SMITH SCORES LACK OF LEADERSHIP

Jury Indicts Enid, Okla., Woman For Murder Of Step-Son

ACCUSED TELLS OFFICERS OF CHOKING YOUTH

Youngest Garber School Graduate Victim of Attack

FATHER ALSO IS HELD

Wife's Confession Causes Boy's Kin to Collapse In Jail Cell

ENID, Okla., Sept. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Cleo McLaughlin, 33 years old, former rural mail carrier, was indicted by the Garfield county grand jury here today, for murder in connection with the killing of her stepson, Gene McLaughlin, at her farm home near Enid the night of August 29.

STEPMOTHER ADMITS SLAYING OF BOY

ENID, Okla., Sept. 27 (UP)—Mrs. Cleo McLaughlin, 33, tonight assumed full responsibility for the choking to death of her step-son, Gene McLaughlin, 14, according to officers.

Mrs. McLaughlin, a small woman who carries mail on a rural route, is held in the Garfield county jail. Officers said she had an uncontrollable temper.

In her confession, authorities report, Mrs. McLaughlin admits she struggled with the lad and choked him several times, finally dragging him into a barn where she placed his head over a two-by-four and choked him until he ceased to resist. The boy's neck was broken. He was murdered the night of Aug. 29.

The youth, the youngest graduate last year of the Garber high school, is reported to have inherited a valuable farm near oil fields from his mother who died several weeks ago. His father, also held in jail, but now expected to be released, is in a state of near collapse and broke down tonight when he was told his wife had talked.

20,000 Stricken With Disease in Porto Rico

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP)—Twenty thousand persons in Porto Rico were reported tonight to the American Red Cross to be suffering from influenza, mariaria and typhoid. The report was made in a cablegram from Henry M. Baker, Red Cross disaster relief director on the island.

He added that the Red Cross was caring for 500,000 persons on the hurricane-stricken island.

Negro Student Dies as Colored Normal Burns

HEMPSTEAD, Texas, Sept. 27. (INS)—Fire which today destroyed the hospital at Prairie View normal (colored) five miles south of here, claimed the life of one student and resulted in the injury of 12 others. The students were hurt when they leaped from the second and third story windows.

The flames also destroyed the residence of Dr. J. M. Franklin, college physician.

Cravens May Fight Extradition to Boston

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 27, (UP)—Walter Cravens, former president of the Kansas City Joint Stock Land bank, indicated he will fight extradition to Boston where last month a federal grand jury returned an indictment charging him with use of mails to defraud in the sale of stock.

Hambone's Meditations

Akeley's Widow

Mary L. Jobe Akeley, widow of the explorer-sculptor, Carl Akeley, played a heroic part in the Akeley-Derscheid mission to the Belgian Congo, fulfilling the work after her husband's death. She has returned to Brussels to report on the mission's accomplishments.

CAIN ANDERSON JUDGED GUILTY

Third Trial on Old Charge Results in Verdict

CANTON, Texas, Sept. 27, (AP)—Found guilty of violating Texas' antimask law, Cain Anderson, owner of extensive farm lands in Harrison county, faced an eight-year sentence meted out by a jury in district court here today.

Defense attorneys announced appeal.

Anderson, whose first trial attracted interest, fought for his liberty before three juries. Two were unable to reach a decision.

The East Texas farmer was indicted for the alleged flogging of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Richardson, his tenants, two years ago. The Richardsons testified that four masked men came to their cabin, abducted them by force, and whipped them with a rope in a nearby stretch of timber.

Anderson and his wife and daughter declared that he was asleep at his home when the whipping took place.

'Thrill Killer' Taken From Soft Pen Job

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 27, (UP)—Richard Loeb, who with Nathan Leopold Jr., is serving a life sentence in the Illinois state penitentiary for the "thrill murder" of "Bobby" Franks was relieved of his position in the office of the assistant warden today and given manual labor. From his private cell, Loeb was assigned to the cell block with other prisoners.

W. C. T. U. War Looms Over Al's Endorsement

ENID, Okla., Sept. 27, (UP)—Refusal of the officials of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Oklahoma to recognize the local union of Idabel, Okla., reported to have endorsed the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, is expected to promote a bitter fight in the state convention which opened here today.

Wichita Poloists Lose To Abilene Quartet

ABILENE, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Abilene Polo and Saddle club four defeated Wichita Falls, 17 to 4, in a polo game at the West Texas fair today. Each team has won one game in the present series. Henry Widmer scored nine goals for Abilene in today's contest.

Edison Turns First Earth for Memorial

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27. (US) Thomas A. Edison turned the first spade of earth today at a site in Dearborn near the Ford airport where will be erected a museum commemorating the inventions he has given the world.

BURKBURNETT FAIR DISPLAYS FINE EXHIBITS

Products of Wichita County Farms Shown in First Exposition

TERRAPINS TO RACE

Large Crowds Expected by Officials for Second Day

By FRANK O. HALL
Staff Correspondent

BURKBURNETT, Sept. 27.—Not much more than five years ago persons living in and around Burkburnett paid practically all their attention to oil and nearly lost sight of the value of agriculture and the raising of livestock.

But today a different condition exists and it was evidenced here Thursday when the first annual Burkburnett Community fair opened with high quality agricultural, poultry, rabbits, livestock, textile and canning exhibits.

Housed in tents raised especially for the fair, the exhibits attracted the attention and praise of the visitors on the grounds today. Judges completed their work in the rabbit department and progressed rapidly in selecting the winning entries in the women's textile and canning departments. Judges are scheduled to start work in the other departments Friday morning.

Fair officials expressed themselves late Thursday as being more than pleased with the quantity of exhibits placed in the tents and declared that everything was in readiness to entertain the large crowds expected Friday and Saturday.

Automobile Show

Practically all exhibits were in place by Thursday night, although a few more entires in the livestock department are expected early Friday morning. The tent housing the merchants' booths was not raised until this afternoon but the Burkburnett business men started work immediately on the arrangement of their exhibits.

Another tent was raised this afternoon in which the late automobile models will be shown.

Entertainment was provided for the first day fair visitors by the Byers Brothers' carnival and a water fight in the evening between the Burkburnett, Iowa Park and Electra fire departments.

Much interest is being shown in the two terrapin derbies to be run at 7 o'clock on Friday and Saturday evenings. Officials reported late today that about 25 terrapins were entered and that more are expected before Friday's race.

Mrs. Arch Dawson and Mrs. Mason Wilson, both of Wichita Falls, came here this afternoon to judge the women's exhibits.

Domestic Art

Among the women exhibiting in the domestic art department are: Mrs. H. Hood, Mrs. Paul Friels, Mrs. B. F. Estes, Mrs. N. C. Thompson, Mrs. G. W. Vaughn, Mrs. T. Guy Willis, Mrs. Anna B. Saunders, Mrs. J. G. Simpson, Mrs. J. Schrib, Mrs. R. C. Brittain, Mrs. J. C. Richardson, Miss Mary Lou Harmon, Mrs. J. O. Roberts, Mrs. Haskell Smith, Mrs. R. L. McKown, Mrs. Julia Boyd, Mrs. B. F. Maxwald and Mrs. J. Machalek, all of Burkburnett; Mrs. S. S. Marshall, Eva Swanson, Miss Eva Purcell and Mrs. Claude Foy, all of Electra; Mrs. J. O. Leith, Charlie; Mrs. J. W. Jackson, Devol, Okla.

Among those making entries in the canned fruits and vegetables de-

Liquor 'Ads' Barred By Border Officials

Customs and Postal Authorities On Border Refuse Entry to Mexican Publications

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 27. (AP) — Hundreds of Mexican newspapers were denied entry into the United States here today on orders from customs and postal authorities on the grounds that they violated the law against the circulation of liquor and lottery advertisements in this country.

Though laws against circulation of liquor and lottery advertisements has been in existence for many years the papers have been admitted in the past. Readers say that immediately after passage of the law the papers would arrive with the advertisements obliterated, either cut from pages or obliterated in printing. In the last two years, however, they assert that the papers have been entering the country intact.

Postmaster G. W. Dennett, who announced the move, said it was done on orders from customs authorities. United States Collector of Customs W. A. Neale refused to comment, other than to say, "there is work being done for the United States customs service that is not for publicity."

Mexico City, Tampico and Monterrey papers were most numerous among thoes returned to the publishers. These papers have a heavy circulation here. Papers addressed to subscribers in other cities, coming through the Brownsville postoffice also were returned.

Story of Transportation Told in Auto Dealers' Parade Here Friday

Covered Wagons, "Pre-Highway" Cars and Modern Machines to Roll Along Wichita Falls' Streets in Display

Faltering old autos with wheezy, coughing motors that served faithfully their owners long before paved roadways graced the Texas plains will vie with their shiny, purring sisters of today in a parade to be staged Friday night by Wichita Falls automobile dealers. The parade will be one of the features of the dealers' program which holds the spotlight on the fifth day of Fall Opening and Buyers' week.

The curtain will rise on the auto dealers' show at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon when a contest to determine the oldest automobile in Wichita county will be held at the Parmenter Motor company, 1015 Scott street. Here will be brought many types of cars long since discarded for modern makes and the owner of the oldest car will receive a $25 cash prize. Two prizes of $15 and $10 will be offered for second and third places.

Antiques Warmed Up

In preparation for the contest and parade several antiques were seen on the streets of the city Thursday as owners were limbering up the stiff old motors to be sure they would survive Friday's exertions. Youngsters turned to stare curiously at the decrepit things that moved slowly along in senile disdain of hurrying modernity, but the drivers could well remember the purchase of the contraption caused as much attention as a flock of Rolls Royces would today.

The transition of modes of conveyance since Wichita Falls had its beginning also will be shown graphically in the parade which will present about every type of vehicle except the old stage coach.

The line of march will be headed by a group of Oklahoma Indians on horse back, after which will come the Lions club band, the Electra Boy Scouts in Indian raiment and then the municipal band.

Women Ride in Parade

A group of cowboys led by Tom Burnett will serve as advance guard for a covered wagon drawn

BAPTISTS OPEN BAYLOR DRIVE

District Workers Hear of University Campaign

"We expect to announce approximately $1,000,000 from individual gifts when the Baptist general convention of Texas begins, November 13, as the initial contributions to the greater Baylor university campaign for $2,000,000 in the state," Dr. I. E. Gates declared Thursday afternoon in an adress at the First Baptist church, before delegates from this district.

Seymour Pastor Presides

"If Texas Baptists fail in this campaign, they might as well quit. Big campaigns fill your pulpits and make your churches more active. The bigger your program is, the more progressive your church will be," he declared.

His address climaxed the all-day conference of district workers of the Baylor campaign. The Rev. J. R. Balch of Seymour presided as district chairman.

Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of First Baptist church, acted as chairman in the morning session when G. H. Penland of Waco and Carr P. Collins of Dallas, both prominent business men and active denominational workers, made short talks. H. L. Kokernot of San Antonio, who has already contributed $100,000 to the campaign, and State Chairman D. K. Martin of San Antonio were present.

A conference of all district fourteen workers followed the addresses. Chairmen in this district are Rev. W. E. B. Lockridge of Graham, Rev. P. P. Lewis, Quanah; Rev. M. B. Hayes, Burkburnett; Wesley Harrison, Seymour; Rev. J. N. Hunt, Henrietta. A large group of Wichita Falls Baptists and Baylor alumni were present. First Baptist church women served luncheon to the visitors.

Delegates to Meet

Among delegates who registered are the following: D. K. Martin, H. L. Kokernot and I. E. Gates of San Antonio; Carr P. Collins, Dallas; H. D. Cross, Roy H. Tolleson, G. N. Penland and Miss Blanche Reeves, Waco; Parks P. Lewis, Quanah; C. C. Stone, Electra; Miles B. Hays and Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bingham, Burkburnett; Mrs. J. C. Hamilton, Mrs. Joe Shelton, Mr. and Mrs. R. Pittman, Rev. W. H. Townsend and C. J. Shumake, all of Wichita Falls.

Attendance Record at Lamesa Fair Broken

Special to The Record News

LAMESA, Texas, Sept. 27.—Approximately 10,000 people registered today on the grounds of the Dawson county fair, breaking all records for attendance at this annual event. Twenty communities entered competition for the community booth prizes, first and second places being won by the Key and Ballard communities respectively. Competition in all other events was keen.

Jury No Bills Woman Who Killed Constable

CHICAGO, Sept. 27 (AP)—"I stood it as long as I could—and then I shot him. I'm glad I did it."

These were the words of Mrs. Ada M. Johnson, mother of nine children, who was not indicted today when a grand jury considered the charge against her of killing Dominick Finn, a constable. She is to be released Friday.

Mrs. Finn testified that she worked in a "beer flat" to support her children and submitted to Finn's wishes under threat of betrayal until she felt goaded to kill him.

Texas Operatic Star Thrills German Crowd

DRESDEN, Germany, Sept. 27. (UP)—An American girl—Dreda Aves, daughter of a Texas Clergyman—created a sensation here tonight at her European operatic debut.

Singing Verdi's "Forza Del Destino," Miss Aves won the favor of a fastidious audience which called her back a dozen times after the curtain fell.

Miss Aves' home is in Houston.

Editor and Wife Killed By Passenger Train

'WORK OR JAIL' EDICT IS ISSUED BY CONSTABLE

Officers Declare 'War' on Street Loafers With No Quarter

COTTON FIELDS WAIT

All able bodied men, white or negro, who have no visible means of support, had better get jobs before Monday or stay off the Wichita Falls streets.

This was the edict of Constable Frank Morgan, who Thursday afternoon declared his department, in co-operation with the police, will declare war on loafers Monday.

"These loafers had better get themselves sacks and trek out for the cotton fields," Constable Morgan said, "for we are going to start war Monday morning. Any man found loafing on the streets who hasn't a job is going to be picked up, regardless of who he is."

Cotton planters are actually crying for men to help pick the crop and there isn't the slightest excuse for an able bodied man to be out of a job. I have instructed my five deputies and we are going to begin a check up on all of the loafers the first thing Monday morning.

"There might be times when people cannot find jobs but it isn't true now. There is a cotton-picking job for every man in Wichita Falls who is out of employment and there won't be any excuse heard Monday when the cleanup starts," he said.

Morgan pointed out that some of the downtown streets have too many loafers and too many people who have nothing to do except to "hang around" recreation parlors and stores.

"These have got to go to work or leave town or they will find themselves in jail Monday," he averred.

Appeal Filed in Kansas Election Law Contest

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 27. (UP)—An appeal was filed here today with the supreme court from the decision of the Wyandotte county court which held unconstitutional the Kansas election law, requiring voters who did not participate in the primary election to declare their party affiliations in the November election. A motion to advance the appeal on the court's calendar also was made. The suit is a test case.

Owens Starts Texas G. O. P. Drive in Waco

WACO, Texas, Sept. 27. (AP)—Declaring he is an "American" before he is a "Democrat" former United States Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma launched his Texas campaign for Herbert Hoover in the Cotton Palace here tonight.

"I cannot be browbeaten into voting for a candidate, who if elected would give the government of the United States over to Tammany hall," he shouted.

Rains Maroon Several West Texas Towns

SAN ANGELO, Sept. 27 (AP)—Sections of West Texas practically were marooned today from almost continuous rainfall for the past five days.

At Eden, Concho county, many cars were bogged in the streets, and buses were able to operate on only two of seven routes out of San Angelo. The rain, which totals 3.16 inches since Saturday, also has hampered oil field work.

Flint Mayor Arrested In Election Fraud

FLINT, Mich., Sept. 27 (UP)—William H. McKeighan, mayor of Flint and seven others were arrested late today on conspiracy charges in connection with an investigation of alleged stuffed ballot boxes at the primary election three weeks ago.

Mexican Beauty

Senorita Maria Roman was proclaimed queen of all the Mexican beauties who joined in the celebration of Mexico's national holiday at Wichita, Kan.

SEN. ROBINSON STARTS DRIVE

Vice Presidential Nominee At Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 27. (AP)—Raising the Democratic national standard over Missouri, Senator Robinson tonight opened a three-day drive to win the state's 18 electoral votes and at the same time fired the first gun on one of the most extensive campaign tours ever undertaken by a vice presidential candidate in the west.

While advised here, as on his southern trip, that religion was an issue that must be met, the senator began his appeal to the west with an extensive review of Governor Smith's record on legislation affecting women and children. He argued that it excelled that of "any other living statesman."

Speaking in the same hall where Senator Charles Curtis, his rival for the vice presidency, preached a Republican doctrine last night, Robinson said that as governor of New York Smith had "taken the lead in securing legislative and administrative reforms of benefit to them."

"A desperate effort is being made to induce women voters," he declared, "to oppose the Democratic nominee on the theory that the Republican candidate, Mr. Hoover has in many cases supported causes in which women are known to be concerned, and that Governor Smith has never been identified with measures in which women are particularly interested.

"The correctness of this conclusion is challenged. Quite the contrary is true. An examination of the record disclosed that Governor Smith has taken the lead."

'Sex Discrimination' in Barber Laws Revealed

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 27. (UP)—"Sex discrimination" exists in the barber laws of Nebraska, it was learned today as Omer Baker, cosmetologist of Omaha, was fined $5 for violating the law which permits a women beauty parlor operator to cut the hair of women and children without a barber's license, but which provides that a male operator must be licensed.

Priest Reveals Russian Expenditures in China

ROME, Sept. 27. (US) — Soviet Russia has expended in China more than $250,000,000 in fomenting revolution and furthering the program of Moscow, according to a book soon to be published by Father Gromaldi, Jesuit priest under the title, "The Ways of the Chinese Regeneration."

Negro Bandit Loots Omaha Loan Association

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 27. (UP)—The Metropolitan Savings and Loan association was held up here today by a lone, unmasked negro bandit who escaped with $1,500 in cash.

ST. PAUL HEARS AL SMITH IN HIS FIFTH SPEECH

Campaign Talk Deals in Farm Problem and Water Ways

SLAPS G. O. P. EVASION

'Fundamental Weakness' of Administration Called Inaction

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 27. (UP)—Howling, cheering Minnesotans nearly raised the roof of the municipal auditorium here tonight for Gov. Alfred E. Smith and his brown derby.

The crowd, estimated at between 12,000 and 15,000, jumped to its feet from every nook and corner of the building when he appeared for his fifth campaign speech and roared a thunderous welcome.

After four minutes of cheering, the Democratic candidate stepped behind the microphone and raised his hand. Then the band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner" and the crowd rose to its feet, and its enthusiasm vented itself by singing the national anthem lustily.

The crowd went wild again when Smith was introduced finally for his speech by Mayor L. C. Hodgson of St. Paul, who presented him as "the next president of the United States."

Smith was his characteristic self tonight, apparently drawn out by the enthusiasm of the huge crowd he faced.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 27. (AP)—In another assault on his Republican opposition, Governor Smith tonight held the "fundamental weakness" of the Harding and Coolidge administrations has been lack of leadership.

The Democratic presidential nominee touched on the farm problem, again assailing Republicans for failure to work out an effective relief program, and declared there was a whispering campaign to misrepresent his stand on inland waterway development and immigration.

In a speech prepared for delivery in the St. Poul auditorium, after spending much of the day in Minneapolis, Smith recalled that as governor of New York he had favored, like his Republican predecessor, the so-called all-American route through the state for a waterway between the Great Lakes and the sea. He reiterated, however, readiness, expressed in his acceptance speech, to be guided by the finding of engineering experts as between this route and the proposed St. Lawrence river waterway.

No Immigration Issue

As for immigration, the Democrat declared "there is no issue between either the parties or the candidates on the question of sustaining and keeping in full force and effect the restricting features of the present immigration laws."

"Where they are to be amended for the relief of hardship," he said, "we are in accord."

As in his speech last week in Omaha, Governor Smith endorsed the principle of the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill, and contended that "if there was any division of opinion in the United States with regard to the policy of putting agriculture on an economic equality with industry, it was the duty of the president to iron out that difficulty."

"The congress, speaking for all the people, offered a program," he said. "The president vetoed it, and offered nothing in its place."

Charges Inactivity

Smith accused Republicans of doing little or nothing in recent years in the way of comprehensive inland waterway development, and of being niggardly in making appropriations for such work and flood control.

He insisted Republican party platforms in recent years had failed to come out for development of one lake to the Atlantic route in preference to the other, and quoting Hoover's acceptance speech, contended his opponent also had

Moody Again Grants Time to Silver But Refuses Respite for Negroes

AUSTIN, Sept. 27. (AP)—The fate of J. R. "Bob" Silver, whose electrocution was set for early Friday, again was placed in the hands of the court of criminal appeals today when Governor Moody granted him a reprieve until Oct. 26.

Silver, sentenced to death in the holdup and slaying of Roscoe Wilson, Fort Worth theater cashier, early in 1927, was given a third respite that the court of criminal appeals, now on vacation, under statute might take action on a second motion for rehearing offered the court after the recess began.

The governor declined to intervene in the electrocution early Friday of Tom Ross and O. T. Alexander, negroes.

Governor Moody said that the appeals court had at times acted favorably on second motions for rehearing and he believed Silver entitled to have his motion passed on by the court.

The executive said that the record in the Silver case was the account of a "deliberately planned and cruelly executed crime."

Wichita Safety Council Approves Elaborate Fire Prevention Program

Many elaborate and unique features will be incorporated in the Wichita Falls observance of National Fire Prevention week, Oct. 7-13, according to plans outlined before the Wichita Falls Safety council Thursday night by James M. Williams, chairman of a special committee. The group's preliminary plans were endorsed by the safety council and a number of sub-committees to work out various details were named.

While methods of former years in teaching fire prevention will be carried out through schools, churches and luncheon clubs, Mr. Williams said his committee has arranged a program covering a wide scope. Fire drills will be held in all of the schools, with talks on fire prevention, and the week's activities will reach their culmination in a gigantic fire prevention parade to be staged on the streets on the morning of the last day.

At the hour of 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, Oct. 13, whistles

COURT DENIES GIRL LIBERTY

Inmate of Institution Rejects Operation

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 27. (UP)—Unless Eva Fisher, 22, of Detroit, submits to an operation for sterilization, she will not be released from an institute for feeble-minded to be married, it was ruled today when the circuit court of Lapeer county refused to grant her writ of habeas corpus.

Miss Fisher is an attractive girl, but attaches of the state institution declare she has the mind of an eight-year-old child.

Her fiance, whom she declared would not marry her in event she submitted to the operation, is a man admittedly an alcoholic addict, who promised, however, to reform, according to W. J. Kay, superintendent of the state home for feeble-minded.

Miss Fisher, prior to her admission to the institution gave birth to two illegitimate children, one at the age of 14 years, and the second a little more than a year later. Both died.

After her parole from the institution Kay learned that Miss Fisher was allowed to associate with men, and ordered her returned, he indicated. She then asked for a release that she might be married.

Kay agreed to release her for this purpose, provided she submitted to the operation which she declined to do because her prospective husband said he would not marry her under those circumstances.

In refusing Miss Fisher her liberty, the state concluded that society should be protected against children from the feeble-minded, and the law exists authorizing the state to perform sterilization operations upon such people, both male and female with the consent and at the judgment of the patient. Institutions for feeble-minded are empowered to hold patients who refuse to submit to operations, but may not force the sterilization act upon them.

Students' Drinking To Be Investigated

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 27. (UP)—Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the University of Michigan, today suggested to Dean Joseph A. Bursley that alumni, under graduates and faculty members unite to determine "correctness or incorrectness of student liquor drinking."

In a letter to Dean Bursley, the university head stated he believed all elements of the campus should join in asking federal authorities that one or more dry agents be stationed here.

Community Incubator Installed by Farmers

PORT NECHES, Texas, Sept. 27. (AP)—A group of 40 farmers in this section known as the "Port Neches Farm Council" has installed a community incubator with a capacity of 5,000 eggs, which it has been decided to double. Through cooperation of the farmers Port Neches has climbed to the position of the outstanding poultry producing section of the county.

THOUGHTLESS ERA

Columbia Prof Deplores Age of Standardized Joy

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—America is suffering from too much standardized joy, declared Prof. Daniel Gregory Mason today at the opening of the 175th year of Columbia university.

The age of the machine has brought us much leisure, and will bring us more—but we do not know what to do with it, the savant avowed. He went on:

"The fatigue-poisoned mind and body, too dull to enjoy quiet beauty and true thought, crave the crude excitements so abused among us; restless speeding in motor cars from nowhere to nowhere; superlatives and exaggerations in talk; the artificial stimulants and feverish pumped-up gaiety of the 'wild party'; over-accented music.

"The jazz age, in a word is a jaded and joyless age, incapable of the happy serenity of creative leisure."

Alien Smuggling Ring Suspicioned

MONTREAL, Sept. 27. (UP)—An organized ring for smuggling aliens into the United States from Canada is operating in Montreal, in the opinion of shipping federation officials here.

During the past week, 10 men deserted from one Jugoslavian ship in Montreal, and previous to this 14 deserted from another. Desertions have occurred from Italian and Greek ships also and the men have disappeared without leaving a trace.

Stowaways also have been coming here in large numbers. On the arrival of an Italian ship at Genoa Tuesday, the authorities there inquired into the case of four men, stowaways from Italy, who were gassed here when the ship was fumigated. Inquiries elicited the fact that members of the crew of the ship were implicated in the attempt to smuggle the men into Canada.

Turkish Court Upholds American Teacher's Fine

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 27 (UP)—The court at Broussa confirmed yesterday its previous decision imposing one day in prison and $1 fine on Miss Jennie Jilson, American teacher convicted of spreading religious propaganda. Miss Jilson then appealed anew to the Turkish supreme court. Miss Lucile Day and Miss Edith Sanderson, who were convicted originally with Miss Jilson, have left Turkey.

Rains Delay Texas and Louisiana Rice Crops

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 27. (AP)—Heavy rains over the rice area from Crowley, La., to Eagle Lake, Texas, will make the crop a week or more late in being harvested, leaders of the industry here say.

Practically all the crop has been cut and threshing has been under way for several weeks. Dampness has already caused thousands of bags to be sold at a price lower than would have prevailed otherwise.

FRENCH PASS AVIATION PLAN

Air Minister Wins Heated Fight

PARIS, Sept. 27. (UP)—Stung by public criticism of her aviation management, France today took her first step toward a position as leader of Europe in military and commercial aviation with the acceptance of Minister Laurent Eynac's program.

After a three-hour debate which grew so heated that it threatened to break up the cabinet, the aviation minister forced through his plan to supersede all ministers in air matters.

He secured approval of an extra 65,000,000 francs for experiments in testing new types of planes next year, with an additional promise of 80,000,000 in 1930.

The cabinet battle gave the nation a thrill equal to that it experienced when Premier Raymond Poincare formed his national union government. M. Eynac found three ministers opposing his desire for authority in all financial and technical aviation affairs. They disapproved of giving him full power because he is one of the youngest men who ever held a cabinet post.

M. Eynac, however, was determined to grasp full control or resign and opposition to his plan faded as President Doumergue, M Poincare and Sarraut were won over. Then Aristide Briand and Tardieu lent their support and M Eynac's victory was complete.

The air minister's experts personally will direct tests of new planes and motors and it is understood that he immediately will make changes in the navy's hydroplane service and in certain public air services.

M. Eynac tonight said he would develop a three years working plan to make French air commerce a leader of Europe. He intends to support the inauguration of regular services to Syria, Indo-China and Madagascar and to develop lines to South America and eventually to the United States if the proposed scheme for "floating island" stations materializes.

Early Settlement of Textile Strike Seen

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 27. (UP)—Hope for an early settlement of the more than five months strike of 28,000 textile workers was seen today in the acceptance of the compromise wage reduction of 5 per cent, in place of the 10 per cent reductions which caused the strike, by the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers association. The textile council, representing the workers, have the proposal under consideration.

Sells Given Post on Anti-Smith 'Committee'

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27. (AP)—Cato Sells, Fort Worth, Texas, "Hoover Democrat," has been appointed a member of the executive committee of the "national Democratic constitutional committee," M. D. Lightfoot, chairman, announced today in taking a few thrusts at Governor Smith.

Gil to Assume Leadership of Mexico Backed by Renewed Faith of People

Selection of Provisional President Seen as Deliberate Choice of Most Competent Executive

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS JR.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 27. (US)—Steadfastly and in the face of all sorts of obstacles, Mexico seems to be quickening by virtue of that faith in her future which inspired the farewell address of President Calles to congress a month ago. It was the same faith which formed the burden of Ambassador Morrow's stirring appeal to the American Chamber of Commerce here shortly after the assassination of President-elect Obregon last July. President Calles in his address asked the outside world to share with him his faith in his people.

Through the troubled waters that came in the wake of that indefensible crime President Calles has steered his ship of state with a firmness and skill and statesmanship that marks him as a "pilot who weathered the storm."

The latest evidence of this is the deliberation with which congress has labored to find the best man suited to the difficult and delicate tasks that confront the provisional presidency, and the unanimity with which their final conclusion was reached.

Gil Fits Office

In Emilio Portes Gil, Mexico elevates to the presidency next Dec 1, the right arm of the Calles administration—a man of incorruptible honesty and proven integrity who will bring into his exalted office a thorough legal training, an extensive experience in public administration, and a talent for leadership which has been tested on more than one occasion.

It is no reflection, however, on his manifold qualifications for his new duties to say that he owes both his election and its unanimity to his long unbroken record of unswerving loyalty to his chief and intimate personal friend, the retiring president.

But for his own indomitable will to the contrary, the army, the state governors and the Mexican congress would have prevailed upon President Calles to continue in office until an election could be called constitutionally. Failing to shake his determination to retire at the end of his term, all branches of the Mexican government after months of counsel, united upon Portes Gil as the leader best qualified not only to administer the ad interim government but to lead the country in preparing for a national campaign in which will be elected a new president for a term of six years.

May Keep Cabinet

The probability is that Portes Gil will soon suit his action to the word of his public statement following his election, by inviting the Calles cabinet to continue in power until the new election. With the exception of Luis Montes de Oca, minister of finance, the invitation will probably be accepted. His retirement will be due, if it occurs, entirely to personal reasons. He has been a hard worker who has achieved much, is tired out and in need of a vacation and apparently intends to take it.

It is safe to say that Portes Gil will do his best to find a successor to the financial minister who will carry forward the program which has distinguished Montes de Oca's contribution to the Calles administration.

In Mexico's provisional president, the next president of the United States will find a fellow executive ready and willing, and also entirely competent, to maintain and strengthen the relations established within the last year between Mexico and the United States by the joint efforts of President Calles and Ambassador Morrow. That relationship is based upon a mutual respect for the sovereign rights of their respective countries. It has been fortified by the frank respect of two strong men for one another and by their patient search for justice in the face of common problems.

Calles Acts as Guide

Whether President Calles accepts a seat in the cabinet of Portes Gil or, as seems more probable, devotes his efforts during the year ahead to the organization of a truly national party to translate into actuality the cherished aims of the revolution by increasingly feasible applications of its fundamental principles, it is generally admitted here that he will back to the limit of his extraordinary influence, President Portes Gil and his administration.

Such is the grip of the retiring president upon the respect of his countrymen that in or out of office he gives every promise of remaining for some time to come the guide, philosopher and friend of the Mexican family which fought and won the revolutions of 1910 and 1917. That family under the leadership of General Obregon, and later under President Calles, appears firmly resolved to lead Mexico forward along the path blazed by the revolution toward a fuller life and a happiness in which the whole household of the Mexican nation shall have a share.

BELLEVUE, Texas, Sept. 27—The first meeting of the Bellevue P.-T. A. was held at the school building Tuesday afternoon with a good crowd and fine interest prevailing for this year's work. The association has planned to buy a new piano for the school auditorium.

The following are the officers for this year: Mr. G. Z. Wright, president; Mrs. Joe Johnson, vice-president; Mrs. L. B. Moore, second vice-president; Mrs. E. W. Cox, third vice-president; Mrs. L. P. Hodge, fourth vice-president; Mrs. C. J. Sherill, secretary-treasurer.

Ship Loses Way in Fog; Goes Aground

ABERDEEN, Wash., Sept. 27. (INS)—Thrown off her course in a heavy fog while making her way towards Gray's Harbor entrance, the Japanese steamer Rozan Maru, inbound from Milke, grounded today on the Westport beach about three miles south of the harbor entrance.

The steamer is reported to be in no danger of breaking up, although reported lying in less than five feet of water at low tide. Three tugs are standing by and will make an attempt to pull her from the sands.

FLYING CAUSE OF DEAFNESS

Human Race Must Alter to Fit Conditions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (UP)—If flying becomes as popular as motoring—and it is not without the realm of possibility that some day it may—what will be the physical reaction on the human race?

Close watch has been kept on members of the army air corps by flight surgeons, their physical reactions noted and two serious ailments have been found.

Lieut. Col. Levy M. Hathaway, chief flight surgeon on the staff of the chief of army air corps, expressed belief that man's physique and personality will eventually undergo drastic alterations.

As a result of more than 10 years study, Colonel Hathaway has reached the conclusion that eyes and ears are the first to fail under conditions imposed by flying. Other physical defects have been noted but the chief flight surgeon believes it is too soon to determine permanent results of continuous flying on other organs of the human body.

"Man is primarily a ground animal," he told the United Press, "adapted by nature to fairly low altitudes and to slow speeds, man was not primarily fashioned to fly.

Contrary to the popular belief, flying and stunting does not cure deafness, Colonel Hathaway said, but on the other hand causes it.

The necessity for accurate vision in flying produces eye strain and unbalanced eye muscles, the flight surgeon stated.

"Many of the present day effects of flying are temporary," he said, "but cumulative results of long continued flying appear likely to leave permanent traces on the human body."

Colonel Hathaway also has noted a high degree of neurosis, or nerve affection, among aviators.

"After we have flown for as many years as we have walked the earth we may expect to develop greater powers of resistance and aptitude to flying," he said. "Until that time comes we may expect to encounter the effects of flying in weakened eyes, deafness, neurosis or organic changes.

"No one can say what popular aviation will cost in health and longevity."

'RUSHING' STUDIED

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 27. (UP)—Revised "rushing rules" for fraternities of the University of Oklahoma are being studied by an interfraternity committee following establishment of "freshman week" beginning three days before rush.

GOSSIP

Women to Chat About Politics on Air at Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (US)—Gossip of women is being capitalized and made one of the by-products of modern civilization, it was revealed today.

An announcement issued by a local political headquarters said:

"A period of political gossip for women will go on the air for the benefit of early morning listeners tomorrow. Every Monday and Wednesday morning three women will gather together before a microphone and discuss the political situation."

Cadman Sought As 'Radio' Pastor

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (UP)—Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America has been offered the position of "radio pastor" by the National Broadcasting company, it was announced today.

The plan, as announced by officials of the radio organization, is to establish a "church hour" from 4 to 5:30 p. m. each Sunday afternoon, at which time Dr. Cadman will preach.

Dr. Cadman's "radio congregation" would approximate 30,000,000 each Sunday, it was estimated, if one out of every five radio owners tuned their instrument on that program.

HOOVER TALK BANS MAGAZINE

Kansas City Schools Oust Red Cross Organ

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 27. (AP)—George Melcher, superintendent of Kansas City public schools, today banned the September issue of the Junior Red Cross News from circulation in Kansas City schools. He said he deems this advisable because of a quotation from Herbert Hoover contained in the issue, which he said appeared to inject politics into the public schools.

The quotation was from a message of the Republican presidential candidate to the national convention here after his nomination.

The issue recently was suppressed in New York by school authorities.

AL'S PRO STAND LURES JERSEY

Candidate May Win State Is Claim

Editor's Note: Following is the third of a series of articles by Raymond Clapper, one of the foremost political writers in the national capital, who is making a nation-wide survey of political trends and is presenting his findings in a strictly unprejudiced manner. Clapper's trip will take him to all the important campaign fronts of the country.

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 27. (UP)—Uphill fighting is ahead of Governor Smith in New Jersey, but his managers hope his opposition to prohibition will carry him through.

As the first wet candidate since federal prohibition became effective, Governor Smith would be assumed to have a favorable chance in a state whose wet tendencies are so strong that the popular campaign promise of state candidates in the past has been that they would make New Jersey as wet as the Atlantic ocean. New Jersey's two senators in Washington, Edwards, Democrat, and Edge, Republican, always try to outdo each other in denouncing prohibition.

Democrats do well in New Jersey. They usually manage to have at least one United States senator, and much of the time they have the governorship and many lesser state offices.

Partial to G. O. P.

But the state seems strongly partial to Republican presidents. Wilson is the only Democrat who has carried the state since Cleveland. Harding got a majority of 353,000. Coolidge had a majority of 270,000 over the combined Davis and La-Follette vote.

Most observers agree that Smith will, if he does not carry the state, come nearer to doing it than any other Democratic candidate in this generation except Wilson. Smith is well known in the state. He is a frequent visitor. The northern Jerseyites understand him. They talk like him, and think like him.

Because of the stand of Hoover on prohibition the Republican state ticket is unable to do much except avoid the subject. State candidates do not feel it safe to take issue with Hoover on prohibition and they feel it even less safe to talk dry very much. The result is they are talking tariff and prosperity.

Women Are Active

Republican women are putting on a remarkable campaign under the direction of Mrs. Reginald Baker, Republican national committee woman, a practical and competent organizer who pays no attention to the speaking bally hoo, but is counting on intensive organization.

Democrats are working hard although their campaign organization has not been expanded to the degree of the Republican machine. Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, the Democratic leader of the state and vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, is having his troubles with the Case legislative committee investigating charges of graft, payroll padding and voting irregularities in Hague's Hudson county organization.

However, the Democrats have a strong candidate for governor, William L. Dill, commissioner of motor vehicles, who is highly regarded even among Republicans.

The Republican candidate for Governor, Morgan F. Larson, has been compelled to deny rumors that he made a deal with Mayor Hague. He made a speech which some Republicans felt was too gentle toward the Hudson county Democratic leader and he is now emphatically denying he made any deal with the Democrats.

Aggression Planned

At a meeting of Republican state leaders recently it was decided that Larson and others on the ticket should make a more aggressive fight and from now on they are going after Hague. Because of Hague's intimate association with Governor Smith this fight may have some effect on the national ticket also.

The senatorial fight between Senator Edwards, Democrat, and Hamilton F. Kean, Republican nominee, has not become active yet.

Hoover's labor speech here created little excitement, but the opportunity his visit afforded for all Republican factions to get together was beneficial to the organization. Republicans are highly confident that Hoover will win New Jersey's 14 electoral votes.

Governor Smith, however, intends to speak here at the end of the campaign and may succeed in overturning the heavy majority which New Jersey has been giving Republican presidential candidates lately.

Aged Nun Sees Strange Sights on First Auto Trip Into Modern World

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27. (UP)—"Out in the world" for the first time in 50 years, Mother Aloysius of the Carmelite sisters, an order of Catholic nuns, saw many new and strange sights when she took her first and probably her last automobile ride through the streets of St. Louis.

Since 1878 she had been cloistered behind the high walls of the old convent of her order here and the purpose of her trip was the transfer to a new convent on the outskirts of the city.

William McKenna, a young Catholic student, who drove the automobile in which Mother Aloysius rode, today described the nun's observations during her ride in a modern vehicle, the first time she ever had seen this mode of transportation.

"What kind of a wagon is that?" McKenna said the aged nun asked when a huge, double-decked bus went by.

"She thought I was going at terrific speed, although I never exceeded 15 miles an hour. She wanted to know why all the people were in such a hurry, and why the machines were going in so many different directions.

Baffled by Golf

"When we got to Forest park, she exclaimed at the beauty of it, and when we passed the golf links she wanted to know what the men and women were doing with those clubs with which they were hitting the ground.

"When we reached the new convent, Mother Aloysius seemed very happy and relieved."

With the exception of visitors to the convent in search of spiritual aid, no other appreciable contact with the outside world can be had by any of the sisters after they enter the order. All of the nuns must devote eight hours daily to prayers for humanity.

Rules of the convent provide that the sisters spend their lives within the walls, do their own cooking make their own clothing and do their own housework. Their vows included a life of strict self denial.

Mother Rose, another member of the Carmelite order, who had been in the old convent for 33 years, recently was delegated to leave its confines to arrange for the new convent.

Afraid of Buildings

"On my first trip out," she said, "I thought the tall buildings would topple over on me. I never dreamed of such a change in 33 years.

"The city was so quiet when I entered the convent. Now it is so noisy. I kept looking for horses on the streets and finally I saw one, but he didn't seem a bit afraid of the machines. I thought we would have a wreck any minute."

Sister Veronica, who had been in the convent 23 years and made the trip with Mother Aloysius, said:

"I never recognized a single street in the city on my trip out here. I noticed that the houses and lawns are better kept than they used to be. I suppose that is because the rents are higher."

From the upper windows of the old Carmelite convent here, the nuns could see only a small portion of the city. Occasionally they would catch sight of an airplane but a high wall hid the streets.

The new convent with its high walls and rural location will deprive the secluded nuns even more of a worldly view.

But all seem contented and relieved when they entered the new building to spend the rest of their days in prayer. Their last trip to the "world" was at an end.

HOW OLD?

Man Is as Old as His Glands, Scientist Claims

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (US)—A man is as old as he feels?

No. A man is as old as his glands and just as a storage battery may be recharged and maintained at a high rate of efficiency, so can a man's body be charged with new vigor.

This was set forth by Dr. A. J. Molyneux, Jersey City, here today at the fifth annual convention of the American Electronic Research association.

Baltimore Methodists Vote to Ban Politics

STAUNTON, Va., Sept. 27. (AP)—A resolution declaring it "wise and expedient to exclude" from the pulpits discussion of phases of the present political campaign that "might commit the church to a party political issue" was adopted today by the Baltimore Methodist conference.

Girl Tells Court of Slaying of Mother

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 27. (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Sofia Nogueria swore before a district court jury today that she saw Juan Aguilar kill her mother with a pistol in the kitchen of the woman's home on Christmas day, 1925. Aguilar also is charged with shooting down Anacleto Vasquez, whom, the state claims, was in the front of the Nogueria home and threatened to tell the authorities of the woman's slaying.

INDIANS GREET CHARLIE CURTIS

Oil Wealthy Reds Turn Out For Reception

MIAMI, Okla., Sept. 27. (UP)—The oil wealthy Indians of Oklahoma gave Senator Charles Curtis, Republican nominee for vice president, a lavish welcome into their state today.

The southern tribes that once occupied the entire state claim Curtis, himself part Kaw Indian, as one of their own sons. They insisted upon paying the cost of his welcome and spared no expense in making the arrangements.

Knowing that Curtis' voice has been over-taxed by out of door speaking but having no large halls they built a glass cage at the Miami fair grounds and equipped it with amplifiers to carry his voice to the grandstand. The speaking enclosure rested upon the back of a large pasteboard elephant, also built for the occasion. Two bands and an improvised cannon provided incidental music and noise.

More than 3,000 white persons from Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas as well as representatives of five Indian nations heard Curtis' speech.

Curtis was introduced by A. Scott Thompson, who seconded his nomination for president at the Kansas City convention.

The Kansan advised his Indian hosts to make the most of their educational opportunity and their citizenship.

Speaking for the benefit of his white audience, Curtis assailed Gov. Alfred E. Smith's proposals for prohibition modification and immigration law reform. "He would throw our gates open to foreign immigrants, despite the wishes of his own party and of the American people," Curtis said.

He also reiterated the farm relief and higher tariff promises made last night at Springfield, Mo.

Curtis and his party were brought here from Afton, where their special car waited, by automobile.

The senator will speak later today at Tulsa and Okmulgee.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Sept. 27. (AP)—Investigation is being made into the identity of the body of a white man with three bullet holes in the back of his head, which recently was found at Wapsuk on the Coco river.

Sex Appeal Lures Missouri Gridsters

But Co-Eds Deny They're Bunch of Grafters

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 27. (UP)—University of Missouri co-eds lost what shyness they might have had and tonight indignantly refuted charges of Chester L. Brewer, director of athletics, that the modern co-ed has degenerated into a class of grafters, and, worse, is taking the mind of husky men off of athletics.

Moreover, Brewer charged, the girls have lost their institutional spirit; don't show interest in intercollegiate athletics; fail to buy tickets for the games; refuse not only to go to athletic games without a date, but have placed all the rest of their activities on the same basis and the poor college man foots the bill and pays and pays.

"I cannot understand why the girls should be blamed," Mary Louise Bright, a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority, said. "The men are certainly under no obligation to give us any of their time. Why doesn't Mr. Brewer select athletes who have stronger wills?"

Mr. Brewer, unfortunately, is not in Columbia tonight to answer Miss Bright's question, but "Big" George Flamank, captain of last year's football team and freshman coach this year, came to the defense of his husky mates who are in danger of being lured from the gridiron by demure co-eds.

"If a man wants to devote his entire time to athletics, he certainly may do so without fear of being annoyed by university co-eds," "Big" George said. "The question of dating girls is a matter that is entirely up to the individual man. It is true that some of the football men do give too much of their time to social activities but they are the exception rather than the rule."

The high price of football games was blamed by Miss Mary Ellen Hubbard, president of the women's student government association, for the charge of grafters being hurled at them. Without check appeal, they must resort to sex appeal.

"Maybe we have degenerated into a group of grafters—or gold diggers, as Mr. Brewer probably meant—but 10 years ago the admittance price to a football game was $1. Now it is from $3 to $5."

Despite Brewer's campaign to make the campus safe for his athletes, sorority women predicted tonight they won't spend every week-end alone during this school year.

ROSE EPIMEDIC

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 27 (AP)—Beaumont is in the midst of a long-stemmed rose epidemic. No sooner had a flower with a seven-foot stem been placed on display than Mrs. C. Wagner came forward with a large red rose with a stem eight feet and one inch long.

P.-T.A. MEETS AT IOWA PARK

158 Attend the Opening Session

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Sept. 27.—Breaking all former records of attendance and accompanied by enthusiastic support from the superintendent, teachers and patrons of the public schools, the Iowa Park Parent-Teacher association held the first meeting of the year at the W. F. George high school building yesterday afternoon with an attendance of 158. Every teacher in the school with the exception of one was present, school having dismissed at 3 o'clock in order that they go to the meeting.

The new president, Mrs. R. R. Brubaker, took her place, and a program of songs and readings was given by the second grade pupils under the direction of Mrs. Alice Palm.

Reports Heard

Reports were heard from the three vice presidents. Mrs. S. B. Reaves, the first vice president, also chairman of the program committee, announced that the year's program would include a course of study, as well as a continuation of the children's program. Mrs. Reaves' assistants during the year will be Mrs. A. C. Golden, Mrs. J. A. Bevill and LeRoy McClendon, principal of the high school.

Mrs. J. C. Murphree, the second vice president and chairman of the membership committee, named as her assistant Mrs. R. B. Sisk. She also announced the names of the sponsors who will be responsible for obtaining the attendance of the mothers of the children in each grade. They are: First grade, Mrs. Noel Troutman, Mrs. G. C. Richards and Mrs. R. C. Acuff; second grade, Mrs. Reaves Overby and Mrs. S. R. Nobles; third grade, Mrs. Gayle Lowrance and Mrs. Grady Wigley; fourth grade, Mrs. L. L. Bain and Mrs. Claude Reaves; fifth grade, Mrs. O. M. Jones and Mrs. L. A. Teal; sixth grade, Mrs. John Tidwell and Mrs. G. C. Peveler; seventh grade, Mrs. C. L. Whigham and Mrs. M. J. Financial Report

Mrs. M. L. Hines, third vice president and chairman of the ways and means committee, will be assisted by Mrs. B. L. Turner and Mrs. Gayle Lowrance. Mrs. Hines report of the financial condition of the P.-T. A. showed the year started off with a neat sum in the treasury.

An announcement of the lyceum numbers to be given at the school during the year was given by J. C. Murphree. Mr. Murphree stated that the season tickets would be $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children, the prices being set so low in order that everyone will be able to take advantage of the opportunity to see the entire course.

R. E. Brewster, superintendent of the schools, addressed the meeting for a short time. He emphasized the need of an educated constituency for the school, saying that the modern superintendent wants the parents to know that his school is doing, and that it is largely through the P.-T. A. that they become acquainted with this work. He also called attention to a poster hung in a conspicuous place which emphasized the responsibility of the home, church and school in the development of the character of the child, and the need of co-operation between the three.

The senior room won the honors for having a 100 per cent room in membership.

After the meeting closed a large number gave their names for membership, and later the secretary, Mrs. John B. Barbour, stated that the P.-T. A. had enrolled 151 paid members.

Two African Cranes Added to Zoo Here

Two African Crown cranes, worth $250, were received Thursday by the Wichita Falls municipal zoo from an unknown giver, it was announced Thursday night by C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks.

The birds are among the most beautiful of all the feathered kind, Mr. Bunnenberg said. The birds were shipped to Wichita Falls from the Horn Zoological gardens at Independence, Mo.

CHIC CHERI — Latest Fashions

Cherie's hotel is one of those places with a radio in every room and Cherie has just had the pleasure of hearing herself announced as missing. A slight shock! Not, she hopes, enough of a one to hurt her complexion, which must be in good condition to show off this black transparent velvet evening gown to advantage.

Because the whiter the shock makes her skin look, of course, the better the black gown will look. On the other hand her lips must be red—something can be done about that. Cherie would never let an emotion ruin the effect of this black wrap made of 10 flat tiers of velvet on chiffon and trimmed with white fur.

Cherie says "When in doubt buy black velvet."

Where our wandering girl is tonight is still a mystery because she forgot to put her present address on the telegram you saw her sending in the last sketch. But she is somewhere beside the police station or the morgue. That's enough for the moment. And since we knew it all the time, why not transfer our interest to these evening gowns, which are worth it? Sue's (left) is velvet with its dipping skirt line with taffeta and a bow of velvet and taffeta at the waist in front. Dina's is violet and purple chiffon with the lighter shade used for the narrow yoke and flounced skirt. Emily's is black velvet, again, with braided straps of silver.

Last of Houston's 'Saengerbund' Dies

HOUSTON, Sept. 27. (UP) — A voice that has sung for 47 years sang no more today. Carl Suhm, 82, was dead.

Forty-seven years ago Carl Suhm and 15 other young men gathered, sang the songs of their German fatherland and banded themselves together in the Houston Saengerbund.

One by one as the years flew by the voices sang no more. One by one as the comrades were laid away, Carl Suhm stood beside their biers and sang a song of farewell and hope for life eternal.

But none of the comrades will stand beside the bier of Carl Suhm and bid him goodbye in song. He was the last of the 16 and he died last night at his home here.

Pay Roll Reduced In Two Departments

The coming of winter has made possible the saving of still more money in the cost of departmental operation of the city of Wichita Falls, it was learned from George D. Fairtrace, city manager, Thursday.

Five employes of the park department, and one employe of the water department, all outside workers, have been released until next April, the announcement said. Their combined salaries amount to slightly more than $4,000 for this period.

AFTERNOON TEA SIMPLE AFFAIR

Leisure Hour Event Gaining Popularity

By IDA M. CHITWOOD
Noted Culinary Expert

For the woman without a maid no form of entertaining is more practical than the gathering together of two or three choice friends over a cup of tea. It involves no wear and tear of preparation. She can express her very innermost yearnings of daintiness, and it comes at the most leisurely hour of the day.

Everywhere afternoon tea is wedging into popularity—with hot tea served in the winter and iced beverages in the summer. It calls for the simplest accompanying dainties if you invite only two or three friends, and if you have no maid, you won't attempt more than eight or ten guests, even in your most expansive mood. For such an occasion you will press a close friend into service to help you with the passing and replenishing of the tea cups.

The more intimate and individual an afternoon tea, the more delightful it is. Mrs. Armington, who is one-fourth American and three-fourths English, always brings her pot of tea from the kitchen with the tea all brewed—a special blend of her own, by the way—and serves with it nothing but the crispest, thinnest pieces of buttered toast and delicious home made jam. Everything is so perfect that no one would ever think of wanting anything else, which is as well, since it is all she ever serves. Needless to say she rarely invites more than four guests at once, for the very first mandate of tea is that a guest shall have a real chance to chat with her hostess.

Everything that one has for tea, unless it is toast, usually may be prepared ahead so that there is no need of flutter. Ordinarily it seems simpler to bring the hot water in from the kitchen and coax it to a final boil in an alcohol or electric kettle. If you have inherited or been presented with a silver service, you are fortunate, but a samover or copper kettle serves splendidly. You have out of course your most delicate cups and saucers; a pretty white tea cloth covers the tea table; and the cream pitcher, sugar bowl, plates, small napkins, a strainer, a tea caddy, and tea spoons complete the list of inedible necessities.

A tea wagon is invaluable in saving steps, but a prettily arranged tray on a small firm table looks really more interesting. If you own a nest of small tables, distribute them among your guests, keeping the largest one for the tea tray.

In summer tea on the porch is very much the same, except that iced tea or punch is served. The preparation of the beverage necessarily takes place behind the scenes where the ice may be cracked and the tea or ginger ale or grape juice poured in. Then everything is brought in on a tray, the beady pitcher sprigged with mint, the cakes and sandwiches. It is a little more of a ready-made affair, but it gives the hostess that much more freedom once she settles herself with the tray. The iced drink is a peculiarly American development, and consequently being without old world traditions, almost any variation and accompaniment that one likes is correct.

If a million dollars' worth of smiles attached end to end and an original mode of expressing ideas are of any value, James Storey won't have any difficulty in selling himself. Then he can follow successfully the rather arduous vocation of his father, that of selling life insurance.

James has the type of disposition that not even mother can criticise adversely, and a will to make things hum.

He is the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Storey of 1806 Pearl street. He has an older brother, Fred L. Jr., of whom he is quite proud.

Your Lucky Day

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Wouldn't you call it a lucky day when you found a hair dressing that ended your wave troubles? Here it is. Wave and Sheen is the only product I have found which will keep the hair in perfect trim.

Apply it before waving or setting your wave. (I use a comb. It can be applied with a brush.) Then put in your curlers, or set your wave if you have a permanent. By the time you are ready to dress, your hair will have not only a soft, flattering wave but a glorious sheen. You can be happy in the knowledge that your hair is in keeping with your dainty toilette.

Get a bottle of Wave and Sheen today at any toilet counter. Your 75 cents back if you are not pleased.—Adv.

For a Real, Honest-to-Goodness Surprise, Marriage Beats All

"Marriage Is the Greatest Surprise Party on Earth," Says One Woman, Who Has Watched the Rosesate Glow of Romance Fade Into the Cold Light of Matrimony, "for No One Ever Knows What She Is Getting."

A group of prosperous, happy, well-married women were discussing matrimony the other day, and one of them suddenly asked:

"What was your greatest disappointment in marriage?"

"Mine," she went on, "consisted in finding out that marriage isn't the end of your job. It is just the beginning, and you have to work ten times as hard to keep a husband as you did to get him. The principal reason I longed to marry was because I thought that as soon as I got married I could slump down and take things easy the balance of my life.

"When I got tired to death of everlastingly dolling myself up—crimping my hair, putting on my complexion and trying to look beautiful though plain—I would cheer myself up by thinking that as soon as I got married I wouldn't have to bother about my looks anymore, and I could wear nice, clean, comfortable wrappers, and pitch my rouge pots and cream jars out of the window.

"And when my face would get stiff wearing the smile that won't come off, because a girl has to look sweet and pleasant and amiable, and when my tongue would get so worn out jollying men that it would cleave to the roof of my mouth, and when I would get so exhausted trying to maintain an alert, interested expression while bores maundered on about themselves, I would say to my fainting soul: 'Have courage. Be patient.' In a little while you will get married, and then you won't have to pretend any more, and you can be cross and disagreeable and yawn whenever you feel like it.'

"I love good food and especially do I dote upon the nice, rich, gooey, fattening things, and whenever I had to pass them up in order to maintain my boyish figure I would lick my lips in anticipation and think: 'Just wait until I am married. Then I'll live on whipped cream and mayonnaise and eat angel food for breakfast.'

"So, filled with these happy anticipations, I got married, and I quit powdering my nose, and wore any old sort of sloppy dress. I began to get fat, and I didn't bother about being entertaining or fascinating to my husband, and the first thing I knew he was beginning to look slantwise at thin little flappers who rolled their eyes at him and yes-yessed everything he said, and who had on the latest Paris model.

"And I perceived that if I was going to hold my own I would have to get busy and cut bait again. For it isn't enough to fascinate a man once. You have to do it over again every morning. When you are married you have to have a line of charms that are ten times as alluring as any vamp needs in her business, and there is no place between the altar and the grave where a wife can sit down and take it easy.

"She has to be always up and doing, if she is to keep her husband thinking he is the great and only one, instead of feeling that she is the wrong one."

"My greatest disappointment in marriage," said the second woman, "was when I discovered that I couldn't tell the plain, unadorned truth to my husband.

"I had always had rather a sorest contempt for my mother because she worked my father, and when I observed her waiting until after she had given him a particularly good dinner before she sprang a new dress or hat on him, and when I heard her say to him that she had thought of having the dining room done over in dark red, but that she didn't want to decide on anything without his advice because his taste was so artistic, and I knew that she had already ordered red draperies, I resolved never to do that way.

"I thought: 'When I get married I won't have to cajole my husband into doing what he ought to do. I'll appeal to his justice, his sense of right, and we will talk everything over man-to-man and go fifty-fifty about everything. He will know that I can't run a home without bills and that disagreeable things are bound to happen in one, so I'll just hand them to him raw and there will be no gumshoeing or pussyfooting or camouflaging around our house.'

"But we hadn't been married three months before I found out that the one thing a man won't stand for from his wife is the truth. He doesn't want her to be veracious, he wants her to be one of these slick-tongued Janes who can plaster him all over with flattery and make him believe that she thinks he is wiser than Solomon, stronger than Samson, and a greater financier than Mr. Rockefeller. Furthermore, he wants his wife to work him.

"So in the interest of peace and harmony I do even as my mother did, making gestures of wifely obedience and humility, and I wouldn't dream of doing anything so crude as presenting him with the facts about our daily life without softening them up a bit and putting them in the best light."

"My greatest disappointment in marriage," said the third woman, "was when I found out that instead of being able to look up to my husband as a sort of demigod I had to mother him as if he were a small boy. I married expecting to spend the balance of my life on my knees. I thought I was getting a husband who was wise and temperate in his opinions, self-controlled and above all petty passions and prejudices and vanities.

"Imagine my surprise when I found out that the man I had married was no more like the man he is in the outside world, or the man I thought he was, than if he were an entirely different human being. My husband is a big business man. He controls a huge organization. He is noted for his insight into complicated problems, for the clarity of his judgment and his patience, and that is the sort of superman I thought I was getting.

"But what I really got is a great, big baby who howls if dinner is three minutes late; who couldn't find himself a clean collar to save his life, nor be trusted to order anything from the butcher's; who gets mad over nothing and sulks until I spank him, verbally; who adores being petted and fussed over, and who loves to have me show him off by asking him to tell that perfectly corking story about the two Irishmen."

"Marriage is the greatest surprise party on earth," said the first woman, "and none of us knows what she is getting in the package she draws."

"Perhaps it is the lure of the unknown that makes husbands so interesting," returned the second woman. —DOROTHY DIX.

W. M. S. TO HOLD ZONE MEETING

Wichita District Meets in Holliday Today

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Sept. 27.—A meeting of the Woman's Missionary societies of zone No. 2 of the Wichita Falls district will be held by Mrs. M. L. Hines of Iowa Park, district secretary, at the Methodist church in Holliday Friday morning and afternoon. This will be the last zone meeting of the official year and representatives are expected to attend from the auxiliaries of Floral Heights, Grant street and Sibley-Taylor Methodist churches of Wichita Falls, Archer City, Megargle, Dundee and Holliday. Mrs. J. J. Johnson of Sulphur Springs, the conference superintendent of social service, will be present to address the women of the societies.

Mrs. R. L. Ely, the leader of zone No. 2, will preside over the meeting, while the Holliday auxiliary, of which Mrs. E. M. McBride is the president, will act as hostess to the visiting societies. Special musical numbers will be given by representatives from Dundee and Archer City. Mrs. B. E. Trevathan of Wichita Falls, the former district secretary, will conduct the consecration service at the close of the program.

A helpful program of talks on the various phases of the work of the auxiliaries has been prepared. "How to Be An Efficient Officer," is to be the subject of a talk by Mrs. George A. Key of Megargle. Mrs. C. M. Gordon, superintendent of young people of Floral Heights Methodist church of Wichita Falls, will present the work among the young people.

The Missionary Voice, the official paper of the Missionary society, and its value will be discussed by Mrs. M. G. Clements, president of the Floral Heights auxiliary.

Mrs. J. A. Bevill of Iowa Park will present the work of the Epworth Junior society, and three members of the Junior society of which she is the president, will portray a model program. Margaret Luton will lead the devotional, Winnie Cherry will tell the story and Charlotte Nobles will sing.

The Day Book

of a

New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—One often wonders what the office boys in a newspaper office during those infrequent lulls which so happily come between news important enough to get excited about, are doing when they sit before a reporter's typewriter, laboriously pecking at the keys. Some of them, of course, are painfully inditing love notes, believing, no doubt, that a typewritten billet doux has a more pungent appeal. Some of them were thrilling yarns (which they hardly ever complete) as the following sample shows. It is presented exactly as it came from the Remington, spelling and all:

"It is now 3 A. M., everything is dead still, save a clock on the mantle which ticks incessively and in rhythmatic tones with that of the crickets in the near by woods MXMXMX. At this hour all is quiet save the squeek of the sun parlor door as it gently opens.—Admitting a MXMXMXMX tall dark figure XXXX that of a man dressed in black wearing a broad felt sombraro. As he nears the center of the porch groping his way in the dark he stops—"

What happened then, unfortunately, one will never know. Somebody with greater things on his mind than thrilling fiction yelled "Copy!"

"After the architects and the interior decorators get through," said the manager of a swanky hotel, "we managers have much to do in trying to maintain smart-looking hotels and conforming with all the city building and fire regulations."

As he spoke, he was feeling with a finger tip the brilliant carmine coat of paint that had just been laid upon the business end of a fire-ax sheathed neatly on the wall of a corridor.

"This," he said, "looks pretty good now, since the sheath had been polished and the ax freshly painted; in fact, to me, it looks a little knightly. But you should have seen these fire axes when I first came here. They were just axes, and one might have thought they were for wood-chopping purposes for guests.

"Really, it is not so good having these things hanging around the walls so conveniently. Some guests mistake them for playthings. One of our guests one time used one of them for the purpose of chopping down the door of a neighboring guest who seemed unwilling to open up for a late caller. Both of the guests were ladies, too."

BELLS

If in the past should sorrow dwell,
Turn not your eyes that way;
Let not an ancient, doleful bell
Toll in another day.

Just listen for that happy bell,
That rings the joys of men;
Believe that everything is well,
And you'll be happy then!

—John Self Elliott.

ABE MARTIN

In th' new talkin' pictures does th' hero jest say t' his sweetie, "I love you," an' let it go at that, or do they still glue ther mouths t'gether fer th' fade out? It takes some concentratin' t' cross a street an' remember what fer.

The Boyhood in Man

WHEN we admire a man deeply we say that he is "brilliant," or "forceful," or "able." But if we love him, we are more apt to remark that he is "boyish."

It is odd, in a country that puts such value on energetic, efficient hustling, that we should use, as our highest tribute of affection to a man, the statement that he is not entirely grown up. But we do. We respect and admire the business-like person, but we give our hearts to the one who still carries a streak of immaturity in his make-up.

Oh, perhaps it isn't odd, at that.

When a man reaches the point where he is thoroughly wise to all the wiles and deceptions of the world, he ceases to be completely lovable. Cynicism makes an excellent armor, but while it wards off hurtful blows it also rebuffs human affection.

Consider the ways of the small boy.

He takes the world and his fellow men on trust, believing them to be innocent until they are proven guilty. He has not yet been spoiled by defeat or disillusion. Life, to him, is full of a great many splendid things. Anything can happen to a chap who has a bit of luck. There will be a great deal of adventure, many dashing escapades, and doubtless at the last there will be a pot of gold and a fairy princess.

Then, as he grows older, this attitude leaves him. He finds out that most of the world's promises are false. The high adventures that he planned for himself do not come off. The pot of gold very likely eludes him, or if he gets it he discovers that it won't buy so much, after all; and fairy princesses are not so common as is sometimes thought.

Once these discoveries are taken to heart, a man's youth ends. It is, no doubt, very good for a man to get this wisdom, aiding his efficiency; but it does not make him more lovable.

For the man who keeps a boyish streak in him is the man who, despite all of these disillusionments, retains his faith. He still believes that the world is meant to be a gay, happy place, still believes that men mean to be kind and fair and generous. His own misfortunes he lays to individual tough luck rather than to any inherent perversity in the scheme of things.

Is it any wonder, then, that we love him? Nearly all of us have a vestige of that child-like lingering somewhere within us. Sometimes it almost goes out; we would not lose it for anything. So when we meet a man who has faith still robust and undiscouraged we cannot help but give him our affection. Soberer, more sensible men may do the heavy work of the world; but the boyish man is the man who makes the world livable.

THOROUGHBREDS NEEDED

One of the greatest needs of the day on Oklahoma farms is a more general use of good purebred sires, whether the object in view be milk or butterfat, pork, mutton, wool or beef production.

It will take a long time, of course, to eliminate defects through the sire alone but immediate improvement is badly needed to place the value of average farm livestock in the state on a profitable basis.

ANOTHER SPECIAL DAY?

The announcement that the "sweetest day" of the year is to be observed on Oct. 1 creates a shock of surprise. It is hard to forget Christmas, but somehow sweetest day had about slipped our minds. Now that it is called to our attention again, we are reminded that there seems to have been a lull in the observance of special days. A year or two ago, if memory is not playing us false, almost every one of the 365 days had a special name and was dedicated to something useful, beautiful or sentimental.

TO IMPORT FARMERS

Several Oklahoma counties are making efforts to attract immigrants from Northern Europe. They want them to settle on their farm. Lots of the American farmers made money in the oil industry, and have no further passion to till the soil. Of course, many farms have been spouting petroleum, but there are still thousands of acres still dapted to crops. There is need for the farmer and if the home boys flee the acreage some husky strangers from foreign countries will find welcome.

AL SMITH IN OKLAHOMA

That big crowd at Oklahoma City was the best answer to the claim that Hoover will carry Oklahoma. It came from all parts of the state—with delegations from Arkansas, Texas and some other states. The men and women who heard that speech—and the crowd was well divided between men and women—go back to their homes fired with the fervor of a righteous cause, firm in their faith in Governor Smith as the strongest champion of democracy that party has had in many years, and determined to carry the battle forward until the close of the campaign.

BOY SCOUTS GIVEN CREDIT

If there is a man in Shamrock who does not feel that the Boy Scout movement is worthy of his support, its dollars to doughnuts he knows little or nothing about it. The Standard does not hesitate to state its opinion that the organization does more toward the development of character in boys than any other agency outside of home, church and school. There are, moreover, many occasions when it has reached and will continue to reach and influence boys when the other agencies named have failed.

—Collingsworth (Texas) Standard.

FOLLIES HAVE COMPETITION

We have certainly gone from one extreme to another. A few years ago in a newspaper picture of a woman there would hardly be a suggestion that she had any legs, and it was considered indecent to use that word. Instead one had to say limb or ankle. Nowadays when we see women's pictures legs are the main thing shown, and we can imagine how jealous chorus girls must feel with so much free competition.

—Quanah (Texas) Tribune-Chief.

HIKING SPRINGS HITCH

The experience of several young women hikers lately, notably that of the Oklahoma miss who claims she was forced to kill a man who picked her up along the road, makes us wonder if it is advisable for unescorted girls to wander up and down the public roads of the country. One of the fond delusions of the average American is that American women are safe almost anywhere. For some time we have flattered ourselves that we are not as other men that therefore our women need not be restrained in their activities as are the women in Europe.

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Thomas Dean, writer of popular mystery novels, is astounded to read a newspaper account of the death-bed confession of Martin Lamont, business man on a visit to New York from the West, in which the dying man repents of the murder of Paul Forrester, five years ago. But—five years ago Thomas Dean was Paul Forrester! For certain reasons he had assumed his pen name, Dean. Nevertheless, it is uncanny to read of his own murder. Just then his housekeeper announces a caller—a lady.

Back Into the Past

The turning point in the life of Thomas Dean had been intimately associated with the designs of a young charmer known as Beulah Vance, at that time one of the chief attractions in the chorus of "The Fools' Revel." Thomas, then a pale and impressionable youth of 23, had lost both his heart and his head in a way that afterward made him wonder at youth's capacity for idiotic behavior. The upshot of it had been a suit for breach of promise which the chorus girl apparently had instituted under the erroneous impression that her young admirer had unlimited wealth at his disposal. Thomas wondered at the time how she could have so grossly overestimated his financial status and he did not realize till months afterward that the entire episode had been an ingenious and fairly successful maneuver on the part of the fair Beulah's press agent. His distaste of newspapers, especially the saffron-hued kind, dated from that time.

The breach of promise suit was still treading its leisurely way through legal routine when Thomas received word that his father had died near Leadville, Col. In recent years he had seen his father only at infrequent intervals, the elder Forrester being an indefatigable and usually luckless rover over the face of the earth, but an intimate correspondence had been conducted between father and son. His mother was only a misty memory in Thomas' mind, and his only close associate during these years was an old female servant who did her valiant best to keep the old house on Hudson street from crumbling into decay. She had died shortly before Thomas received news of his father's death. Upon the arrival of the telegram he proceeded immediately to Colorado, arriving at the mountain town just in time to attend the funeral.

The simple ceremony, attended by a handful of the elder Forrester's acquaintances, took place on an afternoon when leaden clouds hung low over the frozen hills. Thomas walked away from the little cemetery alone, for he felt a vague distrust of the stern-faced and tight-lipped men who had been his father's associates. An overwhelming loneliness was upon him, and in addition to his grief over his father's death, Beulah Vance's trickery still rankled. Thomas walked on, neither knowing nor caring where he was going, and of a sudden, as often happens in mountain regions, the world was transformed into a wilderness of whirling snow.

He walked on for hours, finally stumbling upon a trapper's cabin, occupied by a sour and lynx-eyed individual named Simon Cabell, whose churlish and sullen manner contrasted unpleasantly with the stern but generous natures of the other men Thomas had met in the mountain region.

Upon his offer to pay for the accommodation, Cabell ungraciously set food and drink before the hungry and frozen man. It developed that he had known Thomas' father and the mere mention of Jordan Forrester's name stirred him to fury and insulting invective. The slurs against his dead father's name incensed Thomas, who gathered that the trapper's hostility dated from an occasion when he had received a well-earned trouncing from Jordan Forrester, a quick-tempered man, though full of generous impulses. Although he was ill and exhausted, Thomas hotly demanded a retraction, but Cabell only grew more insulting, and the two men came to blows. The trapper fought with a savagery suggesting that all his pent-up hatred against the father had suddenly descended upon the son. He was of wiry build, with arms hard as flails, but Thomas profited from the rigorous athletic training to which he had subjected himself in order to overcome a physical handicap that had been with him since childhood.

He did not know exactly how it happened, but of a sudden there was a flash of steel in Cabell's hand and he felt the sting of a treacherous knife thrust slashing at his throat. The perfidy of the attack rallied his scattering strength. Cabell reeled back from an explosive blow to the jaw, striking his head heavily against the corner of the wood stove as he fell. He rolled over once, with a curious fragmentary groan on lips stained red. In an instant the ecstasy of combat deserted Thomas, leaving him dazed and horrified. To all appearances the trapper was dead, for neither heart beat nor sign of breathing could be detected, yet there might still be life left in his body. The motionless form, with the features frozen into a fixed look of malevolence, left an imprint on Thomas' impressionable mind that was never erased.

Unthinkingly he rushed out into the storm. The wound at the side of his throat was bleeding, but he could tell that the knife had not cut deep. He was conscious only that he must summon help, if possible find a doctor, in order that any spark of life in his fallen adversary might be revived. Not until he was completely lost in the white, swirling chaos did he realize the folly of the attempt. How he found his way out he never knew, but three days later he boarded a train at a little mining town some 30 or 40 miles from the point where his father had been buried. Snatches of conversation which he heard as he stood on the platform waiting for the belated train told him that a sheriff's posse was searching the hills for the murderer of Simon Cabell. Murderer! The word sang with sinister echoes in his ears during the journey back to New York.

Trying to forget the encounter in the lonely cabin in the hills, Thomas went back to the house on Hudson street, but the old surroundings had become unbearable. On the side of his throat was a deep, ragged scar, an unpleasant reminder of his fight with Cabell, but a high collar obscured it successfully except when he twisted his neck too far to the left side.

He found that Beulah Vance's press agent had made the most of his opportunity. Though never known as a wealthy man, Thomas' father had been prominent in various ways, and this made the son a shining mark for the wiles of a publicity agent. Finally, in disgust, Thomas closed the house and boarded a steamer for a foreign port. He spent the next two years visiting strange places and acquiring a new philosophy of life. When he returned, the pale, slender and melancholy youth of two years before had been transformed into a robust man with healthily bronzed cheeks, a keen sparkle in his brown eyes, and the springiness of exuberant spirits and virility in his step. In odd moments during the last years he had exercised his imagination at writing, and now he took it up as his profession, throwing all his vigor and perseverance into the task. His output appeared under the name of Thomas Dean, and as Thomas Dean he became known. Of his former self there was little left save a livid scar which he took pains to conceal by appropriate neckwear. Paul Forrester, he soon learned, had been all but forgotten except by those who associated the name with Beulah Vance's publicity campaign. This breach of promise suit, by the way, appeared to have been dropped; at least Thomas heard nothing more of it. If news of the trapper's death had drifted eastward, it appeared to have attracted no attention. The memory of the episode remained with him, however, for it had occurred at a time when he was peculiarly susceptible to impressions and in a mood to exaggerate the importance of anything that touched his emotions deeply.

He decided that Paul Forrester might as well remain forgotten. To all practical purposes that misguided youth existed only in the sturdy memories of a few Broadwayites and in the files of the metropolitan newspapers. On a promontory overlooking the Hudson river, a short distance back of the Palisades, he found a small roadhouse tottering on the brink of decay. "Top o' the Hill" it was called, and at one time it had enjoyed a widespread if somewhat shady reputation. Dean bought it for a song, made a few necessary repairs and improvements that did not impair the musty atmosphere of the place or disturb the ghosts slumbering in the dark corners, engaged a crabbed but efficient housekeeper, and relished keenly the success that gradually came his way. His former acquaintances did not recognize him on his rare trips across the river, and Dean neither sought nor avoided them.

The course of his life ran along smoothly until the morning, when he picked up his newspaper and read Martin Lamont's astounding confession.

Enter the Woman

"A lady?" stammered Dean. A feminine caller at Top o' the Hill was something of a rarity.

Mrs. Blossom nodded. Though reddish of face and built on copious lines, she gave a curious semblance of fragility. Dean often found himself staring at her as if she were the embodiment of a contradiction. He had an odd feeling that she was likely to burst into tears at the most unexpected moment and without the slightest provocation.

"Who is she?" he inquired.

The housekeeper handed him a card. "Miss Viola Gray," it read, but the name meant nothing to him. From the card he glanced out the window and down the sloping hillside to where the Hudson glimmered in the June sunshine. In the distance was the checkered skyline of Manhattan, with here and there a stately minaret thrusting a slender spire into blue ozone. The outlook seemed to give him a fresh grasp on reality, banishing the goblin world into which the article in The Era had precipitated him.

"All right, I'll see her," he declared. "Will you show her into the library, Mrs. Blossom?"

With just a hint of asperity in her manner, the housekeeper withdrew. Dean, vaguely anticipating an ordeal and instinctively coupling Miss Gray's call with Martin Lamont's confession, inspected himself in the mirror. The face reflected in the glass looked normal and sane, with no hint that he had just perused a flabbergasting account of his own demise at the hand of a murderer. From force of habit he ran his fingers along the edge of the upstanding collar to make sure that it concealed the scar. A moment later he entered the library.

"Mr. Dean?" spoke a voice out of the dimness of the room, pronouncing the name with a faint, elusive emphasis. He might have only imagined it, but he thought he detected a slight trace of mockery, perhaps even skepticism, implying a doubt as to whether he were really Mr. Dean. With a murmured response he stepped to the windows and raised the shades, a detail which the usually thoughtful Mrs. Blossom appeared to have neglected. Then he turned and saw a slight, kittenish creature seated in the large rustic chair, his own handiwork, which stood beside the typewriter. Her hair, very abundant and of a lustrous flaxen color, seemed to corral all the sunshine that was flooding the room. A pair of great amber eyes regarded him in frank curiosity.

"So that's you," she said after an interval of silent inspection. "The celebrated Thomas Dean! Do you know, I've imagined all along that you would look just as you do?"

She had an adorable little mouth, and it was spraying him with smiles of sentimental admiration.

Dean could not quite repress a frown. He thought he knew the type to which Viola Gray belonged, the romantic, unsophisticated, ecstatically gushing kind, with a penchant for hero worship and a morbid yearning for adventure. Now and then a letter from one of these distant admirers crept into his mail, only to be dropped into the wastebasket or answered with a formal note.

"Hope you don't mind my trespassing," she went on. "I've read every one of your novels, and I think they are simply wonderful. Your characters are splendid, especially the masculine ones—so strong and masterful! I have been wondering if you draw them from life or if you dig them out of your imagination. Sure you don't mind my intruding like this? You see, I found your address in 'Who's Who,' and I just couldn't resist the temptation to drop in and look you over."

Dean essayed a smile, but inwardly he cursed the publishers of a certain obese, red-covered volume that stood among other reference books on his library shelves. He studied Miss Gray with a professional eye, appraising her as character material for his new novel. At any rate, the morning would not be entirely wasted. Perhaps she would fit in as the heroine of a love episode. He noted the effect of the trim navy-blue suit that covered her slight, vivacious figure and of the jaunty, close-fitting turban with its black and white satin folds that formed an inverted V over the center of the forehead, giving her face something of an Oriental look.

"Do you work in this room?" she asked, glancing at the hooded typewriter as if it were an object of sublimity.

"Yes, this is the scene of my crimes," Dean dryly admitted.

"I just knew it! The room is chock full of inspiration. And this darling old house! I can imagine hearing all kinds of queer noises at night. No wonder you get so many creeps into your stories. Do tell me about your characters. Do you take them from life?"

"Only in part. Some of them require a lot of brushing up and disguising. People as a rule would not be flattered if they should recognize the resemblance."

"Do you think so? I should think they would be delighted. I think it would be perfectly thrilling to see myself tripping across the pages of a book written by you."

Her big amber eyes shone with enthusiasm, but suddenly Dean became conscious of a contradiction, something similar to what he occasionally felt in Mrs. Blossom's presence. All at once it came to him that she would not do as the simple and adorable heroine of a love story. There was a complexity, even a suggestion of duality, in her nature that had eluded him at first, but which gradually insinuated itself into his senses with a light and vaguely disturbing touch. If he used her at all, it would be in a different role, perhaps as a sly and artful adventuress whose apparent naivete and youthful allure were merely a mask concealing Heaven only knew what dark and sinister designs.

"Would you really?" he asked, more interested now, but also correspondingly vigilant. Then, in a playful humor, he decided to put her to a little test. "And what kind of role would you prefer to play?"

"I don't know," she confessed; then considered gravely. "Something like Sheila Sand in 'Crossroads,' maybe. I think 'Crossroads' is the best of your novels, and Sheila is a perfectly adorable character."

Dean nodded absently. It was odd that her judgment should coincide with his in regard to "Crossroads." He had always thought it was the best of his products, notwithstanding the fact that he had expended the least amount of time and labor on it.

"Why do you prefer 'Crossroads' to the others?" he asked.

"Oh, I hardly know. Not so much because of Sheila's part in it as on account of the hero, Jimmie Ferguson. I think a man is always more interesting than a woman, anyway. Don't you? I could just love a man like Jimmie Ferguson. That scene in the lonely cabin in the woods is the most thrilling thing I ever read. I sat up most of the night to finish it."

Dean gave her a long, intent look. A flickering shadow of uneasiness crossed his face. He had a curious feeling that the mask was slowly slipping away from her. It was odd that she should have singled out that particular scene. Not until the book was off the presses had Dean realized how closely it paralleled his own terrific experience in the hills of Colorado. The ashen face of the dead trapper must have drifted in and out of his subconscious mind while he wrote it. For weeks after the publication of the book he had lived in fear that some one might recognize the author in the hero. But as time passed and nothing happened, he saw the absurdity of his misgivings. It was extremely unlikely, after all, that any one of his readers would have heard of the episode in the trapper's cabin, much less associated it with the author of "Crossroads." Paul Forrester was dead, to all practical purposes and the tragic fate of the trapper had accompanied him into oblivion.

638 Bales of Cotton Ginned at Newcastle

Special to The Record News

NEWCASTLE, Texas, Sept. 27.—Up to yesterday, 638 bales had been turned out by the three gins here this season. All three gins are running steady and cotton is opening rapidly. The samples offered the buyers are unusually good this season owing to the absence of rain and wind but the staple is a trifle short.

On account of the destructive rain and hail storms early in the year followed by dry weather the crop will be cut short. Some few farmers have estimated their yield at one-third to one-half bale per acre but the general average is estimated by conservative growers at five to six acres to the bale.

Picking will be completed by Dec. 1. No damage by insects has been reported this season. There is very little demand for pickers here at present. Seventy-five cents per hundred is the general price paid for snapping.

Cotton seed is selling at $31 per ton.

Vet Goes to Cuba to Arrange Annual Meet

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 27. (UP)—Quartermaster General James Murphy, of the Spanish-American war veterans, arrived here today from Washington, to complete preparations for the reception and entertainment of more than 5,000 veterans and their families expected to attend the 30th annual encampment, Oct. 7 to 10. He is accompanied by Harry B. Coulter, assistant quartermaster general.

Cuban To Make Hop To Mexico City Soon

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 27. (UP)—The non-stop flight from Havana to Mexico City, long considered by the Cuban government as a mark of courtesy to the sister republic for the flight to this city made recently by Lieut. Col. Roberto Fierro, Mexican ace, will be made early in December, according to the newspaper El Pais.

Captain R. Laborde, Cuban army flier, will be the pilot. Anulfo Cortez, Fierro's mechanic, arrived here today from Panama en route to Mexico City.

Railroad Officer Wounded by Hobo

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 27. (UP)—Ike Fisher, 40, Frisco railroad officer, was wounded critically in a gun battle with a negro hobo in the railroad yards here today. The negro escaped.

Musketeer's Body on Way to Antlers, Okla.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 27. (INS)—Four army planes flying over San Diego today told observers that Lieut. William L. Cornelius of Antlers, Okla., famous as one of the army's "Three Musketeers" was leaving Rockwell air field for the last time.

The line of planes marked the course of the funeral cortege of the officer, killed Tuesday when his plane collided with another plane in mid-air during maneuvers at the field.

Following services at a downtown undertaking establishment attended by all the officers of Rockwell field, the body was placed aboard a train bound for Lieutenant Cornelius' home in Antlers.

Lack of Leadership Charged To Republicans

failed to take a clear-cut stand in that controversy.

With regard to immigration, the nominee said "the whisperers would have the people believe I favor a letting down of the restricting bars and an opening of the flood-gates that immigration may pour into our country.

"Nothing," he added, "could be further from the truth."

The Democratic and Republican platform plans on immigration, the New York governor asserted, both declare in different language for preservation of laws limiting immigration.

The Republicans, he went on, "speak of amendments to the immigration laws, which would do away with undue hardships that deprive the immigrant of the comfort and society of those bound by close family ties."

Same on Immigration

"The Democratic platform provides for the same thing in different language. The Republican candidate in his speech of acceptance parallels the Republican platform with relation to unnecessary hardships on families, but he further says:

"'As a member of the commission whose duty it is to determine the quota basis under the national origins laws, I have found it impossible to do so accurately and without hardship.'

"With this," Smith added, "I agree."

In developing his contention that during the last two Republican administrations the presidents have failed to show a leadership of thought of the American people, Governor Smith declared:

"Because of lack of such leadership in the national administration, not one large, constructive achievement can be pointed to in the record of the last seven and a half years; and if the American people will search back through their minds they can see this in sharp contrast with the Wilson and Roosevelt administrations. Wilson and Roosevelt were leaders.

Hidden Control Hinted

"The whole history of the last two Republican administrations suggests that some hidden control strongly reactionary in its tendencies toward the great questions of the government, has been in a position to dictate party policy from behind the scenes and delay the progress of the great public developments which interfered with its plans or program. For that reason prominent members of the Republican party have walked out of its ranks and openly declared hostility to their party and disagreement with its reactionary tendencies."

Governor Smith held that it was "that hidden reactionary control" that led the elder LaFollette to lead an independent presidential movement, and drove Theodore Roosevelt from the ranks of the party that had honored him with the high office.

Restating his position on farm relief, the New Yorker declared that his Republican opponent to date "has developed no constructive plan" and added that he had noticed in the papers that Mr. Hoover did not propose to make another campaign speech until Oct. 6 and after that not until Oct. 16.

Answers Critic

Smith asserted that Chairman Work of the Republican national committee, in his criticism of his Omaha speech, "displays a lack of knowledge of the whole situation." and assailed Secretary Jardine on the ground that he had done nothing toward solving the farm problem, had taken credit for getting the farmer a good price for his wheat when this was not true, and was holding out "the old plan, which was advocated by Mr. Hoover, of cutting down acreage." He also took a fling at Senator Nye, Republican independent of North Dakota, for failing in line for Hoover, and at the same time favoring the McNary-Haugen bill.

As for waterways, Governor Smith insisted the Republicans during the last two administrations had failed to put forth any comprehensive plan for their development.

The only substantial piece of legislation with regard to development of the Mississippi, Smith went on, has been the recent flood control bill, which, he contended, made available an appropriation that will "scarcely scratch the surface of any comprehensive plan or bring about any degree of flood relief."

Conflicting Promises

"One of the great troubles with this project and with many others," Smith said, "is that had adequate appropriations been made for them, the Republican party would be unable to make the boasts of economy in the present administration that they have broadcast throughout the length and breadth of the land. You cannot get results promising developments as one policy and withholding the funds to carry it out as another policy."

St. Paul gave the governor a tumultuous greeting as he came here by automobile from Minneapolis.

Crowds lined the downtown streets and windows of office buildings along the route to the governor's hotel.

MAY LEAD VETS

Paul V. McNutt, dean of the law school of Indiana university, is prominently mentioned as one of the leading candidates for election as national commander of the American Legion at the national convention in San Antonio Oct. 8. McNutt, now national executive chairman of the legion for Indiana, is the youngest man ever appointed dean in the Indiana university faculty—his age is 36. He served in the field artillery during the war and now holds a commission in the reserve corps as colonel, commanding the 326th field artillery.

Mellon Denies Owning Interest in Distillery—Held Stock but Sold It

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 27. (AP)—Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, in a letter received today by C. M. Setzer, chairman of the Republican county organization here, denied that he is connected with the business of distilling liquor.

Mr. Mellon's letter was in reply to a telegram informing him that Democratic speakers were charging that he was in the liquor business.

"In response to your request I have to say that the Democratic speaker's statements are completely false," the letter said.

"I never was actively engaged in the distilling business and since taking office have had no interest in or connection with the distillation of liquor or any liquor business."

The letter referred Mr. Setzer to a communication sent by Mr. Mellon to an anti-saloon league official in West Virginia which said "I once owned stock in a distillery company as I owned stock in many other business enterprises. The stock in this company was disposed of before I took office as secretary of the treasury. . . . At no time was I ever actively engaged in the distilling business."

GEORGIA BANS MALT DRINKS

Alcoholic Content Ignored In Decision

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 27. (UP)—Possession of malt or maltose, irrespective of alcoholic contents, virtually was banned in Georgia by a decision handed down here today by the state supreme court.

Pointing out that malt liquors could be used as a screen for alcoholic drinks, the decision said "all malted or fermented liquors and beverages in which maltose is a substantial ingredient, whether alcoholic or not, or whether intoxicating or not, come under the provisions of the act approved Nov. 17, 1915."

The act is the state prohibition law.

City Officials to Dallas

W. E. McBroom, city clerk, is leaving for Dallas Friday with George D. Fairtrace, city manager, to study the "Cleveland" system of municipal accounting which is now in use there. The system, according to Mr. McBroom, was inaugurated in Cleveland, and in principle has been adopted by many of the more progressive cities of the country in the simplification of city accounting.

FINE EXHIBITS AT 'BURK' FAIR

Terrapin Races to Feature Second Day

partments are the following: Mrs. W. C. Williams, Mrs. G. C. Hathoway, Mrs. C. A. Peterson, Miss Emma Davis, Mrs. Norwood and Mrs. Horace Blackwell, all of Iowa Park; Mrs. M. O. Proctor, Mrs. S. S. Marshall, Miss Eva Purcell of Electra; Mrs. H. McKown, Nellie Audas, Mrs. J. G. Simpson, Mrs. R. C. Brittain, Mrs. J. C. Richardson and Mrs. Pearl Wilkerson, all of Burkburnett.

Three ladies home demonstration clubs, Barwis, Hardin and Pleasant Valley, have exhibits.

"Agricultural exhibits shown at the Burkburnett fair are good and are proof of what the farmers can do if they pursue farming in the correct manner," C. C. McGown, Wichita county agricultural agent, declared here Thursday afternoon.

Among the persons living in the vicinity of Burkburnett who have agricultural crops on display are the following: M. O. Proctor, C. B. Wilkerson, O. Fanning, J. F. Bell, M. P. Keith, Mrs. Thomas Boyd, A. Lochefener, W. S. Wolf, H. L. Wolf, F. R. Knauth, J. F. Bell, H. G. Bingham, W. D. Taylor, Walter Klinkerman, H. C. Preston and J. H. Erderly.

Charles A. Morgan of the Wild Horse farm, located near Burkburnett, is exhibiting Hampshire hogs in the swine department. Carl Williamson of Iowa Park is showing Hampshire and Duroc hogs and Oxford sheep.

Fine Cattle Shown

H. C. Preston of Burkburnett is showing Jersey and Holstein cows, a Jersey bull and a Shetland pony. Charles Harrell is exhibiting a registered goat. B. B. Potthoff, Burkburnett, has placed several Hampshire hogs in the pens while M. B. Riley is showing some Shropshire sheep. William Teal has a Jersey cow on display.

An exhibit in the livestock tent that attracted considerable interest was the German Police dogs, owned by E. F. Gilbow, a member of the Burkburnett police force.

G. R. McNeil of Henrietta, Clay county agricultural agent, will judge the entries in the agricultural and livestock departments.

Practically every pen in the poultry department was filled by late this afternoon and judging work will be started Friday morning by I. L. Bandy, prominent poultry raiser of Godley, Texas.

Among the poultry raisers exhibiting birds at the fair are H. C. Thompson, H. G. Cook, A. Loehoefener, E. H. Carver, John Musick, M. P. Keith, O. C. Whitaker, A. D. Doyle, I. N. Hurd, J. Benefield, G. T. Roberts, J. T. Loffler, Roy Blanscett and R. G. Wilson, all of Burkburnett; H. A. Coursey, Devol, Oklahoma; A. H. Miller, Iowa Park; Sam E. Williams and T. A. Crosby of Wichita Falls.

An unusually good rabbit show is included as one of the fair attractions. Judging in this department was concluded later this afternoon. The grand champion ribbon was awarded to Charles D. Winfrey of Iowa Park on a senior New Zealand red doe. The champion ribbon was awarded to the Musick Rabbitry of Burkburnett on a white New Zealand senior doe.

J. H. Stanfill of Wichita Falls exhibited some cavies.

J. M. Alexander, Ed Williams, J. F. Kelley, W. R. Hill and W. A. Roberts compose the Burkburnett fair committee.

The fair is scheduled to close late Saturday.

Following are the awards in the rabbit department:

Blackmail Alleged in Charge That Berry Is Father of Actress' Baby

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27. (AP)—Wallace Beery, motion picture actor today made a blanket denial of charges of Juanita Montanya, Spanish dancer, that he was the father of her 11-month-old daughter, Lolita Montanya. The actor's denial was made in a deposition taken by attorneys for the plaintiff, who brought suit against him for $500,000 for two alleged criminal attacks while she was a guest in the Beery home.

"Mr. Beery made this deposition voluntarily," declared his counsel, "upon his own request and without any court summons being issued against him. He declared this suit was nothing more or less than a blackmail attempt on the pretense he is the father of a child he knows nothing about. Mr. Beery wants this affair to go to court as soon as possible."

The deposition was signed and sealed for submission to the superior court, where late next week a trial date is to be set.

MULE FOR ZOO

Foard County Man Offers Animal 35 Years Old

Does a 35 year old mule constitute such a curiosity that it should be placed in the Wichita Falls municipal zoo in Scotland park?

This is the question that C. C. Bunneenberg faded Thursday when he received a letter from R. P. Adkins of Thalia offering the mule. The letter follows:

"Would you accept in the zoo my mule Jack who is 35 years old. I have had him in Foard county for 23 years. I am taking the best of care of him and would not want to turn him over to the zoo unless he could get the best of care. What is your law or ruling over the zoo?"

No official decision had been announced Thursday night.

FRECKLES

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily

Here's a chance, Miss Freckleface, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes your freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any drug or department store and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.—Adv.

You cannot be attractive without a clear skin

EVERYBODY wants to be attractive. It is a great and just ambition. But no one can be attractive without a clear skin—you know that.

Do you realize the importance of pure, rich blood in preserving the health, and that the source of most skin disorders is in the blood?

Remove the cause, which is not in the skin itself, and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs, and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

When your system is filled with rich, red blood, you don't have that tired, languid feeling when you awake in the morning. Instead, you feel refreshed, ready to meet the world.

Your appetite is keen—you enjoy work or play—your skin is clear, cheeks naturally rosy.

All this because rich, red blood builds and sustains the body.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"S.S.S. cleared my skin of pimples and blackheads. I think it a most wonderful blood medicine. Several of my friends are taking it for the same reason I did."

Thousands never have clean teeth because their dentifrices try to "cure" and fail to clean

JUST what results are you getting from your tooth-brushing?

You think you are getting your teeth clean. But are you? Be certain that you are not, unless you use a dentifrice that is a cleanser. Dental authorities advise a non-medicated dentifrice made to clean.

Why Colgate's cleans so effectively

Colgate's, made as dentists and doctors request, is a cleanser—and non-medicated. It contains the most effective of all cleansing agents—in a special mild palatable form—combined with calcium carbonate, the most effective safe polisher of enamel.

The sparkling, bubbling, Colgate foam goes rushing, searching in and out and around teeth and gums . . . sweeping away mucin deposits . . . polishing enamel to shiny smoothness . . . destroying the acids that destroy teeth . . . sweetening all the mouth surfaces.

ELECTRA SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 27.—Mrs. L. J. Terrell, third vice president, of the Parent-Teacher association, presided over the first official meeting of that body for the new year Tuesday afternoon, at the high school building, in the absence of the president and first and second vice presidents.

Mrs. Terrell described the P.-T. A. council and gave an interesting talk on its object, also reading the by-laws. Election of officers to fill vacancies caused by resignations at the beginning of the term, was preceded by a round table discussion before nomination. Election was postponed until the official meeting of the board, which takes place next week.

Following the business session, an interesting program was rendered. Mrs. J. C. Mosely gave a reading, "Kentucky Philosophy"; Mrs. Dallas Childress gave a violin solo, accompanied by Mrs. Brazilla Ainsworth at the piano, and Mrs. Ainsworth gave a selection, accompanied by Miss Clara McNay at the piano. Those attending the meeting were:

Mesdames Hal Hughes, L. J. Terrell, J. H. Harris, P. E. Griffin, W. J. Sheldon, A. F. McCormick, J. C. Mosely, E. F. Smith, C. Newburn, Dallas Childress, Brazilla Ainsworth; Misses Ethel Verrell, Bessie Mae Bruley, Ida Lee Falls, Grace Hardy, Clare McNay and Prof. E. E. Rogers.

Circle C, Methodist

Circle C of the First Methodist W. M. U. met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. J. Crawford. Mrs. W. M. Bagwell read the devotional, taken from the fifth chapter of Matthews. Mrs. E. A. McKelvey read an article on "Stewardship." Mrs. J. W. Dyson conducted the lesson from the mission book, "Spiritual Adventurings," after which the meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. A. C. Rippy.

Refreshments of black walnut cake and orange ice cream were served to the following members: Mesdames L. Holcomb, C. W. Coffey, Doc Fisher, Bryant, H. E. Anderson, T. H. Parmley, E. A. McKelvey, Gillespie, J. W. Dyson, J. A. Lee, J. W. Youree, L. J. Crawford, A. C. Rippy and W. M. Bagwell.

Presbyterian Ladies

The Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church met Monday afternoon, in the church with the president, Mrs. J. E. Graham, presiding. The meeting opened with the song, "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me," followed with prayer by Mrs. J. V. Harrison. Mrs. Graham read the devotional, from the 138th Psalm.

During the business meeting, plans were made for the church night supper, which will be on Wednesday evening, October 3. Mrs. E. R. Keller, Mrs. E. P. Birt and Mrs. J. V. Harrison were appointed as a committee on arrangements. Those attending were:

Mesdames L. D. Grafton, Anna Rowe, T. J. Preston, J. M. Hanby, J. V. Harrison, E. P. Birt, E. R. Keller, Elizabeth Allen, Harry Bissell and J. E. Graham.

Circle Seven, Baptist

Circle seven of the First Baptist W. M. U. met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph Doyle on East 3da avenue. The devotional was read by Mrs. Doyle and was taken from the first chapter of Galatians. Mrs. W. R. Skinner conducted the mission lesson from the first chapter of the W. M. U. manual. A short business session was held after which the meeting was dismissed with sentence prayers.

During the social hour, refreshments of carmel pie and coffee were served to Mesdames O. L. Ely, E. E. White, Ben W. Tipton, H. M. Tarlton, R. L. Sellers, L. W. Mickey, Buell Mouser, C. W. Robinson, C. H. Schulkey, W. R. Skinner, Miss Clara May Sellers and the hostess.

Circle Two

Circle two of the First Baptist W. M. U. met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. P. Peterson on West Michigan avenue. The meeting opened with the song, "Rock of Ages," followed with prayer by Mrs. J. M. Tanner. Mrs. W. E. Reneau led the Bible study, from Galatians, after which Mrs. Elsie Weaver led in prayer. During the month of October, the members of circle two will read the book of Galatians. Mrs. E. E. Burton, mission study chairman, made her report. Mrs. J. M. Tanner gave an interesting talk on "The Duties of a Group Captain." The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, and Mrs. Roy Russell gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. P. E. Griffin dismissed with prayer.

Those present were: Mesdames W. A. Gault, C. P. Peterson, Oral Righ, W. H. Petty, R. L. Edmondson, H. M. Keese, Billy Hankins, C. R. Redawalt, C. W. Lewis, G. H. Prayer, by Gilbert Birdsall; "The Gospel for All Nations," by Marie Simmons; "Mission Work Through the Church," by Alma Bates; "The Church Persecuted and Scattered," by Vera Woodall; "Philip Preaches in Samaria," by Calvin Birdsall; song, "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms"; closing prayer, by Arrington Beasley.

COYOTES FACE DECATUR BAPTISTS TODAY IN HOME OPENER

Yankees Win Double Header And Need Only One More Victory To Cinch Flag

PREPS ENGAGE STURDY TEAM

Kenneth Mills at Fullback; Game Starts at 3:30

By GORDON FULCHER

Playing the first home game of the season the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes engage Decatur Baptist college Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Athletic park.

The opposition will probably be the hardest the Coyotes will encounter this season as Decatur held the Simmons Cowboys to a lone touchdown last week.

Coach Bud McCallum's aggregation is in much better condition this week than last when it suffered a severe trimming at the hands of Lawton high school. The husky but inexperienced line has been whipped into fair shape by a hard week of work under the direction of McCallum and Assistant Coach Bill Morris.

One notable change appeared during the week's practice in that Pete Powell, a letter man end of last year, who has been doing duty in the backfield, was shifted to his old position. It is more than likely that he will start the game today at end since Kenneth Mills is in shape to play at fullback.

Powell Strengthens Line

With Powell on end the serious handicap of an inexperienced line will somewhat be remedied. Clarence Bains, a first year man but a promising youngster, probably will be McCallum's choice today for the other end.

Captain Harvey Black will call signals from halfback position while Dale Davis will play quarter. Dick Hambrick seems to be the most likely choice as a starter, though Carr, Morris, Lee and Jerry Elliott are almost certain to see quite a bit of service in the backfield.

The brunt of the punting duties will be carried by Captain Black though in a pinch both Elliott and Hambrick are available.

Dale Davis, Black and Hambrick will divide passing duties.

Reserves to Play

A number of promising men are almost sure to get into the game. Among them is Howard Scott, a letter man guard who has been shifted to end. The big fellow is fast and an accurate tackler but his inexperience at end probably will have him on the sideline when the opening whistle blows.

T. Saye, Ed Bell, Jack Carstarphen, John Harrell and Rollin Dixon, all linemen, should get their chance to perform during the game.

Monk Hodkiss, center, probably the best defensive man on the team, is almost certain to start the contest, while Tom Beaty, a tall, rangy pivot, will get some share in the engagement. The probable Coyote starting lineup is as follows:

Player	Pos.	No.
Powell	Left End	11
Holden	Left Tackle	24
J. Bell	Left Guard	21
Hodgkiss	Center	15
R. Saye	Right Guard	17
McKinley	Right Tackle	25
Bains	Right End	19
Davis	Quarterback	22
Black	Left Halfback	13
Hambrick	Right Halfback	18
Mills	Fullback	14

How Dixie Series Money Is Split

World Series Rules Govern Southern Play

Distribution of Dixie series money is along the same lines as the division of coin for the world series. This is written in response to queries from fans here.

The first four games of the Dixie series are the only contests in which the players participate in the money, except that they receive their salaries for extra days. Following is the division of money for the first four games:

Ten per cent to Texas league.

Ten per cent to Southern association.

Ten per cent to Houston club owner.

Ten per cent to Birmingham club owner.

Sixty per cent, players' pool.

Divison of money for any games after the first four:

Ten per cent to Texas league.

Ten per cent to Southern association.

Forty per cent to Houston club owner.

Forty per cent to Birmingham club owner.

The winning players get 60 per cent and the losers 40 per cent of the players' pool. This also provides for players on second and third place clubs. Of the 60 percent of the players' pool, the winning club gets 66 2-3 per cent, the second place players 20 per cent and the third place players 13 1-3 per cent. Club owners of second and third clubs do not share at all in the Dixie series.

Tulsa Homers Beat Oklahoma City, 11-6

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 27 (UP)—Behind a barrage of home runs, Tulsa defeated Oklahoma City today, 11 to 6, for the second consecutive time in the playoff series for championship honors in the Western league.

Four homers were clouted out by the Oilers. Sitts made the first one in the second inning, and after Oklahoma City had scored three times to take the lead in the third inning, Bennett homered in the fourth inning to tie the count at three-all.

A five-run rally, aided materially by the home run of Munson, sent Tubbs to the showers in the fifth inning and Graf relieved him on the mound for the Indians. Dondero, who won yesterday's game for the Oilers with a home run in the ninth inning, made a circuit clout in the seventh inning, during which Tulsa scored three more times.

The two clubs rest Friday and resume activities again at Oklahoma City Saturday. Score:

Oklahoma City	003 000 030—	6	11 0
Tulsa	110 150 30x—	11	14 2

KGKO Broadcasts Auto Men's Downtown Program

Country Boy Owens may receive the well known acid test tonight. The Wichita Falls youngster, who has compiled a large list of knockout victories in the past six months, faces Cyclone Hall of Childress in an eight-round bout, in the free show staged by the Wichita Falls Automobile Dealers association at Eighth street and Scott avenue.

The show staged by the auto men is part of the 46th birthday celebration of the city.

Matty Matsuda, noted Japanese wrestler, meets Nick Karavos, Greek welterweight, in the grappling feature. There also will be other boxing bouts.

R. E. Shepherd will sing from the ring and will broadcast the entire show over KGKO. The Lions' club boys' band and Electra Boy Scouts will provide other features of the show.

Alec B. Ross is matchmaker for the show.

LOWERS SWIM MARK

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 27. (UP)—Dr. Paul Samson, Chicago, lowered the British amateur swimming record for 150 yards, by 3 2-5 seconds here this afternoon. Samson's time was 89 seconds, the former record being 92.5 seconds.

Three Former Champions Survive To Semi-Finals in Women's Golf

Mrs. Hurd, Mrs. Stetson and Glenna, Ex-Queens of U. S. Links, and Miss Van Wie Win in Quarter-Finals

CASCADES GOLF CLUB, HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 27. (UP)—Three former champions survived thrilling quarter final matches in the national women's golf tourney today.

Mrs. D. C. Hurd, Philadelphia, Mrs. G. H. Stetson, Philadelphia, and Glenna Collett, Providence, R. I., all of whom have won at least one championship, won their matches.

One former champion, Marion Hollins, of Glenstead, L. I., was eliminated by Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, one down.

Mrs. Hurd beat Maureen Orcutt, Haworth, N. J., on the last green after having been five up at the 13th tee; Mrs. Stetson won from Dora Virtue, Montreal, in 20 holes, and Miss Collett downed Virginia Wilson, Chicago, 3 and 2, despite a brave fight to the last hole played staged by the calm Chicagoan.

Friday's semi-finals will be meetings between Mrs. Hurd and Miss Van Wie and between Mrs. Setson and Miss Collett.

NEHF BLASTS GIANTS' HOPES

Artie Beats Old Mates and Cards Lead by Game

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP)—Li'l Artha Nehf, Terre Haute terror, came marching back to his Polo Grounds today, and what he did to his old friend John McGraw is sad to relate. The former Giant southpaw has won perhaps a half dozen games from his old mates since he was sold down the river as worn-out ivory two years ago last spring, but never one so devastating as the 3 to 2 triumph he earned over Carl Hubbell and Jack Scott in the first half of today's double header before 32,000 fans.

Even though the Giants fought back in the second game to overthrow the Cubs, 2 to 0, the Cardinals won their single skirmish in Boston by 8 to 3 and so regained the advantage which accrued to the Giants from the St. Louis defeat in Brooklyn 24 hours ago.

The Red Birds led by a full game tonight with two more to go against Boston before they invade the Polo Grounds for the grand finale on Sunday. In the interim the Giants must associate with the Cubs in two games.

Hubbell pitched effectively enough against Nehf, but Nehf was just the shade better that the score indicates.

The Giants thought they scored another run in the sixth and rushed to John Heydler with a protest when Bill Klem ruled otherwise. McGraw contended that Gabby Hartnett wilfully grasped the leg of Andy Reese in a run down play which trapped the Giant left fielder between third and home, and that Hartnett at the time was not trying to touch Reese with the ball for the simple reason that somebody else had it.

Since only the judgment of the umpire seems to be involved, the protest very likely will be thrown out. Mr. Hydler will make known his ruling tomorrow. Score:

MRS. FISK WINS

Beats Miss Hampshire to Capture Women's All-City Golf

Mrs. R. R. Fisk is the all-city women's golf champion. Playing continued excellent golf that marked her game throughout the tournament, Mrs. Fisk yesterday defeated Miss Laura Lee Hampshire in the final round of the first annual all-city event, at Wichita Falls Golf and Country club.

Miss Hampshire also displayed an excellent game and forced Mrs. Fisk to shoot her best golf before the match was decided, 4 and 3.

Miss Dell Hatchitt defeated Mrs. R. A. King, 5 and 4 to win the second flight title.

Plans Made For Grid Game Here

Tickets Ready for Simmons And Methodist Battle

Plans for the football game at Spudder park Oct. 13, when Southern Methodist university meets Simmons university, were furthered yesterday in a conference here of Hubert Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce; G. B. Sandefer, business manager of athletics at Simmons, and Guy Airey, secretary of the ball club.

The chamber of commerce is sponsoring the game between the Dallas and Abilene gridders and Airey will assist in the distribution of tickets. The tickets will be printed immediately and placed on sale within a few days although reservations for the game may be made now at the chamber of commerce.

Sandefer is highly enthusiastic over the game. He says that under the direction of Frank Bridges, former Baylor mentor, as coach, the Cowboys will be a mighty formidable team to beat. He looks for a close game here and believes that the Mustangs, who meet the Army the preceding week in New York, may have a big surprise in store for them in the affair here.

More than 1,000 rooters and bands from each school will make the trip here for the game, Sandefer said.

Rochester-Indianapolis Series Halted by Rain

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—The second game of the little world series between Rochester and Indianapolis was postponed today because of rain and cold weather.

The game will be played tomorrow, which was open, and the closing games here will be played Saturday and Sunday as scheduled.

CHAMPS WIDEN LEAD OVER A'S

Hugmen Now Lead Mackmen by 2 1-2 Games

DETROIT, Sept. 27. (AP)—The Yankees moved to within one short stride of their sixth American league pennant by staggering through to two victories over the Detroit Tigers here today by scores of 4 to 3 and 8 to 5. The second game was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of darkness.

One more victory by the champions now would clinch the flag, even if the Athletics should sweep their remaining three in Chicago. The Yankee lead today was increased to two and one-half games, as the Mackmen, in second place, had but one contest to win from the White Sox. Scores, first game:

Yankee Catchers Lack Much in Ability, With Bengough Best of Lot; Athletic Backstop Superior to All

(This is one of a series of articles in which Louis A. Dougher, Universal Service baseball expert, discusses the merits of the teams which are contenders to figure in the world series. Louis A. Dougher is one of the country's outstanding sports critics, and for more than 15 years has devoted his talents especially to the realm of baseball. The pitchers will be the subject of tomorrow's article.)

(These figures includes all games played including Thursday, Sept. 6, 1928).

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (US)—Unless Mickey Cochrane gets into the world series of 1928, the National league should have a wide margin over its rival organization behind the bat.

Cochrane is just about the best backstop in the American league. He is a horse for work, going in there day after day with never a sign of weakening. The hard grind has cut into his batting average this year, but he still remains a hard, dangerous batsman when runs are needed.

The Mackman handles all kinds of pitching in faultless style. Quinn's salivary shoots, Grove's fast one and Rommel's slow knuckler are all alike to him. He's just one fine catcher, that's what.

The Yankee receivers are nothing to write home about. Little Bengough is the best, largely because of his throwing. He outclasses Grabowski and Collins in that department. If the Yankees win the pennant, it won't be because of their catchers, but rather despite them.

Hogan has been a real surprise with the Giants. The big boy has fitted into the McGraw machine almost perfectly. He has caught almost all the games his team has played and has a batting mark of .336.

The Cubs' star, Gabby Hartnett, is supposed to be the best catcher in the National league, but St. Louis insists that Wilson is his superior. Wilson came to the Cardinals from the Phillies, and has fitted in splendidly in the Red Bird machine. He is a star receiver and timely hitter.

No matter where the National league pennant flies, the home team will have good catching. The A's will have high-class backstopping. The Yankees will have their same old floundering kind of work they have had all season.

JACK CONFERS WITH RICKARD

It Is Intimated Dempsey Will Try 'Comeback'

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (UP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight fight champion, now appearing in "The Big Fight," a stage melodrama, had a conference today with Tex Rickard, the man who showed him the way to make more dollars than he ever will make as a stage star.

After the conference Dempsey was asked whether he had any intentions of returning to the ring to seek the title he lost to Gene Tunney in Philadelphia two years ago.

"The old man is still in retirement—for awhile," Jack said.

The expression "for awhile" implies quite a change of heart on Dempsey's part.

Heretofore Jack had insisted that he was absolutely through as a fighter. In a more formal interview Dempsey had declared, "I am through." "I am not cutting any paper dolls as yet and I do not propose to get in that condition."

Rickard held out no specific offer to Dempsey at this time, but the promoter offered the ex-champion the best among the crop of the heavyweight contenders, and there is no mistaking their verdict.

Tex and Jack were led to the inevitable conclusion that Dempsey would draw an excellent crowd in meeting any of the heavyweights seeking the title vacated by Gene Tunney.

New York U. Boasts Great Pair of Tackles

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (UP)—New York university football followers believe the Violets will have the greatest pair of tackles in the East this season in Al Lassman, the giant captain, and Galahad Grant. Lassman's leg injury has healed and with Grant he is expected to give N. Y. U. a powerful defense.

First Baseman Tolson Returns to Chicago Cubs

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27. (AP)—Completion of a deal whereby Charles Tolson, first baseman, goes back to the Chicago Cubs was announced today by the Los Angeles Pacific Coast league club.

Los Angeles got $10,000 and title to Ray Jacobs, third baseman, with the Angels under an optional agreement.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

IF THE CARDINALS get into the world series—which it seems they will—one of the most interesting figures of the classic of balldom will be Rabbit Maranville. It seems that these aged ball players, particularly those whose habits of living are rather careless, undergo a process of rejuvenation when they go to the St. Louis National league club. There was Grover Cleveland Alexander, who went to the Cards discredited by the Chicago Cubs, and helped win league and world championships two years ago. And now there is Maranville.

THE RABBIT is a little, mite of a man, one of the smallest fellows who ever played in the big leagues. He's old, and his life has been a succession of joyous play. He is anything but the type one would choose to achieve one of the greatest comebacks in baseball history. Why, he broke into the National league in 1912, and in 1914 played with the Boston Braves, that amazing aggregation that came from nowhere to win the pennant and rout the Athletics in four straight games in the world series. He has been at once the pride and despair of his employers. There have been few greater shortstops than Maranville, indeed, except for the incomparable Wagner there was none of much more all-around worth than the Rabbit. But it was all a joyride to him; lots of money to spend, playing with a spark and fire on the ball field and then larking half the night with teammates of like character.

Once they made him manager of the Chicago Cubs, a piece of folly that soon was discovered. For though Maranville is a brainy ball player, it is obvious that he did not have the traits of leadership, of which self-discipline and repression are factors. Finally, the burning of the candle at both ends seemed to have burned out some of the speed of hand and foot, and to have dimmed the eye of Walter Maranville, called the Rabbit. And so he was sent away from big league scenes, and his demise as a major leaguer was written regretfully, because he was a star player and a delightful, whimsical fellow.

MARANVILLE went to Rochester last year in the International league. And then, a change came over him. He became more serious. He became imbued with the determination to return to the big time, for one last fling. Tommy Thevenow, Cardinal shortstop, broke a leg. Heinie Schuble, called in from a Cardinal farm, this at Danville, Ill., was a promising kid. But not fit to step into a job with a pennant contender. So the Cardinals, in desperation, brought back Maranville.

AND SO, THERE he is, still a flash in the field; still a dangerous hitter, but subdued somewhat, as the years will mellow a man, such as they did to Cobb and McGraw. And there he is, ready to take his place in a world series, a post which he has occupied 'way back in 1914. What's that about youth must be served?

BARONS SNATCH SECOND IN ROW

Birmingham Rallies to Nip Buffaloes, 5 to 3

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 27 (AP)—The Birmingham Barons, battling the Houston Buffaloes for supremacy in the Dixie baseball fields, staged a sensational seventh inning rally today to score four runs and take their second straight game by a 5 to 3 score.

Yaryan, sturdy Baron catcher, accounted for the fifth tally in the eighth inning with a home run in the center field bleachers.

Bill Hallahan, Buffalo southpaw ace, went into the game in the seventh inning after pitching the opener yesterday, when Ken Penner was knocked off the hill. Hallahan is charged with the defeat. Score:

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in Regard to Health and Diet Will Be Answered by Dr. McCoy, Who Can Be Addressed in Care of This Paper

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, Sept. 30.

Sunday—Breakfast: Coddled eggs, re-toasted Shredded Wheat Biscuit, stewed or ripe figs with cream. Lunch: Baked egg plant, cooked celery, sliced tomatoes on lettuce. Dinner: Tomato and celery soup, roast veal, string beans, stuffed beet salad, ice cream.

Monday — Breakfast: Waffle, broiled ham, apple sauce. Lunch: Melon or any one kind of fresh fruit, all desired. Dinner: Broiled steak, spinach, combination salad of tomatoes, celery and cucumbers. *Baked peaches.

Tuesday — Breakfast: Poached egg, Melba toast, stewed apricots. Lunch: Baked potato, string beans, lettuce. Dinner: Roast mutton, baked ground beets, McCoy salad, Jello or Jell-well.

Wednesday — Breakfast: Cottage cheese, fresh or canned peaches. Lunch: Cooked carrots and peas, raw celery. Dinner: Boiled lean beef, mashed turnips, salad of cold cooked asparagus on lettuce, prune whip.

Thursday — Breakfast: Baked eggs, crisp bacon, Melba toast, stewed raisins. Lunch: Fresh pears as desired, with handful of pecan nuts. Dinner: Roast pork, zucchini, salad of sliced cucumbers, baked apple.

Friday — Breakfast: Toasted breakfast food, with cream or milk. Lunch: Macaroni, spinach, head lettuce. Dinner: Baked white fish, stewed tomatoes, string bean salad, plain Jello or Jell-well, no cream.

Saturday — Breakfast: Coddled eggs, Melba toast, stewed prunes. Lunch: One pint of buttermilk, 10 or 12 dates. Dinner: Nut loaf, buttered beets, sliced tomatoes on lettuce, baked pears.

*Baked Peaches—Peel and halve the desired number of large ripe peaches. If the fresh peaches are not procurable, use the canned ones. Heap into each half a tablespoonful or more of ground seedless raisins and bake for about 20 minutes with a little water in a tightly covered pan. Serve hot or cold with cream.

Questions and Answers

Question: J. L. asks: "Can a person be anemic and have high blood pressure at the same time?"

Answer: It is possible to have anemia and high blood pressure at the same time, as high blood pressure is caused either by hypertension of the arteries, or due to hardening of the arterial walls. Anemia is a condition where there is a lack of red blood cells and hemoglobin.

Question: W. H. J. asks: "What is a pignolia?"

Answer: A pignolia is the same as the pine nut, a seed of the pine tree which is frequently used in confectionery and eaten raw, roasted and salted as are other nuts. Most of them are imported from Italy, Spain and France, but some excellent varieties are raised in Mexico and the western states. They are an excellent food, rich in protein and fats and may be used as the principal part of a protein meal.

Question: R. S. asks: "Will you please explain what is meant by an internal bath? One woman I know is drinking a quart of warm water night and morning, and another is using two quarts of warm water as an enema night and morning. Which is correct? Also, is a warm tub bath all right when one hasn't a shower?"

Answer: When the term "internal bath" is used it usually refers to a washing of the colon by what is otherwise known as an enema. It is true that one can wash out the stomach by drinking large quantities of water, but this has a very different effect upon the intestines, as the water is absorbed mostly in the stomach. You can arrange a very satisfactory shower by securing one of the shower attachments which connects with your bathtub faucet. A shower can then be taken while sitting or squatting in the tub. It is better to use cool or cold water, as the warm water is always enervating.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to
FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By GEORGE A. CHAMBERLAIN

Besides being the author of 24 novels, several plays and countless short stories, George Agnew Chamberlain was once the deputy consul general in Brazil, consul general at Lourenco Marques, and consul general at Mexico City, Mexico.

Geo. A. Chamberlain

Chamberlain's favorite joke cannot be a very old chestnut, because it must have been born after ladies took to wearing cloche hats.

"Just below my Paris workshop, on the Rue Raynouard," he told me, "the ancient but important thoroughfare narrows so that cars cannot pass, though they frequently think they can.

"Upon hearing a crash I always rush to the balcony, and upon one occasion I was amply rewarded.

"Two open taxis, the near one laden with ladies, were jammed together, head on, and a flood of traffic was banking up behind each. Triumphing above the din, the cabman beneath my window roared to the cabman in trouble in front:

"'Hey, you ahead! Where are you going with that load of mushrooms?'

"The ladies looked around angrily, whereupon the cab driver added with amazement and contrition:

"'Ah, they're not mushrooms—they're ladies! How do you do, ladies!'"

Anti-Saloon Paper Denies Faith Prejudice

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 27. (UP)—Denial that the Anti-Saloon league holds any religious prejudice against Governor Smith is made in the current issue of the Missouri edition of the American Issue, organ of the league.

"Had the Democratic party nominated another Catholic, Senator Walsh of Montana, the Anti-Saloon league would have endorsed him," an editorial says.

An edition of the American Issue published in Ohio recently urged voters to vote for Herbert Hoover annd against Smith if they "believe in Anglo-Saxon Protestant domination."

Three R's to Sway Election, Says Thomas

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (UP)—Norman E. Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, believes after a speaking tour to the west coast that Herbert Hoover will be elected.

"The three R's—religion, race and rum—in the order named, will sway thousands of voters," he said. "I look to see the Republicans win because of their superior organization, if nothing else."

Thomas doubted that Governor Smith, Democratic presidential candidate, would succeed in winning the support of all the La Follette voters of 1924.

Says Fight Against Woman Is Camouflage

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (UP)—Attacks on Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general now campaigning for Herbert Hoover, were characterized as "pure camouflage" in a statement by Dr. S. E. Nicholson, secretary of the Anti-Saloon league, today.

"The hullabaloo now being raised by the wet press and politicians against the Ohio speeches of Mrs. Willebrandt," Nicholson said, "are pure camouflage designed to counteract the votes she is making for Herbert Hoover."

Last of 'Liverymen' Retires From Trade

BRADY, Texas, Sept. 27. (AP)—A. W. Keller of Brady, last of the old line of "liverymen," as he styles himself, has retired.

Twenty-three years ago, Keller engaged in the venture of hauling men and baggage to and from hotels and the union station, and renting out buggies and teams.

With the advent of the horseless carriage, he sold his horses and his buggies and converted the old livery stable into a garage which he now has sold together with his "livery wagon" which he has operated throughout the past quarter of a century.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP)—Apprehensions of cold wet weather in the south seemed responsible for continued buying and additional advances in the cotton market today. Active months sold about half a cent above yesterday's closing quotations, December advancing to 19.35, or more than 2 cents a pound above the recent low level. The advance was checked at this level by profit taking, which caused moderate reactions in the last few minutes, with December closing at 19.29. The general market closed barely steady, but 36 to 43 points net higher.

October sold at 19.36 and March at 19.20, net advances of 45 to 52 points, but there was a little more southern selling at these figures, and a flurry of profit taking in the last few minutes caused the final reactions of some 6 to 12 points from the best.

Private cables reported Bombay buying and trade calling in Liverpool and said there was an improved demand for cotton cloths from China.

Exports today, 34,897 bales, making making 825,027 so far this season. Port receipts 67,085. U. S. port stocks 991,503.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27 (AP)—Cotton prices again traded to new highs for the present movement today and showed a recovery of approximately $10.50 a bale compared with the season's low reach on Sept. 19. Unfavorable weather in the belt, particularly low temperatures and an official forecast for rain in the western section, was the primary influence behind the advance which carried December contracts to 18.72 or 209 points above the season's low. Profit-taking in final trading carried the option off to 18.66 where it closed, net 38 points higher. The general market closed steady at net advance of 33 to 38 points.

The opening was steady despite relatively easy Liverpool cables and first trades showed gains of 2 to 9 points. A slight recession of 1 to 5 points right after the start was followed by rather heavy trade buying and covering induced by early reports of low temperatures and rains in Texas where such weather is said to be harmful to crop progress.

Some hedge selling developed on the advance but was quickly absorbed. Buying was further stimulated when the weather map confirmed the early unfavorable reports and the official forecast called for rains in most sections of the western belt. The map's showing of freezing temperatures in the central northwest added to the firmness. Some speculative buying was also reported on the market. Before the demand was supplied December and January sold up to 18.63 and March 18.62, or 34 to 35 points above the previous close.

Around mid-session realizing and selling on the theory that the market was in a weakened technical position carried prices off 8 points but a fresh wave of buying ensued and forced December up to 18.70 and active months generally 39 to 42 points net up.

A renewal of realizing brought price level back 11 to 12 points but the loss was recovered in final trading when active position made new high at 18.72 for December, 18.71 for January and 18.70 for March, or 42 to 44 points above the previous close. Traders again realized in right at the end and the market closed 5 to 7 points under the best.

Stock Values Show Steady Decline Despite Easier Call Money Rate

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—Stocks sold off again today in the face of easing the call money rate from renewal of 6½ to 6 per cent. They continued to slide even though it was known that some brokers made loans outside of regular channels at 5½ per cent. Recent bull traders talked of selling from commission houses due to nervousness regarding the reserve bank meeting, but were noticeably less active in their own "selected stocks." General Motors closed 4¾ lower as a result of combined short selling and profit taking. Montgomery Ward lost 9½ points, Nickel over 3, Anaconda to an equal extent while other recently active stocks declined from 1 to more than 2 points.

Although a tip on Steel was given wide circulation it lost almost a point also. Oils went off with the industrials although several favorable developments took place in the industry. Rails were fairly firm but very quiet.

Oils Disappoint

Oils proved a disappointment, for while several were taken in good manner they showed none of the aggressive response to "good news" which they should if the bulls were acting in accordance with their talk. In fact the petroleum group rather demonstrated the correctness of the street's view that "you can't talk 'em up." Mr. Cutten arrived in New York but neither Texas, nor Tidewater indicated that he was adding to his interest therein. Sinclair slipped lower, although interests usually familiar with the affairs of the company were not particularly interested in Harry Sinclair's statement that he was not going to let go. The Barnsdall resumption of dividends, which came as expected, also failed to stimulate, as the announcement was made while selling throughout the market was heaviest during the afternoon.

Professionals Win

Professionals who have taken licking after licking on the short side were meeting with more success in their operations than for many weeks so that when the bull leaders let it be known that Steel would halt the reaction they immediately concentrated thereon and closed it near the low of the day.

General Motors and Montgomery Ward were also subjected to this kind of selling and the latter was reported to be harboring the largest short interest in more than a year, when trading finished. Radio shorts were helped a little by the news from Washington, although insiders did not appear to be worrying.

Individual stock news was of small importance, as it became increasingly obvious that Durant, Cutten et al were not going to work as actively bullish as they have been recently. It was demonstrated that the entire list is in topheavy condition. Realization that the rediscount rate may be raised at any time was the principal reason cited for the less aggressive bull tactics.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 27 (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Beef steer and yearling trade around the 11-market circuit was slow and where supplies were sufficient packers enforced moderate to sharp declines. Shipping demand for choice native grain feds was narrow with some sales 50c lower. Other killing classes and stockers and feeders were dull. Chicago had $18.40 top on yearlings; $18.25 was paid for best heavy steers. Good 1,170-pound fed grassers at Kansas City reached $15.75. Most short fed grassers turned at $12.50@14.00. Supply estimated at 33,850 was 2,700 short of a week ago and 4,800 under a year ago.

Hogs were tendered another price jolt of 25@50c, several points closing at the full decline. The day's top of $11.00 was paid at Chicago, and at Kansas City the top lowered to $10.65. Total offerings approximated 73,700 against 68,099 last Thursday and 67,655 a year ago.

No material price changes were registered on killing classes of sheep at most markets, but feeding lambs were steady to unevenly lower. Bulk of fat range lambs in Chicago cleared at $13.85, with choice handy-weights still held above $14.00 at a late hour. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 77,500, a shortage of around 38,400 from a week ago and 16,000 less than the same day last year.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Hogs—25,000, 25 to 50c lower; top $11.00 for 190 to 240 pounds; butchers, medium to choice 250 to 350 pounds $10.00@10.50; 200 to 250 pounds $10.00@11.00; 160 to 200 pounds $9.50@11.00; 130 to 160 pounds $9.00@10.50.

Cattle—10,000; calves 3,000; better grade fed steers and yearlings weak to 25c lower; slaughter steers, good and choice 1,300 to 1,500 pounds $14.75@18.50; 1,100 to 1,300 pounds $14.50@18.50; 950 to 1,100 pounds $14.50@18.50; fed yearlings, good and choice 750 to 950 pounds $14.50@17.50; cows, good and choice $9.00@12.50; bulls good and choice (beef) $9.50@10.75; vealers (milk-fed) good and choice $16.00@17.00.

Sheep—22,000; strictly choice fat lambs about steady; bidding lower on in-between grade; sheep and feeders generally steady. Lambs, good and choice (92 pounds down) $12.25@14.15; ewes, medium to choice (150 pounds down) $4.25@6.75.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 27. (AP)—Hogs—8,000; 200 pounds up 25 to 35c lower; lighter weights, weak to 25c lower; top $10.65 on choice 200 to 210-pound weights; butchers, medium to choice 250 to 350 pounds $10.10@10.55; 200 to 250 pounds $10.15@10.65; 160 to 200 pounds $9.50@10.65; 130 to 160 pounds $8.75@10.00.

Cattle—3,500; calves 800; steady to 15c lower; slaughter steers, good and choice 1,300 to 1,500 pounds $13.25@17.60; 1,100 to 1,300 pounds $13.25@17.75; 950 to 1,100 pounds $13.25@17.75; fed yearlings, good choice 750 to 950 pounds $13.50@17.75; heifers, good and choice 850 pounds down $12.00@16.50; cows, good and choice $8.50@12.00; vealers (milk-fed) medium to choice $8.00@15.00.

Sheep—7,000; steady. Lambs, good and choice (92 pounds down) $12.50@13.60; ewes, medium to choice (150 pounds down) $4.50@7.00.

Tulsan Convicted for Hijacking Chicagoans

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 27. (UP)—L. R. Williams, 27, sentenced to life imprisonment for allegedly hijacking two Chicagoans in a hotel here July 15, today continued his protest of innocence.

He was found guilty by a jury of having robbed T. J. Whitlock and S. J. Russell of Chicago of about $2,000 in diamonds, yet unrecovered. Although Williams had an alibi, Whitlock said his identification was positive.

The jury left the sentence to the court and District Judge Hudson pronounced life sentence.

Grain

GRAIN REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

By Thomas Temple Hoyne

CHICAGO, Sept. 27 (US)—Most of the grain futures gave a disappointing exhibition for bulls today—so much so that it seemed like a warning to longs to exercise the utmost caution for the rest of this week until the September futures are out of the way.

At the close wheat was unchanged to 1⅛ higher; corn was ½ to ⅝ lower; oats were unchanged to ⅝ higher; rye was ¼ higher to 2⅛ lower.

It was the action of the markets rather than the priced at which they closed that discouraged bulls. They were erratic and repeatedly turned weak when they should hav been strong. This was especially true of torn.

The corn market made one feel that something was going on under the surface that had decided bearing on the situation in all the futures. December corn had seemd at the close on Wednesday to be in an excellent position to develop pronounced strength, but it did nothing of the kind, although there was a lot of buying at and above 79. At the end prices sank away feebly.

The wise course, it seems to me, will be to keep away from the corn market until next week. Tomorrow it may come back strong, but the way in which it closed did not suggest that it would. It looked to me as if it might be a dangerous market for a day or two.

Wheat opened up strong on the higher cable from Liverpool. But it sagged away for ⅝ from its early top. Later it had an excellent bulge of 1⅝ from its low point. But the advance did not hold and late in the session prices faded away to a close right at the bottom for the day.

The foregoing was the case with the deferred futures. With September wheat it was different. That showed strength and finished with a good advance for the session.

But because September wheat is the current future too much stress cannot be laid on its action in trying to diagnose the market condition in general.

Tomorrow may furnish an acid test for wheat. If it drags downward to a lower close the market may not be any good on the long side until later when bulls take hold in a big way again at a lower level.

This is a time, it seems to me, when the bull should exercise great restraint and not rush too quickly into buying on bulges.

Rye showed plenty of strength early, but the September future—which it might well be supposed ought to remain very strong—weakened at the end.

If the bull markets in grain that promised are really coming in a big way there is plenty of time to get aboard without taking undue risks at what looks like dangerous spots.

In the cash market wheat was 1 to 2 up; corn was unchanged to 1½ up; oats were steady to ½ up; rye was 1½ to 2½ up; barley was steady.

HOOVER LEADS DIGEST'S POLL

Republican Is Given Heavy Margin in Mail Vote

Hoover again leads Smith in the second week's returns from 12 states in the Literary Digest's 19,000,000-ballot presidential "straw" poll.

Smith is given 92,855 votes, or 31 per cent, and Hoover has 198,292, or 67 per cent of the total of 294,247 votes reported received. The two per cent remainder is distributed among the three minor candidates.

A significant feature of the poll is that over one-half of Smith's votes to date have come from former Republican voters while Hoover has gained only about 12 per cent of his strength from erstwhile Democrats, according to an analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1924."

No returns are scheduled as having been received yet from any of the states in the "solid South." Maryland shows 11,566 votes for Hoover as against 7,396 for Smith.

Demo Strength Gains

The Democratic strength in this 1928 poll is twice that of the 1924 poll at the same relative time and with comparative returns, the Literary Digest points out. Coolidge was then leading Davis by a margin of over 4 to 1, it is said, while Hoover now leads Smith by 2 to 1. In the final returns the Coolidge lead was reduced to less than 2 to 1. If the Democratic aspirant now gains similar strength as the present poll progresses it is presaged that the contest will be closely fought.

While Hoover is leading Smith by 30,814 to 12,822 votes in the latter's native state of New York, it is indicated that these votes are only a fraction of the total to be received and include as yet none from New York City.

"Several details combine to temper the strongly Republican suggestion of this early vote," the Literary Digest states. "Perhaps the most significiant is that Governor Smith seems to be drawing more than one-half of his total vote from sources which were Republican in 1924, for in his total of 92,855, it will be noted, 33,817 Republicans as of 1924 are represented as against only 35,054 Democrats. Nor is this surprising drift of Republicans counterbalanced by the Democratic drift to the Republican candidate.

"An important factor in the first scattering vote from New York state, shown as 30,814 for Hoover to 12,822 for Smith, is the fact that the ballots thus far tabulated come entirely from districts outside of New York City.

"This more than two-to-one vote in favor of the Republican candidate may be compared with analogous figures from the second week of the Literary Digest poll in 1924, when 17,920 New York votes were shown for Coolidge as against 2,764 for Davis, a preponderance of more than five to one against two and a half to one in the present poll.

"The actual election vote in New York state in 1924 gave Davis 950,796 to 1,820,058 for Coolidge, while, in the same election, Smith ran ahead of Roosevelt by 1,627,111 to 1,518,552. The vote of New York City, generally admitted to be strongly for Smith, will begin to appear in three columns in the near future, together with the vote of the 'Solid South,' as yet unreported.

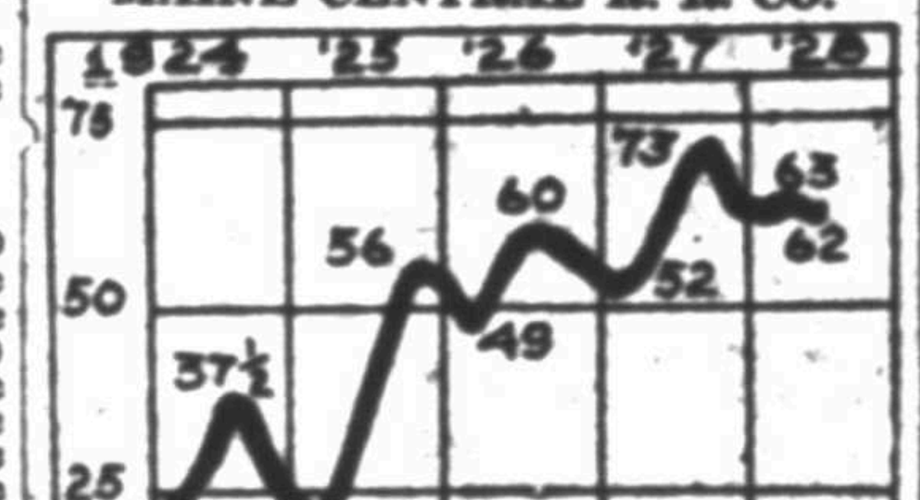

Parity Looms

"These factors, judging on the basis of the 1924 poll, may be expected considerably to cut down the Republican lead, if not to bring the two candidates to a practical parity.

"In all considerations of the Literary Digest poll at the second week's stage, it must be remembered that it shows approximately twice the Democratic strength shown by the 1924 poll at the same stage."

MAINE CENTRAL R. R. CO.

Five-Year Record

The Maine Central Railroad company operates 1,155 miles of road extending into north and northeastern Maine from Portland, and also has trackage in New Hampshire, Vermont and New Brunswick. It was formerly controlled by the Boston and Maine, but the latter company was forced to relinquish its holding owing to financial difficulties. Freight tonnage has shown comparatively small change in the last 10 years. Revenue freight density has shown a fair increase and this is true also of freight trainloads.

Operating revenues gained during the war and up to 1920, but for five years after that time the company showed a deficit after charges. Net in 1927 amounted to $551,025 as compared with $1,270,397 in 1926. The 1927 income was equivalent to $18.37 a share on the preferred stock, and $3.34 a share on the common. For the first five months of 1928, net operating income was $1,110,697 compared with $1,030,960 for the corresponding period of 1927.

Funded debt totals $28,206,500. Capital stock outstanding consists of $3,000,000 in 5 per cent cumulative preferred of $100 par value and $12,007,100 in common shares of $100 par value.

There was an interruption in dividends following the release of federal control, but dividends on both the preferred and common stock are now being paid at the regular 5 per cent rate on the preferred and 4 per cent annually on the common.

As of January 1, 1928, total current assets were $4,415,205; current liabilities were $1,989,257; net working capital was $2,425,948, and book value applicable to the common stock, $160.24 a share.

NEW IDEA

Beaumont Gives Dallas Horse Laugh Over Weed Drive

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 27. (AP)—Beaumont city officials are "laughing in their sleeves" at the expense of the city of Dallas.

Dallas has announced the city will set out with lawnmowers and shear the lots where property owners fail to keep them in proper shape.

Beaumont had the same idea four years ago. Weeds and grass were cut. The bills were presented with the statements for taxes. Tax payers refused to pay. City officials then gleaned the fact from Texas statutes that there was no law by which they can be made to pay, so no suits went to trial.

There are laws, however, by which citizens can be compelled to cut their vacant lots, lawyers here say.

CONSOLIDATED OIL LOCATION

Consolidated Oil company made location for its No. D-2, W. T. Waggoner to be drilled 150 feet south and east of the northwest corner of Purnell survey, abstract 944, west of Consolidated pool Wilbarger county.

CHOKED OFF AT 1,152 FEET

Golding-Cochran and associates' No. 1 Pease located in the Snell survey, Archer county ran the tester to a sand at 1,475-81 feet and failed to make a producer. The test was later abandoned as dry at a total depth of 1,552 feet.

IN THE JOLLY POOL

The Champion Oil company No. 1 Hatfield ranch located about four miles south of the metropolis of Jolly in Clay county is shut down on a lime for water at a depth of 1,522 feet.

EMPIRE LOCATION

The Empire Gas and Fuel company made location for its No. H-1 L. F. Wilson to be drilled 330 feet south, and 1,690 feet west of northeast corner of Wm. Walker survey, Archer county.

DUFFEY AND KAISER

Duffey and Kaiser made location for a wildcat test to be drilled on the G. L. Jones estate, Mathew Maben survey, about one mile northeast of the town of Bryson in Jack county. The test is also one and one-half miles northeast of the Texas Petroleum Producers' Jones well which is making 200 barrels per day from the deep pay.

Mines May Become University Branch

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 27. (AP)—Plans to have the Texas College of Mines in El Paso made the western branch of the University of Texas within the next few years are being laid by officials of the institution and citizens here.

Since the institution became coeducational last year the plans have been in the making. Until the year 1927-28, the Mines has been a technical institution only, and enrollment being around 125 students. Only a few of these were girls.

But when it was announced in the summer of 1927 that the school would offer academic work, interest became intense in El Paso and citizens took up the idea of making it a full branch of the University offering degrees in academic as well as engineering work. The enrollment last year exceeded 500 students, about 300 of them girls.

The Mines enrolled this year with a slightly larger enrollment and Dean C. A. Puckett, head of the school, believes it will be well over 600 students before the end of the college year. Girls are in the majority this year, there being approximately 300 and others coming in every day.

The Mines does not offer full work on degrees now. It offers three years in most subjects and two in others, the work being accepted on accredited degrees from the university and other institutions of the first class.

Special Wichita Car to Army Game

One special car containing more than 20 Wichita Falls people has been organized for the Katy special to the Army-S. M. U. game at West Point, according to W. A. Little, division passenger agent of railroad here.

Four special all-Pullman trains leaving Dallas on Oct. 3 have been organized and indications are that another will be filled, Mr. Little said.

Reservations are still coming in strong from Wichita Falls and another Wichita Falls special car may be organized.

The trip includes, railroad fare from Dallas to New York, sleeping and dining accomodations to New York, free bus service, room accomodations, a seat to a Broadway show, a round trip from New York to West Point and a selected seat at the game. Prices per capita range from $129 to $138.

Only railroad fare is included in the return though a time limit until Oct. 18 is placed on the ticket to enable patrons to stay for the World Series games.

Stopovers will be made at Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, and St. Louis on the return trip.

Daughters of Nile Meet Monday Night

The regular meeting of the Daughters of the Nile will be held Monday night at 7:30 at Maskat temple, according to Mrs. Charles H. Caldwell, queen.

Plans for the seated tea for Shriners wives at Maskat temple Oct. 4 and activities at the fall ceremonial of the Shriners will be discussed at the meeting.

All members are urged to be present.

NEW WILDCATS IN WEST TEXAS

21 New Locations Made in Permian Basin

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Sept. 27.—Twenty-one locations for new oil tests, almost half of them wildcats, were made last week in eight counties in the Permian basin of West Texas. This number was 16 less than during the preceding week in seven counties, but increased the total for the last 16 weeks to 314.

Winkler county replaced Jones in the lead with seven locations. Jones reported five, Pecos county three, Howard county two, and Borden, Crockett, Hudspeth and Runnels counties one each. Two of the Winkler locations were in the vicinity of Atlantic and Kessler and Logan's No. 1 Leck, in section 3, block 74, public school land, which several months ago opened a new area about 9½ miles north and a little west of the nearest production in the Hendrick field. Corrections were listed in one location in Haward county and two locations in Jones county, where during the week before there were 13 locations.

List of Locations

Locations for the week ending Sept. 22, alphabetically by counties and companies, follow:

Borden county: Condor Petroleum company No. 1 E. A. Hall, 1650 feet from the north and east lines of section 5, block 32, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey; a 3500-foot test.

Crockett county: Zoch, Moncrief and Marland No. 1 Tippett, 330 feet north of the center of the north line of section 45, block 31, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey, in section 1, block JH.

Howard county: Henshaw Oil corporation and others' No. 2-A Settles, 1750 feet from the north line and 2797 feet from the west line of section 6, block 32, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Midwest Exploration Co. No. 2-A Clay, 250 feet from the north line and 1070 feet from the west line of section 139, block 29, W. & N. W. Ry. Co. survey.

Hudspeth county: California company No. 1 Theisen, 3821 feet from the south line and 2555 feet from the west line of section 19, block E, University land.

Jones county: Roberts Oil corporation No. 2 Smith, 330 feet south from the south and west lines of a 40-acre lease in section 51, block 18, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, which Roberts took over from Hudson & Weaver.

Roberts Oil corporation No. 3 Smith, 330 feet from the south and east lines of the 40-acre lease in section 51, block 18, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Roeser & Pendleton No. 1-B Higgs, 200 feet from the north and east lines of Roeser & Pendleton's 100-acre tract in section 30, W. T. Scott survey.

Sinclair Oil and Gas company No. 2 Bickley, 990 feet from the north line and 319 feet from the west line of the northeast quarter of section 50, block 18, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Woods & Williams' No. 1 M. A. Pair, 500 feet from the north and west lines of section 108, Kirkland survey No. 3.

Pecos county: Humble Oil and Refining company No. 10-A Smith, 2066 feet from the north line and 2750 feet from the west line of section 36, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey; spudded Sept. 17.

Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 6-D Yates, 821 feet from the south line and 8253 feet from the west line of section 62, block 1, I. & G. N. Ry. Co. survey; rigging up.

Zoch, Moncrief & Marland No. 1 Union Land Co., in the center of river section 35, block 12, H. & G. N. Ry. Co. survey.

Runnels county: L. A. Foster No. 1 J. T. Currie, 330 feet from the east line and 672 varas from the north line of G. Carroll survey No. 284.

Many in Winkler

Amerada Petroleum corporation No. 1 Leck, 2310 feet from the south and east lines of section 3, block 74, public school lands; building rig.

Jones county: Cosden Oil company and Herbert Oil company No. 5 Bickley, 330 feet from the north line and 320 feet from the east line of the south half of the northwest quarter of section 50, block 18, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey; changed from No. 2 Bickley.

Cranfill & Reynolds No. 1 Bickley, corrected to 460 feet from the north line and 200 feet from the west line of section 50, block 18, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Fire Prevention Program Planned

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 27.—The fire prevention committee met in the offices of the Electra Chamber of Commerce Tuesday afternoon and discussed a program to impress upon the public the importance of fire prevention. Different propositions were discussed, among them being the inspection of the city for poor wiring, trash, debris, etc. Chief of Police J. T. Taylor is also state fire marshal representative here, with full authority to proceed, with the backing of the state fire marshal, with the making of a monthly fire inspection. The following program was arranged, to begin on Oct. 7 and continuing until Oct. 12, that week to be designated as Fire Prevention Week.

Sunday, Oct. 7, the ministers will be asked to make the announcement of the occasion from their pulpits.

Monday, Oct. 8, (1) a fire demonstration in the schools by the Electra fire department; (2) distribution of home questionaires to be filled out by parents and students; (3) distribution of mercantile questionares to be made out by the property owner; (4) delivery of small booklets on the subject to all students of the different schools in the city.

Tuesday, Oct. 9, (1) discussion at the chamber of commerce board of directors meeting.

Wednesday, Oct. 10, clean-up of yards, alleys, streets, and stores of all debris.

Thursday, Oct. 11 (1) assembling of all mercantile questionaires; (2) address at Lions club luncheon; (2) assembling of questionaires from school children.

Friday, Oct. 12 address at weekly meeting of the Rotary club.

It was also decided that an essay contest should be held in the schools, the winner of the essay on Fire Prevention to receive a reward. Fire prevention pictures will be run at the local theaters and every effort will be made to make the project a success.

EMERGENCY IN FLORIDA ENDS

Resumption of Farming Big Problem Now

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 27. (INS)—With the exception of continuing the search for more bodies, the emergency period following the Florida hurricane virtually has passed, A. L. Schafer, director of relief for the American Red Cross, declared today.

One of the principal problems the relief organizations are facing is the question of the length of time before farmers can return to their homes.

The rains have been much heavier than evaporation lately, and the situation is worse rather than improved. It may be weeks or months before the farmers can be put back to work, Schafer declared.

On the shores of Lake Okeechobee, however, new towns are rising through the smoke of the funeral pyres, and as far as possible repairs and reconstruction are under way.

Searchers for bodies now are directing their efforts toward the canals, the inundated lowlands having been pretty well covered.

The Red Cross chief here said that reports from Washington indicate that money is not coming in as fast as expected. He attributed that situation to the fact that many persons apparently believe the damage confined to the winter resort, Palm Beach.

Alleged Gangster Freed Of Killing Merchant

OKEMAH, Okla., Sept. 27. (UP)—A district court jury today found Asa Pendleton, alleged gangster, not guilty of murder in the killing of Claude Ryan, Okemah merchant policeman. The jury had been out all night. Ryan was slain about a year ago when he surprised bandits breaking into a warehouse.

OPEN SUNDAY AND EVENINGS UNTIL 9

5,000 ATTEND MILLER CIRCUS

Old Timers View Scenes of Early Days in West

Old timers attending the 101 Ranch wild west show here Thursday night were vividly reminded of the days when the west was the real west and a man had to know his Indians, guns and horses.

The Miller Brothers' show, the only wild west show now on the road, played to 5,000 persons, and thrilled them with buffalo hunts by Indians, a stage coach holdup by bad men, fancy pistol shooting of glass balls in the air, riding of all kinds, bulldogging and the other thrillers for which the show is famous.

A Cossack troop gave an exhibition of acrobatics on racing horses while carrying bared swords. A herd of elephants, any one of which would make Miss Sugar at the local zoo seem like a Texas bull compared to Pike's peak, performed in full flight formation. The Indians gave exhibitions of the riding and daring which years ago baffled the white man. A negro band puffed and blared, to the delight of Wichita's darktown, whenever the white circus band paused for breath.

To give the crowds their fill of thrills, a cowboy was thrown from his nag at the start of the show, and a girl bareback rider took a dive toward the end of the evening.

The show will go into winter quarters after its performances at the grand homecoming at the 101 Ranch Sunday about four miles from Marland, Okla. Friday it is playing at Gainesville, Saturday at Shawnee.

Fire Prevention Program Drawn

will be blown for two minutes, following which a city fireman will leap from a building at the corner of Tenth street and Scott avenue into a life net. Then the parade will start.

Efforts will be made to find members of the original volunteer bucket brigade which served Wichita Falls before organized fire fighting was known. These will head the parade. Then will come Fire Chief J. L. McClure driving the first model horse-drawn fire equipment. Other models which were used before the present modern equipment came in vogue also will pass in review.

Boy Scouts, the Camp Fire girls and other organizations will be asked to contribute floats carrying out in decoration fire prevention ideas. Many bands also will be in the line of march.

Following sanction of the organization of Fire Prevention week plans, Mr. Williams appointed the following committees to assist in arranging various details:

Service club programs, Roy Carter and Jim Lyle; window decorations, T. W. Bradley and Leon Deaton; schools, Phil Cordell and W. W. Brown; parade, Hubert Harrison, general chairman; Red Cross, Mrs. Maude Smith; traffic squad, Chief Burns; whistles, Sid Covington.

In connection with the parade, plans will be made for taking motion pictures, which will be distributed nationally and also will be shown here following Fire Prevention week.

Appointment of traffic officers at street intersections near school buildings of the city will be asked of the city council, it also was decided at the meeting of the Safety council. Luther Hoffman, W. W. Brown and T. F. Hunter were assigned to work out a plan with the police department for submission to the city council.

The meeting of the council was held following a dinner served in the basement of First Christian church by Boy Scouts. The meal was prepared by Frank Creighton.

J. W. Lyle discussed methods of trash removal in the business district. He recommended this work be done at night as a means of lessening congestion.

Lester Jones, president of the council, appointed a committee composed of A. E. Short, J. L. Jackson Jr., and Solon Featherston to work with the city zoning committee on a beautification program.

It's a girl, although it's dressed like a boy. She is Louise Brooks in the Paramount sound picture, "Beggars of Life" at the Strand.

"Deadman's Curve" is a picturesque name for a movie, and it suggests a roaring train bearing down on a dangerous curve where tragedy has hovered before. We know nothing of this picture, but the speculation on the name alone makes it interesting. "Deadman's Curve" opens at the Mission Saturday.

If any more circuses come to town, they should put the location of their show in their newspaper ads so people won't have to hunt and inquire. The same holds true, to our way of thinking, with people who put ads of rooms for rent in the papers and try to get people to travel long distances to see their rooms only to find that the cost is more or less than they wished to pay. Price and location mean quite a bit, nowadays, and the public can't be fooled by making a secret of either.

Marion Davies in "Her Cardboard Lover" at the Majestic has turned out to be quite a good picture, if the general comments are to be considered. The only only kicks we have heard were to the effect that the film was a bit speedy. In this day and age it seems as though that would lend enchantment to it.

Pastor Tells of Judgment Day In Nazarene Revival Services

"For the great day of His wrath is come and who shall be able to stand?" This text from Revelations was the subject of a sermon delivered Thursday night by Rev. W. B. Walker, pastor of First Nazarene church.

He said in part:

"This is the greatest of all days because it is greater than all the other days before it. The day of creation was a great day; the day of the flood was a great day; the day that Christ was born was a great day; the morning of the resurrection of Christ was also a great day, but none of these days is the day referred to in the text.

All Wait Judgment

"Again, we would say that it is a great day because all the nations of the earth will be there. The rich and poor will be there. The educated and illiterate, the bond and free, the high and the low will be there. All will be included and none will be excluded. If the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly man and the sinner appear? Saved and unsaved alike will stand before the judgment seat of Christ.

"It is a great day because it is a day of wrath. In that day love will be turned into wrath, and mercy into venegance. Christ is now a merciful savior, but then he will be on the judgment. It will be a day in which hands will faint; a day when men will cry, and a day in which men will be tormented and pray.

"Again, the greatness of this day is seen in its revelations. All the mysterious things that have happened in the dark will be brought to light. The terrible crimes that have committed in the dark shall be brought to light. The things that have been hidden for ages will be written in letters of fire on the canvas of the sky. For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, whether we be good, or whether we be evil.

"This will also be a great day because we shall know who will stand. In that day it will take the Birth of Spirit to stand. It will take purity of heart, a prayed up life, and a forgiving spirit to stand in that day. No sham religion will stand before the searching eye of purity.

"In the last place, this will be a great day, because of its separations. In that day the righteous are separated from the unrighteous. It will sever the chaff from the wheat, the good fish from the bad ones, and the sheep from the goats. The separations of the judgment are eternal. All the separations of this world are based on hope of a future meeting. Here we have our loved ones with us for a while, but soon they are torn from us, and transplanted to that blessed blooming paradise above. But when we die here we hope to meet again. But the separations of the judgment are eternal. There will be no future hope of meeting again. The judgment is destiny fixing."

Officers Foiled

City officers were given the "run around" Thursday night when they answered an anonymous call to arrest a negro who was scheduled to bring four pints of whisky to a residence. When the negro arrived the police found an old sack in the back of his car but it was minus the whisky.

OLD TIMERS MEET TODAY

Pioneers Honor Guests at Luncheon

Old timers will hear history, which they helped make, read from Miss Johnnie Morgan's history of Wichita Falls at the Friday noon meeting of the business council in the Kemp hotel.

Pioneers who have lived here 40 years or more have been given a general and public invitation by the chamber of commerce to attend the luncheon as the guests of the chamber.

The program has been announced as one entirely devoted to the pioneers and their stories, outside of the chapter from her city history which Miss Morgan will read.

Tales of the early days will be told by the old timers and there will be a general reunion. Many of those who have lived here a long time have already telephoned to the chamber to accept the invitation and say they will attend.

Wichita Youth Wins Curtis Sales Awards

An award of a first deposit in savings account of a local bank and two shares in a local building and loan association has been tendered Ernest M. Peyton, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Peyton, 1600 Pearl avenue, in recognition of his services with the Curtis Publishing company, it was announced.

Mr. Peyton, according to advices, was promoted to the "expert rank" in the League of Curtis salesmen, an organization of school boys who sell the Curtis publications.

Membership in this organization is limited to those youths enrolled in public schools, and promotion is based on creditable school work simultaneous with maintaining of an efficient business record with the Curtis company.

RETURNS TO WICHITA

R. B. McDonald and wife, who for the past two years have lived at Wellington, Kan., have returned to Wichita Falls to make their home. It was learned Thursday. They are living at the Kemp hotel.

Mr. McDonald, for a number of years was in the printing business here, and in returning is to be in charge of the retail store of the American Printing company, according to G. T. Buchanan of the company.

GRAND JURY MEETS MONDAY

Murder Cases Absent From Court Docket

An extremely light docket faces the October grand jury which will be empaneled Monday morning with the opening of the fall term of the 30th district court by Judge E. G. Thornton. So far there are no murder cases and should none occur before Monday it will mark the first time in several years a Wichita county grand jury has convened with out a homicide investigation in prospect, it was said at the courthouse Thursday.

Members of the grand jury panel are:

J. D. Ashton and I. E. Harwell, Burkburnett; Ed Moreland and Brandon Smith of Electra; J. D. Overby and S. A. Baxter of Iowa Park; Jim Fisher, Oral Jones, John Bradley, Harry Hines, H. P. Hodge, B. A. Staton, W. P. Ferguson, E. W. Marriott, Mack Thomas and N. M. Clifford of Wichita Falls.

Automobile Show Friday's Feature

by a span of mules and it is planned to have four women ride horses, one pair in oldtime riding habit on side saddles and the other dressed in the last word along the styles eastern society wears on western "dude" ranches.

Then father and mother will be allowed a chance to recall their courting days when ownership of a rubber-tired buggy caused less fortunate swains considerable anguish and not little envy. In its heydey possession of this vehicle gave the sleek youths of the nineties pleasure equally commensurate with the modern boy's pride in the family car he can use once or twice a week.

The bicycle, which Indians once described as the laby man's vehicle, allowing the owner to "sit down and walk," then will pass in review.

Last the crowds will see various and sundry models in automobiles beginning with old-timers and ending with the newest designs.

The parade will begin at Ninth street and will pass before the reviewing stand at the intersection of Eighth and Scott. At the close of the parade prizes will be awarded in the old car contest by L. O Brown, president of the Wichita Automobile Dealers' association.

Street Program

With R. E. Shepherd as master of ceremonies an elaborate program will be staged in front of the judges' stand. Band concerts by the Lions club group, an Indian dance by Electra Boy Scouts, vocal numbers by Mr. Shepherd and a fight and wrestling card.

Whirlwind Kelley and Curley Robertson will contest for the Katz medal and eight rounds will be fought by Country Boy Owens of Wichita Falls and Cyclone Hall of Childress.

Nick Kabaros, junior welterweight champion of New England and Matty Matsuda, junior welterweight champ, will close the event with a wrestling match.

Final Call Issued For Sewer Rentals

Letters are being mailed out Friday to all Wichitans who have not paid their delinquent sewer rentals, it was announced at the offices of the city water department Thursday.

These letters are the final notices from the city on the sewer rentals, and are being sent out to give those who have not taken a last chance to pay before their sewer and water service is disconnected or suits filed against them in district court.

Pastor Takes Role of Book Agent To Sell 'Greatest Story in World'

"The greatest Story in the World" was the subject of Dr. Charles L. Goodell, executive secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, in First Methodist church Thursday night. Dr. Goodell opened a two weeks' series of sermons in the church last Sunday and large crowds are attending morning and night services.

"A Heathen Woman's Pledge," will be Dr. Goodell's subject at 10 o'clock Friday morning while he will discuss "Religion in the Home" Friday night at 7:30. No services will be held Saturday.

"The Bible is its own best vindication and none of us need to think that the safety of the Ark of the Lord depends upon our puny hand," Dr. Goodell declared in his sermon Thursday night.

"I am to speak to you of the greatest story in the world and before I am through I am sure we shall all agree to that. But in unfolding my theme I shall play the part of a book agent and indulge myself in the pleasant fiction that I am to unfold to you the story of a book which you have never read and about which you are supposed to know nothing.

"Before I open the book let me tell you something of its history. No book ever was so attacked. It has been investigated, refuted, overthrown and declared demolished, but like a cube of granite however, it has been overturned and it has always appeared right side up. But if the hatred of it has been great, the love of it has been greater.

"Its composition is most unique. Most books are written in one language, by one author and in a limited period. This book was written in at least two languages. It was written in rugged Hebrew, so full of action that almost every word was a verb.

This book has been the salvation of the most classic language of the ages, for one of the greatest students of the classics has said that Greek came forth from the dead with this book in its hand. Nations were conquered in order that when the time was ripe this book might have a language flexible enough to tell its story with power to lift the world, and rhythm as graceful as a dancer's song.

"The story of how the world got a Bible so marvelously preserved is of wonderful interest. Printing itself was invented in order that this book might be multiplied. It was the first book to come from the Press of Gutenberg. When Cadmus introduced printing in England it was this book that appeared and in order that he might spread the truth on this side of the water the first printed book was a part of this volume. The greatest sensation which ever happened in book circles was in conection with this book. When a revision of it was ready for distribution a little more than a generation ago the streets of New York were blocked with express wagons waiting to get hold of it and rush it to the uttermost parts of the land.

"Its composition is not only unique but it is the most popular book in the world. The popularity of a book is indicated by its circulation and when a book has a circulation of 100,000 copies it may be fairly called a popular book. If the fly leaf of the next Bible printed by the New York Bible society had the number of its circulation printed on it, it would be seven hundred million.

"Finally let me remind you that it is fragrant with memories. We read with pleasure the history of the great hymns. O that someone could arise to write the history of the 23rd psalm. Lips that are still now have whispered its promises; hands that are folded now have clasped in prayer and reverently handled the pages of this book. Eyes that are now closed have read through tears the solace of its words. It has taken the heat out of the fever, the pain out of parting and the sting of death. It has unbared to the hasting soul the gates of everlasting delight beyond the grave. Dying martyrs have cooled their hot faces in its fountains and saints of all ages have pillowed their heads upon it.

"This is the book which you are to circulate. Well may your heart throb with a great longing and your feet hasten to carry the good news when you think who inspired it, who wrote it and all the memories folded between its pages."

AUTO STRIKES ELECTRA GIRL

Child Injured as She Leaves School for Home

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 27.—Mary Copeland, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Copeland, was being treated tonight at the Parmley-Ogden hospital for probably serious injuries sustained this afternoon when she was struck by an automobile while returning from school.

Charles B. Harrison, driver of the car, brought the child to the hospital. The accident is said to have been unavoidable.

Exact nature of the child's injuries had not been determined late Thursday night, although internal injuries were feared.

Court Hears Suit Over Police Reward

A suit involving a $500 reward paid two years ago for the capture here of two bank robbers for Alma, Ark., authorities was opened Thursday morning in the county court at law by trustees of the local police relief fund. The trustees are suing to recover the amount which is being held in escrow by the Wichita State bank.

M. A. Purdue, W. P. Belcher and Pat Allen, three of the officers who participated in the capture, signed a waiver to the money for the benefit of the relief fund, but William Davis, the fourth, claimed his share of the reward.

Burglars Raid Three Wichita County Homes

Three residences in communities near Wichita Falls were burglarized Thursday by thieves who carried off practically all the clothing of three families.

J. T. Treadway and L. J. Brown, who live on the Dale ranch near Petrolia, reported the loss of the entire wardrobe of their families while a man near Burkburnett reported the loss of several suits, dresses and two coats to John McIntyre, night sergeant of the police station.
