Payrolls slip in January

Jobless rate remains steady at 7.1 percent

■ Employment gauges undermine recent economic recovery signs.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — In a report undermining recent signs of economic revival, the government said Friday that business payrolls shrank by 91,000 in January and that the unemployment rate remained steady at 7.1 percent only because of a surge in part-time jobs.

The report on labor market conditions was the first comprehensive gauge of economic performance in 1992 and, in an election year, the most politically sensitive of reports.

It caused disappointment among private analysts and was seized upon by congressional Democrats to point up what they saw as Administration failings.

The figures also increased the chances, economists said, that the Federal Reserve would shortly decide on another round of interest-rate cuts. The Fed's chairman, Alan Greenspan, said earlier

Texas unemployment increases

DALLAS (AP) — Not since March of 1988 have more Texans been unemployed, the Department of Labor reported Friday.

The statewide jobless rate hit 7.8 percent in January, compared to 7.0 percent in December and 6.4 percent in January of last year.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the figure reflects some deterioration in the Texas economy.

Using three-month averages to smooth volatility, the Texas unemployment trend continued decidedly upward, although less severe than the over-the-month data. The three-month average in January was 7.2 percent, up from 6.3 percent in July 1991.

Flood waters again threaten SE Texas area

■ Areas east and west of Houston brace once more for rising rivers.

Associated Press

LIBERTY — Flood-weary residents east and west of Houston are bracing for yet another weekend of rising water as officials carefully watch the Trinity, Colorado, Brazos and Guadalupe rivers.

"It will not be as bad as it's been, but it's going to be more flooding," Liberty County Emergency Management Director Jim Mitchum said Friday.

In Liberty, about 40 miles northeast of Houston, roadways to 16 low lying subdivisions remained closed Friday. Many of the 3,000 residents have moved to hotels or apartments paid for with temporary housing funds from the Federal Emergency Management Agency. As of Friday, FEMA had distributed $293,000 in temporary housing grants in Liberty County alone.

"This is affecting the same people," Mitchum said of the latest flood waters. "We've had some of these subdivisions, three in fact, that have been continually flooded since Dec. 23. The water's still over their roads and it will continue to be that way for another two weeks. So that'll be about 60 days since this started."

Heavy rains in North and Central Texas in mid-December swelled the Trinity, Colorado and Brazos rivers as they

Tyson: Accuser gave consent

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Tyson testified in his rape trial on Friday that he and a teen-age beauty contestant made love in his hotel room. He insisted that he didn't force her and said she never protested.

"I didn't violate her in any way," Tyson said. "She never told me to stop, or I was hurting her, nothing."

Tyson said he and the 18-year-old kissed and touched each other in his limousine on the way to his hotel and continued kissing and touching in his suite.

"As I'm kissing her, she's taking off her jacket, fast," he said.

He said he performed oral sex and they had intercourse. Afterward, he invited her to stay.

"I said, 'I would really love for you to spend the night,' " Tyson told the Marion Superior Court jury. "She said she didn't want to, and I said I didn't want to walk her downstairs, that I was too tired.

Jury's award to mugger sparks cries of outrage

N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Public outrage greeted a jury's award of $24,595 to a convicted mugger whose leg was broken when a hero cab driver pinned him to a wall with his cab while apprehending him.

The media and officials in City Hall received a torrent of calls from people angry over Thursday's verdict against Holden Charles Hollom. The 50-year-old veteran cabbie had been hailed as a hero for capturing Ocie McClure after McClure robbed a Japanese tourist on Market Street in May 1989.

Soviet cosmonaut returns to starkly different world

MOSCOW (AP) — When cosmonaut Sergei Krikalev finally gets back down to Earth next month — after spending seven months longer than he'd planned in space — he may well want to crawl back into his spacecraft.

The country he blasted off from doesn't exist any more. His hometown has a new name. Economic reforms are ravaging Russian living standards. Space engineers are threatening to strike. Even the agency that sent him into space has been broken up.

What's a spaceman to do?

"He is hanging 250 miles above the surface of the planet and watching everything from the point of view of an interested but absolutely helpless participant," wrote the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda.

After months of being left up in the air, Krikalev at least has a firm return date. Deputy flight director Viktor Blagov told The Associated Press on Friday that Krikalev, along with fellow cosmonaut Alexander Volkov, who joined him later, would come home on March 23.

Russia plans sale of state factories

MOSCOW (NYT) — The Russian government, still feeling the effects of its first bout with free prices, Friday outlined a crash program to sell off state-owned shops, factories and other property, the next move in its gamble with economic reform.

The chairman of the state property committee, Anatoli B. Chubais, told reporters he expected 25 percent of state property to be auctioned off by the end of 1992, under a system that will reserve 25 percent of shares in individual enterprises for current employees.

He predicted that proceeds from this year's sales will amount to 92 billion rubles, a sum equal to about $840 million at the current rate of exchange.

Ten go free

PERM, Russia — Ten political prisoners were freed Friday from the notorious labor camp known as Perm 35, news reports said, as President Boris Yeltsin sought to shut down the vestiges of the Soviet gulag. A week ago, Yeltsin had described the 10 as the last prisoners of conscience in Russia. Human rights activists, however, say there are still more than 100 people imprisoned for refusing to serve in the army. Seven of the 10 were convicted of treason, and the others of attempted treason, according to the independent Interfax news agency. The prisoners were known in human rights circles, but not by the public.5A

Hayes in hospital

NEW YORK — Actress Helen Hayes has been hospitalized for exhaustion. "She's just having an overdue, well-deserved rest," Eileen Dowd, the 91-year-old actress' companion, said Friday. Hayes was admitted Saturday to Columbia Presbyterian Hospital, suffering from what Dowd called "complete exhaustion" after traveling during the holidays. Hayes was listed in good condition, hospital spokeswoman Leslie Bernstein said. Known as the "First Lady of the American Theater," Hayes starred in such plays as "Victoria Regina," "Happy Birthday" and "Harriet" and won Academy Awards for her work in the films "The Sin of Madelon Claudet" and "Airport." In 1976, she was awarded a Grammy for a record on which she read the Bill of Rights.

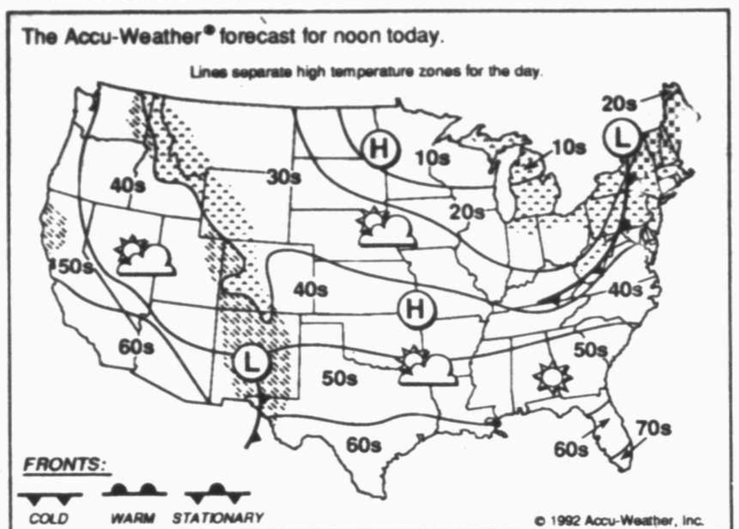
WEATHER SUMMARY

The Accu-Weather® forecast for noon today.



Cloudy skies, showers ahead

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of mainly afternoon showers, according to the National Weather Service.

The high temperature is expected to be in the mid-50s, with southwesterly winds 10 to 15 mph.

Tonight, skies should be mostly cloudy early with a less than 20 percent chance of light rain. Decreasing cloudiness is expected after midnight with a low in the mid-30s. Sunday should be partly cloudy with a high in the low 60s.

Friday's high temperature was 56 degrees, compared with the record high for that date of 83, set in 1932. The low temperature was 26, compared with the record of 11 set in 1933.

STATE

A ridge of high pressure over Texas kept skies sunny and temperatures mild on Friday, but the clear weather was expected to give way to clouds within a few days.

Surface winds were northerly across northern parts of the state. Wind speeds ranged from 10 to 15 mph.

West Texas had partly sunny to sunny skies with temperatures in the 50s. Winds were northeast and east at 10 to 20 mph. Winds were light in southern parts of the state.

Temperatures in the state were mostly in the 50s, but warmed into the 60s in southeast sections of the state.

Clouds were expected to increase this weekend with a slight chance of light rain.

Scattered showers were predicted for North Texas, ending Sunday with decreasing cloudiness. Lows were expected in the 20s and 30s with highs in the upper 50s.

NATION

Heavy snow fell Friday around the Great Lakes, with a threat of more snow over the weekend. Rain and snow fell in parts of the West.

Nine inches of snow fell during the night and morning at Hurley, Wis., in the Lake Superior snow belt of northwestern Wisconsin.

As much as 8 inches of snow fell during the morning near Trenary, Mich., near the center of the state's upper peninsula.

A heavy snow warning was in effect through today along the Lake Superior shoreline from Grand Marais, Minn., to near Marquette, Mich., also on the upper peninsula, the National Weather Service said.

A winter storm watch was in effect through today across central upper Michigan, near Lake Superior, where as much as 12 inches of snow is possible.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

WORK: Unemployment rate unchanged

this week that further rate cuts might be necessary "insurance" for economic recovery.

The Fed's failure to ease in the immediate wake of the report, however, dismayed the stock and bond markets. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 30.19 points, to close at 3,225.40, and the benchmark 30-year bond, which had risen on the report in apparent hopes of a rate cut, later fell back when none occurred.

While Friday's unemployment report was not unrelievedly bleak, it reflected pronounced weakness last month, prompting some analysts to lower already meager expectations for the immediate future.

"The consensus has to move now to a real change in gross domestic product that's down rather than up" for the first quarter, said Walter M. Cadette, an economist at Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.

While Morgan has been more pessimistic than many forecasters of late, other analysts also found little ground for optimism.

"These are weak numbers," Richard B. Berner, an economist at Salomon Brothers, said. "They point to continued stagnation and downside risk for the economy."

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said the January job figures portrayed an economy "skating on thin ice" and estimated that the odds of renewed contraction this year had risen to 50-50.

Saying prompt action was required to turn the economy around, Bentsen announced that his committee would begin consideration Feb. 25 of growth measures that he said "will help put Americans back to work and our economy back in the race."

President Bush's chief economic adviser, Michael J. Boskin, told the House Budget Committee on Friday that he did not believe the new numbers indicated a renewed downturn.

But, he conceded, "it is unlikely there will be an instant turnaround in the economy in the next month or two."

Friday, President Bush signed legislation extending unemployment benefits for a second time, this time by 13 weeks. It has been an issue with great political appeal in this election year and was approved overwhelmingly by Congress on Tuesday.

Among the grim numbers, the jobless report Friday did show a 389,000 rise in jobs, as measured by the Labor Department's survey of households, which reversed a three-month decline.

Some analysts dismissed this as a statistical aberration at odds with the 91,000 job decline picked up in the separate payroll survey, but others regarded the development as a bright spot in the report.

Michael P. Niemira of the Mitsubishi Bank, for example, said that even though the increase was entirely in part-time jobs, that is where any improvement in the market would show up first.

Hiring part-timers amounts to "testing the waters," he said, adding that if the latest reading is correct "it is possible to see an upward revision to the January payroll data or a catch-up jump in February."

The unemployment rate itself is considered a "lagging" indicator since it frequently continues to rise even after recovery is well under way.

This is because improved business activity induces many workers who dropped out of the job market to begin to look again, thereby restoring them statistically to the work force.

farm wage and salary employment in Texas at almost 7.2 million in December, a gain of 67,500 jobs compared to December a year ago.

Although weaker than previous years, retail trade posted a December growth of more than 13,000 jobs. Defense-related and mining industries continue to experience the largest losses.

The 0.9 percent annual growth rate in December continued the trend of the approximately 1 percent growth of the previous seven months. That was about half the 2 percent growth rate of 1990.

Although weaker than previous years, retail trade posted a December growth of more than 13,000 jobs, which accounted for almost all of the annual 15,000 job growth.

ANGER: Jurors give mugger $25,000 award

(From 1A)

"My God, there's few of us enough who have the guts to do something like that," lamented Desmond Reeves, a San Franciscan retiree. "And this guy gets soaked for his pain because in the excitement of the moment he used a little excess force. As far as I'm concerned, the mugger should be dead."

San Francisco radio station KGO and the Los Banos accounting firm of Vogt and Hurley set up funds to pay the award against Hollom.

Meanwhile, the Guardian Angels staged a demonstration at the San Francisco law office of McClure's lawyer.

"We're expressing public outrage at the terrible message this verdict sends to all potential good Samaritans — that opportunist lawyers are stalking them for lawsuits, and will probably win, at a time when we need more public participation," said Christopher Ford, the Guardian Angels' regional coordinator.

"It defies common sense."

McClure, who is serving a 10-year prison sentence, is unlikely to get any of the money. Any damages he collects would go to the city because he was treated at public expense, said his attorney, Ian Zimmerman.

At the same time, it is doubtful that Hollom will ever pay a dime, even if he loses the case on appeal. His attorney said Luxor Cab Co., which owns the cab Hollom drives, has paid his legal fees and probably would pay any damage award.

If he had it to do over again, he would, said the 275-pound Hollom.

"He was a specter running down the street," said Hollom. "Visualize a man the size, shape and build of Mike Tyson, his eyeballs bulging, sweat popping out of his head. You had to see him."

He said in the reflection of his headlights, he believed McClure had a gun.

Jurors never saw McClure, who is serving his sentence at Deuel Vocational Institute at Tracy.

CHANGE: Brave new world awaits cosmonaut

(From 1A)

That would bring his total time in space to 311 days, about two months short of the 366-day world record held by fellow cosmonaut Musa Manarov.

For Krikalev, it's been a long, strange trip.

He and fellow cosmonaut Anatoly Artsebarsky took off May 18 from the Soviet Union's sprawling Baikonur Cosmodrome in Kazakhstan. They were scheduled to return Aug. 30 after a routine three-month mission on the space station Mir.

But 12 days before they were to land came the August coup that set in motion the disintegration of the Soviet Union. The mission's landing site was claimed by Kazakhstan, and the space agency Glavkosmos was sent to the chopping block. Officials put off the cosmonauts' return until October.

By October, however, the Soviet Union was in the final stages of its collapse. In a compromise with Kazakhstan, Russia got use of the landing site in exchange for sending an inexperienced Kazakh to the space station in place of Krikalev's successor.

The Kazakh cosmonaut returned with Artsebarsky, who was replaced by Volkov. But Krikalev, 34, got no firm word on when he would be brought back.

"I have a question," Krikalev said plaintively from space at that point. "Is it true the Russians are going to sell the Mir space station ... along with us?"

Krikalev may be relieved to get back on solid ground, but it's a whole new world he's coming home to.

His hometown of Leningrad is now called St. Petersburg. His official monthly salary of 500 rubles is now far less than the average Russian wage, and worth only about $9.60 at the widely used unofficial exchange rate.

With the country's economy in shambles, space officials, while denying any intention of selling the space station, have put much of the space program up for sale.

The newspaper Nezavisimaya Gazeta reported last week that there isn't enough money to build an expanded replacement body for the "worn out" 6-year-old space station.

PROGRAM: Russia to sell state-owned shops

(From 1A)

The long-awaited privatization plan, to be conducted by 89 local state property committees across the country, is being introduced after many state managers had begun the process on their own with a rash of unregulated and typically self-serving takeovers.

Critics of the government's economic program, which began last month with the freeing of prices from state controls, have complained of the delay over privatization, asserting that without significant competition from a private sector, higher prices would only fuel inflation, not reform.

But Chubais, a member of the team of young economists headed by Deputy Prime Minister Yegor Gaidar, said Friday that February would be a turning point for privatization.

"We intend to change the nature of the process," he said, "and to move away from the theft of state owned property. We expect to change the pace, and before the end of February, one of the basic elements of reforms will have gone into effect."

The Russian Parliament adopted a law on privatization in July 1991, but without regulations, the process was occurring slowly in a rough-and-tumble way, with managers of state companies forming their own joint stock companies, leasing out premises for private profit and selling assets on privately run exchanges.

According to Chubais, property worth 2 billion rubles was privatized in 1991. "Until now, the legislation was generic, without specific regulations," he said.

The privatization plan goes into effect just as Russians are getting over prices that went up by an average of 350 percent after controls were lifted on Jan. 2.

Officials this week said the price rises would slow significantly in February since in many cases, they had already exceeded what people could afford.

In some areas, prices on perishable foods like sour cream and boiled sausage have already come down somewhat after stores had to return them unsold to the warehouses.

The government has also moved to make other adjustments to its reform program.

TRIAL: Contestant consented, Tyson testifies

downstairs? I don't believe you!' She was irritated," Tyson said.

Under earlier questioning by defense attorney Vincent Fuller, Tyson said he made he intentions clear when he first met the woman at a rehearsal for the Miss Black America pageant.

He said they agreed to go out, and when she suggested a movie or dinner, he said he replied, "I don't want to do that. I just want to be with you. I want you."

"Did you say anything else?" Fuller asked.

He said he told the woman directly that he wanted to have sex with her. His testimony about the comment included a common vulgarity.

She said, "That's kind of bold," he recalled, and then she said, "Sure, give me a call."

Earlier Friday, a parade of pageant contestants testified that Tyson could be a foul-mouthed lout one moment and a congenial gentleman the next.

Tonya Traylor said the former world heavyweight champion went from one Miss Black America contestant to the next, asking all of them for dates.

"He said, 'Do you want to go out and go back to my room for sex or a kiss? A kiss will do, but sex is better,'" said Traylor, a defense witness.

Traylor said she refused a photo session with Tyson after he made lewd remarks to them and insisted the contestants sit on his lap.

"I didn't want a picture of him that bad," she said.

FLOODS: East Texas rivers rise

(From 1A)

flowed south to the Gulf of Mexico. The flooding, which began Dec. 20, killed 15 people and caused millions of dollars in damages to homes, livestock and businesses.

Federal officials say more than $4.7 million in disaster relief has been approved for victims in 55 Texas counties that were declared federal disaster areas.

Mitchum said the Trinity River reached 27.5 feet, or 3.5 feet above flood stage, in Liberty on Friday.

"We are expecting a crest late Sunday or early Monday at 28.5 feet, or 4.5 feet above flood stage," Mitchum said. "This current crest level would flood just a few of our homes in our low lying, or riverside, subdivisions. But it will affect very few houses — not any major flooding."

The Trinity River Authority at Lake Livingston Dam was releasing 55,600 cubic feet per second on Friday, Mitchum said. The normal rate is usually under 20,000 cfs. The releases had reached more than 87,000 cfs in December, sending further torrents swirling downstream towards the gulf.

"Out of the last 115 days, we have been flooded 85 of those days," Mitchum said.

Southwest of Houston, the Colorado River was expected to crest at 42 or 43 feet at Wharton Friday, where the flood stage is 39 feet.

Wharton County Judge I.J. Irvin declared the latest river forecast for his county good news. "They're saying the water level is going to reach 42.9 feet," he said. "That's considerably below last time."

Mel Speed, Fort Bend County emergency management coordinator, said the Brazos River at Richmond measured 45.2 feet Friday afternoon and was predicted to crest at 46 feet late Friday or early Saturday. Flood stage is 48 feet; the crest during the Christmas floods was 49.7 feet.

Only a few farm roads running through pastures were closed, and no homes were flooded, Speed said.

"We've got a little water, but not much," he said. "I don't think we're going to be anything like we were before."

"Only thing we're doing is, we're watching the river real close, keeping an eye on it 24 hours a day so we don't run into any surprises," Speed said.

Brazoria County Judge Jim Phillips said the Brazos River is rising in the county, which abuts the Gulf of Mexico.

"It's coming up, but we're still alright. We don't know how long it's going to last, but so far, so good," Phillips said.

The Brazos was expected to continue to rise slightly for three or four days before cresting, the National Weather Service said.

Egan seeks council spot

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

The foremost issue in Claudia Egan's bid for City Council, District 4, will be to "hold down unnecessary taxes," she said at her candidacy announcement on Friday.

Egan

Mrs. Egan, 40, challenges incumbent Tom Johnston, who announced Thursday he will seek a second term.

"Within the last few years I have also developed an intense desire to make a positive difference in the direction and leadership of this community," said Mrs. Egan, surrounded by family and friends — including former gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams.

Mrs. Egan said she plans to run a door-to-door campaign.

If elected that open relationship with the public will be continued, she said. Currently, Midlanders "feel out of touch with City Council" and many times don't know what's going on until an issue goes before a vote, she said.

One issue that Mrs. Egan said she will be adamant about involves taxes.

"I will closely monitor the expenditure of local tax dollars by the city and will help to redirect those funds when necessary to the highest priorities," she said.

Active in crime prevention groups, Mrs. Egan said she would support a pay raise for police officers.

She doesn't support the airport expansion though.

"I'm not in favor of the expansion. I feel we need to revamp the airport as it is," she said.

Mrs. Egan, who has not held elected office before, has worked as secretary/receptionist for a oil company in Midland, a secretary to the City Planning Department in San Angelo, a legal secretary, and a manager of a small resort hotel in Virginia.

A 25-year resident of Midland, she and her husband have a grown stepson.

Mrs. Egan was a delegate to the 1990 Republican State Convention.

City elections are set for May 2.

Highway landscape project set

Staff Report

Visitors to West Texas will soon be greeted by more beautiful highways, according to the Texas Department of Transportation.

A landscape project is set to begin this week at the intersection of Spur 217 and Farm-to-Market Road 1788 west of Midland International Airport. The project will not interfere with traffic, officials said.

Two islands with curbs and gutters will be constructed and filled with red brick. Raised planting areas will contain dwarf yaupons, buffalo junipers and seasonal colors. Live oak trees will also be planted and an irrigation system installed.

Wall's Green Enterprises of Dallas will have 50 working days to complete the construction. The cost is $73,576 and will be funded through the Department's Construction Landscape Program.

DEATHS

John Coleman

Service for John Charles "Slim" Coleman, 68, of Midland are set for 3 p.m. today at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Bob Porterfield officiating. Burial will follow in Sunset Memorial Gardens in Odessa under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Coleman

Coleman died Thursday at a local hospital.

Born April 11, 1923, in Wilmington, Del., he was raised and educated there before joining the U.S. Navy in January 1941. He was discharged in 1945. Coleman moved to the Midland-Odessa area, working in the oilfields.

He married Faye Weaver in Midland July 23, 1973. He was employed as a cement contractor and retired in the late 1980s due to illness. Coleman was a member of the VFW.

Survivors include: his wife, Faye Coleman of Midland; one son, Gregg Weaver of Marietta, Ga.; one daughter, Elaine Lindenberg of Odessa; three grandchildren and numerous nieces and nephews.

Rosemary Kime

Services for Rosemary Canary Kime, 71, of Midland will be held at a later date in Green Castle, Ind. at the Forest Hills Cemetery. Services are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Kime died Friday at her residence.

She was born Jan. 29, 1920, in Indiana. She graduated from St. Vincent's Nursing School in Indianapolis in 1943 and was president of her class in 1943.

She married Dr. Charles Edward Kime on July 24, 1943. She worked as a private nurse in a doctor's office and in Houston's St. Joseph's Hospital with alcohol and drug abusers before retiring in 1979. Her husband preceded her in death Oct. 17, 1991.

Mrs. Kime served on the Wayne County, Ind., Harris County and Texas State medical auxiliary boards. She was active in Houston's newcomer's club and Parent Teachers Associations in both states.

Survivors include: three sons, Paul Kime of Midland, Robert Kime of Van Nuys, Calif., and William Kime of Seabrook; and two daughters, Kathleen Graham of Middletown, Conn., and Marry Scarborough of Taylor.

Byron Cook

Services for Byron Edward Cook, 65, of Midland, are set for 2 p.m. Monday at West Kentucky Baptist Church with the Rev. Bob Porterfield officiating. Burial will follow in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Thursday at a local hospital.

Cook was born Sept. 18, 1926, in Shawnee, Okla. He served in the U.S. Navy from 1943-45. In 1947, he joined the U.S. Air Force and served for 18 years. He served in the United States and Germany during World War II and the Korean conflict, receiving a discharge in 1961.

He moved to Midland and was employed by Rocky Ford Moving & Storage until his retirement in 1988. He married Louise Hendrix June 20, 1975. She preceded him in death in 1990.

Cook was preceded in death by two of his children, Shirley Jean Cook and Steven Edward Cook.

Survivors include: four daughters, Linda Burns, Sharon Langley and Deborah Scruggs, all of Midland, and Sandra Smith of Emory; one brother, Bob Cook of Shawnee, Okla. and 10 grandchildren.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Man arrested

Staff Report

A man was arrested late Friday after attempting to steal a couple's car at a north Midland convenience store.

Hugo Gutierrez, 19, was arrested and charged with aggravated robbery and retaliation — after he tried to steal a car from the parking lot of the 7-Eleven store at 4415 Garfield, police reports said.

He ordered a woman in the car to get out, claiming he had a gun, according to reports. But Gutierrez was successfully detained by two men — the woman's companion and a store clerk — at the scene until police arrived. No gun was found by police, reports said.

Gutierrez was begin held late Friday at the Midland County Central Detention Facility on a total of $20,000 bond for the two charges, set by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

SALSA plans dinner, dance tonight

Staff Report

Odessa College Student Alliance of Latinos Succeeding Academically (SALSA) will host a dinner and dance tonight to honor past and present Hispanic elected officials in Midland and Odessa.

The event will begin 6:30 p.m. in the Odessa Hilton Ballroom.

Honorees from Midland are John Castro, Oralia Corrales, Jose Cuevas, Gloria Hinojosa, Adela Marmolejo, Roger Robles, Luisa Valencia and Charlene Romero Wurtz.

Odessa honorees are Delma Abalos, Mike Canales, Vicki Gomez, Salvador Guerrero, Joe Eddie Hernandez, Ernest Martinez, Herbert Quintela, Jaime Rodriquez, Roy Trujillo and Manuel Valles.

Tickets are $50 per couple. Proceeds will benefit SALSA's scholarship fund to assist in sending students to the Hispanic Business Student Leadership Conference in San Antonio.

For more information, call 335-6841.

Train company documents it has cash

AUSTIN (AP) — The group which won the franchise to build a 200 mph "bullet" train in Texas on Friday gave the State High-Speed Rail Authority documents to certify that it has $10 million cash in place for the project.

A check for $290,384 also was presented to cover the final payment on the rail authority's 1992 annual budget, which under the franchise agreement must be funded by the license holder.

"We view today's actions as another encouraging sign of progress on this important project," said Bob Neely, executive director of the rail authority.

The Texas High-Speed Rail Corp., a French-American group, proposes to build the superfast train lines to link Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio and Austin.

David Rece, chief operating officer of the corporation, also announced Friday that the company has opened its Texas headquarters with offices in San Antonio.

Choir students to sing for teachers

Staff Report

Midland's 10 All-State Choir students will perform for the Texas Music Educators Association convention today.

Local students performing from Lee High School are Stephanie Bushman, Joe Dan Harper, Wendy Hobbs, Kristen McPeak and Rachelle Skiles. Midland High School students performing are Valinda Dozier, Jeff Monette, Julie Nance, Daniel Oberle and Brynna Scheumack.

The students were chosen for All-State honors following a series of auditions.

Racist acts still occur, college official reports

FORT WORTH (AP) — Years after the desegregation of colleges and universities, racist acts such as student attacks, cross burnings and name calling still occur on campuses nationwide, the director of minority affairs at Rice University says.

In fact, Catherine Clack says many college students are more concerned with individual rights than civil rights. She made her statements Thursday during a regional meeting of the College Board, where she was among several who spoke concerning race relations.

Formed in 1900 to ease the transition between high school and college, the College Board has a membership of 2,800 colleges, universities and educational systems. It is best known as the sponsor of SAT testing of high school students.

All people are prejudice to some degree, but until they admit it, they can't deal with it, Ms. Clack said. "They will say they are not racist, just that affirmative action is wrong."

She and others who deal with race relations said they have found that college multicultural workshops have helped. At some schools, special counselors have been provided and policies have been put in place to cope with racial harassment.

In multicultural workshops, Ms. Clack said, she tries to make everyone aware that they all fit into the multicultural category whether they are right-handed or left-handed or because of religion, sex, ethnic origin or the state from which they came.

Curtis Polk, race relations counselor at the University of Texas in Austin, said he has discovered that people "just don't talk about racial and ethnic issues in public."

Polk, who was hired to deal with complaints of racism, said his first line of defense is to get the parties together to hash out problems.

"I have had only about 10 cases, and all but one was solved in the office," he said.

Pakistani official formally acknowledges nuclear bomb capacity

UNITED NATIONS (NYT) — A top Pakistani Foreign Ministry official visiting the United States has issued his government's first formal acknowledgement that it has the capacity for making an atomic bomb.

But the official, Foreign Secretary Shahryar Khan, insisted that Pakistan had not built such a bomb and did not intend to, and that it would not transfer the nuclear technology it has developed to any other country.

"There was a capability in 1989 when the present government came to power, and that means we could have moved forward in an unwise direction," Khan said at the United Nations Friday, at the end of a two-day visit that included talks with State Department officials in Washington. "But we didn't. Instead, we froze the program."

The reason for making the trip and for acknowledging that Pakistan could build a bomb, Khan went on, was not just to obtain a resumption of the $570 million in American aid that Congress cut off last year because of Pakistan's nuclear program.

Rather, he said, Pakistan wanted to improve relations with the United States, convince the Bush administration that the present government has frozen the country's nuclear program and make clear that Pakistan sincerely wants to negotiate a regional nuclear disarmament agreement with India, as the United States, Russia and China have proposed.

"We are deeply concerned about the nuclear race in Southeast Asia, which none of us can afford, and we sincerely want the five-nation non-proliferation initiative to take off," Khan said. "Aid or no aid, we want good relations with the United States."

In the past Pakistan has denied having any secret nuclear program, despite growing evidence that it was moving closer to developing a bomb.

Khan acknowledged that this policy of denying what foreign governments knew to be true had produced a serious "credibility gap" for Pakistan in the West, and said his country now wanted to correct the problem by telling the truth about its nuclear abilities.

But Khan said it would be politically impossible for Pakistan to dismantle its nuclear program without a similar move by India, which exploded a nuclear device in 1964. He also called on India to agree to mutual inspections of each other's nuclear plants.

Like Pakistan, India has refused to sign the 1968 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and open its nuclear installations to international monitoring.

Another country suspected of developing a nuclear weapon, Iran, has invited officials from the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna for talks in Tehran and is offering to show them some of its nuclear installations.

A four-man team led by the agency's safeguards chief, Jan Jennekens, reached Tehran this week and will return to Vienna on Thursday.

Notorious labor camp frees 10 political prisoners

PERM, Russia (AP) — Ten political prisoners were freed Friday from the notorious labor camp known as Perm 35, news reports said, as President Boris Yeltsin sought to shut down the vestiges of the Soviet gulag.

A week ago, Yeltsin had described the 10 as the last prisoners of conscience in Russia. Human rights activists, however, say there are still more than 100 people imprisoned for refusing to serve in the army.

Seven of the 10 were convicted of treason, and the others of attempted treason, according to the independent Interfax news agency. The prisoners were known in human rights circles, but not by the public.

Perm 35, located 1,000 miles east of Moscow in the Ural Mountains, is among the most notorious of the hundreds of Soviet prison camps that became known as the gulag. The camp is about 80 miles outside this industrial city.

With its guard dogs, watchtowers and cement walls, Perm 35 was known for its harsh treatment of political and religious dissidents. Its most famous prisoner was Jewish refusenik Natan Sharansky, who finally was allowed to emigrate to Israel in 1986.

Yeltsin told the U.N. Security Council on Jan. 31 that he was pardoning the 10 men, saying: "There are no more prisoners of conscience in free Russia."

The Tass news agency hailed their freedom on Friday.

"Society is free of illegal actions, and principles of democratic freedoms and human rights prevail in our country," it said.

But a Moscow member of the international human rights group Helsinki Watch said those 10 are not the only remaining political prisoners.

"There are more than 100 people being held in prisons all over Russia for their refusal to serve in the Soviet army," said Mikhail Alexeyev. "We consider them prisoners of conscience as well."

The newspaper Nezavisimaya Gazeta (The Independent Newspaper) agreed that because of the many men who remain imprisoned for failure to serve in the military, "it is too early to close the prisoners of conscience issue."

Interfax said Perm 35 still holds Abdul Khamit Dovlatov, who was sentenced by authorities in the former Soviet republic of Tajikistan for treason and other charges.

Study: U.S. workers more productive than Japanese

TOKYO (AP) — The Labor Ministry said Friday that by at least one measure, American workers produce more than their Japanese counterparts.

Earlier this week, Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa told Parliament that America's work ethic was on the decline because college graduates were choosing high-paying jobs on Wall Street rather than in manufacturing.

That remark angered many Americans already upset over comments last month by House Speaker Yoshio Sakurauchi, who said U.S. workers were lazy and that about 30 percent are illiterate.

To come up with its findings, the ministry divided the 1989 gross domestic products of each country by the number of its workers to find that U.S. employees produce 1.62 times more than Japanese when the value of their work is calculated by purchasing power.

According to the Labor Ministry, Americans surpassed the Japanese in terms of productivity per hour, partly because of the longer hours Japanese workers put in — 42.3 hours per week in 1990 compared to 38.2 hours for U.S. workers.

But when productivity is calculated without taking purchasing power into consideration, using only the currency exchange rate to compare national output, American workers only produced 1.09 times as much as their counterparts in Japan, the ministry said.

Ministry official Yasuo Kuwashima said the study was done at the request of Labor Minister Tetsuo Kondo, who recommended such figures be released following the uproar over Japanese politician's remarks about American work habits.

EC nations sign landmark union treaty

MAASTRICHT, Netherlands (AP) — European Community members signed a landmark unity pact Friday, setting the 12-nation bloc toward political and monetary union by the end of the decade.

The European Union treaty lays the foundation for a possible European federation that could one day rival the clout of the United States.

"We have now passed the point of no return," said Dutch Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers before the document was signed.

The accord ends a year of intense negotiations, which often placed Britain at odds with its EC partners over the wisdom of forging closer ties. As a compromise, Britain can, for the moment, remain out of the proposed monetary union and possible EC-wide labor rules — issues London views as unacceptable intrusions on its sovereignty.

"This is a good treaty for Britain, for Europe. It is a good day," said British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd.

The pact reflects the community's desire to become a greater international political force to match its growing economic clout.

Mitterrand, Yeltsin sign cooperation accord on peace, disarmament

PARIS (AP) — France and Russia signed their first treaty in 101 years Friday and proclaimed themselves friends, but President Francois Mitterrand said Paris was not yet ready to join the nuclear disarmament race.

The new accord calls for annual French-Russian summits, and meetings between the foreign ministers twice a year.

"We are now no longer enemies," Russian President Boris Yeltsin said during a signing ceremony at the presidential palace that capped a three-day visit. "We want to become allies."

During his stay, Yeltsin gained French pledges of financial aid for Russia's troubled economy and exhorted French business executives to invest in his homeland.

Mitterrand told a joint news conference that France was prepared to join talks on nuclear arms reductions only after the United States and Russia carried out a further phase of deep cuts in their arsenals.

"Once these cuts have reached a certain level, in a fixed time frame, France could join these negotiations," Mitterrand said, without giving any specifics.

However, he praised Russia's disarmament initiatives, saying these already had enabled France to modify some defense programs.

■ More world news/2C

Yeltsin said he "understood and respected" France's reluctance to reduce its nuclear arsenal as long as the U.S. and Russian forces were vastly larger. France possesses an estimated 500 nuclear warheads. Yeltsin has suggested trimming Russia's arsenal to 2,500 warheads.

Mitterrand said the cooperation treaty "marks an era of good understanding between our two countries."

The new treaty replaces a Franco-Soviet friendship pact signed in October 1990 by Mitterrand and former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

In the accord, the two countries assert the need for a "minimal" nuclear force for deterrent purposes and pledge to cooperate in curtailing nuclear proliferation.

French and Russian officials signed several accords on Thursday, including an agreement for France to provide $370 million in credit for grain purchases.

U.S. wants to help Russia find jobs for its nuclear scientists

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The United States plans to propose to Russia the formation of a Western-financed clearinghouse intended to find jobs for thousands of Soviet nuclear scientists who might otherwise sell their expertise to hostile countries, Bush administration officials said Friday.

The clearinghouse would pair the talents of the estimated 2,000 to 3,000 scientists who have the most advanced nuclear knowledge with the needs of foreign investors, universities, private research organizations or governments willing to pay for commercial nuclear research.

This is one of several ideas that Secretary of State James A. Baker III is to take up with President Boris N. Yeltsin of Russia on a trip that will be devoted in part to visiting outlying former Soviet republics — Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan, Tajikistan — and in part to working out new arms control understandings with the Commonwealth of Independent States. Baker is to leave Washington on Sunday.

The centerpiece of the U.S. proposal to address the possible "brain drain" of nuclear scientists is the suggestion to establish clearinghouses in one or more centers outside of Moscow.

"The idea is to find those things that the Russians can do well and see whether there is a commercial application that can attract foreign capital," a U.S. official said.

Winter storms wreak havoc in Middle East

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Blizzards, torrential rains and gale-force winds lashed the Middle East on Friday, killing scores of people and damaging crops and homes already battered by one of the region's harshest winters.

Avalanches reportedly killed at least 54 people in southeastern Turkey, where snow slides claimed 141 lives last weekend and cut off hundreds of villages. The Anatolia news agency said at least 35 other villagers were missing.

U.N. agencies said heavy snow also blocked access to northern Iraq, halting relief supplies to Kurds suffering from an Iraqi government blockade.

In Lebanon, police said at least three people froze to death and 4,000 people were evacuated from flooded areas.

Storms and winds up to 55 mph swept across Israel and Jordan, swelling rivers and lakes in the usually parched region. Officials said the Jordan River spilled its banks and flooded 7,500 acres of farmland.

Hula Lake in northern Israel, which had been dry for years, was completely refilled.

On the eastern Mediterranean island of Cyprus, authorities managed to clear routes to 45 snowbound villages and bring in supplies.

Lebanese police said the storm — the third in two months and the heaviest ever recorded in Lebanon — uprooted power and communications poles across the nation caused extensive damage to at least 1,000 homes.

Iran says it has upgraded its air force

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran's has rebuilt its air force with repairs and new equipment, including advanced Soviet and Chinese warplanes, a military official said Friday.

Tehran radio, monitored in Nicosia, quoted air force chief Brig. Gen. Mansour Sattari as saying that the air force had put into service an unspecified number of Soviet-built MiG-29 fighters and Su-24 fighter-bombers, and Chinese-made F-7 fighters.

Sattari disclosed the acquisition of the Su-24s for the first time on Wednesday.

It was not clear whether he was referring to new acquisitions when he spoke of the other warplanes. Iran is known to have acquired at least 14 MiG-29s in September 1990, and has been flying the F-7s for a number of years.

Also, four MiG-29s and 40 Su-24s were among 148 Iraqi aircraft flown to Iran for safekeeping during the Persian Gulf War.

Iran since has said it will keep those aircraft as part of $97 billion it insists Iraq must pay in war damages. It is not known whether the Iranians have put any of those planes into service in their own air force.

There have been unconfirmed reports in recent months that the Iranians had gone on a major shopping spree for weapons in the cash-strapped republics of the former Soviet Union.

Sattari said Friday that the air force had made "great strides" toward self-sufficiency and total independence.

Speaking in a news conference in Tehran, he said that Iran improved its air power after it rebuilt and upgraded military bases damaged in the 1980-88 war with Iraq. Much of Iran's air force was destroyed in the war.

Michigan Senate approves anti-abortion bill

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Restrictive legislation that would require women to wait 24 hours for an abortion and get detailed information — including photos of fetuses — has cleared the Michigan Senate.

The measure, passed Thursday on a 24-10 vote, was an addition to a House-passed bill to amend health care licensing and discipline procedures. The amendment now goes to the House floor.

An earlier version has been stalled in the House for months.

"We can get absolutely no action, no debate, no discussion, no movement, in the House," said Republican Sen. Jack Welborn, one of the senators who attached the anti-abortion language. "Let House members have that opportunity for robust debate."

Gov. John Engler said Thursday he would sign the measure if it's approved by the House.

The bill would require a doctor to give a woman a description of a fetus similar in age to the patient's, information about what to do and whom to contact in the event of complications, and possible risks to the patient.

Women seeking abortions also would have to be told that psychological problems may be associated with abortion, about available services for women who decide against abortion, and how to obtain birth control information.

The measure also would require women to be shown pictures of a fetus at about the same age as theirs. The Senate defeated, 16-14, a move to strike the photo requirement.

Opponents had strong opinions.

"The idea of the state impinging itself on the patient and physician is truly absurd," said Sen. John Schwarz, a physician. "There is no other procedure that requires a 24-hour waiting period. It truly infringes on the doctor-patient relationship."

But Sen. Joanne Emmons argued the bill would help "a group exploited by abortion. These people don't have the right information to make an informed decision."

A study released by the National Abortion Rights Action League in January listed Michigan among 13 states in which women would be "at immediate risk" of losing their right to abortion if the U.S. Supreme Court reverses its 1973 decision in Roe vs. Wade, allowing states to ban or regulate abortion.

Bush to Americans: Cut costs by staying healthy

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bemoaning runaway medical costs, President Bush on Friday lectured Americans to stay healthier by exercising more, drinking less, eating right and avoiding drugs and risky sex.

"Let's change the behavior that costs society tens of billions — this is no exaggeration — tens of billions of dollars in lost earnings and productivity, treatment-related programs, accidents and certainly crime," the president said in a speech to the Rotary Club.

Bush offered his "old fashioned" prescription for good health as a followup to his $100 billion proposal of tax credits and deductions to help poor and middle-class Americans buy medical care.

The health-care plan, which he announced Thursday in Cleveland, filled a missing page in Bush's re-election campaign book and will become a major theme of his bid for second term. But critics complained that he did not reveal how he would pay for his expensive program and that it did not do enough to control spiraling health care costs.

Politics was on Bush's mind Friday as he toured the Logan Heights Family Health Center, a federally funded facility that serves the city's poor. He told children outside he would formally announce his re-election effort next week.

Yet, Bush made clear to his Rotary Club audience that he wouldn't accept anything that smacked of nationalized medicine, as proposed by some Democrats.

"Instead of a better health care system, they demand a nationalized health system," Bush said.

Louisiana officials consider lawsuit to stop shipments of Texas soil

MONROE, La. (AP) — A member of the Ouachita Police Jury says he may file a lawsuit to stop about 1,800 truckloads of lead-contaminated soil from being shipped from Texas to a Monroe-area landfill.

Police Juror Ben Marshall told a meeting Thursday that he would lead a lawsuit to fight a decision by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to allow the shipments.

The soil is coming from two cleanup sites in Texas, including one at a residential area near Dallas.

Local officials and residents say they were not informed of the plan until after the EPA approved it. The EPA has refused the parish's request to reconsider.

Officials with Waste Management Inc., the private company that operates the landfill, say the soil does not pose a health or environmental hazard.

New Hampshire residents flock to register

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Prospective voters flocked to get registered Friday and the New Hampshire secretary of state's office said turnout for the first-in-the-nation presidential primary could set a record.

Town and city clerks said they expected to be flooded today, the last day to register for the Feb. 18 primary.

"Oh God, it's been out of sight," Nashua Clerk Eleanor Benson said. "We registered 350 (Thursday), and it hasn't let up at all today (Friday)."

Benson said many more people have registered this year than did for the 1988 primary and increases were reported from one end of the state to the other.

'We registered 350 (Thursday), and it hasn't let up at all today (Friday).'

— Nashua Clerk Eleanor Benson

"I've had five or six people at the counter since I opened the door (Friday) morning," Concord Clerk Elizabeth Campbell said. "The lady taking registrations hasn't been able to sit down."

New Hampshire's ailing economy, unusually high interest in this year's campaigns and a purge of voter lists that removed 147,000 names statewide last summer were cited by clerks as reasons for the surge in registrations. Anyone who did not vote in the last three general elections was removed from the list.

Deputy Secretary of State Bob Ambrose said some of those registering had been registered before but most are new voters. Statewide, clerks expect to add 50,000 names to the lists by the deadline.

He said his office also has had an unusually high number of requests for absentee ballots and ballots for polling places. That leads him to believe there will be a heavy turnout.

"We always get a lot of requests at this time, but this year there's been an unusually high number, so we might have a record."

Harkin blasts Bush on housing; Kerrey demands Clinton candor

DERRY, N.H. (AP) — Democrat Tom Harkin said Friday that President Bush ignores the plight of families who lose their homes while Sen. Bob Kerrey called on Gov. Bill Clinton to show the same candor about his draft status he once asked of Dan Quayle.

■ More national news/7C

Clinton said the facts about his draft deferment are already clear. And former Sen. Paul Tsongas proclaimed himself the only fiscal conservative on the Democratic ballot in the Feb. 18 New Hampshire primary.

Kerrey told reporters in Boston that when Quayle's Vietnam-era stint in the Indiana National Guard became an issue in 1988, "Bill Clinton said what matters is not what he did, but what matters is just level and tell exactly what it was he did."

The Nebraska senator also quoted skeptically a Clinton statement that he had failed the hearing portion of a physical for a Navy officer program.

"Well, I'm telling you maybe in '69 they had a different standard, but in 1968 if you could walk a straight line, stand up right, use a knife and fork you could be a naval officer in the world's largest Navy because I did it," Kerrey said.

"I have questions about whether he met his own standard he established in 1988, not my standard but his," Kerrey said.

Clinton in 1969 received a draft deferment on condition he join an ROTC program but later gave up the deferment and was reclassified 1-A. Soon after that, the draft lottery began and the number he drew, 311, was high enough to ensure that he would not be called.

The Arkansas governor told reporters in New Hampshire on Friday that his situation was different from Quayle's. "I made myself available for the draft," he said. "I think the facts are clear. It has been looked into for years."

He said the issue with Quayle was "whether he had enough pull to get into the National Guard when the National Guard lists were full."

"At the time, I never criticized him about that," Clinton said. "I thought it happened a long time ago. He served in the Guard and that was it as far as I was concerned."

In Washington, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said he still supports Clinton for president. But he said he was waiting to see if Clinton would be the target of fresh allegations.

Morales plans call on panel to take judge off case

■ More state news / 10C

Democrats claim the Austin federal court, which overturned a redistricting plan backed by Democrats, acted in a partisan manner and imposed a plan that favors Republicans.

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Attorney General Dan Morales will call on a three-judge federal panel to withdraw its legislative redistricting plan and have one of the judges taken off the case because of "clear improprieties," a spokesman said Friday.

Morales has decided he has heard enough," said his spokesman Gray McBride. "What has clearly developed are clear improprieties in the court at the time of decision making on the plan."

McBride was referring to allegations of secret contact on the state Senate redistricting plan between U.S. District Judge James Nowlin, who headed the Republican-appointed panel, and state Rep. George Pierce, R-San Antonio.

Pierce has said Nowlin asked him to work on the redistricting plan, but he denied any wrongdoing. Nowlin has declined to discuss the case.

Records obtained by the state attorney general's office showed 11 calls were made from Pierce's office to Nowlin's court during a two-day period just before the court imposed its plan Dec. 24. Nowlin has refused to comment on the allegations.

Democrats claim the Austin federal court, which overturned a redistricting plan backed by Democrats, acted in a partisan manner and imposed a plan that favors Republicans.

"Nowlin acted with enough impropriety to trigger the removal of this order," said McBride.

"The plan has clear legal faults standing alone. The fact that the plan was birthed from such an inappropriate process is more than enough to conclude that it shouldn't stand," he said.

The state will file motions with the three judges on Monday, McBride said.

Morales has also asked the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn the lower court's plan. But the nation's Supreme Court probably won't even consider whether to review the appeal before absentee voting for the March 10 primary elections already has started.

The next closed-door conference for the justices to look at what cases they will hear is Feb. 21 — two days after early voting begins in Texas in the political party primaries.

Typically an appeal, such as the state's, would go on the court's regularly scheduled conference. McBride, however, said it was still possible for the court to consider the appeal before absentee voting started.

Meanwhile, Hispanic activists criticized Pierce's role in the redistricting plan after reports about the telephone calls from his office to Nowlin's office.

"We are still having many, many questions about why those calls occurred," said Norma Cantu, regional counsel for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

Pierce did not return telephone calls Friday.

Pierce is running for a state Senate seat in a district he said he helped redraw.

Ms. Cantu also criticized the federal court for not allowing MALDEF to become a party to the lawsuit that led to the court's controversial Senate plan.

Joining MALDEF at a news conference to criticize the plan were the American G.I. Forum, the National Association of Latino Elected Officials, the League of United Latin American Citizens, the Mexican American Democrats, the Southwest Voter Registration and Education Project and the Southwest Voter Research Institute.

State to receive additional money

DENTON (AP) — The state of Texas and local governments will receive an additional $603,810 from the Federal Emergency Management Agency for repairing public property damanged by floods and tornadoes in 1990-91, officials announced Friday.

SWC scramble

DALLAS (AP) — The departure of Arkansas from the Southwest Conference has left league officials and Dallas leaders scrambling to sell out the SWC Post-Season Classic basketball tournament.

Tickets for the mid-March tourney have typically been gobbled up by this time of year, with Arkansas fans buying about 10,000 seats.

Several thousand tickets remain for this year's tourney at Reunion Arena March 12-15.

Houston and San Antonio leaders have approached the league about becoming host to the tournament, which has been held at Reunion Arena in Dallas since 1985. Before that, the tourney was held at alternating sites since its inception in 1976.

About a month ago, the SWC and the Greater Dallas Chamber agreed to mount a corporate ticket-selling campaign that brings more Dallas-Fort Worth spectators to the tournament.

The league agreed that if the campaign sells 11,000 tickets this year, the tournament will remain in Dallas in 1993.

Calm blankets Olympics

■ Security will be strong, but officials at the Winter Games in Albertville, France are not very worried about terrorism.

By Steve Wilstein
AP Writer

ALBERTVILLE, France — For the first time since the 1972 Munich massacre, the Olympic Games open today devoid of a fortress mentality, untroubled by terrorism and focused on, of all things, sports.

The U.S. hockey team, which shook up world champion Sweden in its final tune-up game with hard-checking, NHL-style roughness, may represent the greatest threat of violence. Sweden's coach, Conny Evensson, left the rink complaining that the Americans' play was "more than dangerous. It was disgusting."

If that's the biggest beef at these Winter Games, that'll be fine with everyone. After the terrorist attack on Israelis at Munich, virtually all other Olympics, summer and winter, resembled armed camps. Soldiers packing machine guns, bazookas and rifles stood sentry at stadium entrances and atop buildings, backed up by helicopter patrols, barely concealed tanks and special forces ready to repel any sort of invasion.

In a world largely at peace after the collapse of communism and the release of Mideast hostages, officials here are no longer very worried about terrorism. Security still will be strong, with 6,500 police and military officers spread out over the 650 square miles of mountainous terrain. But the emphasis will be on discretion, not confrontation; natural dangers, not political problems.

"We've classified everything that's a potential threat by probability. Terrorism is not high on the list," said Col. Albert Delmas, head of Olympic security. "For us the greater danger is a technical accident or a massive snow avalanche — something that would interrupt the holding of the events, or transmission of their images.

"It won't be like Seoul. We're in a different period. In 1988 there was the tension between North and South Korea, and there were fears of big trouble. The climate here is much more calm."

The opening ceremonies Saturday will Speed skater Dan Jansen leads U.S. teammates Bonnie Blair, Dave Cruikshank and Peggy Klassen in a drill Friday in Albertville, France.

Jansen puts 1988 failure behind him

By Mary Foster
AP Sports Writer

LA LECHERE, France — Four years later, Dan Jansen finally has a chance to make people realize that he CAN stand up on skates, that he CAN keep his balance and rhythm, that he CAN win an Olympic gold medal.

Not that it will be easy. But maybe, once he has that gold to go with all the rest of his trophies and world records, he won't spend so much time answering THE QUESTION.

"I get asked about it every day," Jansen said Friday. "Everyone asks. Dozens of times I tell people it's behind me but they still ask."

Jansen, 26, went to his second Olympics in Calgary in 1988 dubbed the speedskater to beat in both the 500 and 1,000 meters. Instead, he grabbed headlines when, just after learning of the death of his sister, he fell — not once but twice.

If talking about it bothers him, Jansen doesn't let it show. He answers calmly. After all, he said, he knew he would have to.

"There's a lot more pressure from the reporters this time. I expected it, though, and I can deal with it," Jansen said. "In 1988 I really didn't talk to many people at first. Really, no one was that interested in me before it happened. Now it seems like everyone is."

Midland Lee's 5-7 guard Keenan Henry (10) goes up for a rebound against Odessa Permian's Reuben Loud during District 4-5A encounter Friday night at Chaparral Center.

Lee wins

Lattibeaudiere nails 44

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

OK, which story do you want from Chaparral Center Friday night — the one where Midland Lee holds off a desperate Odessa Permian rally for a 94-89 District 4-5A victory, or the one where junior Martin Lattibeaudiere becomes the first Rebel in at least a decade to score 44 points?

Lattibeaudiere

Considering the shape of the 4-5A basketball race (Lee at 5-4 is still 1½ games behind idle Abilene Cooper and Abilene High, an 86-82 loser to San Angelo, in the race for two playoff berths), Lattibeaudiere's recovery from the land of the scoring dead seems to be the most attractive of an attractive night.

Lattibeaudiere, who scored 18 of his 44 points in the first quarter, hit 12 of 17 shots from the field, including four of six treys, and connected on 16 of 18 shots from the charity stripe.

This is the same junior who scored only 10 points in his last two games, two against Midland High and eight against Abilene Cooper. Notably, both of those games went into the loss column for the Rebs.

"I guess you can say I'm back," Lattibeaudiere said. "I have no idea why I went in a scoring slump, but I was nothing for 10 against Midland High. I guess you have games like that.

"This was a big game for the team because we're down to our last chance to get in the playoffs. We can't lose another game, and I just wanted to help the team. They went in tonight."

Lee coach Jon House said, "That's what you call getting back on track. I knew he had a lot of points, but I didn't realize it was that many."

You probably have to go back to Midland High's Herbert Johnson in the early '80s to find another local effort to come close to Lattibeaudiere's 44.

Lattibeaudiere was a story unto himself, but his effort was almost not good enough to lead

'Dogs beat OHS in OT

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Midland High's boys basketball team keeps hanging by a thread.

The Bulldogs used a clutch 15-foot jumper by junior guard Mike Melzer with eight seconds left in regulation to take Odessa High to overtime here Friday night. Then Melzer hit another jumper with 35 second remaining in OT to put MHS ahead for good, as the Bulldogs defeated the Bronchos 82-79.

On the precarious edge of playoff elimination, the 'Dogs entered the game having lost two of their last three games and needing to win the rest of their games to have a postseason prayer.

Their win Friday puts the Bulldogs at 4-5 in District 4-5A (15-12 overall), three games behind first-place Abilene High (7-2), which lost to San Angelo Friday, 86-82. With three games left in its season, MHS trails Abilene Cooper for the second playoff spot by 2½ games. The Cougars, who were idle Friday, are 6-2 in district play.

After Friday's game, Melzer echoed what must be the Bulldog mantra for the next three games — "win the rest and hope for the best."

MHS girls stop OHS

Sally Gibson and Ashley Chase have played basketball together for eight years. Friday night, they took a bow in high style, playing their final home game together, as the Midland High Lady Bulldogs defeated the Odessa High Lady Broncos, 47-41.

Gibson totalled 24 points and 17 rebounds — tying her own single game rebound mark — in what was one of the most well-rounded efforts of her MHS career. Chase, meantime, set an MHS single-game individual assist record with 13.

The win gives the Lady 'Dawgs sole possession of third place with a 5-5 record in District 4-5A, 19-9 overall. OHS falls into a three-way tie for fourth with a 4-6 league mark, 16-11 overall.

Gibson's play on the boards was so dominating she out-rebounded Odessa High's entire team until the 3:50 mark of the third quarter when the Lady Bronco's collected their 14th rebound.

Levi's 63 catches Azinger

Associated Press

HONOLULU — Former winner Wayne Levi fired a 9-under 63 Friday to move to 12-under and into a share of the lead with Paul Azinger midway through the second round of the Hawaiian Open.

Levi, the 1982 champ, made six birdies on the back nine, including the final three holes, to tie first-round leader Azinger.

Hawaiian Open

Azinger started the day at 7-under and shot 67, overcoming two bogeys on his back nine with a birdie on the final hole.

Levi's round was one shot off the course record established in the first round of last year's tournament by Scott Simpson.

PGA Tour rookie Bruce Zabriski, who started the day a stroke behind Azinger, shot 68 to stand 10-under. Michael Cunning shot 66 to stand 8-under, while five others, led by 1981 Hawaiian Open champ Hale Irwin, were 7-under.

Defending champ Lanny Wadkins missed the cut after shooting 1-under 71 to finish at 145. Other former champs who missed the cut were Andy Bean and Ben Crenshaw.

Levi two-putted for birdie on the first hole and followed with birdies on Nos. 5, 8 and 9. He bogeyed No. 10 after missing a 4-footer for par.

From there, Levi sank an 18-footer for birdie on 11, a 14-footer on No. 12 and used a 3-iron to chip within 4 feet of the cup for a birdie on No. 13. He closed out with birdies on the final three holes, two-putting for birdie on No. 18 to grab a share of the lead.

Azinger said his round was good, but could have been much better.

He started strong on the back nine, tapping a 1-foot putt for birdie on No. 10. He made a 17-footer for birdie on No. 15 and a 16-footer on 17, then used a 4-iron to get out the bunker and make par on No. 18.

Michelle Estill waves to the crowd at the 18th green after shooting a 68 to lead at Inverrary.

Estill leads Inverrary

Associated Press

LPGA

LAUDERHILL, Fla. — Michelle Estill, a second-year player surrounded by Hall of Famers, shook off a case of nerves to take the first-round lead at the $500,000 Phar-Mor at Inverrary.

Estill, 29, from Scottsdale, AZ., shot a 4-under, bogeyless round of 68, one stroke ahead of Martha Nause, Katie Peterson-Parker, and Hall of Famers Pat Bradley and Joanne Carner.

Thirteen golfers are at 70, with two rounds to go on the course, where winter rains have stripped holes 9, 12, 16, and 18 of most of their grass, turning birdie putts into adventures.

Carner, 52, winner of 42 tournaments, birdied four of five holes on the front nine, and is hoping to win her first tournament since 1985.

Deb Richard, who could win successive Phar-Mor championshps and the accompanying $1 million bonus paid over 10 years, was at 72.

Douglass, Moody pepper greens for record 64s

Associated Press

Senior Golf

NAPLES, Fla. — Dale Douglass and Orville Moody, matching each other shot for shot, attacked the soft greens at the Vineyards Golf and Country Club for record-tying 64s Friday to share the lead in the Aetna Challenge.

Both golfers shot 33 on the front nine and 31 on the backside to stand 8-under par after the first round of the 54-hole PGA Seniors tournament.

But Moody, who needed just 20 putts in his round, didn't think the course would play so easily Saturday.

"The wind didn't blow much today for us," he said. "The greens will probably be a bit firmer on Saturday."

Moody also expected to see the temperature as more of a factor Saturday, saying the forecast calling for morning lows in the upper 40s would raise scores. In any event, he did not expect a repeat of the first round, during which 40 players broke par.

Douglass wouldn't mind if the forecast was inaccurate. He would like a repeat performance.

"The golf course was in perfect shape," Douglass said of the 6,722-yard layout. "Sometimes you get places where you play well ... this course was one of them for me. I drove the ball well, but I putted well, too."

Gene Littler was two shots back and one ahead of Rocky Thompson, Jimmy Powell and George Archer, all of whom shot 67. At 68 were Simon Hobday, Mike Hill, J.C. Snead, Bob Reith and Charles Owens.

Fourteen golfers are at 69 in the $450,000 event. The winner Sunday gets $67,500.

NCAA's best big men collide today

Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La. — Louisiana State's Shaquille O'Neal insists he has nothing to prove against Christian Laettner of top-ranked Duke when the best big men in college basketball collide today.

But one of the best small men, Duke guard Bobby Hurley, will miss the game against the 22nd-ranked Tigers, plus another three weeks, with a broken metatarsal bone in his right foot. The injury was sustained in Duke's first loss of the season, Wednesday night at North Carolina.

Duke is 17-1, and LSU is 14-4 after seven straight victories.

Last season, Duke beat LSU 88-70 when Laettner, 6-foot-11 and 245 pounds, had 24 points and 11 rebounds. O'Neal, 7-1 and 295, had 15 points and 11 rebounds, then had to read stories saying Laettner faked him silly and shot over him almost at will.

"It's not Shaquille O'Neal vs. Christian Laettner Saturday," O'Neal said. "It's going to be Louisiana State University vs. Duke University.

"Every time I touch the ball, there's going to be three people on me. I don't think that's fair to say Shaquille O'Neal vs. Christian Laettner."

"I'm just going to try to do my best. If Christian Laettner scores 50 points and I score 10, and the next day in the paper it says Christian Laettner is better than me, that doesn't matter as long as we win the game.

"I'm not concerned about being best in the nation or best in the world."

Over the week leading up to the game, a tent city grew outside LSU's Assembly Center — students camping out in rain and almost-freezing temperatures to make sure they got some of the limited supply of student tickets, even though the game will be televised.

"We're going to be pretty pumped up," O'Neal said.

Laettner said he was getting excited about the game, too. Possibly because of his success last season, he was more expansive about the meeting than O'Neal.

"It's a game a lot of people are looking forward to." Laettner said. "A lot of people can't wait to watch it. I feel the same way: I can't wait for the game. It's going to be fun to see how I do and

MHS: Gibson hits 24 points

(From 1B)

Offensively, Gibson scored MHS's first 12 points.

The 5-11 Gibson said "it was sad" knowing she was playing her last game in front of the home fans.

"Sally and I worked well together this year," Chase added. "We couldn't have made it without each other.

"Overall, it's disappointing that we didn't make the playoffs, but we have a great team and we had a lot of fun."

Reserves Jennifer Pirkle, Mich Neatherlin and Tarshina Belcher, the Lady 'Dawgs three remaining seniors, all started in what was their final home game.

Largely due to the teamwork of Gibson and Chase, MHS never seemed in real danger of losing the game, although OHS tied it 20-20 at halftime.

MHS used a decisive third quarter to take control of the game, outscoring the Lady Broncos, 14-7. OHS was only able to close the gap to within six, 45-39, in the last minute.

"What hurt us was our lapse of mental concentration," OHS head coach Harry Masch said. "A few dumb things took us out of it. With our personnel, we've got to play smart.

"Midland High's got a really good team. They're tough for us to play and they're hard to guard. They've got good outside shooters and good inside players. We beat Lee twice, by six- and by 19. I think Midland High's got a better team."

OHS, incidentally, closes its regular season next Friday at Lee.

The contest at times resembled more of a pick-up game in the Bronx than a girls game in West Texas. Three players were aided to the bench after nasty collisions. Odessa's Amy Trent took a finger to the eye, while teammate Lori Valles received a knee in the thigh and was carried off the court. MHS's Charlotte Scharbauer left late in the game after her nose was bloodied by a flying Bronco elbow.

"They play good, aggressive ball," Masch said of his short-handed, six-girl crew.

In spite of the cases of incidental brutality, the game was more a fashionable display of the way Chase and Gibson have cultivated their play together since they were fifth graders at Trinity School.

"I haven't been shooting well lately," Chase said afterward.

"Oh, yeah you have," Gibson said, sticking up for her friend.

"No I haven't, and I know if I get the ball to Sally, she'll get open and she'll get it in somehow," Chase said.

Conversation over. Except for one other thing.

"I'll miss them immensely," MHS head coach Jim Raughton said of his seniors. "Not just as players, but as people. They've been good for the younger girls. Not just for the basketball program but at Midland High."

The MHS junior varsity defeated Odessa's JV, 58-29. MHS scored 15 to lead the Lady 'Dawgs; Michel Ann Thompson added 13.

LEE: Panthers, Rebels now best friends

(From 1B)

Lee to victory.

The Rebels scored 15 consecutive points in the first quarter to roll to a 26-11, 15-point lead. By the 7:42 mark of the second period, Lee held a 30-12, 18-point, lead. Then the roof almost caved in.

Permian went on a 16-3 run in the second period on the way to an incredible 31-point period to climb back into the game at 49-43 by the half.

The Panthers even stormed back for an 88-87 lead with 55 seconds left in the game on a nice layup by Hassan Rice while crossing the paint. Lee answered quickly when Pat Kimble hit a three-point arc with 35 seconds left and a 90-88 lead. Lee never trailed again.

Kimble had missed from three-point range on four previous tries, but he nailed the one that really counted.

"Our kids really hung in there, but our biggest problem is that we fouled too much," said Permian coach Willie Spears. "We fouled, and Lee made the shots."

On Lattibeaudiere, Spears said, "We started the game in a zone, but it didn't work, so we went back to the man-to-man defense to stop some of that. That's what we used to beat them the first time we played."

Lee did connect on 31 of 43 free throws while Permian hit on 21 of 36 charity shots, in a game that saw 59 fouls called.

House was a little disturbed over losing the 18-point cushion to Permian.

"We just don't have the killer instinct to step on people. We've eased up time after time this year after we get a good lead," House said. "If anyone has a cure for that, tell me."

House added, "Permian does deserve some credit. We led by 18, they hit some treys and the game is a seven-point game, and suddenly we're in a war."

Wayne Wilson had 19 points for Lee while Keenan Henry had 15. Reuben Loud led Permian with 21 points while 6-6 Nicky Spain had 19, Willie Ellis 14, and Scooter Spears 12. If you like scoring, this was the place to be Friday.

But no one matched the 44 from the guy with the long name.

Lee has the night off Tuesday with an open date and will become Permian's best friend since the Panthers host Abilene High. Lee still has a game left with AHS at home, so maybe, just maybe, that district race story may not have the sudden ending we all thought just four days ago.

In junior varsity action, Lee took a 74-56 win over Permian as John Sullivan had 17 points and Caeser Brannon 12. Tyrone Thomas had 16 points for Permian and Sheldon Bass added 14.

BULLDOGS: Goodley scores 31 points

(From 1B)

'Dogs over the top 80-79 with just more than a half minute left in the overtime, it was the inside play of junior forward Antwan Goodley that put them in position for the victory.

Goodley scored a game-high 31 points and, according to Melzer, it was him they were trying to feed the ball to in the late going.

"We were trying to get the ball to Antwan, but my man doubled down to help out on Antwan and gave me the open shot," said Melzer, who ended the game with 14 points.

Even after MHS took its final lead the Bronchos had plenty of clock to work with, but sophomore Aaron Rogers missed a go-ahead shot and Adrian Gentry couldn't put it back in on the rebound. After Gentry's miss, Goodley strong-armed the rebound and was fouled by Spud Morris.

Goodley sank both of his one-and-one free throws on the other end with eight seconds left in OT to make the score 82-79, and MHS staved off a desperation three-point try by Rogers just before the buzzer.

The frenetic pace that typified the fourth quarter and the overtime was also prevalent throughout the game.

The Bulldogs took advantage of OHS' sloppy first quarter to lead 12-4 early, and 23-12 at the end of a period that saw the Bronchos commit 10 turnovers. But the start of the second quarter gave OHS new life, as the Broncs went on a 14-6 tear in the first four minutes and post Ryan Ledlow scored 17 first-half points.

By halftime, in fact, OHS had retaken the lead it had lost way back when MHS went ahead 4-2 in the game's first minute, boasting a 39-37 edge at intermission.

In the second half, MHS did a good job of denying Ledlow the ball and double-teaming him when he did get it. In the third and fourth quarters Ledlow took one field-goal attempt, and missed it. He finished the game with 19 points after a basket in overtime.

Meanwhile, seven different Bulldogs scored in the third period, as MHS outscored OHS 20-13 in the eight minutes and were ahead 57-52 going into the fourth.

The fourth quarter began with Melzer sinking two free throws for a technical foul called on OHS coach Greg Baucom, who was arguing a no-call under the Broncho basket at the end of the third quarter. Still, OHS scored 21 points in the fourth to force Melzer into his two heroic shots.

Also scoring in double figures for the 'Dogs were junior post Andre Gill with 13 points and senior inside man Phil Koss with 10.

Rogers, playing in just his fourth varsity game of the season, had 15 points for the Bronchos while Morris scored 13 and Levi Christian 12. Guard Avery Thomas, who burned MHS for 30 points in OHS' 92-78 win over the Bulldogs Jan. 14 at the Chaparral Center, was held to nine points and fouled out of the game when he was called for an offensive foul with one second left in regulation.

In junior varsity play MHS claimed a 60-51 victory to up its season record to 19-5. Billy Merritt scored 13 points to lead the Bullpups, while Freddie Stricklin had 11 and Phil Warlick 10. Lupe Reyes led OHS with 16.

Midland High (82): Antwan Goodley 12-22 7-10 31, Mike Melzer 6-16 2-2 14, Joseph Golding 1-3 0-1 2, Brian Rounding 3-12 3-4 9, Rob Foster 1-3 0-0 2, Robert McKee 0-0 0-0 0, Phil Koss 5-6 0-0 10, Andre Gill 5-9 3-4 13, Jeff Chancellor 0-2 1-3 1. Totals: 33-73 16-24 82.

Lady Rebs tied for first place

Staff Report

ODESSA — Senior Debbie Kuntz hit a three-pointer at the buzzer as Midland Lee continued its ride through District 4-5A with a 44-41 win over Odessa Permian.

Lee's win, combined with Abilene High's 65-46 loss to San Angelo, gives the Lady Rebels a share of first place. Both teams have just one game remaining. Should both teams either win or lose their final contest, a one-game playoff would be held to decide seedings for the post-season.

Kuntz nailed five treys in the Lady Rebs' winner, and finished the game with a season-high 19 points. Kuntz was the only Lee player in double figures.

Midland Lee (44) — Angela Buchanan 1 0-0 2; Debbie Kuntz 7 0-0 19; Lachette Crisp 2 0-0 4; Tekeira Strambler 3 2-3 8; Tanisha Mills 2 2-2 6; Monica Myers 2 1-1 5. Totals: 17 5-6 44.

NBA All-Star game Magic's farewell to fans

By Bill Barnard
AP Basketball Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. — Magic Johnson regards his appearance in Sunday's NBA All-Star game as his chance to bid farewell to U.S. fans.

"Putting on the uniform, the pregame introductions, throwing that first pass, being guarded by Michael Jordan and Isiah Thomas — all those things will be emotional for me," Johnson said Friday. "I plan to suck everything up and devour it."

Johnson, despite not playing this season after being tested positive for the virus that causes AIDS, is playing because fans voted him in as a starter for the Western Conference.

"When I retired three months ago, I had no idea about playing," he said. "Fans voting for me is the reason I'm here. It's a tribute that they voted for me.

"It's my chance to say good-bye to the fans. My VCR will be working on Sunday so I can pop it in for my son or daughter to see," he said.

Johnson, whose pregnant wife has tested negative for HIV, said he's been running four miles a day to prepare for the All-Star game and this summer's Olympics.

"But I know running is not enough," he said, "so I've been playing 5-on-5, 4-on-4 and 1-on-1 basketball every day to get ready."

Johnson and Thomas, who will start for the Eastern Conference against Johnson, both said they will give each other the same friendship greeting — kisses on the cheek — they had in NBA Finals in 1988 and 1989.

"If we didn't, everyone would say there was something wrong," Johnson said. "Then he will play me tough like he always has before. I wouldn't want it any other way. That's how I want to be played."

Thomas called Sunday's game "one of the special moments in the history of sports. I'll greet him like I always have, with a hug and a kiss, and then try to beat him up."

Several NBA players and coaches, including former teammates A.C. Green and Byron Scott, have suggested Johnson shouldn't play because of the health risk, however small.

"My obligation to Magic as a friend is to support him in whatever he wants to accomplish," Thomas said. "It sounds simplistic, but I think he's playing because he likes to play. The mentality of an athlete is that he would trade five years of his life for two good games."

Chicago's Phil Jackson, coach of the East team, said the debate over Johnson's appearance has a public and private side.

"Publicly, everyone wants to see him play," Jackson said. "Privately, they say, 'I don't want anything to happen to me.' It's natural for anyone to weigh the pros and cons. There's a lot of vacillation."

Golden State coach Don Nelson, coach of the West team, said Johnson should play "because it's what he loves to do. Right now, when he's healthy and feels good, he should do this."

Philadelphia's Charles Barkley, a starter on the East and an Olympic teammate of Johnson's, said his comments in recent days, that Johnson should reconsider his appearance, were misconstrued.

"Magic was taking heat, even from his teammates, and he doesn't deserve the abuse at this time of his life," Barkley said. "I thought maybe he should pull out rather than take it.

"I'm not afraid to play against Magic in the All-Star game and I'm not afraid to practice with him for the Olympics."

NBA commissioner David Stern said the All-Star participants were briefed by doctors Friday to answer any questions they have about AIDS or the virus that Johnson carries.

Acknowledging that he has no medical expertise to determine any risk caused by Johnson's appearance, Stern said, "All we can do is get the best medical advice we can get and follow that. We went to Johns Hopkins and to Dr. David Rogers, vice chairman of the president's commission on AIDS.

"After hearing that advice, I'm glad Magic Johnson is playing in the All-Star game. I'm glad I got to be the one to make the decision to let him play."

He said the differences of opinion concerning Johnson's decision to play "are healthy discussions that serve to raise awareness and consciousness of AIDS education."

Stern put off comment on Johnson's recent suggestion that he might return as a player with the Los Angeles Lakers, but did not rule out such a return.

"His hope is not something I want to take away from him," Stern said.

Preliminaries to Sunday's game begin Saturday night with an oldtimers game, 3-point shooting contest and slam dunk contest.

The dunk competitors are Nick Anderson of Orlando, Stacey Augmon of Atlanta, Cedric Ceballos of Phoenix, Charlotte's Larry Johnson, Seattle's Shawn Kemp, John Starks of New York and Doug West of Minnesota.

Nolan Ryan not thinking retirement

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON — Here's some bad news for American League hitters: Nolan Ryan, better than ever at age 45, has no thoughts of retirement.

"I can't say I feel any different than I did two or three years ago," Ryan says. "I plan on pitching this year and I hope I'm pitching next year."

Ryan, who will earn $4.4 million from the Texas Rangers this year, recently celebrated his 45th birthday, but he's not easing off the rigorous training regimen he's followed throughout 25 seasons in the major leagues.

Fresh off a 12-6 season that included his seventh no-hitter, a 2.91 ERA and 203 strikeouts — third-best in the American League — Ryan said Thursday he intends to step up his pace.

"I want to stay off the disabled list this year and get more starts," says Ryan, sidelined twice last season. "It got frustrating. I could have had twice the innings and starts I had if I could have pitched more. I was pleased with the stuff I had when I was in there."

He plans to change his offday routine.

"I had shoulder problems for the first time in my career last year," Ryan says. "I hope to have a better understanding of that this year and prepare for it. I'll modify my workout regimen to try to speed up my recovery time. I won't have as many repetitions on lifting weights and things like that."

Ryan doesn't have the leisurely off-season many other players enjoy. Since he was last seen throwing 96 mph fastballs for the Rangers five months ago, he's filmed commercials, bought a 13,000-acre ranch in South Texas and knocked down hitters in a fantasy camp.

Ryan just got back from Port Charlotte, Fla., where he pitched against everyone who signed up for the camp, including his wife Ruth.

Ruth got lucky. She caught a fastball just above the fists and grounded out meekly to the mound.

"It still stings," she says.

"I didn't have the heart to knock her down," Nolan says.

Alomar, Blue Jays come to terms

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Roberto Alomar, Toronto's All-Star second baseman, became the ninth-highest paid player in baseball on Friday when he agreed with the Toronto Blue Jays on a three-year contract worth a guaranteed $14 million.

Alomar, who made $1.3 million in 1991, will average $4,666,667 per season under the deal. Toronto has an option for 1995 that, if exercised, would make the contract worth $18.5 million over four years. The option year would become guaranteed if he has 500 or more plate appearances in any of the next three seasons.

"I can live a good life with the kind of money they gave me," Alomar said.

Alomar, a Gold Glove fielder, led the Blue Jays with a .295 average last season and finished second in the AL with 53 steals, trailing only Oakland's Rickey Henderson. Alomar also drove in a career-high 69 runs.

Baseball

"He's our most exciting player," Toronto general manager Pat Gillick said.

There were two hearings Friday: Chicago White Sox pitcher Jack McDowell and San Diego catcher Dann Bilardello.

Bilardello's two-hour hearing may have taken more time than he saw during the season since he had just 26 at-bats. Billardello is asking for a $120,000 raise to $235,000, while San Diego is offering a $10,000 raise.

Cincinnati third baseman Chris Sabo, who hit .301 last season with 26 home runs and 88 RBIs, agreed to $2.75 million, a raise of $1,475,000.

Little is worse than Olympian verse

By Larry McShane
AP Writer

ALBERTVILLE, France — If you don't like green eggs and ham, this weekend's opening ceremonies for the Winter Games will be tough to swallow.

Taking a page — several, actually — from the collected works of Dr. Seuss, the organizers will greet each of the 64 competing nations today with a four-line rhyme a la Cat in the Hat.

"A tropical island, the feared barracuda, will they ski like they swim? Meet the team from Bermuda," is typical of the poetry that will echo through Albertville as some of the world's finest athletes enter the main stadium at Olympic Park.

The introductions were unveiled Thursday evening at a public rehearsal of the opening ceremonies, and Shelley and Keats have nothing to worry about. How about this:

"The fact that they're here, sounds a brand new symphonia, so we're proud that they're here, the team from Estonia."

Or maybe this: "They're ready to fly, their step is so perky, please welcome the team, competing from Turkey."

Or this: "Competitors nimble and quick as the wind, let's hear the applause for the great Swaziland."

The great Swaziland has come with a one-man team — a lone skier. And he only got in this week after the Portugese dropped out, so this rhyme was obviously composed under great pressure. It also denied the world a chance to discover what rhymes with Portugal.

Two of the more compelling quatrains were composed for two new entries: Croatia and Lithuania. If they knew what was coming, neither might have been so eager for independence.

"With honors that mount, to the highest of stations, for the very first time, competing Croatians," will great those athletes. The Lithuanians will arrive to this: "Oh what a roar, to some it's a mania, cheering the team, from far Lithuania."

It's enough to get the late Theodor Geisel — who was Dr. Suess long before the Olympics started drug testing — rolling over in his grave. The Grinch that stole Christmas should have made off with these and left Whoville alone.

Obviously, some countries are tough to rhyme. "Cheer" went with "Alger-ia;" "share" and "Bulgar-ia" were paired; "A fan of" (slurred to sound like "a fanna") was matched with "Canada."

The U.S. rhyme turned Albertville to Dullsville: "Bronze, silver and gold, oh what glittering fates, for the team from, the United States."

Each verse was read in French and then in English, occasionally to the delight of people in either language.

"They're off like a dash, sprinting like astronauts, let's give a greeting, to the athletes Cypriot," went one twisted verse which crossed the language barrier while breaking the laugh meter.

Two Frenchmen, who looked puzzled after the English reading, went apoplectic after hearing this one in their native tongue.

The poems kick off the two hour-plus opening ceremonies, a spectacle featuring jet fighters, jugglers, fireworks, acrobats, dancers, gymnasts and 13 musicians hung from cranes playing the cymbals and the drums.

That's panache.

JANSEN: Speed skater expects added pressure

(From 1B)

Since the two falls in Calgary, Jansen has been among the world's best distance sprinters, winning the title in that event, the World Cup 1,000 and a silver in the 500 in 1988 after the Olympics

He has also spent the time taking turns with Uwe-Jens Mey breaking the world 500 record. Jansen lowered it to 36.41 seconds in Switzerland last month.

"I think DJ's the best pure skater in the world," said coach Peter Mueller. "He's got it all."

Maybe not all. Jansen said one thing he shucked off was any worry about the fall. When he steps up to the line at Albertville, for the 500 next Saturday and the 1,000 Feb. 18, he won't be thinking about four years ago.

Although public attention has stayed on the Calgary tragedy, Jansen said he's had plenty of opportunity to put it behind him.

"I've skated hundreds of races since then and I've never thought about it, so there's no reason I will now," he said.

CALM: Record 64 countries represented

(From 1B)

mark the first time since World War II that the Baltic republics — Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia — will march in an Olympics under the own flags. It will be the first appearance of the new Unified Team, representing five republics of the defunct Soviet Union. And it will be the first Olympics for Slovenia and Croatia, independent of Yugoslavia.

Two billion people around the world are expected to watch these Games, and the attention surely will be more on the performances than the politics.

Among the 2,200 athletes competing from a record 64 countries, the stars are likely to be a combination of the famous and the unknown.

One of the most famous and least bashful is Italy's Alberto Tomba — "Tomba la Bomba" of Calgary, where he won two gold medals in the slalom and giant slalom. This year, he's looking for a second double.

"I have a feeling that this is my year," he says with characteristic bravado. "Since the Olympics are in Albert-ville — and that is my name — I think the Olympics will be something special. Don't forget, the last time the Olympics were in Albert-a, and I had good success there. I feel maybe it's destiny for me to win in these places."

He jokes that "after the Games, they will have to change the name to Alberto-ville."

Japan's Midori Ito came out of nowhere to steal the greatest cheers from the crowd in women's figure skating four years ago with breathtakingly high leaps and an effervescent smile. She would be favored to win this time if not for the spills she suffered at the world championships.

If Ito should slip up here, look for any of the Americans — Kristi Yamaguchi, Tonya Harding or Nancy Kerrigan — to take the gold.

Yamaguchi, America's figure skating champion, has plenty of athleticism to blend with her artistic style and charismatic presence on the ice.

"I've been working hard since the nationals," she said. "I was very happy with that performance. I only hope I won't lose my bow."

The bow that fell from her hair to the ice at the nationals in Orlando, Fla., added to the drama of her performance as she barely skated by it several times to avoid disaster.

Todd Eldredge missed the nationals because of a back injury, but is just getting back his confidence and could challenge compatriot Chris Bowman for the gold among men.

"I've done the routine millions of times in practice," Eldredge said. "Whether you are practicing or on the ice in competition, you've got to put all your energy into what you are doing. There is no slow speed. I try not to get discouraged if I miss something. I haven't had a lot of training lately on the jumps.

"I don't know if my best will win a medal. I'll go out and try as hard as I can to do what I can. If it's enough, that's great. If not, we'll work even harder."

American speedskater Bonnie Blair is favored to repeat her gold medal performance in Calgary, and may even make it two or three this time.

Men's speedskater Dan Jansen, the heartbreak kid of Calgary, could become a legitimate star this time around.

Engineers billed

SEATTLE (AP) — The University of Washington will present a $450 bill to University of British Columbia engineers for this week's Rose Bowl trophy caper, officials said Friday.

Washington coach Don James said he has received a letter of apology from four British Columbia students offering to pay Washington for any damages and expenses the Huskies incurred in the trophy's theft.

Washington spokesman Chip Lydum said the Huskies' bill was for replacing broken glass in a case that contained the 1992 Rose trophy that was stolen.

Space, Style, Substance

By Sonja Merrick

This expansive, exquisite home has a specific area for almost every family activity — playing, working, entertaining, sleeping and waking. It's designed to make every hour of every day comfortably special for every member of the family.

First, find a large, inviting entry. A glorious chandelier captures and casts sparkling light. The ceramic tile floor extends toward the main living areas.

Directly ahead lies an exquisite formal living area. Arched windows that look out toward a pool and lake dominate one wall. Each detail is precisely executed — such as the marble-front fireplace flanked by built-ins, crown molding and electrical floor outlets.

Turning right from the entry, find another set of French doors that lead to a gracious formal dining area. It boasts hardwood floors, an elegant chandelier, dramatic Georgian wallpaper, chairback railing, wainscoating and plantation shutters.

A quick left from the dining area leads to a dream of a kitchen. Large and functional, it includes a center island with cookbook and stemware storage. Also there's a five-burner gas cook top, double oven, built-in microwave and warming drawer. Also a compactor, built-in refrigerator, lovely bleached ash cabinets and a walk-in pantry.

Adjoining the kitchen is an informal living area flanked by a light-filled breakfast area. Floor-to-ceiling brick houses a fireplace. Plenty of built-ins, including a lighted corner, table offer easy storage and convenience.

Step down from the family room into a bright, cheerful brick-pavered sun room. It has a great wet bar with refrigerator, ice maker and a pass-through to pool area.

A sequestered guest room is located near the informal living area. It has its own bath with access to the sun room. This delightful room overlooks the lake.

Nearby stairs lead to a huge second floor game room that's large enough for the family pool table. From it juts a deck with a view of the pool, lake and Greentree clubhouse. One side of the game room extends into a "study hall," complete with yards of desk area, built-in bookcases and cabinets.

Two children's bedrooms are also on the second floor, each with its own bath and spacious closet. Ceiling fans are in both rooms.

Back downstairs, to the left of the entryway, beyond the formal living area is a spectacular master bedroom. This sequestered retreat is graced with an exterior door to the patio/pool area, crown molding, ceiling fan and plantation shutters.

The adjoining master bath is highlighted by a raised oval marble whirlpool tub, double vanities, large dual-head shower. Fixtures are cultured gold. Two walk-in closets have a three-way mirror and built-in drawers.

Other areas include a laundry room spacious enough to accommodate recessed washer and dryer, freezer, built-in desk and ironing board, soak sink, folding table and a rack for hanging clothes. Specialty closets (on both floors) allow for tons of extra storage.

The garage houses four cars and has two double doors, each with electric opener. It also includes a 17-foot by 13-foot workshop complete with telephone and television connection.

Other amenities include intercom, sprinkler and security systems, water well for landscaping and exterior eaves lights on automatic timer. Also, a circle drive, three zones for heating/cooling systems and RO system. The home is being offered by Langston Realtors for $449,000.

Farming projects in Iraq threaten ancient sites, archaeologists say

By Chris Torchia
Associated Press writer

BOSTON — The Iraqi government is so desperate to feed its people it has started big farming projects that could inflict more damage on valuable archaeological sites than bombing in the Persian Gulf War, experts said Friday.

"I kind of understand why they would want to go out and make the desert bloom," said Paul Zimansky, professor of archaeology at Boston University. "Given the strains in Iraqi society, nobody has time to worry much about antiquities."

Zimansky returned last month from Iraq, where he saw large-scale plowing and newly dug irrigation ditches on land known to harbor archaeological sites.

He and his wife, Elizabeth Stone, a professor of anthropology at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, tried to visit the site of a Mesopotamian city they were excavating before the war.

But an area of cultivated land about 8 square miles blocked the way to the 4,000-year-old city of Mashkan-shapir. They don't know if the ancient site, about 85 miles southeast of Baghdad, is intact.

"If a site like that has been plowed up, we have lost all that information on how an old Babylonian city is organized," Zimansky said. "What we don't know, we can't put a price tag on."

Mesopotamia, in what is now the heart of modern Iraq, was one of the world's first civilizations.

Before the war, Iraq's agency overseeing antiquities had so much clout it could forbid military maneuvers near an archaeological site, Stone said. Now the department has no working telephone and staff workers have to borrow cars.

McGuire Gibson, professor of Mesopotamian archaeology at the University of Chicago, said Iraq was supplying water and other materials to private farmers in the desert.

"They're basically encouraging anyone who wants to farm to take the land and go out and do it," Gibson said. "This is land that has been abandoned for centuries."

Experts disagree over how much damage the heavy bombing of Iraq in the Persian Gulf War caused to archaeological sites.

"We have no idea what is around factories and things that were bombed," Gibson said. "There are sites all over the place."

Zimansky said damage was relatively light, partly because the allied forces targeted military sites with precision. Also, many ancient sites in Iraq are buried and spread out over large areas.

"People have the wrong vision, they see columns standing up, they see the Parthenon," said Zimansky. "That's not what a Mesopotamian site looks like.

"It looks like a vast sand bar. A bomb here and a bomb there just puts a hole in one place."

Well known ancient sites such as the ziggurat at Ur escaped major damage, Zimansky said.

He said he saw a few bomb craters near the ziggurat, a terraced pyramid first excavated in the 1930s. Holes in the structure's thick walls may have been made by bullets when U.S. planes strafed the area near an Iraqi air base, Zimansky said.

Iraq has as many as half a million archaeological sites, including 100 or 200 ancient cities.

"There's so much to dig in Iraq," said Jerrold Cooper, a professor of Assyriology at Johns Hopkins University. "In the broader scheme of things, I personally wouldn't worry about it."

New arrivals match number of Haitians repatriated

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (NYT) — On side-by-side piers at the U.S. naval station here, 200 Haitian boat people were put aboard one Coast Guard cutter for a trip home while 156 Haitians just rescued from the seas prepared to come ashore to the Guatanamo refugee camp.

Despite the repatriation program that began a week ago, the number of new arrivals continues to run neck and neck with the number of departures, at least for the moment.

At the camp, which on Friday held 11,570 Haitians, 200 are preparing to set sail for Haiti on the cutter Seneca; 50 are boarding a flight to Miami, having qualified for consideration as political refugees who need not return home; 188 are disembarking from the cutter Dauntless, which pulled into port Thursday, and 156 new arrivals are waiting on board the cutter Steadfast, which arrived from its patrol near Haiti on Friday.

The camp was meant to be temporary, and the United States would like to ship 500 Haitians home every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

U.N. chief announces major reorganization

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — New Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali on Friday announced a sweeping reorganization of U.N. headquarters, eliminating or consolidating more than a dozen departments in an effort to streamline the bureaucracy.

As part of his first major action since taking office Jan. 1, Boutros-Ghali also promoted hostage negotiator Giandomenico Picco to positions in two new departments charged with peacemaking and early warning of crises.

It is not clear whether the reorganization will amount to anything more than a complex reshuffle. There will be no layoffs among the headquarters' 6,000 civil servants and it was not known if the moves would save any money.

The changes will affect 13 or 27 undersecretaries-general.

The best-known beneficiary of shakeup will be Picco, an Italian diplomat who achieved worldwide renown for quietly negotiating the release of Western hostages in Lebanon.

Last Friday world leaders at the United Nations urged the secretary-general to renovate U.N. peacemaking and peacekeeping but did not call specifically for reorganization.

In a sign of the new importance attached to peacekeeping, the Office for Special Political Affairs will be renamed the Office for Peacekeeping Operations. It will continue to be headed by Undersecretary-General Marrack Goulding of Britain, the top U.N. peacekeeper.

Boutros-Ghali also named Jean-Claude Aime of Haiti as chief of staff and Alvaro de Soto of Peru as senior political advisor. Aime is known for his many missions to the Middle East and replaces Virendra Dayal of India.

Giuliani said the work of phased-out departments will be absorbed by others. "I don't know about savings," he said, adding that the aim was not to save money but to improve the bureaucracy.

Streamlining, he said, "means the lines of command will be clearer and responsibility will be less spread out."

The Department for Disarmament Affairs will be eliminated, although a declaration at last week's summit of leaders of Security Council nations emphasized the importance of disarmament and arms control.

The reorganization's scope is unprecedented. The last attempt at reform was in November 1986.

Government incompetence led to coup attempt, leaders say

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A group of influential military leaders published a declaration Friday that said the government brought on this week's coup attempt with its incompetence.

Sixty-two retired officers said the military uprising was a result of the democratic leadership's inability to fight corruption and provide decent living conditions for the country's 20 million people. About 80 people, mainly civilians caught in crossfire, died in Tuesday's rebellion.

Meanwhile, the 34 members of the Organization of American States approved a resolution that denounced "the criminal attack against the life of the chief of state."

President Carlos Andres Perez narrowly escaped capture by the rebels in the initial hours of the uprising.

Among those attending the OAS ceremony here was deposed Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. He is living in exile in Caracas at Perez's invitation since he was overthrown in September.

The military leaders' statement on the coup was published in Venezuelan papers. It said the coup attempt was "a consequence of the incapacity that has been demonstrated by our political system during the last four administrations to maintain public security, peace and employment gains."

Many of those signing, including 19 generals, were influential in the establishment of democracy in the country 30 years ago. Since 1962, the country has been ruled by elected leaders — the longest stretch of uninterrupted democracy in Latin America.

On Thursday, the government warned the nation's media to help preserve tranquility or face "severe sanctions."

Farming projects in Iraq threaten ancient sites, archaeologists say

By Chris Torchia
Associated Press writer

BOSTON — The Iraqi government is so desperate to feed its people it has started big farming projects that could inflict more damage on valuable archaeological sites than bombing in the Persian Gulf War, experts said Friday.

"I kind of understand why they would want to go out and make the desert bloom," said Paul Zimansky, professor of archaeology at Boston University. "Given the strains in Iraqi society, nobody has time to worry much about antiquities."

Zimansky returned last month from Iraq, where he saw large-scale plowing and newly dug irrigation ditches on land known to harbor archaeological sites.

He and his wife, Elizabeth Stone, a professor of anthropology at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, tried to visit the site of a Mesopotamian city they were excavating before the war.

But an area of cultivated land about 8 square miles blocked the way to the 4,000-year-old city of Mashkan-shapir. They don't know if the ancient site, about 85 miles southeast of Baghdad, is intact.

"If a site like that has been plowed up, we have lost all that information on how an old Babylonian city is organized," Zimansky said. "What we don't know, we can't put a price tag on."

Mesopotamia, in what is now the heart of modern Iraq, was one of the world's first civilizations.

Before the war, Iraq's agency overseeing antiquities had so much clout it could forbid military maneuvers near an archaeological site, Stone said. Now the department has no working telephone and staff workers have to borrow cars.

McGuire Gibson, professor of Mesopotamian archaeology at the University of Chicago, said Iraq was supplying water and other materials to private farmers in the desert.

"They're basically encouraging anyone who wants to farm to take the land and go out and do it," Gibson said. "This is land that has been abandoned for centuries."

Experts disagree over how much damage the heavy bombing of Iraq in the Persian Gulf War caused to archaeological sites.

"We have no idea what is around factories and things that were bombed," Gibson said. "There are sites all over the place."

Zimansky said damage was relatively light, partly because the allied forces targeted military sites with precision. Also, many ancient sites in Iraq are buried and spread out over large areas.

"People have the wrong vision, they see columns standing up, they see the Parthenon," said Zimansky. "That's not what a Mesopotamian site looks like.

"It looks like a vast sand bar. A bomb here and a bomb there just puts a hole in one place."

Well known ancient sites such as the ziggurat at Ur escaped major damage, Zimansky said.

He said he saw a few bomb craters near the ziggurat, a terraced pyramid first excavated in the 1930s. Holes in the structure's thick walls may have been made by bullets when U.S. planes strafed the area near an Iraqi air base, Zimansky said.

Iraq has as many as half a million archaeological sites, including 100 or 200 ancient cities.

"There's so much to dig in Iraq," said Jerrold Cooper, a professor of Assyriology at Johns Hopkins University. "In the broader scheme of things, I personally wouldn't worry about it."

New arrivals match number of Haitians repatriated

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (NYT) — On side-by-side piers at the U.S. naval station here, 200 Haitian boat people were put aboard one Coast Guard cutter for a trip home while 156 Haitians just rescued from the seas prepared to come ashore to the Guatanamo refugee camp.

Despite the repatriation program that began a week ago, the number of new arrivals continues to run neck and neck with the number of departures, at least for the moment.

At the camp, which on Friday held 11,570 Haitians, 200 are preparing to set sail for Haiti on the cutter Seneca; 50 are boarding a flight to Miami, having qualified for consideration as political refugees who need not return home; 188 are disembarking from the cutter Dauntless, which pulled into port Thursday, and 156 new arrivals are waiting on board the cutter Steadfast, which arrived from its patrol near Haiti on Friday.

The camp was meant to be temporary, and the United States would like to ship 500 Haitians home every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

U.N. chief announces major reorganization

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — New Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali on Friday announced a sweeping reorganization of U.N. headquarters, eliminating or consolidating more than a dozen departments in an effort to streamline the bureaucracy.

As part of his first major action since taking office Jan. 1, Boutros-Ghali also promoted hostage negotiator Giandomenico Picco to positions in two new departments charged with peacemaking and early warning of crises.

It is not clear whether the reorganization will amount to anything more than a complex reshuffle. There will be no layoffs among the headquarters' 6,000 civil servants and it was not known if the moves would save any money.

The changes will affect 13 or 27 undersecretaries-general.

The best-known beneficiary of shakeup will be Picco, an Italian diplomat who achieved worldwide renown for quietly negotiating the release of Western hostages in Lebanon.

Last Friday world leaders at the United Nations urged the secretary-general to renovate U.N. peacemaking and peacekeeping but did not call specifically for reorganization.

In a sign of the new importance attached to peacekeeping, the Office for Special Political Affairs will be renamed the Office for Peacekeeping Operations. It will continue to be headed by Undersecretary-General Marrack Goulding of Britain, the top U.N. peacekeeper.

Boutros-Ghali also named Jean-Claude Aime of Haiti as chief of staff and Alvaro de Soto of Peru as senior political advisor. Aime is known for his many missions to the Middle East and replaces Virendra Dayal of India.

Giuliani said the work of phased-out departments will be absorbed by others. "I don't know about savings," he said, adding that the aim was not to save money but to improve the bureaucracy.

Streamlining, he said, "means the lines of command will be clearer and responsibility will be less spread out."

The Department for Disarmament Affairs will be eliminated, although a declaration at last week's summit of leaders of Security Council nations emphasized the importance of disarmament and arms control.

The reorganization's scope is unprecedented. The last attempt at reform was in November 1986.

Government incompetence led to coup attempt, leaders say

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A group of influential military leaders published a declaration Friday that said the government brought on this week's coup attempt with its incompetence.

Sixty-two retired officers said the military uprising was a result of the democratic leadership's inability to fight corruption and provide decent living conditions for the country's 20 million people. About 80 people, mainly civilians caught in crossfire, died in Tuesday's rebellion.

Meanwhile, the 34 members of the Organization of American States approved a resolution that denounced "the criminal attack against the life of the chief of state."

President Carlos Andres Perez narrowly escaped capture by the rebels in the initial hours of the uprising.

Among those attending the OAS ceremony here was deposed Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. He is living in exile in Caracas at Perez's invitation since he was overthrown in September.

The military leaders' statement on the coup was published in Venezuelan papers. It said the coup attempt was "a consequence of the incapacity that has been demonstrated by our political system during the last four administrations to maintain public security, peace and employment gains."

Many of those signing, including 19 generals, were influential in the establishment of democracy in the country 30 years ago. Since 1962, the country has been ruled by elected leaders — the longest stretch of uninterrupted democracy in Latin America.

On Thursday, the government warned the nation's media to help preserve tranquility or face "severe sanctions."

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

TO MAKE A LIVING—PICK UP STICKS!

AS IN EVERY PERIOD THROUGHOUT THE WORLD'S HISTORY, THE POOR AND NEEDY OUTNUMBERED THE WEALTHY AND MIDDLECLASS IN BIBLICAL TIMES—ESPECIALLY IN THE CITIES! THOSE WITHOUT A FAMILY BUSINESS, OR SOME SMALL PLOT OF LAND ON WHICH TO GROW FOOD, WERE HARD PUT TO EKE OUT AN EXISTENCE! ONE MEAGER METHOD BY WHICH A POOR MAN COULD MANAGE TO SUBSIST, WAS GATHERING TWIGS FOR FIREWOOD. IN A PLACE LIKE JERUSALEM, IT WAS AT A PREMIUM FOR NONE COULD BE FOUND, IN THE CITY, AND THE OUTLYING AREAS BOASTED OF VERY LITTLE MORE! EVERY STICK AND TWIG THAT LAY ON THE FLOOR OF THE KIDRON VALLEY, EVERY FALLEN BRANCH FROM THE OLIVE TREES ON THE MOUNT ABOVE, WAS POUNCED UPON. THE WOOD-GATHERERS SPENT LONG, BACK-BREAKING HOURS AT THIS TASK, FINALLY TO CARRY THEIR HEAVY BUNDLES IN A WEARY CLIMB UP THE HILL TO THE CITY, DURING THE DIM TWILIGHT AT THE END OF DAY—THERE, TO BARGAIN WITH SOME ANXIOUS HOUSEWIFE NEEDFULL OF WOOD TO COOK THE EVENING MEAL OR TO WARM THE HOUSE AGAINST A CHILLY NIGHT!

PERHAPS THE OLIVE GROVES WERE THE BEST PLACES FOR WOOD GATHERING, ALTHOUGH IT DID MEAN A LONG TRUDGE DOWN INTO THE KIDRON VALLEY AND A HARD CLIMB UP THE MOUNT OF OLIVES TO GET THERE! BUT, WHEN THE TREES WERE PRUNED, ALL FALLEN TIMBER BELONGED TO THE WOOD-GATHERERS, FOR THIS CAME UNDER THE MOSAIC LAW OF GLEANING, AS STATED IN DEUT. 24:19-21. LIFE WAS HARD FOR THE POOR BUT AT LEAST THESE LAWS GAVE THEM SOME HELP!

NEXT WEEK: THE KING WHO CAUSED AN EARTHQUAKE!

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Mullins to perform Wednesday

Rich Mullins performs at the Christian Church of Midland, 2608 Neely Ave., at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mullins

Mullins has been nominated for six Dove awards and has had six No. 1 songs on Christian radio including "Verge of a Miracle," "Awesome God," "If I Stand," "While the Nations Rage," "My Own Thing" and "Boy Like Me/Man Like You."

"Awesome God," a church standard, was voted one of the top three songs of the decade in Christian Research Report.

Mullins has written or co-written all but three of the songs on his own albums.

He is currently on his "The World As Best As I Remember It" Tour.

Reflecting on his new album, Mullin said, "The Christian must look deeply into the Scriptures, all the while seeing around him those hints of glory and places of need."

Due to the limited seating in the church, tickets are required. There is no charge for the tickets. They may be picked up at the church, 684-7681, or The Lighthouse.

An offering will be collected. The concert is open to the public.

■ Hymnal dedication to be held

Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St., is dedicating its new hymnals at 6:40 p.m. Sunday.

The Baptist Hymnal was introduced in March 1991 by the music department of the Southern Baptist Convention. Since that time, the edition has sold in excess of 1.7 million copies.

The dedication service will be led by Bill Smith, minister of music and education, and will feature the Adult Choir, Youth Choir, Children's Choir, soloist, a prayer of dedication and a challenge by the Rev. G.A. Magee, pastor.

■ Burchfield to guest speak

ODESSA — Tommy Burchfield will be speaking at Odessa Christian Faith Center, 8860 N. Andrews Highway, Wednesday, for a "Special Family Night" and Thursday for a "Heart to Heart" youth rally.

Both begin at 7 p.m.

Burchfield is a veteran youth pastor of 15 years, five of which were spent serving John Osteen of Lakewood Church, Houston.

"Tommy is a nationally featured convention speaker, gifted pulpit speaker, author and director of the Discovery Camp summer camp program in Columbus," said a release from Don and Paulette Caywood, pastors of the Odessa center. More than 8,000 children and teenagers attended the camp in 1990, the release said.

Burchfield has ministered throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico, Africa and Europe.

A nursery and children's services will be provided. For more information call 1-368-7714.

■ Reuben to make appearance

The Rev. and Mrs. Dick Rueben bring their teaching ministry to First Assembly of God, 100 W. Wadley Ave., Sunday.

Reuben

"Dick Reuben has a refreshing, gifted ability to teach the New testament in the light of the Old using God's pattern of revelation: numbers, symbols and types," said a release from Rock of Israel Ministries, Van Nuys, Calif., which presents Reubens' ministry.

Born Jewish, Reuben sought for many years to understand the question, "How does the church relate to Israel?"

"Now, in church meetings and seminars, Dick shares in detail the great truths he has discovered with the Body of Christ," the release said. "The Jewish Tanakh (Old Testament), for example, is the picture of the New Testament revealed. God's principle of pattern revelation, as given in the Tabernacle of Moses, has not changed."

Reuben ministers using full-scale reproductions of tabernacle furniture and the priestly garments of Aaron.

Reuben will speak at the 10:30 a.m. service. While they are here, his wife, Deanne, will speak to women's groups about the feasts and tribes of Israel.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Church to present program

The Unitarian-Universalist Church of Midland will present a program entitled "Non-polluting Sources of Energy" at 9:45 a.m. Sunday.

This program will explore the current United States energy policy and its effects on the world's environment. In addition, possible alternatives to current energy sources will be discussed.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Church hosts wind symphony

The Concordia University Wind Symphony, under the direction of Dr. Richard Fischer, associate professor of music, will prescnt a concert at 7:30 p.m. March 2 at Grace Lutheran Church, 3000 W. Golf Course Road.

Concordia University, located in the Chicago area, is a Christian liberal arts institution with a student body of around 1,300, which represents 35 states and a number of foreign countries. It prepares student to become church professionals in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

The Wind Symphony will be touring in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona and has offered to make a special stop in Midland between its Dallas and El Paso concerts.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for students. Seating will be limited and tickets will be distributed through the Grace Lutheran Church office on a first come, first serve basis. Call Sheri Brandstetter, 697-3221, for more information.

■ Church to conduct Bible study

Ranchland Heights Baptist Church will conduct a special Bible study seminar-service Sunday afternoon and evening.

Raye Zacharias, Christian education specialist with David C. Cook Publishing Co. will lead the program.

The program, with the seminar sessions to run from 5-8 p.m., will cover Bible study and teaching principles and will be geared to help Sunday School teachers and members alike. Zacharias will preach at the evening worship service at 8:00 p.m.

Visitors are welcome at all of the services. For more information, call 683-1947, or 684-7233.

■ Groundbreaking to be held

The Midland Baptist Association will have groundbreaking ceremonies for its new Crisis Center building at 3 p.m. Sunday at 806 S. Baird St.

The Crisis Center is an emergency food, clothing, and shelter relief center sponsored by the churches in the Midland Baptist Association and is now located at the Calvary Baptist Church, 1001 S. Main Street.

The Crisis Center was opened in April of 1981 and has furnished food, clothing, medical prescription assistance, utility and various other urgent needs to individuals and families who have serious needs of temporary assistance. The Center has aided approximately 55,000 individuals since its inception and is now assisting an average of 1,050 individuals each month.

During the 11 years, four people have served as directors: Ella Linton, Susan Edwards, Emily Wilson, and the current director, Mary McPherson. The center is staffed by volunteers from the local churches and several hundred have volunteered since its opening.

All of the sponsoring churches will participate in the groundbreaking. The public is invited to attend.

■ Brotherhood Dinner held

ODESSA — Temple Beth El is holding its 25th Brotherhood Dinner from 5 to 7 p.m. Feb. 17 at Temple Beth El, 1501 N. Grandview Ave.

The annual dinner is held to celebrate Brotherhood Week. Special ethnic goods will be served such as baked fish, noodle kugel, and strudel.Carry out plates will be available.

Displays of Jewish religious articles used to celebrate the Jewish holidays will be set up plus mini-tours of the sanctuary.

The public is welcome.

Tickets are $6 and available at Pixies in Odessa and at Luskey's in both Midland and Odessa.

■ Children ministry leads service

The Children's Ministry of the Living Way Foursquare Church will conduct the Wednesday services, Feb. 12 at 7 p.m.

Children will lead with music, skits, and puppetry. Badges will be awarded to Good News Bears Club members who have completed requirements for Bible and Art Badges.

Chosen Ones Church for grades one through six and KinderChurch for pre-schoolers ages three through five meet each Sunday morning at 10:30 a.m. at the church, 415 West Alta St.

Good News Bears Clubs for children ages 3 years old through sixth grade meet Sunday evenings at 6:00 p.m.

■ Dr.Smith to be guest speaker

SHERMAN — Dr. Harry E. Smith, Austin College president, will be guest speaker for the March 8 services at First Presbyterian of Midland.

Smith will bring his message entitled "Faith and Learning," based on Job 28:12-28 and I Corinthians 1:21-2:16.

"Dr. Smith took the covenant between Austin College and the Presbyterian Church (USA) very seriously," said Richard Hardie, director of church relations for the college. "It is important to him to maintain close relationships with the churches of the Synod of the Sun."

"As a minister, Dr. Smith believes that his role as a college president reaches far beyond campus administration. He enjoys preaching and welcomes the chance to travel to churches throughout the area."

Smith, a native Texan, is the 13th president of the 142-year-old liberal arts college in Sherman. He holds a doctorate from Drew University, a bachelor of divinity from Yale University and a bachelor of arts from The University of Texas. He has also received honorary degrees from Centre College in Danville, Kentucky, and Southwestern at Memphis (now Rhodes College).

Prior to joining Austin College in 1979, Smith was executive director of the Society for Values in Higher Education and an associate professor of religion at Yale.

Austin College is a private liberal arts college related by covenant to the Presbyterian Church (USA). It is located in Sherman, 60 miles north of Dallas.

■ Church hosts series

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland, 3301 Neely at Midkiff, started a religious education series entitled "The Transformation of Myth through Time" Monday. The series runs from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

The series, which runs from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Mondays for 6 weeks, present the first volume in the video series of the same name by Joseph Campbell. This volume explored the mythology of such ancient peoples as the American Indian, Greeks, and Egyptians.

Childcare will be provided. For more information, call Bruce or Cheryl McPherson at 570-8118.

■ Convention scheduled

A Regional Church Media Library Convention is scheduled for March 12-13 at First Baptist Church, San Angelo.

Baptist Sunday School Board personnel leading conferences include Jackie Anderson, Jack Lewis, Barbara Freese, Elaine Bryant and Joe Keith.

More than a dozen special interest conference will be offered. Topics include: "Copyright law," "Preparing your media library for a computer," "Administering small libraries in small churches," "Compiling a church history" and "Instructional media for churches."

■ Prayer vigil held

Christians of all denominations of the Permian Basin are invited to attend a monthly prayer vigil at Golf Course Rd. Church of Christ, Friday and Saturday.

The Permian Basin Prayer Vigil began in July 1989 and involves 30-35 churches and more than 300 Christians each month.

The vigil was set aside as a time to pray specifically for the community of Midland, its local concerns, and national problems such as crime, drugs, AIDS, abortion another moral problems facing our nation.

The vigil, held on the second weekend of each month, begins at noon on Friday and continues until Saturday at 10 p.m.

The designated building is open round the clock between those hours for people to attend at their convenience. No offerings are taken and no lessons are given. This is a time dedicated to prayer only.

Everyone who share in these concerns is invited to participate.

■ Workshops planned

The Samaritan Counseling Center of West Texas has several workshops planned in the upcoming weeks.

The first, called "Active Parenting," begins Monday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The "Active Parenting" curriculum includes a handbook for parents designed to provide the information, skills and support necessary to instill in children ages 3 through 17 courage, responsibility and cooperation, qualities that equip them to make good choices and build self-esteem, said a release from the center.

The Rev. Ginger Jarman, an ordained minister and pastoral counselor, will be presenting the workshop. Mrs. Jarman earned her bachelor of arts, master of divinity and doctor of ministry degrees from Texas Christian University and Brite Divinity School. She is a member of the American Association of Pastoral Counselors, a certified "Active Parenting" leader and is a part-time staff member at the center. She is married and has two daughters, ages 10 and 14.

Cost of the session for one parent is $20 and for both parents, $25.

The center also is offering a one-day workshop called "Gifts Differing," which uses the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator. This workshop, which costs $40 and includes the MBTI, will be taught by the Rev. Dr. Jerry Kelly, the center's executive director. Kelly is certified by the Association of Psychological Type to present this workshop.

The "Gifts Differing" workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Feb. 15.

And finally the center is offering a six-week workshop beginning March 17 on the "Dance of Anger."

This workshop, which will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesdays, is designed to guide women in dealing with patterns of anger in intimate relationships. The workshop focuses on the book by the same title by Harriet Goldhor Lerner, Ph.D. Books may be purchased at any bookstore or through the center.

Diane Comstock, who holds a master's degree in counseling from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin and is a licensed professional counselor, will be conducting the workshop. Ms. Comstock has been a staff member at the center for three years.

Cost of "Dance of Anger" will be $150.

For more information or to register call the center, 563-4144.

■ Inagural event held

ABILENE — Inaugural ceremonies for Dr. Royce Money are set for 3:30 p.m. Feb. 23 in Abilene Christian University's Moody Coliseum.

"I never dreamed of being president of ACU," Money said. "I came here to teach, which I dearly love. This is the first time in 15 years I haven't taught in the classroom. But it's a wonderful challenge for me to have the opportunity to affect the quality of education for thousands of students for years to come."

Money, who became the 10th president of his alma mater this past June, is better known as a lecturer and expert in strengthening families than as the top administrator for ACU. He and his wife, Pam, are both clinical members of the American Association of Marriage and Family Therapy, the world's largest marriage and family therapy association.

Money is the author of two books, "Building Stronger families: Family Enrichment in the Home, Church and Community," 1984, and "Ministering to Families: A Positive Plan of Action, 1987.

He has been an elder for Abilene's Highland Church of Christ since 1984 and a family ministry consultant and television presenter for Herald of Truth Ministries since 1988. In December, he became one of the first people allowed to share Christianity with more than 150 million Soviets through two prime time Herald of Truth presentations on Soviet television.

■ Series to continue

Patty Kinzelman is leading a four-week series on finding meaning and direction in mid-life for the Wednesday Night Live program of the First United Methodist Church, Main Street at Illinois Avenue.

The series began Wednesday.

Persons between the ages of 35 and 60, plus or minus a few years, are invited to join the discussions. Weekly themes left include "Transition and Change," "Dealing with the Unexpected" and "Prayer in Mid-Life."

Ms. Kinzelman is a wife and mother with education and experience in religious education and nursing.

Sessions will be held Wednesdays from 6:15 to 7:15 in Room 100. The sessions follow the WNL dinner.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Revival to be held

Evangelist Alma Wells will be conducting a revival Sunday through Wednesday at Victory Center, 4001 W. Illinois Ave.

The schedule of services is 7 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

Ms. Wells has been ministering for 27 years in the United States and Canada.

"She prays for people with AIDS either at the revival services, or she will go to your home," said a release from the Rev. Allen Thompson, pastor of Victory Center. "Sister Wells is greatly used in the gifts of healing, revelations, knowledge and deliverance from drugs, alcohol, sexual perversions."

Those wanting a special prayer are asked to call the church, 694-3034.

Special music will be provided by Sarah Keltner.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Prayer to be held

Victory Family Church, Scharbauer and A Street in the Northland Shopping Center, is holding intercessory prayer from 6:30 to 7:30 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

In addition, the church offers Bible teaching at 7 p.m. Tuesday and a mid-week service at 7 p.m. Thursday. Sunday services are at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The church's pastor, Bob Miller, invites the public to attend. Miller and his wife, Debbie, and son, Christopher, moved to Midland from Albuquerque, N.M. Miller can be heard on KKKK-FM at 11 a.m. Saturdays and at 9:30 a.m. Sundays.

■ Church programs set

First Baptist Church, 2104 W. Louisiana Ave., is sponsoring a several ongoing programs through its Single Adult Ministry including "Breakthrough: Building a New Life," which meets at 7 p.m. Tuesdays.

The group is led by volunteers who have experienced divorce and loss themselves and is intended to provide counseling based on biblical principles of moral and ethical behavior, said a release from the church.

In addition, the church is sponsoring another support group for single parents entitled "Breakthrough: Supporting the Single Parent." This group also will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesdays.

Both support groups meet for two hours. Both are free. For more information call Bob Gardner, Single Adult Ministry, 682-1646.

■ CMA to meet Fridays

The Christian Motorcyclists' Association (CMA) meets the 1st Friday of every month at the Biscuit Barrel at Mission Square Plaza on North Big Spring, at 7:00 p.m. CMA is a non-denominational organization established to encourage among motorcyclists public worship, ministry and Christian evangelistic crusades; to teach and spread the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ.

For further information call either Jack Wilbrown at 694-9765 or Linda Scott at 697-5037.

Book to be published locally

Staff Report

A book of inspirational thoughts, music, poetry, devotions and sermon topics by the Rev. G.K. Dreher of Mystic, Conn., called "A Meditative Medley: Ourselves, & One Other" has recently been published locally.

"This book is a medley of pieces I wrote over the years," said the author. "The reader need not look for a simple 'line of logic' but for a series of meditative 'images' in what I wrote and tied together."

The author has referred to the book as "images tied together by a view-of-faithful-response-to-Jesus theme."

The paperback may be purchased here at Trinity Bookstore, The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1400 W. Illinois Ave., and, in Odessa, at the Odessa Scripture Shop.

Published by Longshanks Book, the paperback's first edition was printed in Midland by Iron Horse Free Press, owned by George Dreher, the author's son.

"This is something that I wanted to do," Dreher said regarding publishing his father's book. "I've had the manuscript since 1988 and just recently due to my father's more permanent retirement, I decided to activate his publishing company, which was Longshanks, and formed Iron Horse Free Press in November 1991.

"This is my first publication, but I have three more projects in line for this year.

"One is a history of the Continental Congress in the light of New England religion which portrays Samuel Huntington as the first President of our country, although not as fully empowered as George Washington; another includes three short Christian plays; and the third deals with the Thanksgiving Day resolves of Congress from 1775 to 1983 and includes a discussion of civil religion in America and addresses the question 'Do Christians' attitudes when America won independence help us understand independent nationalism in the Third World today?' "

Dreher, who studied journalism in the early 1970s at Columbia University, New York City, has lived in Midland since 1975.

Dreher was born in Wisconsin in 1919. He received degrees from Dartmouth College, Oberlin School of Theology and Yale Divinity School and has held pastorates in Bethany, Conn.; Mountain Home, Idaho; Bountiful, Utah; Arlington, Calif.; Wichita, Kan.; and Mystic, Conn., where he currently resides with his wife, Kate. He is pastor emeritus of the Mystic Congregational Church.

Church hosts 'Revealing Jesus' series Sunday

The Rev. K.C. Blackketter, pastor of Bethel United Methodist Church, has started a series of teachings on the book of Revelation titled "Revealing Jesus."

The series will be during the 10 a.m. Sunday Celebration services which began Feb. 2. A new congregation, Bethel meets in the aerobics room at the Alamo YMCA, 901 Midland Drive.

Blackketter is a graduate of McMurry University in Abilene, Asbury Theological Seminary in Wilmore, Ky., and is currently enrolled in the Doctor of Ministry Program at Fuller Seminary in Pasadena, Calif. He is a former student of Dr. M. Robert Mulholland, Jr., professor of New Testament at Asbury. Mulholland has recently published through Zondervan his work titled "Revelation: Holy Living in the Unholy World."

According to Blackketter, this study will be a different treatment of Revelation from the current popular interpretations.

The series is titled "Revealing Jesus" because the book is a revelation by Jesus, a revelation of Jesus, and a call for Christians to be a revelation for Jesus, said a release from Bethel United Methodist Church.

Discussion groups will be available through Bethel's midweek CARE Groups.

Newcomers are welcome. A nursery is available. For more information, call the Bethel office, 682-2626.

Percentage of premarital intercourse on increase

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A study at a Southern Baptist college finds that the percentage of students reporting premarital sexual intercourse increased dramatically between 1984 and 1991.

M.B. Fletcher, psychology professor at Carson-Newman College in Jefferson City, Tenn., said male students reporting premarital intercourse increased from 55 percent in 1984 to 70 percent in 1991.

He said his study showed an even sharper increase among females, with the percentage reporting sexual experience rising from 27 percent in 1984 to 53 percent in 1991.

He said the study indicated sexual intercourse first occurs among adolescents about age 17, in their junior or senior years in high school.

Interior Department shuts down park perks for government VIPs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department on Friday shut down a long-standing perk for members of Congress and other senior government officials, saying they no longer are welcome for VIP lodging at some of the most scenic national parks.

Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan ordered that four vacation hideaways, including a historic former presidential retreat in Virginia, be off limits for personal cut-rate vacations by senior federal officials, judges and members of Congress.

"Public opinion obviously opposes maintenance of housing in the parks that is available only to members of Congress and high-ranking government officials," Lujan said in a statement. He said the move "will reassure the public that no one has special privileges" in the parks.

The order affected VIP retreats at the Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming, the Shenandoah National Park in Virginia, the Cape Hatteras National Seashore in North Carolina and the Virgin Islands National Park in the Caribbean.

In recent years, the visitors have included numerous members of Congress, senior White House officials, Cabinet members and at least one Supreme Court justice. They paid cut-rate rental fees ranging from $40 to $109 a night, well below commercial rates for comparable lodging.

The rental income historically has fallen short of covering expenses, U.S. Park Service George Berklacy said. There had once been nearly two dozen such retreats dotting the federal park system but most had been shut down over the years.

Interior officials said the number of visitors to the four locations has declined in recent years, but no clear number of visitors could be obtained Friday.

According to documents, among those using the facilities in recent years were senators Tom Harkin, D-Iowa and running for the Democratic presidential nomination; Bennett Johnston, D-La.; Ted Stevens, R-Alaska; and Larry Pressler, R-S.D.

The VIP accommodations have been money losers for the Park Service.

Military personnel search the cockpit area Friday morning for the remains of the crew of a C-130 transport plane that crashed into a restaurant and hotel in Evansville, Ind., Thursday.

Investigators remove bodies from military plane wreckage

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Investigators on Friday removed five bodies and an instrument thought to be the voice recorder from the charred wreckage of a military cargo plane that crashed into a motel and restaurant, killing 16. Investigators said they had few clues as to the cause of the crash.

Fire damage was so severe that investigators weren't immediately able to confirm that the instrument recovered was the voice recorder from the Kentucky Air National Guard C-130, said Capt. Phil Miller, spokesman for the Guard.

"The safety investigation is under way ... but we don't expect any 'Eureka!' experience. This was a normal, four-engine turbo-prop aircraft doing normal aircraft types of things," said Guard spokesman Lt. Col. David Moremen.

The plane crashed on a training flight Thursday, spraying burning fuel hundreds of feet. Nine people in the motel and two in the restaurant were killed, along with the five crewmen aboard.

Air Force investigators spent the day interviewing witnesses, including many who said the transport plane banked at a steep angle before it fell. Mechanical failure or pilot error could have caused such a steep bank, said Col. John V. Greene, commander of the Kentucky Guard's 123rd Tactical Airlift Wing.

The plane crashed during a maneuver called a low approach, in which it flew close to but didn't touch the runway at Evansville Regional Airport.

Earlier, Greene said, the pilot had been practicing touch-and-go landings, in which planes touch their wheels on the runway and then ascend.

The crew's pilot-instructor, Maj. Richard A. Strang, 39, of Floyds Knobs, Ind., was "highly experienced and had impeccable credentials," Moremen said.

Maureen Reagan announces candidacy

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Maureen Reagan, daughter of former President Reagan, said she will seek the Republican nomination for a newly created congressional seat representing coastal Los Angeles County.

Her campaign for the new 36th District will focus on the economy, said Ms. Reagan, 51.

"The federal government has not developed a long-range strategy for moving out of industries that now need to phase out into new industries, and it all comes together right here," Ms. Reagan said.

She formally announced her candidacy on Thursday and said she planned to take out nomination documents Monday.

Ms. Reagan ran unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate in 1982. She has worked in television and business.

INS imposes largest fine against Georgia peach company

ATLANTA (AP) — Federal immigration officials Friday imposed their largest fine ever — $1.1 million — against a Georgia peach-packing company for smuggling in hundreds of Mexican laborers.

Lane Packing Co. of Fort Valley, one of Georgia's largest peach harvesters and packers, was raided by INS agents last June. More than 130 illegal aliens were apprehended and deported, and four Lane employees were arrested on smuggling charges. The employees have since been convicted.

An attorney said the company would appeal the fine.

INS investigators said that for at least two years, the smuggling venture ran 250 alien workers each month to Lane operations in Georgia and to other harvesters in Florida and North Carolina. Workers were recruited in the interior of Mexico.

The smugglers would typically collect from each worker a $1,000 transportation fee, $400 for illegal documentation and $50 a month rent — for housing in cramped shacks with poor sanitation and no air conditioning, said INS Atlanta District Director Thomas P. Fischer. Workers were paid about $4 an hour.

"They had these individuals, both men and women, in their little bondage-type operation," he said at a news conference. "They had them with the rent, they had them with the false cards, they probably used the threat of calling immigration" to have troublemakers deported.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Everything seems to come together for you now. Tie up any loose financial ends before March. The marriage of two minds makes May a banner month for your career. A platonic relationship could turn romantic in midsummer. September is the best time for a wedding. Make a big financial push in November and you will get that long-sought promotion. A December vacation helps you recharge your batteries. Visit a place you have never been before.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Robert Klein, journalist Ted Koppel, actor Jack Lemmon, actress Audrey Meadows.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone may try to shift responsibility or blame onto your shoulders. Explain the facts calmly. A low-key approach is more convincing than anger.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your ego and ambition receive a big boost today. Now is the time to showcase your special skills. Talk to your mate about your desire for greater independence. A compromise is favored.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Continue to work hand-in-glove with the person who can lead you safely through a maze of complications. Do not let your age keep you from contributing to the community. Volunteer!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Something is on the verge of ending in the most agreeable manner. A certain amount of red tape is inevitable when seeking official help. Be patient. The contacts you make now will prove valuable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Giving unsolicited advice to relatives is a big mistake. Mutual friends will help you keep things in perspective. Spend more time on a favorite hobby — it could lead to a second income.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Do not give up your search for the right partner. Instead, plot your social life as carefully as your business maneuvers. Joining a community or political campaign will widen your circle of acquaintances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Put off making any major decisions until Monday. You may have to postpone certain personal pleasures to tend to a family member's needs. Be a good sport. An out-of-towner brings welcome news.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your creativity is undisputed. Proceed slowly and you will make fewer mistakes. A psychic experience gives you a fresh perspective on recent developments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There is no need for financial panic; you have resources you may have forgotten about. A setback is strictly temporary. Forget your worries and throw an impromptu party tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get household chores out of the way early today. Recreational activities will restore your usual vim and vigor. Group projects and social events are favored. Take a more active role in a club.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your dependability pays big dividends now. Create an environment for young people that will encourage their creativity. Do not let critical comments sour your pleasure in an exciting new venture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Buy necessities only; luxury purchases can wait for a while. A romantic fling has more implications than you originally thought. Protect your possessions from those who are greedy.

Prolific author James Michener receives special birthday book

For his 85th birthday, Michener was thrown a party Thursday by 29 friends, neighbors and contributors to the James A. Michener Art Museum in Doylestown, Pa., the Bucks County community he grew up.

Michener

Museum Director Bruce Katsiff presented the book, a folio-sized, 130-page volume bound in green leather, containing highlights of Michener's life and career and signed by thousands of people.

"Isn't that nice," Michener murmured as he and his wife, Mari, leafed through the volume and paused at a congratulatory letter from President George Bush.

Michener, whose actual birthday was Monday, gave his thanks for a second birthday bash in as many days. He was feted by his publisher, Random House, Wednesday night.

"I'm delighted that a week like this is possible," he told reporters. "One would never say that it was anything that was due — it just happened and therefore is doubly special."

Michener burst on the literary scene in middle age with "Tales of the South Pacific," which won the Pulitzer Prize in 1948 and was the basis for "South Pacific," the long-running Broadway musical and motion picture.

PRINCETON, N.J. — Forty-six years after rejecting Milton Babbitt's dissertation, Princeton University admits it couldn't grasp the thesis back then and now has awarded the composer his doctorate.

Babbitt's dissertation analyzed the mathematics of the 12-tone musical system of modern composers. But it was so advanced that, at the time, nobody in the school's music department understood it, the university said. The music department then awarded doctorates for historical musicology, not composing.

The 75-year-old Babbitt of Princeton remembered the rejection as a "difficult experience," but he went on to develop the first electronic synthesizer in the 1950s and win a Pulitzer Prize in 1982.

"I had simply forgotten about the whole thing," said Babbitt, who became a professor emeritus at Princeton in 1984 and still teaches at the Juilliard School in New York.

Last spring, Princeton honored Babbitt with an honorary doctorate. But that wasn't good enough for two colleagues, who reviewed his work and passed it along to Princeton's board of trustees, which awarded the degree Jan. 25.

"I was bowled over," Babbitt said. "I thought it was more trouble than anyone should have gone through for me at this stage in my life."

AUSTIN — Soon, no one will be buying Willie Nelson's album, "Who Will Buy My Memories?: The IRS Tapes."

Marketing of the album has become enmeshed in the bankruptcy proceedings of The Television Group, the Austin company Nelson hired to sell it by telephone orders.

Sales through one toll-free number were halted Jan. 2, and sales through other numbers will end within a few days, said lawyer Mike Tolleson.

Tolleson, who's working with Nelson and the bankruptcy trustee, estimated 100,000 albums have been sold, and 3,000 orders are waiting to be filled.

The singer could not be reached for comment, but Nashville publicist Evelyn Shriver said problems with the album's distribution "are very distressing to Willie. . . . He wants to make sure people get what they paid for."

"Who Will Buy My Memories?: The IRS Tapes" costs $23.95 and is unavailable in stores.

The album's master tapes were among dozens of tapes seized in 1990 when Internal Revenue Service agents padlocked his recording studio. Nelson later turned the seizure to his advantage by releasing those songs as an album specifically marketed to help pay his $17 million tax debt.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Former heavyweight champion James "Buster" Douglas, being a developer hasn't been easy.

Douglas, who gained stardom when he knocked out Mike Tyson two years ago, is building a community and recreation center, but the project appears to have stalled primarily because of a zoning dispute.

Douglas

"This is my first time with a major project," Douglas told The Columbus Dispatch. "It's a learning process . . . I've stepped on toes, and I don't even know I'm stepping on toes."

Douglas, a Columbus native, said he's learning the importance of working with neighborhood groups.

Douglas has recently lived and trained mainly in Florida but said he will spend more time in his hometown to work on the project, a memorial to his late mother, Lula Pearl Douglas.

Border colleges need to unite, attorney says

EL PASO (AP) — Colleges and universities along the Texas-Mexico border must form a united front to benefit from a judge's ruling that the state's funding system discriminates against them, an attorney said Friday.

A state district judge made the ruling last month and has given the Legislature 16 months to fix the inequities.

"I'm going to call for unity among the whole border area," said Al Kauffman, an attorney with the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund. Kauffman, who argued the case that brought the ruling, was a speaker at the closing session of a symposium titled "The Role of Education and Latinos: Empowerment Strategies for the 1990s."

The symposium was developed by UTEP's Hispanic Heritage Celebration Committee.

In the case, the border area was defined as a swath of 41 Texas counties stretching from Corpus Christi to El Paso with a population makeup that is 40 percent or more Mexican American.

Kauffman said there already is competition among the border institutions for the limited resources and programs that may be made available because of the judge's ruling.

"Not every institution on the border is going to have 30 to 40 doctoral programs," Kauffman said. Currently there are only three doctoral programs on the border.

"It's not going to help the border if everyone has (an education doctorate program) ... We're also going to have to have doctorates in science and philosophy ... and maybe even Spanish," he said.

The state attorney general's office can appeal the decision, but Kauffman said a new plan will take new money.

"If there's no new money, it's going to be extremely difficult," he said.

Rep. Nancy McDonald, D-El Paso, said there have been increases in funding to border schools. However, the Legislature wants funding to go to schools that are not only enrolling minority students but also graduating them and offering education and research that benefits their communities.

Rep. Nancy McDonald, D-El Paso, said there have been increases in funding to border schools. However, the Legislature wants funding to go to schools that are not only enrolling minority students but also graduating them and offering education and research that benefits their communities.

For example, she said funding was made available for the University of Texas at El Paso to offer a master's degree in public health. The program will begin in the fall of 1992 and will be done in cooperation with the University of Texas Health Science Center in Houston.

The program is responsive to the city's need for public health care, particularly in substandard neighborhoods where people live without potable water and sewer service and suffer a number of diseases as a result.

"We have been more lax in giving the universities a lump sum up front, but we are now beginning to set performance standards," said Ms. McDonald, a member of the House Appropriations Committee.

Controversy robs city as Special Olympics site

DALLAS (AP) — Renewed interest in President John F. Kennedy's assassination has forced Special Olympics International, a chief charitable project of the Kennedy family, to drop Dallas from consideration as the site of its 1995 games, officials said Friday.

The city was a finalist for the games, in which thousands of disabled athletes from nearly 100 countries compete, and had already started making plans for facilities and accommodations.

But organizers said their uncertainty about how long the new focus on the 1963 assassination — brought on by the movie "JFK" and calls for releases of government files — would last knocked the city from contention.

"The recent circumstances led us to expect a sustained outpouring of books and news coverage about the assassination," said Doug Single, executive director of Special Olympics.

Holding the games in Dallas "could focus attention once again on the family and its grief rather than our efforts to showcase the work of over 6,000 athletes," he said.

The Kennedy family rarely discusses the assassination.

Mayor Steve Bartlett said he was disappointed by the decision but could understand it.

"The result would be distractions for the athletes themselves," said Bartlett, a Special Olympics volunteer.

Eunice Kennedy Shriver, sister of the late president, started Special Olympics in 1968. Her husband, R. Sargent Shriver, and family are active in promotion and production of Special Olympic events.

The organization now sponsors year-round training and competition for 750,000 disabled athletes in 90 countries along with the quadrennial competition in 22 sports, last held in Minneapolis in 1991.

The organization is the only one authorized by the International Olympic Committee to use the Olympic name globally.

Bartlett said the city will seek to be host of the 1999 Special Olympics.

"I would hope there would come the time when Special Olympics can come to Dallas," said Single, who was athletic director at Southern Methodist University until taking the Special Olympics post in 1990.

"We felt very strongly that Dallas would have had an outstanding games," Single said.

The organization is now reviewing its original list of cities who asked to host the event.

The Dallas City Council may have unwittingly contributed to the decision by voting two weeks ago to unseal city documents related to the assassination, Bartlett said.

But he said, "These were external forces that were out of the control of the city of Dallas, the Kennedy family and Special Olympics."

The mayor expressed disappointment that the city is still coping with a stigma from the assassination.

"It wasn't fair for the city of Dallas to bear that stigma in the first place. It was an event that disrupted the nation's psyche," Bartlett said.

"Regardless of the fairness or unfairness to Dallas, it's most important to be fair to the athletes."

Mayor decries re-enactment of Killeen massacre

KILLEEN (AP) — The national crime show "America's Most Wanted" re-enacted the Oct. 16 cafeteria massacre in its fourth anniversary program Friday night, but Killeen's mayor criticized the segment as unnecessary.

Mayor Major Blair praised the program's role in finding fugitives, but said, "There's no one wanted down here. It's a different situation entirely.

"It's one of those things that should be left alone. Nobody in this country is proud of what happened," he said. "We would like to put that thing to rest."

Fox network officials defended the segment as a sensitive portrayal that is devoted to honoring the survivors and acts of heroism during the worst mass shooting in U.S. history.

Last Oct. 16, George Hennard, 35, smashed his pickup into a crowded Luby's cafeteria and then, armed with two semiautomatic guns, stalked the restaurant, fatally wounding 23 people before killing himself.

"America's Most Wanted" frequently re-creates crimes in order to seek help in catching fugitives. But the program's producers said the show is also aimed at helping victims, even when there is no criminal to catch.

About half of the hour-long program was devoted to interviews with survivors and re-enacting from their points of view what went on in the cafeteria.

The Killeen segment is a "testimonial to the human spirt," said John Walsh, the show's host.

"One of the ways you keep your sanity is by fighting back, and the people of Killeen are certainly a model. These people are a blueprint for survival," he said.

"It's one of those things that should be left alone. Nobody in this country is proud of what happened," he said. "We would like to put that thing to rest.'

— Mayor Major Blair

Walsh said he met for several hours with about 25 people who were either in Luby's or who lost loved ones in the shooting.

Blair said, "The majority of the people I come in contact with say that this is something they want to forget. We don't want to be identified with a situation in our city that we didn't have any control over.

"We have taken all the steps that you can imagine to move forward ... to get our lifestyles back in order. I just feel that (the show's) not really necessary," Blair said.

Tilton files lawsuit against state

AUSTIN (AP) — Television evangelist Robert Tilton, sued this week by the state for financial records of his ministry, filed a lawsuit Friday against the state and Attorney General Dan Morales.

Tilton's lawsuit in U.S. District Court contends that the attorney general's office has been harassing him, said Gray McBride, a spokesman for Attorney General Dan Morales. It seeks a temporary restraining order and a jury trial to set punitive damages, he said.

McBride said the suit also names as individual defendants Morales, three assistant attorneys general and others, including himself and a second Morales press spokesman.

Morales' office has been investigating whether Tilton's ministry, the Word of Faith World Outreach Center Church in Farmers Branch, near Dallas, has engaged in deceptive trade practices. Church officials have said it neither sells nor trades anything.

On Wednesday, Morales filed suit in a Travis County probate court seeking the ministry's financial records for inspection, asking that a trustee ensure that records and assets are not disturbed, and that the ministry — registered as a nonprofit corporation in Texas — forfeit its corporate charter and be dissolved.

Tilton's televised ministry, broadcast on more than 200 stations in the United States and Canada, also is under investigation by the U.S. Postal Service and the FBI. The inquiries followed an ABC-TV "Prime Time Live" report about its fund-raising methods.

Earlier this week, Tilton's lawyer, J.C. Joyce of Tulsa, Okla., said the attorney general's office had no right to interfere with operations of church.

Earlier this week, Tilton's lawyer, J.C. Joyce of Tulsa, Okla., said the attorney general's office had no right to interfere with operations of church.

"If this attorney general can do this to the church, then he can do it to any church," Joyce said.

Joyce said the church believes that Morales "is willfully, deliberately and intentionally violating the church's First Amendment rights under the U.S. Constitution."

A March 9 hearing was scheduled on the state's lawsuit to determine whether the church will go into receivership and have a lien placed on its assets.

Teacher aspires to inspire

By Carol Rust
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Not everyone has known a teacher like Miss Bailey.

But the ones who have will remember.

An unfailing fountain of homework, she talks with a firm voice but keeps a twinkle in her eye, and she leaves a faint whiff of mimeograph ink and cologne as she walks by.

To the lazy, she looms imposingly, the Darth Vader of daily English quizzes, the she-devil of syllables and sentence structure.

Hard-working students never wait long for a word of praise, and the good things they do seem to stay in Miss Bailey's mind far longer than the times they get in trouble.

She has eyes in the back of her head, vision that can instantly spot gum-chewers and gossipers, or the young man who tries to slide into her classroom with his shirttail hanging out.

"You look like you're going fishing with that shirttail out, not to English class," she'll say. "Now go outside and come back in here looking proper."

When she calls on her students, it's, "Yes, Dr. so-and-so," or "Yes, Senator so-and-so," — or "officer," "governor," "president."

"I want them to get used to the idea that they can be these things," she says. "I want to inspire them to be these things."

Louis Bailey has been inspiring students for 43 years in the Houston Independent School District, for the past 36 years at Key Middle School in the poverty-wracked Kashmere Gardens area.

"The average student, no matter what his social or economic status, wants to be better when he leaves the classroom than when he walked in," Miss Bailey says. "I try to provide the tools for them to do that. I teach every student like I was teaching the future president of the United States — I think I may have a couple of presidents in my classes this year."

But above all, Miss Bailey wants her students to be productive.

"DON'T SEND ME an invitation to your wedding and don't send me an invitation to your baby shower until I get an invitation to your high school graduation," she tells them. "And I wouldn't mind getting an invitation to your college graduation."

Miss Bailey wants to teach until the year 2000, so she can see "the changes of a century in the classroom," before she retires from a career that has been her life and family as much as it's been a job.

Her parents named her Louis after Louis T. Moore, a woman from their hometown of Calvert in East Texas who became a much-loved dean of women at Sam Houston College in Austin.

Miss Bailey entered college at Prairie View A&M at age 15. She started teaching when she was 20 and completed her master's degree while teaching full time.

"There was no question about what we were going to do — we were going to finish high school and we were going to go to college," Miss Bailey said of herself and her older sister. Their father was an employee of Hughes Tool Co., and their mother was a beautician.

Today, Miss Bailey, who has never married, lives with her sister and only relative, social worker Doris Chever.

The top of their television set and pantry at home are crowded with pictures, plaques and awards Miss Bailey has received over the years: NAACP Award of Excellence, Houston Area Urban League's Whitney M. Young Humanitarian Award, Houston Fire Department's Outstanding Educator of the Year, Texas State Coalition of Black Democrats' Award for Outstanding Community Service, Houston Independent School District's Teacher of the Year (twice).

There are pictures of students all over her bright, cluttered den and kitchen. She has a story for every one of them.

Vanessia Williams' reputation got to Key Middle School before she did.

She was big. She was bad. And nobody messed with her.

Miss Bailey expected Miss Williams in her third-period class.

SHE DIDN'T SHOW.

After school, Miss Bailey tracked down the girl's mother — who was not happy about her daughter's skipping class.

The next day, Miss Williams told the teacher she would kill her if she ever showed up at her house again.

"You may be big, but I'm bigger," Miss Bailey recalls telling her. "You may be black, but I'm blacker. You may be older than the other students, but I'm older than you.

"I'll go to your mother's house every time you're not in class. I'll be back. So get out of my face."

Miss Williams didn't miss another class that year.

"I'd never had anyone to challenge me like that," Miss Williams recalls.

Today, she is a junior at Prairie View A&M with a 3.5 grade-point average. She plans to transfer to Texas Southern University to major in pre-law.

No one attends Miss Bailey's class without standing on the Red Carpet of Courage.

The "carpet," actually three red bath mats placed in a row, has been a fixture in Miss Bailey's classroom for more than 30 years. Students stand on it as they speak to the class from the podium.

No one ever wants to get up and speak the first time, but all of them do.

'The average student, no matter what his social or economic status, wants to be better when he leaves the classroom than when he walked in. I try to provide the tools for them to do that.

— Miss Louis Bailey, English teacher

The day he was supposed to give his presentation, one student showed up with a note from his mother. Miss Bailey didn't start reading it until the boy had started speaking.

"My child is very nervous and cannot face an audience to make a presentation," the note said.

Miss Bailey wrote a note for the student to take to his mother.

"I'm sorry, I didn't start reading your note until your son had started speaking," the note said. "He made an A on his speech."

"And do you know that child has never mentioned being nervous since?" Miss Bailey says.

Mary Denley was self-conscious, a little shy, when she first came to Miss Bailey's class. Her mother, a single parent, worked two and three jobs to feed and cloth Mary, a brother and sister. She couldn't give them the attention that other students' mothers could.

FOR MARY DENLEY, Miss Bailey filled a void.

"I gravitated to her because she was such a strong presence," she recalls. "Everything she was a part of, I wanted to be a part of because she was."

Miss Bailey was sponsor of the cheerleading squad, so Miss Denley tried out and got elected cheerleader. Miss Bailey directed several dance groups, so Miss Denley danced with them.

"It got me out of that shyness," the former student says. "she provided an anchor."

Now Mary Waites, she teaches communications and journalism at Texas Southern University. She has been there for six years after teaching history for 17 years in Houston public schools.

"If you were to attend my class, you would see a lot of Miss Bailey in everything I do," she says.

Miss Bailey is still cheerleader sponsor at Key, as well as director of student activities and sponsor of the majorettes and boosters club.

During the summer, she accompanies high school students to Europe through the American Institute of Foreign Studies, a national educational program. She plans to go to Scotland this summer, the only country in Europe she hasn't visited.

In her spare time, she fixes meals and delivers them to her elderly neighbors, always with a little extra time to visit.

She also serves on the board of directors of Pals, the Northeast Cultural Arts Council, the HISD faculty advisory committee, the HISD career ladder committee and the Texas Coalition of Black Democrats. Last year she served on the state textbook committee. And don't call on the second Monday evening of the month; she's at the school PTA meeting.

Two years ago, she took on another job: project manager of Communities in Schools, a program to identify students at high risk of dropping out and to provide counseling, tutoring and cultural enrichment activities "that HISD is just not equipped to do," she says.

ALTHOUGH THE PROGRAM is in just its second year at Key, it already has met with success. In the 1989-1990 academic year, 47 students at Key dropped out. The following year, after the program was launched at Key, none did.

One of Miss Bailey's students unwittingly referred herself to the program in December 1990 by completing a homework assignment: writing an essay about Christmas at her house.

"Christmas at my house is awful," the 13-year-old wrote. "We sleep all day. We never get any presents, and we never have any food. What's the use of getting up?"

After Miss Bailey read it, she had a counselor investigate the student's home situation. The counselor found that she wasn't exaggerating.

There were four people in the apartment — a mother and three children — and three pieces of furniture: a table and two chairs. The mother's monthly income was $276, but rent was $300, so she started out each month selling $24 worth of food stamps to make rent.

There was no electricity or gas, no stove or beds.

Miss Bailey remembered that a former student, Simon Castile, had become manager of Gulf Coast Arms Apartments, which received funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Miss Bailey paid him a visit.

The family qualified for emergency HUD funds and was in an apartment at Gulf Coast Arms, near Key, within two weeks.

Miss Bailey contacted the Harris County Hospital District, whose members adopted the family and sent a moving van full of furniture, Christmas presents and a Christmas tree to the new apartment, where the family still lives.

"Those are the rewards you can find only in the classroom," Miss Bailey says.

Expert looks into 100-year-old murder case

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — Almost a century after Lizzie Borden was accused in the ax murders of her parents, a forensics expert scanned their graves with radar for clues in one of America's most celebrated mysteries.

Lizzie was acquitted in court but was convicted in verse: "Lizzie Borden, with an ax, gave her mother 40 whacks. When she saw what she had done, she gave her father 41."

James E. Starrs used the ground-penetrating radar to search the hill at Oak Grove Cemetery where Lizzie, her father, stepmother, and sisters are buried. His first task was to find the parents' skulls, which were removed from the bodies and displayed by the prosecutor in the trial.

If the skulls are there, Starrs hopes to win permission from a court and Bordens' relatives to exhume them, hoping modern science might shed light on the case.

Starrs also has exhumed the body of Alfred Packer, the Colorado prospector suspected of resorting to cannibalism to keep alive during a snowstorm, and of Dr. Carl Austin Weiss, accused of assassinating Louisiana Gov. Huey Long.

The radar found evidence of two burial sites where the skulls might lie, but Starrs said it will take at least a month to analyze the findings.

Starrs said he wants to see, among other things, if wounds in the skulls match the blade of a shingling hatchet found at the Borden home and believed to be the murder weapon.

Many theories have emerged about the crime that inspired 17 books, a movie and even a ballet. This year, a local author added an illegitimate brother to the suspects.

"I love a good mystery like everyone else," said Starrs, a professor of law and forensics science at George Washington University. "We're trying to give the Bordens a chance to say what really happened. It's like having a whole new jury in the case."

Andrew and Abby Gray Borden, his second wife, were killed on Aug. 4, 1892 — Abby in an upstairs room and her husband on a sofa where he stretched out to nap.

Lizzie, a 32-year-old Sunday school teacher, was acquitted on June 30, 1893.

Starrs said he hopes to have concrete findings in time for an Aug. 4 conference marking the 100th anniversary of the crime.

Community reaction to Starrs' search was mixed, although dozens of people turned out Monday to watch.

"It was sort of like a carnival atmosphere," said Paul Fletcher, a planner of the August conference and a professor at Bristol Community College. "I was expecting to see someone selling popcorn."

"I just say let it rest," said Pat Richards, one of Fall River's park commissioners. "I wouldn't want someone digging up my body after 100 years."

But Donald Souza, 34, a lifelong Fall River resident, said: "We all grew up with the legend. I don't know who really did it. That's why we're all here to find out."

Among the authorities on the case, a 23-year-old book by Edward Radin concludes the Bordens' maid, Bridget Sullivan, fed up with anti-Irish bigotry, committed the murders.

Those who blame the crime on Lizzie Borden say her motives may have been a longstanding resentment toward her stepmother, a short, fat compulsive eater. They also say she may have feared her father would leave all his money to his wife.

Novelist Evan Hunter theorized in his book "Lizzie" that she killed her stepmother after being surprised in a lesbian embrace with Sullivan. Hunter suggests her father was killed to cover up the crime.

Now, author Arnold R. Brown in "Lizzie Borden: The Legend, the Truth, the Final Chapter," claims Andrew Borden's illegitimate son, William, was the murderer. William was found hanging from a tree in 1901, apparently a suicide. Brown believes he was killed, and is trying to get permits to exhume the body from its grave in Taunton.
