

MANY WITNESSES SAY MINISTER COULD NOT GET FAIR TRIAL IN ORANGE

SUPPORTED BY HIS MEMBERS

20 BAPTISTS DECLARE
FIXED OPINIONS EXIST

ORANGE, June 20. (AP)—Defense witnesses continued to testify today that they believed Orange county residents had been so greatly aroused by the slaying charged to the Rev. Edgar Eskridge, crusading Baptist minister, that he could not obtain a fair trial in this county.

More than twenty persons, most of them members of Baptist churches in this and other communities, said that a vast majority of residents of Orange county already had fixed opinions on the question of whether Mr. Eskridge was guilty of murder in the downtown slaying three weeks ago of Ed J. O'Reilly, police chief.

District Attorney Hollis Kinard, opposing the defense motion for a transfer of the trial, expected to begin offering his witnesses early this afternoon.

Ben Smith, a rural mail carrier, testified he believed the preacher was guilty and should be punished, but he did not think a fair trial could be had here.

"What opinions have you heard expressed during your rounds?" asked Kinard.

"Some thought there was a hidden motive," Smith replied. "Some thought he was driven to it, some that he was crazy, and some that there was a higher mind behind the crime were here."

"And what is your opinion?" "I think he was driven to it."

"And should not be punished?" Kinard inquired.

"No sir, I think he ought to be punished—just like he does."

The witness did not elaborate.

The Rev. B. P. Riddle, Baptist minister at Orangeville, near here, said he had heard about ten persons express the opinion that Mr. Eskridge was insane, and added "that they regarded anyone who committed murder as insane at the time of the act."

"Is that your opinion?" Kinard asked.

"There are varying grades of insanity," Mr. Riddle answered. "That is one type."

"That would apply to Clyde Barrow, John Dillinger or 'Baby Face' Nelson, would it not?"

V. H. Stark of the defense staff objected before Mr. Riddle could answer on the grounds the prosecutor was trying to prejudice those in the courtroom against Mr. Eskridge. Judge P. A. Adams permitted the question to stand, however, and the witness replied that he was of the opinion all slayers were insane to some extent.

Dr. J. D. Yates, members of the First Baptist church of which Eskridge was pastor, testified that he had heard the opinion expressed that Eskridge "ought to be strung from a forty-foot pole," sent to the electric chair or shot for life.

Hammer Beatty, deacon in the First Baptist church, said he believed the minister was insane.

"You think he's been insane for three months?" District Attorney Hollis Kinard asked, "and yet you kept on going to hear him preach? Are you on the board of deacons? You kept paying him—paid a carry man?"

Kinard, as was O'Reilly, was a member of Eskridge's church.

I Heard...

The wall of a state highway patrolman's siren as he went after a Panamanian who failed to obey instructions to go through the brake test lane. The officer came back with his man who meekly took the test—and passed. Testing of brakes should be welcomed. It might mean the saving of several lives right here in Pampa.

FDR'S PLAN TO TAX WEALTHY OPPOSED

Mitchell Again Blames Air Bureau For Crash

Bruno's Appeal Is Featured By Death Theories

Defense Claims Theory As To How Child Met Death
Was Changed Illegally.

TRENTON, N. J., June 20. (AP)—Argument on the appeal of Bruno Richard Hauptmann from his conviction of the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was completed before the court of errors and appeals today and the usual announcement of "decision reserved" was made. The 14 members of the court—five of them lay judges—will study the evidence and arguments during the summer and their decision will be given sometime this fall.

BY JAMES Y. LAWRENCE,
Associated Press Staff Writer.
TRENTON, N. J., June 20. (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's lawyers stripped his case of its emotional wrappings today and presented the core—the strictly legal aspect—to the state's highest court in an appeal from the Flemington verdict which decreed he must die for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

To the 14 judges of the court of errors and appeals, they presented a lengthy brief, citing numerous legal opinions to support their contention that Hauptmann did not receive justice in the crowded, old-fashioned Hunterdon county court house.

To the brief they added, in their appeal, three hours of oral argument, twice the time allotted to the state.

The Hauptmann brief laid its heaviest emphasis on the charge that the state had wrongfully used before the jury in the trial as to how the kidnapped child met death.

The burden of state's evidence, it said, was that the child had been killed when he was dropped from the kidnaper's buckling ladder. Despite this, the brief contended, Attorney General David T. Wilentz, summing up for the state, espoused an entirely different theory that Hauptmann had killed the child before removing him from his crib.

A week-old opinion of the court granting a new trial to a Newark negro was cited in support of this contention. Although the court did not rule on the point in that decision, it observed in its opinion that it was unfair to inject a new theory because it deprived the defendant of his right to cross examination on the new theory.

The brief further contended that the alleged varying death theories advanced by the prosecution contravened Hauptmann's constitutional rights to a fair trial. In this contention was seen the possible basis of an appeal to the U. S. supreme court in event of an unfavorable decision.

The brief, prepared by Egbert Rosecrans, C. Lloyd Fisher, and Frederick A. Pope, challenged the legality of many portions of the attorney general's summation at Flemington, termed the summation.

CLAIMS HANDS WERE TIED BY DANIEL ROPER

WITNESS IS CHARGED TO PRESENT
'FACTS'

BY PRESTON L. GROVER,
Associated Press Staff Writer.
WASHINGTON, June 20. (AP)—Attorney General Cummings today said the justice department will make a "full investigation" of charges of "inefficiency," "graft," and "favoritism" in departmental bureaus made by Ewing Y. Mitchell, ousted secretary of commerce, regardless of the outcome of an investigation by the senate commerce committee.

He acknowledged under sharp questioning by openly hostile committee members, however, that he had no actual facts to support his charges.

WASHINGTON, June 20. (AP)—An assertion that the lives of Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico and four others killed in a recent airplane crash in Missouri might have been spared if the commerce department's air commerce bureau had "functioned properly" was made today before a senate investigating committee by Ewing Y. Mitchell, deposed assistant secretary of the department.

He offered to present proof of his charges of inefficiency in the bureau to the special committee previously appointed to inquire into the crash.

Turning then to his accusations of laxity in the commerce department's steamboat inspection service, Mitchell declared there was a "possibility that if the steamship Morro Castle had been properly inspected" before she made the voyage that ended in fire at sea with the loss of a number of lives, "there might not have been a disaster."

He contended the ousted official had implied to the senate investigators that as a result of his complaints, two officials of the shipping board had been forced to resign.

Asked why he didn't "do something" about the conditions of which he now complained, Mitchell said, "I was much ignored as if I hadn't been in the department. I was ostensibly in charge but I had no power. But I can present memorandum after memorandum to show what I tried to do."

The former assistant secretary of commerce, appearing for his second day to testify in support of his charges of "apparent corruption" and "graft," in the department of commerce, ran at once into some of the same sharp questions he encountered yesterday from committee members.

"Give us the facts," Senator Fletcher (D., Fla.) demanded. Mitchell told the committee that last February 4 he filed 23 charges

Ousted By FDR

Threatening to stay in Washington "until I clean up this town," Ewing Y. Mitchell (above) of Missouri, was removed by presidential order, after more than nine months controversy, from his post as Assistant Secretary of Commerce. Revelations concerning conduct of certain bureaus of the Department of Commerce were expected to follow his ouster.

WASHINGTON, June 20. (AP)—Heavy damage to property and crops was caused by a severe wind and hail storm which struck the Silverton area about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. None was reported injured.

The Ed Graham welding shop here was demolished, half of the building being blown on the plant of the Briscoe County News. Numerous porches and outbuildings were destroyed.

A 4-mile-wide strip extending from east of Silverton to as far south as Ralls was hailed out. Wheat crops which were expected to make 15 to 25 bushels to the acre were obliterated.

Light and power lines, damaged by the wind, were being repaired today. Telephone and telegraph wires were out for several hours after the storm.

2 Cars Derailed At White Deer

WHITE DEER, June 20.—Two refrigerator cars on a Santa Fe freight train were derailed about 8 o'clock this morning when the engineer applied all available brakes in keeping the train from plowing into a car which drove onto a crossing near the station.

When the air was applied to the brakes, the train buckled near the middle, overturning two cars. The balance of the train remained on the track.

It took nearly three hours to clear the second line track for through traffic. Wrecking crews were dispatched from Amarillo to conduct the work.

The rest of the freight train was connected and proceeded east. Passenger traffic was not delayed. Both lines of track were expected to be cleared tonight.

Kenneth Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mart Murphy of Skellytown, was able to leave Pampa-Jarratt hospital this morning.

Fred Whitted, 21, two miles of Caprock store, dislocated left shoulder, forehead lacerations.

Luke Gree, about 18, right hip injury, possibly fractured pelvis.

Mack Sullivan, about 38, three miles east of Caprock store, fractured rib, severely lacerated scalp.

W. E. Ellis, Ralls cafe proprietor, severely lacerated right hand.

Crosby county this morning reported fifty families in dire need and asked for Red Cross emergency relief.

The tornado, accompanied by hard rain and hail, struck about 5:45 p. m. and raged for 45 minutes. Damage apparently was extensive on all sides of Ralls, which itself suffered considerable property damage and minor casualties. Seemingly the huge whirlwind was strongest in a several-mile area east of the Caprock store, 15 miles south of Ralls.

Rain extended about three miles west of Lorenzo and 3 to 3½ miles west of Ralls. Lorenzo is seven miles west of Ralls.

The number of persons hurt and the number of property losses were not known. The homes of Mr. Easter, who came to this area in 1927 and formerly lived at Albany, Texas, was killed instantly, his neck evidently broken. Mrs. Easter died soon after 1 o'clock this morning in an automobile on route to Lubbock. She had suffered a broken left leg, crushed left foot.

FISH WASHED FROM HOOVER LAKE SYSTEM

Two Dams, All Subordinate
Dams Destroyed After A
Waterspout On Ranch.

CANADIAN, June 20. (AP)—Thousands of game fish were washed away late yesterday when a waterspout, estimated to have brought nine inches of moisture in 20 minutes, destroyed two large dams and all subordinate dams on the Hoover-Strader lake system near here.

Fish were scattered over nearby prairies. Bass weighing as much as 10 pounds were picked up after the waters had receded. Fish not left on the prairie were washed into the Washita river.

The lake system, one of the largest in the Texas Panhandle, is on the H. E. Hoover ranch, 14 miles south-east of Canadian.

The heavy rainfall was confined to the lake section, only one-fourth of an inch being received here.

Centennial Plan To Be Discussed At Meet Tonight

With the rest of the Panhandle content to let Pampa splurge next year with another all-Panhandle Centennial celebration that would outline the 1935 event as such as this year's had the 1934 fete out-classed, citizens of the town will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the city commission room in the city hall to discuss preparation for observing the 100th anniversary of Texas Independence, and for producing the Pioneer Roundup and Panhandle Oil show.

All interested persons are invited to attend—old timers, business men, professional men, members of civic clubs, and persons who belong to no clubs. Members of the 1935 Pre-Centennial committees will be there, but they hope to sit back and take notice—hoping that the town as a whole will take charge of Centennial plans for next year. They believe that it is imperative to make the 1936 celebration a city-wide affair, not produced or managed by any one club or group but by the town as a whole.

Those who produced the celebration this year were breathing easy today. The celebration was not only a civic success but a financial success. The receipts were greater than the expenditures by more than $50.

Various suggestions for the 1936 celebration will be discussed tonight. Fry E. Duncan will preside. It has been suggested that a corporation be formed to stage the event; that exposition grounds be purchased; that the celebration last three days.

Action taken tonight will depend upon the number of people who attend, the unanimity with which suggestions are met. It is possible that a committee to make plans for next year will be appointed.

It is probable that the Pioneer Roundup will assume the general proportions of the 1934 and 1935 celebrations. It has been suggested that the Centennial feature next year be re-enactment of the fall of the Alamo in a huge pageant, and that the parade be staged at night with floats featuring lighting effects.

SPURNS ADVICE OF HIGH AIDES IN ASKING TAX

MANY LEADING DEMOS
PRIVATELY FIGHT
PROPOSAL

BY CLARENCE M. WRIGHT,
Associated Press Staff Writer.
(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, June 20. (AP)—The senate finance committee refused today to add any of President Roosevelt's wealth tax proposals in approving the house resolution extending $500,000,000 of nuisance and excise levies expiring June 30.

Higher taxes on the wealthy were proposed yesterday by the president in a special message to congress. He asked this action to reduce large incomes and to prevent concentration of great wealth.

Considerable difference of opinion existed as to whether he wanted the program passed this session. There was a clear implication he wanted most of it enacted before adjournment, but some leading democrats privately opposed this. The senate committee voted to extend the nuisance taxes for one year instead of two voted by the house.

It was indicated the committee majority would oppose the amendments on the floor.

Harrison expressed the belief the president's program could not be put into shape for passage this session.

He also said the president did not want his new tax program to interfere with the nuisance tax proposal extension.

The committee, on motion of Senator Gore (D., Okla.) voted to extend the nuisance and excise levies and four tariffs for one year.

Harrison said the one year extension was voted because "it is hoped that conditions will improve so much that we won't have to extend the taxes more than one year."

Harrison said action on the president's recommendations was up to the ways and means committee of the house, but he felt it would be "impossible" to do anything with them this session.

WASHINGTON, June 20. (AP)—Before congress had recovered from its surprise at President Roosevelt's call for share-hoopers, tax-cut confidants of the president passed the word today that he is considering a new and broad NRA designed to be, in a sense, a companion measure to the tax plan.

The tax plan, intended to break up great fortunes and reduce large incomes, was greeted by expressions of gratification from the "left" and criticism from the "right." It was presented to congress late yesterday with the presidential comment that it would encourage the "very sound policy" of a "wider distribution of wealth."

The revised NRA which the president is said to be considering was pictured by some of his advisors, who declined to be quoted by name, as an effort to increase mass purchasing power. Thus they said, it would be akin to the tax plan. That another "surprise" message on the subject might be forthcoming.

One Major "If" on NRA.
There is one major "if" on NRA. It was said. The plan may be recommended if the administration can find a definition of income tax which it considers satisfactory and able to stand the test of constitutionality. Authoritative sources said the president had remarked that he was inclined to believe congress could constitutionally define interstate commerce so the federal government could supervise some things over which the supreme court held the old NRA had no power.

The quest, it was said, is for words to define what the constitution means when it says congress can regulate commerce "among the several states."

Yesterday's tax message, it became clear today, was written and sent to congress against the advice of nearly all the high democratic advisers on capital hill. After counseling against such an idea some time ago, some of them had been predicting recently that no new taxes would be recommended. But

1,700 Automobiles Tested First Day Of Inspection

Hundred Tickets Are Issued; 85 Have Brakes Fixed

Slightly more than 1,700 automobiles passed through the test lanes here yesterday, the first of three and a half days during which the state highway test crew will be here checking brakes, lights, etc. The move is being sponsored by the Junior chamber of commerce and county officials.

It was estimated by the officers that about one car out of every 10 checked would stop within the required distance without locking and sliding one or more wheels. It is not a violation of the state brake law, however, unless the car will not stop within 40 feet while traveling at the rate of 20 miles an hour.

Out of the 1,700 cars checked, only 100 tickets were issued. Eighty-five of the persons receiving tickets had their car brakes adjusted and successfully passed the test. The 15 persons not reporting the second time will be given 24 hours before they are taken to justice court.

ITALY TO RESIGN FROM LEAGUE IF BOTHERED IN AFRICAN FUSS

ROME, June 20. (AP)—An authoritative source stated tonight that Italy will resign from the League of Nations if the league council interferes in the Italo-Ethiopian controversy on the basis of the protest sent Geneva today by Ethiopia.

(Ethiopia appealed to the League of Nations today against Italy, invoking article 10 of the league convention under which members of the international body are pledged to respect the territorial integrity of other nations.)

It was said that the Italian government does not regard the controversy with Ethiopia as being within the competence of the league. Ethiopia suggested that a neutral commission be sent to the frontier of Ethiopia, where Italy claims anti-Italian incidents have taken place, to examine the situation and report to Geneva.

A previous appeal by Ethiopia was made under article 15 of the covenant, providing for the settlement of international disputes by arbitration.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, June 20. (AP)—Local authorities said today that an incident in which an Italian flag was torn from an automobile belonging to G. Mombelli, first secretary of the Italian legation, was considered the simple misdemeanor of an individual.

The man who tore off the flag, it was stated, was drunk and is held in jail for punishment.

CLUB GIRL, HELPED BY HER PARENTS, MAKES ATTRACTIVE NEW BEDROOM FROM OLD ONE

Efforts Win Second Place In County Contest

The following story of her year's work is told by Joyce Dowell, 10-year-old member of Back 4-H club. She won second place in the county for her work in bedroom improvement. Her report follows:

During one of our club meetings Miss Ruby M. Adams, our home demonstration agent told us about the bedroom demonstration and the state contest for all club girls.

To have a bedroom of my own was one of my greatest desires. At once I saw that our agent's plan would fit into mine. I explained it all to my mother who was glad for me to do this and said that she and daddy would help me.

Our problem was which room would become mine as two of us had to sleep in the same room as we have only two bedrooms. Mother said that I might have her and daddy's room and they would take our room. I share my room with my 16 year old aunt.

It was a lot of fun to refinish my room to make it more comfortable for us. The room is rather small being only 9'x10' 10". Two windows each 2' 9"x4' 10". Three doors are 2' 6"x6' 4" high. Mother also said that she would rather that I had this room too as it was nearer the bathroom.

The room was painted a dull gray both the ceiling and the walls. The paint was used since it has sheet rock walls and ceiling.

I did not like this asked if we could not paint it a more cheerful color. We chose a nice green for the walls and on the ceiling we used some left over colonial yellow.

We refinished the floor in a light oak varnish and then put Spar varnish on top of this to make it wear longer and better.

Mother helped me to paper the walls of the clothes closet in white paper. I used this to make the closet lighter and help to keep the moths out. I put in another shelf and painted with white enamel. On one shelf I put a white oil cloth.

One morning I said, "I will hurry home from school and make my shoe rack." When I got home daddy had it all ready for me to varnish. He made me a hat rack, belt rack and a thread rack. I am sure daddy got tired of my using his rack and that is why he was so eager to make me all these racks. I put the belt and thread racks on the inside of the closet door.

I was to use the same furniture that was in the room and since it was dark oak I asked mother if we could not refinish it too. She thought that since the walls were green that old enamel would be pretty on the chest of drawers, dressing table, bed that were to be in there. I helped mother paint the furniture.

For the bed spread we made a green candlewick tufted in white with a few green tufts. I am very proud of this spread.

For my study table daddy used scrap lumber gathered here on the oil lease. All we had to buy was nickel's worth of screws. I varnished it with some of the light oak.

I purchased two pairs of new curtains for my windows. Miss Ruby Adams, agent, suggested white since there was so much color in the room. They cost me $1.16. They make the room seem so cool and clean.

I told mother that I should have a laundry bag and that question was solved by taking a heavy sugar sack and I cut a hole in the front and bound it with some bias print. By twisting some twine string we made a stout cord to hang it up.

I made one pair of pillow cases, two dresser scarfs, dolly for the bedside table, all were decorated with a simple design of bermeida fagoting. The whole set cost me 33 cents and is valued at $1.95. I am so happy about them as they are very neat and yet simple.

Mother helped me to make two pairs of pillow cases, 4 sheets, a mattress pad. Mother gave me 4 face towels, and 4 wash rags.

I have always had a dresser drawer to keep my things in but have never kept things so that I could easily find them. Miss Adams suggested that I organize the drawer by using little paste board boxes or tins. I use one box for hose, one for beads, and another for handkerchiefs and so on. It is surely a good plan to keep things in order.

I lacked two things in my room to make it complete. I needed a waste paper basket, and a chair. I found an old cane bottom chair that mother had thrown away and made a cushion for it and then I had to purchase a waste paper basket for $1.10. I did not have time to make it. I am very proud of my room.

BRITISH MOVE TO DISPOSE OF FRENCH FEARS

EDEN GOING TO PARIS TO CONCILIATE FRENCH

BY ALBERT W. WILSON,
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 20.—The British government today took up the two-fold task of appeasing French fears regarding its naval agreement with Germany and of seeking an immediate decision of the powers concerned regarding a western European air pact.

Capt. Anthony Eden, minister for the League of Nations relations, was given his final instructions by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin at a private conference before his departure this afternoon for Paris.

Shortly before this meeting, the prime minister received General Joachim von Ribbentrop, Reichsfuehrer Hitler's emissary, and discussed with him the prospects for adapting various drafts of proposed air pacts into one agreement.

Captain Eden, who is accompanied by William Strang, the foreign office expert, will remain in Paris at least two days in discussion of the general European situation with Premier Pierre Laval and other French ministers.

The next move in the naval program will be talks between the French and English at London. These already have been tentatively arranged, but the most important question Captain Eden will put to the French is whether they are willing to sign a five-power air pact—including Germany, Italy, and Belgium, as well as France and Great Britain—for mutual assistance and limitation of forces prior to decisions regarding other Anglo-French proposals.

These proposals, made last Feb. 3, were intended for the appeasement of Europe, and included Danubian and Eastern European pacts and Germany's return to the League of Nations.

In view of the present French criticism of the Anglo-German naval agreement on the grounds it violates the Feb. 3 proposals on the principle that all the proposals should be settled simultaneously, France is expected to greet the idea of a separate air pact coldly.

U. S. Will Try To Return Texas From Red Camp

MOSCOW, June 20 (AP)—The United States embassy bent its efforts today toward returning to the United States Ernest Elmer Baker of Menard, Texas, who is in a Soviet detention camp near Minsk and is enjoying it.

Baker, a 38-year-old bricklayer, was arrested for illegal entry into Russia, after walking into Russia to convert the Bolsheviks to the "right way of living," but only recently did word of his plight reach the United States.

Secretary Angus T. Ward went to the camp immediately in an attempt to aid the Texan.

Ward said he found Baker in excellent spirits, with plenty to eat and comfortable quarters, praising the treatment he has received from the Soviets.

The secretary said Baker told him he left Texas February of last year, worked his way to Europe and set out afoot for Russia to preach his ideals to the Bolsheviks.

LONG EXULTS SKEPTICALLY OVER FDR'S SHARE-THE-WEALTH PLAN

WASHINGTON, June 20 (AP)—With considerable skepticism, Senator Long (D-La.) today welcomed President Roosevelt "back to the field" of his "share the wealth" movement.

Accompanying the executive's tax message, Long told reporters that "if he'll come along and actually bust every big fortune in America, we'd be out of the depression in 24 hours."

"But bear in mind," said the Kingfisher, "the burnt child dreads the fire."

"I'm afraid this message came so as to turn the public's mind from the horrible exposures made by Mitchell, his former assistant secretary of commerce, on the gifts and bounties ordered by Mr. Roosevelt for the Astors and their associates."

"I fear that when the boom over these exposures subsides, it will be the end of Mr. Roosevelt's talk about decentralizing wealth. That's been our experience with him in the past."

At what he declared was the discomfiture of certain democratic leaders over the message, Long dictated a statement promising his assistance in getting the tax measures through congress.

He turned Roosevelt when saying: "Forty-eight hours ago they defeated my amendments to the social security bill which would have accomplished the purpose he talks about today. What has converted him?"

"I'm afraid, in view of the fact that he has confessed to such conversions so many times—but I pray the God above me that this man will go straight this time, regardless of what has caused him to do so."

"I will back him with every might and main in this purpose. It can all be accomplished within 72 hours. I have already presented the plans to congress. If he waits others to do the same thing, we can get them up in 24 hours."

day, was said to be that the new Anglo-German naval agreement, permitting Germany to build a fleet 35 per cent as large as the British, really cancelled the Washington and Versailles treaties and the spirit of the London Declaration of February 3, entered into by Great Britain and France.

It was claimed the Washington treaty had been violated in "spirit," but that this was equivalent to juridical abrogation because the treaty "guaranteed naval security to the signatories"—the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France, and Italy—and that the creation of a German fleet, by impairing France's sea security, relieved her of obligations under the Washington limitation.

The violation of the Versailles treaty, said French officials, was considered "obvious" because it specifically defined a German fleet.

The common front against Germany as devised February 3 in London was deemed to be broken but, although the French said they considered the British action "regrettable," they also said they hoped care would be taken "not to alienate the British," saying that France would to repair the damage and eventually line up Italy and England in air pacts and other accords.

SECURITY ACT TO BE REVISED IN CONFERENCE

PENSION BILL PASSES BOTH HOUSES OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, June 20. (AP)—Though President Roosevelt's gigantic social security program has now passed both houses of congress, one major controversy remains to be fought to a finish.

Brushing aside scattered cries of "unconstitutional" the senate approved the bill yesterday, 76 to 6, but before it did so, it lacked on the Clark amendment under which pension systems set up by private concerns would be exempt from the taxation provided in the measure.

So the bill now must be thrashed over in a conference of senators and representatives to see what shall be done about this and some other amendments. Aside from these changes the giant measure, which entails the largest tax program ever swept through congress, is generally in the form in which the Roosevelt administration desires it.

Senator Clark (D-Mo), author of the exempting measure, contended, with other senators, that if companies with approved private pension systems had to bear the federal taxes, the private systems would be destroyed. Then, they said, if the supreme court should knock out the government plan, the workers would be without any protection. Some friends of the Roosevelt measure answered that the amendment would destroy the federal system. They contended that employers would take care of the younger men, who have a longer active life expectancy, and shunt the older workers to the government, thus breaking down the government reserve fund.

The bill, which contemplates eventual expenditures of $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 annually, would offer $15 a month for each $15 contributed by states, for needy persons over 65 or needy blind.

Provide benefits of $10 to $85 in contributory old age pensions. For this employers and employees would, by 1949, be taxed 3 per cent each on wages up to $3,000 a year. Taxes would begin at one per cent each in 1937.

Tax employers of 4 or more persons one per cent next year and 3 per cent by 1938, on their payrolls for unemployment insurance. They would get credit for 90 per cent of this if paid into a state insurance system. States would determine benefits.

Provide for aid to dependent and crippled children, maternal and child health work, and other welfare efforts.

First Load Of 1935 Wheat Is Sold At Vernon

VERNON, June 20. (AP)—The first load of 1935 wheat was sold here Saturday, June 15, by Marion Rhoads, who lives seven miles southeast of this city. Mr. Rhoads received a cash premium of $25. The wheat graded between 58 and 59 pounds and is estimated to make about 26 bushels an acre. It was received 15 days later than the first load last year.

Roosevelt Willing To Be Classed As Economic Radical

WASHINGTON, June 20. (AP)—In his tax message President Roosevelt indicated he was quite willing to be classed as an economic revolutionary.

Linking present-day conditions with problems facing the revolutionary fathers of 1776, he criticized the perpetuation of large fortunes on the ground that they concentrate "undesirable" economic control in a "relatively few individuals."

"Such inherited economic power," he said, "is as inconsistent with the ideals of this generation as inherited political power was inconsistent with the ideals of the generation which established our government."

Salt Lake 'Sea Shell' SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—An asparagus plant which had grown into the shape of a large sea shell was found by Milton Carlisle while irrigating his farm near here. The resemblance is so strong as to interest local naturalists.

Hail And Rain Damage Growing Things In Area

Moisture amounting to .70 of an inch fell here yesterday afternoon between 4:30 and 5 o'clock. The heavy rain was preceded and accompanied by hail which did some damage to wheat and flowers.

The rain was beneficial to farmers, who reported that their wheat was burning up. Many farmers said that the wheat straw was already burned as much as six inches from the ground. Row crops also were helped.

Hail did much damage in the Kellerville area, in Wheeler county, and lesser damage extended west to within a few miles of LeFors. Cars parked in the streets of Kellerville and nearby were battered by huge hailstones and windows in stores and houses were smashed. Refineries in the area, and as far west as the Colteco No. 2 refinery for miles east of LeFors, lost hundreds of windows.

A truck driver for the Colteco company, enroute to Kellerville, was stopped about 10 miles from the latter place by hail which had filled the highway. He picked up a hailstone at random and drove back to the gasoline plant where it was weighed. The hailstone still weighed 10 ounces after its long drive. The driver said many of the stones were larger than the one he carried back.

Not only were car tops damaged in the hail area, but several hoods and fenders showed marks of the barrage, which lasted for several minutes. The hail was followed by a hard rain and streams in the area were filled with rushing water.

inflammatory, and charged Wilentz in cross examining Hauptmann "browbeat, bulldozed, belittled and chastised" him. Numerous portions of the trial record were cited to support the charge.

It also attacked the testimony of Amandus Hockmuth, octogenarian, who testified he saw Hauptmann near the Lindbergh estate, and attacked the credibility of Millard Whitfield and Charles B. Rossiter, who also placed Hauptmann in the vicinity.

Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenehard, presiding judge, was attacked in the brief on the grounds that he "impaired a free verdict and impressed upon the jury his conclusions, as to the evidence and imposed upon the defendant an unauthorized rule as to reasonable doubt." The brief charged likewise that he failed to charge the rule as to the weight of handwriting testimony, and ignored a number of request charges offered by the defense.

The brief attacked the expert value of Arthur Koehler's wood testimony, and the value of Lindbergh's identification of Hauptmann's voice. It charged Dr. John F. Condon, random payment intermediary, did not testify truthfully and fairly, and that the testimony of John Perrone, Bronx taxi driver; Al Reich, Condon's bodyguard, and other state witnesses was confused.

entences on each count. Aaron was charged in connection with the burglary of Fort Worth and Denver at LeFors and Denworth. The Rock Island station at McLean, Aaron had previously been sentenced to 10 years on a plea of guilty to robbing Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Enfield of LeFors.

Lee Trimble pleaded guilty to burglary charges in connection with the entering of the same three stations. His sentence was also set at years in each case.

A third man, W. J. "Jack" Jordan, pleaded guilty to burglarizing 30 stations at LeFors and Denworth and Judge Ewing set his sentence at three years in each case. Trial of Lee Newton, charged with driving a car while intoxicated, was called this morning.

Her 2-year-old daughter, Wanda 13th, in her arms, Mrs. Teston was and in a comatose condition in a sear near her home. The child was reported unharmed. Delmer Dial, out 30, braved the storm's fury and carried them to shelter. Mrs. Teston and her husband were taken to a sanitarium in Lubbock.

Another community, Owens, 9 miles south of Ralls, was hard ruck, although no serious casualties were reported there. The tile roof auditorium was blown down, a gymnasium damaged extensively, and a store and two houses virtually demolished there.

MARKET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, June 20. (AP)—Another selling wave unsettled the stock market today but, after an early sharp decline, support appeared for various sections of the list. The reaction was attributed partly to technical influences and partly to bearish interpretations placed on the president's share-the-wealth tax program. The close was somewhat heavy. Transfers approximated $70,000 shares.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 20. (AP)—Cloud-bursts reported at places in the Kansas and Oklahoma wheat harvest region led to late advances of grain markets today.

Corn and oats prices were even more bullishly influenced by reports of excessive rains than was the case with wheat. Indications pointed to reductions of corn acreage in the leading corn states.

Wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent higher. July 80% - 1/2, corn 1/2 - 1/4 up, July 81 1/2 - 3/4, oats 1/2 - 1/4 advanced, and provisions varied from 15 cents decline to 5 cents gain.

ROOSEVELT

The president, it was said authoritatively, wrote the message without their knowledge, and sent it to the capital in a hurry so pressure would not be brought on him to withhold it.

Tax Plan.

The message suggested: 1. Inheritance, succession and legacy taxes in addition to those now levied on estates, and suitably higher gift taxes to prevent avoidance of the other levies; 2. A "definite increase" in present taxes on "very great" individual incomes; 3. Graduated corporation income taxes ranging from 10 3/4 to 16 3/4 per cent instead of the present flat 13 3/4 per cent;

4. "Elimination" of "unnecessary" holding companies in all lines of business; 5. Submission and ratification of a constitutional amendment permitting the federal government to tax future issues of state and local securities and allowing state and local governments to tax future federal securities.

The president pictured the fourth point as something to be done "ultimately," not at this session of congress. There was some doubt in the minds of many congressional leaders as to how pressing the fifth point was considered. Most agreed, however, that the inheritance, gift, higher bracket income and corporate income taxes were offered as "ought" legislation and probably "must."

Chairman Harrison (D., Miss.) of the senate finance committee did not express enthusiasm about the tax program. There was a possibility that it could be added as an amendment to the $502,000,000 "nuisance" tax extension measure now heading for the senate floor.

Harrison, however, said he hoped that would not be done, declaring that unless the nuisance taxes were extended most of them would expire June 30 and the government would lose around $1,500,000 a day in revenue.

Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) of the house ways and means committee was apparently more optimistic. He called his committee to meet today for a discussion of the message.

The forecasts were almost unanimous that if the taxes were left to the house committee, long hearings would be necessary, prolonging the session indefinitely.

Generally, the tax plan drew praise from those democrats who commented and from some republicans, with other legislators contending that it would retard recovery.

For instance, Senator Neely (D., W. Va.) called the message a "life-saver for democracy" and Senator La Follette (Pro. Wis.) said it was "a splendid message" while Rep. Snell of New York, the house republican leader, termed the message a "stump speech," said the president was "trying to get the jump on Huey Long" and predicted that the plan would "retard the improvement hoped for this summer."

Senator Norris (R., Neb.) said the program "suits me 100 per cent both on the inheritance tax and the corporation tax." Rep. Martin (R., Mass.) described it as "not the kind that will be helpful to recovery at this time."

There was no immediate comment on the president's contention that wealth "does not come merely from individual effort" but "from a combination of individual effort and of the manifold uses to which the community puts that effort."

The subject of budget-balancing was touched upon in one part of the message. It said that money raised by the new inheritance taxes should be applied "to the reduction of the national debt."

Specific tax rates, except for corporation incomes, were omitted from the president's suggestions. Therefore, the general conclusion was that he was willing for congress to work out the schedules itself. But talk was revived about a plan submitted to the senate finance committee by Secretary Morgenthau.

Suggesting that $300,000,000 to $600,000,000 could be raised annually, Morgenthau proposed that the present income tax rates be applied to inheritances and gifts to pay the soldiers bonus—in case congress passed the bonus. Present income rates range from 4 per cent to nearly 63 per cent.

The president himself proposed nothing more definite on individual income taxes than increases for higher brackets. He said that a man with a $6,000 income pays twice as much as the man with $4,000 while the man with $5,000 pays at the same rate as the one with only $1,000.

That illustration, however, was not interpreted as meaning the president had closed the door to increases in rates on lower brackets.

At any rate, tax experts generally agreed that imposing high inheritance taxes certainly would break up huge fortunes. They calculated that under the Morgenthau schedule, if a fortune of $15,000,000 was left to one person it would shrink to less than $3,000,000 by the time all taxes were paid.

Before the senate finance committee met, Senator La Follette

(Prog. Wis.) announced he would attempt to tack on an inheritance tax and higher sur-tax and corporation income taxes.

Chairman Harrison expressed hope this effort would not be made. He said he believed it would endanger adoption of the house resolution before the nuisance taxes and tariffs expired.

Democratic leaders indicated privately the president's program was so extensive and required so much study that it should go over until next year, despite the fact that 1936 is a campaign year.

Tax drafting experts estimated it would take at least a month to frame a bill to carry out the president's program. Democratic members of the finance committee contended the congressional session would be prolonged six weeks if new taxes were pushed now.

INSPECTION

The highway officers, assisted by local officers, will continue to work on Kingsmill avenue west of Somerville street today. Lanes will be laid off on Tyng street, east of Cuyler street, and the crew will move to that location tomorrow. The test will end Saturday.

Boy Scouts and volunteer workers are assisting the officers by pasting the OK stickers on windshields of cars and passing out city traffic rules and regulations printed on cards.

MITCHELL

against Admiral H. I. Cone, a shipping board member, based on asserted revelations by the Black ocean mail investigation committee.

The charges were filed, he said, in spite of warnings it would get him "in bad with the president" if he pressed them.

Cone retired from the board 30 days later, Mitchell said, adding: "I understand there was pressure to get him to resign."

"Taking up another case, Mitchell declared J. W. Barnett, an official of the shipping board bureau, also had resigned after charges of "favoritism to steamship companies" were filed against him.

He charged that Barnett accepted passes for his family from the United States Lines and the Baltimore Mail Line. Both companies, Mitchell said, "were large debtors to the construction loan fund of the United States shipping board, the administration of which Mr. Barnett, as director of the bureau of construction and finance, had supervision."

Secretary Roper, who came to the hearing prepared to answer Mitchell's charges involving the commerce department, at times smiled as his former subordinate pounded the table.

SHOP DEPARTMENT ENLARGED

The gift department of McCrory's jewelry store is being enlarged, and Mrs. M. O. Fickett has been employed to take charge. She formerly held a similar position with a Fort Worth jewelry shop. New stock is being added to the department.

Miss Johnnie Davis left today for Evanston, Ill., to enter Northwestern university for a special summer course in journalism. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. W. L. Davis, who will spend several weeks in Evanston and Chicago.

A patent was issued for fish hooks using mirrors instead of bait—to arouse the fighting instincts of the males, while "in the case of a female fish the attractiveness of a mirror is too well known to need discussion."

PAMPA TOWER OF OUR CITY

Attended Convention

City Manager C. L. Stine and Fire Chief Clyde Gold returned last night from Oklahoma City where they attended a joint session of the Southwest Fire Chief's association and the Oklahoma State Firemen's association. Organize for major disasters was the keynote of the convention. Speakers suggested that fire departments throughout the nation organize to handle a crisis, since it is the fire department which is usually first on hand.

Ranchmen Face Best Prospects, Bankers Report

SAN ANGELO, June 20 (AP)—Prospects of prosperity for ranchmen are the best in years in West Texas, visiting bankers declare.

J. J. Thomas, vice-governor of the federal reserve bank, told bankers and ranchmen here recently that he believed general rains and 25-cent wool had brought a solution to most of the ills of the West Texas range country. Mr. Thomas, on a tour through the producing sections of the nation, predicted 35-cent wool by fall.

A tour of 4,500 miles in Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico and Texas has convinced Dwight P. Reardon, president of the federal intermediate credit bank of Houston, that the outlook for all classes of livestock is the best in three years. He said the feed crops of the nation can now almost be guaranteed. He expects numerous orders for feeder lambs and feeder calves in West Texas this fall.

"On my last trip to West Texas I found a severe drought," he said. "Merchants were long faces; cattle, sheep and goats rattled their bones as they walked. Now I find a rose bowl of prosperity with livestock values marked up and the outlook unusually optimistic."

Abe Mayer, president of the Texas sheep and goat raisers' association, believes that better wool and livestock prices are certain this fall. Mr. Mayer advised ranchmen to refuse current prices offered for wool and livestock.

"Efforts will be made to buy wool at low prices," he said, "but ranchmen should hold their clips. It is my prediction that the United States will be importing wools before the end of the year."

14.8 Per Cent Of Texas People Are On Relief

AUSTIN, June 20 — The Texas counties representing all sections of the state made up the list of those which boasted a relief load of less than five per cent of their population during April. Taking the state as a whole, 14.8 per cent of its people received some kind of public aid and the total relief load consisted of 225,529 cases. The ten counties with the best records were Hartley, Winkler, Upton, Reagan, Crockett, Kennedy, Kleberg, Lavaca, Fayette, Smith.

The first time in many months, no county reported as many as 40 per cent of its residents on relief, the highest being 38 per cent. Only six counties reported more than 30 per cent of their people receiving aid during the month. These were: Harris, Bexar, Travis, McLennan, Potter and Wichita in the group ranging from 25 to 30 per cent, while Jefferson established claim to the best record among the larger counties by being listed within the 5 to 10 per cent group. The state's case load continued to decline and was lower than at any time since July, 1934.

Library Building Asked At Canyon

CANYON, June 20—A two-thousand dollar library building will be asked by the West Texas State Teachers college of the public works administration. Dr. J. A. Hill, president of the college, left tonight for Fort Worth to make formal application for the building. The new library building as planned will be a three story structure and will be located north of the Panhandle-Plains society museum. Its architectural design will harmonize with the museum building. While in Fort Worth, Dr. Hill will make arrangements or advertising for bids for other buildings to be erected under the PWA. These include an addition to Cousins Hall, a practice house for the home economics department, and ten cottages for students.

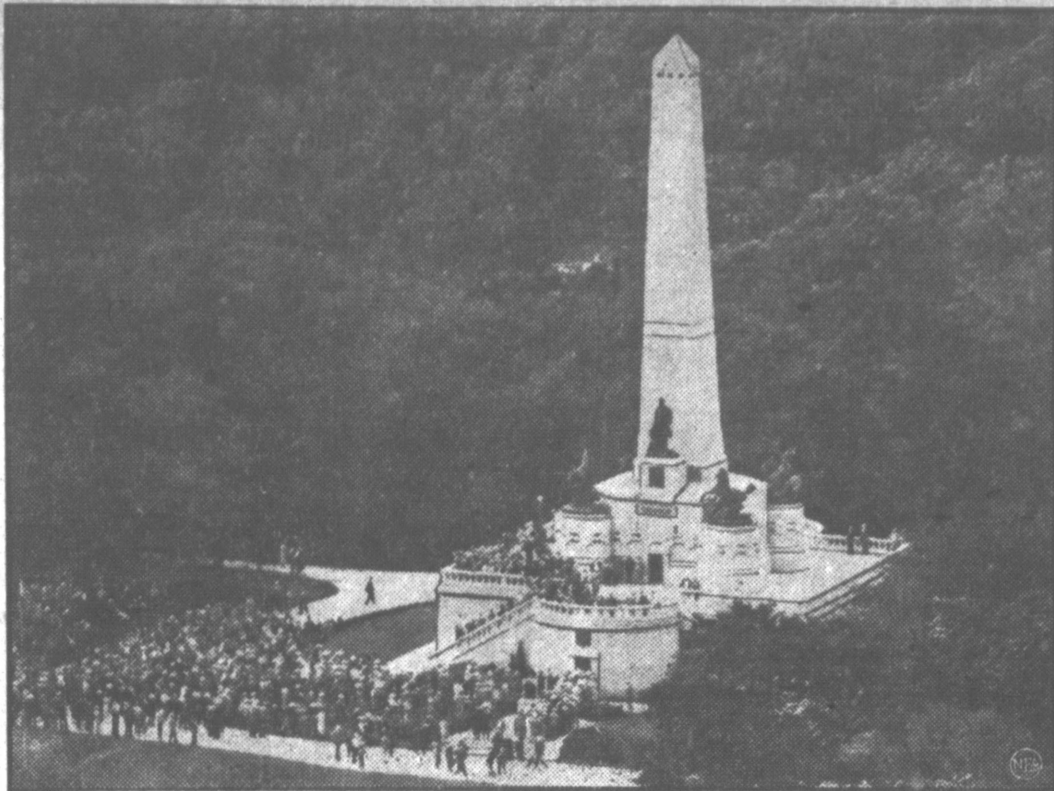

The boys' dormitory, a PWA project, now under way, will be completed in time for use during the fall semester of this year.

ALMA MAMMY PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Among those present at University of Pennsylvania commencement exercises were two guests known to police as David Dobrowsky and Joseph Cohen, of New York.

Detective Thomas Doyle, who knew them by sight and arrested them, charged they were systematically congratulating the graduates with one hand and searching the graduates' pockets with the other.

Mexico's export trade in cantaloupes and melons, competing with those shipped from Texas, New Mexico and the Imperial valley, is assuming important proportions.

G. O. P. Turns Back to Lincoln for Guidance

Lined in majesty against its background of trees, Abraham Lincoln's tomb was the mecca for Republicans, turning for inspiration back to the martyred president as they gathered in Springfield, Ill., in their "grass roots" convention. Shown here is the throng which made the pilgrimage to the tomb for a memorial service during the convocation, at which speakers continually dwelt on the principles of Lincoln in calling for the return of Republicans to power.

Summer Sweethearts

CHAPTER 23

Michael said nothing for the space of five minutes, during which Katharine drove furiously. She drew into a side road—a sort of lane, blocked from the main road's view by a screen of apple trees. She had had a picnic here with the Mersey children only the week before.

She shut off the engine. After its steady hum the silence was almost deafening. Half a city block away the roar of a steady traffic on a main artery sounded. But here there was the humming of bees in a clover field. And quiet. And a man in the seat beside her, waiting for her to speak.

"Well, what is it?" Katharine had the queerest feeling that she had lived through this scene some time—some place—before. Perhaps in a dream. Her brows drew together in a frowning line.

"Do you think we can be seen from here?" She threw a glance back at the road from which she had come.

Michael shrugged. "No. But why?" She plunged into her story.

"Michael, there are men after you. Down in the village. They've badges—detective shields—or something."

"Detectives?" If he were guilty of some unnamed crime, he maintained a bland air. But hadn't she heard somewhere that criminals are like that?

"Michael!" She felt a sudden fierce rage possess her. That he should be so calm, while she had rushed so madly to warn him—Don't you understand?" she cried.

"I rushed to tell you—so that you might get away."

"You did that?" His voice sounded odd—almost choked. He was staring at her strangely.

"Yes, and you must run for it," she said on a note of relief and terror, now that he understood. "You mustn't let them get you. Have you any money? If you haven't I can get some from the bank. I'll drive you over to Marmion—the through trains stop there. You can start west."

"No matter what I've done or what I'm running away from?" he asked.

"No matter what!" She was firm about that. There was not a single question in her mind, not an argument to be met. She, who had never broken a single law in all her 20 years, now advised this man to flee. It was as simple as that.

"Thank you, Katharine." It was the first time he had ever called her by her name in that way; naturally and simply. Her eyes, quite involuntarily, filled with tears. She turned away to hide them.

"Don't . . . That old, old pain should be beginning again—why, that was unbearable. She had thought to conquer it for all time."

"You're very good to me," he said, low-voiced. His lean, brown fingers closed over her wrist. Her hand lay in his clasp quite unresistingly.

"It was the least I could do," she managed to say, in the silence. "I can't tell you how it makes me feel," he went on, very gently. He had squared about now to face her. Unwillingly she lifted her eyes to his. There was a split second—and then she was in his arms, her face crushed against his shoulder, against the cloth of that worn tweed coat she knew and loved so well.

There was only this moment of weakness. Then the girl pulled herself away.

Katharine wrung her hands together. "We're wasting time. Already those men are at the school, looking for you. What are we to do?"

Michael's eyes held her. "You do love me a little, Katharine?" Her name was like a caress on his lips.

"Do you suppose," blazed the girl, "do you imagine for one single minute I'd be here if I didn't?" Her barriers were down now. She flung the words at him as if in furious anger.

"God help me, I do love you. And you're going to marry another woman. And there are detectives after you. I would get myself into a hideous mess like this, when there are millions of fine, decent men I might care for."

"You don't think I'm decent?" "You can't be?" she retorted. "Engaged to one girl—making love to another. Running foul of the law. Why, I must be half mad to think of you, even."

"I adore you when you're like this," the man exulted, staring down at her. "Once I thought you were so cool, and aloof but now—"

"Now? What do you think of me now, Michael Heather?" "I think you're marvelous."

Tall, fair-haired girl in white linen, lean, sun-tanned man in tweeds and riding boots, they faced each other almost like enemies. Katharine's breath came thick and fast; her blue eyes were wide and dark with excitement.

"Well then, if you think I'm marvelous," she taunted, "do something for me! Get away before those policemen catch you. I shouldn't like that. Nor Sally Moon either."

"I will, on one condition." His nearness was like strong wine to her. She had never felt so fiercely, pulsatingly alive. It was as if an electric current burned between them.

"Have you any money? I would let you anyhow."

"I was until five minutes ago—" "I can't lift a girl, Michael Heather. It isn't in you. I would not let you anyhow."

Her eyes blazed at him. "Oh, wouldn't you? Engagements have been broken before this—"

His face was dark; his eyes flashed stormy lightning.

"You did that?" His voice sounded odd—almost choked. He was staring at her strangely.

"Yes, and you must run for it," she said on a note of relief and terror, now that he understood. "You mustn't let them get you. Have you any money? If you haven't I can get some from the bank. I'll drive you over to Marmion—the through trains stop there. You can start west."

Securities Are Defined Under New Texas Law

What Is Security? Under the new Texas law regulating the sale of securities, the term includes any form of stocks, bonds, mortgage certificates, or any form of commercial paper, any certificate in or under a profit sharing or participation agreement, lease or royalty interest in an oil, gas or mining property. In addition there are many lesser known forms of securities.

The Texas securities law which replaced the old Blue Sky law, on May 23, 1935, is broad in its definitions of what constitutes a security, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann.

Before purchasing any form of security, such as those named above, the buyer should determine if the person doing the selling has registered with the secretary of state. Emphasis is placed on the fact that in no case does the state guarantee or endorse any security.

But registration is not the extent of responsibility on the part of the seller. Under the law he may be held accountable for representations as to fact made in the sale of a security.

Who is he? Can I depend upon his word? Is he registered and licensed? These are the questions that you should have answered to your complete satisfaction before buying stocks, bonds, oil leases, royalty or any other form of investment securities from a salesman—particularly when the salesman is a stranger. That's the advice of Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann, administrator and chief enforcement officer of Texas' new Securities Act.

Designed to curb the fraudulent and crooked seller of securities, the new law requires every security dealer, agent and salesman to be registered with the state. Any citizen may determine for himself if the salesman is registered by writing to the secretary of state. The records are open to the public.

The state does not propose to guarantee or endorse any stock, held accountable for representations as to fact made in the sale of a security.

SCIENTIST CALMS FEAR OF DUST STORMS

With the threat of widespread dust storms allayed by recent heavy rains, it is comforting to sit back and listen to a less hysterical view of the situation than that shouted to the country by various experts a few weeks ago, when the menace was at its height.

Such view is that of Dr. J. W. Humphreys, of the U. S. Weather Bureau, who discounts the dire prophecies of America's great grain belt turning into a vast unproductive waste.

Only a complete climatic upheaval such as the one that occurred centuries ago to transform fertile North African lands into the Sahara could leave our midwest a desert, the scientist avers.

That transformation came through countless ages while Europe was emerging from its ice cap, and involved great shifting of air currents to new courses as the ice melted beneath the northern ranges.

Therefore, as long as the frozen north remains frozen, Humphreys declares, no radical climatic change is scheduled for this country—and he adds that, though the ice probably will melt there some day, such happening is unlikely for the next 5,000 or perhaps 10,000 years.

So it seems, if we take this brighter view, that the prophets of gloom might well seek a new field in which to play their Jeremiah roles, while government officials and farm leaders go intelligently about their task of combating erosion and other factors giving rise to the dust menace.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—What the galleries laughed at during Senator Huey Long's all-night filibuster:

MR. LONG: A chicken snake will swallow every egg in the nest and then crawl through a rail fence and break the eggs, so as to get the benefit of the nutrition. May I ask senators if they will make known to me, by whatever sign they can without my losing the floor, whether or not they have read the decision in the chicken-coop case which was before the United States Supreme Court? I see only one hand raised and that is the hand of the senator from Idaho (Mr. Borah).

MR. BONE: I missed that quotation.

MR. LONG: I knew the senator would finally be converted. "There is more rejoicing in heaven over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety-and-nine just persons, which need no repentance."

MR. BONE: I feel myself weakening. I do not know how long I shall be able to stand up under it.

MR. LONG: Ephraim is joined to idols; let him alone.

MR. ASHURST: "His idols!"

MR. LONG: No, it does not say "his idols." It says "Most people think I am a Catholic and am talking here tonight to keep people from the Shriners' parade. I want it understood that it is not so. I am a member of the Baptist Church."

MR. LONG: Of course if those in the galleries approve of what I say it will be all right for them to write me a nice letter. In case I should run for office you can enclose a little contribution for the next campaign.

We are getting a better crowd here. The word has got around that I am making a marvelous speech. . . . Let us preserve that custom which makes every man here call every other man here a learned senator: whether he knows he is or not.

The chair ought to look at me. The chair cannot be hurt any more by looking at me than I am by looking at the chair. . . . Mr. President, I demand order! I demand order! I demand order!

MR. LONG: "... arguments pro and con affecting the Constitution, I state—Mr. President, what is that bug that just lit on my arm?"

MR. McCARRAN: By any chance, could that have been a chinch bug?

MR. LONG: It looked like a chinch bug to me, very much like a chinch bug. It came in here and attacked me! . . . You have to do lots of stirring and lots of mixing in any good cooking. It takes work to be a good cook. . . . I am at peace with the world. . . . Just a little sleep. It is now 2 o'clock.

MR. LONG: Senators have not drunk any coffee to keep awake. They think they have drunk coffee. That stuff is nothing but slop. If senators had ever had a cup of coffee down in Louisiana. . . .

MR. LEWIS, on the 6 a. m. roll call: It is now 6 o'clock in the morning and I cannot announce absent senators as being at the departments. In this emergency I am compelled to admit that many of them have not been able to rise to the occasion. I therefore merely announce they are necessarily detained.

BARBS

In London, J. P. Morgan auctions off his collection of 95 miniatures. That Senate knee-dangling incident probably turned him against things in midget size.

Perhaps the reason Mr. Hoover didn't show up at the "grass roots" meeting was that he was misled by the name and got lost on some city street.

If Huey resents senators yawning during his filibusters, he might resort to some stop-gap legislation.

The parole system, it seems, allows a criminal to pay his debt to society on the installment plan.

Los Angeles girl being buried alive for 90 days taking along book on aviation to pass the time. If she ever takes a stratosphere trip, we can recommend some good books on mine-drilling.

It's too bad, in one way, that the Sing Sing baseball team has reformed. What a wow he'd be at stealing bases!

"Green Pastures" will be filmed. Weather reports will probably determine whether the players, on location, will use divers' suits or dust masks.

Flag Insulted In Addis Ababa, Italians Claim

ROME, June 20. (AP)—The foreign office was informed today that an Ethiopian aviator tore an Italian flag from an Italian legation automobile in Addis Ababa Tuesday night and attacked the chauffeur.

The automobile was that of G. Mombelli, first secretary of the Italian legation to Ethiopia.

The affair was stated to be regarded as a diplomatic incident, resulting in the Italian minister filing a strong note of protest with the Ethiopian government.

The dispatch to the foreign office from Addis Ababa said that Mombelli had driven to a motion picture theater and that his automobile, occupied by the chauffeur, was parked out in the street when the affair occurred.

The aviator was said to have come up to the car, shouted imprecations against Italy, and then tore off the tricolor flag. The chauffeur protested and the aviator is alleged to have assaulted him.

Police, said the dispatch, immediately intervened and arrested the aviator.

It was indicated the alleged insult to the Italian flag was regarded as a diplomatic incident, resulting in the Italian minister filing a strong note of protest with the Ethiopian government.

FISH ESCAPES—JUST IN TIME. A fisherman in the town of Woodville, La., is telling the tale of the fish that caught the fisherman's attention. Woodville is a small town with an artificial stream and hooked a big trout. Reeling in the fish, he reached into the water to lift it out. It gave a lurch and embedded one of the minnow hooks in Wood's arm.

Wood said he began to grow faint and feared he would be pulled into the water and drowned. But the fish gave another lurch and freed both itself and Wood.

VAN CRAMM IS SEEDED SECOND AT WIMBLEDON

Tournament Officials Springs Surprise In Ratings

LONDON, June 20. (AP)—The tournament committee for the Wimbledon tennis championships, opening next Monday, springs a surprise by seeding Errol Liddell, von Cramm of Germany No. 2 in the men's singles behind defending champion, Fred Perry of England.

Von Cramm's high position in the draw reflected his consistent play both this year and last.

Jack Crawford of Australia was seeded No. 3, followed by H. W. (Bunny) Austin of England, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, Sidney Wood of New York, Roderich Menzel of Czechoslovakia and Christian Boussus of France, in that order.

Germany also gained second position in the seeding for women's singles. Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling, who recently won the French title after defeating Helen Jacobs, the American title-holder in the semi-finals, was rated just behind Dorothy Round, the English star, and defending champion.

Miss Jacobs was seeded No. 3, followed, in order, by Helen Willis Moody, former world's title-holder who is attempting a comeback; Mmes. Rene Mathieu, France; Katherine Stammers of England, Margaret Scriven of England, and Joan Hartigan of Australia.

Allison and John van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., twice winners of the doubles title, were top seeded in that division followed by Crawford and Adrian Quist, Jenn Bosatra and Gene Mako, the youthful American combination.

For mixed doubles, von Cramm and Frau Sperling were topped by Martin Legay of France and Mme. Henrotin; Perry and Miss Round; and Allison and Miss Jacobs.

The draw puts Perry and Menzel in the first quarter, and Allison and von Cramm in the fourth.

The draw for the first round in men's singles will send Van Ryn against Don Turnbull of Australia; Wood against E. Ich of Japan; Donald Budge against Vivian McGrath of Australia; and Gene Mako of Los Angeles against D. H. Jones of New York.

HAUPTMANN IS CONFIDENT OF A NEW TRIAL

CONVICTED KIDNAPER IS NERVOUS BUT CHEERFUL

TRENTON, N. J., June 20. (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann sat alone in his death house cell today while his lawyers took to New Jersey's highest court his appeal from conviction of the Lindbergh baby slaying.

Hauptmann's confidence that the court of errors and appeals would grant him a new trial remained unshaken after his four months' wait within the shadow of the electric chair. He was nervous as the hour of argument of his appeal approached, but his counsel found him cheerful.

More months of waiting—three or four—will follow the hearing, while the 14 members of the court study the ten-volume record of Fleming's trial and weigh the prosecution, of the defense and the prosecution. A decision, either sustaining the conviction ordering a new trial, was not expected until September or October.

Egbert Rosecrans and Frederick A. Pope planned to divide the three hours allotted them for the defense argument, basing their contentions on "manifest errors" which allegedly developed during the six weeks' trial and on the blanket declaration that the conviction was contrary to the weight of the evidence.

The state, with Attorney General David T. Wilentz as spokesman, marshaled arguments to sustain the conviction.

Huge Skeletons Found In Valley

HARLINGEN, June 20. (AP)—A number of over-sized skeletons found on the Adams tract west of here when an irrigation system was constructed are believed to be those of Carankaway Indians, a race of giants that once inhabited this part of Texas.

The skeletons reveal that the men were from four to six inches taller than the average man of today. The Carankaways, a primitive tribe of grasshopper-eating Indians, were said to have been abnormally tall. They also lived on seafood but are said to have been of so low a type that they lived in the brush like animals, not building shelter of any kind.

Volney Smith, engaged in constructing the irrigation system, estimates that portions of 35 skeletons have been uncovered. Since the ditches cover only a small portion of the tract he estimates that there are many more.

WILL DISCOVERS HIS OLD PARTNER IN COWBOY ACT

HOLLYWOOD — Ever so often, for the last 17 years, Will Rogers has wondered to himself what intimation happened to Buck McKee.

Buck and a little show horse named Teddy were the "and company" of the vaudeville act of "Will Rogers and Company" for five years.

Will found Buck the other day. On a movie location trip on the Sacramento river, Will ran across his old partner, McKee, who now owns a riding academy near Roseville, Calif.

Rogers was full of his and Buck's reminiscences when he returned to Hollywood. McKee, he says, is the first man who really started him talking to his audiences and "all them other stories ain't so." Will gives full credit to McKee for getting him on the "right track."

Urged Will to Talk

"It was just 30 years ago that Buck and me started out together at Hammerstein's in New York," Will says, "and we kept going for five solid years. The only lay-off we had was making out two trips to Europe."

Rogers said McKee used to make wisecracks at him from the wings. Whenever Rogers answered, "almost sotto voce, the first two or three rows of people would hear him and laugh. A theater manager asked Will to talk louder, but he was afraid to try. Meanwhile, for months Buck went on leading the horse Teddy, and Rogers continued to rope it. When McKee and the horse left the stage, Rogers would do his rope twirling."

"Finally I had a trick with two ropes that no one seemed to understand," Will recalls, "so I decided to explain it. The first time I tried it, everybody laughed and I thought they were 'booin' me."

Buck tried to get met to talk again, but I refused."

McKee recalled to Rogers the time in a German theater when Will roped a fireman, standing in the wings, and pulled him onto the stage. They both had to spend half the night apologizing to the Berlin fire department for this insult to its dignity.

"Buck used to brag about me being the best long distance roper in the game," Rogers went on, "but down in South America they made a sucker out of me. Why those fellows in the Argentine throw a rawhide lariat out into space somewhere and drag back a cow and sometimes a calf with her."

Rogers invited McKee and Mrs. McKee, a chorus girl when Buck married her in 1905 just after joining Rogers to come to Hollywood to visit him. But Buck said he had too many horses to attend to and anyway, he said he thought Will would be too busy with these new-fangled movies to be bothered with any more company than he has now.

Girl Assessed 30 Days In Jail For Shooting Chinese

Weeps When Verdict Is Read; Victim Leaves On Trip

TAHLEQUAH, Okla., June 20. (AP)—Thirty days in jail is Miss Lois Thompson's penalty for firing two bullets into Daniel Shaw, young Chinese classmate she pursued across the Northeastern Oklahoma Teachers college campus March 27 to begin a bizarre "extortion note" mystery.

The co-ed did not betray her wretched emotion when the jury's verdict was read in district court last night, but her family's condolence soon brought tears. The jury had set the penalty in convicting her on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Shaw was not present in the old court room. After waiting several hours to hear the verdict, he had left in mid-afternoon for Honolulu to visit relatives and "regain my health complete."

The girl will be sentenced Monday by Judge O. H. P. Brewer. W. W. Miller, her chief counsel, said he was not certain whether the case would be appealed.

On the angle of the extortion notes, which the girl said so frightened her that she shot in fear of her life, "intending to kill him," the trial brought out merely an assertion by prosecutors that her sister, Leila, wrote them, and a flat counter assertion from the sister that she did not.

Waleys Indicted By Tacoma Jury

TACOMA, Wash., June 20. (AP)—Several courses were open to Harmon Waley, ex-convict, and his wife today as they prepared for arraignment on federal charges growing out of the kidnaping of nine-year-old George Weyerhaeuser.

A federal grand jury after a quick appraisal of the government case yesterday indicted the Waleys and their fugitive co-defendant William Mahan, for violation of the Lindbergh kidnaping law; conspiracy to kidnap and using the mails for sending extortion notes.

Under federal court procedure, the Waleys, said by department of justice agents to have confessed the kidnaping, may plead guilty immediately and be sentenced forthwith.

District Judge E. E. Cushman, however, might ask to hear testimony tending to show their individual parts in the case, in which case they might be tried before a petit jury next week. Also the Waleys might ask for time in which to plead.

If the Waleys decide to stand on the "not guilty" pleas they entered when arraigned in commissioner's court on holding charges recently, they are expected to be rushed to trial, probably next week.

Doctor Told Her How To Lose 17 Pounds Of Fat

Gossipers Peeved

Mrs. Robert Hickey of Roseville, Calif., writes: "My doctor prescribed Kruschen salts for me—he said they wouldn't hurt me in the least. I've lost 17 lbs. in 6 weeks. Kruschen is worth its weight in gold."

Mrs. Hickey paid no attention to gossipers who said there was no safe way to reduce—envious women who don't like to see others youthfully slim. She wisely followed her doctor's advice. Why don't YOU?

Get a jar of Kruschen to-day (lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle) and if you don't lose 12 lbs. and feel years younger and healthier—money back. Simply take half teaspoonful in cup of hot water every morning (tastes like juice of half lemon added). For sale by Richards Drug Co., Inc., Patheco Drug Stores, or any drug store.—Adv.
