Grand Jury Indicts Five Here Friday

Five indictments were returned by the 100th District Court Grand Jury in a day-long session Friday, March 12. Judge Robert Montgomery of Memphis presided.

None of the persons indicted is in custody, Sheriff John Rainey said.

Indictments returned, according to records in the office of Carmen Lindley, county-district clerk, included three against one man: driving an auto without the owner's permission, burglary, and burglary of a motor vehicle.

Other indictments were for the removal of mortgaged property, and forgery and passing.

One indictment was not accepted by Judge Montgomery because Jerry Lee, a member of the grand jury, might be a material state witness, according to a notation in the record by District Attorney Jack Boone of Memphis.

Members of the grand jury were C. T. Hubbard, foreman, Mrs. Truitt Holland, Mrs. Cicero Gulley, Tom Birchfield, J. C. Breeding, John Brim, Jack Clark, Richard Bentley and Mr. Lee.

In the only civil case heard, Judge Montgomery granted a divorce to Nancy Juanita Langford from Robert Henry Langford.

Muscular Dystrophy Drive Opens in County

The Quail Chapter of Future Homemakers of America is conducting the annual fund raising campaign for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, Susan Langley, one of the workers, has announced.

This county-wide drive will continue through March, she said.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association of America supports 100 research projects in leading medical institutions throughout the world, Susan explained. Through its nation-wide network of clinics, it gives essential services to both patients and their families.

The chief victims of muscular dystrophy are children, Susan continued. It is a muscle-debilitating disease that disables its victims and weakens them so that something as slight as a common cold can kill them. As yet, there is no cure, but the research work sponsored by the association is working to this end.

Directing the Quail Chapter in their Muscular Dystrophy project is Mrs. Sue Shields, homemaking instructor.

C-C Asks Co-operation on Community Appraisal

Residents of Wellington and Collingsworth County have an opportunity to participate actively in the Chamber of Commerce, as well as to say frankly what they like and dislike about their own town and community.

The program was announced this week by President Harold Gattis.

"The Chamber of Commerce will take these responses and see what we can come up with as far as improvements are concerned," said Mr. Gattis. "There are things we can do something about, but there are others that we can't," he reminded.

The C-C civic improvement committee has prepared a check list, which is printed on another page of this issue. All county residents, whether or not they are members of the Chamber of Commerce, are invited to score their town, listing its various facilities anywhere from excellent down to poor.

The check list covers a wide variety of those services that go to make up a town, among them are utility services, outside lighting of schools and churches, the United States postal service, law enforcement and police protection, fire protection, news coverage, also Street maintenance, parking, street signs, etc., health services, welfare service (aid to families with financial problems), recreational opportunities for those of all ages, city hall, job opportunities for youth, cultural opportunities, library service, care and equipment found at the schools, restaurants, motels, the general appearance or attractiveness of the community, and last of all, the Chamber of Commerce.

Comments and suggestions are invited.

Those filling in the check list are also asked to list the five most important things needed to make Wellington and Collingsworth County a better place.

The check lists should be mailed or brought to the Chamber of Commerce office, and these need not be signed, Mr. Gattis pointed out.

Wellington Part of Industrial Commission Computer Program

A group of business and civic leaders met with E. H. Sheffield of the Texas Industrial Commission Friday, March 12, to receive the Insta-Site printout which will place Wellington's name before industries throughout the United States that are looking for plant site locations in the state.

At the same time, he presented citations to the Wellington men and women who had furnished information for the printout.

Insta-Site is the commission's computer program in which 400 Texas towns and cities are participating.

Mr. Sheffield reviewed the 88-page printout which contains 144 items of information about the Wellington area, and he reviewed with the group other information that is needed.

As soon as this is furnished, a computerized Community Analysis Report will be available that shows how Wellington compares with other towns of similar size on the factors that industrialists look for in locating new plants.

"Using the Community Analysis Report as a guide, Wellington leaders will be able to plan effective measures to spur local economic growth," said Mr. Sheffield.

"The next phase in the development of the computer program is to match Wellington resources with a profile of the location requirements of all types of expanding industries. This will enable us at the commission to help you concentrate your industrial development program on companies you have the best chance of attracting to Wellington."

Insta-site works in this manner:

Mailings are sent to a number of prospects, and those in turn reply with the towns they will visit. The Industrial Commission notifies the towns, and arranges to get the prospect there. From that point it is up

Farms Lost

The 1970 Census is being released in dribbles, but the information coming from it thus far indicates that the trend from rural areas and small town to the cities is continuing unchecked.

Several thousand farms have been lost in Texas between the 1960 and the 1970 censuses. Farms have grown larger, by an average of 13 per cent, and this trend continues.

Less than half of the land in the United States is now in farms. The remainder is occupied by cities, highways, railroads, wastelands, airports, parks, wild-life refuges, military installations, deserts, mountains, forests and rural non-farm residential and industrial developments.

Less than a fifth of the rural population now consists of farm operators or farm worker families. This means that the term "rural population" doesn't mean farmers anymore.

Life on the farm has been steadily upgraded and improved until there are few objections to the quality of living out from town. In fact, the advantages probably outweigh the advantages of life in town.

Electricity and telephones are generally available in rural areas. Paved roads and all-weather roads put the average farm family as close to the supermarket, the hospital, the shopping center as the city counterpart, perhaps even closer if measured in terms of time it takes to get from home to one of these areas.

Farm families escape traffic congestion, air pollution, high taxes, and other city problems. They have problems of their own in providing their own water and sewage facilities, have less fire protection and other city advantages.

But the big reason people are leaving the farm is that they are being squeezed out by economics. Farm products are at the low end of the totem pole in this country. Farmers have no control over the price of what they produce and since those that buy from them are intent upon getting these products as cheaply as possible, it has worked that way.

In this country, we are more familiar with the wheat crop than anything else. The present price of wheat is about what it was 30 years ago, and the farmer who grows wheat for a living cannot help but notice that his clothing, medicine, transportation and everything else is nowhere near the price it was 30 years ago.

The price of cattle is now about what it was 20 years ago while everything else has zoomed in price.

Residents of the big cities don't understand this. They think that food comes into town by a system similar to that of the city water system and is just as available by turning a tap.

An Invitation

BY GAYLORD COOK

The 13th & Bowie Church of Christ requests the honor of your presence at a series of meetings during the week of March 28-April 2. At 7:30 each evening (6:00 p. m. on Sunday), Calvin Warpula of Memphis, Tennessee will be proclaiming the Good News of Jesus Christ. Brother Warpula is a young, but experienced evangelist, having preached in over 100 gospel meetings in recent years. He is a graduate of Freed-Hardeman College and also of Abilene Christian College where he was graduated "magna cum laude." Brother Warpula is a dynamic speaker, a lover of the souls of men and of the word of God. We truly believe your time will be well invested each time you attend this series of meetings. We shall be looking forward to having you with us during this effort. Visitors are especially invited to be with us on Sunday morning, March 28 as we seek to meet the challenge of having EVERY MEMBER of the congregation present with a visitor!

AUSTIN.—A blue-ribbon committee has been formed to lead the fight against income taxation.

Midland attorney Tom Sealy resigned from the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System to devote full time to directing the work of the statewide group.

Texas Association of Taxpayers started with an advisory committee of 300 prominent citizens. Sealy announced that a membership drive is getting under way.

"Our purpose is not obstruction, but rather an honest and open effort to help the Legislature develop a reasonable tax program and undertake whatever economies are possible in order to resolve this situation in the regular session," Sealy said. "We are united on one broad principle that this should be done within the present tax structure and without enactment of either a personal income tax or a corporate income tax."

TAT notes that business pays 34% of the present sales tax and that 18% of all state revenues come from natural resource taxes which many states do not levy.

Our organization, says Sealy, feels that "this is not time to strap income taxes on the people" in view of unemployment and the shape of the economy. It will argue a corporate income tax is "simply the forerunner of a personal income tax."

Meanwhile, the House-passed $492.5 million tax bill, made up largely of sales levy increases, arrived in the Senate without a sponsor. It was referred to the State Affairs Committee.

Sen. W. T. Moore of Bryan, chairman of the State Affairs Committee, indicated that he will not lend his name to the bill and that he is in no hurry to schedule hearings.

Ad Rules Set

Advertising regulations for health insurance companies to follow have been drafted by the State Insurance Board, to take effect April 1.

Companies are instructed to stick strictly to the truth and to close loopholes that might deprive the policyholder of coverage.

Special participating policies drew close attention and were termed "unfair, inequitable, misleading and deceptive."

Tough rules drafted earlier by a Board attorney were discarded in favor of uniform regulations recommended by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. Insurance-men favored the latter.

Ads must disclose the waiting period that is necessary before the effective date of the policy, any illnesses not covered and whether benefits listed require more than one policy for full coverage.

When existing ailments are not covered, the ad cannot imply that one's medical history does not affect the policy or the claim payment. Use of the phrase "no medical examination required" is thus limited.

Board plans to enforce these rules by cease and desist orders. Companies which ignore the order can be fined or have their license revoked.

Texas Rates Low in Safety

Texas was ranked in the bottom quarter of states in a federal evaluation of compliance with federal highway safety standards.

Gov. Preston Smith in a letter to Transportation Secretary John Volpe protested the rating and said that Texas' efforts to comply have been "misjudged or ignored". He said the Legislature is now considering all aspects necessary to compliance.

National rating is based on such things as motor vehicle inspection and registration, licensing, codes and statutes, traffic courts, driver education, emergency medical services, highway design, construction and maintenance and alcoholic beverages in relation to highway safety.

In a special message to the Legislature, Smith asked for an end to the misdemeanor probation for drunk drivers.

Courts Speak

Supreme Court in a Montgomery County school bond election case held one must render property (real or personal) for taxation to be eligible to vote in such elections.

High Court, in a 7 to 2 verdict, reversed the lower courts in a Reeves County case and concluded that a rancher does not have legal title to 160 acres of land even though he maintained fences for more than 10 years and kept his cattle there.

Supreme Court declined to hear arguments over whether two socialist candidates should

Supreme Court says if a citizen is too poor to pay his fine for speeding, running a red light, etc., it is Unconstitutional to make him lay it out in jail.

Court appears to think this amounts to imprisonment for being broke, which is not a jailable offense until some law gets passed against it. But my realismal neighbor says in cases like this, the offender's car might be locked up until the fine is paid, unless the Court decides that would be cruel and unusual punishment.

My TVized neighbor complains bitterly that all of the good programs on the tube are scheduled to be taken off next season.

Excuse given by the program perpetrators is that squarish-type shows don't turn on Youth, which outlaws all such in a Youth-worshipping social order.

But he reckons it is fair enough, after all, for us to kowtow to the strange tastes of our younguns. That seems little enough to do for them while we are prodigiously profligating with their future earnings.—D. E. Scott.

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin announced filing of anti-trust action in the federal court in Dallas, alleging conspiracy by major auto manufacturers to suppress air pollution control equipment.

Atty. Gen. Opinions

School districts are not authorized to place certified administrative staff personnel on a foundation school program roster in utilization of classroom teacher units allotments unless they meet the definition of "classroom teacher", Atty. Gen. Martin has held.

Ruling by Martin also clarified the pay grade classifications of superintendents and principals.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded that:

—Amendments to the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act which would permit employers of one to three persons and non-profit organizations to pay lower taxes than other newly-covered firms are valid.

—Harris County road law authorized transfer of responsibility for operation and maintenance of Washburn Tunnel and Harris County ferries to only the commissioner in whose precinct they are located.

Martin advised consumers that merchants are not required by law to take back merchandise returned by customers who have simply changed their minds about wanting it. Stores, he said, are liable for defective merchandise.

Explorers to Admit Girls to Membership

After two years of research and field experience, the Exploring Division of the Boy Scouts of America will now admit teenage girls to full membership in Exploring, its high school-age action program.

The announcement was made recently by Dave Harmony, Adobe Walls Council Exploring Chairman, after word was received that approval has been given by the National Executive Board of the BSA and will be effective April 1.

Harmony said that the action taken nationally was in recognition of the chartered requirement to serve boys and young men, and it would enable Exploring to more effectively carry out its mandate to meet the needs and interests of today's youth.

Until January, 1970, Exploring had been an all-male program. Acting on research studies and recommendations of business, education, religious and youth leaders, Exploring began a one-year trial of admitting young women to participate in the program. Participation was restricted to special-interest Explorer Posts organized around a career or vocational interest.

The National Executive Board action now makes it possible for coeds to become full-fledged members and for adult women volunteers to act in leadership capacities.

During the last year there have been 27 Explorer Posts in this area with nine having girls as participants. The Posts specialize in such interests as Data Processing, Engineering, Law Enforcement, Veterinary Medicine, Religion, Skiing, Chemistry, Broadcasting and Pharmacy. Membership in a Post or Sea Explorer Ship would be entirely at the discretion of the sponsoring organization, Harmony explained.

Age requirements for girls are the same as male members. Members may enroll upon reaching 15 years of age and may remain through their 20th year.

WHS Students Tackle Drug Problem in Planning Session

A drug program planning session was held in Wellington High School Thursday and Friday, March 4 and 5, with students divided into small groups with group leaders.

Teachers did not take part. Group participants worked drug puzzles, and discussed drugs of all types. Students also answered a series of questions through group participation that will assist drug program coordinator Jim Forrester and student leaders in setting up a long range drug program for the Wellington schools.

"The students worked unbelievably well on this project. I believe the students understand the enormous task in planning a drug program, also I believe the students in WHS realize that drugs are a problem in society today and that a well-planned drug program will be a great asset to students after graduation. Notes from the group discussion will be invaluable in planning the future programs," Mr. Forrester said.

Group leaders who participated were: Cathy Singley, David Hodges, Randy McKinney, Stan Parker, Bruce Oney, Carey Lewis, Judy Jones, Carole Cochran, Louis Gonzales, Joey Manuel, Randy Amonett, Kathryn Scott, Sammy Coffey, Jan McGill, Connie Bearden, Barry Long, Connie Lewis, Patricia McAlister, Gwen Lewis, Randall Hodges, Phyllis Sullivan, Brent Hodges, Brent Wade, Dickie Johnson, and Earl Hartman.

Physically Handicapped Aided Through Easter Seal Service

Persons with physical handicaps who need treatment and services in Collingsworth County may find the services they need through Jack Neeley, who is the Collingsworth County representative of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas.

The Easter Seal Society offers rehabilitation services to children and adults with physical disabilities including speech and hearing problems, according to Mr. Neeley.

The Society also operates an information and referral service that will direct residents of Collingsworth County to other appropriate sources of health and welfare aid in the area, he said.

He urged parents, doctors, nurses, clergymen and other individuals and organizations to refer handicapped persons who need assistance to the Easter Seal Society by contacting him at the Wellington State Bank.

The Texas Easter Seal Society helps support 20 treatment centers where services are provided to crippled children and adults regardless of their ability to pay. Physical, occupational and speech therapy are offered to help the handicapped to overcome their disabilities.

The Easter Seal program is financed by contributions made during the Easter Seal Campaign which is now underway and will continue until April 11, Easter Sunday.

During 1970, the Texas Easter Seal Society provided treatment and services to over 21,000 children and adults with a variety of physical handicaps.

Mr. Neeley urged that contributions to the Easter Seal Appeal be made as soon as possible.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

During recent months I have been an inpatient at Baylor Hospital in Dallas on two occasions and out patient of M. D. Anderson in Houston and a visitor to Methodist Hospital in Houston and John Peter Smith Hospital in Fort Worth. For years I have been interested in our own excellent hospital here in Wellington, St. Joseph's. As a result of these experiences, I have an increasing interest in the tremendous and essential services rendered in this country by the hospitals, doctors, nurses and technicians.

There is cause for alarm over the bills introduced in Congress furthering the trend toward socialized medicine. There is greater cause for apprehension in one introduced by the much publicized Senator Ted Kennedy. His bill would put all medical facilities under an enforced type of social security that would rival the system now in effect in Britain which has caused thousands of their younger doctors to emigrate to Canada, Australia and the United States. The older doctors see more and more patients in order to stay solvent and the medical service becomes poorer and poorer.

Senator Kennedy belongs to the beautiful people—that superior segment of our society—who seem determined to eliminate the middle class working Americans in order to preserve their trust funds and their ill gotten wealth from a fair share of taxation. The Kennedy plan for medicine would cost something like $80 billion a year at the start. What it would cost in ten years is unbelievable. What it would take out of the paycheck of the average working man or salaried person is more objectionable. The money that is being taken out of paychecks for withholding and social security now is intolerable. Senator Kennedy wants to make a triple dip out of the double dip.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has been ignoring the requests of landowners in Collingsworth County for an equitable quail hunting season comparable to our neighbors. For some strange reason this august body of game wardens and politicians has seen fit to open the quail season in Collingsworth on November 15 while the season was opened in adjoining counties such as Childress and Hall on the south, Donley on the west and Wheeler on the north on December 1. It was a peculiar bit of political reasoning that was inflicted on the rolling plains where quail abide in profusion in favorable years. Hunters flocked to this one open county while all the neighbors were closed. The slaughter endangered the future population of this wonderful game bird.

Now the Commissioners Court has decided to try to do something about it. They have passed a resolution asking the Legislature to pass a special law for Collingsworth setting our dates at the same time the season is opened in adjoining counties. It should be easy to secure because all it is asking is equal treatment. Such may not be the case for simple justice is not always easy to obtain from the bureaucrats and the politicians.

Buster Hughes is recovering from an operation on his spine and is wearing a brace and walking stiffly and carefully. It must be aggravating to an old fireman like Buster to hear the sirens wail and the fire trucks roll and not be a part of it. He has served well and faithfully for many years. It is time to let the old back rest, Buster.

Harold Gattis is taking hold of his duties as president of the chamber of commerce with energy and enthusiasm. He has the fair committee appointed and work is well under way for this time of the year. The organization has a questionnaire in this issue that they would like for you to fill out. The prolonged dry weather has one long range beneficial influence. It causes more land owners to start trying to find irrigation wells. George Shadid brought in a good six-inch well last week and Jones Singley got a good one Saturday.

Quail Lions Hear Governor, Name Sweetheart

Quail Lions were hosts to District 21-T Governor Jack Riley of McLean recently for a discussion of "What is Lionism?" followed by an explanation of the High Plains Eye Bank, which is supported by Lions Clubs of the district.

Mr. Riley described the many facets of Lionism, all aimed at service, either to individuals or to the community. James Thompson, Boss Lion of the McLean Club, showed a film which detailed the work of the eye bank and explained how Lions, as well as non-members may will their eyes to the bank so that others may see.

Floyd Sackett of Pampa, deputy district governor, was a special guest of the club.

During the business session, Brenda Childers was elected Lions Club Sweetheart. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Childers, she is a senior in Quail High School.

She will compete for the title of District Sweetheart at the annual convention in Borger April 22 through 24. Lions had their wives as guests at the steak dinner.

I refuse to predict the weather in the midst of a drought, but I will pass along this timely hint: All you cattlemen who have land adjoining the Salt Fork of Red River or Buck Creek should get your mother cows and their calves on high ground before May 20. All you hog raisers should do the same with your sows and young pigs wherever you are and you should keep them on high ground until July.

It is easy to give advice on raising hogs when you do not have any hogs.

"It will be a complete preschool program, and if the response is great enough, classes will begin at three years old and go through for six-year-olds who were not old enough to become first graders."

Kindergarten work to precede first grade will become mandatory in the public schools within the next year or two, under legislation passed last year.

The school will not teach Baptist doctrine, but it will be based on Christian principles, the pastor pointed out, saying it is for all children. There will be a tuition charge.

Plans now are to feature once each week a Mothers' Day Out, and to provide for baby sitting in the church nurseries, for any small child, the pastor continued.
