Storm Front Looming For Lawmakers

By ROSE McKEE
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25. — National lawmakers stream back to Washington this week to battle a storm-front of money troubles, social legislation and election-year politics.

The second session of the Democratic controlled 81st Congress opens a week from Tuesday.

Both Chambers Remodeled

Both houses will meet in remodeled chambers under indirect lighting and amid improved acoustics. Gold brocade adorns the upper walls of the Senate, changed for the first time since its 1859 completion. Blue brocade distinguishes the House, remodeled for the first time since its completion in 1857.

Signals are due to be called on the first round of controversy before this newness even begins to wear off.

Opening Filibuster Threatened

Senate Democratic Leader Lucas (D-Ill) will plunge the upper chamber into battle the second day if he carries through with his plan to call up the oleomargarine bill. Dairy state Senators declare it means a filibuster right at the start.

The first real House fight may come Jan. 9, when Rep. Powell (D-NY) said he planned to blast the Fair Employment Practices bill out of committee. This bill to outlaw discrimination in jobs is the most fiercely opposed plank in the entire Truman civil rights program.

But overshadowing all else is the slugfest due on money troubles.

Economy Bloc Plans Fight

A growing economy bloc has demanded an end to deficit spending. The big question will be whether to balance the budget by increased taxes or cutbacks in spending—or both.

President Truman is expected to add fuel to the fire by requesting a record peacetime budget of from 42 to 45 billion dollars.

Tax Bill Is Certain

One thing appears certain — there will be a tax bill. Legislation for a general revision of taxes will be introduced in the House.

Repeal of wartime excise taxes, such as the special levies on phonographs, luggage and cosmetics, is anticipated. The repeal bill may be made a part of the general tax measure or a short-cut may be sought by making it separate legislation.

To Lift Excise Taxes?

A Democratic official said flatly that excise taxes will be lifted—if necessary, over a presidential veto.

Congress for the first time this year will handle appropriations for the federal agencies in a sin-

Cold Front To Bring Lower Readings Here

SOUTH PLAINS' near shirtsleeve weather, which made Christmas seem more like Easter, is expected to give way to weather today more in keeping with the season, the weatherman indicated last night.

Temperatures which ranged from a morning low of 38 degrees to an afternoon high of 52 degrees probably will drop to 20 degrees this morning and hold to the lower 40's in the afternoon.

Light Rain Possible

Little chance of precipitation is seen, however, despite an inrushing mass of clouds. Possibility of light rain or sleet early today is not completely discounted, the Weatherman said.

Skies probably will remain mostly cloudy throughout the day, the weather station reported.

While a cool front passed over the area early last night the mercury took only a slight drop in the wake of the cool mass of air.

Weather Is Mild

The Associated Press reported Christmas day was cloudy for much of Texas. Temperatures were comparatively mild. There was light rain in parts of East Texas.

More light rains were in store in East Texas and partly cloudy and colder weather in West Texas.

Amarillo, with 28 degrees, and Salt Flat, with 26, were the only points reporting to the Dallas weather bureau which had early Christmas day readings below freezing. Other minimums were mostly in the 40s, with coastal stations reporting readings in the 60's.

By midafternoon the state had a range from 38 degrees at Amarillo to the middle 70s in the lower Rio Grande valley.

Light Rains Reported

Points reporting light rains included Waco, Fort Worth, and San Antonio. Clouds spread over the eastern part of the state. It was cloudy in the Panhandle, but clear at such West Texas points as Lubbock, El Paso, Salt Flats, Wink, and Abilene.

While Texas was enjoying a holiday in comparatively mild weather a Christmas Day cold wave numbed the northern and central plains states and strong winds blew eastward from Minnesota over most of the eastern part of the country.

The Weather bureau at Chicago predicted a cold wave for the top central states of the nation. A light snow with some drifting and blowing accompanied the temperature drop in Minnesota.

The mercury dropped to -12 at Williston, N. D., and to -5 at Helena, Mont. Jamestown, N. D., had 15 inches of snow on the ground.

Southerly winds caused temperatures to dip from 15 to 30 de

STORES, OFFICES CLOSED TODAY

Lubbock Residents Take Extra Day Off To Observe Christmas

By CLIFF BLACKBURN
Avalanche Staff Writer

LUBBOCKITES will enjoy an extra holiday as they rest up from their Christmas fun and feasting. All of the city's stores, state, county, city and federal offices will be closed by the authority of the Lubbock Retail Merchant's association.

The association's policy is to declare the stores and offices in the city closed on Monday when a legal holiday falls on Sunday.

But the time off afforded Lubbockites today will more than likely be welcomed as the city settles back again from a busy Christmas Day. Approximately 4,000 needy children in the city celebrated the most bountiful Christmas they had ever known yesterday as about 1,000 volunteer motorists delivered Goodfellow packages to their homes.

The packages were said to be the biggest seen since the Goodfellows became an organization 15 years ago here. Each of the gift packages con-

264 Killed In Auto Crashes

(By International News Service)

CHRISTMAS was anything but merry on the nation's highways Sunday as the accidental death toll for the three-day holiday moved past the 359 mark.

An International News Service survey indicated that by 9 p.m. CST 264 motorists had been given gifts of sudden death on the highways: 91 persons had perished in fires, stabbings, suicides, shootings and the like.

Weather Boosts Toll

A crazy-quilt pattern of weather spurred the rising death toll by making driving conditions over most of the nation's highways hazardous.

The National Safety council made a gloomy prediction of 435 violent deaths for the extended holiday as compared to last year's Christmas toll of 396.

With one full day left to go, it appeared that the final figure might surpass the safety council's estimate.

One of the worst accidents of the holiday was the fire which gutted a three-room San Antonio, Tex., home and took the lives of a mother and her six children.

Heavy Snows Reported

Severest winter was centered over the northern Great Plains states and upper Midwest where temperatures plumbed the lower depths of the thermometers and snowfall ranged up to 15 inches —at Jamestown, N.D.

The earmuff weather was moving eastward toward the central states where it promised to add to highway hazards. A belt of rain extended from Texas northeastward to the Great Lakes area.

A state by state breakdown of the death toll showed Texas in the lead with 29 traffic fatalities and 24 other violent deaths.

California relinquished first place in the grisly race, but ran a close second with an over-all toll of 37.

Illinois had 18 deaths, Ohio had 16, Indiana, New York and New Jersey had 10 each, Minnesota had eight and Oregon seven.

Los Angeles and the southern California area went off on a whiskey-automobile binge that resulted in new records for the number of traffic accidents and arrests.

Nearly 1,000 arrests were made since Friday afternoon, most of

EUROPE HAS MILD WEATHER

World Celebrates Happiest Yuletide Since End Of War

(By The Associated Press)

A WORLD still divided by ideological differences Sunday celebrated the last Christmas of a troubled half century.

Yet there was nothing to show that men have found the way to true peace with their fellow men.

Even in the Holy Land an uneasy truce prevailed between Arabs and Jews.

However, they set their weapons at rest to make special arrangements for Christians to observe the holy season at the scene of the nativity—and all was quiet in the city of Jerusalem.

In Bethlehem, Christ's birthplace, sunlight pierced cloudy skies.

Europe Has Happy Yule

And in Europe—even in conquered Germany, the happiest Christmas in years was celebrated.

In Vatican City half a million Romans and 10,000 pilgrims passed through the newly opened holy door of St. Peter's to take part in holy rites marking the start of the 1950 holy year of the Roman Catholic church.

At his home in Independence, Mo., President Truman observed the holiday in simple fashion.

The chief executive beamed on reporters as he told of visiting his relatives and receiving Christmas presents.

He took a long walk through slushy streets, exchanging folksy greetings with friends and neighbors.

Cathedrals Are Filled

In New York City, the quiet of a village community descended on the city's normally busy streets. The great cathedrals were filled with worshippers.

Throughout the United States, Christmas marked the end of the greatest holiday buying spree in history. Detroit was the only large city that was an exception to this.

A vigorous storm meanwhile centered in northern Minnesota and temperatures were dropping

Truman Celebrates 'Folksy' Christmas Visiting Home Town

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Dec. 25 (AP)—Santa Claus did all right by President Truman, the chief executive beamingly reported today.

Visiting in his home town with his family and relatives Mr. Truman told reporters he had opened some of his presents prior to his customary morning walk.

"All of them were very satisfactory," he reported to the newsmen.

The President visited with the reporters at the end of a 30-minute walk over slushy streets. The thermometer moved up to 42 today and the ice-caked streets had thawed considerably.

Attend Church Services

Last night Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman attended midnight services at the Trinity Episcopal church, where Margaret sang in the choir. Mr. Truman said he did not go along because the church is always crowded and that his presence would attract a swarm of newsmen and photographers.

As usual, the President's walk included folksy greetings from friends and neighbors. Included among today's informalities was Mr. Truman's posing for a photograph by a passing motorist, and the PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 25 (INS)—Film Stars Cary Grant and Betsy Drake were married today in a Christmas day ceremony on a ranch outside Phoenix. Howard Hughes, multi-millionaire aircraft builder and head of RKO flew the couple to the Arizona ranch in one of his planes.

Officers Report Quiet Christmas

A pronounced lack of violence marked Christmas Day of 1949 for police circles over the South Plains area.

The holiday in this region was marred only by a negro shooting in Lubbock in which one man was wounded, and two car wrecks. Of seven persons hurt in the road mishaps, only one was listed as seriously injured.

Negro Near Death

Fred Douglas Gibson, 29-year-old negro of 108 East Nineteenth, lay near death in Chatman hospital here late last night, victim of two gunshot wounds fired into his body during a fight at a Queen City Funeral parlor about 6:30 p. m. Sunday.

Sheriff's officers, meanwhile, were holding for investigation T. S. Jamison, 40, operator of Jamison's Funeral parlor at 2407 East Ave. E, where the shooting occurred.

Jamison, who carried the wounded man to the hospital in his firm's ambulance following the affray, admitted there that he had shot Gibson officers said. A .38 caliber Smith and Wesson pistol was found in the drawer of a desk belonging to the suspect at the scene of the shooting. Four shots had been fired, officers said.

Jamison told officials he had

Nation's Economy Humming Official Says

Sec. Sawyer Sees Good Year Ahead

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25. — Secretary of Commerce Sawyer predicted today that 1950 business will start off vigorously.

And Senator Myers (D-Pa) declared that the outlook for lasting world peace "is better than it's been in a long, long time."

As for business, the Senator underlined Sawyer's optimism by saying:

"Our economy is humming along in good shape for the most part, with plenty of signs that the future looks good."

Volume To Prevail

Sawyer, in a year-end review, forecast that the new year will be launched "with a volume of business activity not materially different from the high rate which prevailed" in the last half of 1949.

He termed 1949 a good year from the economic view — particularly in the latter half. All in all, he said, it was one of high level economic activity.

Leading up to his forecast, Sawyer observed:

"At the end of the year business activity was moderately below the postwar high reached at the close of 1948.

Consumer Demands Continue

"Consumer demands continued at the high rates prevailing throughout the year.

"Residential construction, which had rebounded from the lows in the early part of the year, was at peak rates.

"Government expenditures were rising with the insurance dividend payment to the GI's in the offing

Foreign Demand Declining

"Business demand for plant and equipment and foreign demand for our goods, on the other hand, were declining."

Myers, who surveyed the economy in a statement for broadcast in Pennsylvania, concluded that "America is in very good shape. We're at peace, and our prospects for the future look good."

Sawyer said that in some important respects — gross national

GOP Policy Group Named

By FREDERIC TUTTLE
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—GOP Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson announced today appointment of 15 members of the national committee to draft a statement of Republican principles for the 1950 congressional campaign.

The announcement met a frigid reception on Capitol Hill, where Republican leaders have announced time and again that GOP members of Congress will write their own 1950 platform.

Dewey Men Lead

Gabrielson's policy-making group was loaded with former followers of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who is considered out of the 1952 election. Ten Dewey followers were named against two Stassen, one Baldwin and one Taft leaders. The special committee consits of:

Miss Bertha S. Adkins, Maryland; Ralph H. Cake, Oregon; Mrs. Lafell Dickinson, New Hampshire; McIntyre Faries, California; Mrs. William Preston Few, North Carolina; Walter S. Hallanan, West Virginia; Mrs. F. Peavey Heffelfinger, Minnesota; Clarence Buddington Kelland, Arizona; Mrs. Gilford Mayes, Idaho; Harold E. Mitchell, Connecticut; Mrs. E. L. Moulton, New Mexico; Harrison E. Spangler, Iowa; Arthur E. Summerfield, New Jersey, and Mrs. Charles W. Weis, jr., New York.

Gabrielson named himself chairman.

Cake and Mrs. Heffelfinger are Stassenites; Mitchell favors Baldwin while Spangler is for Taft in 1952. All the rest supported Dewey in 1948.

To Meet In January

The committee will hold its first session "early in January."

GOP headquarters announced: "In issuing the call, Gabrielson pointed out that he was responding to the flood of demands by Republican leaders and workers that the party leadership draft a positive set of aims and purposes which Republican candidates for the Senate and House of Representatives may carry to the people in a determined fight to wrest con-

U. S. To Launch Arms Program

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25. — The United States has arranged to send abroad some 200 military aid experts as it gets the ball rolling on the huge $1,000,000,000 arms program to help western Europe defy Russia.

Their first job will be to assist the eight Atlantic pact nations involved to prepare for the shipments and foreign supply offices in making out orders.

Eight Nations On List

Government officials today said the average mission for each country would total around 20 persons. They will be sent to Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Denmark, Norway and Italy.

In addition about 40 persons will be stationed in the military aid regional office in London. Most of these will be ordnance experts "trouble shooters" to go from country to country and perform specific tasks.

Later, additional aid experts will be sent, if a country specifically requests, to teach about the equipment.

Officials emphasized that the United States is trying to hold each mission to the barest number.

Denmark and Norway complained last week about the size

Girl May Be Dignified And Still Have Fun At Party

By VIVIAN BROWN
Associated Press Staff Writer

BONG—goes the signal for a gay winter season and happy holiday ahead. Let's see if we can wade through it without eating all the icing on the cake. Go to the parties and keep the dates that you can't resist. But don't go around seeking excitement. Rest up in between the big moments so you'll look fresh and pretty for mistletoe and winter carnivals.

You might be invited to a special celebration or school dance in a strange city. In that case it might be necessary for you to stay at a hotel. And, just because you are away from father's critical eye, don't throw caution to the winds.

It's possible for any girl to have a good time and still observe the demeanor of a sheltered debutante, says Frank L. Swadley, general manager of the Ritz Carlton Hotel in New York. A perfect lady conducts herself with dignity when left on her own, but it doesn't have to spoil her fun. Says he:

"It always is a good idea for parents to make the hotel reservations for daughter so it can be confirmed before the girl starts for a strange city. Frequently we call the parents to ask if we can keep a watchful eye on their offspring, and they always are grateful for the extra bit of reassurance. It also gives the young lady more freedom because the parents are not suffering from anxiety."

Mr. Swadley adds these helpful pointers:

1. Even if your date meets you at the railroad station and escorts you to the hotel, you should do your own registering. Your parents or yourself should make the reservation. Don't ask the young man to do it.

2. Since you do not invite guests into your bedroom at home, you probably will not invite them to your hotel room, which after all is a bedroom.

3. Whenever possible two girls should travel together. Then they will not be lonesome, and they can share a room.

4. The curfew that parents stress should be observed. If you expect to be out later, leave a message at the hotel so that anxious parents will not get panicky if they should call in the late hours.

5. Your date should buy your dinner, but you should pay your own hotel bill. If he wants to reimburse you, that is for you to decide.

Mr. Swadley says that hotels want young people to enjoy themselves during their stay, but they also like to help them avoid embarrassing situations.

If you are going to entertain in your own home, your parents should meet the guests. If parents choose to go to bed or leave the house before the guests arrive, that is a different matter. But don't insist that they leave.

LOTS of young moderns write asking whether it will make them particularly unpopular if they must tell their friends that a house party must be terminated by midnight, or if they are invited to one that they must be home at a reasonable hour.

This attitude of your parents never will affect your popularity with nice boys, particularly if they have sisters. Don't think you are the only girl experiencing parental supervision. Any well-brought up girl goes through the same experience. If the boys you know come from good homes, they will expect your parents to act as parents are supposed to act.

Another thing that bothers the sophisticated sub-deb set is whether they should have wine and liqueur privileges during the holiday season. This is something that must be decided by family consultation. Some parents approve of light wine cocktails on special occasions, others frown on it. Your parents wishes should be respected on this score since they are in a position to take into consideration your personal welfare, community responsibility and their own experiences.

Sometimes after a party your special date will linger around to say a special good night. If he does stay later than the other guests, make it a brief adieu. Unless you decide to whip up a snack and a cup of tea, he should leave within ten minutes after the guests have departed.

After all some of us forget that Mother and Dad were teen-agers too, and not so long ago, perhaps. They had the same temptations, desires and responsibilities that you have today. Who else should be better equipped to give you the answer to this problem than your own parents?

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 25. — The most interesting test made on any lot this Christmas week was the one that Renza Cesana made with John Hodiak and Director Joseph Lewis for "Visa."

Cesana, the boyhood friend of Roberto Rossellini, wrote the dialogue for the famed "Stromboli," and played the second most important role, that of a priest.

In "Visa" Cesana plays a heavy —and I say plays, because I know the role is his and that he will be there when the roll is called.

Since Cesana came to Hollywood, he's been in the hospital and is being sought by reporters, far and wide, to tell them what he knows about Ingrid Bergman and Rossellini.

Jean Arthur To Get Call

Jean Arthur is going to have a call soon from Liam O'Brien, the writer brother of Edmond O'Brien. I can tell her now, he will soon be on his way there to try to persuade her to star opposite Bing Crosby in "You Belong To Me."

If anything could bring the highly strung, but great actress, Jean, back—it would be a chance to make a picture with Bing at Paramount. The story is an original by Robert Riskin. O'Brien is writing the screenplay.

He's been commissioned to tell Jean the story, and sell her on the argument that Hollywood needs her, and she ought to come home.

Fancy Yule Gift

Talk about Christmas gifts! Ernest Hemingway has given his close and good friend, Al Horwits, head of Universal-International publicity department, exclusive agent rights to his newly completed novel "Across the River and Into the Trees!"

Now there is a gift that is a gift because Hemingway's novels are always sheer gold for the movies and are always in demand.

It isn't the first agent deal, however, Horwits has performed for Author Hemingway. He was the middle man in selling "The Killers" to Mark Hellinger.

"Across the River and Into the Trees" is a war story—seems all the current epics are war stories.

When Clark Gable and his bride, the former Lady Sylvia Stanley, step off the Lurline in Honolulu, they will be met by Howard Strickling and his wife, Gail. Today, Howard and Gail flew to the islands to be there when the Gables arrive.

After the mob at the boat in San Francisco, when the Lurline sailed, the studio thought they should be on hand. Howard is one of Clark's closest friends.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: If Marilyn Maxwell isn't married by the time this is in print, she will be shortly after—to Andy McIntyre, cafe owner. They have already bought their wedding rings.

Rhonda Fleming has been receiving long distance calls from Pierre DuPont, of the DuPont family. She met him while she was on tour.

The most expensive message on Christmas day was Greer Garson's long distance call to Buddy Fogelson. She kept a trans-Atlantic wire open specially.

John Agar's first date with a girl will be with his mother. He's taking her to the premiere of "Sands of Iwo Jima" at Carthay Circle, December 28. I'd like to say that John is going to get so much praise after that picture is shown that he can feel his career is at the top. He and John Wayne are out of this world they are so good.

At this time of the year it is sad to say that Willard Parker, the actor, and his wife have separated and she has gone east, taking their three-year-old son with her.

Rosalind Russell and Freddie Brisson left today to spend a few days at the Floyd Odlum ranch in Indio.

Joan Bennett's 18-month-old baby, Shelley, can say Merry Christmas in three languages—English, French and Italian. Believe me, she said it today!

Soike Jones' Christmas present to his wife is a beautiful pearl necklace the first pearls she's owned.

Jimmy Pepper, 11, got the British National Canine Defense League medal, for rescuing two dogs trapped in a crevice, near Borrowdale.

Insurance Company Survey Reports U. S. Health Improved In 1949; Decline In Death Rate Showed

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 25—As the second half of the 20th century opens the health of the nation is better than ever, and the prospect is good for future gains, according to Dr. Lois I. Dublin, second vice-president and statistican of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The year 1949 marks the end of a decade of extraordinary improvement in the country's health. Death rates declined during the year for most important diseases. In some instances the reductions were quite substantial and many new low records were achieved.

"The death rate in 1949 under 10 per 1,000 was about 2 per cent below the previous record of 1948," Dr. Dublin notes. "This achievement is all the more remarkable because of the increase in the proportion of older persons in the population and in view of the protracted heat spell which gripped a large part of the county last summer."

Influenza Rate Extremely Low

An important contributing factor in the reduction of the death rate to a new low he points out was the absence of any serious epidemic of respiratory disease. The influenza rate was extremely low and the rate for pneumonia showed a sharp decline.

"The record for the childhood diseases was also generally favorable," Dr. Dublin observes. "Mortality from diptheria continued to be very low. Whooping cough registered a new minimum. Deaths from scarlet fever were extremely few. The number of cases and deaths from measles showed little change from 1948. Poliomyelitis was the only disease with a high concentration at the childhood ages to show a large increase in frequency in 1949. Reported cases were the highest on record. However, the increased death rate from this disease had no appreciable effect on the total mortality at the childhood ages.

Infant Mortality Declines

"An outstanding feature of the year's experience was the decline in infant and maternal mortality. The reduction in infant mortality to a new low of about 31 per 1,000 live births is gratifying in view of the continued high level of the birth rate. More than 60,006 infant lives were saved in 1949 alone because of the decline in infant mortality from the level of 10 years ago. The decline in maternal mortality was remarkable. This year's rate is likely to show a reduction of nearly one fifth from 1948 dropping to less than 1 maternal death per 1,000 live births. The total number of such fatalities may fall below 3,500 in a year in which births exceeded 3,500,000. As recently as 1945 the maternal mortality rate was twice the current figure and 10 years ago it was more than 4 times as high.

"Tuberculosis also registered a new low in 1949 with a drop of more than 10 percent from 1948. The year's rate was only half of that recorded in 1937. For three years now the pace of the decline in tuberculosis mortality has accelerated, and if this trend continues, the disease will disappear from the list of major causes of death in this country much sooner than had been expected previously.

Cancer, Diabetes Increased

"The mortality from the chronic diseases of middle and later life, as expected, did not show a marked downward trend. However there was a small reduction in the mortality from the chronic diseases of the heart, kidneys and blood vessels. The mortality for cancer and diabetes showed a small increase. Altogether, the chronic disease picture in 1949 was relatively satisfactory in view of the growing proportion of older persons."

Dr. Dublin comments upon the continued progress in 1949 in reducing deaths from accidents. In the aggregate there was a decline of about 5 percent in the accident death rate. A small reduction in motor vehicle accidents was achieved even though motor car use was at peak level. The largest savings proportionally were in other public accidents and in occupational fatalities despite the high level of employment during the year. The death rate from home accidents also dropped in 1949.

New Drugs Developed

"The fine health record of 1949 is the fruit of many substantial advances in the fields of medicine, surgery and public health," he asserts. "Perhaps the greatest achievement of recent years, with widespread effects on the mortality picture, is the development of chemotherapy. First sulfa drugs and then penicillin brought sharp reductions in mortality from a great many infections such as the pneumonias, puerperal septicemia, surgical and wound infections, scarlet fever, and other streptococcal disease. Streptomyien has proved particularly effectively against certain forms of tuberculosis and aureomyclin against whooping cough and virus pneumonia. Other drugs in process of development hold promise of even better control of infections in the future.

"Physicians, hospitals, and health officers have worked together to make childbearing safer for both mother and infant. More prospective mothers than ever before avail themselves of prenatal care and obstetric practices have greatly improved, largely under the stimulus of efforts organized by the doctors themselves. Noteworthy is the extension and improvements of special services for premature infants which promise to bring a marked reduction in this leading cause of infant mortality.

Immunization Makes Strides

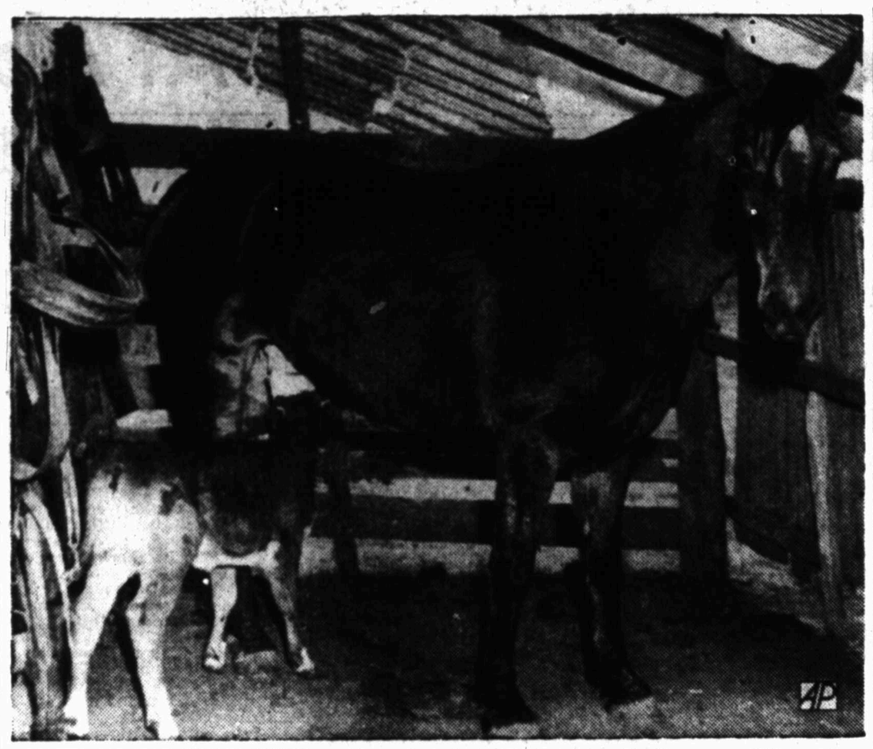

"The use of immunization has continued to make strides. As a result diptheria and smallpox have been virtually wiped out and mortality from whopping cough has dropped rapidly as immunization against it has become accepted practice.

"Early diagnosis of disease has been receiving increased attention and case finding programs on a mass scale have grown in recent years. The major effort thus far has been in tuberculosis and the number of X-ray examinations in this country now exceeds 10,000,000 annually. Good progress is being made in extending mass case finding techniques to heart disease, diabetes, cancer, and the venereal diseases. Workers in the field are attempting, furthermore, to coordinate these efforts so far as practicable so that large numbers of persons may be screened for several conditions during a single check-up. Finding cases in early stages is often conducive to a rapid cure.

Hospital Construction Advanced

"Recent years have seen the inauguration of a long-range program for hospital construction. This has been advanced by Federal aid, and the result will be to make first-rate hospital facilities available to areas now lacking them, as well as to add to the facilities elsewhere. Mention should also be made of the medical program of the Veterans Administration which provides hospital and medical care for veterans on a scale and of a quality much higher than in the past.

"Another reason for the continued improvement in national health is that the American people are exceptionally well informed on health matters. This is largely the result of the extensive programs of health education conducted by public health departments, voluntary agencies, and school authorities. The popular press has been a powerful aid in health education. As a result, there is wide acceptance of available measures to prevent diseases and to detect it early. Health education is having increasing influence on nutritional and dietary habits. It is also an important element in accident prevention. The dissemination of new knowledge on health and disease will remain a powerful weapon in the campaign for better national health.

Police added that the photographers and other material were sent by the former periodically to a "personality of a consular corps living in Rome."

Well Known Movie Cartoonist Claimed

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 25 (INS)—Famed movie cartoonist Leon Schlessinger died early this morning at Cedars of Lebanon hospital. He was 65 years old.

Death came after a two-months illness.

Schlessinger was born in Philadelphia in 1884. He achieved his greatest fame with screen characters "Bugs Bunny" and "Porky Pig," made famous through his "Looney Tunes" and "Merrie Melodies' animated color cartoons.

He came to the west coast in 1922 as sales manager for a film manufacturing corporation, but resigned three-years later to open the Pacific title and art school.

In 1930, Jack Warner of Warner Brothers suggested Schlessinger make cartoon strips. They immediately became a hit and Schlessinger formed his own company with Warner's handling the distribution.

He started with 12 films a year, but by 1939 was turning out 42 annually, a new Hollywood record. It was estimated that in the following years, his cartoons were viewed by 50,000,000 persons annually in 10,000 theaters around the world.

Included in his screen innovations was the caricaturing of famous film personalities in the animated strips.

Schlessinger is survived by his widow, Berniece and a brother, Mayer and sister, Flora, both of whom live in Orange, N. J.

Littlefield, Mexia Meet Today At Abilene In Class A Finals

Crowd Of 7,000 Forecast; Wildcats Solid Favorites

South Plains Team Has Weight Edge; Both Elevens Stress Running Game

By CHOC HUTCHESON
Avalanche Sports Writer

A real dogfight is predicted when 22 Cats get together today at Abilene.

Littlefield's Wildcats and Mexia's Black Cats, sole survivors of a gruelling 15-week season of Class A schoolboy grid play, tangle at 2 p. m. to decide their divisional championship, and a last-ditch battle appears to be in the offing.

Upwards of 7,000 spectators are expected to sit in on the Class A finale, providing the title tussle gets a favorable nod from the weatherman. Originally, the probable attendance was estimated at 5,000, but interest in the game has mounted to fever pitch throughout West Texas in the last few days. Almost 3,000 rabid rooters of the Wildcat team are expected to follow the Littlefield squad to Abilene for today's tilt.

Odds May Shrink

On the eve of battle, Littlefield retained its role of two-touchdown favorite, although the odds were expected to shrink slightly as kick-off time approached.

Chiefly responsible for Littlefield's being favored is a devastating ground assault which has enabled the Wildcats to amass 495 points in 14 games this season. Although beaten in their first 1949 outing, and given serious scares by Sudan and Levelland in District 4-A play, the Cats have "caught fire" in the playoffs, where they've been rougher than a sailor's vocabulary.

Coach J. S. Fikes' Big Red team simply pulverized Spur, Lefors, Ballinger and Garland, and most West Texas observers think they can do the same to Mexia.

Bain Coaches Mexia

The Black Cats' unblemished record must not be discounted, however. Coached by Ty Bain, former Texas Tech quarterback, the Mexia team has been monotonously consistent in rolling to 14 successive triumphs—including a 26-6 decision over New Braunfels, pre-season favorite for the state Class A crown. The Black Cats had only two really close squeezes—against Huntsville in the district playoff, 16-13, and against Uvalde in last week's 7-6 semifinal. Over the full season, Bain's blasters have registered 383 points to the opposition's 64.

One important factor in Littlefield's favor is a marked weight advantage in the line. The agile Wildcat forwards will average 180 pounds each—10 pounds per man above Mexia's front-line troops. Since both teams are known to prefer a running game, the matter of weight quite possibly will help decide the issue.

Wildcat Backs Heavier

Littlefield also will field a heavier backfield, but for once the Wildcats will meet a club that just about equals them in secondary depth. Mexia boasts one of the best-balanced backfields in South Texas Class A football, according to all advance reports. Sparkplug of the crew is Derrell Carlile, 160-pound fullback, who is helped with running chores by Halfbacks Bruce Outlaw (a freshman) and Bobby Duke. Skinny Garland Cain, quarterback in the Black Cats' T formation, does the passing.

Against this quartet, Fikes is prepared to counter with his usual slambang sextet of Tom Bailes, Charles Askew, Frank Gage, Gene Renfro, Stephen Brock and Donald Crossley. Crossley will attend to the passing, if an aerial attack is needed. In its last two games, Littlefield has uncorked such terrific ground power that only one pass completion has been posted by the Wildcats.

Pinkerton Out

Mexia was reported Sunday to be near top form physically. Littlefield suffered a slight jolt Friday when Foyd Pinkerton, regular right guard, was sidelined by an emergency. The gap will be filled by Billy Frank Davis, who played enough to letter during the season.

Today's clash marks the end of the line for the state's gigantic Class A scramble, in which Littlefield and Mexia have blasted their way through a playoff field that originally numbered 32 district champions. The Wildcats were 4-A titlists, while Mexia won in 20-A.

Last year, the first in which state eliminations were held in Clas A, the championship went to the Monahans Lobos of District 5-A.

Records Listed

Two other state grid crowns already have been awarded this year, Wichita Falls taking Class AA honors and Thomas Jefferson (San Antonio) pulling down top prize in the City conference.

Complete records of today's Class A finalists:

LITTLEFIELD — Littlefield 0, Dalhart 14; Littlefield 34, Roscoe 0; Littlefield 39, Morton 6; Littlefield 53, O'Donnell 0; Littlefield 47, Brownfield 7; Littlefield 48, Muleshoe 0; Littlefield 66, Sundown 0; Littlefield 7, Sudan 7 (Littlefield won on penetrations, 3-1); Littlefield 20, Levelland 13; Littlefield 47, Slaton 0; Littlefield 47, Spur 14; Littlefield 26, Lefors 6; Littlefield 34, Ballinger 6; Littlefield 27, Garland 13.

We usually think of electrical generation as something that typically starts with a steam boiler and ends with electricity. In countries where hydroelectric power is abundant and fuel scarce, the process may be reversed and steam may be generated with electric heat.

Indians Are Tops In AL Fielding

CHICAGO, Dec. 25 (AP) — The Cleveland Indians today officially were adjudged the best fielding team in the American league last season, an honor spiced with a new major league record of fewest errors, 103.

Formal disclosure of 1949 defensive figures credited the third-finishing Tribe with a .983 average, matching their own major league club record. The original mark was established in 1947, the same season Cleveland set the old fewest errors record of 104.

Individually, the pennant-winning New York Yankees did best, producing the top fielding shortstop and second baseman, Phil Rizzuto and Gerry Coleman, respectively. Rizzuto had a .991 average and Coleman .981.

Goodman At First

Best fielding first baseman was Billy Goodman of the second-place Boston Red Sox with .992, while Chicago's Floyd Baker led all third basemen with .975.

Cleveland's Dale Mitchell was the leading outfielder defensively, with a hairline decision over Detroit's Hoot Evers, .994 to .9939. Mitchell was charged with only two errors in 349 chances and Evers also had two for 333 tries.

Rated best defensive catcher was Washington's Al Evans with .993 for 107 games in which he committed only three errors. No. 1 in the passed ball department was Philadelphia's Mike Guerra with seven.

Pitchers Do Well

Twenty-eight pitchers had perfect defensive records. Boston's Mel Parnell—also the season's pitching king — topped the list with 61 errorless chances in 39 games. Cleveland's Bob Lemon handled the most field chances by a pitcher, 109, and bobbled only four for .963.

The 23-year-old Goodman handled 1,157 first base chances, erring only nine times for his .992. That was one point better than runner-up Mickey Vernon of Cleveland.

The other "Kid" champion, 25-year-old Coleman, was tested 625 times at second base and erred only 12 times. Coleman's .981 was one point ahead of a couple of veterans, Boston's Bobby Doerr and Cleveland's Joe Gordon, who soon will turn 35.

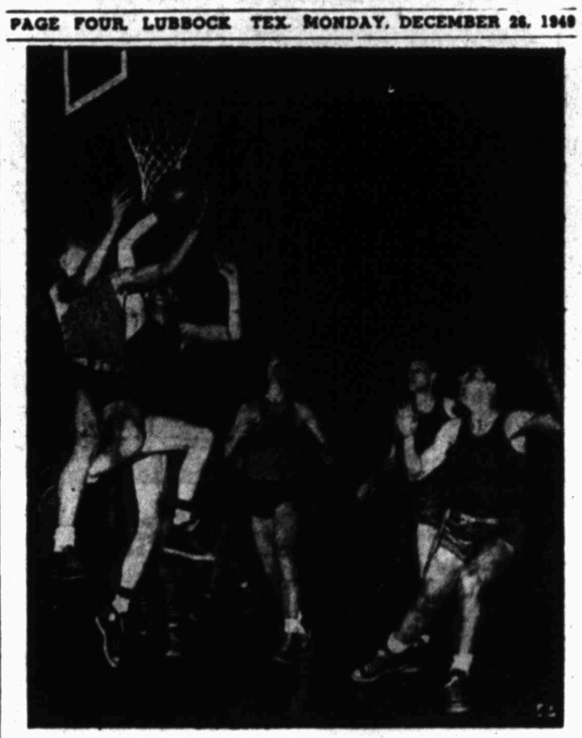

Buckeyes To Resume Grid Drills After Rest

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 25. (INS) Ohio State's football players were given the day completely away from the field today to enjoy Christmas to the fullest.

However, they go back tomorrow afternoon to the grind of training for the Rose Bowl tilt with California.

The Buckeyes had their Christmas party at the Huntington hotel last evening. Today they went en masse to a radio show and from there to various parties with instructions to be in by 1 a. m.

Three $100,000 Races In 50-Days

Santa Anita Is Set For Richest Season

ARCADIA, Calif., Dec. 25. (INS)—Santa Anita, the "miracle mile" of turfdom, was set today for another of its fabulous meetings.

The famed track, the world's most luxurious horse plant, swings into its 13th season tomorrow.

On hand to compete for the richest list of stakes ever offered are the nation's biggest of the big star thoroughbreds, with the roll topped by Citation, and six national champion jockeys—Gordon Glisson, Johnny Longden, Johnny Adams, Basil James, Jack Westrope and Johnny Gilbert.

They will vie in the course of a 50-day meet for three $100,000 added or guaranteed stakes and nine $50,000 added, as well as for the run-of-the-mill purses which have a minimum of $3,500.

$100,000 Races

The hundred granders are the Santa Anita Handicap, the Santa Anita Maturity and the Santa Anita Derby.

With perfect weather indicated, tomorrow's opening day crowd is expected to reach a record 60,000.

The inaugural day headliner is the $50,000 California Breeders champion stakes. It is to be run at a mile and a sixteenth for two-year-olds foaled on home farms.

However, veteran horse players are focusing their attention on a six-furlong sprint with a purse of only $7,000—the Monrovia purse.

Because it is a tune-up for the $50,000 San Carlos handicap to be run at seven furlongs next Saturday it has lured perhaps the finest field ever drawn for a sprint.

Olympia, Ponder In Field

In the star-studded field of 11 are Olympia, Ponder, Royal Blood, Brave Fox, Star Reward, Elibutte, Prevaricator, Papa Redbird, Blue Border, Bolero and Fervent.

Ponder and Fervent go as a Calumet Farm entry.

If all 11 named for it start in the Breeders stakes, the race will gross $83,921 and will be good for $52,000 net to the winner.

Three contenders stand out on their records. These are C. L. Hirsch's Blue Reading, winner in his last seven starts, William Goetz' Your Host and William Hellis' Selector.

Bill Pearson will be aboard Blue Reading, Longden up on Your Host and Eddie Arcaro astride Selector.

Others in the lineup for the feature are Quihi, Top Production, Alderman, National Debt, Thanks Again, Competing Beau, Stag Party and Zee Tee.

The track has been given a new, softer running surface, at a cost of approximately $2000,000, and it expected that the times will be considerably slower than in former years.

Navy Undefeated For Cage Tourney

DALLAS, Dec. 25. (INS) — The Navy and St. Louis University today ranked as the favorites for the Cotton Bowl Basketball tournament that will be staged in Dallas Dec. 30 and 31.

Navy, one of the few undefeated major collegiate teams of the nation and once-beaten St. Louis will battle two Southwest conference quints, Baylor and Southern Methodist, in a two-night hardwood show that will be one of the highlights of Cotton Bowl week.

The round-robin tourney opens with Navy meeting SMU and Baylor facing St. Louis. The two winners will square off on the second night for the Cotton Bowl title while the two losers compete for consolation honors.

Baylor's Bears, with four wins and three losses, and the SMU Mustangs with two victories and seven setbacks, seem destined to fight among themselves for the consolation trophy unless they do a little upsetting on opening night.

North Texas Faces Tough Slate With Tourney At Enid, TCU Tilt

Action is limited this week in the Gulf Coast conference basketball campaign.

Two games and a tournament make up the schedule.

Trinity, leading the race with a 3-3 record, is idle.

North Texas State is the only team with a full slate. The Eagles participate in an all-college tournament at Enid, Okla., Tuesday through Thursday and play Texas Christian at Fort Worth Saturday.

University of Houston plays Wichita at Houston Friday night.

Last week North Texas split even in games, beating Southwest Texas State 45-39, but being whammed by Texas A & M, 74-33. University of Houston was edged, 46-44, by Texas.

Wins Come Hard For SWC Cagers

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

Southwest conference basketball teams wind up most of their intersectional schedule this week and they'll be glad to get rid of it. Victories against outside foes have been so infrequent as to get lost in the avalanche of lusty beatings.

Last week, for instance, they tried eight intersectional opponents and wound up with goose eggs. Yes, sir; the record was 0-8.

So many lickings have been administered to the teams by outside quintets it's difficult to appraise the teams as compared to each other. Even against common foes they are very erratic.

Texas Improving

Texas appears to be showing the greatest improvement. The Longhorns started out terribly but in their last three games showed a surprising upturn. They beat Arizona, 58-50, smashed Trinity, 84-37, and edged University of Houston, 46-44.

Texas A&M is the race's "dark horse." The Aggies haven't looked bad against anybody, even mighty St. Louis to whom they bowed, 51-55. Southern Methodist has lost seven straight, Texas Christian has dropped four in a row and Rice the same. Arkansas has stumbled three times straight and so has Baylor. The latter has suffered, however, through loss of its star point-maker, Don Heathington, out with an injury.

Two Tourneys On Slate

Six games and two tournaments are on this week's schedule. Texas, Baylor and Arkansas go to Oklahoma City Tuesday to play in the all-college tournament. Friday night Baylor and Southern Methodist will be playing against St. Louis and Navy in the Cotton Bowl tournament at Dallas.

Texas A&M plays Arizona at Tucson and Texas Christian is host to Wichita at Fort Worth Tuesday night. Wednesday night Rice meets Wichita at Houston. Thursday night Texas A&M tackles California at San Francisco and Friday night plays Stanford in the same city. Saturday Texas Christian engages North Texas State at Fort orth.

String Of Defeats

Intersectional defeats for the conference last week were: Colorado 56, Southern Methodist 50; Tulane 86, Baylor 53; Wichita 65, Texas Christian 48; Colorado 83-64, Rice 52-51; Oklahoma A&M, 44, Arkansas 36; and Missouri 62-53, Southern Methodist 61-42.

Victories were scored only by Texas (46-44 over University of Houston) and Texas A&M (74-33 over North Texas State) against teams from this section.

Joe McDermott of Rice took over the scoring leadership, running his total to 141 points. He replaced Tom Hamilton of Texas, who fell to fourth with his 120. Jack Brown of Southern Methodist went into second place with 133.

Red Raider Gridders Return To Practice

Christmas turkey and Yuletide will be forgotten this afternoon when the Texas Tech Red Raiders gather at Jones Stadium to continue workouts for their Raisin Bowl game Saturday against San Jose State in Fresno, Calif.

Coach Dell Morgan will be faced with the task of assembling his far-flung gridders into a team following a three-day layoff, but his problem is likely to be solved by the gridders themselves, who are going all-out to insure a Tech victory on Dec. 31.

Remaining practice sessions can be counted on one hand with workouts today and Tuesday on the field and other drills Thursday and Friday in Fresno.

The team will leave by train at 8:30 a.m. on Wednesday, arriving in Fresno at 2:05 p.m. Thursday in time for a workout that day.

Heavy offensive drills are expected for the Raiders this week, with the defensive assignments also scheduled to get a thorough going-over to suit the style of play used by the Spartans.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25. — Getting the most and the best, as well as the longest and shortest, biggest and smallest, etc., out of a rapidly fading year. Here are a few such nominations, selected after seconds, even minutes, of profound study:

Best promotion — Bucky Harris, to the Washington Senators after a season in San Diego.

Hardest hit — The college football players being graduated into the pro ranks. No longer will two leagues be trying to outbid each other for their services.

Biggest gate — That erected by the Professional Golfers' association to keep out Bobby Locke, the South African.

Greatest stop — Eddie Robinson, the Washington Senator first baseman who was held up at third base in a game with the Yankees and still is there, despite a single and outfield fly.

Best squeeze play—The National Boxing association in ignoring Lee Savold as it nominated Jersey Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles to fight for the vacated heavyweight title.

Best reverse play — Still being executed by Joe Louis, who has everybody guessing as to his comeback intentions.

Strongest double or nothing exponent — Earl Blaik, of Army, who goes all out for the two-platoon system in football.

Best decision — The pro football leagues in agreeing to get together and eliminate their cut-throat tactics.

Longest fall—Lou Little, whose Columbia sophomore football team had one of those seasons every coach experiences now and then.

Worst bounce — That of Al Simmons and Earle Brucker, bounced as coaches by the Philadelphia Athletics.

Best bounce — Johnny Mize who bounced from the New York Giants to the Yankees and a World Series.

Most surprised — Pat Valentino, who understood he and Louis would appear in an exhibition.

North-South Tilt Tonight In Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 25. (AP)—College all-star football players representing the North and South held final loosening up drills today and were pronounced ready for their annual Shrine charity game in the Orange Bowl at 8:15 p. m. (EST) tomorrow before a crowd expected to exceed 40,000.

Yale's Coach Herman Hickman gave his "Yankee" squad its final workout on Memorial field at Miami Beach. The squad was dressed in game uniforms but went through only a light limbering up drill.

Miami's Coach Andy Gustafson and Baylor's Coach Bob Woodruff had their Southern squad out on quarterbacks field in Coral Gables. The boys wore shorts and were sent back to their hotel after a brief practice session.

Christmas Parties

Both squads were given Christmas parties at their respective Miami Beach hotels tonight. The North squad had its party at the Kenilworth hotel and the South squad at the Sherry Frontenac.

Both had Christmas dinners and received gifts from Mahi Shrine, sponsors of the game.

Hickman's squad, boasting six Notre Dame players and outstanding gridders from a dozen other colleges, will outweigh the "Rebels" but Gustafson claims his men are faster afoot. Seven of the Southern players came from Baylor and the others were drawn from colleges scattered from Miami to Southern California.

Hickman said he will not use the two platoon system but plans frequent substitutions. Gustafson will use the two platoon system, with Adrian Burk of Baylor and Jim Powers of Southern California at quarterback.

SHALLOW WILDCAT TO BE DRILLED IN KENT

The Ard Drilling company of Abilene, and associates, have filed an application with the Railroad commission of Texas, requesting a permit to start drilling at once on its No. 2 R. B. Masterson, as a 5,000-foot wildcat in northeast King county.

The exploration will be 15 miles northeast of Guthrie, and 990 feet from east and 2,310 feet from north lines of section 52, F. P. Knott survey.

The drillsite is one wile west of the same operators No. 1 Masterson, which drilled to a total depth of 4,439 feet, and has been plugged and abandoned as a failure.

No. 1 Masterson was located 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 51, F. P. Knott survey. No information is available regarding any shows of oil, gas or water which might have been developed in the venture.

SHALLOW DISCOVERY IS COMPLETED IN PECOS

Neb-Tex Oil company of Fort Stockton has completed a small, shallow discovery in north Pecos county at its No. 1 Malicky estate.

The development reported a 24-hour potential of 60.64 barrels of 36-gravity oil, flowing through a 14/64th-inch tubing choke from pay in the upper Permian at 1,964-92 feet.

The production was natural, and no formation water was developed. Gas-oil ratio was 315-1. The 7-inch casing is cemented at 1,835 feet.

KENT COUNTY WELL DRILLS BELOW 7,460 FEET

The Strawn lime of the Pennsylvanian made water at Drilling & Exploration company, Inc., No. 1 Connell, southwest Kent county wildcat, two miles southeast of Polar. It is making new hole below 7,460 feet in lime and shale.

The water was developed in a drillstem test at 7,131-46 feet. The tool was open one and one half hours. There was a slight blow of air at the surface during the period.

Recovery was a total of 307 feet of fluid, which was 30 feet of gas cut drilling mud, 205 feet of oil and gas cut drilling mud, with a very slight salty taste, and 72 feet of oil and gas cut muddy salt water.

There was enough gas in the section to kick some of the fluid out of the drill pipe while it was being pulled.

Open hole flowing bottom hole pressure was between 75 pounds and 250 pounds. Shutin bottom hole pressure was 500 pounds, after 15 minutes.

This prospector is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 19, block 5, H&GN survey.

It was barren of petroleum in the Canyon reef lime and is now due to continue drilling until more of the Pennsylvanian formation is penetrated.

The project is five and one half miles northwest of Chapman & McFarland No. 1 Cogdell, indicated Canyon discovery from the section at 6,800-39 feet. The development is due to start production tests as soon as the plug is drilled on a string of casing which is cemented at 6,800 feet.

Two Killed, Three Seriously Hurt When Car Hits Underpass

PARIS, Ill., Dec. 25.—Two girls and a youth—all seriously hurt—sprawled helplessly in a blood-spattered wrecked car for eight hours before their plight was discovered this Christmas morning. Two others in the car were found dead.

The five were returning from a dance about midnight last night when their car went off highway 133 about nine miles west of here. The car smashed into a ten-foot deep cattle underpass and could not be seen from the highway. A passerby discovered it this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Powers said the car apparently had been in the underpass for eight hours. Temperatures during the night were moderate.

Killed in the crash were Ruby Fern Pine, 20, of Paris, and William Arthur Downing, 34, of Gary, Ind.

Seriously hurt were Charles Roberts, 24, and Betty Thomason and Edna Mohler, each 18. They are from Paris.

MAKING PIGS OF THEMSELVES — Dairyman Leo Stiles' boss wanted to know why five cows in his herd, near La Grange, Ore., weren't giving enough milk. Woman Says She Has "No Regrets" For Christmas Shooting

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 25. (INS) — The conditions of the University of Georgia Journalism Dean John Drewry and his attractive former secretary improved today while the dean's ex-wife spent Christmas in an Athens jail with "no regrets" for shooting them.

The doctors said that both the 47-year-old dean and 28-year-old Miriam Thurmond were in "good" condition. Drewry was shot three times and the tall brunette twice as they sat in Miss Thurmond's living room Friday night.

Kathleen Merry Drewry, a plump, personable Athens matron, is being held on an open charge pending more certain determination of her victims' conditions.

There were reports that Miss Thurmond and the dean, moving force behind radio's George Foster Peabody awards, were secretly negaged to be married, but no formal announcement has been made.

However, Mrs. Drewry, whose marriage to the dean ended in divorce last July after more than 23 years, said that Drewry had agreed to a reconciliation only a few hours before the shooting.

Drewry, she said, had told her he was going home to bed after dining with his former wife and their 14-year-old son Milton Friday night.

Mrs. Drewry claimed that she rushed into Miss Thurmond's apartment and fired at the couple after she made an unanswered telephone call to the dean's home to tell him "how happy" she was over the prospect of a reconciliation.

Mrs. Drewry said:

"The phone didn't answer. I knew where he was."

She said she slipped a sweater and slacks over her pajamas and drove to the house where the secretary and her mother live. She continued:

Her Suicide Feared

"I told John he had betrayed me for the last time.

"I said to Miriam, 'You've broken up my home for the last time.'

"And then I started shooting."

Mrs. Drewry was picked up at her home a while later after she phoned friends to tell them goodbye. At first, it was feared she may have tried to take her own life.

She was rushed to a hospital, where no indication of poison were found in her system. Mrs. Drewry was transferred to the Clarke county jail yesterday afternoon.

The majority of the republic's 20,000,000 Filipinos are Catholic.

It was a torrid Christmas in Manila, the mercury hitting a humid 86 degrees. Foreign diplomats and government officials flew to the cool mountain city of Baguio for the weekend.

Goldilocks...and the Three Bottles

Adapting the "modern touch" to the old familiar story . . . the "little" bottle of Bell Milk would have been big enough for Goldilocks. The "middle size" bottle might have been too big for her, alone – but there is no doubt about it, the "great big" bottle, containing one-half gallon of Bell's pure milk, would have served her entire family.

Yes, it's a family bottle—the new one-half gallon bottle that is now available for home delivery. And you'll be especially pleased to know you save a half-a-cent a quart when you buy the "great big" bottle. Order Bell today! Dial 4381 for home delivery.

IN CONGRESS:

Most Eggs Are Good

EVEN the members of Congress are likely to acknowledge that there was some truth in the recent assertion of Rep. U. L. Burdick, of Indiana, that the practice of "payroll padding" is not unknown among representatives and senators.

But those in position to observe—but not members of Congress themselves—are likely to be in almost unanimous disagreement with Mr. Burdick's statement that the practice is "quite general."

Without question, bad eggs get into the Congressional basket on occasion. A few congressmen undoubtedly pocket money which should be used for clerk hire and other specified purposes. Some of them commit acts for which they properly should be imprisoned—and it is true that other members of Congress are not as diligent in their efforts to fergressmen are as conscientious as they should be.

But the news correspondents and others who keep in close and continuous association with congressmen are virtually unanimous in agreeing that the rascals are extremely rare. Most congressmen are conscientious as they know how to be in everything they do. For every congressman who may pad a payroll, there are hundreds who dig into their own pockets to pay expenses involved in the discharge of their official duties.

When the typical congressman is in doubt as to whether any particular expense should be paid by himself or the government, the chances are about 99 to 1 he will pay it himself.

Congressmen, in short, are honest men, taken as an overwhelming whole. We are firmly convinced this is true, both from many personal observations and from close associations with those whose business it is to keep in touch with what Congress and congressmen are doing.

Americans can trust the personal integrity of practically all the members of Congress. If the time ever should come when such trust is not justified, the plight of the nation will be a sad one, indeed.

Russian Jitters

THE Russians are adept at making wild and loose charges without presenting proof to support them. Illustrative was their recent accusation that Gen. Douglas MacArthur is preparing the Japanese for a "new imperialistic war."

There's not an iota of evidence to support such a suspicion.

True, General MacArthur has been entrusted with the chief responsibility in trying to help Japan earn and regain a place in the family of nations. When that time comes, the Japanese will and should be allowed to maintain armed forces sufficient for defense requirements—for protection against such aggressor nations as Russia.

But as long as General MacArthur can prevent it, it is a safe bet that Japan will not be permitted to build military establishments of sufficient strength to undertake any sort of aggressive war.

The uneasiness of Russia in this matter, however, may not be too difficult to explain. The only time the two nations ever engaged in a man-to-man slugging match, the Japs licked the tar out of the Russians. It is quite logical to suppose that anything that looks like a Jap in military uniform might cause chills in Moscow.

Contrary to popular opinion, it is often the case that a woman looks into the car mirror while backing out of a parking space—to see if her nose needs powdering.

General Douglas MacArthur paints a rosy picture of Japan's progress. The Rising Sun must be coming from behind a cloud.

Some people work for a living while others from an organization as a front and use it as a racket.

Trying to cross the Atlantic in an amphibious jeep is not much more risky than driving a car on a slippery road.

The Cameo

AS she listened to Charlie Reddy explain the mystery, Hagar Blair nodded: "Yakov got there just before I did, I guess. If only I'd been around sooner, I might have got those letters and I wouldn't have gone to jail."

Reddy gave her a grim smile. "No, you'd have gone to the morgue, instead. Tom, after he'd thought the whole thing over, was out after those letters. That's why Yakov got his head broken."

Stephanie shuddered. "How did he know Yakov had the letters?"

"Yakov made the mistake of hunting Tom up at Bob's Place and asking him questions about any papers that might have been in the cameo locket. From his inferences, Tom figured that Yakov had seen the letters and must still have them."

"Speaking of Bob's place," Hagar put in, "wasn't Tom supposed to be in Bob's back room at the time of the murders?"

"Yes. But he'd fixed it so he could pop out the little transom-like window whenever his evil genii moved him. Bob thought the window was nailed closed and painted over, but Tom, while he was supposed to be in there sleeping it off at various times, had very cunningly pulled the nails loose and run a sharp knife around the edge of the window, unsealing it. He could put the nails back in place at will and everything would appear tightly closed."

Stephanie's eyes clung to Reddy's face admiringly: "Then Tom really wasn't the drunkard he pretended to be?"

"Tom drank almost constantly, but he could consume a prodigious amount of it and still be capable of functioning pretty adequately. But, we've figured out that, on several occasions, it suited Tom's purpose to pretend inebriation."

Hagar was staring into space: "It gives me the creeps. Just imagine that white-haired little man up to all that hocus-pocus! Crawling in and out of that window like the devil's trained monkey. How'd he get up to it?"

"Packing boxes in the alley outside; a table, inside. He'd always lock the door of Bob's back room of course, to make sure no one blundered in and found him gone."

Stephanie tilted her head thoughtfully: "The thing I would most like to know is where the cameo fits in. How did Martin Falter get it?"

REDDY squinted up at the ceiling: "Well, at this point, we just have to fit the pieces together and hope we're right. Falter evidently had figured out a way to blackmail Nell. Maybe by threatening to turn her letters over to Tom. She gave him the cameo to keep him quiet. Then, when she found out that Yakov was prepared to offer an outlandish sum for the locket, she decided to make a deal with Falter and keep half of the money for herself. After Falter was murdered, of course, the whole thing became a game of button, button, who's got the cameo?"

Hagar jammed her fist under her nose and peered over it at Reddy: "Have you figured out who made the date to meet me at Dana Point? And who it was that bashed me over the head?"

"Andrey Yakov. In his statement to Chief Peters, Yakov said he and Nell had planned to get you out of town so they could search your studio. Nell did the searching."

Hagar stuck out her chin: "Why that misbegotten, mealy-mouthed—" she spluttered helplessly as she seemed to search for a word.

"He did say that he was pained to the heart to strike the charming lady. Also, that he tried to be very gentle."

"Hah! Gentle!" Hagar rubbed the top of her head reminiscently.

Stephanie gave Hagar a look of sympathy, then turned back to Reddy:

"Why did Tom kill Nellya?"

"Tom and Nell had a showdown there apparently. He followed her when she came here to search for the cameo. Yakov told us he arrived at Hagar's just in time to see Tom sneaking away—he concluded Tom killed her, but, according to his old world code, it was a crime passionel, and he decided to keep his mouth shut until things developed a little further."

Hagar again rubbed her head. "Him and his old World code!"

THERE was a short silence. The muted hiss of the gas heater marked the time.

Hagar got to her feet. "Dolorosa'll be quiet enough now to hear the voice of the turtle—the way it should be. Maybe we can all get some work done for a change." She started out toward the kitchen where the smell of strong coffee drifted out. "I've got to get at some carving of heads in my studio one of these days. I think I'll do Yakov's first—that'll be one way of getting even with him. I'll take it down and present it to him in jail—if he goes to jail."

"He probably won't," Reddy answered.

Hagar rattled cups and saucers. "I'll get back to my sculpting," she called. "Stephanie'll get back to her writing—"

She appeared with the coffee pot: "As long as we're getting all the mysteries unraveled, maybe you'll tell me now what kind of deathless prose you write!"

Stephanie's cheeks colored.

"I write—I write children's books about Trumpy and Tatters."

Reddy looked at her gravely. "And who are Trumpy and Tatters?"

Stephanie stared fixedly at the windows. "A baby elephant and a monkey," she admitted.

He grabbed Stephanie close and burried his laughter in her hair:

"Thank the lord," he chuckled. "I was afraid I might have an Emily Bronte on my hands."

THE END

On The Line

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—Everybody knows when Christmas begins. Christmas begins at midnight, at the end of the 24th day of December. And through that day, and perhaps two days before it, people are pretty human for a change. Strangers smile. Strangers speak.

When does it end?

For most of us it ends during the afternoon of Christmas day. We stop smiling at strangers. We stop speaking. And the great iron curtain, which preceded the Russian brand by teeming centuries, descends around each of us. Nature becomes hostile again; man vile.

This is the story of one exception to the rule. His name is Sammy Cascavilla. He is the jockey of a bus on the Eighth avenue line of which in turn is an affiliate of the most famous city bus line in history—the Fifth Avenue Coach Co., run by a good joe named John E. McCarthy.

Daughter To Be Model

Sammy Cascavilla is a medium tall man with a wife and a 16-year-old daughter—a good-looker—who will be a model when she finishes school.

He makes four round-trips a day between Greenwich Village and the Polo grounds, and carries about half a million passengers a year — artists from the Village, students of N.Y.U.'s downtown school, and the peeople of Harlem. It is a good cross-section of New York and U.S. life.

Not long ago a man from Los Angeles, eager to get back home, as well he might be eager, almost missed his train waiting for Sammy's bus—so that he could give him a letter (containing a fresh sawbuck).

HE has received checks made out to the "most courteous bus driver in New York," and, what is more, cashed them on sight. Some New Yorkers take a taxi from their homes to the route of Sammy's bus just to ride with him.

And listen to him.

Sammy Cascaville believes, with a great philosopher, that strangers are simply friends you haven't met.

The people who enter his bus are thus his friends and, as friends, are deserving of his best efforts and intentions. So are the cops and doormen along his route. And the push-cart fruit dealers, and the white-wings and everybody else.

"Ladies first," Sammy will sing out along the route. "This is Forty-Second street . . . Franklin Savings Bank . . . Times Square, the movie center. Change for Grand Central. The correct time is now eleven oh two."

And if a bum or a tough gets on in the middle of his informative salutation, and either can't or refuses to pay the fare, Sammy will go into his own kick and put it up for the recalcitrant rider.

FOR ECONOMY MOVES

Johnson Under Fire

By RAY TUCKER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, — National Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson has become the victim of a conspiracy to force him out of the Cabinet and to kill him off as a prospective presidential candidate in 1952 if President Truman fails to run again.

It is fortunate for the brawny West Virginian that he is not a thin-skinned individual, for his enemies compose an extremely powerful and influential cabal.

His sometimes tactless handling of the military and political brass, as well as his hard-boiled schemes for reorganization and economy, have riled everybody from Dean Acheson to Bill Boyle, Democratic National Committee chairman.

TUCKER

Mr. Johnson irritates the so-called "liberals" inside the State Department because he sides with his advisors who believe the United States should reestablish friendly relations with Spain. On this question he takes a realistic rather than an ideological viewpoint. He knows that the western powers will need that peninsula in any conflict with Russia.

ALTERNATIVE: He also disagrees with Mr. Acheson's policy of waiting until "the dust settles in China."

Although it is too late to mount an offensive against the Reds there, the National Defense Secretary would like to do something about the fortification of Formosa.

Here he accepts the advise of General Douglas A. MacArthur as against the State Department procrastinators and anti-Chiang Kai-Shek faction. Meanwhile, he has ordered the Pacific Fleet to be strengthened.

Mr. Johnson is no warmonger. Nobody realizes more thoroughly than he that our military machine has been so weakened that we cannot uphold our rights against Communist insults around the world. But he believes there is an alternative to State's mild literary rebukes and appeals to other nations to join us in moral protests.

FRILLS: The New Deal-Fair Deal extremists hold the same grudge against Mr. Johnson that they urged against the late James V. Forrestal. They do not think that he is sufficiently interested in social, political and economic reform.

Indeed, it seems to be the misfortune of the man holding this responsible post to excite the enmity of the one-worlders, the dogooders, the idealists and so-called "liberals."

Like his predecessor, Mr. Johnson does not look upon the Army, Navy and Air Force as fields for experimenting with social problems. He regards it as a business establishment that must be kept at a high state of efficiency.

He cannot afford "fringe frills." He does not regard the fighting machines as a crusading force for welfare or uplift causes here or abroad, especially in view of the "cold war" possibilities. Its sole purpose is to insure national defense.

COMPLAINTS: But he also recognizes the need for economy, and it is estimated that impounding of additional air force funds and actual reductions have already saved $1.5 billions. He also casts a quizzical eye on elaborate plans for continued foreign spending on a high scale.

Naturally, he has affronted the heads and employes of the affected units and departments, as well as their political backers on Capitol Hill. His cuts have led members of Congress and the National committee to run to President Truman and Chairman Boyle with their complaints.

The politicos have tried to arouse the White House with hints that Mr. Johnson simply seeks to make a record that will support his 1952 hopes. His political ambitions have always been well known. He has been running for President or Vice President in a slow trot for more than a decade.

So far, however, Mr. Truman has indicated that the Johnson policies and management have his full approval.

CAMPAIGN: Farmers on and off Capitol Hill accuse shrewd Secretary Charles F. Brannan of fomenting a campaign to discredit the new 1950 price support program (the Anderson Bill) to win votes for his own two-price system. Mr. Truman has said that he will resubmit this scheme at the next session.

The anti-Brannan suspicion is based on a year-end rash of newspaper and magazine articles, fully illustrated, on the evils and extravagance of the present and prospective formula.

Whereas Agriculture and Commodity Credit spokesmen used to be extremely secretive about their hoards of rotting eggs, potatoes, dried milk, etc., as well as the cost figures, they now give out these details grinningly.

POTATOES: The motive appears to be, in the opinion of many Congressmen, to antagonize consumers still required to pay high retail prices, and to persuade farmers to favor any alternative lest they suffer from the public wrath.

The Brannan propagandists have been especially helpful in revealing that many a potato raiser in Aroostock County, Maine, knocked down as much as $100,000 each on sale of the 1949 crop to the CCC. These producers charge that they were singled out as a guinea pig because of the state's historic Republicanism.

COST: Farm agents have also enlisted in the campaign. In lectures and literature they aim to convince their clients that the Anderson scheme, which becomes effective on New Year's Day, is sure to precipitate a backfire in the cities.

Many farmers begin to agree. But so far the majority seems to believe the Brannan substitute, which permits prices of perishables to fall to an economic level while Uncle Sam subsidizes growers at a higher figure, will prove even more costly. It has been estimated that it may cost from six to ten billions annually in taxes.

Thirty-seven baskets, loaded to the brim with food and candy and fruits, were distributed to poor families of this city Christmas Eve afternoon and night by the Salvation Army. Each of the baskets weighed approximately 60 pounds and contained portions of flour, coffee, meal, sugar, lard, butter, tomatoes, corn, breakfast food, beans, potatoes, meat, milk, celery, cabbage, and fruits.

Delivery of the baskets was made by members of the Salvation Army under the direction of Capt. and Mrs. W. T. Wilson.

With a total of 12,094, Lubbock county automobile registration for 1929 reached a record high total. This aggregate includes licenses for cars, trucks and motorcycles.

Passenger cars led the list with 10,859; trucks totaled 1,158; and motorcycles 77, according to the records of County Tax Collector A. J. Clark.

Up until yesterday, 1930 car registrations had reached 607. Issuance began Dec. 8.

Believe It Or Not -

THREAT OF 'GARRISON STATE'

Loss Of Liberties Is Feared

By PETER EDSON
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Committee for Economic Development has raised a new worry here. It's about the kind of country the United States is going to be for the next generation, assuming that the "cold war" lasts that long.

A new policy statement made by the C.E.D. says in one place that the United States in this coming period may be a "garrison state." Not a "police state" nor a "welfare state" but a "garrison state." What is meant by this is that everything the government does will be done in the name of national defense and security. And in this process individual freedoms and liberties will be allowed to go by the board.

The Committee for Economic Development started worrying about this problem some 18 months ago. C.E.D., it should be remembered is not a government alphabet agency. Its board of trustees is made up of about 150 of the more progressive big business men of the country. People like Marion B. Folsom of Eastman Kodak, Beardsley Ruml of Macy's, Eric Johnson of the movies, Philip D. Reed of General Electric, Fowler McCormick of International Harvester.

Seeks New Plans

Paul Hoffman of Studebaker, now head of the Marshall Plan, and William Benton of Encyclopedia Britannica, recently appointed senator from Connecticut were prominent in founding C.E.D. It steers away from straight National Association of Manufacturers and U. S. Chamber of Commerce lines, and tries to pioneer new ideas.

In tackling this problem of the garrison state, the C.E.D. did not worry about how much it was going to cost, where the money was coming from, whether the government should indulge in deficit financing and an unbalanced budget. That is the conventional approach to this problem. The C.E.D. went after the more fundamental issues of how full employment and national security can be maintained without loss of individual freedom for a long period of time.

FRED LAZARUS, Jr., of Cincinnati, president of Federated Department Stores, was chairman of the C.E.D. subcommittee that wrote the new report on "National Security and Individual Freedom." He points out that living under crisis conditions is going to create an entirely different kind of America for the next generation.

The problems of the war economy may have been more acute and more dangerous. Mr. Lazarus says he does not consider there is any danger of war tomorrow. But getting a balanced program to deal with these conditions without sacrificing individual liberties is what the C.E.D. group went after. It found the problem and the remedies difficult to state. The committee wrote 15 drafts before coming up with what it considered an acceptable report.

The particular dangers which Mr. Lazarus points to as likely to lead to loss of individual liberties during the national security program include: 1. Peacetime selective service. 2. Loyalty investigations for government employes. 3. Government censorship over scientific and technical information. 4. The drying up of information on U. S. government conduct of relations with other countries. All these tend to create fear and hysteria among the people, says the C.E.D. report.

Dangers Are Cited

Three particular dangers which a top-heavy national defense program imposes on individual liberties are listed by C.E.D. 1. The burden of too-high taxes, weakening the incentive of business to produce. 2. The control of too much business activity through government contracts. 3. The imposition of economic controls over business, in the name of security.

The specific recommendations which the C.E.D. group advances to deal with this situation may seem to fall somewhat short of meeting the desired goal. They fall back on the old devices of setting up a new Joint Congressional Committee and of appointing a few more government officials of cabinet rank to protect the people's freedoms for them. In view of Hoover Commission and congressional reorganization efforts to reduce the numbers of committees and officials, these may be moves in the wrong direction.

THE importance of the new C.E.D. policy statement is not, however, in whether any of its recommendations will be adopted. They probably won't be. Very few of the C.E.D. recommendations in its 18 previous policy statements have been adopted, as a matter of record.

The importance of report No. 19 is that it focuses new attention on the fact that political and economic life in the United States of the next generation may be entirely different from what it has been in any past generation. The President and the Congress have a new responsibility in seeing that the constitutional liberties of the people are not destroyed in the mad race for security—national as well as individual—in the second half of the 20th century.

Solons Report American People Want Balanced Budget, Economy

By LEON SHLOSS
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 — Congressmen returning to Washington today for the new Congress brought the same mandate from the folks back home—cut federal spending.

The International News Service canvass of senators and representatives checking in for the second session of the 81st Congress convening Jan. 3 yielded the same answers which have been forthcoming since the survey began:

Efficiency Demanded

'Balance the budget; put the Hoover recommendations for cheaper, more efficient government into effect."

The general trend toward reducing foreign aid expenditures again ran through today's "message from the people" and there was a noticeable opposition to federal aid to education.

Typical American divergence of opinion still maintained on nearly every other public issue, including those contained in the Truman legislative program.

Here are reports by the congressmen from the cross-roads, the hamlets, towns, cities and states of the country — Democrat and Republican alike:

Want Balanced Budget

Sen. Brewster (R-Me): "Maine people want a balanced budget. There is general concern over the whole field of imports, particularly since currency devaluation in Europe, and about the threatened flow of textiles from Japan. Labor groups are getting concerned about increased imports under the reciprocal trade act. The Maine people want to be sure their industries are not ruined by import competition."

Sen. Wiley (R-Wis): "People in my state want efficiency in government, a balanced budget, no tax increases and the Hoover commission recommendations put into effect instead of just being talked about. I feel that most people in my area who have given earnest consideration to the international problems believe that since Europe has become more self-supporting, aid should be cut down, especially since our budget is unbalanced. They also believe the government should get rid of nuisance excise taxes."

Tax Hike Opposed

Rep. Lucas (D-Tex): "The people are generally in favor of the Hoover recommendations. They favor gradual reduction of war-imposed excise taxes. They oppose any rise in taxes. They believe in ECA but would like to reduce the amount. They oppose federal aid to education because of fear of federal control and economy motives. While the people believe in strong labor unions and free collective bargaining, they also believe that the abuses which have grown out of reluctance of the administration to utilize the Taft-Hartley law are injurious to our society."

Rep. Bramblett (R-Calif): "The people are worried about the public debt and the proposed increase in taxes. All the people who know something about the Hoover recommendations are for them. Constituents are worried about ECA. They say that it has a tendency to wreck California agriculture. The people with whom I have talked believe that federal aid to education is a matter for state control."

Hoover Plans Favored

Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich): "Everyone appears to be sold on the Hoover recommendations. My constituents are not for federal aid to education. They are very critical of the foreign aid program. They say the government should pay attention to the needs of the American people. They say that the foreign countries should have recovered by now with the aid we have given them and that if they haven't then it's no use fussing with them any longer."

Rep. Mack (R-Wash): "Spending is the main issue. There is a general feeling that the government better cut off deficit spending. My constituents oppose rise in taxes until the administration shows some inclination to cut out waste. People back the Hoover recommendations. There is rising tide of opposition to ECA. Tariff will be the important issue in 1950. My people want protection against foreign competition. If they favor federal aid to education, they favor a bill with no strings. They are afraid it might cause a drift toward a degree of federal control."

Rep. Cole (R-NY): "My people are interested in the Hoover recommendations and concerned about the high cost of government. They are wrought up over the federal farm subsidy program, object to having surplus products bought up so the price will be forced up."

Errant 'Santa' Is Confined To Jail

An errant "Santa Claus" spent Christmas Day in city jail here.

Police said a man walked into the station about 7:30 p. m. Saturday — Chirstmas Eve—and offered to pay some prisoner's fine.

The man selected by officers to receive the "gift" walked from the station a few minutes later with his benefactor.

A few hours later, three to be exact, one of the men was back. This time it was the generous citizen, booked on a charge of disturbance and facing the possibility of further charges of destruction of property.

Officers said the liberated prisoner was one of the few gentlemen in the house when they broke up a fight at a Ninth street residence and jugged "Santa Claus."

gle bill. The omnibus measure will take months to go through the legislative machinery.

Political fireworks of a congressional election year will give extra spark to issues red-hot in themselves. All members of the House and one-third of the Senators will be up for election again this fall. They are mindful that their votes in the months ahead may decide the kind of a vote they themselves will get next November.

Social Legislation Included

Social legislation and what Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) calls the "hand-out" state will be major controversies in the new session.

The House faces action on federal aid to education, passed by the Senate.

The Senate is to dig into social security revision and expansion, a tedious, time-consuming task. This measure has cleared the House.

Truman To Urge Health Bill

President Truman will urge action on compulsory health insurance but sponsors of this program are skeptical of a decision on it.

Continuation of the draft, Marshall plan aid to Europe and the arms-for-friends program are other fiery issues. Aid to Europe will be continued—the question is, how big a cut will be made in foreign spending.

The atomic program will come in for Senate review when a successor to atomic energy Chairman Lilienthal comes up for confirmation.

The House is to make a major investigation of lobbying. Numerous other probes are in the offing.

The mountain of controversy and work may make it difficult for leaders to meet their July 1 target date for adjournment and send members home early for the political campaigns.

of burns received Friday at her grandmothers home in Archer City. She was burned when she lit a sparkler near the family Christmas tree, which ignited. The flames spread to the child's clothing.

Mrs. Alfred Zunker, 34, and her son Earl, 14, both of San Antonio, were killed in a traffic crash on highway 181 north of Floresville Christmas night. Ten persons were injured, including Mrs. Zunker's husband. He was taken to a Floresville hospital in a critical condition.

Dr. Alfred B. DeBard of Dallas, was found dead in a lake near his home in East Dallas Dec. 24. Police said he had drowned.

Fire Claims seven

The death of 13-year-old Francisca Montelongo in a San Antonio hospital Christmas eve made a total of seven of the same family burned fatally the day before Christmas in San Antonio's worst residential fire in history. The victims also included Francisca's mother, Mrs. Maria Montelongo; two brothers,, and three sisters.

The State Department of Public Safety has predicted that 194 persons will die violently in Texas between 12:01 a.m. Dec. 23 and 11:59 p.m. Jan. 1—80 in traffic; 68 in other accidents, and 46 in homicides and suicides.

Ranch Foreman Is Held In Slaying Of California Woman

SONOMA, Calif., Dec. 25 (U.P.)—A 39-year old ranch foreman was held in Sonoma today after a wild affray in which an attractive mother of two was shot to death and a man critically injured.

Authorities held Carl Schwartz on suspicion of murdering Mrs. James Maggard Dickson, 30, wife of the owner of the ranch on which Schwartz was employed, and of shooting Lyman W. Lacy, 32, of San Francisco, a friend of the Dicksons.

Man In Critical Condition

Lacy was in critical condition at Ross General hospital with a bullet wound in the stomach. Blood plasma was being administered.

Deputy sheriffs captured Schwartz last night after a bullet-punctuated five mile chase at 70 miles an hour.

Deputy Ted Reis said that Schwartz, apparently crazed by drink, went berserk and attacked Lacy as he climbed down from a tractor. Lacy, a wounded veteran of Air Force action in Italy, often visited the ranch on weekends and helped with the work.

Then, Reis reported, Schwartz burst into the rambling ranch home, chased Mrs. Dickson to an upstairs bedroom and shot her through the side. She was dead on arrival at Ross hospital.

Terrorized Group

He terrorized a party of seven friends and relatives in the home for a half hour, authorities said, before racing off in his car.

Deputies quoted Schwartz's wife Virginia as saying that her husband had come home drunk and declared he would "get" Mrs. Dickson "because she has been working me too hard."

Mrs. Dickson, the mother of two small children and expecting a third, was a former Paris correspondent who was currently writing a weekly suburban social column for the San Francisco Examiner.

Her husband, Frederick W. Dickson, jr., was reported to have had frequent arguments with Schwartz over wages and working conditions at the ranch. Dickson, grandson of shipping magnate Captain Robert Dollar, was not at home at the time of the tragedy.

Authorities said Schwartz was too drunk to give a coherent account of what happened. Schwartz, veteran of overseas Army service, lived on the ranch with his wife and two young sons.

Gallagher was across the border tonight helping in the search. He said the U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation was also working on the case.

Charged In Murders

Ochoa, a 38-year-old Laredo customs broker, is charged with the murder of Henry D. Whittenberg, 31, and Cpl. James Lindsay, 30, of Oneida, Tenn., and Fort Worth, here July 31.

Laredo authorities have been trying to get him apprehended and returned from Mexico. He has been reported in Mexico since the two men were found slain.

On Dec. 20 federal judicial police of Mexico reported they couldn't find Ochoa. They said he was being sought.

At the same time the U. S. embassy in Mexico City said the provisional detention of Ochoa had been asked Sept. 2, and that Oct. 3 a request for his extradition was delivered to the Mexican foreign office.

Sought Injunction

The Mexican foreign office said on Dec. 19 that Ochoa had hired a lawyer and asked an injunction of a Mexican court which would have suspended action in the case, temporarily, at least, and eventually might have protected Ochoa against arrest and trial. Judge Javier Aguayo refused the request for the injunction.

Both Whittenberg and Lindsay were shot to death in the same Laredo hotel.

Police Chief David O. Gallagher of Laredo said he believed the motive for the slayings was jealousy.

Ochoa knew Lindsey, but it has not been established that he ever met Whittenberg. The slain men were acquainted and both knew Ochoa's wife, District Attorney James Kazen said.

The sheriff's office said officers made a search of Ochoa's residence here today but did not find him.

Sawyer's Forecast

product, national income, and employment — 1949 was only about two per cent below boomtime 1948's all-time highs.

Slipped Some From 1948

The commerce chief said a slowdown by businessmen in buying goods was the major reason why the economic levels — especially production and employment—slipped some from 1948.

Strong consumer buying and government spending helped offset declining inventory outlays, he said.

Maintenance of consumer or personal incomes at the 1948 level of $212,000,000,000 was "significant in relation to the economy's well-being in 1949," Sawyer's statement said.

Personal Income Higher

"With lower personal tax rates in effect in 1949, plus refunds in 1948 tax payments, disposable personal income (meaning that left after paying taxes) was actually higher than in 1948.)

"As a consequence, consumers were able to save somewhat more than they did in the previous year and at the same time were enabled to maintain the volume of their expenditures on goods and services at virtually the same level as in 1948."

Sawyer said that a drop of less than two per cent in national income to an estimated $222,000,000,000 in 1949 "is accounted for by price declines during the year," hence is no more than a paper loss.

Higher wage rates made 1949 wages and salaries greater than in 1948 despite a "small reduction" in the number employed to a total employment average of 58,300,000 he said.

GEN. LUCAS DIES

Happy Christmas

in the northern plains states.

Even on the west coast it was chilly. In New York it was cold but there was no snow.

From Frankfurt, Germany, news came that Germans were having the happiest Christmas since the war—that even goose, the traditional Yule fare, was surprisingly cheap.

Restaurants Crowded

In Paris restaurants were crowded. Parisians said it was a Christmas equal to prewar times.

Most of Europes tables were laden as they had not been in years and Christmas trees were festooned with gifts.

At Sandringham, England, King George VI urged in his annual yuletide message that Britons devote themselves courageously to the task of economic recovery.

The Archbishop of Cantebury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, broadcasting to the world, called for strengthening of the principle of good will as a defense against Communism.

Italy, so recently in crisis over the Communist issues, appeared swept as never before with religious fervor.

Even in the country's industrial north—often called 'the red north"—there was a religious outpouring.

Europ. enjoyed about the mildest Christmas weather of the century. Except in mountainous regions there was little or no snow.

them drunks and drunk drivers. Los Angeles police reported that in the 24-hour period from Friday midnight to Saturday midnight a new record of 8,650 radio calls were recorded.

The National Safety council has estimated that about 83 persons were killed every 24 hours during the first ten months of this year—about one every 18 minutes. This average includes deaths which occurred long after the accidents which caused them.

The council's estimate is that 435 persons will be killed in traffic mishaps this Christmas during the period from 6 p.m. Friday, to midnight Monday.

Last Christmas holiday 396 accidental deaths were reported—277 in traffic and 119 in fires. That holiday was a two-day affair since Christmas fell on Saturday.

In Newark, N.J., four negroes died early Christmas morning in a fire which swept three houses. Two other persons were hospitalized and 18 families were routed by the flames.

granting of an autograph to a 13-year-old girl.

Bill Garrett of Shawnee, Kas., approached the President early in his walk and asked if he could take a picture of Mr. Truman. The President stopped to permit the Kansan to take the photograph.

Thirteen-year-old Shirley Lee Day of Independence ran up to Mr. Truman waving a notebook after he had entered the gate leading to his home.

"May I have your autograph?" she asked.

The President glanced around him, observed no further autograph seekers, and commented:

"Since you are by yourself I think I can give it to you."

He wrote in her notebook, "Best wishes to Shirley Lee Day. Harry S. Truman."

Early in the afternoon Mr. Truman and Margaret walked across the street for a half-hour visit with three of the President's cousins, the Misses Nellie and Ethel Noland and Mrs. R. T. Ragland.

The cousins gave their visitors a fruit cake and candy. Gifts had been exchanged earlier.

Miss Truman, without listing any specific gifts, let it be known that the nation's first family gets presents pretty much like other people.

"We exchanged the usual gifts—ties, scarfs, gloves and things like that," Dewey Long quoted her.

Long went to the Truman home from Kansas City to take about 100 additional telegrams which had arrived during the night and early morning. He said they consisted mostly of Christmas greetings.

Officers Report

returned from a trip to Littlefield shortly before the shooting and had found Gibson lying on a bed in a back room of the mortuary. With the help of a friend, Lonnie Evans, 30, 2404 East Ave. B, only other witness to the fight, Jamison forced Gibson to leave the building, it was related.

The shooting occurred when Gibson allegedly re-entered the place, a knife in his hand, and started an argument, Jamison said he dashed past Gibson through an anteroom to his office, secured the gun, and fired the shots some time during the ensuing struggle.

One bullet entered Gibson's back puncturing the right lung and the liver. Another passed completely through his right wrist. Evidence of four shots, three holes in the floor near the spot where Gibson fell and one near the center of the anteroom, was found by Deputy Sheriff's F. H. Bolen and Marvin T. Hill who investigated the shooting.

Charges Delayed

District Attorney Lloyd Croslin, who was taking statements from Jamison and Evans late last night, said he would withhold charges pending more definite indication of Gibson's condition.

The day was comparatively quiet at city police headquarters with investigations of drunkenness heading the list of activities there.

About 15 prisoners were ordered released Sunday morning—a surprise Christmas gift of Chief of Police Lewis Kittrell.

Only theft reported during the day was that of a green gabardine coat valued at $60 which was taken from a downtown cafe as its owner, Miss Bernice Wisdom of the Woody apartments was eating.

Gonzilas Retas, 46, a Mexican national, was arrested at Slaton allegedly in possession of a pistol, the sheriff's department announced.

Western's Gabrel, On Honeymoon, May Not Start In Sun Bowl Tilt

EL PASO, Dec. 25 (AP)—Harvey (Pug) Gabrel, the nation's eighth ranking rusher this season, may have a tough time making the starting Texas Western lineup in the Sun Bowl game.

The upground left half hasn't been out for practice for the tilt with the Georgetown university Hoyas Jan. 2. He got married and went on a honeymoon instead.

Coach Jack Curtice said today that Tom Steele and Leland Boyce have been drilling at Gabrel's position. Steele is from Chicago and Boyce from an El Paso high school.

The Western Miners are on a two-day Christmas holiday. They report back for heavy drill Tuesday. The next day, the Washington, D. C., team arrives.

trol of our national legislative body from domination by the present Democrat-Socialist administration."

Observers noted that Gabrielson ignored the "deep South" in naming the policy committee. This is regarded as a move to have the committee draft a strong civil rights program—which naturally would be fought by southern Republican leaders.

Solons May Ignore Group

Meanwhile a number of congressional Republicans refused public comment on Gabrielson's act. Privately, they predicted that GOP leaders on Capitol Hill would ignore Gabrielson's committee and draft their own programs as they did in 1946—when the Republicans won control of both branches of Congress. They lost this control in President Truman's 1948 victory.

One Capitol Hill Republican said:

"We have no interest in anything the committee says. Their recommendations mean nothing. What can they do about it? Even the voters are interested only in what the Republican candidate for Congress says he will do or will not do. That Gabrielson committee will waste its time."

Early in 1946, Sens. Taft, Ohio, Vandenberg, Mich., and Milliken, Colo., led a Senate delegation that met with a House group, headed by Reps. Martin, Mass., Halleck, Ind., and Brown, Ohio, to draft a Republican platform for that year's elections.

They held hearings and interviewed not only every Republican member of Congress but other GOP leaders who intended to contest Democratic congressmen. Their findings were endorsed unanimously by Republican caucuses in both House and Senate.

There is every indication Capitol Hill Republicans will do the same thing this year and ignore the national committee.

tained from two to four new toys especially selected for the child receiving it and generous quantities of fruits, nuts and candies.

Boy Scouts Aid

Boy Scouts loaded the addressed packages into the cars of the volunteer motorists at the distribution center yesterday while extra policemen were assigned to direct the movement of the trafic.

Those who volunteered for the Goodfellow service Christmas Day—and thereby became Goodfellows themselves—delivered the packages to whomever they were addressed in person.

The generous allotment of toys in each of the packages this year was made possible, the Chief Goodfellow said, because of the generous response to the annual financial appeal and the fact that many organizations and individuals sent in several thousand new toys.

All Treated Alike

All of Lubbock's children were treated exactly alike in the preparation of the packages, regardless of race, color or religion.

Some of the cash contributions received Saturday by the Goodfellows included: Ross Ayers, $2; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Denham, $5 Judy and Jan Price, $2; Bigham Gin Supply company, $10; and Anderson and Bigham Sheet Metal works, $10.

The contributions increased the total donations for the fund to $3,937.02 — making this the 15th straight year that Goodfellow funds have been over subscribed. The goal this year was $3,000.

All of Lubbock's churches saw capacity crowds for the special services Christmas Day. Many of the persons attending the church services were out-of-towners visiting relatives and friends in the city for the holidays. Midnight services were held at St. Paul's Episcopal church and St. Elizabeth's Catholic church.

Salvation Army officials and workers will restup today after weeks of pre-Christmas toil for the underprivileged.

British King Voices 'Grateful' Thanks For American Aid

SANDRINGHAM, England, Dec. 25 (INS) —King George VI voiced "grateful thanks" for American aid today but warned Britons they still have "a long way to go" to make the nation self-supporting.

In his annual Christmas Day message to Britons throughout the world the king called for the setting aside of personal gains in the "dangerous times" that still lie ahead.

However, he declared:

"None of us can be satisfied until we are standing upright and supporting our own weight."

He stressed that the "tough business" of recovery will bring to Britons an opportunity of showing their "great qualities of human nature."

Expresses Gratitude

In paying tribute to the United States for helping his country over its postwar economic hurdles, the monarch declared:

"We are deeply grateful to our good friends in the United States fo rthe imagination and sympathy with which they first realized our problems and then set to work to help us over them.

"Without this understanding and help we could not have made the progress toward recovery already achieved."

The king spoke from Sandringham house where the royal family is spending the Christmas holiday.

Speaks From Study

The king, seated alone at his desk in his panelled study, told Britons:

"We must put the good of the country first at all times.

"It will not always be easy. For under stresses, we must expect we may be inclined to think first of our own advantage or convenience or to put the blame on other shoulders than our own...

"A feeling of that sort is unworthy of our common need and the obligation of service rests on every individual.

"The whole worl dis watching how we bear ourselves in this test of character."

The king also commented on his recovery from a blood circulation ailment of the leg. He declared:

"I am thankful to say I am now able to undertake my public duties."

Lubbock Baby Found Smothered To Death

Raymon Tackett, one and one-half months old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Tackett of 715 Fifteenth, was found smothered to death shortly after 7 o'clock Christmas morning in the bed where he slept with his parents and a two-year-old brother.

Justice of the Peace C. E. Lynn indicated he would return a verdict of death by accidental smothering in the case.

Tackett, a 25-year-old roofing company employe who recently moved here with his family from Roswell, N. M., told officials the infant had been placed between his parents when they went to bed. The other child slept at the foot of the bed, only sleeping accommodations in the one-room dwelling.

The body of the infant, born Nov. 8, was found in the center of the bed. Chief Deputy Sheriff George Eubanks aided Lynn at the inquest.

Sanders Funeral home here, in charge of burial, said definite funeral arrangements had not been completed.

of the missions to go there. Officials said today, however, this was due to a "misunderstanding" and that in all cases the United States will follow the wishes of the other government.

Besides Army, Navy and Air Force officers the missions will include State department and American Marshall plan experts.

Upkeep of a mission must be paid for by the government where it is stationed under terms of military agreements now being negotiated by the State department. State deparment officials think the expense will be "modest."

The State department has, however, turned down suggestions by some countries that Marshall plan "counterpart funds" be used for this. These are funds built up in their own currency by aided countries to match U. S. economic aid.

At the Hollywood receiving hospital, to which he was first taken, it was stated that his present illness is just another in a long series of illnesses. His condition is not critical.

There wasn't much doing last week for that matter. East Texas State played in a tournament at Topeka, Kans., and lost both its games—56-44 to Washburn annd 57-48 to Maryville, Mo., teachers.

Southwest Texas State took a 45-39 drubbing from North Texas State of the Gulf Coast conference.

However, doctors advised him to remain in the hospital although he is no longer confined to bed. Heffelfinger is expected to be released Wednesday.

Administration Is Urged Not To Force FEPC Issue On Congress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25. (AP)—A southern congressman who favors a compromise on the President's civil rights program urged the administration today not to force the FEPC issue.

"I learned with regret," said Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark), "that the administration has scheduled the FEPC bill for immediate consideration by the Congress and has determined upon an all-out fight for it."

Compromise Proposed

Hays is author of the so-called Arkansas plan. This proposes a compromise on the principal civil rights proposals, including the bill for a Fair Employment Practices commission which is designed to prevent racial or religious discrimination in hiring.

Instead of a commission with authority to enforce rules relating to hiring and firing of workers, Hays has proposed one to advise and counsel with employers and employes.

"The inclusion of coercive and punitive provisions advocated by the administration would if carried out impair and even destroy in some industries the basic freedoms of both management and labor unions," Hays said in a statement.

Grievances Admitted

He said he concedes that the grievances and aspirations of the racial and religious minorities are "very real".

"This issue is fundamental and it must not be evaded either for political reasons or through a desire to avoid offense to those pressing for this legislation," he said.

Hays added that while it is easy for the administration to make its proposals, it is "very difficult for Congress to do a good job in the atmosphere which the agitation has created."

"Save water," Sammy has been singing out of late, along with his flashes on the temperature at the moment and tomorrow's weather (which he gets from the Coca-Cola sign at Columbus circle). The first New York newspaper to recognize Sammy Cascavilla and his wondrous gift for spreading Christmas throughout the year was the negro paper, the Amsterdam News.

His fame has spread since then until today tens of thousands of New Yorkers know that he is what we all wish we could be— a good man; a happy man; a generous man not aware of his generosity.

"You must have a million dollars, to act like you do," a startled citizen said to him not long ago.

"Twenty-nine cents," Sammy answered. "But it's wonderful. God has been so good to me, in this wonderful, wonderful world."

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 25. (INS)—Steps to ease the rigors of winter for thousands of Arab refugees scattered in camps over Palestine and neighboring countries were announced tonight by Dr. Pierre Descoeudres of the United Nations international childrens emergency fund.

Dr. Descoeudres, chief of the UNICEF mission in the Middle East, said in a report that additional soup kitchens and milk centers have been opened in the refugee camps and that 517,440 children and mothers are receiving UNICEF food supplies.

He declared that the food supplies furnish a daily ration of 800 calories for children from one to 15 years, pregnant women and nursing mothers—about half their total diet.

In addition, Dr. Descoeudres said some of the refugee camps are being moved to more favorable locations and that worn-out tents used by the refugees are being replaced by new ones.

Cicero Smith Lumber Co. Has Everything In Building Line

Everything in the building line is available at Cicero Smith Lumber Co., 1020 Seventh street, here in Lubbock.

Cicero Smith can supply you with everything from the cement with which to build the foundation of your home or business building on up to the last coat of gleaming paint which adds the final touch.

So, whether you're just remodeling your present home or business building, or "starting from scratch" and constructing a new place entirely, you can't go wrong by getting all your materials from Cicero Smith Lumber Co.

The local lumber company has complete and practical building plans and blueprints available for its customers, and will be glad to make free estimates for them.

Cicero Smith Lumber Co. also can furnish a prospective home builder with names of reliable, experienced contractors.

Then, with preliminary planning out of the way, the lumber company can provide the home builder with complete stocks of the finest obtainable kinds of lumber, paints, plumbing supplies, builders hardware, shingles, doors, cement, plaster — in short, just about anything you might need in building.

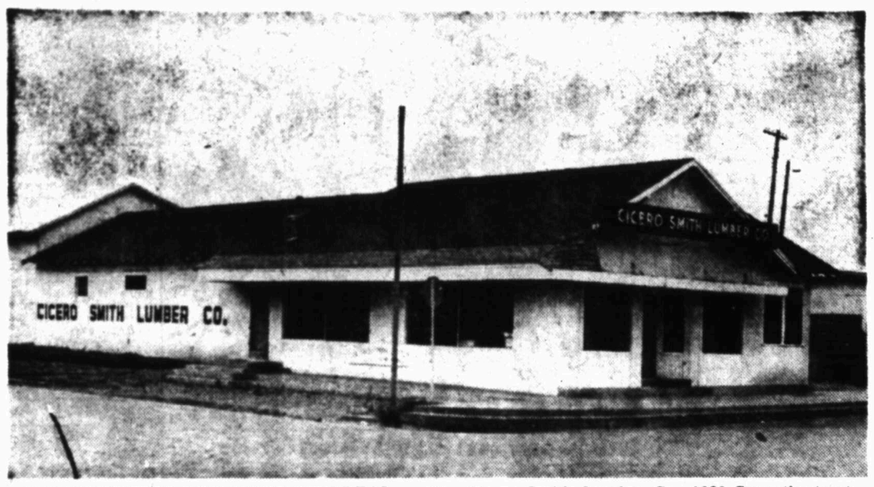

Once Lubbockites and residents of the South Plains area have traded with Cicero Smith Lumber Co., they nearly always come back again for building materials they need afterwards.

It's not just luck on the part of Cicero Smith Lumber Co. that old customers keep coming back, but the result of a policy of "square dealing" and integrity in supplying the best available materials at the most reasonable prices.

This policy has been followed by the lumber company since it was established in Lubbock over 30 years ago.

The company has consistently followed the practice of adding new lines of materials and merchandise as soon as they are proved satisfactory and worth the purchase price, says Carl Owens, manager of the Lubbock branch of the company.

The company will continue this policy in order to bring the best of the new lines — as well as the old, well-established lines — of building supplies to its customers, Mr. Owens added.

HEADQUARTERS FOR HOME BUILDERS — The Cicero Smith Lumber Co., 1020 Seventh street, is one of the oldest and most reliable lumber firms in Lubbock. The company offers a complete stock of materials needed for any construction job—whether large or small — including lumber, paints, builders hardware, plumbing fixtures and supplies, shingles, doors and cement and plaster. Cicero Smith Lumber Co., follows a policy of adding new lines of building supplies and materials from time to time as they are proved satisfactory and worth the money. For its customers, the company has available building plans and blueprints. Estimates are gladly given by the firm. Shown in the above picture is a portion of the company's yards at the corner of Seventh and Ave. J. Offices and showrooms are housed in the building shown in foreground.

Holsum Bread Is Fresh, Nutritious, And Good Tasting

Lubbock is a Holsum town.

You see that message on signboards on all the main highways and thoroughfares leading into the city. And it means just what it says.

More and more Lubbockites are switching to Holsum bread, for they have found that Holsum is always fresh, nutritious, and good tasting.

They know, too, that "unseen qualities" in each and every loaf makes Holsum a better buy for their money. For one thing, only the finest ingredients are used, including highest-quality flour and milk. And Holsum bread is prepared and baked under the most scientific and sanitary conditions at the modern new Holsum plant at 202 East Broadway.

Next time you're grocery shopping, reach for a loaf of Holsum in the familiar red, white, and green wrapper.

Then compare it with the brand of bread you now are using for freshness, fine texture, and good taste.

Chances are you'll be a Holsum fan from that time on.

Spain's Provinces of Valencia and Castellon recently had torrential rains, running as high as six inches in a few hours.

VERNON'S FOR GOOD FOOD

The place to go when you want good food is Vernon's Drive Inn, located at 709 Fourth.

At Vernon's, you're assured of food that not only tastes good, but is prepared from the best ingredients under the most sanitary conditions.

So drop by Vernon's next time you want a mid-afternoon sandwich or an after-theater snack. It's located one block east of Ave. H on the way to Mackenzie park.

See Alderson Cadillac For Good Used Cars

In the market for a good used car, with a reasonable price tag on it?

If you are, go by Alderson Cadillac Co., 814 Ave. H, and inspect the stock of clean reconditioned used automobiles on display there.

Alderson's staff of trained automobile mechanics and body men has reconditioned each car so that it will give many a future mile of trouble-free transportation.

There's almost certain to be a good used car at Alderson Cadillac within your price range. Extended payments can be arranged so that you can pay for your car out of current income as you drive it.

NATIONALISTS INTERNED

HANOI, Indochina, Dec. 25. (AP) —A well informed source said today 8,00 Chinese Nationalist soldiers crossed into Indo-China Christmas Eve and will be sent to an internment camp. The informant said the force crossed in the Langson-Caobang sector, about 90 miles northeast of Hanoi and was disarmed without incident.

Expert Heating Work Offered By Stanley-Newton

It's a well-known fact that the coldest weather of a West Texas winter quite often comes in January and February.

Mr. Businessman or Homeowner, that's your cue to have your heating system checked NOW before the "blue northers" hit.

And who could be more qualified to do the job than the skilled workmen at Stanley-Newton Plumbing Co.

They are experienced in making expert repairs on most well-known heating systems.

On the other hand, it might pay you to have new heating equipment installed if your present heating system is outmoded or incapable of doing a thorough heating job.

There again, Stanley-Newton Plumbing Co. is your best bet. For the firm offers both sales and service for precision-engineered Chrysler Airtemp heating systems, and for Comfort air conditioning and heating equipment.

Stanley-Newton Plumbing Co. is located at 904 Ave. H. The company telephone number is 4504.

Soviets Give Major Buildup To Red Leader Of Outer Mongolia

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

An odd thing has happened along with the rise of Mao Tze-Tung as the No. 1 Communist power in Asia.

This is the build-up the Russians have given a Mongol named Marshal Choi Bol San. For a quarter of a century he has run the Soviet satellite republic of Outer Mongolia to the apparent satisfaction of Moscow. Only in recent years — when Mao Tze-Tung was growing powerful in China — have the Russians and their propaganda machine found Choi worthy of much comment. It' an odd thing, but the more powerful Mao Tze-Tung looked, the more the Russians wrote and talked about Choi Bol-San.

Build-up Goes On

The build-up is still going on, and Choi Bol-San got to Moscow recently—more than a month ahead of Mao Tze-Tung.

Not much is known in this country about Choi Bol-San. It appears that he has run Outer Mongolia since it split off from China in 1924 and declared itself an autonomous republic. It enjoyed de facto protection from Moscow.

Probably because China still laid claim to all Mongolia at that time, Russia said little about Outer Mongolia and less about Choi Bol-San for a good many years.

He got some publicity in Moscow in 1939 when the Japanese tried to invade Outer Mongolia. The Russian story was that Choi's hardriding Mongol cavalry repelled the invaders. Correspondents with the Japanese said the Japanese encountered only Russian soldiers, and very few Mongolians.

In 1945, when the Russians took over Manchuria for a time, they again made a big fuss over the exploits of Choi's cavalry, who were supposed to have liberated part of Inner Mongolia from the Japanese. The buildup has grown since then, and rose to a climax with Choi's visit to Moscow last fall. He appears to have had the Kremlin's red carpet rolled out for him.

Orientals In Red's Eyes

No "native" leader of an autonomous Soviet republic has had such a fuss made over him in Moscow, and it must be remembered also that Outer Mongolia is not even supposed to be part of the Soviet Union. The obvious supposition is that, as Moscow's rulers saw Mao Tze-Tung's visit approaching, they felt a need to have another oriental Communist leader in the public eye.

Just why is not clear, but three possible reasons suggest themselves. Behind them are the geopolitical facts—Mongolia is a huge buffer area between China and Russia, backward and empty. Choi-Bol-San is well known to Moscow through a quarter-century of "reliable" performance. Mao Tze-Tung is a relative newcomer who has 450,000,000 restless people more or less behind him.

t may be that the Russians, who see their Communist empire spreading through Asia to probably unmanageable proportions, are trying to let local boys like Choi Bel-San run their own shows and are playing him up accordingly.

Chinese Leader In Doubt

A second probability may be more likely. This is the idea that the Russians are not yet sure of Mao Tze-Tung, who in the end is answerable to 450,000,000 rather unmanagable Chinese. By treating th Mongol Choi Bol-San as a big shot they are letting Mao know that he is not the only oriental string to the Soviet bow. This idea comes into clearer focus when we look into the files and find that Mao has been promoting his own Mongolian show since 1947, and in particular when we find that he did not announce it until 1949. His "Inner Mongolian autonomous government" might well be Chinese rival to Russia's protege Outer Mongolia under Cho-Bol-San.

The Inner Mongolian state has its capital at Ulanhot (Wangyehmiao) in Western Manchuria, but its boss is a Mongol with the Chinese name of Yun Tze. He happens to be a Suiyuan Mongol (from the traditionally Chinese part of Mongolia) who has worked with the Chinese Reds from the beginning, but not with either Outer Mongolia or the Russians.

Still more likely is a third possibility, which is simply that the Russians are being cautious. They know Choi Bol-San well and they don't know Mao Tze-Tung very well. In their minds all Asia is at stake. In fact they may be of more than one mind about the best way to nail Asia down for Communism. They can't afford to overlook Mao Tze-Tung, and they can't afford to forget that he might some day let them down.

Choi Bol-San may seem to them to be a safe Oriental Communist leader to have about while they talk to Mao and find out what Mao really wants.

German Scientist Claims Reds Have New 'Storm Bomb'

BERLIN, Dec. 25 (INS)—A German scientist was quoted today as saying Russia has found methods to produce super-tornadoes more powerful and destructive than atomic weapons.

The Christmas eve edition of the British licensed magazine "Kristall" identified the scientist as "Professor Horst Tellman" and said he was "an outstanding Nazi rocket and atom expert."

Warned Western Allies

Tellman, it said, was captured by the Russians during 1943 and participated in all postwar Soviet weapons research and helped the Russians develop their atom bomb.

In addition, the magazine said, Tellman presented western authorities with a secret report detailing methods with which the Soviet authorities can produce artificial storms complete with high winds, sub-zero temperatures and small sized glaciers.

Bombs Create Storms

His report, "Kirstall" added, stated that with 40 five hundred pound bombs dropped into the sea the Russians produced heavy fog, which rapidly spread and dropped the temperature to 50 degrees below zero.

He also is said to have told officials that another Russian experiment, conducted in the Caucusus mountains produced a combination of artificial thunderstorm and hurricane.

The magazine concluded:

"There is no known protection against such a storm. Every person and animal would perish immediately. No one was able even to approach the area the entire day after the test."

Longer Range For Jet Bombers Seen

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25. (AP)—The Air Force predicted today that the range of its 600-mile-an-hour Boeing B-47 jet bomber will be increased shortly.

It said the increase would be the second indicated since the plane zipped 2,289 miles across the United States at an average ground speed of 607 miles an hour last February.

Air Force officials told a reporter that an experimental B-47 is being equipped with jet engines more economical of fuel than either the engines used in that flight or more powerful ones adopted subsequently.

Although the B-47 stratojet flew 2,289 miles last February, the Air Force placed its combat range at that time only at "more than 800 miles." That meant it could take a bomb load to a target more than 800 miles away, flying at combat altitudes, and return with a small fuel reserve.

The experimental B-47 that made the long flight in three hours and 46 minutes was equipped with six General Electric J-35 jet engines each of which developed about 4,000 pounds of thrust.

Last October 8, a B-47 was flight tested with General Electric J-47 jet engines that the Air Force said developed more than 5,200 pounds of thrust each.

The Air Force officials said today that the J-47 engines gave the bomber more speed and are expected to increase its combat radius to "more than 1,00 miles." That accounts for the first expected increase in range.

Oak is stronger than ash. The breaking point of the former is 250 pounds, that of ash 175 pounds.

FRANCO MAY AUTHORIZE MOVE

Sudden Switch Of Spain From Monarchy To Republic Possible

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The possibility that Generalissimo Francisco Franco may put an end to Spain's thousand-year-old monarchy during the coming year and establish a republic in its stead is reported in the following authoritative dispatch from H. Edward Knoblaugh, International News Service correspondent in Madrid.

Knoblaugh, a veteran of service in the Spanish capital that dates back 20 years, is one of the best informed correspondents in the city.)

By EDWARD KNOBLAUGH
INS Staff Correspondent

MADRID, Dec. 25.—Spain may switch from monarchy to republic during the coming year.

This writer has learned on best possible authority that Generalissimo Franco is now giving serious study to a project which if placed into effect would be one of 1950's major international sensations.

Probable Provisions Given

Taking the form of a law decree calculated to confound critics of the Franco regime and bring Spain back into the concert of nations, the project is understood to call for:

1. Free general elections under which Spaniards would select a president, probably for a period of from five to 10 years.

2. Revision of the constitution to enable establishment of a bicameral system to replace the one-chamber Cortes form of Parliament which has prevailed in Spain since long before Franco's time.

3. Reform of the vertical labor syndicates which have proven so unpopular among the working classes in Spain.

4. Unshackling of the Spanish press, which during the decade since the Spanish civil war has been subject to strict censorship.

5. Amnesty for all Spain's political prisoners except those convicted of blood crimes.

Tangible Evidence Lacking

It must be admitted that as yet there are but few shreds of tangible evidence upon which to predicate such a sweeping change in Spain's governmental structure.

Generalissimo Franco, however, is known to have cancelled all projected trips, including one to the Canary islands to devote full time to a matter reported to be of transcendental importance.

Following his custom in reaching all vital decisions, the Spanish caudillo has so far as is known taken no one into his confidence.

Those with long experience in following the mysterious pattern of Spanish politics have learned, however, to watch for little signs. These frequently come to have tremendous significance.

Need For Change Felt

Highly placed International News Service sources have noted a number of signs which indicate that Franco, now completing 10 years of rule, has resolved that it is time for decisive action if Spain is to be rid of its irking isolation and secure the foreign economic aid which it must have to survive during the coming year.

Expert foreign observers with whom this writer has consulted have agreed that a change-over from monarchy to republic, as reported by the sign-watchers, would not be an illogical move on Franco's part in view of recent developments.

Some of them believe the reported plan makes so much sense they have advised their governments to be prepared for such an announcement.

Line Of Reasoning Given

Here is the line of reasoning followed by those who believe Spain may be on the road to a completely new era of republicanism:

Franco and his ministers have evinced growing pessimism over the possibility of getting United States recognition and/or aid unless democratic reforms are instituted or there should be a definite threat of a third world war.

Since the menace of fresh international conflict seems to have become less imminent in recent months, the Francoites are believed to be convinced that they can no longer defy international pressure for governmental change.

Decision to institute what is termed in Madrid a "presidential type" of government would not only create a most favorable atmosphere abroad but would be sure to prove tremendously popular at home.

Franco Retreat Unlikely

Lastly is the fact that such a move would not necessarily mean Franco's stepping down from power.

From this vantage point it does not seem that any other presidential candidate would have the odds so much in his favor as would Franco himself, even though for appearances sake he would withhold from entering the race until "drafted."

It is a fact realized by virtually every observer that despite Franco's unpopularity in many sectors, he undoubtedly could poll a majority and perhaps even a plurality vote.

Strong Support Certain

Not only could he count on the support of the military, the church and a substantial portion of the falange, but also on large numbers of the masses who mortally fear untried leadership might produce another civil war.

If a republic headed by Franco should come to Spain, it would in all probability be patterned along United States lines rather than the types which existed here between 1931 and 1936.

Governments under the Spanish republic were subject to a vote of censure by the Cortes, and such a vote meant ouster. Franco could be expected to provide against such interruptions in administration as are being experienced now in Italy and France.

Free Hand Probably Desired

Nor would Franco be likely to reinstate the old republican provision whereby he would have to submit his cabinet selections to the approval of the Cortes. If the Generalissimo establishes a republic, he would undoubtedly insist that the president have a free hand to pick his ministers.

Institution of a bicameral system would give a much more democratic flavor to Spanish legislative procedure. The present single chamber Cortes, many of whose members are appointive, is regarded by critics as more or less a rubber stamp.

There remain unanswered many questions related to such sensational alterations of government structure as Franco is supposed to be studying at this moment.

Future Parties Uncertain

For instance, at this time the Falange is Spain's only legal party. Would the Generalissimo permit other political groups to organize? If he would not, general elections would be a farce. If he did consent to free campaigning, which parties would he allow. Would he declare the Communist party illegal?

Again, what form of labor organizations would take the place of Spain's vertical syndicates? Would Franco outlaw strikes?

Would he institute habeas corpus? Would he grant complete freedom of worship?

These and dozens of other puzzlers can be answered only by Franco himself.

Czech Refugees Are Banished

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 25. (AP)—Czechoslovaks who fled this country after it came under Red domination have been banished from Czechoslovakia as traitors, the Communist newspaper Rude Pravo said in a Christmas Day article today.

Since the Communists took over the government in February, 1948, thousands of Czechoslovaks have left their homeland by risky and illegal border crossings, and sought haven in Austria and Western Germany.

Rude Pravo also echoed a warning, issued last night by Premier Antonin Zapatocky, that any who oppose this government's program will be treated as traitors.

Paper Proclaims Act

The newspaper said:

"Christmas in this country is traditionally a family holiday.

"These are holidays of good will. But on Christmas we must warn again that it is our duty to fight against all disturbers and imperialist warmongers who should like to see the world at war again.

"The reactionary exiles have been expelled from our great national family. They are now helping to incite for war against our republic. Their destiny is not to be envied. They are idlers who have never worked in their lives and paid for their treacherous espionage activities.

"Without a country, these parasites depend on the mercy of their imperialist bosses. Their hope is to return and be once again landowners and manufacturers. But this hope will not be realized. They should not be misled. Our peaceful socialist building and the good will of our people shall not be disturbed from inside or outside of our country."

Society, However, Frowns On The Ability

Prof Says Man's Sense Of Smell Equals That Of Dog

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 25 (UP)—You can smell who's coming, just like your dog does, a scientist said today.

Dr. Nowell Jones said a man's nose is as sharp as most animals and good enough to tell people apart.

"Many blind people rely heavily on smells to recognize others," he said. This ability is frowned on by society, he added.

Jones, a UCLA psychology professor conducting a study of smell, said only the perfume industry realizes what great smellers people have.

Perfume Stimulates

"Adertisements about perfume making a woman irresistible are the straight dope," he said. "Many of them—particularly the ones based on musk—are literally sexually stimulating."

The most likely theory, he said, is that the smell sets up an electrical charge on the surface of the olfactory cells in the brain. Nobody knows exactly, however, what makes things smell and what effects the smell has, he said.

One reason a dog makes better use of his nose than a man is that "it's easier for him to sniff along the ground.

Odors Are Heavy

"Odors are heavy and tend to settle downward," Jones explained, "and you get a stronger smell when you sniff because that creates eddies over the olfactory nerves."

The nose has almost nothing to do with smelling, he added. It just conducts odors to the nerves in the brain.

And for some unknown reason, he concluded, some people have smell-blindness.

LEBARON MAY PLAY

PALO ALTO, Calif., Dec. 25. (AP)—Eddie LeBaron, College of the Pacific football star, may get to play in the East-West Shrine benefit game next Saturday after all. LeBaron was admitted to the hospital here yesterday for treatment of a concussion, but x-ray examination showed no sign of a skull fracture.

Los Nortenos, a restaurant in Mexico City, had a $115,000 fire when an attempt to rid the eatery of rats by using a gas truck failed—because the pilot light of the gas stove had been left on.

Los Angeles Has Drunkenest Day

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 25. (INS)—A brilliant sun and balmy breezes provided the background for a boisterous weekend as southern California roared through its drunkenest Christmas day in history.

Nearly 1,000 arrests have been made by harried police officers in Los Angeles county since Friday afternoon and there's still another full day of the holiday ahead.

Death Toll Held Down

Strict enforcement of traffic laws has held the death toll to nine, but 188 accidents resulting in injuries to 124 persons were recorded.

Drunks tanks at city and county jails were filled to overflowing despite the fact that nearly half of the arrestees posted bail and went home to sober up.

One Arrest In Hollywood

Usually party-going Hollywood was exceptionally well behaved. Only one arrest was reported in the film capital. Reason for the modified rejoicing was found in a general ban on office parties at movie factories, radio and television stations.

Actress Jean Wallace Tone, ex-wife of actor Franchot Tone was booked on a charge of drunkeness after her car rammed a parked auto. Police said she was scantly clad in undergarments, a red coat and slippers.

Child Is Killed

One of the most tragic accidents reported took the life of a six-month's-old child. She was Yolanda Montelongo, whose father, Henry, 25, was driving a car that collided with an automobile erratically piloted by Ysidro L. Ayala, 26. Police arrested Ayala on suspicion of manslaughter. They said he was drunk and driving on the wrong side of the road.

The girl's mother, critically injured in the crash, is in general hospital.

Officers Kept On Duty

Los Angeles County Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz said one of the worst driving records in county history had been established. He ordered all sheriff's deputies to remain on duty, without leave or vacation, until Jan. 3.

Police were hoping the death toll would be kept below the "bloody Christmas" weekend of 1946 when 26 persons died from traffic accidents.

American Legion Asks Toys To Send European Children

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25. (AP)—The American Legion appealed to the children of America today to dip into their own stockings tomorrow for toys to send European children whom Santa overlooked.

George N. Craig of Brazil, Ind., said there are millions of empty hearts and unfilled stockings in foreign lands.

He made these suggestions for contributors to the "tide of toys" which the Legion is sponsoring.

"1. Select toys which are study enough to stand an overseas journey.

"2. Write a personal note of greeting giving your full name and address, and attach it securely to the toy.

"3. Contact the nearest American Legion post of Legion auxiliary unit to find out where toys are being received locally.

"4. Do not give electrically-powered toys or war toys of any type."

The project will continue through January 7. The Legion's 17,300 posts have been instructed to ship the toys prepaid to a Philadelphia loading point. Overseas distribution will be handled largely by the CARE organization, which Legion headquarters said has facilities in all ECA countries.

Commander Craig said that adults may send cash for the purchase of toys if they wish. He added that such cash contributions should be mailed to "Tots-American Legion, care Postmaster, Philadelphia, Pa.

Two Observers Begin Peace Talks

African Tribe Asks UN Aid To Prevent Jungle Warfare

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 25 (INS)—A native tribe deep in equatorial Africa has appealed to the United Nations for aid against a would-be aggressor—a neighboring tribe.

While most of the world feasted in the holiday spirit, masses of petitions from the Bugufi tribe in British-mandated Tanganyika piled up at UN in protest against the Mwambutsa of Belgian-mandated Urundi and his alleged imperialistic ambitions.

Territorial Claims Made

The Mwambutsa rules a tribe in Urundi, bordering on the Bugufi's territory in Tanganyika. The powerful chieftain, it seems, desires to incorporate the Bugufi area into his own on the ground that the territory was wrested from him by Britain in the drawing of boundaries after World War 1. Both areas formerly belonged to Germany.

The people of Bugufi have united against any seizure of their lands by a foreign aggressor and have told the Mwambutsa off in clear tribal terms. They want no part of him, claiming they are satisfied with their present ruler, Mwami Balamba.

The petitions of the Bugufis state that the Mwambutsa never ruled their territory and that supporters of his claims among the Bugufis are traitors in the Urundi chieftain's pay.

One petition from an irate Bugufi, who signed himself S. D. Kanerabugle, stated:

"The people of this country are very angry to hear Mwambutsa claiming Bugufi as his country. Were it not for the great respect and honor we have for the United Nations, as well as Great Britain, we would have declared war on Mwambutsa and his people."

Fearing a war on its hands, the UN has dispatched two observers to the territory to try to patch things up between the tribal peoples. The observers, Sir Allen Burns of Britain and Pierre Ryckmans, of Belgium, succeeded in cooling native tempers and forestalling a jungle war.

2,323 Polio Cases For Texas Sets New Record During 1949

By LLOYD LARRABEE
United Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Dec. —Polio struck Texas with its hardest blow in history during 1949 in one of the worst outbreaks of the disease in the nation.

Health officials, as the new year approached, urged cities to take preventive steps in the hope that 1950 will see a sharp drop in the disease.

Thus far this year, 2,323 cases have been recorded, setting an all-time record for Texas and surpassing by far the previous mark of 1,765 charged up to 1948.

1950 Prophesy Impossible

Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, said it was impossible to predict what next year would bring.

"We can predict the incidence of some of the communicable diseases with a reasonable amount of accuracy," he said, "but there is no established trend in the occurrence of poliomyelitis so that we cannot prophesy what to expect for 1950."

However, he added, "that does not mean that we should wait and see before we do anything about it."

Cox stressed "basic sanitation" as the best means of reducing the spread of the disease.

Flies Are Carriers

"The polio virus," he said, "has been found in sewage and we know that flies are carriers. It is entirely possible that other insects may also carry the virus. Therefore every effort should be made to eliminate unsanitary conditions which may be a source of the virus and the time to clean up is before contagion starts."

Polio touched 207 of Texas' 254 counties during 1949.

The worst hit was Tom Green county, where an epidemic at San Angelo which shut down movie houses, swimming pools, churches and other public meeting places in June led to a year-long polio total of 318 cases.

Polio funds, nurses and physical therapists were sent to the West Texas city of 43,000 in mid-summer during the peak of the epidemic.

Summer Toll Highest

Four other counties reported more than 100 cases each during the year. Tarrant county listed 207, Harris 194, Bexar 189 and Dallas 128.

The year opened with a steady pace as far as polio was concerned.

By May 12, when 178 cases had been recorded for the year, 1949 was already 43 cases over the same period last year.

The hot summer months of June, July and August skyrocketed the toll, and during the most critical 10-week period, eight weeks were in the more-than-100 cases bracket.

An all-time peak total of 121 cases over a week's time was registered during the week which ended July 9, and tied on Aug. 6.

Spraying Campaigns Urged

State health officials urged cities to undertake "clean-up" and spraying campaigns, but the disease continued to spread, and in mid-September 1949 was marked up as a record year when the number of cases reached 1,801.

While urging cities to conduct spraying campaigns against polio, Cox said at the height of the epidemic that unplanned spraying programs were like using "toilet water to overcome B.O."

"Why spray a garbage heap," he asked, "that not only invites but actually breeds flies when it should have been removed. Why spray the city dump, when it really should have been covered?"

The answer, Cox told Texans, was in a "general clean-up program carried out during the entire year."

But polio continued to pose a threat to citizens of Texas into November. At late as Nov. 5, the weekly toll was 52 cases, and the disease was still invading new areas despite cooler weather.

As the year ended, polio slacked off, with 16 cases being reported last week over the state.

However, for 1950, health officials were cautious and hoped that the unheeded advice of 1949 would pay off in checking the dread disease.

Cold Weather Hinders Runoff Into New York City Reservoirs

NEW YORK, Dec. 25. (INS)—Edward J. Clark, New York water department engineer, said tonight that dropping temperatures have lessened the city's chances to benefit from Friday's rain.

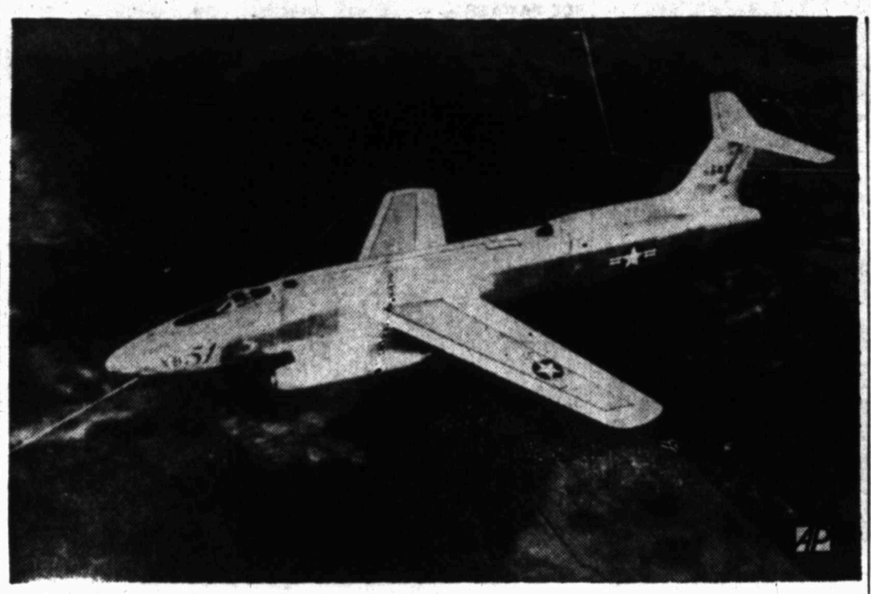

Freezing temperatures in the watershed area slowed normal runoffs from the rain, Clark said, and "only a cupful of water" reached the drouth-depleted reservoirs.

However, the overall storage showed a slight gain today as 163,000,000 gallons of water entered the reservoirs. Clark said that city officials had hoped Saturday's comparatively light water consumption would combine to substantially swell the water supply.

U. S. Is Expected To Hold 'Weather Edge'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25. (INS)—The nation's top weather forecaster predicted tonight that American troops in any future war may have an advantage because of superior weather knowledge.

The weather man indicated that this superior knowledge would result from the placement of U. S. weather stations in almost all parts of the world.

He added, however, that any edge which might be attained "would depend very much upon the theatre of war."

In an interview with the Gannett News Service, U. S. Weather bureau chief, Dr. Francis W. Reichelderfer declared:

"In past wars in Western Europe, the United States forces have had very much the advantage because they have had what strategists call the weather gauge.

"They have been on the side from which the weather usually comes. That is, the west. Therefore, they have known it, and have taken advantage of it in their maneuvers."

Reichelderfer was skeptical about the success of artificial rain efforts on a large scale. He declared:

"We can't produce large quantities of rain unless large quantities of moisture are in the air. When severe drouths occur, there is not enough moisture in the air to produce rain, even if you could squeeze all the moisture out of the air.

"I don't see at the present time how it is practical to do away with drouths on large scale effects."

Asked about weather prospects for 1950, the weather man grew cagey but finally admitted that he sees no indication of "anything unusual."

HONG KONG, Dec. 25. (AP)—A new restriction on shipping in China waters was reported tonight.
