Goal Looms In Sight For Fort Worth Monoplane Three Bills Fall Before Moody's Veto; Seven Withheld

Governor Plans Re-Submission Of Other Legislation

Bills Giving Tax Collectors More Commission, Raising District Attorneys And Prison Terms Downed

To Select Auditor

Governor Pleased With Bill For Office, Declares He Will Select His Man; To Re-Submit Others

(By Associated Press) MOODY today vetoed three bills and withheld approval of seven others because he believes they contain fatal errors. These latter will be re-submitted to the second session on June 3, he said.

The governor also will submit the question of regulation of public utilities to the second session. He is changing the office of state auditor embraces many of the desirable features of civil service he will exclude that subject from those placed before the special session, he added.

Signed On Last Day
Although Mr. Moody signed the state auditor bill on the last day of the first called session, he did not file it with the secretary of state until today.

"This is one of the best bills the legislature passed and can easily be the means of saving the state $100,000 annually," he said. Ordinarily I would not be in favor of creating another office, but this will provide the means of bringing about consolidations that should be effected and which will redound to the benefit of the state.

While the bill becomes effective immediately, having carried the emergency clause, Governor Moody will take his time about appointing an auditor, he stated. The office carries a salary of $7,500 annually, he said he had two persons in mind for the place.

Wants To Find Own
"I am not going to appoint anyone who applies for the place," he said. "I want the privilege of going and finding my own man."

R. Patterson Arrested As He Enters Building Early Friday; To Make Confession Today

"I have a confession to make, and I am going to tell everything, but I don't want to go to jail," he said. "I want to go to jail, but I don't want to go to jail."

Patterson was arrested Friday morning about 2:30 o'clock as he entered the building, through an unlocked rear door, of the Davis Automobile Company, 1105 "A" street, where he had been employed in the storage department for the last several weeks.

Police Tipped Off
He was arrested by Bob Carter, night police, who had been directed by Chief Leonard to shadow the building, following a tip received by police department.

The management of the company had discovered on few occasions that the rear door had been left unlocked after closing hours, and in some instances minor items had been stolen from the building.

The accused youth will be transferred Saturday to the county jail. Chief Leonard announced last night. Receipts from sales of two automobiles were in the safe Thursday night.

Attempt Made To Free 6-Year-Old

PAINTSVILLE, Ky., May 24. (AP)—The fight to save six-and-a-half-year-old Carl Newton Mahan, who killed his playmate in a quarrel, from serving fifteen years in a reformatory will be resumed here tomorrow, when District Judge J. F. Atley will hear a writ of prohibition seeking to halt the sentence.

An effort toward freeing the child was taken today when defense attorneys filed a motion for a new trial before County Judge John W. Atcher, who sentenced the Mahan youngster to serve until he is 21 in the reformatory after a county jury had returned a verdict of guilty.

Crippled Leg Wins Limb Goes Bad On Honeymoon Pair

DALLAS, May 24.—A crippled leg won a marathon dance here for Miss Jackie Hawkins and Herbert Moon, but the member did not belong to the Hawkins-Moon combination.

It was the property of Richard McGuey, who with his bride of 1,000 hours, was dancing for the first award of $750 for their honeymoon. McGuey and his wife were married after about 400 hours of dancing, and announced they would dance their legs off to win.

When the dance ended, they formed the only couple on the floor other than the winners. The time of the dance was 1,364 hours. Mrs. McGuey said her husband's leg went bad about three hours before they gave up. They were awarded $300, however, for finishing in second place.

Mystery Shrouds Gangland's Last Kidnaping Case

Chicago Police Stage Hunt After Disappearance Of Unknown Man; Taxi Driver Gives Only Clue

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO, May 24.—A hunt was on tonight for the kidnapers of an unknown man, and the mystery of their identities and the plight of their victim deepened as the search went on.

Police had expected to find the body of Thomas Cooper huddled, as is the fashion of gangland's victims, in some prairie roadside ditch or some bullet-punctured automobile. But Cooper, whose photograph resembled the man torn from a taxicab in early morning by a quartet of machine gunners, was found at his home, unharmed.

Melville Oliver, taxi driver, gave police their only clue. A man had hired his cab and ordered him to "hurry out of this neighborhood," but his car was nosed to the curb by another and its occupants, displaying sub-machine guns, hauled his fare from the cab. And the victim, struggling with his captors, pleaded: "Ernie, remember I'm a married man, please!"

With the collapse of Cooper's identification as the victim, police guessed that the leader of the abductors was Ernie Ross, already sought in the investigation of Sgt. Ray Martin's death at the hands of extortionists. Oliver was not certain of Ross' identification.

The only theory advanced was that the man taken on the "ride" was marked as a "stool pigeon."

Mexican Students Protesting Decree

MEXICO CITY, May 24. (AP)—Striking students of the National University Law school, who fought police in a series of riots last night, continued vociferous street demonstrations today, but were not molested by the authorities as long as they remained fairly orderly.

From 200 to 300 students, protesting against newly ordered monthly examinations, held a fifteen-minute rally in front of a newspaper office and then marched off to another downtown section.

Three university professors have resigned in sympathy with the students.

Girl Tells Of Hamilton's Opposition To Marriage With Walton While Both Were In School

(By Associated Press) MARILLO, May 24.—Reconciled to her father whose pistol made her a widow, Theresa Hamilton Walton 19 today testified for the parent, R. H. Hamilton in his appeal for habeas corpus release under bond from a murder indictment returned after he killed Tom Walton, Jr., the girl's 21 year old husband.

Hamilton prominent Amarillo attorney and former judge on the Texas supreme court's appeals commission tonight did not know whether his application for freedom on bond pending his trial would be granted. Court recessed suddenly this afternoon until tomorrow.

May Bring More
E. W. Thomason, district attorney, announced the state might introduce additional evidence tomorrow.

Today's drama was featured by the entrance of Walton's young widow who fondly embraced her father.

Theresa told of marrying against her father's will. It was in February while she and the boy she loved were students at the University of Texas.

She had talked with her father early in the spring about her love for Walton, but the father advised against it until they both were out of school and Walton had employment. Hamilton did not object to marriage if it was postponed, she declared.

Youth Left School
Walton was leaving school to come to Marillo and wanted to have the ceremony before he left Austin, she said. She wanted to defer it, but

Plane To Hop Atlantic Proves Its Speed First

It's a big plane and a mighty fast one, and it's glinting silver nose is to be pointed across the Atlantic toward Paris as soon as fair flying weather comes. The huge single-motored Bernard monoplane pictured above amazed aeronautical experts when it attained a speed of 150 miles an hour during a test flight over Roosevelt Field, Long Island, the other day, outlying many smaller craft. Lower left are the French pilots of the projected ocean hop, Rene LePere (right) and Jean Assolant (center) and the flight's sponsor, Armeno Loti, Jr. Lower right you see how a force of six men, pulling stout cables attached to a leather hood fitted over one end of the metal propeller, are required to start the 600-horsepower motor of the giant plane. The plane is ready for the hop at Old Orchard, Maine.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., May 24. (AP)—The start of the French monoplane Yellow Bird for Paris and that of the Green Flash for Rome was postponed tentatively until Sunday morning after rainy and cloudy weather settled over the ocean today.

Previous Record Of 151 Hours To Be Reached Soon

Texas Fliers Are Well Down Stretch With All Records Behind Them Except That Of The "Question Mark"

Motor Purrs On

Reginald Robins And Jim Kelly May Attempt To Break Endurance Flight Record By Days

(By Associated Press) FORT WORTH, May 24.—The monoplane Fort Worth was well down the "stretch" of its 151 hour, 40 minutes, 15 seconds goal of sustained flying at 10:35 o'clock tonight, having less than a day's time ahead in order to set a new record. At that time, less than 21 hours more of flying was needed for the new mark, the ship having been aloft 131 hours. The single motor still was functioning smoothly.

Every endurance flight record save that of the famous army "Question Mark" behind them, Reginald L. Robbins and Jim Kelly drove their monoplane on tonight through occasional misting rains toward an all time record for aerial cruising. As the fliers passed the 115th hour in the air their motor sounded as sweet as it did Sunday morning when they took the air.

At 10:33 p. m. the fliers had less than 21 hours to stay aloft to establish themselves as the world's champion endurance fliers.

Records Fall
During the day the last two records separating Robbins and Kelly from the time established by the Question Mark fell. At 9:03 a. m. the 112 hour record of the Graf Zeppelin went down and Earl B. Mathews, an official timer, wrote in the log:

"Adios Graf Zeppelin. Your flight is ancient history now." The 118 hour record established by the ill-fated French lighter than air machine, "Dixmude" was surpassed at 9:33 a. m. The record for sustained flight by two man crews had been passed hours before.

How to Achieve Beauty

Hands of all kinds, expressing all manner of things, it's no wonder that fortune telling makes a study of the hands— they express more than any other feature except perhaps the eyes, what a person's life has been and what it may be. There are fragile, soft, slender hands, white from shadowed leisure, tipped with pointed, polished rose unted nails. Hands that never work, whose only excuse for being is their useless beauty. For they are often very beautiful, these delicate, lacy, oriental hands. But I know other sorts of lovely hands—lovely, because they show the charm and character of their possessors. Slender, supple, brown, hands, long fingered and sensitive— slim, tapering, artistic hands, delicately expressive—sturdy, firm, capable hands, with smooth, square tipped fingers—little, fragile, long-nailed hands, fluttering, wistful, futile— large, strong hands— small chubby ones. What do you want your hands to express? What do you want people to think about you when they see them? You want them for one thing—to see that you are a fine, fully and expressively, to show her poise and inner grace. Antone Senator And Hi'way Man Visit In Lubbock

Senator W. A. Williamson, of San Antonio, and Capt. L. G. Phares, of Lubbock, chief license and weight inspector for the State Highway Department, were in Lubbock yesterday.

While here the two met with a number of Lubbock automobile dealers for a conference and discussion of ways and means of closer cooperation in enforcing state highway laws.

Before he was elected to the state senate from San Antonio, Senator Williamson was actively identified with the automobile industry as a dealer and official of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association and has shown interest in automobile highway matters in the senate.

On several committees that have kindred subjects for their jurisdiction.

Your own senator, Pink L. Parsley, Williamson said, "is one of the outstanding leaders in the state. He has already exhibited considerable ability as a leader and is recognized by every other member of the body. Although this is his first term, personally, he and have become great friends. I am very fond of him."

Young 'Leggers' Youngsters Steal Home Brew

FT. WORTH, May 24. (AP)—Home brew, stolen from "mother's ice box" and sold to college students landed two Arlington boys, 11 and 13 years old, in juvenile court today. They were given two year suspended sentences and assurances of parental reprimand.

It was a good scheme while it lasted but went awry when college authorities heard rumors that students were spending allowance money for home brew. Three students volunteered to investigate.

They made arrangements to have a quantity of beer delivered, getting it from a cache on the campus. Then they went to another part of the campus to "pay off."

The two boys were arrested as they were accepting the money.

Floyd County To Have New Schools

New Brick Buildings Will Go Up During Summer In Muncy And Goodnight Communities

FLOYDADA, May 23.—Two new brick rural schools will be built in Floyd county this year if the desires of several of the citizens of the Muncy and Goodnight communities are fulfilled. Petitions calling for an election for a bond issue for the construction of a $4,200 building at Muncy and one for $10,000 at Goodnight have been presented to County Judge Wm. McGhee and the election date set for both communities. If both elections are successful there will be twenty-three brick rural school buildings in Floyd county out of a total of thirty.

In addition to the two new buildings that are likely to be built, an election has been ordered for a bond issue of $16,000 for the removal of the Sunset school from that community to South Plains, a new town built on the Fort Worth & Denver South Plains railway since the completion of that road into Floyd county. At present there is a $20,000 building at Sunset and if the bond issue is successful the building will be torn down and the material used in the erection of a new building at South Plains.

Educational facilities in Floyd County are already far superior to the average Panhandle county and the past few years there has been a steady increase in the interest in rural schools.

Murdered Visits At Grave Of His Victim In Dallas

DALLAS, May 24. (AP)—A murderer is supposed to revisit the scene of his crime and likewise might be impelled to visit the grave of his victim, Dallas officers assert.

Mrs. Bessie Lynch and Mrs. Cleo Lieto were slain near here Nov. 4. During the last week someone has visited Mrs. Lynch's grave, over which her mother had erected a stone marker with a photograph of the girl in a niche. The visitor chiseled away the stone and cement, stole the picture and left the protecting glass in fragments on the grave.

The Nut Cracker

By Joe Williams

Three titles changed hands in 3 boxing bouts the other night over in England. Many, many years ago there was a boxer in this country who lost his title, too.

The idea in silly old England is that when a champion loses a bout he also loses the championship. Oh dear!

The reason why the Chicago Cubs are up there while some of the other clubs have suffered dropsy has at last been given to the world. John McGraw and Jack Hendricks have solved the problem. McGraw says the Cubs lack pitchers and Hendricks says McCarthy's men are meat for right-hand heavies.

Harry Heilmann fell unconscious across the plate with the winning run for Detroit the other day. Most of the unconscious ball players we know don't score winning runs and don't fall down.

Joe Stripp is playing third base for Cincinnati. Hendricks is said to be considering removing him on Ladies' Day for fear he'll be down.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MAY 26, 1929

General Topic: God's Laws in the Heart. Scripture Lesson: Jer. 31: 29-34; John 1: 17.

29. In those days they shall say no more, the fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge.

30. But every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that eateth the sour grapes, his teeth shall be set on edge.

31. Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah:

32. Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith Jehovah.

33. But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith Jehovah: I will put my law in their inward parts, and in their heart will I write it; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

34. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know Jehovah; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith Jehovah: for I will forgive iniquity, and their sin will I remember no more.

John 1: 17. For the law was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ.

Time: Shortly before the final stage of Jerusalem in the tenth year of Zedekiah, B. C. 588.

Place: Jerusalem. Golden Text: Thy word have I laid up in my heart, that I might not sin against thee.—Ps. 119: 11.

Introduction

"The New Covenant." "The Book of Christianity" is the New Testament, but its real name—so given in the Revised Version—is "The New Covenant." For this is what "New Testament" means. The Old Testament is the story of the people of the Old Covenant, God's people with whom, beginning with Abraham, He made a solemn covenant that if they would obey him He would protect them.

his people. "Make thee guide-posts; set thy heart toward the highway; turn again, O Virgin of Israel. How long will thou go hither and thither, O thou backsliding daughter!" We can imagine the comfort and joyful expectation, as well as the sobering resolve, which these splendid sentences inspired in the Jews who were fitted to understand and receive them. This is preaching indeed.

"Children's Teeth Set On Edge." v. 29. "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." This was a popular proverb expressing a fact of common observation. It is certainly history, and true in the life of individuals that, as is said in the second commandment (Ex. 20: 5), God visits a man's iniquity upon the third and fourth generation of his children. Physical taints caused by sin are inherited, evil tendencies are passed on from parents to children. This is a restraining influence, established by the Creator in His kindness. If we would be sure our wickedness would go farther than ourselves, we should feel comparatively free to sin; but when we know that our guilt involves the innocent, will make life miserable for those we love, we think twice before we sin for ourselves and once for our dear ones.

Individual Responsibility, v. 30. "But every one shall die for his own iniquity; every man that eateth the sour grapes, his teeth shall be set on edge." This passage attacks a doctrine, which based as it was on the primitive idea of the solidarity of the tribe or nation, was widely prevalent. If any member of the body corporate sinned, his relatives were involved in his guilt. But this does not diminish the responsibility of the individual. Each one of us can rise above his inherited evil tendencies and the baneful circumstances that surround him, and live a righteous life.

"We have made a failure in life? Why? Not because our father was poor and illiterate, and gave us small advantages of education and a home without books or literary culture. Many a man has overcome all these difficulties and far more serious ones, and has made for himself a noble life."

"Weeping Rachel" Is Comforted. Jeremiah hears bitter lamentation from the grave of Rachel in Ramah. She is weeping for her children, lost, exiled, in sore distress. But Jehovah bids her dry her tears. "Thy children shall come again to their own border," the Lord promises. The passage is full of tender comfort. "Thy soul shall be satisfied with my goodness." "Every sorrowful soul have I replenished."

"Like as I have watched over them to pluck up and to break down and to overthrow, and to destroy and to afflict, so will I watch over them to build and to plant, saith Jehovah."

Jeremiah Warns the People. But with all this comfort and hope, Jeremiah interweaves strong words of warning and rebuke. The people have something to do to bring about their restoration and safety. God's favor and help are conditioned on their repentance and amendment. "Turn thou me," his people cry, "people cry, 'And I shall be turned.' "After that I was turned, I repented." And Jehovah bids:

During the campaign last year and since Mr. Hoover's election it was predicted that the reputed organizing ability of the former commerce secretary would be no guarantee of success in organizing congress behind administration measures.

The senate's vote on the debenture plan demonstrated that the same combination that made havoc of President Coolidge's policies is beginning to befall the well-laid plans of Mr. Hoover and the stand-pat wing of his party.

CHARACTER STUDY OF TOM HEFLIN REVEALS NO SENATOR MORE HATED; YET HE HAS MANY STaunch FRIENDS

By CHARLES F. STEWART Staff Writer for Central Press

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Probably no senator is so vehemently disliked, by folk who dislike him at all, which a lot of folk do, as J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama.

The curious thing is that Tom Heflin has a side to him which, when he chooses to turn it outward, is pronounced delightful even by some individuals who ordinarily regard him with the bitterest hostility.

Originally Heflin appears to have been an amiable man. Unofficially he is affable and accommodating still.

His fellow lawmakers make a break for the exits, almost in a panic, when Heflin gets up to make a speech in the senate.

His recent oft-repeated account of the so-called attempt to assassinate him at Brockton, Mass., continually interrupted the solons' farm relief debate, which they were eager to expedite.

Including his own, the Alabamian did muster 14 votes out of 96 in favor of his resolution reproaching the Brocktonians for the beer bottle which he asserted was hurled at him while speaking in their midst.

As the senate floor cleared, however, the galleries filled. Heflin evidently cared nothing whatever how much he annoyed his colleagues; he still had an audience.

Two in recent months I have heard the Alabamian's name mentioned on the senate floor—both times by members of his own party.

Having hit on what he believes to be a popular theme with the favored audience, Tom doubtless has been climbing gradually to greater heights—but testing every foothold as he clambers.

CRANBERRY POULTICES NOT MUCH HELP IN CURING ERYSIPELAS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Some people believe that poultices of cranberries will cure erysipelas.

If ever there was a burning red disease, it is erysipelas, known indeed by the population of an earlier age as St. Anthony's fire.

Erysipelas is one of the most widespread of diseases, since it represents the infection of superficial wounds by a germ that is exceedingly common.

However, healthy adults rarely die of erysipelas. New-born children usually die when this disease attacks the navel.

The tendency of most cases of erysipelas is to progress toward recovery and the physician usually treats the disease by the use of suitable antiseptic solutions and other methods to prevent its spreading.

When the Doctors Dick discovered that the streptococcus—the round-shaped germ that lives in chains—which caused scarlet fever, produced most of its effects on the human body by means of a poison which it developed in the body, they prepared an antitoxin against this poison.

Later, Dr. Conrad Birkhaug studied the streptococcus that caused erysipelas and developed an antitoxin which would attack the products of that germ.

Today many cases of erysipelas are controlled by the use of this antitoxin which seems to stop the disease promptly when it is given early in the infection.

The streptococcus is one of the most widespread of all germs and there are hundreds of varieties. The eminent bacteriologist, Victor C. Vaughan, points out that the streptococcus probably has a much longer history than man, and began its assaults on the animal kingdom long before there was any homo sapiens.

RICH GIRL & POOR GIRL & RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED MILDRED LAWRENCE meets STEPHEN ARMITAGE when he rescues her fox fur from a thief.

But she meant to thank Harold and she meant to thank Harold for the fox fur she had saved.

Harold had an inkling of what was to come, having no doubt that Mildred had read of Stephen's arrest. He thought it better to let Mildred have her way with no one about to overhear.

Stephen called Harold to his cell and tells his story, asking him to bring Pamela to see him. But she is busy trying to cover up the news of her engagement to a man who has been arrested and refuses to go near the jail.

Stephen scarcely could credit Mildred's statement with much importance, especially as she refused to tell him anything more about the "clew."

Harold found Harold at the Johnson. He was sticking close to home, having no heart for the society of others. He came down to join her in the lobby and when Mildred told him she wanted to have a serious talk with him they went to a deserted reception room where they could be assured of complete privacy.

Harold had an inkling of what was to come, having no doubt that Mildred had read of Stephen's arrest. He thought it better to let Mildred have her way with no one about to overhear.

Harold had an inkling of what was to come, having no doubt that Mildred had read of Stephen's arrest. He thought it better to let Mildred have her way with no one about to overhear.

Rich Girl & Poor Girl (Continued from page 5) But now that you are to throw me...

Rich Girl

But now that you know you're going to throw me to the lions," Mildred sneered and turned away from him.

"I'm not," Mildred said tearfully, "I want to help you both."

Harold wheeled back. "Then you know Huck Connor," he demanded hotly. "You can prove him as well as hell, but that won't save me. I tell you the man's a fiend off it, please Mildred, for God's sake."

Mildred shrank away from him, her face going white as parchment. "He is innocent. I must help him!"

Her decision seemed completely to serve Harold. He dropped down his chair again and his shoulders shook with suppressed sobs.

Mildred could not bear to look at him. When a few minutes later, he had his head to speak to her she was gone.

He immediately became obsessed with a desire to find her. He tore by from the room to scan the corridors, then he hurried to mezzanine and from there down to the lobby, attracting a little attention by his frantic inner and searching movements. But Mildred had gained the street and was out of sight around the corner on her way home, all right of seeking employment in her mind for that day. She wanted to be in her room, disturbed, to think Harold's large of broken faith hurt. There had been some way in which she had help Stephen without further pain. She had been given the one clue to Stephen's life that she held.

Harold did not allow her much to find a solution to the problem. Her innate loyalty offered a solution that she was homeward bound. He followed as soon as he had in a taxi cab.

For several days and nights after Harold dogged Mildred's footsteps, pleading with her to keep Stephen wondered at her changed attitude. She had promised to tell him only to reveal the man's name, yet she had revealed the man's name.

Her failure to decide against Harold made her stiff and self-conscious in Stephen's presence. She felt that she was not being a good girl. Consequently the spontaneity and warmth that had existed on her visit to his cell was lacking in others, though she did not fail to smile each day.

Stephen was cheered by her visits and by being conscious of a lack of understanding between them. He thought it was fine of her to come all and he told himself he could expect her to show a lot of enthusiasm over a guy in jail.

From Pamela he had received no word of interest in him. Mildred was torn with sympathy for him. Harold had told her that she considered the engagement null. Deep in her heart, Mildred experienced an exultant moment when she heard this, but she was dejected and pain-ridden eyes made her hate Pamela. A hatred she had not known harbored in her nature.

She did not speak of Pamela. Since when Mildred brought him unfolded papers and discovered a note that contained a photograph of Pamela and she saw his full reaction to it, she told her that she couldn't much longer continue to yield to Harold's entreaties.

Soon after that her troubles were eased. She got a satisfactory position as secretary to the president of a large merchandising firm, and she felt she was succeeding in the campaign she had undertaken to awaken Harold's sense of fairness to the point where he would let her reveal all she knew of the plot of Stephen's misfortune. She even had that Harold's moral courage and finally conquer his cowardice and force him to defy Huck.

Things he said, mere suggestions they were, indicated that his burden was becoming too heavy for him. He seemed placed in a hopelessness. Mildred believed that was only a question of a short time before he would see that it was not matter what happened to her so long as he saved the remains of his self-respect. When that came, Mildred was firmly convinced, Huck would be exposed as a plotter of Stephen's misfortune. She thought, at any rate, Mildred one day answered the telephone on her desk where she was placed and heard a gruff voice for Miss Lawrence.

"Miss Lawrence," she said, "who could be calling her?"

The man's next words sent a shiver of apprehension coursing through her.

WHAT BRUTES MEN ARE
OKLAHOMA CITY.—Despite the improvements which prohibition is alleged to have performed with men's morals, they still beat their wives, and should be put behind the bars for long sentences. District Judge Wyley Jones believes. "No justification can be found for a man striking his wife," the judge says. "Marriage contracts do not give the man ownership or the right to abuse."
