From Staff and Wire Reports

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — More than anything else, 6-year-old Bryan McClinton, a blue-eyed little blond stricken with a severe form of cancer, wanted to visit his uncle in Midland, Texas, "to ride on his back one more time."

This weekend his wish is coming true. A new organization in Pittsburgh called Make A Wish is paying for Bryan, his mother and his 8-year-old sister, Kristeen, to make the one-week trip.

Bryan and Debbie McClinton

"Every day that gets closer, gets more exciting. That's all he's talking about," his mother, Debbie McClinton, said Thursday.

"It will really be good for him. He can't wait to go for a piggy-back ride, play heave-ho and get a yucky kiss," laughed Ms. McClinton, who plans to leave for Midland with her two children on Saturday, Bryan's seventh birthday.

Bryan's uncle, Tom Pitman, said Friday he, too, is eagerly awaiting the reunion.

Pitman, of 2603 Wydewood Drive, said he and his wife, Mary, are "very anxious to see Bryan. He's a fine little boy.

"I think everyone was surprised he picked Midland. I think everyone was expecting Disneyland or something like that," Pitman said.

Among the sights Bryan may visit are the Monahans Sandhills, Carlsbad Caverns, Fort Davis, the Odessa meteor crater and perhaps a trip to Water Wonderland. Pitman said the itinerary is tentative because "we're not sure how well he can travel."

Bryan, who hasn't seen his uncle for more than a year, suffers from neuroblastoma, an often fatal cancer involving tumors of the embryonic nervous system and nerve cells. Doctors discovered the cancer about a year ago, after believing he suffered from arthritis.

"When the diagnosis came through, it really shocked us," Pitman said. "He was a typical little boy. He loved to jump, play, wrestle and everything little boys do."

So far, chemotherapy and medication appear to be fighting the disease. But doctors are uncertain whether Bryan's current good health is temporary or permanent, and they won't know for another year whether the cancer has been cured.

If the disease is not cured by then, Bryan has little hope of living beyond that, according to Dr. Vincent Albo of Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh.

"We're going along with the idea that he is going to be cured. But with this disease, you can't be overly optimistic or you'd be fooling yourself," Albo said.

Because of Bryan's condition and his keen desire to see his uncle, Albo recommended the child's name to Marcia Clark, founder and president of Make A Wish in Pittsburgh. The organization, established about two months ago, helps make dreams come true for critically ill children.

Bryan was ideal as the group's first child since his chemotherapy treatments could be worked around the trip, according to Ms. Clark. He also had been confined to his McKeesport home much of the past year, taking classes from a tutor, and talked constantly about his uncle.

Withdrawal agreement debated

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli Cabinet conducted a marathon debate today on the Lebanon agreement worked out by Secretary of State George P. Shultz, and Israel radio said the pact was meeting considerable opposition.

At 1:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EDT) the special session had lasted five hours and the radio said it would continue at least 90 minutes more.

The radio, which usually carries accurate accounts of the closed-door meetings, said the Cabinet was expected to accept the Shultz document in principle but demand "clarifications" before fully approving the plan for Israeli troops withdrawals.

It said ministers complained that it was too clouded by secret understandings, that it was more an agreement with the United States than with Lebanon, and that it "sacrificed" Maj. Saad Haddad, the militia leader in south Lebanon who has served Israeli interests for seven years.

Shultz, who worked out the agreement in nine days of shuttling between Beirut and Jerusalem, declined to predict to reporters the outcome of the Cabinet meeting. "I'm waiting just like the rest of you," he said.

He also said he has invited Prime Minister Menachem Begin to Washington to review U.S.-Israeli relations. He gave no date.

Begin was last in the United States in November on a private visit which was to have included talks with President Reagan. But he had to rush home early when his wife died, and no date was set for a repeat trip.

Reagan was understood to be reluctant to see Begin before the Lebanon crisis was over and the two would be free to tackle broader Mideast issues.

The daily Maariv quoted ministers as saying they expected Begin to support the Lebanon accord, while Yedioth Ahronoth, another paper, said Defense Minister Moshe Arens favored it, his predecessor Ariel Sharon was opposed and Begin was undecided.

Davar, the journal of the opposition Labor Party, quoted a diplomatic source as saying Begin had nothing to lose by accepting the accord since it was certain Syria would reject it, in which case no troop withdrawals from Lebanon were likely in the near future.

The Cabinet meeting occurs exactly 11 months after the Israelis invaded Lebanon to drive out Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas. Israeli troops have been there ever since.

U.S. officials in the Shultz delegation voiced optimism Thursday that the agreement would be approved. But a top Department official told reporters, "Obviously in a negotiation like this, until you have got it you can never be sure."

The official, who briefed reporters on the understanding he would not be identified, said negotiators for Israel and Lebanon had reached agreement on the major issues, although last-minute haggling continued over the wording of some provisions of the accord.

He said the controversial issue of whether Haddad would receive a command position in southern Lebanon, as Israel has demanded, would not be addressed in the agreement.

It is understood Haddad will be given a command role, although without a high-ranking title, as part of a private arrangement with Lebanon.

Petroluem museum stands as tribute, honoree says

By JIM PRESNELL
Business-Energy Writer

Bill Noel, a new member of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum's Hall of Fame, said Thursday night at PBPM's awards dinner: "I think the Petroleum Museum here is a magnificent contribution and stands as a tribute to its founders — who worked so hard to make it a success.

"For the average person with no knowledge of the petroleum industry, I can think of no better glimpse of the industry than seeing the museum."

At the Green Tree Country Club dinner, honors went to oilman and industrialist Noel and his partner, the late Earl Rodman Sr; Robert O. Anderson, chairman of Atlantic Richfield oil company; Prentice F. Brown, geologist and Honolulu Oil executive; and Erle P. Halliburton, founder of the Halliburton Company, a well servicing concern.

Noel said before the ceremonies that the PBPM "...is one of the most impressive museums I've ever seen. It's especially important in this area since the Permian Basin produces 25 percent of the United States (domestically produced) oil.

"The trustees have said that they wish to honor these inductees as people active in the industry," Noel said of the Hall of Fame, "especially those who have made contributions to the area. These people may not be directly oil industry-involved, but they could be bankers, anyone who has been involved" in the oil industry.

"There have been a large number of contributors to the museum," Noel said, smiling. "Individuals, major oil companies, independents — plus many people unrelated to the industry. It's a tribute to this area to achieve such a wonderful explanation of the petroleum business."

Robert O. Anderson also was present — the remaining honorees are deceased. Anderson said prior to receiving his award, "I think it's a great addition to Midland to be able to have a petroleum industry Hall of Fame and the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum.

"The image of Midland as a center of the U.S. petroleum industry is enhanced by the Museum and its Hall of Fame," he said.

The museum is important because it is a major archive of oilfield history, according to Russell J. Ramsland, president of Dinero Operating Co. and president of the PBPM board of trustees. He told the audience, "The only reason this museum exists is this wonderful group of people.

"We do this (Hall of Fame awards) every two years, and the honorees tonight make up the largest single addition yet."

Ramsland said the $1.3 million museum expansion has helped increase visitation to the PBPM by 14 percent above 1982 numbers. "We think the increase is largely due to the addition of the north wing," he said.

"The museum is pursuing acquisitions aggressively," Ramsland continued. "We just obtained 7,000 valuable photos from Texas oil wells and boom towns. Researchers and media people are using the museum more. And we have operated it in the black every year but one since 1975."

Trinity guests discuss concerns for education

Idanelle McMurry

One out of every five Americans cannot read road signs, follow instructions or fill out forms, according to the wife of the vice president of the United States.

Barbara Bush, in Midland Thursday to speak at a banquet celebrating Trinity School's 25th Anniversary, said that although private schools are serving students well, parents should be concerned about public education of the people next door.

While Mrs. Bush spoke on the "looming problem" of illiteracy, Idanelle McMurry, headmistress of The Hockaday School for Girls in Dallas, addressed the advantages and goals of private educational institutions.

According to recent surveys conducted by black organizations, 47 percent of the nation's black youth are illiterate today, Mrs. Bush said. By 1990, that figure is expected to rise to 50 percent.

Illiteracy is not, however, limited to the black community, she told the 170 supporters, alumni, parents and administrators attending the celebration at the Petroleum Club.

Hundreds of thousands of students graduate from high school each year without achieving basic skills, she said. In addition, some 400,000 immigrants and 100,000-150,000 refugees in this country are illiterate.

"I HOPE I'M scaring you to death," Mrs Bush said.

"But you're saying, 'No, wait. My kids go to Trinity — I give them the best education I can.'

"The fact is, we can't afford to let our neighbors (miss a quality education)."

While Trinity School offers an excellent educational program and Midland's impressive public school volunteer program, which she visited Thursday afternoon, has received national acclaim, Mrs. Bush said other methods must be used to improve education of the nation's youth.

"I'm a cheerleader for teachers," she admitted. "I think teachers today are underpaid, overworked and under-praised.

"We expect them to take the place of church and family."

From her 25 months of experience in promoting the fight against illiteracy, Mrs. Bush said she also realized communities should demand excellence and accountability from school boards.

Ninety-two percent of taxpayers' educational dollars are controlled by school boards. School trustees are responsible for 100 percent of the curriculum offered.

AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Services forecast for Saturday a band of showers from Montana through the Great Plains to the Great Lakes. Showers also are predicted from Louisiana to Michigan.

Saturday dusty, but enjoyable

If you can stand the wind, and maybe a little dust in your eye, Saturday should be an excellent day to enjoy the outdoors, according to the National Weather Service forecast.

The NWS at Midland Regional Airport is calling for fair skies and mild temperatures tonight, when the low should reach the low 50s with southwesterly winds at 10-20 mph. Saturday should be fair and not quite so warm as today. The high Saturday should reach the mid-80s and winds will be from the west-northwest — spewing some dust — at 15-25 mph and gusty.

Thursday's high of 95 was only a half dozen degrees cooler than the record 101 set in 1964. The overnight low of 57 compares with a record low 37 set in 1935.

With no rainfall this month and none expected tonight or Saturday, the yearly precipitation total should hold at 1.67 inches.

Barbara Bush praises second grader Sarah Fisher on her rosy speech about life in America. Watching as Mrs. Bush presents flowers to Sarah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Fisher of 1903 Manor Court, is volunteer Colia Morrow. Mrs. Bush, wife of the vice president of the United States and a former Midlander, visited Bonham Elementary School to observe the Volunteers in Public Schools' patriotic play Thursday.

Mrs. Bush discusses education concerns

And yet, she said, the national average of voter turnout in school board elections is a scant 10 percent of the qualified voters.

Urging parents of Trinity students to get involved in public education by volunteering in classrooms or running for the school board, Mrs. Bush reminded them "the best motivation for a child is to know the parents care.

"If one out of five cannot read, and we are the four out of five that have been fortunate enough (to learn), then the country has a right to expect that much of us."

PROBLEMS OF providing quality education, which are growing in the public schools, are what have caused the growth of private institutions, Ms. McMurry said.

Private schooling has hit a "high water mark," she said, adding the distinction has been made "for some of the wrong reasons.

"Public education has not been able to achieve what it should have," Ms. McMurry said, explaining discontent with public education has resulted in an increased enrollment in private schools.

According to Ms. McMurry, the reputation of private education has changed for the better.

For many years, private facilities usually were referred to as "exclusive."

"But as public education declined and independent education rose, suddenly the government looked at us more, too," she said.

Private schools, however, also face challenges, she cautioned.

"Our challenge in the future is to continue, I hope, as public education improves, to prosper."

To administrators of private schools, Ms. McMurry laughingly said the greatest challenges "are money and sophomores."

While financial backing is a necessity, so is excellent curriculum and qualified instructors.

"It is necessary to continue to provide quality in education," she said, "to attain strong faculty and continually update the curriculum without giving up the best of what we've learned from the past."

Another challenge facing all educators is "the technology revolution."

THE COMPUTER "will affect education more significantly than anything since Socrates, I think," she said. "And there is no one we can hire as consultants or ask someone who has done it before.

"It's exciting because it's an untried sea. It's a challenge for the future and for me — and it's a challenge for you."

She warned those attending the banquet to avoid apathy about the school they have nurtured for 25 years.

"There is great excitement and fun in the beginning," she said. But often people tend to think they have given money and time and now the school can take care of itself.

"It's like children," she said. "They grow up and can take care of themselves — but you're never rid of them."

Transplant patient's chances slim

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Brandon Hall's lung deterioration remained "stabilized" today, but doctors said the tiny liver transplant patient still has only a slight chance for survival.

The 13-month-old boy from Walnut, Miss., remained attached to a respirator and was in extremely critical condition today.

"With his lung problem seemingly stabilized and his other vital signs strong, he appears to be in no immediate danger," Scott Kent of Le Bonheur Children's Hospital said Thursday.

Brandon has suffered lung problems since the first of two liver transplants last month.

Nicaraguan compromise considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee, pressed by President Reagan to back covert aid to Nicaraguan rebels, is considering a compromise that would require him to certify again that the CIA action is in the national interest, congressional sources say.

Under the compromise, the House and Senate intelligence committees could then refuse to release money for the new covert action if they feel it had not been revised enough to meet their concerns, the sources said.

Refusing to release the money would kill the program Sept. 30, when the current fiscal year ends, said the sources, who spoke only on condition they not be identified.

The committee was expected to consider the compromise — proposed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the committee chairman — at a closed-door meeting today.

Meanwhile, Reagan personally lobbied against another proposal that would directly cut off CIA aid for the insurgents who are fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

The president called one undecided committee member, Sen. Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky., from Air Force One while flying to Texas on Thursday.

Although the president has publicly acknowledged U.S. aid to the insurgents, the covert action remains highly classified, and calls from Air Force One are normally open transmissions that in the past have been picked up by shortwave radio operators.

Gary Auxier, a Huddleston spokesman, said, however, that "nothing of a classified nature was imparted during the conversation and nothing was talked about that was not already part of the public record."

Anson Franklin, a White House spokesman, said that he was not aware of the Huddleston call, but added, "we would normally take special precautions on telephone calls that involve national security."

Reagan has sharply criticized a 9-5 vote by the House Intelligence Committee on Tuesday to terminate covert U.S. aid to the rebels and create instead an open $80 million fund to help governments stop leftist gunrunning in Central America.

The president appears to have enough votes to turn back a similar proposal in the Senate committee. Sources said eight of the 15 committee members had lined up against the cut-off proposal, sponsored by Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn.

Some conservative Republicans believe they can muster the votes to endorse continuing the existing covert action plan, one source said. However, another source said Goldwater's compromise was drawing strong support from both Republicans and Democrats.

Goldwater, who is among those who oppose the Durenberger plan, has proposed his compromise in an attempt to maintain a bipartisan consensus on the committee and out of concern that otherwise the House committee cutoff will ultimately prevail, the sources said.

Specifically, they said, the Goldwater compromise would require Reagan to issue a new presidential finding that the covert action was necessary to protect U.S. national interests.

Sick boy's wish to visit uncle granted by special organization

Pitman said the chemotherapy takes a heavy toll on young Bryan, but once the treatments are completed, "he loves to get out and romp and stomp again."

Ms. McClinton said her brother-in-law, Pitman, is like a father to Bryan.

"When I was divorced, Tom felt bad for Bryan. It was like a magnet for them both," she said.

Bryan was crushed when his uncle moved from Pittsburgh to Midland two years ago.

Pitman, 42, left Pennsylvania to take a job as head of security and safety at First National Bank.

Bryan saw his uncle, Aunt Mary, and 2-year-old cousin, Lisa, when they visited a year ago. But he was too sick to enjoy the visit and, until now, too sick to travel.

"They (doctors) think it will be good for him, a chance to go somewhere," Ms. McClinton said.

"Bryan's comment was that he wants to ride on his uncle's back one more time," added Ms. Clark.

Make A Wish, a non-profit group with chapters in about a dozen cities around the country, located someone willing to pay the $800 round-trip plane fare for the McClintons. The organization then raised several hundred dollars for use as spending money.

Without the help, the family could never have afforded the trip, said Ms. McClinton, 29, who was forced to quit her waitressing job because of her son's illness.

Ms. McClinton said her son knows, deep down, why he was chosen for the trip. Psychologists have explained the seriousness of the illness to both mother and child.

"He's super" about dealing with the disease, Ms. McClinton said. "I couldn't do it."

His main concern, at least for now, is just getting to Midland, acording to his mother.

"He doesn't care about stuff like rides and amusement parks," she said. "All he talks about is getting to Texas. Now at least, he'll be able to go."

West Germany says Hitler diaries forged

KOBLENZ, West Germany (AP) — The government said today its experts had tested three of the 62 volumes in the purported Hitler diaries and concluded they are "obvious fakes" plagiarized from a 1962 book on the Nazi dictator.

Federal Archives President Hans Booms estimated the documents were forged in about 1964.

Other archivists told a news conference here that chemical analysis of the three volumes supplied by the magazine Stern showed the documents were hand-written on paper manufactured at least 10 years after the end of World War II.

The dairies were said to have covered a period between 1932 and 1945 when Hitler died.

"We have examined the papers and clearly established that the diaries are obvious fakes," said Dr. Louis-Ferdinand Werner of the Federal Criminal Office, who supervised the chemical analyses.

Stern, which has been publishing excerpts of the diaries, said it "cannot ignore" the findings, but did not elaborate. A spokesman for the Sunday Times of London said that because of the announcement, the newspaper had canceled its plans to publish the purported diaries.

Booms, who was responsible for checking the historical contents of the diaries, charged that most of the material — including what he said were factual errors — was copied from "Hitler's Speeches and Proclamations," a book published by former state archivist Max Domarus in 1962.

Domarus was not at the news conference and his whereabouts were not immediately known.

The archivists' findings also were announced by Interior Minister Friederich Zimmermann, who said in Bonn:

"Based on an analysis of the contents and ... scientific investigation, the archives have come to the conviction that the material handed them could not stem from Hitler's hand, but were made in the postwar period."

Booms said experts from his agency, the Federal Criminal Office in Wiesbaden and the Federal Bureau of Standards had examined three volumes provided by Stern, which said it found the documents in a farming village in East Germany.

Booms said tests were performed on the paper, covers, ink, labels and even the fibers binding the volumes.

In the fibers, the archivists discovered threads of polyomide polyester, which they said was first produced after the war. They said the type on the labels was from a 1925 typewriter but did not show the signs of wear it should have had it been typed in the 1930s and 40s.

The archivists also said glue on the back of the labels, which bore the signatures of Nazi figures Rudolf Hess and Martin Bormann, contained chemicals not used during the war.

Nicaraguan leader seeks U.N. meeting

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto Brockman goes to New York today to ask for an emergency U.N. Security Council meeting on what Nicaragua claims is an invasion by U.S.-financed counterrevolutionaries.

A statement from the Foreign Ministry issued late Thursday said D'Escoto Brockman would request the meeting "in light of...the aggressive policies of the Reagan administration which are ever increasing."

Nicaraguan Deputy Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco formally requested the meeting Thursday in a letter to Ambassador Umba di Lutete of Zaire, president of the 15-nation council for May.

Private talks among the 15 council members were scheduled for this afternoon and a public meeting of the council was expected to be called for Saturday.

It is the third time in less than 14 months that Nicaragua has asked for a council meeting.

Nicaragua repeatedly has claimed the United States gives support and training to rebels who are trying to topple the leftist Sandinista government.

President Reagan Wednesday acknowledged that the United States is providing help to Nicaraguan guerrillas and called them "freedom fighters."

Meanwhile, the official Nueva Nicaragua news agency said the Honduran army attacked with mortars the border village of Siuce in Nueva Sogovia province, about 175 miles north of this capital.

Military sources said government soldiers battled rebels in Zacateras, in Nueva Segovia about 180 northwest of this capital.

Intense fighting also continued in Jicaro and Murra, in Nueva Segovia, 115 miles north of this capital in the province of Nueva Segovia, the sources said. The rebels, in a radio broadcast monitored in Tegucigalpa, claimed dozens of government soldiers died.

In San Jose, Acting Foreign Minister Ekhart Peters told The Associated Press that Nicaragua approves of Costa Rica's request for an Organization of American States peacekeeping force to patrol its border with Nicaragua, where rebels attacks by the Democratic Revolutionary Alliance (ARDE) have intensified in recent days.

Peters said the Costa Rica consulted the Nicarguan government several times on the matter before formulating the request Thursday.

However, the Nicaraguan government had released no statement regarding the request by Thursday night.

Costa Rica says its civil guard cannot adequetely patrol the 190-mile border. Costa Rica does not have a standing army.

Costa Rican President Luis Alberto Monge said last week his goverment wants to wants to maintain strict neutrality and does not want its territory used to launch attacks against its northern neighbor.

Costa Rica wants a peacekeeping force made up of soldiers from Mexico, Panama, Venezuela and Colombia.

Not immune to the downturn in oil and other Midland sub-economies, the PBPM saw low attendance in the last quarter of 1982. "Now we're back at 1981 levels," Ramsland said. "The downturn was relatively short, and right now we're planning for increasing attendance at the museum. We'd like to redo major exhibits, and we have many ideas that need funding. We will try to use your money and your time well," he told the museum's supporters, "as I think you'll agree we've done in the past."

Dr. Peter T. Flawn, president of UT-Austin, was the keynote speaker, after a presentation of audio and slides called "Look Into Time." The show was produced by the museum to explain the Hall of Fame honor and the five honorees, along with a history of each man's accomplishments.

Flawn said, "It is imperative for us, individually and nationally, to excel. It's time to go back and work.

"Avoidance of stress is not a valuable thing," Flawn said. "Those honored here were forged in the crucible of stress.

"There cannot be freedom to succeed without freedom to fail," Flawn said.

Reagan plans to form task force on Mexican economy

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — President Reagan chose his whirlwind trip to San Antonio to announce his plan for a special task force to investigate the "hardship caused by economic uncertainity" in Mexico.

Reagan courted Hispanics, who make up 57 percent of this city's population, during Thursday's two-hour visit and spent most of his time at a Cinco de Mayo celebration.

Cinco de Mayo, translated May 5, is a national Mexican holiday that celebrates the 1862 victory of outnumbered Mexican troops over an invading French army.

Reagan met with key Hispanic Republicans, ate a taco to the accompaniment of mariachi music and kissed a baby.

The president promised his Hispanic listeners an all-out effort to combat the drastic effect the battered Mexican peso on the U.S. border economy.

"This is not your problem," Reagan told about 1,200 people gathered at a downtown, tree-lined plaza. "It's our problem and we'll meet it together."

Reagan's new interagency task force, to be known as the Working Group on Southwestern Border States, was developed in consultation with U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

"We're both concerned about the impact the peso devaluation and the financial crisis it's having on the people of South Texas — and in the border areas of other states," Reagan said.

"We are also trying to do everything we can to work with Mexico itself in attacking the problem. We've offered the Mexican government our assistance."

Tower recently asked for the formation of the group to help economically strapped sections of South Texas.

"Its task will be to examine the problems and catalog the ways the government can be of help," Tower said Thursday.

"We have an obligation to do everything that we can to meet the crying needs of the communities affected by the economic crisis in Mexico. The problems these communities are facing are not of their own making."

Reagan said the task force has been asked to report within 45 days on what role should be played by federal, state and local governments to remedy the damage three successive devaluations have inflicted on U.S. border businesses.

The president, sharing a sunsplashed platform with Mexican-American women in long dresses and men in sombreros, enumerated to the crowd his administration's contributions to Hispanics.

Reagan said he has appointed 130 Hispanics to high-level positions in his administration and reminded his listeners that he signed a 25-year extension of the federal Voting Rights Act, the longest since its enactment in 1965.

Chinese objects d'art displayed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For Yvon d'Argence, the opening of the new exhibition, "Treasures From the Shanghai Museum: 6,000 Years of Chinese Art," at the Asian Art Museum here is a seven-year-long dream come true.

The exhibition traces the entire span of Chinese art history through objects never seen in the United States before. It's on display at the San Francisco museum through September and will then go to Chicago, Houston and Washington, D.C.

When d'Argence, as director of the Asian Art Museum, made his first visit to the world-famous Shanghai Museum in 1976, he was awed by the diversity and quality of the objects on display — the oldest some 6,000 years, the newest a painting from the 1930s.

The Shanghai Museum was established in 1952 in a modernistic building that had previously housed a bank. It gradually built a reputation as one of China's most important cultural centers, with a collection of more than 100,000 objects that range from the most ancient to modern times.

D'Argence was determined to bring some of these treasures to America — a goal that was abetted by the "sister city" relationship established between San Francisco and Shanghai three years ago. It was further enhanced by a visit to San Francisco by Shanghai's Vice Mayor Zhao Xingzhi that included a tour of the Asian Art Museum.

D'Argence then proposed the idea of bringing a sampling of the Shanghai collection to his museum and others around the United States, and the idea was greeted with enthusiasm by all concerned.

"With every work in the Shanghai Museum's galleries available, theoretically at least, I presented my 'dream list' of 232 objects representing the highlights of the collection," says the San Francisco museum director. "They made some extremely important suggestions and we ended up with not my exact list, but very close to it."

According to d'Argence, the exhibition offers 121 ceramics, including early celadons and exquisite porcelains; 33 bronzes of outstanding beauty and artistic technique; six elegant gilt-bronze sculptures; 38 superb paintings and 34 examples of applied arts, including objects of jade, carved lacquer, bamboo, ivory, wood and rhinoceros horn.

Two highlights are the intriguing "Water Spurting Basin" (Ming dynasty: A.D. 1368-1644) made to spurt bead-shaped droplets from fishes' mouths in the bottom design when the vessel's handles are rubbed a certain way; and the "Magic Mirror" (Western Han: 206 B.C.-A.D. 9) whose polished surface mysteriously projects a "reflection" of the decorative design on the opposite side when it is exposed to direct-beam light or to sunlight.

The exhibition presents a panorama of Chinese history exemplified by objects never before viewed in this country, and is also the first important display of art from China to be assembled from beginning to end for viewing by the American public, d'Argence notes.

Retarded teenager abandons delusions after calves replaced

HUFFMAN (AP) — A slightly retarded teen-age girl who slipped into a make-believe personality when her two pet calves were killed abandoned her delusion when a rancher offered to replace one of the animals, her mother said.

Elizabeth Necker, 14, took on the personality of a girl she called Tiffin after her calves where chased by a motorcycle gang, wandered on to a road and were hit by a pickup truck, her mother, Winnie Necker, said Thursday.

The girl resumed her own identity after a rancher offered to give her a calf and other sympathizers donated $3,000 in cash, arranged to repair the damaged fence and offered to buy feed for the new stock, Mrs. Necker said.

The girl picked out a 2-month-old bull calf Thursday from the herd of Jim Sterling, a rancher and funeral home director in this town 30 miles northeast of Houston. She said she will call the calf "Undertaker" in honor of her benefactor.

"I was saving it for one of my grandchildren," said Sterling, who added he changed his mind because he knew the girl "put a lot of work" into readying her calf to show next year.

Elizabeth had won third prize in the 1983 Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo's yearling heifer competition with one of the calves and planned to enter the other in next year's show, said Mrs. Necker.

After the calves were destroyed, Elizabeth spent the next two days crying and rearranging the sand in the graves where the two animals were buried, Mrs. Necker said.

She went back to school Wednesday, Mrs. Necker said.

"But she went back as Tiffen," a personality she adopts "only when she is very, very upset," said Mrs. Necker. She said the girl assumed that identity last year when a brother died.

Mrs. Necker said Tiffen first appeared when the girl was adopted five years ago.

"Two other couples had come very close to adopting her but hadn't," she said. "She decided the reason that they didn't was because she was Elizabeth. She thinks Tiffen is a very, very good girl. She never does anything bad."

White searches for way to give teachers 24 percent pay raise

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White is shopping for a tax hike that will give teachers a 24 percent pay hike and satisfy a House that is not in a tax-raising mood.

"He told us he would be studying taxes this weekend," said Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, after a Thursday meeting with White.

White met with several lawmakers while the House finished work on a $30.8 billion two-year budget that includes only the small teacher pay raise guaranteed by law. House members voted twice Thursday against major pay raises. They approved a small increase in welfare payments for needy children.

All sides in the teacher pay raise battle now agree it will take a tax hike to fund the 24 percent White package. Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio, told colleagues Thursday he would ask for a one-cent, two-year emergency raise in the state 4 percent sales tax.

Texans are "ready, willing and able" to pay the higher tax to pay teachers and increase welfare for needy children, he said.

Speaker Gib Lewis says Garcia must be talking to different Texans than he is.

"That certainly hasn't been the response I've been receiving," he said. "I'm against, at this stage, any tax bill."

Two men charged with bilking farmer

ABILENE (AP) — Two Dallas businessmen face felony theft charges here following the claim of a retired farmer that he was bilked of his entire life's savings — 77 silver bars worth $117,000.

Mark Shinners and Rick Brown ran the Texas operation of the International Gold Bullion Exchange of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., which last week filed for reorganizaton under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, Assistant District Attorney Mike Watson said Thursday.

O.E. Kendrick of Abilene told investigators he turned his 100-ounce silver bars over to Shinners and Brown on April 7 only to find out a day later of their firm's legal and financial problems, Watson said.

Kendrick said he was promised a return on his investment of 1½ percent monthly for 90 days.

Justice of the Peace Roland Dunwoody said he signed warrants for Shinners and Brown Thursday afternoon and set bond at $100,000 each.

Kendrick gave the men the bars "after they told him they would hold the bars as an investment for him, and pay him a monthly rebate...they also said the bars would be insured," said Kendrick's lawyer, Bob Andron.

Andron said the transfer of the silver occurred "late one afternoon" and Kendrick "learned early the next morning, in the Wall Street Journal, that the Florida attorney general had ordered International Gold Buillion Exchange to stop doing business in the silver market."

The order was made before the bars were picked up from Kendrick, Andron said, and the criminal charge alleges Brown and Shinners were aware of the order.

Kendrick said he had been told by his cousin, another IGBE investor, that the firm was offering "good rebates" on silver.

Singapore engineer's joke bombs at airport

HOUSTON (AP) — An engineer from Singapore claims he was only joking when he told inspectors at Houston Intercontinental Airport that he had a bomb.

Wong Fong Lin, 32, was arrested Thursday and charged with making a terroristic threat, officials said. The felony charge carries a prison sentence of up to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Wong, who had traveled to Houston for this week's Offshore Technology Conference, told Southwest Airlines officials he was only kidding when he made the remark.

Everglades suffering from abuse, neglect

EVERGLADES NATIONAL PARK, Fla. (AP) — Cool water flows and lush sawgrass trembles in the spring wind at Everglades National Park, a 1.5 million-acre wilderness on Florida's southern tip.

But a half-century of human abuse and neglect, combined with nature's fickleness, have transformed this majestic "river of grass," almost twice the size of Rhode Island, into what rangers say is the sickest of America's national parks.

"Visitors see all this water and say: 'Gosh, that's great; the drought I read about back home is over,'" says ranger Dan Muller, picking his way through a flooded hardwood hammock in Shark Valley Slough. "But they don't understand. When we get water is as important as how much we get."

Three feet away, a green heron stalks through arrowhead and poisonwood. "It's not the flooding that's damaging the park," Muller explains. "It's the cumulative effect of so many bad things, so many bad years."

In February, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers sent water from brimming Lake Okeechobee southward through the marshes, curtailing the four-month dry season. Officials say the deluge was necessary to reduce the threat of flooding along Florida's populated coastal regions.

The 411 trillion gallons that drenched the swamp, cypress and scrub in the past 12 months was nearly five times the required minimum, says South Florida Water Management District spokeswoman Enid Butler.

That February freshwater wave was a severe blow, coming after two decades of water deprivation and engineering errors that have ravaged the park's wildlife and transformed its face, say environmentalists.

"We are at the eleventh hour for the Everglades," warns the 93-year-old doyenne of Florida naturalists, Marjory Stoneman Douglas. "So much has been lost. So much."

An angry Florida Wildlife Federation head Johnny Jones says the park is "dying." Park Superintendent Jack Morehead prefers "declined."

"Dying sounds so terminal," Morehead said.

Then he listed the problems:

—Once massacred so their plumes could adorn ladies' hats, wading birds — egrets, herons, ibis, cranes and spoonbills — have declined by 90 percent since the 1920s, when the rush for Florida real estate began.

—Unseasonal flooding has prevented alligators from nesting in four of the past five years. In brackish creeks at the park's southernmost reaches, the endangered American crocodile hangs on to a precarious existence.

—The wood stork, an indicator of "how well we're managing the water," in Muller's words, has only built rookeries and raised hatchlings twice in the past 11 years. The reason: the endangered animal's nesting instinct is triggered by waning waters.

—Even plant life has been damaged. Two exotics once unknown in the Everglades, melaleuca and Brazilian pepper, have boomed in abnormal conditions and overrun 10 percent of the park. Native trees like the gumbo limbo are dying, their roots drowned.

Created by President Truman in 1947 as the first national park to protect an ecosystem rather than showcase scenery, the park may be the first to disappear, say those who love it.

Before man arrived, the 70-mile-wide river linking Lake Okeechobee to the Gulf of Mexico flowed freely, producing flora and fauna the National Park Service calls "the most dazzling" North America has ever known.

But engineers interposed a 1,500-mile maze of irrigation canals and levees across the 6-inch-deep, grass-clogged stream. They were designed to slake South Florida's 1 billion-gallon-a-day thirst and avert coastal flooding.

"When a farmer comes to South Florida and plants tomatoes or sugar cane, what he wants is a guaranteed water level, year in, year out," says Morehead. "But in the wet year, we want high water. And in the dry year, we want a dry-down."

The $500 million man-made labyrinth prevents that. So did human priorities, which for years sought "to make Florida more habitable for the growth we want for the state," says water management district official John Wodraska.

One consequence was a dramatic drop in water flow to the Everglades, with back-to-back drought and flooding coming in 1982-83.

There was a public outcry last summer when flooding and a state-ordered mercy kill decimated a herd of Everglades deer. Further publicity on the decline of the Everglades forced the elected water management board governors to reconsider the park's fate.

Last month the governors approved an emergency agenda to restore the natural dry season and mimic the sheet flow of water that created the Everglades.

Council wants bathrooms

ATLANTA (AP) — Heeding the call of nature can be a problem in Georgia's capital, and some City Council members want the city to get into the restroom business.

The gradual disappearance of public toilets in downtown Atlanta, known as the "hub of the South" because of its conventions and major airport, is posing a problem for shoppers, tourists and homeless wanderers.

Council members Elaine Wiggins Valentine and John Lewis are working on a resolution to build at least one city-operated public restroom in the downtown area.

Council President Marvin Arrington also has criticized the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority (MARTA)for closing its rapid rail station bathrooms.

MARTA decided in October to close restrooms in all but one station, citing security and maintenance costs.

According to Mrs. Valentine, public restrooms once were available in several dowtown fire stations and the now-defunct Underground Atlanta entertainment area.

Currently, the only options for those in need are the central Atlanta public library, open only during business hours, and shops and restaurants, many of which deny access unless a purchase is made, she said.

In March, the council approved a resolution urging private businesses to allow public use of their restrooms.

"As a merchant, I don't want just anyone coming off the street using the restroom," said Marvin Favors of the Broad Street Merchants Association.

The Rev. Joanna Adams of the Christian Council of Metropolitan Atlanta has written Mayor Andrew Young, saying the lack of bathroom facilities creates difficulties for "an already overburdened homeless" population.

Plane plunges near ocean before engines restart

MIAMI (AP) — A jetliner carrying 172 people lost power in all three engines shortly after takeoff Thursday because oil seals had not been installed. The plane plunged to within 2,700 feet of the Atlantic Ocean before the pilot restarted the tail engine and landed in Miami.

No injuries were reported as the Bahamas-bound Eastern Airlines L-1011 plunged 17,200 feet in about 10 minutes while frantic passengers donned their life vests. As they prepared to ditch, Pilot Dick Boddy managed to get the one engine going and turned back to Miami International Airport.

Because of the lack of oil, the rear engine began smoking as the plane touched down. Two built-in fire extinguishers were set off, preventing flames.

National Transportation Safety Board officials blamed the engine failures on missing "O rings," thumb-size rubber doughnuts that seal oil into the engine.

"With the 'O ring' missing, the oil was able to leak out," NTSB spokesman Ira Furman said. "If oil leaks out, the engine will fail."

Furman said the rings, which cost "pennies," fit into a notch on a magnetized oil plug that is removed nightly from the engines. Each plug is supposed to carry two rings. New oil plugs were apparently installed without the seals during nightly maintenance, he said, adding that the seals definitely did not fall off in flight.

He refused to pin the blame, saying, "We have yet to determine whether the plugs are supposed to come out of the stock room with the 'O ring' or whether the mechanics are supposed to put the 'O ring' on."

But an Eastern mechanic, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said it is the mechanics' responsibility to put the rings in place before the plugs are re-installed in the engines.

Eastern spokesman Jim Ashlock said the carrier's investigation also found the rings were missing. "Why they weren't there is the next phase of the investigation."

The carrier and the safety board tussled for a few hours over the cockpit voice recorder and the flight data recorder, but Furman said the agency retrieved both Thursday night.

All but 48 of the 162 passengers boarded another L-1011 at noon to make Flight 855 to Nassau, approximately 180 miles east of Miami. "That was the available aircraft and the seating capacity was required," said Eastern spokesman Jim McGhee. "It was either that or a boat." The 10 crew members stayed behind, officials said.

As the aircraft fell, passengers put on their life vests and grabbed their seat-pocket safety cards for instructions on how to evacuate the plane and inflate the life rafts that the plane carried.

In the waves below, several Coast Guard cutters and small boats waited to give aid. Four helicopters and a C-130 jet were on hand, too, and the plane escorted the airliner back to Miami, according to Petty Officer Mike Kelley. Other rescue crews waited on the airport runway.

While waiting for their new flight, the passengers consumed eight "kits" of liquor — courtesy of the airline, said Eastern spokesman Jim Ashlock. That amounted to 384 one-shot bottles.

Passengers then boarded a new jetliner in high spirits, laughing and calling to each other, pointing to evacuation pictures on the safety cards and yelling, "That's us!"

They also got sandwiches, free beach towels and champagne on the way to Nassau, Ashlock said. "We're trying to make them as comfortable as possible," he added.

The FAA requires that an aircraft be able to fly on one or two engines for certification.

Two people die, 10 injured in apartment house fire

NEW YORK (AP) — A fire fueled by fireworks swept through an apartment house in Manhattan's Chinatown today, killing at least two people and leaving 10 others injured, authorities said.

The fire broke out about 12:45 a.m. EDT in the five-story brick building and spread to the structure next door, officials said.

Firemen rescued some people by leaning ladders against the rear windows of the buildings while flames licked at the backs of the fleeing occupants. Others escaped on their own through doors and windows.

Ambulances took 12 people to nearby hospitals, said Eileen Hertzberg, spokeswoman for the city's Emergency Medical Service. Five of those victims had suffered cardiac arrest, she said.

One person was pronounced dead at Bellevue Hospital and another at Beekman-Downtown Hospital, Ms. Hertzberg said.

Three of the cardiac victims were in what she called "life-threatening" condition, as were one person with respiratory arrest and one with severe smoke inhalation. Another five people, including two firemen, had minor injuries, she said.

The fire was declared under control at 2:02 a.m.

John Rossi, deputy fire chief of the First Division, said he did not know what caused the fire but said it was fueled by fireworks found on a floor of the building.

The blaze initially was declared suspicious because "it had a heavy volume of fire," Rossi said. After an inspection, fire officials changed their minds, he said.

All casualties were from the building where the fire started, Rossi said. A restaurant was on the ground floor of the building and apartments were on the four floors above.

John Mulligan, the fire department's deputy commissioner for public information, had reported nine people dead shortly after the fire began.

Ms. Hertzberg said many of those initially reported dead by firemen were revived in ambulances en route to hospitals.

Judge reinstates murder charges against doctors

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A judge said that California "does not condone mercy killing" and reinstated murder charges against two doctors who withdrew food, water and life-support systems from a comatose patient.

Neither does the state condone "the doing of an act or failing to act that ends the life of another, other than through the natural process of dying," Superior Court Judge Robert A. Wenke added Thursday as he renewed charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder against Drs. Robert Nejdl and Neil Barber of Kaiser Permanente Hospital.

Wenke's ruling reversed an opinion by Municipal Court Judge Brian Crahan, who on March 9 had dismissed charges against the doctors after a two-week hearing. Crahan ruled they did not act with malice or negligence in their treatment of Clarence Herbert, a 55-year-old security guard from Carson who died Sept. 6, 1981.

But Wenke ruled Thursday that the "morality of the defendants' conduct, the purity of their motives, common practice in this type of situation and the wishes of the decedant's family" were not the issue in the case.

The case now will move to Superior Court for trial.

Jetliners designed to fly, glide without use of engines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Modern jetliners are designed to fly with one or two engines out and, in the rare time that all engines fail, to glide for some distance under the control of the pilot.

The ability of a jetliner to survive engine failure was demonstrated Thursday by Eastern Flight 855, a Lockheed L-1011 jumbo jet that lost power in all three engines and came within 2,700 feet of ditching into the Atlantic before one engine was restarted.

The plane, with 172 people aboard, landed safely in Miami.

Bud Parker, an expert in aircraft certification for the Federal Aviation Administration, said the possibility of an engine failure is taken into account whenever an aircraft is built and when it is approved by the government.

In the case of the three and four-engine jumbo jets, the manufacturer "must demonstrate stay-aloft capability with either one or two engines failed" before it is approved, Parker said in an interview.

The possibility more than one engine failing are extremely remote and all engines failing on a three or four-engine jumbo jet "almost infinitesimal" said an official at one major aircraft manufacturer.

To minimize the possibility of a total engine failure each engine must be "totally independent of any other engine."

In designing a jetliner, Parker said, the manufacturer must ensure that backup systems are available "that will keep the operating controls functioning with all engines out" so the pilot can maintain control.

In the most recent cases involving engine failures, the problems began at cruising altitude, allowing the planes to fall thousands of feet before the engines could be restarted.

Old fatal disease makes new recovery

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Since 1955, the World Health Organization (WHO)has struggled against malaria, and for a time many experts believed the debilitating, and sometimes fatal disease, would become a forgotten danger.

But today, experts at WHO headquarters believe that 40 percent of mankind is still threatened by the disease — and that old solutions no longer work against new strains of mosquitos and malarial parasites.

"While past programs have not been a failure, we are still a long way from reaching our goal," said Ned Willard, a WHO spokesman. "Malaria is a problem most governments wish would just disappear, but instead it is worsening."

Many countries, which a few years ago were on the point of announcing the eradication of malaria, are struggling with an onslaught of pesticide-resistant mosquitos and drug-resistant parasites, the WHO says.

"Rumors that the disease has been eradicated in India are false," said Willard. "Nor are rumors that a new vaccine will soon solve the malaria problem entirely true."

WHO estimates new malaria cases at about 7.5 million per year, double the rate of 10 years ago, with most cases found in Southeast Asia, South America, Central America and the equatorial region of Africa. There is no accurate count of malaria deaths.

Although the United States is considered free of homegrown malaria, the number of cases doubled between 1978 and 1980, with 1,864 reported in 1980, said the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. But these cases involved travelers returning from outside the country or recent immigrants.

The agency expects between 700 and 800 cases in the United States during 1983, said Dr. Kent Campbell, the chief of the CDC's malaria branch.

The disease is caused by single-cell parasites, injected into the bloodstream by a mosquito. When the organisms enter the body, they become lodged in the liver and multiply. After several days, they travel into the bloodstream, causing high fevers and chills.

The parasites can attack different parts of the body. In the cerebral type of the disease, the onset is rapid with delirium and coma, and death can occur in several hours without return to consciousness.

And some strains of mosquitos are becoming more resistant to the pesticides used in eradication.

WHO researchers say that in 1968, 38 species of the Anopheles mosquitos, which carry the malaria parasite, were resistant to one or more types of commonly used pesticides. By 1975, however, the figure had risen to 42 species and by 1980, 51 species, including all the main malaria-carrying species, the researchers say.

"The intensive, and in many instances excessive and irrational, use of pesticides was responsible for the 'selection' of resistant mosquitos," Willard said. "Those which are resistant survive and go on to multiply."

Fortunately this has still to happen in most of South America, Africa and the Western Pacific but the problem is already serious in Asia, WHO experts say, adding they fear the disease will follow the same pattern it has taken in Southeast Asia.

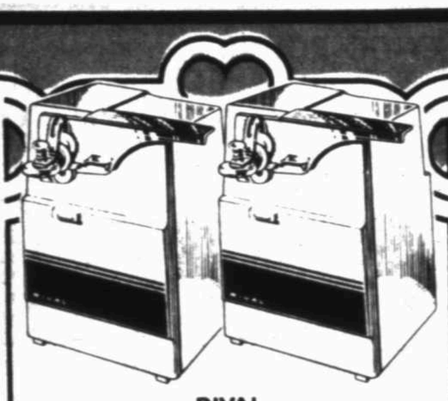

Even more disturbing, the WHO says, has been the appearance of new strains of the most deadly form of the parasite, Plasmodium falciparum, which do not respond to the drugs commonly available.

Entangling web

"No war is possible without Egypt, and no peace is possible without Syria."

These were the words of Henry Kissinger when he was secretary of state, and although they may seem cryptic they say something about the entangling web of politics and diplomacy in the Middle East. Secretary George Shultz is well aware of these entanglements as he shuttles from point to point in an effort to continue the peace process initiated by Kissinger.

Once again, and prophetically, Syria is a stumbling block. Shultz is seeking to get Israeli and Syrian forces out of Lebanon, but the presence of those thousands of Syrian soldiers casts a shadow over his efforts. The shadow is all the darker because it comes all the way from the Kremlin, which would like nothing better than to foil our secretary's peacemaking plans by urging Syrian troops to stay put in Lebanon.

Saudi Arabia is another part of this entangling web. It is the money of the Saudis that keeps the Damascus government afloat, so they have something to say about the direction of Syrian policy. Other Arab nations are less than enthusiastic, to say the least, about aiding and abetting Israel's future by contributing to the stability of the Middle East.

This web of entanglements may at first look insurmountable. But let us not forget that when Henry Kissinger first started talking about getting President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin together with President Carter, the hurdles were formidable. Patience and perseverance made progress possible then, and they can now. The United States is fortunate to have a secretary of state with these qualities, and we wish him well in the days of frustration that lie ahead.

Act needs amending

Western ranchers and animal lovers are going at it tooth and nail these days over a move in Congress to amend the Wild Free Roaming Horse and Burro Act of 1971.

Ranchers say there are just too many wild horses out there living on the range lands. And ranges they use cannot be used to grow domestic livestock.

The government tends to agree there are too many wild horses. It estimates there are now 45,000 wild horses and 10,000 burros on its public grazing lands — and it has set a total of 25,000 as a desirable maximum.

The Horse and Burro Act of 1971, was adopted after schoolchildren, upset by stories of slaughtering these animals for dog and cat food, launched an emotional letter-writing campaign to Congress. The act prohibits private citizens from rounding up and killing these wild beasts.

The government (Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service) limited the numbers of wild horses and burros by removing them from crowded locations, putting them up for adoption or destroying them.

Unfortunately, their numbers continued to multiply. Now the plan is to amend the horse and burro act, giving the government another option — to sell these wild animals at auction.

The government should be allowed this option.

Right for everything

Of course we're not quite serious. We're not even sure how well William D. Ruckelshaus, the first-and-now-again director of the Environmental Protection Agency will do this time around. But since he's so clearly superior not only to Anne Burford, whom he replaced at EPA (not to mention many of Burford's under-a-cloud departed deputies), but to so many other senior administration officials — and since his appointment was greeted with so much relief in so many quarters — why not the following:

— Ruckelshaus for secretary of the interior. Not much need be said about the comparison with James Watt, the prince of plunder, even if one does not mention Watt's recent declaration that the Beach Boys play hard rock, that rock music attracts a bad element and that Wayne Newton, the thrush of Las Vegas — that most moral and American of all American places — should henceforth represent Americanism on the Capitol Mall on the Fourth of July. Watt later backed off the Beach Boys fumble, just as he has occasionally been forced to back down on his most flagrant giveaways, but that hardly puts him among the protectors of the national interest or the defenders of cultural freedom.

— Ruckelshaus for secretary of labor. Another easy one. No contest with the incumbent, Raymond J. Donovan, whose most notable experience with labor affairs and government has been his successful effort to clear himself of charges that he has been involved with mobsters and labor racketeers.

— Ruckelshaus for attorney general. Again his record commends him for the office. He served with distinction in the Justice Department during the Watergate period and resigned with even more distinction rather than obey Richard Nixon's order to fire Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox in what became known as the Saturday night massacre.

— Ruckelshaus for special White House assistant in place of Thomas Reed. Ruckelshaus faces no charges of insider dealing or other stock manipulations, either before the Securities and Exchange Commission or before any grand jury.

The list could be extended indefinitely; Ruckelshaus for CIA director in place of William Casey, the man who was found "not unfit to serve" after an extensive Senate inquiry into his questionable business transactions; Ruckelshaus for head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency; Ruckelshaus to head the Legal Services Corporation. ...

Of course, Ruckelshaus could not serve in all these posts simultaneously, but he might well do it "seriatim" as the various incumbents become too embarrassing for the White House to retain. Better still, why not create a whole Credibility Corps whose members could be called upon to rescue agencies as they get in trouble? The idea, of course, would be to appoint good people in the first place, but that, as we've learned these past two years, is probably too much to hope for.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

DOE exec in controversy again

WASHINGTON — Like the lady in the Irving Berlin tune, William Heffelfinger keeps coming back like a song — but the song always seems to have a few sour notes.

Heffelfinger is a professional bureaucrat with a miraculous record of survival through Republican and Democratic administrations. He has also survived recurring congressional and other investigations for alleged misconduct. Yet he goes serenely on his way from one high-paid job to another, denying every charge that's made against him.

The charges leveled at this world-class survivor of the bureaucratic wars run the gamut — from falsifying his job resume, lying to government investigators and shredding documents improperly to politicizing the civil service and even offering to procure female companionship in an effort to curry favor with an outside consultant. Yet through it all, Heffelfinger kept winning promotions, and even an executive bonus.

Now, as director of administration at the Department of Energy, Heffelfinger is once again in the thick of a controversy. It involves a lucrative operating contract for the agency's Solar Energy Research Institute in Colorado. Congressional and Energy Department sources charge that the top-rated bidder was euchred out of the contract, and they suspect Heffelfinger had a hand in the maneuver.

Ever since the research institute's inception in 1977, the management contract has gone to Midwest Research Institute of Kansas City, Mo. But in the government contract game, hope springs eternal, and three other firms bid against MRI for the 1983-1988 contract, which will handle some $40 million a year in research funds.

Although MRI's management of the Solar Institute has been criticized in the past, and though its rating wasn't up to the competition in two out of the three categories, the company once again got the contract.

DOE's final selection document — the scorecard on the four bidding firms — shows that BDM International Inc. was rated highest in the "management and technical" and "cost effectiveness" categories.

The only category in which MRI topped BDM was "business and transition." For obvious reasons, there would be no transition costs if MRI kept the contract. But the DOE contract board noted that BDM's proposed transition charges would be "minimal." In fact, the document acknowledges that "BDM offered to perform the transition phase-in at no cost to the government."

So how did MRI get the contract? That's what the White House and some members of Congress want to know.

One reason the finger of suspicion has been pointed at Heffelfinger is that his former deputy at the Energy Department, William Davis, is now an executive of MRI. Heffelfinger acknowledged knowing Davis, but insisted that the contract award had "nothing to do with me."

One source, noting that the White House had questioned Energy Secretary Donald Hodel about the matter, told my associate Dale Van Atta that this time Heffelfinger "may be on the way out." Don't bet the rent money on it.

Footnote: The General Accounting Office is investigating the contract award following an official protest by BDM. Energy Department insiders say that department officials plan to pressure BDM to withdraw its protest.

WHITE HOUSE PIPELINE: The president's Secret Service bodyguards used to share double hotel rooms while on the road. But many agents complained about their roommates' annoying habits and said the doubling up increased the stress they're always under. Psychologists agreed, so Treasury officials approved payment for single rooms.

— Sniping at Kenneth Adelman, recently confirmed as head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, has taken a new tack. Some agency officials are whispering that he should be replaced by a "tough, conservative black" to help the Reagan administration's image in the black community.

— Reporters wanting to know the president's schedule can dial a special number and hear a recorded voice. Recently, the voice referred to a visit by Canadian Prime Minister "Elliott Trudeau" — substituting his middle name for his first name, Pierre.

INSIDE REPORT:

Banning bombs and abortion

WASHINGTON — The late insertion of a strongly-worded condemnation of abortion in the war and peace pastoral letter of America's Roman Catholic bishops antagonized instead of appeasing "right-to-life" activists by clearly linking bans on bombs and abortion.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The "pro-lifers" (both Catholic and non-Catholic) had expected the bishops in their Chicago meeting to remove any remaining doubt about where they really stand today: the real "life" issue for them is barring nuclear weapons, not abortions. But under pressure from traditionalist Catholics, the bishops adopted a two-page attack on abortion titled "True Peace Calls for Reverence for Life."

Coupling arms control and abortion, however, is consistent with the hierarchy's exotic new definition of pro-life. The political implications of that definition will become apparent in the 1984 presidential election, especially if President Reagan opposes Walter F. Mondale. Reagan has taken an uncompromising anti-abortion stance in an extraordinary bylined article ("Abortion and the Conscience of the Nation") appearing in the anti-abortion Human Life Review. But it is Mondale, staunchly pro-choice on abortion, who is much closer to the bishops — by virtue of his position on nuclear policy.

A similar choice will be faced in key Senate races such as Iowa's, where conservative Republican senator Roger Jepsen faces re-election after wining in 1978 on an anti-abortion platform. His opponent, liberal Democratic representative Tom Harkin, is a Catholic who supports the nuclear freeze, opposes anti-abortion amendments and is close to radical Catholic orders on the side of revolution in Central America.

That the clergy's choice is likely to be Mondale and Harkin, not Reagan and Jepsen, was reflected at last fall's meeting in Washington of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops by its president, Archbishop John Roach of St. Paul-Minneapolis. Decrying "selective reverence for human life," he welded nuclear disarmament and abortion in a pro-life linkage. Implicitly, such anti-disarmer, anti-abortionists as Ronald Reagan, Sen. Jesse Helms and Rep. Henry Hyde could not wear the Catholic imprimatur as champions of life.

But would not pro-abortion liberals also be similarly barred? Not to judge from the increasing propensity of the hierarchy to establish disarmanent as the preeminent pro-life issue. Archbishop Roach has been boosting his friend Mondale among his colleagues and refers to the former vice president, a strong opponent of abortion controls, as pro-life because of his arms control posture.

The clergy increasingly disregards abortion as a criterion for endorsing local politicians. One example of many: The Rev. Thomas Harvey, director of the National Conference of Catholic Charities, last year endorsed Rep. George Miller of California for re-election as a "protector of our nation's children and families" though Miller consistently has voted against abortion controls.

In fact, the Catholic bishops long ago left the mainstream of the anti-abortion movement, insisting on a constitutional amendment that has far less chance of passage than a statute. Anti-abortion activists believe the hierarchy is courting a congressional defeat that will facilitate turning attention to banning-the-bomb as the real life movement.

Consequently, Reagan's remarkable 10-page article, which will be reproduced in the millions for the 1984 campaign, was welcomed by anti-abortionists as a major development in the fight for the minds of Catholic laymen. Noting that the bishops are issuing a pastoral letter against nuclear war while they never have written one against abortion, the anti-abortion Lifeletter added: "So here is the president himself delivering the missing 'Abortion Pastoral.'"

Actually, the addition of the anti-abortion language at Chicago was prompted by the conservative member of the five-man drafting committee: Bishop John J. O'Connor, military vicar of the North American Office (in charge of Catholic military chaplains). To anti-abortion activists, this unfortunately wedded the banning of bombs and abortion and shaded the hierarchy's remarkable transformation.

The hard fact is that the bishops and increasing numbers of priests and nuns are most comfortable politically these days with members of Congress who support the nuclear freeze and fight military aid to Central America, not those who crusade against abortion. The next expected pastoral of the American bishops, on economics, is expected to weigh in against capitalism.

As they met in Chicago May 2, the bishops did not note and probably did not remember that the day marked the 1,610th anniversary of the death of St. Athanasius. William F. Gavin, a conservative Catholic layman who is a veteran Republican speechwriter, has called for a modern-day Athanasius to fight today's hierarchy in behalf of the laity as the 4th-century bishop struggled against the power-loving, politically opportunistic Arian heresy. The movement in Chicago by today's hierarchy toward making the "halt" of nuclear weapons the test for who favors "life" sharpens Gavin's historical analogy.

LETTERS

Victorious courage

To The Editor:

I have always appreciated the coverage that so many different types of activities in our city receives from your paper, but I truly feel that you missed something on a recent Saturday that needs to be mentioned.

On one of your lead pages there was a picture of some of the participants of the Tall City Run as they began their effort to complete the division that each had entered. I commend each of these runners for the dedication that they show to their hobby, but on the other side of town, there was another group of runners who were out to prove something to the world and maybe even more, to themselves. These were the handicapped citizens who took part in the annual Hike-Bike, which benefits the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens. There was the young man in a wheelchair whose grandmother pushed him 20 miles as she has every year for over 10 years; the young man whose leg had been crippled from birth who refused aid and stubbornly pushed on until he, too, completed 20 miles...each step bringing pain and pride at the same time.

There were those that society says cannot contribute due to an accident of genetics or birth who left the starting line at 8:30 and returned exhausted but victorious at 1:30 in the afternoon...and all of this for others! Not for themselves! Many of them participated without sponsors, but completed the course anyway to prove that they could do it. Then, there were those without handicaps who came out and walked, jogged or rode their bikes to raise money for those people who want so much to do for themselves.

The young man who rode his bike to Big Spring and back — over 100 miles; the young lady who had never been involved in this type of program before, but who completed 30 miles on her bike; the young man who is not touched in his family by having a son or daughter that is handicapped, but who rode 60 miles because he is thankful that his child is healthy; the Midland doctor who rode his bike 45 miles to show his support for what these people were doing and trying to say...and the many, many volunteers who registered participants, watched over them and made sure that they received the best of care. Special thanks to Puff Aycock, who for many years made this effort a labor of love, the National Guard who helped with all of the efforts and the Midland County Sheriff's office who helped to make the route safe for everyone.

There were some winners at the Tall City Run who genuinely deserve our admiration, but there were some other winners in Midland that Saturday. These winners deserve recognition and an encouraging word from all of us.

Care of own

To The Editor:

On April 2nd, a Marine helicopter developed mechanical problems during a routine stopover at Winkler County Airport. Due to the mechanical problems and unusually harsh weather they were unable to depart the area until April 8th.

The five Marine flight crew members resided in local motels in Odessa for the first four days. The Marine Corps League of Midland-Odessa heard of our plight and immediately came to our assistance, putting the crew up in the Ramada Inn of Odessa for one night and the First National Bank of Midland's suite in the Hilton Hotel for another night. Don Collins, of MLS Inc. escorted us to the "night life" of Midland and the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum. We were taken out for an excellent steak dinner at the Cattleman's Steak House the following day, and Mike Sherrod of First National Bank, and his lovely wife JoAnne, hosted a "steak out" for the flight crew that evening.

The people of Midland and Odessa made a most favorable impression on us — they were warm, friendly and courteous everywhere we visited. The local chapter of the Marine Corps League held up the long-lived tradition that Marines take care of their own and I truly believe that the Midland and Odessa communities are extremely fortunate to have such fine individuals and such an organization among them. The flight crew has since returned to MCAS Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, and will long recall with fond memories their stay in Texas.

Fund allocation disputed

NEW YORK (AP) — The federal government should use money earmarked for bilingual education to promote efficiency in English, not teach other subjects in a foreign language, says a group of educators.

In a report Thursday for the Twentieth Century Fund, a private research foundation, the educators also proposed several incentive programs for teachers and students that would require $6 billion more annually in federal funds.

Diane Ravitch, a member of the panel, said the federal government should support programs that teach children to speak, read and write English as quickly as possible by "immersing" them in the language.

Windmilll brings high bid

ATLANTA (AP) — An experimental windmill that cost the government $30 million brought a high bid at auction of only $51,600 from a textile company that plans to dismantle most of the massive machine.

McBess Industries Inc. of Bessemer City, N.C., which was the apparent high bidder when sealed bids were opened Thursday, will use only the generator from the windmill to re-establish a company-owned hydroelectric facility in Lincoln, N.C.

The rest of the device, complete with 97½-foot blades, will be disassembled and given to Georgia Tech for use in radar research.

The windmill was to have generated 2,000 kilowatts of electricity, but seldom worked, a U.S. government spokesman said.

'Gandhi' good for tourism

NEW YORK (AP) — The movie "Gandhi" has been "the best promotional piece" ever for tourism in India, where tours are now packaged to capitalize on the life story of the non-violent leader, a government official says.

Kanta Thakur, regional director of the Indian Government Tourist Office, said tourism could soar as much as 30 percent as the result of a publicity campaign that features tours such as "The World of Gandhi" and "In the Footsteps of Gandhi."

The film, directed by Richard Attenborough and based on the life of Mohandas Gandhi, won eight Academy Awards, including best picture.

Lava reappears at volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A 200-foot-long wedge of lava is edging onto the surface of the crater of Mount St. Helens, a product of eruptive activity that began three months ago, scientists say.

Five scientists spotted the lava wedge Wednesday when they took a helicopter trip inside the 8,363-foot volcano's crater to take routine measurements, said Steve Brantley of the U.S. Geological Survey's volcano observatory. The lava wedge was not apparent when the scientists made a previous measuring trip April 29.

The new lava is directly traceable to a non explosive eruption at the mountain in southwes Washington, Brantley said Thursday.

Some IUDs may be harmful

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says American women who still may be wearing Dalkon Shield intrauterine devices should have them removed because of an elevated risk of pelvic inflammatory disease.

The warning, issued Thursday, is based on a study showing that Dalkon Shield wearers have a five-fold increase in the risk of infection compared with women using other types of IUDs.

The Department of Health and Human Services said there are no reliable estimates of the number of women still wearing Dalkon Shields but it is probably small. The contraceptive device hasn't been sold in the United States since 1974.

Country asks for protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Costa Rica, caught in Central American violence without an army of its own, is asking for an international force to guarantee its northern frontier with Nicaragua.

The request was presented Thursday in the Organization of American States by Hernando Soto, the Costa Rican representative and ambassador to the United States, to Chairman Reginald Wood, who represents the Bahamas.

Costa Rica wants the force to be made up by four countries which have been trying to settle conflicts in the area — Mexico, Panama, Colombia, and Venezuela. It was not immediately clear just what the nature of the force would be. Costa Rica disbanded its own army in 1949.

Group wants warning label

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group wants the government to require a warning leaflet to accompany packages of the morning sickness drug Bendectin, but a company making the product says it already supplies adequate information.

The request for a mandatory patient package insert was made to the Food and Drug Administration on Thursday by Public Citizen's Health Research Group, a nonprofit organization founded by consumer activist Ralph Nader.

Baby condors move into new plush home

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sisquoc and Tecuya, the first California condors to be hatched in captivity, have moved into their home on the range.

Although far from the wide open spaces of their mountain nests, the isolation unit in the $100,000 "Condor-minium" at the San Diego Wild Animal Park near Escondido is posh by bird standards.

It even has a bathing pool.

Tecuya marked his 1-month birthday Thursday by joining Sisquoc, hatched March 30, in the airy new home.

It was the first time outdoors for the pair and demonstrated they have passed a critical stage in their infancy, said condor keeper Bill Toone.

"We've done all the mothering we can do in terms of keeping them warm," he said. "This really marks the hump for both of them. I think we can say with a great deal of confidence that the worst possibilities are behind us."

Sisquoc and Tecuya, now six and four pounds respectively, have thrived on a mice diet and have gained 10 times their original weight.

Both were artifically incubated at the San Diego Zoo after biologists snatched the eggs from nesting grounds in a condor sanctuary in Ventura County. State and federal biologists hope the captive breeding program will help save the vanishing birds, the largest in North America. Wildlife authorities say only 19 or 20 of the California condors are alive in the wild.

Since their hatchings, the two have spent most of the time in germ-free isolettes at Wild Animal Park.

Their new surroundings put the two chicks in close contact with a group of Andean condors and "they all seem relatively comfortable around each other," Toone said.

The chicks will remain in the isolation unit for five to six months, until they are strong enough to fly. At that time, they will be moved into a flight enclosure, Toone said..

Sisquoc remains the spunkier of the two, said Toone.

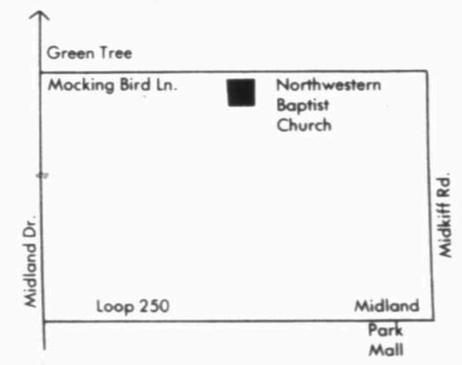

"He's a lot more mobile, always clumping around on his big feet to check things out.

Both will continue to be fed by hand puppets that resemble adult condors for three to four more months before going on an adult diet of mice, mackerel, and a canned meat for carnivores.

Passengers aboard a Chinese airliner which was seized by at least three armed hijackers, arrive at the Sejong Hotel in Chunchon, South Korea, Thursday. The hijackers seized the jetliner with 105 people aboard and diverted it to a U.S. military base near Seoul.

China receives consent to discuss extradition

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — China today received permission to send an official to South Korea to negotiate the extradition of six people who hijacked a domestic Chinese flight and said they wanted to defect to Taiwan.

The flight with 105 people on board landed at a U.S. military base near here Thursday. The armed hijackers, led by a provincial government official, surrendered when they realized they were in South Korea, not Taiwan, where they had asked the pilot to land. The gunmen shot and injured two crew members during the hijacking.

China, which has no diplomatic relations with South Korea, received permission to send the director of its civil aviation administration, Shen Tu, to Seoul on Saturday, a Chinese spokesman said today. China, which described the hijackers as "armed thugs," also requested the return of the passengers, crew and the plane.

South Korea has not said whether it will send the hijackers back, but a government spokesman, Huh Moon-do, said South Korea will "fully respect the spirit" of the Hague convention against aircraft hijacking.

The international agreement, signed by China and South Korea, says hijackers should either be extradited to their country of origin or tried in the country where they are apprehended.

Taiwan said it was willing to grant asylum to the hijackers, and instructed its embassy here to negotiate with the South Korea on behalf of the passengers, the Taiwan Foreign Ministry said.

Foreign analysts in Peking said the hijacking represents a potential channel for dialogue between China and South Korea. South Korea, which is staunchly anti-communist, wants to improve relations with China and considerable indirect trade has been reported. Communist North Korea has pressured China to reduce that trade.

Police took the hijackers, five men and one woman, into custody on Thursday and bused the passengers to hotels about nine hours after the plane landed at a U.S. military based near Cunchon, 43 miles east of here.

South Korean investigators identified the leader of the hijackers as Tjou Chang-jen, 36, a provincial government official. They said he had recruited the others after they became acquainted during a bus trip in January. Taiwan's state radio identified the others, all in their 20s and 30s, as employees of the Shnyang physical education school and the environmental protection department.

It was the first confirmed case of a successful hijacking of Chinese passenger plane.

The three-engine British-built Trident was hijacked on a domestic flight from Shenyang, in northwest China, to Shanghai about 30 minutes after takeoff. Most of the passengers were reported to be either department store employees or factory workers from Shenyang who were going to Shanghai for an educational program on a new tax law.

Villagers doubt diaries' originality

BOERNERSDORF, East Germany (AP) — Residents of this tiny farming village say claims that Adolf Hitler's secret diaries were rescued from a burning Nazi warplane and stored in a local hayloft are nonsense.

Richard Elbe, the first man to reach the site of the pre-dawn crash on April 21, 1945, says little could have been salvaged from the fire. But the West German magazine Stern says it has 60 hard-backed volumes of diaries and other documents that were retrieved from the downed plane.

"The fire burned for too long," the 80-year-old retired farmer said. "Some papers did survive, but not many."

"There were no diaries," he added.

Elbe said when he and others reached the crash, they could get no closer than 200 yards to the plane because of the fire and exploding ammunition.

Elbe's doubts about the Hitler diaries were echoed by other villagers in Boernersdorf.

Boernersdorf is a tiny cluster of barns and farmhouses nestled among hilly fields just three miles from the Czechoslovak border.

A row of eight weather-beaten wooden crosses with the crash date etched on white tiles mark the graves of the victims. They sit in a tiny cemetery overlooking Boernersdorf.

The village was put on the map last month when Stern announced it had obtained 60 handwritten diaries signed by the Nazi dictator that were hidden there at the end of World War II.

Now the residents of Boernersdorf have joined historians and journalists in expressing doubt about the diaries.

Those who remember the fiery plane crash say it is unlikely that many papers survived, and add that such a secret could not have been kept from town gossips for 38 years.

"This is a small town, where everyone knows everyone else, and people talk," said Herta Elbe. "It is hard to keep a secret in a small place like this."

Her husband said the few documents pulled from the plane after the fires had cooled were taken away by the then-mayor, Max Goebel, who died some years later.

"But he didn't have much of anything," Elbe said, adding that the mayor was "an old Nazi" who would have burned anything he found to keep it out of enemy hands.

Other villagers say rescuers would have been afraid to take any official Nazi papers they might have uncovered in the wreckage.

"We are poor country people here," said one elderly woman who asked not to be named. "If someone found silver or gold (on the airplane), they would have taken that and left the papers."

Before the Stern story broke two weeks ago, little happened to disrupt the quiet farming routine of Boernersdorf's 550 residents.

But now they complain that their tranquility is being shattered by journalists who hound them in search of clues to the mystery of Hitler's supposed diaries and the crash that few remember.

The Communist East German government, whose official press has reported Soviet commentaries charging that the diaries are fakes, is granting visas with unusual speed to Western journalists who want to visit this remote village.

This has raised speculation that the East Germans want to counter charges that the diaries could be a communist-backed plot designed to influence political opinion among young West Germans.

According to the Stern account, an unknown number of Hitler's aides flew his diaries out of Berlin just days before the Nazi leader shot himself as Soviet soldiers closed in on his bunker.

As doubts about the diaries grew, Gerd Heidemann, the Stern reporter who said he spent three years tracking down the Hitler documents, changed his story.

After maintaining that the diaries were hidden in a hayloft for 35 years, Heidemann told the Sunday Times of London last week that they were smuggled to the West in stages soon after they were pulled from the Nazi plane.

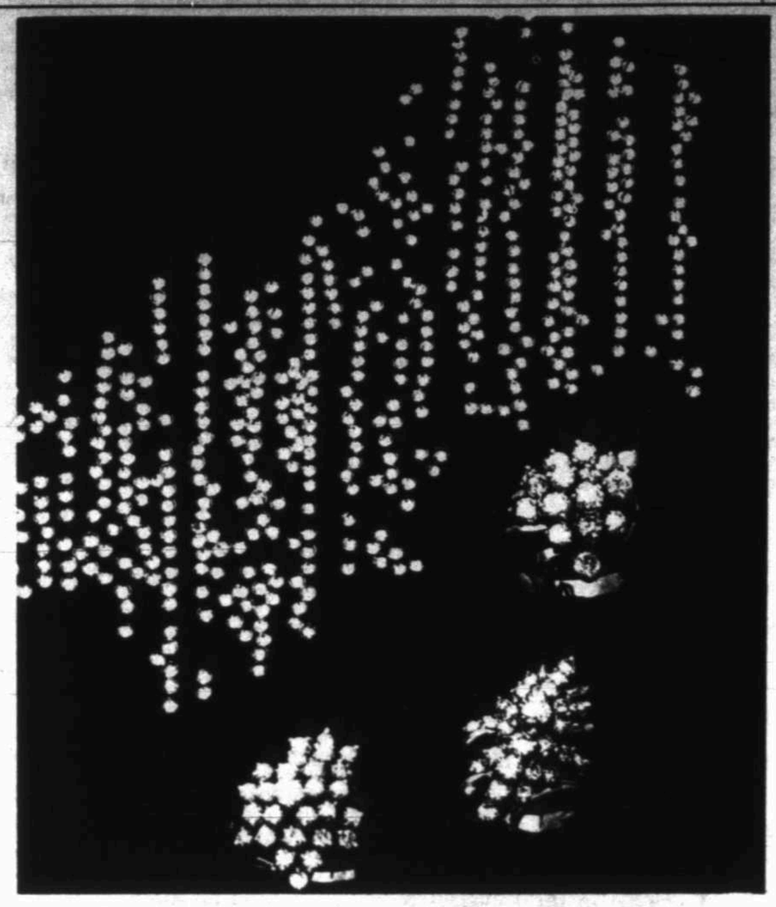

But Heidemann refuses to say who rescued the documents, who smuggled them to the West, or who sold them to Stern for "a substantial" sum of money.

Libya rejects Brazil's offer

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — The Libyan government has insisted Brazil return its Nicaragua-bound weapons aboard the same four Libyan planes they were confiscated from, according to the official news agency JANA.

Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy summoned the Brazilian ambassador in Tripoli and rejected Brazil's offer of shipping the weapons by sea, JANA said Thursday.

Khadafy refused to "receive the cargo of the Libyan planes by any other means of transport other than on board the Libyan planes currently in Brazil," it said.

Cubs lose records, game to Diablos, 20-19

Batters find this year's Texas League action 'offensive'

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

The revised, updated Texas League record book had arrived earlier in the day and by the end of 2½ innings it was obsolete.

El Paso led Midland 17-16 and it looked as though, along with all the other records that had already fallen, the 56 runs for one game was a cinch to disappear. That mark was set less than a week ago when El Paso beat Beaumont, 35-21.

Surprisingly, it weathered the storm of 44 hits, nine homers (including two grand slams and two over the doubledeck barrier in center—another record, incidentally), but the final carnage was still frightening.

If the EPA hears about it, it may shut down Cubs Stadium as a hazardous fallout area.

IT WAS 18-18 after four innings with a wee hours finish in sight when Jim Gerlach arrived on the scene for Midland and lefthander Bob Schroeck for El Paso and turned the game into a pitchers' battle.

The Diablos tied it with Bill Max's second homer of the game in the eighth and won it, 20-19, in the ninth to take a 2-1 lead in the five game series which resumes at 7 p.m. tonight.

When someone suggested that if Gerlach and Schroeck had started, there wouldn't have been a game, Midland Manager Tom Harmon bristled, "They both did a helluva a job and demonstrated that if you get the ball over and keep it down, the wind shouldn't make that much difference."

When it was over, El Paso Manager Tony Muser attributed a fielding play by second baseman Juan Castillo on a hit in the ninth as the key to saving the win.

With Randy LaVigne on second and two out, A.J. Hill, the only player in the game without a hit, bounced a single over relief pitcher Bill Heinrichs. It appeared headed for center but Castillo kept it from going into the outfield. It surely would have scored LaVigne. All Hill got out of it was a hit that stretched his consecutive game streak to 15.

AS THE wind gusted between 25 and 35 mph, Midland scored 11 times in the first inning, sending 15 batters to the plate. Bill Hatcher, who homered and doubled; Rick Baker, who doubled twice, and Trey Brooks, who doubled and singled, set a TL record for batters getting two hits in the same inning.

Tom Lombarski also homered for two runs in the first as starter Mark Effrig absorbed the full brunt of the attack. The 11 runs off one pitcher in an inning also was a record. "He had just come off the Disabled List and I had to let him get in some work. Ordinarily, I'd have changed pitchers," Muser, whose pitching staff is a shambles, explained.

The Cubs probably set another record for haste in squandering an 11-0 lead. El Paso made it 13-11 with a 17 batter second during which Stan Levi hit a two-run homer, Kurt Kingsolver hit a solo homer and Max hit a three-run homer and Mike Felder jacked a ground slam homer over the fence in right.

THE DIABLOS broke the record the Cubs set in the first for most batters getting two hits in an inning, four, and added six more records. They were:

—Most total bases in an inning, 28, set in 1896.

—Most extra base hits in an inning, seven, set by Waco in 1930.

—Most hits in an inning, 13.

—Most consecutive hits in an inning, 10, wiping out a 1940 record.

—Most consecutive players scoring, 11.

The Cubs bounced right back for five more runs and a 16-13 lead on Randy LaVigne's grand slam in the second over the green monster in center.

The Diablos struck back for four more in the third as Levi hit his second homer, a three-run job, and after that things settled down.

FELDER, WHO was 4-for-4 by the third inning, wound up with five hits and five rbi. Levi had five rbi and Max four.

LaVigne had three hits and seven rbi and probably should have had more, but was ruled out for passing Tom Lombarski between first and second on what looked like a two-run triple in the fourth.

"Despite the 24 hits, I still feel we gave the game away," said Harmon. "That dropped double play ball led to four or five extra runs in the second and we lost another run on a base-running mistake. You can't five a team four or five outs an inning and win."

CUB PRINTS—Bill Hatcher, who opened the game with a homer, wound up with four hits and three rbi...Tim Crews, 2-2, goes for El Paso tonight against Stan Kyles, 1-1...Despite the wind, many of the hits were bouncing through a rock hard infield that is badly in need of rain...Hatcher in left, Tom Johnson at first and Trey Brooks at second all turned in dazzling defensive saves for the Cubs to help keep the score down...

Sutter picking up wins; Murphy's Law hits Astros

By The Associated Press

Bruce Sutter is supposed to save games for the rest of the St. Louis Cardinals' pitching staff. So far into this young season, he's been taking things — like wins — into his own hands.

Dave LaPoint was trying to boost his record to 3-0 Thursday in San Diego, but going into the eighth inning the Cardinals were trailing the Padres 3-2, thanks in part to a Sixto Lezcano home run.

Lonnie Smith's home run for the Cards in the top of the eighth tied the score, and Sutter was sent in. And, after Ruppert Jones' double-play grounder off a split-fingered fastball in the bottom of the eighth and Ken Oberkfell's two-out, tie-breaking single in the top of the ninth, it was Sutter who strode off the mound with a 4-3 victory and a 3-0 record.

In the only other National League game, it was Atlanta 6, Houston 3 Thursday night. In the only American League game, Cleveland defeated Minnesota 7-5.

"I'M ONLY to throw the split-fingered fastball and if they hit it, they hit it," said Sutter. "If they beat me, that's what they're gonna beat me with." With the go-ahead run on third, Jones jumped on Sutter's first serve and killed the threat with his grounder to first baseman Keith Hernandez, who started a 3-6-3 double-play.

Baseball Roundup

"I'd rather have saves," Sutter deadpanned, "but as long as we win, I'm satisfied."

The Cards' catcher Thursday, Jamie Quirk, said of Sutter's unique split-fingered delivery: "He lives or dies by one pitch and he'll keep throwing it. I was suprised that Jones went after the first pitch in that situation. He hit the ball well, but luckily he hit it into the ground and to the best first baseman in baseball."

THE VICTORY prevented the Padres from sweeping the three-game series. On Wednesday night they trounced the Cards 10-0.

"When I went out there," said LaPoint, "I just told myself to pitch a good game. We needed a win more than anything. It was our turn to go out and pitch a good game today."

He made only one really bad pitch — to Lezcano in the second inning. LaPoint said he was too concerned with keeping Steve Garvey from collecting his 2,00th career hit. (Garvey failed to get a hit in four at-bats). "I pumped myself so up for Garvey that I forgot what to do with the next guy," LaPoint said.

Oberkfell got four hits in five at-bats, drove in two runs and scored one. His game-winner followed Willie McGee's single and stolen base. "It's just nice to get a two-out hit and have it be the game-winning RBI," he said. "I consider myself a pretty good clutch hitter, but I didn't come up with many RBIs last year."

Braves 6, Astros 3

Rookie Craig McMurtry yielded only four hits in six innings and Dale Murphy and Glenn Hubbard homered for Atlanta Braves.

McMurtry, 3-1, struck out two and walked just one before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the sixth. Steve Bedrosian, one of three Braves relievers, recorded his third save.

Murphy now leads the National League in home runs with eight and also had singles in the fourth and sixth and stole two bases as the Braves won their 11th home game in 12 tries.

"Who leads the league now is not important," he said. "If you're ahead at the end of the season, now, that's nice."

Indians 7, Twins 5

Rookie reliever Neal Heaton kept putting Twins on base — and then wiping them out by serving up double-play balls. The Indians turned three twin-killings in his three innings to record third save of the week.

"This is the toughest situation he's been in," Cleveland Manager Mike Ferraro said. "His feet keep getting wetter and wetter."

"We had the chance but we just couldn't get the big hit," said Twins Manager Billy Garnder.

Traffic jam biggest concern at Kentucky Derby

Despite only three wins, Marfa 'The Mugger' is early favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Worries of Marfa bothering other horses hover over Saturday's 109th Kentucky Derby, and, with the field at its 20-horse limit, there are fears of a traffic jam at the head of the stretch.

Wayne Lukas, who trains the sometimes wayward colt, plans no change of equipment to keep Marfa on the straight and narrow over 1¼ miles at Churchill Downs.

He is putting the task of guiding the stretch-running colt home first to Jorge Velasquez, the veteran jockey who had his hands full in the Blue Grass Stakes April 27 when Marfa was disqualified from second to fourth after interfering with Copelan and Desert Wine in the stretch.

"Training horses is like tuning a violin," Lukas said Thursday after he submitted his entry of Marfa, Balboa Native and Total Departure. "You want to do it right and at the right time. There's a lot of excitement in the air this morning and Marfa senses it."

On the strength of Marfa's impressive victories in the Jim Beam Spiral Stakes and Santa Anita Derby and the lack of a full-fledged 3-year-old standout, the Lukas entry was made the 5-2 early-line favorite.

But even Lukas can't be sure how Marfa will behave.

"I think Jorge learned something about him in the Blue Grass," Lukas said. "He (Marfa) needs to know who's in charge. He needs a driver and, for a while, Jorge became a passenger. In the Derby, Jorge needs to be a driver.

"He needs to stay after him. In the Blue Grass, Marfa was doing so well and running so strongly that Jorge didn't see any need to get after him. I think he caught Jorge by surprise."

Marfa, who has three wins and three seconds in nine starts this year, will go from the No. 18 post position. The son of 1975 Derby winner Foolish Pleasure is owned by Robert French, Barry Beal and Lukas.

It might be of some hope to Marfa's backers should he cause problems that a foul claim has never been upheld in the Derby.

Balboa Native, post No. 3, is the Louisiana Derby winner, while No. 9 Total Departure, was second in last Saturday's Derby Trial here. Sandy Hawley rides Balboa Native and Pat Valenzuela rides Total Departure.

Not since 1946 has there been a three-horse entry in the field.

Trainer Woody Stephens and Bwamazon Farm have two-horse entries for the Derby, which will draw more than 100,000 people.

Carl Lauer, Robert Victor and Nancy Vanier's Play Fellow, the 19-1 Blue Grass Stakes winner by a nose over Marfa, is the second early choice at 4-1, going from post No. 2 under Jean Cruguet. He became the oldest jockey ever to win the Derby when he rode home Seattle Slew at age 37 in 1977.

Stephens' entry of Caveat, the Derby Trial winner, and Chumming, fifth in the Trial after stumbling at the start, is listed at 5-1.

August Belmont's Caveat, with Laffit Pincay board, leaves from the outside post No. 20, while Hickory Tree Farm's Chumming, with Eddie Maple up, starts from No. 4.

David Foster's Sunny's Halo, who beat Caveat by four lengths in the Arkansas Derby, also is rated at 5-1 and is in the 10th position. Eddie Delahoussaye, who rode Gato Del Sol to victory in last year's Derby, rides the Canadian-bred whose only other start this year was a three-length win in the Rebel Handicap.

Equusequity Stable's Slew O' Gold, son of 1977 Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew and winner of a division of the Wood Memorial, goes from No. 1 under Angel Cordero.

The rest of the starters in the crowded field are lightly regarded in the quest for the $426,000 first prize from a gross of $531,000 if all go.

Current Hope, 12-1, who hasn't raced since winning the Flamingo April 2, goes from the No. 12 post under 17-year-old Alexis Soltis. Trainer Roger Laurin's father, Lucien, won Derbies with Riva Ridge and Secretariat.

Desert Wine, the San Rafel and San Felipe winner who is the biggest money-winner in the group with $527,315, and Pax In Bello, third in the Derby Trial, are listed at 15-1 along with the Bwamazon entry of Freezing Rain and Highland Park.

Parfaitement and Country Pine are rated at 20-1 while five horses were placed in the field for betting purposes at 30-1.

They are Paris Prince, the California Derby winner; Law Talk, Explosive Wagon, My Mac and Luv A Libra.

Common Sense, a four-time winner from Suffolk Downs actually entered the Derby, but the owners withdrew when Churchill Downs officials advised that the entry of Country Pine would bump their horse because Country Pine had won more money — a requirement imposed to limit the field to 20 horses.

Instead, Common Sense will go in the $50,000-added Twin Spires Purse on Derby Day.

Questions arise about Schlichter's gambling

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State University athletic department official says "some questions are being asked" about quarterback Art Schlichter's alleged gambling when he starred for the Buckeyes.

Schlichter, now a backup quarterback for the Baltimore Colts, last month went to the FBI after running up gambling debts of $389,000 between January and early April.

Four Baltimore-area men have been indicted here on gambling charges by a federal grand jury in that case. Their trial is scheduled for June.

Since that case became public, rumors have surfaced in Columbus that Schlichter, a Buckeye starter for four years before being drafted to play professional football by the Colts in 1982, gambled on both harness and thoroughbred and horse racing while at Ohio State.

On Thursday, James Jones, associate athletic director for the university, told The Associated Press, "It would only be prudent administration for us to know what took place."

The Columbus Dispatch, in Thursday's editions, said the Ohio State athletic department "has launched its own investigation of Art Schlichter's gambling habits while he attended OSU."

The newspaper, quoting unidentified university and police sources, said the department had asked Columbus attorney John S. Zonak to aid in its investigation.

Asked about the report, Jones refused to elaborate.

NFL pay list reported

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland linebacker Tom Cousineau, who received $666,666 in salary and bonuses, was the National Football League's highest-paid player in 1982, according to a report published Thursday.

USA Today, which attributed its figures to management sources and player agents, said 15 of the 30 highest-paid players during the 1982 season were quarterbacks. The figures were based on full-season salaries and did not take into account the players' strike, which forced the cancellation of seven weeks of the 16-week regular season.

The highest-paid base salary, according to the survey, was paid to quarterback Archie Manning of the Houston Oilers, who received $600,000. Cousineau, who played in the Canadian Football League for two years after spurning the Buffalo Bills, then signed with Cleveland after Buffalo traded his rights, received $500,000 in salary and $166,666 in bonuses.

Both Cousineau and Manning will be passed next season by quarterback Dan Fouts of San Diego and rookie quarterback John Elway of the Denver Broncos, the first choice in the recent NFL draft. Both have signed contracts reportedly calling for $1 million per season.

According to the paper, the best-paid players at each position, including salaries, bonuses and deferred pay were:

Quarterbacks: Manning, $600,000; Joe Ferguson, Buffalo, $446,250; Steve Bartkowski, Atlanta ($440,000). Plus Fouts and Elway.

Running Backs: Walter Payton, Chicago, $500,000; Tony Dorsett, Dallas, $350,000; Franco Harris, Pittsburgh, $350,00.

Receivers: Lynn Swann, Pittsburgh, $350,000 (now retired); Alfred Jenkins, Atlanta, $312,500.

Offensive lineman: Leon Gray, New Orleans, $350,000.

Graham says things go better in Houston

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Australian David Graham used an old putter, a new driver and accepted an assist from the weather to earn a share of the first-round lead in the $400,000 Houston Coca Cola Open.

Canadian Jim Nelford, who has made 23 consecutive cuts, also took advantage of the tranquil, early-morning weather and matched Graham's 5-under-par 66 Thursday over The Woodlands Country Club's 7,031-yard, par-71 course.

Six of the top eight scores over the first 18 holes were posted by golfers who teed off early.

Curt Byrum, John Cook and Lindy Miller were a stroke back at 67, while Bob Boyd, Tomas Grayand Lee Trevin carded 68s.

Trevino and Gray were the only afternoon starters to finish in the top eight.

Defending champion Ed Sneed, who matched par, said he was pleased "considering the difference in the course in the afternoon."

Graham discarded all of his experimental putters and returned to an old favorite. He ran in long putts that included six birdies in the final nine holes. He put a stiffer shaft on his driver and that helped him drive accurately.

"I can't estimate how much it means to hit the ball straight," he said.

"This was my best round of the year and my best nine holes since I don't remember when," said Graham, a former U.S. Open and PGA champion. "I've been having problems with my putting, not mechanically, but just thinking negatively."

Graham solved his negative thinking by returning to an old putter. "I must have tried 20 putters in the last six months," he said.

Graham started on the backside and struggled to a 1-over 36 at the turn with three bogeys and two birdies.

Then he chipped within two feet to start the birdie run on the first hole and sank birdie putts of 12, 10 and 15 feet on Nos. 2, 3 and 5.

Nelford missed only two greens, Nos. 8 and 17, but had par-saving puts of five and six feet each time.

"It was one of my more comfortable rounds of ball striking," Nelford said. "I was putting for birdies on almost every hole."

Bunched at 69 were Bobby Wadkins, Mike Nicolette, Gary Koch, Mike Sullivan Doug Tewell, Larry Ziegler, Mike McCullough, Lee Elder and Victor Regalado.

Hal Sutton, the No. 2 money-winner on the tour this year, carded a 71 and Tom Kite, No. 4 on the list, had a 74.

Rebels scrimmage should tell story

The Midland Lee Rebels end the first week of spring training today with a controlled scrimmage, one head coach Spike Dykes hopes will give a clue to how his team is doing.

"It's really hard to tell just how things are going after one week," Dykes said. "We've spent the week just trying to get better on fundamentals and really haven't broken down into team-type work.

"We hope to know a lot more about our team after the scrimmage Friday afternoon. I think we will have a better idea then."

One of the problems Dykes has had to face this year in spring training is that several key athletes have not been in spring training due to track and baseball committments.

Running back Walter Jones, defensive back Marc Brackens and fullback-linebacker Isaac Garnett are all headed to the Region I meet today and Saturday. Dykes will get those back if they don't qualify for the state meet.

THE BASEBALL team will miss at least through next week as they open a bi-district playoff series with Lubbock Monterey Tuesday in Lubbock.

Quarterback Dennis Matta, defensive backs Danny Smedley and Steve Woodlee, running back Sergio Ochoa and wide receiver-defensive end Rob Walker are all playing baseball.

Entering spring training, Dykes said he needs to find out who can play in the defensive secondary since there is no varsity experience there from last year's 7-3 team. Smedley, Woodlee and Brackens are expected to help in that area.

The positive side of the missing athletes, is that Dykes is afforded a stronger look at others. He has over 50 seniors-to-be out this year.

"We have some good athletes in the secondary and we should be able to put a unit together, but we are not ready to mention any names at this point," Dykes said.

"WE'VE HAD good workouts and we think the kids are doing well, but it's very early for us right now. It is a problem when you are missing so many kids, but competing in state competitions is where we want them. That just shows you the type of kids we have. They excel in other sports too."

The Rebels face two more weeks of spring training as they eye the May 19 annual Maroon-White game at Memorial Stadium.

The junior varsity will kick off the Maroon-White scrimmage at 5 p.m. and the varsity will follow around 7 p.m.

The scrimmage will be important for both the coaches and athletes involved. It will be the last look the coaches will have at their troops for the three-month vacation period.

McEnroe: Tennis' Ugly American

By Gene L. Ward, Jr.
Special to the Reporter-Telegram

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. – Thirty and 40 years ago the West Side Tennis Club here was the place to be in late August and early September for the playing of the National Singles Championships.

It was an exciting era of grace, skill and sportsmanship. Now it is gone. Even the "lawn" has been dropped from the U.S. Tennis Association title.

I was thinking of those days during this week's World Championship Tennis tournament which is playing here after last week's stop in Dallas. The comparison of the game of tennis on grass away back then and of tennis now was hitting me in the pit of my stomach.

A quarrelsome 24-year-old who mangles the spirit of sportsmanship and the rules of competitive conduct every match he plays, is transforming his particular brand of play into an alley fight.

His name is John McEnroe and last Sunday in Dallas he cursed, screamed, argued and raged his way to a five-set triumph over Ivan Lendl, of Czechoslovakia, in a display of neurotic tantrums.

He shouted insults at the umpire, intimidated lines people, threw his racquet the length of the court, snarled at fans whose imagined noise was disturbing his swing, and questioned calls in virtually every close game in all five sets.

Here was an ugly American at his ugliest, a talented player abusing his talent and turning what could have been an outstanding match into a shambles.

McEnroe has evoked wide-spread criticism ever since he arrived at the top as a world class player. But the reaction to his conduct in the Dallas match against Lendl, which he won in a fifth-set tiebreaker, has been both sharp and sweeping here at Forest Hills.

At the press conference Lendl pulled no punches in charging McEnroe with deliberately intimidating the officials who worked the Dallas match and of receiving preferential treatment from an umpire (Mark Cox) who let McEnroe do as he pleased.

Lendl, who plays without a sign of emotion on his dour countenance, had run off a seven-match victory streak on McEnroe, but McEnroe's conduct in the Dallas confrontation appeared to get to him in the fifth set tiebreaker. Twice in a row Lendl, one of the very best return-of-serve players in the business, just stood there motionless as McEnroe whipped aces past him.

If the World's No.1 had suffered a state of shock it was little wonder. Just one disputed point had gone his way in the whole four hours and 35 minutes of play. Virtually everything conspired against him.

What to do about McEnroe? One of the game's top officials answered it this way:

"Fines don't bother him because he can't begin to count his earnings which run over a million dollars a year. . .and you can't disqualify him because you'd have to refund the money to the fans who probably wouldn't stand still for the disqualification anyway.

"The best bet would be to suspend him for two or three months," the top official continued, "but who would do the suspending? Certainly not the Pro Players Association or the USTA or any other powerful groups such as Wimbledon or the French and Australian Associations. They have the clout but not the guts. Money governs their actions, strictly money."

Because of his tremendous earning power and drawing power, McEnroe receives very little criticism from TV commentators. It's understandable. They're hucksters selling a product, not reporters reporting factual happenings.

The print media, supposedly with no axe to grind, also has been soft in their treatment of McEnroe. The Associated Press sent out a sanitized story from Dallas with no mention of McEnroe's antics.

Perhaps, today's sportswriters are too young to remember the days of wine and roses when the world of tennis was filled with elegance and there were players full of grace and class in keen, and sporting, competition.

Manges thinks USFL headed to Alamo city

Hearst Feature Service

Key figures involved in bringing a United States Football League franchise to San Antonio reacted with cautious optimism to Clinton Manges' latest round of legal difficulties.

Arriving in San Antonio last night from a three-day trip to Washington, D.C., Mayor Henry Cisneros said he thought speculation on the effect of the Seattle-First National Bank suit was premature.

"I hope they can work it out. The team would be good for San Antonio," Cisneros said. "Mr. Manges put this together and I'm sure he will resolve it, left to his own devices.

"A man with Manges' resources should be able to overcome these difficulties," Cisneros said

A Manges partner predicted a USFL franchise would open in San Anotnio next year on schedule.

"I don't foresee that keeping us from playing in the USFL next year unless it's more serious than I am led to believe," said Roger Gill, an investor in South Texas Sports Inc., which also includes Manges, San Antonio attorney Pat Maloney, and McAllen attorney Morris Atlas.

The group received the football franchise last month, contingent on paying a $6 million fee and expanding Alamo Stadium.

"I vealize it is a serious matter, but it remains to be seen whether it will affect our status in the USFL," he said.

"I'm just going about my business," he said, adding that he still plans to hold a tryout camp Saturday at 4 p.m. at the intramural field at Trinity University.

"Until I hear otherwiwe from Clinton or the USFL, I am assuming that everything we're doing is for the purpose of playing in the USFL next season."

In a new twist, Gill said, a separate football organization has expressed interest in a San Antonio franchise.

"The IFL (International Football League) called this morning and indicated that they still wanted us. But I told them we were still committed to the USFL. And that appears to be the direction that we are going unless something unforeseen happens," he said.

The USFL still views a San Antonio franchise favorably, Gill said.

"Everything I hear is positive. They still want San Antonio and they still want our group. I expect that it will be consummated in the next couple weeks. They want us as badly as we want them, and I'm looking forward to getting the team so we can get on with our business," he said.

"I understand that there are certain problems that need to be addressed and take priority, and that's Mr. Manges' prerogative.

The national pastimes

Americans love sports, but the games they play and the games they watch are different.

What do you do, or not do?

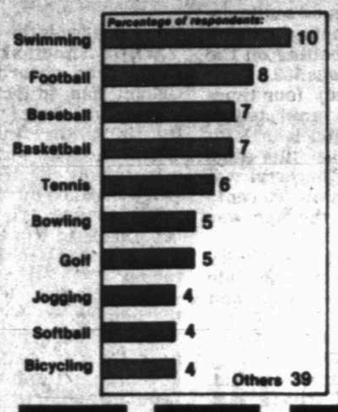

Americans were asked (1) what sports they participate in at least once a week and (2) what sports they never play. Swimming was the most often done.

SOURCE: Miller Lite Report on American Attitudes Toward Sports

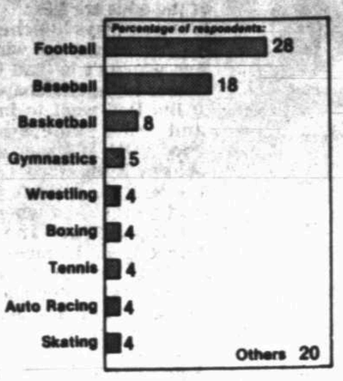

What do you like to do?

Swimming, again tops the list. Interestingly, calisthenics, which was second on the "most often done" list, is nowhere to be found on this "most liked" list.

What do you watch?

The most popular spectator sport in the U.S. is football with baseball second. The two together are top picks of 46 percent of Americans.

Dogs throwing football well

The first week of practice and two scrimmages have been completed for the Midland High Bulldogs in spring football training and, according to head coach Pat Culpepper, the offense seems a bit ahead of the defense. Especially the offensive passing game.

"Our passing attack (James) Welborn and the receivers (Todd Shiplett and Allan Foret) are throwing the ball well and catching it well," said Culpepper. "What we have not developed is our inside toughness on defense.

"Our linemen on defense haven't developed yet but our outside men on defense are all we had hoped for. The tackles and monsters are tough. The inside people don't have any concept of what it takes to play in this district. They're very friendly and they'll all probably win sportsmanship awards."

The Bulldogs held their first scrimmage the third day of practice and the second on Wednesday. It's Welborn's performance at quarterback that has Culpepper and his staff "very pleased.

"Welborn threw 32 times and completed 21 for 345 yards," said Culpepper. "It's what we've been working on and it's one of the strengths of our football team."

Along with the passing attack, Midland High has been working a lot on "offensive and defensive goal line situations," said Culpepper. "We have all of our running attack in — there's only seven plays — and we have the basic coverages and basic fronts in. That's about all we'll work on this spring."

One position the MHS coaches hope to see develop soon is fullback where 200-plus pounder Jimmy Essman looks to be the best candidate. Essman, who has been moved from his guard position, will be a key blocker in the Bulldogs' I formation running attack.

"Essman is still feeling his way at fullback," said Culpepper. "Running backs Randall Collins and Willie Swindell are doing a pretty good job back there."

Midland High returning starter John David Munn is currently on the sidelines with a sprained ankle but hopes to be back in pads by Monday. Jeff Daily, an offensive tackle, is out for the rest of the spring because of arthoscopic surgery on his knee for a torn cartilage.

On Saturday the Bulldogs will have their third scrimmage of the spring season. Kickoff is scheduled for 1 p.m.

The Bulldogs will conclude their spring schedule on May 17 at 7 p.m. with the annual Bill Mims game at Memorial Stadium.

Houston signs former Aggie

HOUSTON (AP) — Robert Jackson, a six-year veteran linebacker with the NFL and a former All-America from Texas A&M, has signed a free-agent contract with the Houston Oilers.

The terms of the contract, signed Thursday, were not disclosed by the Oilers.

Jackson, 28, was the Cleveland Browns' No. 1 draft pick in 1977. He missed his rookie year because of a knee injury but returned to play five seasons with the club.

Midlanders big part of Kentucky Derby history

AP Laserphoto

Marfa, the Kentucky Derby favorite, is put through his paces during a morning workout.

TED BATTLES

BATTLE SCENE

Some people bet on the mode of transportation, some prefer to go by the man at the controls, others reserve judgement pending the condition of the track and others like to play the odds.

And then, there are the hunch players. You know, if there's a Fighting Theodore among the Derby entries, hey, I gotta go with it, even if the odds are 40-1.

If you plays hunches or sentimental favorites, your winning percentage wouldn't be bad betting on the owner in the Indianapolis 500.

Jim Hall went to Indy four times and came home a winner twice, once with Al Unser and later with Johnny Rutherford. One other time, the Midland owner's Chaparral was leading the field when an "80 cent" oil cap fell off and the car was forced from the race.

When it comes to Kentucky Derbys, the hunch player might ride anything with a Midland owner and show a profit.

Tommy Lee, owned by Midland's Ralph Lowe, won the 1959 Kentucky Derby. In 1957, the entry from Midland finished second. That's .500, which isn't bad. And if you check back, the only reason Midland-owned entries in the Derby are 2-for-2 or 1.000 is pilot-error. What you won't believe is the pilot.

Willie Shoemaker had the '57 Derby won aboard Fred Turner's Gallant Man. In fact, Willie was easing into his victory trot as he crossed the finish line. Only trouble, what Willie thought was the finish line was actually the 16th pole and Iron Leige streaked by to win at the wire.

Two weeks later, Gallant Man came back to win the Belmont, second jewel in the Triple Crown of racing.

In baseball, it would have been the equivalent of Babe Herman or Willie Wilson getting conked on the head by a fly ball or Roy Riegels grabbing a fumble and scoring a "touchdown" in the Rose Bowl game.

Midland, now, almost a quarter of a century later, has another Derby entry in Marfa. Well, Marfa is more than an entry. The Wayne Lukas trained three-year-old is the 5-2 favorite.

Only trouble is Marfa has picked up a reputation as a ruffian. Fred Hooper became incensed at Marfa because of a bumping incident in the Blue Grass last week, causing, Fred claims, an injury that caused the withdrawal of his Copelan from the Derby.

Neither Midland owner was available for comment. Both had just left the Tall City for the derby scene. So, Marfa's reputation will remain tarnished until Saturday, when the Texas horse will an opportunity to show all the world.

Probably the charges of Hooper are just a minor irritation to French and Beal, who last fall had the Derby favorite in Landaluce. Then, the most famous two-year-old in the land met a sudden and tragic death.

It seemed that the Derby hopes of the Midlanders had evaporated into thin air. Marfa was purchased in the same sale as Landaluce, was slow in developing and was overshadowed as a two-year-old.

But as things turned out, if Landaluce had survived, it probably would have had to be satisfied with the role of cofavorite in the Runs for the Roses.

Injuries key to NBA playoffs

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Philadelphia 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham has stopped worrying about Moses Malone's injured knees...and started worrying about Andrew Toney's bruised left thigh.

That's the current focal point for the 76ers as they prepare to meet the Milwaukee Bucks in one of two National Basketball Association playoff games Sunday. The Los Angeles Lakers meet the San Antonio Spurs in the other.

"Andrew's improved a great deal — 100 percent — from yesterday to today," said Cunningham. "I expect Andrew to work out lightly (today), and then we'll see how it feels. Hopefully, Andrew'll be 100 percent more improved by tomorrow, too."

As a precaution, forward Julius Erving has been playing at guard during the 76ers' closed-door practices for the Eastern Conference finals.

"He's worked the last few days at the guard position, just in case" Toney will be unable to play, reserve guard Clint Richardson said.

Erving said he had been at guard largely because of the way Milwaukee forward Marques Johnson plays his position.

"Mostly, I've been practicing a lot at guard because we only had three here (for practice), with Andrew gone. But I'll be back in what amounts to a guard position frequently on the full-court press and the traps because Marques handles the ball like a guard."

The guard position isn't the only place the 76ers are hurting. Center-forward Clemon Johnson, suffering from a partial tear in his left hamstring, hoped to go at full steam in today's practice. And forward Bobby Jones and guard Franklin Edwards return after illnesses.

Despite their recent physical problems, which include Malone's aching knees that caused some concern in the 76ers' camp last week, Philadelphia managed to sweep the New York Knicks 4-0 in the conference semifinals.

"You get this close, there's no sense in waiting 'til next year," Malone said, shrugging off the 76ers' mounting physical problems. "We may as well go for the all the marbles now."

The Bucks are one of the NBA's hottest teams as well. They're coming off a shocking four-game sweep of the Boston Celtics.

The best-of-seven Western Conference finals, which start in Los Angeles, feature two of the league's most dominating centers: San Antonio's Artis Gilmore and Los Angeles' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

"You're not going to stop him — you just have to contain him," says Gilmore of Jabbar, who averaged 23.6 points a game against the Spurs during the regular season.

"San Antonio will be a step up in class (from Portland)," said the Lakers' Jamaal Wilkes. "It will be Gilmore in the middle instead of Wayne Cooper."

Greenwood Banquet

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood Athletic Booster Club will hold its annual All-Sports Banquet Thursday, May 19, at 7 p.m. at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Bill Hicks, head football coach and athletic director at Howard Payne University, will be the guest speaker.

Tickets are $11 per person for a buffet supper and may be purchased from Mrs. Ann Franks at the Greenwood High office. Monday, is the deadline for buying tickets to the banquet that features a "Flying High with the Rangers" theme.

Greenwood athletes will be recognized for accomplishments during the current school year.

The year's final booster meeting is Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria. Officers for the 1983-84 school year will be elected.

Hicks came to HPU Jan. 1 after serving as defensive line coach at Baylor University for 13 years. A 1963 graduate of Baylor, Hicks, 42, was an All-Southwest Conference center in 1961, playing in the Gator Bowl in 1960 and the Gotham Bowl in 1971.

Hicks has also been a varsity football assistant at Texas A&I and Virginia.

Hicks is married to the former Iris Lynn Neill of Midland and they have four children: Janie, Doug, Wendy and Clint.

Bruins won't step aside

BOSTON (AP) — If the New York Islanders didn't know it before, they certainly do now. Their path to a fourth straight Stanley Cup championship is blocked by a Boston Bruins' team that won't step politely aside.

After being blown out 7-3 and 8-3 in Uniondale, N.Y., the Bruins stormed back by dominating New York 5-1 Thursday night, closing the Islanders' lead to 3-2 in the best-of-seven Wales Conference final.

The sixth game is Saturday night in Uniondale.

"Tonight it was poor preparation," said New York defenseman Denis Potvin. "We believed what we were reading in the papers and how great we were. We didn't respond when the puck didn't go in the net easily for us."

If the Islanders were remembering their press clippings, Boston goalie Pete Peeters was busy forgetting his.

The National Hockey League's leading goalie in wins, shutouts and goals-against average during the regular season, Peeters was battered for all 15 goals in the third and fourth games.

"When you get bombarded like that, it's just a matter of flowing with the punches. It's a matter of accepting it and going on," he said.

He went on and found things were just as bad. Just 3:12 into Thursday night's game, Bob Nystrom gave New York a 1-0 lead with a slapshot from the right point that flew between Peeters' glove and the right post.

"Somebody with not as much experience might figure, 'They got a bum goal on me, the series is over.' But Pete's got good composure," said Mike Krushelnyski, who assisted on Boston's second and third goals.

"You just accept it," Peeters said of Nystrom's goal. "There's not a thing you can do about a goal once it's in the net. You can't take it back."

His teammates, playing intensely from the start, quickly got two goals back 68 seconds apart and took control of the game. Craig MacTavish scored his second playoff goal at 5:07 of the opening period, and Barry Pederson netted his 14th, at 6:15, both on rebounds. Pederson broke Phil Esposito's club record of 13 goals in a playoff year, set in 1970.

MacTavish said that hovering around the net "has been our style all year long and it's something we got away from on the Island."

Boston outshot New York 21-7 in the first period, and repeatedly swarmed around goalie Billy Smith, and 45-22 in the game. Roland Melanson replaced Smith to start the third period.

"We knew they were going to come at us very strong tonight and we didn't do anything to counteract it," said New York Coach Al Arbour.

Second-period goals by Ray Bourque, on a power play, Peter McNab and Bruce Crowder finished the scoring in the second period.

A sevent game, if necessary, would be here Tuesday night.

Area girls running in state high school meet

AUSTIN — The state girl's track meet will be held here today and Saturday at Memorial Stadium with several Midland area girls hoping to bring home a state title.

In the Class A competition Saturday, Greenwood's Renvy Evans is in two individual events, owning a good shot at both titles. In the 100-meter hurdles, Evans has a state qualifying time of 15.66, which is the second best qualifying time in the state. Klondike's Dawna West owns the best time of 15.4, beating Evans in the Region I competition two weeks ago.

West and Evans will also tangle in the triple jump with West again holding the edge with a 35-4½ jump. Evans is second best with a 35-2¾. West is also in the 400 meters with a second best qualifying time of 59.31.

Greenwood will also have its 800-meter relay team at state. Greenwood qualified with a 1:48.81, which is the third best time. Team qualifying in front of Greenwood are New Home (1:48.0) and Falls City (1:48.02.)

Iraan's Darla Graham is one of the favorites in both the 800 and 1600 meter runs. Graham owns the best 800 qualifying time with a 2:22.83, five seconds better than the nearest competitor. She qualified in the 1600 with a 5:26.85, but Shelion McCallie of May has a 5:24.67. None of the other runners are even close.

In Class AA, Stanton's Mary Beth Tollison will be in the 3200 meters with a fourth best qualifying time of 12:14.3. Ahead of Tollison are Leonard's Cecilia Robinson, 11:29.61; Blooming Groves' Jody Dunston, 11:34.4; and Celina's Carol Kubicek, 12:07.45. Tollison will also be in the 1600 meter run with a 5:37.2, which also ranks fourth behind Kubicek, 5:25.96; Leonard's Cecilia Robinson, 5:27.5; and Dunston, 5:31.62.

Reagan County's Jackie King will be in the 100 meters with a 12.1, ranking second behind Wellington's Elaine Shrubs, 11.8.

Runners from Odessa Permian and Big Spring will represent District 4-5A. Permian's Juanita Kelly has the best 100 meter time with an 11.7 and Melissa Harrison is a discus favorite with her 140-3. Permian's Armanda Redman owns a 14.3 in the 100 hurdles, ranking seventh.

Big Spring's Shell Rutledge owns a 24.2 in the 200 meters, ranking second behind Richardson's Pat Loewe, 24.01.

Bethea feels he's gone

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry says he wasn't sending messages by picking defensive lineman in the first and third rounds of the National Football League draft, but Larry Bethea says he sees the writing on the wall, the Dallas Morning News has reported.

"It might be time to pack my bags," Bethea was quoted in The News' Thursday editions. "That's the way I see it when you look at the statistics and the numbers."

The Cowboys took Arizona State linemen Jim Jeffcoat in the first round and Bryan Caldwell in the third round.

"The Cowboys wouldn't have drafted somebody in the first round if they didn't have plans for him. I hope Jeffcoat or whoever they go with is treated better than me as a human being."

Unless roster limits are raised from last season's 45 players, Landry says the Cowboys will keep six defensive linemen. Barring injuries, five of those six spots are taken by Jones, Randy White, John Dutton, Harvey Martin and Jeffcoat.

That leaves Bethea, Don Smerek and Caldwell fighting for the one remaining spot.

"Every year my job has been in jeopardy," Bethea said. "Either you get better or you get out. Drafting Jeffcoat should make things difficult for everybody. It should be an open market situation."

Bethea was drafted as Dallas' No. 1 pick in 1978 but has never lived up to the potential the Cowboys first believed the defensive end had. He got his biggest chance in 1979 when starter Ed "Too Tall" Jones turned briefly to boxing.

Arum calls WBA, WBC, 'cancers'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Promoter Bob Arum of Top Rank, Inc., told Congress Thursday a federal boxing commission is necessary to end the domination over the sport by two current international organizations — the World Boxing Association and the World Boxing Council.

Describing the WBA and the WBC as "the real cancer in boxing," Arum said 90 percent of the sport's income and 85 percent of the world class fighters come from the United States, yet boxing is controlled from out of the country.

"It is essentially an American business run by people out of the country who are accountable to no one," he said. "That would change within two or three weeks with a federal commission."

Arum, Ring Magazine publisher-editor Bert Randolph Sugar, Dr. Stuart E. Kirschenbaum, chairman of the Michigan Athletic Board of Control, and Dr. Max Novich, president of the Association of Ringside Physicians, testified before House Education and Labor subcommittee on labor standards in support of legislation to create a federal commission under the Labor Department.

Arum, known for his rivalry with promoter Don King, gave the subcommittee examples of what he considers is wrong with boxing and how the federal commission would cure them:

— On May 20, heavyweight champion Larry Holmes will defend his title against Tim Witherspoon. Holmes is managed by King, he said, while Witherspoon is handled by King's son, Carl. "No federal commission would let that fight take place," he said.

— Last month, Leon Spinks fought Carlos DeLeon in Atlantic City with both fighters managed by Carl King.

— In order to stage the light heavyweight title fight last spring between Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini and Arturo Frias he had to pay $250,000 plus $25,000 from Mancini's subsequent fights to Pepe Cordero who, according to Arum, actually runs the WBA.

— Jose Sulaiman, who runs the WBC, cashed $50,000 in checks from Top Rank Inc., Arum's company, to the WBC for sanctioning fees at the cashier's window in the Los Vegas casinos.

Arum also said the WBA and the WBC have come up with a scheme to strip middleweight champion Marvin Hagler, holder of the title from both organizations, of one of his crowns.

Hagler is due to defend his title this month aginst Wilford Scypion but the WBA insists it be a 15-round bout while the WBC says it wants to be a 12-rounder.

"So whatever he does, he will be stripped of one of the titles," Arum told the subcommittee. "Then they will be able to give that title to one of their own."

Arum said state boxing commissions are powerless to stop the two international organizations because their authority cannot exceed state boundaries.

"If we don't have a federal commission - and have a federal commission soon - I'm not going to have a business," he said. "The networks and cable teelvision are not going to stage boxing because they don't want to takethe heat from the scandal. Then boxing is going to die."

Arguello, Pryor fight on again

CINCINNATI (AP) — Restaurateur Buddy LaRosa, locked in a contract dispute with boxer Aaron Pryor, agreed Thursday to let the World Boxing Association junior welterweight champion fight Alexis Arguello in August.

Pryor is trying to get out of his contract with LaRosa, his manager.

Donoghue's Money Fund Average (Averages for all 240 taxable funds)		40	7.9	8.0

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 240 money funds reported by Donoghue's Money Fund Report of Holliston, MA 01746 declined $1.7 billion to $168.3 billion for the week ending May 4, 1983.

The funds' 7-day average yield stayed at 7.91%. The funds' 30-day average yield decreased slightly from 7.96% to 7.95%.

The funds' average maturity increased one day to 40 days.

William E. Donoghue says, "In the first few months of deregulation, approximately 30% of the outflow from money funds is explained by the increase in non-money market mutual funds. Investors are cautiously switching to seek higher yields in the stock market. Interest in the bank MMDAs is expected to decrease as the yield advantage of these bank products lessens.

Yields represent annualized total return to shareholders for past seven- and thirty-day period. Past returns are not necessarily indicative of future yields. Investment quality and maturity may vary among funds. x - average term to next rate adjustment date.

Oil isn't getting break anymore, committee told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The preferential tax treatment once enjoyed by the oil industry has all but vanished because of the "windfall profits" tax and new benefits available to all businesses, the Treasury Department said Thursday.

Since 1969, when the cherished oil-depletion allowance was cut and restricted to independent producers, a number of tax changes "have eroded the overall advantage previously afforded to domestic oil and gas production," J. Gregory Ballentine, a deputy assistant treasury secretary, told the House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee.

Because of the 1980 "windfall" tax on oil and passage in 1981 of President Reagan's record tax cut for business in general, "it can no longer be asserted as a general prop-

U.S. commuters riding Reds' rakish buses

By The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — Commuters on the Tri-County Metropolitan Transit District's busy run from Vancouver, Wash., to Portland, Ore., settle into rakish 110-passenger buses that are hinged in the middle so that they bend when turning corners.

So successful have the new vehicles been since they were put into service just over a year ago that officials of Tri-Met, as the Portland-based district is called, say they are confident passengers have forgotten, if they ever realized, that every time they step aboard, they are participating in a rare example of Communist-U.S. industrial cooperation.

The cooperative venture involves the world's biggest bus maker, Ikarus Body & Coach Building Works, in Budapest, Hungary, and Los Angeles-based Crown Coach Corp., one of the nation's oldest makers of custom fire equipment and school buses.

While the buses produced by the combination have proved financially successful for both parties, in at least three cities where they have been up for bid or sold — including Portland — they have sparked at least fleeting political controversy over the appropriateness of buying vehicles that come from Communist Eastern Europe.

The deal that brought the Communist-American bus to Portland was originally struck as a way to enable the Hungarian government to accumulate U.S. trade credits so that McDonnell Douglas Corp. could sell airliners to Budapest. Ironically, the chill that has fallen over detente since President Reagan took office has stymied the aircraft sales.

Hungary originated many of the complex engineering techniques for making a bus that bends in the middle, steers with both its front and rear axles and will not readily jackknife in a sudden stop. The secret: the hinging mechanism that allows the 60-foot vehicle to swivel. No American company has ever sold its own version, though General Motors Corp. has built a prototype.

The Crown-Ikarus association had its genesis in the early 1970s, when a McDonnell Douglas sales representative, R.E.G. Davies, walked out of his Budapest hotel. He had just read in a newspaper about the oil panic, gas lines and resulting renaissance of public transit in the United States that resulted from the 1973 Middle East war.

"I was standing on the sidewalk wondering how to circumvent the strict controls of Eastern European nations on buying Western goods," said Davies, who is now the Lindbergh professor of aerospace history at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, "when I noticed these big, articulated buses going by.

Back in Long Beach, Calif., McDonnell Douglas officials began the search for a likely partner in the buses-for-airplanes venture. The company said it simply evaluated every U.S. bus maker it could identify — ranging from GM to Crown — and concluded that home-town Crown was the most logical company to approach. Though Douglas considers the deal to be strictly a back-burner affair these days, the company confirmed that it is officially accruing trade credits should a thaw in East-West relations occur.

Under terms of the deal, Ikarus builds the bus body shells and then ships them to Los Angeles Then, at Crown's aging downtown plant, the shells are fitted with American-made engines, transmissions, brakes and other running gear. About 60 percent of each finished bus consists of U.S. components. "It's more than just a U.S. drive train," said Bill Coryell, Crown's transit bus program head. "It gets down even to things like the floor coverings and the paint."

The Ikarus program accounts for about a quarter of Crown's 200 workers. While the privately held company does not release revenue or result figures, company sources said Crown is profitable, with revenues last year of about $40 million. The company said that, as more U.S.-made components are added to the Crown-Ikarus bus, the Los Angeles plant might commit a greater proportion of workers to the articulated buses.

Of the 4,500 full-sized buses sold each year in the United States, only about 650 are articulated, a comparatively new design. Half a dozen companies — the majority of them Western European — sell articulated coaches in the United States.

So far, Crown has delivered 112 buses to Portland, San Mateo County, Calif., and Louisville, Ky., and has 73 more on order, for San Jose, Calif.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Albany, N.Y., and Milwaukee. Crown was also apparently the low bidder on another batch of 20 articulated buses for the Detroit transit system — a job for which the Crown-Ikarus bus competed with a German-designed articulated largely built in the United States and the GM prototype that still awaits its first buyers.

It was in Portland, Milwaukee and Detroit that the bus Coryell affectionately calls a "wiggle wagon" faced its most serious political problems. Coryell calls it the "Iron Curtain issue."

In Portland, "there was ... some questioning of the deal on political grounds. But when it was explained that the bus is 60 percent American, it was understood that the dollars we'd be paying out in Portland would just be coming back to buy American goods," said Tri-Met spokesman Phill Colombo.

In Milwaukee, the United Auto Workers and some citizen groups combined to bring pressure on the 25 local county supervisors when it was disclosed that a bus built partially in a communist nation was being considered. Several politicians challenged the deal on ideological grounds, according to Joseph Caruso, marketing director of the local Milwaukee County Transit System, which has contracted to buy 40 wiggle wagons.

"There was certainly some flak," Caruso said, "and it took a little while (to resolve), but once we were able to more closely discuss the terms of the deal with our county officials and with the public, we were able to create a better understanding. When you add it all up, it was a bargain for Milwaukee County taxpayers."

Oil

osition that the tax system favors investment in domestic oil and gas production," Ballentine said.

He testified as the subcommittee began hearings on oil taxes and specifically whether independent producers have too great a tax advantage over major companies.

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of the panel, said several changes in oil taxes were made in 1981 and 1982 without full consideration by the subcommittee. Although there is always talk in Congress of raising oil taxes, there is no firm indication that the industry will be a target of efforts in Congress this year to trim the federal budget deficit.

Ballentine said special tax provisions benefiting independent producers and those who own lands with oil and gas will deprive the Treasury of more than $13 billion over the next five years.

However, he said, those tax incentives have improved the U.S. energy situation by helping smaller segments of the oil industry bear the risks of exploration and production.

The biggest tax advantages for independents are the depletion allowance and a lower "windfall profits" tax on most of their oil.

Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, said there appears to be no sound arguments of fairness or efficiency in favor of taxing the independent sector of the oil industry at a lower rate than other sectors. The law generally defines an independent as a company that does only a moderate amount of refining and retailing.

However, Ms. Rivlin said, if those tax advantages for independents were removed, "smaller independents might ... have more difficulty obtaining financing and competing with larger producers."

THE BETTER HALF

"Are you going to let one little setback kill your dream of becoming a great karate champion?"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, May 7, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Poets Robert Browning and Archibald MacLeish, composers Johannes Brahms and Peter Tchaikovsky, Gary Cooper, character actor "Gabby" Hayes and comedienne Totie Fields were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: actress Anne Baxter, hip hypnotist Pat Collins, golf's Kathy Ahern and singer Teresa Brewer. Table your plans for new investments and try to make the current ones more profitable. This is an excellent time to form a partnership or start a small business. Go that extra mile to reestablish a relationship you have neglected. You have good luck where romance and finance are concerned. Share the spotlight with loved one.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Say "no" to a family member who tries to push you around. You need to spend more time with a child or lonely older person. Romance starts you thinking about lifestyle changes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A family crisis will be averted if everyone pitches in to help. Be open to new ideas. A compromise gives you more time to solve a financial problem.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Drive cautiously today. Others are not as alert as you. Keep extra cash in the bank, not in a shoe box or under the mattress. A romantic encounter helps you make up your mind.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A brother-sister relationship grows more rewarding. Loved one's advice helps you reach a personal goal sooner than you anticipated. Trips for pleasure add to a family member's happiness.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You find it much easier to get along with a contrary neighbor. Quit trying to force someone to do something against his/her will. Avoid a so-called friend's fanciful schemes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your family deserves your full attention this weekend. Put business aside. Recreational plans may have to be changed. Do what you can to patch things up between two neighbors.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get a unique opportunity to rectify past financial mistakes. Rather than speculate, consult with mate or partners. Singles find romance tempestuous.

SCORIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your personal magnetism and intelligence makes you a winner. Romance develops at a dizzying pace. A tolerant attitude will help you iron out any problems with a loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Childish spats can create an unpleasant atmosphere. Rise above petty squabbles. Family jealousies are puzzling. Look for a quiet way to straighten out major differences.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Conversations concerning those at a distance, require great diplomacy. Take a long-range view of your goals. Special talents could earn a second income.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Financial affairs involving your mate or relatives can cause friction. Avoid a confrontation by going off by yourself. A lucky day for shoppers looking for clothes or furniture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your health, family and influential allies are in the spotlight. Financial aid is available from an unusual source. Seek out-of-the-way meeting places.

Sitcom debuts on Playboy

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest breakthrough on cable is that the Playboy Channel can make situation comedies that are even worse than the networks'. The low art of televised humor now has sunk from bad bathroom jokes to bad bedroom jokes.

"4Play," which debuts on the Playboy Channel tonight, is billed by the pay-TV network as the first adult sitcom. But it's scarcely for discretionary adults. This tasteless, boorish show is a case of profanity and nudity merely for profanity and nudity's sake.

In one scene in a dress designer's shop, a model keeps dropping her top to reveal her chest and the word "FRONT." "Men are getting dumber every day," she says.

Because the network censors aren't around, the characters in "4Play" are able to curse and parade around in states of undress designed to divert attention from a juvenile, loud and pointless script.

The story is about a fortyish husband who has an affair with a 19-year-old feminist. But she's the kind of feminist that only Playboy could dream up — a beautiful airhead who tells the wife about the cheating relationship because that's what it says to do in her favorite women's magazine.

This sex triangle also is destined to become more multisided, with the girlfriend's father making advances toward the wife.

"'4Play' is going to make television history," says Madeline David, who wrote and produced the series. "It's the first sitcom to come to grips with the contemporary urban scene and its sexual angst."

Ms. David's partner in crime is Paul Klein, president of the Playboy Channel, who asked her to do the show. They once worked together at NBC when Klein was the network's top programmer and Ms. David was head of daytime TV.

"'4Play' is the most exciting project I've ever seen bar none," says Klein. "The work is fresh, contemporary, honest, full of energy and hilarious."

The audience last March at the "4Play" taping — at the the same studio where the soap opera scenes from "Tootsie" were shot — must be wondering what show Klein was watching. The studio crowd was barely tickled, even after it was warmed up by a hard-working Borscht-Belt comic named Mickey Freeman, who played Pvt. Zimmerman on "The Phil Silvers Show."

We don't blame you for wanting to take a free finesse when it is offered. However, don't let one trick blind you to your major goal—making your contract.

This deal cropped up in a match between a touring Canadian team and a South African squad. The South African declarer ended in five diamonds and received a trump lead. She let it ride to her hand, and ended up making 11 tricks. In the other room, the Canadians reached the diamond slam as shown. Here, too, West led a trump to cut down on a possible crossruff.

The declarer was George Mittelman of Montreal. No one could accuse him of being reticent during the auction, but he was able to justify his aggressive bidding in the play. He realized that he would need entries to his hand to ruff out his club losers, so he won the first trick in dummy with the king!

He cashed the king of clubs and came to hand with a trump to the jack. There followed a club ruff, spade to the ace, another club ruff and a spade to the king. Now declarer cashed the ace of diamonds to draw the last trump, crossed to the jack of spades and conceded a heart. He made the last three tricks with a trump, the queen of spades and the ace of clubs.

Note that, if declarer wins the first trick in hand, his position is distinctly precarious. He can still prevail if he guesses the distribution, but that would be a poor substitute for the elegance of Mittelman's line of play.

Barbara Bush promotes literacy in chivalrous land

While those issues have been raised before, the committee also presented a more shocking statistic.

"For the first time, this generation is less educated than the one that graduated 20-25 years ago," Mrs. Bush said.

The report also stated one out of every five adults in American cannot read.

"We cannot afford people that can't cope in this world," she said, explaining some $6.7 billion is spent keeping illiterates in jail while another $6 billion is spent on welfare and unemployment compensation for illiterates.

Although concerned about the decline in education, Mrs. Bush pointed out she was no expert.

The 18-member committee that conducted the study is made up of "responsible people," she said, "people much more qualified to speak on education.

"I'm no expert — I don't have to be," she said, adding with a wink, "you see, I married very, very well."

When asked how she felt about the proposed reduction of the public education budget in Texas, Mrs. Bush replied, "I would like to remind the Legislature that the greatest national resources we have are our children.

"But, as I say, I wasn't elected to public office so no one really asks me."

Turning to other issues, Mrs. Bush repeated her belief, quoted earlier this week, that President Ronald Reagan would seek re-election in 1984.

"I'm more than agreeable (to another Reagan-Bush ticket)," she said. "Now the President hasn't told me this, but, like I said, if I had $50 left in this world, I'd bet $49 (he was going to seek re-election.)"

When asked if Bush had considered the presidency if Reagan chose not to run again, she said she prefers not to think about it.

"I feel very relaxed now," she laughed.

"Everything he's trying to do is working now," she said of Reagan's attempts to balance the budget.

However, if her husband does decide to run for the office in the future, "he is certainly the most qualified man in the United States to run.

Elderly Odessa bicyclist dies of injuries inflicted in mishap

ODESSA — An elderly Odessa bicyclist has died of injuries suffered when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver Wednesday night.

Charles Clifford Vann, 61, of Route 5, Odessa, died at 2:40 p.m. Thursday in the intensive care unit of Medical Center Hospital, according to the Department of Public Safety.

He suffered head and internal injuries when the bicycle he was riding on the north service road of Interstate 20 was hit by a vehicle that left the scene.

A DPS spokeswoman said this morning there were no leads as to the driver's identity. The accident occurred one mile west of Odessa about midnight Wednesday.

A&M worries about 'tea-sipping'

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M's chancellor is worried that visiting speakers will think his institution backward because they can sip nothing stronger than tea on his campus.

Dr. Arthur Hansen has asked the university system's regents to consider changing the school's policy which bars alcoholic beverages from the campus. The board will meet May 24.

Aggies have for decades scorned University of Texas students as "tea-sippers."

Hansen said Thursday his proposal would allow chief executive officers at A&M to serve guests alcohol on "very special occasions."

DEATHS

Ida May Blaine

ANDREWS — Services for Ida May Blaine, 86, of Andrews, were to be at 11 a.m. today in Andrews Presbyterian Church. Burial was to be in Fairview Cemetery in Smith Center, Kan., directed by Singleton Funeral Home of Andrews.

Mrs. Blaine died Wednesday in an Andrews hospital.

She was born Dec. 4, 1896, in Smith Center. She moved to Andrews nine years ago from Albuquerque, N.M., and was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Memorials may be sent to the Presbyterian Church of Andrews or the Kidney Foundation.

Survivors include three daughters, Grace Cook of Andrews, Leatha Whitaker of Sunnymead, Calif., and Willeta Meredith of Sheridan, Ark.; a sister, Rose Orr of Albuquerque; seven grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Louise Pillman

Services for Dr. Louise Pillman, 84, of 3202 Princeton, are pending at the McKee Funeral Home in Dexter, Iowa. Local arrangements were handled by the Newnie W.Ellis Funeral Home.

Dr. Pillman died at her home Thursday morning.

She was born Sept. 3, 1898, in Mason, Ill. She moved with her family to Dexter, Iowa, in the early 1900s and graduated from Erlam Academy in 1916. She graduated from the University of Iowa in 1920 and earned a doctorate in geology four years later. She taught geology for a number of years and was the first female geologist to be hired by Shell Oil Co. She began work for Shell in the company's Midland office March 23, 1943, and retired Oct. 1, 1958.

Survivors include a sister, Alma Pillman of Ogden, Iowa; a brother, Fred Pillman of Mator, Iowa; and several nieces and nephews.

Don Inman

LAMESA — Services for Don Inman, 52, of Lamesa, are set for 10:30 a.m. Saturday in the chapel of the First Baptist Church. Burial will be in Lamesa Cemetery, directed by Branon Funeral Home.

Inman died Thursday afternoon in a Lamesa hospital after an illness.

He was born in Lamesa on Sept. 21, 1930, and had worked for the Texas Highway Department for 15 years. He was a member of the Menard County American Legion and was a 30-year member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include a son, James Inman of Lamesa; two sisters, Dorothy Miller and Helen Roberts, both of Lamesa; and a brother, E.B. Inman of Garland.

Henry W. Hillger

GARDEN CITY — Henry William Hillger, 70, of Garden City died Friday morning at his daughter's home in Greenwood following an illness.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Saturday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Bob Brown officiating. Burial will be in Garden City Cemetery.

He was born Nov. 24, 1912, in Glasscock County, where he was raised and ranched all his life. He was a member of First Baptist Church of Garden City.

Survivors include his wife, Edna Lee; a daughter, Analee Sims of Greenwood; three sons, Dale Roy Hillger of Garden City, Robert William Hillger of Greenwood and David Henry Hillger of Big Spring; three brothers, Harvey Hillger and George Hillger, both of Midland, and Jim Hillger of Stanton.

Man sentenced to death in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — A 27-year-old man has been sentenced to death by injection for the Jan. 16 murder of a Dallas police officer.

A Dallas County jury, which had convicted Montoya on Wednesday, deliberated 30 minutes Thursday afternoon before returning the death sentence against Ramon Montoya, a Mexican alien.

Officer John R. Pasco was shot to death when he tried to arrest Montoya in a downtown Dallas alley, according to testimony.

Speaking in a courtroom filled with uniformed police officers Thursday, Assistant District Attorney Jerry Banks asked the jury to assess Montoya the death sentence for "the ultimate crime — the killing of a police officer."

"Society has to protect those we've hired to protect us," Banks said. "If we don't, we have to go back to everybody arming ourselves and walling in our cities. And we aren't going to do that."

Woman study in ability to overcome obstacles

Learning the language was long and time-consuming. She found a job taking care of two children, and in her leisure time accompanied an older German woman to silent movies.

"The only English I learned was by going to the show at night," she recalled. "We sat through the picture three times, saw the writing, the printing and the pictures. I learned pretty good that way. And I started reading (nursery primers) to the children."

Just as her knowledge of the language and American customs grew, so did her romance with Max Omo. He had just returned from a city 550 miles deep in Mexico, where he had owned a tire vulcanizing business. Upon their marriage in 1926, he again looked southward.

"He wanted to go back there, but (Mexico) was not organized — they had been through a revolution," she said. "We stayed in El Paso about a month to find out about the situation."

Two factors kept the Omos in Texas — continued turmoil across the Rio Grande and her reluctance to immigrate again.

"I'd rather stay in this country and learn English than go down there and have to learn Spanish," she told him.

He listened — and native German Mrs. Omo became a Texan for good.

Her husband's sister and brother-in-law followed the oil boom to West Texas, and the Omos soon found themselves in their footsteps. They first endured sandstorms at McCamey, then stayed in Odessa before settling in Crane Jan. 2, 1927.

It wasn't an easy life. Omo erected a part-wood, part-tent structure for his new bride, but it was a far cry from the onetime comfort she had known in Germany.

"It had a floor in it...windows and one door," she remembered. "Well, it kept the dirt out but not the cold in wintertime. It was pretty cool, and I didn't like the wind. If we'd had a train going, I guess I'd have gone back to Chicago — that's the way I felt. Putting up with snakes, rocks and roaches, centipedes and tarantulas and all that kind of stuff — that was pretty hard. I had never seen a tarantula, never seen a snake in my life. I was pretty shaken to hear my first rattlesnake."

But she adjusted, as she always has. Her first child was born in that tent, and she has not changed her residence from the land of Horsehead Crossing and Castle Gap since.

The ordinance allows home occupations if — among other things — they don't "involve visits to the premises (by) the public in the capacity of clients, patients or customers on a daily, routine basis."

The ad was placed in the phone book "simply to get the dealerships," Sloan said. "They're happier when you advertise.

"It wasn't a commercial business and was never intended to be. We thought it was for a worthwhile purpose to help the kids."

Because of his wife's injuries, said Sloan, she didn't want to renew the ad but failed to give proper notice to the phone company and it ran again.

"She cancelled it this last year. But if you don't send 'em written notice, they print the damn thing anyway. It's in the contract you sign with the phone company. So we got socked for the cost of another ad."

Although the business apparently was legal, Sloan added that to avoid "even the hint of impropriety," his wife would refer customers and potential customers to First In Sports, a downtown sporting goods store in which he has "a small interest."

"It's over as of this moment," he said Thursday.

White names former judge to board

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Former Ector County Judge Gary Watkins of Odessa has been appointed to the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System by Gov. Mark White.

Watkins, who has a private law practice in Odessa, must be confirmed by the Senate. But Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, whose district includes Ector County, said he expects no problems with the confirmation.

White appointed Watkins to replace former Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., a top Republican party leader in Texas, whose appointment to the Coordinating board was rejected by the Senate one week ago.

"His (Watkins) appintment today will give West Texas a strong voice on this very important board," Montford said. "As county judge, Gary Watkins did an outstanding job."

Report on water permit to be released

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Texas Water Commission examiner's report is expected to be released within 30 working days on a request from Pyramid Land and Cattle Co., of Midland, for a water rights permit for a reservoir in Freestone County.

The company seeks authority to impound 539 acre-feet of water in a reservoir on an unnamed tributary of Tehuancana Creek, a Trinity River tributary about 9½ miles north of Fairfield.

The reservoir would be used for recreational purposes, the commission reports.

Ensemble will jazz up Mother's Day

Midland mothers will get a chance to hear some big band jazz played only for their ears at 4 p.m. Sunday when the Midland College Community Jazz Ensemble plays in Dennis the Menace Park, South Garfield and Indiana streets.

The concert is co-sponsored by the Midland Parks and Recreation Department and will end about 5:15 p.m., said Dr. Don Grant, MC music coordinator and director of the jazz ensemble.

"This band has been working together from one to three years, depending on the members and their involvement," Grant said. "There are about 20 in the group and they are all folks from Midland who enjoy playing and performing."

Grant said the group has been practicing at 8:15 p.m. Sundays and will resume in September with the start of MC's fall term.

Craddick, Gibson named to legislative committees

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, and Rep. Jay Gibson, D-Odessa, have been named to committees of the Southern Legislative Conference by House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Craddick was named to the Environmental Quality and Natural Resources Committee, while Gibson was named to the Fiscal Affairs and Government Operations Committee.

Craddick and Gibson are two of 20 House members appointed to serve on or be alternates to nine other SLC committees.

"In these selections, we have named some of the best committee chairmen and members who reflect the interests and viewpoints of the Texas House committees," Lewis said.

Seniors celebrating own month

By Diane Booth
Lifestyle Writer

Senior Citizens in Midland will celebrate a month of their own with special activities.

May is recognized nationally as Senior Citizen's Month.

In addition to regular senior functions and activities, Midland Senior Center, Trinity Towers and the Ector-Midland County Elderly Nutrition program have special plans.

At Midland Senior Center about 175 people, including city officials, will sit down to a special catered dinner May 13 at 6 p.m. in honor of Senior Citizen's month.

Sponsored by the center and the Midland Parks and Recreation Department, the evening will include music provided by Jane Huddleston.

An open house this week kicked off the month's activities and festivities, said Marge Holland, the center director.

The center's exercise group gathered at Midland College for Senior Citizens Appreciation Day. Seniors had a good time while working on their muscle tone.

On May 25 everyone observing a birthday this month will be feted at a party at the center.

The city-funded center is open to residents 55 years of age or older on weekdays. Average daily attendance is 88 persons, said Holland. On-going activities featured are an exercise class, shuffleboard, pool, bingo, card games, canasta, ceramics and stitchery.

The center is a place where older people come for "fun and fellowship," said Holland.

A nutritionally balanced, federally funded meal, is served every weekday.

"For many, it gives them an opportunity," Holland said, "to be away from home during the noon hour and to get a good, nutritious meal."

At Trinity Towers, a private retirement facility on W. Illinois Avenue, a grandparent's party and a dinner for residents on the health care floor are special activities planned to mark Senior Citizen's month.

On May 23 residents' ballots will be tallied to determine the three seniors of 174 residents who have the most grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-grandchildren, said Leona Armentrout, activities director.

A tea will be held and gifts presented to the grandparents with the longest list of grandchildren.

Residents who require nursing care stay on the facility's health care floor. On May 19 about 30 floor residents and their families are treated to a covered dish dinner sponsored by Perceptor Alpha Omega Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

The private facility designed for independent living has residents aged 65 years to 103 years, Armentrout said.

Trinity Towers has an active auxiliary, the director said, which plans many activities which include symphony trips, bible study, shopping expeditions, games and even a social hour.

Although May is the month to officially celebrate being a senior citizen, she said, "We have senior citizens month 12 months a year. We try to have activities to meet the needs of each resident."

At Ector-Midland County Elderly Nutrition Program, a commencement ceremony is planned to recognize seniors who have progressed in their study of English and Spanish.

The program offers language study and instruction, said Petra Lujan, the program manager. Seniors will don caps and gowns to receive their certificates of accomplishment on May 13.

A Mother's Day party was held earlier this week and the usual activities such as a blood pressure check on May 11, and daily bingo, exercise, painting, crocheting and crafts are scheduled, Lujan said.

The facility on E. Garden Lane, is open weekdays to people 60 years or older.

Lujan said the program is an important part of many seniors' day. "They get out and enjoy themselves and get a good meal."

Double amputee buys army weapon repairs

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP) — Joseph "Bud" Schaab is a double amputee who had been confined to a wheelchair for five years, but it hasn't slowed him down.

He travels to work every day in a hand-operated van, across the Mississippi River to the Rock Island, Ill., Arsenal, where he is a production controller at the U.S. Army Armament Materiel Readiness Command.

His job for the Army is to determine whether repair parts on weapons systems such as howitzers or machine guns should be purchased from private firms or built by the Army. In his spare time he develops devices to aid the handicapped in his home workshop.

Active on area committees to help the disabled, he is on the board of directors at a local legal aid service for the handicapped and a statewide health coordinating council.

He has served as president of the Handicapped Federation of the Quad Cities and on the board of directors for the Iowa-Illinois Health Systems Agency.

But most of his time is spent on two local transportation advisory groups for the elderly and handicapped, an interest close to his heart.

"We have some good rehabilitation programs in the area, but if you can't get there they are not worth a damn," Schaab, 54, says. "Friends and relatives will come and help you, but you can't line them up for three years.

In 1973, following complications after gall bladder surgery, Schaab was left paralyzed from the waist down and later his legs had to be amputated. Before that he had worked as an engineer for firms that manufactured automotive alignment equipment and coin mechanisms for vending machines.

DEAR ABBY

Letter offends

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Just finished reading Mitzi Gaynor's letter to you. Yes, I agree, it's a beautiful letter. She says: "After being married to the same wonderful man for 28 years, we're still best friends as well as lovers. It hasn't always been easy, but I've worked at it. In order to get along with your guy, you have to play his game. If he likes watching sports, start off the game by sitting on his lap. If he likes to eat, learn to be a good cook. The song says, 'Woman needs man, and man must have his mate.' Well, girls, get more interested in parlor, bedroom and bath." End of quote.

It seems to me that in our culture, in order to make a marriage work, the burden is about 90 percent on the woman.

For example, what do the women read? Magazines telling them how to be a better wife, mother, lover. How to prepare HIS favorite foods, how to make yourself more attractive for HIM, how to nourish HIS ego and build HIM up. In short, make up, make over and make do!

In the meantime, what do the men read? Sports Illustrated, Field and Stream, Popular Mechanics and science fiction. And last, but not least, Playboy!

Here is what I wish Mitzi's husband would have written:

"Dear Abby: Mitzi and I have been married for 28 years, and we're still best friends as well as lovers. It hasn't always been easy, but I've worked at it.

"All you men out there, in order to get along with your woman, you have to learn to play her game. If she's in the kitchen, cooking or cleaning up, give her a hand. If she likes to dance, take her dancing at least once a week. As the song says, 'A good man is hard to find.' But I say a good woman is hard to find, too, so 'hug her in the morning, kiss her in the night, give her lots of lovin' and treat her right, cause a good mate nowadays is hard to find.'

Abby, why it is when you reverse the letters, Jack's sounds almost comical? Somehow women are expected to do nice things for their men! If a man does the same nice things for a woman, he's suspected of being weak and wimpy.

Baby, we've still got a long way to go. Sign me ... MARRIED 34 YEARS AND WE'RE BOTH STILL WORKING AT IT

Homemade mixes save time, money

Copley News Service

Nothing smells quite so wonderful as a kitchen filled with the aroma of baked breads, biscuits, muffins or coffee cake. But who has time to bake from scratch?

You might wish to have some biscuits or muffins to go with dinner, but just don't feel up to all that measuring and sifting. There are many mixes on the market, for those whose time is short. You open the box, mix with egg and a little water and it's ready to bake.

Vegetarians, however, are by nature health-conscious and tend to worry when they read the labels of these easy, instant baking mixes. Do you really need all that sugar? And what about the preservatives?

To avoid these problems and save money at the same time, just prepare your own mixes.bake as directed.

Homemade mixes have the advantage that you

WHOLE WHEAT
BISCUIT MIX

2¼ cups whole wheat flour
2 cups all-purpose flour
¼ cup wheat germ
5⅓ tsps. baking powder
1⅓ tsps. salt
¾ cup solid white vegetable shortening

Mix dry ingredients in a large bowl. Add shortening and cut in well until mixture resembles coarse meal. Divide mix into three containers, about 2 cups in each. Cover tightly and store in refrigerator.

WHOLE WHEAT
BISCUITS

1 batch (2 cups) whole wheat biscuit mix
⅛ cup plus 1 to 2 tbsps. milk
1 tbsp. melted butter or margarine

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Place mix in medium-sized bowl and stir in mil with a fork, adding just enough to make a smooth, soft dough. Turn onto a lightly floured board and knead four times. Put smooth side up and roll out ⅛-inch thick. Cut out biscuits with 2⅛-inch cutter. Brush biscuits with melted butter and place on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes, until lightly browned on bottom. Makes 10 biscuits. until done. Turn out and cool before slicing. Makes 1 loaf.

Almond bake recipe for chicken, turkey

(Serves six to eight)

3/4 cup mayonnaise
1/3 cup flour
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
1 teaspoon garlic salt
2 1/4 cups milk
1 cup shredded Swiss cheese
1/3 cup dry white wine
7 ounces spaghetti, cooked and drained
2 cups chopped, cooked chicken or turkey
2 cups broccoli flowerets, cooked and drained
1 1/4 cups almond slices
1 (four-ounce) can of mushrooms, drained
1/4 cup chopped pimiento

Combine mayonnaise, flour and seasonings. Gradually add milk; cook, stirring constantly, over low heat until thickened. Add cheese and wine; stir until cheese is melted. Combine sauce, spaghetti, chicken (or turkey), broccoli, three-fourths cup nuts, mushrooms and pimiento in a large bowl. Mix lightly. Spoon into 11-3/4-by-2-inch baking dish; top with remaining nuts. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 40 to 45 minutes. Serve with grated Parmesan cheese if desired.

Irish lamb stew

Salad oil
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
28-ounce can tomatoes
½ teaspoon dried crushed basil
6 medium carrots (1 scant pound)
2 medium onions
2 large ribs celery
½ cup stemmed parsley sprigs, finely chopped

Cut chops into 2 or 3 pieces each, depending on size. In a 4-quart saucepot, in a little hot oil, brown chops well on all sides. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; stir in tomatoes and basil. Simmer until almost tender — 45 minutes. Peel carrots and onions; slice carrots, onions and celery ⅛- to ¼-inch thick; add to stew with parsley. Simmer until meat and vegetables are tender — 20 to 30 minutes longer. Skim off excess fat. Makes 6 servings.

Preventive medicine centers seek hospital cost reductions

By The Associated Press

North Carolina hospital officials say preventive medicine programs can help people stay healthier and drastically reduce medical and insurance costs.

"People tend to think of hospitals only when they're sick," said Kay Lassiter of the North Carolina Hospital Authority in Raleigh. "Now hospitals across the state are trying to get people to think of them as wellness centers instead of sickness centers.

"Preventive medicine programs not only keep people healthier and help them live longer, they cut down on hospital costs and insurance costs," she said.

Last year, Americans spent $286 billion on health care, government figures show. In February, medical care expenses rose 0.8 percent.

The concept of wellness centers is new in North Carolina. It began to catch on in state hospitals two or three years ago, Ms. Lassiter said.

Recently, the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County Hospital Authority announced plans to establish a $100,000 Institute for Preventive Medicine by the middle of this year. The facility will contract with corporations and institutions to provide health-care programs for their employees.

More than a dozen hospitals across the state already operate similar programs, according to the state hospital authority.

The Glenn R. Frye Memorial Hospital in Hickory set up a wellness program for its 756 employees 18 months ago. Program coordinator Marie Almond said the hospital's medical claims had decreased steadily.

"It works, and we have the proof in lower insurance costs and medical claims," she said. Ms. Almond said the hospital didn't have exact figures on how much claims had declined, but she said it was "very substantial."

The Hickory program serves businesses and community organizations in Catawba County.

Wellness programs are tailored to fit the needs of each company or organization. The first step in setting up a program is to study a firm's medical claims to see how much is being spent each year on injuries, illness and absenteeism.

Brain-damaged baby wins settlement

CHICAGO (AP) — A $5.5 million out-of-court settlement has been given court approval as the result of a malpractice suit alleging that a hemophiliac baby suffered permanent brain damage when his blood was improperly drawn.

The settlement, to be paid in a lump sum, is the largest malpractice settlement of its type in Cook County Circuit Court history, according to Max Sonderby, publisher of the Cook County Jury Reporter.

Judge Irving R. Norman approved the settlement Thursday.

The suit was brought on behalf of Mark A. Howell of Bloomingdale, now 18 months old. Lawyers charged that he bled extensively after blood was drawn at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in suburban Elk Grove Village.

The child is a hemophiliac, a condition where blood does not clot properly. According to the suit, the blood was drawn in a way not recommended for hemophiliacs and a vein was damaged, causing severe internal bleeding.

Roundworms infest pets, humans

By R.G. ELMORE
D.V.M.
Copley News Service

Q. I have heard that puppies and kittens often have roundworms at the time they are born. Is this true?

If this is true, how can infections with roundworms be prevented in newborn puppies and kittens?

Also, are humans susceptible to dog and cat roundworms?

A. It has been said that virtually every newborn puppy is infected with the large roundworm, Toxocara canis.

Prior to birth, the infective roundworm larvae can pass from the tissues of the bitch to the puppies via the placenta. Immediately following birth, the infective larvae can be passed to the puppies in the first milk, colostrum. Later, puppies may become infected by ingestion of infective eggs obtained from their mother or environment.

In unborn and newborn puppies, the larvae are carried by the large blood vessels to the lungs where they enter the air passages. They then pass up the tracheobronchial tree into the mouth. From the mouth they are swallowed and pass down the esophagus, through the stomach, and on into the small intestines. In the small intestines, the larvae develop into reproductive adults.

Puppies first begin to discharge roundworm eggs in their feces three to four weeks following birth. Adult dogs can become infected with roundworms by ingesting foods contaminated by stools from infected dogs. Roundworm eggs can also be trasmitted by rodents, birds, insects, and earthworms. Dogs become infected by eating any of these animals containing infective larvae.

The most common roundworm found in cats is Toxocara cati. Infection occurs by ingestion of infective eggs or of small animals containing encysted larvae. Apparently, infection of the kittens does not occur prior to birth.

A third roundworm, Toxascaris leonia, infects both dogs and cats of any age. Infection occurs by ingestion of infective eggs or of small animals containing encysted larvae.

The first indication of roundworm infection in puppies or kittens is lack of growth and poor condition. Infected animals have a dull haircoat and are often potbellied. They may have diarrhea, flatulence, vomiting, and lack of energy. Worms may be vomited and are often voided in the stools.

In the early stages, lung damage may occur due to migrating larvae. This may cause the infected animal to cough frequently. Any puppy or kitten that is doing poorly should be suspected of having roundworms. Diagnosis is usually based on finding roundworm eggs in the stools of infected animals. The eggs are very small and can only be seen with a microscope.

There are several medications that are effective in treating dogs and cats with roundworm infections.

Soil once contaminated with roundworm eggs may continue to be a source of infection for years. Earthen runs soon become heavily contaminated with infective eggs. Concrete runs or pens can be santitized and provide a far less favorable environment for roundworm egg survival.

Routine examinations of stools, treatment of infected dogs, and good sanitation are required to control roundworm infections in dogs and cats.

The larvae of Toxocara canis and Toxocara cati are a cause of the human disease, visceral larva migrans. Young children are the most often affected. Young children may become infected by eating dirt contaminated with animal stools.

Children should be taught to wash their hands after play and prior to eating. Animal droppings near the house or play area should be picked up regularly and disposed of elsewhere. Sandboxes should be covered when not in use. Cats often use uncovered sandboxes as litterboxes.

Children become infected by ingesting contaminated soil, not by playing with dogs or cats. Therefore, children should not be denied the pleasure of owning pets because of roundworms. However, stools should be properly disposed of and children should be taught to wash their hand following outdoor play.

Women listen to body signals

Hearst Feature Service

Endometriosis. Fibroid tumors. Premenstrual syndrome. Fibrocystic breast disease.

These four common female disorders sound worse than they really are. Most female disorders like fibroid tumors (muscle growths in or on the uterus) and fibrocystic breast disease (which causes lumps to develop in the breasts) are not life-threatening.

Because these disorders are often felt more than seen, a woman should learn to trust her body's signals. An inexplicable depression a week before menstruation may be a sign of premenstrual syndrome, and should not be discounted as being "all in the mind." Painful cramps may signal endometriosis – when misplaced endometrial tissue from the uterus attaches itself on a woman's pelvic organs.

Often, there is no set cure for these problems. Women must deal with the responsibility of choosing what is right for them.

IN THE PAST, many doctors treated female ailments with surgery, treating fibroid tumors with hysterectomies, for example. But as women become more knowledgeable about their bodies, they are questioning the need for surgery when complications arise and are seeking out a second opinion before agreeing to surgery.

Many gynecologists are rejecting the traditional image of the doctor as some sort of god. They urge women to shop around for a doctor who will treat her as a peer and not a subordinate player in the arena of her own health.

"Women should educate themselves as much as possible about their bodies. The better they understand their bodies, the fewer problems they're going to have," said Dr. David Bolling, director of the Women's Health Center of San Antonio. Bolling advocates a consumer-provider relationship between doctor and patient.

A New York gynecologist, Dr. Niels Lauersen, has written a book, "Listen To Your Body." The author emphasizes that women should take control of their bodies and their health. Women should listen to their body's message and when a problem occurs, question their doctor instead of letting him or her simply dictate a cure.

Lauersen cites an example of a woman whose breasts were removed (in a mastectomy) in order to rid her of the lumps caused by fibrocystic breast disease. The lumps, however, are non-cancerous. The woman placed in her doctor's hands power she should have left to herself.

SOME OF TODAY'S most controversial female disorders are:

ENDOMETRIOSIS

This disease is caused when the cells, or endometrium, that normally leave the body as waste during menstruation are instead sprayed back onto the pelvic organs. When this tissue attaches itself to other organs it can cause cramps and irregular bleeding. It can lead to infertility or cancer if left unchecked.

However, many women have had endometriosis for years without experiencing the symptoms. Lauersen estimates eight million American women suffer from endometriosis and that the figure is rising. He said women with dysmenorrhea – severe menstrual cramps – are especially susceptible, as are women who have never been pregnant, because their cervixes have never been stretched. The disease occurs mostly in 30-to 50-year-old women. Thus endometriosis is sometimes called the "career woman's disease" as it seems to be linked to childless working women suffering from career stress, Lauersen said.

Other symptoms are a deep abdominal pain on either side and pain during sexual intercourse.

"Instead of being tough and ignoring the pain, women should know that they could be suffering from endometriosis. Many doctors miss it because women don't tell them, and many doctors still don't know," Lauersen said.

THE DISEASE CAN be diagnosed through an exploratory operation called a laparoscopy, in which a doctor makes a small incision in a woman's navel and inserts an instrument to view her pelvic organs, Lauersen said.

A new drug, Danocrine (danazol), which Lauersen used in treating women with endometriosis, was approved by the FDA in 1976. The drug, a weak synthetic androgen (a male hormone derivative), prevents ovulation by blocking certain hormones from the brain which stimulate menstruation.

The drug will cause the endometriosis to wither away, unlike surgery which removes the tissue but allows for future growth, Lauersen said.

Since endometriosis can best be treated in its early stages, a woman should tell her doctor if she feels any suspicious pelvic pain or discomfort, or severe cramps and other pain during sexual intercourse.

FIBROCYSTIC BREAST DISEASE

SUSPICIOUS LUMPS IN her breasts do not always mean a woman has cancer. Women who have benign cysts or nodules caused by excessive growth of the breast's tissues suffer from fibrocystic breast disease. The lumps are either grouped together or dispersed throughout the breast, and are usually tender, especially during menstruation.

Although the disease is found in women of child-bearing age, 16 to 60, they mostly appear in women around the ages 25 to 35. Doctors estimate that as many as one in four women suffer from "lumpy brests," although doctors disagree as to whether this condition is really a disease. Three doctors writing in the New England Journal of Medicine said fibrocystic breast disease is a normal hormonal variation and there is no indication that women with the condition have a higher chance of getting cancer.

Some doctors treat the condition by suggesting that a woman eliminate caffeine from her diet. Studies show that women with fibrocystic breast disease who cut back on caffeine found that their breast lumps shrunk or disappeared. Other steps include avoiding salt, nicotine and sugar, and increasing intake of vitamin E. Laurersen said that Danocrine also helped women with more severe cases of fibrocystic breast disease. The drug worked much the same way it did with endometriosis, by suppressing those hormones which triggered excessive fibrous growth in a woman's breast.

FIBROID TUMORS

Fibroids, common uterine growths, are benign in 99.5 percent of cases, according to Lauersen. Like ovarian cysts, which are fluid-filled sacs forming on the ovary during the menstrual cycle, fibroid tumors are usually not serious health hazards.

Fibroid tumors form in or on the uterus and contain mostly muscle cells bound together by fibrous connective tissue. Lauersen estimated that as many as 20 percent of all women have fibroid tumors. Fibroids are usually discovered in women in their late 30s after a small fibroid suddenly becomes enlarged and causes discomfort. What triggers that growth is not known, although a link between estrogen and fibroids has been found. The link therefore explains fibroids in women of child-bearing age, when estrogen levels are higher. Many women notice that their fibroids disappear after menopause. Overweight women are more susceptible to tumors, because fatty tissue converts into estrogen.

Actress, model a real Georgia peach

Copley News Service

In 1975, current superstar Kenny Rogers was with the not-so-famous band called The First Edition.. They were making a guest appearance on the syndicated TV show "Hee Haw" when he first began to fall in love with one of the show's regulars, a beautiful and vivacious "Georgia Peach" named Marianne.

In addition to working on the show, she also was a top model, who at one time had 12 TV commercials airing simultaneously.

Looking back, Kenny reflects, "Back then it looked like Marianne's career was the big winner ... for me it was a period of career uncertainty.

"It was during that time that she taught me that success wasn't everything, that love and being with someone were the things of real value. Ironically it was when I learned this lesson that success came."

For the few of you who may not know, Kenny married that Georgia Peach and although she is still involved with appearances on "Hee Haw," she now divides most of her time between being Mrs. Kenny Rogers, doing extensive charity work, including being a very active fund raiser for S.H.A.R.E., an organization which aids mentally retarded children and is run by the Exceptional Children's Foundation, and to being "Mom" to their new son CHRISTOPHER CODY.

The one thing that has not changed, however, is her Super Beauty status. Now, nearly 10 years after she and Kenny met, she is even more charming and more beautiful (both inside and out) than ever!

When it comes to the secrets behind her incredible good looks, Marianne confesses to having been "... a soap and water girl almost all my life," but she has recently expanded her skin care routine to include cleansing cream and moisturizer. "I still believe in using soap and water," she says, "but now I find that it works best to alternate that with a cleansing cream. I usually use the soap in the morning, followed by moisturizer and then makeup. In the evening I use the cleanser and then moisturizer again. I started using less of the soap when I found my skin starting to look a bit dry."

With extremely sensitive skin, Marianne has to be careful to avoid any products with heavy perfumes, which can irritate a delicate complexion. Her cleansing choice: Ivory Soap!

In addition Marianne has her skin professionally cleaned every few months by a dermatologist, and gives herself a facial every few weeks using Helena Rubinstein's cleansing grains.

"I've also found the The Buf Puff to be one of the best skin care remedies I've ever tried. I use it on my face with Alercreme lotion and it really gives my skin a wonderful glow."

She does advise, however, to be extra gentle when using any textured product on your face and to stop immediately if your skin becomes red or sore.

Southern girls are, by reputation, among the most beautiful women in the world, especially when it comes to shiny, healthy hair. And this beautiful belle, who hails from Athens, Ga., is certainly no exception. Her secret lies in not only alternating shampoos, but also in choosing products with different kinds of ingredients.

"I find that in order to give my hair the most body it not only helps to alternate shampoos, but to do so between one product that is very mild and another that is stronger."

Folk art on tour

NEW YORK (AP) — The Museum of American Folk Art has organized an international traveling exhibition, "American Folk Art: Expressions of a New Spirit," which highlights more than 130 works from its permanent collection.

The exhibition opened in Paris this month.

This is the first large-scale international exhibition devoted to the entire range of America's folk art heritage.

Jerry Lee Lewis' pianos, furniture to be auctioned for tax lien

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Jerry Lee Lewis' electric piano, a baby grand piano and other furniture from his home in Nesbit, Miss., are being sold by the federal government because of a tax lien.

Dianne Wallace, an Internal Revenue Service spokeswoman in Nashville, said Thursday that proceeds from the May 17 sale at OK Storage and Transfer Co. of Memphis will go toward retiring a $274,000 tax lien. She would not estimate the value of the goods.

The lien was filed in 1977 against the 47-year-old entertainer and his wife, Jaren, who drowned last June. She and Lewis were separated at the time and each had filed for divorce.

Ms. Wallace said the IRS has two other liens against Lewis, but would not disclose the amount.

Patricia Connors

MIAMI (AP) — The wife of tennis star Jimmy Connors, former Playboy pinup Patricia Connors, has been granted temporary custody of the couple's 3½-year-old son Brett under a 30-day agreement granted in Dade County Circuit Court.

Connors, 30, will be permitted to visit the child through next Monday, although he agreed not to take him from the couple's apartment.

Mrs. Connors on Thursday also was granted exclusive use of the apartment for the 30 days, except when her husband is visiting.

She sought a divorce and custody of the child in a petition filed last week.

Garry Trudeau

GREENCASTLE, Ind. (AP) — Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist Garry B. Trudeau and astronaut Joseph P. Allen are both getting honorary degrees from DePauw University later this month.

Trudeau, 35, creator of the Doonesbury cartoon strip, will be awarded an honorary doctor of humane letters degree.

His wife, Jane Pauley of NBC-TV's "Today Show," was awarded that degree from DePauw in 1978 at age 28, the youngest person to receive that degree at the university.

Allen, 45, mission specialist on the space shuttle last November and a 1959 DePauw graduate, will receive an honorary doctor of science degree.

The liberal arts college, affiliated with the United Methodist Church, will graduate 620 students on May 21.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Amblyopia can be treated

Dear Dr. Solomon: Will you please explain what amblyopia is? I used to think that it was only something a cartoonist dreamed up, but unfortunately I know different now. — Mrs. W.M., Flint, Mich.

Dear Mrs. M.: Amblyopia refers to reduced vision despite the absence of organic disease; it cannot be corrected by either the use of eyeglasses or contact lenses. Early recognition of the condition is important since it can usually be treated successfully in younger children; however, treatment usually is not successful in children over eight years of age.

When amblyopia cannot be corrected, efforts should be directed toward preserving the sight in the good eye. It is important that these patients use protective eyeglasses to prevent traumatic injury to the good eyes, since such an injury could leave them functionally blind.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have one child and at the time I was pregnant I swore not to have any more because I was so nauseous and vomiting all the time. That was three years ago and I'm beginning to change my mind. But what I would like to know is whether there is some form of treatment I could have if I become pregnant and have the same kind of problems again. — Mrs. H.Y., Va.

Dear Mrs. Y: Severe and intractable vomiting during pregnancy can result in dehydration and electrolyte imbalance. The usual treatment therefore consists of drugs to control the nausea, and the intravenous administration of fluids. Drs. Robert Zechnich, of the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, and Terence Hammer, of Redondo Beach, California, have now reported that brief psychotherapy, not necessarily by a psychiatrist, can produce a rapid, complete, and permanent cure.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 17 years old and have acne. So what else is new? What is new is that I don't eat candy, I watch my diet, I get eight hours sleep every night, and I scrub my face three times a day. What do I do next? — Annie Lee, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dear Annie Lee: As you imply in your letter, acne in a 17-year-old girl is neither new nor unusual. It is possible, however, that your effort to help clear up the condition by scrubbing may be doing more harm than good.

Dr. James J. Leyden, of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia, says that the friction that results from scrubbing may actually cause new acne lesions to form. It might be advisable for you to treat your skin a little more gently. Possibly your skin, like some people, will respond to kindness and tender, loving care.

For Tommy, Minneapolis, Minn.: An adequate intake of fluids is important for spinal cord injury patients in order to prevent the development of kidney problems. In addition, an acid-ash diet is often recommended. Such a diet would include meat, fish, poultry, eggs, cheese, cereals, and some nuts.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother often complains about having a dry mouth, and she says that it sometimes becomes very uncomfortable. She is 88 years old. Can anything be done about it? — Mrs. O.V., Alexandria, Va.

Dear Mrs. V.: The condition you describe is fairly common in older people. Treatment is directed toward the symptom. Ask your physician what he thinks about the use of a product that serves as a saliva substitute. It is sipped by the patient and can ease the discomfort your mother feels.

Lee student receives scholarship to A&M

Billy C. Sewell, of 3209 High Sky, is a recipient of a college-sponsored four-year Merit Scholarship from Texas A&M University through the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Sewell, a senior at Lee High School, plans to attend Texas A&M University and study electrical engineering.

He is a member of the National Honor Society and a member of the varsity basketball team. He serves as president of a church youth group and officer in the church youth choir. He is a two-year recipient of a National Science Award.

Police or filling station?

HONOLULU (AP) — A cool customer filched a tank of gasoline from police department pumps by claiming he couldn't divulge his identity because he was on a top-secret police operation, authorities said.

The man drove up to the department's gas tanks and asked for a fill-up, Lt. Robert Silva of the city police detective division said.

The man declined to give any identification to police, claiming he was working on a hush-hush, undercover job.

"The suspect passed himself off as an undercover vice officer and the attendant believed him," said Silva.

He said police have identified a suspect, but no arrests had been made.

'N.Y. Export: Op. Jazz' still fine merchandise

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "N.Y. Export: Op. Jazz" showed Europe the dynamic vitality of fine jazz ballet when Jerome Robbins' ballet company toured it, starting at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, in 1958.

When it's imported back into America, as American Ballet Theater did this week at the Metropolitan Opera, it shows the same thing, as fresh as new paint.

Of course it has been imported before. First was in a Broadway theater later the same year it was exported, by Jerome Robbins Ballet: USA. The Joffrey Ballet has danced it. American Ballet Theater first danced it last summer at the Mann Music Center in Philadelphia; the company's first showing in New York was Wednesday.

Robert Prince composed the half hour of music, which is played by what sounds like a big band. It swings but is cooler, smoother jazz than big bands usually play today. The dancing sometimes is cool, too, but nothing seems out of date. In jazz, even ragtime stays contemporary.

In the three ensemble sections, the dancing sometimes looks like moves by the neighborhood youths of "West Side Story." Tom Abbott and Wilma Curley, who restaged "N.Y. Export: Op. Jazz" for Ballet Theater both danced in "West Side Story" and both were members of the company Robbins ran from 1958 to 1961.

In one section, for five men and Elaine Kudo as a supercool charmer, she enticed them with a jerky slink, chose Brian Adams as her partner for some superfast spins. The next ensemble section had couples showing off dances for each other in a schoolyard.

Susan Jaffe and Robert La Fosse followed with a duet to a lament so slow that every move and preparation for lifts showed in vibrant clarity. The last movement had snake-hips-smooth movements. Then, when the music got moderately hot, the dancers "jazzed it up."

High-tech future takes on high priority with Reagan

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is a convert to America's high-tech future.

He traveled to Boston to visit a computer keyboard assembly plant and told the assembled employees, "This, this is the future, and you're part of it. This is where we're going."

And during a tour of an auto assembly plant near St. Louis, he marveled at the robots putting cars together.

But the 72-year-old president doesn't pretend to understand the technology of the revolution.

"To many of us now," he said in his State of the Union address in January, "computers, silicon chips, data processing, cybernetics and all the other innovations of the dawning high technology age are as mystifying as the workings of the combustion engine must have been when the first Model T rattled down Main Street, U.S.A."

And after a tour of a Pittsburgh classroom where computers were being used to teach students how to repair computers, the president told the class, "I know this will kind of date me a little bit, but I want to tell you that having taken this tour and seeing all that's going on up here, I don't know a single thing about anything I've seen."

Reagan's ignorance of the intricacies of scientific advance is older than the computer age, however.

During an awards ceremony this week honoring two pioneers in nuclear physics who helped build the first atomic bomb, Reagan recalled his first visit to a nuclear power plant nearly 30 years ago.

"In one particular building where they were showing me through, why, we put on felt boots and we put on some gowns and then we went through. But then we had to peel all of this off. And there was a slot machine there in which you put your hands and your feet, and there were four dials that started ticking away as to the amount of radioactivity that you might have acquired in your extremities. And mine all — on three of them — stopped, but on my left hand, that dial kept ticking and it was getting up there toward where the numbers were red.

"And I was getting a little concerned. And the manager of the plant looked over my shoulder, and he says, 'Oh, your left hand.' He says, 'Always happens.' He said, 'That's the radium dial on your wristwatch.' I was very relieved."

"I was 200 miles away from there when I realized I don't have a radium dial," Reagan said, drawing a roar of laughter from the crowd. "Every once in a while, I still put my head under the covers and look to see if my hand's lighting up."

But the president left his audience of technocrats with another story suggesting that knowledge does not wisdom make.

Miss USA not in best fiscal shape

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The best figures in this year's Miss USA pageant won't be in the ledger books, as local organizers are still struggling to raise $500,000 to pay for next week's nationally televised competition.

Miss USA, rival to the better-known Miss America pageant, is in a new city this year and having problems prying cash from Knoxville businesses, still exhausted from the expenses of playing host to the World's Fair.

The pageant also will be the butt of a local joke the night before, when an "Ugliest of the Ugly," contest is held, and the reigning Miss America has called the Miss USA event "a skin show."

Added to that have been the troubles of Miss Alaska, 21-year-old Amy Harms, who fell off a horse while on a picnic last week and suffered bruises.

But the show will go on for two hours on CBS, pageant official say, and the winner among the 51 Miss USA contestants has been promised $150,000 in cash and prizes.

Pageant officials have learned to brush off the criticism.

When Miss America Debra Sue Maffett visited Tennessee two weeks ago and said Miss USA was "just a skin show," the officials countered with the revelation that Miss Maffett twice lost in preliminary Miss USA competitions in Texas.

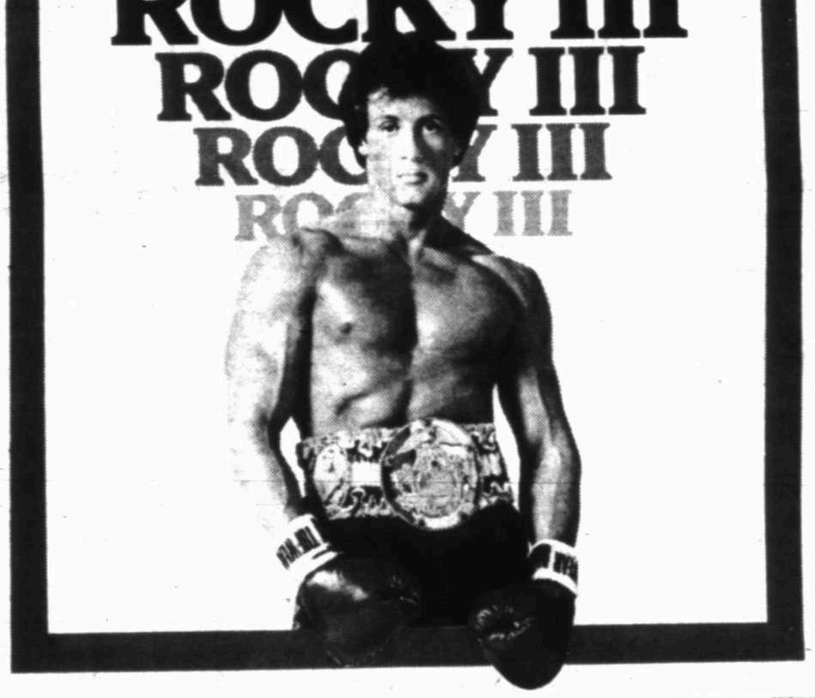

Harold Glasser, a tough-talking New York lawyer and president of Miss USA's owner, Miss Universe Inc., wastes no time pointing out that "The Miss America pageant is an amateur hour."

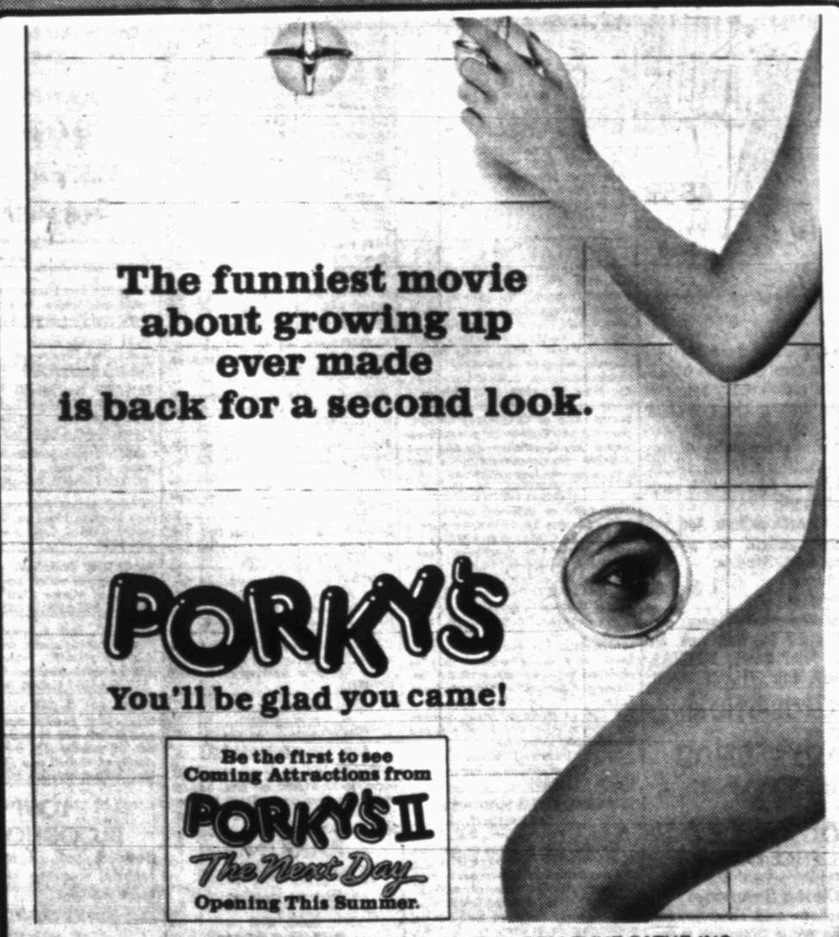

"Like us, they also wear swim suits, evening gowns and they also have interviews," Glasser said. "But Miss America is based upon your giving a performance of some kind of skill. How do you choose between twirling a baton and a girl playing a piano? It's between apples and oranges."

OFFER TO QUALIFIED BUYERS

LUXURY FAIRGATE TOWNHOMES FOR $92,500

If you're like most renters, the tax man's got you down and you're ready to cry uncle. You have no interest to write off, and, to make matters worse, you don't own a home. Each month those rent dollars go out the window with no hope of retrieval.

LIVE-IN TAX SHELTER

At Fairgate you'll enjoy a beautiful home and tax relief. You can deduct a considerable amount of interest expense from your income tax, and because our homes are priced below market value but presently sell for $92,500, you have built-in equity.

DISTINCTIVE 2 & 3 BEDROOM FLOORPLANS

Besides saving you money, at Fairgate you'll get some great extra features as standards. A fireplace. Appliances. Ceiling fans. And much more.

To visit Fairgate in northwest Midland, take Wadley Avenue west to Midland Drive; then north to Fairgate and the models.
