

California earthquake injures 91

CALEXICO, Calif. (AP) — With aftershocks still grumbling, thousands of Imperial Valley residents picked up shattered possessions today after a thundering earthquake injured at least 91 persons.

Police and volunteers patrolled against the threat of looting.

Damage from Monday's quake, measuring 6.5 on the Richter scale, was widespread throughout this agricultural valley of 90,000, straddling the U.S.-Mexican border about 100 miles east of San Diego.

Buildings crumbled and roofs collapsed. Automobiles were smashed by falling debris. Highways buckled, including sections of Interstate 8. Twenty rural bridges were damaged. Several fires broke out. Shattered glass was everywhere.

Firefighters stood by as officials worked to drain more than 90,000 gallons of gasoline and aviation fuel at a fuel tank farm near the Imperial Valley Airport. Nearby commercial establishments were evacuated, and authorities said they feared aftershocks could further damage three ruptured tanks, igniting a "mammoth fire."

It was the strongest quake in the 48 contiguous states since the Feb. 9, 1971, Sylmar-San Fernando quake which killed 65 people and also registered 6.5 on the Richter scale.

A six-story, 8-year-old "earthquake proof" county government building in El Centro shifted and tilted when support pillars cracked and was declared a total loss by state disaster officials.

"Our building, I thought was going about one foot either way. I guess it was something like being on a rollercoaster," a mayor's aide said.

There were no major problems at El Centro's schools. Students had been sent home at noon as part of a disaster drill. The quake hit at 4:16 p.m.

The All-American Canal, which brings water from the nearby Colorado River to this thirsty desert land, apparently suffered major damage, said authorities, who were to make an aerial survey today.

In Brawley, a water tower toppled and several mobile homes were shaken from their supports. Power and telephone lines were down throughout the valley and many gas and water mains were cracked. El Centro Community Hospital was without water for many hours.

Across the border in Mexicali, where some panic was reported, police officer Apulinar Samaran denied a Red Cross report of one fatality, but raised the number of injured in that city to at least 30.

North of the border, "there were no serious injuries," said Alex Smith, administrator at El Centro Community Hospital. "We had light casualties, bumps and bruises, minor lacerations...The most serious injury was a laceration that did not take stitches."

The quake was felt within a 300-mile radius in California, Arizona, Nevada and Mexico. Tall buildings swayed in Phoenix, Las Vegas, Los Angeles and in San Diego.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. cut short an East Coast presidential campaign swing and was to tour the valley this afternoon. Local officials have already declared a state of emergency.

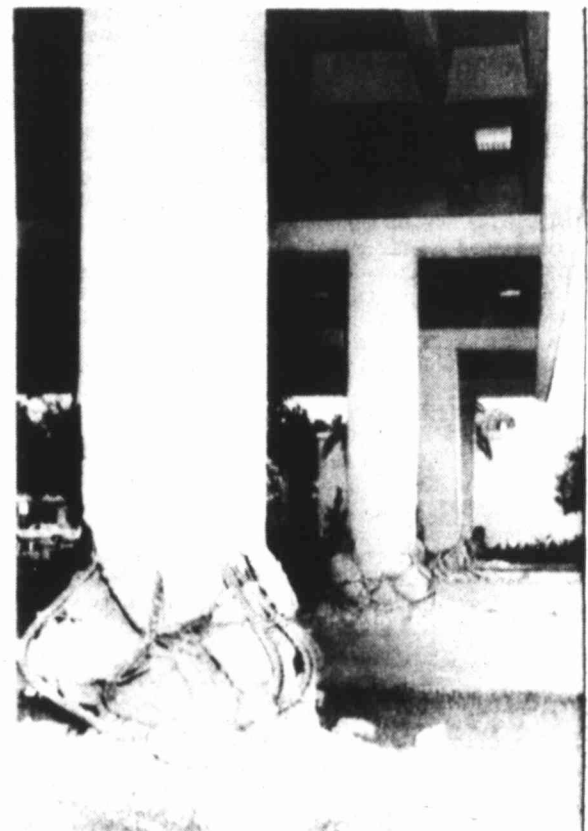

"There was window glass all over the streets. Mannequins were piled up in the windows and chimneys were down," said Dorothy Shook, 55, a store owner in El Centro, one of the hardest hit communities.

Seismologists at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena said the minute-long temblor was centered 10 miles east of here along the Mexican border and probably on the Imperial Fault, an offshoot of the murderous San Andreas Fault which cuts through much of California.

Earthquakes are not uncommon to the Imperial Valley. On May 18, 1940, an earthquake killed nine persons and disrupted water supply to crops, causing considerable losses. During this century, more than seven major quakes have struck the area.

EXTENSIVE STRUCTURAL DAMAGE — The Imperial County General Services Building is tilting from the force of an earthquake that struck southern California at 4:18 p.m. Monday. The building, located in El Centro, Calif., which the fire department says is still sinking, sits on pillars that were badly damaged.

Carter vows not to recognize Cuba until troops go

CHICAGO (AP) — President Carter vowed today the United States will not recognize Cuba until the Caribbean island nation recalls its troops from "unwarranted involvement in other countries."

At a town meeting in mostly blue-collar suburban Dolton, Ill., Carter was asked why his administration will not accept the fact that the Cuban government "is here to stay."

The president responded by blasting Cuba for "constantly interfering with the affairs of other nations. He repeated his view that Fidel Castro's government is a "surrogate" of the Soviet Union. And Carter accused Cuba of being the "most militarized country."

The president asserted that Cuba stationed 45,000 troops in other nations "where they had no business."

Until Cuba reduces its military intervention in other countries and releases "hundreds and hundreds" of political prisoners, the United States added. Earlier, Carter told his audience that the administration's economic policies are sound and will "pay off" in a reduction in the nation's inflation by the end of the year.

The total package of economic policies is the best we can have," Carter said.

Answering questions in a crowded high-school gym, the president said his administration's economic policies "are going to pay off." He will not recognize it, Carter insisted.

"After that, we'll consider it," he contended that under the voluntary wage and price guidelines, wage increases this year have been no greater than in 1978.

Carter also trumpeted statistics showing 8.5 million new jobs have been created since he took office, bringing employment to a record high.

In response to another question, Carter declared, "My hope is that interest rates have peaked along with inflation and will now be going down."

The president noted that it is difficult to maintain interest rates at levels below the inflation rate, but cited his forecast of reduced inflation as cause for hope on interest rates.

Carter also expressed an opinion that "the purchase of a home is still a good investment" despite high financing costs.

"We are doing everything we can to make sure there is no drop-off in home construction," the president asserted.

Monday night in what was billed as the largest political dinner in Chicago history, Carter came out as the leader, for the moment, in a race with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the political affections of Chicago's Democratic mayor, Jayne Byrne.

Introducing Carter at the dinner, Mrs. Byrne gave the president her support for a second term.

Big D faces shortage of teachers

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Independent School District is faced with its worst shortage of teachers in eight years and the situation is not likely to improve until a new crop of education graduates hits the job market in December, school officials say.

A new report to school board members showed that 225 DISD teachers have resigned since July — the largest number to leave the district since a desegregation plan was implemented in Dallas during the early 1970s.

The report also indicated that the worst shortages were in the areas of math and science instruction.

"We are concerned over the situation and are taking steps to correct it," said Bob Johnston, a DISD administrative aide. "We are continuing to interview applicants as we do throughout the year. We hope December will bring us a new pool of qualified applicants."

Johnston said that the district will not begin full-scale hiring just to relieve the current shortage of about 100 teachers.

"We don't plan to hire warm bodies just to have someone in the classroom," he said. "We will continue using substitutes wherever they're needed until we can find qualified teachers."

Johnston said the shortage in qualified math and science instructors reflects a current national trend.

"It's the worst it's been in several years," he said.

The present state of the economy is to blame for part of the shortage, said John Santillo, assistant superintendent for personnel services.

"It is difficult for someone who is the head of a household to maintain the semblance of a good income as a teacher," he said.

Big Spring trucker faces transporting illegal aliens raps

Tom Kirkpatrick, Big Spring resident, was arrested in Sierra Blanca on suspicion of transporting 79 illegal aliens in the back of a truck. Kirkpatrick worked for a local transport company as a mechanic. He is a local trucker and mechanic who has worked in the West Texas area in recent years. The illegal aliens reportedly paid him $500 each for the transportation across the Mexican border.

Tax equalization board appointed

The Howard County Tax Equalization Board was established Monday according to the deadline set by recently passed Senate Bill 621. The five member board consists of Lila Estes, local Realtor; Roy Watkins, past school board president; Billy T. Smith, CPA; Don McKinney, Howard College Board and Jack Watkins, former city councilman.

Big Spring School District nominated the first two board members. Smith was nominated by the city of Big Spring. McKinney was nominated by Forsan Independent School District and Watkins was nominated by City of Coahoma.

The board will equalize taxes for the nine Howard County taxing entities.

Q. Has Cabot been sold to Union Carbide? If so, why did Cabot sign an additional three year contract with no salary increase?

A. According to Michael Atchete, plant manager, Cabot has not been sold to Union Carbide. However, the three year contract was signed, that will take Cabot workers to March 10, 1982. There is no salary increase because "If you're going to close, why give salary increases?" Atchete asked. "We don't anticipate the contract going three years. It's far enough out so it won't make a difference." The contract has a severance package for the employees who stay until the end, which "was needed to get the new contract." Atchete expects Cabot to close approximately Sept. 1980.

Swindlers posing as Social Security reps fleece aged

By ANDREA COHEN
Social Security officials in the five-state Dallas region have issued warning of a growing number of cases of swindlers who prey on older people by posing as Social Security employees.

In the past two weeks, at least eight cases of swindlers were operating in New Mexico and southeastern Oklahoma, according to Don Minyard, manager of the local Social Security office. An 87-year-old New Mexico man had saved $1,358 to pay for his funeral. A con man, who posed as a social security representative and said he would get the man more benefits, took the money and disappeared," Minyard said.

Similar incidents occurred in New Mexico. A 64-year-old man lost $800 the same day, and another man lost $600 the week earlier.

An aged couple in Broken Bow, Okla., lost $260 to two swindlers posing as Social Security representatives. One of the men, posing as a doctor, said he would do a physical examination and if their were health were poor enough, they would receive from $100 to $125 more in benefits.

Other Social Security offices in McAlester, Hugo and Poteau, Okla., also have received several reports of people posing as Social Security employees in order to gain admittance to homes. Once inside, these people will try to steal money or other valuables, or sometimes will try to sell worthless junk.

In one case, three imposters entered a couples home on the pretense that Social Security wanted to give them new carpet to help their arthritis. The Social Security Administration urges everyone

Mesker back behind bars

David Lee Mesker, 1812 Main, was taken into custody Monday by Howard County Sheriff authorities.

Documents from the Texas Court of Appeals received here Thursday from Austin said Mesker's appeal to a marijuana delivery conviction had failed. Mesker was given a five-year sentence by a Howard County jury for the marijuana conviction.

Mesker has also been given three years in prison for a plea of guilt to burglary charge. He is appealing that case also.

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said today that Mesker's bondsman was told last week to bring Mesker in. However, Mesker was out of town and could not be located until Monday.

Peggy Cline wins free use of car at breakfast

Approximately 100 persons attended the second Chamber of Commerce Fun Breakfast of the season this morning.

The breakfast was sponsored by the New Car Dealers Association. The grand prize, a new car for one week use provided by Jack Lewis Buick & Cadillac, was won by Peggy Cline, an employee of Howard College.

The two $20 drawings were won by Cheri Sparks and Gertrude Hofford both of Howard College.

Mrs. J.W. Kuykendall spoke about the Community Concert and Bill Bradley publicized the Band

Spaghetti Supper to be held this Friday at the high school before the football game.

Cheri Sparks spoke about the Miss Howard College Pageant to be held October 29.

The Arts and Crafts Festival which will be held this weekend was publicized by Mel Prather. The committee in charge of this event was introduced.

The drawing for Chamber members only, this month worth $200 would have been won by Phyllis Hogan of Cherry Orchard if she had attended the breakfast. Instead, money will be added to the prize for next month's drawing, bringing it to $250.

Police beat Teen's wrist slashed

Norman H. Webb Jr., 14, 710 Galveston, was treated for a stab wound that occurred during a fight, Monday night.

According to police, Webb's assailant attempted to stab him in the stomach, but the thrust was blocked, and the knife cut Webb's left wrist. He was treated at Hall-Bennett Hospital and released.

At 7:45 p.m., local detectives arrested Tim Davidson, 19, 504 1/2 Douglas, on suspicion of aggravated assault.

Maria Galavis, 1903 S. Runnels, believes she knows the man who cut her telephone line, and then attempted to enter her home, 1:30 a.m. today. The burglar first cut the line, and then smashed the glass on a storm door and two door windows.

Ms. Galavis began to scream, and this scared off the intruder, she speculated. Damage to the home was estimated at $20.

Charlie White, 1112 S. Main, also believes he knows the culprit who stole his 1977 Mercury Cougar, sometime between 11 a.m. and midnight Monday. The car had contained a .20 gauge shotgun, and, including this, loss was estimated at $5,500.

Another car thief failed to get away with the auto, Tuesday afternoon. Margarito and Irene Flores, 1605 Cardinal, were sitting in the McDonald Realty Company, 611 Runnels, when they noticed through the window that a man had climbed into their parked car, started it and begun to drive away.

Margarito Flores ran toward the car, scaring the thief, who jumped out of the car and fled on foot. Burglars tried to break into the Big Spring Hardware Store, 1:50 a.m. today, but succeeded only in breaking some glass. The intruders threw a brick through the plate glass door, also damaging a television set inside.

The brick tripped the store's alarm, and the burglars were unable to get inside. Damage was estimated at $150.

Lavarice Webb, 710 Galveston, believes she knows the person who punched holes in the hood of her car with a hunting knife, around 6:15 p.m. Monday. Damage was estimated at $300.

Two mishaps were reported Monday. A parked vehicle belonging to Carrie Covington, 2106 Merrily, rolled across MacAuslan, struck a curb, and came to rest against the home of James White, 2905 MacAuslan, 6:40 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Sean Curran, Box 391, and Connie Fletcher, 448-B Armstrong, collided at 15th and Goliad, 7 p.m.

Polio vaccine fails

ATLANTA (AP) — The death from polio of an 11-year-old Ohio boy last year was the first known failure of oral poliovirus vaccine in the United States, the national Center for Disease Control has reported.

The child, who was not identified, died Aug. 23, 1978, of bulbar poliomyelitis caused by a wild poliovirus, the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. He had received four doses of the oral vaccine as an infant.

There were nine cases of paralytic poliomyelitis in 1978, the CDC said. All the victims except the Ohio boy survived.

Bighorn to be evacuated

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Seventy Desert Bighorn sheep will be evacuated from the San Andres Mountains next month to try to save them from a scabies epidemic that has claimed about two-thirds of the herd.

John Crenshaw of the Game and Fish Department said Monday the state will apply for military clearance for the rescue on White Sands Missile Range in south-central New Mexico. It will involve about 50 wildlife officers using nets, tranquilizer guns and helicopters.

The ewes were so infested with scab mites, which produce the scabies condition, they could not have survived the winter in the wild, he said. The disease reduces the animals' resistance to infections.

Gas chamber testing begins

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Final testing of Nevada's gas chamber has begun in preparation for the Oct. 22 execution of confessed killer Jesse W. Bishop, who still says the agony of lengthy appeals and stays would be worse than death.

Nevada State Prison Superintendent Bob Lippold said Monday testing procedures for the gas chamber, which was most recently used in 1961, are confidential. Bishop's family has endorsed his decision not to appeal. If Bishop, 46, is executed, it will be the second execution in the nation this year. John Spenklink was electrocuted in Florida last May over protests by death penalty opponents.

Eight die in plane crash

GUNNISON, Colo. (AP) — Eight persons died when a single-engine private plane crashed in southwestern Colorado on a flight from Arizona to Longmont, officials said.

The cause of the crash was not known. The plane was a Cessna 210, which is most frequently designed to carry four or six persons.

The Alfred Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic

American, Briton awarded Nobel Prize for Economics

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Nobel Memorial Prize in Economics was awarded jointly today to an American and a Briton working in the United States.

The $190,000 prize went to Theodore Schultz of Chicago and Sir Arthur Lewis of Princeton University for pioneering research into the economic problems of developing countries.

The Alfred Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic

Science, a 10-year-old addition to the original Nobel prizes, was given to Schultz and Lewis "for their pioneering research into economic development with particular consideration of the problems of developing countries" according to the citation by the Royal Academy of Sciences.

The two economics professors share the prize equally. Schultz, born in Arlington, S.D., in 1902, and an agricultural economist from the outset, has specialized in the "human factor" in economics. He took his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin in 1930 and has been Charles Hutchinson Professor at the University of Chicago since 1952, and professor emeritus since 1972.

Lewis, born at Castries on the West Indian island of St. Lucia in 1915, has been James Madison Professor of Political Economy at Princeton University in New Jersey since 1968. He is a British citizen.

Lewis is a leading figure and pioneer in developing-country research who started to publish important works on the economics of poor countries in the 1950s.

The analysis of development problems by Schultz and Lewis have a number of features in common, the awarding body noted in a statement.

The economics prize, set up by the Central Bank of Sweden in 1969, has been heavily dominated by Americans. The United States has had nine laureates in the 10 years the prize has been awarded. The two most recent were Milton Friedman, like Schultz from Chicago University, in 1976, and Herbert Simon of Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh last year.

Three of the five Nobel awards have already been distributed so far this year to nine laureates. Five of them have been Americans. Two have been Britons, one Pakistani and one German. Last year, of the nine individuals who shared in the awards, five were Americans.

Brown released on $7,500 bail

Brown was arrested on suspicion of attacking 72-year-old William Green at his home with a board.

Flag burning ceremony slated here Saturday

The ceremony held on the parking lot of the First Baptist Church was the completion of an Eagle project by Senior Patrol leader Bret Crenweige to earn his Eagle Badge.

Scout Crenweige reported to the guests present about the aim of his project to collect and properly dispose of old American flags to remind our citizens what the flag should mean to each citizen.

The ceremony will be repeated at the District Camporee Campfire to be held Saturday at 8 p.m. at the camp grounds on Country Club Road.

The public is invited to attend the campfire and ceremony.

Candle holder favorite art of Oklahoma native

Sid Gilstrap, a native of Ardmore, Okla., enjoys all forms of woodworking but says his first love and specialty is his candle holder. A recent retiree from the Ardmore Post Office, Gilstrap has been using his spare time to devote more time to his lathe and will be exhibiting his works at the Big Spring Arts and Crafts Festival on October 20 and 21 in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Talking about his candle holders, Gilstrap said "I have been making them for several years — all kinds and sizes. They are original designs, but I do duplicate when requested. Most of the candle holders are made on my lathe and some with my bandsaw and other equipment."

His choice of woods to use in his candle holders is as varied as his designs. The candle holders are "made from any kind of wood that is available. Most of this material is cut green and permitted to 'season' for about 18 months until completely dry before turning," he said. Some are made from dead trees or timber which has worm holes. These holders are the most unusual and beautiful of all, I think."

Gilstrap makes candle holders for every size candle says that "you just have to see them to believe their beauty." In addition to the holders, he also makes rustic wall plaques, book ends, spool holders, recipe holders, rustic plaques for artists, and "old fashioned stilt for the kiddies."

Single management region may be answer to U.S.-Mexico border woes

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A single management region could improve the efficiency of government manpower along the U.S.-Mexico border, say officials meeting in El Paso.

Representatives to the U.S. Border Cities and Counties meeting Monday pushed for tightening the region to consolidate management.

Once is not enough

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — Carl Eichelman certainly had his ups and downs this summer. In fact, he rode up and down "The Beast," the new roller coaster at Kings Island 530 times.

The 38-year-old computer operator for the Internal Revenue Service estimated that he waited in line for a total of about 260 hours to ride The Beast.

Once he got on, Eichelman, who often came early in the morning to avoid the crowds, estimates that he went up, down and around for a total of about 795 miles.

"I'm sure my body is completely rearranged now," Eichelman said.

Tapping their way to success

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "Sounds like a herd of buffalo," said one spectator.

"Nah, it sounds more like a herd of buffalo wearing tap shoes," said the observer's friend.

And it looked even stranger than it sounded. About 1,800 tap dancers hoofed, tapped and stumbled their way down Hennepin Avenue Monday to celebrate the opening of the Hennepin Center for the Arts, a former Masonic Temple.

Most of the dancers were children whose dance teachers got their classes motivated by saying they were going to tap their way into the Guinness Book of World Records. Others were grandmothers and professional dancers and people who never before had tied on a pair of tap shoes.

Paso border study group.

"An amazing conglomeration," he called the present setup. "It frequently fails to deploy the manpower available to the best possible advantage."

He contends management offices in the two large cities sluck agents from along the border to check merchandise entering seaports.

The proposal would exclude ports of entry away from the border in Texas and California from the control of a single management region that would be responsible solely for the border area.

William F. Hughes, district customs director here, and Manny Najera, who holds the same post at San Diego, agreed they were using border agents to the nland and dock offices.

They described it as "robbing Peter to pay Paul." The one-region plan would involve a thin strip along the border in Texas and California and the entire states of Arizona and New Mexico. The area would be under one general office and agents could not be taken from the border to other jobs, Hughes said.

The delegates from the four border states also agreed to support a move by the Texas Bridge Owners Association, seeking relief from responsibilities involving aliens crossing the bridges.

Under current federal law a bridge-owner could be fined $1,000 for failing to prevent an alien or contraband from crossing into the United States. Bridge owners want the responsibility stricken from the law.

The judges, mayors and other officials also agreed to support a border moratorium on federal clean air rules. Under the move, Clean Air Act rules would not be enforced in border cities for one year.

The period would allow the United States to negotiate with Mexican officials in order to help stop pollution that may be coming from south of the border into the United States.

County Judge Ray Ramon of Brownsville was elected president of the group. San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson was elected vice president. Wilson did not attend.

Delegates voted to meet next year at Douglas, Ariz. Douglas Mayor Albert F. Rodriguez backed the region realignment proposal and noted the border crossing near his city was often understaffed to the point where visiting Mexicans' cars were lined up.

Rodriguez also expressed concern over the small number of delegates at the meeting.

Weather

West Texas weather to be warmer today

By The Associated Press

Shower and thunderstorm activity that had lingered into the evening in Texas decreased significantly today, leaving some patchy fog in its wake in central and eastern portions of the state.

Skies were fair in West Texas and low clouds were reported over the rest of the state.

Temperatures were mostly in the 50s and lower 60s in West Texas with readings in the upper 60s and lower 70s reported elsewhere.

The forecast called for clear to partly cloudy skies with warm temperatures prevailing statewide. High temperatures in the 80s were predicted, except for readings in the 90s in the Big Bend area and portions of South Texas.

WEATHER FORECAST
WEST TEXAS Fair and very warm becoming partly cloudy and cooler Wednesday. Highs in the 80s except for mid 90s in the Big Bend. Lows mid 40s in the mountains and Panhandle to low 60s extreme south. Highs Wednesday upper 60s in the Panhandle.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS Continued dry with minor day to day temperature changes. Highs 70s north to 80s south except 90s Big Bend. Lows 40s mountains and north to 60s extreme south.

WEATHER FORECAST — Mild weather is expected in the forecast period, today until Wednesday morning, for most of the nation. Cooler weather is expected in the upper Midwest. Sunny skies are forecast for most of the country.

Anxiety affects economic environment, bankers say

CHICAGO (AP) — In the nation's big cities and in its small towns, anxiety infects the economic environment, bankers say.

Surging interest rates spell frustration and uncertainty for young people seeking their first home, for farmers planning next season's harvest, for merchants anticipating Christmas, and for the elderly fearing a frigid winter and sky-high fuel bills.

"We're going to have real problems," says Ray Cline, of the Citizens State Bank in Hartford City, Ind. His statement strikes a responsive chord among a sampling of commercial and mortgage bankers interviewed across the country.

They are staring at a prime rate as high as 15 percent, prospects of an unprecedented 14 percent mortgage rate, and a shortfall of funds that make borrowing in many states all but impossible.

Iran, Libya ignore OPEC price ceiling with price rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Iran and Libya, ignoring OPEC price limits, have raised their crude-oil prices, and analysts say it could foretell another round of increases for world petroleum prices.

The Libyan and Iranian price increases were first revealed by a newsletter that covers the industry and were confirmed confidentially by spokesmen for several U.S. companies that buy the oil.

Iran and Libya provide about 10 percent of the oil used by the United States. Monday's price increases, plus a 10 percent boost last week by Kuwait — to $21.43 — are seen by analysts as touching off a series of leapfrogging increases by individual members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Mexico, not an OPEC member, raised its prices last week by $2 to $24.60.

Analysts expect that, like two earlier rounds of increases this year, the individual increases will culminate in a general rise in OPEC's price ceiling.

cartel meets in December to discuss prices.

An overall OPEC price boost could add still more cents to the prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States.

Meanwhile, in California on Monday, a federal judge refused to reconsider his dismissal of a price-fixing suit against the OPEC nations. U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hauk has ruled OPEC's pricing actions had "no direct impact" on the price of fuel in the United States, and concluded crude oil prices are "lower than they ought to be" in view of inflation and the declining value of the dollar.

Iran's increase, retroactive to Oct. 1, raises the price of its best-quality oil by $1.50, to $23.50 a barrel, and its lesser-quality oil by $2.87, to $22.77 a barrel.

Libya's price rise, effective Monday, tacks 12 percent onto its prices, which vary depending on the quality of oil, which generally is considered high quality. The new prices range from $25.57 to $26.27 a barrel.

Libya's increase is seen by analysts as particularly significant because it breaks the $23.50-a-barrel OPEC ceiling.

Car thefts downright criminal

The car thieves stay in business, good times or bad. They lose a few in their brushes with the law, but they win a lot.

The people who leave their keys in their cars make it easier for them. Lots of us do. We think it is not worth the trouble to take the keys with us when we jump out and run into a store "for a minute or two."

It would be interesting to see the statistics on how many keys are left in every hundred cars parked in public places. Some vehicle operators act as if they would like some one to take their cars off their hands.

If a thief discovers a car he likes doesn't come equipped with keys, he doesn't always walk away.

Sometimes he hot-wires a vehicle, which is relatively easy to do. They've developed ingenious ways to steal automobiles and they share information with other crooks.

Motor vehicle thefts are expected to be up 15 per cent this year over 1978. That would mean a record 1.1 million cars will have been stolen by the time December 31 rolls around.

The boost in auto crimes is being blamed on energy, or the shortage of it. The hottest ticket in the hot car market these days is the compact car, the little bug that used to be the subject of jokes everytime they passed people on the street.

The swing to little cars is getting no laughs among police officers these days. Insurance companies don't feel much like laughing, either.

As one insurer commented in a Wall Street Journal survey of the development, anything with four cylinders is being snapped up — or whisked right off the street. The fuel efficiency promised by the small cars is the reason, of course. There's a strong demand for it in the open market.

Theft reports and insurance claims indicate the small-car percentage of stolen vehicles has nearly tripled since the price of gasoline began to escalate.

Big cars are not being overlooked by the thieves, either. They might be drags on the used car market but many may be worth more stolen since insurance book values often exceed current resale values.

Some who know the market have accused a few owners of paying to have their gas guzzlers stolen or are simply 'losing' them.

By one insurance estimate, the energy-induced theft trends could add as much as a half billion dollars to the present $4 billion in auto theft and fraud expenses borne by the public as individuals and taxpayers annually in insurance premiums and law enforcement costs.

It's just another aspect of inflation, proving what we've known all along: It's downright criminal.

'Gestapo regime' flops

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

Oh, boy! What a great time we are going to have. The newsroom is going to be all ours. We get to have the final say for a change. For an entire week, we get to make the decisions about what stories get printed and what don't and so on and so forth. What fun we are going to have we thought.

Tommy Hart informed us last week that he would be out of town for an Associated Press Managing Editors' convention for a whole week. And, at the time, Eileen McGuire, my cohort and I, thought that city editor Walt Finley would also be gone on vacation the same week.

"We're going to turn that newsroom around," Eileen and I kept saying, joking with Tommy. "You just wait, when you get back you won't recognize this place anymore we'll change things around so much." Don't know if we had him really worried or not, but we sure were trying. We were looking forward to a whole week of "power."

But our hopes were shattered. Walt was coming back on Tuesday. We would only have one day to "turn things around." Oh well, that's okay, we thought. One day will be time enough to try out our "gestapo regime."

Our "gestapo regime" fizzled as the day wore on. There was not that much happening in the world of news and things were virtually moving at a snail's pace. By mid-morning, Eileen and I were both searching for things to do. Our intrepid staff of two was out gathering what news they could from the regular beats and we were jumping to answer the telephone — a relief from the boredom.

Eileen was so hungry for something to do that she finally took to opening the mail. That in itself is boring — sorting through the stacks of envelopes and type-filled pages for what is useful for the paper and "filing" that which is not. From the looks coming from Eileen's direction, I could tell she wasn't really enjoying what she was doing. She opened all of the envelopes but left most of the contents on Walt's desk for him to sort through on his return from the life of leisure.

Then there were the stories that neither of us could decide whether or not to publish. We took the easy way out — leave it for Walt when he comes back.

So, although I can't speak for Eileen, taking charge of the newsroom and all the decisions was not all that I thought it would be. Actually, it was a rather mundane day.

Really, Tommy. We were only teasing. We weren't really going to change your newsroom around. We were just excited about being the ones to give the orders instead of the ones taking them.

And although we didn't give that many orders, the ones we did give sure felt good!

Shocks lacking

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — A still-secret report by a presidentially appointed blue-ribbon commission investigating the nuclear disaster at the Three Mile Island power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., is bound to throw new fat in the firestorm raging between proponents and enemies of nuclear power development.

Anti-nuke protesters, such as those who recently stormed the barricades of the Seabrook, N.H., nuclear facility, have made it clear they don't intend to forget the near-catastrophic fiasco at Three Mile Island, which held the entire nation in frightened suspense for six days last March.

NUCLEAR POWER'S staunchest defenders, including Jimmy Carter, have attempted to soft-pedal the health and safety hazards of building more nuclear power plants. But the highly confidential findings of the presidential commission, headed by Dartmouth president John Kemeny, prove that Americans were fortunate that the Three Mile Island accident wasn't worse, or didn't happen sooner.

Kemeny and his fellow commissioners will report to the White House later this month. But we've had access to their preliminary eyes-only conclusions, which are certain to change the way the nuclear industry is regulated.

Basically, what the investigators found was that, at least at Three Mile Island, the nuclear power industry is being run by people who don't know what they're doing — or don't care. Here are just a few of the shocking deficiencies the Kemeny Commission's investigators turned up:

◆ The Three Mile Island fiasco was caused primarily by the inability of the operators, engineers and plant supervisors to recognize the mechanical failure when it occurred. "This demonstrated a lack of fundamental understanding of the plant design and operational characteristics under normal and abnormal conditions," say the secret findings.

◆ Qualifications for licensed nuclear plant personnel are incredibly lax. There are no minimum requirements on education or psychological fitness for reactor operators, supervisors and plant managers — whose expertise and state of mind can mean the difference between safety and nightmare for millions. One Nuclear Regulatory Commission official recalled licensing an individual who didn't have a high school education. Incredibly, there's not even a requirement that applicants with criminal records be screened out.

◆ Training programs are run by the utilities with virtually no supervision by the NRC. The programs run by the firm that designed Three Mile Island's reactors, for example, haven't been audited since 1968, and that audit didn't evaluate the contents of the program, just the exam results. Classroom attendance is not monitored by the NRC. Files of past NRC licensing exams are kept by the utilities as guides for trainees, one Kemeny commissioner told our reporter Christoph Szechenyi.

"The resulting picture is one of training programs of which the NRC is largely ignorant, followed by examinations which are routinely passed without meaningful evaluation," concluded the commission's staff investigators.

◆ The industry and the regulatory commission failed to heed the warnings implicit in earlier accidents, both in this country and abroad, yet a pattern of probability was clearly discernible. For example, an accident — similar to Three Mile Island's, but less serious — occurred in 1974 at a nuclear power plant in Beznau, Switzerland, involving American firms to report reactor-related accidents wasn't passed till two months later.

EVEN NOW, UNDER mutual information agreements with 18 nations, the information the NRC gets from overseas is often "well laundered" to minimize seriousness, according to an NRC official.

◆ Warnings from knowledgeable, conscientious inspectors and scientists are shrugged off by those with the power to correct potentially dangerous situations. NRC inspector James Cresswell, for example, tried in vain for two years to get his superiors to do something about deficiencies at the David-Besse nuclear plant near Toledo, Ohio — shortcomings that foreshadowed Three Mile Island. And a Tennessee Valley Authority scientist had spotted a major safety problem related to the malfunction that occurred at TMI — but his information was lost in the shuffle until after the nuclear mishap that shook the world.

◆ Poor design made vital information in the reactor room inaccessible. Malfunctioning equipment was slow to be removed or repaired, and Three Mile Island management was lax in modifying operations and emergency procedures. "One must conclude," the report states, bluntly, "that the oversight of both the utility and the NRC was clearly deficient in permitting these deficiencies to go unattended."

Kemeny's probers, curiously, wrote off the health hazard to those exposed to Three Mile Island's radioactive fallout with the phrase "probably no detectable long-term delayed health effects." And it notes that "only three workers...were exposed to slightly higher radiation doses than considered safe, but even those doses were not sufficient to cause any acute injury."

Yet the investigators admitted that scientists are uncertain about the long-term effects of low-level radiation.

SOUND OFF: Q. What can a consumer do? The price of gas is so high. We also cannot afford to buy meat. I wrote to President Carter. I received a form letter back, but nothing was answered. I sent a second letter and am waiting for my reply. I write to Washington for answers, but no luck. What else can I do? — Mrs. Dom Marco, Montauk, N.Y.

A. The United States has slipped into a recession, which should slow down the economy. But unfortunately, this is more likely to reduce wages than prices. Some White House aides are too busy with politics, meanwhile, to answer letters or return phone calls. What can you do? You can teach them a lesson in politics at the polls.

Teddy's Tax turn

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union's insistence that the combat brigade it keeps in Fidel Castro's Cuba is really a training unit to help sharpen Castro's forces is contradicted by evidence available to U.S. intelligence.

"We have never seen one bit of evidence in pictures or otherwise that the Soviet brigade has ever had any contact whatsoever with the Cuban military," one intelligence specialist told us.

What that means is that the Soviet troops have their own, distinctively non-training mission: either to protect Castro from any possibility of anti-Castro revolt in the Cuban army or by the people; or, to provide some guarantee against the possibility — however remote — of U.S. military action against Cuba.

A footnote: U.S. intelligence in Cuba had reached an alarming nadir before it was stepped up somewhat because of the Soviet brigade question. It is still marginal at best — only a tiny fraction of its cost in the late '60s and early '70s.

ANGRY REPUBLICANS Crying foul, several top Republican foreign policy experts were furious at President Carter for claiming their full support in his handling of the Soviet brigade issue.

According to at least three of the "wisemen" summoned by Carter for help on the Soviet-Cuban question, there never was anything close to unanimity or even consensus in two days of secret White House talks with Carter.

They are former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, who was President Ford's national security director, and John J. McCloy, a top foreign policy operative in many Republican administrations. They could not believe it when they read stories that the wisemen "would up in remarkable accord" about what to do. Those reports came from a single high-level source: Jimmy Carter.

The Republicans wanted much stronger U.S. action than Carter accepted, including a firm statement that the U.S. would not pursue detente so long as Moscow continues to subsidize worldwide Cuban intervention.

TEDDY'S TAX TURN Champion for years of tax reform that would end the "three-martini lunch" and similar tax breaks for businessmen, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has confided to economic aides he is giving up the battle.

In any future Kennedy tax-reform program, "reform" will be centered not on such small-time items as the deductible ("three-martini") business lunch but on substantial items such as stimulation of capital formation.

This is just part of the senator's effort to move toward the center as he nears his announcement of presidential candidacy. The three-martini lunch is one victim, to the joy of many Americans who do legitimate business over lunch.

REAGAN'S MODERATE HUNT Campaign manager John Sears' tireless quest for a prominent moderate Republican to take a high position in Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign nearly succeeded when the widely-respected Gov. Robert Ray nearly accepted but many decided not to.

Ray, who is on close personal terms with Sears, was offered a front-row seat on the Reagan bandwagon (possibly national co-chairman with Rep. Jack Kemp of New York). Insiders report he was sorely tempted to accept a position of leverage inside the front-runner's campaign before saying no.

Watch for athletic spine injury sighs

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently, I fell and hit my head on a concrete deck. I was out for a few seconds and when I came to, my arms and legs felt tingling. I couldn't move them. I laid down and when I got up my chest, neck and the back of my head hurt.

I never told my parents about this and have not seen a doctor. My chest still feels like I have a sunburn and I still get sharp pains along my collar bone every so often. I've been getting dizzy a lot and have headaches. My question is: Should I see a doctor? — S.E.E.

My answer is yes, see a doctor — promptly. Note: Parents should be aware of such symptoms, which are common with spine injuries, especially in this season of violent contact sports — football, hockey, etc. Any symptoms that persist after even a minor head or neck injury need to be investigated.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is shingles (herpes zoster) contagious? Does it require hospital care, a nursing home, a skilled nurse, or can it be taken care of at home by the family? — S.S.

Shingles can be contagious until the last of the blisters has appeared and crusted over. But to give them to another person the contact has to be quite close, and the other person has to be susceptible to the herpes virus that causes it.

Most adults are protected because of previous exposure that may or may not have caused the great discomfort usually associated with shingles. A childhood case of chicken pox provides the same protection. Chicken pox is caused by the same virus, herpes zoster. In some people, the virus lurks in a hidden state. Later in life, it comes out of hiding to show itself as shingles.

Ordinarily, shingles can be handed at home. Rarely, hospital care is required.

Your other shingles questions are answered in detail in the booklet,

"The Facts About Shingles," which I'm sending on. Other readers can obtain a copy by sending 25 cents to cover printing and handling, along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My daughter-in-law is a "vegan" and plans to raise her baby this way. What is your advice? — Mrs. R.T.

I trust you know what the term "vegan" (VEDGE-an) means. For those who do not, it is a total vegetarian — no meat, no eggs, no dairy products. The adult vegan might get along with careful attention to vital vitamin and mineral supplemental needs. For the infant this would be most difficult. Breast feeding might forestall nutritional problems in early months, but my advice would be for this mother to seek the advice of a pediatrician before she starts her infant on such a road. The nutritional consequences can be devastating.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A friend of mine smokes cigarettes and eats the ashes. She says she likes the taste of the ashes. She looks and says she feels fine. Is this harmful? — S.K.

I can't find anything on record stating that this is medically harmful. But neither can I find anything that says it helps. People with strange quirks of appetite sometimes develop a nutritional deficiency, so she might do well to be examined. If one did what she does in public, would that be called making an ash of oneself?

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I heard you say something on television about "closet Christians." What did you mean by that? — Mrs. D.A.

DEAR MRS. D.A.: I was using this term to describe people who may genuinely believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and trust Him to save them, yet hide their belief from other people — keep it in the closet, so to speak. (I am not referring to those in countries where Christians are persecuted and must worship secretly.)

Actually, I believe a "closet Christian" is a contradiction in terms. Look at the book of Acts, for example. The men and women of the early church had experienced Jesus Christ, and had committed their lives to Him. They knew that the Gospel of Christ was the greatest news the world could ever have — the news of salvation and hope and new life. What did they do? Even in the midst of persecution they declared, "We cannot help speaking about what we have seen and heard" (Acts 4:20). Or again it is said of them, "Those who had been scattered preached the word wherever they went" (Acts 8:4). This was, I believe, fulfilling the promise Jesus had given before the Day of Pentecost: "But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes on you; and you will be my witness" (Acts 1:8).

We should remember also that Jesus Christ calls us to be His disciples — His followers. That means we are to follow Him in every area of our lives, and not just in the private affairs no one sees. Is Jesus Christ seen by others in the way we work, and in the way we treat others every day?

If we are "closet Christians," unwilling to take a public stand for Christ, we ought to ask ourselves if we are really Christians at all. This is a serious matter, for Jesus said: "Whoever disowns me before men I will disown him before my Father in heaven" (Matthew 10:32). Give your life to Christ without reserve, and take your stand for Him.

Princess Margaret stops in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — They did it four times before she arrived, to make sure that all signs of fingerprints and smudges were erased. The bartender in a small patio bar on the lobby hurried customers out of the way and said she had been instructed to have the place clean before the princess arrived. It was clean, but the princess never saw it because she turned sharply into the elevator glancing neither left nor right.

News reporters invited to the reception were instructed to bring no tape recorders or notebooks and were told that all statements by the princess would be off the record.

Prior to her appearance at the reception, a 30-minute film was shown depicting the conditions of the Royal Opera House with narration by her brother, Prince Charles.

The princess then posed for pictures and shook hands with all the news reporters, and chatted briefly with most of them.

Her Highness arrived in Houston Monday afternoon for a three-day visit and from here, will go to Los Angeles, San Francisco and Cleveland.

Today, she will visit the Johnson Space Center and on Wednesday plans a tour of the city's famed medical center.

She arrived at a downtown hotel that is owned by British interests, nodded to those outside and then walked briskly to the elevator to her room.

The Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, is in need of major repairs costing at least $16.4 million.

By the end of August 1979 almost $12 million had been contributed to restore and improve the historic site.

The opera house was rebuilt in 1858 after a fire two years before, but in the intervening 120 years hardly any improvements have been made.

Two companies, The Royal Opera and The Royal Ballet, both use the limited space available for dressing and rehearsals.

The workers at the Houston hotel, where the princess stayed, spent hours getting the area spotless.

One young man did nothing but pick up every cigarette butt and scrap of paper dropped by departing guests.

A team of three men polished the chrome and cleaned the glasses on the doors through which the princess was to step.

Farm Plans under way for solar heaters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department hopes to have plans ready in about three months for farmers to build portable solar heaters that officials say can sharply reduce energy costs for drying grain and other purposes.

Other versions, stationary models, are being tested for home heating as part of a stepped-up effort by USDA to help rural families use other sources of energy.

A portable solar heater was demonstrated Monday, with Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., showing how easily it could be assembled.

"We're going to ask them to put a few of the pieces together to demonstrate that if they can do it, almost anybody can," said the USDA's Alex P. Mercure.

Bergland grabbed one end and Jones the other, easily lifting each of the shiny metal strips, coated black on one side, into place so they could gather the sun's energy.

Others, including a team of women, soon joined in helping put the final touches on the portable solar heating unit parked in front of USDA.

"Women can assemble it, too. It doesn't require a great deal of physical strength," Mercure said.

The 65-degree air that entered the system soon flowed through its ducts and was heated to about 200 degrees from the sun's warmth collected by three glass-covered panels.

Mercure, who is assistant secretary of agriculture for rural development, said the do-it-yourself solar kits for similar heating units will be available for about $2,500 each.

The model demonstrated at USDA is portable and can be used to dry grain and to keep baby pigs and chickens warm. When not used for other purposes, it can heat a farmer's home.

Mercure said the units also have a large potential for heating homes of low- and middle-income families.

"If we provided this kind of unit to 100,000 homes, we think we would be saving close to 2 million barrels of oil a year," Mercure said.

More corn, less grain, Ag officials projecting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Improved prospects for this fall's corn harvest will mean farmers may get less for their grain, according to new projections by the Agriculture Department.

A month ago, when the department estimated the 1979 corn harvest at a record of 7.27 billion bushels, the experts projected corn prices at the farm would average $2.40 to $2.70 a bushel over the entire 1979-80 corn marketing year that began Oct. 1.

Last week, however, USDA increased its harvest estimate to 7.39 billion bushels. On Monday, a new report on the supply and demand situation showed corn prices now are expected to average 5 cents less — a range of $2.35 to $2.65 a bushel this year.

The 1978-79 price of corn at the farm, measured over the entire 12-month season, averaged $2.20 a bushel. Estimates of corn exports in the year ahead were unchanged from a month ago at around 2.5 billion bushels, a record high, compared with less than 2.1 billion last season.

Projections for wheat prices — $3.60 to $3.90 a bushel — for the wheat year that will end on May 31, 1980, were unchanged from a month ago.

Soviet ballet star resigns

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Soviet ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov, citing severe injuries including tendonitis, has unexpectedly resigned from the New York City Ballet.

Baryshnikov, 31, had said he planned to remain with the ballet company for another year before becoming artistic director of the American Ballet Theater on Sept. 1.

But Baryshnikov said Monday that his doctor had advised him to take a few months' rest, and that he was looking forward to "at least three or four months without any obligation or commitment to dance with any company."

Baryshnikov, who spent 15 months with the City Ballet, denied he had been unhappy with the company. He said he disagreed with those critics who said he had not adapted to the City Ballet style. "I was very happy with City Ballet and it is a painful decision for me," he said.

Los Angeles the site asked

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bianca Jagger says her estranged husband Mick Jagger lived "out of a suitcase in his nomadic journey in his quest to avoid income taxes" and has asked the California Supreme Court to settle on Los Angeles as the site for the couple's divorce action.

In documents filed Monday, Mrs. Jagger asked the court to overturn a state Court of Appeal ruling that Los Angeles was not a proper forum for her divorce action against the international rock star.

The Jagers were married in France in 1971 and separated in 1977.

After a divorce suit she filed in England was delayed by legal maneuvering, she filed for dissolution of the marriage Feb. 5 in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Jagger, a native of England, contends California courts are not a convenient forum. If successful, he may be able to keep some of his millions which would become hers under California's community property laws.

Parents tired of 'test tube'

LONDON (AP) — The parents of Louise Brown say they are tired of hearing their daughter being referred to as a "test tube baby."

"She was never in a test tube," Lesley Brown, Louise's mother, told Woman magazine, a British publication. "The egg was fertilized in a shallow glass dish. And then she was implanted back into me and I carried her for nine months, just as with any other baby."

Born July 25, 1978, Louise was conceived outside her mother's womb in a British laboratory because Mrs. Brown could not conceive normally.

Convicted Marine will appeal prison sentence

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for Marine Lance Corporal Richard Whaley III said they will appeal their client's conviction and 20-year prison term in the death of a woman he said he loved.

A state jury convicted Whaley Friday in the Sept. 25, 1978, murder of Doreen Centineo, 19, of Sound Beach, N.Y., a woman Marine who had rejected Whaley's proposal of marriage. The jury recommended punishment Monday afternoon, following 3½ hours of deliberations.

Ms. Centineo's nude body was found two days after her death about a mile from a cottage leased by Travis County Commissioner Richard Moya.

Witnesses testified she had been stabbed five times and her throat was so severely slashed her head almost fell from the body when it was removed from the shallow grave.

Whaley, Ms. Centineo and Carroll "Rocky" Watson had left their North Carolina Marine base to stay with Moya's son Danny, also a Marine, in Travis County.

Moya's son led authorities to the grave, and after he died in an auto accident, Whaley tried to blame the murder on him.

Whaley testified the younger Moya slit Ms. Centineo's throat while Watson held a gun to Whaley's head.

Watson is also charged in the woman's death, and is scheduled to go on trial Oct. 25. He refused to testify in Whaley's trial under constitutional guarantees against self-incrimination.

Prosecutors said Whaley made a statement indicating he killed Ms. Centineo in a jealous rage. In the statement, Whaley said she rejected his marriage proposal and said she intended to marry another man.

"It hurt so much I went crazy," Whaley's statement said.

Culligan Water system removes salt impurities

If you think you have to put up with the taste of Big Spring's water, you don't. And you don't have to haul bottled water either.

"That's too expensive," says Richard Wright, owner of the Culligan Water Conditioning Company of Big Spring.

"Our H-5 Aqua-clear drinking water appliance will make this salty Big Spring water taste as good as expensive bottled water and for only 70 cents for five gallons," he says.

"The Aqua-clear can be piped to your automatic ice maker, too!"

This is the only appliance Culligan uses in Big Spring for drinking water. Culligan has an activated carbon or charcoal filter, but it will not remove the salt taste from Big Spring water.

The Aqua-clear is a reverse osmosis for your own home. Your bottled water is probably made by the process. Check your bottle. If you're paying more than Culligan's 14 cents per gallon, you're paying too much.

The Aqua-clear unit fits under your sink, out of your way, and the special faucet fits into your present sink.

The Culligan Company also offers free water analysis for your home. The Culligan man can recommend the precise unit to remove the dissolved rock that causes burned out water heaters, scale build-up in dishwashers and clothes washers, and tarnished sink fixtures.

You can do something about your water problems. Conditioned water will give you more suds with less soap in your dishwasher and clothes washer. No more scale and film build-up on appliances and in clothes.

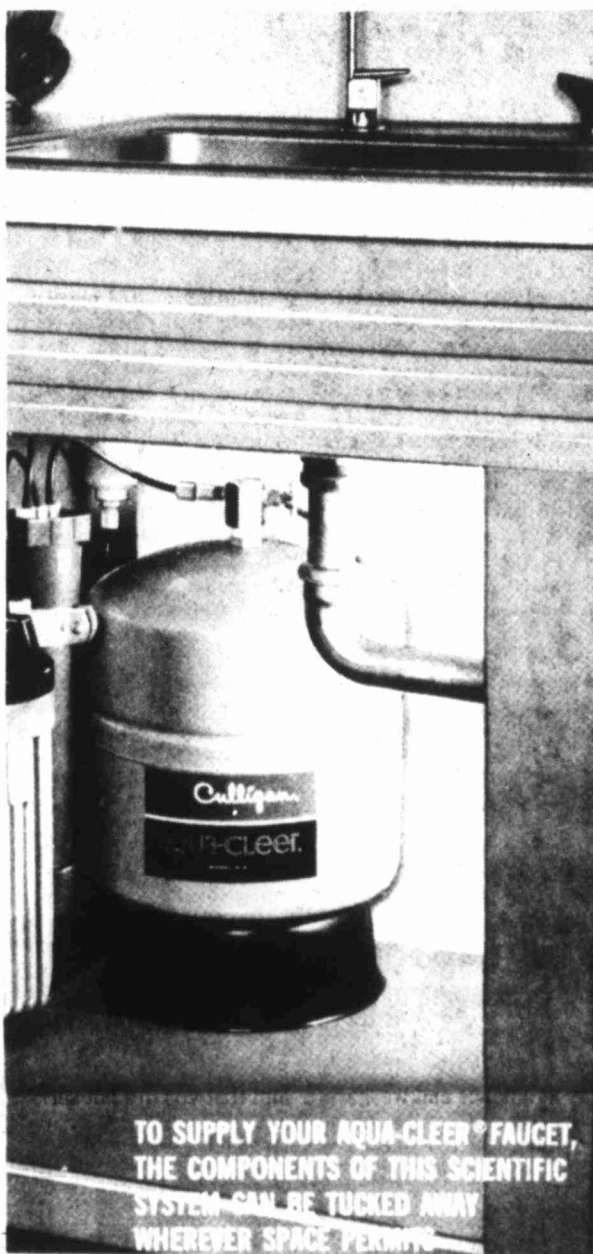

Soft water can help prevent red, itchy or dry skin. Shaving is easier and blades last much longer.

Plumbing and pipes benefit from soft water because it prevents the formation of rock-like hard water scale. And it gradually removes old scale that was present before your Culligan water conditioner was installed.

For the complete story about Culligan and a free water analysis right in your own home, call the people who treat water seriously: The Culligan Water Conditioning Company. Just dial 263-8781 and say "Hey, Culligan Man."

These Kids Kid You Not

By Abigail Van Buren
1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the 14-year-old boy who was afraid he had VD and didn't want to tell his parents, and I just had to write.

I am a 15-year-old girl who had a similar experience. I thought I had VD. I cried for days. Finally I decided the only thing I could do was to tell my mother. Abby, that was the hardest thing I ever had to do. When I told her we both cried. I begged her not to tell my father, but she said she had to. Some pretty cruel words were exchanged among the three of us.

The next seven days were the toughest I've ever experienced, but it also proved how much my parents really loved me. They stood by me the whole time. When we finally got the doctor's report, we were relieved to learn that it wasn't VD—it was another kind of infection.

My friends thought I was crazy for telling my mother, but it was the best decision I ever made. It really brought us closer together, and we got to understand each other better.

Abby, please keep encouraging kids to take their heavy problems to their parents. It's not always the easiest way, but it's the smartest. Thanks for letting me have my say. I believe you really do care.

BEEN THROUGH A LOT

DEAR BEEN: Thanks for the testimonial. Read on for a letter from a girl who wasn't as lucky as you.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Laaky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Halloween Carnival plans progressing

Washington Elementary School P.T.A. met Oct. 9 at 7:30 p.m. with Mike Faulkner, president, presiding.

Crosswalks and bus loading problems were discussed and a decision was made to have the bus loading sign on the west end of the school where the buses load and depart corrected and a letter sent to parents informing them of problems.

Mrs. Virginia Oliver reported that the P.T.A. has 300 members. Mrs. Adam's first grade, Mrs. Hamilton's second grade and Mrs. Nash's third grade classes won the competition for obtaining the most P.T.A. members.

Sandra Logback reported that the donations for the Dallas Cowboy tickets were coming in and that the boy and girl students who sold the most tickets would receive $30 each.

"Plans for the Oct. 27 Halloween Carnival are progressing well," Linda Cathy reported. Parents were reminded to send white elephant items to school for the booth.

A poster contest, judged by Robert DeWees, art teacher at Runnels Junior High School was held recently. Winners of the contest will be given tickets to various booths at the carnival. First place received $5 worth of tickets, second place, $3 and third place $2.

Winners of the contest are: D.J. Tedesco, Robert Gonzales and Bill Carey, first grade; Raymond Gonzales, Craig Baber and Jason Jones, second grade; Charla Medwell, Michael Dominguez and Kelly Newton, third grade; Cindy Bryant, Debbie Norman and DeWayne Woodall, fourth grade; Donna Bryant, Rachel Tedesco and Michelle Kruse, fifth grade.

Posters will be sent home with the children and parents are asked to hang their child's poster in any place of business they want to for publicity for the carnival.

Faulkner reported on the District 17 P.T.A. workshop. Helen Gladden presented the program on How to Help Your Child with Homework. Refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned.

Training meeting scheduled Nov. 12

The Center Point Extension Homemakers Club met Oct. 10 at Kentwood Center with Lucile Petty, president, presiding. Mrs. Jean Davidson and Mrs. Frankie Walker were hostesses. Mrs. Griffith thanked members for their cooperation during the Howard County Fair. An invitation to visit Snyder Nov. 1 was read to the group. The Nov. 12 training meeting in the County Agent's office was announced by Janet Rogers, and the Oct. 19 meeting in Midland.

Korean pen pals for the asking

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm thrilled that you help teens get American and Canadian pen pals. It's a great experience. I know, because I have several.

If you would be so kind, I'd like to share an address with your teen readers.

I received a Korean pen pal by writing to: International Friendship Society, P.O. Box 100, Central, Seoul, Korea.

There is no fee for this service and it doesn't take long to get a pal.

Your letter should state your age, sex, address and hobbies.

I hope your readers take advantage of this marvelous experience. — Randy, San Luis Obispo, Calif.

Randy: Thanks so much for sharing this address. Rest assured, Box 100 will be crammed with many letters from Canada, Bermuda and the United States.

Dr. Wallace: I met this guy at a dance and we started dating. After a few dates, he started giving me gifts and told me that he loved me.

I'm 15 and feel that he is much too serious and I know that I should return his gifts and tell him that he is too serious, but I don't know how to say it without hurting him so that's why I'm writing to you. What's your advice? — Kelly, Scottsbluff, Neb.

Kelly: Being honest and to the point is the best policy in this type situation. Tell him that you are not serious and that you plan to date other boys (and do it).

Jonathan Owen born to Mr. and Mrs. Pierce

Unless the gifts are valuable, don't bother returning them, but refuse any more.

If he continues the "I love you" lecture, stop seeing him.

No Nitrosamines in Coors Beer.

Nitrosamines are suspected cancer-causing agents.

There are no detectable nitrosamines in Coors or Coors Light as determined by the United States Food and Drug Administration, using the most sophisticated analytic techniques.

Here's why: Some years ago, as part of a continuing effort to make the best beer possible, we instituted an unconventional malting process. This special process not only creates a better beer, it avoids the possibility of nitrosamines.

Coors has a tradition of bringing innovative methods to the brewing of beer. Always attempting to brew a better, finer, purer beer. Once more, Coors' dedication to brewing excellence has paid off.

Texas Longhorns move to No. 2 position

Crimson Tide tops AP grid poll

By The Associated Press Alabama's defending national champions have unseated Southern California atop The Associated Press college football rankings this week, but Bear Bryant, coach of the Crimson Tide, isn't ready to celebrate.

"I'm not concerned where we are right now," Bryant said Monday, after the new rankings were announced. "I would 10 times rather have our players healthy than be No. 1 right now. It is hard to enjoy being No. 1 under the circumstances."

Although Alabama clobbered Florida 40-0 last Saturday, the Crimson Tide did not emerge unscathed. Among the injured players about whom Bryant was worried were split end Keith Pugh, separated shoulder; offensive guard Mike Brock, hip pointer; defensive tackle Joe Beazley, knee; defensive lineman Warren Lyles, knee; running back Mitch Ferguson, hamstringing; and defensive tackle Scott Homan, achilles tendon.

"I'm happy for our players," Bryant said, when told his team was ranked No.

1, "but nothing counts but next Saturday. We are just getting into the meat of our schedule and we are badly crippled."

The Crimson Tide, who face Tennessee in a Southeastern Conference battle Saturday, received 42 first-place votes and 1,332 of a possible 1,360 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Texas, which defeated Oklahoma 16-7, jumped from fourth to second with the remaining 26 first-place ballots and 1,313 points. Nebraska, a 42-0 winner over Kansas, climbed from fifth to third with 1,204 points.

Southern Cal, which held the top spot since the preseason, fell to fourth with 1,108 points after being tied by Stanford 21-21.

Southern Cal, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas had occupied the first four places since the preseason poll, but Oklahoma dropped to eighth this week following its loss to the Longhorns.

Houston climbed from seventh to fifth with 1,011 points after edging Texas A&M 17-14. Also advancing two places were Ohio State, which moved up to sixth after a 47-6 rout of Indiana, and Florida State, which climbed to seventh following a 17-6 decision over Mississippi State.

Oklahoma, Notre Dame and Arkansas completed the Top Ten, while the Second Team consists of Michigan, Washington, Brigham Young, Auburn, North Carolina State, Purdue, Pittsburgh, Tennessee, North Carolina and Navy.

Pitt rejoins the Top Twenty after a three-week absence. Tennessee climbs back in after dropping out last week and Navy makes the list for the first time. Dropped from last week's rankings were LSU, a 21-14 loser to Georgia; Missouri, which lost to Oklahoma State 14-13, and Michigan State, which was beaten by Wisconsin 38-29.

Turnovers, officials costly to Vikings in loss to Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — Coach Bud Grant didn't come right out and say it, but the implication was clear: the officiating hurt the Minnesota Vikings Monday night almost as much as their seven turnovers did.

"I don't think the officials did a good job," Grant said after three fumbles and four interceptions helped the New York Jets post a 14-7 National Football League victory.

The biggest problem, he said, was that on the kickoff after Chuck Foreman's 1-yard touchdown run with 8:24 to play, Bruce Harper of New York fumbled and Robert Miller recovered for the Vikings.

"I never heard a whistle," Grant said. "There was no whistle. But they never called it a fumble."

Besides that, he said, "Ed Marion (the head linesman) was cursing at our bench. I'm sure it was a two-way street, but the officials are supposed to be above that. Sooner or later, you've got to come to grips with this problem."

Still, Grant couldn't deny that all the turnovers did in the Vikings, dropping them to 3-4 and keeping them two games behind first-place Tampa Bay in the National Conference's Central Division.

"We got a lot of yardage, but we didn't get many points," he said, reflecting on Tommy Kramer's 270 yards passing against the league's worst pass defense.

It was the brunt of the Minnesota offense. Kramer, a third-year pro in his first season as a starter, threw 48 passes — most of them short — and completed 28. The Vikings' running game was limited to 54 yards on 23 carries, with Rickey Young gaining 31 yards and Foreman just 13.

The Jets, meanwhile, ran the ball down Minnesota's throats. They gained 183 yards on 41 carries, 78 yards by Kevin Long and 54 by Clark Gaines. Richard Todd, the target of the fans' wrath for what they felt was his lack of leadership earlier this year, passed only 13 times — completing nine for 72 yards.

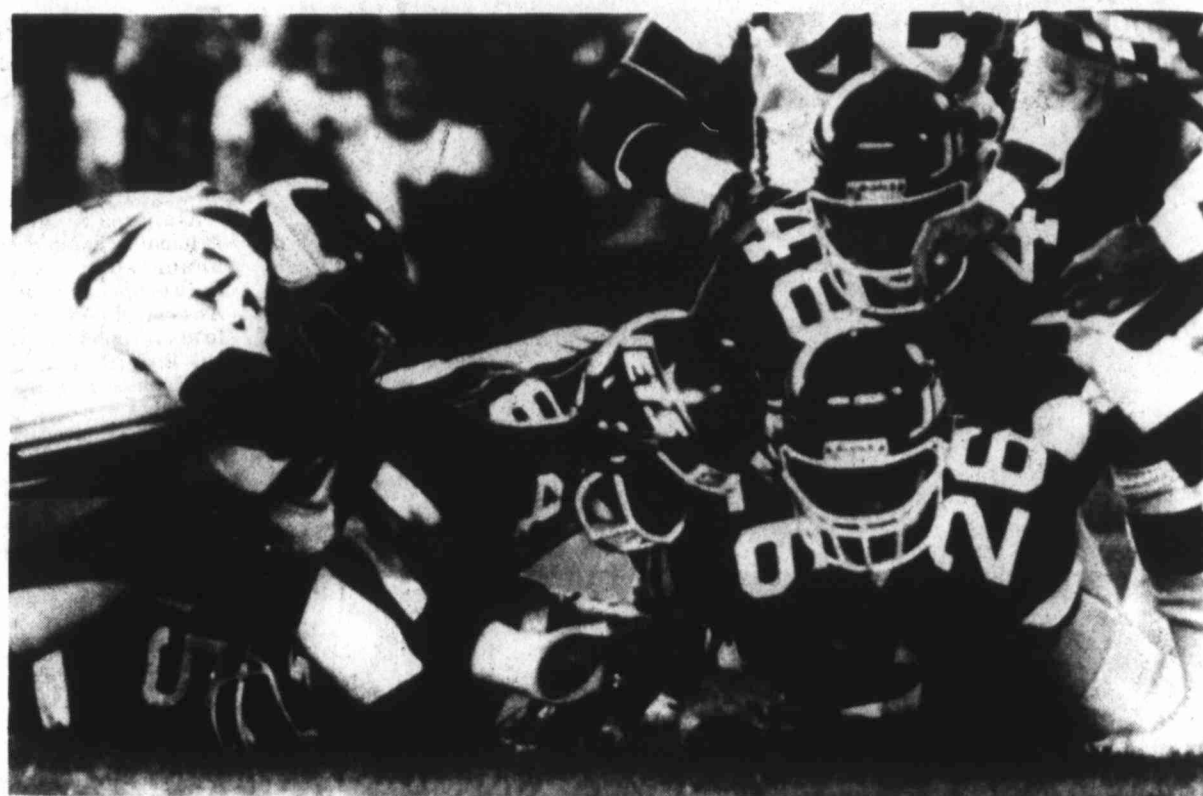

Todd scored New York's first touchdown on a 3-yard rollout just 4:56 into the game, five plays after Tim Moresco recovered punt returner Jimmy Edwards' fumble.

fumble.

The winning points came with 5:15 left in the third period, when Kramer overthrew Foreman on a busted pass pattern and strong safety Shafer Suggs intercepted the ball and ran it back 32 yards for his first pro touchdown.

Foreman's touchdown, his 52nd as a Viking, tied Bill Brown's club record. It came at the end of a 73-yard, 18-play drive — aided immeasurably by one penalty.

That came when Donald Dykes ran into punter Greg Coleman to keep the drive alive. Eight days earlier, Dykes ran into Baltimore punter Bucky Dilts, costing the Jets a chance to beat the Colts in the closing minutes.

His mother died, then the Pirates rallied to win

Sunday a mixed day for Tanner

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "They say you're supposed to cry when you're born and be happy when you die, but we all do it in reverse," a somber Chuck Tanner said, reflecting on the death of his mother.

"It's tough. I got a lot going because it's what she would want me to do. I have all the faith in the world. I honestly feel she's in heaven and she's happy."

"You have sadness in your heart but you have to be strong. I can be strong because the people around me are strong."

It was a heavy burden that Tanner, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, carried into the critical fifth game Sunday of baseball's 1979 World Series against the Baltimore Orioles.

The Pirates, bludgeoned for six runs in the eighth inning Saturday for a 9-4 beating, were at the edge of the precipice, trailing the Orioles, 1-3 in games. Tanner had only a twice-disabled losing pitcher, Jim Rooker (4-7), to send against the steamrolling bombers from Baltimore.

Tanner was eating breakfast at a friend's home when the telephone rang with the news that his 70-year-old mother, who had suffered a stroke during the National League playoffs, had passed away in a Greenville, Pa., hospital.

Chuck's father, Charles, Sr., a railroad man out of New Castle, Pa., delivered the message. "I'll come home right away," Chuck said.

"No, your mother wouldn't want that," the father said. "Stay there and get 'em." Chuck did.

It might seem mawkishly sentimental to suggest that those monsters of men who wear the black and gold of Pittsburgh's baseball team "went out and won one for Grandma," as they lovingly referred to Anne Tanner, who reared a family of three boys in the rugged steel town of western Pennsylvania.

But that's the way it was, and it wasn't mushy but beautiful as the Pirates rallied for a 7-1 victory that sent the Series back to Baltimore for a conclusion. Tanner held up like rod of steel. His players refused to get maudlin. One by one, they went to him and offered their condolences. Some grabbed him an embrace. Then each went to his locker, dressed and strode onto the Three Rivers field — grimaced and fired with determination.

In the locker room was a huge bouquet of at least two dozen yellow chrysanthemums, each tied with a black ribbon — the Pirate colors.

It was sent by the Sister Sledge disco group that recorded Pittsburgh's rallying song, "We Are Family." It was never more appropriate.

"We are family," the lyrics go, "all my little sisters and me. We don't get depressed at what we do, come on, everybody and dance."

CHUCK TANNER

Kush fired for cover-up

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The man who fired Frank Kush, the former Arizona State football coach, asked his players to lie for him.

The accusation Monday by ASU Athletic Director Fred Miller drew a swift response from Kush, who held a press conference in his own backyard and told reporters, "Believe me, I never did such a thing."

Miller charged that Kush, asked ASU football players to deny that they saw him punch former punter Kevin Rutledge after a poor kick in an Oct. 28, 1978, game against Washington.

"I learned that Frank Kush was attempting to pressure players and coaches to go to the extent of lying, if necessary," Miller said.

He said he learned of a cover-up last week after three players, two coaches and three others told him they had seen Kush strike Rutledge, who has filed a $1.1 million lawsuit against the school and Kush.

"Once I discovered these facts, waiting was out of the question," Miller said. "I had the responsibility to act promptly to preserve the reputation and integrity of our athletic program and this university."

Palmer, Orioles hoping to end Series in Game Six tonight

SERIES BYPLAY — Pirates parrot Kevin Koch jests with Orioles third base coach Cal Ripken between innings during 5th World Series game between the Bucs and the O's at Pittsburgh Sunday. The home club won, 7-1, to send the series back to Baltimore for the 6th game Tuesday night.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Buoyed at the prospect of playing before their frenzied home fans, and with veteran Jim Palmer on the mound, the Baltimore Orioles try to wrap up the 1979 World Series tonight.

"All we need to win this thing is one more one-game winning streak," Manager Earl Weaver said as the Orioles went into the sixth game with a 3-2 edge over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"When you win three games, you still have that big one staring you in the face," Weaver said. "I hope we don't get in a hurry. I just want the players to relax and do what they did in the other games."

The Orioles had a chance to win their third World Series in Pittsburgh Sunday, but the Pirates pounded out 13 hits in a 7-1 victory and raised their Series batting average to a whopping .339.

"I never figured there'd be this much scoring," Weaver said, while bemoaning the fact that Pittsburgh already has collected 61 hits against Baltimore's fine pitching staff.

He noted, however, that the Pirates scored fewer runs on the natural grass of Baltimore's Memorial Stadium in the first two games than they did on the artificial surface at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.

The Orioles, despite a .251 batting average, have had much more timely hitting. They've had two five-run innings and one six-run inning in the games they won.

Palmer, who has a 3-1 World Series record and will be making his eighth Series start, pitched well in the second game won 3-2 by the Pirates after he was lifted.

If the Series goes to a deciding seventh game Wednesday night, the Orioles will pitch Scott McGregor, a complete game winner in Game No. 3.

"If somebody had told me we'd be leading 3-2 and going home with Palmer and McGregor ready to pitch, I couldn't be very upset," Weaver said. "You would have had to have said that would be nice."

"Pitching against Pittsburgh once before is going to help," Weaver said of Palmer. "He's going to have his own ideas about what he's going to do. I just hope we get him some runs... early."

Palmer, who celebrated his 34th birthday Monday, said he learned some things about the Pirates last week, including the fact that he'd have to change speeds more often.

"Obviously, we're going to have to out hit them," Palmer said. "I have to pitch good and get some runs. It's that simple."

"Everyone who hit the field plays like a real champion," Akers said of the Oklahoma game. "I'm really proud of them."

However, he said, "Arkansas is just as undefeated as Oklahoma was."

Texas will play Arkansas, 5-0, in Little Rock, Ark., Saturday before a capacity crowd of 53,555 and a regional television audience.

Quarterback Dan Pastorini, off to a rugged start this season, completed only five of 14 passes and was intercepted three times.

Campbell was the key factor in a game where the Oilers passing attack continued to flounder.

On film, it looks like guys just don't want to tackle him," said Colts cornerback Dwight Harrison. "If you go low, he's a good enough athlete to jump over you and if you go high, well, that could be suicidal."

Air Force must deal with gays, ex-officer says

POPE AIR FORCE BASE, N.C. (AP) — Capt. Robert Coronado, dismissed from the Air Force for having sex with an enlisted man, has told military officials the Air Force must learn to deal with homosexuals.

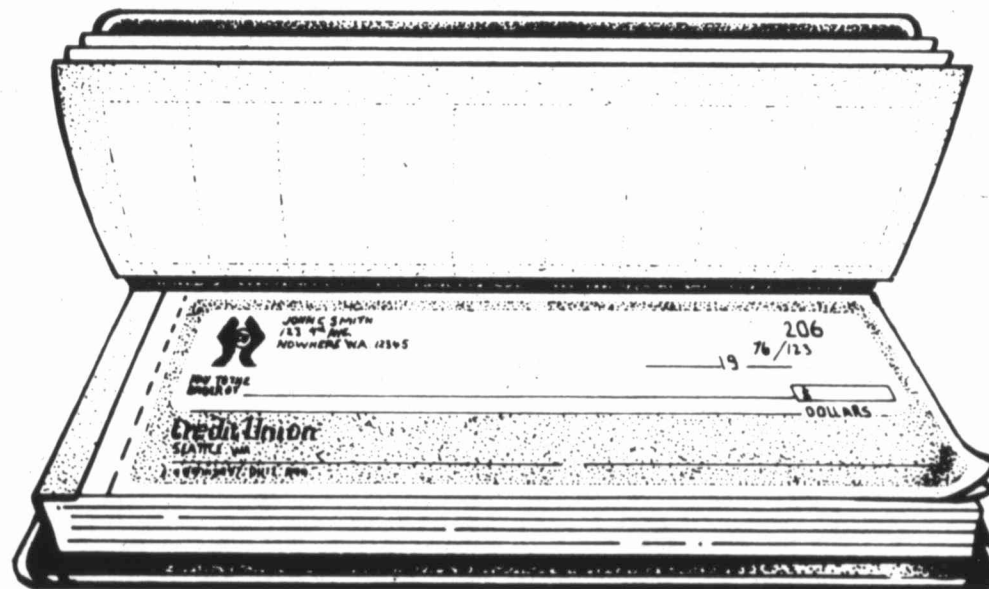

"What I am and what other people are cannot be denied. It can be overlooked...but it must be dealt with," Coronado, an avowed homosexual, said earlier Monday during a presentencing hearing.

A jury of five Air Force officers Monday returned the sentence, which is equivalent to a dishonorable discharge for an enlisted man.

Coronado, 32, could have been dismissed and sentenced to five years at hard labor. He was convicted Saturday of conduct unbecoming an officer for committing a homosexual act.

DOE investigating petroleum marketing arrangement in south

DALLAS (AP) — Department of Energy investigators are examining a time-honored petroleum marketing arrangement that they contend skirts federal fuel price controls.

"It's a device by which the producers are trying to decontrol oil now," said DOE Southwest Enforcement Director Wayne Tucker.

"The effect is exactly that," said D. Truitt Davis, board chairman of Consolidated Petroleum Industries, Inc., in Abilene. "But there's no regulation prohibiting that."

The practice is known as a "processing agreement," and has been used for years.

Normally independent producers sell crude oil to refineries, which process it into gasoline and other products, then sell it. But under the agreement, refineries contract only to process the oil. The finished products are returned to producers for marketing.

Tucker said DOE will try to determine whether the practice is illegal, or results in overcharges to consumers. The practice involves less than 1 percent of the oil being processed.

Since the price of foreign oil has risen to $27 a barrel, many refiners have turned to buying domestic crude, priced between $6 and $13 a barrel, and processing it into fuels which often are not regulated, increasing their profit margins.

Seeing that, some producers decided to take advantage of the same procedure, retaining control of the refined products, and the practice may spread.

"I think you are going to see more independents following the barrel all the way through," said A.V. Jones Jr., an independent producer from Albany.

Tucker said DOE is investigating more than 20 processing agreements, fearing they could cause several problems.

For example, he said the gasoline allocation system is based on understood producer-finer-retailer relationships which processing agreements could disrupt.

He also said independents tend to sell on the spot market, which usually brings a higher price than long-term agreements.

Many oilmen are asking DOE to clarify its regulations on the agreements.

"What we say is they (DOE) either ought to declare it legal or declare it illegal, or at least hold a hearing," said Earl Turner, executive vice president of the Texas Independent Royalty Owners Association.

"The regulations are so chaotic today that nobody knows who's on third base, including the regulators," he said.

El Salvador's military regime ousted for peace

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Two colonels reputed to be moderates favoring order and democracy ousted the head of El Salvador's right-wing military regime, called on leftists and rightists to end months of violence and promised both a part in the nation's future.

Col. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez and Adolfo Arnoldo Najano forced the resignation of President Carlos Humberto Romero after their supporters took control of five key military bases Monday. One person, an army captain, was reported killed.

A spokesman for the colonels said an air force plane took Romero to Guatemala.

The coup leaders were reported to be military instructors in their 40's.

San Salvador, the capital, was calm, and the rebels said they were in complete control of the country's 14 military departments.

The new regime said in its first communique: "The high command of the new revolutionary government places its confidence in Col. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez and (Col.) Adolfo Arnoldo Najano but will soon announce the names of other members of the military-civilian junta that will rule the country."

It said the armed forces will "direct the destiny of the country, taking into account the participation of everyone during the time that will permit first establishing the bases and atmosphere proper to establish a democracy and assure free elections where the will of all Salvadoreans is reflected."

The communique said Romero was ousted "in view of the anarchy in the country as a consequence of the activities by extremists which (the government) has been incapable of resolving."

It said in the two years he was in office, "there were no personal guarantees for the citizens, the constitution was not being fulfilled and fundamental principles were violated such as the participation of sectors of the population in decisions of national interest."

The communique also charged Romero's government "permitted and resorted to violence to resolve political problems of the country, causing battles between the armed forces and the people."

El Salvador, with 4.5 million people and 8,260 square miles, is Central America's smallest country and has the highest population density in the Americas. It is a country of extreme poverty in which an elite 2 per cent of the population control 60 per cent of the arable land under the protection of right-wing military governments for 47 years.

Romero, a right-wing general, was declared winner of the July 1977 election after the government stopped the vote count following charges of fraud by his opponent, who was exiled.

WASHINGTON (AP) — American civil rights leaders, increasingly divided over the Middle East conflict, are attacking and defending overtures to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The dispute escalated Monday when Vernon E. Jordan Jr., president of the National Urban League, criticized black leaders who have called for some type of Palestinian homeland.

"I say it is time to stop providing joy to the cross-burners and bomb-throwers. Indeed, it is time to strengthen the traditional, fruitful alliance between the black community and the Jewish community," he said in Kansas City, Mo., to the National Conference of Catholic Charities.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A little duty that may arise suddenly should be handled quickly. It will help to get you out of a tense situation. Relax tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Meet with a good friend and have a good time. Catch up on work you have to do later and be efficient.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan to have more security in the future and be clever in handling finances. Make needed repairs. Don't let others waste your time foolishly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An interesting personality may come into your life who can help you to gain your finest aims. Cultivate this person in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A loved one may desire more affection from you, so be sure to comply. Show that you are loyal, also. Listen to suggestions of a co-worker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to understand what is expected of you by partners and friends and make an effort to please. Don't argue with others and avoid trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Follow the instructions of a bigwig and you benefit. Be clever in handling credit affairs. Take no risks with your reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure new ideas are workable before you put them in operation. Your intuition is not working well, so use only good judgment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A co-worker is out of sorts but take it in your stride. Be understanding instead of criticizing. Take care of important correspondence.

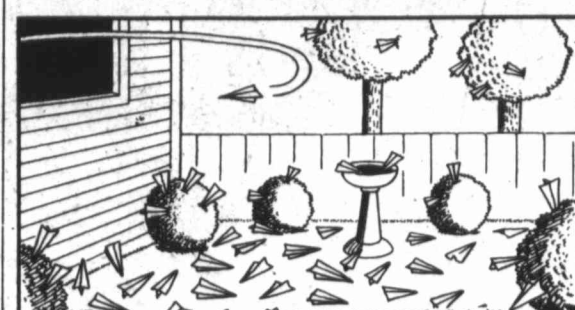

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Partners are apt to be testing you a good deal, so be careful in conversations. A situation arises that needs diplomatic handling.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to get at the core and detail of any project and should be given as fine an education as possible. A good chart for medical, pharmaceutical professions, whether male or female. Careful discipline here.

Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade said last week his office would not extradite Brice.

Taken before U.S. Magistrate A. Simon Chrein in Brooklyn on Monday, Brice heard U.S. Attorney Reena Raggin tell the court that although the conviction in Texas still stands, Texas officials "had no interest" now in extraditing him.

Wade said it was not worth the effort to bring Brice to Texas since the laws concerning marijuana have changed. Brice's conviction today would only carry a short jail term.

Wade said if Brice were to return to Texas, his office would be willing to renegotiate the life sentence for a much lesser penalty.

Clements against higher mortgage rates

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements is working on home building problems in Texas but he does not think increased mortgage interest rates is the solution.

Clements was asked at an informal news conference Monday if he had considered increased mortgage interest rates as a subject for the 1980 special legislative session.

"I have not really considered that," Clements said. "I have been considering what other things we in Texas might do to solve the problem but I don't have a solution.

"For one thing, I don't see raising home interest rates as a solution. I strongly believe that higher rates would not be in the best interest of the state and the nation. This would just add to the inflation."

"I do not believe we can stand the kind of interest rates we have now," Clements said that "other tools" have to be used, other than increased interest rates.

"I have been considering some of these ... there could be margin restrictions on the stock market and there could be something concerning down payments on homes," Clements said.

Clements at first opposed an increase of legal interest rates for home loans from 10 to 12 percent during the 1979 Legislature but later supported the increase after federal agencies threatened to cut off VA and FHA loans for Texas.

Clements also said he knew nothing about some published reports there might be another gasoline shortage this winter, because some gasoline refiners had been diverted to producing heating oil for Northeast states.

"So far as I know there is no reason to believe there will be another gasoline shortage in Texas," he said.

He said he had given no thought to reinstating the odd-even gasoline sales program.

Clements said he would be going to Boston Wednesday for a day-long discussion on energy with Massachusetts Gov. Edward King.

"I was invited by Gov. King to meet with some of their leaders and to inspect some of their work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology," Clements said.

"Gov. King and I are in complete accord on the solution to the energy problem. Both of us feel that the production of energy is the key."

Houston police chief opposes federal probe

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Police Chief Harry Caldwell and Dist. Atty. Johnny Holmes have reacted strongly to a decision by U.S. Atty. Tony Canales to take the Sept. 26 police shooting of Reggie Lee Jackson to a federal grand jury.

Holmes said he was offended by the apparent attitude of federal authorities who wanted to assume their own investigation before his office had completed its probe.

operating on the premise "local people have neither the intelligence nor capability to deal with these problems, and if so, they probably do it in some perverse or crooked fashion."

The chief said he resented such attitudes and resented the Civil Rights Commission, which conducted a hearing on Houston police last month, "coming here to tell me about human dignity," he said. "I've spent my life working on human dignity."

Caldwell said he resented federal officials taking the position that the rights of people can only be protected by the U.S. government.

Caldwell said the government apparently was Jackson, 28, was fatally shot after officers R.W. Robinson and J.C. Valentino stopped a car for questioning on a traffic violation. They said was occupied by Jackson, a woman, and a second man.

Robinson and Valentino said the two men ran and Jackson was shot when he pointed a gun at the officers.

Civilian witnesses have reported they heard a man believed to be Jackson pleading for his life. Caldwell said a police investigation of the case has revealed serious conflicts between the versions given by the witnesses and officers.

Holmes said Canales' action marked a change in federal policy. The U.S. attorney has not intervened in earlier police cases until after state grand juries had completed their investigations.

Robinson and Valentino said the two men ran and Jackson was shot when he pointed a gun at the officers.

Civilian witnesses have reported they heard a man believed to be Jackson pleading for his life. Caldwell said a police investigation of the case has revealed serious conflicts between the versions given by the witnesses and officers.
