ACTION FOLLOWS A CAMPAIGN UPON
BAD CHECKS

On the heels of a warning issued from county officials here the past week that "cold checks" are going to be dealt with to the extreme extent of the law, County Attorney L. A. Howard Saturday issued an ultimatum to business firms operating in this county that they must refrain from sale of malt and other compounds ordinarily used in the manufacture of intoxicating beverages. The sale of such products is an open violation of the law as is sale of paraphernalia used in manufacture of such products. The sale of such products will not be tolerated, and that seizure and confiscation of all this kind of stock found in possession of business men will begin in the immediate future, Mr. Howard said.

"Beer bottles, caps, coppers, and other paraphernalia are devices used in the manufacture of intoxicating beverages and the sale or delivery of any such device is in violation of the law if the seller knows for what purpose they are to be used," he continued. The statement points out that fair warning is being given to business men that if they fail to discontinue the sale of such devices, seizure and confiscation of all such products will be made. A copy of the statement is going out to practically all business houses in the county. The statement follows:

Law Violation
"It is a violation of the penal code of Texas to sell, deliver or possess for the purpose of sale any compound or preparation from which intoxicating liquor as a beverage is made."

"It is a violation of the penal code of Texas to knowingly sell, barter, exchange, transport, export, deliver, take orders for, or furnish any equipment, material, supplies, device or other thing used in the manufacturing of intoxicants or beverages."

Punishment for violating the above laws is fixed at not less than one year nor more than five years in the penitentiary.

Malt Sale Forbidden
"Malt and kindred compounds and preparations are used by the brewing public to make intoxicating liquor."

MOYERS REMEMBERED
Pastors Prepare Special Services; Business Men Report Big Sale of Gifts for Mother's Day

Mothers will be well remembered in Lubbock today if advance indications can be taken as a criterion for florists, gift shop firms, drug stores and other similar lines of business in Lubbock were unanimous in their report that gifts for mothers had given a decided upturn to sales.

Working upon the theory that many people who do not usually attend church will occupy a pew today pastors have given even closer attention to their sermons and programs in an effort to make the occasion fitting and proper in the reverence to mothers of the nation.

Tornado Kills One
And Injures Many

HUTCHINSON, Kans., May 7. (AP)—One man was killed and nearly a score persons injured, some severely, when a tornado swept through a half mile area south and east of Medicine Lodge, Kansas, at 7 o'clock according to telephone information received here tonight.

Frank Kaufman, 39 year old farm youth, was instantly killed when the wind wrecked his parents' brick home, half a mile south of Medicine Lodge. The entire family was injured.

The tornado touched the south edge of Medicine Lodge, lifting off the roofs of small buildings.

More than a score of farm houses were believed ruined and much stock killed. A bridge was torn away by the wind.

The entire Hutchinson district was swept by high winds tonight but no other heavy damage or deaths were reported.

YAQUIS LAY DOWN
ARMS IN AMERICAINDIANS FORCED ACROSS BOUNDARY SUBMIT TO PATROL

(By The Associated Press)
NOGALES, Ariz., May 7.—Thirty-seven Yaqui Indians of Mexico, well armed but half starved and poorly clothed, who surrendered last night 25 miles west of here in Bear Valley to a United States border patrol, tonight were held at Camp Stephen D. Little, pending an investigation of their crossing the international boundary.

The Indians surrendered to the border patrol headed by Inspector Felix Hughes on assurances that they would not be returned to Mexico. Upon arrival of a detachment of United States soldiers called by Hughes, the Indians laid down their arms without any show of resistance.

A wholesale execution of Yaqui Indian warriors was reported to have taken place yesterday 15 miles south of Nogales in the state of Sonora at the Mexican hamlet of Agua Zarca following the capture Thursday night of a small north-bound band enroute from the Indian reservation in the Sierra de Huasteca to the international line.

Eight of the captives were summarily tried in connection with armed activities in the Indian revolt and were hanged shortly afterward to a tree on the main highway. Many Indian rebels, the exact number being unknown, have been executed during the last week following the ambush and massacre of Mexican federal troops last Saturday night.

Juan Barrack, 16, a Mexican youth, was captured by federal troops yesterday. He was said to have been carrying messages from Chief Luis Matos of the Sonora Yaqui addressed to rebel allies and having to do with ammunition running across the border. Barrack was sentenced to die but a stay of execution was granted.

Three shipments of ammunition, one of 15,000 and two of 10,000 rounds each have been confiscated during the last three days, according to Mexican customs officials.

BAND WORKING HARD

Local Musicians Will Blow Hard
For First Place At Chamber Convention

With the first prize of their division in view, the members of the Lubbock high school band are working over time going in to rehearsal at the All-Texas Band contest which will be held at the West Texas chamber of commerce convention at Wichita Falls, May 16 and 17. The band lost the first honor by a small margin last year and this year the year going in with the "vowed determination of blowing their heads off or winning first place."

J. W. Crowley, director of the band, is placing fifty men in trim for the convention and Lubbock is expected to figure high in the five thousand dollars in prizes which will be given away. A large number of bands are to enter the contest.

WATTS TO VISIT AT SLATON HONOR COURT

NEW OFFER FOR GAS FRANCHISE
TENDERED CITYWICHITA COMPANY
ASKING TO PUT IN SERVICE

ARE AMPLY BACKED

NO ACTION TAKEN AS YET BY LUBBOCK
OFFICIALS

Another proposal to supply natural gas to Lubbock, along with other Plains towns was submitted to the City Commission of Lubbock Saturday morning by Wichita, Kansas, and Amarillo men in an application for a franchise, work to start on construction of the line in 40 days, but definite action was not taken by the commission due the absence of Mayor Pink L. Parrish from the city, and a desire of members of the commission to more thoroughly consider the matter.

The proposal was made by C. L. Bullock, of Wichita, Kansas, vice president and general manager of the Luritan Gas company, and the Wichita Gas company, both operating in Kansas; T. A. Sanders, Amarillo attorney; and Ben H. Ashe, of Tulsa, who was here last fall with a proposal. Action by the City Commission will be taken in the next few days, probably about Wednesday of the coming week. It was said.

Well Financed
Mr. Bullock, in explaining the proposition, said the deal is financed, that plenty of gas is available from a 14,000 acre leased tract in the Panhandle oil field, and that actual construction operations would be started sixty days from date of the franchise. The men, however, said they preferred to present a cash guarantee of faith. Details of the proposed construction and size of mains was not discussed.

The franchise is similar in every respect to the one now in effect with the McMahon interests, except that a slightly lower rate for industrial gas is offered. An extension was recently granted on the McMahon franchise, extending the time of beginning of construction work from May 1 to June 1, but the date of completion was not changed from December 31.

In view of the McMahon project, members of the commission said they preferred to have a full meeting, including the Mayor, before definite action was taken, although one or two expressed themselves favorable to granting the new franchise.

The commission was told by Mr. Bullock that franchises have been secured from Plainview and Canyon and intervening points, and that a line positively is to be built by the company as far as Plainview is concerned. Plainview also is said to have forfeited the franchise held by the McMahon interests in favor of the Bullock project.

ARMADILLO IS FOUND

Tech Student Discovers Basket Material in Trip to Buffalo Springs

Yes sir! A real live Armadillo, and caught on the South Plains too!

"Don't know what to do with him, he's not big enough for a good basket," were the words of a good Anson Witherspoon, Tech engineering student, who captured the animal during the early part of the week when a group of students were out picnicking near Buffalo Springs, about ten miles south-east of Lubbock.

All the same, Witherspoon is taking care of the animal and has a place all fixed in which to keep him at 2405 14th street. The animal seems very well pleased with his surroundings and will eat anything, Witherspoon says.

Uncommon in this section of the country, the Armadillo has attracted much attention. According to R. C. Burns, county tax assessor, and pioneer of this section, only one other such animal has ever been seen in these parts and that was about 30 years ago.

DENNING CASE DISMISSED

The case of J. L. Denning, Lubbock man, charging violation of the prohibition law was dismissed from the docket of the 72nd district court here Friday by Judge Homer L. Pharr when he held illegal the seizure warrant on which the search of certain alleged illegal goods and the arrest of Denning was made, and quashed the warrant. The case has been on the dock 1 for several months.

How A Federal Dry Sleuth Functions

BRUCE BIELASKI, MOST FAMOUS OF FEDERAL
UNDER-COVER MEN, TELLS RUM SECRETS

Ever since he graduated from George Washington University 20 years ago, A. Bruce Bielaski has been a spy.

He resigned recently as the star "under cover" man of federal prohibition enforcement. In that capacity, he has in New York state and elsewhere some amazing experiences.

In the heart of New York City he ran a government speakeasy for months as a means of getting evidence against liquor barons.

Bielaski has told to NEA Service the inside story of this and other striking episodes in his career as a master "dry spy."

The first of three articles comprising Bielaski's own narrative is presented here. The others will follow tomorrow and the next day.

By JAMES POWERS
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, May 7.—The saloon was filled with smoke and the jangling of customers lining the mahogany bar. The conventional brass rail was shiny with the scuffing of many feet. Bartenders buzzed about filling schooners with real beer, chipping ice for Martinis and Manhattan. In the curtained back room men with girls whose cheeks were coated with rouge yelled drunkenly for more champagne.

The scene was laid at No. 14 East Forty-fourth street, New York, just a step around the corner from where the bright lights of the gay white way blinked down upon the hurrying throngs.

Leaning nonchalantly against the corner of the bar was "the boss," broad of shoulder, smug, quietly appraising, he wore a Tuxedo with the air of having worn it many times before.

Friendly With Salesmen
"Salesmen for different rum rings approached him with quotations on replenishing his stock. He jotted them all down carefully in his note book. They had a drink, shook hands, and parted."

Occasionally an evil-visaged visitor insisted on a private audience. The boss smiled, took him to a back room, and locked the door. The visitor eased himself into the swivel chair, uncomfortable for a moment. Then he reached back into his hip pocket, removed a big blue-streak automatic, laid it on the table.

Frank Maddox, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Maddox, 1827 Main street, left yesterday morning for Austin where he is to serve as a page in the senate, having been appointed to this place by the governor, through the influence of Lieutenant Governor Harry Miller. While in Austin, Frank will visit his uncle, J. R. Padgett, and family.

BROTHERS SENTENCED

Today Is Mother's Day.

AN EDITORIAL

Today will be universally observed in America as Mother's Day. It is not a holiday nor a religious day, because of the universality of its appeal. Holidays commemorate events which appeal only to limited classes, and men may differ widely on religious creeds, but in Mothers' Day all may participate, regardless of creed or nationality.

In honoring that sacred name each man may pay tribute to a common cause and feel the bonds of fellowship which link him with all the rest. It is eminently befitting that we should, in reverence and seriousness, observe this Day. It matters not what a man's religious beliefs are, or whether he has any, still may he not be ashamed to bow his head in reverent prayer or meditation when on this day he thinks of her who gave him life. In the still, quiet watches of the night she has oftentimes kept her lonely vigil of prayer for him. When he had wandered far away, possibly forgetful of her, she has followed him with her prayers, and her love ever prevails in your case, as in mine, this Mother may have been called to her reward, but that memory lingers, and the life she lived is still encouraging us to go on, and live as she would have us live. The more favored of you, still have that Mother with you, or you can reach her with a message of love. Do this today. Remember to write her a letter, send her a token of appreciation, a bouquet of flowers, a picture. I will be worth much to her to know that you remember her—that you are thinking of her today.

CITIZENS TO TALK
ANNUAL C. C. MEETWICHITA FALLS CONFERENCE WILL BE HELD HERE ON MONDAY MORNING

So far Lubbock citizens have shown very little interest in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention which will be held at Wichita Falls next week and a meeting is being called for Monday morning at ten o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce, when Lubbock men will discuss plans for sending a representative delegation to the convention.

Every citizen who is interested in seeing Lubbock make a good showing at the convention whether or not it will be possible for him to attend is urged to attend the meeting Monday morning.

Tickets are $2.50. Railroad tickets on a special train or special pullman will cost only $2.50 to 30 student leaders at the convention for hotel accommodations and yet not a single ticket has been sold. The train will likely leave Lubbock late Sunday afternoon and return Wednesday morning. The round trip fare to the convention is a fare and a fifth.

Lubbock will be represented by the Lubbock high school band at the convention. James Kennedy will enter the "My Town" speaking contest. About 30 student leaders at the Tech will attend the convention headed by Hurley Carpenter, vice president of the student body. A sponsor to represent Lubbock is yet to be selected.

Lubbock will represent Spain in the Congress of Nations and other South Plains towns plan to join to make up a South Plains group at the convention.

FLIER'S FATE UNKNOWN

Captain Saint Roman and Partner
Have Been Missing for 60 Hours Now

PARIS, May 7. (AP)—With more than sixty hours elapsed since Captain Saint Roman and Commander Moureyres started from St. Louis, Senegal, for Pernambuco, Brazil, without definite word of them, the fate of the two aviators tonight continued to baffle aeronautical circles and the Latin-American colony here.

The only hope held out was that the fliers may have landed in the desert region north of Pernambuco and either would have driven their plane, but where the means of communication are most scanty.

FIRE AT THE DORMITORY
MAKES GIRLS FLEE

All three trucks of the Lubbock fire department sped out Broadway yesterday morning at 9:00 o'clock in answer to a fire at College Inn, one of the girls' dormitories near the campus, which did not prove to be serious as was first expected. The building was damaged by smoke considered from papers in the basement, was confined to the basement.

Had the fire been of more serious nature, the girls of the dormitory would probably have had it emptied as they were busily engaged in saving their possessions when the department arrived.

DURING WAR

(By The Associated Press)
LEBOURGNET, France, May 8. (Sunday)—Captain Charles Nungesser and Captain Francis Coll took the air at 5:18 this (Sunday) morning for their long flight from Paris to New York.

The white bird, the French aviator's new famous plane, with its load of more than five tons, got away to a splendid start, sailing fast into the air on its great transatlantic adventure.

Captain Charles Nungesser, French war ace of fifty victories, predicted as long ago as March, 1921 non-stop aerial trips between Paris and New York, a feat that he himself is now striving to accomplish to add to the laurels of France.

In November, 1922, he began planning a Paris-New York flight with the idea of establishing a transatlantic air line using the fastest planes available but it was not until March of this year that it was announced definitely that he and Captain Francis Coll, noted aerial navigator, would join the ranks of French and American aviators striving for the honor of being the first to make the hazardous crossing between New York and France.

SCOUTING FINANCED

Final Activities in Arranging For Scout Backing Due
This Week

Scout activities on the South Plains will be on the increase this week as the final clean-up is to be made in the finances of the year. The year's budget, $10,500 is expected to be reached by the close of the week, officials said yesterday. Ralls came in with $450 yesterday to boost the present total and the other towns in the council are expected to do their part during the week.

Monday, Taboka will hold their cleanup. Monday and Tuesday will find the work presented to Lubbock. A meeting will be held Tuesday at 9 o'clock in the executive office at the city hall to arrange for the finance of the council.

Wednesday will find the work going on in Floydada and Slaton will do their part on Thursday. Spur expects to complete their financial cleanup on Saturday.

A. H. Watts, scout executive, is to make the circle of the towns. In the finance cleanup and expects the meetings to go over in excellent style.

The fund will be used to carry on the work on the South Plains during the remainder of the year and to pay for improvements on the scout camp at Post which were made last year.

LIBERALS ENDING WAR

Nicaraguan Forces Take Steps To Form Temporary Government
For Their Nation

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP)—Predictions of liberal cooperation in the peace moves in Nicaragua were borne out in a measure today in telegrams from Henry L. Stimson, President Coolidge's personal representative on the ground. He reported that General Moncada, liberal commander in chief, was cooperating to some extent with the Diaz conservative government in setting up a temporary governmental structure to tide over the period until an American supervised presidential election is held in 1928. President Diaz had accepted a suggestion from Moncada to name important liberals as governors of the six departments of the country where the liberals are in a majority.

Mr. Stimson again expressed his conviction today that the civil war was over despite refusal of Moncada and some other liberals to ratify any peace agreement that contemplated action of the presidency by Diaz until the election.

Disarmament of both liberal and conservative armies was to have been completed today.

PRESCOTT, Ariz., May 7. (AP)—Snow followed a sudden drop in temperature here late today. The snow storm continued during the evening, adding to the light snow blanket that covered this district.

Farmer Delegates
Are Chosen Here

At a meeting of the Lubbock county farm bureau association in the court house yesterday afternoon the following delegates were elected to represent Lubbock county in the district meeting which will be held here next Saturday: T. L. Sanson, Doug. Pounds, A. F. Timms, W. W. Ferguson, L. O. Burford and alternates, Walter Hitt, O. E. Eubanks, J. W. Lemons, W. G. Grimes and J. L. Benton.

Expressing themselves as well pleased with the returns on this year's cotton, the members pledged themselves to more thoroughly co-operate with the director during the coming year to the end that the organization may become stronger and enlarge its membership. The delegates were instructed to recommend R. E. Overstreet, present director, for another term.

Delegates from Crosby, Hockley, Cochran, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Gaines, Dawson, Martin, Andrews and Lubbock counties will be at the district meeting next Saturday. N. H. Payne field representative, states that a good attendance is expected. Two delegates to the state convention will be nominated at the meeting next Saturday, Mr. Payne said yesterday.

EARTHQUAKES FELT
IN VALLEY REGIONTORNADOES ADD TO DANGER
IN MISSISSIPPI VALLEY
BUT DAMAGE SLIGHT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 7. (AP)—Earthquakes, winds of tornado force and violent electrical storms added to the flood apprehension in the Mississippi valley states today, when all reports were in it developed that damage was slight.

The earth tremors appeared to extend within a 150 mile radius of New Madrid, Mo., and affected towns in Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee and also in Arkansas and Alabama.

Chattanooga, Ill., was the northernmost limit of the tremors which occurred between 2:20 and 2:35 a. m.

Some brick chimneys were tumbled down in North Jonesboro, Ark., and numbers of residents of other towns were shaken up and there apparently was no effect on river levees at first. It was feared might have been weakened by the earth movements. Residents of many towns, however, were badly frightened, for they seemed to connect the shocks in some way with the flood.

Kansas City, Mo., had a violent rainstorm that caused one death and flooded a number of streets, and the streets of Fort Smith, Ark., were temporarily flooded. About 10,000 flood refugees are housed there, largely in tents, but no more damage than the blowing down of a number of tents by high winds was reported.

Buildings were blown down by high winds in Tunica county, Mississippi, at a few miles from Clayton, Mississippi, but all reports agreed that no human lives were lost, though livestock was killed.

(By The Associated Press)
BORGER, May 7.—Complete cooperation between the rangers and the press for law enforcement in Hutchinson county, was pledged at a meeting late this afternoon held by Texas rangers and officials of the Nunn-Warren Publishing company, owners of the Borger Daily Herald.

Those participating in the conference were Callaway Calhoun, assistant attorney general; Ranger Captains Bill Sterling, Tom Hickman and Frank Hamer; J. L. Nunn, president of the Nunn-Warren company; David M. Warren, general manager; John Lamm, local manager and T. E. Caulfield, managing editor.

The conference was held shortly after the arrival of the rangers and the press were discussed to the end that conditions will be cleared up so that there will not be any more short time for rangers in the county.

Informal plans for the fullest cooperation between rangers and the press were discussed to the end that conditions will be cleared up so that there will not be any more short time for rangers in the county.

Cummings Suspended
AUSTIN, May 7. (AP)—Thorough investigation of the arrest of Victor Wagner, Borger newspaper reporter, last night by Texas ranger, A. P. Cummings, suspended today by order of Governor Moody for his alleged attempts to suppress reports of the arrest, tonight was started by the administration.

Ranger Captains Frank Hamer, Tom Hickman and W. W. Sterling, who were expected to arrive in Borger tonight, probably will lead the investigation.

Moody today ordered an investigation and the suspension of Cummings on the basis of reports he received claiming Wagner was arrested without charges and not given opportunity to make bond because of a newspaper story he had written concerning the rangers, who now are patrolling the Panhandle oil boom town.

Moody Condemns Act
In a lengthy statement, the governor declared he did not intend to "meet lawlessness with lawlessness" when he sent rangers to Borger and severely censured alleged libelous and untrue reports of Cummings in his reported refusal to allow the editor of the Borger paper to send messages outside telling of the arrest of Wagner.

"If Mr. Cummings does not know, he ought to know that he has no authority to suspend a constable over the press and that he has no right to arrest people and place them in jail because they write things in the newspapers which are not pleasing to him," Moody declared.

Cummings was ordered to report as the assistant general's office here and will be under suspension pending completion of the investigation.

NEVADA OFFICIALS ARRESTED

CARBON CITY, Nev., May 7. (AP)—Edward Malley, state treasurer and George Cole, former state comptroller, were arrested here today on a charge of embezzlement from the state of Nevada. A check of Malley's accounts is being made by auditors and representatives of the governor and other state officials.

rate in his throwing. The other Gayley brothers are scattered through out the line-up and all play a good game.

Laundry Net in Form

Since the Lubbock-Laundry nine had no previous workouts they appearance in the opening game would be unjust for criticism but with several more games on their string the city-washers will step with the rest of the clubs. Several of the laundry hitters took meaningful hits while at bat in the opening game and promise to be among the best of the batters of the loop.
Manager Lonnie Sanders states that his crew have plenty of fight and fire and will be in much better shape for next card.

Games scheduled for this week
in the city league are:

Tuesday—Bankers at Six at Tech

Wednesday—Six at Auto-Barkers

You Don't Have To Believe This Tale But It Is A Good One, Just The Same

Hurled twenty feet by the cow-catcher of the early morning south-bound train, as he dropped from a box car on the siding yesterday morning, a twisted and lanky figure slowly unwound itself from the dust, and started taking inventory, bone at a time.

"How bad are you hurt?" demanded the brakemen who had leaped from the moving cars and hurried back.

"Not at all. Train hurt?" inquired the night-be-victim.

"What?" growled the brakeman. "Glt it out of here then," commanded the stranger, and turning on his heel, started uptown.

Borrowed Quarter
Twenty minutes later, he had borrowed a quarter from an Avalanche-Journal reporter and started on his tale of woe.

"Timp is my name," he says. "John Timp, though folks mostly call me 'Hard Luck' John Timp. I aim to git me a piece of land round here.

"I ain't broke. Leastways I won't be tomorrow cause I got money coming. Wouldn't be today if it wasn't for a bunch of folks down the line at a place named Aberlene. They got the money I was saving to buy rheumatism medicine with.

A tall souther individual, with black suit, stand up collar and string tie, and black hat that drooped wearily over one corner of his face, there was a certain air of injured dignity about him that lent a truthful aspect to his words.

Girl In Distress
"Anyway I was going down the streets of this here Aberlene when I seen a little gal sort of backed off in an alley and crying fit to kill. She was a ragamuffin little thing but clean as a new pin. I stopped and ast her what the trouble was.

"Tomorrow's momma's day and I ain't got no flowers to give her," she sort of whimpered. "I ain't got a cent and I've always give her flowers on momma's day. She ain't well. Oh, Oh—" and she started boo-hooing again.

"Well I couldn't help her cause I didn't have a cent cep't that I was going to buy medicine with. But I hadn't gone more'n a hundred yards when I seen a feller with black glasses on and a fiddle with a cup sitting out in front of him, plum full of nickels and dimes.

Beggars Dimes Aid
"Mister here's where you help a pore little gal buy flowers for her maw." I says, and grabbing the cup I emptied it and beat it up an alley. I knowed it was all right cause beggars always make more money than most folks do.

"Well sir it would have done your heart good to see the way that little gal took on when I'd fetched a circle around the square and seen her a bunch of roundups I'd bought with them quarters and dimes.

"On she says 'You've no idea what you've done for me, buying all these purty flowers. I just can't thank you enough. I wish you could see my maw when she gets 'em, her laying there all the time not able to git around.'

"Mister I was so touched that I just decided to go out with the gal to see her maw and maybe cheer her up a little. But to cut a long story short she lead me about fifteen blocks way out to the edge of town to a little bity house.

Many Flowers
"Man, when we opened that door there was a whole room full of flowers. And sitting on the side of the bed was that feller with the black glasses on that I had seen up town a while before.

"Papa, here is a nice man that bought flowers for maw," the little girl said.

"Nice man nothing, that's the scamp that swiped all my money today. I seen him plain. Run and get the police quick and we'll put him in the jug."

"But mister I didn't use the money. It went to buy flowers for a pore little girl's sick maw. Wouldn't you buy flowers for a little gal's sick maw?" I asked.

Digs Up Money
"Ain't so" he says. "You got it four dollars and two bits. Dig it up or you go to jail."

"Four dollars and two bits was just the sum I'd saved to buy rheumatism medicine with and dig it up I did."

"Mister," I asked, "Since I bought them flowers I'd like to see that pore sick woman."

"Why she's lots better now," he says. "She's out selling flowers. We make most forty or fifty dollars every year selling flowers."

"Now what I says about folks like them is, they are crooks and ought to be put in jail. Mister do you reckon you could make rheumatism medicine out of hain tonic and aigs and wooter sauce?"

DRY ENFORCEMENT

beverages. The public cannot buy without someone sells. The party who sells must know as we officers do that the purchaser will use the mals and kindred products to make an intoxicant.

"Beer bottles, caps, cappers and other paraphernalia are devices used in the manufacture of intoxicating beverages and the sale or delivery of any such device is in violation of the law if the seller knows for what purpose they are to be used. We officers know for what purpose they are to be used, and we know further that the seller is aware of the purpose for which they are bought."

"It is not right that the purchaser of the supplies be haled before a court and tried for having the supplies while the party who sells same at a profit goes unmolested. Then too, enforcement of these laws is a short cut to strict enforcement of the prohibition laws."

"It is necessary that the youth of our country be protected and the officers of Lubbock county are going to enforce the above laws in their strict sense, expecting and depending on each citizen to help by refraining from sale of the above enumerated items."

"Where this warning is violated, seizure will be made and the parties who sell will be prosecuted to the same degree as any other law violator."

BRUCE BIELASKI

the table, and rested more comfortably.

Night after night the smoke-filled saloon presented the same scene. Night after night trucks backed up to the alley door and delivered cases of beer, brandy, wine and barrels of beer.

Supervising all this wet traffic was Jet black hair, quiet eyes and the look of a college fullback. This is a story of that man and his adventures in prohibition enforcement.

He was A. Bruce Bielaski, "master spy" of the secret service, later transferred to the prohibition enforcement department as chief of the "undercover men"; the man who wreaked havoc for a time in the Thirsty Thirties, the Roarin' Forties, and the Frenzied Fifties of New York.

He started the country by running a wide open saloon, under federal government supervision, giving the booze barons in the White Way district hot competition.

He slashed prices right and left, lowering Scotch and rye to 50 cents a shot, champagne to $1 a glass, gin 20 cents, beer 15 cents, and so on. New tricks brought in a steady volume of customers. The free lunch counter was especially taken care of. Instead of the usual dried up cheese, stale pretzels, unevenly cut rye bread, old sardines, and second-grade boiled ham that rival speakeasies used, the Bridge Whist had the finest of meats and fish.

Behind it all was "the boss," shadowy and mysterious. One by one rum runners were "knocked off" as a result of evidence collected by Bielaski in the Bridge Whist speakeasy. Terror swept bootlegging camps. No one knew when the big, broad-shouldered man with the mysterious federal lightning would strike. Desperate crooks went out into the night cruising about with revenge in their eyes and guns in their hands shooting down suspected "double-cross."

NEXT—Financing a government speakeasy—where Bielaski got his funds, and how he spent them. Brisking the gangsters to get evidence.

DALLAS BOOSTERS COMING ON FRIDAY

25 TRADE TRIPPERS ARE TO SPEND AN HOUR IN HUB
OF THE PLAINS

DALLAS, May 7.—One hundred and twenty-five Dallas business and professional men aboard a special train will arrive in Lubbock at 12:16 P. M. on Friday, May 13, for a visit of one hour, according to word received here today.

Growing importance of this section of the Southwest to the commercial world is given by the leaders in the party as the major reason for this visit.

This Twenty-sixth Annual Good-Will Tour, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, is bringing the Dallas party through Western Texas, Eastern New Mexico and Southwestern Oklahoma to the eighty-six towns along the route of the trip.

To Renew Friendship
"Dallas comes to renew its pledge of friendship and to offer its cooperation in the building of a greater Southwest," said W. T. Davis, General Chairman.

"To the crowds who gather around our train when it stops we promise abundant entertainment, hearty hand-shakes and showers of information about Dallas, the city that is your friend."

"The traditional hospitality of this section was no small factor in determining our itinerary. While the primary object is to bring Dallas men into closer touch with the trade territory we are not averse to having a 'good time' and no visitor to the section we are to cover can fail to have that 'good time.'"

Band concerts will be given and

NO CITY APPEAL IN DAMAGE SUIT

SECRETARY ORDERED TO GIVE
$3,750 TO WIDOW OF MAN
ELECTROCUTED HERE

The City of Lubbock will not take an appeal to the verdict handed down by a jury in 99th civil district court here Friday allowing Mrs. Grace Thompson and her son, Frances Neal, $1,750 damages in connection with the death of Claude Thompson, husband and father, by an electric light line July 5, it was announced Saturday following a meeting of the City Commission.

The action was taken upon recommendation of E. L. Klett, city attorney, who handled the city's case, and City Secretary G. W. McClary was instructed to pay Mrs. Thompson under the court's order.

Plaintiff Yet Undecided
Hedsoe and Crenshaw, counsel for Mrs. Thompson, said Saturday that no definite decision has yet been made as to whether or not the plaintiff will appeal the case.

Mrs. Thompson, who asked for $25,000 as damages in the suit, was awarded $2,000, and her small son was awarded $1,750, charging negligence by the city in permitting an excessive voltage to enter the shop where Mr. Thompson was killed when he touched a live wire.

TRUST IN PROVIDENCE:—Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust in him, and he shall bring it to pass.
PRAYER:—"He leadeth me, O blessed thought, O words, with heavenly comfort fraught."

HOME

To some, and we would say too many, home means nothing more than four walls with a hole or two to enter and a few vents called windows through which to get air. Really these are unnecessary, judging from the number that pay little attention to the place supposed to be home, and the kind that is really and truly a home in the meaning of the word as it is used to be considered by the majority of people.

We are thinking of home because of the near approach of what is known as Mothers' Day, because in the Mother depends the home. Of course father is important, very much so if he will be, but the mother is really the key-stone that makes home. There is a well-known query: "What is home without Mother?" But, perhaps, in the needs of today, this saying should be paraphrased to: "Such is home as is Mother." Moreover, as are the State collectively; and woe to that State and nation whose homes are deteriorating! As the moral welfare of the State, so is the moral character of the Mother to the moral tone of the home. In other words the Mothers of this or any other nation have in their hands, through their homes, the moral tone and moral welfare of the country in which they live.

The morale of our people is in proportion to the moral tone of our homes and of our Mothers. Small wonder, then, that we set apart a day as "Mothers' Day," not only to remind our Mothers of our appreciation of their love and kindness, but, perhaps more necessarily, to remind our Nation's mothers of the tremendous power that God has placed in their hands, and, consequently, of the equally tremendous responsibility God has placed on their shoulders. The greatest danger to our country today lies in our unfit homes, and our greatest need is more and better homes. America does not have to go far to look for the ideal Mother—not outside her own gates and not back very many years. Let us look to the Mothers of some of our greatest statesmen and warriors, and let us also listen to their sons' estimate of them; but the old-fashioned Mother of yesterday is distressingly scarce today—the old-fashioned, God-fearing mother, who never goes out of style—God bless her—who is, above all others, the Mother that is up to date, and who alone can fill the need and meet the requirements of today. Never was the need of home influence—mother's training—more needed than today. Thousands of our sons are fiercely beset on every hand. What is going to keep them from the myriad pitfalls and temptations that surround them? Little, indeed, unless it be those lessons and high inspirations taught and inculcated at Mother's knee, and the benign influence of a God-honoring home.

The present-day home is, alas! only too often well illustrated by the legend displayed in a city bakery window: "Pies like Mother made, 10 cents; but pies like Mother tried to make, 25 cents!" The real home, made by the real Mother, is unequalled and admits of no improvement, but oh, the many homes that are only makeshifts for homes!—where there is no God! no family prayer! no blessed childhood memories, no sustaining influence! where only too often children were not wanted and are unwelcome, and so made as little of as possible! where the housework is regarded as drudgery and cross words and selfishness are the rule of the day. What can we expect from children growing up in such homes as this? A small boy committed to an institution, a few days ago, and asked how he came to be there. "Well," he said, "I used to come home from school, but no one was at home, and the fire was out and no supper. Sometimes I used to get my own supper, but generally I used to go downtown and see what I could get." Naturally this got the boy into the Juvenile Court and thence into the institution; and where was Mother? You have already guessed. Mother was at the movies of the club, and this is a common observance. The child, because of having had no choice in the matter, has the first right and is the greatest responsibility in the home; therefore, and because of this fact—because the Mother has the rearing of the child—Mother gets her responsibility and becomes the central figure in the home, and; through the child, her influence affects the nation, and so "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world."

So on his Mother's Day, let us resolve to do all we can to strengthen and steady this hand as well as to congratulate the owner, and let us pray God that, above all others, that their hearts may be His shrine and that their influence may be for purity, honesty and righteousness. God bless our Mothers, our Nation, and ourselves through them.

A WILL TO PEACE

Peace we will have if peace we want. The trouble with most nations and a lot of individuals in each nation there is not a heart-felt desire for peace. There are certain classes of men who make the biggest heaps of money when a war is going on somewhere, and as most of these individuals have some way of keeping out of gun fire when the fighting is going on they are satisfied to kill or have killed thousands of young men, and allow the thousands of women and children to be rendered fatherless and the nation be involved in a bloody fight just for the sake of money. James Shotwell, distinguished Historian of the World War commenting on this subject recently says that the offer to outlaw war, as between France and the United States, made by the foreign minister of France in the name of his government, goes farther than any other offer ever made to the United States by a responsible minister of France since the days of Lafayette. Coming during the flood of comment and messages at the tenth anniversary of our entrance into the Great War, the strange fact that no person in this country had apparently noticed it has been called to public attention by President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University. M. Briand even used this phrase, "outlaw war," although it is impossible to translate it into French and needs considerable explanation in that tongue. He explained, however, what he meant, which was that France and the United States should never revert to war for the purpose of maintaining or furthering national policy. "The renunciation of war," he said, "as an instrument of national policy is a conception already familiar to the signatories to the Covenant of the League of Nations and of the Treaties of Locarno. Every engagement entered into in this spirit by the United States, toward another nation such as France, would contribute greatly in the eyes of the world to broaden and strengthen the foundations on which the international policy of peace is being erected. These two great friendly nations, equally devoted to the cause of peace, would furnish to the world the best illustration of the truth that the immediate end to be attained is not so much disarmament as the practical application of peace itself." This is not only an appeal to do something which has wide support in the United States, but it is also a use of that "public diplomacy" which this country has so strongly emphasized. M. Briand addresses the people of the United States rather than its Government. As President Butler says, this is a perfectly proper proceeding, because he is trying to ascertain whether there exists in the world that "will to peace" without which government cannot proceed to establish even so limited a reform as disarmament. The offer of France was commented upon favorably in Washington, but everyone seems to feel that the real answer must come from the people themselves. Our Government may very well await the response which should come by way of editorial comment in the press and the public utterance of interested citizens. But the question is now, as President Butler states, "squarely before the people of the United States." There is no escape from the challenge of M. Briand's appeal to us. Do we really believe in policies of peace? If so, France asks us to join with it in a denunciation of war "as an instrument of national policy." There is no request on M. Briand's part for our acceptance of the League of Nations, or of the Court, or of any other instrument of international settlement. All that he asks is that we shall not employ war as the mechanism for the assertion of American policies, and that is what "outlawing of war" means. Do we really mean it?

Little Avalanches

It is sometimes difficult to guess what effect a reform law may have. England passed one forbidding the publication of details in divorce trials. Now a news dispatch from London states that because of the secrecy provided by the law, divorces are rapidly increasing.

According to an exchange, the hero of a recent novel is a warm proposition. As described by the author, "His whole face lit up; his cheeks flamed, he gave a burning glance; then blazing with wrath and boiling with rage, he administered a scorching rebuke."

Unto The Least

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that the high school band is going to Wichita Falls next week to get that first prize and there is no one who is more anxious for them to win it than the Avalanche-Journal. We believe this organization is one of the most worthy of any, and the members have been faithful to the director and vice versa.

It is reported that Joe Bailey is proposing to modify the prohibition law. All right, but who is Joe?

It is reported that Henry Ford has asked the contractors not to tell him the exact cost of this $1,000,000 home. There is no danger Mr. Ford. It would be more than they told you it would be anyway.

It is reported that there has been a great increase in the birth rate in England. Possibly a lot of folks are getting off being born in order that conditions may settle down a bit. If it were over in America we would say that the unborn is possibly waiting on more homes being established.

SOUTH PLAINS PRESS

CLEAN SIDE WALKS

In Monday morning's mail they came a letter with the following suggestion:

"The children of the Snyder Public Schools thought it would be very nice of you to put an article in the newspaper telling the people up to spit on the sidewalk."

Yes, the Times-Signal is always willing to help in the clean sidewalk movement. We have always contended that spitting on the sidewalk is an unnecessary evil, especially those who chew tobacco. We do not mean to say that those who chew should quit chewing, but we do contend that expectoration should be relegated to the highways or proper receptacles, rather than on the sidewalks where ladies must pass.

Well, if every boy and girl will consider himself or herself an active committee of one, the goal can be reached. The first thing to do is to see that all sidewalks are thoroughly cleaned. The second step is to keep them clean.

That doesn't sound hard. We recommend it as a first-rate civic project for the youngsters—Snyder Times-Signal.

We think the children of Snyder are taking a very important step. If the women's clubs of that town and all others will join the school children in putting on a campaign of that kind it will not be long till this thing of spitting on the sidewalks and all over the walls of the business houses, will cease and people will begin to think of being more decent. Men are worse than boys in some respect. They will show tobacco and a bag will not. They will walk in their beds of mud and slop and men will walk around in mud and apparently enjoy it, but it is a little hard to where we have been contending that reform can start and that is with the women. They can make the men quit spitting on the sidewalks and they can make them quit smoking and putting the smoke in the girls' and women's faces. If they want to, but women will have to become more modest, and they will have to refrain from many of the habits that they have before this can come to pass.

The negro is given the right to vote in the primary in Texas, provided he has the courage. C. M. Dress Post.

Never fear Mr. editor, the negro has the courage. In this day and time they have the courage to do most anything. They have the courage to come into the front of any business house without removing their hat, and talking to white folks just like they were as good as any white man. They have the courage to rent a building right next to a white man's house, and for some and carry on a questionable business right in the best residential section of the city. They have the courage to take up the entire sidewalk, and have some white man step aside to pass if he wants to. They have the courage to do most anything, and they will have the courage to vote if the law says they can, and provided they have the necessary poll tax receipt, and it will only be a matter of a few years till they will be supplied with all of the money they need to procure that, if that is all that is necessary for them to become voters, and although there is supposed to be a law that one must do his own voting, this can be satisfactorily arranged and is being done in some places where votes are badly needed. It is said that in one county in Texas one man votes the entire county and he does it by means of a rule, it is arranged so the voters place it even with the top of the ticket and by a series of marks on the rule the voter can scratch the names opposite the marks on the rule and thus vote according to the wishes of the fellow that marked the rule. This can be done with the negro, and will be if they are given the privilege of voting. It is a matter of getting the rule marked, and the rottenest kind of politics will be involved in Texas that has ever been known.

MISPLACED FAGS

Lubbock Avalanche: It is reported that even some of the fountain clerks in Lubbock smoke cigarettes while the drinks are being mixed. They saturate their fingers with cigarette fumes and then wash a batch of ice into the water with their hands. We are of the opinion that no cigarette smoker should be employed as a clerk in any place where cats or drinks are served, or at least it should be a strict rule that they not be used while on duty. Complaints have come from some customers in this city.

State Press Says: This is the limit. Let's say, it is the limit if any fountain clerk at Lubbock has smoked a cigarette while serving cold refreshment. Nobody wants ashes in his nut sundae. Nobody wants smoke in his ice cream. Nor does anybody think a young man looks nice behind his marble bar with a cigarette clutched in his labial protrusion than he would look without it. Under no circumstances is the cigarette an aid to beauty. Let girls remember this also. It is State Press speaking, and he tells us in thunder tones that hardly anything, subtracts from a girl's attractiveness as much as a cigarette in her mouth. It would be no bad for the fountain tender to smoke while working if he dealt only in refrigerated sodas. The fact is that most fountain clerks are now lunch counters as well. It puzzles the old folks to read advertisements calling for experienced cooks to work in drug stores. The old folks can't get over the idea that a drug store is a place where they sell pills and potions. They won't believe a drug store is an eating house until they pass the door and see people at the counter chewing for dear life. Yet even the most modern of men and K. P. flatters himself that he is about as modern as anyone there is, except a bald-headed baby—object to having our grocery sandwich served to us by a fountain clerk who removes a cigarette from his oral cavity in order to blow a farewell fog upon the dainty hands of

SO THINK WE

You will find folks that will tell you that we are giving our livestock more attention than the children. It really seems that way some time, but after thinking about it, they have ever heard of a hog getting-dog-pile stuffed down his throat before meals; his spinal column adjusted, his tonsils removed, his hoofs removed, given Turkish baths and such like, so common among the children of the nation at this time.

Two American flyers have been high in the air for fifty-one hours but this record will not survive when the democratic convention meets next year. The democrats will be worse up in the air than any aviator ever has been.

It seems that so certain Cal will be nominated without opposition it not eliminated from the race before convention time, the republicans are having a very hard time finding a city that will give up the necessary expense money to get the convention. They claim they would lose money because there would be no excitement to attract visitors, and delegates would get out without spending a lot of money for hotel bills, etc.

Some years ago the Avalanche advocated the purchase of land on the canyon for the establishment of a park, suggesting a huge reservoir on the canyon. At that time land could have been bought for three to five dollars per acre, but now it is worth ten or twelve times that much and now the people are beginning to see the wisdom of the suggestion.

Sunday May 8 is the designated Mothers' Day of the nation. It is not too early to be getting ready to remember that grand old woman, wherever she may be. Write a letter to her, tell her how you feel about her, and above all things do not forget to remember her by Sunday anyway.

There are many people in Lubbock county this year who have heretofore had to borrow money to buy their supplies during the months who have good bank balances from the sale of eggs and butter.

Many a politician has caught more votes with campaign promises than they have ever been able to hold with their performances after they are elected. That is the reason why re-elections are so hard to put over.

The reports of the floods in the Mississippi valley are said to not be exaggerated. We wonder what the dear public will have to say about that, for many people declare that newspapers are all terrible exaggerators whether they are prevaricators or not.

Take good care of the trees in Lubbock and you will be proud of them in a few years. We can very readily recall when there were but few trees in this town, and old photographs will reveal to you that there was a time that this plot of land Lubbock stands on was once a very bare looking place.

The people have noticed that there is quite a change in the number of convictions in the courts of Texas lately. This is one way to reduce the crime in the state. When criminals find that the people are going to demand that the morals of the state be improved they will refrain from committing so many offenses.

Mothers' Day

(AN EDITORIAL)

Sons and daughters throughout the United States and many parts of the world, will this morning and tomorrow pay loving tribute to her whose memory was yesterday, is today and will be forever on this earth, their guiding star—MOTHER.

There are many who have strayed from the starlit pathway, but they have never yet gone so far that a mother's love has not followed them and stood every test to which devotion and sacrifice could be subjected. Mother-love has never deserted and it will never desert an offspring, because it is an eternal endowment of God and cannot change.

The love of Mother is an unfailing as the promise of God; as deep as the devotion of that tortured body as it dragged the cross atop Golgotha, and as endless as eternity. It gives all, freely, asking nothing in return but to be near the bone of its bone and the flesh of its flesh; it tolls unceasingly without any desire for reward other than to see the object of its affection only love, happiness and peace without end.

Someone once said that "God could not be everywhere so he made mothers." That is a beautiful sounding sentence but so untrue. Because God is everywhere that Mother goes. Mother is from God, a part of Him and His earthly ambassador! There is an unseen halo—a guardian angel—forever over Mother. It was placed there as the signature of the Ruler of the Universe to show to the world that Mother came from Heaven.

Little hands and little feet, weary from their play, are reaching into Mother's arms, and little eyes close as the Sandman responds to Mother's sweet voiced pleading for rest for her babe. Childhood troubles and griefs are minimized, if not entirely blotted into forgetfulness by the soothing lullaby and the loving and kisses of Mother.

When her children go out into the world, away from Mother's home, it is her love which follows them to guide them right. That Mother goes with them is from God, a part of Him and His earthly ambassador! There is an unseen halo—a guardian angel—forever over Mother. It was placed there as the signature of the Ruler of the Universe to show to the world that Mother came from Heaven.

So, when Sunday comes, pay your full measure of devotion to her who gave you birth. If she is still with you on earth, tell her ways in which you can make known to her your thoughtfulness and your appreciation of all that she has done for you.

As with other infectious diseases all discharges from the nose and throat should be directed as well as articles contaminated by these discharges. When the disease has passed, the room should be thoroughly cleaned and aired.

Children may well be instructed not to associate with other children who are constantly coughing or who are said to be suffering with throat irritation.

For a period of seven to fourteen days before the characteristic develops the child is passing through what is known as a catarrh stage. At this time the upper respiratory tract, and the nose and throat are irritated and secrete mucus. There may be severe paroxysms of coughing, at first dry. These coughs occur in series or in showers at intervals.

After the characteristic whooping appears the person continues to be liable to transmit the infection for at least three weeks, and perhaps much longer. It is perhaps well to consider the person as capable of spreading the infection as long as the whoop continues, and for two weeks after it ends. During such a time he should be kept away from other children, and certainly kept away from school and public places.

Physicians are convinced that it is possible to prevent the disease in children who have not had it by injecting them with a vaccine made from the bacteria associated with whooping cough. While this vaccine is not effective in all cases, the evidence seems to be good that it does prevent the recurrence of the disease, and of service in preventing the child from catching the disease.

As a chain is only as strong as its weakest link, so is a fever only as strong as its weakest point. There are many weak points along the levees of the Mississippi river and its tributaries is evidenced by the terrible toll in lives and property exacted by the recent floods. Levees which are too weak to withstand any possible flood pressure are more than useless, because they give to the neighboring population a false sense of security. Many lives were lost in the recent floods because people trusted the levees to hold, and they did not hold. Then when they gave way it was too late for the victims to escape.

The people of the Mississippi Valley are not to be under a false sense of security. It is imperative that the entire system of flood control must be revised and enlarged. The damage wrought during the past month is staggering. It represents an amount which would have gone far toward affording adequate protection to this fertile region. It is a calamity which presents a serious national problem.

she has done for and been to you. Whatever way you choose will make her, for the moment, forget all heartache, the toll writhed and calloused hands, and the silver threads which, when you were a babe at her knee, shone with all the resplendence of burnished gold.

Perhaps she has seen her hopes for you fall of fulfillment, but what of that? Your Redeemer could not have his every wish gratified, yet his love is unchanged. Mother's love surmounts every obstacle and it laughs at every failure, as it burns on and on for her children.

If Mother had journeyed beyond the veil, you should forsake for a while the temporal things that occupy so much of your attention daily, and communicate with her across that boundless space that winds into that realm where sorrows and cares vanish as the mist beneath the shafts of the morning sun, where she awaits the reunion which will never be broken.

LAUGHS

Meas for Job
The Sunday school lesson was on Job. The superintendent was endeavoring to picture the painful existence of Job to his youthful audience. To this end he was dwelling at length upon poor Job's sufferings and the futility of medical treatment.

A small boy who had been absent in the tale held up his hand. "What is it, Willie?" asked the superintendent.

"Have they tried Doctor Smith?" asked Willie, naming the family physician. "Philadelphia Inquirer."

Tied and Untied
"He's all tied up, he says." "And makes a very untidy yock-ace at that!"

Nature Compensates
"Nature," explained the philosopher, "always tries to make compensation. For instance, if one eye is lost the sight of the other becomes stronger, and if a person grows deaf in one ear the hearing of the other ear becomes more acute."

"Faith," said Pat, "and I believe you're right, for I've noticed that when a man has one leg shorter the other is always longer." "The Outlook."

LUBBOCK TO HONOR ITS GIRLS THROUGHOUT WEEK

CAMPFIRE GIRLS TO HOLD SWAY AS CITY OBSERVES NATIONAL PROGRAM OF GIRLS' WEEK; PLANS COMPLETED

Next week is to be Girls' Week in Lubbock and citizens of the city are to have opportunity to pay to their daughters the tribute they paid to their sons last week. The Camp Fire council is in particular charge of the plans, which include public programs showing the benefits of Camp Fire work to the adolescent girl. These programs are to begin next Saturday and will continue intermittently through the week.

Because today is Mothers' Day, the girls of the city joined with the boys in attending church services last week and in being given recognition in the church programs on that day. The pastors' association having joined with the Camp Fire officials in planning the observance.

Camp Fire for Girls, Only.—Camp Fire is the only organization in Lubbock that is devoted exclusively to girls with an effort to develop them into better citizens. It is eligible to join when she is 10 years of age and may continue the work until she is 18 or more. Usually after she reaches maturity, a young lady, who continues in the work, takes a guardianship of a group or takes up organization work.

W. Gamel is president of the council here that directs the work of Camp Fire and Mrs. R. H. Martin is president of the Lubbock association, composed of the guardians and assistant guardians of the six groups of girls, each composed of approximately twenty members.

The programs that are to be given next week will include a public council fire with the awarding of awards and other symbols of honor. Mrs. Martin said yesterday.

Torture Chamber For Auto Parts

Machines Break, Pound, Twist and Run Pieces to Death to Assure Perfect Products

This is the seventh of a series of articles on "How the Automobile is Made."

By ISRAEL KLEIN

Science Editor, NEA Service

Not content with the constant checking and testing that accompanies the construction of an automobile, the manufacturer has set up a veritable torture chamber for representative parts.

It is called the metallurgical department, for constructive and scientific reasons, but it is actually a chamber of horrors for the parts that get there.

Hardly has a piece started on its rounds here than it is broken up, a part to be tested with chemicals, another to be ground down for observation under the microscope, another to be given the test of fire, while the rest of it goes through a pounding and hammering, a pulling and twisting, such as to make the worst human tortures of the dark ages seem tame in comparison.

Fortunately it is only metal and fortunately also it is for the good of the other parts of the car that their representative is put to such torture.

Hill Climbing Inside

For instance, an entire rear end is sent to the metallurgical department for test. It is first attached to a dynamometer that has a pull on it equal to driving a heavy sedan up a 16 per cent grade. That's kept going all day and night, putting a more severe strain on the differential than will ever be met in practice.

The wheels are taken out, if they've survived, and put into the impact tester. A heavy weight is dropped on the teeth of the gears from a height of about 12 feet, until the teeth break. The observer can figure what was required to break the teeth and whether it was more or less than the limit.

The pressure of a diamond-pointed hammer on a steel part makes an indentation that tells the metallurgist how hard that piece of steel is. This is one of many tests in the modern auto plant's metallurgical department.

tion for actual use.

Not through with this, the broken gear has a chip taken out of it. That's sent to the chemist who sees whether any impurities can be found. Another part is milled down smooth and then put under the hardness and resilience tests.

A steel or black diamond ball is pressed into the part under a pressure of 3,000 pounds. The diameter or depth of the hole made is a measure of the part's hardness.

A light, diamond-pointed drop hammer is dropped on the part, and the degree of indentation is recorded on a dial.

Crystals Are Examined

The remaining part is taken into a dark room and the surface of the break put under an ultra-microscope, one so powerful that the crystals of the metal can be seen jutting out in bold relief. These are studied to see what happened to them while the part went under the heavy strains.

A fine, sapphire-pointed instrument, called a micro-character, puts a scratch on the exposed crystal surface. That scratch is so fine that it can be seen only through a microscope that magnifies it 1,000 times. That scratch can be measured to within a hundred thousandths of an inch.

A solidly built machine touches a spring from no load to full load, 120 times a minute until the spring breaks under the strain. In actual fact, no spring is under no load, and none is flattened down completely to full load. But that's the purpose of this test—to assure good construction for the worst conditions of driving.

A good spring will stand as many as 1,250,000 reversals of this sort before it breaks. A poor spring will break at 250,000 reversals.

Steel Shafts Twisted

Sometimes a drive shaft or a rear axle is sent up for the torture test. These parts undergo a severe torque or twist in practice. So they are put under a torque test that far surpasses the stress of ordinary driving.

The shaft or axle is put between a powerful engine and a strong clutch, and a twist is put on it equal to as much as 25 degrees from its normal position. It is then brought back to the zero position, and if it shows no tendency to deviate from the zero after being twisted, the part is considered perfect.

In this test the engine puts a torque of 22,000 inch pounds on the shaft or axle. That's 11,000 inch pounds greater than the highest torque resulting from any automotive engine.

Other parts are put through what is called a fatigue test, which tells

AUTOMOBILE MANUFACTURERS TURN ATTENTIONS TO MANY PROBLEMS IN WHICH THEIR PRODUCTS NOW FIGURE

By ROY J. GIBBONS
NEA Service Writer

CHICAGO, May 7.—Automobile manufacturers are taking official cognizance of traffic conditions which their product has brought about.

Up to the present the manufacturers have been interested solely in production.

Now they have become performers. Their horseless carriages grown universally popular and has turned Frankenstein upon its creators.

It has brought about traffic problems and a threatened saturation point.

So the manufacturers have set themselves the task of unravelling the scramble at the crossroads as a measure both of good business acumen and responsibility.

Standard Road Signs

The first expression of this new spirit was manifest the other day in Chicago when the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce got together the official and unofficial representatives of 57 American cities.

The whole gamut of the traffic problem was taken for discussion. Delegates went on record as unanimously favoring a national movement to standardize road signs into five different shapes each to have but one meaning.

Robert Kinney, manager of the Regional Planning Association of Chicago, introduced this idea, patterned on work already done in this direction by C. M. Buecock and J. M. Mullins, Minnesota state highway officials, both of Minneapolis.

Uniform signs would do away with much of the present perplexity which arises from the multitude of indicators now in use, Kinney advocated.

Progressive traffic lights were recommended as more efficient in large cities than the present wave lights which hold up traffic lanes for blocks at a time.

"No Parking" Hurts

One Detroit manager of a chain garage system went on record as favoring limitation, but not total abolition of congested district parking.

"If no parking at all is permitted car owners won't bring their cars to town. That will hurt all business in general as well as the garage business in particular," he said.

The conference agreed that standard traffic ordinances must be legislated in all cities to agree with the basic problems of transportation and be individual only to fit the city's particular needs.

It was also conceded that no great apprehension need be felt over what might happen in the future in already congested districts where buildings are being erected to even greater heights and drawing more traffic into the district.

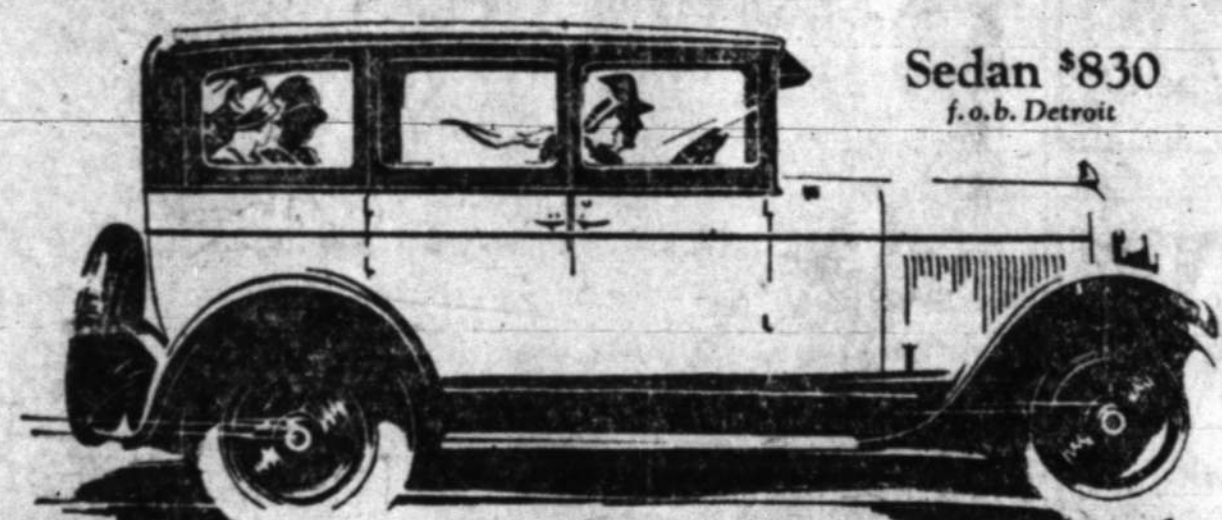

When congestion becomes too bad there is a migration from the focusing point into outlying districts, a fact attested by the recent rise of neighborhood department stores.

DIESELS TO RACE

Diesels, or crude oil burning engines will finally participate in auto racing. T. E. Myers, secretary of the Indianapolis Speedway, announces rules are being drawn for such a contest in 1928.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, selects three girls from his establishment—BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON—to come into his home as his wards for one year because he believes they have worthy ambitions.

Billy Wells, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one of the three who is serious. The others, he, thereby winning the advantage of his home, wealth and position for the year.

MRS. MEADOWS, widow of a former governor, is acting hostess for the girls. Her nephew, DAL ROMANINE, a fascinating man of Oriental appearance, is cleverly "playing up" to all three of the girls, much to the anguish of Billy, who is infatuated with him. When Billy returns to her mother's home for a living visit, she is irked by its plainness.

CLAY CURTIS, son of the store owner, has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family in the poor section of the town, working in the Truman automobile factory in the day time and writing music at night. Billy is discouraged because PROF. NAVRATIL tells her she will have to work hard five years before she can attain her goal.

At the luncheon table Billy learns that Dal and Winnie Shelton are going skating.

When Dal includes her and Nyda in the invitation, both refuse, though Billy is tormented with the knowledge that Winnie will have Dal to herself.

Billy learns she is the only one of the three girls invited to the Bradleys to a dance. Ralph Truman asks her to go.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

When Billy went to her room to change the autumn leaf evening dress for an afternoon frock she was reminded by the telephone on her dark walnut secretary that she should telephone her mother the added report of Navratil on her playing that T. Q. had passed on to her. She lifted the receiver of the phone—it was an extension—and was startled to hear Nyda's voice, sharp and angry, rapping out a peremptory command. "Now listen, Eddie, I've told you not to call me here. I'll meet you like I promised."

Billy replaced the receiver as noiselessly as possible. So Winnie had been right. Nyda was going out with Banning. But why did she want to be about it? T. Q. had made it very plain that the chauffeur would be welcomed in his home as a sweetheart of Nyda's. And Nyda most certainly had been engaged to Eddie Banning. Why, everyone in the store knew that.

Of course, Billy mused, the agreement which the girls had signed had specified that they were not to marry during the year. But an engagement was not a marriage. Perhaps Nyda looked higher than Eddie Banning now. But if she had broken off the engagement in the hope of snaring bigger game, why did she meet him clandestinely?

Billy shrugged and gave it up as a hopeless puzzle. She took her violin and began to practice the scales to which Navratil had sentenced her.

She had played for only five minutes when Mrs. Meadows, in a purple silk negligee, knocked at her door and sweetly asked:

"So sorry to interrupt you my dear, but would you mind practicing in the music room downstairs? I always take an afternoon nap, and since my room is just across the hall from yours—" She paused, delicately, with uplifted brows and an ingratiating but somehow unfriendly smile in her faded eyes.

"Certainly, I'm sorry I disturbed you," Billy apologized.

"About the dance tonight, dear girl," Mrs. Meadows stepped into the room, shut the door and lowered her voice confidentially. "As an artist, a person of very great talent, you will undoubtedly be asked into homes that will not welcome Nyda and Winnie. They are dear girls, of course, but not—quite."

"Neither am I, Mrs. Meadows," Billy cut in flatly. "If I receive invitations from the inner circle, I'll know I'm expected to pay my way with my fiddle. Good practice, I suppose—get me used to a high-hat audience."

"Don't be difficult, my dear," Mrs. Meadows shrugged, then surprised the girl by turning back to her and kissing her on the cheek.

"Now why," Billy thought, her hand unconsciously going to her cheek, "why did she do that? She doesn't look as if she really cares two whoops about any of us. What's she up to? Oh, I'm getting to be a catty and suspicious little beast! Get wise to yourself, Billy!"

She marched down the stairs, hugging her previous violin, a sheaf of music and the tall iron stand to hold the sheets. The music room was the first room on the left of the hall, opposite the drawing room, and opening into the library, where T. Q. had been in the habit of spending most of his leisure hours.

She was absorbed in her playing, her brow furrowed with a frown of concentration as she tried to recall all of the criticisms Navratil had made of her fingering and bowing when a voice paralyzed her, her wrist, stiffening the fluttering fingers of her left hand into graceful rigidity.

"Mignon! May I interrupt for just a moment?" That low, caressing, deep voice that was like no other voice in the world.

She did not hear his footsteps on the soft, thick rug. Before she knew that he was near, he stood before her, his black eyes smiling soberly. His lean, brown, salt-smooth hand took the hand that was still curved in a clasp of the bow above the violin. Very gently he disengaged the bow from her relaxed fingers and laid it on the music rack. Then, smiling a little whimsically, he raised her hand to his lips.

She snatched her hand away and drew back a little, flushed and trembling. "You mustn't do that!" Her voice shook with anger, but her betraying eyes pleaded with him not to believe what her lips said.

"Your hands are like white butterflies," he told her. "I've said that to you before, haven't I, Mignon?"

"Why do you call me that?" She reached for the bow but her hands were shaking so that she was ashamed and clasped them tightly at her sides.

"Mignon!" His voice was very tender. "Because you are so little, so very little. And because I don't like to think of you as a foolish little girl named Billy. But I've come to beg you to join Miss Shelton and me for the skating party."

"You thought of it rather late," Billy reminded him, trying to regain her impudence and truculence. "Pardon?" he contradicted her gravely. "I asked for you when I called at twelve, and Miss Shelton answered instead. I told her to relay my invitation to you and Miss Lomax. I thought of course she had done so."

"The reporters and photographers came," Billy smiled with sudden relief. "And I suppose she forgot. I've got to practice," she reminded him, forcibly.

"Just this once," he begged. "There will be so many days to practice."

"Hello there, Dal!" Winnie's high, tinkling voice came from the doorway. "I'm ready. Sorry you can't come, Billy."

When they had gone Billy doggedly practiced scales, but she no longer furrowed her brow over Navratil's many criticisms and instruction. She played mechanically, while she tortured herself with pictures of Dal and Winnie skating together on river ice.

"Oh!" she exclaimed at last, disengaged from her scales, but she no longer furrowed her brow over Navratil's many criticisms and instruction. She played mechanically, while she tortured herself with pictures of Dal and Winnie skating together on river ice.

viciously as her galoshes ploughed through drifts in the gardens. All four she felt entirely sane and in high good humor with herself, for she believed she had routed Dal Romaine from her blood. She practiced for another hour, keeping her mind on her music for at least forty minutes of that time, then, tired and drowsy, she went to sleep without in the least intending to do so, curled like a contented kitten in one of the big, overstuffed chairs, drawn up to a window overlooking the front lawn. She snapped off the light in the floor lamp, which she had drawn up to her music rack, and the room in which she slept her first deep sleep in days was gray with early twilight.

She was dreaming of Dalhart Romaine, a strange Dal, dressed in queer robes, seated before an idol, his sleek, dark head swathed in a turban of many colors. Funny—the idol looked like T. Q. Curtis. It spoke, and the voice was T. Q.'s, gruff, stern, clipped—she could hear the words—

"I tell you, Pres, there's no use arguing and quarrelling about this thing any more. I'm going to adopt one of those three girls as my daughter when the year is up, and that's final. I want to know what's going to become of my money."

"You're a fool, T. Q. and I'm a good enough friend to tell you so—" It wasn't a dream. Billy blinked in the twilight of the room, her sleep dazed brain groping for the meaning of the incredible words she had heard.

"And I'm old enough to do as I please with the money I made myself," she heard old T. Q. say with suppressed violence.

She was about to slip out of her chair, let them see that she was there, when the door into the library opened and closed with a bang. She sank back into the hugging comfort of the big chair, huddled there, trying to think, to reason.

So that was what T. Q. had been "up to" all along. He wanted a daughter. She Nyda and Winnie were on probation as candidates for his name and his fortune. She would have to tell him that she had heard. But the thought did not send her tumbling out of the chair, rushing into the library where the rumble of a quarrel continued. If she told him that she knew his plans he would call it off, undoubtedly. She would cheat Nyda and Winnie—and herself—out of their glorious year. Suddenly she knew what she must do. She slipped out of her chair, snatched up her violin, and sped noiselessly out of the room and up the stairs.

Billy flies to Clay for advice and they quarrel as usual. Read the next chapter.

STIFFER SHAFTS FEATURES OF TRANSMISSION

Outstanding among the changes recently announced in Dodge Brothers' entire line of passenger cars is the adoption of a sturdier, more compact transmission with the gears arranged for standard shift. The new gearbox, according to the announcement from the factory received by W. W. Royalty of the Royalty Motor Company, local dealer, entered production at the same time as the new Dodge Brothers motor which has been featured in the company's recent newspaper, magazine and posterboard advertising and which has been the subject of such widespread comment throughout the automobile industry.

"The aim of the designer," says Mr. Royalty, "was to provide a gearbox so sturdy that although transmitting the increased power developed by the new engine it would sustain the good reputation earned by the former transmission for long life and freedom from wear. Another feature of the new transmission is ease and quietness of shifting. This reduces the amount of effort required to operate the car under modern traffic conditions and thus increases the pleasure of driving."

"The gears are heavier and stronger than those of the former transmission and are made of chrome vanadium steel heat-treated in electrically heated furnaces the temperature of which is accurately and automatically controlled within close

SOMETIMES there is a peculiar "feel" behind the steering wheel that seems to warn the driver of something gone wrong.

The motor may be humming along in tip-top shape. Yet there it is, a sort of drag on the whole car, a feeling that the engine is pulling harder than usual.

The steering, too, seems more difficult, and the wheel must be gripped tight to keep the car from swerving out of control.

What's wrong lies in the tires or in the front wheels and axle.

The tires may be under-inflated, making steering especially hard. The pitch or toe-in of the front wheels may be out of adjustment, enough to make control of the car difficult.

Perhaps even the caster, or slant, of the front axle may be off a degree or so, and the wheels may be shimmying as a result.

TIRES, for easiest driving, should be kept inflated at the pressure designated by the manufacturers of the car.

Eighteen tires usually take about 35 pounds pressure. Cords go up to 60 or 70 pounds.

Too much pressure will cause susceptually to hard knocks from irregularities in the road. The driving is easier, but the riding is hard on the passengers.

THE front wheels have to satisfy three important requirements in order to make driving easy and riding comfortable.

First, they have to have a definite pitch, or an inward slope, so that the bottoms are from one to three inches closer together than the tops.

Secondly, they must "toe in," or slant inward horizontally as well as vertically, so that their forward edges are closer together than the rear.

Lastly, the axle has to have a definite tilt, or caster, which prevents shimmying, or wandering, of the wheels.

If the pitch or toe-in of the front wheels of a car are off just an inch, the tires will drag a mile sideways in every 16 miles the car is going forward.

That's what caused not only undue wear on the tires, but that uncomfortable "effect" at the wheel, the kind that makes you think a heavy weight is dragging along behind. Steering, too, is much more difficult.

UNEQUAL pressure by four-wheel brakes, or a sudden hard twist in turning, a corner may upset the balance of the front wheels. A slight shock, a bump against the curb or over a rut, may be other causes for such trouble.

The bushings, pins or bearings in the wheels and steering system may be worn so as to cause the wheels to wobble, or the steering to be uneven.

The remedy lies mostly in prevention—in keeping the entire steering system tightened up, and in getting a monthly check on the pitch and toe-in of the wheels, and the caster of the axle.

Hog Profits Aiding Lockney Farmers

LOCKNEY, May 7.—The hog raising industry is on an upward trend in the Lockney section, and the local hog industry is very optimistic over the present outlook. Mr. R. C. Ayres of the Farmers Grain company has about 300 head and expects to add about 100 more to his bunch to fatten out for the California markets.

E. L. Griffith, local hog buyer, states that he has about 300 head which are practically ready for the market.

The hog business has accomplished much as a sideline on Floyd county's diversification program. Because of the fact that the farmers have had hogs, cream, poultry, eggs and other produce to sell this year, it kept the business up to normal in the face of the low priced cotton. The indebtedness of the farmers in this section is nearer paid up at present than it has been in a number of years.

The coming of a fair wheat crop to this section, supplemented by these additional crops, will do a great deal toward bringing the Plains country up to normal in a financial way.

PREPARE FOR TOURISTS
LONDON.—Hotel proprietors expect 30,000 Americans to visit England this summer and are getting ready to receive them. They expect the American to spend $100, 000,000.

Are these advantages worth 25¢ a week to you?

YOU'll say they are—and a great deal more! Yet you get all these advantages with Conoco Ethyl Gasoline at an average extra cost of only 25¢ per week. Since they've used Conoco Ethyl Gasoline, many motorists have forgotten that their motors ever knocked—and they are pleased not only because of the smoother riding but also because Conoco Ethyl—by eliminating knocking—has saved wear and tear on the engine and thereby saved double its extra cost in overhauling bills. It is the real economy fuel—the anti-knock gasoline which has no substitute. To be sure, regular Conoco Gasoline is the ideal gasoline for normal motoring operation, but when abnormal conditions have to be met, as for instance, when the cylinders are choked with carbon, you need Conoco Ethyl—because the Ethyl fluid gives very definite qualities which no gasoline—Conoco or any other brand—can have without it. Those who want anti-knock smooth motor operation under all conditions will ask for Conoco Ethyl Gasoline—at the sign of the Continental Soldier.

The WOLVERINE is here!

The Newest American Car

By One of Oldest American Builders

Four months ago, the Reo Motor Car Company announced the Reo Flying Cloud. Its instant acceptance by the public has been one of the outstanding features of an otherwise colorless automobile season. Now the Reo Motor Car Company announces the Wolverine.

Named for the strongest animal of its size in all the world, the Wolverine—substantially lower in price and somewhat smaller in size than the Reo Flying Cloud—will bring to an even wider field of motorists that honesty of construction and sureness of performance for which Reo automobiles have always been known.

The Wolverine is small enough for easy handling and low operating costs—but no power, nor brawn nor beauty was sacrificed in making it smaller.

It's fast—fast on the getaway, fast on the open road and quick to stop. Both its performance and its appearance will be a delight to those who, in the past, have looked in vain for something decidedly superior in a moderate priced automobile.

CHRYSLER SALES SET NEW RECORD

LATEST REPORTS SHOW PEAK ACTIVITY FAILS TO MEET 1927 ORDERS

All delivery records of the Chrysler Corporation for all time have been broken as a result of the spring flood of new orders that have poured in upon the company's distributors and dealers in all parts of the country, according to statements by Chrysler officials.

Last week, the officials say, was the greatest week in the company's history in point of retail deliveries and during the last two weeks deliveries have been running one-third higher than those of last year and are 75 percent above those of two years ago.

That the public demand for Chrysler cars is spread out over the entire range of the four models included in the company's production is shown by recent analyses of business made by Chrysler statisticians. No previous week in the annals of the company ever saw as many four cylinder cars delivered as were recorded last week for the Chrysler "60". Deliveries of the lighter, six cylinder "66" model also outran any total ever before recorded for that model in a single week.

New Record Is Set

Even the hitherto untouched record of the week of July 4, 1926, until now the highest "60" week on the books, has gone down before the irresistible rush of 1932 spring business. Sales of the finer "70" model are ahead of the corresponding weeks of last year by large margins, and Imperial "80" deliveries have set a new record for 1932.

Chrysler officials express particular satisfaction over the even distribution of new orders throughout the country. Even in districts where local reasons left doubt whether automobile sales would keep up, orders are coming in volume at least equal to that of last year while everywhere else the influx of business is overwhelming all past records.

Factory records of peak activity are supplemented by officials' figures of new car registration now being received. Returns already at hand from only 26 states show a Chrysler of 24 1/2 per cent in registrations over last year.

Overseas as well as domestic buying has been playing its part in Chrysler activity. All export records for any month in Chrysler history were broken in March, and the first quarter of 1932 was the best export quarter in the company's annals.

when and to what extent a piece of machinery breaks under a constant strain. The strain is always of the type similar to that which it endures in practice. It may be a weight, or it may be a twist.

An operation similar to the fatigue test is one in which a steel beam is bent slowly until it breaks. A chart shows the energy and time it takes to break the part.

The destructive operation extends even to the examination of the various types of lubricating oils sold in the United States. These oils are broken up into their component parts in the chemical laboratory and evaluated on the basis of their actual lubricating properties.

This price of the field from which each comes is no index to their value, say the chemists.

The result of these tests is that the automotive builder can feel certain of the quality of his product.

DERRICK BLOWN DOWN

Windstorms in Mexico Oil Fields Do Huge Amount Of Damage To Equipment

MEXIA, May 7 (AP)—A total of 77 derricks were blown down in the Nigger Creek, Wortham and Powell oil fields during windstorms Tuesday night, reports to oil company headquarters here Wednesday showed.

Nigger Creek lost 51 derricks, Wortham 15, and Powell oil field 11. Total damage will exceed $100,000.

Tool houses were damaged, machinery stopped and houses unroofed in the Nigger Creek field, which is eight miles northwest of Mexia. Damage is estimated at $15,000.

The Mexia and Wortham fields suffered only slight damage. The Transcontinental oil company was the hardest hit, losing forty derricks. Lightning struck several houses in Mexia, tearing down chimneys and doing other damage.

Any business firms established in France who wish to employ a worker not of French nationality must obtain permission from the Ministry of Labor.

Alpine Puncher Is Panther's Nemesis

ALPINE, Texas, May 7. — Mr. James E. Casner, owner of Rancho Lamota, near the Mexican border in the Big Bend section, has returned to Alpine after several days spent on his ranch last week, and he tells of an interesting capture of a large panther recently by his foreman, Tom Burdett. Tom Burdett is a typical West Texas cowboy, and is certainly an expert roper, and if there is another man in Texas or anywhere else, who can rope a vicious man-eating panther, Alpine would like to know about it.

Here is the way it happened—Tom Burdett went to one of the goat camps, four or five miles away from the headquarters of Rancho Lamota and looked at one of the traps set to catch a coyote or other stock destroying animals. He found that he had caught a large panther. Hearing a noise he looked around and discovered another large one nearby. Not having a gun, he decided he could not allow such a destructive animal to escape, so he took a rope which he was carrying and roped the huge panther. To top the day, he killed another large panther before night.

This was a record in panther killing. For about sixty days goats had been killed and the number lost was running into great value, as fifty from the Casner herd had been killed and eaten by one panther—the panther becoming bold enough to be seen a time or two when after his prey. Last week a fresh kill was found, and Mr. Burdett followed the clue to find one of the males of the ranch.

He secured his gun and his hunting dogs and quietly waited for the panther to return—which is the habit as long as any of the meat remains. True to habit, the great panther returned the second night and was killed by Mr. Burdett. This added another as spoils to the other three. That section is reeking in the capture made by Mr. Burdett, of these destructive animals, since which the toll taken from Big Bend livestock has not been nearly so great.

SAINT AND SINNER

COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

BY ANNE AUSTIN

"MR. ROBERT HATHAWAY, do you want me to check up on the force and give him the information about the size of shoes they wear?" Chief of Police Morehouse answered the district attorney's question defiantly.

"The Mr. Hathaway who is engaged to be married to the sister of this defendant?" Banning snapped.

"Guess so. He's the only Robert Hathaway I know," Morehouse retorted.

"That is all, Chief," Banning dismissed him, his voice more cordial. In rapid succession Banning examined two detectives, a number of the Cluny servants, the sheriff of Marlborough County to whom Cherry and Chris had given themselves up the morning after the murder, and, finally, two surprise witnesses.

The first was Clarence J. Purdy, a prosperous middle-aged business man, a neighbor of the murdered man.

"Where do you live, Mr. Purdy?" Banning asked.

"At 513 Crescent Drive," Mr. Purdy answered gravely, his broad, fair face a little flushed with embarrassment.

"Now, Mr. Purdy, you remember the evening of Thanksgiving Day, November 25, last?"

"I do."

"Go ahead, Mr. Purdy, and tell your story your own way," Banning suggested, settling back in his chair, his pince nez twirling on a black ribbon.

"My wife and I were invited to the Cluny wedding and at about twenty minutes to nine, the hour set for the ceremony, we got the car out of the garage and drove it down the driveway toward the street. Just as the car was rolling out into the street a coupe, driven very rapidly, almost collided with my car."

"Go on, Mr. Purdy."

"The driver of the coupe wrenched the wheel, to swerve it out of the way of my car, which was going very slowly, was almost stopped, in fact. My headlights shone directly into the coupe for an instant so that I could see its occupants clearly."

"And did you recognize them, Mr. Purdy?" Banning asked loudly.

"I recognized the man as Mr. Christopher Wiley. I know him very well, was a friend of his father's. Was someone with him, Mr. Purdy?"

"Yes, sir, a young lady. She screamed and grabbed the wheel of the coupe."

"Have you since learned who the young lady was, Mr. Purdy?"

"It was Miss Cherry Lane, later Mrs. Wiley," Purdy answered.

"You mean this defendant? Please stand up, Mrs. Wiley," Banning directed curtly.

Cherry rose, her handbag slipping to the floor. In her short black crepe dress, with its wide round white organdy collar and deep white cuffs, her little face as white as the petals of a magnolia blossom, the copper-and-gold curls shining against her brow and cheeks, she looked like a frightened child, embarrassed by the presence of company.

TOMORROW: The Cluny clan takes revenge on Cherry.

TURN-TABLE GARAGE

A method of packing downtown garages "to the hilt," is suggested by a turn-table arrangement in the center which would park cars in a circular arrangement and could itself be packed full with the exception of one space for car movements. The idea is that of a Niagara Falls firm.

The most ancient vessels used exclusively for war purposes belonged to the Egyptians in 3000 B. C. Henry the Eighth of England was the first to appoint a corps of cadets for sea service and is the founder of the modern navy.

Here's Why

It stands to reason that an organization that buys for thousands of stores, can secure better prices on merchandise of good quality, than can a merchant who buys for one store alone. And when merchandise is purchased for less, it can be sold for less, and is sold for less by the Acorn Stores, Incorporated. Many manufacturers meet what is known as a merchandising crisis—when production exceeds the demand for their particular product—and in order to secure an outlet and permit their facilities for production to go along unhampered, they make huge price concessions to the Acorn Stores, Incorporated; for with thousands of stores, the outlet for their product is assured. The buying organization of Acorn Stores, Incorporated, is continually on the alert for opportunities of this nature, consequently those who patronize these stores, profit by buying better merchandise for less.

The very acme of value-giving is again evidenced in this showing of

SMART, SUMMERY

With Snyder Pulled A Great Bonehead
Major Hoople Writes On Murder Trial

By MAJOR AMOS HOOPLE
Avalanche-Journal Philosopher
I course it is none of our business, but we have been wondering it was "baiting" on Ruth Snyder a she selected a sleep-like corporedder for a killer. She cer-tly took some long chances, for there was no way to know just what hypothesized jelly" would do when new blood. Henry Judd Gray admitted that he did it while in a trance, no doubt he was telling the truth, for otherwise he would not have had the nerve—even if he was have been rewarded with his wife's wife and pocketbook.

at speaking of pocketbooks, it is as though Ruth was intent to deal, financially, herself. Her husband was, so far as is known, a man and a good provider. He allowed her to spend it on her petties" without offering objection. But that wasn't enough for her—she wanted more, and the blood she selected to get it is eking havoc for her. She wanted life insurance, but if the courts her state are half as good as y should be she will get her with assurance." Instead of Didn't Love Gray
So one thinks for a moment that he was in love with Gray—he was love too in her hands. She was love with nobody but Ruth Snyder.
As soon as they were arrested he turned against her and tried to to all responsibility, and he, in turn, paid her a similar compliment, declaring that he acted under hypothesis power. Neither of all have ever known what the love really means. To them love, lust and carnal desire spells
it. They would sell their souls for it and then exchange the gold wild parties.
A woman that can appreciate love decency will not "cheat" for money, and a man that will fall the carcasses of another man's weak mentalities. Probably is why Gray sold corpses instead of concrete. But while he is mentally, he has sufficient intelligence to know that he has been caught, and that in all probability he will be stalling in an empty chair before he has an opportunity to take another order for corpses. He will likely be accompanied by Ruth on this occasion as was on the night the two became death her innocent and unsuspecting husband.

ed on by basal desire, he would never have allowed her to have been tried. He would have shouldered the blame, assumed all responsibility and cleared her of all wrong doing. But this poor weak little corporedder didn't do that. Instead he turned against her and told her she had hypnotized him. Ruth probably had to catch him and hold him in order to show her kisses on him. Gosh, it is awful to think of a he-man—even if he does sell corpses, having to be subdued by a woman. Ruth must certainly hold him in high esteem.
According to testimony one would suppose this fellow would be afraid of mice, while Ruth might be capable of robbing a train single-handed.
But a lot of the testimony is not true. It has been hatched up by shyster lawyers who would rather collect a fat remainder than to see justice meted out. Ruth has been caught lying on several occasions, but that is to be expected. A married woman with a "honey" is capable of doing anything—murder and lying not excepted. Nobody expects him to tell the truth, so there is no good reason why she should disappoint them. But like her bustling industrial, corset peddling, and kneeslavishing friend, she knows she has a real case in court. She would gladly live without Gray's kisses if he would only die for her. She might miss them for a few days, but before the sod settled over his grave she would have picked up another just as sweet. For Ruth is going to have a man in spite of husbands, hell and high-water. If she has to "bump off" a few honest though useless husbands, she is equal to the occasion and very little help will be necessary. Just suppose her services with that of a mere corpse peddler and all the husbands in America are in danger.
Facts Are Unchanged
But regardless of how many stories
Ruth tells, and how often her
"loves" denies them, the facts remain the same. Ruth was a married woman with a good husband and a "hum" sweetheart. Ruth wanted money—lots of money, and as her "sweetie" could not supply it her husband had to. Eighty-five out of 115 dollars a week did not look good to Ruth—she is highstepper. Her husband gave her this amount, but Ruth figured he would be worth more to her dead than living. Insurance policies are wonderful instruments and more than one man has paid with his life for having his name too perfectly engraved on the "insured" side.
But it is all over so far as the unfortunate husband is concerned.
He need not fear Ruth will cross his path again even though the jury demands the death sentence.
It is a settled fact that if there is a heaven and a hell, Ruth will never see heaven unless she sees it in the movies. She and her corset peddling friend will be mutual after they begin firing the furnace.

Amarilloans Are Given Glad Hand

HEREFORD, May 7.—Hereford folks gave Amarillo Boosters a warm welcome, upon their visit to this city. The special train carrying the trade trippers arrived here at 3:45 and was met by Ralph Smith's High School Band, and several hundred business men and citizens. A parade was formed with the Amarillo band leading and marched to the center of the city where E. B. Black, president of the Hereford Chamber of Commerce and Rev. Jas. T. Ross made talks of welcome. Ross Rogers and Ben Short, both of Amarillo and D. A.
Shirley of Canyon spoke for the visitors. Band concerts, booster songs by the visitors, and a spirit of good will featured.

Indian Relics Are Discovered In The Big Bend Country On Rancho Lamota

ALPINE, May 7.—History continues to unfold, giving up data on the life and customs of the first Americans—the Indians, as skeletons, weapons, and other relics are unearthed in the Big Bend. The latest find is a group of five skeletons dug up last week on the Conner ranch, "Rancho Lamota," (sic) nifying, "The Mott," a 40,000 acre ranch far down in the wilds of the Big Bend, near the Mexican border.

Foreman Makes Discovery
Mr. James E. Casner, owner of the Rancho Lamota, has just returned from the ranch and the site of the excavation, and reports a very interesting story as follows:
He said that a Mexican goat herder, an employee, was the first to notice a large pile of rocks, which did not appear to be natural,
but looked like the rocks had been placed, or piled, by human beings.
He reported the freakish rock pile to Tom Burdett—the foreman of the Casner ranch, as Rancho Lamota is commonly called here. Tom Burdett decided that the rock pile was worth an investigation, and under turning over some of the rocks
the first indication that the spot was an Indian burial ground was the finding of arrow heads, one of which is beautiful and perfect in design, according to Mr. Casner's description.
Burdett Continues Investigation
Returning later, Mr. Burdett continued his investigation and found that originally the opening in solid rock on the hill slope was only about four feet in diameter, and he recovered a number of bones, skulls, and relics. He communicated with Mr. Casner and they decided to take powder and blow out

Progress Rapid On Alpine Test Well

ALPINE, Tex., May 7.—The new Brewster company test well about seven miles southwest of Alpine, which was spudded last week on the Wells McIntire ranch, is steadily drilling and is down below a depth of fifty feet. This new test is the nearest all development to Alpine.
Mr. J. E. Doddridge, president of the Green Valley corporation, that is now operating fifty miles south of Alpine, was in Alpine today, and reported that he had been instructed to let the contract for another test well to be drilled in the Green Valley. Mr. Doddridge said that this new test well will be spudded at an early date. He thinks the new well will be drilled in at least two miles from the old Wilson well No. 1, in a southeasterly direction. There is considerable activity in leasing in Brewster county. The large oil companies are trying to block so large tracts, but as most of the available acreage is already leased, there is not much left to be had.

Carnival Opening
Here Monday Gets Praise From Elks

The Francis shows, a carnival company, which opens a six day stand here tomorrow, under the auspices of the Lubbock Elks lodge, is the best that has ever played in this town. E. S. Sexton, secretary of the Pleasantview lodge has wired Elks officials here, W. T. Raybon, president in lodge circles here, said yesterday that money derived by the Lubbock Elks will go to their charity fund, which has done a great deal of good here in the past.
The Francis shows are playing on Avenue B, adjacent to the West Texas Commerce grounds, Mr. Ray-bon said, and will be here throughout the week. The organization is highly recommended for its clean

HICKS RUBBER CO. EXPLAINS SERVICE

FIRM TO GIVE SERVICE WITH
DAYTON TIRES L. E. GRIMES
TELLS CUSTOMERS

"Our recent announcement of free tire service to users of Dayton Tires," says L. E. Grimes of the Hicks Rubber company, "is in line with the general policy of our company that demands service from the products handled and sees that they give it after the sale of tires has been made."

The Hicks Rubber company, a strictly Texas organization with headquarters in Waco, operates 41 stores and associated stores featuring Dayton Tires in Texas alone.

The Lubbock store was originally in charge of H. T. Roberts, who is now operating a recent opened store in Plainview. At the present time and for the past year the Lubbock store has been in charge of L. E. Grimes, a local booster, member of the Kiwanis club, an enthusiastic believer in Lubbock and the South Plains.

Has Good Record
The Hicks Rubber company store in Lubbock the past year has established an enviable sales record as just recently revealed more vividly by the Company Auditor, Price Cheney, who only finished his work here the past week.

The Hicks Rubber company may have stores located in the following towns and cities of Texas: Waco, Lubbock, Plainview, Amarillo, Temple, Childress, Sweetwater, Colorado, Ballinger, San Angelo, Del Rio, Uvalde, Eagle Pass, Abilene, Laredo, McAllen, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Houston, San Antonio, New Braunfels, Lockhart, Austin, Brenham, Taylor, Corsicana, Waxahatchie, Tyler, Cleburne, Greenville, Sherman, Stamford, Abilene, Eastland, Brownwood, and Brady.

The company handles other tires than Dayton, the feature of its volume is evidenced by the fact that one month of the present year the company bought $67,000 worth of goods at a single purchase.

"We are well pleased with the sales volume in Lubbock and with the reputation of the Dayton tires have made and expect the present year to be by far the most profitable one for our company in this section of the State," was the optimistic voice of Mr. Grimes this week.

Thousands Watch Hereford Pageant

(Special to the Atalanche-Journal)
HEREFORD, May 7.—The mighty nation, America, built up by the mixing and mingling of people from many countries, was portrayed as the crowning feature of the Musical Pageant of Nations Thursday evening with Mrs. C. H. Jeffery representing the Goddess of Liberty. Nearly 2,000 people saw the program. Mrs. John McLean planned and directed the program.

Fifty seven people, selected from the cream of Hereford's musical talent were used to represent the earth American Indian, queen Holland, Sunny Italy, Romantic Spain, and the other nations of the world, and these folks were "dressed" out in the striking costumes of the countries they were representing. Selections from the music masters of the world were reproduced in an interesting manner.

The program was the high light of National Music Week which is being observed in Hereford.

The thistle has been the emblem of Scotland since 1605, when the Bannockburn battle was fought. The advance guard struck a clump of thistles and their cries of pain gave warning that saved the Scottish army.

The royal, stately club of Sweden, as a tribute to its members, is putting mechanics along the country roads to assist motorists and act as guides.

Today there are approximately five million radio receiving sets in use in the United States.

Darrow's Philosophy of Life

A Remarkable Interview With the Great Criminal Lawyer on Why We Are Good and Bad

Clarence
Darrow

BY ROY J. GIBBONS
NEA Service Writer

Copyright 1937 NEA Service, Inc.
CHICAGO, May 7.—This thing called life—

It amuses Clarence Darrow, famous criminal attorney.

Existence is pretty flat and futile, he says. Life has only one purpose, the pursuit of pleasure and the avoidance of pain.

It isn't half so good a riddle as Socrates and the other ancients tried to make of it.

Aside from being a celebrated lawyer and the man who saved Leach and Leopold from the gallows after those two pumped some of the rich men killed little Baby Frank.

"For a thrill," Darrow is perhaps the foremost apostle of the present time.

Cruel and Destructive
Life is cruel, combative, and destructive, he says.

"Man has some generous impulses—but those who are too altruistic die young. Man kills to feed his stomach and to procure for his sufficiently, and is put into jail. He will not work and so he cannot buy the pleasure of food and warmth. He therefore experiences pain.

"But whether he is good or bad he is guided by no other purpose than this one: The pursuit of pleasure and the avoidance of pain."

The Happy People
Born optimists in asylums and but are the only really happy persons, Darrow believes.

"Happiness in its true sense is a state of mind," he says. "It comes largely of good nerves and a well-adjusted physical condition. It is the gift of birth. Those born without it attain happiness with difficulty if at all."

"They may make money, achieve fame and do whatever their instincts lead them to do in the pursuit of what they may think is happiness."

"But making money and seeking fame are only expressions of the various instincts possessed by different people."

"Money making is a sign of the times just now. The signs of the times have been different in the different ages and will change constantly just as they have always changed."

The Fatalistic View
"The man who pursues happiness chases the rainbow. The future, however, lures most of us ever on. Ministers with their talk of heaven, which is the pleasure and hell, which is the punishment, deal in the same kind of futures."

"Humans ought to resign themselves. Nothing really matters. Nothing can be changed. Why worry? Worry is useless. The end is simply the end and nothing else."

"Just to know what we are here only to grasp a fleeting bit of happiness, and secure pain should be sufficient to make men realize the futility of strife and promote friendship."

The Sympathetic Man
"Sympathy and imagination for example are synonymous. The sympathetic man may pass the beggar and intends to ignore his plea. But after he has passed something grips him. He returns. You hear the clink of his coin in the beggar's cup."

"Why does he do this? Why does he come back? Because he is good? No! Because his imagination pictured the beggar's plight. The picture annoyed his nervous system. He came back to drop his coin because he couldn't help himself. It was painful to him to be unmoved. By giving the coin he stopped the pain and the result was pleasant."

"The wise man is good because he has sense enough to realize that if he is otherwise he will have pain instead of pleasure."

"Other so-called good men, seeing the acts of the good man, invest him with a nobility of soul which he does not possess."

"The so-called bad man is bad because he does not care about the future or hasn't enough sense to care about it. He is locked up in jail or starves or freezes and perhaps doesn't mind that either. He lies and cheats and does other things that keep pleasure away."

His Own Sympathy
"But after all, the good man is only a prudent man and sometimes a coward. And the so-called bad man is merely senseless or wasteful and he is often courageous."

Speaking of his own sympathy for criminals and murderers, he says:

"I'm not sympathetic because I want to be. It's because I have a sensitive nervous system and can't help myself. If I could have it removed by an operation I would."

Mrs. McCullough has been in feeble health for several years, and has been confined to her bed for several weeks. She is survived by her brother, M. J. Jeter.

When a New York farmer killed a cow he found in her stomach nails, pieces of wire and iron washers. Several pieces of wire had penetrated the animal's heart, but had not caused suffering.

A lucky Graduate to win a fine Gruen Watch

Time has wisely approved a watch as the symbol of the solid attainment and the golden promise of Graduation. Nothing so fittingly marks this day forever as the joy in possessing, at last, a real, grown-up thing.

As a token of our deep respect and regard for the boys and girls who will graduate—a fine Gruen Watch will be presented by us to the lucky boy or girl.

In our window tomorrow morning there will be a giant 8-day clock around the dial of which the names of all our graduates will appear. It will be wound completely up and when it stops, the long hand will point out the name of the lucky girl or boy. The clock will be wound and started Monday at exactly 12:30 p. m. Be here and see it well done.
