Chambers of commerce in two Northwest Texas towns and one Southwestern Oklahoma city held banquets Thursday night in which the keynote typical of all was progress.

Quitaque and Childress in Texas and Altus in Oklahoma were the cities where records of growth and plans for future expansion were revealed around festive boards.

A banquet scheduled by the Archer City Chamber of Commerce for Friday night was postponed one week because of bad weather.

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
The Record News Staff

QUITAQUE, Texas, Jan. 24.—Approximately 200 persons including delegations from Amarillo, Wichita Falls and Silverton, gathered tonight in a spacious hall and celebrated a year filled with community advancement and heard an ambitious program of development outlined for 1929. It was the annual banquet of the Quitaque Chamber of Commerce.

O. C. Arthur, president of the chamber of commerce during 1928, acted as toastmaster. The address of welcome was delivered by Claud Holley, secretary of the chamber and the response was made by O. R. Tipps, county judge of Briscoe county.

Harve Haines of Amarillo delivered the principal address of the evening, speaking on "Community Cooperation."

G. S. Dowell reviewed the chamber's activities during 1928 and the program for 1929 was outlined by Joe Head.

Joe Head was named president of the organization for the coming year succeeding O. C. Arthur, who was made a member of the executive committee. H. E. Huckberry was made vice president.

Members of the executive committee named were: G. Tunnell, Earl Wise, G. S. Dowell, O. C. Arthur, P. O. Wood, and C. R. Feals.

New directors are Arland Starks, Tom A. Johnson, Amos Person, P. C. Hamilton, A. E. Graham, J. W. Ewing, J. V. Russell, A. L. Patterson, Glenn Wise, J. T. Person, and U. S. Mix.

The Panhandle, which produced in 1928 a $62,000,000 wheat crop, as compared with a $1,500,000 crop produced by the rest of the state, got only about seven per cent of the $22,000,000 spent on roads in that year, Col. Haines said in his address, urging Northwest Texans to cooperate in their demands on the state for more highway funds.

The thermometer Friday morning at 1 o'clock registered 16 above zero, slightly colder than it had been several hours before, thereby insuring Friday of breaking the season's and year's record, which was held briefly by Thursday.

Although snow fell over the Panhandle and Southern Oklahoma Thursday and Thursday night, indications were early Friday morning that the snow would miss Wichita Falls, as the skies had practically cleared.

Light mist which fell over the city early Thursday morning turned to hail and sleet shortly before noon. The streets and sidewalks were slick with water which froze solidly before night.

Snows Reported

Temperature at Quanah stood at 20 degrees and almost an inch of snow had fallen between Childress and Chillicothe by night fall Thursday afternoon reported by the Katy dispatcher.

Temperature standing around 21 degrees with sleet and mist was reported by the Wichita Valley dispatcher along the line to Waurika and Spur.

Moody Asks Joint Session of Road Committees to Decide on Bond Plan

AUSTIN, Jan. 24. (UP)—Governor Dan Moody announced late today he will ask for a joint session of five senate and house committees next Monday night to hear a compromise highway plan.

The plan has been recommended by Clarence Ousley, representing the East Texas Chamber of Commerce; W. B. Hamilton for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; Senator D. K. Martin of San Antonio; R. M. Hubbard of New Boston and Cone Johnson of Tyler.

Representative Tillotson, the other attendant at a meeting called by the governor, agrees with part of the proposed plan. The plan calls for $100,000,000 state bonds to build roads and $75,000,000 to refund counties for their money already put in state highways. Senator Tillotson of Sealy, other member of the conference which adopted the compromise plan, proposes issuing state bonds to build roads.

The new plan supplants the proposition of R. S. Sterling of Houston to issue $250,000,000 state bonds. It also supplants the majority recommendation of Governor Moody's of 31 for a $225,000,000 issue.

GOV. JOHNSTON REVEALED AS ORIENT MYSTIC

Private Secretary Tells Of Interview With Man Of Doctrine

SEVEN BILLS VOTED

Eighth Charge Pondered As Story of Strange Belief Sinks In

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 24 (AP)—Tales of Oriental mysticism were mingled with accounts of western practicability today as legislative inquisitors heard admissions and made records of what had existed as rumors concerning the advisors of Henry S. Johnston, suspended governor.

Under protests, H. E. Sullivan, private secretary to the governor, supplied details purporting to reveal relations between Johnston and Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, his confidential secretary, and James R. Armstrong, her uncle, reported to share with Johnston a common interest in an Oriental philosophy, and Sullivan himself.

Other Battles On

While Sullivan's testimony drew the spotlight, other battles of the political revolution went on. The senate bidded for attention by introducing Armstrong as a witness in its own investigation and drew from him an admission that he had received from road contractors money for Johnston's defense fund when impeachment threatened in 1927. The house of representatives busied itself with voting the eighth of 10 impeachment charges against Johnston, having already adopted seven.

High points of Sullivan's testimony, much of which was monosyllabic responses to carefully worded questions included:

Called on Carpet

Declaration that Johnston called him into the executive office shortly before his recent suspension and said "Damn you, Sullivan, you've got to shoulder responsibility for the pardon," (alluding to a pardon granted in December, 1928, to Dewey Crosthwaite, fugitive convict. The impeachment charge voted by the house today concerned this clemency).

Assertion that Mrs. Hammonds had proposed that they enter a project to sell fire insurance on state buildings, splitting the commissions.

Admission that Armstrong had

JUDGE ERRS BUT CORRECTS

Defendant Freed But Later Resumes Trial

ELMIRA, N. Y., Jan. 24. (UP)—Federal Judge John R. Hazel, presiding in the trial of two coast guardsmen accused of shooting Jacob Hanson, whom they suspected erroneously of rum-running, exercised the right of judges to change their minds today and gave Boatswain Frank L. Beck a moment he will long remember.

As court adjourned at noon, Judge Hazel granted a motion of the defense to dismiss the charges against Beck, who was indicted because he had given the orders to Surfman Glenn Jennings, under which Jennings was allegedly acting when Hanson was shot.

Beck left the courtroom a free man, smiling, happy and shaking hands with his friends. He went immediately to the telegraph office and wired his wife the news. His lawyer sent at least two of his witnesses home.

But when court resumed for the afternoon session Judge Hazel began proceedings with a frank statement that he had made a mistake. He withdrew his order freeing Beck, reinstated the indictment, and directed that Beck be returned to trial.

Attendants brought Beck back within the rail. A little later a telegram was carried from the court building to Mrs. Beck, telling her that the first message was all a mistake.

Maritime Lore Gains New Saga With Story Told by Gallant Captain Fried

Commander of Ship Which Snatched Florida's Crew From Peril Writes Second Rescue Epic

NEW YORK Jan. 24. (AP)—Thirty-two men of the sea were homeward bound tonight, snatched from death almost after all right to hope was gone.

They were the crew of the Italian freighter Florida, storm-wrecked 800 miles at sea, and they were alive only because the courag of seamen from the land their countryman, Columbus, discovered was joined with the power of radio to determine the location of an object out of sight.

Six Seriously Hurt

Six of the crew were seriously injured, four others were very ill, and all were exhausted. But they were alive, and that was almost more than anyone would have thought could be their lot considering their plight yesterday as Captain Fried of the rescue ship America described it today in his account of the rescue, in a dispatch to The Associated Press.

Three years ago Capt. Fried, then commander of the President Roosevelt, proved himself a colorful writer of sea epics when he wirelessed to The Associated Press the story of the rescue of 25 men from the foundering British freighter Antinoe, and today he told an equally stirring tale of skill and courage victorious over the rampant forces of angry nature.

350 Miles Distant

The America, Capt. Fried said, was inbound from Europe when it picked up SOS calls from both the Florida and the American tanker Dannedaike last Tuesday morning. The America was 350 miles away but when Capt. Fried determined that although other ships were nearer only one had a radio direction finder he swung from his course and pushed toward the belt of windy fury in which the freighters lay disabled.

The Dannedaike subsequently pulled off for Bermuda under a

Court of Inquiry Calls Electra Officers in Youth's Story of Beating

Investigation to determine responsibility for injuries aleged to have been suffered by Jack Collins, Electra youth, at the time of his arrest by Electra officers Sunday night, will be instituted in a court of inquiry called before R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, Saturday morning.

The court was called after young Collins appeared Thursday before Wayne Somerville, county attorney, in an attempt to file charges of aggravated assault, alleging that he had been struck on the head by the guns of the officers who made the arrest, and that he had regained consciousness lying in a pool of blood in the Electra jail.

Subpoenas were issued by Justice Gwinn Thursday afternoon summoning three Electra officers to appear before the court Saturday morning.

According to W. C. Suttle, night watchman at Electra, who said he was one of three who made the arrest, he, Roy Hart, night watchman, and Jim Gordon, deputy constable, separated Collins and another youth in a fight on the front porch of a house in the residence section of Electra last Sunday night. He declared that they had resisted arrest and that Collins, had been struck one time in the ensuing souffle.

WIND GUST BLAMED

Al Henley, Pilot, Was Entry In Dole Race Across Pacific Ocean

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Jan. 24. (AP)—Dashed to earth from a height of 100 feet when struck by an adverse air current, a Ryan cabin monoplane carried three men to their death here late today on the eve of what was to have been the gala opening of San Angelo's new municipal airport.

The ship, a duplicate of Colonel Lindbergh's, was acting as pathfinder for eight other planes which were to have comprised an aerocade from Fort Worth. Word came from Fort Worth that the trip had been abandoned. Five T. A. T. planes will come from Fort Worth tomorrow, however.

Two Killed Instantly

Al Henley, pilot of the craft, and W. E. (Chick) Shyrles, resident manager of the Majestic theater at Fort Worth, were killed outright. Donald Frazee, also of Fort Worth, former star athlete at Texas Christian university and member of the Shreveport, Texas league, Baseball club, lived only a few minutes after he had been taken from the splintered cabin.

Henley, 33, had been a pilot since 1917. He was an entrant in the Dole prize flight to Hawaii, but was forced to turn back after he was several hundred miles from land. He left the army in 1925 and became manager of the airport at Waco. Later he was manager of the Oklahoma City airport. He is survived by his widow and small daughter of Fort Worth and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Henley, Sulphur, Okla.

All-Round Athlete

Frazee, 24, was an all-around athlete at Fort Worth. He played fullback on the football team and starred also in baseball, basket ball and track. He held the title of champion light heavyweight of Fort Worth and had boxed on the Pacific coast.

Frazee played baseball with Shreveport last year and soon was to have reported for spring training. He was an outfielder of exceptional promise. His first professional baseball was with Corpus Christi where he led the Gulf Coast league in hitting, fielding, base stealing and runs. He was drafted by Cleveland of the American league and was farmed out to Terre Haute. He also had played with San Angelo in the West Texas league.

The plane belonged to the Texon Oil and Land company.

FRAZEE BROTHER OF WICHITA TEACHER

Donald Frazee, 22, former T. C. U. football star and member of the Shreveport baseball team last year, was the youngest brother of C. C. Frazee, 1807 Giddings, head of the physical education department at the Wichita Falls Junior college.

Young Frazee left T. C. U. in his junior year with a brilliant athletic record. He spent a year with the Cleveland Indians, later returning to the Shreveport team. He played with that organization in Wichita Falls last summer.

HOW TO SPEND FUNDS ASKED

Prohibition Money's Use Much Talked at Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (INS)—What to do with the $24,000,000 prohibition appropriation, providing this sum eventually is authorized by congress, is getting considerable speculative attention from high treasury officials, it was learned today.

With the 21,000 pending dry cases in the federal courts made by the present enforcement machine of about 3,000 men, one official said facetiously that three times the appropriation should boost the untried cases to at least 60,000 in three years."

Patrol Expansion

As to such funds as might be allocated by the president to the coast guard and customs there is no doubt how they would be employed. Officials said that the customs border patrol would be expanded, port forces increased and that personnel and equipment of the coast guard would be built up to cope with the smuggling situation.

If sufficient funds were available the coast guard would junk some of the obsolete destroyers, doing duty as rum chasers, and they would be replaced by cutters effective both in the blockade and in life-saving operations. The coast guard airplane fleet would be increased. Airplanes probably would be made a part of the customs service equipment, as they would be valuable in connection with the border patrol.

The few extra millions for prohibition enforcement proper, however, presents a puzzle. U. S. attorneys more than once have urged prohibition administrators not to bring in additional cases unless they involved major violations.

Fleet of Planes

The prohibition service probably would be given a fleet of airplanes. Some sort of educational program to teach the public the advantages of avoiding the bootleggers might be arranged. In all probability the government would seek to show the harmful character of the liquor available on the bootleg market. Officials did not appear enthusiastic as to this form of education, however.

There is a growing belief that the new administration may take steps to dry up the District of Columbia, making the national capital a model from the enforcement standpoint. Additional funds would be needed but officials said that should the government change its policy and go into the police business so far as prohibition is concerned, Washington could be made comparatively dry in a short time.

Bootleggers are numerous in the district. There is a large available supply of liquor in the form of alcohol from Baltimore and Philadelphia, as well as an apparently unlimited stock of corn and rye from southern Maryland.

Commenting on the national results of an intensive campaign on the available liquor supply and distribution systems some officials said that it simply would drive many persons to home distilling. In a majority of states householders who make liquors for their personal use are comparatively free from federal interference, owing to the fact that search warrants are not readily obtainable except on evidence of commercial violation of the law.

Beautiful French Murderess Sails For Home After Term in U. S. Prison

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (INS)—Madame Paulette Saludes, beautiful murderess, put behind her the memory of six years in prison and today sailed for sunny France, her native land, to start life afresh.

Mme. Saludes killed her married lover. He was handsome Oscar M. Martelliere, broker and Broadway playboy. The French woman's defense was that he was faithless—that he had deserted her for another.

Her trial was piquant. It was spiced with beauty and intrigue. Some said the beautiful madame was a French secret service worker and that there was a diplomatic secret behind the slaying. The French diplomatic representatives here denied this vigorously. However, she escaped the death penalty, although convicted.

Pardon by Smith

One of the last acts of Gov. Alfred E. Smith in retiring from office was to pardon the French woman. The commutation of sentence was made conditional to the prisoner leaving America and returning to France. This she promised to do.

The sailing aboard the liner Rochambeau was shrouded in secrecy but Madame Saludes was discovered aboard the ship by newspaper reporters.

She was kept isolated until the ship sailed by August Bohn, state superintendent of parole, Homer A. Thompson, an attache of Auburn prison where she was confined, and Mrs. Martha Thompson, his wife, matron at the prison.

Trial in 1923

Madame Saludes was convicted of shooting Martelliere with his own gun in October, 1922. The jury brought in a verdict of second degree murder.

Before going to prison she tried suicide a half dozen times. She gulped poison, slashed her throat another time with a piece of glass in the criminal courts building while on trial, and yet again when in a tombs prison cell she crashed her head against the stone wall. Thrice more, before leaving for Auburn, she tried to do away with herself.

During her stay in prison, reports have been frequent that influential French officials have made appeals to this government for her release. This again revived stories that the whole story of the Martelliere killing had not been told.

Divorce Action Likely

When Madame Saludes returns to Paris she may bring a divorce suit against her husband, James F. Saludes. She always has been very bitter toward him for he made no effort to help her, she said.

A party of friends chattered warmly with Madame Saludes. They appeared somewhat nervous and shielded their faces from photographers.

Romance hovered over the final minutes which Madame Saludes was to spend in America.

A good-looking man took her hand as the "all aboard" siren blew. He held it. She gazed into his eyes and he gazed back—wistfully.

"Are you not going to kiss me?" said Madame Saludes, the beautiful softly.

And he did.

PRESENT DRUG LAWS HOPELESS

Officials Despair of Halting Smugglers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (US)—Little hope that the illicit traffic in horror-breeding narcotics will be stopped at the source under present laws and systems of detection, was found in official circles today.

The revelation that more than $25,000,000 of drugs has been smuggled into the United States in a little more than six months awakened interest rather than surprise.

Col. L. G. Nutt, chairman of the federal narcotic board, which has the responsibility of issuing permits for the licensed sale of narcotic drugs, explained that any ferreting for illegal sales by his staff was done in the course of their duties in the issuing of licenses. It was up to the customs department to keep illicit shipments out of the country.

United States Commissioner of Customs E. W. Camp tonight believes that the customs officers at the various ports were becoming increasingly efficient in detecting smuggled drugs and that the steamship companies were cooperating in the eradication of the evil.

Camp pointed out that the only means of detecting smuggled drugs was through the usual course of searching arriving vessels for contraband or other undeclared goods by the regular staff of customs officers.

The commissioner said he thought the existing law served as an excellent weapon to cudgel the ship owners into active cooperation with the customs officers. Captains frequently find drugs aboard their ships in mid-ocean and heave them overboard.

But in the light of recent exposure neither the small fines nor the trained searchers and detectives appeared likely to satisfy those concerned in the campaign to put a stop to an evil, in their minds far transcending in importance the admitted weaknesses of prohibition.

Meningitis General Over Oklahoma Late Figures Reveal

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 24. (UP)—Spinal meningitis is state-wide instead of confined to two isolated counties it became known today when the state bureau of health issued figures naming seven counties where the disease was reported.

Twenty-three cases have been reported this week to the board, it was learned. This is believed only a small part of the total cases as Muskogee county is listed with only three, when physicians there have reported unofficially 22 cases.

Other counties and cases listed are Caddo 14, Washita 2, and one each in Choctaw, Creek, Kiowa, and Leflore.

A new case in Bridgeport and another near there were reported today.

Woolworth Plans to Use Advertising

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (INS)—The F. W. Woolworth company will celebrate its 50th anniversary with an international advertising campaign, including special features in all its stores in the United States, Canada, Cuba, England and Germany, Hubert T. Parson, president of the 5 and 10 cent chain store system, announced today after a meeting of the executive body.

Local newspapers in the cities and towns where Woolworth operates more than 2,000 stores will be used to broadcast the policies of the great organization, the announcements to be supplemented by a generous distribution of a specially prepared pamphlet now on the press.

Advertising agents of the Woolworth company estimated the first year's appropriation at close to $3,000,000.

BLAST WRECKS FINE THEATER

Beautiful Showhouse Scene Of Explosion

ANACONDA, Mont., Jan. 24. (INS)—An explosion and fire early today wrecked Anaconda's most beautiful theater building, the Sundial, and damaged an adjoining garage in which 60 automobiles were parked. The garage roof collapsed, wrecking a number of the cars. The loss is estimated at $275,000, covered by insurance. The explosion was caused by slack coal in the basement of the theater, which was erected by the late Marcus Daly, founder of the Anaconda Copper company.

Firemen fought the blaze in a temperature of 20 below zero.

WICHITA MAN NOW WANTS OTHERS TO SHARE BENEFITS

Declares He Is Now on the Road to Perfect Health—"I Sure Am Glad That I Found Orgatone When I Did," Says Bodin.

"At last I am on the road to perfect health, again, after I had suffered a good many years and tried everything I could hear of to get relief from my troubles.

"I got to the place where I was very nervous and could not sleep at night and gas would form in my stomach that would cause me trouble because it would get up around in my chest and depress my heart. No matter what I tried in the way of medicine, nothing helped me a bit and it seemed as if there were no relief for me.

"When a man has been in the shape I have, it sure seems wonderful to be able to eat anything he wants and have no trouble from it, but that's just what I can do since Orgatone has relieved my suffering. I begun to pick up in a hurry after I started taking it and have been getting better ever since. I am practically a well man now and have not only gained several pounds in weight but am feeling stronger and better every day I live.

"I'm sure glad I got hold of Orgatone when I did and there's nothing I could say for it that would be too much. I hope my case will be the cause of others who have the same trouble finding the same relief I did by taking Orgatone."

The above statement, signed and witnessed, was made on Jan. 9, 1929, by Henry Bodin, one of the best known head waiters in this entire section of Texas and who has held that official capacity in Wichita Falls for the past eight years at the Veros Cafe, 811 Indiana avenue, where he is personally known to hundreds of patrons of this popular restaurant.

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific treatment containing on alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Out-of-town customers are being supplied promptly by mail upon receipt of price, one bottle $1.25 or six bottles for $6.25.—Adv.

Acid Stomach Ruins Appetite

Thin, pale people—the despondent sort who never have an appetite, and complain of headaches, indigestion, dizziness, biliousness, usually have too much acid in their stomach. And unless they displace it, any food they eat turns into sour bile and foul gases, which poison their system.

Pape's Diapepsin dissolves that poisonous acid, sweetens the stomach and digests your meals. Many thousands of people have brought back the appetite of their youth and gained weight simply by chewing one of the pleasant tablets of Pape's Diapepsin after meals.

It does what it promises. That's the reason 5 million packages are used a year—ask your nearest druggist for it.—Adv.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.—Adv.

Real Estate Boom Stirs Town Since King George Decided to Winter There

LONDON, Jan. 24. (US)—Something akin to a Los Angeles or Miami real estate boom is in progress at the sleepy seaside town of Bognor, on the Sussex coast, since the announcement of the king's forthcoming transfer to Craigwell house, the home of Sir Arthur Du Cros, in the Parish of Aldwick, three miles away.

Perhaps the Los Angeles realtors would know how to make a bigger bally hoo over such a stupendous piece of luck as the king's coming for his convalescence, but certainly they could not be busier than all the hotel managers, real estate men and boarding house keepers have been today.

Every retired Indian army colonel who has been hobbling around Bognor for the past 10 years with a pet Charley-Horse has rushed to insert an ad in the local and London papers with "Sunny room to let, reasonable rate." But the rate will not be "reasonable." Far from it. It is learned that already 16 hotels have jacked up their rates 20 per cent and a meeting of the Bognor Chamber of Commerce has been called to consider "how to meet this unparallelled opportunity."

Already Bognor has evolved an honest to goodness slogan, Los Angeles style. It is: "Bognor, the suntrap of England." Which is pretty good when you consider that London has had less than two hours of sunshine in five days.

Some day somebody may write the most interesting inside story of how the selection of Craigwell house came about, for over a 100 similar offers were made and the selection was a delicate problem. At any rate it is a safe prophecy that when the king's "birthday honors" come around, Sir Arthur will be raised to something higher than his present title of baronet, which was created in 1916.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

American Girl's Most Marked Trait Is Her Perfect Individuality

"Despite Her Infinite Variety, the American Girl Runs True to a Certain Form," Observes Dorothy Dix, "and Taking Her By and Large, She Is Our Best Domestic Product."

A correspondent asks me to define for her the meaning of the phrase "the typical American girl."

Of course, in reality, there is no such being as the typical American girl. She doesn't exist any more than "the average man," or "the average woman." We merely use those phrases to express an ideal, and probably each of us would fit it on an entirely different personality.

Indeed, so far as the American girl is concerned, her most marked characteristic is her individuality. She doesn't conform to any one type, as do the girls of other nations. She isn't blond and blue-eyed like the German girls and the girls of Scandinavia, nor brunette and black-eyed like the Spanish and Italian girls. She isn't demure like a French jeunne fille, nor bread and buttery as most English maidens are.

All of which is perfectly logical, for she is the result of the mingling of many races that have been fused together in the melting pot of this country and that have produced her as their finest product. So she is quite as likely to be fair as dark or medium brown, or vice versa, or a daughter of the gods divinely tall or a pocket Venus, or to have the laughter of the South on her lips or the brooding dreams of the North in her eyes.

Yet, in spite of all her infinite variety, the American girl does run true to a certain form, and there is that something different about her that sets her apart from all the other girls in the world and makes you able to recognize her at sight whether you meet her on Main street or coming down the Rue de la Paix or riding on a camel in Africa.

As I have said, all of us get a different slant on the typical American girl. As I see her, she is a young woman of medium height, thin almost to emaciation, because she is determined to have a boyish figure if she has to starve herself to death to accomplish it, yet for all her seeming fragility she is strong and healthy.

Her hair is bobbed and her neck is shaved, and she uses overmuch paint and rouge, which she seldom knows how to put on artistically, but for all of that she is balm to the eye of the beholder.

Much of this is due to the fact that she is always smartly dressed, even when she has little money to spend on her clothes. She knows how to pick up bargains and is clever with her needle, and for a few dollars can turn out a frock or a hat that looks as if it might have come out of a high-priced specialty shop.

She has an instinct for style and she wears her clothes with an air that not even the most chic Parisienne can surpass. Watch the girls coming out of any big department store at closing time and you will think it is a fashion parade instead of a lot of clerks going home.

The typical American girl has what old-fashioned New England folks call "faculty." She can set her hand to anything. She is the most versatile person on earth. She is equally at home in the kitchen or the parlor; in a night club or at a prayer meeting; in a business office or rocking a cradle in a nursery; buying a million dollars' worth of goods for her firm or haggling over 15 cents' worth of soup meat with the butcher.

If her father has money he can dictate fashions to Parisian couturiers, and queen it along the Riviera, and be an elegant of the elegants. But if papa is unlucky enough to lose his pile she can take a six weeks' course at a commercial school and go out and earn her own living and help support the family.

If she happens to belong to the working-girl class and catches the eye of a millionaire who marries her, she can step out from behind the counter at a moment's notice and take her place at the head of a big establishment, and be more exclusive and snobbish than those who have made a business of highhatting the proletariat for generations.

No other woman ever created can do the chameleon act as quickly as can the typical American girl. In the twinkling of an eye she can change from a grub into a butterfly.

She can make herself over from a fat lump of a girl into slim sylph. She can metamorphose herself from a frump into a fashion plate. She can evolve from a Dumb Dora into the high-browed president of the Browning club. She can change herself from a wild woman into the most domestic of wives and mothers. Other girls stay pretty much as God made them, but the American girl is her own architect and alters herself to suit her changing taste.

The typical American girl is an incarnate declaration of independence and a law unto herself. She has no respect for age. No reverence for traditions. No regard for customs. She snaps her fingers in Mrs. Grundy's face and does as she pleases. This causes her to furnish food for gossip at home and makes foreigners misjudge her and hold up their hands in horror over her, but she is sound at heart and is never half as red as she is painted.

Apparently she is hard-boiled, but this is more or less of a bluff. For you will find her working to support the parents she defies. You will find her giving up a fine position to marry an impecunious youth with whom she has fallen in love. You will find her walking the colic as cheerfully as she danced the Charleston. You will find her sticking to her man, if he is worth while, through thick and thin, and making every sacrifice to help him along, just as you will find her divorcing him and going back to her job if he doesn't play square with her.

Perhaps the typical American girl lacks some of the sweetness and grace, and modesty, and reticence that we like to associate with girlhood, but she is alert and snappy, and capable and efficient, and true and honest, and, taking her by and large, she is our best domestic product.

—DOROTHY DIX.

We had dinner with a prize fighter

We were surprised to watch him eat jelly

WE HAD dinner recently with a famous prize fighter—one of the big fellows noted the world over for his perfect fighting physique. We were interested in seeing what he would eat. We heard him tell one of the waiters to bring a glass of jelly. Before the meal was over, the great fighter cleaned up more than half of that glass of jelly.

That was a practical eye-opener as to the energy value of sugar. The active body of this man craved and needed sweets.

Normal children also are athletes and their energy-consuming bodies hunger for and need sweets. All people whose daily work is of an exhausting, physical nature hunger for and need sweets.

And all others need sugar as an appetizing agent. Sugar develops the flavor of health-giving cereals, of fruits and of vegetables, of milk in milk shakes, and of eggs in egg-nog.

Every grocery store carries pure jams, jellies and preserves, and enough canned fruits and vegetables to bring health to every table. The Sugar Institute. —Adv.

FATHER STEALS HIS CHILDREN

Squabble of Millionaires Is Talk of Paris

By GEORGE HINMAN Jr.

PARIS, Jan. 24. (US)—Ruth and Frank Woodward, children of the quarreling New York millionaire couple, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodward, kidnaped by their father from a fashionable boarding school here yesterday, are believed safely on their way to America.

Interest in the sensational kidnaping case has faded from talk of the fate of the youngsters to the history leading up to and surrounding that climax.

Search for Father

"Certainly we are searching for Woodward," said the Paris police.

Woodward was reported arrested at Boulogne. The Boulogne police denied it. So did Woodward's lawyer, Col. Leslie Naftzger, who added:

"It is impossible that Woodward was arrested at Boulogne, because he left France yesterday afternoon."

Which indicated that Woodward had gone to Belgium, though he was variously reported as having taken the children to Southampton where they all boarded the Aquitania; that he left France via Calais for London at midnight; and that he was still in Paris with the children, protected by the French law which gives the father alone authority over the children.

Divorce Summons

Woodward came to Paris with a New York lawyer who last night served a divorce summons on Mrs Woodward, at her handsome home in Rue Faisanderie. The petition was stated to be returnable at New City, county seat of Rockland county, New York.

During the day Woodward, his New York lawyer, Colonel Naftzger and two other men drove to the McJannet school where the children were taken from a governess and rushed away in automobiles.

Emory Foster, an instructor in the school, who rushed out while the commotion was going on, crashed his fist through the glass window of the automobile in which Woodward and Naftzger were riding. His arm was badly cut, and he faces the loss of use of several fingers from severed tendons.

Warrant Issued

The police search for Woodward was said to have been largely inspired by the school authorities who swore out a warrant for Woodward on a charge of "seriously wounding Foster."

"I am crushed by the whole affair," said Mrs. Woodward this afternoon. "I do not understand why my husband should resort to such sensational methods to obtain the children. He knows they love us both and I have never tried to keep them from him.

"Why should he create such a sensation. I only want my children, and I hate all this publicity."

The Woodwards have been separated for a year.

MONKEY LAW REPEAL ASKED

Fight on Arkansas Anti-Darwin Clique Starts

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 24. (UP)—The first move to repeal the Arkansas anti-evolution bill was made in the house of representatives today when Representative Grubbs of Chicot county introduced a measure which if passed would repeal the present law which was passed by an initiative vote at the last November election.

The proposed bill was sent to the committee on education, where it will probably remain a week before it is reported on. It is rumored that a majority of the members of the house are not eager to take up the measure as introduced today by Grubbs because it will force them to go on record when it is voted.

If the measure is reported back to the house it is anticipated that a bitter fight between evolutionists and fundamentalists will ensue. Many of those favoring the passage of the proposed repeal bill tonight expressed doubt regarding its passage. Two-thirds majority of each house is necessary to repeal the initiated law.

Representative Cole of Randolph county this afternoon introduced in the house a bill which would make the possession of liquor a felony punishable with a term in the penitiary. The proposed law applies to the home as well as to the club house, saloons, road houses and amusement places. The only exemptions made in the proposed measure are medicinal alcohol used by druggists and sacramental wine used by religious organizations.

Resort Profiteers Curbed by Alfonso

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (US)—King Alphonso has issued a royal decree prohibiting profiteering on American visitors in Spain, it was learned here today.

Fifty executives of American cities will leave here early in March to attend the International Congress of Cities at Seville. At the same time an American commission, headed by former Governor Campbell will go to Seville to attend the Ibero-American exposition.

Reports today said the hotel men of Spain began raising their prices on news that wealthy Americans would be there.

The king, hearing of plans to profiteer, issued a decree prohibiting them from raising prices more than 100 per cent in Seville and forbidding them from raising prices more than 50 per cent in Madrid. Other Spanish towns, where Americans visit, cannot raise prices more than 35 per cent.

BIRTH CONTROL BY LAW WORKS

Pair Ordered Not to Have Children 'Makes Up'

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 24. (UP)—Common Pleas Judge Harrison W. Ewing dismissed the divorce petitions of Otto and Helen Kourim, figures in Cleveland's recent birth control sensation, and today gave his blessing to the couple as they started life together anew.

Attorneys for the couple told Ewing their clients had adjusted their differences and now are living together, with their three children.

"This is no surprise to me," Ewing said. "I have been working for a month to effect a reconciliation."

Six weeks ago, Ewing refused the couple a divorce on the grounds that they might remarry and have more children. He was quoted as having ordered them to practice birth control. He attributed their difficulties to inability of Kourim to provide for his wife and three children and blamed juvenile court officials for not supplying them with birth control information.

PACE-MAKERS AND DUST-TAKERS

Daily Editorial

YOUR winter coal's in the cellar—you didn't forget that.

You don't overlook the gas for your car; the dashboard gauge warns that you can't travel without motor fuel.

But how about filling your empty brain bins?

The mind must feed on something, too.

Half the failures in this world are ex-successes that died of mental starvation.

They couldn't satisfy their appetite for new ideas. How many have you acquired to replace consumed knowledge?

What trade publications do you read; how many books of revised practice?

When did you last compare methods with competition's? Or clock the waning output of obsolescing machinery?

"Sharpen your tools, revise your rules.

"And learn what they're teaching in up-to-date schools."

Borrow the shrewdness of better thinkers and more efficient rivals.

Each day harvests its crop of originality.

Metals you never heard of are emerging from experimental laboratories. Their postponed adoption may brand your product as an out-of-date article.

Dye-makers offer another batch of shades every week, and the trade expects you to secure them.

IF you aren't a pace-maker, you're a dust-taker.

Do you know the last decision of the federal trade commission? Ignorance of its rulings won't excuse you from the penalty of violating a changed business code.

Synthetic wool is likely to pop into the market at any moment; have you made factory plans accordingly?

A process has been discovered for plating iron with aluminum; are you aware of it?

Do you receive department of commerce bulletins? Merchants, exporters and manufacturers who miss 'em aren't pre-posted on waste prevention, refuse utilization, simplified auditing, advanced sales promotion, recent efficiencies or additional foreign needs.

You're traveling by the slow trains of thought; study the express schedule.

Yesterday's information is already ash. The map of possibility charts another frontier each morning.

Conventions jest seem to meet to vote on a place fer the next one. "Oh, I'm goin' to a breakfast dance an' I—I how I dread it," said Miss Tawney Apple, when somebuddy asked her what she wuz goin' to do tonight.

A Matter of Red Tape

IF THE new government at Washington can remove a little of the stupid red tape that entangles the matter of immigration and naturalization, it will be doing the country a real service.

A Kansas City woman is going to visit England, accompanied by her three-year-old son. She was born abroad, and although her husband is an American, she is classified as a foreigner—and consequently had to get various kinds of official papers to enable her to re-enter the country when her trip to England expires.

But that isn't the funny part of it all. Her infant son, born in this country, is an American citizen, even if she isn't. So when the two board the liner for England, he must go aboard by one gangplank and she must use another one. Come what may, the majesty (and idiocy) of the law will be upheld.

Detroit's Accident Campaign

THE Way in which traffic fatalities can be materially cut down if police and court authorities really put their minds to it is evidenced by what has been done in Detroit.

At the beginning of 1928, Dertoit lanched an intensive campaign to reduce accidents. It put on extra police, had motorcycle officers patrol all streets regularly, did away with light sentences in the courts and, with the backing of the newspapers, tried to educate driver and pedestrian to the importance of what was being tried.

The result? Detroit's traffic deaths in 1928 were 20 per cent under the total in 1927. Yet in the nation as a whole that total was two per cent higher than in the preceding year.

It takes effort and it costs money, of course. But our traffic casualty list is a shame, and any remedy that produces results is a good one. Other cities might do well to copy Detroit.

Where Money Will Be Well Spent

THERE are hundreds of insane persons in the jails of Texas. Suitable appropriations for their care will be made by the legislative appropriation committee. This is as it should be. Why should an insane person be housed in jail in a civilized commonwealth?

Tubercular orphans or crippled children will be cared for by the state, if the legislature adopts the recommendation which the state board of control is to make to the lawmaking body.

There is a state orphans' home. It is without authority to receive children afflicted with tuberculosis or who are crippled.

An existing law prohibits admission of children to the Carlsbad institution. Why not a state home for crippled children? Why not a Carlsbad for the tubercular orphan? There are many ways of lifting Texas out of the mud.

Tuberculosis should be eradicated. There should be an asylum or a home for negro tuberculars, men and women and children.

Public health, education, state highways, justice for rich and poor alike are not the ideals of visionaries. They are practical demands made by practical men and women.

Mellon Strikes Back

ANDREW W. MELLON is a warrior as well as a financier. He may be the head of big business. He may be a billionaire. He may be right or he may be wrong, but he is the Jack Dempsey of the political world. He returns word for word. He strikes blow for blow.

He had bluntly opposed the appropriation of $25,000,000 for the pro enforcement cause. He declared that $13,500,000 was sufficient. He intimated that Herbert Hoover would be in the White House in the near future and planned to appoint a national commission for the thorough investigation of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act in order to adopt measures for complete enforcement. Mellon was savagely criticized by Bishop James Cannon and his associates.

Mellon did not run to cover. He did not run up the white flag. He penned an answer to his critics. That answer was dignified. It was not ambiguous, it was short from the shoulder, and then the secretary of the treasury returned to his desk.

Mellon is one political leader who has the courage of his conviction. He has moral as well as physical courage and for a man of 73 he knows how to take care of himself.

Bennett Harbor

IT IS good to read that Commander Byrd has named a harbor which he discovered in the Antarctic continent after Floyd Bennett, the man who flew with him to the North Pole.

But for the self-sacrifice and bravery that led him to try to fly to the relief of the Bremen flyers when he was in the first stages of pneumonia, Bennett would today be Byrd's right-hand man in the Antarctic. Serving his fellow men at no thought of the cost to himself, he lost his life and his place had to be filled by another. But Byrd, it seems, has not forgotten him.

Bennett's name will get the kind of immortality that explorers' names get—a space in the corner of a map. That, we believe, is as he would have had it.

SCRAMBLING FOR THE SWAG

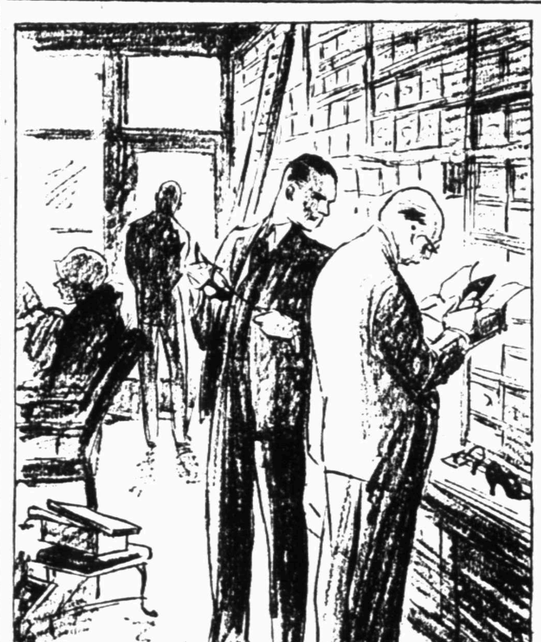

A resolution demanding protection for farm products has been presented to the Texas legislature and probably will be adopted. But if the spirit of former Governor James S. Hogg reclines upon the parapet of the New Jerusalem listening to what is going on down below, we wonder what he thinks about the proceeding. It makes a great departure from the stand the late governor took in refusing a sugar bounty for the state when private producers were eagerly accepting the gratuity. Hogg thought it was undemocratic and wrong in principle. And now the party has precipitated itself into the scramble for federal swag. —Denison (Texas) Herald.

LAUGH THIS OFF

Governor Neff is opposed as a member of the labor board by certain labor leaders, also Senator Mayfield. Governor Neff's term expired and he was re-appointed as the Democratic member of the board by President Coolidge. Mayfield's opposition is based on the plea that Mayfield secured Neff's appointment and that Neff did not help him any in his race for re-election to the senate, in which he was defeated by Tom Connally. The idea in politics is you tickle me and I'll tickle you. Some deny that Mayfield was responsible for Neff's appointment the first time. —Baird (Texas) Star.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—Recently one New York man actually did undertake the task of sorting out the box of letters, photographs, snapshots and programs that had been accumulating for years and years in the little trunk which stood in the large storage closet.

She requisitioned her husband to help her, first because she thought it would be loads of fun to do it together and second because she needed him to help her decide what to throw away and what to keep.

There they were, sitting on the floor; living over the past, recalling events long forgotten as they came across this and that. She was quite excited. He was merely helping her. Suddenly she gave a loud "oh."

"What's that?" he asked.

"Your letters."

"What letters?"

"Your letters to me before we were engaged. Your beautiful love letters."

"Good Lord! Are you still saving those? Let's throw them away.

I will not throw them away. I'll keep them forever. They were beautiful letters. Listen to this one. 'Sweetest girl—'"

"Please, Helen, lets not read them. It's getting late."

"'Sweetest girl'," she read on. "'If you only knew how being with you thrills me. No man ever loved a woman as much as I—'"

He leaped to his feet, "Here, give me that."

But she was too quick for him. She hid it behind her back.

"Here's the one you wrote me when you were on the Chicago trip. Remember? It has a poem in it.

"Whenever I look at the moon,
The pale, beautiful, silvery moon,
There's only one image it brings to me—
It's the image of . . ."

"Helen, if you read any more of that stuff, I'll tear up the whole damn bunch."

She didn't hear him. She opened another one. "Oh, this is the one that thrilled me so when I got it 'My love for you is a complete love—I love you with all my mind, with all my soul and with all my body, too."

"Stop it, please. That's terrible. If you keep on, I'll leave you here. You can read them to yourself."

She saw that he was serious. And she was hurt. "You're not ashamed of your letters, are you?"

"Not ashamed of them. Of course not. But they are so silly. So childish now."

"Childish? You were 24 when you wrote them. If you meant what you wrote you ought to like to read them over again."

"Well, I don't like to read them over and I don't like to have them read over."

"Oh, if you didn't mean what you wrote I'll burn them up myself. I suppose you wrote them just to get yourself a wife."

"Helen, don't you see? No man likes to read his old love letters. I'm 34 now. I wrote those 10 years ago. I don't think they are good letters. It makes me squirm just to—"

"All right, take your old letters." She threw them at his feet. "I don't want them anyway."

He saw tears coming. He swallowed his pride. What else could he do? "Oh, go ahead, Helen; go ahead and read them. I didn't know you took them so seriously, I mean, I didn't know they still mean so much to you."

There is a sudden renewal of activity at the Warner lot. Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler have returned from a honeymoon in Honolulu. The star of "The Jazz Singer" is soon to start work in "Mammy." His wife's plans are less definite. When other studios have offered her screen tests Mr. Jolson has waved away their offers with a blithe: "Well, what's two or three thousand a week after all?"

Sophie Tucker has also arrived here to make her first picture, "Honkey Tonk." Lloyd Bacon will direct. Miss Tucker will play a night club hostess whose daughter is being educated in ignorance of her mother's work. Lila Lee, George Duryea and Mahlon Hamilton, who was prominent on the screen several years ago, have featured roles.

Three pictures are scheduled for immediate production at the same studio. These are "The Hottentot," with Patsy Ruth Miller and directed by Roy del Ruth; "The Gamblers," with Michael Curtiz directing H. B. Warner and Lois Wilson, and "The Time, the Place and the Girl," with Betty Compson, Gertrude Olmsted and Grant Withers.

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By T. C. O'DONNELL

T. C. O'Donnell, well known novelist, editor, critic, playwright and author of five books, likes the story about a drummer's dilemma.

T. C. O'DONNELL

"There had been a brass-band concert," said O'Donnell, "and the players were returning home by train in a very jubilant condition.

"The smallest man of the party, a young Scotchman, sat in a corner seat and persisted in singing 'Sweet Adeline,' 'How Dry I Am' and other such ditties.

"Presently the ticket-puncher made his rounds. When he reached the little fellow the musician at once became serious and said solemnly, 'I've lost ma ticket!'

"'Lost your ticket?' repeated the conductor. 'Are you sure you had one?'

"'I know that I had one—and I know thot I losted it!'

"The conductor insisted upon the Scot searching in his pockets, but the investigation was in vain.

"'I'm tellin' ye thot I hae losted it,' the man repeated.

"'But you can't have lost it,' said the conductor. 'It's impossible!'

"'Impossible, is it? Then let mae tell ye its naething o' the kind, young man, for I've losted mae big bass drum as well!'"

The VICARION

The Astounding Story of an Invention Greater Than the Movies

Copyright by Gardner Hunting

By Gardner Hunting

Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

In the year 1935 Radley Brainard has invented the Vicarion, a device with which it is possible to re-create scenes out of the past. The invention is a sensational success, with all the theaters installing it in place of motion pictures. Complete Illusions, Inc., which at that time controls all the improvements on the movie, faces ruin, but when Ferdinand Mortimer and Jerry Ballard, heads of the company, call on him, Brainard refuse to make terms.

Brainard's records of the past are contained in "bombs," which hold liquid air and while he is projecting one of the "bombs," which was unmarked, he sees a beautiful gossamer-clad girl, with whom he falls in love, although he is engaged to Phyllis Norman. During the first demonstration of the Vicarion, with Phyllis and her family looking on, a strange man staggers in the studio. He is unable to tell who he is and Brainard names him Van Winkle, and makes him his aide.

Brainard calls in the operator who made the unmarked record, but gains no information from him. He orders Van Winkle to investigate the making of the bomb. Brainard projects one of the three remaining bombs containing the woodland scene in which the girl with whom he is infatuated appears and decides the records were made by Jeffry Honer, a criminal whom he has employed. Honer dies of fright while listening to the voice of his dead brother which Brainard projects by means of the Vicarion and Honer's secret of the "bomb," which contains the "sunrise nymph" passes into the hands of Mortimer and Ballard.

The fact remained that his enemies possessed the sole clue by which he might hope to find the one thing he wanted to find. And he wanted it enough—enough to put him in their power! He could only hope that, so long as they did not know just what it was they were withholding from him, they would not guess the full extent of their power!

But was their power so great? Had the thing such a hold upon him after all? No mere desire could so rule a man if he chose to deny it indulgence. If he had been caught by fear, perhaps!—for fear could not be denied. But he could deny desire! He must have been mad to suppose he could not. Whence was this panic he had been fighting so desperately? Why, he could look at that beautiful Dawn Vision or not, as he chose; he could sip of the cup, and set it down, forever if need be! What was there in it so resistless? What made it necessary to him? He could contemplate it now, quite calmly. He was contemplating it calmly—now. Now! Why not test himself again, and see what its fascination was? He had himself now well in hand—why not taste again and prove to himself that he was no weakling to fall victim to a mere craving, like the contemptible slave of a vice!

He had been standing in front of his tray-closet thinking of refreshment for weary brain and body. Here was refreshment! Forgetfulness! Such as no liquor could give him! Here in these two remaining bombs without labels! Mortimer and Ballard and their problem and his, drifted out of his mind. His arteries began to throb again. He was at a door that could be opened upon forbidden sweets. Forbidden, because he knew in his soul that the draft of Liquid Life that lay there ready to his hand was a flaming thing. Already the thirst it had created was well-nigh unquenchable! Ah, that sweet thirst! What added power would these added drafts give it?

The fire of desire was rising in him. He began to consider deliberately that a man is a fool to temporize with an appetite that grows in rapacity with every indulgence; that was wisdom as old as Time. He took up a bomb. A man was a fool to drink liquor that takes over the reins of his being even for an hour. He fondled the little steel sphere. A man was a fool to fasten his eyes upon a prize he might not reach. The steel seemed velvet smooth to his touch! Only a fool would set foot again in a path where he had just been waylaid. Only a fool would eat of a food he knew an enemy had provided. It was more than folly to play with manacles with which he might be bound. It was madness to expose his breast where his enemy had already fired a shaft. Ah, wonderful little metal shell with its lovely secret hidden away within! What sort of world's ruler was he who could not rule himself? Ha! He would think about that later. Later! It was not weakness he was yielding to! He was taking deliberately the thing he could take or let alone! Deliberate choice! Besides, these sayings of socalled wisdom were only born of the hours of dead desires. They were dead things—the ashes of spent passions—or products of anchorites' cells, where passions themselves were buried! What did a man gain by denying himself a thing he wanted and might have? Some fancied strength? Strength for what? That he might deny himself again!

It was not an argument pro and con with which he dallied; he dwelt no more on arguments justifying indulgence than reasons for bitter restraint. He was not now balancing between wisdom and folly, between right and wrong. He stood with the little steel sphere nursed in his palms, even against his breast, waiting, waiting! Like the epicure who turns his glass and discourses upon the evils of drunkenness while he waits for thirst to rise to the poignant point—till the nerves of craving lie bare!

He put the bomb into its waiting sheath and moved his switches with a soft touch of his finger-ends, like a caress. He went quickly to his chair. The trickle of a tiny waterfall, joyous little arpeggio; the tender light of sunrise, budding rose of day; sweet breath of waking spring, ecstatic cry of a creature at the urge of nature's first concern, and woman—the Creator's master-touch in a world made for man! Woman, a-search for love!

What was the meaning of such words as prudence, folly, wisdom, rashness, right, wrong, reason, madness? Life itself was law; obedience was wisdom; resistance, folly! Happy the man who used its laws, and made no attempt to unset! The only right was joyous yielding; the only wrong, the attempt to thwart!

Alone, covered away from the world's surveillance gloriously free of a world's restraints, the man threw wide the doors of his nature that he might not lose on exquisite pang of rapturous experience. She was like the selected image in that rare realm of bliss where nonessentials are blotted out by the kindly veil of opium! She was like something seen through parting clouds! She was the perfect complement of all that to him was incomplete! She was—consummation!

He did not taste, he did not drink; he did not enjoy, he did not reveal. He lived! Outside of his moment there was nothing. Behind it no retrospect—beyond, no expectation! No memory of denial and defeat; no anticipation of conclusion! No past, no future, no old, no new—only the perfect now!

On her knees she called to him and stretched out her arms. He did not move; she had come to him—she would come all the way! He had only to wait. Haste, too eager seeking, only could destroy. He waited.

But suddenly, echoing through the high forest arches, beyond the leafy screen, came a call, full-throated, commanding, unwavering, sure; no cry of wandering uncertainty—a glad shout that heralded approach! The Sprite of the sunrise sprang alert; she leaped to her white feet on the velvet turf; her answer was like a note of the wind's own harp at the wind's own touch; she listened. The summoning shout came again, nearer—near!

She turned—and dashed up the staircase of root and rock and plunged at the leafy wall; it opened, and from the dim recess an arm came out and caught her in! And all was as still as the end of thought!—the trill of the tiny fountain dying, as that woodland paradise slowly dissolved and was gone!

The man struggled up, his own cry filling the six-square space of his secure little muffled room. He rushed at the sheer gauze of the curtain and snatched it aside as if it could conceal in its transparent folds the solid substance of the vision that had fled. He shrieked at the emptiness of his grasping hands. He sprang at the converging walls beyond, and tore at them with fingers that merely scraped fabric away and bared the plastered face of steel and stone! He threw himself upon it, crazed to the conviction that at his master-touch it must melt and yield. He crushed the flesh on his hands. Blood flowed from his bitten lips.

And then frenzy spent itself against cool, old, calm facts. Panting and whispering, he turned, his back against the wall, his broken hands dropping at his sides, and stared—stared into the empty white light!

After a time his gaze roved slowly about the white room, the muffled door, the glimmering chairs, the stout little mechanism of steel and brass that was his condenser, the switchboard. The door of his bomb-closet was half ajar, as he had left it in his haste. There rested his trays in ordered sequence, containing assorted, listed and labeled morsels of life. In one little steel shell—just one—was imprisoned the one shred that remained to him of his heart's delight, unmarked, unlisted, undescribed. One more draft of the ineffable—and the last!

But he knew now what he had not known before. Previous drafts had gone to his head before he had reached the bottom of the cup. Now he knew that the draft itself was but bubbles of gas at the lips, the dregs alone were real.

That hand which had drawn his Dawn Maiden away out of his sight was the symbol of fate itself, the hand that locked his door of doors and put the key into the grasp of his enemies! Denial was the only fact he had—like the ditch across the path of the will-o'-the-wisp!

He did not reason out what he could do. Heavily his mind went over the history of his eventful night. He had not stepped beyond his doors, yet he had uncovered his enemy; he had killed a man; and won and lost, and won and lost again, in the great still moves of his desperate game!

When the deep trembling in him subsided at last enough to permit, he dragged himself back into ordinary contacts for a few hours. To secure means of renewing the fight!

Together he and Ushigi patched up his injured hands. Then he turned to the completion of his multiple-condenser. For days he worked perfecting that. Events came and went about him; reports of a country ablaze with excitement over The Vicarion—Van Winkle begging him to spare himself; a riot and a panic in a theater, where people fought to get in, not out—and Phyllis looking at him with frightened eyes; fire that destroyed in a night a great block of the studios he had bought—and Miss Arden bringing him a basket of fruit and a wreath of smiles; a sober threat of state interference in his affairs—and Carol repeating broad jests she had from the lips of a certain red-haired English queen; a showman's demand for records of San Francisco's fire—and another's request for historic councils of Tammany Hall; an inquiry from the department of justice in Washington as to a certain publicly exhibited cabinet meeting in the White House—and Rex Welling, head of his condensing room, mysteriously ill; a defalcation in a bank where he had heavy deposits—and a perfumed letter impregnated with an irritant poison, fortuitiously detected.

The new machine was a triumph of ingenuity, even for him. Fifty bombs could now be filled at once. Dials could be so set that the condensers could secure fifty records about the same immediate locality at a given time; or fifty records of events in the same locality at fifty different times, successive or scattered; or fifty simultaneous records in widely separated localities. When it was complete and installed in the small studio, where it occupied only the space along one wall behind the chairs, Brainard sat down before its control-board with a sense of entering the switch-tower of the world.

That night he threw out his drag-net over the affairs of Jerry Ballard. He looked at the doings of the man in his office, in his home, in his bank, in his club, in his bed, in his bath. He listened to his words, he watched his moods, he compared his habits of one day with those of another, he intercepted glances at his partner, at his wife. He listened in at both ends of telephone conversations. He read his telegrams. He went into the partners' private vault with him, he looked over his shoulder when Ballard opened the safe. He watched the shift of papers from pocket to pocket when the man changed his clothes.

He pried into pigeon-holes in his desk, when the sun shone into them, or the incandescent light. If Ballard was grave, Brainard uncovered the reason; if Ballard laughed, Brainard discovered the cause. When Ballard was gloomy, Brainard understood; When Ballard was complacent, Brainard knew why! At the end he felt that he knew Jerry Ballard better than the man knew himself. Few men analyze themselves to obtain a total effect. Brainard wanted to know whether Ballard did or did not possess information that profoundly affected his attitude toward life. He wanted to know, if he had missed any important moments in Ballard's recent career, whether anything had happened in them exceptionally satisfactory to Ballard. Or otherwise.

Ballard

He had learned the trick of following a scene in a moving vehicle by a method of moving his dials as a motion-picture photographer swings his camera in panorama. As his expertness grew in handling his multiplied condenser, and in drawing inferences swiftly from records, running through only the significant ones and letting the worthless ones escape, he covered an enormous amount of ground and time. A moving ribbon of paper beneath his control-board recorded now in curves and periodic figures the set of his dials. On this he marked records for remaking, when they suggested material useful either to his persent quest or for other purposes. A point of view once set tended also to follow an event through, as a wheel follows a rut, by some subtle, unexplained, magnetic law; in this new and improved machine on which he worked, he noted that even a dial would move automatically at times drawn to follow an altering vibration, sensitive to its rise and fall of tone as mercury to temperature. This fact held enormous promise for reduction of labor in future quests such as his.

Sometimes there was an element approaching humor in the chase. Jerry Ballard had always possessed what is popularly called a poker face; now one of the obvious things was that the man was cultivating a mask. If ever there had existed a process for enameling the features, Ballard was outdoing it. Clearly he was haunted—by "the unseen ghost that sees!" He felt the eye and the ear of the Vicarian ever present during his waking hours, and suspected its attendance upon his sleep. Brainard began to realize that the man looked worn. Why, it might even be possible to run a man down like a chicken by letting him feel this unremitting Argus-pursuit! It would make a pastibe par excellence, if one wished to strike without hurry, and quite without leaving a trace!

But the search itself was fruitless. In sheer weariness he turned to Mortimer and followed that gentleman through his activities of a week, which involved as little physical action as was practicable for Mortimer. And he tired of this. Tired, tired, tired. It occurred to Brainard that he was himself the one who was being run down. Were Mortimer and Ballard shrewd enough to foresee how he would spend himself in this useless trailing?

Of course they were! Patience! Patient waiting! It was a weapon that he had not even considered.

Where in the whole course of time had there been such a duel—and with such weapons!

And then one day, when he had idly turned to look at the partners together, with no calculation of time or season, he heard Jerry Ballard dictate a letter:

My dear Mr. Brainard:

If you are not already familiar with the contents of this letter before it comes into your hands, this is to inform you that we are holding for sale a piece of property bequeathed to us by the late Jeffry Honer, whom I believe you knew. We understand that you have personal reasons for being interested in this property, and we are more than willing to oblige you by offering it to you first for a reasonable consideration. We frankly admit that if our willingness to serve you in this matter would form a basis on which to reopen recent negotiations regarding The Vicarion, we are ready to renew them.

Yours very truly.

The next morning this letter was in Brainard's mail, signed by the firm. Putting aside impulses to snatch at it as a flag of truce preceding surrender, he studied it in the light of the things he knew. And slowly from his study emerged three conclusions. Mortimer and Ballard did not know what it was that Jeffry Honer had had that Brainard wanted, they could not find out without a condenser, even if they dared to look at their own memorandum; and they dared not look, for fear of losing their advantage! And then, as if a match had been again set to fear, a whole train of desolating ideas was fired in Brainard's weary mind. If Honer had not told them the story of the Dawn Maiden, what had he recorded in that sealed envelope which was supposed to contain her index? Supposed to? Could it be possible that the man had duped the czars of Complete Illusiona, and given them a false record—or no record at all? How did Brainard know that they possessed such a record? Could Mortimer and Ballard have been quick-witted enough on the right of Honer's death to invent the whole idea, knowing only that Honer meant to blackmail his former employer? Foreseeing Brainard's anxiety, had they grasped these means of playing with it? There were more ways than one or two of running a chicken down! But better that the fateful index were in his enemies' hands than that it should be lost! And then a slow chill crept over him. What evidence had he, after all, that Honer had ever had that index?

Appalled at the realization that he had only inference, he went back and combed Honer's life again, during the time he had spent in that mountain cabin. He found Mortimer and Ballard in communication with the man, visiting him; but he could make no record when showed a transfer of the alleged memorandum or any conversation in reference to it. But there were occasions when Ballard and Honer had walked the dark mountainside woods together, disappearing and reappearing, where opportunities were abundant for exchanges Brainard could not catch and nothing was proved.

He came to slow conclusion that there was but one way to deal with Mortimer and Ballard. He would feign ignorance of any property Jeffry Honer could have had that might interest him; then he would outwear their patience with his. If they possessed it, eventually they would look at Honer's memorandum to learn what they had; and when they did, so would he!

Patience! A dreary outlook! Patience—and suspense!

LABOR HEAD DEPLORES RIFT

Enmity Between U. S. and England Aired

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (UP)—It is imperative that steps be taken at once "to end all this foolish and mischievous feeling which is alienating the United States from Great Britain," says J. Ramsay MacDonald, former British premier and labor party leader, in an article on "America and England" in the Jan. 24 issue of "The Nation."

MacDonald discusess the "spirit which is estranging" the two countries, presents his plan for a mutually beneficial discussion of naval power and economic issues and demands that "the governments act."

"Relations between the United States and Great Britain grow increasingly unhappy," the labor leader says in the opening paragraph of the article, ridiculing the old faith that war between the two nations "is unthinkable."

"What each of our nations requires at this moment is a good robust call from common sense . . . The whole world is calling for peace and security against war, and when a simple declaration against war which avoids every practical difficulty is put before the world, the world hails it with acclamation, signs it—and relapses. There is something wrong somewhere."

MacDonald attacks the British-French naval alliance as "simply stupid," but not directed against the United States.

In conclusion he says:

"Both countries ought to appoint five or six of their most outstanding public men to meet and drag from the obscure corners of sulky suspicion the things which make difficulties between us. Mayhap fresh air would clean our minds of them."

W. W. Rivers reading the ceremony. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Sanderlin, also of this city.

Preston, and is associated with his father and brothers in business here. Mr. and Mrs. Preston will make their home here.

HON. JO A. PARKER OF MISSOURI NOW ENDORSES SARGON

Almost everybody in Missouri knows Jo A. Parker, who has been an outstanding figure in the public life of that state for 20 years. Mr. Parker was chairman of the national committee of his party. He is also prominent in fraternal circles, having been commander of the Knights of Pythias and delegate to the grand lodge of the state of Missouri. He is also active in the Masonic order.

He was born in Cambridge City, Ind., but spent his boyhood in Kentucky before moving to Missouri. His father was a minister in the Christian church and wrote many books on religious subjects. Mr. Parker has extensive farming and timber interests in southeastern Missouri. His home is at Parma, Missouri.

Out of sheer gratitude for his complete restoration to health, and feeling it a duty to let his fellowman know all the details of his recovery, he made the following voluntary statement:

"I have never before recommended a medicine in my life, and I would not publicly recommend Sargon now if I did not know that it is the most wonderful medicine in the world for the troubles from which I suffered. I do not know what is in it or how it is made, but I do know it is a new kind of medicine and different from any other medicine I have ever used or heard of.

"I have been in a general run-down condition for the past three years. I suffered from biliousness, severe dizzy spells and could not sleep properly at night. My appetite was poor, constipation was more or less chronic and I had to use purgatives practically all the time. I was weak and lost all my old-time strength and energy. I had become very discouraged over my condition.

"I began taking Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills about two months ago. I now feel much better than I have at any time in four years. Sargon is the most efficient medicine I have ever had any experience with. It seemed to pick me right up. My bilious attacks have entirely disappeared. My appetite has returned and I feel stronger and more cheerful and optimistic than I have for years.

"I especially like the action of the pills. They are fine and positively do not upset me in the least. I am sure now that my trouble was due to a sluggish liver and lack of bile flow. Sargon and the pills have without a doubt corrected this condition.

"I expect to always keep some Sargon and pills on hand in case I ever get bilious again, or rundown and discouraged like I was. I was sick so long that it seems wonderful that any medicine could correct my condition in two months' time."

Sargon may be obtained in Wichita Falls from the Renfro Drug Co., Eighth and Scott streets, No. 1 main store, and Seventh and Indiana, No. 2; and in Electra from Lodge's Drug Store.—Adv

BIGGEST ADVENTURE

Author Puts Searching Of Mind Ahead Of All Others

CHICAGO, Jan. 24. (US)—Exploration into the human mind offers the great modern adventure, David Seabury, noted psychologist and author, said today.

He said:

"Mind exploration is the great modern adventure. With its drama of compelling emotions, its dynamic motives and impulses and its majestic power of reason and imagination, the mind is a vaster realm of research than ever inspired a Magellan to circumnavigate the globe. No tropical jungle, no arctic desolation offers such fields for discovery."

RIVER CAPERS MAY BE CURBED

Rio Grande Meanderings Object of Study

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (US)—A plan to curb future meanderings of the Rio Grande and to solve international problems created by its past performances, was presented to Secretary of State Kellogg by the international boundary commission Wednesday.

The plan in general provides for artificial rectifications of the river where it is the boundary line of the United States and Mexico between El Paso and Fort Quitman canyon, 100 miles below. It not only would prevent further changes in land areas, but remove a flood menace near El Paso and Ciudad Juarez.

Existing treaties provide for settlement of national sovereignty over areas affected by the river changes, but not for artificial changes now in demand because of the intensive cultivation and improvements to adjoining areas.

The plan now submitted, which includes a system of levees to confine flood flows, will be used as a basis for future negotiations between the two nations.

The alignment of the channel would be carried out in such a way as to equalize the areas cut from each nation, so that neither will gain or lose territory.

DUAL 'MURDER' CASE SOLVED

Lifeless, Nude Bodies of Man and Girl Found

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24. (UP)—What was at first regarded as a double murder was believed by police tonight to have been an attempt of Andrew Davis, 36, to implicate his estranged wife in his suicide and slaying of his sweetheart.

The nude bodies of Davis and Miss Nell Baer, 26, were found in bed in his room today, with well arranged evidence to indicate that his wife had caused their deaths.

Police pronounced the case a murder and suicide after a complete investigation. Davis' clothes, hung neatly in a closet, were found to be stained with the girl's blood and indications were that he had killed her in an automobile and carried her body to the room.

He left a note which said: "My wife and her family killed this woman and it looks bad for me, but I am innocent. They say they are going to kill me with my own gun. It has not been shot yet."

Only one empty shell was found in the gun in the room. Police said that after Davis murdered the girl in his automobile, which disclosed a broken window and bloody seat, he replaced the exploded shell.

It was revealed that the girl had given Davis her pay check to cash last Saturday and that he did not give her the money. When she demanded explanation he took her on the fatal ride, police said.

Poverty No Excuse For Student Fees

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 24. (UP)—Pleas of poverty would not exempt a student of the University of Oklahoma from the payment of a $2.50 fee for the student union building fund, Floyd Rheams, law student at the university, testified in district court today.

Rheams testified in a suit to restrain temporarily university officials from collecting the tax.

Rheams contended that students who do not patronize the building should not be required to pay the tax.

The $2.50 fee is collected along with the regular fees of the university at registration of students.

Lee sent Mr. Coolidge a certified check for $5,000 today to be offered as a prize to anyone submitting a "more practical remedy for our intolerable money system" than the one sponsored by "General" Jacob S. Coxey and now before the house committee on banking and currency.

"The competing bills must be in your hands on or before June 1, and your judgment is to be final," Lee wrote.

The president is expected to decline the offer, with thanks.

APE MAN MUST FIGHT ALONE

Judge Rules Northcott to Defend Himself

COURTROOM, RIVERSIDE, Calif., Jan. 24. (INS)—Gordon Stewart Northcott will have to conduct his own defense in his trial on charges of killing small boys on his Wineville, "murder farm."

This was the ruling made here today by Superior Judge George R. Freeman in response to a motion by young Northcott that David Sokol, youthful attorney, be recognized as associate defense counsel.

In denying the motion, Judge Freeman called attention to the fact that he had warned Northcott that the burden of defending himself would be solely upon his own shoulders as the result of the young defendant's dismissal of his attorneys last week.

Judge Freeman, however, granted permission for Sokol to sit at Northcott's side at the counsel table in the courtroom, saying that the attorney's status would be limited to a purely advisory position.

Reports that a party of vigilantes had sought to take Northcott from the detention ward of the Riverside county hospital early this morning and lynch him were categorically denied here today by authorities.

Growing Children

sometimes require a tonic as do their elders *

GIVE your child the right chance to develop, and you will not regret it in later years.

Many children become under-nourished due to lack of appetite. Keep the appetite keen. Food nourishes the body and makes it grow.

Also watch Nature's warning for changes in the system. Skin troubles—pimples, boils and that sallow complexion—all foretell a body weakness.

In such cases, S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It improves the appetite; helps Nature build rich, red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

In building rich, red blood cells, S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years, S.S.S. has been helping children and their elders regain strength and vitality.

Children like S.S.S. It is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

 The physical welfare of the child is being given more attention by school authorities. Failure to keep up with class work and absence from school is probably due to a nervousness and run-down condition that may be largely attributed to a deficiency in red blood cells.*

RADIO TO RUN CAR IN TEST

Driverless Machine to Tour Streets of City

Wichita Falls will be introduced to the driveless and passengerless automobile Friday morning at 11 o'clock when the phantom machine will begin its course through the downtown streets of the city from Perkins-Timberlake company

The machine will be operated by remote radio control from another automobile which follows it closely in the rear and will act as its own pilot through the traffic. The motor will be started and stopped, the horn blown and the entire routine of running the machine will be operated without a person on board.

The purpose of the demonstration here Friday and Saturday is for the purpose of showing the possibilities of remote control.

This uncanny operation which was invented and perfected by R. E. Allen, has been demonstrated in many cities over the country during the last few months and it is believed that the device will revolutionize the control of automobiles, airplanes, battleships and submarines.

The automobile which will serve as a demonstrator for the process has been selected and supplied through the courtesy of McFall Brothers, and will be called the "Phantom Dodge Six."

The course which will be followed in the demonstration Friday is as follows: Perkins-Timberlake company at 11 o'clock, Texas Electric Service company at 11:30, Ludlam and Riggs at 1 o'clock, Kirby's Jewelry 1:15 o'clock; Orchid Shop 2:30; Panhandle Tire company 3 o'clock; Wichita Tire company 3:30 o'clock; Service Tire company 4 o'clock, and McFall Brothers 4:15 to 6 o'clock.

announced as follows: J. A. Brewer, Tom Dunbar, W. C. Dickey, S. N. McFall, R. S. Greene, Sam Hamilton, T. E. Noel, Frank Thelam and Claude Wells.

The announcement of the new officials, and the principal address of the evening, delivered by Walter D. Cline, of Wichita Falls, were the high points of the evening's program.

Mr. Cline spoke on "Tolerance." He highly praised the cooperative efforts of the civic clubs and the chamber of commerce in the city of Memphis. "Realization that civic betterment is always more assured when there is no strife between the various organizations in a city is one of the biggest achievements of tolerance," he said. He added:

"Criticism, however, and especially constructive criticism, should always be welcomed. The man who will not change his mind cannot correct his errors."

The speaker praised the West Texas pioneers, saying that many who had helped develop this region were being overlooked in the haste of living.

An entertainment program was featured by two vocal solos by R. E. Shepherd, former mayor of Wichita Falls, and selection rendered by the chamber of commerce quartet.

Other Speakers

In Mr. Cline's address, and in those of officials of the organization and other prominent West Texans, aims of the chamber for the coming year were reviewed. Among those who made addresses, in addition to Mr. Cline, were Mr. Kinnard, J. M. McKelvy, who made the address of welcome; Fred Landers of Estelline, who gave the response; Miss Edna Bryan, representative of the business girls; R. L. Madden, representative of the Lions' club; W. B. Quigley, representative of the Rotary club; I. E. Jolly, representative of the Boy Scouts; John M. Deaver, representative of the American Legion; Miss Ruby Adams, county home demonstration agent; and Lon M. Thompson, county agent.

Aims for 1929

Aims of the organization reviewed in brief, were:

1. More and better dairy cows.
2. Designation of the road from Wellington to Turkey.
3. More street lights in the residence section.
4. Bond issue to build road west of Memphis.
5. More paved streets.
6. Ice cream plant and creamery for the city.
7. Campaign indorsing purebred feeds for Hall county farmers.
8. More fire fighting equipment.

Jeff F. Watson was toastmaster for the banquet. The invocation was delivered by Dr. E. E. Robinson.

Court Delays Hearing on Writ To Free Woman in State Hospital

Hearing on a writ of habeas corpus, ordered upon an application alleging that a Grayson county woman of sound mind is being illegally held in the Wichita Falls hospital for the insane, has been postponed until Saturday to give time to the state and the contestants to prepare their cases.

The husband of the woman whose release is sought will probably oppose the proceedings, it was learned here Thursday. The application for the writ, made by the sister of the patient, alleged that the husband is "responsible" for her confinement in the hospital and that home conditions are "unpleasant."

According to officials of Grayson county, the woman was tried for insanity a short time after complaints of assault with intent to kill had been filed against her in connection with the shooting of her husband. It was learned that she was never tried on the assault charge, the insanity proceedings having been instituted before her indictment.

In filing the application for the release of her sister, the relator promises to take the patient to her home in Tarrant county and keep her separated from the Grayson county husband.

Officer Captures Negro After Exciting Chase Through Streets

After an exciting chase in cars, around cars, and under cars through a downtown storage garage, and a spirited sprint down Scott avenue Thursday afternoon, Fred Fountain, city officer, succeeded in capturing an elusive black, wanted for burglary, and escorted him to the city jail.

The race put on by Fountain and the negro drew quite a crowd of spectators.

Fountain had been driving down the street in quest of the negro when he spied him walking past the storage garage. The black took refuge inside of the garage when he was hailed by the officer and attempted to escape by crawling through and under the 200 automobiles parked in the building.

After a quite game of "hide-and-go-seek" with the policeman, the negro made a dash for the door and liberty. Fountain discovered him as he disappeared around the door and overhauled him some yards down the street when the negro decided to stop as he looked over his shoulder and saw the officer whip his pistol from its holster.

AUTO CRASH BRINGS CHARGE

Two Complaints Filed In Injury of Woman

Charges of aggravated assault and speeding were filed Thursday afternoon against Russell Morgan in connection with an automobile collision on Jan. 22 in which Mrs. John Maunders, 2812 Avenue R, was injured.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Grace and Ninth streets. Mrs. Maunders was thrown out of her car in the collision. Physicians said she is suffering from concussion of the brain. Her condition was reported unchanged late Thursday.

Morgan was first booked at the police station under charges of negligent collision. The county charges were filed Thursday afternoon by Wayne Somerville, county attorney.

Captain Fried Tells Story Of Rescue at Sea

jury rig, jauntily reporting that it apparently had called the turn on Davy Jones this time; but the Florida was wounded by the storm beyond any chance of helping herself.

Man Overboard

She must have been in a bad way long before she swallowed a seaman's pride and called for help, for Capt. Fried revealed today that she lost a man overboard Sunday, two days before her SOS crackled from her wireless room.

Before the America reached her, groping through roaring seas lashed by a snowy gale, the Florida's bridge had been washed away. She was listed so far her captain feared she would roll completely over, and her crew had been practically stripped of their clothing by the waves that battled unceasingly and the wind that lashed them with ice and snow.

Two Abandon Search

The two other craft besides the America that started to the rescue but could not find the Florida and had to abandon the search, the President Harrison and the Yorck, had proceeded on their way long before the America reached the scene and Capt. Fried revealed today why they failed.

Because of the list of the Florida, he said, her skipper felt that the only way to keep her afloat was to keep the engines turning over. And so while the Harrison and Yorck were approaching the position he gave in his SOS he was steadily steaming away from it, and they, without radio direction finding apparatus, were unable to locate him.

The America, however, had an efficient radio compass, which is a sensitive receiving set with a revolving loop antenna. Although misled at first by the difference between the Florida's given position and the direction indicated by the radio compass, it was the direction finder in the end that led them to the Florida. They found the Florida 150 miles from the position it had given long after dark last night.

Law of Sea Rules

Capt. Reid well knew the danger of the next task to be attempted. When he directed the rescue of the crew of the Antinoe three years ago he lost two of his own men, washed out of a life boat and drowned. But the law of the sea is ingrained in the men who follow its calling, and he did not hesitate.

Lifeboat number one was swung out and down, though a full gale was blowing and the wind carried a smother of snow to make things harder. Chief Officer Manning took command of the little boat and eight men sat at the oars.

The America's searchlight was playing on the Florida as it tossed, broken and awash in tremendous seas. Manning approached to within 50 feet and dared go no closer. He got a rope on the Florida's deck and one after one the shivering sailors from the sinking wreck hurled themselves into the sea and pulled their way hand over hand to the cockershell that was their one remaining hope of life.

There was one terrible moment during this time when the rope parted and some poor seaman, half way across, had to be hauled back to the sodden deck he had been glad to leave. But another rope was got across and the transfer was completed.

The captain of the Florida was last to leave his ship. He came crawling through the waves and like the rest was hauled aboard the lifeboat.

Wichita Man Hurt In Collision Improving

E. W. Smith, 1613 Kemp boulevard, who suffered severe bruises and cuts in the chest and side Thursday morning at 7 o'clock when his car collided with a street car in the 800 block on Ohio avenue, was reported to be resting well Thursday night by attendants at his home.

The injured man was taken to the Wichita General hospital by Fred Fountain, city officer who investigated the wreck, but was released late Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Smith had been going around a truck when he crashed into the street car, according to reports made at police headquarters by Fountain.

MORROW KEEPS MEXICO POST

Banker-Diplomat Will Not Succeed Kellogg

BELLE ISLE, MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 24. (US)—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow will continue his labors in Mexico after March 4, with the assurance that Herbert Hoover's secretary of state will be in full sympathy with his aims and policies.

Morrow will arrive back at his Mexico City post about Feb. 1, there to carry on until he has completed the task upon which his heart is set—the winning of complete harmony in Mexican-American relations.

Morrow will do this with the gratifying knowledge that the new administration regards this as the outstanding task in Mr. Hoover's program of bringing about a new era in the field of Latin-American diplomatic relations.

Morrow-Hoover Conference

For two hours this morning, the president-elect and the banker-diplomat sat behind closed doors at the Penney estate in one of the significant conferences since Mr. Hoover set about the task of shaping his administration.

So important did the president-elect regard the meeting that he instructed his fishing expedition to set sail early while he waited behind to continue his talk with Morrow uninterrupted. Later he motored to Key Largo bridge, about 50 miles distant, and then embarked in a motor launch which took him out to the yachts off the Florida keys.

Morrow declined to comment when the conference was over, but it was learned that Mr. Hoover's purpose to keep him at Mexico City fitted in completely with his own desires and ambition. It was learned also that Morrow achieved the chief purpose of the visit from his standpoint, which was the assurance that the secretary of state will give him a friendly hand in working out the delicate land law and petroleum differences with the Mexican government.

Fletcher Most Likely

With Morrow eliminated as a successor to Frank B. Kellogg, the most likely choice tonight appeared to be Henry P. Fletcher, at present envoy to Italy and a companion to the president-elect on his recent South American good-will tour.

Fletcher has a wide and varied diplomatic career, is a keen student of international affairs, and is believed to have a better acquaintance with Mr. Hoover's views on foreign problems than anyone else available for that purpose. That he enjoys the complete confidence of the president-elect is beyond doubt. The outcome of Morrow's visit strengthened the belief that Mr. Hoover has already determined upon his secretary of state, with surface appearances, at least, indicating that Fletcher is his choice.

Other likely appointees, however, are Governor General Henry L. Stimson of the Philippines and Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to Great Britain, who is said to have expressed his unwillingness to continue at the court of St. James.

TEXAN CITED FOR HEROISM

Carnegie Commission Has Made Recommendations

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 24. (AP)—The Carnegie hero fund commission in session here today, recognized 26 acts of heroism, awarding two silver and 24 bronze medals. Nine of the heroes lost their lives, and to the dependents of five pensions aggregating $3,660 were granted. In one case $1,600 was awarded for educational purposes. Other money awards included $9,600 for educational purposes and $7,000 for other worthy purposes.

Six of the heroic deeds were performed by girls and women.

One of those cited, Frank T. Johns of Portland, Ore., a candidate for president of the United States on the Socialist-Labor ticket, was drowned when he attempted to save a man who had fallen into a river at Bend, Ore., where Johns was making a campaign speech.

Texan Wins Medal

SHERMAN, Texas, Jan. 24. (AP)—Rev. George C. Brewer of Sherman today was cited for a bronze medal award by the Carnegie hero fund commission for saving three unidentified children from a rabid dog at Sherman on Jan. 22, 1926.

Rev. Mr. Brewer saw the dog snap a child, noted foam at its mouth and pursued it, but desisted when he saw a policeman also was in pursuit of it. Later he saw the dog in an alley approaching close to a street where three children were. Rev. Mr. Brewer motioned to the children to stay back. The dog sprang at him and struck him on the breast with both paws. He caught hold of its throat and it snapped his left wrist. With great difficulty he held the dog, which weighed 50 pounds, until a man arrived and shot it.

SHARKEY AND CHRISTNER READY FOR 10-ROUND FIGHT TONIGHT

JACK FAVORITE TO WIN BY 3-1

Many Experts Pick Bostonian to Score K. O.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (UP)—Jack Sharkey is the biggest drawing card left in the fighting game.

The Boston heavyweight has drawn more money, exclusive of two former heavyweight champions, Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, than any fighter that ever lived. In less than two years Sharkey has received $350,000 for his services. He was paid $211,000 for fighting Dempsey.

In six fights for the Madison Square Garden corporation the aggregate total approaches two million dollars.

Big Gate for Tonight

Fighting a comparative novice Friday night in Madison Square garden, Sharkey probably will draw one of the biggest gates of the winter season.

Although K. O. Christner has engaged in but 15 professional fights and was unheard of until he knocked out the highly overrated Knute Hansen, the Sharkey-Christner bout is expected to gross between $60,000 and $70,000 at $2 to $10 prices.

Sharkey's appeal is attributed by many to his unpopularity. It's a saying around fight circles that "they go to see Sharkey get his head knocked off." Few fight crowds ever turn down a chance to "boo" Sharkey when he steps into the ring.

Jack Drills Against Right

Both fighters completed training today. After boxing two rounds each with Italian Jack Herman and Paul Hoffman, German heavyweight, and going through his other routine exercises Sharkey weighed 192.

In his workout Sharkey paid particular attention to a defense for right-hand punches. It was Christner's right which finished Hansen.

Christner did no gymnasium work today, but confined himself to roadwork and calisthenics. He also weighed 192.

What little betting there is favors Sharkey at 3 to 1 and even money that Christner does not last 10 rounds.

Champs Ordered To Defend Titles

National Ring Board Tells Four Kings to Fight

CHICAGO, Jan. 24. (AP)—The National Boxing association, controlling the sport in 27 states, today ordered four champions to engage in a title contest against a logical contender within 60 days or surrender their titles.

Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion; Mickey Walker, middleweight ruler; Joe Dundee, welterweight title holder, and Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, were notified they must fight a title bout before March 21 or cease to be recognized by the N. B. A. as champion of the class.

None of the four has defended his title within the last six months period, the time allowed a champion between title bouts under N. B. A. rules.

TEXAS PIGSKIN HEADS PRAISED

Heisman Has Good Words For Bible and Bell

By JOHN W. HEISMAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (US)—A year ago at this time nearly a score of colleges had announced that there would be changes of importance in their coaching staffs for the football season of 1928. Some of these came about by reason of the coaches themselves voluntarily retiring from the game, or shifting the scene of their labors, while in other cases the college desired to make a change.

It will be recalled that Charles Bachman severed his connection with the Kansas Aggies and went to Florida, where he has done wonderfully well the past season. At Boston college, Joseph McKenny took over the reins and in his first year of coaching came through astoundingly well.

Billy Laval moved over from Furman to the University of South Carolina and his new bunch came through in fine style. Equally glorious was the record rolled up by Clemson under a new coach—Josh Cody, who had been handling the line at Vanderbilt prior to the season just closed. At Drexel institute Walter Halas proceeded to put the young Philadelphia institution on the map in his first year on the job, while Charles W. Caldwell Jr., the old Princeton star, no sooner sprang onto the Williams field than he began to make the fur fly right and left. Abell did well at Colgate in his first year.

Few Changes This Year

Thus the season just closed seemed to show that it is not always necessary that a coach should be in residence several years at a place before he can possibly hope to get results.

But while as a rule something like a score of colleges sign up new coaches in football each year the number of such changes announced for 1929 are surprisingly few. It seems settled that Arnold Horween will be back at Harvard at least one more year, and that Mal Stevens will tackle the job again at Yale. Seemingly, it has also been definitely settled that Knute Rockne will not leave Notre Dame for at least several years to come. Bert Ingwerson will probably remain at Iowa.

Changes thus far announced indicate that Ernest Bearg, who has been turning out good teams at Nebraska for several years, will journey to his alma mater, Washburn college, at Topeka, and there take over the duties of director of athletics.

Bible Successful

The vacancy at Nebraska will be filled by Dana X. Bible, who has been turning out tip-top teams at Texas A. & M. for over a dozen years, where he won five Southwestern conference championships in that length of time.

Bible learned his football at North Carolina and at Mississippi college, and he learned it well. He does not believe much in frills but his teams never come to a hard match without being thoroughly grounded in fundamentals. They will tackle, block, charge and smash with anybody. Bible seldom uses any formation save the modified punt and his plays from that are straight standard—but my, my! How hard his interference and the runner come.

On defense his teams are the same kind of "knock-down and drag-out," and, with the stalwarts they always have at Lincoln, I expect to hear of a lot of players on various teams getting knocked down and "drug out" next fall. But Bible is a "square shooter"—don't ever let anything else get into your head. I doubt if I ever met a better sportsman than he.

Bell's Record Good

Who's going to Texas A. & M. to fill Bible's shoes? None other than "Matty" Bell, who has, with worlds of efficiency, been guiding the destinies of the Texas Christian university at Fort Worth. Bell is an old Centre college player, and he is sound in his football both as to the individual and the team. He also largely uses the modified punt formation, but he seems to specialize on turning out strong defensive teams. He will undoubtedly give the Texas Aggies fine elevens.

Bell's line coach at Texas Christian was Ed Kubale, the old Centre forward. He, it is announced, will take charge of things at his alma mater. The old institution at Danville has not known so many halcyon football days since "Bo" McMillin won glory for himself and the Praying Colonels, but Kubale is a good man and perhaps he will be able to put them on their feet again.

Ban Johnson's Friend Is Dead

Henry Killilea Helped to Form American League

By BERT DEMBY

CHICAGO, Jan. 24. (UP)—When death took Henry Killilea yesterday, fighting Ban Johnson lost the kind of pal who sticks closest when the going is hardest.

Few men have enjoyed the type of friendship which existed between these two leaders of the baseball world and Killilea's death takes away the friend who stood by Johnson throughout years of fighting over American league affairs.

The friendship was tested first back in the days when Johnson was battling to establish another major league, to compete with the Nationals. Killilea joined with Johnsons, Charles Comiskey, Charley Somers and Matt Killilea and succeeded in founding the American league.

Owned Boston Club

Shortly after 1900, the American league put a club in Boston and Killilea was placed in charge. He won the world championship in 1903 and an American league pennant in 1904, but no world series was played that year.

Then the cry for home ownership went up in Boston and Killilea sold out to John I. Taylor of the Boston Globe.

It was then that he and Johnson became almost inseparable. Ban constantly was fighting, Killilea stood by, and it was his advice that Johnson valued most.

For years this arrangement went on with Killilea, who was a lawyer, sitting quietly behind the scenes advising Johnson in legal and other matters connected with various battles.

Forced Ban to Quit

When Johnson's last big fight (shortly before his retirement) came on, it was Killilea who realized first that Ban's health would not permit him to indulge in the battle. Johnson was game, and, refusing to bow before Judge Kenesaw Landis, prepared to make his hardest fight.

Killilea sought to save his friend's life by issuing an announcement pledging Johnson's retirement. It was plain that Johnson did not like this, but he finally realized that friend was right.

There are many who believe that Killilea added many years to Johnson's life by doing what he thought best for his friend.

Killilea acquired ownership of the Milwaukee club of the American association shortly after the death of Otto Borchart, former owner, and was in possession of this club when he died. The only baseball game Johnson saw last year was as a guest of Killilea in Milwaukee.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 24 (INS)—John Hertz left his sunbath on the beach of his ocean front home today long enough to confirm the withdrawal of Reigh Count from the Lincolnshire handicap in England.

"Reigh Count is not ready to run this early in the year," said Hertz. He said Reigh Count may be conditioned to enter the races later in the English turf season.

Tex's Cash Bid Caused Johnson To Accept Fight With Jeffries

Rickard Laid $101,000 "On Line," Jack Accepted—and Then Troubles of the Promoter Started

By JACK LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1929, by the New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—There is no doubt that Tex Rickard's greatest single handed undertaking was the making and promotion of the Jim Jeffries-Jack Johnson match, which took place in Reno, Nev., on July 4, 1910. There were circumstances connected with it that tried the stoutest fibers of the man. Those fibers didn't snap and he won out, but, as he expressed it himself, "It was a tough drill."

If Rickard, working by himself and on his own, had been able to grasp the slightest conception of the tumultous thing he was heading into he would never have attempted it. He has said as much to this writer.

The million dollar gate was still far off and undreamed of, but when those fistic extravaganzas came along they went off with automatic and businesslike precision compared with the dramatic hurly-burly that preceded the last great battle between a heavyweight whose skin was white and one whose skin was black.

Even the melodramatic background of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight in Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City seems, in retrospect, to be overshadowed by the vivid settings which circumstances had weaved about the battle of Reno. The Jersey City spectacle was put on by a great organization that was later to be known to the public as the Madison Square Garden corporation. It was handled with forthright precision and efficiency, and for that reason it lacked the wild color of the Reno adventure.

Every Man for Himself

When Tex Rickard, with his thin lips curled in and his gimlet eyes sparkling, went after the Jeffries-Johnson fight he worked without benefit of boxing commissions. There were other promoters in the race and it was each man for himself, and God help the other guy. The laws that governed boxing in those days were vague and subject to change without notice. All of which added to the violent color in which Tex Rickard was to produce his show of shows.

Was it intuition or a blind break in the luck that sent Tex Rickard to Jack Johnson's theater in which he was playing on that distant Saturday night when the promoter landed in Pittsburgh?

It was a lucky break for Tex. Jack was a childish, carefree kid, as he is to this day. As Kid Norfolk once said of him:

"He ain't got no sense, but he's sho' got music in 'at left hand."

Johnson had ring sense. Out of the ring he was almost anybody's fool, but in it he was the craftiest of magicians. He has been likened to Hans Wagner, the famous Pittsburgh shortstop, for his ability to cover ground without showing any speed.

Rickard found Johnson in his dressing room at the theater.

Jack greeted him with a wide grin that no fizt was ever able to dim.

Jack Wanted to See Coin

"Does I wanna fight?" he said. "Sho I wants to fight, but I cain't seem to get nobody to give me any real money fo' fightin'. Now if some guy should come along and say, 'Jack, here's a couple gran', fo yo'self if you'll stick 'at ol' left hand out, I'd say O. K. But it looks to me, Misto Rickard, like them guys ain' runnin' aroun' so frequent now days."

Tex Rickard dug a long, lean paw into his trouser pocket and brought out a golden roll of bills. Peeling off two one-thousand-dollar notes he laid them on the fighter's dressing table. On top of them he laid an equally crisp five-hundred-dollar bill.

That nearly stopped the show.

But even with all that money within easy reach Jack Johnson wouldn't come to any definite agreement. Tex and Johnson left that night for New York, and by the time they reached Jersey City the giant negro was signed and delivered.

On the journey from Pittsburgh to New York, Tex Rickard discovered that Jack Johnson wasn't so dumb. He found that Jack knew a lot about the negotiations that had been going on in connection with the proposed fight. Johnson told him that the bid scheduled to be accepted was an offer of $100,000, a staggering sum for a prize fight in those days.

Jack Not So Dumb

"Misto Rickard," said Johnson, "if yo' all take my advice and lay $101,000 on the line in cash it's mah guess you'll get 'at fight. But don' forget about the cash end of it."

With interest in the fight at fever heat, the bids of the various promoters were opened in Hoboken, N. J., professional pugilism being under the ban at that time in New York state.

There were so many bids that it took two hours to read them all.

Each bid was accompanied by a certified check with a lot of qualifying notations on the back. There was only one that had no check with it. That was Rickard's. It was a bid of $101,000 and the money was there in glistening yellowbacks.

Jack Johnson was there in person and when he saw all that brand new money laid on the line he made a remark that brought a laugh from the small army of newspaper men present.

"Them checks may be good an' all like that, but they don' look so good to this baby as all 'at cash!"

Tex Rickard was given the fight and his troubles began.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—We did not win the Durant prize for the best suggestion relative to the enforcing of prohibition.

Our sub-title on this mootful subject was:

"Stop Drinking."

Now, Mr. William Randolph Hearst also offers a prize of 25 grand for the most elastic solution on the same rubbery subject.

All we have to say that it is easier to break an amendment than a habit.

Prohibition is nine years old this month—to some people.

On other and less lawful calendars, the omelet ain't even an egg.

We have some ideas on the prohibition and we would like to state them. Even a hip inspector cannot arrest you for what you have in your hat.

Prohibition is nine years old.

It's a nice baby.

But it has no brothers or sisters.

And it has been brought up on the bottle.

It's a bottle baby.

It is a talking doll that can say, "mamma."

Which leaves papa out.

And when papa gets out, he is out for the night.

Starting at the source we discover that a grape has more horsepower than a watermelon.

Stop the berries from growing and the grain from sprouting and you reduce the mathematics of prohibition to simple gymnastics.

So long as there is a producer there will be a consumer. And you will find the wise guys in the middle.

You can hire a million legal hornets to sting the transgressor. But when you want a web spun across a tub you will have to engage the services of a spider. And America is a big vat.

There's another twenty-five thousand-dollar prize we have lost.

But we still claim the only answer to the thirsty question mark is the non-stop solution:

"Stop drinking."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

White Pulpy Gums

Question: I. J. K. asks: "Will you please tell me the cause of white pulpy gums? They bleed very easily, especially if washed in cold water. Is tincture of myrrh of any value in remedying this?"

Answer: Your trouble is caused from an over-acid stomach, which affects your gums by producing an acid mouth. You may also be suffering from "trench mouth," but this develops from an excess of acidity in the mouth where the mouth digestion should be alkaline. See your dentist about any local remedies to be applied to the gums, and change your diet to correct the real trouble.

Question: M. S. H. asks: "Will you kindly publish a list of non-mucus-forming foods? I have catarrh in the head and it has made me a bit hard of hearing in the left ear."

Answer: Fresh fruits and non-starchy vegetables can be truly considered non-mucus forming foods, while starches and proteins may, by their chemical action in the body, produce more catarrhal mucus. Those who have a tendency to catarrh should use only small amounts of starches and proteins, and also limited amounts of milk and cream.

Paralytic Stroke

Question: F. G. H. writes: "Four years ago I had a paralytic stroke which left my left eye almost blind. Is there any known remedy that will dissolve the clot?"

Answer: The surest remedy for dissolving a blood clot is to take a fairly long fast. During the fast the blood re-absorbs the deposited mass of coagulated blood, and the pressure of this clot is thus removed from the brain or spinal cord. This is the way paralysis can be cured. I have known of some cases getting well without fasting, where the blood was able to absorb the clot while the patient was on a restricted diet. There are no remedies which are effective—only fasting and diet.

Two Black Crows

MORAN AND MACK

Moran: Say, Big Boy, yo' is got to talk plainer.

Mack: Two bums in a haystack.

Moran: I didn't say louder. I said plainer. What's two bums in a haystack?

Mack: It could be me an' yo', but it ain't.

Moran: What is it? How is I goin' to cook if I don't know what it is?

Mack: It's two frankfurters on a pile of sour kraut.

Moran: Anything else?

Mack: Yes, a Farmer's Delight, well done.

Moran: What's a Farmer's Delight?

Mack: It's a club sandwich, Egghead.

Moran: Why does they call 'em a Farmer's Delight?

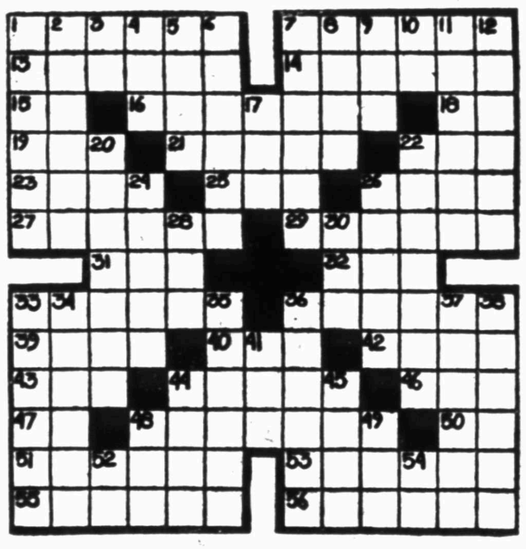

Mack: Because th' toothpicks tickle his ears.

Moran: Anything else? We sure is got a lot of customers today in this restawrant.

Mack: Yes, an' th' hospital's going to have a lot tomorrow.

Looks like the restaurant of The Two Black Crows is getting popular. They have had many customers, but Egghead hasn't heard the cash register ring yet. Big Boy keeps his money in his mouth and chews gum to keep it from jingling.

Dr. Fernando Laille, director of the laboratory for the agricultural department, said it was not an infrequent phenomenon and often occurred in the Rio Negro province, where winds pick up swarms of leeches and carry them for many miles.

CARTER FIRST TO CUT PRICE

22 Cent Reduction Here Is Result of Revision

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

A reduction in the posted price of Mid-continent crude oil, announced in a bulletin issued by the Carter Oil company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, effective at 7 a. m. Thursday, Jan. 24, 1929, was not a surprise to the majority of the district's operators and producers.

A survey during the past three weeks of the county's total production showed each week breaking records in the different fields throughout the United States. Last week production registered the highest since the inception of the petroleum industry when the daily average for the week ending Jan. 19 reached a total of 2,650,535 barrels, an increase over the previous week of approximately 50,000 barrels per day.

To Curtail Flush Pools

The decrease in the new schedule of the Carter company was interpreted as the first break for the specific purpose of reducing the output as far as the Seminole, Burbank and other Oklahoma pools are concerned, and to be a means of curtailing to a great extent the unnecessary development of these pools in the face of this excessive crude output, and hopes were held that the slash would not enter the Texas fields. However, the Humble Oil and Refining company from its headquarters in Wichita Falls announced that it had met the Carter company schedule, and it is expected the other major purchasing companies will fall in line during the next 24 hours.

The new schedule of prices begins with $1.08 for oil testing 32 degrees gravity and increases three cents per degree to a top quotation of $1.76 for crude testing 44 degrees gravity and above. Low grade oil received a big wallop. Oil testing 31 degrees is now worth $1.02 per barrel and the differential is six cents, oil below 25 gravity now bringing 66 cents per barrel.

22 Cent Cut Here

According to the new price, 39.9 to 40.9 gravity oil, which comprises the bulk of the Wichita district production, will receive a 22 cent cut, going from $1.51 to $1.29 a barrel.

Following is the new schedule for Mid-continent crude:

	New	Old
32.9	$1.08	$1.16
33.9	1.11	1.21
34.9	1.14	1.26
35.9	1.17	1.31
36.9	1.20	1.36
37.9	1.23	1.41
38.9	1.26	1.46
39.9	1.29	1.51
40.9	1.32	1.56
41.9	1.35	1.61
42.9	1.38	1.66
43.9	1.41	1.71
44.9	1.44	1.76

PANHANDLE OIL ON NEW BASIS

New prices in Carson and Hutchinson counties, Texas, range from 72 cents for under 32 gravity to $1.14 for 44 gravity and above. Wheeler county prices are 70 cents for under 30 gravity to $1.24 for 44 gravity and above. Gray county is listed 69 cents for under 29 gravity to $1.29 for 44 and above.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (AP)—A slight early advance on a continuation of the buying of yesterday afternoon was followed by declines in the cotton market under liquidation and some selling said to be partly for southern account. March contracts declined from 20.18c to 20.01c and closed at that figure. The general market closed easy at net declines of 4 to 10 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 9 points to a decline of 4 points. The old crop was relatively firm on overnight buying orders, apparently brought on by the firmer tone of yesterday's late market. Covering by January shorts and some buying attributed to price-fixing sent the price of that delivery up to 20.22c. The near-month firmness probably helped the tone of later deliveries. July sold up to 19.80c, making net advances of about 5 to 10 points on the old crop positions. The market met considerable southern selling and a renewal of realizing or liquidation at these prices. The volume of business tapered off after the early demand had been supplied. While fluctuations later were somewhat irregular, prices worked gradually lower, reaching the lowest levels of the day in late trading. January sold off to 20.05c and July to 19.65c, and while January closed a couple of points up from the lowest, final quotations were the lowest for the day on later deliveries.

No particular news factor was mentioned in connection with the decline from the early bulge. Perhaps the failure of demand to broaden more importantly on the rally from the low level of yesterday was a disappointment to recent buyers. The continent was credited with buying some cotton here, but the trade demand, which had been a factor of some importance in checking yesterday's decline below 20 cents, was less in evidence in today's trading.

Encouraging trade advices continued to come from the British goods markets. According to private advices, a fair though by no means active business was reported in the goods market here, but these factors apparently failed to make much impression on sentiment. Exports today, 28,-684 bales, making 5,472,804 so far this season. Port receipts, 25,425. United States port stocks, 2,260,262.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 24 (AP)—Final liquidation of the January position and general lack of sustaining support caused cotton prices to work lower here today after an early advance. The volume of business was moderate and resulted in narrow price fluctuations. March contracts after advancing to 19.50 eased off to 19.38 and closed at the latter figure compared with 19.44, yesterday's closing figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 6 to 8 points.

The opening was irregular with March showing an initial loss of 1 point. As New York opened higher later positions showed gains of 3 to 6 points on the call and prices continued to advance slightly after the start to 19.41 for January, 19.50 for March and 19.52 for May, or 5 to 6 points above the previous close.

At these prices the market encountered more or less liquidation of the January position which traders said was done with a view to tendering the cotton on the contracts and in the absence of support prices gradually worked lower during the remainder of the session. At times the market was stagnant.

New lows were made in final trading when January sold at 19.29, March 19.38 and May 19.39, or 12 to 13 points under the early highs. The close was at the bottom.

Increase in Loans Cause Worry And Heavier Stock Sales Result

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (US)—Heavier selling came into the stock market today inspired by worry over the increase in loans, which after the close was disclosed as $48,000,000 for the past week.

The gain in borrowings was about half the minimum estimate, although the total now represents a new peak at $5,443,000,000. Throughout the day there was a greater disposition to take profits, the few exceptions to the general trend being in the urgent demand and the show of substantial advances. The market closed irregularly lower.

Cash Register High

While most other recent favorites were in supply, National Cash Register continued its sensational upswing, rising 14 points net for the day to a record price. A powerful speculative group is sponsoring this issue on the expectation that the current year will prove a record-breaker for earnings. Mathieson Alkali proved another outstanding exception to the lower tendency, gaining more than 13 points. This company has large undisclosed earnings which have given rise to the expectation that a capital adjustment is near. Mathieson has been sought by other chemical enterprises.

Skelly Oil Gains

Skelly Oil has been accumulated by a powerful group identified with the leading automobile interests who recently obtained representation on its directorate. The company is one of the best-known independent enterprises in the oil industry and is understood to be showing substantial improvement in earnings. Estimate is made that the current year may result in income of more than $5 a share.

Gillette Safety Razor, one of the favorite investment issues of a leading group, had a sharp run-up. The yield of this stock is still attractively high compared with other similarly protected issues, while earnings are maintaining their steady increase.

Harvester Sets Record

International Harvester attained a new high. There are indications that this company may regain part of its foreign markets which proved so valuable in prewar periods.

International Combustion lost a point, but the leading factors in its affairs stockmarketwise are understood to maintain their optimism over its prospects, confident that 1929 will be the most profitable period in the company's history.

The majority of stocks, however, displayed an easier tendency, and while no precipitate breaks occurred, there were indications that the wild bullish enthusiasm had been materially subdued.

Steel Shares Off

Steel shares, including U. S. Steel and Bethlehem, were off on the average, although Youngstown was up several points. Bethlehem was well taken, however, in the knowledge that directors would vote a dividend at the meeting after the close, when a $4 rate was established and a favorable fourth-quarter statement issued.

Call money remained at 6 per cent and the weekly bank statements disclosed a further normal betterment in the general banking situation. New York Federal Reserve bank particularly showed improvement, its reserve ratio rising to 80 per cent, from 70.8 per cent a week ago, a gain of almost 10 per cent, and bringing the ratio within a point of its level this time a year ago, when it stood at 80.8 per cent. The entire system likewise showed betterment, the ratio for the ntire country rising to 69.3 per cent, or 2.3 per cent above a week ago, but below the 75 per cent at this time last year. Bill discountings of the system dropped $39,710,000 in the past week, but this was offset by a $36,309,000 decrease in the system's holdings of United States government securities, which now stand at $208,034,400, the lowest total in years. Maintenance of this improvement would remove all fear of a rise in rediscount rates.

TEXAS REVIEW

FORT WORTH, Jan. 24 (AP)—While trading was slow in the cattle division today, sales men held out during the morning session and such sales as made looked about steady. A few more cattle and calves yarded than on the same day last week, but hardly as many as on the corresponding day a year ago.

About a dozen loads of slaughter steers on hand, and while buyers inclined to take off a little, a few sales made at $9.10, $9.75 and $10.25, and looked about steady with the week decline. Most of the cattle offered of the low-costing kind.

One load of bulls sold at $8.10 or steady, common light bulls around $6.50.

The supply of cows contained more of the better kind than have been seen here either day this week and sales about steady. Carlots sold up to $8.50, several loads in the $7.00 notch and some in the $6.00 level. Canners and cutters sold at $4.50 to $5.75.

Nothing especially good in slaughter yearlings offered, but those that were here, of the fairly good kind, were slow in getting started to the scales and due to sell around $10.50 and $11.00.

The supply of calves was light and buyers for the packers, stocker buyers and order buyers took portions of them. Order buyers paid up to $11.25 for a load that averaged around 281 pounds; stocker calves sold at $10.60 and $11.50; packers paid up to $10.75 for load lots. These values about steady with the decline of yesterday. The cull calves sold mostly around $6.00.

The shee, supply consisted of one deck of feeder lambs that were unsold at the noon hour.

No early sales in the rail division of the hog section here today. Buyers asking more money than yesterday but buyers going slow. Few truck sales at about 10 cents higher than yesterday, sales up to $8.90 in the truck section. Northern markets erratic.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 24. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—An extremely erratic trade featured the hog market. Opening sales to shippers were from 25 to 60c higher, with the extreme top reaching $10.30 at St. Louis. Later trade, however, was very dull, with big packers refusing to follow the advance and final sales were made with most of the upturn erased and in extreme cases, closing sales were 10 to 25c under Wednesday's average. Total arrivals were 112,400 against 132,574 a week ago and 160,-764 a year ago.

Fed steers and yearlings found a better outlet than on recent dates and the limited supply sold at strong to 25c higher levels, as compared with the week's low time. Nothing strictly choice was offered and best yearlings went at $14.35, and desirable heavies at $14.25 on the Chicago market. All classes of she stock sold to a better advantage after limited receipts. The clear cold weather has curtailed country demand for stockers and feeders and trading was very narrow at the week-end. Receipts at the 11-markets totalled 20,550 as compared with 25,231 a week ago, and 29,695 a year ago.

Fat lamb prices were strong at Chicago while most of the river markets reported slightly lower levels. Choice fed lambs reached $17.40 to shippers at Chicago while desirable grades, Kansas City and Omaha, ranged from $16.35@16.60. Mature classes held steady at all points with best fat ewes selling from $9.50@10.50. Total offerings around the loop were 53,-000, an increase of 3,000 over a week ago and 2,000 more than a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 (AP)—Kansas and Nebraska reports of damage to winter wheat did much to bring about lively upturns at times in wheat values today. There was also renewed notice of prospective legislation asserted to be likely to advance all grain, but today's price bulges failed to hold up well against heavy profit-taking sales that developed.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, ⅜c to ⅝c net higher, with corn ⅞ to 1c to 1¼ up, oats showing ⅛c to ⅜c gain, and provisions varying from 20c setback to a rise of 7c.

According to reports at hand today, serious injury to Kansas wheat is believed by various experts to have resulted from ice coating which has covered many fields for days.

One conspicuous authority was quoted as saying that there is no question but what a great deal of Nebraska wheat has been badly damaged in the last week by excessive cold and by windstorms. Bears in wheat made most headway early, general selling being induced on account of announcement that world stocks of wheat had increased during December about 106,-000,000 bushels compared with about 53,-000,000 bushels increase for the corresponding time a year before.

Advices were current that exporters were buyers today of Winnipeg wheat future deliveries, although Argentine wheat exports for the week, 5,696,000 bushels, were the largest yet this season.

In the end, the corn market proved to be stronger than wheat, and held a good share of advances. There were corn export sales today of 250,000 bushels, the first export business acknowledged in some time. Rains in Argentina were regarded as insufficient, and country offerings of corn to Chicago were meager. Oats sympathized with corn, commission houses taking to the buying side on dips.

For the most part, provisions were higher, responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

Good Condition of Texas Business Is Shown in State Survey

DALLAS, Jan. 24—Increasing proof of the fact that Texas is in remarkably good condition in a business way is contained in investment reports of the Texas life insurance companies compiled for the month of December.

An unusually low percentage of the entire investments—22 per cent—is totaled by policy loans. These loans are a practically sure barometer of the general financial conditions around the state.

There is, of course, an unusual feature in this month's report, since the companies have purchased government securities up to 62 per cent of the entire total. Real estate loans take up the remainder of 16 per cent. This apparently would indicate a rather light demand for money for building purposes although this demand is always at its lowest ebb during December and January.

Analysis of the first mortgage loans shows South Texas, including Houston and San Antonio, accounts for 50 per cent of the total. North, West and East Texas, including Dallas and Fort Worth, account for the other 50 per cent, East Texas having a total of 25 per cent.

The strength of the Texas companies is borne out by the steadily increasing amounts of money available for investments in this state.

MYSTICISM IS PROBE THEME

Johnston Shown As Believer in Occult

urged him to "take care of" attorneys seeking action on the Crossthwaite pardon.

Road Head Testifies

R. L. Seaman, former secretary of the state highway commission, who had preceded Sullivan on the stand, testified that Mrs. Hammonds had requested him to order successful bidders on highway contracts to make their bonds with a company for which her uncle's law firm was acting as attorneys.

The private secretary said Mrs. Hammonds often perused official letters before Governor Johnston received or signed them.

"If Mrs. Hammonds did not approve of outgoing letters or replies, what did she do with them?"

"She took them out of the files and sometimes destroyed them," Sullivan said.

She Criticised

"Did you ever have any conversation with Mrs. Hammonds on the governor's capabilities on running this state?" Head pursued.

"She criticised him some," the secretary said.

"Didn't Mrs. Hammonds say that the governor was absolutely incompetent and if it wasn't for her the damn administration would go on the rocks?" Head asked.

"Yes, she made some such statement in the presence of several persons," Sullivan said. He named three others including Seaman, the former highway board secretary.

Sullivan said he went to Armstrong's home at the governor's request, to obtain the lawyer's opinion of a bill pending in the 1927 legislature. He said he found Armstrong in his bedroom.

"Did he do anything that excited your curiosity?" asked Head.

"Nothing particular. He just sat in a rocking chair and hummed."

"Describe his actions."

"Mr. Head you are going into personalities," Sullivan protested. "He just made a little humming noise."

Sullivan Hesitant

"Did Armstrong light any candles or burn any incense after getting up?"

Sullivan hesitated.

"Yes, he had some incense," he said.

"He had five or six pots of incense. He was lighting them when I came into his bedroom."

"Did he chant?" asked Head later in the testimony.

"What do you mean by chant?"

"Did he make any peculiar noises?"

"I think you are very unkind."

"Give us a sample of the humming."

The secretary, a matter-of-fact man who formerly was a deputy sheriff, fidgeted and remained silent.

"Was he humming a religious song?" Head persisted.

"He just sat and rubbed his nose and made a humming noise."

"Was that chanting such as to make you believe it was part of a ritual?" the chairman asked.

"It seemed to be."

Weeks Invites All to Opening

years. This dream is a practical farm school for men and boys and girls which will point the eyes of the agricultural world to Wichita Falls. This school would be practical and businesslike, and would give the students the benefit of those practical things which our 26 years experience proves are good business. Those in the school would eat food from the school gardens, and they would live a healthy life.

"Poultry raising will be one of the major projects of the small farms here. In California we experimented with big pens containing 1,000 birds, and with individual pens with no yard at all.

"An essential in poultry raising is the raising of green food. We have used alfalfa and clover."

Mr. Weeks told of the development of the Palo Alto and Owensmouth, Calif., projects from level, irrigated fields to their present perfection as prosperous communities of small farms that are paradises with good homes surrounded by gardens and green trees, and served by the best in churches and schools.

Among the developments mentioned by Mr. Weeks which are little know here was the solar system of heating water by means of glasses in the roof and the rays of the sunlight. He also explained the use of mulch paper for covering the garden after it has been prepared. This paper is laid out on the prepared land and seed is planted through holes in it.

Mr. Weeks introduced Mr. Yeths to the audience, and Mr. Yeths made a few remarks. He also emphasized Mr. Weeks' invitation to visit the farm.

Orville Bullington, president of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, announced that the annual banquet of the Archer City Chamber of Commerce had been postponed to Thursday, Jan. 31.

Raley's Figures on Unrendered Tax Rolls "Exaggerated," Says Howard

"For the benefit of the honest taxpayers of Wichita county I certainly hope that Guy C. Raley, county tax collector, will be successful in finding in his 'still hunt' the million and half dollars worth of property which he says he will have on the supplemental roll this year," Arthur C. Howard, former tax assessor, told a Record News reported in a statement Thursday.

The supplemental roll, Mr. Howard explained, is a matter which the legislature has made mandatory for the tax collector to prepare and file and upon which to collect taxes. According to Mr. Howard, every tax collector in the state of Texas makes out a supplemental tax roll each year.

"Referring to the supplemental rolls," Mr. Howard continued, "it is only fair and right that we should take Mr. Raley's own figures on the amounts appearing on his supplemental rolls and the amount of taxes be collected.

"The supplemental roll in 1927, Mr. Raley announces, amounted to $424,305 from which he collected $17,020.19 in taxes. The tax rate for 1927, state and county, was $1.47 a hundred. If Mr. Raley collected all the taxes on this amount he should have received $6,237.28, but nevertheless Mr. Raley says he collected in excess of this $10,782.91.

"In 1926, he states the supplemental roll contained $1,342,188. The tax rate was $1.45. The total tax on this amount would have been $19,461.72 and yet Mr. Raley collected $35,459.35 or an excess of $15,997.63.

"In 1925, a total of $1,004,046, Mr. Raley says he placed on the supplemental roll from which he collected $24,924.67 in taxes. But yet with the tax rate at $1.47 Mr. Raley should only have collected $14,759.47 or an excess of the amount allowed by law of $10,165.20.

"In other words, in three years time Mr. Raley, according to his own statement, collected $36,945.74 in excess of the amount of taxes which he was legally permitted to collect. Either he did this or else he was guilty of gross exaggeration in his statements.

"The school tax was not considered in the amount of taxes collectible because the county tax collector does not collect school taxes in independent districts and according to Mr. Raley the majority of the supplemental roll property is situated in the cities and towns. But even if he collected school taxes on all the supplemental roll property and taking for granted that it was $1 per hundred, the maximum school rate, Mr. Raley still collected a large amount in excess of what he was allowed to collect by law.

"I am sure that Mr. Raley would not collect money in his office illegally, so therefore his statements in the morning's paper must have been merely exaggerations for a purpose which he has not openly revealed."

"May Need Money," He Says

"Judging from this example, it may be that he has also exaggerated when he came to name the figure as to the amount of property which he would have on the supplemental roll this year after his 'still hunt.'

"I am hoping that Mr. Raley will not only find a million and a half dollars worth of property to put on that supplemental roll of his but that instead he will be able to uncover twice that amount or $3,000,000 so that on the basis of the tax rate this year he will bring into the county's treasurey a total of some $40,000 to take care of the several hundred thousand dollars worth of property which without authority he struck off the tax rolls during his tenure of office and also to pay off that $31,000 which he is asking from Wichita county in his threatened suit."

WALTON BANQUET

'Two Jims' Add Canadian Geese to Menu For Dinner Tonight

Jim King and Jim Robinson, official nimrods of the Izaak Walton league of Wichita Falls, have added a good supply of Canadian geese for the league's banquet Friday night at the Woman's Forum. "The Two Jims" have become famous among Walton league members for their ability to bring in the Canadian geese.

Fish from the three lakes in this area will also be served at the banquet, as well as duck and geese. The banquet will start at 7 o'clock, according to announcement of Ben G. Oneal, president. Five reels of movies of scenes in Alaska will be shown after the dinner.

HOSPITAL IN GOOD SHAPE

Officials Praise Institution After Inspection

The Wichita General hospital is in better condition and is more adequately stocked than it has been in years, in the opinion of John P. Marrs, county judge, who inspected the institution Thursday afternoon with H. L. Hunter, secretary and treasurer of the hospital board.

Judge Marrs said 100 new blankets had recently been added to the hospital's supply and that all equipment had been renewed and increased to meet growing needs. More than 80 patients are being easily accommodated at the present time, the judge said.

Needs of the institution are few and not immediately urgent, Judge Marrs explained, although his attention had been called to a need for a larger sterilizer for the surgical instruments.

Shakespearean Play Tonight

Friday night will se the presentation of the first of Fritz Leiber's three Shakespearean plays in the Memorial auditorium. It is "Hamlet."

Saturday afternoon "The Merchant of Venice" will be given and Saturd v night "Macbeth" will be on the boards.

No other play of Shakespeare's offers so many complex and interesting problems as "Hamlet," according to Encyclopedio Americana.

Robbery Charge Filed Against Negress Here

Charges of robbery by force were filed Thursday afternoon against Amy Mitchell, negress, after McKinley Gay, another negro, told Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, that $4.50 had been taken from him at the point of a knife on the night of Jan. 18.

The alleged hijacking took place along the railroad tracks when a woman jumped from behind a box car and drew a four-inch blade, Gay told officials. When the point moved a few inches away from his ribs, he took to his heels, the complainant explained. Amy Mitchell denied all the charges brought against her, alleging that she spent that Sunday evening at home playing "whist."

Services For Mrs. Robertson

Funeral services for Mrs. Millie Robertson, 2613 Baltimore street, who died Thursday morning in a local hospital, will be conducted from the First Church of Christ at 10 o'clock Friday morning by Rev. L. S. White, pastor. The body will be forwarded to Saloma cemetery near Bowie for burial Friday at noon by the Merkle Undertaking company.

Active pallbearers were announced as follows: O. G. Stephens, M. L. Stephens, E. R. Short, B. J. McHam, O. C. Blanton and Dean Hudgens.

Mrs. Roberton is survived by her husband, J. W. Roberston; one son, D. D. Roberton, of Wichita Falls; one daughter, Mrs. Blanche Sandefur, of Wichita Falls; two grandchildren; three brothers, Dr. J. W. Duncan of Jordan, Harvey Duncan of Wellington and LeRoy Duncan of Bowie; and four sisters, Mrs. Dora Cameron of Wichita Falls; Mrs. Alice Sheets of Sunset, Mrs. Sophie Hall of Sunset, and Mrs. Molly Dixon of Randlett, Okla.

BRUNER GIVEN 10-YEAR TERM

Auto Theft Charge Brings Heavy Penalty Here

The heaviest sentence imposed during the present term of court fell to Collie Bruner Thursday afternoon when a jury in the 30th district court gave him 10 years in the penitentiary for the theft of an automobile. The indictment against Bruner alleged a second offense, and Sam Spence, district attorney, asked the full limit of the law. Bruner pleaded not guilty and testified that he had bought the car, which belonged to A. H. Fell, from a man in Vernon.

Jack and Marvin Smith, sentenced to five years Wednesday for burglary of a private home in Electra, were again brought before a jury on a second indictment bearing the same charges. Another five year sentence, to run concurrently with the first, was imposed.

The first acquittal of the term came late Thursday afternoon when a jury found M. C. Duvall not guilty of the possession of whisky for sale. Testimony was introduced by the defense counsel in an attempt to show that Duvall is not sane and was not responsible for his acts.

Friday the state will call E. C. Fowler, negro, indicted for assault with intent to kill in connection with the shooting of another negro on Christmas eve night.

A book full of dictation, and she must go home; what can she tell her employer? One more girl who hasn't heard of Midol. In misery at least one day of every month, and a tiny tablet now banishes such pain in five to seven minutes! Not a narcotic, mind; nothing that has the slightest effect on the natural process of menstruation. Midol acts directly on the organs themselves, and avoids the painful part—the part that is not natural. You may have tried other things for relief at such a time, but ask about Midol; purse-size aluminum case is fifty cents.*

* Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women

Which of These Men Do YOU Feel Like?

—After Eating

Are you one of those fortunate people who can partake of a hearty or even moderate meal without some after-feeling of distress or do you have to avoid certain foods because they disagree with you?

Do you have that hard, uncomfortable feeling in your stomach, or a miserable, tired or sleepy feeling after eating?

A spoonful of Gordon's (formerly Gordon's Antiseptic) after meals, will, in a few days, make it possible for you to eat what you like and as much as you want without any after-feeling of discomfort. You will notice a difference after the first dose. Try it and see.

Gordon's stops fermentation (souring of food matter). It exercises an antiseptic as well as digestive effect, dissolves the excess acid, absorbs the gas that is present, and prevents more forming. It soothes and heals the irritated or inflamed condition of the stomach—the delicate membrane lining—made raw by acid.

It will bring quick relief in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, gas, bloating, sour stomach, heartburn, excess acid, "that tired feeling," bad breath, sick headache, nervousness, when caused by faulty digestion, tone up the digestive organs and stimulate the stomach and bowels to their normal functions.

Gordon's is made in liquid form. A large 8-ounce bottle, price $1.50 —less than three cents a dose. At druggists.

Three Killed In Airplane Crash

zee, in Fort Worth. Besides his brother here, he is survived by another brother, Glenn Frazee, and two sisters, Mrs. T. E. Roddy and Mrs. Cecil, all of Fort Worth.

C. C. Frazee received the announcement of his brother's death Thursday evening and left at once for Fort Worth where the funeral will be held. He said he knew his brother had planned the flight to San Angelo, but knew no details.

PLANE SISTER SHIP OF SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS

FORT WORTH, Jan. 24 (AP)—Three persons killed in an airplane crash at San Angelo today were well known here. W. E. (Chick) Shytles was manager of the Majestic theeater here. Don Frazee, former fullback and baseball player at Texas Christian university, was a former amateur boxer and an outfielder for the Shreveport Texas league team. Al Henley was an aviator who attempted several endurance flights last year and was one of the entrants in the Dole race to Honolulu.

The plane, piloted by Henley, left here at 3:30 p. m. The three men went in advance of an aerocade of eight planes that was to take off Friday morning for San Angelo to aid in celebrating opening of the municipal airport at that city. The aerocade trip has been cancelled. The airplane, sister ship to Lindbergh's famous plane, was owned by the Texon Oil and Land company.

WOMAN PARACHUTE JUMPER IS KILLED

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 24. (US)—Furnishing thrills for motion picture patrons ended in death today for Leta Wishart, who plunged 2,000 feet to earth when her parachute failed to open after she leaped from an airplane.

Mrs. Wishart and her husband, Floyd Bowman, made a simultaneous jump from the plane during the making of a Hoot Gibson picture at a ranch 15 miles from here. Wind carried Wishart into a tree, and he received a sprined ankle and bruises.

The girl struggled with the parachute to the last in an effort to make it open. She was instantly killed.

HENLEY WON FAME IN DOLE FLIGHT

OAKLAND AIRPORT, Cal., Jan. 24 (UP)—Al Henley, who was killed in an airplane accident at San Angelo, Texas, today, became one of the most noted pilots of the nation when he came here in 1927 for the Dole flight to Honolulu and displayed exceptional skill during preparatory flights.

Henley, with Bennett Griffin, were in the plane "Oklahoma" when it led six other planes at the start of that epochal flight and would have been an outstanding favorite to win the race if a melted cylinder block had not forced him to return more than an hour later.

Griffin and Henley were first to qualify for the race and consequently drew the pole position at the start. They were followed by the "El Encanto," of Kenneth Hawkins and Norman Goddard, which cracked up on the runway, thus giving the Oklahoma at least a 15-minute advantage over the nearest competitor. Art Goebel, in a plane exactly like Henley's, won the event.

During the week of preparatory flights here Henley gained a reputation of making the most perfect take-offs and landings. He was the eleventh of the entrants in the Dole flight to be killed by an airplane accident.

10 Per Cent Penalty On City Taxes Feb. 1

Next Friday it will cost 10 per cent more to pay city taxes than it will this Friday, according to an announcement made Thursday by W. R. Hyer, city tax collector.

Under the law, the last day of January is the last day in which 1928 city taxes may be paid as current taxes. After that time they go on the delinquent rolls with a 10 per cent penalty, Mr. Hyer said.

Helped at Change of Life

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine at the Change of Life. I would get blue spells and just walk the floor. I was nervous, could not sleep at night, and was not able to do my work. I know if it had not been for your medicine I would have been in bed most of this time and had a big doctor's bill. If women would only take your medicine they would be better."—Mrs. Anna Weaver, R. F. D. No. 2, Rose Hill, Iowa.
