She Carved 'War' On Chest Of Dead Guy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Krenwinkel, serene and softspoken, confessed in grisly detail that she killed two persons in the Sharon Tate murders and carved "War" on the chest of a dead man in the aftermath.

The dark-haired, plain-looking defendant was unemotional as she testified Thursday that she chased coffee heiress Abigail Folger across the lawn of actress Tate's mansion and then "I stabbed her and I kept stabbing her."

The next night, she said, she stabbed the wife of wealthy market owner Leno LaBianca, later carving "War" in LaBianca's chest and leaving a fork stuck in his stomach.

She said bearded Charles Manson, hippie-style clan leader, was not involved in any of the seven killings in August, 1969.

The 23-year-old, her wavy brown hair hanging nearly to her waist, was the second woman defendant to confess on the stand during the penalty phase of the murder trial. Susan Atkins has admitted killing Miss Tate and, in an unrelated incident, a Malibu physician.

'FAMILY'

Both said Manson was not involved. The two women, Manson and Leslie Van Houten have been convicted of murder. The jury is hearing evidence to decide if they should be sentenced to death or life in prison.

Miss Krenwinkel, describing her life with Manson's roving "family," said she considered him "perfection" and the best lover she ever knew.

FIVE MURDERS Looking For 'Madman' In West Texas

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — Disclosure by officers Thursday night that the bilfold of murdered go-go dancer Eula Mae Rogers has been found in a vacant house at Kermit gave a new turn to investigations involving five women in this West Texas area.

Three of the women are dead and the circumstances surrounding their deaths have yet to be solved. Two are missing and there is no clue whether they are alive or dead.

The five unsolved mysteries:
— Eula Mae Rogers, a go-go dancer using the professional name of Kay Miller, was found fatally stabbed in her Odessa apartment last year. The police announcement that her bilfold had been recovered in Kermit is the first clue linking her death to that city, 45 miles west of here.

— Mrs. Nancy Mitchell, 27, vanished from her home in Kermit Sept. 16 last year, leaving her two children sleeping and the light burning on her sewing machine. Her kicked-off shoes lay beneath the machine. She was never seen again but her slashed clothing was found a few days later on the road between Kermit and Odessa.

— Linda Cougat disappeared after going to an Odessa laundromat two years ago. Her body was found in a pasture outside the city. She apparently had been murdered.

— Mrs. Ruth Maynard, the wife of a former policeman, vanished Jan. 9. She was last seen leaving a local night club. Her body was found, a nylon stocking wrapped tightly around the neck, in a pasture outside the city.

— Mrs. Oleta Fuller, 28, was reported by her 11-year-old daughter to have gone off Feb. 10 with a man she saw in a lounge and asked to start her stalled car. She was not seen again. Detectives left Friday for Hobbs, N. M., to question the daughter who is now staying there with her grandparents.

Texas Rangers are now involved in the various cases and Midland police have been consulted.

One Odessa officer privately expressed the opinion: "We are looking for a madman."

Odessa Police Chief Jack Tomlin publicly appealed for any information anyone might have which could help solve the string of mysteries.

A 20-year-old woman told the police how she was raped by a man last fall. She said she had never reported it because the man threatened to kill her if she did.

BARTOSH NAMED PERMIAN COACH

ODESSA — Gilbert Bartosh, a former TCU back who has been serving as an assistant coach at Rice University, has been named head coach at Odessa Permian High School, the Daily Herald learned this morning.

Man Accused Of Killing Three Deputies Seized

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — More than 60 federal, state and local authorities surrounded an East Dallas apartment early today and captured Rene Adolpho Guzman, 33, charged with murder in the execution-style slayings of three sheriff's deputies last Monday.

Guzman and Leonard Ramos Lopez, 24, gave up without resistance as officers swarmed around the building in the 4600 block of San Jacinto. Two women were arrested in the apartment with Guzman and Lopez.

Two other persons—a man and woman—were taken to Parkland Hospital in good condition after they exchanged shots with officers in an adjacent apartment. No charges were filed against the pair at once.

STAKEOUT

Guzman had been the object of a nationwide manhunt since Monday night when three county officers—two from Dallas and one from Ellis — were gunned down in the Trinity River bottoms in West Dallas.

Dallas County Sheriff Clarence Jones gave this account of the capture:

"On information that Guzman was in the vicinity, a stakeout was initiated about 24 hours ago. We knew he was on the east side somewhere.

"A raiding team—six men in the front and six in the back of the building—led by Capt. Robert Dixon of the Dallas police department, knocked on the doors and banged on the walls, yelling 'Police!' and 'Police!' There was a considerable amount of scuffling inside.

SHOTS FIRED

"When officers entered, a man jumped from a chair, picked up a revolver and fired two shots at the officers. The officers returned the fire, striking both the man and his wife. It was determined that this was not the suspect we were looking for. They were rushed to Parkland Hospital.

"On commencing to leave that area, still believing our information was correct, officer Wayne Posey from Dallas police talked to a woman at a neighboring building.

"In that building next door, the suspect was captured without further struggle. Both he and the other man (Lopez) were in the bathroom of the apartment.

HAPPY BUNCH

"Two women were also in the apartment.

"One weapon was recovered. It is believed to be one of the officers' weapons. It was a .38 caliber revolver.

Jones said today's arrests completed a search for all principals in the case.

"We're an elated bunch of officers—every one of them," the sheriff said.

"We're extremely glad and fortunate to have no additional officers injured. We felt that a show of force would help to prevent further injuries."

Guzman and Lopez were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Tom Naylor. The mustachioed Guzman stood mute, wearing black slacks, in stocking feet and no shirt. Both were denied bond.

Also arraigned and charged with being an accomplice to murder and harboring a fugitive were Angie Rojo Hernandez, 38, and Mary Alice Rosales, 25. Bond was set at $100,000 for Miss Hernandez and $50,000 for Miss Rosales.

City police said Guzman and Lopez apparently heard the gunfire in the adjacent apartment and hid in a bathroom. When officers knocked on the door of the apartment where the fugitives were found, Miss Rosales was quoted as saying, "He's not here."

'HE'S IN THERE'

After further questioning, she said, "Get me out of the door." Then on the outside, police quoted her as saying, "Yeah, he's in there."

Earlier Thursday, Jones said his office was convinced that Moises Zuniga Guzman, 35, Rene's brother, was not an actual participant in the slayings.

Moises Guzman, held without bond in the county jail, signed a statement Wednesday night in which he maintains he had nothing to do with the murders, the sheriff said.

The sheriff's deputies slain Monday were Donnie Reese, 30, of Rockwall; Sam Infante, 32, of Irving, and A. J. Robertson, 59, of Waxahachie. Reese is a former Big Spring policeman.

Jones said authorities believed Guzman and Lopez had been in Dallas throughout their search. The sheriff discounted the possibility that Guzman had anything to do with a kidnapping at Littlefield, Tex., as had been suspected.

Prospects Bit Dim For Tax Proposals

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith, obviously upset by criticism of his latest tax recommendations, challenged his opponents today to "become realistic or shut up and go to work."

Smith made the comment in a brief written statement after the heads of both houses of the legislature reacted unfavorably to Smith's second attempt to solve Texas' tax crisis.

"I have noticed with interest the comments in the press with regard to the second tax program which I presented to the legislature Thursday," Smith said today, reading from a one-paragraph statement.

"It occurs to me that since I have now recommended: (1) A plan that would require no new taxes and (2) a plan that does require new taxes that perhaps the critics are saying perhaps we should live within our income. That would be acceptable to me. However, it also appears that since many people have been so quick to criticize—some of whom never voted for a tax bill during their political lives—it is time for them to live up to their responsibilities. If people want the services, and some legislators certainly seem to feel their constituents deserve new highways, schools, etc., then it is time to either become realistic or shut up and go to work."

As soon as he finished reading the statement, Smith thrust the sheaf of papers at waiting reporters, shook his head repeatedly at questions, and stepped on the feet of at least two reporters as he hurried from the governor's reception room.

Smith was scheduled to go to Laredo this afternoon and be there tonight and all day Saturday for the Washington's Birthday celebration.

Both Houses were in adjournment for the weekend while senators and representatives checked with hometown voters on the governor's latest taxing recommendations, which hit hard at consumers and college students.

Smith's "spend-now, pay-later" plans revealed Jan. 20 in his first speech to the legislature toppled quickly. A 22-125 House vote killed one key issue, public school bonds, and another key Smith proposal fell 15-16 in the Senate.

With the 62nd Legislature already six weeks old, Smith submitted his second plan Thursday to raise $470 million in new taxes.

The governor's plan asks the legislature to:

—Raise the state sales tax from 3.25 to 4 per cent, effective July 1, for $300 million.

—Raise the motor vehicle sales tax from 3 to 4 per cent for $70 million.

—Increase state college tuition from $50 to $125 a semester for Texas residents and $200 to $500 for out-of-staters, for $100 million.

"The governor's proposals need more balance if they ever hope to pass the Senate," was the reaction of Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes. "More so-called business taxes." Barnes also said there would be "trouble" passing a bill that more than doubled in state college tuition.

MOTHERHOOD, ARMED SERVICES

Sex Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The armed services, facing charges of sex discrimination, are easing long-standing rules barring women from motherhood while in uniform.

Each of the services is reviewing separately personnel policies maintaining a double standard for the sexes. Some changes have been made already while others are expected in the coming weeks.

The Army, for example, will make exceptions now and induct women who are married or have custody of a child under 18.

"It's like haircuts for the men," said an Army official, referring to new rules permitting men to wear longer hair. "It's just keeping in trim with the times."

The Navy recently suspended its policy requiring the discharge of women who become pregnant while on active duty. Until a new policy is drawn up, each case will be considered individually.

In reversing its policies, the Air Force will allow WAF officers and enlisted women to adopt children, be stepmothers or have custody of a child under 18. But pregnancy still brings automatic dismissal.

This regulation is being challenged by an Air Force nurse, Capt. Susan Struck, who had a baby while on active duty and is appealing an attempt to discharge her.

In her federal court suit, Capt. Struck contends her constitutional rights are being violated.

A San Diego woman who was discharged from the Marine Corps when she married and became a stepmother to two teenagers has filed suit asking she be restored to active duty.

Gail Waugh Downen contends a Marine Corps regulation revoking the commission of any woman officer who becomes a stepmother of a child under 18 discriminates against her solely on the basis of sex. No such regulation exists against male officers, Mrs. Downen's suit said.

The review of Army personnel policy was prompted by John G. Kester, deputy assistant Army secretary, who called for changes in the "objectionable discriminatory standards for service between male and female personnel."

But even with the new regulations, the Army still is not opening the door to wholesale enlistment of all previously unacceptable women. These include those who were once married or had a pregnancy while unmarried. The changes permit waivers in individual cases.

SMALLEST INCREASE IN NEARLY FOUR YEARS

Cost Of Living Edges Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living, as measured by the government, edged upward one-tenth of one per cent in January.

It was the smallest monthly increase in nearly four years and the White House welcomed the showing as indicating "that our policies related to the economy are working."

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler added in the White House statement:

"Also the fact that food prices at the grocery store have not risen over the past 12 months is very encouraging."

Costs of consumer services were up six-tenths of one per cent, but this was mostly offset by declines in prices of used cars, clothes, and some grocery store items.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics Consumer Price Index had gone up five-tenths of a per cent the preceding month. The index stood 5.2 per cent higher than one year ago, the smallest 12-month rise since March, 1969.

$100 UPDATE

On a dollars and cents basis the new figures released Friday meant it cost $119.20 in January to buy the same goods and services that cost $100 in 1967. These goods and services cost $138.60 when compared to what $100 would have purchased in 1957.

The bureau updated its $100 base period to 1967 effective with this report.

Prices of food purchased at the supermarket declined four-tenths of one per cent after seasonal adjustments. Prices of meats and fresh fruits and vegetables which usually rise between December and January instead declined this time. But prices of eggs and dairy products which usually go down, went up—eggs by 3.8 per cent.

The cost of restaurant meals and cereal and bakery products went up more in January than in recent months.

The biggest single decline in prices from December was for women's and girl's clothing, down 2.6 per cent. The largest increase, apparently reflecting the winter power shortage in cold weather areas, was 1.6 per cent for fuel oil and coal.

REAL EARNINGS

In Chicago and the Los Angeles-Long Beach area the cost of living actually declined one-tenth of one per cent from December, the figures showed. Philadelphia was unchanged and New York was up one tenth of a per cent. But Detroit costs increased a sizable seven-tenths of one per cent.

The report said about 67,000 workers would receive wage increases based on the Consumer Price Index for January of any where from one to eight cents per hour.

An accompanying report on purchasing power of rank and file workers showed their real earnings advanced 11 cents from December to January principally because of reductions in federal income tax withholding rates.

Gross average weekly earnings of production and non-supervisory workers stood at $122.21 in January.

After taxes, however, the average take-home pay rose by 84 cents to $107.54 for an average worker with three dependents.

Joel Popkins, assistant commissioner of BLS for prices and living conditions, said that normally the cost of living declines two-tenths of one per cent from December to January. Thus on a seasonally adjusted basis January's figures showed a three-tenths of one per cent increase.

Popkins pointed out that the seasonally adjusted figure is more accurate for tracking inflation, but the unadjusted figure represents what consumers are actually paying in the marketplace.

Four Negroes Witnessed Massacre Of Deputies

DALLAS (AP) — Four Negro workmen who refused to be identified publicly, witnessed Monday night's massacre of the Dallas deputies on the banks of the Trinity River, it was disclosed today.

The four said they saw men running and being chased by others. They saw the splash as one victim toppled in the river.

At one point, after the shooting, they claimed that the killers—a short man and a taller one, both Latin Americans—passed within 30 feet of them as they left the scene.

The witnesses reportedly told their story to homicide unit detectives within hours of the slayings.

FEAR

Three of them said they feared reprisals if their names should become known.

Their story, as recounted in the Dallas Morning News, is that they were homeward bound in a pickup truck following a by-pass through the river bottoms.

One of the men told how he saw men near the river "running around shooting at each other."

"I looked and saw two men running west and a white car was chasing them," he said. "The two men ran toward the river and the car stopped and the driver got out and ran toward the river after the two men."

"By this time I was on the river bridge. I looked west down the river and saw a splash at about the spot the men had run to. I realized something was wrong so I turned around and went back so we could see the men in the car when they came up out of the bottoms."

The witness told how he heard a shot and then saw two men chasing another man with a car.

The third witness said: "We were on the top of the levee. I was the first to see a white Plymouth down in the river bottom. It was going toward Irving Boulevard."

Like the others he told how he saw men running and shooting.

G. WASH BIRTHDAY?

Some politicians say it has already been observed, but many traditionalists haven't yet observed Feb. 22 from their minds as THE date.

Big Spring merchants are staying with such tradition, and on Monday they're cooperating in their annual city-wide George Washington Birthday sales event. Smart shoppers will find much of interest and value to them in advertising in Sunday's Herald. Viva Feb. 22!

Military Spy Issue Boils

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Illinois congressman says the Pentagon's claim of new safeguards against domestic intelligence practices amounts to a framework for continued spying.

Rep. Abner J. Mikva, who says the Army's files include one on him, added he is preparing legislation to make intelligence gathering by military personnel at home a felony.

The Democrat dismissed as "gobbledygook" the announcement Thursday by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird that a new Pentagon review council will oversee the military's security investigations within the United States.

SAW MY FILE
Although Laird represented the move as fulfilling his Dec. 23 promise to strengthen civilian control of the intelligence establishment, Mikva charged, "There is nothing to indicate any policy changes."

Mikva also challenged renewed assurances of Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor that he and other Illinois leaders, including Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, had not been subjects of Army spying.

"I have talked with some people who flatly told me they saw my file," said Mikva, noting he is scheduled to testify on the matter before a Senate hearing next week.

Mikva said Laird's action fell "far, far short of what he promised, of really getting a handle on military intelligence. Either he changed his mind or he lost a battle with others in the Pentagon."

CAUSE FOR CONCERN

The review panel will include the civilian undersecretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force, and only one military man, the director of the Defense Intelligence Agency. It will be headed by Asst. Secretary of Defense Robert F. Froehke.

Contrary to an earlier indication by Laird, however, DIA's foreign operations will remain a responsibility of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Froehke told newsmen that high on the list of the council's priorities will be the issue of existing files, "although I can assure you... that a great number of files have been destroyed between 1969 and today."

Froehke said reports of domestic intelligence work had been exaggerated, but "nevertheless did give cause for concern."

'MY ANSWER'

"My answer," said Mikva later, "is that the military has no business doing any kind of domestic intelligence work whatsoever. To the extent that it is needed to protect bases, it can be done by the FBI or local law enforcement, which is the way that every other government agency operates."

CALLEY AND KAY ARRIVE At Building Five For Trial

Doc Depicting Calley As Robot-Like Soldier

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — A psychiatrist has depicted Lt. William L. Calley Jr. as a robot-like soldier, unable to exercise free will at My Lai, but concedes most of his information about the alleged massacre came from newspapers, radio and television.

"Is that good enough for a scientific analysis?", the prosecutor at Calley's murder trial asked just before the session recessed Thursday until today.

IT SUNK IN

"That is the best kind of brain-washing that there is," replied Dr. Albert LaVerne. "That really sunk in my mind."

LaVerne, senior psychiatrist at New York's Bellevue Hospital, had said the stress of combat so paralyzed Calley's mind that his cognition and volition were impaired.

These, he said, are the abilities to understand and to exercise will. Calley "could not possibly, in my opinion, have premeditated" the killings of My Lai villagers, the psychiatrist said.

The 27-year-old Calley, leader of the spearhead platoon in the My Lai raid three years ago, is charged with premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese villagers.

DEATH POSSIBLE

If convicted of the charge, he could be sentenced to death, Richard Kay, defense attorney, said.

Capt. Aubrey Daniel, 29, the Army prosecutor, asked LaVerne what he knew about the assault day for the basis of his diagnosis.

During the exchange that followed the witness asked whether he could look at his notes and pulled from his briefcase a summary of Calley's background and Vietnam experiences, prepared by the defense for use by another psychiatrist who had not examined the lieutenant.

"Is that what you call notes?" asked Daniel.

"It's part of my notes." "Is it your testimony now that you never discussed the events of March 16, 1968, with Lt. Calley?" asked Daniel.

DIDN'T SAY THAT
"No, I didn't say that." "Then what did he say?" "I can't recall what he said or didn't say."

All-state choir members from Howard County Junior College are in Dallas at the Texas Junior College Teachers Association convention.

"They are rehearsing today and will sing in a 190 member choir tonight," said Choir director Ralph Dowden.

Local all-state members are Lea Harris, Clarinda Harris, Debra Harris, Cheryl Ellis, Sharrla Acuff, Cecilia Cooper, Sharon Andrews, Don Seaster, Billy Wilson, Smith Swords, Roger Dixon and Wesley Cook.

Mitchell County Jury Indicts Big Spring Man

COLORADO CITY (SC) — trial has not yet been held. George Ivan Osteen 21, of Big Spring was indicted for the alleged rape of a 13 year-old Colorado City girl by the Mitchell County grand jury, which returned ten indictments this week.

Osteen allegedly raped the girl Dec. 17, behind a vacant service station in downtown Colorado City.

DWI, second offense, indictments were returned against Jesse Darnell Southerland, 47, of Arlington; Ben Barrera, 53, of Lorraine and Edgar Cecil Martin, 57, Colorado City. Martin pleaded guilty in 32nd District Court, Thursday and was sentenced to six months in the Mitchell County jail.

Debbie Lynn Hyden, 18, of Monroe, Mich., Jimmie Kent Murray, 20, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Allen Ray Lamm, 21, of Dallas, were named in a joint indictment charging them with forgery. They allegedly passed a $40 forged check at Landau's Department Store, in Colorado City.

Miss Hyden and Murray pleaded guilty in 32nd District Court and received probated sentences of two and three years, respectively. Lamm's

Base Spends More Money In Big Spring

Maintaining a trend for the past several years, procurement figures for the first half of fiscal year 1971 were above those for the first half of fiscal year 1970.

At this time last year the dollars spent totaled over $1,900,000, while this year showed an increase of $360,000, with a total of just over $2,260,000. This figure represents an increase of almost 20 per cent over last year. "While this is somewhat impressive in itself, the actual procurements in the Big Spring area are most interesting," said Lt. John Townsend, base procurement officer.

"It is of course, the policy of the Department of Defense to place as much business with local firms as economically possible," he said.

"Last year Big Spring received about $274,000 of Webb's procurements. However, for the same period in fiscal year 1971, orders placed in Big Spring totaled $427,000, or an increase of 55 per cent."

"Procurement has seen an increase of 30 per cent in the number of orders processed and a 20 per cent increase in the number of line items," he said. This is a direct result of the right control of funds, where the dollar amount and number of line items on each order has decreased.

"You can't recall anything of what was said?"

LaVerne replied that prior to his first examination of Calley last year, defense counsel George Latimer had told him not to discuss the day of the My Lai raid. But this week, the psychiatrist said, he had used the time while he was waiting to testify to talk about My Lai with Calley.

"I'd like a few more details," the prosecutor said. "Did you ask questions?"

"I can't remember because I was preparing for this cross-examination and that took all my energy, hanging around for a week," said the short, bald psychiatrist.

SO AM I

Q. Didn't you ask him to sit down and tell you?

A. I couldn't get him to sit down. He was up and down like a jumping bean. You don't pull out a pencil and paper, you don't approach a man like Lt. Calley that way. You've got to approach him gently. He is under pressure.

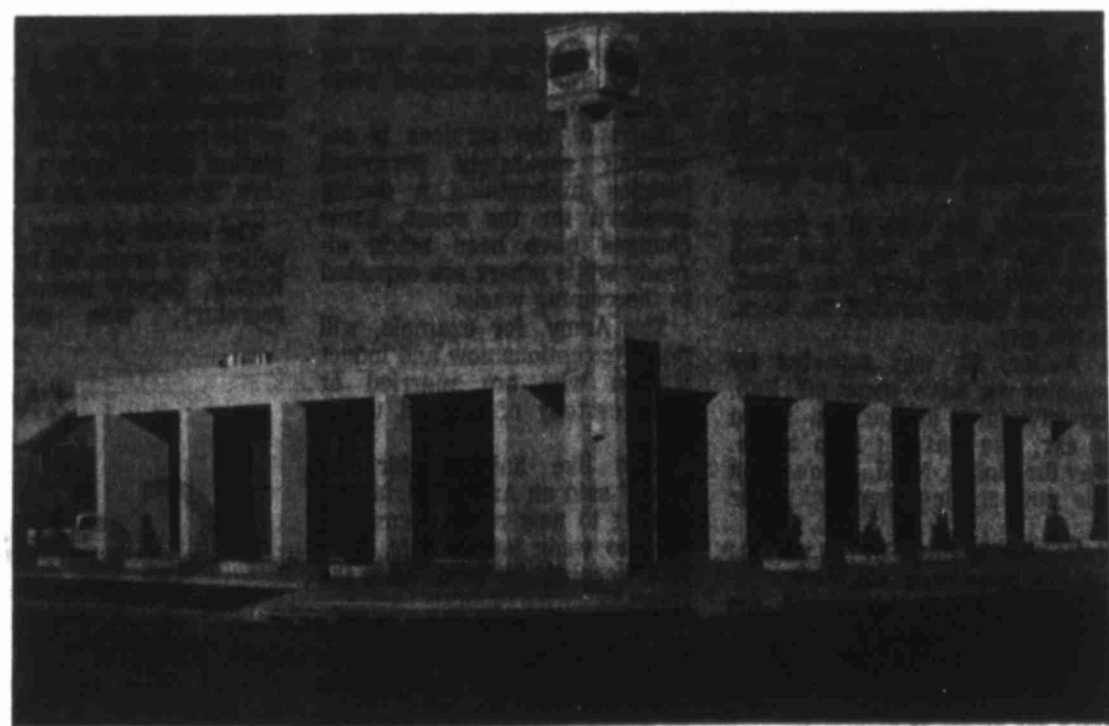

Q. You can't recall anything he told you?

A. No, because right now I'm under stress and I'm fatigued.

The judge interrupted. "I'll tell you what, Dr. LaVerne," he said. "So am I."

And the trial was recessed overnight.

A distributional freak worked out to declarer's advantage in today's hand, but he had to retain his composure and employ his wits fully to derive a profit from the situation that Nature had prepared for him.

South opened the bidding with one spade and West overcalled with two diamonds. North chose not to enter the proceedings on a queen high holding. East had the equivalent of a sound opening bid himself, and he jumped to three hearts in order to force a further call from his partner. South competed further with a bid of four clubs and West chose to pass. North gave a reluctant preference to four spades and East's double closed the auction.

West opened the king of diamonds and, in an effort to avoid making a play for the declarer, he continued with the ace. South being out of diamonds, was in position to trump the second lead and he was about to detach a spade from his hand, when he paused to reflect. West's failure to lead a heart at either his first or second opportunity was most unusual. The only logical conclusion which declarer could reach was that his opponent held no hearts.

If this were indeed the case, then South could induce West to come forth with a more favorable return on the next round by merely permitting his opponent to remain on lead. Accordingly, declarer discarded his small heart on the ace of diamonds, and West was neatly stymied. If he shifted to either black suit, it would expose one of his partner's high honors to a fatal finesse. He actually chose to play a third round of diamonds placing the declarer in dummy.

The jack of spades was put thru and it held the trick. The jack of clubs was led next and covered by the king and ace. The queen was cashed, a small club was ruffed with the ten of spades and overruffed by East's king. This was the last defensive trick. In all, declarer lost two diamonds and one spade.

Chevron Oil Co. President Addresses Snyder Dinner

By JOE PICKLE
SNYDER — There is an energy gap, but it can be closed by stepped-up exploration and improved recovery methods, R. J. Becker, president of Chevron Oil Company, told a Chamber of Commerce banquet crowd of nearly 1,000 here last night.

There are enough petroleum reserves to run this country a long time, and the oil industry can tap these "provided the government doesn't interfere too much in our industry," Becker declared.

Finding and recovering oil and gas may be more difficult, but Becker said that the industry is a long way from exhausting its potential in meeting a rapidly expanding energy appetite. Last year's energy requirements for the nation were twice those of 1960; by 1985 they will double again; and by 2000 they will almost double that.

Three-fourths of the nation's energy requirements are coming from oil and gas, only 20 per cent from coal, 4 per cent from hydroelectric, and a disappointing 1 per cent from nuclear power.

NEW FIELDS

To meet demands, new fields such as the Alaska's north slope must be tapped, and Becker said it is imperative the pipeline to the field be built.

Paralleling these efforts will need to be new conservation and recovery methods. A case in point, he said, was the SACROC unit in southwestern Scurry County, which, thanks to a waterflood program augmented by an impending carbon dioxide injection, will result in ultimate recovery of an additional 800 million barrels of oil from the Canyon Reef field.

Becker staunchly defended the internal combustion engine, asserting that its emissions can and will be reduced.

He also tossed in a bit of personal philosophy that chambers of commerce should be looking after development of an adequate cultural society as well as economic advancement, and that businessmen need to tell their story far better particularly by talking with student groups every opportunity they have.

BUSINESS BACKING

"I don't know of a worthwhile project that has ever succeeded when it didn't have the backing of business people," he said.

Earlier, C. T. McLaughlin, Scurry county oilman-rancher and one of the banquet co-hosts, tossed out a few figures on what oil means to the Snyder area.

The county produces daily from 3,289 wells 185,000 barrels of oil valued at $647,000. The $20 million monthly yield is increased by 2½ million in gas and LPG products.

The monthly yield is about four times the county's annual cotton gross, and the return from three days operation of the SACROC unit is greater than the value of all the calves in Scurry County. In another year, the Canyon Reef field will have produced one billion barrels of oil, he said.

ERNEST SEARS

Ernest Sears, life underwriter, was declared the outstanding citizen of Snyder. He has served in numerous posts, including equalization and zoning boards, chamber director and committeeman, Rotary official, Ranch Headquarters and museum director, president of the Gold Coats, and as co-chairman of the United Fund. He has been a resident of Snyder since 1952.

Mel Zane Gilbert, operator of Radio Station KSNY, was installed as president, succeeding Max Von Roeder, who noted several bright spots for 1970, including peak bank deposits, increased oil activity, upward trend in population (schools have gained 300 since last September), industrial growth and starting of junior college construction.

Guests included Bellinda Myrick, reigning Miss Texas, who sang several songs, and State Rep. Renal Rosson, one of Snyder's own; J. R. Graham and G. R. Sherman, regional and district Chevron managers. The affair was held in the Scurry County Coliseum.

City Officials Attend Lunch

Five city officials were to attend a luncheon today honoring the Texas Highway Commission. The meeting was to be in the Starlite Inn in Abilene.

Mayor Arnold Marshall, City Manager Larry Crow, Commissioners Wade Choate and Garner McAdams and Director of Public Works Nolen Chafin were to attend the meeting coordinated by the Abilene Chamber of Commerce Highway Committee.

Featured speaker for the luncheon was De Witt Greer, formerly the State Highway Engineer and currently chairman of the Commission.

Traffic Deaths Decline Noted

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's traffic death rate for miles traveled in 1970 was the lowest of any year for which records have been kept, the National Safety Council reports.

Both the number of fatalities and the death rate dropped, the council said Thursday, even though there was an increase of three million drivers and four million motor vehicles over 1969 figures.

Traffic accidents claimed 55,300 lives, a 2 per cent drop from the 1969 figure of 56,400. There were five deaths for each 100 million vehicle miles traveled, compared with 5.3 in 1969, the council said.

The decline reflects safer cars, better highways and stricter state laws, a council spokesman said.

Although the trend is encouraging, he said, "there is still a great deal to be done in the area of traffic and highway safety."

John D. Lawlor, executive vice president of the council, said legislatures must enact even tougher safety standards.

"Legislative compliance with the Federal Highway Safety Act of 1966 is progressing gradually," Lawlor said. "But when one stops to consider what is at stake, the progression seems slow indeed."

There needs to be a toughening of standards dealing with vehicle inspections, registration, driver education and licensing, courts, alcohol, and highway design and maintenance, he added.

County School Election Called

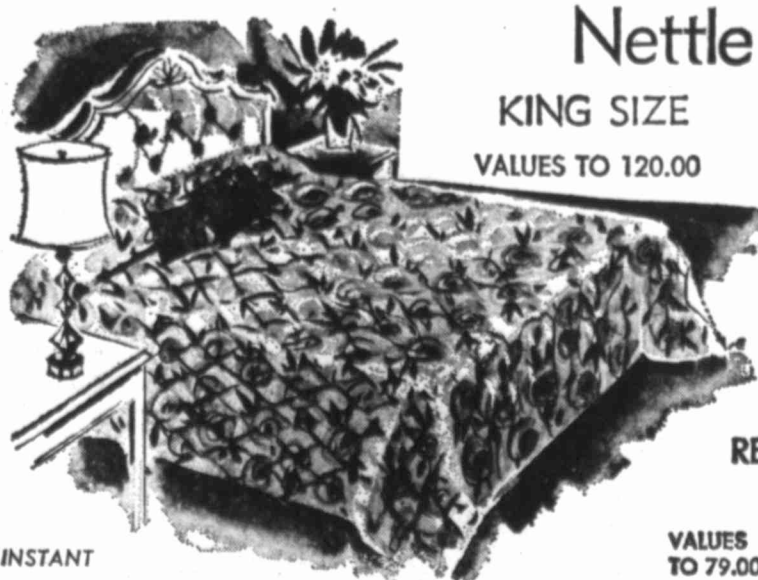

County Judge A. G. Mitchell announced today that a county school trustee election will be held April 3. There are two vacancies to be filled, precinct 1, Big Spring, and precinct 2, Forsan.

Deadline for filing is March 3 at 5 p.m. Anyone interested in filing for county trustee may do so in the county judge's office in the Howard County Courthouse.

Incumbents whose terms on the County School Board are expiring are J. D. Gilmore, precinct 2; and H. H. Rutherford, precinct 1.

Grand Officers Honored By Eastern Star Unit

Nineteen grand officers were honored Tuesday by Big Spring Chapter 67, Order of Eastern Star, in the Masonic Temple. Mrs. Orbin Daily read a tribute to the honorees.

It was announced that J. Victor Jones of Amarillo worthy grand patron, will make his official visit to the chapter April 6.

The refreshment table was covered with a pink and red cloth, and centered with red carnations interspersed with hearts. Silver appointments

Baptists Note WMU Founding

Founding of the Woman's Missionary Union was noted Tuesday by the Baptist Women of First Baptist Church during a home mission study, "The Diakonic Task." The call to prayer was by Mrs. Carl Rogers.

Mrs. W. F. Winn, study chairman, presented the program assisted by Mrs. Charles Sweeney, Mrs. W. F. Taylor and Mrs. Neal Bryant. The lesson on Christian social ministries placed emphasis on responsibility of local congregations and on Biblical understanding of the premise of diakonic ministry.

Afterward, a luncheon featured a patriotic theme. Hostesses were Mrs. D. D. Dyer and Mrs. Sam Kamm, assisted by Mrs. L. K. Gladden.

The women will meet daily during a week of prayer which begins March 1.

Ladies Society Installs Officers

Four officers were elected and installed Wednesday by the Ladies Society to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers in the IOOF Hall.

The new officers are Mrs. L. Griffith, collector; Mrs. M. E. Anderson, chaplain; Mrs. F. B. Wilson, conductor; and Mrs. Cecil Kirkland, past president. Mrs. J. L. Millican presided.

The club charter was draped in memory of Mrs. Cecil Nabors, a former member. Refreshments were served by Mrs. W. N. Wood and Mrs. D. C. Pyle. The next meeting is at 3 p.m., March 17 at the IOOF Hall. The refreshment committee is Mrs. Ethel Van Pelt and Mrs. W. W. Marlin.

Churches Benefit By Co-Operation

The final chapter of the mission study book, "The Diakonic Task," was held Tuesday by the women of Westside Baptist Church. Mrs. J. A. Andrews described goals of Mrs. Margaret Williams of a "white" church in Washington, D.C., and her work in getting her church and a "black" church nearby to cooperate for the benefit of both. She read the prayer calendar, and prayers were led by Mrs. C. L. Kirkland and Mrs. E. O. Sanderson.

Dr. Koshi Speaks On Tree Care

The care and planting of trees was the subject presented Tuesday by Dr. Paul Koshi, guest speaker for the After Five Garden Club in the home of Mrs. John Burgess, 813 Bucknell. Cohostess was Mrs. Huey Rogers.

Dr. Koshi is research soil scientist at the U. S. Experiment Station, and his talk dealt with trees that are good for this area because they do not require much water and are not affected by wind. Some examples he gave were the Oak, Arizona ash and poplar.

Dr. Koshi also discussed various types of diseases that effect trees and the care required to cure or prevent the diseases. A question and answer period followed his talk.

The club purchased the book "Forest Trees of Texas." The next meeting is at 7:30 p.m., March 16 in the home of Mrs. E. C. Shive, 604 Bucknell.

Plan Bake Day

The Wives and Mothers of Vietnam Servicemen will hold their monthly bake day at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Midway School. Anyone interested in visiting or helping may attend.

Gamco Artist Shows Wild Life Illustrations

Wild life illustrations were shown Tuesday by Mike Paul, guest speaker for the Big Spring Art Association in the home of Mrs. W. H. Crenshaw, 600 Johnson. Cohostess was Mrs. John Evans.

Paul, art director for Gamco, Inc., exhibited slides of wild animals and birds, explaining techniques used to get the pictures. He uses slides as models for his paintings.

Paul emphasized that before painting any animal an artist should first study the bone structure and muscles of the animal.

Two new members at the meeting were Mrs. Gary Grant and Mrs. John Kenagy. Members made plans for the annual spring art show to be held March 26-28 in the First Federal Savings and Loan building.

The show is open to all area artists, and entries will be accepted from 12 o'clock noon until 6 p.m. on March 26. The entry fee is $2.

The next meeting is at 7:30 p.m., March 16 in the home of Mrs. Frank Hartley, 408 W. 6th.

Top Winners In Duplicate Games

Mrs. Elmo Wasson and Mrs. J. Gordon Bristow placed first when four tables participated in duplicate bridge games Wednesday at Big Spring Country Club. Other winners were Mrs. Jack Irons and Mrs. Ward Hall, second; and Mrs. J. H. Fish and Mrs. E. O. Ellington, third.

Lions Auxiliary Donates To Camp At Kerrville

The Downtown Lions Auxiliary made a contribution to the Lions Crippled Children's Camp in Kerrville at its meeting Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Gene McElroy, 2311 Brent. The camp is sponsored by Lions International.

Mrs. Jim Holmes presided, and gifts of appreciation were presented to Mrs. D. M. Keese, a.m. Saturday at the Midway School. Anyone interested in visiting or helping may attend.

The refreshment table was centered with a floral arrangement donated by the Evening Lions Auxiliary in appreciation for the club's assistance in helping them get reactivated. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. James Quigley of Glenwood Springs, Colo., and Mrs. Adah Yerden of Anderson, Ind.

The next meeting is at 10 a.m., March 17 in the home of Mrs. D. S. Riley, 505 Hillside.

Members Bring Favorite Psalms

The Martha Foster Circle, Wesley United Methodist Church, met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Alta King for a Bible study led by Mrs. T. C. Clark, 2800 Apache.

Richardson. Bible verses were repeated, and each member gave her favorite psalm. Miss Helen Ewing presided for the discussion which followed. Mrs. Abbie Anderson led prayer. The next meeting will be Tuesday in the home of Mrs. V. R. Bible study led by Mrs. T. C. Clark, 2800 Apache.

PBX Tells 'Operator Of Year'

Mrs. C. H. Cox was named Tuesday as "Operator of the Year" by the PBX Club of Big Spring at Holiday Inn. The winning letter was written by Mrs. John Rains who presented the trophy.

Mrs. Cox is a charter member of the club and has not missed a state convention since the club was organized.

"By her interest in and support of the local and state chapters, she is an asset to our group," wrote Mrs. Rains.

The letter was read by Mrs. John Ray, last year's recipient. Nominees were judged by Mrs. Leonard Hanson of Howard County Junior College. Mrs. Cox has worked at Cowper Clinic and Hospital for 22 years. She presently serves as parliamentarian of the local club. Her supervisor, Dr. R. B. G. Cowper, was awarded the club's "Boss of the Year" award in December.

Mrs. Joe Blasingame presided, and Mrs. Rains, state treasurer, announced that the state convention will be April 23-25 at the Rice Hotel in Houston.

Members turned in money collected for tickets for a money tree to be awarded in April. Proceeds will go to the club charity or be used to send a delegate to the state convention.

The next meeting is at 7:30 p.m. March 16 at Malone and Hogan Clinic.

A LOVELIER YOU Lose Weight With Exercise And Diet

By MARY SUE MILLER (This is the first in a series of five special columns on reducing by spring fashion time.)

When you take off excess weight, of course you look lovelier. You feel more alive, too. We now know that normal weight increases our chances of a long, vigorous life. Losing weight, in consequence, seems worth any amount of struggle. But do you know that struggle is unnecessary?

Successful reductions come from eating a sufficient amount of well-balanced foods. Plus mild exercise. One such program begins today. Follow it and you can lose up to 10 pounds and 2 inches within a month. Just in time for the undulating spring fashions.

Get started by using menus and exercises as they appear. The average daily menus total 1200 calories, a safe and satisfying number. Here goes.

Breakfast. Sliced orange, 1 tsp. honey; toasted bran muffin, half pat whipped butter; unsweetened coffee or tea. Lunch. Cup beef consomme, open-face grilled cheddar sandwich; raw apple; hot or cold unsweetened beverage.

Dinner. Half broiled baby chicken; 1/4 cup rice with tsp. slivered almonds; portion steamed broccoli, lemon garnish; small dipper coffee ice cream; black coffee. In-betweens. Glass skim milk, morning and evening.

Menus squared away, consider exercise, with a hip problem, perform this trimmer for 5 minutes daily: On back, grasp knees to chest; repeatedly roll across upper hip. Then sit up, legs straight out, and roll again; balance with hands.

Reducing Tip: Weigh in once a week, at the same hour. Subtract 2 pounds for clothes when worn. Otherwise the picture is false and discouraging.

Tomorrow: Figurama Spot Trimmers.

LEAN, LIGHT, LOVELY
Here's a painless way for teens and adults to reduce! Just send for my leaflet, Leaner, Lighter and Lovelier. It includes menus for delicious meals and snacks; calorie counter and nutrition chart; diet shortcuts; spot reducers. For your copy write to Mary Sue Miller in care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin.

Jaycee-Ettes Gain Members, Announce Future Activities

Seven women became members of the Jaycee-Ettes Wednesday at a meeting in the First Federal Community Room. They are Mrs. Bill Orenbaum, Mrs. David Hicks, Mrs. Tricia Spire, Mrs. Joe Hobbs, Mrs. Bill Fox, Mrs. Preston Myrick and Mrs. Sam Morgan.

Mrs. Bob Taylor presided, and plans were made to enter a girl in the Easter Seal princess pageant, sponsored by the Beta Sigma Phi sorority. Winners are chosen based on achievements and personal appearance.

The club is placing a doll, attired in a Jaycee-Ette uniform, in the volunteer showcase at the Veterans Administration Hospital. The showcase is for clubs with a certain number of volunteer hours served at the hospital.

In other business, Mrs. Ken Gafford was appointed to replace Mrs. Eddie Buffington as second vice president. Plans were made for the District 1-C convention to be held in Lubbock today through Sunday. Attending are Mr. and Mrs. Max Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Faulkner, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Gafford, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Pirkle and Mr. and Mrs. Don Horton.

Members were urged to attend the Rattlesnake Round-up

March 19-21. There will also be a dance March 20 at the Cosden Country Club featuring the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Larry Knight and Mrs. Taylor. The next meeting is at 7:30 p.m. March 9. New officers will be nominated. On the nominating committee are Mrs. Tommy Tompkins, Mrs. Horton, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Faulkner and Mrs. Gerald Wooten.

U. S. Agents Grab 'Living Jewelry'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — If you've bought any "living jewelry" lately — beetles adorned with rhinestones — better check your jewelry box. It may have been gobbled up by now.

U.S. customs agents say they have seized about 500 jewel-encrusted beetles here and are still searching.

The thumb-size bugs were banned from this country in 1963 because of their eating habits.

Much more than jewelry boxes is at stake, the agents said.

The illegal beetles' diet is wood, whether in a tree or the finished product.

"They will even chew up cardboard," said David Campbell, U.S. Agriculture Department inspector.

He said the bejeweled creatures, sold as "living jewelry" for up to $8.95 each, were probably brought from Mexico, their natural home. They last appeared here about five years ago.

Special customs agent Richard Salley said the beetles were found in stores here and in nearby towns.

They have rhinestones and

Graveside Rites For Harris Infant

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Graveside services will be held for Sally Ann Harris, day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Harris, Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Colorado City Cemetery, with Tom Franklin, minister of the Northside Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be under the direction of the Kiker and Son Funeral Home.

The baby was born Wednesday in the Root Memorial Hospital and died at 6:18 p.m. Thursday.

Survivors include the parents; one sister, Susan; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Harris, Colorado City; and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Cranfill, Denison.

multicolored glass "jewels" pasted on their backs and are worn like lapel buttons or brooches. Several people brought them in voluntarily after learning they were banned, officials said. "I'm still in kind of a shock over this," Campbell said. "Our concern about this is mainly that if the beetles are introduced into the U.S., we don't know what they might do in a new environment."

The Japanese beetle proved a serious pest when brought into the United States, he noted.

He said criminal charges may be filed if the bugs' route into this country can be traced.

Possession of them is illegal and punishable by fine.

Officials urged anyone with a beetle or two in his or her jewel box to turn them in at once to customs or agriculture officials.

land, near Corpus Christi, is finally settled.

But committee members appeared to be straining to keep their tempers under control as Bridges lost in a morning session to postpone consideration of Wells and then failed twice in an afternoon hearing to delay questioning on the appointment.

The appointment of an East Texas banker to a state agency caught up in the controversy over Mustang Island has changed all that.

The committee finally approved Jack Stone of Wells, near Lufkin, as a parks and wildlife commissioner Thursday after Sen. Ronald Bridges of Corpus Christi failed three times to stall a vote.

8-3 VOTE

The 8-3 vote to approve Stone, 40, sends his appointment to the full Senate for debate, and Bridges said he probably will try once more to delay action. But he also said he probably would vote to confirm the crew-cut president of the First State Bank at Wells.

Bridges insisted he only wanted the committee to wait until a lawsuit involving Mustang Island was settled.

He also read a letter to the committee, which he said he had hoped he would not have to read.

It was addressed to Bridges from Harry Tension, a member of the Texas Conservation Foundation, as was Stone. It was handwritten on stationery from the Trans World Airlines Ambassadors Club at John F. Kennedy International Airport near New York.

AFRICA NEXT

Tension, Bridges said, was on his way to Africa.

The letter claimed Stone was one of four foundation members who approached him before a meeting and "either directly or backing up the statements made by all of the four men" told Tension, "We have got to protect Pearce Johnson."

Johnson, Parks and Wildlife Commission chairman, filed the lawsuit to block the purchase of some 3,300 acres of Mustang Island, near Corpus Christi, after he was outvoted, 2-1, by the other commissioners on the proposal to spend some $2 million in state funds for the land.

The foundation voted 8-3 to advise Gov. Preston Smith that the state should not buy the land, with Stone voting with the majority. Tension was on the losing side.

'OPEN MIND'

Smith later named Stone to replace L. P. Gilvin of Amarillo, one of the commissioners who voted against Johnson. Gilvin's term expired Jan. 31.

Bridges once wrote Smith a letter asking him to appoint Tension to the post.

Stone told the committee he "made no such statement" to Tension. "My decision was not influenced in any way by Pearce Johnson. I had no call from the governor's office. There were no strings attached."

He said he and Tension had even promised each other to have an "open mind" on the park proposal. "I'm amazed," Stone said, "that he would come up with something like that."

Art Madewell, 308 Young, reported someone had attempted to take a tire and wheel off his car, but had failed. Minor damage was done to his car.

Art Judges Go-Go Ape

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — How does an art judge feel when she learns she unknowingly picked an ape's work as a contest winner?

Three judges in the Kansas Recreation and Parks Association art contest said Thursday the whole thing had been fun but they wouldn't want it to happen again.

The panel included Mrs. Shirley Schmidt, artist and interior decorator; Mrs. Jinx Wright, artist and art teacher at Hutchinson High School, and Mrs. Thelma Jones, artist and art teacher at Central Junior High School.

In retrospect, they still thought D. James Orang's painting was the outstanding entry in the 4-to-8-year-old age group.

D. James Orang, it was later revealed, is a 5-year-old orangutan at the Topeka Zoo.

Adopted Child Found Dead

KAUFMAN, Tex. (AP) — Bridget M. Ratley, 5, was found dead at her home Thursday and sheriff's officers were called to investigate.

Justice of Peace A. B. Whitaker ordered the body taken into Dallas for an autopsy, which established that death was due to head injuries and extensive multiple bruising, officers said.

Bridget was an adopted child. No charges have been filed.

QUAKE-DAMAGED HIGH SCHOOL TO BE TORN DOWN

Mrs. Barbara Milhorn, a reading teacher at Los Angeles High School, retrieves papers from the debris in her classroom resulting from last week's earthquake. The school, oldest high school in the city, was condemned by officials who said damage was too great to be repaired. Authorities figure it will cost about $23 million to restore damaged school buildings to their pre-quake safety levels.

Indian University Idea Clears Hurdle

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — De-ganawidah-Quetzalcoatl University is over its first hurdle in its bid to obtain a 640-acre former Army base as the site of a school tailored for Indians and Mexican-Americans.

"We've brought in a winner, our first in a hundred years," exulted Grace Thorpe, daughter of famed Indian athlete Jim Thorpe and information officer for DQU. "Custer's last stand was just a century ago."

Robert Cooper, regional director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said Thursday he was forwarding DQU's application for the square mile of surplus military property 70 miles northeast of here at Davis to Washington with a recommendation for approval.

Because the site cost the government more than $1 million, he said, the application must be approved by the Department of Justice before HEW can turn over title to DQU's acting board of trustees.

Dr. Jack Forbes, an acting DQU trustee who teaches Indian studies at the nearby University of California at Davis, said the intention is to provide a university designed specifically to meet the needs of young Indians and Mexican-Americans.

There will be remedial teaching to bring them up to date academically, then vocational training to help them get jobs, and later courses that will lead to conventional degrees.

Forbes, a Powhatan, said such courses as history, for instance, may turn out different from those in most colleges.

"I don't think an honest education is possible at a public university," he said.

DQU is named after the Indian who founded the Iroquois Federation and the god-hero of the Aztecs.

Around 50 Indians occupied the former Army communications base last Nov. 3 after DQU first had incorporated itself and applied for the property.

The occupation came after UC Davis also applied for the land to use for agricultural experiments.

Early this year UC Davis withdrew its application, and on Jan. 15 the Indians received the keys to the place, a forest of antenna poles with four usable buildings and two barracks in the middle.

"DQU shows we can do something for ourselves, entirely by ourselves," said Miss Thorpe.

Justice of Peace A. B. Whitaker ordered the body taken into Dallas for an autopsy, which established that death was due to head injuries and extensive multiple bruising, officers said.

Bridget was an adopted child. No charges have been filed.

Nazarenes Start Revival Tonight

Special evangelistic services will be held at the Church of the Nazarene, 1400 Lancaster beginning today and ending Thursday.

The special speaker will be Evangelist Lawrence Z. Williams of Bethany, Okla., who is now devoting his full time to itinerant evangelism in the Church of the Nazarene with international headquarters in Kansas City, Mo. The Rev. Williams received his MA degree from Bethany Nazarene College in 1968 and was active in evangelistic preaching while in school. In addition to his pulpit ministry, he is a baritone singer and plays a trombone.

As a child, the Rev. Williams lost his eyesight. In spite of this great handicap, God has helped him in his school work and his preparation for the ministry. A unique part of his ministry is his ability to quote lengthy portions of the Bible.

The church and its pastor, E. Wales Lankford, extend a hearty welcome to you and your friends. Each service will be filled with spiritual songs, choruses, special music, a dynamic gospel message, and, best of all, the presence of God. A nursery will be open for small children. The public is cordially invited to these services nightly at 7:30 p.m.

Bible Reading Is Israel's Pastime

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

In Italy, it's the opera. In Switzerland, it's the Alps. In Russia, it's the party. In America, it's baseball. But in Israel, it's the Bible.

It's the people's principal pastime.

Whether a person takes it religiously or not, the Book of books is considered Israel's chief classic of national culture and history, and nearly everyone, believers and nonbelievers, takes keen interest in it, both in study and games.

This also includes convicts. Although Israel's annual national and international Bible quizzes are well known and arouse about the same mass fervor there as a World Series does in the United States, little has been told of the prison counterpart.

An article in the current Hadassah magazine, a monthly of the Women's Zionist Organization of America, describes those unusual annual Scripture competitions held among hundreds of inmates of the country's prisons.

The competitive tensions mounting behind the walls as the process of elimination builds toward a climax, the account says:

"Even in prison we remain the people of the Book," an official said, opening the 1970 finals, held recently in Central Jail at Ramle. "There is no man as free as he who occupies himself with Torah." Just as in the general competition, the contest among prisoners had gone through months of preparatory studies and preliminary matches in Central Jail, as well as in a neighboring "minimum security" prison, the women's prison Neve Tirza and Tel Mond's prison for youthful offenders.

"Every prison has its own Bible-study groups," the article says. "Many of the inmates in Israeli jails are well steeped in Bible. . . . Local teachers come regularly to lead and supervise the groups."

"As the season rolls around for another Bible competition, studies are stepped up and prisoners stay up late in the reading room or in their cells poring over Bibles and commentaries." Through preliminary bouts in each prison, the 1970 contenders were winnowed to 70 semifinalists, and further matches cut this to 15 finalists, assembled in the Central Jail courtyard for the decisive round of questioning.

Adorning the walls of the prison courtyard were banners bearing Biblical quotations such as, "This Book of the Law shall not depart out of your mouth." (Joshua 1:8).

One girl and three non-Jewish men—a Christian, a Moslem and a Druze—were among the 15 finalists. Relatives and friends were admitted as spectators.

As the questioning went on, the account says, each correct answer brought a loud burst of applause and cheers both from visitors, and from other prisoners watching from a barred balcony around the courtyard. The panel of three judges included Amos Hakham, Israel's first international Bible champion of 1958, whose Scriptural mastery generates admiring conversation like that which Americans accord the slugging of Babe Ruth.

The winner of the 1970 Third National Bible Quiz for Prisoners was Menashe Ben Yosef, who answered a stiff set of questions about the books of Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther and the Song of Solomon.

Among Israelis, the Bible "is more than the basis of Judaism," the article says. "It occupies the place held in Western countries by the Greek and Latin classics."

Evangelist Billy Graham will be one of the speakers for the evening sessions. Also speaking during the evenings will be Culbert Rutenber, professor at the American Baptist Seminary, Covina, Calif.; W. A. Criswell, pastor of First Baptist Church, Dallas; and Dale Moody, professor at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville.

Speakers for other sessions will be George Beasley-Murray, Spurgeon's College, London; Herschel Hobbs, pastor of First Baptist Church, Oklahoma City; Kenneth Chafin, director of the division of evangelism, Southern Baptist Home Mission Board; Theodore F. Adams, visiting professor of preaching, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary; Penrose St. Amant, dean of the school of theology, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.; and T. A. Patterson, executive secretary of the 1.8-million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas. Six weeks before the conference, 1,400 people had registered. The fee is $10. Registration forms and information may be secured from the Texas Baptist Sunday School Department, 406 Baptist Building, Dallas 75201.

Rev. Puckett To Lead 15-Day Holy Land Tour

The itinerary for the tour of the Holy Land in June to be conducted by the Rev. and Mrs. James Puckett has been completed. Reservations can be accepted until April 30, and a deposit of $125 is required.

Brochures are available detailing the countries to be seen during the tour. Stays in Rome, Athens, Cairo, Beirut, Jerusalem, Tiberias and Tel Aviv are scheduled. The 15-day tour begins with a visit to Rome and its ancient treasures and artistic masterpieces. In Israel, the members of the tour will walk the paths hallowed by the footsteps of Jesus and his disciples.

The Sea of Galilee, the site of the Miracle of the Loaves and Fishes, the Mount of the Beatitudes, and Nazareth are among the Biblical scenes to be visited.

The Rev. Puckett said that it is hoped that at least 15 persons will register for the tour. Members of the tour will leave Midland at 10:30 a.m. May 31 for New York, and that evening will board a 747 at Kennedy Airport for the journey to Rome. Return date is approximately June 14. All along the route, the group will stay at first class hotels.

According to the Rev. Puckett, this is the first such trip to be made from Big Spring in five years. The Rev. Puckett was a member of the last tour. He has conducted tours of 14 foreign countries.

Registration must be completed by April 30. The amount of deposit may be refunded until that date if an applicant wishes to withdraw from the tour. The total cost is $849 per person, which includes passage, hotel accommodations and all meals. For an additional $249, those who wish may have an extended tour which will include sites in Switzerland, France and England.

Robison Crusade Here March 21-28

Dates for the Big Spring Crusade with James Robison as evangelist have been confirmed for March 21 through March 28.

Committees have been named by the Rev. Kenneth Patrick, First Baptist pastor and general chairman, and his co-chairmen. Preparations for the intensive citywide campaign in which more than a score of churches, including several denominations, are participating.

"We are planning in earnest now for the greatest religious impact in our city and area," said the Rev. Patrick. "We expect this crusade, with the help of the James Robison Evangelist Association, to have a lasting spiritual effect on the people of this area."

"The team of young men is being used by God in a wonderful way. James Robison, at the age of 26, is preaching with great effectiveness to over half a million persons a year in all parts of the nation. John McKay's singing and crusade music direction are memorable experiences," added the Rev. Patrick.

Plans are to hold the services in Memorial Stadium starting with the March 21 evening services. In event of inclement weather, they will be shifted to the Municipal Auditorium.

FARMERSVILLE TORNADO WRECKS 20 MOBILE HOMES

Twisters, Storms Inflict Damage In Texas

By The Associated Press

Black tornadoes and hail-laden thunderstorms boled destructively across the north half of Texas during the night and the turbulent weather continued well into today, spreading deep into the central part of the state.

Twisters struck at least five places in as many counties, inflicting at least seven persons and inflicting property losses.

Authorities expressed surprise that no loss of life resulted, particularly at Farmersville in Collin County midway between McKinney and Greenville.

The Farmersville tornado wrecked 29 mobile homes in a trailer park on the southwest edge of town, where the Red Cross placed damage at $180,000. Mrs. John Henry Thomas, 29, suffered a fractured skull. Three of her six children also went to a McKinney hospital—Norma, 10, with a broken collarbone, and Jimmie, 6, and Kathy, 12, with brain concussion.

DIPPED AGAIN

After pulling back into the sky, the funnel cloud dipped again on the northeast side of Farmersville, where it damaged a brick dwelling and two mobile houses but caused no injuries.

What may have been the same tornado hit again toward the northeast, destroying the trailer home of Larry Beavers in Hunt County, unroofing a house and smashing two barns. Beavers' wife and children in the trailer were unhurt.

This twister also may have been the one which demolished still another mobile house at Bailey, in Fannin County.

As the turbulent storms moved eastward earlier, a tornado slashed into Bowie in Montague County, where a trailer house was overturned. Its occupants, Mrs. Jimmy Jones and her two children, suffered injuries which were not believed to be serious.

DESTROYS BARN

Yet another twister destroyed a barn and uprooted trees at the home of W. N. Woody at Brier in Parker County.

Sighting a funnel cloud was reported also at Mayfield, which is 12 miles north of Hillsboro. In Garland, on the north edge of Dallas, vicious winds lifted the roofs off three homes. Hail covered the ground in parts of Dallas and nearly an inch of rain fell in some neighborhoods. The storms struck while a 140-mile-wide corridor from 10 miles south of Fort Worth to 30 miles northwest of Tulsa, Okla., was under an official tornado watch. This alert later was extended to 20 counties in Northeast Texas and parts of Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Thunderstorm activity, mixed with widespread showers, moved on toward the east and south early today, gradually subsiding.

The rough weather developed along and ahead of a Pacific cold front which was edging eastward near dawn along a line linking Dallas, Austin and San Antonio.

By that hour the thunderstorms were most numerous in an area embracing San Antonio, Austin, Waco, Palestine, College Station, Tyler, Longview and Marshall.

At the same time light showers fell in the Texas Panhandle from near Amarillo northward toward Dalhart and Adrian.

Rainfall measurements for the 24 hours ending at 7 a.m. today included Longview 1.35 inches, Texarkana 1.22, Dallas

.86, College Station .29, Waco .25, Childress .18, Fort Worth .17, Austin .15, Mineral Wells .14, Wichita Falls .12, Abilene .10, Dalhart .05 and Lufkin and San Antonio .03.

RAIN VALUE

For some points it was the first rain of value all winter.

The wild weather, more common in the spring months than in late winter, boiled up at the end of a day which saw temperatures soar into the 80s at many points.

Thermometers registered 89 degrees—the nation's high—at Cotulla and 88 at Laredo in Southwest Texas. Marfa, in the West Texas mountains behind the cold front, was the coolest point with a top mark of 60.

PRIZE ROCK — Apollo 14 astronauts Edgar D. Mitchell, left, and Alan B. Shepard Jr. look at the largest rock ever brought to earth from the moon. The spacemen collected the 15 to 20 pound rock during their second moon walk. The rock is nine-by-nine-by-10 inches in size, almost the size of a bowling ball, the astronauts unwrapped the rock in the moon laboratory Thursday. Mitchell is growing a beard while he is in quarantine.

He Discounts As 'Sour Grapes' Russian Jabs

FORT WORTH (AP) — One of the nation's foremost space experts dismissed as "sour grapes" Thursday Russia's criticism of manned American moon landings.

Dr. Wernher von Braun said the Soviets de-emphasized manned missions "only after it became pretty obvious" U.S. astronauts would beat them to a lunar landing.

Putting a man on the moon "was precisely their intent all along," asserted von Braun, deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"It is not correct that there is a philosophical difference in grapes," Thursday Russia's criticism of manned American moon landings.

Von Braun, America's top space planner, disputed the Soviet contention that space exploration can be conducted as effectively with unmanned flights and said American successes justified the risk and cost.

Employees Taught Defensive Driving

An accident prevention program for city employees has been revived by city officials in the area of driving and job mishaps.

A 30-minute defensive driving course to be held once a week started Feb. 3, conducted by qualified instructors from the city police department.

"Employees who drive city vehicles will be rotated, due to the work load, until all finish the course. Then we will move to another phase of the program," Roy Anderson, assistant city manager, said.

Another area the program will cover is that of job mishaps. A meeting was held last Monday between city officials and supervisors of departments, that are subject to possible accidents, in which the supervisors were given safety manuals.

"In addition to following the manual, a five-minute safety meeting will be held once a week by the supervisors and their workers," Anderson said.

When there is an accident involving one of the city workers, a workman's compensation report must be forwarded to the insurance companies. The supervisors also will be required, under the program, to make a full investigation and fill out a report stating how that type of accident can be avoided in the future," said Anderson.

Anderson also explained that the insurance companies are insistent on the driver courses and safety programs, but the city's loss ratio on equipment and injuries for 1970 was less than that for '69.

The city plans in the future to give new employees driver license checks, all employees driver tests and possible physicals may be required if the city officials think a worker might need one.

FACTORY OFFICIALS CHECKING EMPLOYEES

A new garment industry may be located in Big Spring very soon, provided enough women are available with commercial sewing experience to form a good training force, Chamber of Commerce and Industrial Foundation officials have said.

Representatives of the company will be in the city Saturday to interview workers with actual industrial sewing experience in the Texas Electric Reddy Room, corner of Fourth and Rannels.

"Women applying for jobs with the company during the Saturday interview must have garment factory experience, not just home sewing. Those women will be interviewed later," said Ken Perry, president of the Industrial Foundation.

Of the 80 possible employees that will be needed for the company at the start, 34 workers have been contacted and have expressed a wish to attend the interview. Interested persons may contact the Chamber for further information.

DOZENS DODGE DEATH
'Daddy, That House Failed On Us'

By FINIS MOTHERSHEAD

Associated Press Writer

FARMERSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — "Daddy, that house failed on us," Ronnie Thomas, 3, told his father after surviving a tornado in this North Texas farming community.

"We crawled out through a hole," he added in unfringed amusement.

Ronnie, son of trucker John Henry Thomas, was among dozens escaping death Thursday evening as the twister inflicted damage estimated at nearly $200,000 in Farmersville.

Thomas' pretty blonde wife, 29, gathered her six children about her in the living room of their mobile home just before the vicious winds struck.

PRETTY WIFE

"All I remember is the trailer going over," she recounted. "I don't know why it wasn't worse."

Mrs. Thomas suffered a skull fracture as her right eye was blackened.

The only other injuries requiring hospital treatment were to three of her youngsters—daughters Norma, 10, with a broken collarbone, and Jimmie, 6, and Kathy, 12, with brain concussion.

Their mobile home was one of 29 tumbled about like so many children's building blocks, crushed like eggs or ripped apart in a trailer park and sales agency on the southwest edge of Farmersville. Several were new units priced as high as $8,000, owner Bill Hendricks said.

ROLLED IN PASTURE

The Thomas family's house was rolled into a neighboring pasture.

Friends saw Mrs. Thomas herd her brood from the wreckage and into the family car—something she didn't remember doing. Her husband was at work, en route home from a truck haul to Austin.

Ronnie suffered only scratches, as did brother John.

INDIANS MAKE THEMSELVES HEARD — Sandy Ego, a full-blooded Apache pictured here with Ivan Naranjo, has launched a campaign in Hollywood for better portrayal of Indians on the screen and for more employment of Indians in the movie industry. Sandy, 21, has been appearing in a variety of television series portraying "the white man's concept of the Indian." Now she wants roles that show "an Indian can think."

Methodists Order Trial For Ousted MOD Minister

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A church trial has been ordered for a former Laredo minister, but he says he won't attend the proceedings.

"Let them have the trial if they want to," said the Rev. Wil Schaefer. "It's no trial."

He said it is illegal and he will go to it only long enough to tell the court so.

Schaefer, 35, a mod-dressing Methodist minister, was ousted from his Laredo church last month for refusing to end his relationship with a recently divorced woman.

A five-member church committee found Thursday that he should be tried March 4 on charges of immorality, disobedience of church laws and "unministerial conduct."

Schaefer expressed no surprise at the decision.

"It's a rubber stamp committee," he said. "There's no doubt about it in my mind."

He asserted that the committee met illegally Thursday because proper procedures were not followed in the past and said he filed charges of maladministration against the group.

Schaefer has filed similar charges against his presiding bishop, the Rev. Eugene Slater of San Antonio, declaring that the bishop has not followed church law.

SHORT TALK

He contends he was illegally dismissed from Laredo's First United Methodist Church and also maintains that he has done nothing morally wrong despite his relationship with Mrs. Judy Nash, 27, of San Antonio.

Schaefer's wife, who says she approves of the relationship, and the Schaefer's two children are visiting in California. Mrs. Nash has been traveling with Schaefer and accompanied him to the committee meeting Thursday.

He appeared before the group briefly and left because he contended it was illegal.

Officials said the charges were brought against Schaefer by his superior, the Rev. Sam Fore of McAllen, a district superintendent.

Riot? Not Exactly, Dean Finds

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP) — At 1 o'clock in the morning recently, Al Birkelund was jolted out of bed by the telephone. Students at LeTourneau College literally were tearing down one of the buildings.

Riot? Not exactly, Birkelund, dean of student life, discovered when he reached the scene of destruction.

By the time the dean arrived, the walls of the computer center postoffice building had been pretty well weakened by battering rams.

It turned out that the building had been vacated and was tagged for destruction to make way for a 1,500-foot inner-campus mall.

Mark Anderson, representing the Student Senate, explained that the student body had pledged its support toward the drive for this decade.

However, student funds were limited, but students have a lot of energy. So they substituted $10 million development fund sweat for money.

Delegates Comment On POW-MIA Session

Sixteen representatives from here attended a joint session of the Texas Legislature Feb. 12, honoring American Prisoners of War-Missing in Action (POW-MIA).

Guests at the special session included Brig. Gen. Daniel (Chappie) James, from the Pentagon, H. Ross Perot and two military men back from Prisoner of War camps.

Those attending the session included: Capt. John B. Millhollon, Michael G. Gurley, Robert W. Shannon, Wyndle R. Haese Jr., and Kenneth R. Matthews; C. M. Sgt. J. D. Robertson; S.M.Sgt. Frank W. Moore Jr.; M.Sgt. G. E. Casper; S.Sgt. Sidney B. Jackson, Jimmy R. Jasso, Dale C. Sutter, Jose Vera, Harvey J. Schirmer and Larry Henderson; and Sgts. Michael T. Isam and Floyd Eason.

Capt. Haese, a student in T-38 Talon pilot instructor training, thought the meeting was a tremendous success. "General James did his usual outstanding job of speaking about Prisoners of War and Personnel Missing in Action," he said. The families of POW's found out a little more of how their relatives' release is being sought. However, I don't believe the session got as much publicity out of the Texas press as it should have."

Also attending the session S.M.Sgt. Frank W. Moore, Jr. commented, "Mr. Perot explained quite a bit about the way the Vietnamese people feel. He explained how the Vietnamese government has taught the people to hate the government of the United States, not the people, and that public opinion expressed here about the prisoners is listened to. The accounts of an Army major who escaped from a Vietnamese prisoners of war camp added to the spoken urgency of the release of prisoners. The two-hour session was definitely informing and successful in its mission."

Crystal Clear Case Councilman

DALLAS (AP) — City Councilman Ted Holland made a talk urging stronger controls over pawnshops to prevent pawning of stolen goods. He suggested that the seller be photographed.

Three days later, robbers broke into his house in daylight, taking two television sets, a stereo-radio combination, phonograph albums, souvenir type rifles and the family silver. Total loss was $3,500.

Recommendations For Big Jumps In Insurance Rates

AUSTIN (AP)—Hurricane Celia and the Lubbock and Pampa tornadoes are stacking new misery on coastal and plains residents.

The State Insurance Board's rate experts recommended big jumps in homeowners' policy rates for those two areas, blaming the two big disasters at least in part.

A statewide increase of 3.5 per cent in fire insurance rates for houses also was recommended Thursday.

Extended coverage rates hikes ranging from 3.4 to 17.4 per cent and homeowners increases of 11.2 to 25 per cent—depending on area—were proposed.

Board Chairman Ned Price said it would be "possibly two or three weeks" before the board acts on the recommendations.

Actual rates vary according to a building's construction, use and location.

Fire insurance rates are set on a statewide basis, then adjusted according to "points" reflecting each city's fire experience.

In the seacoast territory—28 counties in two tiers along the Gulf Coast—extended coverage rates for dwellings would rise 17.4 per cent and homeowners rates would increase 25 per cent.

Board actuaries said the homeowners hike would have been even higher except for the 25 per cent limit the board imposes on any increase.

The north-northwest inland territory—including the Panhandle, Midland, Abilene, Odessa and Lubbock—would have increases of 3.4 per cent in extended coverage and 16.6 per cent in homeowners rates.

The central territory—most of the state, including San Antonio, Dallas-Fort Worth, Austin, Waco and El Paso—would have boosts of 7.8 per cent for extended coverage and 11.2 per cent for homeowners.

G. J. Jones, the board's chief property actuary, said the main reasons for increases in the seacoast and the north-northwest territories were Hurricane Celia and the Lubbock and Pampa tornadoes.

Homeowners' rates in the seacoast territory also were pushed upward by a large increase in thefts, Jones said.

No Way, Said Postal Workers

ALPINE, Tex. (AP) — An Alpine firm attempted to mail a six cent letter at the Alpine postoffice recently at 4:20 p.m., hoping it would reach Fort Stockton the next day.

Distance: 65 miles. No way, said the postal workers, the Alpine Avalanche reported.

At that hour, the mailer was told, the letter would be routed by Midland and then to Fort Stockton, 271 miles in all, and delivered two days later.

"Why don't you try the bus?" the firm was asked.

So the businessman delivered the letter to the bus station at 8:30 a.m. the next day and it was received in Fort Stockton before noon.

But the transportation cost had risen from six cents to $1.40.

A Costly Lapse

Penn-Central represents a lapse — probably costly — in diligence by the bureaucrats to protect the public interest. Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House banking committee, said the merged company's assets were manipulated for private benefit.

Penn-Central emerged from two troubled railroads given merger permission on the grounds that basic goal would be to upgrade service and improve the firm's financial stability. Basic activity then seemed to become disastrous siphoning off of the assets into non-railroad ventures. Result is that Penn-Central is bankrupt, in the hands of the federal government, and facing a bleak future for stockholders and, possibly, American taxpayers to the extent that public money will have to bail out the operation.

Disclosure that Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans had a substantial financial interest in Penn-Central holdings when P-C was trying to get government underwriting of debts adds a new element of anxiety to the problem. Stans' "blind" trust apparently "peeked" at some of the transactions, the secretary's recital of dates suggests.

At any rate, Rep. Patman is digging and the Congress is well enough informed to avoid future incidents of this kind and size. Sloppy supervision of the merger arrangements left unspecific provisions for requiring that the purpose of the merger — to help the railroads — be fulfilled.

Whatever public aid has to be put into the bankrupt business ought to be repaid, with appropriate interest. The claim that P-C funds were used for underwriting companies or ventures controlled by P-C officials should be investigated promptly and exhaustively.

Public Injustice

At long last, Charles Watson will stand trial for his alleged role in the Sharon Tate murders. He should have been a co defendant with Charles Manson and his "girls," but instead will be tried separately, at great expense, by California.

Perfectly legal stalling kept Watson from being extradited by Texas in time to stand trial with Manson. Then he was found insane for a few months and the trial was delayed.

When the Manson trial winds up — and it has been going on since last June — Watson will be brought before judge and jury. And California will have to repeat the whole case for one man. There is more than an element of injustice to the public here.

The Drug Fight

Marquis Childs

NEW YORK — If you can believe that the Mayor of New York has a political future you can believe that the Washington Senators will take the next World Series. This man, John Lindsay, every television producer's dream, is fighting a thousand dragons to keep the city alive.

High on the list is the menace of drugs. The scare picture is easy to paint in the darkest, grimmest colors — perhaps as many as 150,000 heroin addicts caught up in a cycle of crime to pay for their addiction; up to 50 per cent of the city's prison-population addicts almost certain to go back on the stuff when they get out; 11- and 12-year-olds in the ghetto hooked by the pushers.

BECAUSE the picture is so somber the city's determined drive against heroin addiction and the related cycle of crime is lost sight of. More than probably any public official in the country Mayor Lindsay is an activist in the fight against the frightening spread of the heroin menace. In a variety of ways — an expanding police effort against the big wholesalers, adding new cure centers, scientific research — the city together with the state and a number of private agencies is doing more than any instrument of government, not excluding the Federal government.

A PERSISTENT search is on for what Lindsay calls "antagonists," drugs that will combat heroin or conceivably act as a preventive in the early stages of addiction. One such drug increasingly resorted to is methadone. A lot of controversy has centered around methadone, a synthetic drug, if only because it is also addictive.

BUT THE Mayor believes its advantages outweigh this fact. Methadone does not escalate — that is to say the addict in order to satisfy his craving is not forced to take ever-larger doses. A methadone fix costs seven or eight cents as compared with $10 or $12 for a heroin fix. And your confirmed heroin addict may require as many as three fixes a day to keep going.

THROUGH THE Narcotics Control Council, of which Lindsay is chairman, a plan is being worked out to provide methadone maintenance in the public sector. Doctors under contract with the city would operate through methadone clinics or the city's hospitals. The goal is to transfer as large a proportion of addicts as possible from heroin to the more manageable drug.

THE DIRECT police cost to the city in the heroin-control effort is $10 million. This is more, the Mayor says with considerable bitterness, than the entire amount the Federal government is spending on drug control in the area. And that is significant, since New York is perhaps the chief port of entry for heroin as refined in Marseilles from the opium from Turkey. Since the profit is 5,000 per cent from Marseilles to the wholesalers in New York, the hold of organized crime on the traffic is obviously great.

Streamlining

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Congress has hardly gotten started yet, and when it does one of the most complex pieces of legislation of recent years will be up for consideration — a reorganization of several regulatory agencies of the government.

THE PRESIDENT'S advisory council on executive reorganization has recommended that the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Federal Maritime Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Power Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, and the Federal Communications Commission should be put into a new framework of agencies restructured along functional lines. The purpose is to streamline the procedures and cut red tape. A special administrative court of 15 judges would be set up to deal with the rulings of the regulatory agencies.

CHANGES OCCUR affecting various areas of economic enterprise which are under regulation by independent commissions of the government, and a great deal of time is spent by business representatives in getting rulings from the government.

The report of the President's advisory council says: "In power, where industry structure is also undergoing change, supplies of electrical energy and natural gas have not consistently kept pace with increasing demands in certain areas, and new technologies have yet to take up the slack.

"IN COMMUNICATIONS, burgeoning technology has created new avenues for service and new products which together complicate the task of regulation and blur distinctions between the various forms of communications."

It is contended that the regulatory agencies at present are not sufficiently accountable either to Congress or the President. The report adds that "overjudicialization" encumbers the time and energies of commissioners and staff, causes undue case backlogs, imposes high costs upon litigants, prevents anticipatory action through rulemaking, deters informal settlements, and precludes coordination of agency policy and priorities with those of the executive branch."

A SINGLE administrator is suggested for each of the restructured agencies except the Federal Communications Commission. It would continue in the same form but with five instead of seven commissioners, who would serve five-year terms. The President's council believes that this change would result in an "improved regulatory effectiveness without raising the prospect of partisan control over the broadcast media or of individual interference with the free exchange of ideas and information." In this case it rejected plans for a single administrator.

BUT WHAT Congress will do with the proposed scheme is uncertain. The various interests that are subject to regulation will express themselves, and the Senate and House probably will take a long look at the legislation which the President sends up to implement the reorganization. But certainly the administration is making an effort to develop a much more effective system of regulation than that which prevails today, and it must be conceded that the present set-up is complicated and unsatisfactory to both the people and the government.

TORONTO (AP) — Christina Cardoni recently received a certificate from Pope Paul VI to mark her 100th birthday. Mrs. Cardoni a great-grandmother, immigrated to Canada from Italy when she was 84. She is believed the oldest member of Toronto's Italian community. She credits daily doses of brandy and whisky for her longevity.

DEADLY HANGUP

Is It Sick All Over?

John Cunneiff

NEW YORK (AP) — When an industry that accounts for more than 10 per cent of the gross national product is sick, then it must mean that the nation itself is sick. When a body has a bad liver it is sick all over.

Having diagnosed the construction industry as ailing, therefore, President Nixon is presented with the complex and perhaps impossible task of isolating the illness and treating it alone instead of treating the whole body.

Despite figures that show the construction industry to have volume in excess of $100 billion a year, it is hardly a precisely identifiable organ of the economic body. What industry is not involved in construction?

If, as he suggested at his news conference this week, federal measures may be necessary to restore wage-price stability in construction, how does he justify such measures for only one area of the economy? And how does he avoid using similar measures against other industries?

Nevertheless, the President indicates that he is seriously thinking of singling out construction for special and direct wage-price action, while remaining constant in his belief that such measures are bad for the economy.

On the economic scene, this matter could very well be the President's Indochina.

The delicate operation against construction would involve rough measures—wage-price freeze, suspension of federal contracts or ceilings on prices paid, for example. But these measures must produce precise results or the President may be forced into a major retraction of economic policy.

Has the President diagnosed the industry accurately? Is it sick? You hardly need to rely on any one symptom for a tipoff. It has been sick so long now that the results are all too obvious in dozens of ways.

Erratic financing is one indication. Wage and price increases are another. Racial discrimination in employment has weakened its fiber. Union restraints on the development of skills is another indication.

The debate over restrictive, costly building codes goes on and on but little action is taken. And the industry has yet to do all it could to correct the imbalance in work loads resulting from idleness in winter.

In some areas of construction, especially housing, there are also few large corporations involved. Although this situation is being corrected, economies of volume are still unavailable to segments of the industry.

The tragic result is that while the entire economy has been expanding at a rate of between 4 and 5 per cent a year for a decade or so, the record of construction is less than one-half that.

'Hot Pants' No, No

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could all do without:

The high cost of living. The old adage which says that "youth must be served."

"Hot pants" for French poolies.

Any more television series about doctors. Why not one about a dentist, who solves his patients' love/sick problems by moping among their molars.

Musical liqueur bottles that tunelessly render "How dry I am" every time a drink is poured.

Mothers-in-law who like to tell jokes about mothers-in-law but always add the disclaimer, "I hope I'll never be that kind of a mother-in-law myself."

Ministers who stare sternly around the congregation before starting their Sunday sermon—thus making everyone present feel guilty in advance.

Taxicab drivers who take pride in the number of years they can let go by without thanking a passenger for his tip.

The sound of a victim's head striking the pavement during a mugging.

People who put light bulbs in their mouth at cocktail parties and pretend to be lamps.

College reunions at which the guy who was voted most likely to succeed actually turns out to be the most successful.

The mumbling to themselves on buses of lonely old women who have gone quietly mad.

Friends who coax you into telling them your troubles and then tell you breezily, "Forget it. It's all in your mind."

Congressmen who pose as hayseeds in folksy news letters to constituents about their fun-filled adventures in the nation's capital.

The retreating handshake of a millionaire when he guesses you haven't even made your first $100,000.

Passengers who show off by trying to play chess on the bar car of suburban trains.

The first sight of a bald spot on your wife's old fur coat, and the realization of what she will expect you to do about it when she discovers it.

Liberated young career ladies who know what should be done about Vietnam but don't know how to sew a button on a man's coat.

People out on bail you'd rather see in jail.

If you see a man walking with his head down on a rainy day, he isn't necessarily despondent. He may be trying to keep the raindrops from falling on his glasses.

And he can blame it all on the "wet" prediction of Rogerie Weather Service.

Have you noticed the moon since the eclipse? Knocked it lopsided.

IT'S A LITTLE late, in my opinion, but there's a move on at Denver to prevent it from getting much bigger.

This would limit its population to 1.5 million by putting a 35-mile deep green belt about the city to halt its growth.

Big Spring should think about that right now. We're on the verge of pricing ourselves out of existence anyway, so why not draw the line?

REVENGE IS sweet! Ann Stephens, proof-positive, showed me a photo of her beautiful daughter, Pam, and I got my chance to remark: "She's very pretty, looks just like her daddy, Tommy."

The two sides to every argument are often what gives it no end.

My bright cousin, Dr. George Ladd an Okie from Muskogee, wonders: "IF VEEP AGNEW remains active in sports, wouldn't it be a good idea to change his name to Askew, in view of his poor aim?"

I suppose so, but who Askew?

The thought of the day is from News of Advent, quoting Michael Novak: "We are not obliged to succeed but to labor."

KITTY HAWK! Who the heck is she?

Red Thomas, you know him, asks: "If you sue someone, are you the sewer or the soot?"

Wanda, the Merkel miracle, asks: "Did you ever wonder why there are more rabbits than squirrels? Do you ever try raising kids in a tree?"

My wonderful aunt, Mildred Ladd, has a graffiti: "Shame on the naked truth."

MORT SAHL described Dick Cavett as the most intellectual of the late night television hosts.

That's why I watch him. Not that I'm intellectual, but if I quote him frequently someone may think I am.

Cavett says the way people are jammed into the subways in New York is obscene.

"I don't mind being molested," he added, "but I want to know who's doing it."

Fire's all right in its place.

Tranquil Time

Andrew Tully

MIAMI — Something that may be rather good for the country happens when President Nixon comes to Key Biscayne for a periodic holiday. Added to Press Secretary Ron Ziegler's daily briefings on cosmic matters are occasional second-hand personal glimpses of that man in the White House which convey the soothing impression of everyday stuff.

REPORTERS on these excursions rarely see the President. His holiday compound is 10 miles across a causeway from press headquarters. But, with some regularity, a few newsmen — and newswomen — are picked to observe the chief at picture-taking sessions, officially described as "photographic opportunities." On such occasions, it is comforting to realize that covering the President is not always concerned with the grimness of war and the state of the economy.

A typical example was the admission of photographers to take pictures of the President working on his foreign policy message to Congress, for delivery next Thursday, Feb. 25.

WELL, THE usual pool of several reporters went along, sworn to the usual vow not to ask the President any significant questions. They found Nixon sitting in his vacation office with Secretary of State William Rogers and Henry Kissinger, Presidential assistant for national security affairs. Upon the journalists' return, a report of their observations was submitted by the New York Times' Robert Semple.

SEMPLER DESCRIBED the President and his advisers as being dressed "rather formally." Nixon, he noted, wore a light brown sports coat and black shoes. (Emphasis, Semple's.) Some of the more chic reporters were shocked at the President's color choice in footwear; one lady wondered aloud "What would Jackie Kennedy say?"

Nixon, continued Semple, was holding a large folder, apparently containing the foreign policy message draft; an attache case was at his side. Kissinger had a large book on his lap. Rogers seems to have been unencumbered.

IT THEN DEVELOPED that Kissinger told the pool reporters, "We're cutting the (foreign policy) message down from 76,000 words to 65,000."

That was all, except for one perhaps significant item. Semple reported that "Bob Haldeman was sitting on a couch in the back of the room. I assumed he was going to stay there during the conference." Haldeman is THE assistant to the President, a kind of White House chief of staff.

ZIEGLER TOOK OVER, then, for the usual barrage of questions on matters of administration policy. But the pool report on a visit with the President of the United States also served a purpose. It revealed no new crises, give or take a quibble about Nixon's black shoes. It exposed no new goof by our leaders, no gaffe by some fledgling ambassador. It was in fact almost totally lacking in newsworthiness, and therefore it was a contribution to the national tranquility.

Working Women

LONDON (AP) — Thirty-nine per cent of all married women in Britain now go out to work, compared to 26 per cent in 1951, according to a government report.

My Answer

Billy Graham

I would like very much to find the will of God for my life. I have prayed that I might find it, but I still am not sure that I am doing what He would have me do. Are there any "rules" for finding the will of God? F.Q.

There are no "rules" as such. But, the Bible does give us some hints about how to ascertain the will of God.

Most of us want what "we want", and not what God wants. In seeking the will of God, our own will often gets in the way. So, the first thing to do is to yield your will to God. Say, "Lord, your will be done in my life."

Second, search the Scriptures, for contained therein is the will of God, given in general and specific ways to all people. The Bible outlines what is best for the individual and best for the race. You can be sure that His will will never be contrary to His word.

Third, as you have already done, earnestly pray that you may know the will of God for your life. As I said before, sometimes in our prayers we have a preconceived notion about what God ought to do. Remember, you are seeking HIS will and not your own.

Fourth, be patient. The Psalmist said, "Wait on the Lord." Don't be in too much of a hurry. God never is. Just say, "Lord, I want to do your will, but until you reveal it to me, I'm just going to wait patiently and in peace."

Fifth, expect God to work. Look for Providential happenings and open doors of service.

A Devotion For Today...

We give thanks to God always for you all, constantly mentioning you in our prayers, remembering before our God and Father your work of faith and labor of love and steadfastness of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ. (1 Thessalonians 1:3, RSV)

PRAYER: Father of us all we know the most important gift we can give is ourselves. Grant us the grace not to feel offended by the talk or habits of others. Grant us endurance, understanding, and compassion, in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

'Right' Place

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I called a girl for a date and she accepted. I made dinner reservations at a high-class club that features soft lights, music and dancing. I told this girl where we were going and I also told her I was wearing a black pin-stripe suit with light blue shirt and matching tie and handkerchief so she should dress accordingly.

She lives way out in the opposite direction from where we were going so I sent a taxi to her house to pick her up. When she showed up at my place she was wearing pants, sneakers and a hippie jacket with "peace and love" all over it. I know this girl can dress nicely because I've seen her in nice clothes. I told her I was sorry but I couldn't take her to the place where I had reservations because they wouldn't let us in the place with her dressed like that. I paid her taxi fare home, and with the time flying I quickly asked a girl in my apartment if she wanted to go out for dinner. She jumped at the chance, dressed up like a lady, and we had a wonderful evening.

My question: Was I wrong to have sent the first girl home? I don't think so, but some other people think I was.

DEAR ME: Since "WHERE" you went was obviously much more important to you than

"WITH WHOM" you went, you weren't wrong.

DEAR ABBY: About 15 months ago my husband passed away and I sold one of his suits (almost new) to one of the neighbors for $10.

Just the other day, this neighbor called me and asked me to take the suit back and give her the $10 back. So I did. She is supposed to be one of my best friends. This upset my whole family. What is your opinion about this?

DISCOURAGED: I think your friend must have been desperately in need of $10.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the Indiana Mother whose child had a speech defect and was teased by the other children. You recommended a speech therapist.

No therapist works "miracles" in a short time. We started taking our child to speech therapists when he was three years old. Seven years later he still needs coaching. Handicapped children suffer more from unkind treatment from their peers (and often from adults) than they do from a speech defect.

Despite therapy and daily coaching at home, our son is still taunted by children. And I've actually seen another mother laugh and encourage her own child to call my son names! WISCONSIN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The mother you referred to in your letter needs more help than a handicapped child.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Cause Of Stroke

Your Good Health
Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a cerebral hemorrhage 15 days after an operation for an ulcer. It left him paralyzed on one side.

What we can't understand is that his heart must have been okay before the operation, as he had EKGs taken then. Could the operation have been the cause? Should he be on a diet, avoiding cholesterol, fats, etc? —Mrs. D.A.N.

I'm afraid that you are confused over the meaning of certain terms, but you're not alone. My mail makes it clear that a lot of folks are mixed up about the same thing.

A stroke is something that occurs in the brain — either the bursting of a blood vessel (which is cerebral hemorrhage) or the interruption of circulation in a blood vessel (thrombosis). Either one is a stroke. Either one may also be called a CVA, or cerebral vascular accident.

If the stroke is severe enough to damage a part of the brain that controls motor responses (that is, muscular activity), then some degree of paralysis is the result.

A person with a perfectly healthy heart may have a stroke. Or a person who never had a stroke may have a heart attack.

There is no apparent reason why your husband's operation should have caused his cerebral accident. The presumption is that a weak place existed in one of the blood vessels, and it just happened to let go then.

(Had it been the other type of stroke, caused by a thrombus, or clot, then a clot resulting from the operation could have been involved, but there's no way to be certain of that, either way. You just can't tell.)

Anyway, as to diet for a stroke victim, if the cholesterol level in his blood is too high, then avoiding too much fat would be wise for the sake of his general health — and also good for him if he is taking on excess weight. Other than that, diet would have no particular bearing on his condition.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please send me your booklet on hypoglycemia. The doctor says I have it. I enclose 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope for the booklet. I do not understand the disease or the diet. —Mrs. J.M.S.

Hypoglycemia means that at times the amount of blood sugar in your bloodstream falls too low, and you can then experience such things as attacks of weakness, dizziness, visual aberrations, and so on. Eating the proper foods is one of the best ways of keeping the sugar level reasonably steady and without the sharp ups and downs that cause the trouble. Both the diseases and the diet (as well as other types of treatment) are included in the booklet.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can to relieve the problem, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald requesting the booklet, "How To Deal With Varicose Veins," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

K. Buchanan Named Fighter Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Although Muhammad Ali returned to the boxing scene and Joe Frazier gained universal recognition as world heavyweight champion, the biggest fighter of 1970, in the eyes of the Boxing Writers Association, was 5-foot-7½ Ken Buchanan of Scotland.

Buchanan, who lost the only fight of his career in 1970 but also won the world lightweight title, was voted the Edward J. Neil Memorial trophy Thursday as fighter of the year.

The stylish boxer edged Frazier 14-13 in a runoff vote. Ali was third on the first ballot.

Don Dunphy, whose voice has brought a multitude of fights to fans throughout the world, was named winner of the James J. Walker Memorial Award for long and meritorious service to boxing.

Another easy winner was Dick Sadler, manager of unbeaten heavyweight contender George Foreman, who won the Al Buck Memorial Award of manager of the year.

Buchanan lost his 1970 debut, a 15-round decision to Spaniard Miguel Velazquez in Madrid for the vacant European lightweight title.

The 25-year-old Scot then won the rest of his 1970 fights, four by decision and one by knockout, with one of the decisions bringing him the world lightweight crown in a 15-rounder against Ismael Laguna under a broiling sun in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in September.

LOOKING 'EM OVER
With Tommy Hart

Oceans of tears are being spilled by New York newsmen who think Yogi Berra should have been voted into baseball's Hall of Fame.

New York is that modern Gamorra which, no doubt, inspired the homily, "It's a nice place to visit but I wouldn't want to live there."

A lot of the human ants who frequent the place obviously feel the same way — they may earn their bread in Manhattan but they wearily resign themselves to the fact that they're going to blow four hours of their lives each day in commuting — either to Long Island, Connecticut or New Jersey.

Most of the news people suffer from an incurable malady, that of thinking they're the last word, the final authority in journalism and, more specially, sports journalism.

To them, anything outside New York is Bridgeport and the athlete who is unlucky enough not to wear a New York uniform is bush, a bloomer in the canebreakers, perhaps, but not good enough to light up Broadway.

Of course, it doesn't matter that the once-proud New York Yankees are now eating at the second table in the American baseball league, that the NY Giants of the NFL are apt to lose as not against teams from the outback.

The hinterlands are full of sports legends whose credentials are not accepted by the New York press corps simply because their heroes were not lucky enough to wear New York uniforms.

The bias practiced by the New York people becomes apparent when New York-based TV announcers are assigned to handle play-by-play in any game involving a Gotham club and outside opposition.

The writers sneer at the rural twang of sports buffs who might be so bold as to voice an opinion about their sports favorites, yet they themselves are guilty of preaching crass provincialism.

The backs who write for the magazines are the worst offenders. They glorify resident athletes but are prone to seek out and exploit the offbeat angle when they condescend to mention the personnel of alien teams.

Had Ted Williams used Yankee Stadium as a base of operations rather than Boston, he would by now have been deified as the greatest baseball player who ever lived. As it is, his eccentricities are still used to downgrade his talents and his contributions to baseball.

Berra was better than a journeyman ball player. He hit the long ball, he was durable and he handled pitchers well. Perhaps he has earned a niche in the Cooperstown museum.

One suspects, however, there might be a conspiracy of transience, an impermanent cabal organized to let Yogi cool his heels for a while. Such an intrigue would have been planned not to put down Berra but rather to give the Manhattan clique its lumps for past injustices and slights.

The story out of Canyon is that Joe Kerbel was so embittered over the decision made by West Texas State University officials not to extend his contract that he would not talk to his successor, Gene Mayfield.

A few years ago, after his successful tenure at Breckenridge High School, Kerbel came to Big Spring seeking an interview about the Big Spring coaching job.

The then superintendent of schools told his school trustees in refined language that he would not look kindly upon the appointment of such a man to his staff, that he himself would probably seek employment elsewhere if Kerbel were piped aboard.

The school administrator probably felt no personal animosity toward Kerbel but reasoned that it would be a case of the tail wagging the dog if Joe were brought in. The supe wanted a representative athletic program but not an athletic department which called the shots for the rest of the system.

A few years ago, Weber State in Utah was a junior college, playing the likes of Howard County JC on occasional cross-country trips.

Weber is now a four-year school and its basketball team is lusting for universal recognition.

In 6-8 Willie Sojourner, the Utah school boasts one of the finest basketball players now active in college circles.

Bovine Track Team To Run

The Big Spring Steers get an early start in their 1971 track and field season today, at which time they visit San Angelo for a triangular meet beginning at 4 p.m.

The event was originally scheduled for Saturday afternoon but was moved forward by San Angelo officials. Sweetwater will be the third team involved.

Area teams are warming up for the Comanche Relays, which will be staged next weekend in Fort Stockton.

San Angelo has already engaged in one triangular meet. Big Spring has five lettermen back from the 1970 season. They are half-miler Walter Campbell, half-miler Danny Smart, miler Mark Jones, half-miler Mike McCormick and quarter miler Clay Thompson.

Others who will represent Big Spring include sprinter Arthur Trevino, sprinter Walter Jordan, quarter miler Richard Templeton, sprinter Mike Sizenbach, half-miler Bart Jones, pole vaulter Vin McQuinn (if he has recovered from an ankle sprain), miler Dale Lee and Bob Priebe, hurdler Terry Price, high jumper Craig Brown and Greg Knight and weight men Tony Dean, Louie Smith and Bill Coleman.

Holdout Woes Face Cincinnati Club

By The Associated Press

This is the year Sparky Anderson says "we'll find out if I can really manage."

Anderson guided the Cincinnati Reds to the National League title last season as a freshman major league manager in baseball.

Anderson finds the 1971 picture a bit different today as he starts his sophomore season with the Reds at their spring training camp at Tampa, Fla.

For one thing the Reds had only 17 of 37 roster players under contract. Catcher Johnny Bench, the league's most valuable player for 1970, is one of those still unsigned. Others include pitchers Jim Merritt and Wayne Simpson.

Another problem Anderson faces is a replacement for Bob Tolson, regular center fielder and the NL's leading base stealer last season. Tolson ruptured an Achilles tendon while playing basketball during the off-season and is out at least until June.

Surveying the tuning up job his Big Red Machine needs it's hardly any wonder Anderson commented "I guess we'll find out now if I can really manage."

The Baltimore Orioles, the American League champions who beat Cincinnati in the World Series, opened their camp at Miami Thursday with veteran pitchers Dave McNally and Mike Cuellar still unsigned.

Paul Blair, the Orioles center-fielder, reported a week early to start a switch-hitting experiment. He hits right-handed, but wants to be able to swing from the other side of the plate, too.

Veteran southpaw Bob Veale was missing as the Pittsburgh Pirates opened camp at Bradenton, Fla., but manager Danny Murtaugh said the star pitcher was expected by the weekend.

Elsewhere rookie Doug Griffin, expected to replace Mike Andrews at second base for Boston, checked in early at the Red Sox camp at Winter Haven, Fla.

Infielder Dennis Menke also was an early arrival at the Houston Astros' camp at Cocoa, Fla.

FORSAN IMPROVED

Follett Opposes Buffalo Queens

LEVELLAND — A Forsan team that overcomes a lot of its early season shortcomings starts competition at 3 p.m. today in the first round of the Regional Class B girls' basketball tournament with the defending state titlist, Follett.

Oddly enough, Follett is coached by a former Forsan athlete, Charles Skeen. He says his team is weaker than it was last year on offense but boasts a stronger defense. The Panthers are 21-5.

Inexperience hurt Forsan early in the year but the club is much stronger than it was two months ago.

Coach Don Stevens made several changes in his lineup after the team returned from two top-sided losses in the Slator tournament.

Jackie Condon went back to forward and Kathy Reed was installed in the lineup as a guard. The team showed immediate improvement.

At the time Stevens made his changes, Forsan's record was a lackluster 9-7. The team was averaging 55.2 points a game, the opposition, 55.0. The Buffalo Queens had outscored their first 16 opponents by a mere three points.

Condon began to work extremely well with Gloria Dodd, the school's all-time scoring champion, and Brenda Cowley.

Since district play began, Cowley has averaged 16.5 points a game, Cowley 15.5 and Dodd 36.3. The Queens rolled to 12 consecutive league victories.

More important than their scoring averages was the ability of Condon and Cowley to set up the post offense for the high percentage shots so badly needed against tough opposition.

In the back courts, Debbie Fryar, Connie Dunagan and Kathy Reed must make up for a lack of height with quickness and aggressiveness. This they do very well with the help of two relief performers, Karen O'Dell and Kim Kuykendall.

Forsan's seven defeats have come at the hands of such teams as Sands (2), New Home, AAA Tulsa, AA Coahoma, Robert Lee and Meadow, which is rated No. 1 in State Class B circles. All of the teams are district champions or co-champions with the exception of New Home, which finished second to Meadow.

Of the six teams which defeated Forsan, three have since lost to the Queens — Sands, Coahoma and New Home.

Pairings:
Forsan vs. Follett, 3 p.m.; Spade vs. Leflore, 4:15 p.m.; Balmorhea vs. McAdoo, 7 p.m.; Fort Hancock vs. Meadow, 8 p.m.

Second round games will be at 10 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. Saturday. Championship contest will be at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Forsan Loses In Overtime

ROSCOE — Throckmorton edged Forsan in overtime in a boys' practice game here Thursday night. Final score was 67-66.

The loss left George White's Forsan team with a 14-10 record. The Buffaloes go to Big Lake Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. contest with Comstock, catch Mozele at Robert Lee next Friday and then will be in against Miles in bi-district action at Robert Lee March 2.

Throckmorton won the game at the penalty line, making 19 of 36 efforts. Forsan could convert only 14 of 22.

Steve Yeats had 19 points and Jeff Williams 16 for Forsan.

THROCKMORTON (67) — Hibbitts 2-9; Martin 8-21; Morse 8-25; Bobby Bundy 6-15; Morris 0-1-1; Bill Bundy 9-2-2. Totals 24-19-43.

FORSAN (66) — Williams 4-19; Williams 3-16; Yeats 7-19; Murphy 1-13; Kuykendall 2-15; Holquin 5-14. Totals 26-14-66.

Riders Playday
Slated Saturday

District 4 of the American Association of Sheriff's Poses and Riding Clubs will have an open playday in Colorado City Saturday.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and events start promptly at 10 a.m. There will be events and classes for everyone, according to Mack Gamble, district president.

This is open to anyone in the area including Midland, Stanton, Lamesa, Snyder, Sterling City and Garden City. West Texas Riders Arena is located on West Business Route U.S. 80 in Colorado City. R. G. Click, playday rules committee chairman, said all interested riders are invited. Riders do not have to be a member of the district.

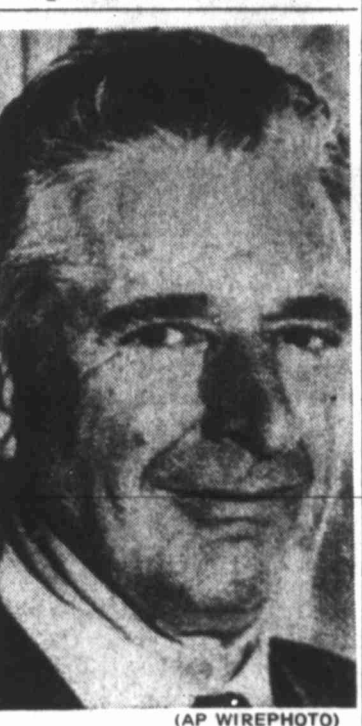

CLAIMS BANK EXAMINERS

Unknowingly Used Illegal Schemes To Obtain Loans

AUSTIN (AP) — An illegal scheme set up by a Sharpstown bank officer was used by nine state and federal bank examiners to get loans in 1968 and 1969, says State Banking Commissioner Robert Stewart.

But they did not know it was illegal, Stewart told the Senate Investigating Committee Thursday.

Stewart was the first witness in the committee's probe into state banking practices.

The bank officer was not named by Stewart because the case is still being investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, he said.

State bank examiners are forbidden to borrow money from state banks, yet have little contact with national banks and are therefore at a disadvantage in securing loans, Stewart said.

The bank officer set up a corporation to make loans to the examiners, telling them the corporation would get the money from national banks, he said.

But the officer got the money from the Sharpstown bank, he said.

Stewart did not explain why it was illegal for the federal examiners to get loans from the corporation.

CLOSED DOWN
Sen. J.P. Word of Meridian, chairman of the committee, said some hearings will be held behind closed doors.

The investigation was prompted by the collapse of the Sharpstown State Bank in January following a stock fraud suit filed by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission against the bank and 27 other defendants.

Stewart said the loans to seven state and two federal examiners were not discovered until last November. All but three of the state examiners and one federal examiner had already quit their jobs, he said.

YOU MAY QUIT
Those still working were allowed to resign, he said.

WHERE OH WHERE?
The Sharpstown bank was in constant trouble with the state banking department last year, Stewart said.

"People ask, 'Where was the State Banking Department?' Well, gentlemen, we were right where we were supposed to be, doing what we could," Stewart said.

Frank Sharp, one of the defendants in the SEC suit, was asked last year to step down from a position of management of the bank, he said.

"He very reluctantly agreed to do so," Stewart said.

But Sharp was later allowed to resume control of the bank, he said.

Two bad banking practices, the use of broker loans and self-dealing, combined to force the Sharpstown bank to constantly look for new deposits, he said.

But the SEC suit took away the bank's authority to accept any more certificates of deposit, and the publicity of the suit caused a run-on-the-bank, he said.

TREMENDOUS BLOW
"That's a tremendous blow to almost any bank," he said.

A broker loan is one negotiated through a money broker when the bank is unable or unwilling to give the borrower what he wants. The practice is legal.

For a fee, the broker secures enough certificates of deposit from all over the country to cover the loan and deposits them in the lending bank.

RESIGNS — Undersecretary of Interior Fred J. Russell has resigned. Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said Russell resigned by mutual agreement.

Kiwanis Sponsor Pancake Supper

The annual Kiwanis pancake supper is from 5 to 8 p.m. today at the Dora Roberts Student Union Building cafeteria at Howard County Junior College.

The annual "all you can eat" pancake supper has bacon, coffee and milk, as well as pancakes on the menu.

Clyde Green of the White Music Company will provide organ music for the supper.

Admission is $1 per person. Tickets are available at the door or from Kiwanis members.

'Lady Of The Lake' Wrecks Cemetery?

DALLAS (AP) — Cox Cemetery near White Rock Lake inside the city limits has just about been wrecked. Some blame indirectly the ghostly "Lady of the Lake" which haunts the area.

Dozens of headstones have been ripped out of the ground and broken into unrecognizable pieces.

One eight-foot-tall marble monument has been pulled apart and sprayed with red paint. A winged angel which adorned the top of the monument was knocked to the ground and its eyes punched out.

The weathered gravestone of a man "who served his country well and faithfully as a Confederate soldier" has been hammered apart and thrown to the ground.

Al Harris who lives nearby says the believes "wild teenagers" are to blame for most of the vandalism. "I don't know why they do it," he said sadly. "Seems like they just have to destroy things." He said most of the destruction has come in the last two years.

Officer C. R. Gillebreath of the Dallas police said the local legend of the "Lady of the Lake" who reportedly dances through the cemetery on full-moon nights are partly responsible for drawing young people to the area.

Gillebreath said he and other officers patrol the cemetery regularly but it is impossible to catch the vandals.

Coahoma Sets Drug Program

COAHOMA — The first in a series of programs for concerned parents about drugs will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Coahoma City Hall.

Jack White, highway patrolman, will be guest speaker and will show a film. The program is sponsored by the 1941 Study Club, and the public is invited, said Mrs. Dwayne Clawson, president.

The next meeting will include a panel discussion and will be at 7:30 p.m. March 9 also in the city hall. Panel members will include Dr. Milton Talbot, Sheriff A. N. Standard, Chaplain Lee Butler, Phil Christensen, a psychologist at the Big Spring State Hospital.
