Snow storm causes death in Panhandle

Associated Press

A winter storm whirled into the Panhandle and South Plains Friday, dumping snow, sleet and ice and causing one death, authorities said.

Kathy Martinez, 24, of Fort Hood, died at about 7:45 a.m. Friday when her car went out of control on an ice-slick road and overturned about 2 miles east of Slaton, said Department of Public Safety spokesman Avis Goodwin.

He said a passenger, Ronald Martinez, also 24, was in serious condition at Lubbock General Hospital.

Goodwin said there were several other minor accidents in the Lubbock area Friday.

Up to 4 inches of snow blanketed the Amarillo area and an additional 3 to four inches of snow was forecast Friday. A winter storm warning was in effect for much of the Panhandle through Saturday.

Temperatures were not expected to climb higher than the mid-teens today, NWS officials said.

Cities throughout the Panhandle registered snowfall from the storm.

DPS troopers at Paducah in the southeastern corner of the area reported icy roads but no snow late Friday.

At Plainview, Hale county sheriff's deputies said light snow was falling there late Friday and icy area roads had caused numerous traffic accidents.

Bailey County sheriff's deputies said no snow was falling late Friday but area roads were ice-covered after light snow fell there Friday afternoon.

At Hereford, Deaf Smith County officials said about 1 inch of snow covered the ground there, but no snow was falling late Friday.

In Amarillo, police and emergency personnel were kept scrambling as motorists bumped and bounced off each other on the city's slick streets, but with no major injuries.

More than 100 accidents were reported inside the city limits by 6 p.m., none serious.

Midlanders can expect snow today

From Staff Reports

Midlanders should awake to falling flakes today with the National Weather Service predicting an 80 percent chance of snow with accumulations from 2 to 4 inches.

Travelers' advisories posted Friday will continue through today with icy roads expected.

Law enforcement personnel were kept busy throughout Friday night with dozens of minor accidents caused by slick roads.

The snowstorm dumped about 10 inches throughout the northwest section of New Mexico before moving into West Texas, said weather service spokesman Eddie Brite.

The storm will probably bypass the Panhandle, but hit Lubbock and all areas south, Brite said.

The snow was expected to start falling by midnight Friday, but the heavy snowfall will not begin until daylight hours, Brite said.

White to rejoin Houston law firm

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Outgoing Gov. Mark White will rejoin the Houston law firm of Reynolds, Allen & Cook as a partner when his term in office ends at noon Tuesday, the governor said Friday.

"I look forward to assuming a role that's more powerful than all the rest, and that is being a private citizen in the state of Texas," White said at what was probably his last Capitol news conference before Gov.-elect Bill Clements begins his four-year term.

"This is the firm that I had known and gained respect for back before I joined it and then having had an opportunity to work with them, I'm very proud to rejoin them," White said. "I think they're an outstanding firm and they're well respected throughout the city and the state and nation as well."

The firm — which will be renamed Reynolds, White, Allen & Cook — has offices in Austin, and White said he and his family will remain here until his three children complete the school year.

White said he had "more than a half dozen" offers from "people not just here in Texas but throughout the country and very generous offers from very diverse groups of people — law firms and businesses" and accepted the Reynolds, Allen job because "it would be the best opportunity and would give me an opportunity to regain old friends."

White earned $91,600 a year as governor, but he would not disclose his salary with the law firm. "I don't know exactly what it'll be, but by the time Linda Gale gets through buying the furniture, I'm sure it won't be enough," he quipped.

Painter: TDC closure shouldn't affect Midland 'right now'

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN — The Texas prison system quit accepting new inmates Friday after it hit its legal cap of 95 percent capacity, but the closing will not affect Midland county this weekend, said Sheriff Gary Painter.

"It's not going to affect us right now. In about two to three weeks when we get several criminal cases, it's going to hurt," Painter said.

Midland County has one prisoner sentenced to the Texas Department of Corrections among its 77 inmates.

On Monday a TDC bus, which comes through the county once a month, picked up seven Huntsville-bound inmates, Painter said.

If more than five prisoners are sentenced to TDC within the next several weeks, the county's jail space will be strained, Painter said.

"If it reaches around five it will start being a burden on us," he said.

But prison officials said they will work over the weekend processing parole certicates so TDC will have vacancies by Monday morning. TDC will not accept new inmates today or Sunday and has sent advisories to the state's 254 sheriffs notifying them that the system is full for the next two days.

"We hope to be open for business after the weekend," said prison spokesman David Nunnellee.

The Texas Department of Corrections hit 95 percent capacity after Dallas and Tarrant counties transferred a large number of prisoners Thursday, coupled with TDC's usual influx of inmates at the end of the week. Also, many rural counties rushed to get convicts to Huntsville before the anticipated shutdown.

Currently, the TDC population stands at 38,414 — 95.09 percent capacity — or 35 prisoners more than the legal limit.

The Board of Pardons and Paroles has accelerated the paperwork on many inmates eligible for release, sending 117 parole certificates to Huntsville Friday morning and another batch Friday afternoon. But Nunnelee said TDC has to review all parole certificates to make sure an error was not made.

The board is reviewing the cases of some inmates who are eligible for parole but who were turned down by the board in previous hearings, said board spokesman Mike Roach. "Besides that, we've expedited the releases about all we can," he said.

Part of the settlement in the long-running inmate lawsuit against TDC requires the system not to exceed 95 percent capacity so TDC can properly segregate prisoners and for safety reasons. The TDC board agreed Monday not to allow the system to exceed 95 percent, partly to avoid the risk of members being personally liable for violating U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's orders.

Attorney General Jim Mattox and others, noting that 80 percent of inmates are doing time for non-violent crimes, said allowing some of those non-violent inmates to move to local restitution centers or to be released early could ease the pressure on TDC. Mattox also complained that the various state agencies in the criminal justice system lack coordination.

United Bank donates $25,000 to UTPB

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

A financial institution's $25,000 grant to the University of Texas of the Permian Basin may be the catalyst other West Texans need to support future diversification of the area economy, its chairman and chief executive officer said Friday.

A gift of United Bank, the $25,000 grant to the UTPB Center for Energy and Economic Diversification was made in response to a challenge by the Cy Wagner Jr. and Jack E. Brown families of Midland, who last month donated $1 million in matching funds to the center.

United Bank Chairman and CEO Wayne Merritt said the bank's board of directors believe the center will play a vital part in building and diversifying the Permian Basin economy.

"Times are tough, but we are proud to make this investment in our future," Merritt said. "We hope that others will join us in financially supporting this project, which has the potential of becoming the rallying point for West Texans to foster research in developing diversified jobs in this market."

The grant brings to $2 million the amount of donations currently pledged toward construction of the center, UTPB President Dr. Duane Leach said.

Leach said there have been a number of responses to the Wagner and Brown challenge by other area businesses. He added that those donations will be announced in the near future.

"We're extremely pleased and gratified by the support of the bank. We want to thank them for their expression of confidence," Leach said.

TDHS reverses decision on Medicaid payment plan

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Testimony by a Midland Memorial Hospital financial officer Thursday helped reverse a September Texas Department of Human Services decision to reimburse hospitals that treat Medicaid patients using what many termed an inequitable scale.

Jim Kendrick, MMH chief financial officer, said the testimony he and about 14 other hospital representatives gave before a TDHS audience in Austin convinced Commissioner Marlin Johnston and TDHS board members the system was no good.

"We convinced them that there was not an equitable prospective payment system in existence.

"There were two payment methods (available for use), neither of which were equitable...but we convinced them to go with the one that had the least amount of inequities in it," Kendrick said.

The center of the controversy hinged on the inclusion of a new prospective payment plan the THDS wanted to use when reimbursing the estimated 500 Texas hospitals that provide health care for Medicaid patients.

The new prospective payment plan had been in existence since Sept. 1. It separated state hospitals into three peer groups — teaching hospitals, children's hospitals and all other hospitals.

Bunton: Hammond received fair trial despite alleged misconduct

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A former Ector County commissioner and convicted arson conspirator was not denied a fair trial despite misconduct by federal prosecutors, the U.S. district judge who presided over the conviction wrote in an opinion released Friday.

Judge Lucius Bunton determined that prosecutorial "misconduct did occur" in the federal government's effort to persuade the wife of former Ector County Commissioner Willie Hammond to testify in his 1985 arson trial in El Paso.

Nonetheless, the "misconduct, though reprehensible, did not deprive Mr. Hammond of a fair trial," the judge said.

The alleged misconduct by the FBI and prosecutors concerned the government's dealing with Hammond's wife, Helen, whom the government had subpoenaed as a witness, but did not called to the stand.

Bunton said that Mrs. Hammond was "indeed a pawn" and that she "was afraid that anything she might say in the courtroom might be incriminating and used against her.

Employees' fund short of money

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The state's worker compensation fund is running dry and will need a $12 million emergency cash infusion by early February to make it through the end of the fiscal year, Attorney General Jim Mattox said Friday.

"The primary reason is that last year when they were trying to balance the budget, the Legislature didn't put enough money into the fund," Mattox said. "We asked them for the money and we told them that they need to put more money in, they just didn't put more money in last time."

Jack Hightower, first assistant attorney general, said Mattox will ask the Legislature for an emergency appropriation later this month, but that the state's pending $6 billion deficit means Comptroller Bob Bullock probably would be unable to certify that the Treasury can pay the bill. "There's not $12 million over in the comptroller's office," Hightower said.

If Bullock cannot approve the bill, Hightower and the comptroller's office said, Mattox will have to find a way to transfer the funds from some other state account to keep the program solvent through Aug. 31.

Without the new money, the state will be unable to meet its legal obligations to cover the medical costs and lost salaries of state workers hurt on the job. "These people are all injured state employees, and 99 percent of this is used to buy groceries," Hightower said.

As of Friday, said Greg Gregory, assistant director of the attorney general's workers compensation division, the fund's balance was about $1.1 million. Gregory estimated that money would last through the end of the first week in February.

In 1985, Mattox asked lawmakers for $39.7 million to finance the program. The Legislature appropriated $28.8 million.

"Funding for payment of workers compensation claims during the biennium must be sufficient to cover projected new claims and for claims carried over from prior years," Mattox's office wrote in that 1985 budget request. "A level of funding which pays claims for only a portion of the year is not viable."

Gregory said even his office underestimated the need by about $1 million. In fiscal 1986, Gregory said, the fund closed 6,020 claims at an average cost of $3,228 per claim.

Mattox said growing medical expenses caused part of the shortfall. "But there's also an increase in average weekly wage and the increase in compensation rates is tied to the average weekly wage," he said.

The fund covers 126,000 state employees, all but those who work for the Department of Highways and Public Transportation and the University of Texas and Texas A&M Systems, which run their own funds. Officials from UT, A&M and the highway department said their funds will remain solvent through the end of the fiscal year.

Mattox said the state's "self insurance" system of allocating money to pay the medical bills and lost salaries — even with the extra appropriation — will save the state $71 million over the 1986-1987 budget period, when compared to the cost of buying outside workers comp insurance.

"The fund is actually a very good buy for the public," Mattox said. "We are going to spend about $39 million during the course of two years. To price that on the marketplace, it would cost about $55 million per year or $110 million for the same package."

Mattox's office spends about $1 million per year to administer the fund. "The administrative cost, if we bought it in the marketplace, would be about $8 million," he said.

Principal wants students to go to Bible class

HOUSTON (AP) — A school principal is urging parents of children at his school to send the students to Bible classes he plans to conduct beginning today.

Principal W.B. Johnson says the Bible classes will improve classroom behavior. But members of the teachers' union and the Houston chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union say Johnson is using his office to promote a religious cause.

Johnson, principal of Fleming Middle School in the Houston Independent School District, said in a memo, written on school stationery and sent to parents via their children, that the classes are one answer to the school's discipline problems.

"I have probed the causes of student behavior and misbehavior," the principal wrote in a Jan. 7 letter to parents. He said the classes would offer "some means for establishing good classroom atmosphere, thereby decreasing the probability of future discipline problems."

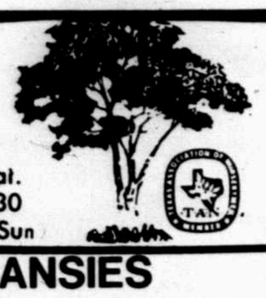

Some teachers at the school, with an enrollment of about 1,000, complained about the plan.

One teacher, who requested anonymity, said, "He called students into the auditorium last week and told them they need to come to this thing on Saturday."

The educator said discipline problems at Fleming have increased recently, and said Johnson in many cases is not following district policy, which allows troublemakers to be sent to student referral centers.

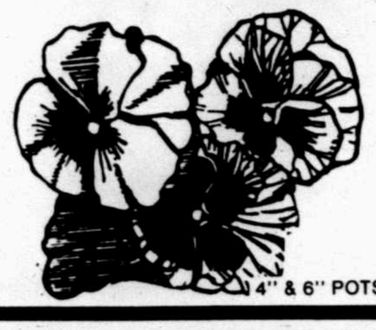

Gayle Fallon, president of the Houston Federation of Teachers, blasted Johnson's plan.

"It is just a blatant violation of church and state," Ms. Fallon said.

Crane residents to vote on splitting jobs

CRANE (AP) — The tax assessor-collector of Crane County says he won't mind if voters decide this weekend to take the job away from him.

Raymond Weatherby is also Crane County's sheriff.

County residents will vote today on whether to split the two jobs. State law requires the jobs be combined in counties with populations of less than 10,000. The jobs may be split by a voter referendum.

"I want the duties split — the job is not that big a burden, but it's two different jobs altogether," Weatherby said.

Under current Texas law, the combined offices can be split by special referendum.

Weatherby said state tax laws change every two years, and with each change he has to go to school to learn what effect those changes will have. And the cost for that, he said, falls on the shoulders of Crane County taxpayers. The county spends more than $3,000 every five years for schools and recertification, which consumes about 142 hours of training and tests, he said.

Although he is responsible for the tax office, Weatherby has a staff of three that handles the daily operation. Anytime he goes to school, so does his staff.

Weatherby, who has spent 30 years as the county's sheriff and tax assessor-collector, said he also must attend schools covering the administration of the sheriff's department and jail standards. Running a department with a 10-person staff is a full-time job in itself, he said.

"Tax laws have gotten stricter and more specialized for tax assessors since 1982," Weatherby said.

Weatherby said he wants the referendum to pass so he can turn his energies to law enforcement.

Balls, concert part of inaugural entertainment

AUSTIN (AP) — The thousands of Texans expected to kick up their heels Monday and Tuesday for the inauguration of Gov.-elect Bill Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby will have plenty to keep them entertained.

The 1987 Inaugural Committee said Friday celebrants will be able to choose between art exhibits and symphonic concerts to foot-stomping, shirt-sleeve dances and black-tie formal balls.

Clements and Hobby, accompanied by their wives, promised to visit all of the events.

Admissions will range from free to $75 per person.

The celebrations are financed by private and corporate contributions and admissions charged, with no taxpayer money used, except for the covered stand for Tuesday's swearing-in ceremony.

The whooping and hollering begins Monday night, before the inauguration, with "A Salute to Texas Arts" at the University of Texas Performing Arts Center. The public will be able to view for free an exhibit of Texas paintings and sculpture and attend a concert featuring mezzo-soprano Barbara Conrad, concert pianist James Dick and the Austin symphony orchestra. State District Judge Roy Barrera Jr. of San Antonio will be the master of ceremonies.

At 2:30 p.m., Clements and Hobby will lead an inaugural parade down Congress Avenue.

Tuesday at 8 p.m. the inaugural dancing begins at four different sites in Austin.

Clements' and Hobby's families will lead their first grand march at 9 p.m. at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, one of three formal balls in downtown Austin. About 1,000 persons are expected to pay $75 each to dance at each ball.

BUNTON

In addition, Bunton said that the government was fearful Mrs. Hammond would not "back up" FBI agents' accounts of their "character and demeanor" toward the former commissioner's wife.

The prosecution also was fearful that Mrs. Hammond would tell the court she was an unwilling witness against her husband, the judge wrote.

Hammond, 45, was twice tried in the arson case. His first trial in Midland ended in a hung jury.

He is appealing his 1985 conviction in El Paso for perjury and conspiracy to commit arson in the 1981 burning of the O'Michael Building in Odessa. Hammond received a six-month sentence and a $10,000 fine after that trial. He also was placed on probation for five years.

At the same time, Bunton sentenced former Odessa City Councilman Keith Weddel to a five-year probated sentence and a $20,000 fine.

Bunton wrote the Friday opinion at the request of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, which is considering the case and ultimately will determine if a new trial will be ordered.

Bunton's decision on the alleged misconduct came out of a Dec. 29 and 30 hearing in Midland Federal Court.

Bunton addressed the alleged misconduct:

Ellen Byers, chief counsel in Hammond's first trial, had advised Mrs. Hammond that "she did not have to testify" but was convinced that Mrs. Hammond would "be a willing witness for the government," Bunton wrote.

"If Mrs. Hammond was advised that she did not have to testify against her husband, she did not understand it this way," Bunton wrote.

Bunton also noted that Ms. Byers "caused considerable delay during the trial" by not having furnished the defense with FBI summaries of interviews.

"...She is a most zealous prosecutor," Bunton said, "and perhaps her zeal to be able to place a defendant's wife on the stand led her to gloss over the law in explaining Mrs. Hammond's options to her."

Bunton said co-prosecutor Tom McHugh of El Paso had reminded Mrs. Hammond that she was not "committed to testify," which, said Bunton, "is a far cry from advising her of her right as a spouse not to testify in a criminal proceeding."

Other hearing witnesses which Bunton reviewed for his opinion included:

— Arthur Allison, a former Odessa policeman, who initially was contacted by Mrs. Hammond.

— Jim W. Dotson, Odessa policeman, who was present at an interview with Mrs. Hammond.

— Sgt. Terry Tyree, Odessa policeman, who, "in all likelihood," directed Mrs. Hammond to the FBI.

— Ed Stroz, FBI special agent, who gave "no warning" and mentioned no rights to Mrs. Hammond during an FBI interview.

— Tom Farris, FBI special agent, whom the court found to be the "most credible," tried to explain to Mrs. Hammond that she was "not in custody" as a witness.

— Mark Vukelvich, FBI special agent who "baby sat" the two Hammond children while Mrs. Hammond was taken to the courthouse in El Paso.

— Chip Burrus, FBI special agent who "made no effort to warn Mrs. Hammond of her rights not to testify against her husband."

— Scott Crabtree, FBI special agent who "did not warn" Mrs. Hammond of any rights that she might have had in the initial interview.

— Willie Hammond, whose testimony "added nothing to the proceeding."

— Warren Burnett, Hammond's defense attorney.

In considering "What to do?" on the alleged misconduct issue, Bunton said that "Unfortunately for Mr. Hammond, the die was cast" when Mrs. Hammond initially contacted the Odessa Police Department. That step "ultimately" led to the FBI interviewing Mrs. Hammond.

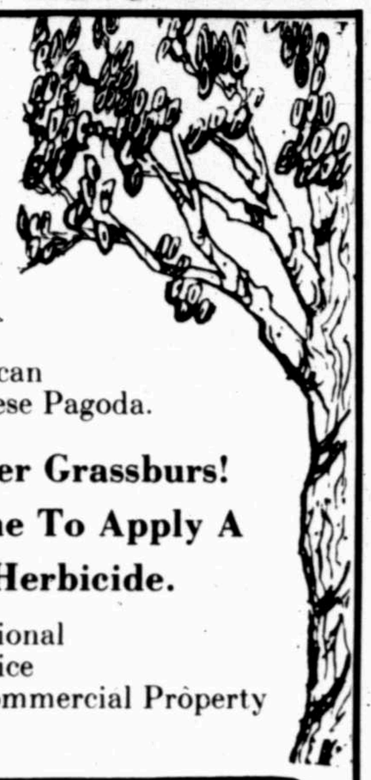

Bunton said that it was "obvious" in the El Paso trial that Mrs. Hammond "was not going to be a willing witness for anyone and desired not to testify."

Asked his reaction to Bunton's opinion, Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Blankinship, who co-prosecuted Hammond in El Paso, said, "I respectfully disagree with some of the conclusions."

Ron Butler, FBI special agent in charge of the Midland office, declined to comment on Bunton's opinion and mandate.

STORM

Near Vega, a teen-age boy was critically injured at 7:15 a.m. Friday when a pickup truck carrying four people overturned seven miles inside the Texas state line on Interstate 40.

Two young brothers, their names and ages unavailable, were transported to Northwest Texas Hospital where a nursing supervisor listed one in critical condition and the other in good condition.

Two other occupants were not reported injured.

Also Friday, two trucks overturned on U.S. Highway 287 one mile north of the Canadian River bridge, a Department of Public spokesman said.

No injuries were reported.

At Perryton, Ochiltree County officials said at least 6 inches of snow covered the ground and light snowfall continued to fall late Friday.

Canadian had extremely hazardous driving conditions Friday, Hemphill County sheriff's dispatcher Sue Brandvic said.

"We had drizzle and ice ahead of the snow," she said, "so we had black ice and then snow on top of that. I don't know how much (snow), the way it blew around — probably an inch or so. Right now it's snowing straight down."

Borger had more than an inch of snow, Sgt. Guy Rowh of the Hutchinson County Sheriff's Department said. Pampa had less than an inch of snow, said Sue Matthew, secretary to the Gray County sheriff.

Shamrock had about 2 inches of snow at daybreak, Wheeler County Sheriff's Department dispatcher Carol Kidd said. She said roads were icy and snow-packed.

At International Airport in Amarillo, Herb Sellers, air traffic manager at the Federal Aviation Administration tower, said runways looked good despite the snow.

"They're plowed 200 feet wide, and there's about a half inch of packed snow and six foot piles along each side," he explained. "There is no problem with landing or departure."

Cross-country buses were reported running behind schedules, but experiencing no severe problems.

"From the west they're running about six hours late," Trailways operations manager James Worden said. "From the east toward Dallas, about 45 minutes late."

He said the major weather problems buses were encountering were around Flagstaff, Ariz., and the bad conditions stretched to the east to around Childress.

Ward County deputies unable to serve warrants

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Ward County Sheriff's deputies were unable to serve arrest warrants Friday to a hospitalized 58-year-old man indicted in connection with a Monahans shooting spree that injured three policmen and a bystander.

W.D. Smith was undergoing exploratory surgery Friday when deputies attempted to serve the documents, according to 143rd Judicial District Attorney Jack McGowen and a Medical Center Hospital spokeswoman.

Smith Friday night remained in stable but critical condition in the Odessa hospital's intensive care unit, the spokeswoman said.

Five Ward County indictments charged Smith with two counts of deadly assualt on a police officer and three counts of aggravated assualt with a deadly weapon, a county deputy district clerk said Friday.

The Ward County grand jury set bond at a total of $450,000, the deputy clerk said.

"They (Ward County lawmen) had to turn around and go home," said McGowen of Friday's attempt. "We'll have to go back — maybe sometime next week."

McGowen said prosecutors will need a doctor's permission to talk to Smith. "We're not going to go in and cause a serious death just to get papers served," he said.

McGowan said that Smith, if convicted could face a sentence of five to 99 years and up to a $10,000 fine on each of the deadly assualt on a police officer charges. The aggravated assault charges could bring bring from two to 20 years and a maximum $5,000, he said.

Smith received gunshot wounds to his back and abdomen last week after holing up for more than six hours in his west Monahans mobile home.

TDHS

The plan computed more or less an across-the-board amount each hospital would receive depending on its peer group average Medicaid costs.

Historically, each hospital had been reimbursed on a retrospective payment plan which arrived at a reimbursement figure based on its own costs in treating Medicaid patients.

After the hearing Thursday, Kendrick said the TDHS agreed to hire consultants and develop a "budget neutral" system of Medicaid reimbursement.

In addition, the TDHS agreed to revert to a reimbursement system developed by the Texas Hospital Association. Kendrick said the THA plan possesses inequities as well, but actually will produce a small net gain for MMH.

"They will shelve the old payment system by April 1 and the new THA system will go into effect," Kendrick said.

"They made a decision to begin now recruiting consultants to develop a new system with a finish target date of September 1987," he said.

Robbery suspect bail denied

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

U.S. Magistrate Darrell F. Smith denied bail Friday to Shelby David Shifflett, who was indicted in December for the armed robbery of a San Antonio-area savings and loan and has been linked to two other such robberies in Odessa.

The 36-year-old Maryland man is being held in the federal unit of Midland City Jail on charges that he held up a savings institution in the San Antonio suburb of Helotes.

Federal Bureau of Investigation warrants name Shifflett as a suspect in two recent robberies of Odessa savings institutions.

In a hearing Friday, Smith determined that Shifflett was a flight risk and was a danger to the community.

The government alleged that Shifflett has previous convictions in Maryland, Florida and Kentucky.

On Dec. 3 Shifflett was indicted in San Antonio for the Nov. 17 armed robbery of the San Antonio Savings Association in Helotes. The FBI said that $7,000 was taken in that robbery.

In addition, Shifflett is suspected of holding up two financial institutions in Odessa on Dec. 19 and again on Jan. 9, according to FBI warrants. In those robberies, $1,186 was taken in the holdup of the Odessa Savings Association on Dec. 19, and $3,900 was taken in the robbery of the Andrews Savings Association on Jan. 9.

The FBI had traced Shifflett to Odessa after a Bandera County woman, Charlotte Brown, told lawmen that Shifflett had telephoned her from Odessa on Tuesday.

No indictments have been returned in connection with the Odessa armed robberies.

DEATHS

Virgil Utley

Services for Virgil H. Utley of Midland will be at 3:30 p.m. today in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel.

The Rev. Frank Johnson and the Rev. Bill Skaggs of Kelview Heights Baptist Church will officiate.

Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Pallbearers are John Murphy, Les Dunlap, Bill Weldon, Gayland Strickland, Charlie Palmer and Dale Smith.

Jose Vizcaino

Jose Vizcaino, 66, of Midland died Thursday at a Del Rio hospital following a lengthy illness.

Services were to be today at 1 p.m. at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church with the Rev. Domingo Estrada officiating. Burial was to be at Fairview Cemetery.

Vizcaino, married to Luisa Chacon for 40 years, had been a Midland resident since 1978.

Survivors include his wife; four sons, Joe Vizcaino of Odessa, Demas Vizcaino, Tony Vizcaino and Reyes Vizcaino, all of Midland; six daughters, Norma Vizcaino, Elizabeth Vizcaino, Alicia Soto and Julia Yharte, all of Midland, Dominga Alonzo and Dora Perches, both of Mexico; and 27 grandchildren.

Pallbearers were to be Umberto Soto, Gilberto Yharte, Joe Vizcaino, Demas Vizcaino, Tony Vizcaino, and Reyes Vizcaino.

Leach estimated the total cost of the center would reach the $4.6 million mark, with construction scheduled to begin this spring.

"We hope to break ground late this spring. It's gifts like that of United Bank that make it possible," Leach said.

The 30,000-square-foot center is planned for construction on a site located at the intersection of State Highway 191 and FM 1788 north of Midland Regional Airport. The land was donated by the Scharbauer family of Midland.

Leach said the center will partner private industry's capital and entrepreneurial skills with the university's access to resources and knowledge of existing research across the country.

It will focus new marketing and manufacturing opportunities on existing industry, plus act as a clearing house to attract other industry, he added.

WHITE

The governor said he expects to practice primarily civil law with the 68-lawyer firm and has no plans to lobby in Austin or in Washington. "A lot of laws have changed in those last 14 years and I hope that I will help them with those changes that have occurred and I'm going to work hard to try to make certain that we bring respect and occasionally maybe even a little revenue," he said.

The 1986 Martindale-Hubbel Law Directory says the firm has a "general civil trial and appellate practice in state and federal courts." The directory lists White's legal ability and general recommendation ratings — based on confidential recommendations from local lawyers and judges — as "very high."

The directory says that rating means White "embraces faithful adherence to ethical standards; professional reliability and diligence; and other relevant factors."

White joined the firm as an associate in 1968 and left as a partner in 1972 to become Gov. Dolph Briscoe's secretary of state. He returned to the firm for about a year before winning the 1978 race for attorney general.

"We are very fortunate to have Mark White rejoin our firm," said Joe Reynolds, founding partner. "We didn't think it would take almost 15 years before we could get him back. But we welcome him and know he will make a great contribution to the future of our firm."

"It's just one of those rare opportunities that we as a law firm welcomed," said senior partner Stan Binion. "Mark will be a tremendous addition to our law firm."

Asked how he plans to spend his last day in office Tuesday, White said, "I'm going to say goodbye and wish the succeeding governor best wishes."

Anti-abortion rally scheduled

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — An anti-abortion rally and march will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Ector County Courthouse in Odessa.

According to a press release, the rally is being held in memory "of the millions of babies who have been killed since abortion was legalized by the Supreme Court decision, Roe vs. Wade, in 1973."

Sunday's rally will feature speeches by West Texans for Life President Russ Austin and WTFL member Steve Schauder.

Many area churches are expected to participate in the area-wide event.

For additional information, call 683-1330 or 367-1760.

TDC

"There's nothing that coordinates in any way how many people are going to be processed through the system from the courts, through probabation, through the penitentiary or the parole process," Mattox said. "And until there is some coordination of the system, we are not likely to solve our (prison) population problem. It's just not going to happen.

"We simply got to make a decision as citizens of this state whether we want to continue to send the number of people we are sending to the penitentiary, or whether we're going to run them out faster, or whether we going to spend a massive amount of new monies on construction."

Sen. Bob McFarland, who this week became chairman of the Senate Criminal Justice Committee, said lawmakers have several alternatives in handling prison overcrowding. The Legislature could authorize TDC or the Board of Pardons and Paroles to release many non-violent prisoners or could find other housing — which must be approved by Justice — for the overflow of inmates, said McFarland, R-Arlington.

TDC also could try leasing space from county and city jails, McFarland said, but he noted that many jails face the same overcrowding problems as TDC.

"It's all merely a stopgap," McFarland said. "You're just moving a guy from the Hilton to the Sheraton. But eventually the Sheraton will be overbooked and he has to stay somewhere else."

McFarland — like incoming Gov. Bill Clements, Lt. Gov Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis and most legislative leaders — said the ultimate solution is more money for prison construction.

Mexico to cut oil exports

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico said Friday it will cut oil exports to help maintain higher world oil prices, becoming the second non-OPEC nation to do so this week.

Members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed on production cuts last month.

Energy and Mines Minister Alfredo del Mazo said Mexico's reduction would be 30,000 barrels a day from its current daily export level of 1.35 million barrels.

He said Mexico also would consider returning to fixed prices, instead of negotiating rates with importers at the end of each month as the practice has been since January 1986.

Del Mazo made the announcements after two days of talks with Oil Minister Arturo Hernandez Grisanti of Venezuala, which belongs to OPEC.

IRS seizes girl's account because father owes taxes

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has agreed to return the life savings of a 10-year-old girl — $694 — it had seized for non-payment of back taxes by her father.

Kevin Burns said IRS officials gave him documents saying the money would be returned after he showed them his daughter's passbook, which showed a series of small deposits and no withdrawals.

Burns' daughter, Shannon, said she still was upset about having her savings seized.

"I didn't like it," she said. "It was insulting."

The girl said she had earned the money or had received it in gifts.

"I got it from collecting cans, from doing my homework," she said. "I got it for Christmas. I got some from my dad and some from my grandmother and some from my great-grandparents."

Burns had contacted the news media after receiving a letter from the IRS saying it had seized the account at a Sunnyvale savings and loan. Burns admitted he has owed the IRS more than $1,000 since 1983.

"It's my problem, not her problem," he said Friday.

IRS officials said they were glad to clear up the matter.

"These things happen," said spokesman Chip Maurer. "It was triggered because his Social Security number was on the account"

Burns said he put his Social Security number and name on the account along with Shannon's because she is a minor

Justices say award 'warranted'

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A $2.5 million award to a tourist raped in her Las Vegas hotel room may be warranted because the club put profits ahead of guests' safety, Nevada Supreme Court justices said Friday.

A formal ruling will be issued later, but most justices said during arguments on the Stardust's appeal of the award that the resort clearly failed to meet its responsibilities in the 1982 attack.

The victim, from Chicago, was raped, sodomized, robbed and left tied up by a man waiting in her locked room when she returned to pick up show tickets.

The punitive damage award of $2.5 million was made in 1985 but has not been paid pending outcome of the Supreme Court appeal. The victim received $750,000 in compensatory damages.

Justice John Mowbray said it was an "outrage" that management at the Stardust, which has changed since the attack, failed to completely change room locks since 1957. He said many master keys were "floating around," phony security monitors were in place, and hundreds of unauthorized entries into rooms had been reported.

FDA panel recommends approval of AIDS drug

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — A government advisory committee recommended approval Friday of what would be the first drug generally available to doctors for treatment of AIDS.

The 10-1 vote by the Food and Drug Administration committee is not binding on the FDA, which will make the final decision, but is expected to carry heavy weight.

The panel, acting at the end of a day-long meeting to consider the drug AZT, voted to recommend general availability despite serious concern about a lack of as much clinical data as usually precedes drug approvals as well as concern that there would be no iron-clad way to ensure that it would go to the patients most in need once available for general prescription.

The drug manufacturer outlined a procedure for voluntary constraints if the FDA approves AZT and promised to work closely to continue monitoring its effect.

If the FDA continues the expedited handling it has accorded AZT up to now, it is conceivable the drug could be on the market in a month or so.

David Barry, vice president for research for Burroughs Wellcome Co., told the committee during a day of technical presentation that the drug will be available only in limited quantities, even if the FDA grants the company's request that it be approved for general availability.

He said the company shares government concern that AZT, or azidothymidine, might be administered to patients who might not benefit from it once available to physicians to prescribe as they see fit.

Moreover, he said, there is a shortage of the drug, which is derived from the sperm of herring, that would prompt the company to try to restrict it to those most in need, even if it receives FDA approval.

Ellen Cooper of th FDA's division of anti-infective drug products expressed concern at the start of Friday's proceeding that "expected widespread prescribing" of AZT potentially might be more worrisome than judging the drug's safety and effectiveness in the controlled clinical use made of it so far.

But Barry said the Research Triangle Park, N.C., company "clearly understands" that it would be unwise to have large numbers of less-ill patients receiving AZT — because of possible side effects and because widespread use might deny AZT to those most in need.

For those reasons, he said, Burroughs Wellcome would set up a special procedure whereby any physicians who wanted to prescribe AZT would send a statement to a company evaluating committee that would document the need for a patient to receive AZT.

Barry said the company would accept the physician's word that the patient met the criteria for patients most in need of the medicine and the patient would be assigned a secret number that would be supplied to a designated pharmacy in his area. The drug store then would be supplied with only enough of AZT to meet the needs of those approved patients.

However, both Barry and Cooper acknowledged in interviews after the meeting that they were not aware of any such informal restrictions placed on other drug distribution and that there is no government mechanism to enforce them.

Barry further acknowledged that the company might open itself up to suits from irate AIDS sufferers denied the drug, but that such procedures seemed the "most reasonable thing to do" given shortgages of the drug and its lack of demonstrated safety for some patients.

In data made public for the first time Friday, Burroughs Wellcome reported that 3,247 AIDS patients have been given AZT under special approval given by the FDA. The agency granted the special approval for wider use on Sept. 30 after positive results in clinical trials led to an early end to the tests so those AIDS patients in a control group could also start receiving the drug.

The figure reported by Burroughs Wellcome is by far the largest number of people ever to be taking a single AIDS drug.

Of the 3,247 AIDS patients given the drug, 97 have died. But Barry said it was significant that all but 21 of those deaths occurred within the first three weeks after they started getting AZT, suggesting that the drug may not have had time to work.

Eight of the 145 people who have been taking the drug since the start of earlier clinical trials have died, compared with 32 of the 137 who were being given a placebo until the clinical trial was ended prematurely in September and the AZT made available to all of those participating.

AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is an affliction in which the body's immune system becomes unable to resist disease. There is no known cure.

☐AN UNBORN EAGLE ☐AN UNBORN CHILD
If you chose the unborn child, sorry, you're wrong at least according to the laws in this country. You see, the penalty for taking or destroying an eagle's egg is $5,000.00 and a year in jail, but the penalty for taking an unborn child's life is nothing in fact, people get paid a lot of money for doing it.
Does something seem wrong to you? It is. Get in touch with us and we'll let you know how you can help to protect the unborn babies in this country. Let's take our children off the endangered list.
If you or someone you know is facing an unwanted pregnancy, we'd like to help. Your child has tremendous value and there are many alternatives to abortion. We are here for you and your child.

Paratroopers abduct president of Ecuador, want ex-general freed

Febres Cordero

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Paratroop commandos kidnapped President Leon Febres Cordero on Friday and demanded the release of a jailed former air force commander who led a military rebellion last year.

The paratroopers surrounded Febres Cordero and Defense Minister Medardo Salazar during a ceremony at an air force base, briefly battled with presidential bodyguards and took the two men prisoner.

Radio reports said up to four people were killed in the firefight and an unspecified number of presidential guards and three journalists also were captured.

From his captivity inside the Taura air base near the port city of Guayaquil, Febres Cordero spoke with Radio Quito by telephone. He said both he and Salazar were uninjured.

He also said: "I have given orders to the military commands, sent through the defense minister by telephone to the Defense Ministry, that all military mobilization should be halted."

Febres Cordero was allowed the telephone connection with Radio Quito after the leader of the insurrection, Col. Patricio Gonzalez, announced that the sole demand of the president's kidnappers was the release of former air force commander Gen. Frank Vargas Pazos, who staged an unsuccessful rebellion against Febres Cordero last March.

A government communique distributed by the Press Secretariat said that "except for the attitude of a reduced group" there was no other activity in the country challenging the established constitutional order.

"The executive branch, as well as the legislative and judicial branches and the institutions of the state maintain the firm decision to support the country's democratic system," it said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said the United States "deplored" the insurrection and supported democracy in Ecuador.

Radio Quito said Vice President Blasco Penaherrera met in emergency session with the armed forces high command at the Defense Ministry.

Guayaquil, the country's largest city and main port, is 170 miles southwest of Quito, the capital.

Febres Cordero, a 55-year-old conservative, is one of the Reagan administration's staunchest allies in South America.

President of the Congress Andres Vallejo and Supreme Court President German Carrion issued a statement "in light of the situation" declaring their unconditional support for the rule of law.

Vargas Pazos is being held at an army base in the jungle east of Quito awaiting trial on charges stemming from his rebellion. Some radio reports said the Epiclachima base where he is being held was surrounded by troops.

A reporter for Channel 10 television, Maria del Carmen de Aguayo, told viewers she witnessed the paratroopers' assault and the president's capture.

She said that shortly before the ceremony at Taura began, the elite forces surrounded Febres Cordero and Salazar. The reporter said shots were exchanged and three people "apparently" were killed and several others wounded.

She said Febres Cordero and the defense minister were forced onto a bus and taken to a chapel inside the base.

Radio reports said that four people were killed and four others wounded in the firefight and that the journalists and some presidential guards were being held at the chapel.

Radio Guayaquil said there was no indication of unusual military activity inside or around the Taura base.

The Palace of Government in Quito, the capital, was closed and guards outside were dresssed in combat gear. But there was no movement of military vehicles in Quito or any unusual display of military presence.

A crowd gathered in a plaza in front of the palace after the first reports of Febres Cordero's abduction but was dispersed by police. Some shops and businesses in the center of Quito closed early.

Febres Cordero, an engineer by profession and leader of the center-right Social Christian Party, began his four-year term in August 1984 after winning elections three months earlier.

Vargas Pazos last March demanded the firing of the then-defense minister and the army commander, whom he accused of corruption. Febres Cordero sided with the two men and dismissed Vargas Pazos, who seized an air force base on the coast. When dismissed, Vargas Pazos was also chief of the Joint Forces Command.

After several days of talks he surrendered, but then rebelled, with the support of about 200 officers and troops at the Quito air base where he was being held. Vargas Pazos, who is described as charismatic and popular with his troops, charged that Febres Cordero had gone back on his word to try the defense minister and the army commander.

The president sent army troops and tanks into the base and retook it after a brief fight in which several soldiers were killed.

In September, Febres Cordero vetoed a congressional measure that would have granted amnesty to Vargas Pazos.

Vargas Pazos' rebellion was the most serious threat to the government since civilian rule returned to Ecuador in 1979 following seven years of military dictatorship.

Febres Cordero has emphasized private enterprise and pursued free market policies. He is one of the few Latin American leaders who has been outspoken in his backing for Washington's support for Nicaraguan rebels.

The governments of Spain and Venezuela issued statements condemning the mutiny.

SNOW

Highs in the upper 20s are expected today, but northeast winds blowing at about 10 to 20 mph will produce a wind chill temperature of around 9 degrees, Brite said.

The chance for snow will increase to 90 percent tonight with heavy snowfall continuing and producing additional accumulations of 2 to 4 inches.

The low tonight will be around 20 degrees.

Sunday will continue to be cloudy with a 30 percent chance of snow and an additional accumulation of 1 inch.

Highs Sunday will be in the upper 20s.

The record high of 79 degrees set in 1971 was 44 degrees warmer than Friday's high of 35 degrees.

The record low of 14 degrees was 8 degrees cooler than the overnight low of 22 degrees.

NATION

An intense storm system over northeastern Arizona Friday brought heavy snow, gusty winds and cold to the nation's heartland and West, while cool, wet weather stretched across the Southeast into northern Florida and Louisiana.

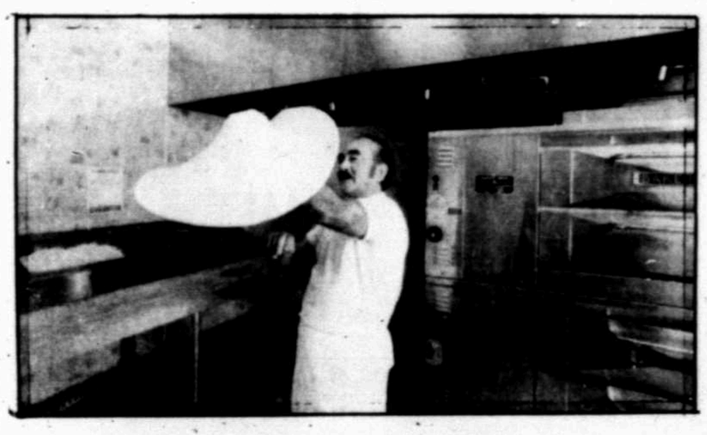

Five feet of snow piled up in the foothills of southern Colorado by Friday afternoon. Snow was measured at 61 inches south of Rye, 24 inches fell at Westcliff and 8 inches of snow was on the ground in Denver.

Heavy snow also fell overnight across portions of southern Utah and northern Arizona. Happy Jack, Ariz., measured 20 inches of new snow while Monticello, Utah, had 12 inches on the ground. Flagstaff, Ariz., picked up at least 8 inches of new snow. Snow also fell briefly Friday morning at Tucson, Ariz.

Winter storm warnings were posted for the Oklahoma and Texas Panhandles and the mountains of central and northern New Mexico, southern Colorado and central Arizona. Travelers' advisories were in effect for western Missouri, the northwestern half of Oklahoma, northwestern and southwestern Texas, eastern New Mexico, southern Utah and the mountains of eastern and northern Arizona.

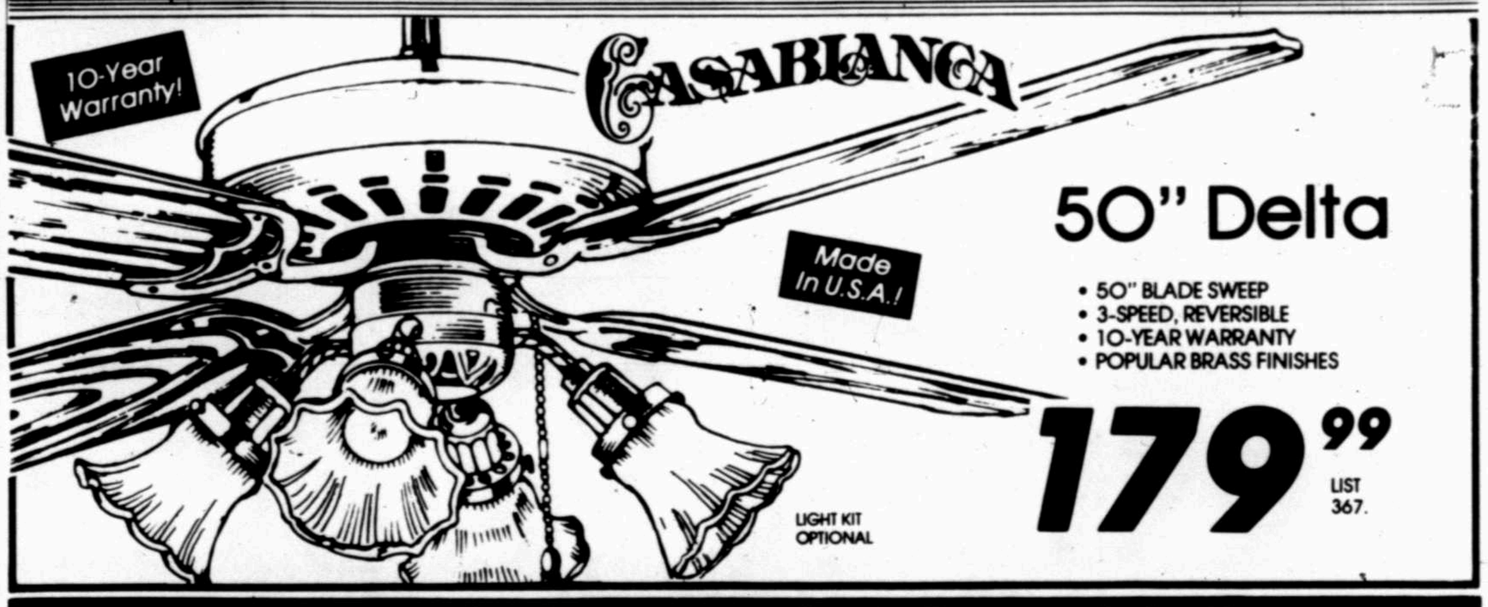

Frost and overnight freeze warnings were posted for the Arizona deserts and portions of southern California. Temperatures were expected to drop into the 20s.

Today's forecast called for snow at times from northern Missouri across Kansas, northern Oklahoma, eastern Colorado, the northern Texas Panhandle and northern New Mexico into northeastern Arizona. Freezing rain and sleet were expected from southern portions of Indiana and Illinois across southeastern Missouri, northwestern Arkansas and southeastern Oklahoma into northwestern Texas.

North stars slight choice over Shula-led South

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A South squad, led by the Don Shula family, meets the North Saturday in the 38th Senior Bowl football game.

Shula, coach of the Miami Dolphins, will have one son playing quarterback for the South, Mike, and another son, David, a Miami assistant, coaching the quarterbacks and receivers.

"It's really a family affair," the elder Shula said. "It's a new experience for me to be coaching Mike."

Mike Shula, who set a career record at Alabama with 35 touchdown passes, will open at quarterback for the South. He will be backed up by Cody Carlson of Baylor.

Shula passed for 1,486 yards and 13 touchdowns during the 1986 season and Carlson threw for 2,084 yards and 10 TDs.

The North is a slight favorite to trim the South's 18-16-3 lead in this annual game that lures coaches and scouts from the NFL and Canadian Football League.

Michigan's Jim Harbaugh, a second-team All-American, and Oregon's Chris Miller, the most valuable player in last week's Hula Bowl, will share quarterback duties for the North, coached by John Robinson and his Los Angeles Rams' staff.

A crowd of 40,000 is expected at Ladd Memorial Stadium. The forecast calls for a 70 percent chance of rain during the game, which will be televised by the Mizlou and USA networks.

Senior Bowl

Harbaugh passed for 2,729 yards and 10 touchdowns in his senior year and Miller threw for 2,503 yards and 12 scores.

Both teams will be without key players lost to injuries — All-American tailback Brent Fullwood of Auburn for the South and Southern California defensive back Lou Brock Jr., son of the former St. Louis Cardinals baseball star, for the North.

Fullwood missed last week's Japan Bowl because of a pulled hamstring, which hasn't responded to treatment. Brock has a shoulder injury.

Besides Fullwood, the South had three other 1986 All-Americans — linebacker Cornelius Bennett of Alabama, tackle Danny Villa of Arizona State and center Ben Tamburello of Auburn.

Shula decided to start Mike's Alabama teammate, Wes Neighbors, over Tamburello.

With Fullwood sidelined, the only 1,000-yard rusher in the game will be the South's Christian Okoye of Azusa Pacific.

Okoye, born in Nigeria, never had seen a football before arriving at the California college on a track scholarship. He rushed for 1,680 yards in 1986, ranking No. 1 in the nation for NAIA schools.

The North features Oklahoma's Spencer Tillman (519 yards rushing) and Tim Manoa (546 yards) of national champion Penn State at running back.

Washington's Lonzell Hill (43 catches for 721 yards) and Syracuse's Scott Schwedes (41 for 544) will open at the receiving positions for the North, and Southern Mississippi's Lyneal Alston (22-463) and Alabama's Al Bell (26-315) will start for the South.

Linebackers Bennett, Mike Junkin of Duke and Johnny Holland of Texas A&M head the South defense, and Washington end Reggie Rogers and Penn State linebacker Bob White, a down lineman in his college career, lead the North defense.

Sport Briefs

Angered Ditka still may quit Chicago Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Ditka threatened to resign as coach of the Chicago Bears last week and still may leave the team he led to the Super Bowl championship last year. When Ditka first heard that Jerry Vainisi, his close friend, was being let go, he tried to talk club President Mike McCaskey out of it and threatened to quit. He hinted to friends he will will not work for McCaskey beyond the 1987 season, when his contract expires.

Brian Hewitt, who covers the Bears for the Chicago Sun-Times, wrote "it may be only a matter of time" before Ditka goes. Hewitt quoted a source close to the Bears as saying "Vainisi was the glue that held this organization together ... Had Mike Ditka left, Jerry Vainisi would have left."

Riley named coach

NEW YORK — The Lakers Pat Riley will coach the NBA West all-stars for the fifth time in the last six years Feb 8.

Riley clinched the assignment when the Lakers beat the Golden State Warriors 129-109 Thursday, assuring Los Angeles of having the best record in the conference through Jan. 25, the cut-off for determining the All-Star coaches.

The East coaching job still is undecided, with the leading candidates being K.C. Jones of Boston, Mike Fratello of Atlanta and Chuck Daly of Detroit.

Wake coach quits

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Al Groh resigned Friday as Wake Forest football coach, marking the fourth coaching change in the Atlantic Coast Conference in the past two months.

"This is not a decision I like or feel comfortable with," Groh said. "However, extended conversations between our administration and myself have been fruitless toward developing a common ground of agreement on the future direction of Wake Forest and my role in it.

Wake Forest had a 5-6 record, including 2-5 in the ACC last season.

War continues

DETROIT — The war of words between Detroit Tigers pitcher Jack Morris and club GM Bill Lajoie continued Friday even though the star right-hander has agreed to let an arbitrator determine his 1987 salary. Morris, 21-8 last season, received the 1986 Tiger of the Year award at the annual dinner of the Detroit chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Morris, upon accepting the award, jabbed at the Tigers for failing to re-sign All-Star catcher Lance Parrish.

Mustangs outgun Steers 102-88 to set up showdown

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING — Andrews and Big Spring ended up in a high-scoring District 2-4A affair here Friday night with the Mustangs pulling away for a 102-88 victory.

The win improves Andrews record to 19-3 on the year and 7-0 in league play, setting up a showdown of unbeatens Tuesday when the Mustangs travel to Lamesa for a 6 p.m. junior varsity and 7:30 p.m. varsity encounter. The winner will own sole possession of 2-4A first place.

It's a big game and one that has some carry-over from last year.

"They beat us in a pair of one-pointers last year," said Andrews' Allen Richey.

The loss dropped Big Spring to 13-9 overall and 5-2 in loop action.

The shootout started in the first quarter when the Steers took a 23-21 lead only to lose it by halftime, 48-41.

The Mustangs added one point to their lead after three quarters of play, 72-64 and another six in the fourth for the 14-point margin of victory.

In all, nine players broke into double figures, five for Andrews and four for Big Spring. Bernard Williams, a former Steer, and Damon Clay hit for 25 and 24 points respectively to lead the Mustangs while Jim Byce added 17, Mark Burgen 16 and Luis Clay 12.

For the Steers, Brian Mayfield was high for the game with 27 followed by Charles Young's 23, Steve Parker's 16 and Steve Shellman's 14.

On Tuesday, the Steers will host Sweetwater, also at 6 and 7:30 p.m.

In junior varsity action, Todd Lucas scored 20 points to lead Andrews to a 70-56 victory.

McCamey salvages a split with Ozona

From Staff Reports

OZONA — Michele Tesch's 24 points saved the McCamey Badgers from a shutout in District 6-2A action Friday night.

Tesch led the McCamey girls to a 51-42 victory over Ozona before the Badger boys dropped a 55-44 decision to the Lions.

Abilene's Didi Doss (20) reaches over Midland High's Sebrenia Finch and Kim Jackson for pass in girls District 4-5A action.

Midland girls defeat Abilene

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

Midland High got just what it needed to get back on track in the girls District 4-5A title chase Friday night against Abilene High — a convincing 58-42 win.

Bulldog coach Jane Young was looking for a strong outing to erase the bad memories of Tuesday's 58-57 heartbreaking loss to first place San Angelo. And after scratching through the first eight minutes with just a 17-14 lead, the Lady Bulldogs wore down the Eagles with a 10-0 streak early in the second quarter with five different players contributing.

"It was a well-executed game for us — we played well," said Young. "At times it seemed like we weren't doing things, but we were getting them done."

Sebrenia Finch was getting the bulk of things done for MHS, leading in the scoring column with 15 points and grabbing a team-high nine rebounds as well. Brenda Rodriquez, 12 points, and Amy Cumings, 11 points, joined Finch in double figures.

THE WIN keeps MHS just one-half game behind league-leading San Angelo at 5-1 in the girls district race as the teams near the halfway mark. San Angelo defeated Odessa 67-48 Friday to remain undefeated at 5-0.

Abilene fell to 2-3 in district and appear to be relegated to playing only a spoiler's role unless the top three teams stumble badly in the second half. The Lady Bulldogs, 15-6 overall, will play Carlsbad, N.M., in non-district play Monday on their 4-5A off day.

Dogs pull upset

From Staff Reports

ABILENE — Midland High invaded the Valley of the Giants and emerged with a stunning 67-63 upset victory over Abilene High in a District 4-5A basketball game here Friday night.

"I'm really thrilled about this win," said Coach Jack Stephenson, whose Bulldogs are battling back from a horrendous season's start, "Abilene has more talent than anybody in the world.

"The kids really played well. We used 10 players and they all scored," Stephenson, whose Dogs improved to 8-13 for the season, went on. "Abilene has four guys who must be 6-8 and this has to be one of the best wins since I've been coaching."

The Bulldogs won it at the line, converting 30 shots, 81 percent of their attempts. Joe Wayland was the ringleader with 14-of-14 from the line for a 22 point night.

Abilene made just seven free throws.

Midland led most of the way, but fell behind by three with four minutes to go before rallying to nail down the victory.

For Stephenson, the win was particularly gratifying, "This is one of the toughest places in the world to win. I remember we brought a Lee team with Randy Prince down here several years ago and expected to

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Come on, guys, bring girls out of basketball closet

Williamson

District 4-5A's treatment of girls basketball doesn't quite rank up there with wife beating, but you can sure make a case that it is a classic example of an unloved stepchild.

Is this a fate the girls of 4-5A will have to endure forever? Let's hope not.

Heaven forbid, that the girls steal any cage thunder from the boys. Just put their games in some dingy corner of some dark gym and hope no one notices. Maybe, no one will ever realize that they, too, are playing for state playoff berths. That might create some interest — like it does in most area West Texas communities outside Midland, Odessa, San Angelo and Abilene.

As things stand now, the District 4-5A Executive Committee has ruled it illegal for girls to play in the same town as the boys. When the boys hold a matchup, the girls must leave town.

Don't get me wrong, they aren't tarred and feathered, or anything like that. But they are relegated to lower status. I guess women's lib hasn't reached to the depths of girls' lib as of yet.

IN FACT, the district would just as soon the girls play on a different night than the boys. For instance, 4-5A girls must play on Monday nights while the boys get the more popular Tuesday night. The district used to make the girls play on Thursday nights so they wouldn't conflict with the boys on Friday nights, but the University Interscholastic League's eight-hour rule made them change that stance.

Now 4-5A girls are allowed to play on Friday nights as long as they play in a town that isn't housing their bigger brothers.

Not only do we say this is unfair treatment of girls basketball, but it is a travesty for the fans of District 4-5A and the taxpayers as well.

We ask two simple questions. Would a basketball fan rather see two games of district importance in one trip instead of seeing one and missing the other? Would a Midland fan rather see two important games at Chaparral Center in a cushioned seat or choose to banish himself for the hardwood bleachers of one of the school gyms?

WE DON'T think the questions are very hard to answer. We could be seeing two competitive district games every trip to the Chap instead of one. It's a two-for-one bargain — with comfort.

We propose that the girls play their district games at 6:15 p.m. and the boys of the same school follow at 8 p.m. It is a move that will have to be made if girls basketball is ever to gain in popularity. And it's a move that we feel will generate more fans over the long haul as girls basketball rises in popularity.

This move can only increase attendance as time goes by. A junior varsity game isn't ever going to be cited for increased attendance.

This would have to be a popular move in Midland since the girls and boys at both schools have rich playoff histories. In fact, one or both of the Tall City girls teams has been in the playoffs every year since the district let girls bounce a ball.

Obviously, there is opposition to this move and some problems to work out.

SOME OF the boys' coaches don't like the move because it might mean they won't be able to see their junior varsity teams play if they are moved to another site. That is a reasonable concern, but one that is dealt with at other schools in the area.

Some of the league schools, like San Angelo, say they just don't have the gym space to handle both girls and boys on one night. Still, schools at Rankin, Big Lake, McCamey, Greenwood and many others handle the problem. There really isn't a problem that can't be worked out.

Of course, the current situation can't change without action from the 4-5A Executive Committee and it should be noted that Midland has taken a lead in asking for a change. Both Gil Bartosh, Midland athletic director, and Dr. Joesph Baressi, superintendent of Midland schools, went on record last year at the committee's confab in Big Spring as being for the change.

There was a decided lack of interest expressed and no vote was ever taken. However, since then, Abilene is known to be leaning toward the move.

It's time the committee got its head out of the sand and took a step the times demand.

'Cats stun last district unbeaten

From Staff Reports

After only four games, District 4-5A no longer has any unbeaten teams as Abilene Cooper took care of Odessa Permian, 65-53.

The Panthers were 3-0 going into the game and fell to 3-1 while Cooper improved to 2-1.

Permian jumped out to an early 17-12 lead and was still ahead at the half, 32-29. The Cougars turned the tide in the third quarter with a 14-10 surge and exploded in the final period, 22-11, for the victory.

Jay Estes led the Cougars with a 16-point effort while Doug Starr added 14 and Scott Pugh 12. For Permian, Lance Watkins, the league's leading scorer, had an off night with only 18 points while Parker Hager hit for 15 and Todd Evans 10.

In other 4-5A action, the San Angelo Bobcats pounded out a 72-52 victory over Odessa High.

Odessa High did manage a 10-9 first quarter lead but was outscored 21-8 in the second to be all but eliminated from the game.

Chris Lowry had a district season high of 31 points, including a 15-of-15 effort from the line. Also, Scott Marschall added 10. For Odessa

Sophomore Chris Chunn led the Badgers with 11 points as they fell to 2-3 in district and 12-7 overall. The Lions remained undefeated at 5-0 in 6-2A play. The McCamey girls upped their mark to 5-2, 14-5.

Both teams will return home Tuesday for a doubleheader with Stanton at 6:30 and 8 p.m.

GIRLS

The Bulldogs seemed ready to put an early end to the Eagle hopes with their second quarter run, but a little carelessness cut the margin to 31-22 at the half.

"We lost a little concentration, but that's easy to do," Young said. "I think they outrebounded us in the first half, they were getting more shots than I would've liked. Finally I called a timeout and told them we had to keep playing with intensity. We seemed to get back on track after that."

CERTAINLY MHS got it going after intermission, outscoring AHS 12-2 to open up a 21-point lead with just 1:55 to go in the quarter. From there, it was all academic as the Eagles, shooting only 36 percent from the floor, just couldn't find the firepower to mount a serious threat.

"We had a 14-point lead down in San Angelo and lost it and the game. I sure didn't want anything like that to happen out there tonight," Young said.

And it wouldn't, not with MHS connecting on 51 percent of its shots and forcing a host of Abilene turnovers.

Young was also pleased with the improving play of sophomore Kim Jackson, who scored eight points and grabbed eight rebounds against the Eagles.

"Kim is coming along real well, she is just getting to the point where she is comfortable doing what we're doing on the floor," Young said. "I think she is going to be one of the better players we've had come through here in a long time. She has a lot of physical ability."

Abilene kept it from being a clean sweep by taking a 40-37 victory in the junior varsity game.

Golden Bears top scorer to miss season

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Leonard Taylor, the University of California's leading scorer, will miss the rest of the basketball season because of a congenital spinal condition detected by X-rays, Coach Lou Campanelli said Thursday.

The 6-foot-8 junior center from Inglewood, Calif., was among the leading scorers and rebounders in the Pacific-10 Conference, averaging 19 points and 8.8 rebounds in 14 games. He last played on Jan. 4 against UCLA.

Fans snub Wayne Gretzky

TORONTO (AP) — Wayne Gretzky, the high-scoring center of the Edmonton Oilers, was snubbed by fans in selecting the NHL All-Star team Friday.

Mario Lemieux of the Pittsburgh Penguins, currently sidelined with a knee injury, topped the balloting for starting center with 247,222 votes. Gretzky, the league's perennial scoring champion, received 212,246 votes.

"My record through the years and my two Stanley Cups speak for themselves and if some people don't like what I do on the ice, there is nothing I can do about it," the disappointed Gretzky said.

Lemieux will be joined on the starting team by right-winger Mike Bossy of the New York Islanders, left-winger Michel Goulet of the Quebec Nordiques and defensemen Paul Coffey of the Oilers and Mark Howe of the Philadelphia Flyers.

Quebec goalie Clint Malarchuk was the top vote-getter that position but is not guaranteed a starting role. The goalie vote was the closest of the six positions. Malarchuk beat Patrick Roy of Montreal, 116,137 to 102,781.

It had appeared for some weeks that Lemieux had an unassailable lead over Gretzky for the starting position in this year's two all-star games against the Soviet Union in Quebec Feb. 11 and 13.

Despite the slight, Gretzky is expected to join the NHL roster.

The 25-year-old Ontario native, in his eighth year in the NHL, has come to dominate the game in the manner of another great Canadian, defenseman Bobby Orr, although he is less spectacular.

Most adept at the art of reading the game and passing, Gretzky is a one-man show in this season's scoring statistics with 42 goals and 63 assists for 105 points, almost double Lemieux's total of 55 points.

Last year, Gretzky scored an all-time record 215 points and won a record seventh straight Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable player.

Until now, he's also been an automatic choice as all-star center.

"I think it's a farce if anyone doesn't think he's the best in the league," Oilers' coach Glen Sather said after the Quebec game.

Many Canadian commentators were affronted by the judgment of the fans.

Lemieux, 21, from Montreal, made Gretzky a role model early in his NHL career but the two are now clearly rivals. The Penguins' playmaker has an advantages in size. He is a rugged 205 pounds and stands 6-foot-4, compared with Gretzky's more fragile 170 pounds and height of barely 6 feet.

Some give Lemieux the edge as a skater and puck-handler, but Gretzky's intensity, passing and shooting ability have made him a threat whenever he is on the ice.

Asked last month who was No. 1, Lemieux told a reporter: "I'll let you make the decision."

Gretzky has tried to shrug off what could be the biggest disappointment of his career. When the voting pattern became apparent, he said: "Maybe they're tired of Wayne Gretzky winning things."

McHale, Bird ramrod Celtics' win over Cavs

NBA

BOSTON (AP) — Kevin McHale scored 38 points and Larry Bird added 35 Friday night as the Boston Celtics withstood a rookie barrage and edged Cleveland 133-128 in overtime, extending the Cavaliers' losing streak in Boston Garden to 21 games.

The Celtics, who trailed by as many as 13 points in the second period, outscored Cleveland 11-6 in overtime. Boston made nine of nine free throws to win for the 10 time in its 11 games.

Craig Ehlo sank a hook shot to pull Cleveland within two with seven second remaining, but Jerry Sichting sank three free throws to run out Boston's 26th victory in 36 games.

The Cavaliers, who have not won in the Garden since Oct. 13, 1978, suffered their fourth loss in a row and eighth in the last nine games despite outstanding performances by Harper, Williams, rookie Brad Daugherty and veteran John Bagley.

Rockets 112, Pistons 106

PONTIAC — Akeem Olajuwon scored 33 points, and the Houston Rockets survived a late scare to extend their longest winning streak of the season to five games.

The Pistons lost for only the fifth time in their last 25 games, despite outscoring the Rockets 33-20 in the fourth quarter. It was Detroit's first loss at home in 10 starts.

Olajuwon was supported by Robert Reid's 21 points and a career-high 19 by reserve guard Steve Harris. Vinnie Johnson and Joe Dumars shared the Detroit scoring lead with 18 points, while Bill Laimbeer and Adrian Dantley had 16 each.

Cards' Horton comes to terms

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Three of eight St. Louis Cardinals eligible for salary arbitration, including left-handed pitcher Rick Horton, came to terms before the deadline, the team said.

Horton agreed to a one-year contract estimated at $400,000 before the filing deadline at midnight Thursday, said St. Louis General Manager Dal Maxvill. Also agreeing to terms were left-handed pitcher Tim Conroy and utilityman Tom Lawless.

Cougs face Hogs today

SWC

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Cougars, once known as Phi Slamma Jamma, have a new personality and a new battle cry.

Now they're calling themselves the Department of Defense after holding their last three opponents to 45, 37 and 36 points.

The Cougars will host the Arkansas Razorbacks in a regionally televised SWC game in Hofheinz Pavilion 1:30 p.m. today and forward Greg Anderson says it almost feels like old times.

"We're playing good and the news has hit the streets," Anderson said. "Our team has started to catch the city's attention.

"I'll go out to get a bite to eat or to a Rockets game and everybody is saying 'hey, Houston, kick their butts.' It's a feeling that every player wants. Nobody likes to be considered a loser."

The Cougars still get their dunks but new coach Pat Foster has them taking pride in their defense.

"To play defense or to dunk, you've got to work," Anderson said. "But a dunk just comes and then it's gone. If you play defense the whole game, it's very satisfying.

Forward Ricky Winslow has continued his role as an all-around performer. He leads the team with 12 dunks and is second to Anderson in rebounds with 84.

"We have a new coach and a new system," Winslow said. "I think Coach Foster has done a good job of pulling us all together with different attitudes and styles.

"If you don't learn to play defense, you're not going to play, so we all wanted to play good defense. The old way was good at times, but now we play defense."

Houston will take a 9-3 overall record and 2-0 SWC record into the game.

The series is knotted at 13-13 but the Cougars own a 9-2 advantage in Hofheinz Pavilion and the Cougars have won eight straight games against Arkansas in Hofheinz.

Foster is happy with the team's defensive improvement, but he's not ready to call it great.

"Our defense is good, not great," he said. "We caught three teams that were down when we played them and we played good. That's when you get the blowouts."

Houston has defeated Texas Tech 68-45, Pan American 87-37 and Rice 71-36 in their last three games.

Foster said the Cougars have overcome early season problems with defense.

"I couldn't get them to run the floor, to get back and be ready on defense," Foster said. "It's like a fight, the guy who gets the first punch usually wins. We're trying to do that on both ends of the floor, hit the first lick."

Winnipeg rallies over Devils

NHL

Jets 5, Devils 4

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Randy Carlyle's power-play goal with 9:55 remaining lifted Winnipeg to 5-4 comeback victory over the New Jersey Devils Friday as the Jets completed a four-game road sweep.

The victory was Winnipeg's fifth straight and broke a four-game unbeaten streak for New Jersey (2-0-2).

Peter McNab made it 4-4 for the Devils at 5:55 on a power-play goal that caroomed off the stick of screened Winnipeg goaltender Daniel Berthiaume and into the net.

Carlyle's game-winner came on a 30-foot shot through a screen.

The Devils took a 2-0 lead as Pat Verbeek and John MacLean each scored their team-leading 20th goals of the season.

Verbeek's came on a power play at 4:13. McLean scored at 15:45 on a pass from McNab, whose assist made him the 44th NHL player to achieve 800 career points.

Kings 5, Blues 3

ST. LOUIS — Veteran Marcel Dionne scored on a breakaway with 4:48 remaining, highlighting a third-period rally.

Dionne's goal, his 18th of the year, followed a tying shot by Morris Lukowich four minutes earlier. Los Angeles clinched its second straight victory when rookie Jimmy Carson blasted a 20-foot slapshot past St. Louis goalie Greg Millen with 3:20 to go.

The Kings, despite a 37-15 advantage in shots on goal, trailed 3-1 after 20 minutes.

Gino Cavallini and Doug Gilmour scored on power plays 14 minutes apart to spark an early Blues' surge and they got another goal from Ron Flockhart. Rookie Luc Robitaille's 27th goal was the only score in the first period for Los Angeles.

The Blues killed penalties 50 seconds apart late in the first period and maintained their 3-1 edge until Dave Taylor scored for the Kings from a faceoff at 16:40 of the second period.

Lukowich produced a 3-3 tie with his 13th goal of the year while sprawling into the St. Louis' net when he was hit from behind on a solo rush from the Blues' blue line.

Defenseman Steve Duchesne afterward knocked down a pass by St. Louis rookie Brian Benning to set up Dionne's go-ahead goal.

Evangeline Downs may change hands

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Louisiana Savings Association, which holds first mortgage on Evangeline Downs, has announced that it will attempt to buy the horse track at a bankruptcy sale Jan. 21.

John Fogleman, vice president of the bank, said if the bank is able to obtain the property, it intends to seek a license from the state racing commission to reopen the track this spring.

Wideouts and Texas League hits while wondering whatever became of Greg Luzinski?...

When Midland College beat No. 6 ranked Herkimer, N.Y., in the Mesa, Ariz., Shootout, it revived memories of the Herkimer Hurricane...a long ago boxing champion. Can you name him?...

The New York Giants waited many years to again reach the NFL's supreme game. Last time the Giants made the finals, it was against the Chicago Bears back in 1963.

And now that it has finally happened, New York is really the Jersey Giants. Even the mayor of New York City disowned them...

Dale Mitchell, 65, the outfielder who spent most of his career with the Cleveland Indians after coming out of the University of Oklahoma, was a Brooklyn Dodger that day in 1956, the one referred to in the obits.

Mitchell will be remembered forever for striking out for the final out in Don Larsen's perfect World Series game for the Yankees.

Ironic, isn't it, that during his career, Mitchell's reputation was as a contact hitter, a batter who always got a piece of the ball and seldom struck out, as his .312 lifetime average attests...

The top three major league payrolls, average, in 1986 belonged to 1. Atlanta Braves ($657,657), 2. the Yankees ($617,616), 3. Chicago Cubs ($601,660). So much for buying a pennant.

The low three on the wampum pole, 24. Cleveland ($269, 868), 25. Texas ($242,485) 26. Seattle ($187,850). The surprising showings of the Indians and Rangers perhaps are recommendations for keeping 'em hungry.

The World champion Mets ranked No. 9...

Whenever Billy Williams visited Midland as roving batting coach for the Chicago Cubs, it was almost an automatic impulse to write "Hall of Famer Billy Williams." I always had to catch myself. Now that it's so, Billy no longer comes to Midland...

Last season Midland's Angels had a player who came from the same hometown as Williams. Can you name the player and the town he shared with Williams?...

Former Ohio State/Baltimore Colt quarterback Art Schlichter, thrown out of pro football for gambling, was picked up again Friday. The charge was gambling. Sadly, Art was a candidate for the coaching position at Wilmington, Ohio...

When Steve Sloan first broke into college coaching after quarterbacking at the University of Alabama, he was one of the favorites to someday succeed Bear Bryant. And it eventually came to pass, only he came back as 'Bama AD, not head coach.

You had to feel Sloan was destined for something out of the ordinary when he accepted his first job at Vanderbilt, surveyed the material with which he had to work and admitted, "When I went into coaching, I always thought this was the type of team I'd be coaching against"...

A University of Oklahoma president once said, "We're trying to build a university of which our football team can be proud." Applied to Texas A&M, the quote probably would be, "The Aggies are trying to build a football team of which the band can be proud."...

Luzinski? The former major league outfielder with weight and fielding problems, is a candidate for the football coaching job at Delran Holy Cross high school in New Jersey, where he is already baseball coach...

Herkimer Hurricane? Lou Ambers, a lightweight champion from the Tony Canzoneri, Barney Ross and Henry Armstrong era of boxing...

The Midland Angel from the same home town as Billy Williams? James 'Sap' Randall, Whistler, Ala...

Edberg defeats Frawley

Aussie Tennis

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Fourth-seeded Stefan Edberg of Sweden, seeking his second straight Australian Open men's singles title, moved quickly into the fourth round of the $1.65 million tennis tournament Saturday.

Edberg easily defeated Australian John Frawley 6-4, 6-3, 6-1.

In other early matches Saturday, two seeded women advanced into the fourth round.

Fifth-seeded Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany downed American Tina Mochizuki 6-2, 6-2, while No. 7 Lori McNeil of Houston breezed past fellow American Marianne Werdel 6-2, 7-5.

Teen-ager Janine Thompson of Australia earned a fourth round meeting with defending champion Martina Navratilova by defeating American Beverley Bowes 6-3, 7-5.

Navratilova, the defending champion, Hana Mandlikova and Pam Shriver, the top three women's seeds, moved into the fourth round by posting victories on Friday.

Navratilova, the No. 1 player in the world who is chasing her fourth Australian Open singles crown, needed less than an hour to oust fellow American Camille Benjamin 6-2, 6-1, despite a freakish wind that hampered serving.

Mandlikova, of Czechoslovakia, who won this tournament in 1980, also needed little time in crushing Anne Smith of the United States 6-3, 6-2, while Shriver, of the United States, defeated young South African Elna Reinach 6-2, 6-4.

No. 4 Anne Hobbs of Britain scored an easy 6-4, 6-2 victory over veteran left-hander Dianne Balestrat of Australia, the 15th seed.

Navratilova, 30, said she was peaking physically and feels as good mentally as any time in her career as she aims for the first leg of the Grand Slam, which also includes the French Open, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

No. 6 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria had the most difficult time among the seeds, struggling to defeat Hungarian-born Swiss player Csilla Cserepy 6-3, 6-7, 7-5. Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden, the 10th seed, recovered from a slow start to defeat Marie-Christine Calleja of France 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Jo Durie, the 14th seed from Britain, set up a meeting with Shriver by beating Judith Polzl of Austria 6-1, 6-4.

Unseeded veteran Sylvia Hanika of West Germany ousted Akiko Kijimuta of Japan 6-3, 6-3.

No men's singles were played Friday.

Mattingly to ask for $2 million?

NEW YORK (AP) — The next step in the arbitration process requires the players who filed and the team owners to submit salary figures Monday and New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly may be the first to ask for $2 million.

A total of 106 players filed this year, including 97 on Thursday, beating a midnight deadline. Last year, 159 players filed, all but four on the final day.

Of the 159 players who filed last year only 35 reached the hearing stage. Mattingly filed last year but agreed to a $1.375 million salary.

Mattingly followed up his 1985 MVP season with another brilliant campaign. He hit .352 with 31 homers and 113 runs batted in.

Last season, Boston's Wade Boggs filed and asked for $1.85 million but lost and was awarded $1.35 million. Mattingly is expected to ask for more than Boggs requested. Boggs, last season's AL batting champ, filed last week a day after teammate Bruce Hurst.

Seven members of the World Series champion New York Mets filed, including Dwight Gooden and recently-acquired slugger Kevin McReynolds.

Gooden, who filed last year but agreed to a $1.32 million deal, was 17-6 in 1986, coming off his 24-4 Cy Young season in 1985.

The Mets said their offer to Gooden would be a "modest" raise. Senior vice president Al Harizin, however, said it was a problem determining what is modest based on Gooden's salary.

Among those who went for arbitration Thursday were Ron Darling and Wally Backman of the New York Mets, Willie McGee of St. Louis, Marty Barrett of Boston, Julio Franco of Cleveland; Frank Viola of Minnesota; and Jessie Barfield and George Bell of Toronto.

Cleveland had the most players, 11, followed by Seattle with 10 and the World Series champion Mets with seven.

Only 33 players, including Bret Saberhagen, were eligible for arbitration and chose not to file.

Arbiters will hear the cases between Feb. 5-15 and pick one of the figures.

Barfield and Bell each would like to earn more than $1 million after getting 1986 base salaries of $650,000, plus performance bonuses.

HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS

Hey Kids:
Be a
Junior Harlem
Globetrotter!

On February 4, two lucky young people will be on the basketball court with the Harlem Globetrotters as junior members of the team.

One boy and one girl between the ages of five and 12 will represent the Midland Reporter-Telegram and KNFM Radio at the Harlem Globetrotters game at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, February 4 at Chaparral Center.

The lucky winners will be chosen by random drawing, using the coupon below. Fill it out completely and send it in to the Midland Reporter-Telegram right away! The postmark deadline is January 28. You may send in as many coupons as you like, cut from the paper or hand-drawn. No photocopies are eligible.

The Reporter-Telegram and KNFM Radio Junior Globetrotters will receive:

- An official replica Harlem Globetrotter uniform.
- A Diamond Jublilee Souvenir Program Book.
- Six (6) free courtside tickets.
- An opportunity to sit on the Globetrotter bench during the game.
- A photograph of each winner with the Globetrotters. (Photo to be taken by Reporter-Telegram photographer.)

The legendary Harlem Globetrotters are in their 60th season of entertaining people of all ages with their basketball wizardry. For the first time, a woman plays on the team—Lynette Woodard, captain of the goldmedal winning 1984 Women's Olympic Basketball team.

The Reporter-Telegram is pleased to present this chance to two of its young readers . We hope you'll send in your coupon today.

Coaches upset over cutbacks in college programs

By WILLIAM C. RHODEN
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Nearly a week has passed since delegates to the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention in San Diego approved measures designed to cut costs and reduce what many think is an overemphasis on intercollegiate athletics. The week has not diminished the chorus of complaints from coaches who think that their programs are being jeopardized by the NCAA actions.

The major actions affecting basketball will reduce scholarships from 15 to 13, drastically reduce the time coaches can spend recruiting and the number of visits they can make to a recruit, eliminate part-time coaches and ban boosters from all contact with recruits.

"This is the wave of the future," said Andy Geiger, the athletic director at Stanford University. "The complaints you hear are essentially the equivalent of a basketball coaches' union complaining that we've cut employment opportunities for people who want to coach. Management — I guess that's what we are — is saying that we can't afford this. My feeling is that basketball is overcoached and overadministrated."

Geiger said that "if the coaches are complaining now, wait until June when the presidents meet."

"You're going to hear a cacophony," he said. "This is just the beginning."

AT SPECIAL convention on cost-cutting in June, the NCAA Presidents Commission is expected, among other things, to introduce legislation to end freshman eligibility.

The meeting in San Diego underlined the increasingly complex relationship among coaches, athletic directors and college administrators. It is a relationship that often puts the athletic directors — who took the lead in passing the legislation at San Diego — in the middle.

Consider Ohio State and Gary Williams, the school's new head basketball coach. Williams says he opposes the reduction of scholarships and staff because it hinders his effectiveness by reducing manpower. He also says he thinks that reduced scholarships will encourage more coaches to "run off" players in order to open up scholarships for promising recruits.

Richard Bay, the athletic director at Ohio State, approved the reductions.

"I think 13 scholarships with everyone eligible to play is sufficient," he said. "Most schools don't use the full 15 anyway. As for reduction of staff, we've got a situation in many schools where there are more guys with suits and ties on the bench than players with uniforms. It doesn't make sense."

BUT BAY said that the action taken by athletic directors last week was done as much to scale down athletic budgets as it was to keep the presidents from scaling them down more drastically in June. "We wanted to control our own fate," he said. "In effect we took action to avoid an even less desirable situation being imposed on our programs. We don't want to damage the revenue potential of revenue-producing sports."

More Sports, 8B

Indeed, much of the tension in San Diego involved efforts of athletic directors to protect their revenue-producing sports — football and basketball — by limiting the involvement of university presidents, who have expressed a desire to play a more visible role in controlling their athletic programs.

The first battle could take place this summer if freshmen are made ineligible. "If that's done, we would want to increase the number of scholarships, say to 17 or 18," Bay said. "You can't have 13 scholarships and then say freshmen are ineligible. You lose three seniors, a couple players are injured and you find yourself with eight players."

THE LEGISLATION has also created some odd, probably unintended alliances, while putting some institutions on an unaccustomed side of the fence.

Consider Indiana's Bobby Knight, a staunchly conservative member of the coaching fraternity, calling for secession from the NCAA. In doing so he joins the more radical Dale Brown of LSU and Jerry Tarkanian at Nevada-Las Vegas, who have long called for a collective exodus from the NCAA.

Then there is Notre Dame's opposing the ban on boosters, a group usually seen as the bane of intercollegiate athletics. Notre Dame also opposed the reduction of recruiting time.

"Because of our academic standards, we have to go all over the country to recruit," said Eugene Corrigan, the Notre Dame athletic director. "Limiting the time we have to do that hurts us. Then telling alumni that they can't write or talk to kids doesn't help us either."

THIS TIME last season Joey Meyer was wondering if maybe his DePaul Blue Demons hadn't seceded from the ranks of college basketball's elite. Talented but erratic, and perhaps a step too slow, last season's Blue Demons could go from good to fair to worse in the span of three days. They ended strongly and this season have stormed off to a 12-0 start. Meyer, who took over from his father three seasons ago, seems to be more at ease this season.

"He's a lot more relaxed," said Rod Strickland, who has been a major reason for Meyer's more relaxed countenance. The 6-foot-3-inch sophomore point guard from the Bronx has averaged 14.8 points and 6.2 assists this season.

Anchored by Strickland, Kevin Edwards, an outstanding junior college transfer; and Dallas Comegys, the 6-9 senior center, DePaul has been explosive.

"They're very, very good," said Digger Phelps, the Notre Dame head coach. DePaul defeated Notre Dame, 59-54, earlier this season.

"They're a lot like the Mark Aguirre teams back when," Phelps added. "They're legitimate top eight, top five."

Pasadena officials get okay to scalp Super Bowl tickets

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — City officials who receive Super Bowl tickets can resell them for profit despite National Football League efforts to impose sanctions on them, a deputy city attorney says.

The NFL wanted scalping restrictions imposed on tickets sold to the city under contract provisions, but Deputy City Attorney Gary Gillig said the city refused because scalping is legal in California, and the city's personnel code does not bar resale of tickets for profit.

City officials purchased 1,200 tickets for the Jan. 25 Super Bowl at face value. NFL special events director Jim Steeg said the league was given assurances that city officials "would do their best to prevent scalping."

"We addressed the concern," he said.

Gillig said it was possible the city might adopt a new personnel policy after the Super Bowl between the New York Giants and Denver Broncos, preventing city officials from reselling their tickets to anyone but relatives.

Ticket brokers have said they are selling Super Bowl packages for up to $3,000 per person in New York, including transportation and hotel accommodations.

Under Pasadena's contract, each city director, the equivalent of a city council member, was allowed to purchase 100 Super Bowl tickets at face value. There are seven city directors. The additional 500 tickets were sold to other city officials.

City directors had said they would resell their tickets in some instances but not at a profit.

"I would trust that every board member is an honorable person," director Loretta Thompson-Glickman said.

Gillig said officials would get into trouble only if they failed to report any ticket-scalping profits.

NFL probes late hit by Giants' Hill

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — New York Giants Coach Bill Parcells said Friday he was confident that safety Kenny Hill will not get a Super Bowl suspension for what the 49ers say was a late hit on wide receiver Jerry Rice in the NFC semifinal.

The NFL is investigating a complaint filed by San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh, who said that videotapes of the Giants-49ers game on Jan. 4 showed that Hill took a cheap shot at Rice in the fourth quarter with New York ahead 49-3.

"Our office does not comment publicly regarding possible disciplinary action by the Commissioner," said Joe Browne, director of communications for the league.

At first, Parcells refused to comment on Walsh's allegations.

"We're not losing Kenny," Parcells said when asked about a possible suspension for the Super Bowl against the Denver Broncos in Pasadena, Calif.

There has been speculation that Hill would receive a substantial fine and one writer told Parcells he had heard it would be as high as $20,000.

"Tell your unnamed genius who came up with $20,000 that he hasn't got a clue," the coach said.

Hill, a starter since being acquired in a 1984 trade with the Los Angeles Raiders, said the league had informed him that it was conducting an investigation involving the play, for which Hill did not draw a penalty.

Effervescent Vitale pumped up for latest cage assignment

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

It doesn't take much to get Dick Vitale excited. Waking up and breathing usually does the trick.

But ESPN's manic basketball analyst is even more pumped up than usual about his latest assignment — working on ABC's inaugural telecast of regular-season college basketball.

"Working for ESPN and ABC is like having dates with Linda Evans and Cybill Shepherd," Vitale said Thursday.

Vitale will analyze Sunday's Purdue-Louisville game, the second half of a double-header that will kick off ABC's college basketball coverage. He will work with play-by-play man Keith Jackson.

TV Sports

"I've never worked with Keith, but I know he's a pro's pro," Vitale said. "Naturally, I'm a little nervous. I'll be working with new people in new surroundings. It's a new era for me."

Vitale has been broadcasting games on cable television since 1979, when he was fired as head coach of the Detroit Pistons. But Sunday will be his debut on a major network.

"Everybody talks about me going to the big time, but I don't feel that way" he said. "I feel we are big-time at ESPN. Everybody there is first-class. The ABC thing is great, but so is ESPN."

Vitale is the busiest analyst in college basketball. In addition to his ESPN workload of more than 40 games, he will work eight of ABC's 10 Sunday telecasts this season.

"I'm an addict," he said. "After the season, I go to Hoops Anonymous meetings."

Unlike some years, Vitale doesn't think there's a dominant team in college basketball this season.

"There's really no such thing as an upset anymore," he said. "They talk about Tennessee upsetting Kentucky in Knoxville. No way that's an upset. There's so much balance, so much parity these days, that it's totally unpredictable."

The top teams right now are North Carolina, Purdue and Indiana, Vitale said.

"Purdue has the best starting five in the country," he said. "Indiana is another tough Bobby Knight team. If they can get more consistency out of (center Dean) Garrett, they'll be hard to beat. And you've got to like Carolina. I picked them as the best team in the country, and I haven't seen anything to change my mind."

What about top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas?

"I know I'll get in trouble for saying this," Vitale said, "but if Vegas was in the Big Ten this season, they might not finish in the top four (in the conference)."

Vitale has an opinion on almost everything, including the NCAA's recent decision to cut the maximum number of basketball scholarships from 15 to 13.

"As a former coach, I don't like it," he said. "It eliminates competition in practice and reduces the quality of play. You're getting into a situation where you might not be able to practice. You get a couple of injuries or players in academic trouble, and you won't have 10 bodies to put on the floor."

Langer opens 3-stroke gap

Ray Floyd moves into second place

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — West Germany's Bernhard Langer, playing conservatively in cold, biting winds, mastered the testing PGA West golf course with a 68 and established a 3-stroke lead Friday after three rounds of the $900,000 Bob Hope Classic.

"Not my favorite course," Langer said of the controversial new layout that is being played in this tournament for the first time.

"I think some things are overdone. The bunkers are too severe. Often you can't see the pins for the jumps and bumps. I think it's too difficult," Langer said.

But he avoided most of the trouble by using 1-irons and 3-woods off the tees and got in with a 4-under-par round that ranked as the best score on that course this week. It included a string of three consecutive birdies, all on putts of 12-15 feet.

Hope Golf

"Surprise, surprise," he said after completing 54 holes of this five-day, 90-hole tournament in 202, 14 under par.

"It's the coldest I can recall here, but I've only been coming here 25 years," said U.S. Open champion Ray Floyd, who came on to take second alone at 205 after a 68 at Indian Wells.

Langer next visits much easier Bermuda Dunes under the format that has the pros playing one round on each of four courses, each day with a different three-man amateur team, before the pros-only finish Sunday at PGA West.

The conditions, Langer said, were perhaps more common to England or Scotland: strong, gusty winds and unusually cold temperatures, in the 30s and 40s most of the day.

Floyd, one of the first off the tee, was bundled up with a golf shirt, two sweaters and his rain gear when he walked onto the 10th green, the first hole he played.

"The green was frozen," he said. "It was frozen so hard my spikes didn't even sink into the ground."

Jeff Tiefenthaler lone repeater on grid team

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Wide receiver Jeff Tiefenthaler of South Dakota State, who caught 73 passes for 1,534 yards, was the only repeater on The Associated Press Little All-America football team for 1986.

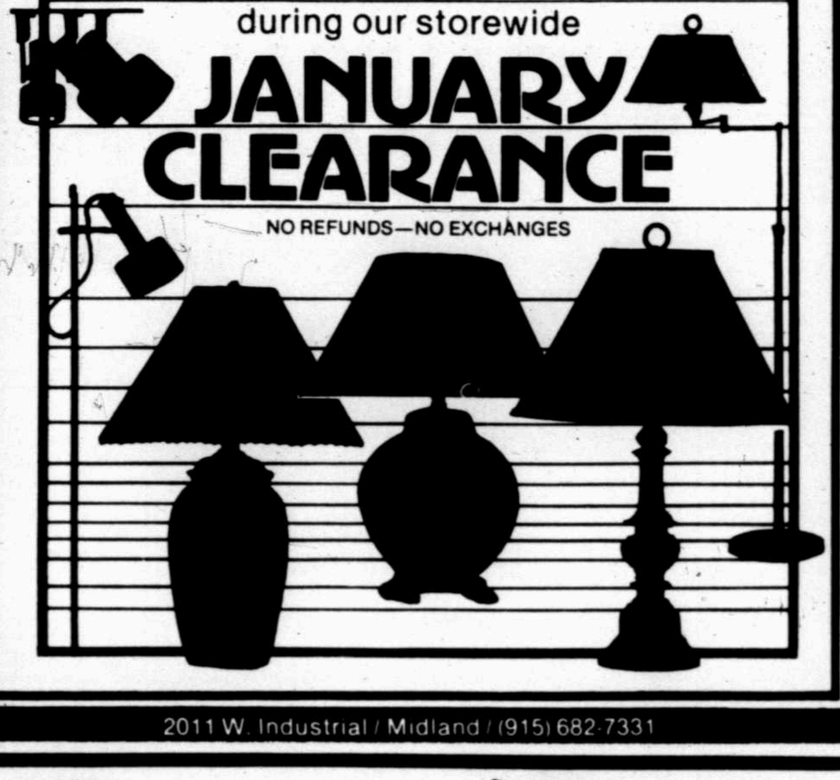

Tiefenthaler played in 36 regular-season games and averaged 100.6 reception yards per game, including 139.4 this season. Despite playing very little as a freshman, he came within 11 yards of doubling the school record for receiving yardage and smashed the North Central Conference mark by 956 yards.

The other wide receiver was Wayne Ralph of Whitworth, who caught 105 passes for 1,204 yards and six TDs. Tight end Rich Schiele of Knox College caught 48 passes for 695 yards and four scores.

They were joined on the team, announced Friday, by North Dakota State quarterback Jeff Bentrim, who won the Harlon Hill Trophy as the outstanding player in the NCAA's Division II, and Texas A&I running back Johnny Bailey, who set a college football rushing record for a freshman.

Bentrim, who quarterbacked North Dakota State to its third national championship in four years, led the nation in scoring with 23 touchdowns, while Bailey became the third player in college football history to rush for 2,000 yards in a season. He carried 271 times for 2,011 yards and 18 touchdowns.

Bailey's running mate in the backfield was 250-pound Christian Okoye of Azusa Pacific, who led all NAIA schools in rushing with 1,680 yards on 235 carries, a 7.15 average, and in scoring with 21 touchdowns.

Anne Weary poses outside her cottage in the woods of North Garland, Texas, recently. She says a life in Dallas society did not hold any meaning for her, and so 16 years ago she moved to the woods to sketch the animals and plants there.

Woman pens forest creatures with her art

By DAN R. BARBER

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — Deep in what remains of the virgin woods of North Garland, a woman works to preserve nature with an artist's pencil.

Her name is Anne Weary and except for her dogs, horses, cat — and occasional visits from the slowly disappearing forest animals such as hawks, red foxes and coyotes — she lives and works alone in a Texas version of Hansel and Gretel's cottage.

"I couldn't stand living in the suburbs," said Ms. Weary. "I just have to have the trees and the woods," she said. "This is a nice place. And I like to maintain it. I don't like material things like Mercedes."

At 34, Ms. Weary could probably have a Mercedes and other things many consider the best and most coveted symbols of Dallas life: a home in prestigious Highland Park, a social life thick with the cream of society and the love of a well-heeled man.

Ms. Weary was reared in prestigious Highland Park.

Her neurosurgeon father, W.B. Weary, and mother still live in Highland Park, where Ms. Weary graduated from high school and became a top gun with a tennis racket.

A life in Dallas society did not hold any meaning for her, though, so 16 years ago she moved to the Spring Creek Forest to live with her animals and draw the red and shumard oaks and elm, hackberry, black walnut, chinquapin, ash and pecan trees that surround her home.

"Trees are my love," she explained. "When I was little, I used to climb way up high in them. My mother couldn't find me. When I was in school, I did a lot of portraits, but that's not what I have to say."

What she has to say is: "This tree's unique. There's not another one like it. The patterns of the leaves are all different. What I like is the light behind the leaves. That's what I'm trying to do, express my love for the outdoors."

Ms. Weary keeps life simple. Her cottage, which she has painted brown with blue, green, red and yellow trim, is sparsely decorated with antiques against walls of old woodpaneling.

The floors are covered with inexpensive blue carpet. Well-used furniture, paintings, books and tiny statues of animals sit in almost every corner of every room in the cottage.

Outside bleached cattle skulls adorn the porch framed by wooden posts and two metal chairs painted yellow.

"Early eclectic," she calls it.

Ms. Weary began painting at 5 and by the time she was 15 her work was shown in juried art shows alongside paintings by adults.

Today she draws almost exclusively with pencils, Venus H and 2H drawing pencils, to be precise, because of the way pencils can reveal the light through the trees she treasures.

Her drawings usually cover no more than 100-square inches of paper, but they contain such detail that the forest comes alive in them.

The drawings are so detailed that the viewer can see each tree's bark, individual leaves and blades of grass as if standing about 25 yards away.

Months of patient work goes into each drawing. Ms. Weary sits outside hour after hour, day after day, the way many people sit in their office desks Monday through Friday.

"I try to do my art 9 to 5 like anybody else," Ms. Weary said. "I don't like to answer the telephone."

She earns $600 per drawing.

Art dealer Kevin Vogel uses words like "exquisite" and "incredible" to describe Ms. Weary's work.

"I don't know another artist who does work quite like this," said Vogel, a co-owner of Valley House Gallery where Ms. Weary's work is shown and sold exclusively.

"I think they're the most extraordinary drawings to come out of the area," he added. "We think she is an extraordinary talent."

It's the detail, Vogel said, that distinguishes each drawing.

"She has a different set of values than most people have and that's refreshing," Vogel said.

"I've lived alone most of my life. As soon as I got my car I moved out here," she said.

She moved, she said, because she was unhappy in Highland Park.

"I didn't fit in there at all. I was real sensitive and quiet. I'd bring my friends out here and show them fossils, and they couldn't care less. They'd go shopping for 10 pairs of shoes, and I'd be out here painting. I just didn't fit," Ms. Weary recalled.

A cartoon showed a guidance counselor going over the results of an aptitude test with a student. As he reviewed the results he was saying to the student before him, "The results of your test indicate that you should seek employment with a company where your father has an influential position."

While our gifts vary, it is certain that each Christian has been given a special gift by God (Rom. 12:6; I Cor. 12:7).

T. R. Glover reminds us that "Whatever thine hand findest to do, do with all thy might," but then added, "someone will think differently!"

Don't they? There's not much in this life that you can do but that someone will think you should not be doing it. We live in a world where "second guessing" and "Monday morning quarterbacking" is a way of life, a way that often discourages even the most hearty among us.

Every great achievement in life has opponents lying in its wake, people who thought it shouldn't have worked; even worked against it.

But there's nothing wrong with someone differing with you. Differences of opinion and belief have been the greatest stimuli to progress.

Differences can divide or multiply, add or subtract. It all depends on your own beliefs and your attitude about what you believe and your attitude toward those who don't believe like you.

Paul encourages us both in our tendency to criticism of others and when we are criticized by them: "Who are you to pass judgement on the servant of another? It is before his own master that he stands or falls. And he will be upheld, for the Master is able to make him stand" (Romans 14:4).

While Christian unity efforts 'standard,' goal elusive

RELIGION

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — Working for Christian unity has become thoroughly institutionalized, a part of the organizational machinery of virtually every major church body and of liaison units among them.

But as the special week approaches, Jan. 18-25, when Christians around the world pray, as Jesus did, "that they may all be one...so that the world may believe," the goal is seen as still elusive and perhaps fading.

Some say the effort has sagged at a critical impasse.

"We are at an ecumenical crossroads," says the Rev. William T. Rusch, ecumenical director for the Lutheran Church in America.

"Today churches are being asked if they want to continue just to speak about unity or if they want to do something about the actual possibility."

The doctrinal dialogues continue among denominational theological teams, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox, and the "convergence" agreements proliferate, but without steps implementing them.

What's needed, says the veteran United Methodist ecumenist, the Rev. Albert C. Outler, is some sort of intercommunion "that could authenticate the oneness in Christ that so many feel is now so near and yet still so far.

"There is a tragic irony here. Having come so far, what seems still lacking is the will to venture those crucial steps that still lie beyond."

His comments, and those of a wide variety of others, came in the January issue of Ecumenical Trends, published by Catholicism's Graymoor Ecumenical Institute, of Garrison, N.Y.

It coordinates the week of prayers for unity together with the doctrinal commission of the Protestant-Orthodox World Council of Churches.

"Reconciled to God in Christ," is the theme for the week taken from Second Corinthians 5:17-20, to be used in thousands of church services, many of them on an ecumenical basis.

The observance is sponsored in this country by units of the National Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, and by the U.S. Roman Catholic bishops' conference.

A joint pastoral letter by officers of the two organizations says:

"Reconciliation is central to God's redeeming plan." Yet "we remain seriously unreconciled under judgment of the word we proclaim.... It is clear that God wills a visible, growing unity for the church."

This doesn't mean uniformity, they said, but "God does expect a true unity in our diversity."

In the compendium of comments, Lutheran theologian Martin Marty of the University of Chicago says churches are bound to remain "rich in diversity" that won't be blended into sameness.

But he adds they must also "remain in the process of convergence, always moving toward each other and union in Christ," demonstrating their "mutual acceptance, shared ministries and witness."

He says Christianity's "real divisions are within and across" denominational lines, not so much between them.

As a step toward reconciliation, he, like Outler, says the most urgent need is for shared Holy Communion, "licit and encouraged. Now."

Most Protestant denominations allow inter-Communion, but not Roman Catholicism in ordinary circumstances, although Catholic-Lutheran and Catholic-Anglican (Episcopal) dialogue teams have reached doctrinal accords about it.

The most far-reaching theological consensus, the 1982 "Baptism, Eucharist (Communion) and Ministry" document by Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox scholars, is now under consideration by worldwide Christianity.

Responses from all its major branches still were accumulating at World Council of Churches headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, with the start of 1987 set as the deadline for denominational reactions.

About 150 of them have been received, most of them lengthy, offering generally positive assessments, but also with criticisms of various points and proposed clarifications.

It likely would be months before the material is collated and analyzed.

The document opens a "new stage in the history of the ecumenical movement," seeking "to bring to light and express today 'the faith of the church through the ages," says an international symposium of Eastern Orthodox theologians.

An American Protestant denomination, the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) responded that the document offers "an extraordinary opportunity for the church to move beyond the status quo."

Some divided families of Christians now are coming together, such as recent mergers of Northern and Southern branches into the Presbyterian Church (USA) and three branches of Lutheranism uniting this spring into the Evangelical Lutheran Church of America.

But reconnecting separate families remains mostly unaccomplished, although various efforts for it continue.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Three local churches showing Dobson series

The powerful, six-part film series "Turn Your Heart Toward Home" is being shown at three area churches: First Church of the Nazarene, 1208 W. Wall Ave.; Greenwood Church of Christ, 1.5 miles west of Greenwood School; and Greenwood Baptist Church beginning Sunday.

Over 50 million concerned parents and family groups have benefited from Dr. James Dobson' enlightening film series, "Focus on the Family." Now building on that nationwide groundswell of interest, Word Publishing and Focus on the Family, Inc., present "Turn Your Heart Toward Home."

"In this bold new film series, America's most trusted family life expert brings his vast experience to bear on one of society's most pressing challenges — the protecting and strengthening of family relationships," says a spokesman for Dobson. "It is the purpose of this powerful new film series to challenge those individuals to return to the traditional values upon which families are best created and nutured."

The films are being shown at 6 p.m. Sundays through Feb. 8 at First Church of the Nazarene, pastored by the Rev. Harold L. Quarles and at Greenwood Church of Christ. The series is being shown at 7 p.m. Sundays through Feb. 8 at Greenwood Baptist Church.

Full Gospel event today

Gardner

The Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International will meet at 7:30 p.m. today at the Midland Hilton. Guest speaker will be Jim Gardner, a retired Air Force officer. Dinner, priced at $7 per person, will precede the meeting at 6:30 p.m.

Gardner received his commission in the Air Force through the ROTC program at the University of Arkansas in 1951. He entered pilot training in June 1951 and served in several U.S. states and in Korea, Germany and South Vietnam.

His military decorations include The Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star, Legion of Merit with two oak leaf clusters, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star, and the Air Medal with 10 oak leaf clusters. He retired Dec. 1, 1983, as Chief of Staff of the Military Airlift Command, Scott Air Force Base, Ill. After 32 years of service, he had accumulated more than 7,000 hours flying time.

An active speaker of FGBMFI, Gardner also speaks for Christian Businessmen's Committee and at churches and civic organizations. He and his wife, Julieta, have a son who is an Air Force chaplain and a daughter who is married to an Air Force pilot.

Teen to be missionary

Anderson

Rhett Andersen, 18, of Midland has accepted a call to serve as a missionary in Tahiti for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Soren Andersen and belongs to the Midland Third Ward of the church.

Anderson will serve in Tahiti for two years. He will enter the Missionary Training Center in Provo, Utah, Feb. 4. There he will learn Tahitian and French, the languages spoken in Tahiti.

Like all missionaries for the LDS church, he will receive no compensation for his full time church service. Funding for his mission will be from his savings and from family and friends, according to a church spokesman.

After his mission has been completed, Anderson will return to Midland to complete his college studies.

He will be the featured speaker at a sacrament meeting in his honor Sunday. The service will begin at 10 a.m. at the Midland Third Ward Chapel, 2101 N. Tarleton.

Youth seminar planned

The winter session of Youth Spiritual Enlightenment (YSE) will take place Jan. 24-25 at the Rose of Sharon, Odessa.

The Saturday session, 9 a.m.-2:55 p.m., will include seminars on a wide variety of subjects including career planning, relationships, sex, education, time and money management, suicide, etc.

A banquet is set for 7:30 p.m. at the Rose of Sharon fellowship hall, 1615 E. Murphy, Odessa.

The weekend will conclude with a close-out program at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Odessa church.

Interested persons may call 682-0041 or 686-9598 for information concerning the mass choir, transportation from Midland, or registration for the weekend.

Service to honor King

Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall, will honor the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr. during the 11 a.m. Sunday service.

Special music, literature and a sermon in recognition of King will be featured. The sermon will be presented by the Rev. Hadley R. Edwards.

The United Methodist Church has a work area on "Religion and Race," whereby the church is encouraged to promote racial inclusiveness. Margie Titus is the elected conference chairperson from Hollowell UMC. Her duty is to promote interracial functions.

The public is invited to the service.

Conference to begin

Midland Bible Church is sponsoring a three-day Bible conference featuring Elwood McQuaid beginning at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at 2800 N. A St.

McQuaid, in addition to his speaking ministry, writes for "Moody Magazine." He has served with the Friends of Israel Gospel Ministry, Inc.

He will open the conference during by speaking during the Sunday school hour. He will also speak at services Sunday at 10:50 a.m. and 6:30 p.m., and Monday and Tuesday at 7:15 p.m.

For more information, call the church office at 684-9722.

Pro-life rally scheduled

Sanctity Life Sunday will be observed Sunday at the Ector County Courthouse with a pro-life rally and march at 3 p.m.

Sanctity Life Sunday is in memoriam of the Supreme Court decision, Roe vs. Wade, which legalized abortion.

The rally is being sponsored by West Texans for Life. For further information, call. 367-1760.

FBC plans Bible study

First Baptist Church is sponsoring a Bible study Tuesday, 6:30 p.m., at 1905 Northrup.

The evening will include a covered dish supper.

Bob Hopkins, minister of education at First Baptist, will lead the study.

School of Christian Living beginning today

The School of Christian Living, sponsored by the Midland Association of Churches, will be held Sunday through Wednesday at St. Ann's Catholic Church, Parish Center, 204 N. M St. Theme for this year is "My Story, Your Story, His Story."

Guest speakers are the Rev. William R. White, pastor at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Mt. Pleasant, Mich.; and the Rev. Keith Hosey, director of John XXIII Center, Hartford City, Ind., where he serves as a priest of the Diocese of LaFayette, Ind.

Registration for the evening session will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday, and the session will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Registration for the morning session is at 9 a.m. Monday, and the program will be presented from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The evening session will be held Sunday through Tuesday, and the morning session will be held Monday through Wednesday.

Fee is $15 per-individual and $20 for a family.

White, a graduate of Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., uses storytelling as a method for teaching the Bible and Christian principles. His recent speaking engagements include The festival of Worship & Witness, Minnesota, 1983; Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, 1984; the 13th National Convention of the American Lutheran Church, 1986, where he was a storyteller and consultant.

White is the author of "Speaking in Stories: Resources for Christian Storytellers," 1982; and "Stories for Telling: A Treasury for Storytellers," 1986.

White spoke in Midland in 1983 at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

Hosey was ordained in Rome, Italy, in 1956, after having studied theology at the Gregorian University and completed undergraduate work at St. Mary's, Cincinnati, Ohio. He has been, for the past 13 years, a leader of retreats and renewal sessions.

He serves as a member of the Ecumenical Prayer Team speaking on the need for contemplative prayer for today. Hosey has been involved in Marriage Encounter & Marriage Enrichment Programs for the past six years and was, for 10 years, assistant pastor in Lafayette, Logansport and Elwood, Ind.

Jewish community's friendship with cardinal remains 'murky'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — The fuss seemed a bit murky. Jewish leaders kept saying what a friend the cardinal was, and he kept emphasizing his friendship with the Jewish community. Yet they also kept up their tangled, irritated tango.

What was it really about?

In all the ambiguities of the fond feud this week between Jewish leaders and Cardinal John O'Connor, Roman Catholic archbishop of heavily Jewish New York, two basic rubs appear.

Not clearly or definitely, but by innuendo and subtle indication, they underlay the whole imbroglio over the cardinal's trip to Jordan and Israel, and his comments while there.

The problem "has not been clarified," says Rabbi Marvin Hier of Los Angeles, who heads an interfaith education and research organization involving both Jews and Christians.

He says the main difficulty between the cardinal and Jewish leaders did not, as some reports indicated, have to do with the Vatican barring him from official meetings with Israeli leaders.

The Vatican doesn't accord diplomatic recognition to Israel, and the cardinal couldn't be faulted for that situation, Hier says.

But the vague collision was caused by two specific things — the implications of the cardinal's expressed support for a Palestinian state, without saying where, and intimations of his comments on the Nazi Holocaust.

The latter involved some complex Christian theological concepts, which the cardinal doubtless had in mind, but it also understandably seriously rankled Jews, Hier says.

The cardinal, on visiting Yad Vashem, Israel's memorial to victims of Nazi slaughter, had said this greatest tragedy in Jewish history "may be an enormous gift that Judaism has given the world."

Hier, dean of the Simon Wiesenthal Center whose national constituency of more than a million, mostly Jewish but about a fifth Christian, combats anti-Semitism and fosters Holocaust studies, said in a telephone interview:

"For 20 centuries, Jews have been subjected to an anti-Semitic teaching that because they reject Christ they are always doomed to lives of suffering. To say Jews contribute by suffering conjurs up that anti-Semitic teaching ...

"There are 90,000 survivors of the Nazi camps in the United States, many of whom lost families, fathers, wives" and to them, the Holocaust is "the nightmare of their lives, taking everything dear and precious to them.

"For it to to be called the principle contribution of Judaism to the world, they regard as an insult."

Certainly this wasn't the cardinal's intent, and he doubtless meant his remark at the memorial as a compliment, Hier said, but he should have realized that there it "would be regarded like a sermon to the Jewish people.

LIFESCOPE

Don't Know Which Way To Turn? Your Lifescope Offers Guidance.

Open my eyes to see wonderful things in Your Word. I am but a pilgrim here on earth: how I need a map - and Your commands are my chart and guide.

You will keep on guiding me all my life with Your wisdom and counsel; and afterwards receive me into the glories of heaven! Point out anything You find in me that makes You sad, and lead me along the path of everlasting life.

For this great God is our God forever and ever. He will be our guide until we die. The Lord is good and glad to teach the proper path to all who go astray; He will teach the ways that are right and best to those who humbly turn to Him. And when we obey Him, every path He guides us on is fragrant with His lovingkindness and His truth. We should make plans - counting on God to direct us.

This also comes from the Lord of Hosts, Who is wonderful in counsel and excellent in guidance. I will instruct you (says the Lord) and guide you along the best pathway for your life; I will advise you and watch your progress. And the Lord will guide you continually and satisfy you with all good things and keep you healthy, too; and you will be like a well-watered garden, like an ever-flowing spring.

When the Holy Spirit, who is truth, comes, He shall guide you into all truth for He will not be presenting His own ideas, but He will be passing on to you what He has heard. He will tell you about the future.

I am the Lord your God . . . Who leads you by the way you should go.

It is up to you to make the first move. An active lifestyle is good for you!

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Statesman-orator Daniel Webster, Baltimore Orioles pitcher Scott MacGregor, singer Bobby Goldsboro, Cary Grant, comedian Oliver Hardy, singer Constance Moore, entertainer Danny Kaye, author A.A. Milne and baseball's Curt Flood.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An excellent day for dealing with personal matters. Loved ones are in a forgiving mood. Misplaced items resurface on the home front. Charm plus a practical approach helps you solve a riddle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not drop in on friends or relatives unexpectedly. Loved ones may be in a contrary mood. Be careful not to disturb someone who wants to be alone. Write letters and pay bills.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A new friend comes into your life, bringing fresh insights. Discussing your plans with mate or partner could make your dreams come true. Avoid spending too much money on family entertainment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Avoid all forms of gambling. Devote more time to your artistic and creative ideas. Be a good listener if a teen-ager comes to you with a problem. Humor an older relative.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Others will be difficult to contact. Creative work looks promising. Buckle down to work. Look for job leads in the Sunday papers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A telephone call gives you new hope about a favorite cause. An honest confession will help you mend some fences. Visit an older person confined to home or hospital. Think twice about contacting a business associate socially. Reduce the clutter at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stick close to home today. Loved ones are likely to need your advice and assistance. Impulsive spending could put a hole in your budget. Romance takes on deeper meaning. Show tenderness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A new division of domestic chores may be in order. Double-check all details relating to financial matters. Creative ideas flow freely today -- jot them down for future reference. Influential people reward originality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A stubborn person could become a valuable ally. Your sense of humor and tolerant attitude make you a welcome addition to any group. Do not despair if someone does not keep promises.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A long-cherished wish could be fulfilled today. Shy person reveals his or her true feelings. You are flattered! Take the first step to heal a rift. Speak from the heart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Plan a special treat for mate or partner. You need to get out and about more. Career or business will benefit from new contacts. Catch up on your professional reading or household chores.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If you are juggling too many obligations, work out a new plan. A partner who seeks greater independence now could feel differently later on. Be patient. Careless mistakes can be costly.

Princes soon to have new nanny

LONDON (AP) — Prince William and Prince Harry, sons of Prince Charles and Princess Diana, will be getting a new nanny, according to Buckingham Palace.

Barbara Barnes is leaving her post as chief nanny to the princes, the palace announced Thursday, the day 4-year-old William started full-time school.

The palace said there had been mutual agreement that it was an "appropriate time" for Miss Barnes to move. Her deputy, Mrs. Olga Powell, will continue working for the royal couple, the palace added.

Nothing was said about any new post for Miss Barnes, 42, who was appointed to run the royal nurseries at the Kensington Palace home of Charles and Diana in May 1982, six weeks before William's birth.

The palace said Charles and Diana were "sorry to lose Miss Barnes," who would remain in her post for a few weeks while the parents seek a full-time nanny for 2-year-old Harry.

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Pop singer Paul Revere was not at fault for injuries received by a woman during the scramble for souvenirs tossed from the stage during his show, a jury ruled after deliberating less than 90 minutes.

"I'm just glad this is over," Revere said after the verdict was announced Thursday.

Donald and Sheila Dorssey of Reno sued Revere's rock group and Harrah's casino, claiming the group's practice of tossing souvenir tricorn hats to the audience was dangerous and negligent.

Mrs. Dorssey claimed a woman fell on her while reaching for a hat, leaving her unable to work and sought at least $157,000 in damages to compensate the couple for medical bills, lost wages and pain.

Revere would not say if he planned to continue throwing the hats.

TOKYO (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has replied to the letter written to him by a 14-year-old Japanese schoolgirl last October asking him to work for world peace, the girl's teacher said Friday.

Hanako Nakamura, a student at the Nangu Junior High School in Nakano in central Japan, received the Russian-language reply Thursday in Tokyo from Soviet Ambassador to Japan Nikolai Soloviev, her teacher Tetsuo Ichikawa said.

"I will make an effort so that children need not know the ominous word "war," Gorbachev wrote, in his second such reply this week to Japanese pupils.

On Monday, schoolchildren in northern Morioka city received a reply from Gorbachev after they wrote 144 letters last August asking him to work for the abolition of nuclear weapons.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Sir Edmund Hillary, who with Sherpa Tenzing Norgay was the first to reach the summit of Mount Everest, said Friday he proposes to build a school for Sherpa children near the world's tallest mountain.

"I regard building schools an adventure. That's the sort of adventure I can indulge in now," said Hillary, who is New Zealand's high commissioner, or ambassador, to India and Nepal, in a United News of India interview.

He and Tenzing, a member of the mountain-dwelling Sherpa tribe, conquered the Everest in 1953 and stayed in close touch until Tenzing's death last year. Hillary proposes to build the Sherpa school next year in Nepal near Mount Everest.

Hillary's other adventures have included rafting in U.S. rivers, paddling across the Great Lakes and sharing the cockpit in a flight to the North Pole last year with former U.S. astronaut Neil Armstrong.

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — Miss Rhode Island of 1986, Toni Langello, faces a court hearing and could lose her title after pleading guilty to possession of alcohol and her subsequent arrest for alleged possession of cocaine, officials said.

Pageant officials will meet in the next few days to decide whether Miss Langello should keep her crown, and will consult Miss America Pageant officials before ruling, state Director Joseph A. Trillo said Thursday.

Miss Langello, 20, of Warwick was arrested last month on charges of possession of alchohol by a minor. She pleaded guilty and was fined $100.

On Tuesday, however, she and two men with her at her arrest were charged with possession of cocaine. Police said lab tests found traces of the drug in a compact from her purse after her arrest.

Trillo said the 30-member pageant committee would determine whether Miss Langello's legal problems violate her contract with the pageant. Miss Langello, who has declined to comment, is scheduled for a Jan. 26 court hearing.

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Texas Supreme Court Justice W. St. John Garwood, whose family long has been prominent in legal circles, is dead at age 90.

Garwood, who left the state Supreme Court in 1958, died Thursday at an Austin nursing home after an illness.

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at St. David's Episcopal Church, with burial in the state cemetery.

"He was certainly a gentleman of the old school and a scholar and a distinguished jurist," said Austin lawyer Bob Hearon of the firm of Graves, Dougherty, Hearon & Moody. Garwood was a long-time adviser to the firm.

Garwood's wife, Ellen, attracted national attention in 1985 when she donated $65,000 toward purchase of a helicopter for the contra soldiers fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

The couple also was in the news last year after sending telegrams to members of Congress, threatening to withhold campaign contributions from those who voted to override President Reagan's veto of sanctions against South Africa.

Garwood's only surviving son, Will Garwood, is a judge on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Another son who also was an attorney, W. St. John Garwood Jr., died in 1984.

Garwood was born in 1896 in Bastrop, and the family moved to Houston while he was a child.

He was the son of H.M. Garwood, a Bastrop county judge, state representative, state senator and State Bar of Texas President and University of Texas regent.

W. St. John Garwood received an undergraduate degree from Georgetown University and a law degree in 1922 from Harvard.

In 1927, he married Ellen Clayton of Houston, the daughter of Will Clayton, who later served as undersecretary of state for economic affairs and was a founder of the giant agricultural firm Anderson, Clayton and Co.

Garwood practiced law in Texas from 1933 to 1948, when the late Gov. Beauford Jester appointed him to the Texas Supreme Court. He retired from the court 10 years later.

His legal career was interrupted twice by wars. In World War I, he served in the Army and was discharged as a first lieutenant. In World War II, he served in the Navy and was discharged as a lieutenant commander.

In 1963, then-Gov. John Connally nominated Garwood as a UT regent but the Senate rejected the appointment.

"He was rejected because they regarded him as a great liberal," recalled former Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert Calvert.

Garwood himself attributed his rejection to his comparatively liberal views on desegregation and international affairs.

The Garwood family suggested that memorial contributions be made to Huston-Tillotson College in Austin.

Epitaphs offer glimpses into lives of pioneers

By RICK SMITH

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — I worry about old tombstones, the ones without flowers that keep one another company in the far corners of West Hill Cemetery.

I can't walk in West Hill without stopping to read the stones and wonder about the people buried beneath them, how they lived, how they died.

I've never liked the way tombstones squeeze a person's life into three short lines:

Little Arthur Bohrer
Born June 2, 1884
Died Feb. 7, 1885

On an early January walk through West Hill, I copied names and dates from tombstones and later searched out obituaries in old newspapers.

The names on the stones came to life. No longer just letters on cracked marble, the names became housewives and husbands, ministers and mailmen. Children.

And death became more than a month-day-year. It meant dying quietly in bed after a bout with the flu or collapsing at work from a heart attack or developing strange fatal illnesses ("congested bowels" was one) or dying quickly and horribly in the very prime of life.

J.E. Junior
Sept. 29, 1883
Nov. 7, 1913

An inscription on his stone stopped me.

"We knew no sorrow, knew no grief,
"Till thy bright face was missing."
Who were you, J.E. Junior?
How did you live?
How did you die when you were but 30 years old?
His marker doesn't say.

It doesn't say that J. Elmer Junior was born and reared in Sherman and lived at 1125 South Montgomery St. It doesn't say that he began working at the Klein meat market on South Travis, cutting meat, driving a wagon, collecting bills on the first of each month.

"While thus engaged, he met many people and formed many friendships," his newspaper obituary read.

Later, he took a night job as an oiler at Gladney Milling Company on East King.

Working the night shift, he gave up his position as a captain in the Sherman Lodge No. 2.

The newspaper says he had a wife and young son. It doesn't say what they thought about J. Elmer's night work.

Maybe it paid more. Maybe there was a brighter future working at a large factory than driving a meat market wagon.

For whatever reason, J. Elmer Junior worked at the mill for 10 weeks when, about 4 a.m. on Nov. 7, he made a mistake.

Maybe he was sleepy, not accustomed to sleeping days and working nights.

Maybe he was daydreaming. Nov. 7, 1913, was a Friday and J. Elmer may have been thinking ahead, thinking of spending a day with his wife and son.

Maybe it was predestined fate or inescapable destiny or just dumb bad luck.

For whatever reason, the sleeve of J. Elmer's jumper snagged a set screw on a machine shaft. The shaft was spinning at 220 revolutions per minute.

J. Elmer Junior, 30, husband, father, friend, had no time to react. He was yanked from the floor and sucked into the machine.

"His body was terribly mangled," the newspaper account read that afternoon.

"When found by a fellow workman, the machinery of the great mill was stopped in almost an instant, and the unfortunate man unwound from his postion."

Someone called an ambulance and a doctor.

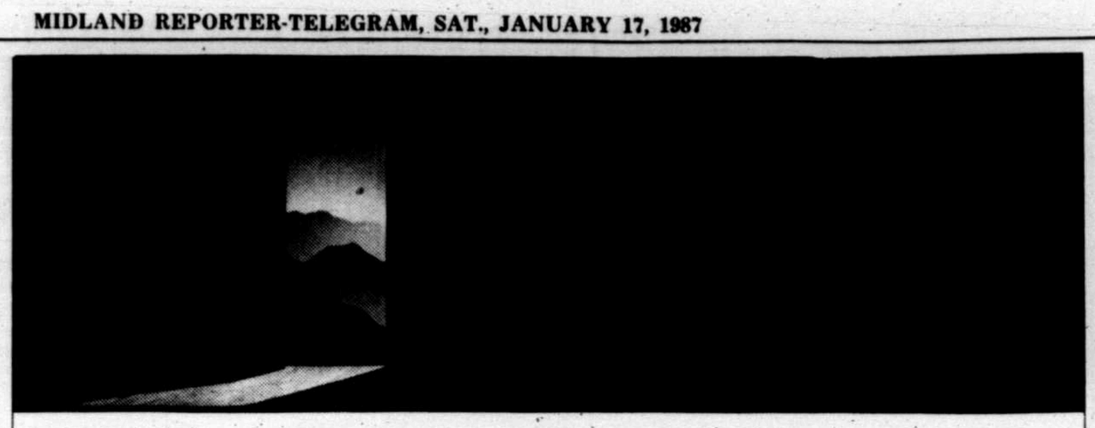

"Everything possible was done to save him," the story read, "but he was beyond human aid and died shortly before 6 o'clock.

"His tragic death," the newspaper said, "is deeply regretted by all who knew him."

Dupont hotel employees plead innocent to arson charges

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Two Dupont Plaza employees pleaded innocent to federal arson charges Friday in the New Year's Eve fire that killed 96 people at the luxury hotel.

Judge Justo Arenas ordered them held without bail after their pleas were entered in U.S. District Court. Neither defendant's court-appointed lawyer requested bail.

Hotel employees Hector Escudero Aponte, 35, and Armando Jimenez Rivera, 29, also face charges brought by Puerto Rican authorities of first-degree murder, arson, conspiracy and destruction of property.

Bail in that case, being heard in San Juan District court, was set at more than $2 million for each defendant.

Jimenez Rivera, a busboy at the Dupont Plaza, and Escudero Aponte, a maintenance man, entered court in handcuffs and sat impassively during the 20-minute bail hearing.

Each gave his name, age and schooling and said "No culpable" (not guilty) when asked to plead.

The FBI and U.S. Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms told the court earlier this week that Escudero Aponte signed a confession of his role in the fire. Investigators have said Jimenez Rivera did the same.

Life in prison can be imposed on conviction of the federal arson charge because death resulted.

A first-degree murder conviction in the commonwealth court would carry the same penalty. Puerto Rico does not have the death penalty.

Several relatives of the defendants sat at the rear of the fifth-floor hearing room at U.S. District Court, a few hundred feet from the docks where Caribbean cruise ships anchor. A spokesman said they would not talk to reporters.

Judge Arenas said he appointed the defense lawyers and expressed concern for their safety.

Someone slashed a tire of the car belonging to attorney Rafael Castro Lang's wife and scratched a "crude statement" in the paint, Arenas said. The lawyer, who represents Jimenez Rivera, said later the word scratched on the car was "rata" (rat).

A report Friday in the San Juan Star said Escudero Aponte scuffled with a security guard moments before the fire started. A union meeting had just been held in the ballroom, at which members of Teamsters Local 901 rejected the hotel's latest contract offer.

The union has denied any involvement in the fire.

Charred remains of three fire victims were identified Thursday and Pio Rechani, director of Puerto Rico's Institute for Forensic Medicine, said the one remaining probably could not be identified.

He said it was of a woman in her 70s and would be buried within a few days as "Jane Doe."

Rechani said the three victims whose identities were determined Thursday were Elsie Peltyn, 76, of Las Vegas, Nev.; Hilda Schmidt, 76, of New York state, no hometown available, and Idalia Montero, 52, of Puerto Rico.

Iran says it captured strategic island

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran claimed it captured a strategic border island in hand-to-hand combat Friday and one of its leaders called the week-old Iranian drive a prelude to the long-promised "final offensive."

The official Islamic Republic News Agency said Revolutionary Guards stormed palm-fringed Buvarin Island, in the Shatt-al-Arab border waterway southeast of Basra, and held most of it after a daylong battle.

Iraq did not comment on the claim and there was no way to verify it because foreign journalists are barred from battle zones.

An Iranian missile exploded in Baghdad, the fourth since the offensive began. Iran said it struck the Iraqi War Ministry, but Iraq's official news agency said it fell in a crowded residential district, killing civilians.

A second missile was fired at an Iraqi military base at Abu al-Khasib.

According to Iraq's war communiques, its air force responded with raids on Isfahan, Arak, Hamadan and Shahabad and the holy city of Qom south of Tehran. The Iraqis also claimed to have hit a "large maritime target" in the Persian Gulf, the standard term for an oil tanker.

Soldiers, tribesmen, settlers die in Bangladesh bush war

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thousands of people are being killed in a little-known bush war in the crowded, impoverished Asian nation of Bangladesh. An Associated Press correspondent recently worked his way into the area of conflict, usually closed to outside reporters, and filed this report on Buddhist tribes seeking to preserve their land and culture from Moslem settlers backed by the government.

By BRAHMA CHELLANEY

RANGAMATI, Bangladesh (AP) — Among the tranquil Buddhist pagodas in the Chittagong Hill Tracts, soldiers, tribesmen and settlers are fighting in the jungle for control of one of the few lush corners of this poor and overcrowded nation.

The 12-year bush war has triggered grisly massacres, driven 30,000 tribals from their ancestral homes, sent 100,000 modern-day pioneers fleeing and claimed as many as 3,000 lives.

On the edge of the rugged hills, in the hilltop tourist resort of Rangamati (Red Mud), residents say their land is literally turning red with the blood of civilians killed in the escalating conflict.

The battle is vicious, unremitting and little-reported because of restrictions imposed by the Bangladeshi government. Native Buddhist tribesmen are struggling to keep their land and customs and maintain their autonomy against an influx of Moslem settlers.

The fighting often occurs at night on jungle elephant paths. About 20,000 soldiers are pitted against 3,000 guerrillas, mostly of the Chakma tribe. They call themselves the Shanti Bahini, or Army for Peace, and they are determined to wage war for their own homeland.

In December, officials reported nearly 100 deaths in clashes among army troops, settlers and tribesmen in the tracts. The region is slightly smaller than the state of Massachusetts, and has a population of 700,000, including 450,000 tribals and 250,000 settlers.

A REPORT by Amnesty International, the London-based human rights organization, cites what it calls serious human rights violations in the hills by the government of President Gen. Hussain Mohammad Ershad. Officials deny the charges.

Residents claim security forces have opened fire indiscriminately, raided a tribal orphanage and in December desecrated a monastery. They took away children and novice monks suspected of aiding rebels, residents said.

But Buddhist warriors have killed dozens of Bengali-speaking Moslem settlers this year in their war for autonomy.

On Dec. 22, guerrillas with machine guns mowed down 20 settlers and wounded 39 in Ramgarh town. In November they kidnapped and killed 24 lumbermen returning from prayers.

In response to tribal attacks, settler militias carry out their own massacres of tribesmen, using weapons witnesses say are supplied by the government.

In Rangamati, residents are frightened and decline to identify themselves out of fear of reprisal from one side or the other.

"We have no guarantee of safety," said a youth who identified himself as a tribal student at the Rangamati Government College. "At any time we may be picked up by soldiers, tortured and left to rot in a lockup."

The tracts are off-limits to most journalists.

In a recent visit, however, this correspondent saw soldiers everywhere, manning entry points, searching vehicles and passengers. By dusk, residents go indoors and soldiers rule over a ghost city.

Only groups of soldiers dare cross picturesque Rangamati Lake to the wooded tracts, where the Shanti Bahini has its strongholds.

BANGLADESH'S crisis of overpopulation is the root of the conflict.

Since the 1970s, a string of governments in Dhaka, the capital, have encouraged Moslems to leave overcrowded plains and settle in the sparsely populated hills, rich in timber, bamboo and natural gas.

These resources are prized in a nation that ranks only behind tiny Singapore as the world's most densely populated country.

Bangladesh's 102 million people are jammed into an area the size of Wisconsin, with an average 1,750 people per square mile. (Wisconsin's population density is 87.7 per square mile.)

The migration has encroached on the culture and economy of the tract's original settlers, 13 predominantly Buddhist tribes, descendants of warlike Mongols, speaking their own tongues.

Their easy-going lifestyle and primitive slash-and-burn agriculture conflict with conservative Moslem society.

Tribals say resettlement is swamping them and for that reason they are fighting for autonomy. Migration is fueling the bush war, with atrocities on both sides, residents say.

Local journalists and residents say illegal detention, torture, rape, gunning down of tribesmen and brutal guerrilla raids on new settlements are commonplace.

But little is known of the conflict outside Chittagong because of the stringent government restrictions.

In its report on Bangladesh, Amnesty International said, however, "Security forces systematically engaged in practices in the Chittagong Hill Tracts which violate fundamental and human rights, including right to life, right to security of person." It cited 38 alleged killings in one month alone.

THE U.S. State Department's human rights report said: "Conditions lend credence to charges of human rights abuses by the army and settlers."

About 30,000 tribals have fled to neighboring India. The Bangladeshi army claims rebels get arms from India, which denies the charge.

Maj. Gen. Abdus Samad, the area's military commander, expressed the government's view that the tribals have no right to 11 percent of Bangladesh's territory, while making up only 0.5 percent of the national population.

He claimed the insurgency was dying down and that guerrillas were surrendering. Officials say 1,814 rebels have laid down arms.

But there are signs of even more implacable resistance.

A 34-year-old rebel commander, Rupayan Talukdar, nicknamed "Major Rip," broke off peace talks with the government last year insisting on autonomy as a precondition for further negotiations.

The government has pledged the equivalent of $90 million in scarce development funds to induce tribals to come down from the hills and "forget the bitter past."

But the settlers remain clustered in fortified villages, and the tribesmen lurk in the jungle they know so well, planning their attacks.

Fewer station breaks.

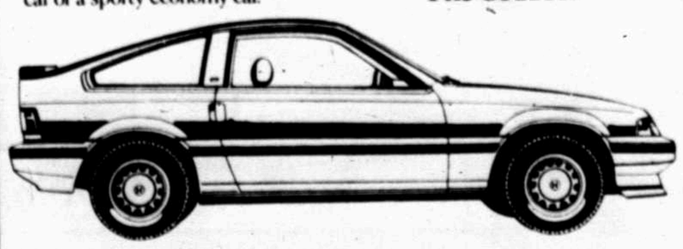

With more MPG* than any other two-seater, the CRX HF lets you spend more time on the road having fun and less time pumping gas.

In fact, with road-running rack and pinion steering, front-wheel drive, 5-speed manual transmission and power-assist brakes, the HF is so much fun you'll wonder whether it's an economical sports car or a sporty economy car.

Standard features like steel-belted radials, a tachometer, alloy wheels and a large cargo area with a lockable stowage compartment should leave no doubt. The HF is anything but an econobox.

The 1987 Honda Civic CRX HF. Who says fun can't be efficient?
