Service had been made on three of the six indictments returned Thursday by the 31st district court grand jury, up to early this afternoon.

Bond of W. M. Bain, charged with drunken driving, has been set at $1,000. Date of the alleged offense is given as March 29.

Jimmie Simmons, charged with theft in connection with the alleged breaking into a building of G. P. Risley on April 21, has had his bond set at $1,500.

Simmons and Bain are both being held in county jail. Clyde Durham, negro, posted $1,000 bond today on an indictment for theft that alleged Durham on April 1 took two suits valued at $60, nine shirts valued at $11, and a hat valued at $5, from the store of Siler Faulkner Jr.

The other indictments made by the grand jury Thursday consisted of two indictments, each on charges of drunken driving, and one indictment on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property.

No other indictments had been made by the grand jury in its session today, up to early this afternoon.

Saturday will mark the end of the first week of the May term of the 31st district court. No cases had been set for today, and the courtroom was vacant this morning.

The office of the district clerk and the court reporter had no information as to any cases set for today, beginning of the second and first criminal-jury week of the term.

Liner Prepares To Return 917 Jews

HAVANA, June 2 (AP)—The German liner, St. Louis, took on fuel and provisions to start back to Germany today with 917 German Jewish refugees forbidden to set foot on Cuban soil—an order backed up by a threat to tow the vessel outside territorial waters with a gunboat.

The refugees, most of whom had hoped to land pending entrance into the United States, thronged the decks of their floating "prison," women walling at the growing indications of enforced return to the land from which they had fled.

Efforts were made to keep the passengers unaware of the actual sailing orders for the most of the ship, Captain Gustave Schroeder, had expressed fear of a "collective suicide pact."

Cuban marines were held in readiness for any emergency that might arise in carrying out President Federico Laredo Bru's order that the St. Louis leave Havana.

The refugees were forbidden to land because they lacked Cuban consular visas, passports and labor department permits.

President Laredo Bru yesterday ordered the vessel to leave "within the day" but this order was extended to 5 p. m. CST, today to permit the ship to take on stores.

Well Spacing Discussed By Oil Operators

Should the Panhandle oilfield adopt 20-acre spacing while the plan was under the present drilling methods was the topic of discussion at a meeting of major oil companies and independent companies in Amarillo Wednesday afternoon.

All of the major companies and two or three independents favored the 20-acre spacing while the plan was opposed by the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners association of which Lynn Boyd of Pampa is president. E. J. Dunigan Jr., of Pampa, was principal speaker for the independents with Don Knowlton of the Phillips Petroleum company, Bartlesville, spokesman for the majors.

The wider spacing plan was discussed at the last annual meeting of the Panhandle group and a committee was appointed to investigate its possibilities. That committee unanimously voted against the plan.

Court Grants Four Divorces In First Week

Four divorce decrees, and two child-adoption cases were among the judgments filed during Wednesday and Thursday in 31st district court here, as the first week of the May term neared its close.

Divorces were granted in these cases: Dorothy Haralson vs. Wilton Haralson, E. R. Eddy vs. Kathleen Eddy, B. D. Wallin vs. Myrna Bell Wallin, and F. E. Horner vs. Leota Horner.

Other judgments included: U. H. Hall, individually and as next friend vs. Harwell Hall vs. Gibson Machine & Tool Co., and W. C. Shipp—plaintiff is to receive $1,100 and costs of suit, sum named to be apportioned $850 to Mr. Hall, $250 to Harwell Hall.

The case was a companion suit to another recently settled. An automobile accident near LeFors a year ago in which Joe Manson was killed was the basis of the cause of action in both cases.

Frye Held Up 3 Times In One Week In Same Place At Drumright

Ben Critchlow, A Little Guy, Showed The Big Fellows In Oklahoma What A Little Man Can Do! Kiefer Called Toughest

By THE ROVING REPORTER

John D. Frye, your present grand jury foreman, was held up three times in one week in the same place in the Drumright, Okla., field. Each time the hijacker got next to nothing but the third time he warned the tall, brown-eyed drifter that he'd better have something on him next time or take a pistol-whipping.

Every night somebody got beat up with a pistol by hijackers, so the next day Mr. Frye got $25 and put it in a special place on his body—for the hijackers, but they never ran across him again. Now a lot of oil field workers talk that story, but it really was the truth with Mr. Frye.

Yep, it was pretty tough at Drumright, with all the hijacking, the killings, the gambling, the dance-hall brawls, but it was not nearly as tough as the oil field of 1906 and 1907. Wild women made place tough, said Mr. Frye. One time the laws came down from Tulsa and shipped out five box cars full, said Mr. Frye.

Mr. Frye started dressing tools at Fairview, W. Va. He has drilled in Oklahoma, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Texas. Mr. Frye, now a pumper for Magnolia, was named foreman of the Grand county jury last Monday by Judge W. R. Ewing. He takes a keen interest in the preservation of law and order, and has been a valued member of the grand jury several times. He is known to grand jury members as a keen investigator.

Borger Highway To Be Dedicated Here On June 23

All roads will lead to Pampa and Borger June 23. The entire membership of the Texas Highway commission, the state highway engineer, and hundreds of Panhandle county and Chamber of Commerce officials are expected for the official dedication of the Borger-Pampa highway, J. M. Collins, chairman of the highway committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, announced today.

The road dedication program has been set for June 23 at the suggestion of officials of the Texas Highway commission and department and members of the legislature to allow time for adjournment of the legislature so that members of the legislature who worked with officials of Borger, Stinnett, Dumas, Pampa, and other Panhandle towns may be present for the ceremonies.

Definite plans for the highway dedication have not been made with the exception of the setting of the date. Part of the ceremonies will be held in Borger and part in Pampa, it has been decided.

Among the officials invited include the following: Brady P. Gentry, Tyler, new chairman; General Robert Lee Bobbitt, San Antonio, member, and Hon. Harry Hines, Wichita Falls and Dallas, member of the Texas Highway Commission; Julian Montgomery, Austin, state highway engineer; Senator Clint C. Small, Amarillo; Reps. Eugene Worley, Shamrock; Max Boyer, Perryton, and Jack Little, Amarillo; Jim Douglas, Amarillo, division engineer, and W. J. Van London, Houston, former division engineer of the highway department and other officials.

All county judges, county commissioners, newspaper editors, and Chamber of Commerce officials of the Panhandle will be invited to the dedication of the road which was labeled about two years ago as "Panhandle Project No. 1."

The date of June 23 has been agreed upon as the logical date and it is expected that the entire commission and the ranking officials of the department will attend.

O'Daniel Signs Pension Measure

AUSTIN, June 2 (AP)—Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, who campaigned last summer on a platform of more and higher old age pensions, today signed a bill expected to add fifty or sixty thousand old folks to Texas pension rolls.

The new law received sufficient majorities in both branches of the legislature to go into immediate effect. This was the last day for the governor to act on it.

The measure greatly liberalized the old age pension statute. It provided that a person past 65 could qualify for assistance regardless of whether his children were able to support him. He likewise would be eligible even though he today's home and had a $1,000 life insurance policy, cash up to $300 and personal property up to $1,000 if single or $1,500 if married.

The governor's action put squarely up to the federal social security board the question of whether it would match state money under a more liberal plan. Texas already is near the top of the list of states in the number of persons on the pension rolls in proportion to population.

Admiralty Says 94 Entombed In Sub

(By The Associated Press) The British admiralty had difficulty today determining the exact number of men aboard the sunken submarine, Thetis.

The craft had not yet been delivered to the admiralty, and those aboard included seamen, officers, technicians, builders' representatives and observers.

Although the submarine had been down more than 24 hours and four men had escaped to aid rescuers, the admiralty this morning could place the figure at nothing more definite than "from 79 to 100."

Then about mid-day the admiralty placed the figure definitely at 79, at about 2 p. m. (7 a. m. CST) changed it to 87, altered this about an hour later to 96, and then within half an hour announced the figure as 94.

Kidnaped Baby Found In Home Of Young Couple

PHILADELPHIA, June 2 (AP)—A blonde, 21-year-old woman arrested on a charge of kidnaping five-month-old Gerald McCrohan from his carriage was quoted by Detective George Myers today as saying she took the child to replace her own who died.

The officer said the girl was un- Booked as Beatrice Wood, she told this story of the abduction after her arrest this morning with a man Myers found with the missing boy.

A son was born to her last March. He died, but she kept the news from his father.

When he demanded to see the boy, she stole baby Gerald from his carriage while his mother stopped in a butcher store, went to the father and told him the child was theirs.

The girl poured out her story in a police station. She was arrested with a man booked as Frederick Bauers, 23, Detective Myers said he followed the girl from a drug store where the officer had been inquiring about recent purchases of baby food.

Another detective found Bauers sitting in a park about two miles from the scene of the kidnaping. The baby was in the man's arms.

"That's my baby—thank God he's safe!" Mrs. Margaret McCrohan gasped when she saw the child. Then she fainted.

Gerald's father and mother also identified the infant. The child's mother, Mrs. Margaret McCrohan, 30, had promised the kidnaper there would be no prosecution if the baby were returned. Police said they believed the child had been taken by a motherless woman.

The child, Gerald McCrohan, was carried away in full view of his four-year-old sister, Marjorie, who had been left to watch over him while his mother entered a butcher shop diagonally across a street from a police station.

Mrs. McCrohan was hurrying through her shopping, anxious to get the baby home for feeding, when Marjorie ran into the store crying: "Mommie, the baby isn't in his coach any more. A blonde lady took him."

Sailor Being Taken Back To California

Navy Experts Confident All Can Be Saved

Davis 'Lung' Escape Plan Abandoned To Preserve Air

LONDON, June 2 (AP)—The British Admiralty announced tonight a strong tide had carried the submarine Thetis completely under water and forced temporary suspension of attempts to cut a hole in the stern, which had been exposed, to rescue 90 men.

At the same time the Admiralty said it was not clear why use of the Davis escape method had been abandoned in the submarine and after only four had reached safety.

Admiralty officials earlier expressed belief the Davis escape method had been abandoned to preserve the waiting air supply for those still awaiting rescue.

Commenting on the escape of the last two of the four men who left the vessel early today, the admiralty said:

Those two survivors reported that the remainder of the crew were thrown about to the Davis escape apparatus and it is not clear at present what had prevented further escape by this method.

BIRKENHEAD, Eng., June 2 (AP)—Rescue crews rushed preparations today to cut holes in the hull of the submarine Thetis in a race against time to save 90 men still trapped in the craft and nearing exhaustion of their air supply.

Four of the 94 men aboard when the vessel was abandoned, climbed to the mud 130 feet deep in the Irish Sea yesterday had come to the surface strapped in oxygen rescue masks.

C-C Asks Repeal Of Profits Levy

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—A spokesman for the United States Chamber of Commerce suggested today imposition of a flat rate normal corporation tax of 15 per cent and outright repeal of the undistributed profits tax.

The proposal was presented to the House Ways and Means committee by Ellsworth G. Alvord, vice chairman of the business organization's committee on federal finance. It concluded a recommendation for a specific credit of $2,000 to reduce the corporation tax on small incomes.

Both treasury and congressional tax experts have been studying the question of revising the present tax system in the interest of removing levies considered obstacles to business improvement.

The Chamber of Commerce spokesman appeared before the committee at a time when a meeting between President Roosevelt and a group of top flight business leaders had given vigorous new impetus to discussion of business improvement.

The President met eight industrialists at the White House last night. Means of breaking the log-jam of investment capital, it was understood, provided a major topic of conversation.

Mrs. Evans was believed to be the first woman to swim the canyon. She and her husband started in an upper end of the canyon with two inflated inner tubes, but hers was punctured by barbed wire.

As electric refrigeration has become more popular the demand for ice cubes has continuously increased. With the exception of early morning coffee all drinks served are more appetizing and zestful when they contain ice cubes. Even water served with and between meals is more attractive when it contains two or three ice cubes.

With electric refrigeration there is no ice cube worry. Electric refrigerators all have large freezing compartments that freeze their full capacity of ice cubes between two meals . . . no matter how hot the weather . . . assuring you of an adequate ice cube supply.

You will also enjoy an electric refrigerator because even in the hottest weather they stay cold inside . . . always below 50 degrees, the critical danger point.

AAA To Boost South Plains Soil Saving

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has revised its soil conservation program in 26 counties of the southern great plains to encourage greater use of farming practices found most effective in combating wind erosion.

The revision will give farmers increased credit toward benefit payments on land left to small grain stubble, sorghum stalks or other natural vegetative cover.

Farmers planting within acreage allotments will be entitled to $7.20 per each unit of soil building practice. This payment is exclusive of that allowed for restoring land to grass. Formerly, the rate was $5 including the grass restoration payment.

Under the revision, three acres of the sorghum practice will be counted as one unit. Formerly four acres constituted one unit.

The counties affected by the revision included:

Kansas—Greeley, Wichita, Hamilton, Kearny, Stanton, Grant, Morton and Stevens.

Oklahoma—Cimarron and Texas.

New Mexico—Quay, Harding, and Union.

Texas—Dallas, Hartley, Moore.

Officers Exhume Body Of Luling Abortion Victim

SAN ANTONIO, June 2 (AP)—Investigation into the death of Mrs. Martha Wilma Anderson by San Diego, Calif., officers centered here temporarily this morning. The four San Diego officers returning William Bouldin, Luling, Texas, youth, 16, California to face murder charges arrived here early today. Traveling with the party was J. W. Rhodes of Lamesa, Calif., father of the 16-year-old girl. Bouldin had waived extradition proceedings last night after the California officers, accompanied by Assistant Attorney General Ben Woodall of Texas, had grilled him about his knowledge of the young woman's death.

The most dramatic moment in the investigation, launched on May 25, when California authorities learned that Mrs. Anderson, said to have been estranged from her husband, had been buried in Waelder, Texas, as Mrs. Bouldin occurred late yesterday. With Bouldin's parents looking on impassively, the authorities, headed by Deputy District Attorney William Makely of San Diego, exhumed the body of the girl in an attempt to determine if she had died as the result of an alleged illegal operation.

An autopsy was performed at Luling by Dr. F. E. Toomey of San Diego.

Questioned by officers up until an early hour this morning, Bouldin reiterated his defense that he had known nothing of the girl's illness until he found her at a doctor's office May 5, officers said.

The young woman's body was to be reinterred today in Waelder, the father announced, after he had "positively identified" as that of his daughter. The young woman had previously been buried at the Luling cemetery on May 8 as Mrs. Martha Bouldin. It was reported.

instead of halting drainage, he argued.

"About the only ones who want this bill passed," he said, "are Haggy, Arrington and Marsh (Panhandle gas operating partnership). Ninety-five per cent of these people in the Panhandle oppose it."

Worley agreed today the bill apparently was dead for the session.

"What I have been striving for the past several years," he said, "is a market for all persons with gas on their lands and a fair price for that gas. We now have neither of these conditions."

had been abandoned to preserve the waning air supply for those still awaiting rescue.

The fore part of the Thetis, lying nose down with all but 18 of her 265 feet underwater, was flooded and her occupants were believed to be weakening gradually as the air deteriorated in their cramped quarters.

Latest reports, however, said all still were alive and had sufficient air to last until about midnight (6 p. m. CST).

Steel cylinders filled with compressed air had been lashed to her stern.

Rescue efforts were speeded up on the outside.

Naval experts hurried preparations to cut holes in the fin-like tail of the Thetis, glinting above the surface while her nose lay in the mud.

They hoped to cut the holes above water at low tide early this evening, to release foul air and permit fresh air to be pumped in.

It was hoped eventually one hole could be widened so the trapped men could be released through it.

The number still imprisoned was placed at 86 with announcement that in addition to 58 officers and men of the Thetis' crew, there were 26 men from Cammell Laird, Ltd., her builders; three employes of Vickers-Armstrong, Ltd., engine manufacturers; one pilot and two civilian caterers.

The admiralty disclosed that the forward part of submarine, including the forward escape hatch, was flooded. All but 18 feet of the tail was submerged.

Ordered To Escape

Admiralty officials explained that the Davis escape system probably had been suspended because each time it is used it lessens the amount of air in the submarine and also lets in a small amount of water.

One war or another, admiralty officials were confident all would be saved, and until a decision was reached about attempting a mass rescue, officers and men were ordered to escape two at a time in their oxygen masks—the Davis "lung" device.

The destroyer Brazen first discovered the Thetis' stern at 8:20 a. m. (1:20 a. m. CST.) far out in Liverpool Bay and soon small, fat-bellied rowboats led down from a ring of warships bobbed around the big gray tail. Experts clambered up her sides and tapped out reassuring messages to the men below.

First to reach the surface were Capt. H. P. K. Oram, commander of the fifth British submarine flotilla, and Lieut. H. G. Woods. They had climbed a steel ladder into the submarine's aft air lock and fastened on their Davis "lungs" waiting for equalization of pressure which would permit them to escape.

The "lung" apparatus looks something like a gas mask. Thick goggles cover the wearer's eyes, plunger his nose and a wide covering fits over the mouth with a tube carrying oxygen from a container strapped to the man's chest.

Messages tapped through the submarine's thick walls told Oram and Wood when to quit the escape chamber. Their position was indicated by a burst of bubbles on the surface. Both ascended safely and were taken aboard the destroyer Brazen.

An hour or so later Lieut. Oram and Arnold and P. Shaw, a member of the crew, came to the surface in the same way.

The slowness of getting men out by the Davis method led the admiralty to consider cutting through the exposed tail of the submarine.

It was estimated there was a sufficient air supply in the submarine to last until 1:40 a. m., Saturday (6:40 p. m., C.-S. T., Friday), the admiralty said.

Earlier unofficial reports had indicated as many as 100 men might be aboard the vessel, but official statements fixed the number at 79. These included 58 officers and crew and 21 in a party of technicians from Cammell Laird Ltd., builders of the submarine which was on a trial run before acceptance by the admiralty.

It was believed low tide this morning had revealed the submarine's tail after warships and royal airforce planes had searched for the vessel throughout the night.

Physicians were hurried to the spot and equipment for pumping fresh air into the craft was on its way.

Lloyd's announced three additional tugs had been dispatched to the scene, 30 miles west of Liverpool, to see if it was possible to pull the submarine out of the mud.

No explanation

There was no official explanation of how the accident occurred leaving the submarine stuck in a diving position in such shallow water.

Eighteen feet of the 265-foot submarine were above water, but both of the escape hatches were under sea.

The Thetis left Birkenhead and submerged in Liverpool bay at 1:40 p. m. yesterday for the test.

She did not come to the surface on schedule three hours later, and search was started.

The destroyer, Brazen, came upon the "lost" part above water this morning, 18 1/2 hours after the dive started, and shortly afterward the admiralty announced "the crew are at present safe," that there was "every hope of getting them all out" by the lung device, and salvage equipment was being rushed to the spot.

Dear Joe Doubtful About Pump Priming Claims Of New Deal (L. A. (Calif.) Herald-Express) By LEWIS HANES, Professor of Economics, New York University

One fellow called us at home last night... He says, "I've been trying to get you all evening to settle turmoil in my mind. I want to know what's funny about that paragraph you got in your column tonight from Rexburg, Iowa?"

David Selznick has hired some 1200 extras every man has a camera. Each studio has companies working outdoors because this is the first cloudless day in nearly two weeks.

Such policies are not idly or thoughtlessly adopted. Increasing desperation in civilian bombing and restriction of medical supplies and relief food reaching the Chinese are not marks of confidence.

Any student of economics knows that that can only be determined by a free market which would lower wages that are out of line with other wages and, thus, increase the employment in jobs where wages are higher than a free market would establish.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The recently resumed hearings by the T. N. E. C. (monopoly committee) at Washington furnish a good illustration of the mixture of favorable and unfavorable tendencies, which is today causing so much uncertainty.

Charles I. Hughes grows some of the sweetest-smelling white roses in town. Mrs. Hughes office at the city hall smells like a rose garden. D. E. Cecil has more bright red roses than we've seen in one yard.

Let's see how smart you are. You get 10 for each question or part of a question you answer correctly. 1.—Name a famous American designer who wrote a best-seller last year.

It is estimated there are 75,000 Communists in the U. S., with 21,000 new members being taken in during 1938-39. This does not mean that they are foreigners. They used to be Americans but they've been sold a bill of goods by the agents of Hitler, Mussolini, et al, who have come over here to spread their gospel.

Before the first rehearsal, a crew of makeup men scurries among the prostrate extras applying one by one bottles and fresh coats. The large bottles they carry are master-of-foolishly labeled "Panchromatic Blood," and the fluid is a mixture of raspberry juice with color heightened by cochineal dye.

Mr. Roosevelt is not as inexplicable or grotesque as he seems to be. He talks nonsense unless it is understood by his hearers that debt, the suppression of private enterprise, and the sterilizing of private savings have a destination beyond the poorhouse.

For example, he doubts that pump priming by means of public works can do the things claimed by the New Deal experts. When Professor Hansen talked about the good effects of Boulder Dam, and called it "self-liquidating" property, the senator at once saw the trouble.

He asked how Boulder Dam could pay its way when the people of Los Angeles, who are supposed to buy the power, are unemployed? How can people who earn no income pay for power and dams?

Book A Day If you want to dip into the life story of perhaps the most interesting little fellow on this planet, you can do no better than turn to Caryl Chesson's absorbing study, "Of Ants and Men" (Prentice-Hall; 275). Here you will find the ant an amazing social creature.

REPORT OF BOARD OF HOMOPHOBES OF THE UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH. I doubt if you all know that there have been some recent shipments out of this port of high explosive bombs with fuses attached.

So They Say I wouldn't hit a man I'm a lady. MRS. MARIE BUCKLEY of Chicago, a gym teacher, asking if you could ground her husband better. The judge asked why she didn't hit him back, being a gymnast.

That's my doctor. Since I bought this boat, he has sent me on three long cruises for my health.

The Nation's Press PREVIEW OF THE THIRD TERM (Chicago Tribune) The Mr. Roosevelt said, "You and I know that a continuation of that habit (spending above revenue) means the poorhouse."

The good professor did not seem to have much of an answer, but said something about "creating" consumer purchasing power. If I suppose he would do that by building another dam in Los Angeles. Then the people there would be paid by the government to buy power from Boulder Dam in Colorado, at the same time making it necessary to build another dam in San Diego to "create" purchasing power for the Los Angeles dam!

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—The stock market continued slightly in keeping an early rally going today and extensive gains, running to a point of more in the forenoon, were substantially reduced or erased at the close.

The steeper take never set, frequently coming to a standstill. Transfers were around 400,000 shares, or about two-thirds of yesterday's aggregate.

While traders apparently leaned toward the buying side, brokers said, there was a heavy change in the political or business picture to spur the speculative price advance.

WOOL MARKET. BOSTON, June 2 (AP)—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: Although the situation in the wool goods markets seems to have cooled off considerably, the buying frenzy in wool is the most it has seen in years and prices are exceedingly firm, with medium wools especially against the buyer.

Foreign markets are generally firm and against the buyer.

Oil Wells (Continued From Page 1) der the 20 acre plan about 800 more wells would completely drill up the now known brown delomely area while under the present plan of 10 acres to the well it would take about 1,800 wells representing a saving of several million dollars to the producer in drilling under the larger spacing plan.

Mr. Knowlton also believed the Texas railroad commission would permit a greater allocation of oil daily to the field if the 20 acre plan were adopted which in terms of barrels would amount to approximately 4 barrels per well increase on 20 acres.

The reasons given for the committee decision were definite. It included the fact that the field had been developed so far under the 10 acre plan, and any change to the larger plan would penalize the part of the field already developed by virtue of larger allowable to wells on the 20-acre plan. That the so-called premium of four barrels additional to a well drilled on 20 acres would increase the drilling of wells instead of decrease it.

In addition to Don Knowlton the majors and larger independents were represented by R. A. King of the King Oil Company of Wichita Falls, Earl Hubbard of the Humble, Houston, H. B. Fugua, of the Gulf Oil Corporation, Fort Worth and many other officials of the headquarters.

These representing the independents most actively were E. J. Dunigan Jr., Pampa, Mel Davis, Pampa, Lynn Boyd, chairman, Pampa, Ollie Herrman, Amarillo, Ray Johnson, Amarillo, Clayton Hearn of Shamrock and Gy Rieger of Amarillo. About 50 attended the meeting.

Pampa Man's Father Dies In Canadian. Funeral services were scheduled for 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Stieley Funeral Home at Canadian for J. L. Pool, 84, who died in Canadian Thursday afternoon.

The aged man was the father of Glen Pool, 310 N. Gray street. He also is survived by his widow of Canadian; a daughter, Mrs. Lois Bryant, Canadian, and another son, Harold Pool, of Magic City.

Mr. Pool was a long-time and widely-known resident of Coffeyville, Kan., and had lived in the Pampa for the past two years. He was known by many Pampans, having visited with his son here many times since the came to the Panhandle in 1937.

"As chairman of the deacons, and in behalf of the entire board of deacons, I am extending you an invitation to be present Sunday when our pastor will observe his 20th year in the ministry."

"It seems altogether fitting that every member of the church share this day with Rev. Bayless by being present. His 12 years as pastor in Pine Bluff, Arkansas; Springfield, Kan.; Kansas City, Missouri; and 21 months in Pampa besides eight years as an evangelist preaching in many states, has provided him with a rich, varied and highly successful ministry."

"As a church, we rejoice in the fine fellowship, the large number of additions, especially by baptism; and the splendid financial progress under our pastor's leadership."

"Let's all be at church Sunday to personally compliment our pastor with our presence and to hear his message, Twenty Years a Pastor."

SERIAL STORY

DATE WITH DANGER

BY HELEN WORDEN

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Clem Shirley goes out with the Duke after drinking. And he is smoking Janice French's cigarette.

CHAPTER XIX

DUKE MARTIN was again called to his telephone by a feminine voice, but the tones of this one had a sharp edge and its owner wasn't asking for a date, she was demanding an interview.

"Very well, Miss Franklin," Martin said coldly. "If it is so important, why don't you come here at six?"

Mary's words spoken over her apartment telephone were equally cold. "No, Duke. We'll meet on neutral ground and it won't be your apartment or the Dove. Make it Peter's at one for lunch."

Ever since yesterday when Tom Ladd had censured her for trying to keep Clem Shirley out of the paper, Mary had only one thought in mind, to see Martin and warn him that he must stay away from Clem. In her hysteria over what she considered Tom's bad temper, she forgot to be afraid of Martin. Would he dare strike at her openly? Mary looked in the mirror and made a face at herself. She had the jitters. Crying did that. She had cried all night. The tears began to fill her eyes again. What a ninny. Crying wouldn't help. Tom was the editor. He had the right to censure her if he wanted to. No, he hadn't. She never wanted to see him again. No man had the right to talk that way to a girl. She hated him.

A POISED and self-confident Mary Franklin met Duke Martin at Peter's, a quiet, neutral little cafe, an hour later. He looked impressive in his dark blue homespun suit, mauve shirt and Charvet tie. A little too carefully planned, perhaps, rather flashy, but certainly in character.

Mary's costume was more reserved; wine-red wool with a smartly cut black for jacket. She smiled as she greeted Duke Martin, but there was no compromise in her brown eyes. The headwaiter, recognizing them both, led the way to a table for two marked "Reserved."

Martin smiled. "You pull the same racket we do. Keep a couple of choices open for me in special customers."

It was evident that the Duke was not in his best mood. "Well, what do you want?" he asked, as he and Mary sat down. A waiter hovered at his elbow. Before she could answer, he said, "Don't talk, let's give the order to this gnat and get rid of him."

With the waiter sent scurrying on his business, Martin again put his question to Mary. "Leave Clem Shirley alone," Mary answered. "Remember, the Janice French case isn't settled yet."

"I didn't come here to waste my time making fool promises." "If you don't leave Clem Shirley out of the picture, I'll start Feenon on this tack," said Mary briefly. "You've got to stop seeing that girl."

"Your business is writing, isn't it? Ever try short stories?" "Occasionally."

"Here's one without an end. Perhaps you can finish it." He studied the wine list with faint contempt. "What a lousy cellar they've got! I didn't run rum for nothing." He beckoned to the waiter. "Two pinch bottle Scotch high-balls and let me see the bottle."

PASSING Mary a cigarette from his case and lighting one himself, he leaned back in his chair. "I can vouch for the truth of this story," he said. "I've always thought it would make a damned good yarn provided it ended the right way. There was a clever young gal on a paper in a city not far from here who didn't always recognize trouble when she saw it. Some people have a hunch about danger and some haven't. Now that's why I'm still this side of Sing Sing. I can smell danger."

Mary's lips tightened. "You must have lost your sense of smell. I wouldn't call your position exactly healthy."

"Nor is yours," Martin snapped. "The gal in my story has her choice between living a long and happy life with her pretty boy managing editor. Oh, I'm not so dumb," he said, as an angry flash colored Mary's face. "Or passing up the wedding bells for a cold, white alab in a morgue just where a girl friend of hers landed, because she couldn't keep her fingers out of other people's business. Which'll it be?"

Mary laughed. "You talk like a dime novel. Drop the comedy. There's only one end to your story. The girl doesn't wind up at the morgue slab. She doesn't marry the managing editor, but she does save the life of a sweet child who might have landed in the morgue herself if your newspaper girl hadn't stepped in."

"I've warned you. For your health's sake you'd better stay out of my business and out of the Dove."

"The New York Gazette doesn't stay out of any honky tonk," Mary said sharply, "even if the chairs are covered with silk and the waiters with tapestries."

She rose abruptly. "Well at least, Duke, we know where we stand. I've just got time to make Janice French's funeral. Would you like to come along?"

"No, thank you."

THE people who moved in the Frenches' social sphere were the sort that liked to be in good time for funerals. Although the notice in the papers had said "Services private," St. Thomas was flooded when Mary arrived. A dull, stolid lot, for the most part, she thought. Old Mrs. Ward, Janice's great-aunt, hobbled in ahead of her. She wore a long black crepe veil over her black Persian lamb coat and she leaned on two canes. Mrs. Ward belonged to Janice's mother's people.

Mr. French, his slight figure looking even more frail in black, took not the slightest notice of his wife's aunt. White head bowed, he knelt in prayer. Mrs. French was not there. Directly in front of the pew, resting on a blanket of pink rose buds, stood the delicate pearl gray coffin in which Janice lay. It was closed.

Thinking of Mrs. French, Mary almost forgot that she was there to get the story. With quick eyes she began searching for familiar faces and estimating the number of people present. In the left side front pews Mary recognized girls who'd come out the year Janice made her debut; Kathleen Hobson, crying gently; Mollie Tate, making a more successful effort to control herself; Bess Marlitt, a sulky expression on her pretty face, fidgeting, obviously uneasy; more at home in night clubs. Mary had seen her at the Dove several times lately, a spectacular girl with scarlet lips and saddy black eyebrows. Behind her sat Egerton Mapleson, Across the aisle, his wife. They hadn't lived together in years, but both in a vague distant way were related to the Frenches.

When Egerton wasn't at funerals, he was at his club. His white mustache moved up and down as he whispered something to Alfred French, a cousin of Janice's.

Mary had not yet finished counting faces when the services began. They were brief; the simple Episcopal burial services, the singing of the choir and it was over.

Later, at the office, in writing of it, Mary found that her story centered on Mr. French.

"Has Janice French's secret been buried with her," she tapped out on the typewriter, "or will it be told? This question was in the agonized eyes of her father today at her funeral, 'Who is responsible for my daughter's death?'"

Gas Tax Refund Bill Goes To New Committee

AUSTIN, June 2 (AP)—House advocates of a Senate bill intended to plug loopholes in the gasoline tax refund law easily succeeded today in transferring it from the revenue and taxation committee on comptrollers and treasurers accounts.

Rep. John K. Russell of Cleburne, who engineered the move, claimed the bill would save the state "millions of dollars" and would not hurt "a person on earth entitled to this refund."

Opponents of the proposal contended it would do no good and would be burdensome to farmers and others who by gasoline for on-highway uses.

An effort by Rep. C. L. Harris of Spur to table the Russell motion failed, 30 to 37. Rep. Arthur B. Tarwater of Plainview sought to send the bill to the agriculture committee and Rep. Max Boyer of Perryton wanted to transfer it to the state affairs groups but their motions were overwhelmingly killed.

The House yesterday ordered a special legislative committee investigation of possible tax evasions, particularly in connection with gasoline tax refunds. Sponsors of the inquiry asserted refunds had increased tremendously in the last three years.

Senator Eugene Melville of San Angelo is author of the bill which precipitated today's House debate.

The new oil "cracking" process permits the petroleum industry to obtain twice as much gasoline from a barrel of crude oil as formerly. Thus the gasoline production with known reserves has been doubled.

Gentry Says Commission Will Be Fair

AUSTIN, June 2 (AP)—Perpetuation and further improvement of Texas' great highway system is the aim of the new chairman of the commission, Brady P. Gentry of Tyler.

Taking office only two weeks ago, Gentry has thrown himself into his task with a vigor that befits this 43-year-old bachelor.

"I believe I can speak for the commission when I say we want to continue the fine work of the highway department and complete a system of state highways without dishonesty and without graft," Gentry said.

"The commission is resolved to treat all sections of the state fairly, we realize there must be an equitable distribution of funds and we know that by continued efficient management a finer highway system can be secured earlier."

"Since ours is such an enormous task the commission will be feeling in making future designations, believing that our first obligation is construction of those roads already designated. However, we also are aware that emergencies arise, particularly in congested areas, and we will have repeat they must be necessary and fully justified."

Gentry said aside from present designations he felt the commission should strive to finish as soon as possible "a complete system of highways which now enter congested areas, and those roads which carry the bulk of the tourist travel."

7,000 Miles Designated. He estimated there were about 7,000 miles of designated state highways which has not been surfaced.

Should the department devote its funds and time to maintaining and rebuilding those already completed and constructing others designated, the job would require the next 14 years, he said.

He estimated all-weather roads in Texas now totalled approximately 16,000 miles, with the department's present construction capacity about 1,000 miles annually at a cost of $25,000,000 or $30,000,000.

"We would like to see as little diversion of funds from the highway department as possible in the future," Gentry continued. "In that way we can complete our enormous task."

"At present our funds total between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 annually."

County judge of Smith county for eight years, Gentry brought with him a knowledge of highways. He expects to spend practically the next two years in Austin, studying the problems and program of the commission. He will devote the next five or six months to a tour of the 25 district highway engineering headquarters in the state to get first-hand information on the system.

A great name returns to the transatlantic passenger service as the new Cunard-White Star liner Mauretania, pictured above at Liverpool, England, goes into commission. The 34,000-ton, 772-foot ship is 4,000 tons heavier and 12 feet longer than the famous Mauretania I, which, for 22 years, reigned as the fastest ocean liner afloat.

PAUL PLEADS HIS OWN CASE

Text: Acts 21:17-22; 24:14-16; 26:19-23. By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of Advance. Paul had returned from his missionary journeys to Jerusalem after having bid farewell to the elders of the church of Ephesus at Miletus, the seaport, realizing full well the danger that was before him. To these elders Paul said, "Behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there, save that the Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions abide me (Acts 20:22, 23). A certain prophet, Agabus, had also taken Paul's girdle and bound with it his hands and his feet, symbolically of his production of what was awaiting Paul at Jerusalem."

It was under these circumstances that Paul made his great declaration of purpose. "But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry, which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God." These predictions had been fulfilled. Enemies of Paul made unjust and untrue accusations against him, saying that he had defiled the temple at Jerusalem, and had outraged the mob against him. He was in danger of his life, when he was rescued by the Roman chief captain and a detachment of soldiers. It was under these circumstances that Paul, having been permitted to speak by the Roman captain and making his defense to the people, gave the address of our lesson—one of the great autobiographical statements upon which we depend chiefly for our knowledge of the details of Paul's life and for the clear conception of his religious experience, his outlook and purpose.

Along with this is a passage from a similar defense of Paul before King Agrippa, when he told the experience of his conversion on the way to Damascus and described the course of his life and his innermost purpose as obedience to the Holy Spirit.

In these addresses there stands forth above all things the sincerity of Paul, the intensity of the experience of the new life that had come to him, his deep love of the Christ who had saved him from an attitude of bigotry and hostility to his fellow-men and had given him the vision of a kingdom of truth. There is in all his defense no suggestion of hatred of those who are persecuting him, for Paul had learned above all things the deep lesson of Jesus that a Christian must love his enemies.

These addresses of Paul have a very insistent meaning for our own time. Though Paul was following essentially that he believed to be the reality of truth and the religion of his fathers, he was accused of being a sectarian and heretic. If one would learn the lesson of Paul's life and experience, he must learn to regard all sincere men with reasonableness and tolerance and with appreciation of their conscientious convictions. The story of Paul's life ought to make us unready to call any man a "heretic." The man whom we fail to understand may be the sincere apostle of new and important emphasis on truth.

Sewer And Printing Bids Let By City

Acceptance of two bids, one on the printing of 10,000 check vouchers, the other on a carload of 6-inch sewer tile, was the only business of record at the meeting of the city commission Thursday afternoon.

To the Aircraft Printing company of Pampa the commission awarded the printing bid, at $62.50, with the bid on the sewer tile going to the Storey Plumbing company, Pampa. Bid accepted on the sewer tile was $18.20 per 100 lineal feet, with T. and Y joints and bends at 72.8 cents each.

Other bidders on the sewer tile were L. H. Sullins, Pampa, Morrison Supply company, Fort Worth, and Clowe & Cowan, Amarillo. The Storey company of Austin was another bidder on the printing job awarded to Aircraft. The meeting of the city commissioners was held on Thursday instead of the regular day, Tuesday, as Memorial day occurred upon Tuesday this week.
