FHA Houses Provided For Victims Of Storm

Arrangements have been made through the Office of Emergency Planning at the White House to provide as many of the available vacant Federal Housing Administration-owned houses as necessary in Wichita Falls to relieve persons who lost their homes in Friday's tornado.

Ed McDermott, director of the Office of Emergency Planning, responded to a request by Dr. Al T. Witcher, mayor pro tem of Wichita Falls in the absence of Mayor John Gavin, said relief would be made available. Mayor Gavin was in Midland, Tex. when the tornado struck Wichita Falls. He was en route back to Wichita Falls early Saturday by private aircraft.

Dr. Witcher earlier had called Governor John Connally. The governor referred the mayor pro tem to McDermott for immediate relief. George Hastings of the Denton office of the agency, is en route to Wichita Falls and was scheduled to arrive about daybreak Saturday.

U.S., Panama To Reopen Ties

By LEWIS HAWKINS. WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Panama agreed Friday to end at once their 11-week breach of diplomatic relations and to discuss promptly differences which were climaxed in bloody January rioting.

A 150-word agreement to restore relations severed Jan. 17 and to seek a settlement of long-standing disputes was signed at the White House on Friday afternoon amid considerable fanfare. President Johnson then talked by phone with Panama's President Roberto Chiari. A short time later, Johnson designated Robert B. Anderson, former secretary of the Treasury, as the special U.S. emissary to seek an end to differences which go all the way back to the 1903 treaty which gave the United States perpetual control of the Panama Canal Zone. Times Square Lauded As 'Perfect' Plant

By CARROLL COPELIN

A feeling of sorrow marred what was to have been one of the greatest occasions in the life of the Wichita Falls Times and Record News here Friday night as officials of daily newspapers throughout the Southwest gathered to celebrate the formal opening of the papers' new home with Rhea Howard, editor and publisher.

About 50 empty chairs dotted the Garden Room of the Woman's Forum where some 200 guests were scheduled — attesting to the impact of the deadly tornado which danced across the city only hours before.

Pat Taggart, president of Newspapers Inc. of Waco, set the theme of the dinner when he rose to pay tribute to Howard and his newspapers. "Somehow humor is out of place tonight," Taggart told the solemn crowd which had just been told seven persons died in the twister.

The newspaper executive of five Texas papers told the audience "We have come to help Rhea dedicate this model of perfection which is his newspaper plant. History tells us it will be used to perpetuate the American way of life... that's the way it was at the old building and that's the way it will be at the new splendid plant—we have seen today."

Taggart described Howard as a "second generation newspaperman who grasped the fine qualities he inherited from his illustrious father and has projected news through his own enormous energies, imagination, gumption and courage."

"You never have any trouble figuring out which side of an issue he's on," Taggart said of Howard. "His candor and honesty and integrity stand out like the Rock of Gibraltar." Taggart said he had never been around any "really big newspapermen" that Howard's name wasn't introduced with "great respect."

Publisher Sees Tornado From Air

Ben Blanton, former Wichita and now publisher and owner of the Brenham Banner-Press, obtained a bird's eye view of Friday afternoon's tornado that moved slowly through the northern section of Wichita Falls and on to Sheppard Air Force Base.

He was in a plane, piloted by Earl Morriss, manager of the Brenham Municipal Airport, when the two spotted the tornado funnel forming as they flew over the Scotland area.

Blanton said he was pointing out the Bridwell Ranch to Morriss when the two started watching the cloud. They watched the funnel form and move slowly from the southwest to the northeast.

Blanton and Morriss watched as the tornado dipped and touched the ground. Immediately a great cloud of dust appeared as the funnel swirled.

The pair remained at the airport about 20 minutes watching the slow progress of the tornado.

Blanton was formerly promotion manager for the Times Publishing Co. and prior to that was executive vice president and manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Blanton and Morriss were coming to Wichita Falls for a Friday night dinner for editors and publishers of daily newspapers in the Southwest district which was one of the events scheduled prior to the public open house Saturday and Sunday of the new home of the Times and Record News.

Kansas Coed Named Miss Wool Of 1964

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Miss Suzi Beck, 19, of Manhattan, Kan., a student at Kansas State, was crowned Miss Wool of 1964 Friday night.

Miss Ilona Martin, 20, of Slinger, Wis., was second and Miss Kippy Lou Brinkman, 19, of Richland, Wash., was third.

Miss Beck was named at the end of a pageant during which 20 finalists modeled wool fashions.

Relief And Aid Groups Swing Into Action Following Twister

By HAZEL KOHL

Relief and aid groups in Wichita Falls swung into action Friday afternoon after the first reports of a tornado which swirled across the northern section of the city and Sheppard Air Force Base.

Participating agencies included the American Red Cross, Civil Defense, county and city law enforcement groups, Sheppard Air Force Base, auxiliary groups, the Salvation Army and Texas National Guard.

Sheppard Air Force Base, which was heavily damaged by the funnel cloud which took seven lives, injured scores and left more homeless, immediately made 60 litters available to Wichita General Hospital for use in caring for the injured.

The base also had 10 vehicles with 20 men standing by to be of assistance.

Many families for the type of action taken by these groups Friday were laid at the March 17 meeting of the Disaster Preparedness Coordinating Committee of all emergency, relief and aid groups which would operate in the city.

George Cleveger, manager of the Wichita County Red Cross, praised the action of all groups involved.

Shelter Set Up
The main shelter area for those left homeless was set up by the ARC at the Central Boys Club and was equipped to handle 150 persons. It could handle more than 300 if necessary.

Salvation Army workers were placing families in volunteer homes Friday night and said many families in Wichita Falls had called to offer lodging to those left homeless.

A large ARC canteen from Dallas, immediately moved into the area and set up headquarters in Sunset Terrace, which was heavily damaged. The canteen was serving food and was equipped to take care of minor injuries.

All food at the canteen and the ARC shelter is being prepared under the direction of Millard Underwood, Underwood's Bar-B-Q; Leroy Daniels, Luby's Cafeteria and Phil Listen, Piccadilly Cafeteria.

Cleveger also said arrangements had been made with several restaurant owners to feed those left homeless in the wake of the tragedy.

Wichita County chapter stressed that all services provided by the Red Cross are without charge. He further added that anyone wishing to help stricken families and persons could send funds in care of the Wichita County Red Cross, Fifth and Baylor.

Word was also received that the Seventh Day Adventist Church is bringing in a truck load of clothing for those needing it. The clothing will be free and the group will coordinate with the Red Cross.

Civil Defense, under the direction of Ken Warren, county director, had more than 50 volunteers out including National Guard, auxiliary police, county fire units, Coast Guard Auxiliary and others who were working in the disaster area.

An added sour note to Friday's tragedy here was the need for extra patrolling in the stricken areas due to looting.

Command posts had been set up by National Guard personnel in the areas effected by the twister.

Dr. James Lee reported that all hospitals in the city did an exceptional job during the aftermath.

Calm Efficiency At General

By PETER HINCHLIFFE

In sharp contrast to the chaos reigning in the Sunset Terrace area, the scene in Wichita General Hospital's emergency room minutes after Friday's tornado smashed its way across the northwestern section of the city was one of calm efficiency.

Working to a master disaster plan, which incidentally was revised only three months ago, doctors and nurses converged on the hospital from all points of the compass. A number also went to Bethania Hospital. When the first ambulances began to arrive from the stricken area, medical teams were ready and waiting to help the injured.

These medical teams comprised a full cross section of the help likely to be needed by victims of a disaster, burns teams, surgery teams, and the like.

Within an hour, 30 persons arrived in the emergency room at Wichita General Hospital. Four persons were dead on arrival and three more died within minutes of reaching the hospital, and were quickly transferred to funeral homes here.

To cope with this flood of patients, mattresses were laid down in a waiting room to provide additional bed space.

The doctors and nurses went about their duties with such calmness that it was impossible to fully realize the tragic dramas which were being enacted in the crowded emergency room.

Frank Schueller, administrator of Wichita General Hospital, gave an insight into the tremendous organization which enabled the doctors and nurses to deal with the victims of one of the worst disasters in the city's history. "As soon as the tornado hit, the emergency plan went into effect," he said. "Most of the medical staff knew to report automatically for duty."

"We have a list of doctors, rated in order of importance in a situation like this, and also a list of nurses. Our switchboard was swamped with calls, so we had to use the two pay telephones in the lobby of the hospital to call these doctors and nurses."

"Our disaster plan worked very well indeed. Actually, we could have coped with very many more patients than were brought into the emergency room. Needless to say, we were only too glad that the numbers of injured were no higher."

Schueller added that the city's doctors and the nursing staff had performed their duties magnificently. "They deserve a big vote of thanks for the way they did their jobs Friday," he said.

He concluded by saying the disaster had pointed up only one flaw in the emergency system. "We really need to establish a system of radio communications at the hospital so that we can contact police and workers at the scene of the disaster," he added. "Telephones simply are not adequate to the task we were faced with Friday. We had to use a private radio in the automobile of a doctor who came to the hospital to keep in contact with rescue workers and the authorities."

Sunset Terrace Virtually Demolished

By LARRY GRAUERHOLZ

With a ravenous roar like a thousand freight trains, the Black Friday tornado entered Wichita Falls at the northwest corner and left a six-block area in Sunset Terrace in utter ruin before it crossed the expressway and headed toward Sheppard AF Base.

The home of Rev. and Mrs. John D. Ward at 4201 Comanche Parkway, at the extreme northwest corner of the addition, was one of the first in the city to feel the brunt of the twister. The mother of Mrs. Ward, Mrs.

E. W. Satterfield and the two children, 11-year-old Danny and 6-year-old Debra, were in the middle of the house.

About half the house and the carport were caved in like a giant fist had crushed them, but Mrs. Satterfield and the children received only minor lacerations.

In the area bounded by Las Vegas, Wrangler Drive, Longview Trail and the Expressway, devastation was complete. Not a home in the area escaped destruction. The damage resembled blockbuster bomb damage from World War II.

Automobiles were overturned and crushed by falling debris. Broken furniture, air conditioning equipment, crumbled masonry, bedding, children's toys and other debris littered the entire area north of Wrangler.

A drive-in grocery at the north end of Cimarron Trail was levelled, with canned goods and soft drink bottles covering the area.

East of the hard-hit area, damage was less severe. As the twister headed toward Sheppard, homes in the southeast area of Sunset Terrace were not in the main path. On Tucson Drive, four homes were destroyed, three were heavily damaged, and others suffered broken windows and damaged roofs.

Every home on Longview Trail north of Wrangler was a total loss.

It seemed a miracle that no one was buried in the wreckage. Rescue crews were digging in the wreckage, righting overturned autos, and attempting to clear the area.

The area was thoroughly patrolled within an hour after the storm and there was little confusion. Only authorized persons or those who lived in the area were allowed to turn off the Iowa Park Highway into the affected area.

Dazed residents of the area gathered in small groups of twos and threes. Most of them were thankful that their lives were spared, and many were concerned about relatives.

Officers were clearing the affected area before darkness. As the sun set on Sunset, the Black Friday of April 3, 1964 was sure to be seared into the memories of the hundreds of residents of Sunset Terrace.

Escape From Twister Adds To Woman's Belief In God

Janette Alexander believes in God.

When she crouched over her four small children, face buried in prayer, "I knew everything would be all right. The wind blew and everything was crumbling around us, but I wasn't worried."

Mrs. Alexander, who lives at 4110 Pecos in the Sunset Terrace addition, was idly watching television when ten-year-old Jimmy screamed "tornado, Mommy" and ran into the house.

"Don't be funny," she said, dimly recalling a program she had watched the night before on tornado protection.

Then her other son, Bennett, noticed some hailstones and "a funny cloud." The sky was darkening.

"By then, I got up and looked out the window. 'My God,' I said, 'It's coming after us.'"

"I ran after my kids, two sons and a two daughters (Tina, 4, and Josi, 2.) and we got to the southeast corner of the house. My neighbor (Mrs. Ida Richie) was screaming and crying. By that time the tornado was on us."

Mrs. Alexander thought about her third daughter, at school in City View Elementary. She is Glen Ann, 11, who was still in the school Friday night awaiting her mother.

The 30-year-old mother chuckled a little as she rubbed her ankle—scratched—for which she was sent to Wichita General Hospital in an ambulance. Around her people were bleeding and in shock.

"Then the twister really hit. I fell over all four of my children and told them to pray, to God, and to pray for their sister at school. My husband was at the base then, and we prayed for him, too. I haven't seen him yet."

After what seemed, to her, "forever," she crawled out a broken window into the murky air.

"All the rest of the house was smashed. Ruined. I don't know how we lived through it. I just know one thing: I believe in God."

Tornado Kills Retired Banker

ALFRED M. MILLER

Alfred M. Miller, 75, a resident of Wichita Falls since 1917 and former vice president of First National Bank here, was one of seven persons killed in the catastrophic tornado which struck Wichita Falls about 3 p.m. Friday.

Miller was killed when the twister apparently overtook his pickup truck as it traveled along the Red River Expressway. He lived nearby on Huntington Lane. The funnel picked up the truck, which he occupied alone, and virtually threw it from the road. It landed about 50 yards away upside down. Miller apparently was killed instantly.

Miller, who was on the board of directors of First Wichita National Bank at the time of his death, was born at Gorman, Tex. Feb. 1, 1889.

He came to Wichita Falls from the First National Bank in Munday, Tex. Sept. 1, 1917. He was first employed here as a teller but advanced rapidly to vice president and became nationally well-known in banking circles.

Upon the date of his retirement in 1959 Carter McGregor, then president of First National Bank, said of Miller: "Throughout his residence in Wichita Falls, Miller served on various boards and in numerous offices for community organizations. Always he has been a leader in promoting Wichita Falls. He will be greatly missed by personnel and customers at the bank."

For several years Miller served as secretary-treasurer of Midwestern University board of directors, assuming that position when the school was still Hardin Junior College.

He was a member of First Presbyterian Church, the Masonic Lodge, the Shrine and the Elks Lodge.

Miller was with the First National Bank here for 42 years and devoted his time to his cattle business after retirement.

Funeral services are pending at Hampton-Vaughan Funeral Home in Wichita Falls.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Marion Miller of the home; a daughter, Mrs. Tom S. Montgomery of Dallas; a son, Capt. Alfred M. Miller Jr. of Fort Walton Beach, Fla.; a sister, Mrs. Bess Ragsdale of Fort Worth; a brother, Will T. Miller of Fort Worth; and seven grandchildren.

Visiting Publishers Laud Times Square As Most Modern Newspaper In Southwest

WIPE OUT — George Lummus, employe of Times Publishing Company, rushed home after the storm to find his property cleared of three houses he owns, including his home. Several of his neighbors suffered similar fate. Mrs. Lummus reported that 27 persons took refuge in their storm cellar when the tornado struck Friday afternoon. Rubble of the houses is in the background.

"Your success reflects credit on anyone who calls himself a newspaperman," Taggart concluded.

Standing Ovation
Howard, who was introduced by James Barnett, executive vice president and treasurer of the Times Publishing Co., received a standing ovation from the crowd.
The veteran publisher reiterated his description of his papers which he made several years earlier: "My idea of the Times and Record News has been to make them attractive, readable and useful newspapers that would enter the homes of this community as a kindly helpful friend of the family."

"My temperament has always led me to dwell on the virtues of men and institutions rather than upon their limitations; my disposition has always been to build rather than tear down or join the wrecking crew."
Howard told the visiting newspaper officials that Times Square, the new home of his papers, was "a dream come true" and thanked them for helping make this dream a reality.

Dr. Earle Crawford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation and benediction at Friday night's dinner.
Special guests introduced included Rep. Graham Purcell of 13th Congressional District who arrived late because of an inspection tour of the tornado damage at Sheppard Air Force Base; Bob Johnson, chief of the Association Press bureau at Dallas; Donald Goss, architect of Times Square; E. L. Simmons, vice president of the Fort Worth & Denver Railway; and Y. E. Juge, freight traffic director for the Fort Worth & Denver.

St. Augustine Tutoring Plan Set For Summer

By JOE MCGOWAN JR.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Growing out of racial demonstrations of the past week is a plan for white college students and teachers to live with and tutor St. Augustine's Negro youth this summer.

Demonstrations that resulted in the arrest of nearly 300 white and Negro integrationists appeared to have been, at least for the present, called off.

Most of the visiting Northerners, of whom Mrs. Malcolm Peabody as mother of the Massachusetts governor became the central figure, returned to their homes and college campuses.

The demonstrations produced no integration of privately owned facilities nor a biracial committee such as was formed in Jacksonville last week.

The Rev. Bernard Lee, an aide to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., said the desegregation campaign in America's oldest city would continue. But he was not definite about the tactics.

"Our plans for this summer are quite tentative," said Walton Senterfitt, a Yale student who has been special assistant to Dr. R. B. Hayling, St. Augustine Negro dentist and local integration leader.

"We are aiming to have at least 20 persons, possibly 50 or more, come here to work for a period of four to 10 weeks this summer," Senterfitt said.

Twister Survivors Mourn Injuries, Property Loss

By BILL LAMBERT
State Editor

"It's gone, all gone. I've worked all my life and now it's all gone," sobbed Ray Lummus, standing in the midst of a twisted pile of useless rubble that had once been his home and trailer courts.

But despite his anguish, Lummus was thankful that his wife had escaped the fate of several of his neighbors who had been seriously and even fatally injured by a furious twister that struck on Old Burk Road and turned three blocks of what had been homes, trailer courts and businesses into a fantastic jumble of junk.

Mrs. Lummus and 26 neighbors — including most of the tenants of their trailer courts — had taken refuge in a storm cellar Lummus had built in 1957. "The good Lord was looking for us when I dug that cellar," he smiled at a neighbor.

The devastating twister, from a distance of about a mile, had not looked very menacing; it looked like a big dust storm of extreme density.

The writer, speeding to the scene, watched the boiling storm move slowly and north of the Vernon-cut-off on the Red River expressway, then touch down. It seemed to stand still for minutes; I got out and took a picture. My watch said 3:16 p.m.

Silver Spiral
As I was focusing my camera a beautiful silver spiral appeared in the middle of the column of dust, several hundred feet high. Then, suddenly, it just vanished — spiral, dust and everything disappeared.

The cloud had never given the traditional appearance of a tornado, at least not from close range: there was no black funnel visible from my angle. The thick cloud of swirling dust obscured any sight of damage within the funnel.

After it disappeared, I went on down Burk Road to just beyond Sheppard Gate No. 2. At that point buildings and cars were covered with mud and dust. Unable to see any damage ahead, I stopped in a deserted service station — the owner had wisely cleaned his cash drawer and headed for safety — and attempted to call the newspaper office for information concerning damage or injuries.

The telephone was dead. I went back to the car but, magically, Air Police had appeared and sirens were blaring ahead of me. I left my car, since the Air Police were restricting travel to emergency vehicles only, and ran about three blocks to a point on the Burk Burnett Highway across from the old Sheppard AFB Hospital.

Incredible Destruction
There a scene of incredible destruction awaited me. Ambulances were already on the scene and removing the casualties, at least one apparently dead at the time.

A liquor store, once a modern structure, was nothing but a pile of bricks interspersed with liquor bottles. The smell of beer and liquor permeated the area.

Rescue workers — dodging wires knocked down and careful to avoid setting off gas escaping from broken lines — quickly pushed through the rubble to find survivors. At the El Rey courts, observers said, a pickup truck owner pressed his vehicle into service as an ambulance and took a load of casualties to the hospital.

What had been Lummus' home and trailer courts, and the extreme western edge of the El Rey Courts, was a confused tangle of nothing.

The only recognizable furnishing from Lummus' home was his deep freeze, still sitting in place and undisturbed.

The dismembered parts of the trailers on Lummus' lot and several vehicles had been collected by the violent storm and deposited in a grove of trees, most of the trailers remained dozens to a hundred feet from their original position. Clothing, furnishings and toys hung from the tree limbs.

All were completely destroyed, along with furnishings and personal property of the owners.

Storm Refuge
Mrs. Lummus and many of her neighbors, including the employees of the liquor store, had gone into the cellar after seeing the funnel approach. The violent wind tore the cellar door from its hinges despite the efforts of four men to hold it in place. Mrs. Lummus said, but inside no one was injured.

Lummus said a 400-pound metal counterweight on the cellar door was blown away and no trace could be found in the vicinity.

Just south of the Lummus property Mrs. Effie Denney also took to her storm cellar, along with about 16 neighbors. They, too, survived although Mrs. Denney's home was destroyed. An adjoining vacant house, one occupied by Herb Edmondson and the Thompson Grocery were heavily damaged.

The El Rey scene was similar to that at the Lummus lot although the violence, in general did not seem as great — if there can be any degrees of destruction. At least, you could recognize most of the trailers.

Once the frantic search for survivors had settled down to a slower pace, the emotional impact began setting in on the residents. Mrs. Lummus, before her husband arrived from work, simply sat on the cellar and sobbed audibly despite the efforts of a daughter to comfort her.

Airman Hysterical
One burly airman, seeing the photographers at work, became hysterical. "Get those cameras out of here," he screamed, "can't you see people are hurting?" He lunged for the camera of a photographer who avoided his charge and the man's wife soon quieted him.

At the El Rey courts one pretty young bride, apparently about 17, seemed to have called her husband to meet her at the court office and then went there. In transit, she went into a state of shock.

The girl was unable to speak coherently, except to repeat that she couldn't leave or her husband couldn't find her. An ambulance was called to take her to the base infirmary, despite her robot-like protests, but soon the young husband arrived and the couple fell into each other's arms. They didn't speak or cry; they just clutched each other as tightly as possible. Visitors who had been attempting to aid the girl before left them still clinging to each other as though afraid to ever part again.

The twister, like all of its kind, had its freakish aspect. In the midst of the most incredible clutter this reporter witnessed in the entire city was a perfectly clear spot about 100 feet square. There wasn't a blade of grass left by the twister in this spot.

Leo Gillam, who works for an exterminator service, said he was in the Villa Motel restaurant when he saw the storm approaching and attempted to outrun it in his car, but instead ran into it. According to Gillam, the wind picked the car up, carried it about 90 feet and sat it in a ditch, without damaging the vehicle or injuring the occupant.

The rungs out of the backs of a wooden kitchen chair had embedded themselves in the back wall of the Thompson Grocery, which also serves as living quarters for the owners.

But perhaps the greatest miracle of all was the relatively low loss of life, in comparison with the great amount of damage in the area. The storm moved slowly and could be seen for a great distance and most of the residents were prepared for it when it struck.

Still in critical condition Friday night was Mrs. Jan Thomas, daughter of Mrs. Minear, who was undergoing surgery in Wichita General Hospital.

Joe Collins, 15, was on his way to the hospital for an appendectomy when the twister struck. Danny Arias, 9, and Joe B. Moore, 47, are both in good condition in Wichita General.

Others treated there, 17 in all, were shortly released. Only two persons were treated for minor injuries at Bethania Hospital. Those taken for intensive treatment at Sheppard base hospital included 11 Air Force dependents; 51 were treated and released Friday night.

Hospitalized on the base were an infant girl known only as Minor; Iris Mercier, Wayne Wanko, Roy E. Bennett, Dorothy V. Bennett, James Kirschhoff, Marie J. Blum, Lawrence Ferreri, Ronden Thomas, Janise Thomas and Mrs. Beth Watson. Five of these were in serious condition.

FHA Offers Surplus Homes To Victims

The Federal Housing Administration announced Friday night it would make surplus housing available for 200 families left homeless by the tornado which struck Friday afternoon.

In Wichita Falls, Bill Sharp who handles single unit dwellings for FHA said he imagined the announcement meant an emergency rental program. He had not received details of the plan announced by Phillip Brownstein, FHA commissioner, who acted on a request from Rep. Graham Purcell.

Sharp said he had two and three bedroom houses under the FHA program in Lynwood East and a number in Iowa Park. He estimated 50 in Iowa Park and about 100 scattered in Wichita Falls. Some of his FHA houses were in the demolished area of Sunset Terrace.

Other dwellings, according to the announcement, will be available in the Faith Village apartments. H. B. Camp handles the multi-units for FHA. He was not available to learn how many units he had available.

Sharp was expecting instructions from the FHA office in Washington by working time Saturday.

The notification cleared the way for restoring to the two countries trade concessions which Congress ordered taken from them in 1962 by an amendment to the Trade Expansion Act.

Tornado Alley Residents Find Extent Of Damage Unbelievable

By CARROLL COPELIN

Even for a long-time resident of "Tornado Alley," the damage left in the wake of Friday's twister was hard to realize.

In the Sunset Terrace area there were blocks of homes virtually unharmed — except they had no roofs. On other streets, almost exactly half of one of the smaller brick houses would be standing apparently unharmed but the other half of the same house would be nothing but a pile of debris.

Other blocks of houses in the same general area were leveled with their occupants in drenched looking groups just standing in front of the ruins or perhaps aimlessly poking through the rubble.

The shattered hulks of what were once family automobiles were stacked like so much cordwood alongside some of the ruined homes. There would be no cars at one or two houses and then the next one would have as many as four or five stacked neatly beside each other.

Stories of minor miracles were a dime a dozen through Sunset Terrace. The one about the leveled house where searchers probing for possible casualties discovered two canaries and two small Easter chickens happily chirping beneath the rubble was typical.

Greatest Miracle
Perhaps the greatest miracle of the afternoon was the fact that City View School, an independent school with about 650 students in the first eight grades, was missed by the devastating funnel cloud by only a few hundred yards.

At the time the tornado struck, the school was crammed with youngsters anxiously awaiting the bell which would dismiss them for the day and sent several hundred of them heading into the area which was lashed by the twister.

Mrs. R. V. Hendricks, who was at her home at 4101 Comanche when the dancing twister struck, took refuge in a clothes closet with her three children. "I was in there about 10 minutes before it hit," she said later. "There wasn't any noise except just as things started to break, it sounded like hail hitting my bedroom windows."

The Hendricks' house was completely destroyed but Mrs. Hendricks and her children, 3, 7 and 8, escaped without a scratch despite the fact that walls crumbled around them.

Family Dog Gone
The family dog, a large Boxer, had disappeared — apparently a victim of the twister. Two birds and two chickens which had been given the children for Easter, survived and were discovered amid the soggy wreckage of the home. The birds were singing gaily.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Hanks, 1727 Longview, emerged from the leveled wreckage of their home with only a minor scratch apiece. The Hanks said they first knew of the tornado's approach when their television set went off.

They ran to the front door and saw the dancing funnel cloud less than three blocks distant and heading their way. "We ran into the front bedroom and got down beside the bed," Hanks said. "The thing hit and we didn't know anything until we crawled out of our hole."

The Hanks pointed out the sanctuary they hid in during the storm, a tiny cubicle formed by fallen debris which looked literally impossible for two people to get in.

Harold Stalins, 4123 Pecos in Sunset Terrace, said he saw the funnel forming as he drove home from Sheppard Air Force Base. Arriving at his house, he herded his wife and two children and his wife and children of a neighbor into the hallway of his home.

"I put the kids in the middle and then we waited," Stalins said. "When it didn't hit, I got up to see if it had missed us and just then, it hit."

Stalins said the force lasted for about five minutes. The hallway of the Stalins' home was the only place in the home that wasn't left in shambles.

Mrs. Ida Richie, 4105 Pecos, said she saw the twister coming and rounded up her son and the neighbor's children and put them under a couch. One of the children who escaped unhurt said they first thought they weren't going to be able to get out from under the rubble which fell on them.

GARBLLED WIRE — This high-voltage transmission line was pushed into a garbled mass under the force of the twister in the Sunset Terrace area. The slatted fence below sustained only minor damage and served to catch debris blown from nearby houses. In addition to hundreds of damaged homes were without electricity and telephone service for hours.

Tornado-Inured Oklahoman Awed By Destruction Here

By CHARLES WOLSTON
"It was the worst thing I've ever seen and I came from Oklahoma where tornadoes aren't out of the ordinary. Houses, cars, high lines just everything was scattered everywhere in Sunset Terrace." Lewis Owensby, 1119 Rosemary, recounted Friday afternoon after watching a tornado strike Wichita Falls.

Owensby, whose daughter Janice is a senior in Hirsch High School, had as much concern as other Wichitans who resided in the northern sections of Wichita Falls.

Owensby pointed out that through the swirling dust and dirt kicked up by the tornado the hardest hit in Sunset Terrace were residents along Las Vegas eastward to Phoenix. The rain stopped at Tank Farm Road, but the twister simply went up and headed toward Sheppard Air Force Base.

Owensby, composing room foreman for the Wichita Falls Record News, was en route to his residence when the twister struck.

"The closer we got to Sunset Terrace, the worse things looked—house roof tops were spinning around in the air and streets were being rained with debris. Brick homes were just scattered chunks which littered the streets and underpasses were blocked with automobiles. In fact, it was so bad I was afraid the ambulances would not be able to make their way through to help the injured," he said.

Human nature is just naturally that way, I guess. In the wake of the disastrous tornado that struck Wichita Falls—Sunset Terrace addition, people living in other sections of the city appeared to go calmly about their routines.

Irony, Shock In Aftermath Of Twister

By TED LEACH
Some found irony in it all. Others were shocked, tears rimming their eyes as they surveyed the damage left by a tornado that had just wiped out their homes in Wichita Falls Friday afternoon.

All were amazed by the suddenness of it all. The hardest hit area was Sunset Terrace, an addition northwest of the city. It was estimated that more than 100 housing units had been damaged, some almost beyond recognition.

Sheppard Air Force Base T.Sgt. Loyd Alexander, who lived at 4100 Wrangler until Friday afternoon, sat on a portion of the foundation of his house and told how he and a small son had escaped injury and possible death.

"I saw it coming and grabbed my boy and got in the car. I drove 90 miles an hour down the expressway until I came to an underpass and then pulled under it until the storm passed. I had asked some of the neighbors to go with me. Some of them just laughed when we tried to get them to come along," he said.

Then looking around at what was left of his house he said, "I'm in pretty good shape, aren't I? I'm alive... and I guess that's what counts."

His wife was working in Wichita Falls at the time of the twister. A daughter was in school. Considering everything, Alexander figures he has a lot to be thankful for.

Sunset Terrace Residents Soberly Eye Damage

By BUDDY WORKS
As darkness got ready to settle over the devastated area of Sunset Terrace, Friday, people were still rummaging through houses seeking salvagable items.

Police loudspeakers blared from the streets for all but home owners to clear out of the area which encompassed about 100 crumpled ruins of homes.

Looting had already started as law officers and volunteers from Wichita Falls and many area towns began sealing off the area. National Guardsmen prepared to move into the area at dusk to keep watch over the tangled wreckage.

Units from the Wichita Falls police department, all available sheriff units, the fire department and the air and navy auxiliary's as well as the Civil Defense and Red Cross were on the scene doing their share.

Law enforcement officials from Quanah, Chillicothe, Vernon, Iowa Park, Jacksboro, Bowie and Henrietta were dispatched to either Sunset Terrace or Sheppard Air Force Base to help in rescue operations.

People milled through the six to ten block area surrounding Wrangler, Las Vegas and other streets of the area, searching for friends and relatives. Police set up check points at six spots to keep all but rescue officials and key persons out of the area.

Devastation From Twister Said Virtually Complete

By GLENN SHELTON
If an atomic bomb had exploded, the devastation hardly could have been more complete.

The area just west of Sheppard Air Force Base, plus a wide swath through the base itself, looked like a no-man's-land of World War I.

Telephone poles were broken, their lines dangling. Trees were bare and twisted, odd bits of paper and clothing waved like tiny banners from the limbs.

Trailer houses were upturned, their bowels exposed. Gnarled pieces of plumbing and auto parts were strewn everywhere. Water gushed like geysers from broken mains. Gas hissed from ruptured lines.

I talked with H. T. Daniel, an employe of Save Way No. 2, a liquor store almost totally destroyed. Still dazed, he told how he and another employe, Gene Griffin, took refuge in a storm cellar moments before the twister struck.

In addition to Vernon relatives, H. G. Pennington is survived by his wife and four children.

HOUSE STRIPPED — The roof and most of the walls were ripped away in this house at 4100 Wrangler in Sunset Terrace. Here the occupants of the wrecked home survey extend of the loss in food in the refrigerator-freezer, clothing in the closets and other goods and furnishings, as well as their home itself. The Loyd Alexander family of three escaped injury.

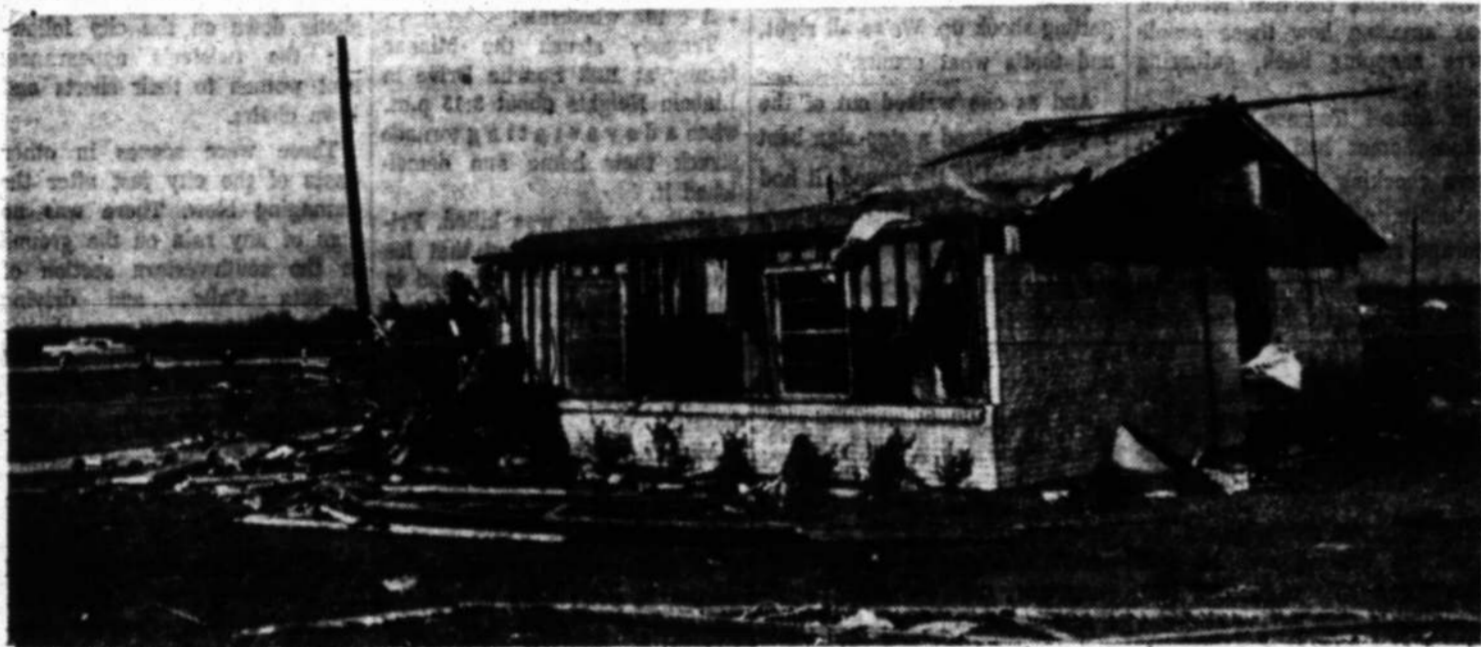

AFTER THE STORM — A mother holds his puppy. The house in the background suffered extensive damage despite the brick wall still standing. Yards of the homes are littered with lumber and bricks.

BRICK HOMES — A row of brick homes in Sunset Terrace was crumpled under the terrific pressure of Friday afternoon's tornado. Here a couple stop to comfort a puppy. Early arrivals of newsmen and police in the area reported many persons just stood around or strolled about their homes in an apparent state of shock. This scene is along Wrangler street.

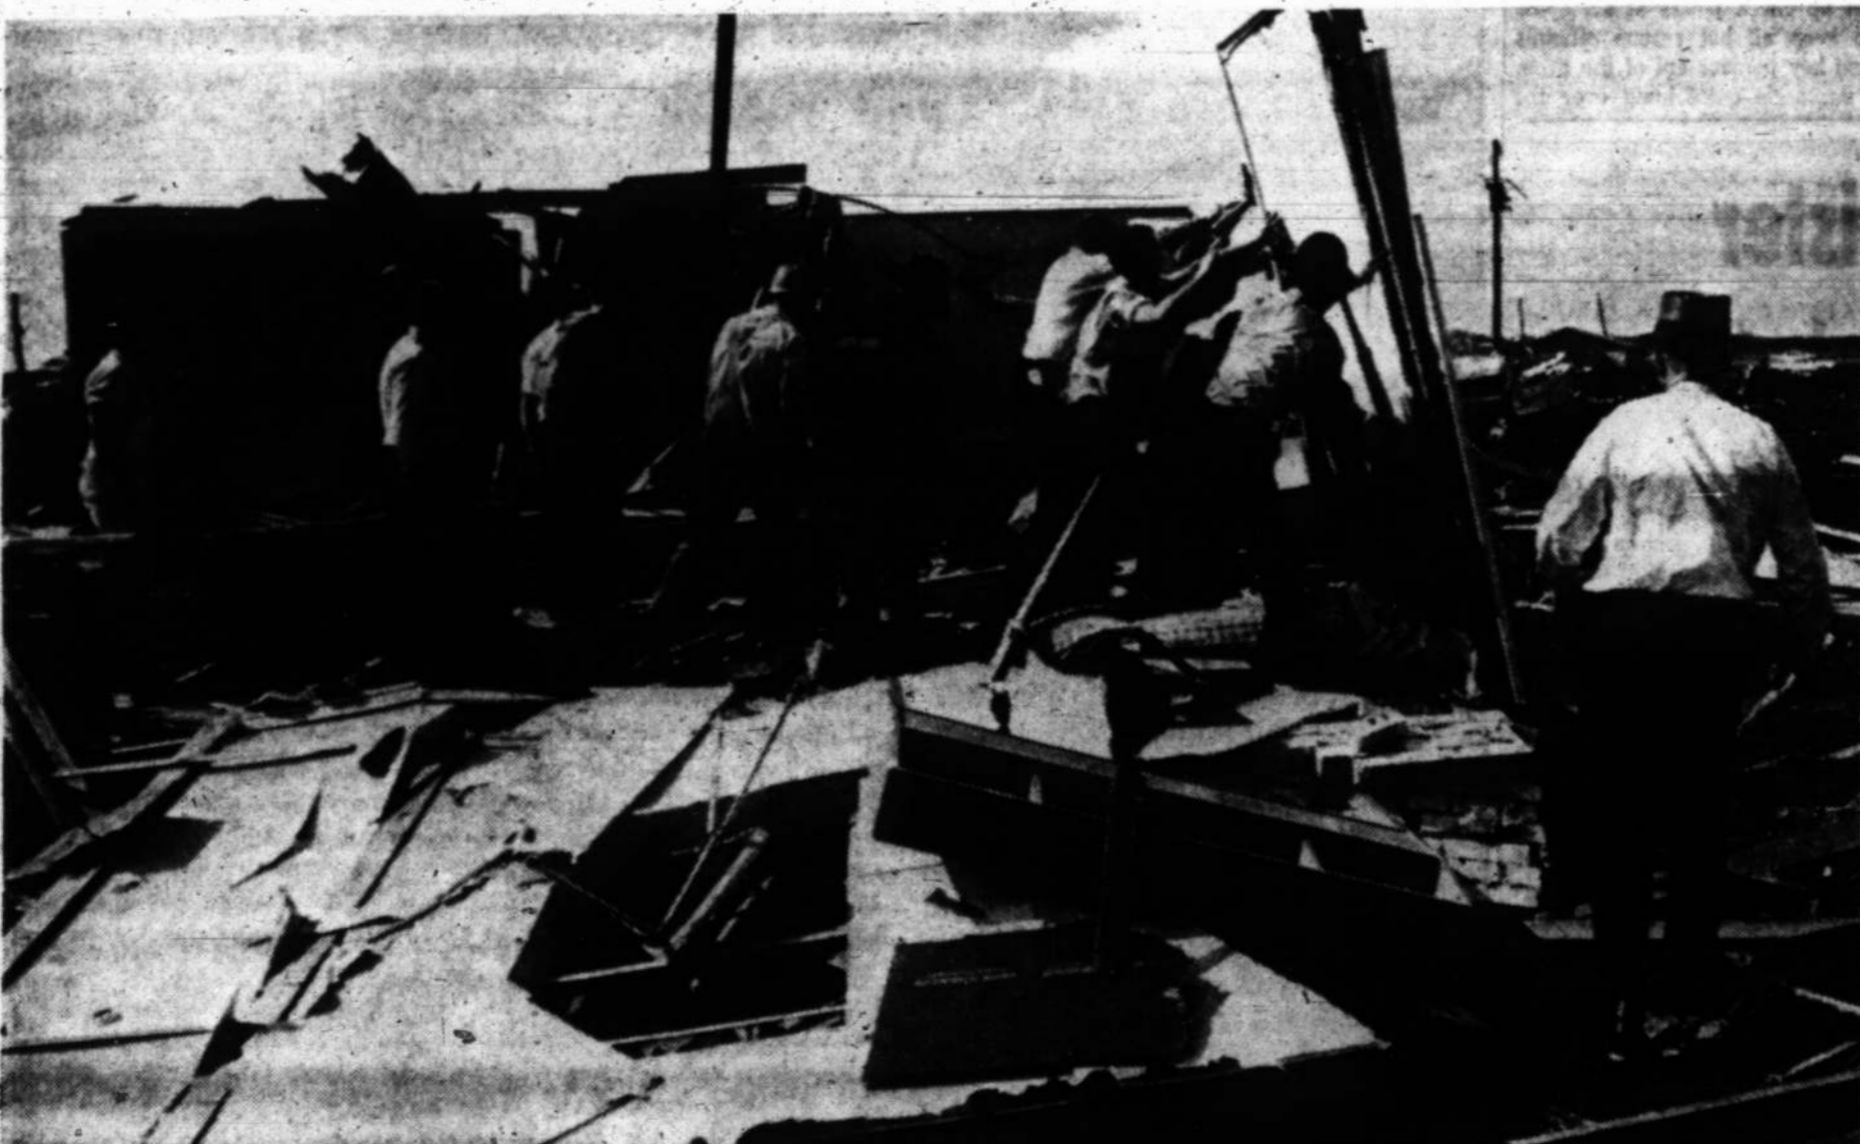

AUTOMOBILE ROLLED — This heavy passenger car came to rest in front of this badly damaged home on Wrangler street in Sunset Terrace. While damage to the car was heavy, the damage to the house shown here was set at total loss. The photographic staff of the two newspapers were unable to determine where the individual injured persons came from. The toll of injured continued to rise into the night, according to reports from the hospitals.

NEAR EXPRESSWAY—This house on Wrangler in Sunset Terrace, just south of the expressway to Iowa Park, was the last house damaged by the twister before it jumped the road to mostly vacant fields. The family in the house apparently escaped injury, but were reported dazed for several hours. The roofing and much of the wooden siding was peeled from the structure. The house and most of its furnishings was considered a total loss, according to an initial survey.

HUNT FOR BABY — Firemen and rescue workers search debris of a wrecked house on Wrangler street in Sunset Terrace for a baby believed buried. The child was located safe across the street in a house that escaped total levelling. After an initial search for victims, firemen and police cleared the area to prevent looting. This three-bedroom brick home was reduced to rubble.

Women in the News

Secrets Of Charm Learn To Laugh For Happiness

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS
Too many women are chronic complainers. Some even turn into nagging shrews. The irony of it is that this may be one of the best times of their lives. Is it a happy period for you? Do you recognize it as such?

The discontented woman does not. She is always looking for something she doesn't have or isn't doing at the present. The "grass is greener on the other side" could well be her motto. Such a woman defeats herself by being pessimistic. She is always finding fault with those around her — her children and husband. She longs for a change. It is only after the good times are past that too many realize that they were actually delightful.

Taking for granted that it requires all the patience and skill a woman possesses to be charming, learn to laugh often. It's very healthy. Pleasant laughter is a delight to the ear. If children do something amusing, it deserves honest laughter. And it's an indication of friendliness and enjoyment that gives the assurance young people need.

A mother that laughs easily and frequently is always the bright spot in any family gathering or in social groups. Even if she doesn't feel cheerful, the unselfish, wonderful mother acts that way, anyway. She is the pivot around which the whole family revolves, so it's up to her to keep it on an even, cheerful keel. And she has found that just making the effort will most probably cure any blues she might have, too.

ANN LANDERS SAYS

Skinny Girl's Appetite Is Breaking Up Her Date

Dear Ann Landers: Call me Tom. I am a high school junior with big ideas and a small allowance. The girl I like best has an appetite like a horse. She can eat two of everything. We have a real date either on Friday or Saturday night and $3 doesn't last any time at all. During the week when we walk home from school together she always wants to stop some place for a snack. I can't afford it.

I like this girl a lot but she is eating herself out of my life. Please don't tell me to suggest that she should watch her weight because she is skinny and is trying to put on ten pounds. Would it be all right if I came right out and told her how I feel? Or should I pay up and shut up? —TOM

Dear Tom: Tell that vacuum cleaner with teeth that you can't afford her appetite. A feed-bag date once a week is o.k., but a healthy young girl should be able to make it home from school without stopping on the way for nourishment. If not, suggest she carry two lunches.

Dear Ann Landers: I have an old school chum I have known for over 25 years. Whenever we are with friends she manages to steer the conversation to things I said and did when we were teen-agers — nearly 40 years ago.

Back in those days I had no idea she thought I was so empty-headed and silly. Now it seems every word I said was stupid and everything I did was hilarious. She never misses an opportunity to embarrass me with tales that make me out to have been the village idiot. She's been doing it for about 20 years and I am sick of it.

Through the years this woman has had much trouble and sorrow. My husband and I have been at her side through all her tribulations. I can think of no reason for her to want to humiliate me. I would like to put an end to it once and for all without losing her friendship. How?—OLD FRIEND OR FOE?

Dear ? : What's the matter with you — no vocal cords? Tell this woman precisely how you feel in language which will leave no room for doubt. If she persists in her routine drop her like a hot coal and don't worry about having lost a friend. Because she wasn't one.

Dear Ann Landers: I wash clothes three times a week. Our four children range from 8 to 12 years of age. They all wear washable clothes and change daily. I'd prefer to have three small washes than one big one.

My husband claims any woman who washes three times (unless she has babies in the house) either is trying to impress the neighbors with her cleanliness, or she is off her rocker.

I might tell you I wash three times a week in winter as well as summer, and I hang the wash in the basement where the neighbors can't see it. Please comment.—NUTS BUT CLEAN

Dear But: If you want to wash twice a day six days a week, what's it to him? A lot of young women spend their time and energy in less productive ways.

A great many husbands who write to me would cheerfully trade complaints with yours.

Confidential to MIDDLE MAID: It is perfectly obvious you have a lot to lose, but what can you gain?

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex" is now available at your book store.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of the Record News enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Suit Dismissed As Premature

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Dist. Judge Horace Young has dismissed as premature a $1,978 suit against a creditor of Paul Amos Sandblom.

Judge Young approved Thursday an appeal in abatement requested by Harry Dobbs, attorney for Dr. Roy Logan, Corpus Christi chiropractor.

Logan had been sued for $1,978, plus $197 attorney fees, by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Brooks of Oklahoma City. The Brooks claim they gave Logan $2,500 June 17, 1963, and that they received $600 in principal and interest since.

They said $100 a month payments stopped after December. Sandblom, Corpus Christi investor, filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition Jan. 7.

Logan has denied personal liability for the promissory note he acknowledges he gave them. The note bears the words "secured only by note of P.A.S. to Roy W. Logan of same date."

The note also says the money is due June 17, 1964, the due date on which Logan based his request for dismissal.

The suit may be refilled after June 17, Judge Logan said.

MISSOURI TOWN Imposes Curfew
NEOSHO, Mo. (AP)—Every-one 15 years of age and under has been banned from the streets of Neosho after 7 p.m. unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The City Council adopted the curfew Thursday and put up a $300 reward for a tip leading to the vandals who have damaged 250 automobiles in 10 days. The first assaults with gravel and air rifle pellets was March 22. Police estimates of the damage run close to $20,000. Officers say they are unable to find a motive for the depredations. Neosho is a town of 7,500 in the southwest Missouri Ozarks.

HEALTH ADVICE Commercially Canned Foods Are Usually Safe

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER
Dear Dr. Molner: I have some cans of tuna, crabmeat and salmon which have been on the shelves for perhaps four years. Is it safe to use them?—B.B.
There isn't any positive answer to this, but there isn't any way to be positively safe when you ride in an automobile, cross the street, or take a bath.

I suppose, since these are sea-foods, you are concerned mainly over botulism, the Type E botulism that has had so much publicity in the last year.

Sad and dramatic as these cases were, you still are vastly more in danger of being killed by lightning — and there isn't much chance of that. I believe only two deaths were from botulism from canned fish; the rest were from smoked fish.

Canned food (commercially canned, I mean) has not been found responsible for botulism deaths in a quarter of a century. Home-canned food, however, averages several deaths a year from this, evidently when the rare occurrence of presence of the botulism organism plus insufficient cooking takes place.

Botulism is still a very rare cause of poisoning. Far more deaths result from taking baths, being stung by insects, tripping over curbstones or smoking in bed.

Of course there are less deadly but more common forms of food poisoning. These, too, are rare in either commercially or home-canned food. With reasonable caution, I don't think you need fear any of them.

Tanner's "Microbiology of Foods" advises that if all microorganisms (in a syllable, germs!) in a can of food are destroyed, and the ingress of others is prevented, canned food should keep indefinitely.

Canned food (vegetables, fish, meat or mixtures) is cooked under rigid specifications which destroy such germs. Only when a rare and unpredictable accident occurs do we ever find any germs that can multiply, once the cooking stage is past.

Can anything ever get in? Yes, if there is a hole — and it need be only a small one.

I've consulted a number of doctors and nutritionists about today's letter, and the answers have run the gamut of "throw it out," "it's perfectly safe," "I don't know," and "use good judgment."

I favor the last. By using good judgment, I mean:
1—If a can has bulged, throw it out.
2—If it is rusty, throw it out.

Sunday school begins at 9:45 a.m. and the worship service follows at 10:55 a.m.

Services of the revival will be held each week night, including Saturday night, at 7:30. Members of the church will meet at 7 p.m. preceding the revival services for prayer each evening. There will not be any morning services during the revival.

Confirmation Set At Good Shepherd

An adult confirmation class at the Church of the Good Shepherd (Episcopal), Tenth at Burnett, will begin Sunday at 4:30 p.m. The first Sunday after Easter is also known as Low Sunday. The origin of the term is somewhat obscure, explained the Rector, Rev. Alanson Brown, pointing out that two ideas are foremost for the explanation.

One is that Low Sunday is the last day of the Easter octave and the services on that day have a lower degree of solemnity than those held on Easter Day itself. The other thought is that Low Sunday is a corruption from Latin into English of the word "Laudes", a form of the word praise which is the opening word of the sequence hymn appointed for that day.

Also scheduled to meet April 5 at 6 p.m. at the Recreation Room is the senior group of the Episcopal Young Churchmen.

Glenn Out Of Hospital

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., who quit the U.S. Senate race in Ohio because of a disabling ear injury, checked out of Wilford Hall Air Force Hospital on Friday.

Glenn went on convalescent leave and departed by automobile from his home at Seabrook, Tex., near Houston. The car was driven by his secretary. Doctors said the former astronaut would return to the hospital for periodic checkups during the next few months. He suffers from labyrinthitis, an inflammation of the inner ear.

Glenn fell Feb. 26 in the bathroom of his Columbus, Ohio, apartment; five days before he was to retire from the Marine Corps and actively campaign for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

He announced his withdrawal from the race Monday on the advice of doctors.

As he fell, his head struck the bathtub, causing a concussion that severely damaged his inner ear and affect his equilibrium. The injury brought on loss of balance, dizziness and nausea.

Glenn said he definitely would stay in the Marine Corps until he is fully recovered but that his plans after that were indefinite.

THE Twenty-Third PSALM

You've got to have your arms around a warm, woolly, wobbly lamb before the real meaning of the Twenty-third Psalm grips you.

You begin to realize how awkward, bewildered, helpless a lamb really is.

David wasn't merely singing of the Lord's faithfulness. He was confessing his own helplessness!

The key to religious faith is not simply the discovery of God's power. It is the discovery of our own need.

The Lord is OUR Shepherd.

- 1 The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want;
- 2 he makes me lie down in green pastures. He leads me beside still waters;
- 3 he restores my soul. He leads me in paths of righteousness for his name's sake.
- 4 Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me.

5 Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of my enemies; thou anointest my head with oil, my cup overflows.

6 Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Be Sure To Vote

The United States is the oldest constitutional republic in the world. When it was born most of the European nations and all of the Asian nations were ruled by more or less despotic emperors or kings.

Even with the English Magna Carta in the background, the radical concept of a people governing themselves was greeted with derision in most of the world.

On this concept, protected by a magnificent constitution, we have proved the worthiness of the idea by building the greatest nation in history.

We have reached this high point in civilization by keeping alive the idea of the importance of the individual.

Still a large number of us take all this for granted since the echoes of the battles fought for freedom sound dim in our ears. The result is that on our most important day—the day to cast a ballot—a large number of us stay at home.

Wichita Falls is a fine community. It is growing and it faces a future of greater importance. But to properly develop this community we must not ignore the opportunity to vote.

During the next week we will have two opportunities to make decisions of vital importance.

Saturday we name two members to the school board and next Tuesday we name a majority to our city council. These two governing bodies are closer to us than all other government.

Each unit deals in problems and decisions which have influence on our everyday lives. It is a privilege to vote and a responsibility. The liberty to cast a ballot was dearly bought. We must not throw it away lightly.

Vote your convictions today and next Tuesday.

Behind Cyprus Trouble

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER
WASHINGTON—The blue beretted United Nations troops may or may not end the Greco-Turkish civil war in Cyprus. The danger of a war between Greece and Turkey remains very much alive.

This is of course a direct result of the growing belief in Western countries, fostered by the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations, that communism is no longer the greatest danger to all of them. So long as they felt that danger, neither Greece nor Turkey could afford to feud over the personal preferences of a few hundred thousand people, 80 per cent of whom feel themselves Greeks, 18 per cent Turks and 2 per cent neither.

Now that Washington, London and Paris apparently agree that the danger from the Soviet Union has greatly abated, Athens and Ankara have reverted to the historical feud that has lasted since the Turks conquered Constantinople in 1452.

Yet although the majority of Cypriots are Greek in language and feeling, most of the island's amazing history had little to do with Greece. To be sure, the Mycenaean Greeks held the island for a long period and the Greek Eastern Empire ruled it from 395 A.D. until Richard I of England snatched it from the Empire in 1191 A.D.

Richard literally sold the island to the Knights Templar. Then for 300 years it was under a French King and its official language was French.

The Lusignan dynasty then lost it to Genoa which lost it to Venice which lost it to Turkey in 1570 A.D. Thereafter for three long centuries the island was ruled by Turkey and it was during this period that the ancestors of most of the present Turkish minority moved in. Their descendants still cherish the superiority feeling that makes it impossible for them to submit to Greek majority—or the Turkish government in Ankara to allow them to be governed by Greeks.

After 1878, when the British took over the "administration" of the island (but until 1924 not the "sovereignty") relations between Greeks and Turks were better since the latter found no indignity in submitting to London. Yet even during these years Greek Cypriots began clamoring for enosis (union) with Athens.

When during World War I, the Turks fought on the German side, the Greeks on that of the Entente, relations became bad. After that war, encouraged by Britain, Greece made two desperate, vain attempts to reconquer from Turkey the still Greek cities of Asia Minor.

Having driven the Greeks back to the coast, Kemal Pasha then expelled from Asia Minor about a million Greeks whose ancestors had lived there for at least 3,000 years. Thereby Kemal made Turkey for the first time a national state. And in so doing he inflicted an emotional wound on Greece which has never entirely healed.

When a couple of years ago, the Cypriot Greek movement for enosis became strong, Britain foolishly set up the island as an "independent state" with a just but impractical constitution which gave the Turkish minority a veto over the legislation desired by the Greek majority.

Now that Greek majority, with the full support of Athens and Moscow, is attempting to obtain full authority by the process of shooting Turks—who are responding in kind. The British sought to keep order and, failing, invoked not NATO, the obvious arbiter, but the communist and neutralist dominated United Nations. And Turkey threatens at the least to expel some 10,000 well-heeled Greeks still in Turkey and at most to send in an army unless the Greek Cypriots respect the autonomy of the Turkish Cypriots.

In other words, a little island in area somewhere between Delaware and Connecticut, with about half a million inhabitants, may well spark a Greco-Turkish war from which Moscow will be the only beneficiary.

Unless the U.N. can work out not merely a peace-keeping operation but a true political settlement, it's a fix.

John Birch Group Fights Civil Rights

By DREW PEARSON
WASHINGTON — Most letter writers who have been flooding Congress with mail against the Civil Rights Bill don't know that their letters have been inspired by a Mississippi lobby and indirectly by the John Birch society.

This small lobby, operating out of the Carroll Arms Hotel just across the street from the two Senate office buildings, has a small staff but plenty of money—a budget of over $250,000. It is also close to the John Birch society. It has had remarkable impact on northern thinking.

Officially, the lobby is called "Fundamental American Freedoms," and gets its money from the Mississippi Sovereignty Commission, which is a sort of quasi-official White Citizens Council supported by Mississippi state funds.

The letters which have been pouring in on Congress show that thousands of northerners have paraphrased the astute arguments and false information about Civil Rights issued by this lobby.

At first the committee bought space in small rural newspapers to preach the idea that Civil Rights would increase federal control over agriculture. Though untrue, the committee had startling success in persuading small town editors to carry these planted stories. Next, the committee spent $63,000 on full-page ads in big city newspapers.

John Birch In Background

The two most effective operators for this lobby are John Synon, who is paid a salary, and Dr. Melchior F. R. Savarese, a local John Birch leader, who lends a hand without salary. Synon is on an annual retainer from the crack public relations firm of Selvaige & Lee, which represents Portugal, Katanga, and various conservative republican groups. Synon contributes anti-race articles to various newspapers, including the South Carolina News and Courier.

On the evening of Feb. 23, a group of John Birch leaders met at the home of Dr. Savarese at 2823 29th St. in Washington. A few of the doctor's affluent friends were also invited, and the doctor, a charming and persuasive talker, announced to them that he proposed running an ad in the Washington Post attacking the Civil Rights bill, but since the ad would not be effective if run under the name of the John Birch Society, he would get permission from the coordinating committee for fundamental American freedoms to use its name.

Dr. Savarese urged his guests to get out and hustle for contributions to finance the ad. He told the donors to make out their checks to the coordinating committee but direct to him, so the John Birch Society could have an accounting. In addition to the full-page ad in the Washington Post he suggested they raise enough money for a half page in the Washington Star.

The drive was successful. The full-page ad was published.

When this column asked Dr. Savarese point-blank whether the John Birch Society was buying ads under the name of the "Fundamental American Freedoms," he denied it.

Not Easily Scared

The National Maritime Union and the Seafarers International Union have been threatening to wage a campaign against Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman because he insists on getting wheat shipped to Russia whether in foreign bottoms or American bottoms. Freeman wants to help the American farmer, also reduce surpluses, also show the Russians we can deliver wheat when we contract to sell it.

As a result of his insistence, Eastern Labor Leaders have threatened to work against Freeman back in Minnesota where he once served as governor.

At a recent dinner, Alvin Shapiro, Washington representative of the American Merchant Marine Institute, sent a note to Freeman offering to block the labor leaders who were planning to go to Minnesota to work against him.

In reply, Freeman scribbled: "I'll pay their transportation."

Note — In the 1960 election, Gov. Freeman was defeated because he called out the National Guard to protect the Meat Packers Union during a strike at the Wilson Plant at Albert Lea.

Medicare For MacArthur
It's never popular to criticize people who are ill, but in the interest of thousands of people who are ill all over the USA and have difficulty paying their hospital bills, here are some interesting facts about two gentlemen in the headlines who don't have to worry about hospital bills.

Astronaut John Glenn of the U.S. Marines has been in a Naval Hospital for about a month as a result of a bathroom injury. No one begrudges the famous astronaut this free medical service, even though he received his share of $1,000,000 from Life Magazine and Field Enterprises for the astronaut's story; plus a $25,000 prize on the CBS program "Name That Tune."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur has also been in a government hospital, Walter Reed in Washington, undergoing surgery. Nobody begrudges the general this free hospital attention, even though he gets a $100,000 salary from Sperry Rand, a company which got $445,500,000 in defense contracts last year and which could easily afford to retain some of the many excellent surgeons in New York, where the general has long resided.

What Gen. MacArthur and Col. Glenn and Gen. Eisenhower — when he has his annual check-up — all enjoy are the privileges of medicare which, thanks to the House Ways and Means Committee, are denied several million elderly people who have no military pensions and face a much more difficult time paying hospital bills.

Faster and Faster

Allen-Scott Report
Social Security Program

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
And PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Increases in Social Security benefits — yes; medicare — no!

That's the backstage strategy of key leaders of the House Ways & Means Committee, which will start drafting a bill on these politically explosive issues next week when the House returns from its Easter recess.

Two factors primarily are behind the contemplated Social Security boosts:

This is deemed good campaign politics in a major election year; and the proposed increases will — it is hoped — counter the administration-supported demand for medical care for the aged under the Social Security system.

To further bolster this strategy, there is good possibility the Mills-Kerr Act will be revised to provide more medical care for indigents over 65.

That's favored by Representative Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., committee chairman, author of the Act and a strong opponent of Social Security — financed medical care. Mills concedes his existing legislation "is falling short of needs," and his concept of dealing with that problem is to "improve" the prevailing method.

Just how that would be done, Mills admits, is still unsolved.

His general idea is to provide the states which administer the Mills-Kerr program with more money; also to such medical care for aged indigents into the Blue Cross plan. This will require finding answers for complex financial and other problems, which Mills readily acknowledges is still to be accomplished.

Basis for expanding Social Security benefits is H. R. 6688, sponsored by Mills.

Its major purpose is to increase the current $127 maximum monthly pension to $140 or more. To that end, maximum income coverage would be hiked from $4,800 to $5,400, and tax rates from 3 1/2 per cent each for employer and employee to around 4 per cent; and from 5.4 per cent to about 5.7 per cent for self-employed.

All the actual rates have still to be formulated and passed on by the Ways & Means Committee.

Empty Protestations

While outwardly administration leaders are still professing that medicare has a chance this year, privately they talk differently.

They admit they still lack the votes in Mills' committee, and that the protracted civil rights battle in the Senate just about forecloses any prospect of medicare being considered there—even if it should somehow manage to win House approval.

That's why administration leaders in both the House and Senate are so positive there will be some increases in Social Security benefits, and so vague about medicare.

A significant hint of this backstage attitude was President Johnson's statement in a labor speech last week—in which he vigorously proclaimed his ardent zeal for medicare, but was decidedly indefinite as to when it is likely to be enacted, if ever.

He was strongly for it, but very nebulous on specifics.

Official Cover-Up

As the august, State Department's top liaison official with Congress, Assistant Secretary Frederick Dutton has gotten himself into a curious position.

Influential members of Congress have become markedly allergic to him.

A key reason is his apparent willingness to issue sweeping denials and cover-ups at the behest of superiors — without actually having first-hand knowledge of what he is talking about.

The Californian, who started as a White House assistant under the late President Kennedy and "was kicked upstairs" to the State Department, has displayed a pronounced penchant for pouring out official self-serving refutations in the face of flatly contradictory evidence.

As a consequence, Dutton is becoming increasingly "unwelcome" and distrusted on Capitol Hill.

Inside Report
Mann's Difficulty

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The chief peril faced by Thomas C. Mann as President Johnson's Latin American policy czar is not south of the border but right here inside the Washington bureaucracy.

The long knives are out for Mann. Within the State Department are officials who want to discredit him as Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs. This underground power struggle tells much about an Administration still in transition between two Presidents.

Ever since President Johnson summoned Mann from his post as Ambassador to Mexico shortly after the assassination, he has been the target of a whispering campaign. "Incompetent," "reactionary," "jingoistic" — there are a few of the adjectives applied to him. Moreover, this game got rougher recently.

Addressing a closed-door session of U.S. Ambassadors to Latin American nations, Mann delivered a discursive lecture on hemispheric policy. Some official leaked a garbled version, which was then widely published, that put Mann in the unbelievable position of advocating neutrality by Washington in choosing between democracies and dictatorships.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, an uncompromising foe of dictatorship in Latin America, was appalled at this report. But in a long conversation with Mann, the Senator was convinced there was no truth at all to the story. Humphrey remains one of Mann's admirers and allies.

Indeed, many public figures usually associated with a progressive policy in Latin America are on Mann's side. This includes President Adolfo Lopez Mateos of Mexico and ex-Presidents Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela and Alberto Lleras Comargo of Colombia.

Why then is Mann under attack in Washington?

The major avowed criticism of Mann concerns his tough stance in negotiating with Panama. But this isn't the true source of the anti-Mann campaign. Mann is resented primarily because his appointment signaled the end of President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress as originally conceived.

Following years of disinterest in Latin America by the Eisenhower administration, the Alliance for Progress was born in 1961 in a mood of anything-is-possible idealism. It was a needed change. Restored interest by Washington—particularly the increase in foreign aid spending—cheered progressives throughout the hemisphere.

But change was bound to come this year. Because of Congressional hostility, foreign aid spending is limited. Besides, the first three years of the Alliance produced no miracles. No cure for Latin America's economic woes is in sight. And without economic stability, social justice is impossible.

Thus, our retrenchment in Latin America was inevitable. But because it coincided with the arrival of Mann, he is the obvious target for New Frontiersmen.

Moreover, career diplomat Mann is alien to the New Frontier. Basically conservative and skeptical, he envisions no quick solution in Latin America. He believes fiscal and governmental discipline is vital there and that U.S. private capital must play a major role in Latin development. Though a foe of the oligarchs, he opposes Latin Leftists—both Communist and otherwise.

An unpublicized but prophetic clash between Mann and the New Frontier occurred in 1961 when he was Ambassador to Mexico. At that time, New Frontiersmen tried to emphasize that Uncle Sam no longer befriended Rightists. So, while visiting Mexico City, Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy (not yet a Senator) asked to meet Leftist Mexican politicians over dinner at the Ambassador's residence. Mann refused. Kennedy then arranged his own dinner party to meet the Leftists.

This stand by Mann is the sort of thing that doctrinaire liberals in the State Department cannot abide. But their hostility to Mann transcends ideology.

Not coincidentally, the anti-Mann clique contains no career diplomats but only New Frontiersmen. Their world dissolved when President Kennedy was murdered, and Mann was the first major appointment by the new President in this new world.

It naturally follows that Mann is under attack. His ordeal is characteristic of a government that certainly is no longer the Kennedy administration but is not yet really the Johnson administration.

Sino-Soviet Split Believed Almost Beyond Patching

MOSCOW (AP) — The violent Soviet counterattack against Communist China persuaded Western diplomats Friday that the Red bloc is split almost beyond patching.

But several Eastern sources, although recognizing the schism, insisted there is a possibility it will be overcome.

"East and West have been arguing for years over disarmament," said one Communist diplomat. "The two sides in the Communist camp can also argue for years without bringing a break."

But the open collision between Chinese and Soviet Communists was glaringly outlined in the seven-page doctrinal speech by Moscow's chief theoretician, Mikhail A. Suslov, published Friday in the Communist party paper Pravda.

Answer To Peking

This was a long-delayed answer to maneuvers of Mao Tse-tung's Peking regime that the paper denounced in such terms as slanderous concoctions, vicious accusations, ideological recreancy, splitting activity, a hypocritical game, blackmail, a policy in which petty bourgeois adventurism merges with great power chauvinism.

The tacit Chinese repudiation of Soviet proposals for a series of meetings leading to a Red summit conference appeared to Western sources here as nearly final.

The letter suggested that they should prepare a "conference of all fraternal parties in the autumn of 1964," Pravda related.

"After this letter the Chinese leaders, far from discontinuing the discussion, developed it with even greater fierceness. This campaign culminated in the editorial article in the newspaper Jen Min Jih Pao and the magazine Honchi of March 31. This article, from the first to the last line, was a gross insult to our party and all Soviet people," Pravda said.

call for an international meeting, they would do so only on a platform wholly unacceptable to the Chinese. If the Chinese then refused to attend, they could be dropped by the wayside.

Quick Victory

To many, it seemed that would give the Soviet party a quick victory at little cost. There is a growing feeling here that if the Soviet party calls for a world Communist meeting on its own terms, the Chinese may not repudiate it, but may call one of their own.

Increasingly, the Chinese have turned their fire on Khrushchev, demanding that he be repudiated along with his peaceful coexistence line. There is some speculation here that many of the party, painfully watching the battle between the aging leaders, might be happy to sit with a little rocking of the boat as possible.

Mao was 70 last November and Khrushchev will be 70 April 17.

Three-Step Plan To Rebuild Slated

Bob Jolliff, Director of Public Safety for the City of Wichita Falls, announced a three-phase program that will be instituted in the tornado disaster area beginning Saturday morning.

A total of 124 houses in a four-square block area of Sunset Terrace were damaged extensively. An estimated 230 to 240 units were involved, including the Lincoln Heights addition. The figures didn't include damage on Sheppard Air Force Base.

Jolliff said there were 280 city and state employees in the area in addition to 15 to 18 Department of Public Safety representatives.

"The three-step plan is being enforced to provide every degree of safety for these people," he explained.

The first step appears to be the hardest, Jolliff said crews of three and four would check each house thoroughly to make sure there are no bodies in the debris. He estimated that it might take two days, perhaps longer.

Attack Stepped Up

The Chinese responded by heating up their attack on Soviet Premier Khrushchev, calling him "the greatest capitulationist in history."

Pravda said the Soviet party Central Committee proposed in its letter to Peking that the two sides get together in May and then the same group that organized the Moscow conference of 1960 should meet in June or July. That group included representatives from 26 Communist parties.

Complete Proof

It proved completely that the leaders of the Communist party of China had transgressed all limits in their political struggle movement."

By then the Chinese undoubtedly knew in detail what the Soviet party had to say, for the long speech by Suslov that Pravda published was made Feb. 14 before the Soviet party Central Committee in Moscow.

In the interval, the Soviet party had made one more effort—evidently through a touring Romanian delegation—to get the Chinese to back down. It didn't work.

Some sources here have predicted for some time that if the Russians pushed ahead with a

Jolliff said three shifts would be handled around the clock to make sure no one is buried in the rubble.

Step No. 2 will be in effect only after this has been determined. At this time home owners with proper identification to show ownership will be allowed in the area to remove personal belongings. A perimeter will be established by law enforcement officers around the area to make sure there is no looting or vandalism.

After home owners have removed their belongings Step No. 3 will be to decide what to do with the homes—to have them razed or rebuilt.

"We would like to help the people in this area get set up again," Jolliff said. "That's when we'll probably call on a lot of help."

Thomas Neely New Judge

VERNON, Tex. (Special) — Thomas A. Neely, 27-year-old attorney and Wilbarger County native, has assumed duties as City Corporation Court Judge after the resignation of Attorney Ney Sheridan Jr., City Manager Garland Franks announced Friday.

Sheridan's resignation was accepted and Neely's appointment made in a brief special meeting of the City Commission.

The Commission at the same time designated Sheridan as acting judge during any absence of Neely.

Neely attended Vernon public schools, graduating from Vernon High School in 1954.

He attended Oklahoma State University, West Texas State University and the University of Arkansas School of Law where he ranked first scholastically in his graduating class in 1962.

Fluoridation Vote Set In Iowa Park

IOWA PARK, Tex. (Special)—Fluoridation of the Iowa Park water supply will be voted on Tuesday in the city election when a mayor, city secretary and three aldermen will be elected. The election will be held in the city hall.

Donald Hill will be the presiding judge and Donald Mercer will act as alternate presiding judge. Clerks will be Mrs. B. W. Koonce, Mrs. Bert Caddell, Mrs. Elvy Sargent and Mrs. T. C. Berry.

A group of citizens has been interested in the fluoridation of water in Iowa Park and for a period of about two years in the 1950's city water was fluoridated.

Last year a group of interested citizens went before the city council and with the approval of the group distributed petitions which were presented to the council in December. There were enough names on the petition to call the election.

Fluoridation is the adjustment of the fluoride content of the water to about one part per million of water considered the most effective concentration to prevent tooth decay.

Fluoridation does not affect the taste, odor or color of water, nor does it make it any harder. Fluoridation is inexpensive, with the national average cost about 10 cents per person per year.

Snead Shaky But Remains 3 Strokes Up

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Sam Snead survived a shaky start Friday to come up with four birdies for a par 71 second round and hold the halfway lead in the $35,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament by three strokes with a 135 total.

Australian Bill Dunk, who started the round in a second place tie, three shots off the lead, matched Snead's 71 to hold second place in a tie with U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, who shot 70 for a 138 total.

Jack Nicklaus, getting ready to defend his masters championship next week, fired an eagle that helped him to a 69 round, good for fourth place at 139, four shots off the pace.

Arnold Palmer dropped 10 shots back of Snead with a 75 that gave him a 145 total.

Palmer three-putted five times and commented sadly, "I never enjoyed playing golf less."

On one hole he took three putts from 10 feet, missing from 18 inches. To compound his misery, he said he missed several putts when he had birdie opportunities.

His only birdie came on the sixth hole, which yielded many eagles as well as a double eagle by Frank Stranahan, who used a drive and a No. 5 iron second on the 501-yard hole to record the third double eagle of the PGA tour this year.

LEBUS IS WEEKS PARK MEDALIST One-Under 70 Nips Murphy As Play Starts

Despite blustery winds and a nearby tornado, Jim LeBus nipped one stroke off par for a 70 to grab medalist honors in the Weeks Park Mens Golf Association Tournament Friday.

LeBus rang up six birdies in his round to edge out Doyle Murphy by two strokes. Murphy has a steady round highlighted by only one birdie.

Forty-nine golfers entered the tourney, which seemed on the brink of being cancelled when threatening clouds began hovering overhead.

No tee off times were posted as foursomes may tee off any time convenient to each member of the foursome.

The tourney was divided into four flights with eight composing the championship flight and 16 in the others. A special 54-hole flight was originated for three of the entrants.

No doubt, the tornado which ripped through the north part of town drew more attention than the scores being posted.

LeBus was practically finished with his round when the twister hit, but Murphy was only on the fifth hole. Murphy was one under par at the time, but he failed to regain his concentration after the twister hit and three-putted six.

Other scores in the championship flight include Tom Miller, 73, Foster Watkins, 73, Ronnie Christain 75, Randall, Charles Clines and Bob Henderson, 76's.

Entrants will be shooting for prizes and trophies in each flight. Championship and first flight will play medal with the other flights match play.

Professional Jack Johnson said that regular play would be allowed during the tournament.

Robertson's Shadow Makes Celtics Tick

By BOB HOOBING Associated Press Sports Writer BOSTON (AP)—Like his railroad namesake, Boston Celtic K. C. Jones really sticks to a job. His current assignment is labeled Oscar Robertson.

Effective? Well, Cincinnati's "Big O" has been wearing pro basketball's most adhesive player like a bandage since the start of the Eastern Division NBA playoff finals.

K. C. Jones, still being praised by both sides Friday, is a major reason Boston's aging, prideful band is leading the Royals 2-0, in the best-of-7 series. After the Celtics won 101-90 Thursday night, Cincinnati players heaped superlatives on K. C. from their gloomy quarters.

The Celtics worked out Friday and will drill again Saturday prior to departing for Cincinnati and Sunday's third game.

Cincinnati Coach Jack McMahon, very disappointed with his team which whipped the Celtics seven times in 12 regular season meetings, fears continued sloppy play and the extremely sub-par condition of ace rebounder Jerry Lucas may spell a four-game Boston sweep.

"I think that K. C. Jones is your star," McMahon said. "He hustled, he worked the ball in and gave Boston a great game." Lucas said K. C. was "the whole show."

What about this former University of San Francisco and U.S. Olympic teammate of Bill Russell's? He's scored only 11 points in two games.

Robertson, the league's most valuable player who stands 6-foot-5 to Jones' 6-1, scored 30 points Thursday night. K. C. does the principal guarding job on Oscar with occasional relief from John Havlicek and Sam Jones.

What's so outstanding about that?

Jones held Robertson to 11 points and only three field goals in the first half as Boston established its superiority. The Royals' star broke loose only after the decisive point of the game had passed.

In addition, Robertson averaged 12 field goals a game against the Celtics in "the regular season. He has only 15 for the two playoff games here.

Meanwhile K. C. has a two-game total of 74 minutes, 17 assists, 10 rebounds.

Ask Waivers On Neal TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds Friday asked for waivers on Charlie Neal in order to give the 33-year-old infielder his unconditional release.

Neal, the hitting star of the 1959 World Series when he played for the Los Angeles Dodgers, batted .211 last season for the Reds and the New York Mets. He has seen little action this spring.

Tribe, Arlington Split Golf Match

Midwestern split a golf match with Arlington State at Weeks Park Friday.

The MU golfers, who had lost a 4-2 decision to AS in their first meeting, won three matches and lost three.

The Indians travel to Abilene to tackle Hardin-Simmons Wednesday in their next match.

John Barnett, MU, def. Frank Malone, 5-4; Ted Norwood, MU, def. Harvey Wyman, 5-4; Barnett - Norwood, def. Malone - Wyman, 5-4; Jim Nopari, AS, def. Larry Harvey, 5-2; James Allen, AS, def. Charles Dixon, 3-2; Nopari - Allen def. Harvey-Dixon, 3-2.

Colts Tougher, Richards Claims

HOUSTON (AP) — General Manager Paul Richards of the Houston Colts says his club will be a tougher team to beat in 1964 and a more interesting team to watch.

"Down the line-up this season every player will be a tougher out," he said.

"This does not necessarily mean that we'll finish a great deal higher in the race, but it is entirely possible we will finish somewhat higher."

The Colts, beginning their third year in the National League, finished eighth the first year and ninth last year.

"The intangible value represented in Nelson Fox and Eddie Kasko and possibly one or two other veterans, plus the natural improvement in our younger players will upgrade and add more stature to the 1964 team," Richards said.

Richards said any improvement in the Colts in 1964 will be directly dependent on Houston's pitching retaining its effectiveness of the past two seasons.

"Our pitchers must continue their fine work of the past two seasons," he said. "As for hitting, the frequent breathers the opposition found in the Colts the past two seasons will be conspicuous by their absence."

Rider, Coyotes Netters Strong In Abilene Meet

ABILENE, Tex.—Wichita Falls and Rider held strong positions in both divisions of the Abilene Invitational Tennis Tournament after the opening rounds Friday.

Gary Childs and Pat Maloy advanced to the finals in the B boys doubles and Pat Acton and Murphy Yates of Wichita Falls High School moved into the semifinals of the boys doubles against Fulwiler and Meyers of Cooper.

Rider posed a threat in the B Girls doubles when Miller and Ford moved to the quarterfinals, but they were ousted by top seeded Jean Gillette and Joan Gillette of Fort Worth.

Other top showing included Dick Ewing of Wichita Falls in the B boys singles, Angela Lee and Pat Turnbow of Rider in the A girls doubles and Ray Byrd of Wichita in the A boys singles.

Finals will be completed Saturday in all divisions.

Updegraff-Smith Win Best-Ball Tourney

BOYNTON BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Dr. Ed Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz., and Charlie Smith of Gastonia, N.C., won a one-hole sudden death playoff Friday for the Dick Wilson Invitational Best-Ball Golf Championship.

Updegraff and Smith went into the final round with a five-stroke lead. But the team of Labron Harjts of Stillwater, Okla., and Glenn Johnson of Detroit matched it on the 17th hole.

Both teams finished 72-hole regulation play with 278. On the first hole of the playoff, Updegraff sank an 11-foot putt to win.

Greenbelt Bowl Tilt Booked For Aug. 15

CHILDRESS, Tex. (Special)—The 15th annual Greenbelt Bowl Football Classic will be played on Aug. 15 in Fair Park Stadium, it was announced Friday by Classic President Morris Higley.

The all-star game is one of three left in Texas, including the Oil Bowl game in Wichita Falls and the Texas High School Coaches' game.

Schoolboy Erases 200 Free Record

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP)—Don Schollander sliced nearly two seconds off his 200-yard freestyle American record and swimmers from Michigan, Indiana and Japan copped championships in the second day of the men's AAU Indoor Swimming and Diving Championships Friday night.

Schollander, a 17-year-old Santa Clara High School boy, splashed in four yards in front of a star-studded field in a record 1:42.6 minutes.

Japan's Kenjiro Matsumoto won the 200-yard breaststroke. University of Michigan sophomore Ed Bartsch took the 200-yard backstroke and Indiana's Fred Schmidt nipped Michigan's freshman Carl Robie in the 200-yard butterfly.

Schmidt, defending AAU indoor champion and national collegiate winner last week, and Robie were timed in 1:53.8, but Schmidt was judged first.

Schollander, who said "I was hoping for 1:42-plus", moved into the lead at the turn of the 100-yard mark and stroked ahead of California's Gary Liman, a Foothill College sophomore, and Yale's Steve Clark, a former Santa Clara teammate.

Schollander set the listed American record of 1:44.4 last week and Clark tied it last week, but Schollander recorded a 1:43.5 in a dual meet this year.

Roy Saari, 19, who beat Schollander and Clark in the short free style here two years ago, was fourth, thus losing his bid for a third straight triple AAU victory.

Schmidt said he knew Robie had come up on him and didn't know for sure that he had touched a foot ahead of the 18-year-old rival. Schmidt set an American record of 1:53.5 last week in the NCAA.

Wichita Track Sets Warmups

Wichita Speedway will hold final warmup trials at the track, located one-half mile south of the Archer City cutoff on the Jacksboro, Sunday from 1 until 5 p.m.

Forty cars have registered for the season and track officials expect most of them at the track. Indications are that most of the cars are ready for the regular season.

The track has undergone a face-lifting since last season. Steeper banks on the curves and wider straightways will put more thrills into the show. Modified cars between 1937 to 1956 and built to specifications of the North Texas Stock Car Association are eligible to run.

Regular season racing gets under way Friday, April 10, at 8 p.m. There will be no admission charge to the warmups.

Floyd Won't Wait For Title Fight

HIGHLAND MILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Floyd Patterson would like to fight again for the world heavyweight title he once held, but he's not going to hold up his career waiting for current champion Cassius Clay.

"We sent some feelers to Clay and there was some response," Patterson said at his training camp Friday. "But that was a couple of weeks ago and we haven't heard anything since."

"If Clay doesn't get in touch within the next week or 10 days, I'll go ahead with plans to fight Machen in Sweden."

Patterson tentatively figures to meet Eddie Machen of Los Angeles in Stockholm or Göteborg in June or July. Both rank among the top contenders for Clay's crown, along with Sonny Liston, Doug Jones, Cleveland Jones and Ernie Terrell.

Houston Way Ahead In Florida Tourney

CAPE CORAL, Fla. (AP)—The University of Houston opened up a wide margin Friday in the team competition after three rounds of the Florida Intercollegiate Golf Tournament.

Mets Pitcher's Jaw Fractured

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) Carlton Willey, the New York Mets' most effective pitcher this spring, suffered a complex, compound fractured jaw Friday when struck by a line drive in the Mets' 9-1 victory over Detroit.

Willey, who came to the Mets last year after five seasons with Milwaukee, was hit by a smash off the bat of Tigers' rookie Gates Brown in the seventh inning. The ball struck him on the lower right jaw, opening a 1 1/2-inch gash.

Dr. Fred C. Nichols, an oral surgeon, examined Willey at nearby Pasadena Hospital and said the main fracture would be wired. If the wiring holds well, Nichols said, Willey's recovery should not take too long.

The 32-year-old right-hander, definitely will miss at least the first week of the season, which starts for the Mets April 14 in Philadelphia.

Canadiens Lose Veteran Center

MONTREAL—NI Stanley Cup SRE2, sub for 3rd grad "The Canadiens x Central League."

The Canadiens called up Claude Larose from Omaha of the Central League Friday as a replacement for Beliveau. Larose, a right winger, played 21 goals with the Canadiens during the regular season, scoring one goal and one assist.

Gordon (Red) Berenson probably will fill in for Beliveau at center, as he did in the third period Thursday. A club spokesman said the Canadiens hope to have Beliveau back for the sixth game in Toronto Tuesday.

Mo Breaks Standard In Distance Medley To Highlight Relays

AUSTIN (AP) — Eleven records and one tie were set Friday night in the Texas Relays with a shot put of 62 feet 11 1/2 inches by a freshman the outstanding mark.

Randy Matson, 240-pound Texas A&M freshman fighting for a berth on the Olympic team, pitched the 16-pound ball eight feet better than the record in the junior college-college freshman class.

It also bettered the varsity division of the relays by 3 feet 2 1/4 inches.

Missouri, spearheaded by the 4:02.4 mile of Robin Lingle, hung up a 9:45.2 record in the distance medley relay of the university class.

Emporia, Kan., State, with John Camien easing through a 4:08.7 mile, set a record of 9:57.8 for the distance medley in the college division.

Other outstanding marks were a 50.8 by Billy Hardin of Louisiana State, son of Glen Hardin, the mighty hurdler of the late thirties, in the 440-yard hurdles, and 1:23.3 in the 800-yard relay of the college division by the speed demons of Grambling.

Geoff Walker of Houston won the three-mile in 13:59.3 for the third record in the university class.

Two records were set in the junior college-freshman division with the Baylor freshmen running the 440-yard relay in 41.6 to go with Matson's mighty heave in the shot.

Two records and a tie were set in the high school division. Houston Westbury made the two-mile relay in 7:58.2 for one and Dallas Woodrow Wilson ran the sprint medley relay in 3:30.9 for the other. Dallas' Hillcrest tied the 440-yard relay record with 42.6.

Ollan Cassell, former Houston star, won the open 440-yard dash in 46.6 for a record and Austin College captured the special Texas small college mile relay in 3:28.9 for the final record.

Bill Miller, the former McMurry college star, broad jumped 25 feet 10 1/4 inches in a special exhibition. He was to have appeared against Ralph Boston, the Olympic champion, but the latter could not compete due to a sore throat.

Story Of Tornado Provides Times Square Christening

By DAN COLEMAN

Times Square was more than properly christened Friday afternoon as the newly-located publishing company's staff and employees were in the midst of their formal opening for nationwide newspaper representatives and a tornado funnel ripped across portions of Wichita Falls.

Long-planned ceremonies were dropped or pared to a minimum as reporters and photographers, in their finest attire, raced to the rubble and mud-covered wake of the twister, arriving before the devastating cloud had lifted back to the sky.

A picture was being transmitted to the Associated Press from Times Square before the funnel had dissipated. Periodic reports began to pour in as quickly as they could be relayed from the crippled areas.

News stories of statistics on dead, injured, destruction and details cascaded into the new Wichita Falls information nerve center in record time. Feature stories and human interest stories raced through typewriters as quickly as reporters could dash to the devastated areas and speed back to Times Square.

Beautiful decorations and rooms of congratulatory flower arrangements went unnoticed after 3 p.m. as the news wheels began the race with the clock. Staffers, overtime workers and special assistants sprinted in and out of the office, often colliding and leaving without pardon as they relayed their information.

Newspaper representatives from throughout the Southwest were given a front-row seat as staff and executives of the Times Publishing Co. went into high gear.

By 7 p.m. representatives of newspapers who were visiting Times Square were dialing their home desks with the story on the Wichita Falls disaster. At 8 p.m. special reporters and photographers from Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin and the Associated Press were arriving at Times Square to be filled in with the latest information from sources throughout the city.

Wichita Falls citizens, police and fire departments, hospital and aid services and special salvage and rescue personnel pushed themselves to the limit to function smoothly in their assignment of coping with the disaster but the infant publishing plant roared into a special effort to produce a special product to record the many facets of the tornado's destructiveness. The frills were shed and the business of a newspaper took priority in record time.

Market Moves Higher Posting New Peaks

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite a scare which upset copper and some sharp trading in airlines, the stock market moved higher on balance and posted new peaks in the averages Friday. Trading was active.

A generally higher trend was shown by rails, oils, cigarette stocks, electrical equipments, rubbers and farm implements as well as a variety of selected issues.

New that a leftist candidate for president of Chile had said he would nationalize American copper companies in that country if he wins led to selling of copper stocks, even those whose resources lie outside Chile.

Anacosta and Kennecott, however, have investments in Chile totaling about $1 billion, and these took the brunt of the selling. Anacosta was the most active stock, down 2 1/2 at 42 1/2 on 143,000 shares. Kennecott was sixth most active, down 3 at 80 on 57,700 shares.

Phelps Dodge, the second biggest producer, whose mines are in Arizona, took a net loss of 1/2 at 70 1/2. Cerro Corp., whose properties are in Peru, gyrated considerably and lost 1 1/2 at 40 1/2.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 2 1/2 to 822.99. Of 1,365 issues traded, 626 advanced and 479 declined. New highs for the year totaled 159 and new lows 14.

Volume was 5.99 million shares.

Gains by scattered blue chips bolstered the averages. Du Pont rose 2 1/2. General Motors 1/4. Standard Tel (New Jersey) 1/4. General Electric 1/4 and International Harvester 1/4.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 6 to an historic peak of 303.3. Industrials rose 6 and rails 1 1/2, both to record peaks. Utilities were unchanged.

May Department Stores proposed a 2-for-1 stock split and rose 1/4.

Prices were irregularly higher on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were a little higher. U.S. Government bonds declined.

Federal Bonds Ease Lower

NEW YORK (AP)—Government bonds eased Friday while corporates closed a little higher on average.

Intermediate Treasury issues were off 1/32 to 3/32 generally. Longer issues were barely lower.

In corporate trading on the New York Stock Exchange, 121 issues advanced, 81 declined and 65 were unchanged in a total of 267 issues changing hands.

There were 26 new 1964 highs and 13 new lows. Volume was $11.36 billion, par value.

Onlookers Make Recovery Difficult

By CHARLES WOLSTON

The tornado was over. But the real troubles had just begun for city, county and state law enforcement officials. The trouble was people—sightseers. Hundreds of cars and thousands of curiosity hungry Wichitans and area residents flocked to the Sunset Terrace area and jammed the Red River Expressway and Iowa Park Road (U.S. Highway 287) trying to see the extent of the damage caused by the 2:30 p.m. Friday twister.

No less than six roadblocks were set up by Wichita Falls Police, Wichita County Sheriff officers and the Texas Highway Patrol and Highway Department.

But despite the best efforts of outmanned officers and emergency workers hundreds of "tourists" filtered through and flooded the disaster area with useless questions and probing. Most of the probing was just plain looting and some officers at the scene said the looting must have begun the second the tornado lifted back into the black clouds.

The National Guard, Third Howitzer Bn. 131st Artillery, of Wichita Falls was summoned to the scene shortly before dark to help other officers contain and arrest looters.

The loot to be taken was staggering: televisions, radios, appliances, clothes, food items and firearms were lying about the entire eight block area which was the heaviest hit.

Police Cruiser 513, the public address equipped unit, circled the area asking and pleading the citizens "If you are not a member of the rescue and emergency parties—please leave the area at once."

Most of the sightseers paid little heed to the warning. Finally police—even officers still in training and sheriff deputies—placed the hard arm of the law on many and escorted them from the disaster area.

Residents of the area vainly probed in the wreckage to try and salvage what little they could of their worldly goods.

Their biggest question was what to do next and more importantly to the mothers of infants where to go next.

Luckily, Red Cross and Civil Defense workers and many Wichitans who offered assistance and shelter in their homes, supplied the answers.

The people of Sunset Terrace, like others in the face of disaster, never lost their composure. One resident of hard-hit Wrangler Street turned to his wife as she searched the remains of her kitchen and said, "I told you it was too early to be planting grass and doing yard work."

"Now we have the best looking yard in the neighborhood and no house."

As darkness settled in the area the majority of the lookers and non-authorized personnel were being moved from the area by a tireless police effort.

City and electric company employees had set up emergency lights which turned the area into even a more eerie sight.

By these lights and generators, the National Guard and police continued their vigil to protect the citizens from the citizens.

Telephone Service Repair Expedited

Joe Cochran, manager of the Wichita Falls office of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said telephones with prefixes of 855 and 851 operating out of the destroyed building will be in operation by 8 a.m. Saturday.

Power Lines Are Restored

Power lines, blown down by the twister that struck Wichita Falls, were being restored shortly after damage by the murderous tornado.

W. A. Hotchkiss, district manager of Texas Electric Service Co., reported service to the lines at Sheppard Air Force Base and the main high voltage substation were destroyed, but crews had temporary lines up to the base hospital within a short time, supplying power to the building.

A portable substation on a trailer, located some 40 miles from Wichita Falls, was rolled in and hooked up to the facilities at Sheppard.

Lines were down from FM 369 and Seymour Highway along the path of the twister through Sheppard Air Force Base. An estimate of from 75 to 100 poles were torn down, the wire stripped from the poles and in some cases missing completely.

Twenty crews were imported from Fort Worth, Graham and Eastland, representing some 125 extra men to help with the emergency. Line trucks, pole diggers and pole setters were brought into play along with supply trucks from the Fort Worth-Dallas area.

Hotchkiss said the crews were "hampered by traffic jams of sight-seekers that made it very difficult to get the equipment moved into the area. We called the police department to help keep the crowds away and they certainly did a tremendous job."

Service to all areas hit by the tornado were expected to be restored before Saturday morning to all houses still standing and capable of receiving service.

Hotchkiss said those homes damaged heavily would be checked during daylight hours Saturday.

A total of 325 men were pressed into service by Texas Electric Company to meet the emergency caused by the unexpected tornado.

Argument Rages During Tornado; Negro Is Killed

Through it all, men found time to argue and kill. Dead on arrival at Wichita General Hospital was Roy Lee Polk, Knox City Negro, who was fatally wounded by a .22 caliber weapon in his right chest during an altercation on Lake Street. He was 32.

Looters Follow Storm's Wake

Officials conducting rescue and salvage operations around the barricaded northwest portion of Wichita Falls, where the destruction of Friday's tornado was most heavy, by 9:30 p.m. had cleared the area of all personnel other than officials.

The Wichita Falls Police Department, the Air Police, the Texas Highway Patrol and service and reserve military units were the only persons, including residents of the area, allowed in the vicinity.

Officials at the police department said that for some time looters ran rampant in the damaged area and that at least four arrests had been made early Friday night.

No one, including newsmen, was allowed in the area. Residents were evacuated to aid stations.

The police radio dispatchers said their greatest problem had been traffic control but later keeping people out of the destruction and answering the logjam of telephone calls consumed the time of the regular force and overtime and reserve policemen.

Wichita Falls Police Officers said persons at the crippled section road blocks had been emotional, hard to work with and many had become unruly. They said it had been difficult to distinguish persons with good reasons and good intentions and the troublemakers and looters.

Late Friday night every policeman in Wichita Falls was on duty and the department was operating on 16-hour shifts in an effort to cope with the massive job.

Federal Judge Cameron Dies

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP)—Federal Judge Ben F. Cameron, who tried three times to block the admission of James H. Meredith, a Negro, to the University of Mississippi, died at a hospital here Friday. He was 73.

Cameron was appointed to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in 1955 and was at odds with most members of the court throughout his service. A vigorous segregationist, he once accused the chief judge of packing the panels to achieve pro-civil rights rulings. Meredith's admission to the University of Mississippi was ordered by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals. Judge Cameron issued orders three times blocking the court's order. He was overridden each time. It took an order from Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black to end the dispute.

Cameron was born in Meridian, on Dec. 15, 1890, the son of Franklin and Elizabeth Cameron. He was graduated from the University of the South in 1911, and received a law degree from Cumberland University in 1914.

Barbara Wren of Dallas, Tex., has helped with the typing of these articles for several years and I will let her tell the story of today's hand in her own words. "My partner's two-diamond response to my opening no-trump was the Jacoby transfer bid, and I responded two hearts just as I was supposed to. When he jumped to four hearts, I knew that I should have passed but I did have an absolute maximum 17 high card points with three aces and a five-card suit and I decided to experiment with a slam contract.

"When I saw the dummy, I decided right then and there to give up experimenting, but I still had to struggle along with this effort. I remembered that Mr. Jacoby always says, 'Give the cards a chance and maybe they will come through for you.' I took the ace of diamonds and promptly led back the nine spot. West studied a while and covered with the ten. I ruffed in dummy, played three rounds of trumps and took care to win the third lead in my own hand. "Then I proceeded to do some thinking and worrying. If I could establish two winners in diamonds, I could discard two of dummy's four losing spades. One was going to go on my long club. My problem was whether to lead a low diamond and trust that the queen would have to come up or to play the jack and hope to bump the eight out of the East hand.

"I remembered that West had thought a while before playing the 10 and decided to try the bump. I played my jack. West put on the queen and there was East's eight. Also I had my three spade discards and slam."

Rusk Sees Goulart Ouster As Victory For Democracy

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk pictured the ouster of President Joao Goulart as a victory for constitutional democracy in Brazil. And he proclaimed U.S. readiness "to work very closely" with the new regime to help pull the country out of economic chaos.

Rusk said concern had mounted among Brazilian congressmen, state governors, the military, "moderate, democratic elements" and "large segments of the people" that the left-leaning Goulart was moving toward "some sort of authoritarian regime."

The United States shared the concern that "extremist elements were having more and more influence" in the Goulart administration, Rusk said. But he denied a Cuban charge that Washington engineered the revolution.

Message From LBJ

Rusk's news conference remarks set forth Friday the U.S. view of the spectacular Brazilian overturn, after official U.S. silence had been broken by a message of good wishes from President Johnson to the new interim Brazilian president, Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli.

Administration sources said Johnson's decision for a friendly U.S. posture was taken on advice of the U.S. ambassador in Brazil, Lincoln Gordon, seconded by foreign policy advisers here.

It was stated that, while the U.S. government does not like to see Latin-American governments overturned by military pressure, it is pleased that in Brazil this happened without bloodshed.

Constitutional Successor

Furthermore, officials here note that the new president is a constitutional successor, rather than a military appointee.

Rusk said that Brazil's armed forces have shown, over the last several years, that they are basically committed to constitutional government.

He predicted that Brazil now will take a leading part in hemisphere opposition to Communism.

nist Cuba, because of the deep commitment of the anti-Goulart forces "to constitutional government, and to representative democracy."

Rusk reaffirmed the U.S. policy of determining recognition of a new government according to the circumstances in each case. While the United States is committed "to the strong and vigorous support of democratic and constitutional institutions," he said, if — "unhappily" — there might be a military take-over somewhere, the United States cannot "simply walk away" from the situation.

Try To Assist

"Therefore, we have to continue to live with it, work with it, try to assist a particular country in coming back to constitutional process," he said.

As for helping out in Brazil's precarious economic situation, Rusk mentioned no figures, but said the United States stands ready, as before, to assist on the country's "great problems of economic and social development."

He noted that a year ago the United States had offered a $400-million aid package, of which Brazil only got some $160 million, because Goulart failed to follow through on promised belt-tightening measures.

Comments On Cuba

On other points, Rusk said: "He sees 'no immediate prospect... that internal forces in Cuba would be able to unseat the apparatus of police control that Castro has fastened on that island.'" Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., predicting a Cuban revolution would sweep out the Red Havana regime, has called in a Senate speech for more aid to anti-Castro forces.

"No agreement has been reached in private talks with the Russians on stopping the spread of atomic weapons. But nonproliferation of nuclear arms seems to be the policy of all the atomic powers today, and a formal agreement may be reached later, although progress toward this now is slow."

"The Russians, who have denounced the U.S. plan for a Western multinational atomic fleet, cannot know that the proposal really does not involve spreading independent national nuclear capabilities until the arrangements for the Western force are made public. The Western allies still are working out details in closed diplomatic discussions."
