned. Use your smarts to figure out ways that penalize you the least. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you handle serious matters with the respect they deserve today, things should work out smoothly for you. However, if you treat them in a frivolous fashion, it's another story.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to restrict your expenditures today to basic essentials. If you let your extravagant whims get control of your wallet, you'll regret it later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your first ideas are likely to be your best ones today. But, if you overanalyze them, self-doubts could creep in and begin to convince you they really aren't too nifty.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you are an impulsive buyer, there's a chance you might pay much more for something today than it's actually worth. Before you negotiate your deal, have a firm price in mind that you won't exceed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The course you establish today is likely to be realistic and reachable, provided you stay on it and aren't sidetracked by frivolous impulses.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today is not the day to slack off and coast. With a little extra push and perseverance, you should be able to get over a hurdle that's been plaguing you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is justification for the optimism you feel regarding an endeavor in which you're presently involved. Even if observers make a negative assessment, you must believe in yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Worthwhile gains are possible today when dealing with individuals who are willing to accept their share of the responsibility in a joint venture. Pull together.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might feel it is necessary to go to a friend for counsel today pertaining to a matter that concerns you. This pal might not tell what you want to hear, but don't reject the advice on that basis.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Even if it is inconvenient for you today, live up to your obligations. It will enhance your reputation if you behave responsibly; it will tarnish your image if you don't.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might have to make a difficult decision today that affects others as well as yourself. Don't look for an easy out; it will only perpetuate the situation, not resolve it.

18 Snyder FFA'ers get Area II awards

Eighteen members of the Snyder FFA chapter represented the Lone Wolf District in the Area II leadership contest Saturday at Howard College in Big Spring.

These teams previously qualified by placing first or second at the district contest. Teams competing in the area contest included junior chapter conducting, senior skills, quiz, creed speaking and extemporaneous public speaking.

Area winners included:

—Junior chapter conducting, second place. Members are Jennifer Lathem, president; Jodi White, vice-president; Monica Roberson, secretary; Will Collier, treasurer; Shane Robinson, reporter; Jacob Crawford, sentinel; Sheryl Chambers, student advisor; and Stephanie Uptergrove and Jerry House, members.

—Quiz team, second place. Members are Holly Jones, Kim Brade, Jassen Messenger and Adam Scott.

—Extemporaneous public speaking, Jennifer Beard, third place.

—Creed speaking, Amy Rains, fifth place.

Senior skills team members Duffy Galloway, Chris Meador and Stacy Wright, also competed.

FFA leadership contests are set up to allow students the opportunity to demonstrate the leadership qualities that they have learned in their agricultural science classes. Teams are judged on their speaking abilities, presentation, effectiveness and expertise in a particular skills.

Keep him off the lead

By Phillip Alder

There are certain card combinations that are as safe as Fort Knox if one opponent attacks the suit, but are like a leaky boat if the other opponent leads it. One simple example is king doubleton opposite two low cards. With a lead around to the king, you must win a trick. With a lead through the king, you are only 50-50 to win a trick.

Some of these positions are less obvious, though. Take today's deal from the NEC World Team Olympiad. How would you play in three no-trump against a low heart lead?

South's opening bid was slightly eccentric, but he knew he had a way to show a long club suit if his partner used a Stayman inquiry — which is exactly what happened.

The suit that is most troublesome to South is spades. If East leads a spade, South should be held to one spade trick only. West will win the first round with the queen, and then the defenders will duck the second round to declarer's now bare ace. But if West leads a spade, declarer has two guaranteed spade tricks. So, trying to keep East off the lead, declarer called for dummy's heart jack rather than run the lead around to his 10. When it held, declarer immediately led dummy's club. When East played low, South finessed his 10.

With the actual distribution, this was remarkably successful. Declarer continued clubs, establishing nine tricks: one spade, two hearts, one diamond and five clubs. But even if the club finesse had lost, declarer was still in a good position to make his contract.

Always fight to keep the danger hand off the lead.

Boycott planned to fight new law

DENVER (AP) — Gays and lesbians have begun canceling vacations and conventions in Colorado to protest a new anti-gay rights amendment, even as the state's governor and other top officials look for ways to overturn it.

Amendment 2, which voters approved Tuesday by a margin of 53 percent to 47 percent, forbids Colorado and its local governments from banning discrimination based on sexual orientation. It also repeals existing gay-rights laws in Denver, Boulder and Aspen.

Gays and lesbians held candlelight vigils and rallies this week to protest the vote, and said they would keep fighting.

"We're finding our voice. We're finding our feet. We will battle on," said Sue Anderson, head of the Colorado Gay and Lesbian Community Center.

Gov. Roy Romer, who campaigned against the amendment, said Wednesday he had a constitutional duty to enforce it. But he said he would seek to protect gays and lesbians from discrimination by using existing provisions of the U.S. Constitution, though they do not specifically apply to sexual orientation.

"The 14th Amendment speaks about — in plain language — equal protection under the law," said Romer, a Democrat. "My personal opinion is it's unconstitutional to discriminate based on sexual orientation."

Victim's sister says she will campaign against judge

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A woman outraged at the ease with which her brother's alleged killer was freed on bond has pledged to campaign against a judge in the case.

Melba Vallejo, whose brother, Robert, was killed Oct. 27 in a shooting rampage at an HEB grocery store warehouse in San Antonio, said she also fears for the safety of other workers whom police said were intended targets of the gunman.

Roger Martinez, 24, was charged with murder in the 25-year-old's death and attempted murder in the shooting of another employee, Joe Galvan, 28.

He had been jailed on bonds totaling $150,000, but was freed Monday after District Judge Terry McDonald lowered his bonds to $50,000. His lawyer, Roy Barrera Jr., then posted surety bonds.

Relatives of Vallejo met Tuesday with McDonald to express their dissatisfaction.

"He said if we didn't like it, we didn't have to re-elect him in two years," Melba Vallejo told the San Antonio Light. "I will surely protest against him in two years, and so will every taxpayer in Bexar County.

Assistant District Attorney Therese Huntzinger said she was upset that her office was not given a chance to oppose the bond reduction.

Brooks blames district changes

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — Longtime Texas Sen. Chet Brooks has asked for a recount in the election he lost in an upset to Republican challenger Jerry Patterson.

Brooks, D-Pasadena, blamed redistricting and Ross Perot for his apparent loss to Patterson, a Pasadena employee benefits consultant.

"Redistricting decimated the Harris County portion of my district. And we had unusually heavy turnout in the Clear Lake and South Shore Harbor areas where Republicans do well," Brooks said.

Brooks was elected to the Legislature in 1962 and four years later to the senate. He is the most senior member of the senate and chairman of the Health and Human Services Committee.

In Tuesday's election, Brooks attracted 47 percent of Tuesday's vote. Patterson had 48 percent and Libertarian candidate Marshall N. Anderson, a Pasadena physician, took 5 percent of the vote.

Redistricting split Brook's traditional territory three ways, dividing his hometown of Pasadena and eliminating his stronghold of South Houston, he said. Brooks was forced to move to avoid running against fellow Democratic Sen. Rodney Ellis of Houston.

Patterson, who unsuccessfully challenged Brooks in 1990, mocked the senior senator's claim of residency in Pasadena. Patterson portrayed Brooks as an Austinite who kept a local address for appearances.

Patterson agreed that the redistricting played a significant role in the most recent election, with the addition of the Clear Lake area laying the foundation for a Republican victory.

And then, there was the charismatic campaign of Dallas billionaire Ross Perot.

Brooks estimated about 9,000 votes in his Harris County precincts went to the independent presidential candidate.

Cogdell Memorial Hospital HEALTHFEST '92

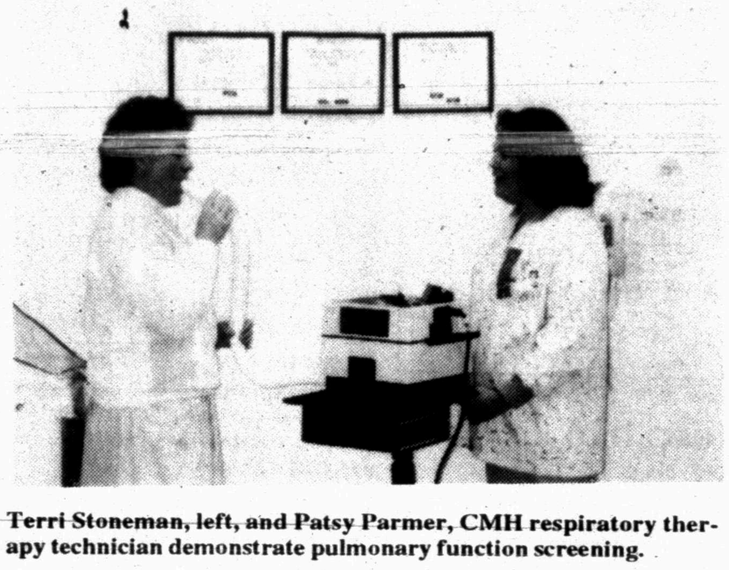

Area agencies happy to participate in fair

"The response of area health related agencies to our invitation to participate in the health fair at Cogdell Memorial Hospital has been absolutely marvelous," said Wilma Dillard, Healthfest '92 coordinator. "Thanks to this support, we will be able to present a very fine 'Gift to All Our Good Neighbors' and show what we can offer right here."

An array of health-related information, free screenings and tests designed to check the health of individuals and their families is planned for the health fair, scheduled from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the hospital.

"We have balloons with our Cogdell logo and stadium cups with St. Mary of the Plains/Cogdell Memorial Hospital logo to be given to everyone who registers at the healthfest," said Dillard. "There is a good selection of giveaway products from suppliers and friends of Cogdell Hospital. You can obtain information about many health-related services available in our area, and have an opportunity to win valuable prizes. To add to the festivities, the Senior Center Kitchen Band will perform on the front patio."

The hospital auxiliary will provide popcorn, lemonade and cookies to health fair visitors. They will also conduct a drawing for a "Health-O-Meter," an adjustable stair climber, to use in the home for general fitness, toning and cardiac recovery.

All donations to Cogdell Memorial Hospital Foundation are tax deductible.

Matt Cross and Cindy Josey show off youngster's posters in the county-wide 3rd grade poster contest.

Annual fair lets citizens learn more about health

Physical exams and health education are important to maintaining good health. To help keep people healthy, Cogdell Memorial Hospital is presenting this free health fair for local and area citizens to learn more about their health and how to maintain it.

Periodic tests can identify potential health problems before they become real problems. Plus, examinations are a good way to determine just how healthy a person is.

"We will have an array of health-related information, free screenings, and tests designed to check the health of individuals and their families," said Wilma Dillard, Healthfest '92 coordinator.

"We have balloons with our Cogdell logo, and "goodie" bags and stadium cups with CMH and St. Mary of the Plains logo which will be given to everyone who registers at the healthfest.

There is a selection of giveaway products from suppliers and friends of Cogdell Memorial Hospital. We also have several valuable prizes that will be given away by random drawings."

'Lung tests' available during the health fair

Special tests which are performed to evaluate how the lungs are functioning are called pulmonary function tests. These tests can help to identify lung conditions which may include: a normal healthy lung; a lung with an obstructive airflow pattern (as found in patients with emphysema); a lung with a restrictive airflow.

Pulmonary function tests measure both the capabilities and the effectiveness of the patient's respirations or breathing. The purpose of each respiration, or breath, is two-fold. The first is to supply oxygen to all tissues of the body, the second is to remove the waste product, carbon dioxide. Any impairment of one's ability to complete the respiratory cycle (breathing in and out) can be critical to one's well-being and and have serious implications.

These tests can be performed quickly and easily in two basic steps. First, a deep breath is taken to totally fill the lungs. Second, the patient makes a rapid, forceful blow into the mouthpiece of the test machine.

This test measures (1) how much air was exhaled (volume); and (2) how fast that air was exhaled (flow rate).

Depending on the results of these tests, a physician is able to determine the severity of any respiratory impairment.

At Healthfest '92, Cogdell Hospital employees will evaluate your lung function at no charge. your personal results will be given to you immediately, along with recommendations as to whether you may need additional follow-up by your private physician. Meet Carl Burleson and his staff in the Respiratory Therapy department for the test and more information.

CMH is dedicated to all its patients

We have so many reasons to be proud of Cogdell Memorial Hospital, and we want to be the hospital of choice because we have earned it, and not just because we are located here.

MEDICAL STAFF — Snyder is fortunate to have the number of well-trained and qualified physicians. We have 11 doctors on our medical staff, and 9 area physicians who offer services through our Medical Specialty Clinic. Many of our physicians have attended some of the top schools in this part of the country, and completed their residencies in prestigious programs. They have earned the trust of physicians in Lubbock and other area communities, as well as their many patients.

TECHNOLOGY — Diagnostic equipment is very important to a physician when treating a patient who is ill. We are fortunate to have advanced equipment like a CT scanner, mammography equipment, sonogram and echo cardiogram, nuclear testing, a wide variety of laboratory procedures, stress testing equipment and cardiac rehabilitation and fitness equipment.

It also takes qualified people to run this equipment and keep up with changing technology. Our employees are encouraged to keep abreast of the latest information and procedures.

CARE AND COMPASSION OF THE EMPLOYEES — We believe that no one cares about the people who need medical care like the people who work at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. "Neighbors helping neighbors" says it all. Our employees have a strong sense of service, a mission to help and a great understanding of the meaning and purpose behind their jobs. One of our major goals at Cogdell Hospital is to project our professionalism through confidence, courtesy, caring and compassion.

AFFILIATION WITH ST. MARY OF THE PLAINS HOSPITAL IN LUBBOCK — adds strength throughout our entire organization. From contact with the medical staff, to programs available to our managers and employees, to advice on equipment and service. All this adds value and saves time to us here.

Patient rights are examined

As of Dec. 1, 1991, every adult admitted to a U.S. hospital received information on patient treatment rights and advance directives to make their wishes known concerning the providing or withholding of medical care.

The increased focus on helping patients understand their rights is the result of a federal law, the "Patient Self-Determination Act." The law is aimed at improving patient knowledge about freedom of choice and at fostering better communication among the patient, family and attending physician.

In the U.S., every adult of sound mind has a right to accept or refuse medical treatment, even if refusal might prolong an illness or lead to death. This right of self-determination allows a patient to make all medical decisions, whether they be relatively simple, or extremely difficult.

But there are times when a patient may be unable to communicate treatment desires. An accident might result in a coma, or an advanced medical problem may lead to incapacitation. In times like these, an advance directive helps physicians prescribe treatment based on patient desire. By using a directive, a person can indicate what kinds of life sustaining procedures he wants withdrawn or withheld in the event of terminal illness.

In Texas, methods for preparing advance directives are established through the Natural Death Act and the Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care Act.

The Patient Self-Determination Act does not prohibit a caregiver from refusing to implement an advance directive on the basis of conscience, if this refusal is allowed under state law. In Texas, the Natural Death Act allows a physician to refuse compliance with directives, and it protects the physician from civil or criminal liability if reasonable efforts are made to transfer the patient to another physician.

Texas' Natural Death Act

The Natural Death Act allows the withdrawal or withholding of medical care to be requested by a competent adult who is suffering from a terminal illness. This directive, often referred to as a "living will," may include instructions for a physician not to use mechanical or other artificial means of support when the only purpose of those measures is to postpone the natural dying process.

A directive outlining a patient's desires may be prepared at any time, but does not become operative until the patient is terminally ill.

There are specific guidelines for drafting such a directive. It must be signed by the patient and witnessed by two persons, with severe restrictions placed on who may serve as witnesses. The directive may be verbal or drafted via other non-written means, but must be done in the presence of the attending physician and two eligible witnesses.

The patient issuing a directive must be a competent adult. An advance directive may be prepared on behalf of someone under age 18 by that minor person's adult spouse, parents or legal guardian.

Before a directive may be carried out, the terminal illness must be confirmed and certified by two physicians. The directive may be revoked at any time, even in the final stages of terminal illness. The expressed desire to receive life-sustaining treatment at all times supersedes the directive.

In times where a directive has not been executed and a terminally ill patient is unable to communicate, family members or the patient's guardian and the attending physician work together to make decisions about life-sustaining treatment.

Texas' Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care Act

The act offers more flexibility than the Natural Death Act. It allows a patient to name another person to direct medical decisions, even routine procedures, in the event of incapacitation. Unlike the Natural Death Act, use of the durable power of attorney is not restricted to life-death treatment questions involving a terminally ill patient.

In preparing a power of attorney under the act, specific procedures must be followed. The document must be signed by the patient and two qualified witnesses, and it must be affirmed that the patient appeared to be of sound mind, was aware of the nature of the document, and signed voluntarily and while free of duress. The person given power of attorney for health care may exercise authority only if the patient's attending physician, following specific guidelines, judges that the patient lacks the capacity to make health care decisions. The transfer of power is revoked if the patient regains decision-making capabilities.

The person with power of attorney is responsible for following the patient's wishes, based on either guidelines in the power of attorney agreement or using the best assessment of the patient's desires. There are however, five areas where authorithy cannot be transferred from the patient: voluntary inpatient mental health services, convulsive treatment, psychosurgery, abortion and discontinuing care intended to provide for the patient's comfort.

Teresa Graves, RN, demonstrates a blood pressure check with Lana Chambers, RN and director of nursing.

Mammography offered

Mammography is a breast X-ray which can detect cancers too small to be felt by hand. Mammography, along with breast self-examination, is a helpful tool in diagnosing breast cancer.

Cogdell Memorial Hospital has been performing screening mammograms since 1986. It was at that time that new equipment was purchased by Cogdell Hospital Auxiliary. Contributions to this special project came from the Auxiliary, individuals, businesses, and various community groups and organizations.

The screening program at Cogdell is certified by the state of Texas.

The total cost of $70 for a screening mammogram is made possible through the efforts of the Auxilary in community fundraising, and is also based upon receiving payments at the time of service.

Mammograms at CMH are scheduled Monday through Friday from 1:30 p.m. through 4:30 p.m. A physician referral is not necessary for a screening mammogram.

To make an appointment, call the Radiology Department at 573-6374, ext 440.

Pulse oximetry tests available at healthfest

Pulse oximetry is a state-of-the-art medical device to quickly and easily determine the oxygen content of a patient's blood and to determine the pulse rate.

The device looks similar to a small clothes pin, which is most frequently attached to a patient's finger. It is simple and non-invasive, which allows it to be used on patients of all ages for any period of time.

Cogdell Hospital invites everyone to visit the Respiratory Therapy department and see the pulse oximeter. Let the staff show you this fast, easy and painless way to determine how much oxygen is in your blood during Healthfest '92.

Blood pressure knowledge vital

Trends over the past several years have seen an increase in the general public's awareness of their personal health status. A primary focus of this increased awareness and concern is blood pressure.

Young and old alike are interested in their blood pressure, as evidenced by comments to nurses such as "Tell me how I'm doing," "Am I still ticking?" "Do I have any?" Many times, these questions can be interpreted to mean, "What exactly does my blood pressure mean to me? Is it good or bad? Should I worry?"

By definition, blood pressure is the pressure exerted by blood against the inside walls of the blood vessels as the heart rhythmically contracts and relaxes. There are two parts to each "blood pressure."

The first part, or the top number, is called the systolic pressure. This is the amount of pressure pushing against the walls of blood vessels (arteries) when the heat contracts and forces the blood through them. The normal range for this number is 100 to 140.

The second part, or the bottom number, is called the diastolic pressure. This is the amount of pressure present in the blood vessels when the heart is resting between contractions. The number is normally 90 or below.

The major concern over one's blood pressure is related to whether there is evidence of hypertension, or high blood pressure.

A blood pressure greater than 140 systolic and 90 diastolic is said to be too high, or above normal. The patient should know what his blood pressure is and compare it with these standards. By having one's blood pressure checked on a periodic basis, a baseline is established on which to make future comparisons. This way, the patient becomes familiar with his own "normal" blood pressure values, and then can quickly identify when values are not consistent with the baseline.

Risk factors which are associated with hypertension may include the following:

—Family history.

—Age: Blood pressure increases as one ages.

—Smoking: Smoking may cause blood vessel constriction. thereby increasing blood pressure.

—Rae: Hypertension is found more often in blacks than in people of other races.

—Stress: Stress may increase blood pressure.

Knowing your blood pressure is important. Treatment of high blood pressure is even more important. People with hypertension die younger than people with normal blood pressure.

Hypertension is a risk factor for cardiovascular disease — a leading cause of death in the United States. And, hypertension can damage the kidneys, eyes, blood vesels and heart, increasing the risk of kidney failure, blindness, stroke or heart attack.

If you don't know your blood pressure, attend Healthfest '92, Saturday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. The blood pressure checks are free.

Helen Hatter, ACS president, and Sue Taber try out a Cancer Risk Assessment computer program.

'Dogs battle 'Dogs for playoff berth

It all comes down to this weekend and the Ira-Loraine game.

The Ira Bulldogs battle the Loraine Bulldogs in Loraine tonight with the winner heading into the six-man football playoffs and the loser starting basketball practice.

Both teams of Bulldogs carry 6-3 overall records and both are 3-1 in district games, losing only to Borden County.

Ira posted a 68-36 win over Trent last week, while Loraine fell to the BCHS Coyotes 48-13.

In other games this week, Borden County, which clinched a share of the loop title by beating Loraine, can claim the '92 crown outright with a win over Highland, a 58-18 loser to Hermleigh last week, and Hermleigh entertains Trent.

Ira (6-3, 3-1) at Loraine (6-3, 3-1)

Loraine will have to figure out a way to bottle up the IHS offense. Ira has scored an average of over 50 points a game this season. Their 68-point effort against Trent a week past was led by senior deep back Mike Hughes, who rushed for 223 yards and passed for 222. Besides Hughes, running back Bryan Luna added four TDs and Coy Henderson slipped in for three scores.

Loraine's offense has been paced by Arthur Garza, who scored both Bulldog touchdowns in the loss to Borden County last week.

Ira was tabbed as a strong contender to defend its loop title in presason polls. The same polls picked Loraine dead last.

Borden County (8-1, 4-0) at Highland (0-9, 0-4)

This battle of worst against first will be over early.

Borden County's Clint Wills has scored more touchdowns in the last three weeks, 14, than the Hornets have all season.

Wills, a shoe-in for all-district honors, has accounted for over 900 rushng yards in the last three weeks alone.

In addition to his prowess as a runner, Wills tossed scoring passes of 50 and 40 yards in last week's rout over Loraine.

Highland has scored only 60 points all season.

Trent (1-8, 1-3) at Hermleigh (3-6, 1-3)

The Cardinals exploded for 58 points last week, blowing out Highland.

Chris Velasco ran for 179 yards and a pair of scores, Jay Hardy had two TDs and 141 rushing yards, and Daniel Hermosillo scored twice in the win, Hermleigh's first district win of the year.

The Cards' chances of winning a second loop tilt depend largely on how they contain the Gorillas' David Sanford.

The senior running back scored three times, once on a 32-yard pass interception, in Trent's lop-sided loss to Ira last week.

SHS ends season at Frenship

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder coach David Baugh is counting on his team being up for tonight's season-ending football game at Frenship.

"Well, all the incentives are gone," said Baugh, whose Tigers will miss the Class 4A playoffs for the first time in three years. "They'll just be playing on pride. I hope they have enough pride to play well."

Frenship's Tigers, even though they are only 2-7 on the year, and are winless in four loop games, boast a good offensive unit, featuring one of the top running backs in the district, as well as one of the best split ends in the area.

Fullback Duane Young, a 6-3, 200-pounder worries coach Baugh.

"That's what concerns me," the coach said, speaking of Young's size. "We haven't played well against the big backs. "We've done pretty well against the smaller, quicker backs, those two at Plainview and Sweetwater, but the bigger backs have given us some trouble."

Lamesa's Tony Brown, 6-3, 195, gained 96 yards on 18 carries against the Tigers last week, and Monahans' Tari Jessie and Bruce Ramsey, both in the 190-200-pound range combined for over 300 yards on the ground in Week 2 of the season.

Young has accumulated 1,012 yards in nine games, averaging over five yards a carry and scoring 10 TDs.

But Young is not the FHS Tigers' only weapon. Split end Kendrick Hollie, Frenship's quarterback a year ago, leads the area in yards-per-catch snagging 32 passes for 489 yards, an average of 15.3, and three scores.

Pulling the trigger on the Frenship offense is junior QB Shane Stewart. Stewart has completed 59 throws this year for 850 yards and seven touchdowns.

"No. 1, you've got to stop Young," said Baugh. "Then you've got to stop the passing game to Hollie.

"But the key matchup will be us against Young."

Frenship's defense attacks from a five-man front. Standouts include feisty noseguard Trent Taylor. At 5-5, 150 pounds, Taylor is small for the line.

"He's kind of light," said Baugh, "but he's a battler, and he's real quick."

Other defensive stalwarts include Young at defensive end and Hollie in the secondary.

"They'll overshift the noseguard to the strong side," reported coach Baugh, "and they'll run lots of stunts."

The defensive side of the ball has been a problem for Frenship all season. The FHS Tigers have given up over 3,200 yards and 266 points this year.

The Snyder Tigers, 5-4, 1-3, head into tonight's contest behind an offensive line that had its best game of the season, statistically speaking, against Lamesa last Friday.

Snyder blockers posted season-high numbers in knockdowns, 134, drives, 34, and pins, 13.

One of the leaders in the offensive line is center Brian Lickey, who is listed as probable after sustaining a shoulder bruise in Tuesday's workout.

Lickey is also the team's snapper on punts, extra points and field goal attempts.

Lamesa to host Tigers in Saturday golf match

Snyder golf coach Bob O'Day is hoping for two things when his Tiger golf team visits Lamesa Saturday, better weather and a better performance from his team than last week.

The Tigers shot a team total 336 to fall to Plainview by 10 shots a week ago in a non-district head-to-head match at Western Texas College.

Winds blowing from 30-40 mph kept the scores up, except for medalist Chad Jacobi. The SHS senior claimed his sixth first-place finish in as many matches this fall.

"His 74 was outstanding," said O'Day of Jacobi's effort. "But the rest of the players didn't play well on Halloween. The wind bothered us and we didn't execute well. I was disappointed in our play on our home course."

Lamesa will entertain the Tigers at Lamesa Country Club.

Two matches remain on the fall slate for Snyder, a Nov. 14 three-way match between SHS, Lamesa and Sweetwater at WTC, and a Nov. 21 visit to Plainview.

Lady Texan Classic...

LCU tops Dusters at tourney

LEVELLAND — The Western Texas College Lady Dusters suffered through what coach Ron Jones called "a self-inflicted loss" Thursday, falling to Lubbock Christian University, 83-71, in the first round of the Lady Texan Classic, hosted by South Plains College.

"We went from a very good performance (Monday's 92-73 win over Weatherford JC) to a very poor performance," Jones said. "We had too many turnovers and just an overall lack of intensity.

"It really doesn't surprise me that there is some inconsistency with such a young team," Jones said. "What surprised me was the extent of the reversal.

"We just weren't ready to play, and I guess that's my fault.

"But the things that happened to us are things that can easily be remedied."

The Lady Dusters gave up 37 turnovers in Thursday's game.

Western Texas trailed LCU by just eight, 38-30, at the half, but the Lady Chaps outscored WTC, 45-41, in the last 20 minutes for the final margin.

Becky Hinojos, a former member of the WTC women's squad, posted a game-high 19 points, leading a group of three LCU cagers in double figures.

The Dusters' top scorers were freshmen Jenny Crowell, who scored 15, including three 3-pointers, and Ayesha Howard, who who hit five buckets and was 4-of-6 from the free-throw line.

In other Thursday action, host South Plains College obliterated Reese Air Force Base, 111-37, and preseason Western Junior College Athletic Conference pick Howard College, spanked Panola, 76-63.

Games today include a 3 p.m. matchup between the Dusters, now 1-1, and Reese AFB, followed by the Ft. Bliss-Howard contest at 5 p.m., and the 7 p.m. nightcap pitting SPC against Panola.

Western Texas will battle Panola in a 2 p.m. contest Saturday to wind up the tourney.

The Dusters travel to Cisco Junior College Monday before hosting the WTC-McDonald's Classic Nov. 12-14 at Scurry County Coliseum.

Estacado claims playoff berth

LUBBOCK — The Estacado Matadors captured at least a share of the District 2-4A grid crown Thursday night, edging Levelland, 22-21, in both teams' season finale.

Estacado finished the season with a 4-4-1 overall record and a 4-1 mark against loop opponents. Levelland, still clinging to slim playoff hopes, winds up the regular schedule at 3-7 and 3-2.

For the Lobos to make the postseason tournament, Lamesa must beat Plainview in tonight's game at Lamesa.

A win by Plainview will put the Angry Red into the playoffs in their first year in the district.

Estacado, who clinched the district's top playoff seed with its Thursday win, scored on a 53-yard pass from Zebbie Lethridge to Dale Love to pull to within 21-20.

Tailback Talion Scott reached over the goal line for the 2-point conversion with just 3:57 to play.

The victory assures Estacado of its third straight playoff berth in 2-4A football.

WTC bull riders place at Texas Tech Rodeo

LUBBOCK — Three Western Texas College bull riders placed in Thursday's opening round of competition at the Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo.

The rodeo will continue with 7:30 p.m. performances today and Saturday at Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Trey Griffin of WTC earned first place in Thursday's bull riding with a 77 score. Griffin headed into the Tech rodeo leading the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association's Southwest Region in the event.

Teammate Benji Fontenot scored a 70 on opening night for second place. Fletcher Tigner's 64 for the Westerners is good enough for seventh with two rounds to go.

Bareback rider Duane Evans captured first place in that event for WTC. Evans' 62 was tops on Thursday.

In womens' events, Shawna Davidson and Brandye Bitters captured fourth and fifth places in goat tying Thursday. Davidson flashed a 9.0 time, trailed by Bitters' 9.3.

Regional meet to feature SHS girls' qualifier

Snyder sophomore Jamie Prather will represent coach Sammie Harrison's cross-country squad at Saturday's Region 1 meet in Lubbock.

Prather finished fifth with a 13:41 2-mile time last week in the District 2-4A gathering, to earn a spot at regionals.

The top five individuals and the top two teams from each district in Region 1 will be competing, beginning at 8 a.m. at Mae Simmons Park.

"Jamie is the first female from Snyder to qualify for regionals since 1989," Harrison reported. "The competition has gotten a lot better, because in 1989, the Snyder female qualified with a time of 14:42, and in 1991, Snyder had two to run under 14:40 and neither one made it to regionals."

Saturday's trip will be the second straight for Harrison. The 1991 boys' squad finished second at the 2-4A meet earning a team berth.

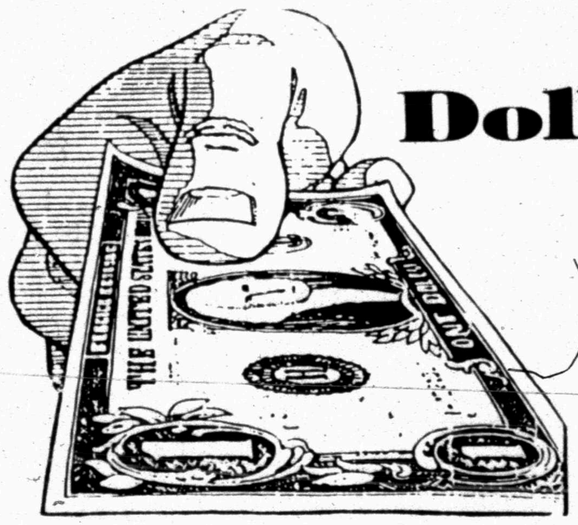

JV Tigers rip Frenship

Snyder's junior varsity Tigers coasted to a 43-26 win over Frenship in the regular-season football finale Thursday at Tiger Stadium.

Eddie Martinez scored three times for SHS, including once on a pass interception. Jason Miller added a touchdown, Chris Miller hit the end zone twice, rolled in for a 2-point conversion and had three PAT kicks, and Damien Medrano tacked on a 2-point run.

Snyder's JV, coached by Tommy Doyle, Bud Birks, Roland Herrera and Joe Young, winds up the campaign with a 4-6 slate.

Behaviorist placates pesky pets

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tigger wasn't always like this.

The sleek, gray cat was sweet and playful, calm and friendly, Lynn Roney's beloved companion.

Now Tigger is hunkered under the coffee table, fearful and angry. Her beautiful green eyes are dilating, a sign of rising stress. She emits a half-whine, half-growl that sounds like something out of a bad Exorcist remake.

A bowl of tuna isn't helping. Soothing voices expressing compassion and reassurance aren't helping. Looking out from under the table and seeing lots of shoes — which may be the source of Tigger's trauma — definitely don't help.

"This cat is my baby," says Ms. Roney. "I just know something has happened to her. If a family member has a problem, you don't just kick them out. You try to help."

That is why she called Diane Arrington, a Dallas woman who began training dogs for friends nearly two decades ago and wound up as a pet behaviorist. It's a growing specialty in the pet business and a reflection of the importance of dogs and cats in millions of American households.

House calls for people have become a quaint symbol of years gone by, like soda fountains and big finned Chevys. But if Sparky is irrigating the rug or Sheba doesn't like the new baby, a behaviorist — part trainer, part psychologist — will come to your door.

"I'm the last straw," Ms. Arrington says "Seventy or 80 percent of my calls are 'If you don't do something about my pet, I'm going to have to put him to sleep.'"

On her first visit to Tigger, the behaviorist wore a pair of ankle-exposing flats. "She bit me to the bone," Ms. Arrington says.

This time she changes into well padded athletic shoes and thick socks before climbing the stairs into Ms. Roney's apartment. Tigger doesn't bite, and even the hunkering and growling signify improvement.

"Before this she would have sniffed you for about 45 seconds and then she'd freak out," says Ms. Roney, a nurse. "She hits, she bites, she scratches, she lunges. Some of my friends call her 'Psychocat.'"

The only explanation for this, Ms. Roney figures, is that about a year ago someone kicked Tigger so viciously and traumatically as to warp the cat's personality.

Undoing the damage isn't easy. Ms. Arrington and Ms. Roney play with Tigger, reward her with praise and tuna, anything they can think of to defuse tension while getting the cat used to having people around again. Between appointments, the owner repeats the sessions with friends.

"Our real goal is to get her back to what she was, and we're 50 percent there," Ms. Arrington says. "But cats aren't as resilient as dogs are. I'm really not sure we'll get to that point."

Diane Arrington's father tells her that when she was 2 or 3, she already was teaching the family dog to sit. She simply remembers always having an affinity for animals.

"I hope this doesn't sound weird, but I think it's a gift," she says. "I just know I'm doing what I was meant to do."

If that sounds a little defensive, it's because there are some pet behaviorists out there with fancy degrees in animal psychology and the like. Ms. Arrington doesn't have one, just experience spanning 17 years and thousands of pets, several books in the works and a new video, "3 Steps To A Perfect Dog."

There also are some whose best credential is a nicely printed business card.

"You have to be careful," says Ann Ramsbottom, director of education for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals of Texas. "Anyone can call himself a behavior consultant, and there seem to be more and more people doing this."

Every day the SPCA, which runs Dallas-area animal shelters, sees the results of poor training or no training. Executive Director Warren Cox estimates that 80 percent of animals brought to the shelter are the result of owners unable to cope with their pets' problems.

Those that aren't adopted are put to death — more than 100,000 a year locally, millions more around the country.

"It's literally a matter of life and death," Cox says. "And it's not the animal's fault; it's the people's fault. That means chances are good the problem will repeat itself with the next pet."

The first answer is preventive medicine. "Dream pets aren't born," Ms. Ramsbottom says. "You have to teach them."

She says the idea of obedience school began with the military, which, being in a hurry, tended to focus on punishment rather than praise to get the job done. That has evolved greatly toward the philosophy that positive reinforcement may take longer, but will produce better results.

Still, says Ms. Arrington, a lot of attitudes still need changing, such as the continued use of choke collars and the notion of rubbing a pet's nose in what experts delicately call an "inappropriate elimination."

"It's really cruel, unhygienic and disgusting," she says.

There are better ways to solve that and any other problem, and she promises it won't take more than four appointments, which usually cost about $65 each.

Whether teaching classes or making house calls, training new pets or trouble-shooting old ones, her rules are the same: no scolding, no yelling, no hitting. "I won't use anything I wouldn't use on a child," she says.

Chloe, an adorable little ball of white fur, probably doesn't realize she is descended from wolves. But she is, says the behaviorist, and that makes all the difference.

The owner, Gaye Greenamyer, says the 5-month-old Maltese nips, yips and pushes, and goes particularly bonkers when the doorbell rings.

"I was yelling and screaming at the dog, and she thought it was a big game," says Ms. Greenamyer, an American Airlines flight attendant who lives in Coppell.

"That's because she sees you as a litter mate, and a subordinate litter mate at that," Ms. Arrington says.

The solution? Like the wolves before them, dogs have to realize their rank in the pack, or in the house, and that rank has to be below the humans.

So training exercises emphasize rewards and praise, giving orders just once in a dominant tone, using silence instead of nagging to make a point, making the animal earn affection.

"I always laughed at people who thought they needed a pet psychologist," says Denise Ward, a Dallas anesthesiologist. That was before she got divorced and Tyler started to change.

First the cat seemed listless, refusing even to play with his favorite toy mouse. Then he started inappropriately eliminating, as the behaviorists would say — on the floor, in the pantry, on Dr. Ward's sweater, even in her bed.

Ms. Arrington launches an investigation worthy of Lt. Columbo: asking lots of questions, taking lots of notes, inspecting the cat and the scenes of his crimes.

"Sometimes you can't figure out a cause," she says. "You just go ahead with the program. We have to reorient his feet to know they have to be on sand before he can go."

The prescription until the next appointment in two weeks: a medical checkup, a bigger litter box with different kitty litter, a special solution to apply to Tyler's inappropriate "target areas."

Most important, Dr. Ward has to lock him in the bathroom, with food, toys, plenty of amenities — but no way out.

After months of enduring Tyler's inappropriateness, Dr. Ward is ready for anything. Still, she doesn't look thrilled, despite reassurances that the bathroom looks a lot bigger from Tyler's perspective.

"Who's this going to be worse on, him or me?" she asks.

Replies Ms. Arrington, "You."

"I hope this doesn't sound wierd, but I think it's a gift. I just know I'm doing what I was meant to do."

Cases are sent to DA's office

Snyder police sent two sexual assault cases to the district attorney's office and worked a theft Thursday.

Police have identified an 18-year-old man and a 21-year-old man in separate sexual assaults reported Wednesday which involved a 14-year-old girl. No arrests have been made but the case has been sent to the DA's office.

At 7:50 a.m. Thursday, Delbert McNiel came to the department in reference to someone stealing his Craftsman toolbox and assorted tools. An offense report for Class A theft has been filed.

At 10:13 a.m. Thursday, police transported a 21-year-old man from Municipal Court to the county jail to lay out fines for unrestrained child, no driver's license and no insurance.

An offense report for harboring a runaway child was filed Thursday afternoon after a woman told police that her 12-year-old son had run away. The child was later brought to the police department and has been released to his parents.

Write-in vote means 4 more Demo losers

HOUSTON (AP) — In a strange twist attributed to the efforts of abortion opponents angry with a judge, a slew of write-in ballots has turned five losing Republicans into elected officials.

The come-from-behind victories in Harris County, in turn, have made losers out of five Harris County Democrats, including two incumbent state judges appointed to the bench.

"I've been with the county for 30 years and I've never seen a write-in campaign that created that many ballots," County Clerk Anita Rodeheaver said Thursday in announcing the new results.

"This is a pretty odd situation," she said.

The reversals came after officials finished counting the 41,000 write-in votes, the vast majority of which were cast for John Devine. Devine had been urged by abortion opponents to run against State District Judge Eileen O'Neill.

Ms. O'Neill had incurred the wrath of abortion opponents after she jailed several Operation Rescue leaders who came to Houston in August to stage protests at clinics during the Republican National Convention.

Devine was overwhelmingly defeated by Ms. O'Neill, but the voters he attracted helped turned the tide in the other five races.

The new losing candidates are Donald Peter Fogo in the Texas House District 144 race; Terry O'Rourke in the 80th district court race; incumbent John Kyles in the 208th district court race; incumbent John Ackerman in the 339th family district court; and Henry Burkholder in the race for the 14th Appeals Court, Place 2, a 14-county appellate court district.

Robert E. Talton won the 144th congressional race by 77 votes, Denise Collins took the 208th judicial race with 19,547; Caprice Cosper won the 339th by 20,167; Scott Link was the winner in the 80th by 5,900; and Gary Bowers triumphed in the appeals court race with 12,457.

Talton said he was elated with the news. He and Devine were both at a news conference Ms. Rodeheaver held Thursday to announce the newest results.

"I had never met the man (Devine) before in my life," Talton said. "I did thank him ... In fact I hugged him!"

Ms. Rodeheaver said the results are final, although she conceded they may be challenged by the winners-turned-losers.

The new losers could not be immediately reached for comment Thursday night.

But Ken Bentsen, chairman of the Democratic Party in Harris County, said he will take a close look at the new results, and he believes there should be a recount in the representative race.

Bentsen and Ms. Rodeheaver both attributed the turnaround to the efforts of Operation Rescue to try to get Ms. O'Neill defeated.

Operation Rescue leaders, including founder Randall Terry, repeatedly voiced their anger to reporters about Ms. O'Neill, who had issued a temporary restraining order telling anti-abortion protesters to keep their distance from abortion clinics before and during the GOP convention.

Iraq playing hide-and-seek with scud missiles, boosters

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Saddam Hussein is hiding as many as 200 Scud missiles from U.N. weapons inspectors, Western officials and other sources say.

U.N. weapons inspection teams over the past 18 months have tracked down and dismantled much of Iraq's nuclear, chemical and biological weapons programs as well as its surface-to-surface missiles with a range of 90 miles or more under terms of the 1991 Gulf War cease-fire agreement.

But American and U.N. officials suspect that Saddam has stashed away some of the 819 Scud-B missiles he acquired from the former Soviet Union during the 1980-88 war with Iran, or longer-range al-Hussein and al-Abbas variants Iraq developed.

Tim Trevan, spokesman for the U.N. Special Commission charged with dismantling Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, said 151 ballistic missiles have been destroyed by the inspectors or the Iraqis, or are awaiting destruction.

But U.N. officials believe Saddam still has around 100 missiles hidden away. The CIA believes the figure is closer to 200.

Saddam is believed to be moving missiles around on camouflaged trucks to keep them out of the hands of inspectors.

In March 1991, Iraq admitted it had 52 ballistic missiles. But under intense diplomatic pressure, Baghdad later confessed it had another 92.

U.N. inspectors believe at least 487 of the Soviet Scuds were fired during the Iran-Iraq war or in tests.

It's not known how many Scuds were provided by Syria, Libya or North Korea, or how many were cannibalized to produce the al-Hussein and al-Abbas variants.

Ninety-three missiles were fired at Israel and Saudi Arabia during last year's Gulf War. The Pentagon concedes that no missiles were destroyed in allied air strikes.

Travelers from Iraq, including an aerodynamics specialist who said he worked on Saddam's weapons program before the Gulf War, said the Iraqis have buried large numbers of rocket boosters.

An unknown number are under the Habaniyah airbase in the desert west of Baghdad, as well as in the basements of mosques — at least one in central Baghdad — hospitals and other buildings the Iraqis don't believe the U.N. inspectors will investigate, the specialist said.

Whatever it takes pledged to end Ossetian warfare

MOSCOW (AP) — Defense Minister Pavel Grachev said today that Russia would take any steps necessary to end a week of bloodshed in the Caucasus that has killed more than 150 people.

The fighting between Ossetians and Ingush over territory in the North Ossetia region of Russia has rapidly escalated. It is the first serious ethnic conflict in Russia.

Grachev arrived in the North Ossetian capital of Vladikavkaz on Thursday to oversee efforts by Russian troops to disarm both sides and to enforce President Boris Yeltsin's month-long state of emergency.

Grachev told the ITAR-Tass news agency his trip was necessary to "prepare additional measures ... to stop bloodshed and to restore peace as soon as possible."

He said the government would "undertake all actions not to let Ossetian and Ingush peoples be drawn into a long war."

The Ingush claim the Prigorodny region of North Ossetia as their historic homeland. They were deported to Kazakhstan in 1944, accused of collaborating with the Nazis, but allowed to return in 1957.

About 100,000 Ingush, who are Sunni Muslim and speak a Caucasian language, now live in North Ossetia and what used to be called Chechen-Ingushetia, which last year was broken into two separate regions called Chechenia and Ingushetia.

About 400,000 Persian-speaking Ossetians, mostly Orthodox Christians, also live in the Caucasus, primarily in North and South Ossetia, their traditional homeland that was divided between Russia and Georgia by Josef Stalin.

Russia's first deputy Interior Minister, Yevgeny Abramov, told the legislature on Friday that 158 people have been killed since fighting erupted Friday. He said that included 19 civilians.

Grachev's arrival in North Ossetia came one day after journalists witnessed heavily armed Ossetians attack an Ingush village.

Teacher Retirement System. The state would then allocate an equal amount to poor districts.

—Eliminate the requirement that all school districts recieve equal funding per student from the Available School Fund.

—Authorize the use of $750 million in state bonds to assist districts with construction costs.

McNair said Snyder ISD would not have any of its funds recaptured under the "Fair Share Plan." Currently, SISD receives more tax dollars than it puts into the five-county CED.

School administrators have attacked the plan, saying it all but guarantees the largest local property tax in the state's history.

The plan anticipates an expected $650 million in new state funding over the next two years, without a tax increase. But the Texas Education Agency has projected that $650 million will not cover the costs for enrollment growth.

The School Finance Working Group, comprised of a dozen different organizations, said the plan could result in local increases of up to $3 billion over the next two years because of insufficient state funding.

Births

Kim and Kevin Shifflett of Snyder are parents of a nine-pound, three-ounce son, Michael Ty, born Nov. 1 at 2:18 a.m. in Mitchell County Hospital in Colorado City.

Grandparents are Howard and Linda Shifflett of Whiteface, Rodney and Patsy Bryant of Midland, and Mike and Linda Terry of Snyder.

Great-grandparents are Patsy and Birdwell Burney and James and Vada Terry, all of Snyder, and Jack and Jay Weber of Eastland. Great-great-grandparents are Pat and Dint von Roeder of Snyder.

Area man arrested

A 38-year-old Sweetwater man has been released on $5,000 bond in Nolan County after being arrested on a Scurry County grand jury indictment handed down Monday in 132nd District Court.

Thirty-eight-year-old George Nickerson of Sweetwater was taken into custody by Nolan County sheriff's deputies on Wednesday after being indicted on May 24 charges of possession of a controlled substance. Nickerson posted bond shortly after his arrest.

Food Lion blasts 'PrimeTime' report

by The Associated Press

Stock in Food Lion Inc. fell sharply in early trading today following an ABC News report that accused the grocery retailer of unsavory sanitation practices, including bleaching spoiled meat.

Food Lion's class A stock was down 871/2 cents a share at $8.371/2, and its class B shares were off $1 at $9 in over-the-counter trading.

Company president Tom Smith, who sought to prevent the "Prime Time Live" segment from being aired Thursday night, said "It was pretty obvious that a lot of that was faked."

The 25-minute segment included film that ABC said was shot with a camera smuggled into a Food Lion store by a producer who got a job as a meat wrapper. The film showed employees in the meat department rewrapping old meat, poultry, ham and fish past the "sell-by" dates.

One former employee interviewed on the show told of soaking spoiled meat and fish in bleach to remove the stench so the food would sell.

"It's just unreal what they'll do to save a dime," another former employee said.

Rena Terracuso, a spokeswoman for "PrimeTime" in New York City, said today, "The story speaks for itself."

ABC News correspondent Diane Sawyer said at the end of the segment Thursday night, "We want to make it clear that 'PrimeTime' staged nothing ... that what you saw on hidden camera is exactly as it happened."

Smith said most of the negative comments came from "employees who had an ax to grind against Food Lion" who were prompted by the United Food and Commercial Workers Union. He called the workers who were interviewed "stooges" for the union.

Smith also said some of the documents that appeared in the telecast were forged.

Food Lion, which has nearly 1,000 stores in 14 states, has consistently received high sanitation grades from regulators, something that would be unlikely if the allegations were true, Smith said.

Some workers who were supposedly taped without their knowledge appeared to be deliberately breaking Food Lion rules, Smith said. He said they also appeared to be posing for the cameras.

Ms. Sawyer said Thursday night, "Remember, none of the employees knew who we were or that they were being taped."

Food Lion began responding to the show before it aired. The company ran ads in which Smith mentioned the company's "A" sanitation rating. And employees held a pro-company rally earlier Thursday where they prepared petitions to send to Congress and ABC.

Suit against Kenny Rogers to be refiled

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A former Ardmore woman's lawsuit against entertainer Kenny Rogers will be refiled in Texas state court after being dismissed in Oklahoma City court for jurisdictional reasons.

Sue Ann Lenderman alleges Rogers left lewd messages for her on a 1-800 line to which he had given her the number.

Ms. Lenderman filed a lawsuit in September in U.S. District Court in Oklahoma City against Rogers and Dallas stockbroker Billy Bob Harris. The lawsuit did not specify an amount for monetary damages, but stated the amount exceeded $50,000. She also asked for punitive damages.

Ms. Lenderman now lives in Dallas, so Texas courts have jurisdiction in the lawsuit, attorney Gary Richardson of Tulsa said.

Rogers said in September that the matter had been going on for 18 months. He said he had tried to settle the case out of court "with a reasonable figure and she had the audacity to request $1 million."

"It seems obviously clear that she is doing this for the money," he said in a statement released by his publicist, Cheryl J. Kagan in Nashville, Tenn.

Rogers' Dallas attorney, James A. Rolfe, said at the time that a countersuit would be filed.

Ms. Lenderman said she had met Harris at the wedding of one of her best friends. She said Harris later gave Rogers her telephone number and said he would call her.

She said Rogers did call several times and those conversations had no sexual connotation. She said Rogers gave her the 1-800 number and a personal code by which she could retrieve messages.

Ms. Lenderman said she did call and was "sickened" by the sexual content of the "fantasy" conversation.

She said she had met Rogers only briefly when he performed at a concert and did not know him.

Cheerleader mom film comes under fire

CHANNELVIEW, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for Wanda Holloway, who is accused of trying to have a neighbor killed to enhance her daughter's chances of becoming a cheerleader, say they want to block the broadcast of a television movie about the case.

Dale Jefferson said late Thursday that he and Mrs. Holloway watched a video copy of the movie, "Willing to Kill: The Texas Cheerleader Story," which is scheduled to air on ABC Sunday night.

"We feel that the movie is defamatory," Jefferson said.

"First and foremost, we want to make this clear ... Money is not the issue," Jefferson said. "The issue is Wanda's rights. She has the right to own her own story. And she doesn't give up that right because she gets drug into the public forum by the media."

Jefferson said he negotiated with ABC, as well as with Topazi and Hersch Production Company, through the evening Thursday, and a five-figure settlement proposal has been discussed. He said unless an agreement is reached during business hours today, he will file a motion for a temporary restraining order to keep the program off TV.

"I am optimistic that this controversy will be resolved to our satisfaction," Jefferson said.

Mrs. Holloway was convicted last year of trying to hire a hit man to kill neighbor Verna Heath. Prosecutors said Mrs. Holloway wanted to upset Mrs. Heath's daughter, Amber, so that the teen-ager would drop out of cheerleader competition, giving Mrs. Holloway's daughter, Shanna, a better chance of winning.

Mrs. Holloway was sentenced to 15 years in prison and fined $10,000. But she won a new trial when it was learned a convicted felon had served on the jury. No date has been set for the second trial.

HBO also has planned a movie based on Mrs. Holloway's case. "The Positively True Adventures of the Alleged Texas Cheerleader-Murdering Mom" has not been scheduled for airing.

Mrs. Holloway's ex-husband, Tony Harper, has sold his rights to HBO in a deal that included their daughter, Shanna, and their son, Shane.

The ABC production has bought the TV rights to the story of Terry Harper, Mrs. Holloway's former brother-in-law and the prosecution's star witness, and of Mrs. Heath's mother, Joyce Brown.

Golfer, neighbors at odds over house

JUPITER ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Some of Greg Norman's neighbors at this exclusive resort island aren't too happy that the golfer's beachfront cottage is on the rocks.

Norman said the rocks and cement are needed to keep beach erosion from washing away the cottage. But neighbors and town officials say the rocks are causing more erosion south of his estate.

"We face a disastrous situation here," resident David Boies said in a letter to the Town Commission.

Norman said the rocks were placed there by a previous owner with the town's permission. He said he'd be happy to remove them but wanted to place the cottage — which is not the main residence on his $5 million estate — on stilts.

CRYSTAL RIVER — Crystal River of Lubbock, a fulltime ministry, will be presented in concert Sunday. Services at Victory Baptist Church will be at 10:45 a.m. and 2 p.m. Services at Ira Baptist Church will be at 7 p.m. (Contributed Photo)

Victory Baptist, Ira Baptist...

Crystal River plans three services Sunday

Crystal River will be in concert Sunday at two Scurry County churches. They will appear at two services at Victory Baptist Church. One at 10:45 a.m. and another at 2 p.m.

Crystal River will also be at Ira Baptist Church at 7 p.m. Everyone is invited to all the services.

Crystal River consists of four brothers from Lubbock who sing and share stories of being raised in a family of 12 children during their appearances.

As a fulltime ministry that travels nationwide, they have appeared on programs such as the TBN Christian Network, PTL and other "local" programs.

Crystal River's harmonies come together in a variety of music styles that vary from country to Spanish and mellow contemporary.

Tougher smog testing rules could cost U.S. motorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of car owners can expect repair bills as high as $120 under a tough new federal vehicle inspection program designed to improve air quality in urban areas.

The Environmental Protection Agency announced revamped, biannual inspection and maintenance requirements Thursday, saying they were among the most cost-effective ways to reduce smog and carbon monoxide pollution — by up to one-third — in cities and urban counties.

The new, 10-minute tests are expected to be phased in by states beginning Jan. 1, 1994, with all required test programs to be in place by 1996, the EPA said.

The rules don't reduce the level of allowable exhaust emissions; they simply improve and extend testing methods. In areas that have emissions testing, some vehicles that now pass muster may fail the tougher inspections.

The rules will cover 181 cities and metropolitan areas from Maine to California, but the most stringent new testing procedures will be necessary in 83 areas that currently have serious, severe or extreme air quality problems.

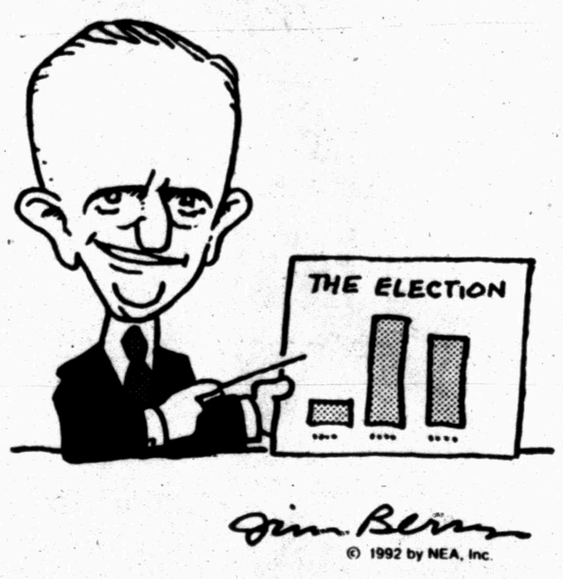

In those 83 cities and metropolitan counties, vehicle testing will include not only exhaust emissions, but evaporative engine and fuel-system emissions. Cars will be tested on a treadmill, rather than allowed to idle, to better simulate actual driving, officials said.

In the remaining areas, which have modest or marginal air pollution problems, the new tests will be similar to those already being conducted in many parts of the country, although in some cases some requirements will be tightened or new procedures imposed.

Mandatory testing of automobile tailpipe emissions already is in place in 125 urban areas. The new rules would require vehicles to be tested for the first time in an additional 56 areas and impose a much broader "enhanced" testing program using more advanced technology in 83 cities and metropolitan areas.

EPA officials said that under the new testing programs, about one in every five cars will likely have to be repaired at a cost ranging from $30 to $120. Federal law waives the requirements after repairs of $450.

New mothers, mothers-to-be...

Women's video series to continue in Snyder

A second series of videos for mothers entitled "Caring For Newborns" will be offered every other Tuesday at St. John's Episcopal Church beginning Nov. 10 and continuing on Nov. 24 and Dec. 8.

Each session will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. In addition, at 9 a.m. also on the above dates, the first series, "Preparing For Childbirth," will be offered in Spanish. A registered nurse will be in attendance at each session to answer questions.

The videos are being presented to the public free of charge as an outreach service to the community by both St. John's Episcopal Church and Grace Lutheran Church.

For more information and/or to arrange transportation call 573-3444, 573-0943 or 573-1504 and leave a message.

The topics for the newborn series are as follows:

—Nov. 10: "Taking Care Of Your New Baby" includes newborn appearance, breast feeding and bottle feeding, daily care such as bathing, dressing, changing and common concerns.

—Nov. 24: "Taking Care Of Your Child" includes common concerns such as child safety, child nutrition and child behavior.

Dec. 8: "When Your Child Is Sick" will include fevers, diarrhea and vomiting, common rashes, common complaints, immunizations and parenting tips.

The topics for the childbirth series in Spanish are as follows:

—Nov. 8: "Your Pregnant Body" will inlude nonpregnant anatomy, early signs and symptoms of pregnancy, pregnant anatomy, common complaints and concerns and breathing and relaxing for labor and delivery.

—Nov. 24: "Having Your Baby" will include planning for the hospital, stages of labor, the delivery and breathing and relaxing for labor and delivery.

—Dec. 8: The topic is "After Birth."

Asthma in children said increasing

CHICAGO (AP) — Childhood asthma causes 10 million missed days of school each year and 200,000 hospitalizations annually, and it's on the rise nationwide, researchers say.

"Asthma is the most common chronic disease in childhood. It's the leading cause of days lost from school," said Dr. William R. Taylor of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, lead author of a new study.

The study provides the first nationwide data confirming regional reports that asthma is striking children at an increasing rate, said Dr. Kevin B. Weiss, an asthma researcher at George Washington University who was not part of the study.

The study, published in the November issue of the journal Pediatrics, said 2.7 million children suffered asthma in 1988, the latest year for which data are available.

That was 4.3 percent of all children younger than 18, compared with 3.2 percent in 1981, the previous year in which data were collected in the National Health Interview Study, the researchers said.

Black asthmatic youngsters suffered more impairment in daily activities and more frequent hospitalizations than others, said the study, co-written by Dr. Paul W. Newacheck of the University of California, San Francisco.

That may be because blacks, who lack insurance more often than whites, are more likely to go without a doctor, wait until the last minute and rely on emergency-room care, Taylor said.

"When dealing with a chronic disease, we need to focus much more on preventing dysfunction," Taylor said. He said studies show educating both patient and family would help children get care earlier.

Thirty percent of the sufferers had some limitation in activity, compared with a 5 percent rate of limitations of activity in non-asthmatic children, the researchers said.

Asthma caused 10.1 million missed school days, 7.3 million days restricted to bed, 12.9 million contacts with doctors and 200,000 hospitalizations resulting in 1.9 million days of hospitalization, the researchers wrote.

Black children suffered asthma at a 25 percent higher rate than whites. Also, almost 8 percent of black children with asthma could not perform major activities, five times the proportion for white asthmatic children.

Besides getting less routine medical care, black children are more likely to live where known asthma triggers exist, including pets, dust, pollution and household members who smoke, he said.

The CDC reported last month that the national rate of asthma deaths among all ages rose 46 percent during the 1980s, to about 4,700 deaths in 1989, the study's last year. About 10 million Americans have asthma.

Weiss reported in March that asthma costs the country $6.2 billion.

Scientists do not know why asthma is increasing.

Possible reasons include more energy-efficient, tightly built homes that trap irritants inside; greater survival of low-birthweight babies, who may be more asthma-prone; more cigarette smoking by mothers; and more day-care use, which could expose more youngsters to viral infections that may promote asthma.

The asthma study was based on interviews in 17,110 U.S. households. Eighty percent of those surveyed were mothers, 10 percent fathers and 10 percent other family members of the children represented in the study.

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has taken over-the-counter diet pills for weight loss. He has also entered into an exercise program and has become very conscious about nutrition. It seems that when he is on the diet pills, he is irritable and disgruntled, flies into a rage over insignificant things, harasses me, uses abusive language and shows signs of severe paranoia. He is definitely opposed to drug users but feels diet pills are safe since they are sold over-the-counter. Please address the issue.

DEAR READER: The active ingredient in most diet pills is phenylpropanolamine, an appetite suppressant that can cause nervousness, rapid pulse, dizziness and other complaints. The manufacturers caution against exceeding the recommended amount, mixing the pills with other drugs or using them in the presence of medical ailments, such as high blood pressure.

Apparently, your husband is reacting badly to these pills. Common sense would dictate that he stop them, over-the-counter or not. If he is so anti-drug, he will surely respond to a reasonable weight-reduction diet (no sugar or starches) without using appetite suppressants as a crutch.

The fact that a drug can be purchased without a prescription is no guarantee it is safe or not habit-forming. Prime example: alcohol, a highly addicting, non-prescription, mind-altering substance. So, if your husband is going to be consistent in his beliefs, he better swear off diet pills. Anyway, they're appropriate only for short-term use.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help II — Substance Abuse and Mental Health." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a recent column on torticollis, you didn't mention the botulinum toxin treatment now offered by many facilities throughout the United States. I'm currently receiving the toxin for spasmodic dysphonia and the results have been extremely successful. I've talked to several other individuals receiving the toxin and they, too, have had excellent results.

DEAR READER: I do not believe that botulinum toxin is appropriate therapy for torticollis, common wry neck that usually disappears in a few days after treatment with heat and rest.

However, the toxin does show tremendous promise for treatment of a variety of neurological disorders, including dystonia (muscle spasms), sphincter dyssynergia (bladder spasms) and various speech and voice disorders.

The toxin is dangerous and should be administered only by professionals familiar with its use.

Thank you for writing.

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Sylvester Stallone, Clark Kent, James Bond and Lois Lane are all listed in the 1992 Brisbane telephone directory — by mistake.

S. Stallone of Rambo Street, C. Kent of Krypton Street, L. Lane of Planet Street and J. Bond of Agent Boulevard are listed as residents of the suburb of Nundah.

Prime Minister Paul Keating, listed at Parliament Street, and former Prime Minister Bob Hawke also are among 20 famous names in the book.

On April 10, 1945, during World War II, American soldiers liberated the notorious Nazi concentration camp Buchenwald in Germany.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SAMSON, THE SON OF MANOAH, OF THE TRIBE OF DAN, IS ONE OF THE JUDGES OF ISRAEL DURING THE PERIOD OF DOMINATION BY THE PHILISTINES, HOLDING THIS OFFICE FOR TWENTY YEARS (JUDGES 13:5). HIS AUTHORITY SEEMS TO HAVE EXTENDED ONLY OVER HIS OWN TRIBE AND HIS ACTION AS A DELIVERER OF ISRAEL FROM THE PHILISTINE BONDAGE DOES NOT GO BEYOND A FEW DESULTORY ATTACKS UPON THE PHILISTINES.

DEDICATED TO THE SERVICE OF GOD AS A NAZARITE BY HIS MOTHER FROM TIME OF BIRTH, SAMSON'S HISTORY SHOWS HIM A FUN-LOVING FELLOW WHOSE LIFE STYLE WAS BOISTEROUS INDULGENCES AMONG THE PHILISTINES, THEMSELVES. HIS MARRIAGE TO A PHILSTINE WOMAN AND LOVE FOR RIDDLES AND PRACTICAL JOKES ONLY LED TO DISASTER FOR HIS WIFE AND HER FAMILY. HIS GREAT STRENGTH SEEMS TO BE THE ONLY THING THAT SAVED HIM ON THE NUMEROUS OCCASIONS WHEN HIS PENCHANT FOR DANGEROUS LIVING GOT HIM INTO TROUBLE. SUCH A MANNER OF LIVING COULD ONLY END DISASTEROUSLY, AS IT DID FOR SAMSON, WHEN, BLINDED AND USED AS A SLAVE BY HIS ENEMIES, HE EXERTED HIS GREAT STRENGTH IN AN ACT OF PERSONAL REVENGE UPON HIS TORMENTORS BY CAUSING THE COLLAPSE OF A TEMPLE IN WHICH THE PHILISTINES WERE FEASTING TO THEIR GOD, DAGON. IT IS NOTED THAT WITH SAMSON'S DEATH THREE THOUSAND PHILISTINES WERE ALSO DESTROYED—BUT ONE WONDERS HOW MUCH MORE SAMSON MIGHT HAVE ACHIEVED IN HIS LIFE HAD HE CONFINED HIS AGILE THINKING AND ENORMOUS STRENGTH TO THE DEDICATED LIFE OF A TRUE NAZARITE INSTEAD OF..."A-WHORING AFTER THE DAUGHTERS OF THE PHILISTINES".
