NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin.—There is one public office in Texas about which hovers some traditions as old as the republic itself—that of the commissioner of the general land office. Here are kept the voluminous records of the public domain, which, in the early days, represented virtually all the wealth the state possessed. There are about 60 employes today in the land office, and they are mostly veterans with many years of experience. It takes years and years to become suffciently familiar with the surveys and records for an employe to be really useful. O. Henry, the short story master, served as a clerk here once, in 1888-89, and the little caricature sketches he made on the margins of the record books may still be seen.

This year a new land commissioner will be elected, Commissioner Walker having announced his retirement next Jan. 1. Only three times in the history of the office has an "outsider"—a man without previous experience in the land office—been elected commissioner. Usually the chief clerk is promoted by the voters, and in line with the tradition, Chief Clerk J. W. Hawkins is a candidate for commissioner. Hawkins has served 33 years as a clerk—continuously since 1902, except for a couple of years in the army during the World war. The land commissioner has tremendously important discretion in settlement of claims for "vacancy" and school lands, worth millions of dollars since the discovery of oil. There has never been a breath of scandal in connection with the office, notwithstanding it pays only $2000 a year, and the chief clerk who steps up to commissioner takes a cut in salary when he is "promoted." Next November the voters will pass on a constitutional amendment that would raise the salary of this office, along with that of the governor, attorney general, secretary of state and oter key state officials.

ROAD PROGRAM COMPLETE

With this week's lettings, it becomes certain that the greatest highway building program in the history of Texas will be completely under contract by June 30, end of the fiscal year. Federal aid, state construction and emergency relief and maintenance work actually to be under way or completed by June 30 will total substantially over $50,000,000. To complete this program has repuired almost continuous night work in the plans department of the highway department and in the district office of the U. S. bureau of public roads at Fort Worth. Virtually ever road contractor in Texas is busy, and the program has put 100,000 people to work, directly and indirectly.

THEY ADVERTISE

Motion picture theaters in Texas, while hard hit by the depression, like every business, were one of the first industries to begin to restore normal volume, according to a theater spokesman here. He added that they achieved this by spending money boldly for improved equipment, and for newspaper and other advertising, to tell the public. Result: The theaters, with air-conditioned comfort and sound picture entertainment equal, even in the smallest towns, to the best that can be had in metropolitan centers, and vigorous publicity campaigns in their local newspapers, no longer feel the terrific summer slump they experienced when warm weather brings competition from motoring, swimming and other summer recreations.

"The newspapers' most consistent patrons throughout the depression have been the theaters," said the spokesman. "And now they are reaping the benefits of this policy."

Black Top Being Put On Street

Pouring of asphalt on the two blocks of street here started Wednesday about one o'clock and will probably be finished within the next day or two. It will probably be several days before traffic can be turned onto the street.

The job is a WPA job and has been under various phases of construction for more than a year. Most of the time, however, it has been standing idle.

When the street is opened for traffic it will add a grat deal to the appearance and comfort of those who live here and those who come here to do their trading.

MRS. MARTIN TO PRESENT PROGRAM AT THEATRE

Pupils of Mrs. W. R. Martin will be presented in a musical and reading program at the Rialto Theatre Thursday night of this week, The program will be free to everyone and will be of the same high quality that always marks Mrs. Martin's programs.

FREE BAND CONCERT SATURDAY AFTERNOON

C. H. Martin, director of the Loraine Municipal Band, has announced a band concert for each Saturday afternoon for some time to come. The band was recently reorganized and is really capable of playing good music. If you enjoy good band music be in town and hear the band each Saturday afternoon.

FILLING STATION ENTERED

The filling station of C. M. Duke was entered some time during Saturday night and a tire and some pennies taken. Entrance was gained by breaking the east window.

POWER FIGHT ON.

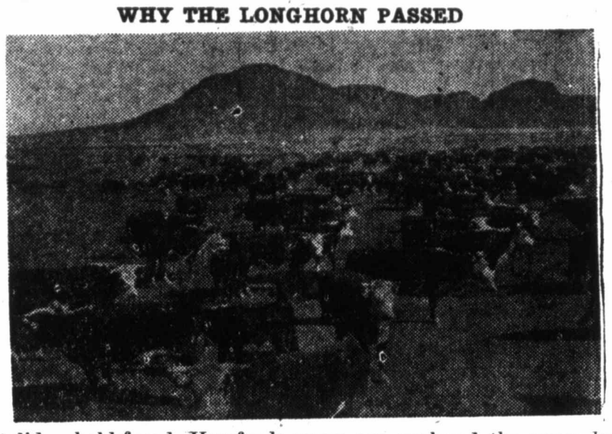

Last week in Austin, opening round of the court battle by Texas power interests against the Colorado and Brazos developments, was started, when depositions were taken by power attorneys from officials of the Colorado river authority. Colorado and Brazos improvements, backers claim, are primarily intended to prevent millions in annual flood damage, reclaim much fertile land, now flooded, with power development as a by-product. Power companies claim the projects are primarily for power development, and will destroy their business. The battle will be long drawn-out and finally settled in the U. S. supreme court.

POLITICAL PINWHEEL

Sixty thousand checks, averaging $20 each, representing the pensions granted that many applicants, which will go forward July 1, will constitute the best answer to opponents of Gov. Allred who have criticized the pension situation, the governor's friends believe. . . A quiet and routine session, with the chief problem being how to divide eight delegate-at-large places among many, many deserving party leaders, is in prospect for the San Antonio state Democratic convention, May 26. Best guessers here think the delegates at large will include Gov. Allred, Myron Blacklock, Sam Rayburn, Senators Connally and Sheppard, Jesse Jones, and two women delegates. Tom Hunter, announcing he will open his campaign in Austin, "where Gov. Allred can't help hearing about him," forgot that he's been charging the governor spends no time in Austin. Garland Adair, ex-newspaper man and prominent Legion leader, candidate for state treasurer, has opened the smallest headquarters . . . a single desk and one chair, in the lobby of the Driskill hotel here. . . Gov. Allred's headquarters will be in the Austin hotel, and Col. Ernest O. Thompson will direct his candidacy for re-election to the railroad commission from the Baker hotel in Dallas.

WHY THE LONGHORN PASSED

Stolid, bald-faced Herefords years ago replaced the spare but picturespue Longhorns which scampered across the plains long before Austin led his colony into the State. Today Centennial visitors will see the old frontier transformed into an empire of usefulness, the old Chisholm trail having passed into distant memory.

Light Showers Fell MondayN ight

Light rains fell over most of the Loraine territory during Sunday nightt and Monday. The fall ranged from light showers to a half inch and more, according to reports. Monday afternoon a heavy shower fell between here and Roscoe, an inch and a half being reported in some places south of the highway.

Crops that are already up or had just been planted will be greatly benefitted. Those who had not planted will not have enough moisture to bring crops up it is reported.

MERCHANTS NIGHT

The Rialto Theatre is starting a new feature next Monday night which will continue each Monday night for ten weeks. The new feature is a Merchants Night in which ten merchants are particiipating and will give away ten dollars worth of merchandise each Monday night. Merchants particiipating are Sinclair Service Station, Louis Wilcox Service Station, Martin Drug Store, J. B. Mahon Grocery, Loraine Furniture Company, City Grocery, Mrs. Meadows Grocery, Mrs. J. W. Fairbairn Grocery, Clyde Wilson Toggery, and Loraine Mercantile Co.

HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Dunnahoo, together with its contents, was completely destroyed by fire about ten o'clock Wednesday morning. Origin of the fire has not been determined.

Mrs. Dunnahoo was at home alone and in the garden when she discoverel the fire.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS

New subscribers who took advantage of our short term bargain offer last week are: Hall Hooker, Tom Ray, Bill Long, Gus Baumann, L. G. Walker, Earl Brown, E. D. Saunders, J. C. Forbus, R. L. May, H. Preston, J. H. Beaty, Ira Coffee, C. W. Wallace, Alfred Richey, Mrs. J. D. Norman, W. P. Wiggins, and E. N. Jones.

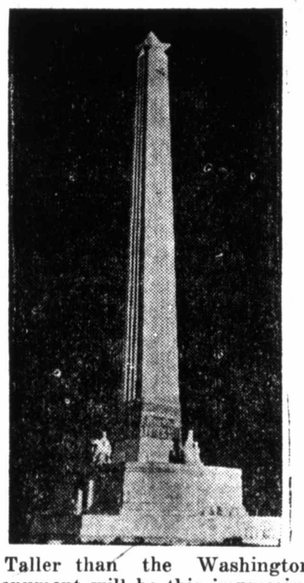

The bargain rate, 25 cents from now until October 1, will be in effect until June 1. If you have not taken advantage of this rate offered by your home town paper do so before the time expires for it is really a bargain at the price.

THE MILL OF THE GODS HERE THURSDAY NIGHT

"The Mill of the Gods," a drama in three acts, will be presented in the high school auditorium Thursday night of this week by patrons of the Shepherd school. The senior class of the Loraine high school is sponsoring the play. Admission will be ten and fifteen cents and those who have seen the play say it is really a good one and those who take part in it are excellent players. Clifton Henderson acts the part of a tramp and he brings down the house with laughter quite often.

Bill Wright, employee of the Beeman Music House. Sweetwater, visited homefolks here Sunday.

FREEDOM'S SHAFT

Taller than the Washington monument will be this impressive shaft erected on the San Jacinto battle field near Houston. The memorial to Texas freedom is being erected at a cost of nearly $1,000,000.

BROADWAY OF AMERICA ASSN. MEETS IN COLORADO

The first state convention of the Broadway of America Association is to be held in Colorado Thursday of next week. The meeting is to open at ten o'clock in the Palace Theatre and a luncheon is to be held in the Colorado hotel at noon. Several prominent speakers of the association, including H. W. Stanley of Dallas, will appear on the program.

El Paso, Van Horn, Pecos, Midland, Sweetwater, Eastland, Dallas and Loraine have already accepted the invitation. Loraine will furnish a number on the program at the luncheon.

The first state convention was given to Colorado to honor Jim Greene who offered the resolution in the national convention to hold state conventions in order to bring the work of the association closer home.

The purpose of the organization is to promote more travel on the Broadway of America highway.

BASEBALL RALLY

Quite a number of interested fans turned out for the baseball rally Tuesday night and voted enthusiastically to try to raise some money to assist the baseball team in providing first class games for the amusement of the fans throughout this section. A committee composed of Stanton Hutchins, Owen Leggott, Minvel Parker, Claude Spikes and V. H. Wimberley was appointed to contact the merchants and others for funds. The funds so raised to go toward paying the salary of one pitcher for the team.

Wade Preston, Jack Coffee and Stanton Hutchins was appointed on a committee to sell tickets for a 42 party to be held next Tuesday night to assist in raising the funds for the team.

Mrs. Claude Spikes was elected treasurer for the funds, and J. W. King was elected secretary.

World Famous Strong Man Coming To Loraine Saturday

Jack Kern, known as the "IRON MAN," holder of the world's record for moving the greatest load of weight with the human body, will be presented to the people of Loraine and trade territory, in a FREE exhibition of strength next Saturday afternoon, promptly at 3:00 o'clock.

The "IRON MAN," as Jack is known, will attempt to pull several heavily loaded trucks up grade, on the street by a rope around his neck and other methods. Kern, a most ordinary looking man, in his street clothes, is a "Believe It or Not" character, said to possess one of the most perfectly developed set of muscles in this country.

He has held his world's record for 18 years. Weighing only 162 pounds this man was successful in defeating a giant strong man from Coblenz, Germany, who weighed 242 pounds, and beat him by four tons.

Kern's world record is pulling 24 tons, 46 feet up a 1 per cent grade.

He also, according to Medical Science, is the only living human to possess a muscular formation over the outside of each elbow. Jack has been examined by Doctors everywhere and all express amazement as to how his body stands this terrific strain without bursting blood vessels or arteries.

Kern's exhibition in Loraine is paid for by the Merchants and everyone is cordially invited to witness this show. Jack especially urges that you bring your children as he is a great lover of them.

The show starts promptly at 3:00 o'clock, last only 40 minutes and you must be on hand if you wish to see him. No collection will be taken.

NEW RULINGS ANNOUNCED BY STATE COMMITTEE

College Station—Land owners having multiple tenants on a contiguous block of farms may fill out a master work sheet instead of separate work sheets for each farm, it was announced by the State Soil Conservation Committee.

They also pointed out that payments will be prorated among all tenants similar to the way old parity payments were distributed and the land owner will be held responsible for compliance.

Of great importance to Texas farmers, members of the State committee commented, is the new rule that two rows of corn or grain sorghum interplanted with one row of cowpeas will count as two thirds soil-depleting crops and one-third soil-conserving. The county committee will determine the percentage of land occupancy.

Sudan grass has been ruled a soil-conserving crop regardless of use and can be harvested for hay or seed, used as a pasture, or left on the land.

The same is true of oats if followed by a summer legume after harvesting. The State Soil Conservation Committee assumed that crops will be grown and compliance will be sufficiently late to allow for this purpose.

It was also announced at the same time that the base rice acreage and production for 1936 will be the base that was established in 1935, except where producers are eligible for upward adjustment.

Upward adjustments will be made where the years of 1929 and 1930 were excluded from the previous base calculations; where the producer did not grow rice in one or more years in base period; where production was below a 10 barrel acreage on account of uncontrolable natural causes.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO MEET THURSDAY NITE

Thursday night of this week will be regular meeting time for the Loraine Chamber of Commerce. The meeting is to be held in the Chamber of Commerce building, beginning at eight o'clock, and every member of the organization is urged to be present by President O. I. Griffin who says there is important business to transact.

COPE—MCPHERSON

Lucille Miller Cope and Roy McPherson were married Monday May 18, in Jaton, with Fred McPherson, brother of the groom, performing the ceremony.

Mrs. McPherson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Miller of South Champion. She has been the primary teacher in the Champion school for several years.

Mr. McPherson is the son of Mrs. N. L. McPherson, of Mineral Wells, Texas. He is principal of the Lone Star school and a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University.

The couple left for an extended trip through New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming, after which they will attend the University of Colorado for the summer. The News join their many friends in wishing them much happiness.

42 PARTY TO BENEFIT BASEBALL CLUB

A 42 party, the proceeds of which will go toward assisting the Loraine baseball team, is to be held in the Chamber of Commerce building next Tuesday night. If you like to play 42 and would like to help Loraine maintain a first class baseball team do not fail to be present for the party for you will have lots of fun and at the same time will be contributing two-bits toward the baseball team. The party will start at eight o'clock and last as long as you want to play.

Six Babies in Three Days
World's Greatest Terror
Another Mild Bad Man
How to Avoid Thought

President Sacasa of Nicaragua confirms officially the statement that a very poor woman on the "distant shore of Lake Nicaragua has given birth to seven babies."

Arthur Brisbane

The mother, Mrs. Sinforosa Martinez, had a difficult time. The births stretched over three days—May 3, 4 and 5. The babies' names are, or were, Jose Jesus, Ramon del Carmen, Maria del Carmen, Socorro del Carmen, Maria de Jesus and Juana Ramona.

The seventh name was not telegraphed, for there was no seventh, as it was expected there would be. Five of the sextuplets are already dead. Only one, a girl, lives.

What would population of the earth be if such births were the rule and all lived?

At the opening of the Catholic press exhibition in Vatican City, Pope Pius, for the second time within two days, cautioned the world against communism, which he called "the great terror which threatens all the world."

For the comfort of those that live in dread of final Communist world conquest, it may be said that thus far nothing opposed to human nature has ever succeeded.

By the arrest in California of Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., kidnaper of Mrs. Stoll, Mr. Hoover and his G-men brought into the shadow of the electric chair the last of the group of dangerous criminals that have recently been wandering about the country.

This "bad man," like others recently gathered in, shook with fright when he found the gun pointed at him, made no effort to fight. When the guns are pointed the wrong way, "bad men" often change to good, meek and scared men.

Stamp collectors have held a celebration, grateful to Doctor Eckener for a new kind of stamp. How many ways man finds to keep busy and at the same time avoid thinking!

Collecting queer things, stamps or tear jugs; playing bridge, working cross-word puzzles, playing solitaire, rushing to the far corners of the world to spend money—usually not earned; going to Africa to kill big game animals. Those are some substitutes for thinking and working constructively, the only occupation worthy of a human being.

Mrs. James C. Canipe of Clovis, New Mexico, as a girl was not able to finish high school, but that did not discourage her. She waited some years. Then she joined the senior high school class with her son and daughter-in-law, and will graduate with them this month, among the most brilliant scholars.

Chancellor Hitler, who was never married, nevertheless thinks marriage a good idea. Young Nazis, in the public employ, have been told that unless they marry by the time they are twenty-six years old there is something the matter with their "courage and will power."

A syndicate is formed to seek the "buried gold bags of Alexander the Great," containing at least $300,000,000 in yellow wealth.

Alexander the Great's ghost might be surprised to hear about that. Alexander was too busy to collect gold, and not the kind of man to bury it in a hole.

Encouraged by her father, a sixteen-year-old high school girl walked onto the wing of a small plane, prepared for a first parachute jump, at 1,500 feet. The pilot perceived that the parachute cord had been pulled prematurely; pulled her back into the cockpit in time to save her from death.

Without requiring encouragement, Mrs. Harriet O. Hague, eighty-six years old, flew the ocean on the Hindenburg return trip. Tell that to your friend who used to oppose female suffrage "because women are not brave like men."

Germany is building many fleets of small aircraft, and some day this country's automobile men will turn to airplane building; then, those already past sixty may live to see in the air 25,000,000 flying machines, one for every automobile on the ground.

The Italian flag flies over Haile Selassie's palace. He will never see that palace again, but he has boxes of gold bars with him and has moved to a safer, better climate.

The civilized world, whatever its attitude toward the slave-dealing alleged descendants of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, must rejoice in Mussolini's proclamation abolishing slavery throughout Ethiopia, where slaves have been the chief cash-producing product.

Borah Loses Ohio Primary—House Defeats Frazier-Lemke Inflation Bill—Tugwell's Report on His Resettlement Administration.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

SENATOR WILLIAM BORAH banked heavily on success in the Ohio Presidential preference primary, but the Republicans of that state turned him down decisively in favor of their "favorite son," Robert A. Taft, son of the late President Taft. Of the 52 delegates to the Cleveland convention, Borah captured only five, the others, including the delegates at large, being Taft men. The winning delegation will be virtually unpledged, because it will vote for Taft only on the first ballot. Mr. Borah did not take this defeat calmly. He gave out a statement in Washington accusing the Republican organization leaders of manipulating the votes of colored citizens against him by promising the passage of federal anti-lynching legislation which he has opposed as unconstitutional. The Idaho senator added:

Senator Borah

"The Republican party will go into the campaign laying great stress upon Constitutional integrity and the preservation of state rights.

"The men who are in control of the party, and who will likely be in control of the convention, will write its platform and name its candidate, have already demonstrated that they care nothing about Constitutional integrity or the preservation of state rights, that their talk on this subject is hypocritical and intellectually dishonest."

Ohio Democrats polled about 500,000 votes in the primary, nearly 100,000 more than the Republicans, and they expressed their preference for Mr. Roosevelt over Col. Henry Breckenridge to the tune of 16 to 1. They also renominated Gov. Martin L. Davey, who will be opposed by John W. Bricker, Republican, in November.

West Virginia also held primaries and there Borah and Roosevelt won easily over nominal opposition. The state's Republican delegation, however, will go to the convention uninstructed.

It is interesting to note that one of Ohio's delegates at Cleveland will be Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of "T. R." and a spectator at many previous conventions.

WE ARE not going to have any currency inflation, at least before next session of congress. The Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill, dragged out of committee by a petition signed by 218 house members, and then hotly debated for a day, was defeated by the decisive vote of 235 to 142. The bill called for the printing of three billion dollars for its financing.

The petition signers included 159 Democrats, and before the vote every one of them was told by Pat Boland of Pennsylvania, the party whip, that the President didn't want the measure passed at this time and that if the member voted for the bill it would be just too bad for him. Besides this potent argument the Democratic leaders induced President William Green of the American Federation of Labor to intervene and he called together the federation's executive council and had it write a letter saying it was opposed to the bill because of the inflation feature. This was read to the house by Speaker Byrns and undoubtedly affected the vote, though some members resented being told what to do by Mr. Green.

There was relief in the White House when it was announced the President would not have to veto such a measure in an election year.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT was supposed to have abandoned for the present the Florida ship canal and Passamaquoddy tidal power projects for which the house refused to appropriate further funds. But Senator Robinson of Arkansas was called to the White House for a conference and returned to the house to introduce a resolution authorizing the President to appoint engineering boards of review for the two schemes.

The boards would present their findings by June 29, and, if favorable, the President would have authorization to set aside $10,000,000 for the canal and $9,000,000 for Passamaquoddy out of available relief money.

NEWTON D. BAKER and Dean Acheson, counsel, for five power companies that are trying to block the government's municipal power program, met with defeat in the District of Columbia Supreme court when they sought to subpoena correspondence between President Roosevelt and Secretary Ickes. Jerome Frank, a New Deal attorney, stated that the President had directed that his "privilege" of testimonial immunity be asserted in the case, and Chief Justice Wheat refused to issue the subpoena.

IF THE house concurs in senate action, the title of Harold L. Ickes will be changed from secretary of the interior to secretary of conservation. A bill making the change was passed by the senate at the instance of Senator Lewis of Illinois. Two years ago, when Mr. Ickes was at the height of his power, he wanted the title altered to "secretary of conservation and works" and hoped that many of the agencies of the Department of Agriculture would be transferred to his department. But Secretary Wallace objected strenuously, and lately so much has been taken out of Mr. Ickes' hands that Senator Lewis cut his bill to the one paragraph, making the change of title and leaving off "and works."

WORKS PROGRESS ADMINISTRATOR HARRY HOPKINS issued an order to state WPA directors instructing them not to employ armed guards, not to spy on workers and not to blacklist workers who organize.

The order was issued following a conference with Victor F. Ridder, New York city WPA administrator, who employed a detachment of guards to protect his office against anti-WPA demonstrations which Mr. Ridder asserts were stirred up by Communists.

OPPOSITION in the senate finance committee to the corporate profits tax in the administration's $803,000,000 revenue bill was so strong that both Democrats and Republicans sought for some compromise. Treasury officials were heard in favor of the measure as passed by the house, but former treasury officials and various business and industrial leaders speaking in opposition were seemingly more persuasive. Senator Tom Connally of Texas put forward a plan he thought all might agree upon. It would retain the 15 per cent corporation income tax and repeal only the capital stock and excess profits taxes, instead of repealing all corporation taxes as proposed in the house bill. In addition it would superimpose a graduated tax on undistributed earnings, exempting the first 20 per cent on the amount retained. The house bill reaches a maximum of 42½ per cent of the total income if none is distributed.

Senator Byrd of Virginia, another of the Democrats opposed to the house bill, showed, in a letter to Secretary Morgenthau, that 11 of the largest corporations in the country would pay no taxes under the Roosevelt bill.

RESPONDING to a senate resolution, Rexford Tugwell made a report on the activities of the resettlement administration of which he is the head. He showed that it has 15,804 employees on the administration pay roll and has been allotted $275,549,944 to spend. Of this amount, the report stated, $98,347,005 has been spent and a total of $173,091,823 obligated, leaving $102,458,112 unincumbered.

R. G. Tugwell

Up to April 15, according to the report, the resettlement administration had taken options on 9,670,000 acres of land, of which options on 8,469,000 acres, costing $36,344,000, had become legal commitments. As of May 1, the report said, 59,521 persons, including 3,581 on the CCC pay roll, were employed in connection with the land acquisition program.

The report stated that a recent survey indicated that "the purchase of approximately 24,000,000 acres of land would be needed to block in and round out" the existing projects and to establish a minimum number of new projects.

Of 33 subsistence homestead projects, construction has been completed on 18, is in progress on 11 and final plans have been drafted for 4. The report lists four suburban housing projects, financed from a $31,000,000 allocation for this purpose. They are in Berwyn, Md., Bound Brook, N. J., Milwaukee, and Cincinnati.

On rural rehabilitation, the report says the RA has cared for more than 800,000 families. For its rehabilitation advances to individual "clients," the administration will expend $106,000,000 through June 30.

There were more than 71,000 workers employed on projects financed by the organization during April, the report states, adding that the peak is expected to be reached during the summer with 100,000 workers.

BECAUSE the League of Nations council would not immediately recognize Italy's annexation of Ethiopia and the creation of the new Roman empire, Premier Mussolini recalled his representatives from Geneva, and before long Italy may quit the league entirely. At present it is merely "not participating" in its activities. The council had adopted a new resolution virtually condemning again Italy's aggression in East Africa and then adjourned until June 15.

Previously Baron Pompei Aloisi, chief of the Italian delegation, had walked out of a session of the council because Wolde Mariam, Ethiopian representative, was permitted to take a seat and present a plea from Emperor Haile Selassie.

Lesson for May 24

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

LESSON TEXT — Luke 20:45-47; 21:1-36.

GOLDEN TEXT——In your patience possess ye your souls.—Luke 21:19.

PRIMARY TOPIC — A Gift That Pleased Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Makes a Gift Great?

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making the Most of Today.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Living for Spiritual Ends.

While this lesson is indicated as the quarterly Temperance lesson, and the various subjects suggested vary in their objective, a more logical theme would seem to be "Jesus Teaches in the Temple." No individual, city, or nation can truly build for the future that disregards what the Bible says about the future.

I. Jesus Warns Against the Scribes (vv. 45-47).

He had just dealt with the disbelief of the Sadducees. The scribes claimed faith, for they were the teachers of the law. They were punctilliously exacting as to its literal observance. They had little understanding of the need of flexibility in applying its principles to human needs. They discovered that Jesus was teaching things contrary to their interpretations. Jesus taught that the law was made for man, and not man for the law. The scribes were publicity seekers, making parade of their wisdom. Sunday school teachers should earnestly pray that they may serve as true messengers of Christ, not as scribes, with only a head-knowledge of biblical matters.

II. Jesus Makes Estimate of Gifts (Luke 21:1-4).

1. Amount counts for little (v. 1). While the rich cast their gifts into the treasury, and observers may have noted that the clash and clatter of their coin indicated large giving, it is not likely that these gifts meant personal sacrifice or self-denial.

2. Inner conditions determine the value of a gift (vv. 2, 3). In the sight of man the poor widow's deed was not worthy of notice. In the sight of God it merited the immortality of the Bible record. The two-mite gift of the widow revealed her love for God, else how could she spare her all? It revealed her faith in God for tomorrow, for how else would she be fed? It revealed her humility, for she did not withhold her gift because it was so little. Verse 4 is indeed revealing as to Christ's interpretation of the deeper meaning of gifts, for that and the present age.

III. Jesus Prophesies His Return (vv. 5-33).

1. The temple to be destroyed (vv. 5, 6). The temple was the pride and boast of the proud Jew. Such boasting called forth the Lord's declaration that "there shall not be left one stone upon another," a fact that had its fulfillment A. D. 70, when Titus destroyed Jerusalem.

2. The disciples' inquiry (v. 7). There can be no surprise that the disciples should ask for more information about future events. A corresponding verse in Matthew (24:3) should be considered.

3. An order of events was presented to them (vv. 8-24). Perhaps one would not so much say an order, as that he pointed out details on the great canvas of the future.

a. False Christs would appear (v. 8), some claiming to be the Messiah in his first appearing, and some in his reappearing. These make their appeal to such as are not rooted and grounded in the faith. "Go ye not after them."

b. Inevitable wars and commotions (vv. 9, 10) will embroil the nations. "Commotions" signifies tumults, in the absence of war, wrangling within national life, or between nations. The restful follower of Christ is to "be not terrified."

c. Violent persecutions were foretold (vv. 12-19). The believer of today should absorb the meaning and teaching of this marvelous passage of Scripture. "Settle it in your hearts" that Christ will be to his own even as to the tempest-tossed disciples on Galilee, when he said "Peace, be still." And in this connection he spoke the words of the golden text, "In your patience possess ye your souls."

IV. Appropriate Warnings (vv. 34-36).

The grosser sins may not ensnare the believer, but how subtle are the cares of this life. But upon the drunken, the obscene, the frivolous, and upon the follower of Christ alike shall trials and perplexities come. Watch ye therefore, always; pray, always. Only so shall the child of God be ready ("worthy") to escape, and to stand before the Son of God. Benediction is pronounced upon "those who love his appearing."

Now What Excuse Does Prof Suppose Senior Will Use?

The reason he didn't have his theme, explained Fred Lemmer, University of Minnesota senior, was because his typewriter broke down. There had been other alibis, recalled Prof. Edward Weaver. "The next time," he supposed, "I suppose you'll tell me your house burned down." Without his theme the next time, Lemmer said: "Sorry, professor. My house burned down." It did, too, firemen affirmed.

MOTORISTS INVENTED THIS "FIRST QUART" TEST

Thousands of motorists made this discovery for themselves: When they refilled the crankcase of their cars with Quaker State oil, they went farther before they had to add a quart. This simple test proves that Quaker State stands up longer. But it proves even more... because the oil that stands up is giving your motor the best lubrication. Try the Quaker State "First Quart" Test yourself. See if you, too, don't go farther than you ever did before under similar driving conditions. Quaker State Oil Refining Company, Oil City, Pa.

SYNOPSIS

Jeb Braddon, young and fantastically successful broker of Chicago, is infatuated with Agnes Gleneith, beautiful daughter of a retired manufacturer. Rodney, a doctor, in love with Agnes, visits his brother, Jeb. Rod plans work at Rochester. Jeb suggests that he make a try for Agnes before leaving. In Rod there is a deeper, obstinate decency and much sterner restraints than in Jeb. Agnes believes to be happy, a girl must bind herself entirely to a man and have adorable babies.

To be happy, a man required a girl; indeed, men declared this and sought a mate more openly, more frankly. Men's voices, at such seekings, betrayed them, as Rodney Braddon's just had done.

"The Deep Sea," her father had dubbed him in contrast to his brother. The Devil (with women) and the Deep Sea! Well, the Deep Sea had phoned from his brother's, the Devil's office, and was on his way to her.

Agnes never thought of making special preparation for him; and he wouldn't have liked it. She kept on the cornflower blue knitted dress which became her slenderness and which deepened, by its lighter shade, the blue of her eyes, and which "went" with her straw-colored hair. The cold wind of the morning had whipped a pink glow into her clear smooth skin.

She procured her own little coupe and drove alone through the snow to the station to meet Rodney.

He, if he could, would have turned back. He sat by himself in the train, going over and over what he had done and what he had set out further to do, and his purpose appeared to him not only hopeless but fantastic. Yet he had spoken the words to her that told he was coming and which implied more. He had no retreat.

Did Jud honestly believe that he had a chance? Or had Jud goaded him to this in the belief that, by speaking to Agnes, however hopelessly, he would be the better for it—the better for putting an end to his impossible dreams?

Standing on the car steps as the train slowed, he passed her. He swung down recklessly, slipping in the snow. When he straightened, she was beside him.

"Little Agnes!" he said, the syllables escaping him. If she caught his exclamation, what difference? He had come to say to her much more.

She felt it.

She asked him after he was settled beside her and she was driving him home: "You haven't had lunch, Rod?"

"I never thought of it," he admitted.

The snow had begun to blow so blindingly that it became almost an adventure to follow the familiar road to the house. It shut in Rodney Braddon and Agnes Gleneith together, away from contact or sight from all others, increasing the tension of their intimacy, though during the drive, Rodney said scarcely a word, and he did not touch her.

In the house he made no attempt to touch her. They went into the pleasant, easy "east room," which on ordinary days overlooked the lake. Now the snow swirling at the wide windows shut them in, as it had when they were in the car.

Rodney appreciated this, and he turned to her, gratefully.

"You'll let me tell you what I shouldn't."

"If you want to, Rod."

"You know the trouble with me. I love you. . . . You sit there, will you? And I'll stand here. I'll not annoy you more than I must. . . . I've said I love you. I've had medical training. I know what love is, or is supposed to be. But it's not that with me when I think of you. . . . I suppose every hopeless fool denies it. He tries to make himself out better than he is."

"You couldn't, Rod," she said gently.

She was seated where he asked her to be, and watching him, looking up at him, so tall and troubled before her; and a little ungainly, as always, in his brown ready-made clothes.

He was more carelessly molded than Jeb, except in his brow, his chin and his hands. Perhaps especially in his hands, so lean and strong and capable. Her eyes came to rest on his hands, restrained close beside him as his brother's never would have been at such a moment.

How this man fought the appeal of physical sensation! And why did he down it so?

Because he was capable of a feeling beyond his brother's; far beyond any other man she knew.

Agnes recognized this now, if not with her mind, with her stirred instincts, which aroused their needling excitements through her.

"Money means nothing to you, I know, Agnes," he said. "The fact that I've none; that's not my trouble. It's me and my life—isn't it?"

"Your life?"

"The fact that you never could live it."

She said, without thinking, "Why not?" for she did not willfully intend to lead him on; but never, with any man who had made love to her, had she found herself so confused by feeling.

"There'd be nothing in it for you but being my wife."

"What would that be like, Rodney?" Now, why had she said that? Did she want him to break the restraint he held upon himself?

"Being my wife? Do you want me to tell you?"

"Can you, Rod?"

"Can I?" He was gazing at her so that her eyes fell before his, fell to his hands, which he was keeping controlled beside him. "I can tell you all about it—what it will be every hour of the day—and night," he said, so that she hardly heard him.

"I thought for a time, Agnes," he went on, "of taking up another line, for you. I mean, with the idea that it might just possibly increase my chance with you. Not to make more money, but to make myself different, for you. But I couldn't be different."

"Not you, Rod."

"No; it'd be no use. There's only one job I can care to do. You know what it is. It's—to find out what makes one person live and another die. What brings one child health and strength and happiness, and what condemns another to be a cripple or to pain or wretchedness for life. What does it? Not God, not Divine judgment and punishment. We don't believe in travesties like that any longer. And it's not the sins of the fathers, in most cases, either. It's some condition we can discover and correct. It's some secret of biological balance that we can uncover. It's simply a problem of biology that I've got to work at as long as I'm any good. I couldn't turn to anything else if I tried to. It's the one thing that matters to me—except you.

"I've been trying to put you two together. I mean to imagine you together—my life, as I live it, and you. I can do it in my dreams. Oh, I love you so much; and I can see I'll never have you. . . . Don't mistake me in how I imagined you in my dreams, dear; oh, my dear. You were there waiting for me; that was all. You always were there for me at end of day. Wherever I was, whatever I was doing, I was going back to you. No; I'll tell it all to you. Some day, I dreamed, we'd have a little girl like you. A very little girl with blue eyes and hair like flax as yours used to be. . . ."

"It wasn't strange, Rod. Don't think I misunderstand. Kiss me, Rod."

"When I go, I will, if you'll let me. I couldn't bear it now. I see how you feel—sorry for me. It's plain I can never have you. I won't make you say it. I know, I always knew. That's why the dreams began; but they'll be gone now, too. That's best, I suppose. . . ."

Ten minutes later, Rodney left; and she knew better than to try to detain him. "I'm driving you back to the station," she said.

"No. Let me leave you here. . . . You can send me, if you will, with Simmons; but you—let me kiss you now."

Never with such tenderness, never with so much strength restrained, had a man's hands clasped her. His arm did not encircle her. His hands upon her shoulders, he drew her to him; she lifted her lips and kissed him. Once; that was all; he did not try to repeat it.

"Again, Rodney," she whispered, reaching up, stretching on tiptoes to offer herself once more.

"You don't repeat—death," he denied her. . . .

Agnes moved about the empty house, gazing out at the snow.

She could do no differently about Rodney; she did not love him. She felt for him with a keen pity which had no equal in her meetings with men; but she did not desire him. Was love—desire? Was that the decisive sensation in your life?

Was admiration for a man, sympathy for him, caring for him, nothing in comparison? Did no qualities in you or in him count, unless you desired him?

Flames were leaping and snapping from maple logs freshly laid on the huge stone hearth of the hall; and the green glass eyes in the pair of jaguar heads on the wall opposite gleamed their reflection of the dancing fire.

Five years ago her father had shot the jaguars in Brazil, having suddenly found need to cease to be a manufacturer of electrical equipment and to become, instead, a hunter set upon traversing tropical jungles to kill something dangerous and savage. Among other trophies, he had brought these back, installed them here, and dubbed them "Hansel and Gretel."

This house, which had never been as happy as the home on Easter Lane, had descended undeniably after that. Of course the jaguar heads had nothing to do with the descent; they were simply a symbol of what had happened.

What had happened in this house?

Rogna, the little Swedish maid, appeared. She was a lady's maid shared by Agnes and her mother; a slender, small-boned, golden-haired, bright-cheeked, impulsive type of Swede. She was overemotional, indeed, but discreet. Rogna, if any one, knew what had happened in this great important house; for Agnes suspected that her mother, in her despairing helplessness to regain what was slipping away, sometimes "talked to" Rogna. Never to a soul would Rogna repeat a word of it.

"Mother's returned?" Agnes asked her.

"Oh, yes! Mr. Braddon just phoned."

Agnes started. Rod? Was he returning?

"Mr. Judson Braddon," Rogna said.

"What did he say?"

"He is coming out. He did not inquire whether or not you would be in, Miss Agnes; he said to tell you he was coming out. He will drive."

Twenty miles through this snow! thought Agnes. Jeb would.

"Also Mr. Gleneith has returned to the city. He will be home on his train."

Mother! thought Agnes.

"Do you require me, Miss Agnes?"

"No. Look after Mother, Rogna."

"Oh, I will!"

The two girls gazed at each other, both knowing. There was no sense whatever in Agnes' pretending before Rogna. "She mustn't use rouge, Rogna. Don't let her. It—it doesn't become her; and it won't do her any good!"

Lying in the deep, warm water in her bath of palely tinted porcelain, Agnes shut her eyes and saw, not Rod on his train traveling away from her, but Jeb forcing his car toward her through the snow. She could see him strain and laugh and swear when he skidded, but come on, on, on to her, whatever tried to hold him. Even in her imaginings, he stirred her. Come on, Jeb! Oh, come on!

"Rod—dear, dreaming Rod. I'd like to love you! I would; but I don't." And he hadn't so much as let her say it.

It wasn't the fact that Jeb was making money, and Rod nearly none, that widened the difference between them. For Rod was right about it; money did not rule desire.

Money might be one of the factors that destroyed it. Money—or at least the epoch of their marriage in which the most money had come—was separating her mother and father.

Before a mirror on the other side of that wall between their rooms, her mother frantically was trying to make herself more attractive to Father, and to look younger. . . . But Rogna would watch the rouge. Rogna would not let Mother look ridiculous to Father when he came home—ridiculous to Father, who used to kiss her when they hugged Agnes between them in the big bed of the house where Mother had been a bride.

Oh, what was love?

At last Father came. Baskerville, the huge boar hound, had affectionately knocked his hat off, and he carried it crumpled. Cravath, the butler, had opened the door.

"'D evening, Cravath. . . . Hello, Light One!"

That meant her and no one else. Always, as long as she could remember, it had been Father's greeting. Light One! Dark One! His two daughters—his two babies, once. Beatrice always had been dark, like Mamma; Agnes light, like himself.

"Dark One! Light One! Dark One! Light One!" he used to accent in rhythm as he tossed and caught his children in turn before he kissed them—Dark One! Light One!—and shooed them away.

He bent and kissed Agnes now, careful to keep his snowiness from her dress. "Hello, Light One!" he repeated. "How's Dark One?"

"Oh, she's fine, Father!"

"How're the busters?"

"Father, they're wonderful!"

"Good. Where's your mother? In?"

"Yes, Father; she's in."

"Good."

Cravath had taken his things and disappeared, leaving father and daughter alone before the fire. Agnes liked to have him linger with her, but the thought of her mother, waiting for him, tortured her. There had been a time when, if she had not met him at the door, he would have leaped up the stairs, two steps at a time, to find what was the matter.

Now he stood, back to the fire, without impatience. He had been away for a week in New York City; and his daughter, swept as she was with affection for him, and with pride in him, and with gladness in all her memories, could not down disturbing doubts. What had he "done" in New York during seven days — and evenings and nights?

He was full of feeling; and how good-looking he was! You could not possibly think of him as a grandfather.

He was now within two years of fifty, and he didn't appear forty. He honestly didn't.

His hair was as youthful as Agnes' own. He differed from hers, however, in having a crinkle in it which made it take tousling well. (Always, in those mornings when she had run into his and Mother's room, he had been tousled. Now she had not seen him so. But had some woman in New York? The idea would not down. It wouldn't!)

Father and daughter shared the same blueness of eye and straightness of nose. Indeed, in the fullness of her lips and the turn of her good little chin, Agnes was a delicate refinement of him; but even allowing for women's proportions, she was smaller. He was six feet straight, distinctly more than average height; Agnes, for that comfortable countryside north of Chicago where women are tall, was rather under the average, and also, for her height, slighter than her father, though no ounce of "weight" appeared on him. He saw to that, with squash and riding.

HOW ARE You TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

How "Extras" Add Weight

"SOME people dislike to be fat because they regard the extra weight as a physical handicap, others consider a slender figure more graceful, and still others realize that excessive body weight is a menace to health. But whatever the objections to being fat, correct body weight is now widely recognized as an essential to enduring health and a long life."

I am quoting from "Diet and Like It" by Mabel E. Baldwin, Ph. D.

Doctor Baldwin states further, "If one is overweight and decides to reduce, the most obvious need is for a diet that will cause loss in weight. But for the welfare of the individual it is also necessary that the diet be one that will maintain the body in a state of excellent health and vigor while the loss in weight takes place." Of course the thought in the above statement is that if food is reduced weight must necessarily be reduced, but if the food is reduced too rapidly, or if certain vital foodstuffs are reduced ill health or worse may follow.

Dr. Barton

The body needs only simple foods but yet there must be a great variety of these foods—vitamins; minerals—lime, iron, phosphorus, magnesium, iodine; animal proteids—eggs, fish, meat; vegetable proteins—beans, peas; carbohydrates or starch foods—sugar, bread; and fats—butter, cream. And each of these foods must be present in suitable amounts.

Size of Meal No Guide

"Nor does the size of a meal give the correct idea of how much actual fuel or food value there is being eaten, for a pound of shelled almonds is equivalent to nearly thirty pounds of tomatoes and so neither the weight nor the bulk of the meal gives any idea of how much fat it will produce."

"Food values are measured in calories. High calorie foods are those of which only a small amount is needed to supply a large number of calories such as olive oil and other fats, sugar and confectionery."

Lettuce is a low calorie food as three medium-sized heads of lettuce equal in value only one tablespoon of olive oil. High calorie foods such as fats, flour, and sugar, contain little or no water whereas most fruits and vegetables, low calorie foods, are three-fourths or more water. "A lunch of a cup of soup, lettuce, a tomato, a small slice of whole-wheat bread, and a tangerine—a small orange, will weigh about a pound and a quarter. Another lunch consisting of a pork chop, two fried sweet potatoes, a slice of white bread, and a piece of chocolate cake of ordinary size will also weigh a pound and a quarter but will furnish more than three times as many calories."

Desserts Add Pounds

High calorie foods are less bulky than low calorie foods, which is the reason that many people have a greater tendency to eat too much of the high-calorie foods than of the low-calorie foods. Also most of the foods that are eaten between meals or after the food eaten at meal-times is already sufficient, are high-calorie foods. "A man eats a sufficient amount of food for his energy requirements for the day by the time he reaches the dessert course at dinner, and then eats a piece of cake. This 'surplus' or unneeded amount of food will yield 200 to 300 calories and will increase the body weight by one ounce. Or, a woman obtains from her usual three meals a day a sufficient amount of energy to meet her needs and eats during the afternoon a dish of ice cream, several nuts, or a few pieces of candy. She will obtain from them 200 to 300 calories, and she will, likewise, increase her weight by one ounce.

"Suppose either of these people indulges to this extent only once every four days; by the end of a year the increase in weight will still have reached five or six pounds."

With the above simple statements of fact by Doctor Baldwin it can readily be seen how easy it is to acquire many pounds of fat, without being what is considered a "big" eater.

It is the little "extras" of the high calorie foods that put on the excess fat, very gradually it is true, but nevertheless they put it on.

Indigestion in Children

Mothers are often at a loss to understand why their youngster sometimes loses his appetite, may have a headache, and may have vomiting spells.

This condition is sometimes called acidosis. As these attacks occur from time to time they are sometimes called "cyclical" vomiting attacks, as they appear to come in cycles.

It has been suspected that it may be one, or more than one, article of food that causes these attacks, but making skin tests and actually testing out certain foods has proved of no assistance in finding the cause of these attacks.

Dr. K. Tallerman in the British Medical Journal thinks that these attacks are much like or related in some way to migraine—one-sided headache—and he therefore recommends that the fat foods be cut down in the diet.

AMAZING NEW STOVE USES 96% AIR-4% FUEL

Housewives Everywhere Now Can Enjoy Modern Gas-Cooking Service At Low Cost, Thanks to W. C. Coleman's Invention

Utilizing the principle of carburization used in present day automobile engines, W. C. Coleman, noted inventor and pioneer manufacturer of gas-pressure appliances, has invented an amazing new cooking stove that makes its own gas from ordinary lead-free gasoline.

W. C. COLEMAN

An ingenious device converts liquid fuel into vapor gas—then mixes it with fresh, live air so that the fuel, when it reaches the burner, is actually about 96% air and 4% vapor gas. This remarkable invention has effected fuel-saving economies which, combined with the heating efficiency of the Coleman patented Band-A-Blu Burners, makes the new Coleman Safety Range cheaper to use than wood, coal or kerosene.

Housewives everywhere express appreciation for the convenience, safety, economy and beauty of a stove which provides cooking equalling that of the finest city gas range.

Readers of this paper wishing full informantion about these wonderful Coleman Ranges will receive beautifully illustrated literature and a valuable stove check chart by addressing a postcard to Mr. W. C. Coleman, Dept. WU-237, Wichita, Kansas.—Adv.

HE WAS FRANK

A certain man of this country went into one of the business houses one day last week, and before leaving same proved that he was frank, if he was foolish.

He was wanting to get some goods on time. The owner of the business told him in a nice way that he did not know him. That he had not been trading with him. The would-be buyer told the merchant that the reason he had not been trading with him was that he could get things so much cheaper from one of the well known mail order houses, and that when he had cash there was where he spent it; but that they would not credit him; therefore he was asking for the accommodation here. We'll leave you to guess whether he got the accommodation he asked for.—Kemp News.

THE COUNTRY WEEKLY
(Tuckeston, N. J., Beacon)

Sometimes city people are amused by the items describing local happenings in small country newspapers. Such items do not "chronicle small beer," as Shakespeare says, and the worldly-wise (in their own conceit) laugh at the trival happenings recorder. We might contrast the two classes of papers, and which seem to present the trurer picture of American life. We read in a great daily paper of a woman in Dallas Texas, stripped of clothing and beaten in the public streets by persons opposing some labor union on strike and we turn to our country newspaper and read that Mrs. Browns neighbors held a canning bee at her home, because a broken arm prevented her from doing up her usual supply of peaches. Then we learn from the city papers that unemployed mechanics on relief projects supported by the taxpayer's money, went on strike because they were not receiving full union wages, and the county paper tells us of farmers working from dawn to dark because they cannot hire anyone to help them. The city paper tells us of boys in their teens who commit a murder during a hold-up, or kill some pedestrain with a stolen automobile, while the country paper tells how Farmer Brown's son is working his way through college, while Mary Smith has won a scholarship that will insure her future education. No, we do not think the racketeers and criminals, the hoodlums and loafers, are representatives of American life for that we must go to the hard-working, God-fearing homes of the country. But we may well remember that luxury, cowardice and vice have destroyed great nations of old, and when we permit the dark powers of the unredworld to control law-making, law-enforcing and political agencies, we are moving twoards the extinction of our national liberty.

BLACK WIDOW SPIDERS BITE WHEN DISTURBED

Austin, May 11,—The "Black Widow" spider continues to be a menace even though the number of poisons bitten is comparatively small, according to morbidity reports received by the State Department of Health. The habit of this spider in building its web in dimly lighted places makes it difficult to establish any effective method of control.

Though the "Black Widow" is frequently found in basements, wood sheds, and other places which have dark corners or recesses, more cases of spider poisoning that have been reported in past years have occurred in old toilets in the rural districts. The spraying of cresote in cracks and crevices, particularly around the seats of old toilets, is invaluable procedure, but precautions must be taken against fire. The egg may also be crushed.

The adult female spider is about half an inch long and has a shiny black body with a brilliant scarlet hourglass marking on the under surface. The name, "Black Widow" is derived from the fact that the female kills and eats the male after mating.

The web of the "Black Widow" is characterized by the fact that the strands are tough. If a straw is applied to the web of an ordinary house spider, the web will immediately break, but if a straw be stroked through a "Black Widow" web, the strands will be found to be so tough that the straw will bend or even break. The female spider stays close to her web but will rush out and attack violently any object disturbing this web.

The "Black Widow" is not an aggressive spider, and rarely bites unless disturbed. Acute pain develops in the region of the surface bitten, spreading to other parts of the body. There is a general muscle contraction, difficult breathing, cold perspiration, nausea and an extreme rigidity of the abdomen.

The general public should be taught to recognize the "Black Widow," to take the necessary precautions, and to consult a physician immediately, if bitten.

Out of town relatives and friends who attended the funeral of Mrs. Tom Finley here last Thursday are her brothers, Walter, Bill, and Jess Newman, all of Iredell, Texas, her sisters Mrs. Fannie Weddle, Big Lake, Mr. and Mrs. E. Holt, Slaton, and, a nephew, J. W. Weddle of Odessa, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Finley, Mrs. K. W. Armstrong, Mrs. Noble Fulfer, Mrs. Raymond McDearmon and Isom Finley, all of Cleburne. Friends were Mrs. Forest, Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Holly Shuler, Mrs. Lee Roberts, J. E. Shipp, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Trevy, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle Cary, and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Key, all of Snyder, and Will Jennings and family of Maryneal.

June 14 will be observed as Layman's Day at the Methodist Church. Roy A. Edwards is lay leader and chairman of the board of stewards and will be in charge of the program for the occasion. A special program will probably be arranged for the morning hour.

Bishop Hiram A. Boaz, presiding bishop of this conference, will begin a revival meeting at Colorado First Church, June 3. Many Methodist from Loraine are expected to attend. Likewise announcement comes that Rev. Virgil Fisher, pastor of First Church, Austin, and well known throughout West Texas, will conduct a revival for the Methodist at Roscoe in the early part of August. Fisher, for manf years a Nazarene minister, is said to be one of the most successful evangelistic preachers in the State.

A summer vacation Bible training school for juniors of the Methodist lhurlh will be started in the next ten days or two weeks under the direction of Mrs. Hamilton Wright. The school will be conducted an hour or two in the daytime and the school will close with a picnic probably to be staged at Lake Sweetwater. At least one out-of-town pastor will assist-Rev. Frank Story of Hermleigh.

Reorganization of the Ep Worth League of the Metsodist church is proposed in the near future. The pastor desires that all young people of League age be prepared to attend the evening servire May 31, when a new program of operation will be arranged.

The pastor desires that the entertainment featore be also stressed.

The junior department now is in charge of Mrs. Will Ronea. The Epworth League has been sponsored by Mrs. Dunn, who has moved away.

Rev. Hamilton Wright, local Methodist pastor, has accepted an invitation to conduct a two weeks' revival meeting at Nolan, Nolan Cornty, beginning Jnly 19 and closing August 2. Rev. R. H G. Albright is pastor of the Nolan charge.

The Methodist summer meeting at Loraine will start August 16 and close August 30.

NEW CHARTERS DECLINED IN APRIL

Austin, Texas, May 18—Both in number and in total capitalization, new charters granted Texas corporations during April declined sharply in compasison with the preceding month and the like month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. The number of new charters totaled 138, against 173 in March and 166 in April last year, decreases of 20 per cent and 17 per cent respectively. Total capitalization, $1,304,000, was down 50 per cent from the preceding month and 37 per cent from the corresponding month last year.

The transportation group alone showed an increase in the number of new charters granted over the two comparable periods.

PASSENGER CAR SALES ABOVE 1935 LENEL

Austin, Texas, May 18—Sales of new passenger car registrations during April were still substantially above 1935, but declined in comparison with the preceding month, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Reports from fifteen representative Texas counties give a total of 6,330 new passenger car registrations, 18.1 per cent below those of March but 15 per cent above those of April last year. For the first quarter aggregate sales were up 15 per cent from the corresponding period last year.

The tendency which has been noted for many months of the greatest sales increase to occur in the higher price groups was again in evidence during April.

TEXAS BUSINESS FAILURES DECREASE IN APRIL

Austin, Texas, My 18—Commercial failures in Texas during April decreased in number from both the preceding month and the corresponding month last year, but the liablities of the month and the coSHHRSMMFF bankrupt firms increased sharply, the Bureau of Business Research of The University of Texas reports. This latter fact, however, is attributable to the failure of one large firm. Excluding this firm, total liabilities in April also declined sharply from the two comparable periods.

According to reports from Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., there were only 14 failures in April, against 21 in the month before and 23 in April last year. Total liabilities, $463,000, declined 42 per cent from April last year if the large firm mentioned above is excluded; but including this firm total liabilities increased 106 per cent over March and 86 per cent over April last year.

GLEANERS S. S. CLASS

The Gleaners Sunday School class met in regular monthly meeting, Tuesday, May 12, at three o'clock in the home of Mrs. Chester Beights with Mrs. Earl Brown co-hostess.

The house was called to order by the president, Mrs. Marvin Martin, by singing the class song Blessed Assurance. Prayer was offered by Mrs. W. E. Honea. Devotional was given by Mrs. W. W. Rowland, her subject being "The Mother of Moses". She used the last chapter of Exodus and the 11th chapter of Hebrews as her lesson.

After the business session we had our Bible study, the 37th to 43rd chapters of Genesis. As Mrs. Edwards, our teacher, could not be with us Mrs. Arlie Martin taught the lesson. Our next lesson will be May 25 in the home of Mrs. Ed Williams. We will finish the book of Genesis.

Our next meeting will be June 9 with Mrs. T. C. Wilson and Mrs. Emma Land as hostesses.

Delicious refreshments of punch, salad, sandwiches and cake were served to 16 members.

Reporter.

The third quarterly conference of the Loraine Methodist church will be held following preaching services next Sunday evening. Sam H. Young, presiding elder, will preach at the evening hour. The pastor, Rev. Ham Wright, urges all stewards to be present along with the membership of the church.

Sunday School attendance at the Methodist church attained to the 202 mark last Sunday, which was largely increased at the morning preaching hour. The pastor preached on "Tithing," using as a text the words "Will a Man Rob God?" At the evening hour the pastor preached on "The Christian Race."

Dealing With Others

THE longer we live the more we shall need to deal kindly with the limitation of others. Many are doing their best, even though there are some things which they cannot do very well. . . . Parents, teachers, employers, and all the rest of us need to be patient and kindly when we face the limitations of our friends and loved ones. Criticism will not help. "Nagging," will be out of place. Let us take certain limitations for granted, and move on with appreciation of all the other good things we find in friends.—E. B. Allen.

Indians Are Threat, but Lajoie's Jinx Seems Sure to Win

UNLESS the more panicky citizens really have their hearts set upon it, there is no imperative need for giving the country back to the Indians. The most dangerous tribe to scour these parts in recent years will settle for considerably less. Like Hiawatha and those other naively noble red men of the past, all they want off the world that for so long has misunderstood and mistreated them is one little strip of bright-colored cloth.

Chief Steve O'Neill will tell you that. It is his well-considered opinion that even the Oklahoma oil tribes would be pikers by comparison if his Indians ever return to Cleveland with an American League pennant.

It is a question though whether the Tribe can do it. There are reasons for doubt. One of them is the jinx which first arrived in the Forest City along with Larry Lajoie.

This broad-shouldered Rhode Islander, who hopped off the driver's seat of a horse-drawn cab to sign his first contract on the back of an envelope, was one of the greatest of all hitters and second basemen. During all save perhaps one or two of his 15 seasons of active service he was on teams which, man for man, were proclaimed the best in the league. Yet, even though Billy Hamilton, Elmer Flick and Ed Delehanty performed by his side on one of the best of all Philadelphia teams, that club could never finish better than second.

It was the same when he came to Cleveland. He led the league in hitting, drew a tidy salary as player and manager and put the club on a paying basis. But not even such stars as Bill Bradley, Flick and Terry Turner could help him overcome his hard luck.

Year after year the Naps, so called in honor of Lajoie, whose first name was Napoleon, would be labeled as sure winners. Perhaps they would even get past mid-season that way. Then the hoodoo would start acting up.

O'Neill Has the Tribe Hustling at Fast Pace

There would be an injury. Then another. No matter if he did carry a full team of substitutes, something always was happening. Even in 1908 when they turned upon their misfortunes and made a September rally almost as pulse strumming as that of the Cubs last fall, it was no use. With only a week or so to go Fate again took hold of the club and played it as though it was an accordion.

So it was that a man who was a king of the game retired at last after never having been on a pennant winner. So also it seems that a hoodoo has continued upon the town save for that one year of 1920 when another determined king named Tris Speaker managed to make it yield. O'Neill, descendant of kings who ruled Ireland with never a thought that one day their namesake might have to go to work as chief of a Tribe, may also be the man to do it. It is axiomatic in baseball that it is almost impossible for a team to look good when it is not hitting. Yet they have not appeared at all bad.

O'Neill.

Those pale-faced Indians of a new dispensation—such as Joe Vosmik, Bill Knickerbocker and Hal Trosky—hustle as they did not hustle while feuding among themselves in recent seasons.

Trosky, 15 pounds heavier than last year, stands straighter at the plate and is a better hitter even than on that May day in 1934 when he was so fortunate as to crash three successive home runs against the White Sox. Averill, Vosmik and Bruce Campbell, who is back again after an illness which would have caused most men to forsake the game for life, function as one of the best of outfields.

The flaming tempered Johnny Allen seems once more the pitcher he was when the Yankees were chanting their praises of him as a winning teammate. Willis Hudlin, who has been tossing his double-play ball ever since he joined the Indians in 1926, is another hurler of real merit.

Yet—even as was remarked at the start—there are reasons for doubt. Cleveland is one of the better and more excitable baseball towns and it is high time it is given another opportunity for a dance of triumph. But I greatly suspect that this is not the band of Indians to bring back the bunting in the fall while showers of gold and glory descend upon them from the upper tops of Euclid avenue.

IT PROBABLY is just as well that the Congressional Record keeps the more pious fretters about the nation's naughtiness so busy that they have no time for the sports pages. Otherwise there might be considerable trouble because of the immoral manner in which certain athletes sought to improve their team's chances of winning recently.

I refer to doings in Cleveland and Philadelphia. In one of these towns Catcher Earl Grace twice brushed his mitt against the bat while a Brooklyn player was up there swinging. In the other forthright and energetic Johnny Allen kicked the ball out of Ralston Hemsley's hands on a close play at home plate. Since each of these offenses against the baseball law occurs almost daily, though, I do not mention them in any highly moral dudgeon of my own. I merely place them in their proper relation for the guidance of the ethical preceptors of the nation.

Ever since David found a way to beat the weight in his well-publicized contest with Goliath the rules of sport have been subjected to considerable monkey business. No doubt this partly has been due to the fact that healthy young men (and women) engaged in rough and vigorous competition have no time to be bothered with the strict letter of some code. No doubt, there also have been other reasons. I make no comment now. Instead, I recite some incidents from the crowded lives of those who compete for gold, for glory or for both.

There was, for instance, the old Oriole device of persuading runners to linger at third base. John McGraw, probably the best mind ever produced by baseball, was the originator of that one. He merely grabbed the runner by the belt and held him while the umpire's attention was elsewhere.

There also are certain episodes which may be mentioned in connection with purely amateur sports affairs, lest it be considered that too much stress is given here to the carryings-on of the pros.

When Don Meade imitated a regiment of Cossacks, while winning a Kentucky Derby several seasons ago, there were numerous high-class folks who deeply deplored such tactics. It was a highly enlightening sight but scarcely as entertaining as a hunts meeting once held in an Eastern state. One of the events was for lady riders and it was evident from the start that only two of the gals had a chance. The two took their duties seriously. For the first furlong they tried to ride one another onto the rail. The next quarter was enlivened by each miss endeavoring to retard the speed of her opponent's horse by tugging at the saddle.

Don Meade

After that they really got down to business. They finished the race whipping. But, for once, both horses got a break. The two sportswomen were using the whips on one another.

Golf and Tennis Also Had Their Moments

Golf also had its moments. Once—this is for the greater education of those who squawk that the United States has exclusive privileges along such lines—an American went to England to compete in a tournament. His short game was tops but he was not a long driver. The Britain he opposed in the final could hit them a mile. For the greater glory of the homeland the tournament commiteee moved the tees a mere 20 yards or so farther away from the greens.

That being almost as good as the time—only three or four seasons removed from the present—when the hospitable French soaked their tennis courts so that their soft-game players would not be inconvenienced against the hard-hitting Americans.

Not in the Box Score:

John Titus, the last of the mustachioed big-time ball players previous to the appearance of Frenchy Bordagaray, always chewed a toothpick while batting . . . Roy Thomas, another famous Philly outfielder, used to don a pair of fingerless kid gloves when he reached first base. That was the sign that he was preparing to steal second and did not wish to get his hands dirty while sliding.

Phil Scott, who was bowled over more often than Jack Doyle, but who got far more money for it, now wants to manage the Irish tenor. Claims that he can make him heavyweight champion in two years . . . When he was a youngster Tommy Loughran's great admiration was for the defensive skill of Jack Johnson. The two master boxers met for the first time at a Philadelphia ringside recently and gabbed far on into the night about the fistic art . . . Milton Bakst, the very able newspaper salesman who brought joy to so many bookmakers, finally has picked a winner. He got married the other day . . . The three Tehel brothers, Andrew, Eddie and Paul, have good reason for being soccer stars. Their dad, Bela Tehel, was one of Vienna's best backs in the nineties.

The Hearst A. C. is vexed at Mike Jacobs because he insists that charity ought to be satisfied with 10 per cent of the Louis-Schmeling gross receipts . . . Bill Terry never dons his sliding pads until a few seconds before game time. Says they give him too much extra weight to carry during practice . . . Kay Force, the ex-jockey who now is a trainer, gallops as many as twenty horses a morning. Three and four is the average for the little exercise boys.

Divided Skirt and Shorts Combination That Equips the Young Lady for Sports

PATTERN NO. 1875-B

You know yourself that half the enjoyment of any sport is spoiled if you aren't correctly dressed, and really there's no excuse for not being equipped for any active sport when a model such as illustrated is so easy and inexpensive to make.

The divided skirt is suitable for golf, tennis, bicycling, riding and hiking. It assures plenty of room and comfort, buttons on the side and supports the most youthful blouse. Note the sports pocket, Peter Pan collar, raglan sleeve and dainty feminine bow.

Instead of the divided skirt, you may have shorts if you prefer, for the pattern is perforated at just the proper length. Notice the small sketch.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1875-B is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 (34) requires 4¼ yards of 35 inch fabric. For shorts only, 3½ yards is required. Send 15 cents for the pattern.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

Musical Watch to Be Presented to Paderewski

Paderewski, the famous Polish pianist, is to be presented with a watch ornamented with music notes. The hours on the platinum dial are represented by 12 letters—I. J. Paderewski. A piano keyboard in enamel represents the minutes. The hour hand is in the form of a pen. The minute hand is like a conductor's baton. The second dial is marked with the 12 letters Polska-Podole, the Polish district in which Paderewski was born. Round the outside of the dial are notes of 12 phrases from 12 Paderewski compositions. In a smaller circle towards the center are the notes of his famous Minuet.

BAUMAN HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

"Im portance of Proper Preparation of Vegetables"

"The flavor and food value of many vegetables are partially destroyed by wrong methods of preparation and cooking", explained Miss Emma Gunter, Mitchell County Home Demonstration Agent, to the members of the Bauman Home Demonstration Club which met with Mrs. Henry Riden May 13 at 2:30 P. M.

Many people developed a distaste for vegetables because they are not prepared in a palatabe and appetizing way. Over-cooking causes many vegetables to be indigestible. Cabbage should never be cooked over twenty minutes. It may be cooked either in milk or salty water. Cauliflower is prepared in a similar method to cabbage and has much the same flavor. It may be served with cream sauce. At this season of the year when our systems are apt to become sluggish we should include appetizing vegetable dishes and salads to vary our menus.

The council delegate gave a report. The club voted to contribute to sending a 4-H club girl to the A and M Short Course and to sending our district vice-president, Mrs. Raymond McElrath, as a delegate to the Third Triennial Conference of t he Associated County Women of the World which convenes in Washington May 31-June 11.

The club will sponsor a clean-up campaign May 15-30.

Refreshments were served to five club members, Miss Gunter and Mrs. Marshall and Trudo Webb of Looney as guests.

The next meeting will be in the form of a picnic for club members and families the evening of May 27 at Ernest Wayside Park. Reporter.

The Book of Romans—the epistle of Christian doctrine—will be taken up chapter by chapter at prayermeeting services at the Methodist church. The first chapter was scheduled to be taken up last Wednesday, the leader being Bill Honea. At the next service—Wednesday evening, Mad 27—the second chapter of the book will be discussed. A succeeding chapter will follow until the entire book of Romans has been finished. The pastor will assist in the exegesis.

All persons interested in scripture are urged to be present. Approximately 30 were present at the last service.
