Cotton Crop Amounts to 20,395 Bales

Final ginning figures for the 1969 Collingsworth County cotton crop have been set at 20,395 bales, according to figures released by the United States Department of Commerce.

This is 8,000 bales under the 1968 crop, which was given as 28,427, according to the department figures.

Percentage-wise, Collingsworth's crop results were above those of some adjoining counties. Hall, one of the major cotton counties of the southeast Panhandle, ginned 32,985 bales in the 1969 season, and 61,158 bales in 1968, a drop of almost 50%.

Donley, not primarily a cotton county, had 6,836 bales this year and 10,576 last year. Childress county ginned 12,730 bales in 1969 and 27,468 in 1968.

Wheeler county ginnings amounted to 8,429 bales this year and 10,775 last year.

Rubella Vaccine to Be Given In County Friday

Rubella vaccine will be administered to children from ages one through 10 in Collingsworth County Friday, March 6.

Schedules were announced this week by Mrs. Bob Sessions, chairman of the program.

The Dodson Clinic will be held from 9:00 to 10:00 a.m.; Samnorwood clinic 10:30 to noon; Quail 1:00 to 2:30 p.m.; and Wellington, for elementary school children, throughout the day.

Children one through five years will be given vaccine at the Bura Handley Community Center from 2:30 to 6 p.m.

Mrs. Clemmie Davenport, county school nurse, will work in the county schools. Darrell Norris, regional field representative of the Texas State Department of Health will be here to help at the outlying schools.

Mrs. Ernest Harwell and Mrs. Davenport will administer the vaccine at the community building, and Mrs. Cal Sugg, Wellington school nurse, will be in charge at Wellington Elementary.

Dr. Carter Holcomb, county health officer, will be on standby.

Parents of children aged one through four years who wish to pay for the vaccine may do so at the rate of $2.25 per child, Mrs. Sessions said.

But children whose parents cannot afford this will be given the shots free of charge.

The vaccine is free to all children five through 10 years of age.

Mrs. Sessions, director of the Community Action Program here, reminded this vaccine is not the same that children have taken in past years. Rubella is commonly known as three-day or German measles, and those who have had regular measles immunization are not protected from Rubella.

Three-day measles is a mild disease in small children, it is pointed out, but they present a grave danger to pregnant mothers. Rubella, during the first trimester of pregnancy, may cause birth defects which in-

This tulip magnolia, thought to be the only one of its species here, blooms in the back yard of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Adams. Buds appear in the fall and remain on the tree all winter. Individual flowers are about 5 inches across and the tree itself approximately 9 feet tall. Petals are ivory on the inside, veined with rose beneath.

He is married to the former Betty Painter of Childress and they have two daughters and a son, Robin, 5, John, 2, and Sharon, 7 months.

The family lives at 1402 Floydada Street.

In Iowa Park, Mr. Holman coached Little League baseball four years and played softball. The family attends the Baptist Church.

Cubs Say "Thank You"

Wellington Cub Scouts, who hold their meetings in the American Legion Hall, recently were presented a United States flag by Riley Dunson on behalf of the Legion.

This week he received thank-you notes from the boys.

All thanked him for the flag and some for the use of the hall "without paying rent."

Most addressed their letters to the Legion membership. One youngster enclosed a brief essay on why he loves America, saying it allowed him to have his pets and believe in God who gives food and water.

The Commissioners Courts of five counties met Thursday, Feb. 26 in Memphis to study the revised figures on the cost of a food stamp program for the needy.

"All of us looked on it favorably, and a decision will be made Monday, March 9, after each commissioners court has had time to meet," said Judge Zook Thomas.

Attending from Collingsworth County were Judge Thomas and Commissioners W. O. Vaughan, Melvin Seale, Pat O'Hair and W. R. Breeding.

Other counties represented were Hall, Donley, Wheeler and Briscoe.

Assembly of God

Rev. Jackson Goes to Church at Snyder

The Rev. James Jackson has resigned as pastor of the Assembly of God to accept the pastorate of the First Assembly of God at Snyder.

He will preach his farewell sermon Sunday, March 15, then he and his family will move to their new home during that week.

He is going to a church with a larger membership and a Sunday School about twice the size of the one here, he said. Snyder, designated as an "All American City" a few years ago, has a population of about 15,000.

During his four and one-half years pastorate here, Rev Jackson was president of the Ministerial Alliance two years, and was that body's representative on the Community Action Committee.

Within the Assemblies of God he was the Christ's Ambassadors representative for the North Plains Section two years and four months.

He initiated the annual church homecoming during his pastorate here, and two young men have entered the ministry, the Rev. Max Phipps and the Rev. Leo Rivest.

The Rev. and Mrs. Jackson came from Royse City, where he was reared. He was ordained here.

He attended East Texas State University two and a half years and has studied with the Berean School of the Bible in Springfield, Mo. Mrs. Jackson's home town is Commerce.

Both of the couple's children were born here. Charlotte is now three, and Christy is four months.

Herbicide Use Meet Slated Here March 10

"Cotton and grain sorghum herbicides—which are adapted to our area and how to use them," will be the topic of a meeting Tuesday, March 10 at Wellington in the district courtroom, according to County Agent Don Reeves.

Dr. Allen Weise of the USDA Southwestern Great Plains Research Center at Bushland and Dr. Frank Petr, area agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will be the principal speakers.

"Dr. Weise is widely recognized as an authority in weed control. He has proved or helped prove most of the herbicides for field crops on the market today," said Mr. Reeves. "All of the USDA herbicide research in Collingsworth County has been conducted by Weise and he has more experience with herbicide usage in Eastern Panhandle soils than any other researcher.

"Dr. Petr works with county agricultural agents throughout the 25-county area of the Texas Panhandle in all phases of field crop production. He is familiar with our problems pertaining to herbicide use as well as other production practices."

The use of herbicides has greatly increased in Collingsworth County the last few years, the county agent pointed out. Problems such as plant damage, thin stands, and inadequate weed control have been experienced by some producers.

Many herbicides are not designed for the soil types of the Eastern Panhandle. This has been one of the major problems in the use of herbicides here.

Time of application and application methods, along with herbicides that work in local soil types will be discussed at this March 10 meeting.

Blood Type Cards Arrive

Red Cross blood type cards for those who were donors here Feb. 24, have been received, according to Mrs. Rob Isbell, home service chairman.

These may be picked up at the county library, she said.

Grass Fire Burns 200 Acres Tues. Afternoon

An estimated nearly 200 acres of grass was destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon, March 3, that is believed to have started when an electric fence shorted out. No stock or other property was lost.

The fire originated on land operated by W. R. Adams and Leslie Moore, five miles east of town, then spread eastward onto the Mill Iron Ranch, and in another direction to the Barney Glenn farm.

It took the rural unit of the Wellington Fire Department almost four hours to get the blaze under control and then only with the help of neighbors and after city and county maintainers were brought to plow fire guards, according to Assistant Fire Chief David Peters who was in charge of operations. Grass on all three places was described as rank.

The fire ranged in an irregular pattern that at its widest was about two miles east and west and the same distance north and south, Mr. Peters estimated. There was no wind to fan the blaze.

Mr. Moore said that the broken wire of the electric fence was found, leading them to believe that cattle may have run through it.

Gene Hanna, Mill Iron employee, estimated the ranch lost 100 acres of grass, including some which had grown tall along a creek.

The loss to Adams and Moore was estimated at about 30 acres and to Barney Glenn at between 50 and 60 acres. Fence posts were destroyed on all three places.

Mr. Glenn was at his ranch on Elm Creek when the fire occurred and said if it had not been for the work of the fire department and volunteers, his entire place would have been lost.

Educator to Speak at First Christian Church

Grayson Ensign, director of the Bible Chair of the Southwest at Amarillo College, will be the guest speaker at First Christian Church Sunday, Mar. 8 at 7:00 p.m., Marvin Garrison, minister of the church, has announced.

A minister for many years, he formerly was president of Central Christian College at Moberly, Mo.

The Bible Chair is supported by Christian Churches of the Texas Panhandle and offers Amarillo College students credit and non-credit courses in the Bible and related subjects. The campus house provides a meeting place for students, Mr. Garrison explained.

Band Parents Meeting Called

A called meeting of the Band Parents Club is set for Tuesday, March 10 at 7:30 p.m., Miss Carol Blain, band director, has announced.

All parents are urged to attend, as plans will be made for the band banquet and other upcoming events, she said.

"We need a good attendance to make these plans," she said.

Riot Control Slated

Gray Takes Command of National Guard

First Lt. Neal Gray took over the command of the National Guard Battalion Heavy Mortar and Anti-Tank Platoons in Wellington March 1.

He succeeds 1st Lt. David H. McCampbell of Amarillo, who returned to the Headquarters and Headquarters Company in Amarillo.

The new commander's service in the Wellington unit goes back eight years, to when it was a medical company.

He received his commission July 18, 1965, after attending the National Guard Officer Candidate School at Austin. This training is offered to qualified guardsmen during week ends for a year's period.

Gray is the first man to serve a second hitch as commander of this unit, as he held that place from Jan. 15 to May 28, 1968. At that time he transferred to the Army Reserve, then returned to the Guard to accept his current appointment.

Members of the Heavy Mortar and Anti-Tank Platoons will receive riot control training with other units of the headquarters company in Amarillo Saturday and Sunday, March 7 and 8, Platoon Sgt. Robert Valliant has announced.

"This will be general riot control training as laid down in directives from the National Guard Adjutant General's Department," he added.

The training will be held at the Tri-State Fair Grounds.

Vandals Damage Buildings in City

Vandalism to a house owned by Mrs. Charles Gibson of Lubbock and a garage on property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Berg of Tulia was discovered late last week, Sheriff John Rainey has reported.

Both places were vacant pending sale.

Damage to the Gibson house at 1405 El Paso Street was discovered by Charley Caldwell, real estate broker, after he was requested by a Lubbock bank to make an appraisal on the property.

Mr. Caldwell said all electric light fixtures were damaged, a glass door panel was broken, paper had been burned on the floor and rugs were damaged. He described it as a "mess inside."

The property was not listed with him, Mr. Caldwell said. There were no keys to the house and the doors had been left unlocked, he added. The house, which was for sale, had been vacant about four months. It was not known when the vandalism occurred.

Mr. Berg notified Sheriff Rainey of the damage to his garage Saturday when he came to look after the property.

Entry was through a door at the back of the garage, the sheriff said. Windows were broken and holes punched in the sheet rock with a sharp object.

County Agent Don Reeves accompanied the boys and their calves to Houston Sunday, Mar. 1.

The calves in this show will be sifted Tuesday and judged Thursday. The steers will be sold in Houston and the trio plans to return home during the week end.

Mike is exhibiting a 925-pound purebred Hereford, the grand champion of the 4-H Junior Livestock Show here earlier this year. Keith's calf is a 935-pound purebred Angus that was the reserve champion at the Collingsworth County Fair Youth Project Show. The calf was bred by Pete Hartman.

Both calves placed fifth in their divisions in the Fat Stock Show at Amarillo.

The brothers together own and are showing a Brahman-Hereford F-1 Cross, weighing about 900 pounds. It is from the James Doneghy herd.

To Doctors

Tumor Clinic Offers Information Service

A medical information service created by the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute at Houston will be abailable March 1 to physicians in all communities in the state.

The "Dial Access" system consists of 100 pre-recorded medical lecture-consultations on various treatments, drugs and techniques used to help the cancer patient.

Recordings which range up to seven minutes in length are transmitted via telephone. Long distance calls for Texas physicians are toll-free.

"Dial Access serves as a consultative aid and is not intended to replace the intensive personal care of the attending physician," said Dr. Robert C. Hickey, executive vice president and director.

Presentations were recorded by physicians and medical investigators at the university cancer hospital, as well as other eminent Texas scientists. Recordings will be upgraded and expanded periodically as new information evolves and new subjects are requested. The Dial Access program operates as an extension of Anderson's Research Medical Library.

Dial Access was initiated after an extensive survey was made under th auspices of the Regional Medical Program of Texas. This survey indicated that Texas physicians are interested in utilizing a variety of methods to keep current on the latest diagnostic and therapeutic concepts in caring for the cancer patient. To help meet this need RMP supplied funds for playback equipment.

Physicians interested in obtaining a list of topics and information on how to use the free service may write to: Dial Access, Office of the Director, The University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, Texas Medical Center, Houston 77025.

Those interested in tickets should contact Mrs. J. W. Bryant or Mrs. Edwin Wyatt, Northfield Route, Tell, before March 5.

Speaker for the Health Careers Assembly will be Spencer Guimarin, director of the Texas Health Careers Program. A noted educator and entertainer, Mr. Guimarin will speak of "You—Health Careers—And the Future," telling of the challenging, rewarding careers in health care.

Trends in The 70's

What is ahead in the new decade for food products and processes? How will consumers spent their food dollars? What will they want?

For one thing, the homemaker wants and is willing to pay for "instant" heat and serve and ready-to-cook foods.

Criteria for convenience foods is changing to quick serve and instant foods instead of foods to which only some degree of preparation has been added.

For example, a packaged pudding mix which requires stirring in milk and cooking is too old-hat and too much bother, so canned and frozen instant puddings are high style.

Canned soups to which water must be added are losing an increasing percent of their market to the soups with water in the can.

The second trend is that Americans will eat more meals away from home in the 1970's.

Institutional food sales rose 36 percent from 1960 to 1966. During this same period sales in food stores rose only 14 percent. Forecasters say 40 percent of the food dollar will be spent for meals away from home by 1978.

In 1962, about 25 percent went for meals away from home. This figure jumped to 35 percent by 1966.

This change in trend is due to: 1. Homemakers working away from home; 2. increased leisure time; 3. improved technology; 4. decreased interest in learning how to cook.

Today 40 percent of all women more than 16 years old are in the American labor force. The largest segment (57 percent) of women in the work force are married.

Thirdly, fast foods services will increase in the 1970's. More food chains are going into institutional foods; they're opening franchised dining chains through facilities for onpremise food consumption and take-home prepared foods.

Forecasters predict that supermarkets will go heavily into food service operations, too, offering all types of prepared, take-home foods from chicken dinners, fish and chips, pizzas, and Chinese entrees to fancy gourmet, each completely prepared from appetizer through dessert.

By the mid-1970's, 50 percent of the supermarkets will have luncheonettes and 84 percent will have take-our food services.

Advances in food technology is the fourth major trend. Scientists will make new products from fabricated foods. As a protein extender in meats, snacks, low-cost meatlike foods and beverages, the soybean leads the parade.

Great strides are being made in the development of cheese-like, meat-like and cellular textures to be used in foods.

New USDA Booklet

Would it be cheaper to buy a side of beef rather than individual purchases at the supermarket?

This and other questions frequently confront homemakers who have a home freezer. There is no easy "yes" or "no" answer, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture experts.

The answer can be found only by making a careful comparison of costs among the alternatives available to you.

Basically, you have three choices in buying meat for the freezer: buying a whole carcass, side or quarter; buying wholesale cuts.

Making this decision is the subject of a booklet prepared by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. It's called "How to Buy Meat for Your Freezer." The information provided in the booklet is intended primarily to answer the questions most frequently asked by consumer-buyers—those relating to costs, grades, kinds of cuts and yields of usable meat.

For instance, the booklet tells you that cutting loss of a beef carcass could vary from 20 to 30 percent or more. A 25 percent cutting loss, which is not unusual, means that a 300 pound side of beef would yield 225 pounds of usable meat cuts.

A rule of thumb for carcass beef if 25 percent waste, 25 percent ground beef and stew meat, 25 percent steaks and 25 percent roasts.

To get a copy of this booklet, send 20 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Ask for "How to Buy Meat for Your Freezer," H&G Bulletin No. 166. Be sure to include your zip code. I hope to have some of these bulletins available in my office in a few weeks.

H.D. Luncheon

As in years past the Collingsworth County Home Demonstration Council will have their Favorite Foods Luncheon on April 8 at the Community Building. The home demonstration ladies will prepare their favorite dishes and serve them at $1.25 a plate. Again as before recipe booklets will be given with the lunch. Lunches that are delivered will be $1.50 a plate. So mark your calendar now and plan to eat lunch with some of the best cooks in the county.

Food Shopper Course

Fifty-four homemakers have enrolled for the at-home food shopper's course. The first lesson will be mailed out March 5 from the Extension office.

CONGRATULATIONS!
Bruce Oney, left, selected the Star Greenhand in the Wellington FFA Chapter, receives congratulations from Bill Sarpalius, immediate past president of the State FFA and speaker at the Wellington FFA parent-son banquet February 23.

Social Security Schedule Set

Miss Virginia Hess, field representative of the Social Security Administration, will be in Wellington each Tuesday through March to help county residents with matters relating to social security.

Her office is in the court house.

Wellington Fire Dept. Receives Check for $75

The Wellington Volunteer Fire Department received a check for $75 recently from Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies as an expression of thanks for the department's work on the property of Ray Clubb of Wellington.

The money will be used for purchase of equipment.

The Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies pay volunteer fire departments this amount when the department works at a fire in rural areas, involving property insured by them.

The insurance company believes volunteer fire departments have contributed to reduce the amount of loss involved by fire and more important, to prevent fires. It is their hope this money will help the Wellington department in its program.

THE WELLINGTON (TEXAS) LEADER
Thursday, March 5, 1970

Mrs. Jack Davis Heads Guild Work in Northwest Texas Methodist Conf.

A Wellington Woman has been elected to the highest office in the Wesleyan Service Guild work of the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Jack Davis was chosen conference chairman at the second annual meeting of Guild representatives in Lubbock on Sunday morning, March 1.

The others of the five elected officials are Mrs. Dorothy Perry of Amarillo, recording secretary; and the committee of nominations, composed of Mrs. Christine Flynn of Lubbock, chairman, Mrs. Darlene Mitchell of Plainview, and Mrs. Charlene Wood of Morton.

The Northwest Texas Conference covers the Panhandle, the South Plains, and much of West Texas, and includes eight districts of the United Methodist Church: Abilene, Amarillo, Big Spring, Brownfield, Lubbock, Pampa, Plainview and Seymour.

Mrs. Davis, who retired as a junior high science teacher only a few years ago, has worked with the Wesleyan Service Guilds "over 25 years, maybe 30 . . . I couldn't tell you."

She has held several offices in the local guild and was Pampa District Guild Secretary. She also has been spiritual life chairman and missionary education chairman on the district level.

"It gives one such a sense of deep humility," she said of her election to conference office. "The only formula I know that would carry one through this is a threesome, God, the Guilders, and me."

In April, Mrs. Davis will attend a training conference in Cincinnati, Ohio, for officers from the Guilds and women's Society of Christian Service throughout the United States.

She will begin work soon setting up the summer conference at Ceta Canyon July 25 and 26.

As a delegate, she will attend the Quadrennial Assembly of the WSCS and Guilds of the United Methodist Church in Houston. She called this a "once in a lifetime" event for it is not likely it will again come so close to the Texas Panhandle. An attendance of 10,000 is expected.

The Lubbock conference theme, for sessions that began Saturday afternoon, was "Come Alive in Faith." Bishop Alsie H. Carlton of the Northwest Texas-New Mexico Conference, Albuquerque, was the keynote speaker at the Saturday night meeting, and he preached at the Sunday morning service at First United Methodist Church, which hosted the convention.

Mrs. Davis was elected at the business session, also held Sunday morning, and was installed following the morning worship.

Mrs. Edward A. Brandhorst, president of the South Central Jurisdiction, WSCS, spoke Sunday also.

The Wellington woman submitted a banner at the Lubbock meeting, to be carried at the Houston Assembly. It was made by Mrs. Donald Settle, using the theme, "Choose Life," and it was inspired by a recent sermon of the Rev. R. T. Dyess, pastor of First Methodist Church.

Attending the conference at Lubbock were Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Gorman Owens; Mrs. J. F. Michael, and Mrs. Barney Glenn of First United Methodist and Mrs. R. H. Isbell and Mrs. C. D. Damron of Trinity United Methodist.

A Refreshing Change From the Ordinary

how to live - and die - with Texas Probate

By Charles A. Saunders, State Bar of Texas, for the Texas Press Association

This is a condensed version of one of 10 chapters of a 21-chapter book, "How to Live—and Die—With Texas Probate," copyrighted by the Gulf Publishing Co. These condensations in no way cover the whole volume, which can be purchased from your local bookstore or from Gulf Publishing Co., P.O. Box 2708, Houston 77001.

Introduction

The law of probate—the law dealing with passing of property from a person upon death to those he wants to get it—is centuries old, yet little understood. The purpose of probate, the people it protects and the advantages it offers ought to be understood by the man in the street, and with this understanding he should be moved to write a will and take advantage of probate's highest purposes, protections and advantages.

The lawyers of Texas want to make known to thoughtful Texans the basic ideas of probate and the importance of a properly drawn will.

To accomplish this they have written a book called "How to Live—and Die—With Texas Probate." It was written by 20 outstanding lawyers in 11 Texas cities. Money from the sale of the book is used for public education about the law.

Legal terms have been taken out and everyday language the reader is familiar with is used. The book points up the trouble poorly drawn wills can cause and stresses the importance of seeking the advice of the family lawyer about wills and their probate.

Should I Make a Will?

Wealthy people—people with property of $100,000 or more—usually have wills. Most of the people who die without a will have small estates. Yet, the saving of a dollar in a $10,000 estate means much more to the family than the saving of a dollar in a $1 million estate.

A will is a written instrument by which a person disposes of his property at his death. It can be changed during lifetime and conveys no property until the maker's death.

Every Texan of sound mind over 18 years old, or who is or was lawfully married, or is a member of the armed forces, can make a will. Texas law does not require that the property be left to anyone in particular.

Types of Wills

The most common will is the typewritten will. This will is written by someone else and signed by (or for) the maker. It must be witnessed by at least two persons over 14 years old who sign their names to the will in the presence of the person making the will. A witness must not receive anything under the will.

The other type of will used in Texas is one written wholly in the handwriting of the maker and signed by him. This will does not require witnesses. This type of will is not valid in some other states.

Dying Without a Will

When a person dies without a will, the law determines who gets his property. The law also says who gets property left out of a will. The law, of course, cannot take into account the individual needs of the family members.

If a father owning only community property dies without a will, his wife inherits nothing from him. If her property is not sufficient to support her, she will have to find other means of support, even though the father's half of the community property is not needed for the support of the children who receive it.

Guardianship—Penalty of Dying Without a Will

When a parent dies leaving minor children, the problems are serious. Where a minor receives property through inheritance it is often necessary to have a guardian appointed to receive it. Insurance companies, the Social Security Administration, the Veterans Administration and others require a guardianship before they will pay funds to a minor.

Where a minor inherits land, title companies and lending agencies require a guardianship before the land can be sold.

The minor's property under a guardianship is subject to strict and costly court control. At age 21 or at marriage, the child gets his property whether or not he is mature enough to handle it.

One of the biggest advantages of making a will is the opportunity to provide for handling the minor's property without court supervision and costs. The will can direct how the money will be spent and when the child will receive it.

Dying Without a Will—Who Handles the Estate?

If the will does not name a person to handle the estate, Texas law provides a list of people with priorities from which the court will select. The duties of the person handling the estate are to locate all of the property; manage it; pay debts, taxes and costs, and distribute what is left according to the will or the law. By making a will the maker can choose the person he feels is best qualified to do the job.

Wife Should Have Will, Too

It is just as important for a wife to have a will as it is for the husband. Since most property owned by married people in Texas is community property, the wife usually owns half the family wealth.

Where there is no will, children inherit the mother's interest in property just as they do the father's. The father may suddenly find himself in partnership with small children with all the trouble and expense that brings. So, the husband's will alone does only half the job of planning for the family.

Divorce—Its Effect on a Will

Divorce automatically eliminates the divorced spouse from the will.

Suppose a man makes a will leaving a portion of his estate to his wife. Then the man and wife are divorced, and the man dies before updating his will. The portion of the estate he provided for the wife will not go to her.

Instead, this portion will be distributed according to the laws of Texas and the remainder of the estate will go according to the will.

Children and the Outdated Will

Texas law makes special (and complex) provisions for children born after a will is signed. Where no child was born before the will was made, a child born after the will can cause the will to be void for practical purposes and cause the estate to be thrown into a complicated court proceeding taking years to untangle.

Summary

Each thoughtful man and woman owes a duty to his family to have a carefully prepared will in keeping with present family circumstances.

NEXT: What a will should contain and provisions for administration, payments, and property disposition, plus required formalities and the "self-proving" will.

World's Biggest Flop

We believe in advertising, and it is advertising that creates a demand for goods and services that makes the cash registers ring.

But advertising can't do everything.

The world's biggest advertising flop has to be the seat belt campaign.

In 1968, a total of $51,509,034 was spent in an advertising effort to convince people to use seat belts. Legislation was even passed which encourages the wearing of seat belts by making belts mandatory in new automobiles.

Yet, the average American does not fasten his or her seat belt when driving a car. They are more apt to buckle in for a long trip, but not around town, where many accidents occur.

The flop of the belt campaign is comparable to the Edsel. It has proved to the American automobile makers that safety is not salable and that other factors such as power, speed and comfort sell cars.

A survey made in November, 1967, showed that 63 per cent of car owners had seat belts in their cars. In July of 1969, this figure had increased slightly to 65 per cent. Despite this minor gain, use of seat belts declined.

The 1967 study found that 35 per cent of the people with seat belts in their cars used them, and in July, 1969, after $51 million had been spent on seat belt advertising, only 34 per cent of these people said they used their seat belts all the time.

In 1969, 43 per cent of the seat belt owners said they use their belts hardly ever or not at all, compared with 39 per cent in 1967.

This low usage of seat belts comes despite the fact that it is proved that seat belts save lives and lessen injury in a car wreck.

The trouble is that nobody ever thinks they will have a wreck.

You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink. Or wear a seat belt, either, it is sad to relate. —The Perryton Herald

Capitalist Russia?

There was little publicity in the United States to inform citizens of this country of the fact that, on October 9, 1969, Russia "westernized" all Soviet industries.

The order came as a result of experiments with selected plants where workers were offered personal incentives for increased efficiency and production. That worked—and another Communist dictum and policy went to the scrap heap.

Thus, Russia has taken one more stride toward captalism while we keep right on moving in the direction of a Socialist state. Some day, contrary to what Kipling said, the twain shall meet—somewhere in the middle.

Shirt Collars!

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has given a $59,082 grant to the University of California at Davis to study the cause and cure of fraying shirt collars.

It shouldn't take $59,082 for the researchers to discover that after taxpayers' money is taken and spent for stupid research projects, so they wear their old ones, frayed collars and all.

Picnic

Picnicing in the meadows and dells of our country is being replaced by eating in cars. So finds a survey made by a paper plate manufacturer.

Do they want to know why? We're all stuck in our cars on the freeway, unable to get to the exit to the nearest pastoral scene, if such still exists.

STATE Capital NEWS

By VERN SANFORD

AUSTIN.—Top Texas officials have agreed on general outlines of a plan to combat the rising problem of drug abuse.

Gov. Preston Smith, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin and House Speaker Gus Mutscher are united in a statewide concentration of effort. Plan was announced after a meeting of the four in Smith's office last week. Texas Justice Council will serve as coordinator.

Coordinated law enforcement action will first be called on to try and dry up the sources of dangerous drugs.

Top priority is given a "total education" campaign for youth, adults, teachers and law enforcement personnel to drug dangers and possible solutions to the problem.

Task forces will be named to develop effective concepts and action programs in enforcement and eductation.

Leaders agreed on this immediate-action program:

—One-day seminars for Texas' law officers and prosecutors.

—Exchange of vital information with Mexico.

—Assistance through the Justice Council to implement school education.

—Review of successful narcotics programs in other states.

—Greater assistance to local enforcement and prosecuting agencies in evidence analysis.

—Gathering of statistics in major cities on drug-related crime.

—Creation of a model drug information office.

Narcotics strike forces will include local, state and federal personnel, military manpower and use of helicopter patrols along the Rio Grande.

Another task force will attempt to explore causes of drug use and to evaluate proposed research and rehabilitation programs as well as to implement educational programs in schools.

State officials will meet here March 13 with aides to U.S. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell. They will explore federal support possible under remedial programs and the uniform controlled dangerous substances act now before Congress.

Toll Roads Proposed

In a surprise session with the State Highway Commission, Texas Turnpike Authority proposed that preliminary studies be made for the development of a massive toll road network estimated to cost more than $135 million.

Last year the Legislature authorized the agency, subject to the Highway Department's permission, to spend money for investigating the feasibility of additional pay-road projects.

Turnpike Authority asked the Commission to let it make exploratory studies on the following projects:

—An 83-miles, $50 million mid-Texas turnpike from Hillsboro to Interstate 45 near Centerville, to provide a direct freeway from Dallas-Fort Worth to Houston-Beaumont areas.

—A 20-miles, $40 million Dallas-Fort Worth-Trinity turnpike connecting Dallas and Fort Worth parallel to the present turnpike by way of the projected Greater Southwest International airport between the two cities.

—An 8.8 mile, $18 million airport tollway connecting LBJ Freeway in Dallas to the new airport estimated for completion in 1973.

—A $20-million toll road in San Antonio to follow the route of long-delayed U.S. 281 North Expressway.

—A 1.2 mile, $7 million toll bridge across Mountain Creek in Dallas County connecting the Oak Cliff and Arlington areas.

—A turnpike from downtown Houston to Intercontinental Airport and possibly other facilities in the state's largest city.

Preliminary studies will take six to nine months. Feasibility surveys may follow where reasonable promise is shown for the projects.

Welfare Crisis Averted

Welfare Board cancelled its April 1 cuts in aid to needy families and medical assistance after Gov. Smith ordered $13.5 million in medical school building funds shifted to welfare.

Deputy Welfare Commissioner Herbert Wilson said the fund transfusion will run programs at present levels through August and maybe longer.

Cuts of 12% in Aid to Families with Dependent Children and 20% in medicaid had been ordered for April 1. In ordering the transfer to make this reduction unnecessary, Smith also directed strengthening of the welfare program administration and a step-up in rehabiltiation efforts.

Attorney General Rules

Fraternal and veterans organizations operating clubs and serving alcoholic beverages are subject to sales tax as ultimate consumers for mix, beverage, ice or set-ups, says Attorney General Martin in a new opinion. However, Martin said, the "makings" are not subject to further sales tax when incorporated into alcoholic beverage served to guests and members.

Martin also ruled that County Commissioners have no authority to budget an amount for the current year which exceeds the county auditor's anticipated revenue.

Retroactive Payments Made

A total of 131 persons received $53,811 in retroactive welfare payments under terms of a San Antonio federal court order invalidating the one-year state residence requirement.

Since last October, the welfare department has been trying to locate 414 who might have been eligible. Payments went to these categories:

—Aid to Families with Dependent Children, $48,097 to 112 persons.

—Aid to disabled, $932 to 3.

—Old Age Assistance, $4,882 to 16.

Short Snorts

• Gov. Smith proposed a complete review of the $10 billion Texas Water Plan which Texas voters turned down last year, to see if any more water supplies can be developed in Texas before seeking imported water.

• Texas Highway Department reminds that March 31 is deadline to renew boat registrations.

• Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation authorized nearly $1.8 million for repairs and new construction at Big Spring, Terrell, Vernon, Abilene, Austin, Lufkin, and San Angelo facilities, approved adolescent mental health units for Austin and Terrell hospitals, and accepted more than $500,000 in grants for mentally ill and retarded care.

• A $46,500 grant to Texas Department of Health will help develop emergency medical service and communications to summon quick aid to traffic accidents.

• Governor's Committee on Aging approved grants totalling $216,449 for projects in San Antonio, Wichita Falls, Smithville, Waco, Stephenville, Eagle Pass and Franklin.

• Sixteen of the 175 known water users on the Rio Grande from Amistad Dam to Falcon Reservoir have failed to file their water claims by the adjudication date and thus become first to have their water rights adjudicated.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Some of the Northern fervor for school integration in the South by bussing has been dampened by the prospect of maybe having to follow the same rules in the North.

My motives analyst neighbor says the NEFBITS (Northeasterners - for - bussing - in - the - South, have been just trying to keep vast number of Southern kids on school buses and out of classes most of each day, to hold them back more even with Northern kids.

He says this fear that the North is losing the smart race with the South has probably increased here lately, because the South hasn't yet had to settle for a Senator who couldn't hit a 10-foot bridge with a six-foot car.

Awards Presented

Cub Pack Holds First Blue, Gold Banquet

Eleven Cub Scouts received awards and recognition went to den leaders and den mothers at the first Blue and Gold Banquet Friday evening, Feb. 27.

Cubmaster Bill Anders was the master of ceremonies, and with Comanche District Scout Commissioner Robert Dwight of Samnorwood, presented the awards.

Mark Hood received the Bear award, while Wolf badges went to Kevin Hall, Don Lewis and Carl Taylor.

Those who received gold arrow points and service stars were Clay Lacy, Craig Needham, Pat White, Joe Ed Whitie, Steven Settle, Lynn Hurst, and Mike Reed.

Den Chief's ropes were presented to Richard and Randall Sims of Den 1, Steve Hartman of Den 2, and Dan Fires of Den 3.

Den mothers cups were presented, and as no more of this design will be presented, these will become collectors items. Receiving them were Mrs. Calvin Hurst, Mrs. Gary Reed, Mrs. Don Van Pelt, Mrs. Jack Neeley, Mrs. Bill Hall and Mrs. Robert Lewis.

Mr. Dwight was the program speaker. After commending the Kiwanis Club for its sponsorship of the Pack, the den mothers and cubmaster, he told of the 7th National Boy Scout Jamboree at Farragut, Idaho, in the summer of 1960, when he was Scoutmaster for the 40th boy contingent from the Adobe Walls Council.

"For me it was the inspiration of modern youth, and its talent that lies untapped," Mr. Dwight said.

There are four reasons why a Jamboree is held, he continued. It is a fair test of the Scouting Program; it brings together boys from all regions of the country and serves as a fine common denominator; it is a search on the part of the boys to become solid citizens; and it is a fun event.

The East Panhandle boys making up his troop received many compliments, from both professional Scouters at the Jamboree, and en route, for their courtesy and self discipline.

Mr. Dwight closed the program with slides of the Jamboree.

Attending were approximately 150 Cubs, the parents and other members of their families and guests.

All of these prospective herd sires and bulls for purebred or crossbred commercial herds with individual performance information included, are listed in the sale.

Conservation Awards Program Draws More Than 500 Entries

FORT WORTH. — Entries in the 25th Annual Texas Conservation Awards Program in all categories of judging totalled more than 500 from all over Texas, and will be judged beginning next week, it was announced Saturday by W. A. (Bill) King, director of the program.

Among these entries are three from Salt Fork Soil Conservation District. R. L. Mabery was nominated for the Outstanding Farmer Award; the district itself is seeking the Outstanding District title; and there is an entry in the Youth Essay Contest. The county winner has not been announced locally.

Salt Fork SCD has been one of the most consistent winners among all Texas districts. It has had one or more winners almost every year since the first award was received in 1951.

The 25th Anniversary of the Texas Conservation Awards Program, with a slogan "Save the Soil and Save Texas" has been broadened to embrace every area of natural resources conservation in Texas.

For the first time in its history, the state-wide conservation awards program is being conducted by the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce. It was started in 1954 by the Fort Worth Press under the direction of Editor Walter R. Humphrey. Humphrey served now as chairman of the Chamber committee sponsoring the huge program.

Some 503 finalists from the five regions of Texas were screened and advanced for judging for the top state awards in the 14 categories of judging. These finalists represented the best of the thousands of entries throughout the state judging in their districts. Judging will be accomplished by the Texas Conservation Board, the Texas Association of Soil & Water Conservation Districts in Temple, and the Texas Soil Conservation Service in Temple. The Texas Water Conservation Association in Austin will remain active in the program.

A breakdown of final entries include the following categories representing winners in their districts:

78, Soil and Water Conservation District (3 divisions); 35, Comeback Farmer or Rancher; 122, Outstanding Farmer/Rancher Conservationist; 16, Civic Organization Conservationist; 26, Outstanding Business or Professional men rendering outstanding service in Conservation; one, Forestry Conservation; 20, Wildlife Conservationist; 8, Water Conservation; 26, Teacher of Conservation; 17, Daily Newspaper in Conservation; 10, Weekly Newspaper in Conservation; 20, Radio Station in Conservation; 10, Television Station in Conservation; and 111, Student Essays on Conservation of Natural Resources.

In addition to these categories of judging special awards will be presented this year to top homemaker projects, FFA and 4-H Club, and to pollution control projects.

State champions in these categories will be announced in the state-wide silver anniversary banquet of the Texas Conservation Awards Program to be held Saturday, May 2, in the Sheraton-Fort Worth.

FOLK TALES
and Bits of Collingsworth County History

by Nora Cocke Drake

J. Frank Dobie once said, "No ((good) County History can be written by a County minded historian." Hence, when you read these stories of our County, we hope that you can and will fit them into the broader scope of history.

Very long ago our land was under a sea that left deposits of clay, limestone ,calcium carbonate,) and gypsum in many parts of the county. In some part of that far away time at least one dinosaur met his fate in the north part of Collingsworth. Tom Caterlin found his bones! This was a part of the hunting grounds covered by roving bands of Indians who have left faint traces of their stays in many spots over the countryside. At some time there was a canon that went this way evidently for there is the cannon ball that the heavy rains washed to the surface one spring north of Salt Fork River. There was the time when there was free grazing land here, the big land holdings of the English Syndicates, and the time of the homesteaders who came to settle on the relatively cheap school and roalroad sections.

Native grasses were knee high in many places in the days when the 'Nesters' came. There was an abundance of deer, antelope, turkey, quail, and prairie chickens as well as prairie dogs, ground squirrels, ocyotes, wolves, bobcats and other things including rattle snakes.

The newly developing county park on the Salk Fork of Red River with only native flora and fauna "charges the Memory" for all of these long ago times.

The County Historical Committee would like to hear any of your memories.

Here is one of the stories of "fording the river" that has always been a favorite:

Colonel William E. Hughes who bought the Mill Iron Ranch from the Rocking Chaire Ranche Company Ltd. of London, England before the twentieth century loved to come coaching to the ranch. Upon one occasion he and a party of friends came through Wellington, stopped at the stores to buy supplies and coached on toward the old headquarters at Aberdeen. The river was "up". The heavily loaded coach become stuck in the quicksands. His guests finally got out with their and his small luggage and made it to the shore. The Colonel stayed with the ocach until he could free the horses, he hung onto the tale of the hindmost horse and together he and the team pulled safely to shore. Everything else went down in the floods and quicksands.

After the floodwaters subsided that night, a group of men dug for three days trying to get the coach out of the sands. The more they dug the deeper it sank. Somewhere down under the remains of that coach and most of its load lie burried still.

Every Home Deserves the Extra Convenience of Full-House Power

There's a good reason why the modern homemaker can do more—and do it better—than ever before. It's called "full-house power," the ability to take advantage of all the miracles of total-electric living.

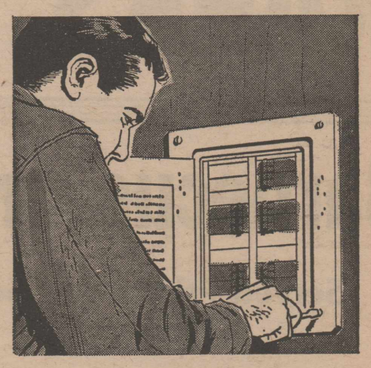

An Electric Clothes Dryer, for example, eliminates those "wash day blues." No worry about rainy, wintry weather; you can dry the family's wash any time. Just load the dryer . . . the rest is done automatically.

There are a world of helpful appliances to make your chores go faster. Electric mixers to bring more variety to your meals; electric sweepers to help clean your home; electrical appliances to ease your kitchen chores.

Small wonder that the use of electrical power has more than doubled in the past decade! Yet many homes have the same wiring system that was designed for limited use of electricity. Naturally, circuits have become over-loaded; appliances "starved" for electrical power. That's why lights dim when appliances are started; fuses blow too frequently.

If your home has these symptoms, bring "full-house power" by installing a larger entrance panel (fuse box). The increased capacity will relieve overloaded circuits and enable all appliances to get all the electricity they need.

Up-dating your wiring system is not expensive. You'll be repaid time and time again with trouble-free operation of your appliances.

Your rural electric cooperative will gladly make a free "power survey" to help you determine your trouble areas and find economical answers to your problems.

Area Has Two of State's 128 Catfish Farm Operators

Catfish farming is booming in Texas, a recent USDA Soil Conservation Service survey indicates.

The study reveals that 128 people are now raising catfish commercially in Texas on 3,550 acres, Gary Reed, district conservationist for SCS at Wellington said. This is an increase of 1,000 acres over last year.

Oran Starkey, north of Wellington, and Don Ray Crook, south of Dodson, are among those listed in the survey as having catfish for sale.

The Soil Conservation Service will have a larger role in the future in the expanding catfish farming business since construction of catfish ponds may be carried out under the Great Plains Program.

Mr. Reed said that of the state's 128 catfish producers, 42 sell fingerlings, 21 sell broadstock, and 62 sell market-size fish. Others sell fish from fish-out ponds where people pay a fee for the fish they catch.

About 60% of the catfish farmers have five acres or less in fish ponds while only 15% have 20 acres or more. SCS biologists believe that most producers with less than five acres will expand their operations as soon as they gain experience in catfish farming. On well managed farms, one acre of water can grow a ton of catfish.

"One reason for the increase in fish farming is that catfish have an extremely high growth-to-feed ratio," Mr. Reed pointed out. "Catfish that are properly cared for often gain a pound of weight for every two pounds of feed. That compares with a pound of gain for every 5½ pounds of grain fed to beef cattle."

SCS has published a new booklet on catfish farming that tells how to get a catfish farm going, Mr. Reed said. High quality water, of course, is vital and it should be above 70 degrees at least seven months each year. The booklet outlines methods for commercially producing and harvesting channel, white and blue catfish.

Mr. Reed said a well-designed farm includes separate ponds for breeding, rearing and holding fish and at least one holding vat. Help in pond design and location is available for SCS offices. Since there are several hazards to raising fish, producers should plan their operations carefully, he said.

Copies of the new catfish booklet are free at SCS offices. Mr. Reed said he also has a list of catfish farmers showing names and addresses if anyone wants to see it.

Walter L. Knapp Announces for Senatorial Post

Walter L. Knapp of Amarillo hsa announced his candidacy for senator from the 31st Senatorial District of Texas, subject to action of the Democratic Primary.

The district which includes Collingsworth county, consists of the 21 northernmost counties of the Texas Panhandle.

Mr. Knapp's statement follows:

"I realize that the job of representing the Texas Panhandle in the Senate carries grave responsibilities — and yet great challenges. There are only 31 Texas Senators and we have moved into an era when the U.S. Supreme Court has given the large cities more of these seats in the Senate. Senators from districts consisting of rural areas, small towns and small cities have to scrap and claw all the way to offset the advantage of greater numbers which the big city Senators have. For this reason I feel that the 31st Senatorial District needs its most experienced Legislator in the Senate seat and I think the eight years I've served in the House have qualified and conditioned me to handle the responsibilities of the Senator.

I feel that my legislative experience and the friendships I have made in Austin can benefit the people of the Panhandle.

Many times a friendship between members of the Legislature influences a decisive vote and I count many members of the House and Senate as my friends.

A brand new man can learn the written rules of the Legislative process in a short time but it takes years to learn the unwritten rules and the personalities in and out of the Legislature whom one has to deal with in representing one's district.

During my eight years in the Legislature I have always tried to represent the majority of the people in my district. I think my record and performance has satisfied most of my constituents most of the time.

I invite the people of the Panhandle to examine the record I've made during the 58th, 59th, 60th and 61st Legislatures of Texas as a member of the House of Representatives."

ASCS Deadlines March 9 and 20, Farmers Told

Farm operators should remember two March deadlines, Bob Weatherly, county executive director of the ASCS, has reminded.

The final date to release cotton allotments or request more cotton allotment is Monday, March 9.

"If you are not going to use your allotment, you may wish to turn it back to the committee for this year to be reapportioned out to other farmers in the county," said Mr. Weatherly.

"This will, in most cases, protect the cotton allotment for the farm. If you don't intend farming it, let's see if we can figure the best solution for you."

Friday, March 20, is also the deadline for signing up in the 1970 cotton, wheat and feed grain programs. This signup is going well, Mr. Weatherly reported.

Notices of individual farm yields and payment rates were mailed recently from the ASCS office.

FORGED CHECKS

Is the bank responsible for paying on a forged check? Yes, the bank is responsible.

When a depositor places his money on deposit, the bank becomes his debtor. He has a right to expect that the money will be paid. And only on his orders. A forged check is not an order of the depositor.

The bank will also be responsible for paying on a forged endorsement.

Suppose there are several endorsements on a check with the first, a forgery. Each endorser may recover from the preceding endorser.

There are many types of bank accounts. They include: Individual, joint, descriptive, proprietorship, partnership, organization, corporation, and fiduciary.

Married women should use their maiden name. Instead of "Mrs. John E. Wallington", it should be "Mrs. Nora Scope Wallington."

Circle March 7 on your calendar. On that date there will be an eclipse of the sun and it will be visible for about three and a half minutes around noon. It will be a total eclipse in the Gulf of Mexico and along the eastern coast of the United States; but a partial eclipse will be visible in almost any part of the United States. It can be seen in Dallas at 12:00 noon; but the time for Denver is 10:57 and in Oklahoma City it will be at 12:02. The extent of the eclipse will vary from east to west. For instance the magnitude will be 71% in Dallas and only 46% in Denver. That should place the extent of the eclipse between 55% and 60% here.

With their tremendous speed these planes will enable the scientists to study the corona for 5½ minutes instead of the 3½ minutes allotted to the man on the ground. This will be the last total eclipse of the sun that will be visible in the United States until the year 2024. I haven't made any plans for staying around until then.

Many people over the state were sincerely distressed when Amarillo High School—the home of the Sandies—burned last Sunday. People who had never set foot in the revered building felt a sense of loss for they know or had known hundreds of interesting and worthwhile people who had spent an important part of their lives in those remembered classrooms.

Wellington lost its newly constructed high school by arson in January 1928. It was a grievous loss that came near to being a financial disaster; for it forced a second bond issue when the school district had barely started paying on the bonds for the first building on 15th Street. As is the case in most fires, the insurance was not sufficient to cover the loss.

The financial loss was not the only one to the Wellington school system. All records of the students were burned and for years students who were in junior high or high school at that time had trouble in getting their credits. In addition to the textbooks what was becoming a good school library was destroyed. Firemen fought the blazes during most of a bitter cold night with the temperature below zero and half of them became sick as a result of the exposure.

A flight of cedar waxwings and about half a dozen robins were visitors in my yard Monday. Last week Attebury Lake was crowded with ducks mainly mallards. There were hundreds of them; but they were not there when I passed by on two trips this week. The doves are returning in numbers and fruit trees are blooming all over town. Signs of spring are everywhere; but I have an uneasy feeling that winter is not over. I am afraid the ducks will be back and the trees may have bloomed in vain.

Drakes Visit New Mexico

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Drake were in New Mexico during the week end to visit friends and see points of interest.

They went first to Las Vegas to see and watch Aile Lee, the potter, at work. Next they stopped at Tres Ritas for snowmobiling, then the couple went on to Taos.

Turning south, they stopped at San Ildefonso Pueblo, to visit Maria Martinez, most famous of all the Indian potters.

In Santa Fe they were guests of two former Wellington couples, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ross. Mrs. Ross is remembered as Dorothy Margaret Cocke.

HONORED BY FFA

A Future Farmer and his grandfather were honored at the recent Parent-Son banquet. Travis Buske, left, was named an Honorary Future Farmer in recognition of work he has done for the chapter. Mike Davis was recognized as the only Wellington FFA member to be made a Lone Star Farmer during the year.
