ATTACK STATION — Hundreds of Ayatollah Khomeini's followers recapture the radio station from ethnic Turkish rebels in Tabriz Sunday. But Turks shouting "Death to Khomeini!" later retook the station.

Rebel Turks rebuff peace delegation

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ethnic Turkish rebels controlling Tabriz rebuffed a peace delegation sent by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime today after a day of hard fighting in which Khomeini's supporters recaptured the radio station and governor's mansion in the north-west city but could not hold them.

A spokesman for the main political organization in Tabriz, the Moslem People's Party, said party officials would not meet with the peace delegates.

Meanwhile, the situation of the U.S. hostages in the American Embassy in Tehran remained unchanged on their 37th day in captivity. But a U.N. spokesman said Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim was sending the foreign minister of Sri Lanka to visit the hostages, and the United States today was presenting its case against Iran to the International Court of Justice in The Hague.

Iran was boycotting the court session.

Khomeini's Revolutionary Council sent Finance Minister Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and two other Council members, Ayatollah Mahdavi Kani and Ezzatollah Sahabi, to Tabriz to try to end the 5-day-old rebellion by the Turkish-speaking Azaris, the fourth of Iran's ethnic minorities that take armed action in support of their demands for autonomous home rule.

Although the locally powerful Moslem People's Party said it would not receive the delegation, Bani Sadr was quoted as saying they would try to meet with university staff members, merchants and workers.

The Turks seized the local radio station, the governor's mansion and the airport Thursday. Local army units were reported siding with the rebels.

Early Sunday revolutionary guards recaptured the governor's mansion, and some 4,000 Khomeini supporters prayed at the university near the broadcast station, then rushed and seized it from 20 to 30 armed Turks.

Hundreds of Turks shouting "Death to Khomeini!" marched on the station, and the Khomeini forces opened fire. Tens of thousands of Turks and local army units joined the march, rushed the hilltop station and retook it.

Rebel leaders said six of their people were killed, some 60 were wounded and six of Khomeini's revolutionary guards were taken prisoner.

The Turks also retook the governor's mansion, seized a police station and apparently retained control of the airport throughout the day's violence. They erected roadblocks around Tabriz and searched vehicles to bar Khomeini's supporters from reaching the city of 600,000, Iran's third largest.

Khomeini said in a Tehran Radio broadcast that the Tabriz rebellion was the work of "plotters who receive their orders from America and elsewhere," and his regime issued an arrest warrant for the Turks' governor general-designate in East Azerbaijan, Rahmatola Moghadam-Marghaie.

The Tabriz rebellion broke out after supporters of Khomeini killed two Turks and wounded eight others who were guarding the home of their spiritual leader, Ayatollah Mohammad Kazem Shariat-Madari, in Qum, the holy city 100 miles south of Tehran where Khomeini also makes his headquarters.

Shariat-Madari and the Turkish Azaris are Shiite Moslems like Khomeini and Iran's Persian majority while the other sizable ethnic minorities demanding autonomy — the Kurds, Arabs, Turkomans and Baluchis — are Sunnis, the dominant branch of Islam everywhere else in the Moslem world.

The mob in Qum attacked Shariat-Madari's home because he criticized Iran's new Islamic constitution for concentrating too much power in Khomeini's hands and for failing to satisfy the ethnic minorities' demands for autonomy. The constitution was approved in a referendum a week ago, but the minorities boycotted the vote.

Meanwhile, diplomatic efforts to free the American hostages continued.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim talked by telephone with Khomeini's foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, and a U.N. spokesman said Ghotbzadeh gave permission for Sri Lanka Foreign Minister A.C. Shahu Hameed to visit the 50 Americans.

Hameed discussed the hostages with Iranian officials on a previous visit to Tehran, reported to Waldheim last week and returned to Tehran Sunday.

Vance stops in London for first of four meetings

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance paid a four-hour visit to London today and tried to enlist British support for joint economic retaliation if Iran refuses to release 50 Americans it holds hostage in Tehran.

Vance conferred with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, but neither U.S. nor British officials disclosed details of the talks. Sources who declined to be named said a trade embargo, including a cutoff of food exports, was a topic of discussion.

A Foreign Office spokesman said of Vance's one-hour talk with Lord Carrington: "Lord Carrington reiterated the British government's wholehearted support of the U.S. government's efforts to secure the release of its hostages in Tehran without preconditions."

Vance, leaving the prime minister's residence at 10 Downing Street for Heathrow Airport, would say only that he was very pleased to have the chance to speak with Mrs. Thatcher and Lord Carrington.

Vance left for Paris and is to go on to Rome and Bonn for talks with government leaders before going to Brussels for the winter meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

A late addition to his schedule brought Japan into the dialogue, and he will meet Foreign Minister F.M. Okida in Paris tonight.

Hopes for a negotiated settlement with Iran appeared dim. A senior U.S. official said the situation as "very delicate," and reporters were told there was "faint hope" the hostages would be freed soon.

The United States has already ended almost all trade with Iran by freezing Iranian funds in American banks. But to tighten the economic screws, the Carter administration wants the West Europeans to support sanctions if Iran does not release the hostages and puts any of them on trial as spies.

Vance's talks will also reflect the firm commitment given the Europeans that the United States will consult them before taking any military action against Iran.

However, as the capture of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran stretched into a 37th day, the United States was concentrating on diplomatic, economic and political pressures.

Last week, President Carter told families of the hostages he would not take military action "that would cause bloodshed or arouse the unstable captors of our hostages to attack them or punish them."

If any of the hostages were tried, Carter reportedly said, the United States would take steps to interrupt commerce with Iran and "encourage other nations in the world to join us in putting additional economic pressure on Iran."

The freezing of Iranian assets in American banks is gradually choking off U.S. trade with that nation.

MEETING OF NATIONS — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher with U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance when they met for talks at 10 Downing Street in London Monday morning. Mr. Vance is on a four-hour visit at the start of his whistle stop tour of four European capitals.

Permian Airways flight greeted by city officials

Permian Airways Flight 72, arriving in Big Spring from the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, swept into the Big Spring Municipal airport at 11:44 a.m. today, 39 minutes late for its scheduled 11:05 a.m. arrival.

The plane was late because of foggy conditions in Midland.

Jack Y. Smith, city councilman, welcomed John Andrews, president of Permian Airways and gave him a key to the city. Smith, a passenger on the flight, said, "It was a wonderful trip." Facilities both here and there were excellent, he said.

"It was a marvelous flight," said Johnnie Lou Avery, Chamber of Commerce president, also a passenger on the flight. "The terminals here and in Dallas were excellent and we made good time. It was an excellent flight."

"It's a happy day in the history of Big Spring. We have a first rate airline service and it's up to the citizens to keep it that way."

Winston Wrinkle, owner of KBST Radio and also on the flight said, "It was a nice flight. It's good for Big Spring. It goes to D-FW at the Braniff terminal and it's good for connecting flights all over the United States."

William Robinson, an FFA official from Lubbock was on the flight that was piloted by Pat Perez and landed in Gate 1 of the Braniff terminal at D-FW.

Ms. Avery and Mayor Wade Chouteau made the welcoming speeches.

Two more gifts for fund arrive

Two more gifts for the Christmas Cheer Fund, sponsored by the Salvation Army, arrived over the weekend, bringing the total thus far to $8,819.56.

Each of the gifts was for $5. They came from Mrs. C.E. Lomax and Iona McAllister.

Goal in this year's campaign is $29,000. The money will be used to purchase food for needy families and toys for under-privileged children.

Checks can be forwarded either to the Salvation Army or to the Herald, which annually helps coordinate the drive.

The gifts will be distributed shortly before Christmas.

Dawson's cotton harvest peaking

LAMESA — Dawson's bale count in its 1979 cotton harvest has passed the 151,000 mark.

Agricultural observers are predicting that county farmers will gather more than 250,000 bales. If good weather endures, the farmers may finish their stripping job by Christmas.

Gins, however, will remain busy through most of February. In all, 26 gins are operating within the county.

Micronaire figures continue to decline in the county, bringing Dawson into line with surrounding counties where the figures have been low for most of the season.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Right time

Q. How can one tell when a quince is ripe? Will a freeze ruin the fruit?
A. A quince, a member of the rose, apple and pear family, is one of the first shrubs and trees to bloom in the spring, says County Agent Don Richardson. He says the fruit is ripe when it turns a brownish to rusty color and its texture is similar to that of an apple or pear. Just as an apple, a freeze will ruin the fruit. Richardson recommends that the fruit not be eaten fresh. "It's not poisonous," he says, "but it tastes better cooked."

Shah's presence sparks pro and con sentiments

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The deposed shah of Iran's stay at Lackland Air Force base has sparked plans and rumors of mass rallies both in support of and against his presence.

But so far, city officials, the courts, and perhaps increased security, have limited the demonstrations to only scattered and sparsely attended events.

Air Force officials Friday shored up security at Lackland and nearby Kelly Air Force Base after intelligence reports warned of possible problems during the weekend.

But a Lackland source Sunday said there were no problems. "It's pretty sleepy out here, certainly a contrast to last Sunday when the shah was here," said the source who requested anonymity because of a news blackout on the shah's stay at Lackland.

out rolls of barbed wire Friday after the reports of possible weekend demonstrations by hundreds of Iranian students. There were no signs of protesters near the bases Sunday.

A pro-shah rally planned for Sunday in Brackenridge Park also never materialized.

The exiled monarch arrived at Lackland Dec. 2 to continue his recuperation from gallstone surgery and cancer treatments in New York.

Officials say he will remain until American diplomats can find him a home. Four nations mentioned as possible destinations were ruled out last week by Robert Armao, the shah's senior advisor. Armao said Saturday there had been no progress in the search for a permanent place to live.

The longtime ruler is at the center of an international impasse in which Iranian students demanding the shah's return are holding 50 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

The rumored weekend protests at the bases caused officials at adjacent Kelly Air Force Base to install barbed wire barricades, floodlights and guards with automatic weapons at the two main gates. Kelly, the Air Force's primary supply depot, houses billions of dollars of government equipment and planes.

A public road that winds around the fringe of Kelly and to a Lackland gate within three-quarters of a mile of the shah's apartment was sealed off Saturday.

Anti-shah rallies planned for Friday by Iranian students here were blocked by city officials and a state judge. City Manager Tom Huebner and State District Judge Peter Michael Curry said they feared violent clashes between the students and Ku Klux Klansmen who promised a counter-rally.

EXTENSIVE DAMAGE — Local firefighters douse the last of the flames that caused extensive damage to the living room and kitchen at the home of Donald R. Taylor, 609 State. The fire was apparently started by a burning cigarette on the living-room couch, around 3:30 p.m. Saturday, said Chief Alvie Harrison. The last fire truck departed the scene of the blaze, 5 p.m. Saturday.

Police beat Thieves, vandals busy

Burglars hit the Shamrock Service Station, 1111 W. 4th, sometime over the weekend.

After breaking into the station, the intruders stole eight cases of beer, six boxes of assorted candy and a jar of dill pickles. Total loss was estimated at $98.

Vandals shot out all the windows of a city scraper machine that was parked at a land-fill project, Sunday night. Damage was estimated at $325.

Vandals also punctured four tires on a car belonging to the Geophysical Service Company, 1603 E. 3rd, while the auto was parked at the Thrifty Lodge, Saturday night. Damage was estimated at $200.

Burglars entered the residence of Patrick A. Dix, 2302 Runnels, sometime between 9:30 and 11 p.m. Saturday, and stole 15 record albums, several eight-track tapes and some Christmas lights. Including damage to back and storm doors, the door facing and a lock, loss was estimated at $300.

While Barbara Rawls, 1702 W. 1st, was working at the 11th and Johnson Seven-Eleven Store, late Saturday night, someone stole money from her purse. The purse had been under the counter at the store, and had contained $150 in cash.

Thieves drove off with a 1971 Chevrolet pickup belonging to Juan Haro, 310 W. 7th, early Sunday morning. The truck had been parked in front of Haro's residence. It was valued at $2,000.

Officers arrested a 23-year-old local man for carrying a weapon inside a licensed premises, 11:40 p.m. Sunday. Patrolman Sean Curran approached the man from the front while Patrolman David Spilman walked up to him from the rear, and confiscated the .25 caliber pistol from the suspect's back, right pocket. Five mishaps were reported over the weekend.

Vehicles driven by Jean B. Beck, 4000 Connally, and J.B. Lamb, 1516 Stadium, collided on the 1700 block of Gregg, 3:15 p.m. Sunday. Vehicles driven by Frank H. Parras, 409 S. Benton, and Garry W. Bolding, 2413 Morrison, collided at 1500 Gregg, 5:20 p.m. Sunday.

Vehicles driven by Mauid Gonzales, Abilene, and Mary Ann Escovedo, Ackerly, collided at 900 N. Lamesa, 6:01 p.m. Sunday.

Vehicles driven by Marta Sullivan, 3101 Navajo, and Debra Sanbone, Southland Apartments, collided at 2100 Gregg, 9:55 p.m. Saturday. A vehicle driven by William Tucker, Route 1, struck parked vehicles belonging to Floyd Howell, 2409 Morrison, and Jess Crane, 1700 Ackerly, at 1200 W. 3rd, 10:20 p.m. Saturday.

Officials hear request to restore county road

The Howard County Commissioners today decided to take under advisement a request to aid the city in restoring one road to usable condition.

A portion of Second Street, near the stockyards, has apparently been washed out over the last several years due to an improper channeling of rain waters.

Assistant City Manager Bill Brown went before the commissioners during their regular 9 a.m. meeting to request use of county equipment for the improvement. According to Brown, the natural drainage system of the road was distorted by a former resident of that area who contrived some artificial channels, directing water off of property and onto the road.

Property belonging to another occupant, J.O. Haney, has repeatedly been washed out. In addition, the road has been washed out. Brown told the County commissioners of the city's intention to restore the area back to its original natural drainage system, but stated that the city does not have adequate equipment. The endeavor would take some three to four weeks of work.

Commissioner Louis Brown raised a question of the legality of using county property within the city limits. It was his opinion that it would not be legal unless there was a trade-off of services.

Commissioner Paul Allen recommended that the matter be taken under the advisement of County Attorney Harvey Hooser.

The commissioners adjourned at 10:30 p.m. to reconvene at 11:30 p.m. to open bids on the sale of a county dump truck. An emergency revenue sharing hearing was set for 1 p.m. today.

Tax collector is indicted

LEVELLAND — A Hockley County grand jury has handed down five indictments against county tax assessor collector Walter Thrash for alleged misappropriation of funds, tampering with government records and official misconduct.

Thrash, who would have completed his first four-year term in office in 1980, is at liberty on $5,000 bond.

County officials decline to say how much money is missing from county funds.

Investigations of the tax office began early this year. A petition was filed last week to remove Thrash from office. O.R. Watkins, retired school-city tax assessor, has been asked to fill Thrash's position.

Lamesa permits Voter registration up hit $3 million

LAMESA — Building permits issued in Lamesa during 1979 have passed the $3 million mark.

Permits for November totaled $196,350. Included in those granted were a new school classroom building, a remodeling permit and two new residences.

Voter registration up

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Voter registration is up in Texas but there is one group taking part less and less in the political process, says Texas Secretary of State George Strake.

"That is our youth," Strake told election officials from 10 southern and western states Sunday at the opening session of the regional conference. "This is an alarming trend."

Strake said his office would launch a drive to register eligible high school seniors before the Texas primary in May 1980.

The 400 officials attending the conference met today in a series of workshops on 10 different subjects, including training of election workers, absentee voter registration, and effective planning of elections.

Speculators

eye Collins

McKINNEY, Texas (AP) — They admit it's a crap shoot, but oil companies have started flocking to historically oil-poor Collin County in North Texas, with visions of a new Spindletop urging them on.

"It's just like rolling a seven in Las Vegas," said President Kenneth Couch of Derrick Petroleum, a Gainesville independent. "We're very hopeful."

Records on file with the Texas Railroad Commission show not a drop of oil has been pumped from Collin County since records were first kept in 1919. However, 264 oil leases have been filed in the county clerk's office this year.

Derrick alone filed 166 leases for options on 18,700 acres, and one test well is being drilled near Altoga.

The reason for the new interest in Collin County as a drilling site is a newly examined geological "overthrust" of crumpled rock called the Ouahita Facies. The formation runs from Arkansas through southern Oklahoma and into South Texas.

The overthrust gained attention in February 1977 when an Oklahoma company struck oil in it. The field immediately grew to 21 wells and major oil companies began leasing huge chunks of Oklahoma land along the formation.

"I think the odds are way against us finding sizeable reserves," Couch said. "But any time you drill a hole you're hopeful."

Digest

Chemistry students turning

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — The nation's most capable chemistry students are turning away from test tubes and opting for more attractive careers in medicine, according to a national study.

Dr. Douglas Neckers, chairman of the chemistry department at Bowling Green State University, who conducted the study, said recently he thought the shift was due to a decrease in research funds and an adverse climate of public opinion toward chemicals and chemistry.

"The upshot of all this is that the shine has gone off chemistry's star, in the public's eye, and it's having a deleterious effect on the nation's future scientific potential," Neckers said.

Girl accidentally killed

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 6-year-old girl apparently was shot and killed by accident as she struggled with a 7-year-old brother over possession of a revolver, police said.

Margery Petway left her three children at home Saturday morning while she kept a doctor's appointment, police said. During her absence, 11-year-old Holland told his brother, London, and sister, Wendy, that he would give a dollar to the one who found their mother's gun first, officers said.

The two rushed to their mother's bedroom where they found a loaded .32-caliber revolver, which apparently fired as they struggled over it, police said. A bullet struck Wendy in the face, killing her.

DC-9 takeoff aborted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Hughes Airwest DC-9 was forced to abort takeoff when an American Airlines Boeing 707 taxied onto the same runway at Los Angeles International Airport, aviation officials said.

The pilot of the DC-9 was warned by the control tower to abort his takeoff just before noon Saturday when someone in the tower saw that the American jet had "inadvertently taxied onto the runway," said a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration.

The American jet carried 48 passengers on a flight to Nashville, Tenn., the FAA spokesman said, but he did not know how many people were aboard the Air West jet, which was bound for Tucson, Ariz.

Balloon altitude record set

MORIARTY, N.M. (AP) — Dr. Carol Rymer-Davis has set a 31,500-foot altitude record for hot-air balloons after braving 41-below-zero temperatures.

Ms. Rymer-Davis, head of the nuclear medicine department at Lovelace Medical Center, took off just after dawn Saturday from a field near this small community about 30 miles east of Albuquerque. Temperatures on the ground were in the 30s.

It was her second record-setting flight this year. She made a 25,400-foot flight Feb. 19, which was the altitude mark for balloons the size of the one she flew that day.

McDonald takes look at 'Burma Shave' era

Chesley McDonald of Sterling City regaled his audience with a nostalgic look of the 1930s and 40s in a talk made at the annual Big Spring Post Office employees' banquet held in the Student Union building at Howard College Saturday night. A crowd in excess of 100 attended.

McDonald, a one-time school administrator and coach, discussed the creation of the Burma Shave product and the unique sales approach used by its promotional department.

The Burma Shave road signs were written in cadence and staggered alongside thoroughfares so that a motorist could read them traveling at 55 miles an hour or less. It became quite the 'in' thing, especially among the young, to memorize the pithy sayings and recite them at social gatherings.

Striking commuter train line causing problems

NEW YORK (AP) — The 180,000 regular riders on the strikebound Long Island Rail Road, the nation's largest commuter railway, found other ways into the city today, clogging some bridges temporarily. But officials said no major traffic jams occurred.

Traffic into Manhattan, clogged even under normal conditions, was heavier than usual and the morning commuter rush started as early as 5 a.m., the Metropolitan Transportation Authority reported.

Car pooling, which had been urged on the railroad's users, appeared to be a first-day flop. A check of two major pooling centers at Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale and Eisenhower Park showed fewer than 100 parked cars.

East River crossings between Manhattan and Long Island got heavy around 5 a.m. But the Triborough Bridge's operating authority said that major span was normal by around 7:30 a.m.

The Transit Authority said it subways were coping with the extra influx.

The Long Island Rail Road is the major carrier between New York City and the 110-

Bootlegging

LAMESA — What authorities referred to as a bootlegging operation has been shut down here.

District Judge George Hanser has granted an injunction against Geneve Lopez and Hector E. Maldonado, ordering them not to have anything to do with the possession, sale or transportation of liquor in Dawson County.

Assistant District Attorney Ricky Smith, who asked for the court order, said the two had repeatedly been arrested for violation of the county's prohibition laws.

The injunction will expire after one year.

CAUSE AND EFFECT — Traffic is backed up on the Long Island Expressway, leading to the entrance of the Queens-Midtown Tunnel in New York today as cars belonging to the striking Long Island Railroad remain idle in the yard, right. Due to the strike, traffic into Manhattan, clogged under normal conditions, was heavier than usual and the morning commuter rush started two hours before dawn, the Metropolitan Transportation Authority reported.

Alaskans butting heads over blundering bison

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Folks up north in Buffalo Center and Delta Junction are butting heads over where the chips should fall.

That's chips as in buffalo chips, just one of the annoyances that have people feuding over their local bison herd.

The bison are the ever-prospering descendants of a Montana bison imported to the Fairbanks area in 1928 for the pleasure of big-game hunters. To the people of Buffalo Center — named for the huge beasts — they are a joy.

"They're fantastic animals," says Greg Cooke, executive director of the Fish and Game boards. "They gallop, their baby calves in the spring are so gracious to look at, they're a sociable animal, motherly, pairing off, well, they're the romance and mystique of the last frontier."

But they are a plague to people in Delta Junction, which has acres of barley thriving under the midnight sun and the care of a state-sponsored agriculture project. The bison periodically raid the barley fields.

And then there are the chips. Says one resident:

"Chips. Ha! They're something else. They call 'em Delta Frisbees. But they're more like giant chocolate drops, and they freeze solid. Makes the road rough. One guy in charge of plowing the airport runway tells of almost being thrown through the window when he hit one of them chips. You curse the buffalo, but you love 'em."

The war between the two villages is, at this stage, still a war of words. But Rep. Pappy Moss of Delta Junction warns with a smile. "We're keeping our powder dry."

The only shots fired in the battle have been automatic noise charges blasted over the fields every few minutes. Trouble is, the bison have grown accustomed to the noise, and to the helicopters and posses on horseback that have chased them.

"It's nothing to see a herd of 100 buffalo 50 to 60 feet from your front door," says farmer Lee Spears. "When you get up in the morning, you don't want to stagger out with your eyes closed."

A few bison are lost each winter, clobbered by cars along the foggy Alaska Highway, which is sort of a divider. Farmers grow barley to the north of it, and the buffalo are supposed to stick to the south, where the Legislature this year set aside 72,000 acres as a buffalo preserve.

The idea, as one legislator put it, was that "the state will plant barley and grasses for the buffalo at one place so they won't eat the people's barley in another place." The Legislature decided to give it a three-year chance.

But Bob Palmer, who works in the governor's office and also heads the Delta Farming Project, says the Fish and Game people planted the buffalo barley too close to the people's barley. He told Gov. Jay Hammond to halt the project.

People now accuse Palmer of "waging a hate campaign against bison."

"I like buffalo myself," Palmer says. "But this was enticing them to the fields."

In addition, soldiers from Fort Greeley are to plant barley patches next spring along a recognized buffalo migration route. Palmer says the state will pay the Army up to $30,000 for seed and fertilizer.

Some say that's an attempt to thwart the buffalo range idea, spoil the three-year experiment and take over more land for barley.

"It disturbs us, it's like the old salami thing, one slice at a time and pretty soon you've just got the string left," says trapper Charlie Boyd, chairman of the Delta area Fish and Game Advisory Committee.

There have been suggestions that the buffalo be declared "domestic" so they can be turned over to cattle ranchers who want to breed them for "beefalo."

But that seems an unlikely proposal.

Names in the news

CAROL BURNETT

Carol Burnett honored

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The Hollywood Women's Press Club turned thumbs down on John Travolta while honoring comedian Carol Burnett for personal and professional achievement.

John Travolta, star of "Saturday Night Fever" and "Grease," would have left the Sunday ceremonies with the club's "Sour Apple" award if he had shown up.

Club spokeswoman Betty Anderson said the "Sour Apple" scroll is awarded annually to the "celebrity who most believes his own publicity." Top honors at the 39th annual fete, the Golden Apple, went to comedian Carol Burnett, who was lauded for her achievements "as a performer and as a person," Mrs. Anderson said.

The award was established in honor of Louella O. Parsons, charter member and first president of the 200-woman organization that began nearly 50 years ago when 10 newswomen met for lunch at the old Brown Derby.

Bette Davis presented "Entertainer of the Year" awards to Jill Clayburgh and Alan Alda. "Discovery of the Year" honors went to Mariette Hartley and Dudley Moore.

Winners received solid gold apple pendants or keychains, Mrs. Anderson said.

Jackie's limo for sale

DETROIT (AP) — A 1964 limousine which once belonged to Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis has been put up for sale by a Detroit car dealer.

The limousine, which was driven in President John Kennedy's funeral procession in November 1963, was the former first lady's personal vehicle for about a year. For the past 10 years, it has belonged to Redford Sales Service of Detroit.

The dealership, however, is closing and is selling its entire stock. The car, which seats seven, has a radio, air conditioning and gray lamb upholstery and carpeting. A power-driven window separates the chauffeur from the passengers and the vehicle has been driven only 13,068 miles.

The asking price is $14,000.

Criticisms from pulpit

NEW YORK (AP) — The minister son of Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said from his pulpit that "presidential candidates" and others should not make statements that could endanger the safety of American hostages in Iran.

In an apparent reference to remarks by Sen. Edward Kennedy, criticizing the regime of the deposed Shah of Iran, the Rev. Dr. F. Forrester Church, minister of the Unitarian Church of All Souls here, told his congregation Sunday:

Church, whose father is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, also warned Americans not to turn their anger at events in Iran against Iranians in this country.

Mother Teresa praised at ceremony

Nobel Peace Prize delivered

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Committee today delivered the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize to Mother Teresa of Calcutta, praising the Roman Catholic nun who has devoted her life to India's poor for her respect for the individuals she helps.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the award ceremony in Oslo, the chairman of the committee, Prof. John Sanness said Mother Teresa deserved the prize "because she promotes peace in the most fundamental manner — by her confirmation of human dignity."

The year's 10 other Nobel laureates, five of them Americans, were to receive their prizes today at a ceremony in Stockholm.

Recounting the 33 years Mother Teresa has spent tending the poor and the sick in the sprawling slums of Calcutta, Sanness recalled she once said:

"In these years of work among the people, I have come more and more to realize that it is being unwanted that is the worst disease that any human being can experience."

"She believes," Sanness said, "that the worst disease today is not leprosy or tuberculosis, but rather the feeling of being unwanted, uncared for and deserted by everybody."

"The hallmark of her work has been respect for the individual and the individual's worth and dignity."

Sanness said the Yugoslav nun, the sixth woman to win the Peace Prize, shares the standard of another Nobel laureate: the "veneration for life" of the late Albert Schweitzer.

He gave this explanation of the choice of the 69-year-old founder of the Missionaries of Charity, a Roman Catholic order that has spread its works among the poor from the streets of New York's South Bronx to the alleys of Vietnam.

"The year 1979 has not been a year of peace: disputes and conflicts between nations, peoples and ideologies have been conducted with all the accompanying extremes of inhumanity and cruelty."

Sheriff testifies in own defense

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Federal prosecutors worked late at their offices Sunday night, preparing more questions for Gregg County Sheriff Tom Welch as his federal court trial resumed today.

Welch took the stand in his own defense Friday, and denied he ever ordered any murders, as the government contends.

"I have never instructed anyone to kill anyone nor have I ever had the desire to kill someone else in my life," he said.

Welch and four other men are being tried on federal corruption charges. The other defendants are County Commissioner Bill Satterwhite, Peace Justice Charles Cashell, and two of Welch's former deputies, Jim Cochran and Bill Rouse.

The indictment against the men alleges they conspired to permit illegal gambling, and that Welch, Satterwhite and Cochran conspired to commit murder.

Welch, Satterwhite and Cochran also have been indicted on charges they conspired to commit murder.

Welch spent 3 1/2 hours on the stand Friday disputing earlier testimony, including that of a former deputy, Don Hale.

Hale had said Welch ordered him to form a "shotgun squad" to kill three men in 1974.

Welch testified, though, that Hale approached him with a plan to trap two well-known Gregg County thieves. Welch said he had no idea Hale intended to shoot the men, but thought the idea was to arrest them during a burglary.

Welch also denied earlier testimony that he took bribes to ignore illegal gambling at the Gregg County Fair in 1978.

"If Seymour Berger Schlar said he paid you $1,000 in 1977, would it be your word against his word?" asked assistant U.S. Attorney Jeff Baynham during cross examination.

Weather

Heavy fog prompts travel advisories

By The Associated Press
A high pressure system kept clouds away from north and east Texas today, but heavy morning fog prompted travelers' advisories this morning in southern and western parts of the state.

Visibility was as low as 18 miles at Austin, San Antonio, Wink and Childress. Low cloudiness reached northward from the Gulf Coast to a line stretching from Del Rio and Brownwood to Mineral Wells. Patchy low cloudiness also was reported over the South Plains.

Temperatures in the predawn hours ranged from the 20s over the Panhandle to the 60s over deep South Texas. Extremes at 4 a.m. ranged from 24 degrees at Dalhart to 68 degrees at McAllen.

Variable winds of generally less than 10 miles per hour were reported across the state. Gusty southwesterly winds were expected over the Panhandle.

Forecasts for today call for a slow breakup of the low cloudiness over southern and western portions of Texas, while the northern and eastern portions continue mostly clear. Temperatures today will be generally in the 60s in the north to the 70s and 80s in the south.

WEATHER FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Increasing cloudiness tonight becoming cloudy and cooler north and partly cloudy south Tuesday. Highs today near 70 mountains and Panhandle to upper 70s Big Bend. Lows tonight mid 30s mountains and Panhandle to near 50 southeast. Highs Tuesday low 50s Panhandle to near 80 Big Bend.

EXTENDED
WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy Tuesday through Thursday, cooler by midweek mainly in the north. Highs in the 50s north to the 70s south. Lows 20 north to 40s south-east.

WEATHER FORECAST — Cold weather is expected in the forecast period, today until Tuesday, from the northern Rockies to the Great Lakes and for most of the Plains states. Warmer weather is forecast for the East except for New England. Seasonable temperatures are forecast for the Pacific coast.

SALT II, Iran throw doubt on NATO unity

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Soviet bid for nuclear supremacy in Europe and Iran's defiance of the United States are challenging the unity of the North Atlantic Alliance at its annual winter meeting beginning today.

The outcome in each situation could influence inter-allied relations for years to come. After months of intensive diplomacy, defense and foreign ministers of the member-nations, meeting in joint session Wednesday, have to make one of their most crucial decisions of the decade.

It centers on whether to adopt a modernization program in terms of nuclear strike-power by siting hundreds of new American missiles in West Europe, able to reach far into Soviet territory. Until now NATO nuclear weapons based in the European theater have possessed only a battlefield capability, meaning a limited range of perhaps 300 miles.

Moscow has launched an all-out campaign aimed at heading off that decision which, if implemented in the 1980s, would serve to readjust the correlation of East-West forces in Europe now tilting in Russia's direction.

The impact of the Soviet campaign has been reflected in Europe-wide protests on the streets, in parliaments and within governments throughout Allied Europe. Thousands of demonstrators marched Sunday in Brussels and Copenhagen, Denmark. The opposition is mounted against U.S. plans to deploy 464 Tomahawk cruise

Parent labor unions are not responsible

WASHINGTON (AP) — A unanimous Supreme Court ruled today that parent labor unions may not be held legally responsible for unauthorized "wildcat" strikes.

Giving a major victory to organized labor, the justices killed a lawsuit filed against the United Mine Workers union, its District 17 and three union locals by Carbon Fuel Co., owner of southern West Virginia coal mines.

The suit sought compensation for 48 strikes at Carbon Fuel's mines from 1969 to 1973 that District 17 had not condoned.

A federal jury trial was held in Charleston, W. Va., in 1976 on Carbon Fuel's charges that the UMW, District 17 and Locals 6572, 7626 and 2236 had violated collectively bargained contracts. After all testimony had been given U.S. district Judge K.K. Hall instructed jurors that the international union and District 17 could be found liable only if they had not taken all "reasonable means" to end the work stoppages.

HOW DOES ONE ADJUST TO WIDOWHOOD?

There are many excellent texts and reference books relating to the adjustments which surviving widows and widowers must make. Most are not overly technical and may help you understand better the transitional stages of widowhood. These books help explain how to facilitate healthy mental and physical adjustments after the loss of a loved one.

Here are just a few of them:

- Parents Without Partners — J. Egleson
- Explaining Death to Children — E. Grollman
- For the Living — Edgar Jackson
- When Death Takes a Father — G. Kooiman
- On Death and Dying — E. Kubler-Ross
- "The Widow-to-Widow program" — Mental Hygiene Magazine, Volume 53, No. 3, 1969
- "When your wife is a widow" — Changing Times Magazine, June, 1971

Primary presidential fallacy pointed out

The idea of a national, direct presidential election is one of those reformers' dreams that never dies, but never gets very far past the conservation stage. And it's just as well.

Backers of the one-shot, 50-state primary usually tout it as a means of giving the people a greater voice in the selection of presidential nominees.

A NEW STUDY by a Minnesota political scientist shows that it might have exactly the opposite effect. That is, it would give the public a narrower rather than a wider set of choices in picking presidential candidates.

More simply, says professor Austin Ranney in a study sponsored by the American Enterprise Institute, the single national primary would load the game heavily in favor of well-known political "insiders."

THE PRESENT SEQUENCED series of state primaries give lesser known candidates — Jimmy Carter or George McGovern, for example — an opportunity to make their names known and to build campaign momentum.

"By the same token," Ranney contended, "a one-day national direct primary could probably be won only by a contender already well-known and well financed."

RANNEY'S MAIN OBJECTION to the one-time, direct primary is that it would further weaken political parties, which he believes are already "very sick."

Ranney concludes that the disadvantages of the direct primary outweigh the advantages.

HIS ARGUMENTS are persuasive. Certainly, the one-day primary would be a radical change in the concept of nomination of parties and elections by the people.

On the other hand, any system that would make it harder for a Jimmy Carter, Warren Harding, Richard Nixon or a George McGovern to get to the White House couldn't be all bad.

Yule specials

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

It happens every year and is as predictable and inevitable a yearly event as Santa dropping by.

Along with the parades, decorations and shopping, Christmas brings us another in a long line of traditions, television Christmas specials.

Christmas shows shouldn't be called specials since they are on constantly. To watch a regularly scheduled show in December is what I call special.

Everybody seems to have one of these Christmas spectaculars on these days. It's a great way for show business has-beens to work once a year.

THIS WEEK THE networks have scheduled 14 "specials" and 10 more were shown last week. And as Christmas approaches faster and faster, I suppose we're going to get them in droves.

There are two types of shows. The first is the animated or acted Christmas story where, at the end, the viewer knows he has been given the underlying message of the real meaning of Christmas.

Then we have the variety type which too many entertainers do. There are only a limited number of Christmas songs and carols that can only be sung so many ways. I tend to question the use of the term "variety."

My favorites are the variety shows where the entertainer brings his family along for the ride.

It's just, oh, so natural to have their living room in our living rooms as the sparkling fire glows. To the tune of "Jingle Bells" and "We Wish You A Merry Christmas" they dance around the Christmas tree, up the steps and down the banister and exchange gifts to the beat of the music.

This, of course, is all done while Entertainer and spouse, who recently looked at us from a national tabloid in every supermarket in the country because they filed for a divorce after the spouse was picked up for prostitution, look lovingly into each other's eyes.

AND THEN WE HAVE the two lovely children with their folks. The special was filmed two months ago, but last week it was reported the son was arrested and charged with breaking and entering, and the daughter was put in prison, charged with killing her live-in lover.

With the number of divorces lately, I'm waiting for the brave entertainer who has, for our entertainment pleasure, his present wife and three children, his former wife and their two children, his four stepchildren by his present wife's last two marriages and his ex-wife's three stepchildren by her present husband's previous four marriages. And then of course, we have the in-laws of family past, family present and family future. Oh forget it.

And I wish the networks would do the same thing. Forget them except for a select few. An animated Frosty the Snowman and Rudolph the Reindeer special are enough for the kids, two variety specials for the adults and one Frank Sinatra special. That would be for me.

Teddy's deepening woes

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Unbeknownst to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy but symbolic of his burdened presidential candidacy, the U.S. had virtually completed arrangements for the shah or Iran to go to Argentina for his exile when Kennedy's blast at the toppled shah as one of history's worst tyrants killed the deal.

The collapse of the secret U.S.-Argentina negotiations, following the earlier, sudden switch of Mexico in turning back the shah, may be the only damage to President Carter and his Iranian policy from the senator's harsh assault on the shah. But for Kennedy himself, self-inflicted damage from the calculated effort to promote his unnoticed presidential campaign back onto page one will not be so limited. Indeed, in portraying Teddy Kennedy in yet another stumblebum guise, it is potentially disastrous.

THE CALCULATION is indisputable. The formulation of Kennedy's attack on the shah "had been thought out carefully," Tom Southwick, his press secretary, told us. Traveling across the country to campaign in California last weekend (Dec. 1 and 2), Kennedy and five top aides worried about the lack of page one play despite the large traveling press contingent that accompanied him.

The reason: The only story in the world is Iran and the American hostages; the only beneficiary of that story is Jimmy Carter, whose job Kennedy covets.

Kennedy had heard criticism from Hispanics in Los Angeles about unfair immigration procedures for Mexican immigrants and their families. The next morning he read in the Los Angeles Times a suggestion from Ronald Reagan that the shah be given political asylum in the U.S. Having carefully ducked any critical comment on Iran for the past month, Kennedy grabbed the Hispanic complaint and made it a bridge for his attack on the shah.

Hours after that attack, which was couched in characteristic Kennedy hyperbole, neither the senator nor his aides realized that he had committed a major campaign blunder. This failure to grasp reality is a mark of the amateur. It can be corrected simply enough, by the addition of a senior staff man familiar with the special day-to-day problems that abound in any presidential campaign.

Yet, finding a senior staff man skilled in practical politics has not been given high priority in Teddy Kennedy's campaign. Instead, the staff bulges with ideological experts untutored in the arts of politics but deep in pursuit of relatively obscure objectives in foreign policy unlikely to win votes. For example, Mark Schneider, a key State Department architect of the Carter administration's much-criticized human rights policies, resigned his job last month to join Kennedy's staff as an "issues" adviser.

AMATEURISM is one deficiency that was not expected in Kennedy's presidential campaign by most politicians. The expectation that Teddy Kennedy would show the same professionalism of his brothers John and Robert absorbed its first setback in his CBS television interview with Roger Mudd. There have been additional setbacks since then.

But the failure of Kennedy and his entourage to comprehend the damage of his attack on the shah is by far the most dangerous setback. Some politicians now are asking each other: Is it possible that Teddy Kennedy really is a stumblebum?

A still deeper problem for Kennedy lies beyond this lack of professionalism: the problem of his depth of ideological conviction. Sen. Henry Jackson, a centrist, defense-oriented Democrat, has privately told party leaders of similar persuasion — particularly labor leaders — that like John F. Kennedy, Ted Kennedy is pragmatic and political, not ruled by ideology.

Glaucazions are an eye infection

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor says I have "open angle glaucoma." I would appreciate an explanation in terms I can understand. — V.C.

The eyeball contains fluid, which among other things, keeps it in the shape you notice. The eye manufactures this fluid, which is a pretty neat trick in itself.

Because fluid is manufactured continually there has to be a way to drain off excess. If this didn't happen we'd all have glaucoma, which is build up of that eye fluid.

Fluid pressure builds for one of two reasons. Either too much is being made or too little is being drained off. Doctors determine which problem exists by eliminating the other one. If it's not one it has to be the other.

The canal that drains off fluid is located in the corner of the eye (angle, if you prefer geometric terms). If fluid build up is traced to this "corner" problem, then the glaucoma is called "narrow angle glaucoma." If the pressure builds because of excess production of fluid it is "open angle glaucoma," since the angle (drainage) problem has been eliminated. The drainage system is OK, but is being overwhelmed by the excess fluid — like a drainage ditch during a heavy rain.

If the drainage system is at fault, drugs can be tried to keep it open, or surgery may be necessary to open it up. The other kind (fluid overproduction) is more sneaky, and the build up can be gradual and go unnoticed. It is treated with drugs that decrease fluid production.

Periodic eye tests for glaucoma are advised, whether one has symptoms or not.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 14 years old. My menstrual period has stopped. I was on a strict diet and lost 30 pounds. I haven't had my period for a year. I don't know why. I am afraid to go to our doctor because I am worried that something is wrong. Can you please tell me what I should do? — D.D.

Strict, prolonged dieting can affect menstrual periods, even cause them to stop. Young women with anorexia nervosa, a psychological problem in which they diet to the point of starvation, often have great menstrual irregularities.

Why would you go to your doctor if everything was all right? The physician is there to help when something may be wrong. Certainly, a year of menstrual absence can indicate something amiss. You're concerned, and that is enough reason to see your doctor, and that's what you should do. Normal menstruation usually returns after a woman returns to a normal diet.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is meant by the term "superinfection"? — K.F.

A "superinfection" is one you get while taking a drug to fight off another, different infection. They are not common, but are always watched for, especially in patients getting large amounts of medicine, such as penicillin. The organism causing the superinfection is one resistant to the drug being given. The term "super" doesn't mean the infection is more severe than any other kind, only that it comes "on top" of another one.

An example of a superinfection would be taking antibiotics for a urinary infection and developing a vaginal yeast infection.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband's last blood test showed an abnormally high amount of chloformicrons. Please explain what this means? — Mrs. M.A.N.

I am sure you mean "chylomicrons," and you are the first reader to ask about this.

Chylomicrons are very small droplets of cholesterol and triglycerides (blood fats) that are normally transported in the blood to the liver for further breakdown. By six hours after a meal there should be few if any chylomicrons in the blood. An increased amount may call for a special diet low in fats. The test is significant only when the time of testing and intake of food prior to it is evaluated accurately.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I love animals and feel protective toward them. Do you think God cares about animals? — A.T.

DEAR A.T.: Of course He cares about animals. After all, He was the One who created them to begin with. He also made the world in such a way that they have food to eat. He also meant for us to take care of animals whenever we are responsible for some of them. It is interesting that Old Testament law stated that domestic animals were to be allowed to rest on the Sabbath (Ex. 20:10).

It is good that you are concerned about animals. However, I want you to understand something else: God loves animals, but in a far greater way He loves humanity — including you. The Bible says: "Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground apart from the will of your Father, and even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. So don't be afraid; you are worth more than many sparrows" (Matthew 10:29-31). This is a wonderful truth, and it is all the more wonderful when you think about the way we treat God all too often. I know people who spend great amounts of time and money on their pets, yet never think about God. Someday every one of us will stand before God. How tragic it is to go out into eternity separated from God forever because we have neglected to think about Him and why He put us on earth.

The Bible tells us that man is more than an animal. He not only is a physical being, but he is a spiritual being as well because he bears the image of God within him. Yet we have turned our backs on God and sinned against Him. The greatest truth we can know is that God loves us in spite of our sin, and in His Son, Jesus Christ, He has made it possible for us to be restored and reconciled to God. If you have never faced your own need of God, I hope and pray you will realize your need of Him and turn to Him by faith in Christ. "If you confess with your mouth, 'Jesus is Lord,' and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead, you will be saved... Everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved" (Romans 10:9, 13).

Allied him with shah?

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — A close examination of the Iranian horror casts Henry Kissinger, the foreign policy virtuoso, in a murky light. He appears to be caught in a colossal conflict of interest which could dwarf and undermine his more notable achievements.

We have established from a three-year investigation that Kissinger could have prevented the ruinous rise in oil prices. He held back to accommodate the shah of Iran — an incredible favor worth untold billions to the shah.

But it turns out there was another beneficiary: the Rockefeller family.

There is evidence that the Rockefellers actually helped the shah regain the throne after he had been prematurely ousted by Mohammed Mossadegh in the early 1950s. The grateful shah rewarded the Rockefellers with special oil, banking and real estate deals.

KISSINGER has had a long, close relationship with the Rockefeller family as retainer, beneficiary, counselor and now peer. In 1973, Nelson Rockefeller said of Kissinger: "He's never let me down, and he's never let the country down."

It is against this background that the cataclysmic events in Iran should be viewed. The shah lit the fuse that inflamed the oil region in 1973. To feed his ravenous appetite for armaments, he began the clamor for extortionary oil prices. The response of the West lay largely in Kissinger's hands. Our European and Japanese partners had lost the power of decision, and Kissinger's superiors in Washington were immobilized by Watergate.

Top-secret documents show that Saudi Arabia offered to hold down oil prices if Iran would cooperate. The Saudis knew that the United States had enormous influence with the shah.

It was up to Washington, they said, to apply the screws.

THE SECRET PAPERS show that Kissinger, however, refused to interfere with the shah's drive for higher oil prices. This outraged William Simon, then secretary of the Treasury, who raised a howl at the White House. He got nowhere with outgoing President Richard Nixon.

The alarmed Simon sent incoming President Gerald Ford an urgent, secret memo. Simon charged that Iran "is the dominant force in OPEC for higher oil prices." The shah's "bogus economic arguments..." Simon pleaded, "should not go unchallenged."

He reported that "Saudi Arabia has repeatedly asked us to put pressure on the shah." The Saudi royal family had told him personally, Simon wrote, that "Saudi Arabia would press OPEC for lower prices" but that they "need the United States to help turn the shah around... They wonder whether, in fact, we want the lower prices since we never even raised the subject with the shah."

Kissinger continued to thwart every move save those concerned with ways to finance the rising oil bills until Simon finally won a temporary victory by persuading Ford "to take a tough private line with Iran." This brought about a price freeze for a time but was too late to halt the basic course of events.

What was the reason for Kissinger's strange devotion to the shah? He told us that he exercised his "best judgment" in dealing with the shah and that the shah had been a staunch ally of the United States.

Kissinger is now back as the foreign policy adviser to the Rockefeller financial empire, which owes the shah far more than a moral debt. In fact, the shah is still a client worth billions; my sources say he relies heavily on the investment counsel of David Rockefeller and Kissinger.

ROCKEFELLER is chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank which, together with the Rockefeller trust funds and private family holdings, controls EXXON. The president of EXXON, H.C. Kauffmann, also is a director of Chase Manhattan. There are other interlocking ties between the banking conglomerate and the oil colossus. Both have been under Rockefeller domination for decades.

Nearly three decades before Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini unleashed Iran's fury against the United States, Mohammed Mossadegh whipped the populace into a frenzy against the oil companies, which he duly nationalized. For three years, he kept Iran whirling in intermittent bedlam.

The oil companies struck back not by seeking a just modus vivendi but by awakening nationalism but by destroying Iran's economy through a worldwide oil industry boycott of its exports. The oil majors refused to market Iran's oil, and Mossadegh, ayatollah-like, refused to come to terms with them.

They concluded that they would have to reach an accommodation with the next government. It was left to the Central Intelligence Agency to remove Mossadegh. My sources say the Rockefeller interests played a backstage role in Mossadegh's ouster. This probably cannot be documented; all that can be proved is that the Rockefellers were part of the power structure, with influential friends in the Washington policymaking councils.

But the young Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, once he was restored to his throne in 1953, knew who deserved his gratitude. He permitted several American oil companies to muscle into the Iran oil operation which, before Mossadegh, had been dominated by the British.

THE DOMINANT COMPANY in this new American-Iranian oil consortium was EXXON. The shah also made Chase Manhattan his favorite bank. He personally ordered subordinates to channel oil purchases and other transactions through the Rockefeller bank. And he shunted other lucrative deals to the Rockefeller crowd.

This raises ugly questions about Kissinger's failure to stop the shah from quadrupling oil prices.

What to look for when looking for a college

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Whether you're seeking a college with good social studies or a good social life, it's important to look into a school before you enroll. In many cases, you will have only one visit to decide whether the school you're considering is right for you, so it's crucial to know what clues to look for, what questions to ask and when to schedule a visit, says a recent issue of Seven.

The ideal time to view a college is on a weekday, when school is in full swing. Otherwise you're likely to find a deserted campus, locked-up buildings, and miss that all-important element — the student body. Be sure to allow enough time at the school to take in a group or individual interview and guided tour. Arrive early for the interview and take advantage of the admissions office waiting room to read through the yearbooks and campus newspapers lying on the coffee tables. These materials are likely to give you a good overview of campus life. Yearbooks highlight nostalgia and the bright side of the college year, while the campus paper often provides a frank, even harsh view of a school's inner workings.

The group interview is usually an informal sales pitch by a college representative, but it is helpful in that it gives you a chance to confirm data on such things as costs, current enrollment and percentage of men to women. When you're quoted statistics, think of them as important clues to a college's character. For example, you may find out that the college you're considering was formerly an all-male school and still has an overwhelming majority of men. At first sight, the situation sounds great for women, and in some cases it is. Often, however, women in such schools find themselves closed out of leadership posts and prestigious organizations. The athletic facilities for women may be poor and sometimes the social and academic mix isn't right.

You might also want to ask about the transfer or dropout rate at a college. A sizeable exodus may indicate dissatisfaction or low admissions standards. And if you find out that most students live off school grounds, this could mean that there is a housing shortage on campus, or that the dorms, while plentiful, may be cramped, overpriced or poorly maintained.

After the interview, you are likely to be treated to a campus tour by one of the school's students. As you stroll through the grounds, stick close to the guide so you can ask questions and hear all the offhand comments. The back of the tour only gets the canned spiel.

Immediately after your visit, jot down a few observations.

Too much help from a friend

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
Copley News Service

Millie, who lives in the great fishing and lumbering city of Coos Bay, Ore., doesn't like the way she is getting her A's in history and wants a little help. Cynthia Thomas, 16, from San Mateo, Calif., and Joel McKay, 17, from San Antonio, Texas, will speak for the teens. Welcome.

Dr. Wallace: My best girlfriend is an instructional aid for my history teacher and one of her duties is to correct test papers for him. It so happens that her boyfriend is also in this class so she corrects both of our tests.

Hi Millie: I would get together with your best friend and her boyfriend and discuss what is happening. If her boyfriend agrees with you that the cheating stops, I think the problem is solved. But if he likes what's happening, put your foot down and tell them that your getting unwanted help must stop and that you will not appreciate competing with him in this cheating way.

Mrs. Souter is accepted as member

The 1941 Study Club of Coahoma met recently at the Signal Mountain Room of Coahoma State Bank for the regular monthly meeting with Mrs. Johnny Justiss and Mrs. Jack Caudle as hostesses.

Yesterday she told me that she changed some of her boyfriend's answers so he would get an "A." To my surprise she stated that she also changed a couple of my answers.

Cheaters don't like to be caught so this should scare them enough to stop. — Joel, San Antonio, Texas Program leader Mrs. W.A. Wilson presented Mrs. Dewayne Clawson who introduced Dewayne Clawson, Bobby Dodson, Pat and Sammy Justiss, Layne Souter, Lori Wyrick and John Ed Ezzell. They presented a musical program of Christmas songs. Mrs. Clawson gave a narration with each of the musical selections.

I'm happy to get an A on the test but it bothers me to think she cheated for me. What should I do? — Millie, Coos Bay, Ore.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent, stamped, large self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace in care of this newspaper.

Club collect was led by Mrs. Quail Dobbs and roll call was answered with "what I want for Christmas." Mrs. L. N. Davis, president, presided during the business meeting. Mrs. Richard Souter was accepted as a new member of the club.

Members enjoyed a Mexican-Fiesta Supper preceding the meeting and gifts were exchanged. Eighteen members and two guests were present.

Next regular meeting will be Jan. 7 with Mrs. P.A. Wynn as hostess.

Be firm in your discussion with her. I know you are in an awkward position but what she has done punishes those teens who are competing for a grade honestly, especially if the teacher grades on a "curve."

B&PW celebrates Christmas

Members of the Big Spring Business and Professional Women's Club celebrated the Christmas season at the Holiday Inn, Dec. 4 at 7 p.m. with a dinner and exchange of gifts.

A humorous English Christmas story, "To Uncle With Love" was told by Mary Newell. Members then sang Christmas carols. Lois Eitzen was chairman of the affair, assisted by Alpha Morrison, Bernice Galloway and Beulah Reynolds.

Tables were decorated with handsome Santas and snowmen placed at vantage points. Red lighted candles also accented each table. Favors were tiny hand-knitted Christmas stockings made by Mrs. Galloway.

Next meeting will be held at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room, Jan. 8, with Rozell Dohoney, legislative chairman, in charge.

Give Yourself For Christmas

DEAR ABBY: Last year you printed a letter from a young lady who was discouraged about the attitude of family and friends about Christmas. She said all they thought about was presents and big dinners, so she considered taking a room in a hotel for the day, but it was too costly. It was a very fine column. Please print it again.
V.L.H. IN ATLANTA

DEAR V.: Here it is:
DEAR ABBY: I'm having a hard time deciding what to do for Christmas. I live about 40 miles from my parents' home, but I don't want to go home for Christmas because it is a depressing time for me. My parents go to church regularly, but they don't act like good Christians. All Christmas means to them is a pretty tree, lots of presents and good food. But it means so much more to me.
I don't want to stay where I live because the people I live with have the same attitude about Christmas. It's all presents and food. Most of my friends are expecting a gift from me and I can't afford any.
I was thinking of leaving town for the day, but I can't afford a hotel room.
Can you give me some advice on what to do? I hate this time of year. It's so depressing!
YOUNG AND UNHAPPY

DEAR YOUNG: Get in touch with a nursing home, a veterans' hospital or a children's institution, and offer to visit those who have no one to visit them. You don't need to bring presents. Just bring a cheerful attitude, a happy face and a willingness to listen and chat awhile.
Offer to write letters, read, make a phone call or run an errand.
When you do something for someone else, it's impossible to feel depressed. Try it; it really works. Then write to me and tell me what kind of Christmas you had. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I've read letters in your column year after year from parents who are "furious" because Grandma sends their children money for Christmas (or Hanukkah) instead of a gift.
I agree that a check (regardless of size) means very little to a child, so this is how we handle it in our family:
Some time before the holiday, Grandma (also Great-Grandma) sends a check to the child's mother. Mother then buys an appropriate gift, has it gift-wrapped, and encloses a card "From Grandma."
This arrangement works well because:
• Grandma may not be physically able to shop.
• Grandma (if she lives far away) may not know what the child needs. And she probably doesn't know what size to buy.
• Sometimes it costs more to ship packages than the contents are worth.
When Grandma sends money instead:
• Grandma is happy because she knows that the child has received a gift that is wanted and needed.
• Mother is happy for the same reason.
• The child is never disappointed with Grandma's gift.
HAPPY GRANDMA IN N.Y. STATE

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SHOULD I GIVE IN?": Your question can best be answered by something I came across today:
"When I met him, I liked him.
When I liked him, I loved him.
When I loved him, I let him.
When I let him, I lost him."

'Crane berries' probably not on Pilgrim's table

Crabapples were originally named "crane berries" by the Pilgrims because their white blossom and stem resembled the head and neck of a crane, reports a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

maple sugar was reserved for the less tart foods, Dr. Rose Tindall explains.

However, cranberries were probably not on the table of a Christmas feast for the early Pilgrims since cane sugar was not available to sweeten the tart fruit, and

CATHEY IN TROUBLE — Howard County native Wacey Cathey, who now registers out of Del Rio, Tex., curls into a ball to avoid injury after bucking off a bull named Rapid Fire during Sunday's concluding performance of the National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City.

National Finals Rodeo ends

Oklahoman is all-around cowboy

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Tom Ferguson, Miami, Okla., sixth-time PRCA all-around champion cowboy, won this year's title narrowly over Paul Tierney Sunday, but Tierney swears he will be back in the race next year.

"Don't worry about me," the Rapid City, S.D., cowboy said. "I just wasn't clicking this year, but when you're number two you try harder. I'll be back next year."

After the tenth and final go-round of the National Finals Rodeo, Tierney ended up with annual winnings of $92,201, but Ferguson finished with $96,272.

The title goes to highest money winning cowboy who qualifies for the NFR in at least two events.

Ferguson said he was satisfied with the results of this year's rodeoing but he felt earlier in the year that he would do better.

"There was as much pressure on me this year as there was the first time I won. You just don't get used to this kind of pressure."

"I'm a professional rodeo cowboy. I'm doing this to make a living so every year I want to win. I won't be slowing down any next year, you can be sure of that," Ferguson said.

Ferguson came out eleventh in the NFR calf roping and third in the steer wrestling for $10,000 in winnings, while Tierney ended up thirteenth in calf roping and sixth in the steers for $6,000.

They came into the NFR with Ferguson holding a narrow $71 lead.

In the final go-round Tierney had a tremendous performance in the steer wrestling with a 4.7 timing, tying for third place, while Ferguson failed to place in the points.

Then Tierney came up in the calf roping needing a big win and managed an impressive 9.9 timing, but Ferguson was up to the competition, besting him with a 9.7 and taking third place.

Tierney did manage one title as he won the PRCA World Calf Roping Championship with $59,290, just ahead of Ferguson's $59,106.

The World Saddle Bronc Title went to Bobby Berger of Lexington, Okla., but he also had a fight on his hands. After winning first place in the NFR Tom Miller of Faith, S.D., ended up with $41,703.64, just $5.28 behind Berger's $41,708.92.

Bruce Ford of Evans, Colo., won both the NFR and world bareback titles, while Stan Williamson took the steer wrestling world award. Byron Walker of Ennis, Texas, came out on top of the rodeo in that event.

State will try fourth time for conviction

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The state of Texas will bring Kenneth Andrew Bora II to trial a fourth time early next year, but apparently not here, according to a determined state prosecutor.

Bora's third trial on a cocaine delivery charge ended with a hung jury Saturday night, just as the previous two trials had ended, but District Attorney Hunter Brush has vowed to try again.

"The case has not been disposed of and, as far as I'm concerned, it will be tried again," Brush said, adding he probably will seek a change of venue for the next proceeding.

Bora, 32, has been named by police as the kingpin of an East Texas drug ring. The nightclub employee was charged with selling an ounce of cocaine to undercover officer Greg Matthews for $2,400 last March.

Jurors deliberated 12 hours, then announced they were hopelessly deadlocked at 6-6, and District Judge Donald Carroll announced the deadlock.

"I do so reluctantly," Carroll said, "because of 14 days of court time, the expense to the state, defense witnesses and jurors and leaves the court with an empty feeling when you have to declare a mistrial."

Bora thanked jurors "who were either for me or against me, for devoting six days of their lives to my cause. I'm just going to try to pick up the pieces of my life now."

Popular archbishop dead at 84

NEW YORK (AP) — Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, whose television ministry gave him a secular popularity awarded few religious leaders, is dead at the age of 84.

The Roman Catholic prelate, who survived open heart surgery two years ago, finally succumbed to the heart ailment Sunday night, said Archbishop Edward O'Meara, a close friend. "He had a peaceful end," said O'Meara.

During his years in the public eye, Sheen won television's Emmy award and was responsible for the conversion of such nationally known persons as Henry Ford II and Clare Boothe Luce.

Sheen's words began to reach millions of Americans in 1930, when he became the first regular minister on radio's "The Catholic Hour." In 1952, his slim build and deep-set eyes became familiar with the premiere of the weekly television program "Life is Worth Living."

For five years, as many as 20 million viewers tuned in each week despite strong competition from Milton "Uncle Miltie" Berle, Frank Sinatra and Groucho Marx's "You Bet Your Life."

"This in Uncle Fultie," Sheen once told his audience, kidding that "angels" erased his blackboards.

His television sponsor's money, after expenses, was donated to Mission Humanity, a United Nations-affiliated agency of which Sheen was national director.

Many other Americans knew Sheen through voluminous writings, ranging from articles on communism to inspirational books like "Way to Inner Peace" and "Guide to Contentment."

Sheen's biggest job was as head of the Society for Propagation of the Faith, the church's fund-raising arm for foreign missions.

He died in the East Side apartment where he had lived since 1969, when he left his last official church post as Bishop of the Rochester, N.Y., Diocese.

NFL playoff picture coming into focus

By The Associated Press

A month ago, the once-proud Los Angeles Rams were struggling. Their record had slipped to 5-6, they had fallen out of first place and their chances of winning the National Football Conference West Division title for the seventh consecutive year appeared dim.

What a difference a month can make.

Now, after four consecutive victories, including Sunday's 34-13 romp over the Atlanta Falcons, the Rams again are kings of the NFC West for a record seventh time.

Three other teams in National Football League history — Minnesota, Dallas and Cleveland — had won six division crowns in a row. No team ever had won seven.

"I always felt somehow we'd get it," said Rams Coach Ray Malavasi. "Right now, we have momentum and this is when you like to have it — at the end of the season."

Although the Rams have dominated the division in recent years, they never have won pro football's biggest prize — the Super Bowl.

While the Rams were dreaming about Super Bowl miracles, five other teams joined them in the playoffs — which clinched last week — in the playoffs.

The Miami Dolphins, the Cinderella team of 1972 when they finished 17-0 including a 14-7 victory over Washington in the Super Bowl, clinched the American Football Conference East title with a 28-10 victory over the Detroit Lions, while the second-place New England Patriots were losing to the New York Jets 27-26.

The San Diego Chargers, the AFC West leaders, clinched at least a wild card playoff position by walloping the New Orleans Saints 35-0.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, 11-3, and the Houston Oilers, 10-4, who play in tonight's nationally televised game at the AstroDome, moved into the playoffs when the Cleveland Browns, behind them in the AFC Central, were beaten by Oakland 19-14 as the Raiders kept alive their playoff hopes.

Denver has a 10-5 record and Cleveland and Oakland each are 9-6 in the battle for the final playoff spot in the AFC. The Broncos finish their season at San Diego Dec. 17 in a showdown for the AFC West title, Cleveland winds up Sunday at Cincinnati and Oakland entertains Seattle Sunday.

In the NFC, the Washington Redskins joined Dallas and Philadelphia atop the East Division at 10-5 apiece, defeating Cincinnati 28-14. Dallas clinched at least a wild card berth Saturday with a 24-17 triumph over Philadelphia.

Chicago tied Tampa Bay for first place in the Central Division at 9-6 by edging the Green Bay Packers 15-14 Sunday while the Buccaneers were upset by the San Francisco 49ers 23-7.

Chicago, Tampa Bay and Washington have shots at the two remaining playoff spots in the NFC. In their final games, Chicago entertains St. Louis, Tampa Bay is home against Kansas City, and Washington plays at Dallas.

A FAREWELL TO THE FANS — Minnesota Vikings defensive end Jim Marshall waved to the fans as he and members of his family were driven around the football field prior to Sunday's game with Buffalo. For Marshall, 41, it was his last home game. He is retiring at the end of the season, having completed 20 years of pro football, 19 of them with the Vikings.

Dolphins 28, Lions 10

"I can't explain why I'm playing better now," said Miami quarterback Bob Griese after shredding Detroit's defense for six pass completions in six attempts for 101 yards and two TDs in the first quarter. Griese had been benched three weeks ago, but came in to engineer victories in the two games he did not start before opening against Detroit.

Chargers 35, Saints 0

Dan Fouts passed for 253 yards — giving him 3,852 for the season, 155 yards short of Joe Namath's NFL record of 4,007 — and one touchdown in San Diego's rout of depressed New Orleans. The Saints were eliminated from playoff contention earlier in the day by Los Angeles' victory over Atlanta. Hank Bauer had three 1-yard scoring runs for the Chargers.

Vikings 10, Bills 3

Defensive end Jim Marshall, 41, playing his last home game for the Vikings, inspired Minnesota's defense which checked Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson, the AFC's top passer for the past 12 weeks. Afterward, the retiring Marshall, who has started 281 consecutive games, was carried off the field on the shoulders of his teammates and given the game ball.

Rams 34, Falcons 13

Los Angeles, 9-6, put the game away with 28 points in the second quarter, including three touchdowns in less than five minutes. Meanwhile, the Rams' defense accounted for five turnovers, including three by Nolan Cromwell and a 34-yard interception return for a touchdown by Jim Youngblood, and sacked Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski four times for losses totaling 25 yards.

Raiders 19, Browns 14

Jim Breech, booed when he missed a last-second field goal in Oakland's last home game that cost the Raiders a victory, booted four field goals against the Browns. Oakland's other points came on Ken Stabler's 39-yard TD pass to Cliff Branch.

Jets 27, Patriots 26

New York, humiliated by New England 56-3 earlier in the season, got revenge by beating the Patriots in the rematch and knocking the Patriots out of playoff contention. Dave Jacobs' 25-yard field goal with 1:57 left was decisive.

'Skins 28, Bengals 14

Washington's Joe Theismann had one of his best games in the NFL, passing for 296 yards and two touchdowns to Clarence Harmon, while teammate John Riggins scored twice and went over the 1,000-yard rushing mark for the season.

49ers 23, Bucs 7

The fans tore down the goalposts at Candlestick Park and the players carried Coach Bill Walsh off in their shoulders as San Francisco handed the error-prone Bucs their third straight defeat. O.J. Simpson, the second leading rusher in NFL history, played his final home game for the 49ers. He gained 25 yards on six carries.

Cards 29, Giants 20

St. Louis' Ottis Anderson set an NFL rushing record for rookies by increasing his season's total to 1,566 yards. Against the Giants, he carried 29 times for 140 yards and two touchdowns. Phil Simms passed to Billy Taylor for all three New York TDs.

Chiefs 10, Colts 3

Baltimore's smallest crowd of the season, only 25,684, some 60 percent of capacity in Memorial Stadium, watched Jan Stenerud's 43-yard field goal with 11:16 remaining give Kansas City its narrow victory over the Colts.

Bulldogs win Ozona Tourney

OZONA — The Coahoma Bulldogs boys basketball team overwhelmed Sonora 51-33 Saturday night to take the championship in the Ozona Tournament.

The Bulldogs jumped out to a 13-4 lead in the first half and gradually increased that margin in taking an easy win in the championship match. The win gives Coahoma a 5-3 season record.

Micahel Meyer led a balanced scoring attack in the finals, as he had 10 points. Ron Belew added nine and Philip Ritchey eight in the win.

Coahoma had advanced to the finals by defeating Ozona in the first round and Stanton in the semifinals.

The Bulldogs decided the host Ozona school by a lopsided score of 77-38. Ritchey led the Bulldogs in scoring with 25 points, while Garza paced Ozona with 16.

Coahoma then eked out a 55-53 win over Stanton in what was the most exciting game of the tourney. Meyer paced the Bulldogs with 13 points, while the Stanton team was led in scoring by Lewis Henry, who totalled 20 points.

Ritchey was named the Most Valuable Player in the tournament, with teammate Ron Belew earning a spot on the All-Tournament team.

Bulldogs Coach Doug Harriman praised his entire team for their efforts in achieving the championship trophy. "We played well throughout the entire tournament," said Harriman, "especially on defense. Meyer had his best game of the year, as did Spot Paige, and David Barbee and Greg Wright also displayed improvement. Another factor that was encouraging was the play of our bench, which helped throughout the tournament."

The Bulldogs play their next contest at Crane on Friday, and then open District 6-AA play at Anson next week.

Oilers host Steelers tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — If Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw hasn't appeared to realize the importance of tonight's showdown against the Houston Oilers in the AstroDome, just give him time — like until the kickoff.

"We'll walk into the AstroDome Monday night and we'll know what it's like," Bradshaw said. "There's no sense getting all excited now and spilling it out at practice. Everyone tries to low-key it. I don't think the players like to think about how important a game is. It just runs the week if you do."

The Oilers, who have lost to the Steelers in their past three meetings, have also tried to "low-key" it this week and some have succeeded.

But not rookie defensive end Jesse Baker.

"I've been dreaming about this game for a long time," said Baker, the Oilers leader in quarterback sacks. "It's hard not to get excited. They ran us off the field the last time we played them, but I think we're going to come out on top this time."

Any player on either team could be forgiven for getting excited about this second meeting of the season between the two American Football Conference Central Division rivals. The game oozes with playoff possibilities.

The Steelers could clinch their sixth consecutive American Football Conference Central Division title and eighth straight playoff berth if they beat the Oilers. The Oilers could grab their second consecutive playoff spot and keep alive hopes for a Central Division championship with a win.

The game also pits the National Football League's leading rusher, Earl Campbell, against the leading defense against the rush. And the Steelers realize who they must stop.

"Everybody knows they want to run Earl," Steelers defensive tackle Steve Furness said. "You've got to stop him right away. And you don't want him to break the long run. You have to overcommitment to play the run and let Pastorini have the short stuff."

Campbell, the National Football League's leading rusher, has yet to gain 100 yards against the Steelers. Campbell was held to 38 yards rushing against the Steelers in a 38-7 Pittsburgh victory earlier this year. Campbell went into the game with 1,454 yards rushing.

Howard College hosts Western State tonight

Queens at 6:00, Hawks at 8:00

The Howard College Hawks and Hawk Queens return to Dorothy Garrett Coliseum tonight after two games on the road when they play host to Western State of Oklahoma.

The Queens will play at 6:00 p.m. in the opening contest. The Howard College feds decided Western State in their opening game of the season.

The Hawk Queens, who now stand 9-3 on the season, split Western Conference games last week. They lost to Western Tech 77-69, but regrouped to take an easy win over South Plains on Thursday night.

Meanwhile, the Howard College Hawks will host the men's team from Western State at 8:00 p.m. Western State took a 75-72 decision over the Hawks in the season opener for both schools a month ago.

Since that time, the Hawks have been a high-scoring unit that plays an exciting type of game, and Coach Harold Wilder's crew will be hoping to avenge their opening loss tonight. The Hawks currently stand at 8-3 on the year.

Saturday's Puzzle Solved:

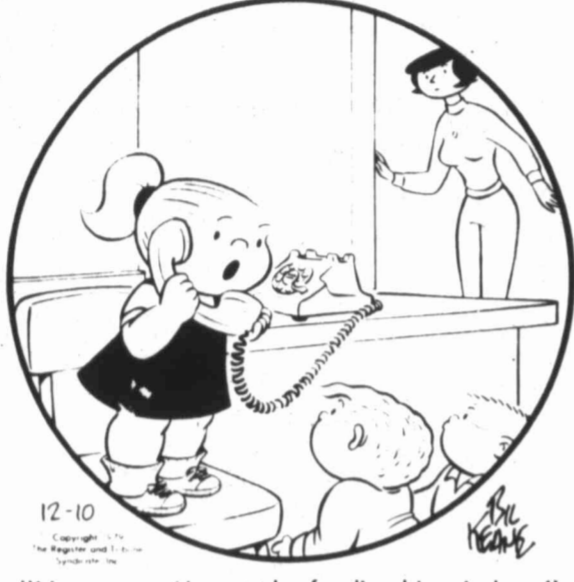

DENNIS THE MENACE

"IS THERE ANYTHING YOU DON'T WANT FOR CHRISTMAS?" "WE BETTER START A NEW LIST."

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"No answer. He must be feeding his reindeer."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, DEC. 11, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The benefits that come to you today or tonight can be in a surprise package, so be sure to look for them that way. Don't force issues for unexpected situations then can occur. Accept delays in your plans philosophically and avoid a demanding individual.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You plan one thing in the morning but then other situations arise to get you off the track, but take in your stride. Most co-workers are not cooperative right now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are highly inspired to get your talents working well and accomplish a great deal. Be a little dramatic if you want mate's cooperation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be particularly devoted to family and surprise them favorably. Study a new project that may be just what you are looking for.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You may have to spend time with one who arrives unexpectedly and you won't have time with be with friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A bigwig can come forth with backing you had not expected at this time. Show that you can handle your mundane affairs in a precise way.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A situation arises that can be an opportunity for you to advance. Not a good time for entertaining, but fine for being entertained.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Others may not be very supportive just now, but a new acquaintance has good ideas to give you. Give them serious thought.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find out what is expected of you by friends and try to please where possible. Gain their goodwill. Be more serious about your future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you think others are imposing upon you, take it in your stride, since it is common with everyone. Think calmly, quietly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) This is not the right day to make radical changes you have in mind, so postpone them. Consider some travel a little later on.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Come to a fine understanding with those with whom you deal in business and get fine results, bonuses. Be kind with a loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Doing what is expected of you by partners is wise and can bring good results. You get benefits from an associate which brings happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to study difficult problems well and then do the work necessary to solve them ideally. A fine sport in this chart. One who will be interested in religious matters early in life. Some musical ability here.

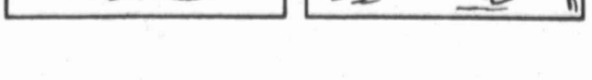

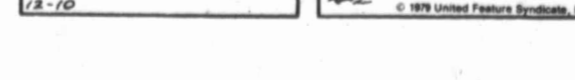

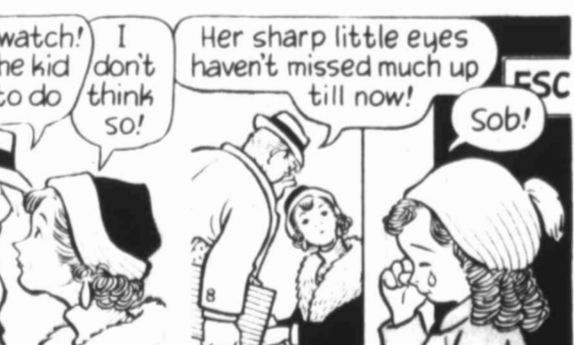

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Activities of two officers being checked by feds

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Federal agents are checking reports that two undercover Tyler police officers used illegal drugs, and that their activities were covered up by other members of the force, a Dallas newspaper says.

U.S. Justice Department sources confirmed the investigation into the handling of an eight-month undercover drug investigation by the Tyler Police department which resulted in 121 indictments, the Dallas Morning News reported.

The department is checking complaints that undercover officers Creig Matthews and Kim Ramsey routinely used narcotics during that investigation, the newspaper said.

Those arrested in the raid have filed a civil lawsuit, contending Smith County District Attorney Hunter Brush and Tyler Police Chief Willie Hardy knew of the officers' alleged drug use, but withheld that information, the newspaper added.

Matthews has repeatedly denied the claims.

The newspaper also reported, in a copyright story, that Matthews and Ramsey were arrested following a break-in at a local doctor's office, but the charges were dropped because the case could be brought to trial.

The offense report on the break-in names Karen

Odds for important 1980 election good

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The odds are good that Texas will hold the important 1980 elections according to state election laws that are outdated and riddled with errors.

The only chance for correction before the May 3 primaries and Nov. 4 general election would be for Gov. Bill Clements to demand election law revision in the 1980 special session he says he will call.

Otherwise, the next opportunity to revise state election laws will come when the 1981 Legislature convenes.

"The last full revision of election laws by the Legislature was in 1951," Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, said at a recent meeting of his Election Code Study Committee. "Since then there have been 17 or 18 piecemeal revisions by the legislators, plus any number of court decisions that affect the laws."

"The present code is a hodgepodge of articles, ideas, and court decisions that we call an election code," he said.

Ogg's committee is charged with cleaning up and streamlining the election code. The committee's charge, however, does not include recommending substantive changes to the 1981 session. The study picks up where a Texas Election Code Revision Commission — headed by former Secretary of State Steve Oaks — left off. Many of the recommendations of the Oaks commission were not even considered by the 1979 Legislature.

Working along the same lines, and at times in cooperation with Ogg's committee, is the House Committee on Elections.

Numerous discrepancies and ambiguities in present election laws showed up at recent sessions of both committees.

For instance, present law sets out a different procedure for recounting votes for each of the three methods of voting — voting machines, punch card and paper ballots. The Oaks commission recommended that instead of allowing partial or total recounts according to the method of voting, a recount must be made of all votes cast within a territorial unit. Ogg's committee has already decided a recount could be made of one precinct without recounting the whole county.

Present law allows a judge to order a new election if he is unable to determine the winner of a race in a general or special election. It does not mention primary elections.

What happens if an election is contested then one of the parties dies? Can his friends carry on the contest? Ogg's committee will make a ruling on that in February.

Can a judge order a special election in a runoff which is the subject of an election contest if the regular runoff date would not allow time for court appeals? Ogg's committee made a preliminary decision of "Yes."

At a recent meeting of the House elections committee, a representative of the secretary of state's office related numerous changes in the way Texas voters are registered.

Milton Mallory, head of the elections division, estimated about 100,000 of the state's

Ector County election upheld by Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to disturb a 1978 election that approved $21.6 million worth of construction and rehabilitation projects for Ector County, Texas, schools.

The justices, without comment, turned down arguments that the election results should be overturned because, according to county resident Robert Frias, school officials spread false information before the election.

At the same time, the justices turned down an effort by school district officials to collect damages from Frias for having to put up with what was called a "frivolous" appeal.

School officials asked to be awarded $6,337.46 for each day since the Texas Supreme Court dismissed the matter last Oct. 3.

Frias' appeal, filed by Odessa lawyer Gloria Tanner Swans, argued that school district officials "and their employees intentionally misrepresented facts concerning the needs of the school district."

The appeal said "local banks and Texas business corporations through their contributions funded the dissemination of these misrepresentations."

The funds raised by the bond issue vote are to be used for construction of two elementary schools, one junior high school and a new athletic stadium. The money also will be used for extensive renovating and refurbishing of existing buildings.

The Ector County school district has a student enrollment of about 23,000 and an annual budget of about $41 million.

Fast food on a fast track

By The Associated Press
Americans are spending more than $20 billion a year to gobble up burgers, fried chicken and all the trimmings at fast-food restaurants from coast to coast. Sales of the top 10 chains alone are five times as big today as they were less than 10 years ago.

While the experts disagree about the nutritional value offered by McDonald's, Burger King, Kentucky Fried Chicken and the like, the fast-food outlets continue to grow at a steady pace.

In 1978, domestic sales at fast-food restaurants totaled $21.2 billion, up 17 percent from the previous year, according to a report in Advertising Age, the trade publication. Consumers spent one-eighth as much in fast-food restaurants alone as they spent in grocery stores last year.

Another trade journal, Institutions, surveyed 400 foodservice organizations, including everything from the hamburger stand on the corner to haute cuisine to the military mess hall.

It found that the top 10 fast-food chains accounted for about one-fourth of the total foodservice organization sales last year, up from 16.1 percent less than a decade earlier.

In 1969, Institutions said, McDonald's and Burger King together had sales of under $500 million. Today, their sales total more than $6 billion. Sales of Kentucky Fried Chicken alone quadrupled from 1969 to 1978. The top 10 chains in 1969 had sales of $2.5 billion; in 1978, they had sales of $12.5 billion.

More than one food dollar in three already goes for food away from home. The National Restaurant Association estimates that Americans will spend 40 percent of their food dollars at restaurants of all types next year.

Economists in industry and government say there are several reasons for the trend toward meals away from home. Working women are less likely to emphasize home-cooked food. They also have more discretionary income to spend. The growth in the number of single-person households also has boosted the restaurant industry.

A Commerce Department report issued earlier this year said that the number of franchised fast-food restaurants went from 51,972 in 1977 to 57,878 in 1978, an increase of more than 10 percent.

The agency predicted that 1979 sales would grow by 20 percent. It also said that grocery stores are responding by establishing eating places of their own. "A number of supermarkets are even installing sit-down restaurants in their ... stores, while others are opening restaurant chains of their own," the Commerce Department said.

The Food Marketing Institute, in its annual report on supermarket trends, said: "Of continuing interest, is retailer response to the rise in food-away-from-home trend." The institute said that 43.6 percent of stores offered carry-out deli items in 1978, 3.4 percent had a lunch counter or snack bar and 2 percent offered sit-down restaurant facilities. Five years ago, the institute's annual report didn't even include the subject of in-store eating facilities.

Candidate thinning coming early this year

No easy formula in presidential politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — A full field of candidates has become something of a standard for presidential campaigns, but there are growing signs that the thinning may come earlier this time.

This doesn't necessarily mean most of the 13 major-party candidates will drop out after the first caucus, but already some campaign staffs are falling apart because of disorganization, resignations, lack of money or loss of steam.

Surprisingly, some of the trouble is cropping up in the camps of candidates who were considered leading contenders when the field began forming earlier in the year.

Former Texas Gov. John Connally, the leading moneyraiser in the Republican race, has hired a new efficiency expert to prune the fat from his operation. Already 20 of the 160 staffers at his Arlington, Va., headquarters have been fired and more are expected to go.

And Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker

Jr. of Tennessee disclosed last week that he is trimming his campaign effort to concentrate on eight states with early primaries.

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, who was vice presidential nominee on the 1976 Republican ticket, is in the midst of reorganizing his campaign in New Hampshire, the first primary state, after wholesale resignations last week.

Starting early became the established wisdom after George McGovern grabbed the Democratic nomination that way in 1972 and Jimmy Carter won the nomination and the election with an even earlier start four years later.

This season's first entry was Republican Phil Crane, who broke even those records with a mid-1978 announcement for 1980. Crane was raising money and lining up field workers when others were just thinking about it.

But the strategy went sour when Crane's campaign began to come apart last spring with mass resignations in the top ranks of his organization.

It also was learned that his spectacular fundraising had a kink. The expensive direct-mail technique he was using had run him almost $1 million in debt.

Today, Crane is still trying to get his campaign back on track, but his poor showing in early straw votes and continued low rating in the polls indicate the difficulty. His last financial report listed a $793,041 debt.

Ronald Reagan has been the front-running Republican ever since he almost beat a sitting president for the 1976 nomination. He did all the requisite groundwork for the 1980 race, announced later and is actually expanding his organization while others are cutting back.

All any of this proves is that there is no easy formula in presidential politics. Starting early or late, fast or slow, known or unknown, each campaign has its own rules and its own trends.
