Kermit vs. Mickey

NEW YORK — First they broke off the wedding. Now Miss Piggy is accusing Mickey Mouse of carrying on as if they were married. What was once one of America's more tender courtships soured into a court feud Wednesday as the owner of Piggy, Kermit and other Muppets sued Walt Disney for alleged misuse of the famous characters. The lawsuit, filed by Henson Associates Inc. in federal court in Manhattan, charges that The Walt Disney Co. used images of Muppets without a license in television commercials, movies, books, brochures, T-shirts and other merchandise — and in Disney's 1990 annual report.

Crane shot

BEND — Game wardens investigated Wednesday the shooting death of an endangered whooping crane and searched for a second whooping crane they say also may have been shot. Agents with the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service were conducting the investigation. One of the large birds was shot and killed Monday and was found buried near the Colorado River in west Lampasas County near the community of Bend, authorities said. The adult bird apparently was shot in the neck with a .22-caliber rifle, officials said.

Hot firefighter

HOUSTON — Houston oil well firefighter Red Adair says he'll bring his crews home if the Kuwaiti government doesn't come through soon with heavy equipment and other promised resources. Adair told firefighters attending the Industrial Fire World Exposition on Tuesday that he is frustrated by the lack of heavy equipment, water and adequate accommodations for his workers. Adair said he's got plenty of work elsewhere in the world if the Kuwaitis can't provide the basic tools he needs. The 78-year-old firefighting legend flew to Washington after his speech early Tuesday. U.S. Rep. Curt Weldon, R-Pa., said he will arrange a meeting in the next few days between Adair and Kuwait's ambassador to the United States.

Smith rates government, issues Spendthrift Award

By James R. Owen
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Federal supervisors who allow government employees to use up travel funds on unnecessary trips during the last month of the fiscal year received a Texas lawmaker's first "Spendthrift Award" award Wednesday.

"This first 'Spendthrift Award' goes to federal travel supervisors whose collective failure to control year-end government travel over the last 20 years has cost taxpayers an estimated $2 billion," said Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, at a Capitol Hill news conference.

"It is a form of governmental lunacy not to commit more attention to how these governmental travel dollars are spent," Smith told reporters. "Continued failure to get control of this year-end spending could cost taxpayers an additional $1.6 billion over the next five years."

Smith said his staff, using data from the Office of Management and Budget, uncovered "an unending string of horror stories"

U.S. troops arrive in Iraq to secure refugee zones

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The United States military sent troops in helicopters into northern Iraq Wednesday to begin securing one or two large zones where they will build refugee camps near Kurdish cities as deep as 60 miles inside Iraqi territory.

The positioning of the camps underscored the political dimension of the American relief operation, which is being carried out despite protests from the government of Saddam Hussein and misgivings at the United Nations.

By establishing the camps so far from the borders where the frightened Kurds are massed, the plan seeks to coax hundreds of thousands of the refugees back from the Turkish frontier and eventually to the homes they fled when their uprising against Baghdad failed.

The helicopter teams moved into Iraq against a backdrop of confusion over the diplomatic and legal foundations of the American plan,

Rail walkout halts freight, disrupts U.S.

■ 235,000 rail workers strike over wages, work rules and health care costs.

Associated Press

Freight trains ground to a halt Wednesday in the first nationwide railroad strike in nearly a decade, halting rail shipping of everything from coal to car parts and interfering with most Amtrak trains and some commuter services.

"Anyone out there want to give me a lift to New York? I'm at the railway station," said Australian tourist James Veel, who was stranded at Raleigh, N.C.

In El Segundo, Calif., a freight train blocked an intersection for nearly 30 minutes after its crew stopped the train and walked away, police said.

Congress and the Bush administration sought a quick end to the strike. The House and Senate voted late Wednesday in favor of establishing a new emergency board to make recommendations for settlement on a contract to replace one that expired in 1988.

House passes emergency bill to end strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress voted Wednesday night to put a quick end to nationwide strike by 235,000 rail workers that threatened an already weak economy.

A bill establishing a new emergency board to resolve the remaining disputes and impose a settlement in 65 days was approved on a voice vote without dissent by the Senate after passing the House 400-5.

Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner, hoping strikers would be ordered back to their jobs before today's working day began, said President Bush had left instructions to be awakened whenever the bill reaches the White House so that he

Nightmare of '63 returns to Dallas

■ Oliver Stone films re-enactment of JFK assassination.

DALLAS — The scene Dallas has spent decades trying to forget — of a president assassinated as his motorcade went past — is being played out again, this time in front of movie cameras.

"JFK," Academy Award-winning director Oliver Stone's account of President John F. Kennedy's 1963 assassination, began filming this week with the re-enactment of the slaying in Dealey Plaza.

Filming, which began Monday, brought out hundreds of the curious, some still fascinated by the slaying.

"I flew in from Maryland to see this because when is it ever going to look like this again?" Peggy Higgins said Tuesday as she motioned toward the old Texas School Book Depository, where, according to

Revelation of 'victim's' name stirs controversy

By Deirdre Carmody
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The publication and broadcast of the name of the woman who says she was raped at the Kennedy estate in Palm Beach, Fla., has unleashed a torrent of comment and criticism from news executives, women's groups and members of the public.

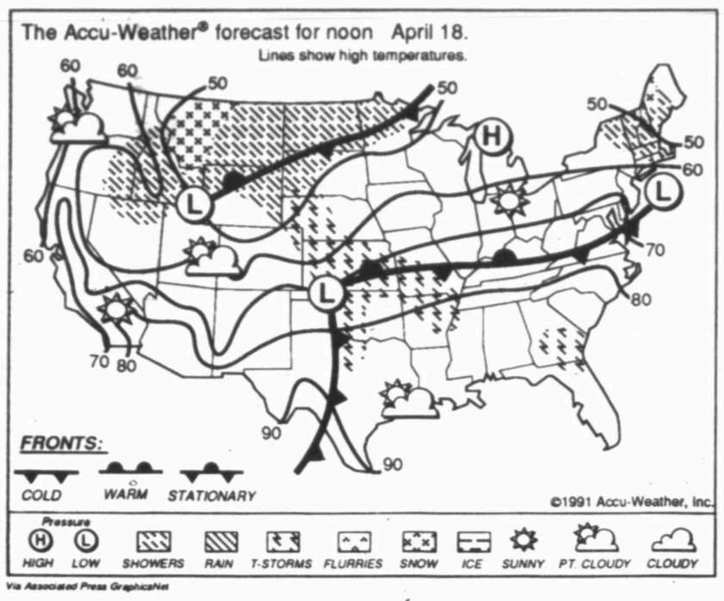

On Tuesday, the NBC Nightly News broadcast her name and picture. And on Wednesday, The New York Times, which ordinarily does not identify those who report that they have been raped, published an article about the woman, Patricia Bowman, and a statement saying that NBC's nationwide broadcast had taken the matter of privacy out of The Times' hands.

Among other newspapers that identified the woman Wednesday were The Des Moines Register, the San Francisco Chronicle, The Denver Post, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and The Courier-Journal of Louisville, Ky.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Via Associated Press GraphicsNet

Sunny skies forecast

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high in the upper 80s and west winds 10 to 20 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be fair with a low near 50.

Friday is expected to be fair with a high near 80.

After an overnight low of 61, Wednesday's high was 85 compared with the record high for April 17 of 91 set in 1975. The record low for today's date was 37 set in 1980.

STATE

Spring thunderstorms rumbled across North Central Texas on Wednesday as a cool front and dry line collided with warm moist Gulf air pumped into the state by low pressure in the west.

A tornado watch and severe thunderstorm watch were posted for much of Central, North Central and Northeast Texas from southwest of Austin to the Red River near Paris.

Spotters reported a tornado touched down in rural Parker County southwest of Fort Worth, but caused no damage. A severe thunderstorm produced golfball-sized hail along the Brown-Coleman county line near the town of Bangs.

The dry line stretched across the low rolling plains from the Red River west of Wichita Falls to near Abilene and into the lower Pecos Valley east of Sanderson.

Skies were partly cloudy over the area west of the dry line while cloudy skies were the rule elsewhere.

Winds were northwest at 5 to 15 mph to the west of the dry line. Guadalupe Pass reported a west wind at 44 mph with gusts to 56 mph. Blustery north winds prevailed elsewhere.

Temperatures were generally in the 70s and 80s.

Forecasters expected the thunderstorm activity to continue and move eastward today as the dry line advanced. Highs were predicted in the 70s and 80s.

NATION

Thunderstorms developed Wednesday over central Kansas and spread into the southern Plains. Rain was scattered over the Southeast.

One-inch-diameter hail fell at Hillsdale, Okla., and near Newton, Kan., and hail as big as golf balls fell in Kansas near Kackley, Glasco and Jamestown, and near Bangs, Texas, the National Weather Service said.

At midday, there were showers and thunderstorms over southern Georgia and Florida, and from northeastern through south-central Kansas. Showers extended over western Texas, the upper Texas Gulf Coast, northern Mississippi, southwestern Tennessee and northeastern Arkansas.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

WALKOUT: Rail strike paralyzes U.S. shipping

(From 1A)

Tuesday expiration of an initial cooling-off period. The strike waged by eight unions and honored by three others against 10 companies, started at 7 a.m.

The strike by 235,000 rail workers over wages, work rules and health care costs could also idle as many as a half-million non-railroad workers.

"Three years without a contract is long enough," said Jim Davis, a coach repairer for Norfolk Southern in Roanoke, Va.

"If they can give management anywhere from $20,000 to $100,000 bonuses why can't they give us something?" said Richard Zietler, a Conrail accountant in Philadelphia.

Earlier this week, the Bush administration said Congress should enact legislation to stop the strike and force the unions to accept the recommendations of a presidential emergency board that issued a report in January.

In Lincoln, Neb., state Sen. Spence Morrissey, a Burlington Northern track inspector, said the strikers believe the emergency board's recommendations are far from a compromise.

"They represent to us what is a 30 percent cut in real wages over the life of the contract along with decreased health benefits," he said.

"They want to take our work rules and change them at will," he said. "These are rules that protect our days off."

CONGRESS: Bill establishes emergency board could sign it.

One lawmaker called the bill a "second chance" for unions to challenge an earlier presidential emergency board's recommendations that labor leaders had characterized as unfair.

The administration and the nation's major freight railroads had asked Congress to impose the board's recommendations intact, but Democrats balked after union leaders complained it would lead to more than 20,000 job losses.

"It's my belief that this is an effective process that will terminate the strike, rationalize the differences and resolve the questions that vex us," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

The bill puts into effect some provisions of the previous board's recommendations, such as a 3 percent pay increase in July and a requirement that rail workers start contributing to their health care insurance costs.

But it allows a reconsideration of ambiguities in the previous board's recommendations and bitter points of dispute remaining between the two sides.

Both the unions and the railroads would have to accept whatever the new panel recommends if they cannot agree among themselves. Unions could not resort to another strike and railroads could not engage in a lockout.

After its approval by the full committee, House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said he planned to bring the bill to the floor immediately.

PLAN: U.S. seeks to coax refugees from border which includes British and French participation and is being presented as a humanitarian effort.

President Bush announced the relief plan on Tuesday in response to the sufferings and soaring death rate among Kurdish refugees who fled into the frigid mountains of their ancestral region.

Pentagon officials said the havens should be completed in two weeks.

Up to 10,000 additional U.S. forces, along with several thousand British and French forces, will move into Iraq to construct the camps and set up supply lines, helicopter bases and perhaps aircraft landing strips to move tons of food, medicine and clothing, and thousands of tents and blankets into northern Iraq, the officials said.

As the expanded relief effort began, Bush administration officials acknowledged that they lacked answers to major questions, like how long the U.S. military would operate the camps before turning them over to international organizations, how long it would provide security for the camps after the departure of its ground forces, and whether the Kurds would overcome their fear of retribution from Saddam and return to their homes while he remains in power.

Lt. Gen. Marty Brandtner, director of operations for the Joint Chief of Staff, said advance teams were studying the possibility of setting up a number of camps along the main highway from the border Iraqi city of Zakho south toward Dohuk.

FILM: Dallas has spent decades trying to forget the Warren Commission, Lee Harvey Oswald fired the fatal shots as Kennedy's motorcade passed.

"The amazing thing is that in the 25 or so years since the assassination, the controversy has never gone away," she said.

Go away is just what some in Dallas — which was nicknamed "the city of hate" for a time after the assassination — would like the memory to do.

"You know, Dallas has tried for 28 years to live this thing down and here they are rehashing it," said Jack Cardwell, who was in Dealey Plaza for a business appointment. "It's something a lot of us would like to forget."

"While we want motion pictures to come to Dallas and appreciate the sums of money that are spent, it is still a little bit of a heartbreak to wonder whether or not Dallas might be accused in some fashion," Southern Methodist University film professor Martin Jurow said in a recent interview.

Stone has said he's on a mission to keep the assassination in people's minds.

"For me, it was the seminal event of my generation," said Stone, 44. "It shaped the '60s because Kennedy was my godfather. He came into office, and he promised change. He was about to deliver it when he was cut down.

"As a result of that murder, it's my belief that Vietnam came about," he said.

PARK: Water Wonderland approaches 10th year

(From 1A)

Malibu Beach Club next to the park. The Malibu Special Events Center has had a bull-riding ring added and will be used for special events and to accommodate groups booking the park. Also, the miniature golf course has been leased and the motocross replaced by a driving range.

Already a number of parties have booked the park for special events, and Notley estimated that those parties will bring in 14,000 people. Groups as varied as eighth graders from Ozona, San Angelo girl scouts, Kirby West in Andrews, the 4-H Water Camp, and the Odessa Chamber of Commerce — for the Texas-New Mexico Florist Association — will visit the park. The park will host an American Cancer Society fundraiser on Memorial Day weekend and, on May 31, will sponsor an appreciation day for Midland and Ector County students. That day, students will be admitted for $5, plus tax.

Henderson expects about 90,000 visitors to the park this season — which lasts from May until Labor Day, and anticipates a large number of out-of-town visitors. "I help fill up the hotels," he said, observing that 10 percent of the park's attendance comes from Lubbock.

The 22-acre park has had its problems in the last few years, Henderson acknowledged. "The economy hit me just like everyone else," he said. "I was hit by a double whammy — falling oil prices and rain."

The occurrence of rain during Water Wonderland's season over the last four years sent attendance dropping — Henderson estimated attendance fell about 40 percent. "Would you want to get in the Wave Pool while it's raining?" he asked with a grin. Still, the park managed to make money the last two years.

He is looking forward to dealing with the Confederate Air Force, since he believes the two can help each other. "They say they'll bring in 200,000 visitors," he noted. "And here we are, so close. This will an added incentive."

Standing on top of the Twin Slides, surveying his park with its 17 attractions, he recalled how he conceived the idea for Water Wonderland. "I was driving down a street in Tulsa, and I had never seen so many people lined up. So I got in line to see what it was, and it was a cement water slide. Well, I thought that would be great for Midland and Odessa.

"So I put in a slide, and decided it needed some other rides." The water for the park comes from 13 water wells; a finger of the Ogallala aquifer runs under the park, he said.

Henderson would like to install another water slide but doesn't have the $100,000 it would cost, and is frustrated at the inavailability of financing from area banks.

Still, as he looks around the park, musing, he said,"This is a pretty good-sized park."

SMITH: First award goes to travel supervisors

involving travel in the last month of the federal government's fiscal year, which ends every Sept. 30.

According to the Texas lawmaker, they included:

■ Rush bookings for "meetings" in Las Vegas, Nev., and Palm Springs, Calif.

■ A call to a travel agent from an unidentified federal supervisor who said, "We've got $49,000 left in our travel budget. Set up some meetings, we'll figure out what they're about later."

■ Government supervisors assigning travel dollar amounts to employees to spend before the end of a fiscal year.

Smith, in his third term, has been carving out a role as fiscal watchdog, introducing resolutions in the past two years requiring 10 percent across-the-board cutback in federal overhead spending. Smith's new "spendthrift" award is reminiscent of a similar award, the "golden fleece," given by former Sen. William Proxmire during the 1960s and 1970s to federally funded projects the Wisconsin Democrat considered wasteful.

But Smith, pointing out that his award focuses on categories of spending rather than specific projects, as Proxmire's award did, scoffed at the apparent similarity.

Smith singled out the Department of Defense as the worst offender of last-month travel, spending more than $1.28 billion on "unnecessary trips" during the last fiscal month of any given year between 1971 and 1989, a Smith aide said.

Glenn Flood, a Pentagon spokesman, asked to comment on Smith's charge, said it "is too general for me to even comment on."

Flood added: "We probably travel more than any of the other federal agencies to begin with. I think this is a little slanted here."

ROLE: Set looks like time machine

(From 1A)

After getting a degree in advertising from Texas Tech and working as a flight attendant for a major airline, Ms. Sandelin decided she would really like to act.

"I just had a desire to act and I'm really happy about what I'm doing," Ms. Sandelin said in a phone interview from her home in Arlington.

And playing Gayle Newman may be an important step in Ms. Sandelin's chosen career.

"It's a real good visual spot," she said.

"It could be a very short 30 seconds on the screen or a couple of minutes," Ms. Sandelin said. Nevertheless, she said she has to spend about two weeks on the set for the part.

After her first day on the set Tuesday, Ms. Sandelin said, "There were a lot of people out there and it was really exciting."

Playing Gayle Newman, Ms. Sandelin and Vince D'Onofrio, who plays Billy Newman, take a few steps up the grassy knoll and fall onto their children.

"We did it many, many times and we'll do it many times tomorrow," Ms. Sandelin said.

"Close-ups and long shots. They will take many shots and at every different angle," she said.

"When he (Kennedy) gets his fatal shot he is almost in front of them (the Newmans)," Ms. Sandelin said.

Ms. Sandelin noted the precision of the set and especially the cast members down to the extras.

"It looked like you stepped out of a time machine. It was very strange," she said.

For her part, Ms. Sandelin said she had to cut and dye her hair.

"I wear a red pullover dress and a white shirt with ruffles at the wrist and neck. It's a dress from the '60s. And high-heel shoes," she said.

"I look similar to her (Gayle Newman)," Ms. Sandelin said.

Ms. Sandelin initially applied for a role in the movie after hearing about it at K.D. Studios, the Actors Conservatory of the Southwest in Dallas, where she has attended classes since last June.

"It's a theater and film school. You learn everything from theater history to voice and diction and acting classes," she said.

"We heard about it (the movie) and went and auditioned for it. They looked at me in general to see what I fit in. They looked at me with open eyes," she said.

"They called me back about four weeks later and said they wanted me for this part," Ms. Sandelin said.

"I was very excited and very thankful," she added.

Although Ms. Sandelin is a relative newcomer to show business, other acting credits include being a featured extra on a Bud Light commercial, the lead role in "The Wasp," a B-movie expected to run on cable television, and theater work in Dallas.

NAME: Publication unleashes torrent of comment

(From 1A)

"I think it's appalling," said Anne Seymour, director of communications at the National Victim Center. "I think it sets a very bad precedent for other sexual assault victims. If you want to seriously reduce the number of men and women who come forth and report cases of rape to the authorities, just publish and broadcast their names and addresses in the media. That will do it."

The Daily News, which ran a front-page story with the headline "Was NBC Right?" invited readers to call in with their opinions, asking whether NBC should have identified the woman. Fran Wood, deputy managing editor for features at the New York newspaper, said almost 500 readers responded in the first four hours alone.

"The calls were running a little better than 4 to 1 against running her name," said Ms. Wood. The News did not print the woman's name.

Until this week, almost none of the nation's newspapers, television or radio stations have identified victims or complainants in rape cases, although the subject has been one of intense discussion among editors and producers.

When the identity of the victim or complainant is known by many people, as it has been in Palm Beach and as it was by many people in the Central Park jogger case last year, some editors argue that the name should be published, as it would be if the person was pressing charges in any other crime.

But the prevailing view has been that there is a particular stigma to being a rape victim that makes it incumbent upon news organizations to respect the victim's privacy.

But in a statement issued Tuesday, Michael G. Gartner, president of NBC News, said that because Ms. Bowman's name was well known in the Palm Beach area, officials at NBC believed that "we should report this news to our viewers."

"We believe that in this case, as in all news events, the more we tell our viewers, the better informed they will be in making up their own minds about the issues involved," Gartner said.

The Times article was sent out over The New York Times News Service to about 650 newspapers around the world. As a result, calls poured in all day Wednesday from people expressing surprise and outrage that The Times had published the woman's name.

Allan M. Siegal, an assistant managing editor of The New York Times, said that the initial premise of "telling our readers what we know" became even more compelling as the Kennedy story increased in public interest because of the senator's involvement.

Siegal said that victims of sex crimes are also accusers, and that whenever a newspaper withheld a complainant's identity, it found itself in the "uncomfortable position of naming the accused when we are not naming the accuser."

That position could be justified only so long as the accuser retained enough privacy to protect, he added. He said The Times would continue to make such decisions case by case.

Siegal said that the article about Ms. Bowman had been prepared and editors were trying to decide whether it could be used without the names of Ms. Bowman and her family.

"Sooner or later we would have found a way of using that story without compromising her identity," he said, but then NBC announced late Tuesday afternooon that it would broadcast her name and the decision was made to run the article with her name on Wednesday.

David Roth, a criminal lawyer who represents Ms. Bowman, declined to speak to a New York Tiimes reporter on Wednesday, but told The Palm Beach Post late Tuesday that he and his partner, Doug Duncan, "are shocked and appalled" by the NBC's revelation of their client's name.

Many editors disagreed.

House OKs $1.46 trillion budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Wednesday approved a Democratic-written $1.46 trillion 1992 budget that rejects President Bush's plan to slash Medicare and other benefit programs.

By 261-163, the lawmakers adopted a spending plan that shifts billions of dollars Bush wanted to spend for science and law enforcement to education and other social programs. It also ignores the president's renewed call for a cut in the capital gains tax rate.

Across Capitol Hill, the Senate Budget Committee voted 11-10 to adopt a similar plan drafted largely by panel Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn.

Just one Democrat, Sen. Kent Conrad of North Dakota, joined the committee's nine Republicans to oppose the blueprint. Conrad said the nearly $290 billion deficit the plan contained was too high.

Many of the Republicans opposed the plan because they said it could ease the way for future cuts in the Social Security payroll tax.

Minutes before approving the Democratic budget, the House voted 335-89 to reject the president's proposal. Only 89 Republicans voted for Bush's budget, while 74 GOP members joined the 260 voting Democrats in opposing it. The lone independent in the House, Bernie Sanders of Vermont, also opposed Bush's budget.

Democrats said that despite similarities between their budget and the president's, theirs was more helpful to the nation's needy.

"Those who say there isn't much difference between the president's budget and the ... (Democratic) budget have never spent much time in a Head Start program ... or talked to senior citizens who face a real choice between heating and eating," said Rep. Dale Kildee, D-Mich.

The House Democratic budget and the plan Bush unveiled in February are more alike.

Bound by last fall's deficit-reduction agreement, they both hold domestic spending, excluding benefit programs such as Medicare, to $211 billion in fiscal 1992. Democrats would shift just $13 billion of that total, mostly to social programs.

Both plans would also spend $295.3 billion for defense and hold foreign aid to just under $18 billion.

House Democratic leaders have chosen to emphasize the differences between their plan and Bush's, saying the Democratic blueprint would do more for the nation's poor and working families. They emphasized their budget's rebuff of the president's proposal to slash $46 billion over the next five years from Medicare, veterans, housing and other benefit programs.

■ Military identifies remains of MIAs

HONOLULU — The U.S. Pacific Command on Wednesday identified the remains of two American servicemen listed as missing in the Vietnam War.

Air Force Capt. Michael L. Hyde of Boulder City, Nev., was lost over South Vietnam on Dec. 8, 1966. Army Sgt. 1st Class Vernon Z. Johns of Baltimore was reported missing in South Vietnam on Feb. 3, 1968, the command said.

Hyde's remains were among 20 repatriated by Vietnam in September 1990. Fourteen have now been identified.

Johns' remains were among 21 turned over in April 1989. Eight have been identified.

The remains were to leave Hawaii on Thursday with two sets of remains that were identified earlier. A military jet will take them to Travis Air Force Base in California on the first leg of their final journey home.

■ Mom celebrates birthday with babies

SPOKANE, Wash. — Patty Roeske celebrates her birthday with babies. Three of her four children were born on April 13 — nine months after her July birthday parties with her husband, Paul.

"Every year we celebrate," Mrs. Roeske said Tuesday. "It's the gift that keeps on giving. For 18 years."

Mrs. Roeske gave birth Saturday to Kara who will share the lucky birthday with 8-year-old Kimberly and 2-year-old Kristopher.

"I can't wait to see what happens the first time their birthdays all fall on Friday the 13th," Mrs. Roeske said.

The children arrived naturally, she said. No induced labor, no Caesarean sections.

Only 5-year-old Katie gets a day to herself, in September.

"She just likes to be the little princess," Mrs. Roeske said.

■ Storms interrupt shuttle ride home

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A jet carrying space shuttle Atlantis back to Kennedy Space Center was diverted to an Air Force base across the state Wednesday because of thunderstorms.

The modified Boeing 747, with the shuttle strapped on top, was en route from Columbus Air Force Base in Mississippi to Kennedy when it was forced to go instead to MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa.

NASA officials said the flight would resume once the weather cleared at Kennedy.

The jet took off Tuesday from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., where the shuttle landed Thursday.

The crew deployed the Gamma Ray Observatory during the six-day flight. Two of the astronauts also performed two spacewalks.

Atlantis is scheduled to return to space in late July or August.

Kelley's book tops best-seller list

NEW YORK (AP) — Kitty Kelley has slowed her promotion of "Nancy Reagan, The Unauthorized Biography," but the torrid book with its tales of sex, Sinatra and pot smoke has topped the best-seller list after just one week.

The biography of the former first lady will hit No. 1 in The New York Times Book Review for sales ending the week of April 13, and book stores confirmed the tell-all tome is still selling like crazy this week.

"It's just doing phenomenally well. There's been nothing in the past five or six years anywhere close to this book," said Donna Passannante, spokeswoman for B. Dalton-Barnes & Noble.

Only Salman Rushdie's "The Satanic Verses" enjoyed a better first week than the Kelley book, which outperformed such best-selling authors as Stephen King, Tom Clancy and Bill Cosby, the Times said Wednesday.

"Nancy Reagan, The Unauthorized Biography" arrived in stores April 8. Its publisher, Simon & Schuster, said there are 925,000 copies in print.

Passannante declined to release exact figures, but said the biography was still flying out of the stores eight days after its release.

"This is something nationwide. It's not Washington specific, or just limited to New York," she said.

Sales remained solid at the 800 B. Dalton stores and 50 Barnes & Noble outlets around the country, she said.

"Part of it is the enormous publicity, good or bad," she said. "Last week, there was an initial wave of buyers. Now we're seeing the second group, people who heard from their friend or their great aunt, 'You've got to read this book.' "

One Waldenbooks store on Manhattan's Upper West Side was restocking its shelves this week. It received shipments on two different days last week and sold out both times.

"In fact, hold on — I'm about to sell one right now," said Geri Krausner of the store, confirming the sales continued at a crisp pace.

The same was true at a Doubleday Book Store in midtown, where merchandising manager Richard Haas said the book remained in demand.

"My perception is it's still doing quite well, although not as wildly as the first few days," said Haas. "It's settled into being a normal best seller instead of a record breaker."

Haas said the outlet at 53rd Street and Fifth Avenue went through more than 900 copies of the book last week.

"I've never had anything like this," said Haas, explaining that the biography far outdistanced such past top-sellers as "Trump: The Art of the Deal," "The Bonfire of the Vanities," and "Spycatcher."

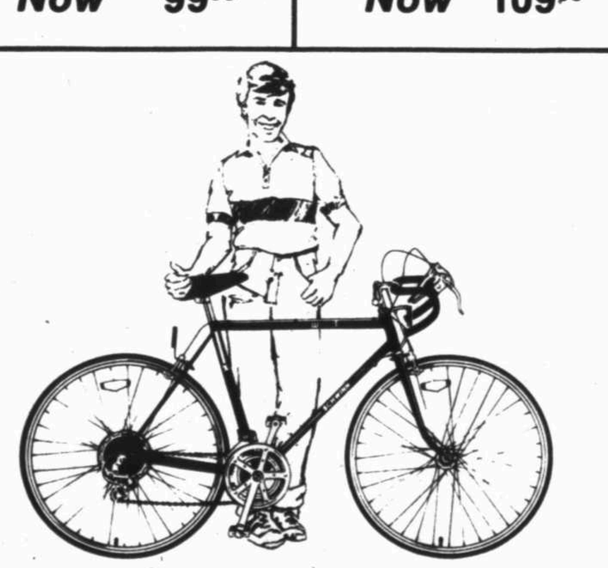

The rest of Doubleday's 43 metropolitan area stores were doing just as well, said the company's spokesman, Matty Goldberg. "It's slowed down from the furious pace of its first week, but it's still moving quite well," he said.

Red Cross denies tainted blood used

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Red Cross in Portland, Ore., inadvertently distributed blood that tested positive for AIDS and hepatitis B, according to a federal report released Wednesday but swiftly disputed by state officials.

Shortly after the report was released by members of Congress, Red Cross officials in Oregon issued a statement assuring the public that "there is no risk of any patient infection."

Dr. Dave Fleming, deputy state epidemiologist for the Oregon Health Division, said the Food and Drug Administration had reached an erroneous conclusion in interpreting a Red Cross report.

However, Wendy Horwitz, spokeswoman for one of the lawmakers who released the report, said it involved "the top inspector at the FDA."

"She has done many of these inspections," said Horwitz, press secretary for Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore. "This blood wasn't retested and it was released."

The Red Cross statement offered little elaboration, and the FDA report did not say whether the blood — shipped in February — was given to patients or went unused. The report also left unclear whether the samples were contaminated since it said blood bank officials failed to conduct a second test, mistakenly doing the follow-up checks on different samples.

The FDA report said three pints of blood were involved, one that initially tested positive for the AIDS virus and two others that tested positive for hepatitis B.

About one in 10 tests for the AIDS virus yields an inaccurate positive result, according to Steve Sims, a congressional aide who has been investigating Red Cross blood supplies since 1988.

The FDA report cited several problems with the Blood Collection Center in Portland that serves Oregon and parts of southwest Washington and southeast Alaska.

The alleged difficulties included botched test procedures, failure to properly calibrate testing equipment, failure to record results and the release of other presumptively infectious blood because of computer software problems.

Dr. Frans Peetoom, the doctor in charge of blood services for the Red Cross Pacific Northwest Region, has been suspended pending a more detailed study of the center's blood samples, said Wyden, an Oregon Democrat who released the report along with Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich.

Fleming, the Oregon epidemiology official, said no tainted blood was released by the Red Cross.

"Evidently there was a difference between the way the Red Cross documents its testing and the way the FDA thought it should be," he said.

In their statement, Red Cross officials said the organization "takes the observations made in the FDA's report very seriously and is confident that we are able to respond to these observations. Corrective action is under way and most corrective action has already occurred."

Some of the blood that appeared contaminated on initial testing was divided into doses of red blood cells, plasma and other blood products before being shipped.

"The FDA found, on the basis of records of the Portland Red Cross, that blood initially reactive for the AIDS virus has been released," Wyden told reporters at a news conference.

Wyden said he received a letter last week from Peetoom assuring him that the FDA's month-long inspection of the Portland center found no infected blood had been released.

"That concerns me as much as anything. That would suggest they are not on top of even their own records," Wyden said.

"Absent evidence to the contrary, you have to assume that the blood went out and went to people," Wyden said.

Wyden said he was aware he might come under criticism for causing a scare over the quality of the Northwest's blood supply, but he said he decided to make the report public "because citizens have a right to know."

He said he does not want to make the claim that the blood supply is unsafe, but "I think there are serious problems at the center."

Court rules airlines can not be sued for distress

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court,in a unanimous decision Wednesday, ruled that the 1929 treaty governing international flights makes no allowance for passengers' recovering money for damages from purely emotional injuries.

"We conclude that an air carrier cannot be held liable under Article 17 when an accident has not caused a passenger to suffer death, physical injury, or physical manifestation of injury," Justice Thurgood Marshall wrote.

At issue the Warsaw Convention, signed in 1929 at a time when international air travel was in its embryonic stages. Ratified by the U.S. Senate in 1934, the convention's Article 17 — written in French — permits damage claims for "the death or wounding of a passenger or any other bodily injury."

Passengers aboard an Eastern Airlines flight in 1983 that plunged rapidly after three engines lost oil pressure argued that "other bodily injury" should include mental anguish.

The passengers, en route from Miami to the Bahamas, went through a nerve-wracking nosedive when each of the plane's engines failed in succession. The crew told them the pilot would try to ditch the plane in the Atlantic Ocean.

Passengers said that they were able to see whitecaps on the ocean when the pilot managed to restart an engine.

Passengers pursued their claims in federal court in Miami. The lower court turned them down in 1986. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 11th Circuit in Atlanta, however, ruled that the passengers were entitled to an emotional stress damage award.

That decision, however, conflicted with other lower court rulings; so the Supreme Court accepted the case to resolve the differing interpretations.

There is nothing in the record of the Warsaw Convention to indicate that the participants intended Article 17 to cover mental distress, Marshall wrote.

Much of the dispute centered on the translation of the French words "lesion corporelle," which the court interpreted as meaning "bodily injury." Passengers on the Eastern flight had contended that the words could be extended to mental anguish.

But Marshall said, "The drafters (at the 1929 convention) most likely would have felt compelled to make an unequivocal reference to purely mental injury if they had specifically intended to allow such recovery."

Japan snubs Gorbachev's plea

The World

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's elite toasted and cheered Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Wednesday, but turned a cold shoulder to the Soviet leader's frank plea for aid and investment as talks failed to resolve a territorial dispute.

Gorbachev, in a speech to parliament, urged Japan to join the "new spirit in Soviet-U.S. relations" that began with the end of the Cold War and promised that the Soviet Union would never attack Japan.

He also claimed broad Soviet military reductions in Asia and said he did not intend to interfere with Japan's most important relationship, its security treaty with America.

Yet midway through Gorbachev's historic four-day visit, deep-seated Japanese doubts about their giant Soviet neighbor and its economic stability were proving more difficult to overcome than Cold War hostility.

Accompanied by his wife, Raisa, the 60-year-old Soviet president entered the wood-paneled main chamber of the Diet, or parliament, to a standing ovation. He received another when he finished speaking 45 minutes later.

In his most plain-spoken request to date for foreign aid, Gorbachev warned that "the development of a new peaceful world order will largely depend on the outcome of perestroika. ... We are counting on support for our efforts, particularly now as we go through this critical stage."

"If we let the new social processes get out of hand, the country may really be thrown into the chaos that gives birth to dictatorship," he said in a speech interrupted seven times by applause.

At a luncheon meeting earlier, Gorbachev was blunter about asking for aid. He threw out most of a prepared text in trying to persuade 600 business leaders he was serious about reforming the crumbling Soviet economy.

"Our Far East and Siberia have resources, but they lack the infrastructure to develop them," Gorbachev said, adding that the Soviet Union has much to learn from Japan's experience of converting military industries to commercial use.

Gorbachev stressed he was aware of the need for the Soviet Union to deal with its outstanding debts.

"This year has been especially difficult because our oil exports have declined due to the Gulf War. But we have the resources to resolve the problem. Your understanding would be appreciated," he said.

But Japan's hard-nosed business elders, whose savvy built this country into the world's No. 2 economic power, said political and economic problems must be resolved before they can invest.

"It was all requests. (Gorbachev) didn't have any gifts to offer us. That's a pity," said one executive who refused to give his name. Indeed, the Soviets are asking Japan for a loan to pay off hundreds of millions of dollars of debt for Japanese exports.

As expected, there was no progress reported on Japan's main condition for freeing up Japanese capital: that the Soviets return four islands off northern Japan seized in the closing days of World War II.

Territorial concessions of any kind are risky in a nation beset by separatist movements, and Gorbachev seems to be under the sway of hard-liners who oppose such a move. His political rival, Russian President Boris Yeltsin, also has warned that no deal can be made on the islands without his republic's approval.

Gorbachev and Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu met Wednesday evening for their third and last scheduled summit session, then set an extra round of talks on the islands for Thursday.

Soviet spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko described the talks as "a profound and serious exchange and at times it was sharp." The public Japan Broadcasting Corp. reported that no new proposals were made by either side.

Colima Volcano belches hot lava

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The continent's highest active volcano trembled and belched hot lava and ash Wednesday in its greatest seismic display since 1913. An expert studying the odds of a major eruption said "it could go either way."

A huge lava dome atop the the 14,003-foot Colima Volcano crater broke Tuesday, and instruments recorded more than 100 small tremors, said another researcher, Servando de la Cruz of the National University in Mexico City.

He said lava was solidifying high on the slopes of the volcano and hot rocks had set brush fires at the base.

State authorities have made vehicles available in case of evacuations for the nearly 2,000 people who live around the volcano, about 300 miles west of Mexico City near the Pacific Coast. Some towns at the base of the mountain are about six miles from the crater.

"All historic eruptive cycles of this particular volcano have ended with a cataclysmic event," said Michael Sheridan, head of the geology department at the State University of New York at Buffalo.

Volcanic material has filled the crater and the past few months built up a dome that Sheridan said looks like "a big black blister."

The dome rises 100 feet higher than the rim of the crater, said Sheridan, who climbed to the summit March 27.

"At this point, it could go either way. If lava continues to come out of the top at the current rate, within two weeks the top will become unstable, causing lava flows and avalanches," Sheridan said.

The dome could explode or become unstable and slide down the mountainside — or its weight could cause another part of the mountain to give way, Sheridan said. A break in the dome could release gas and cause an explosion, he said.

Sheridan, who has been studying the volcano for two years on a National Science Foundation project, said a major eruption could cause rock slides nine miles away from the summit.

Colima, the highest North American volcano that has been active in the past 30 years, erupted in 1913.

De la Cruz said some activity occurred in 1975, 1982 and 1987, but none of the previous events had small earthquakes or lava flows.

Refugees glad of U.S. aid but still fearful of Saddam

SILOPI, Turkey (NYT) — Even mention of the possibility of returning to an Iraq still controlled by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein arouses tremors of anxiety and mistrust among Iraqi Kurds seeking refuge in the Turkish-operated holding camp here.

Exactly how many will choose to head home with a temporary U.S. promise of protection remains anyone's guess.

Word of President Bush's announcement Tuesday that the United States would be setting up and protecting refugee camps for the Kurds in Iraq spread quickly among the several thousand inhabitants of the Silopi camp, which, unlike the mountain refugee encampments, has running water, regular medical care, food supplies, bathing facilities and a mosque.

"I miss my home," said Peruyin, who said she came from a border town, Zakho. "We have our own house. We spent years building and furnishing it. I don't know if it's still there. We left everything."

"It will be great if America protects us," she said. "But I do not want to go back to Iraq if Saddam Hussein is still in power."

She and others interviewed at the camp refused to give their full names for fear of imperiling family members in areas under Iraqi government control.

In a smelly but orderly tent he shared with 10 members of his family, Ars, a mechanic, said he longed for his hometown, which lies a mere 10 miles across the border from Silopi.

"We will go to Iraq after the U.S. Army begins to protect us from the Iraqi army," he said. "I will be happy to go back."

"I would prefer to go back when Saddam Hussein is no longer in power," he said, "but I believe that Saddam won't be around if the United States doesn't want him to be."

As they spoke, U.S. military cargo helicopters roared overhead and Marine units ran through exercises just outside their new helicopter base up the road, preparing for possible deployment across the Iraqi border.

Jihan, a smiling 10-year-old Kurdish girl who fled Zakho with her parents, said she was no longer as afraid as she was when her family fled Iraq over the mountains two weeks ago only to wind up camped on a precipice with too little food, water and clothing, and no sanitation.

"I want to go back to school," she said, holding her year-old sister, Hayfa, who still suffers from the diarrhea that has claimed the lives of dozens of infants in the squalid mountain encampments that still hold more than half a million refugees on the Turkish-Iraqi border alone. "I want to go back to my toys. I want to go back to my friends."

"But if Saddam Hussein is still in Iraq," she said, "I don't want to go to Iraq."

Turkish government officials said Wednesday they were relieved the United States, Britain and France have taken on much of the burden of protecting and supplying the Kurdish refugees.

"It will take a great burden off Turkey's shoulders if these refugees return to Iraq," Turkish President Turgut Ozal said in an interview on domestic television.

"This was what we have been trying to say since the beginning, and this is also the natural solution," Ozal said. "I want to thank President Bush for his concern and humanity."

U.N. discusses southern Iraq

UNITED NATIONS (NYT) — Diplomats and U.N. Nations officials have been discussing the possibility that thousands of refugees now in southern Iraq may be admitted into Kuwait, Iran and Saudi Arabia, U.N. officials said Wednesday.

There are some 30,000 refugees in the south of Iraq, many of whom backed an unsuccessful Shiite Muslim uprising there. The refugees have been under the protection of the coalition that drove Iraqi forces from Kuwait, but the coalition's troops are being pulled out of the area.

One official said he assumed the movement of refugees would be completed before Iraq re-established control over the zone.

The U.N. officials said Wednesday that discussions about moving the refugees have been held in recent days here and in the capitals of the countries involved.

Officials estimated that roughly 4,000 of the 30,000 were Iranian Shiite Muslims or Shiite Iraqi nationals of Iranian descent with relatives in Iran. They said the number of Iraqi Sunni Muslims among the 30,000 was something less than 4,000.

U.N. officials suggested that, at least in Saudi Arabia, the refugees might be granted asylum only temporarily.

General and A&M good matchup!

Texas A&M University is an outstanding institution of higher learning with a reputation for turning out top-quality leaders for both the business world and the military. Now A&M apparently is moving to capture the biggest business and military plum on the horizon in the person of Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf.

A copyrighted story in The Dallas Morning News noted recently that State Comptroller John Sharp, who is an A&M alumni, said he had learned that the university is pursuing Schwarzkopf for its next chancellor. Sharp also said that both parties had expressed an interest in the general taking the chancellor's post which has been open since December when Perry Adkisson resigned.

Schwarzkopf became a "hot commodity" in the business world after he commanded Operation Desert Storm's forces in the liberation of Kuwait from the invading Iraqi forces. In fact, for a time Wall Streeters were saying that the general could pick and choose between jobs in the private sector.

The A&M chancellor's post is a "plum" in its own right, however, and would give Schwarzkopf the prestige he deserves. A&M University produces the largest number of military officers of any school in the nation except for the military academies. And A&M's gungho attitude should fit well with the general's own positive, forceful leadership style.

No doubt the university's position is only one of those being made available to the general from across this nation, still basking in the swift and precise gulf war's conclusion. We hope the general will view the opportunity with favor.

Certainly the general's presence at A&M would enhance the university's already prestigious standing among the nation's top schools. But it also would be a feather in the state's cap. For that reason we, too, would like to see A&M and Schwarzkopf come to terms on the chancellor's post.

OTHER VIEWS

Bush and Salinas must push trade

Unions fear the loss of jobs. U.S. environmentalists worry that a surge of industry in Mexico will worsen already bad pollution problems. Mexican industrialists, who benefit from protectionist rules, worry about competition. So do U.S. agricultural interests. And there is Mexico's long-term fear of domination by the Colossus of the North to overcome.

These objections are entirely understandable — but it's important to put the debate in a larger context, to project it beyond petty parochial concerns. In the long term, free trade between the United States and Mexico would work to the benefit of those nations, freeing up energies which have long been pent up. And, by no means least, it would represent a counterpoise to the coming economic unification of Europe. It's a goal both President Bush and Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari must pursue with unrelenting intensity.

Soviet chaos indicates Gorbachev against tide

Just a couple of months ago, an optimistic assessment of the chaos that has gripped the Soviet Union went this way: "The civil war won't last long."

That was before Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's archrival, Boris Yeltsin, won approval for increased powers of the Russian presidency and the election of that post by popular vote. Before Soviet coal miners went on strike, ... Before price increases went into effect without the anticipated stocking of bare state store shelves ... And before (last week's) vote of independence by the parliament of the Georgia republic.

Gorbachev's response to these latest events — a package of "anti-crisis" measures including a moratorium on strikes, rallies and demonstrations, as well as a halt to "other political actions that might destabilize the political situation in the country" — could very well determine how soon the civil war will start.

There is very little the U.S. or any other country can do other than to point out to Gorbachev that he is swimming against the tide.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, April 18, the 108th day of 1991. There are 257 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 18, 1775, Paul Revere began his famous ride from Charlestown to Lexington, Mass., warning the American colonists that the British were coming.

On this date:

In 1906, a devastating earthquake struck San Francisco, followed by raging fires. About 700 people died.

In 1923, the first game was played in Yankee Stadium. The Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox, 4-1.

In 1934, the first laundromat (called a "washateria") opened, in Fort Worth, Texas.

In 1942, four months after Pearl Harbor, an air squadron led by James H. Doolittle bombed Tokyo and other Japanese cities.

In 1942, the U.S. Armed Forces published the first issue of "The Stars and Stripes."

In 1945, war correspondent Ernie Pyle was killed by Japanese gunfire on the Pacific island of le Shima, off Okinawa.

In 1949, the Irish republic was proclaimed.

In 1955, physicist Albert Einstein died in Princeton, N.J.

In 1956, actress Grace Kelly married Prince Rainier of Monaco in a civil ceremony (A church wedding took place the next day).

In 1978, the U.S. Senate voted 68-32 to turn the Panama Canal over to Panamanian control on December 31, 1999.

Pilots missed Blackbirds during war

WASHINGTON — The super-secret SR-71 Blackbird spy plane was officially retired five months before Iraq invaded Kuwait last August and there is ample evidence that it was missed in the Persian Gulf War.

Anderson

Military intelligence officers in the Gulf repeatedly complained about a lack of quality, up-to-date photography of conditions in both Iraq and Kuwait. That is the Blackbird's specialty.

Our associate Jim Lynch has learned that Desert Storm commander Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf asked the Pentagon for a Blackbird as early as July when Iraqi forces were assembling on the Kuwait border. His request was denied. The Navy asked for Blackbird overflights in September, but that request was denied too.

It all boils down to a dispute in the Pentagon over satellite photography vs. overflights by reconnaissance planes. And Dick Cheney, the former congressman who was a big fan of the satellites, is now the secretary of defense. It apparently was Cheney who denied the requests from Schwarzkopf and others to bring the Blackbirds out of mothballs for the gulf war.

When Cheney served in Congress, he sat on the House Intelligence Committee. In the committee's secretive, closed-door sessions, Cheney and other pro-satellite members of Congress were pivotal in grounding the plane. Blackbird supporters lamented the failure of Congress to confirm John Tower as secretary of defense. Tower was a firm believer in the plane and, the next man on the list of nominees, Cheney, was not.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, is a proponent of the Blackbird. On a trip to the Gulf after the war ended, Glenn talked to Schwarzkopf and said the general was "very concerned" with the lack of good battlefield intelligence for his troops. "They actually sent up F-18s at times to survey the battlefield before they went out," Glenn told us. It reached the point where pilots flying out were getting their best intelligence anecdotally from pilots who had just returned.

As the analysis of the war filters in, it appears likely Congress will try to resurrect the Blackbird from a premature death.

The Blackbird is the fastest, highest-flying plane in the world. Its sleek, bat-like shape gives it the mystique of menace, but it carries no weapons. It just takes pictures. Blackbirds photographed the Iranians sowing mines in the Persian Gulf in 1987. The planes also photographed Moammar Gadhafi's tent for the 1986 bombing raid on Libya. They verified the Cuban presence in Grenada before that invasion in 1983. They tracked the movement of U.S. hostages in Iran in the 1970s and Vietnam POWs before that. And, in 25 years of flights over enemy territory, enemy fire never shot down a Blackbird, although friendly fire in Washington did.

During its farewell continental flight in March 1990, one Blackbird broke the world speed record crossing the nation in 68 minutes and 17 seconds at speeds surpassing 2,000 mph.

With that kind of record, it was politics, not performance, that grounded the Blackbirds. The satellite worshipers in Congress didn't want it, and the Air Force brass preferred to spend the money on other toys. Satellite buffs like Cheney think satellites will do it all. The fact is, they can't. They only provide interval photography. Cloud cover can hamper their effectiveness. And once they are launched, the equipment cannot be altered.

Reactivating the Blackbirds would not be too difficult. During Operation Desert Shield, the builder, Lockheed, confided that it could get three planes up and running in a month. But the more time that passes, the more expensive it will be to round up a usable fleet of Blackbirds. Some have already been stripped and donated to museums.

Conservative factions argue about Kurds

WASHINGTON — Conservatism, having flourished like the green bay tree, is now large enough to have many branches. In fact, America's most important argument today is not between liberals and conservatives, but between two conservative factions: traditional conservatives and imperial conservatives. It involves the Kurds.

Will

Concerning the question of U.S. military intervention in Iraq's civil war, President Bush has the traditional conservative's wariness about uncertain undertakings, a prudent scepticism about the promiscuous minting of abstract rights and duties, and an inclination to anchor U.S. policy in the rock of U.S. national interests. Today's imperial conservatives consider such thinking crabbed, mean-spirited and insensitive. They want America to do for the world what Lyndon Johnson's Great Society was supposed to do for America: fix it.

The strongest voice urging the United States to shoulder imperial burdens on behalf of the Kurds is that of The Wall Street Journal, which has been consistent. Even last summer it envisioned a "MacArthurian Regency" in Baghdad, meaning, presumably, treating Iraq in 1991 as Japan was treated in 1945. But American suzerainty in Tokyo was preceded by total war in pursuit of unconditional surrender, followed by occupation and constitution-making.

The Journal says the Kurds are fighting for "our values." Perhaps the Kurds really want to establish social pluralism under government of limited, delegated and enumerated powers. Never mind the absence of any evidence of the social, institutional and moral preconditions for that. But even if democratic aspirations exist among Kurds, that does not create an American obligation to facilitate them by forcibly rearranging a sovereign nation.

Many of today's imperial conservatives are speaking the language of a liberal overreacher, Woodrow Wilson. His rhetoric about ethnic self-determination became a lever Hitler used to legitimize prying Sudeten Germans away from Czechoslovakia. When today's imperial conservatives exhort U.S. intervention in the restructuring of Iraq, and equate respect for national sovereignty with making a fetish of "legal niceties," radicalism has taken up residence in a new precinct.

The Wall Street Journal's Paul Gigot thinks, and thinks Edmund Burke would agree, that Kurds are owed an American defense of their rights. I brought Burke, conservatism's heavy artillery, into this conversation two weeks ago when I wrote that some Americans are departing from conservative prudence by advocating nation-building by America in Iraq. Burke, I said, knew nations to be complex organisms in which dictated rearrangements are apt to be overwhelmed by unintended consequences, particularly when the dictation comes from uncomprehending political cultures.

Gigot says Burke "would be leading the fight" against Bush's "neglect" of the Kurds. As evidence, Gigot cites Burke's defense of what Gigot calls "the Kurds of his own day," meaning "the British subjects in India." Gigot says Burke's speeches impeaching Warren Hastings show that Burke would favor military intervention on behalf of the Kurds.

Hastings was an officer of the East India Company, through which England had chartered rights and obligations regarding India's governance. India was becoming Britain's possession. Therefore, Burke said, England was obligated to govern decently. His complaint concerned "oppression committed under the sanction of our own authority." Gigot evidently thinks the United States acquired comparable authority by bombing Iraq.

America, says Gigot, is obligated to help Kurds realize their rights to self-government. Beware, said Burke, of "the delusive plausibility of moral politicians," those who praise rights or other concepts "in all the nakedness and solitude of metaphysical abstraction." They are unaware that circumstances give to every political concept "its distinctive color and discriminating effect."

Burke defended American colonists' resistance to London's infringement of their traditional "inherited" rights as Englishmen. He did not call for England to guarantee such rights, let alone "natural rights," throughout India, where they had no "pedigree" (Burke's word).

Gigot suggests the relationship he thinks appropriate between the United States and Iraq, or at least the Kurds, when he quotes Burke on India: "Great Britain entered into a virtual act of union with that country...."

England was in India for another century and a half after Burke said that, until 1948, when England withdrew amid bitterness at home and bloodshed in India.

Welcome home show resembles GOP rally

I was watching a television show Sunday night called "Welcome Home America." It was a tribute to the USO and our boys and girls who fought in Desert Storm. There were 4,500 troops in the audience as well as three presidents — Bush, Ford and Reagan. Nothing could have been more heartwarming or patriotic.

Buchwald

But as the program went on I noticed something very strange, and I turned to my loyal Republican friend Cloister and said, "There are no Democrats in the tribute."

"Why would you want to feature Democrats?"

"Didn't the Democrats have anything to do with Desert Storm?"

"Heck, no," he chuckled. "This was a Republican war from start to finish. It was produced by a Republican president, directed by a Republican secretary of defense, orchestrated by a Republican secretary of state, and every officer worth anything was on the GOP side."

I was aghast but not surprised. "What about the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines? Not every single one of them could have been a Republican."

Cloister said, "Damn near all of them were. If there was a Democrat in the ranks, the word never got back to Washington."

"I didn't know any of this."

"Why do you think the Republicans are staging all the 'welcome home' celebrations? It was our military and we paid for it."

"Cloister, is it just possible that the Republicans are trying to cash in on Desert Storm for political reasons?"

"What makes you say that?"

"It's so obvious in this show. It's not entertainment. It looks more like a GOP rally in a presidential election year."

"You are insulting our fighting men and women. Do you think that they would be here if they thought they were being used?"

"What else is there for them to do on a Sunday night? Don't get me wrong. The people who took part in Desert Storm deserve everything they can get except a third-rate TV show decorated by three Republican presidents."

I know that I got through to Cloister because he was choking on his beer. "Why don't the Democrats have their own program instead of crying foul when we put one on?"

"Because Desert Storm was not a Republican war or a Democratic war."

"What kind of war was it?"

"It was a great war if you don't ask the Kurds," I told him.

He looked at me. "You hate America, don't you?"

"No. Why do you think so?"

"Anyone who criticizes a show starring Debbie Allen, Tony Danza, the Pointer Sisters, Kenny Rogers and Tom Selleck plus three Republican presidents has no right to stand up for America."

Firefighter Adair threatens to remove crews from Kuwait

HOUSTON (HNS) — Houston oil well firefighter Red Adair says he'll bring his crews home if the Kuwaiti government doesn't come through soon with heavy equipment and other promised resources.

Adair told firefighters attending the Industrial Fire World Exposition on Tuesday that he is frustrated by the lack of heavy equipment, water and adequate accommodations for his workers.

Adair said he's got plenty of work elsewhere in the world if the Kuwaitis can't provide the basic tools he needs.

The 78-year-old firefighting legend flew to Washington after his speech early Tuesday. U.S. Rep. Curt Weldon, R-Pa., said he will arrange a meeting in the next few days between Adair and Kuwait's ambassador to the United States, Sheik Saud al Nasir al-Sabah, to try to iron out problems.

Weldon, who returned from a trip to Kuwait three weeks ago, said he was "shocked and alarmed" at the inadequate response so far to the environmental disaster that is unfolding in Kuwait.

Weldon, who heads a congressional task force on Kuwait, said the Commerce Department and U.S. military need to help companies like Adair's cut through the red tape by coordinating more closely with the Kuwaiti government and other governments in the region. "(Adair's) expertise is not in filling out forms and dealing with lawyers," Weldon said.

But a senior government official who asked not to be identified said there isn't a lot those agencies can do.

"The Commerce Department cannot direct the Kuwaiti government on what to do," the official said. "Yes, they're slow; yes, they're disorganized; ... yes, it's exasperating for the companies trying to work there."

He added, however, that the Kuwaiti government has made putting out the fires and capping wells its highest priority.

"It's not a question of the Kuwaiti government not wanting to help," he said.

Firefighting companies took offense at the Kuwaiti oil minister's recent call for additional teams to help tackle the burning wells. The companies say they need more equipment, not more men.

"It's like a slap in the face," said David Thompson of Boots & Coots.

In the last four weeks, Boots & Coots has capped nine wells. Adair's company has capped 28, and Wild Well Control has capped 25. A fourth company hired to cap wells arrived from Canada only a week ago.

More than 600 wells were damaged or set afire.

There's No Place Like Home!

Here are a few tips you can use to be a better friend to Mother Earth.

1 AERATE YOUR FAUCETS Installing low-flow faucet aerators on kitchen and bathroom sink faucets will save hot water. It will also cut water use by as much as 280 gallons per month for a typical family of four.

2 MAKE IT A ROYAL FLUSH Put a plastic bottle in your toilet tank, or put a displacement bag in your tank, or install toilet dams. Water savings: 1-2 gallons per flush.

3 AIR-POWER YOUR SHOWER Showers usually account for a whopping 32% of home water use. With a low-flow [aerated] shower head, a family of four, taking five-minute showers, can save at least 14,000 gallons of water a year.

4 DON'T GO WITH THE FLOW If you wash your car at home, using a hose, you can use up to 150 gallons of water. If you wash it at a self-service car wash, you use 5-10 gallons. If you use a sponge and a bucket, you use 15 gallons.

5 TIME TO RE-TIRE? Radial tires really do improve gas mileage. Steel-belted tires are generally the most efficient. Make sure your tires are properly inflated, balanced and (every 6,000-8,000 miles) rotated.

New trends in home decor emphasize total look

Consumers on the prowl for the latest looks in home furnishings can now choose from a growing range of styles, colors and finishes. According to the Home Furnishings Council, an industry-wide coalition of manufacturers and retailers, this is good news because Americans are taking a greater interest in their home environments as they spend more of their leisure time at home.

The newest trend in home furnishings is to use a single theme to achieve a total look – from neoclassic to traditional to contemporary. Whether borrowed from the past or seemingly created for the future, these new styles, colors and finishes all play an important role in pulling together the freshest looks this year.

To help consumers integrate the latest styles into their own homes, the Council offers Haven, a free 48-page, full-color home decorating guide. Consumers simply call 1-800-521-HOME for the name of the closest furniture retailer where they can pick up their free copy of this invaluable, step-by-step guide to styles, colors, room arrangements, terminology and costs.

Themes:

■ The safari look is this season's newest theme – complete with peeled rattan furniture, natural materials from leather to linen, and African ethnic crafts.

■ Neoclassic is back – sometimes formal, sometimes casual; but always strong, elegant and orderly.

■ Country styles expand – painted pieces and oddities abound in themes from a variety of locations and time periods.

■ 19th century revisited – from Victorian-style white iron beds to the neo-opulence of elegantly toned down fringes and tassels, the turn-of-the-century look offers the patina of time.

■ Contemporary goes upscale – tile, fossilized and faux stone, wrought iron and glass-on-glass are the best of today's ultra-modern looks.

■ Casual furniture moves inside – wicker furniture with floral print pillows tops casual looks in family rooms and breakfast nooks. The biggest news – the wicker look is now in metal.

■ Dual purpose rooms take off – is it a den, an office, a guest room or all three? Definitely the latter stylishly done.

Color:

■ Metallic colors are the big news for accessories – especially porcelains, ceramics and glassware.

■ Jewel tones still shine brightly, but intense primaries and cool pastels are coming on strong.

■ Earth tones – muted greens, yellows, browns and reds of the American Southwest – continue to be winners.

■ Richer, deeper hues of green and burgundy take their new cues from the sheen of East Asian fabrics.

■ Clean and cool, black and white finds a home in contemporary settings.

Finishing touches:

■ Painted finishes abound – from realistic images to flights of fancy on everything from elegant accent furniture to painted metal bunk beds in juvenile furniture lines.

■ Painted fabrics are also big news – especially handpainted florals on linen.

■ The natural look is the watchword in fabric – from an opulent silken appearance to nubby linen-like textures.

■ Leather has never been more popular – particularly on the new padover chaise and other recliner designs, where modern technology makes sitting still a moving experience.

Select seating based on needs

Your mind is made up on the perfect color. You've got the dimensions down pat. You even have your heart set on a particular style. Now you face the biggest decision. Out of dozens of similar pieces of furniture priced from just a few hundred dollars to several thousand, how do you pick the one that is the right quality for your needs?

The words "your needs" and a basic knowledge of upholstered furniture construction are the keys to selecting furniture that will meet your expectations. Before you shop, take a good look at your lifestyle. Do you love elegant entertaining? Or do you prefer casual gatherings and meals in front of the TV? What about children and pets?

Start your furniture shopping with a lifestyle "needs" list. If this furniture will be in a high-use family room, durability will be at the top of your list. But if it is in a formal living room, the style or fabric color might well be most important. Is fashion your top priority? Or is carefree maintenance more important?

Once you've established what your needs are, you're ready to evaluate how well a piece of upholstered furniture will meet those demands. Some pointers for a quality check:

- The frame is the furniture's skeleton –make sure it's solid.
- Lift one end of the piece – it should be heavy and substantial, with no wobble or creaking sounds.
- Any stapled or nailed flat "zig zag" seat springs should be well-fastened and secured.
- Pieces joined by dowels and interlocking assembly are stronger than those simply butted together.
- Check the springs. To tell how closely spaced and firmly anchored they are, remove a seat cushion and press down manually on the deck (the platform that supports the cushions). The less you can feel the springs, the better the construction.
- Sit down, bounce and again listen for telltale creaks or sounds of springs hitting frame.
- The deck should not become visible when you sit down.
- There should be ample padding on the top of the arms and front edge of the deck so that you don't feel the frame.
- Upholstery should lie smoothly, and seams and welts should be straight and even with no puckering or loose threads.

According to the Home Furnishings Council, an industry-wide coalition of furniture manufacturers and retailers, you can find good value no matter what your price range. To be a good buy, an expensive sofa has to be worth its price tag in quality, as well as in style. On the other hand, if an expensive sofa fits your design and durability needs, that's a good purchase for you.

Armed with these hints, make sure you allot enough shopping time to test the furniture – sit on the chair to make sure it's comfortable, open up the sleep-sofa and lie down on the mattress, try all the positions on the recliner, read all labels carefully and don't hesitate to ask questions of your salesperson.

Above all, one of the surest ways to guarantee that your home furnishings dollars are spent wisely is to rely on brand names you know and reputable retailers. For a list of the retailers near you that are members of the Home Furnishings Council, simply call 1-800-521-HOME.

Mid-Tex of Midland celebrates 50th anniversary with lower prices

Celebrating its 50th anniversary is Mid-Tex of Midland, located in the center of Midland at 3101 W. Cuthbert. From a modest beginning in 1941, Mid-Tex of Midland has grown to become one of the largest stores of its kind in the state.

Since this is Mid-Tex's 50th anniversary, its suppliers have reduced their prices to Mid-Tex, which has in turn reduced its margins. This allows Mid-Tex to sell for extremely low prices on nearly everything in the store.

Quality carpet lines include Philadelphia, Queen, Coronet, Aladdin, and many more. In vinyl flooring, select from Armstrong, Congoleum, Tarkett, Mannington, Azrock, Gentile and Amtico. Mid-Tex carries a big selection of imported and domestic ceramic tile.

Countertop selections are available from Formica, Corian and Wilson Art. Mid-Tex stocks precast tubs and vanity tops by Ortega. A big variety of quality wallcoverings by many manufacturers are available, including Seabrook, Schumacher, Kinney and others.

Wood flooring by Bruce, Hartco and others are in stock at Mid-Tex of Midland, along with kitchen and bath cabinets by Merillat and Crystal and window treatments by Levolor and Hunter Douglas. Of course, Mid-Tex of Midland features all of the related sundries to install the above mentioned products.

Professional Mid-Tex of Midland sales personnel, including designers, are always available to assist with the selection and coordination of all decorative products. All products can be professionally installed, and both residential and commercial remodeling jobs are welcomed.

Mid-Tex of Midland was founded in 1941 by Carroll Cook. In 1958, it was purchased by Floyd Miller. Sam Blanck joined the business in 1963 and soon after, bought in and became part owner. In 1984, Paul Renz came to work, and Alan White joined the staff in 1986. Miller sold his portion of the business in 1990, and Mid-Tex of Midland is currently owned by Blanck, White and Renz.

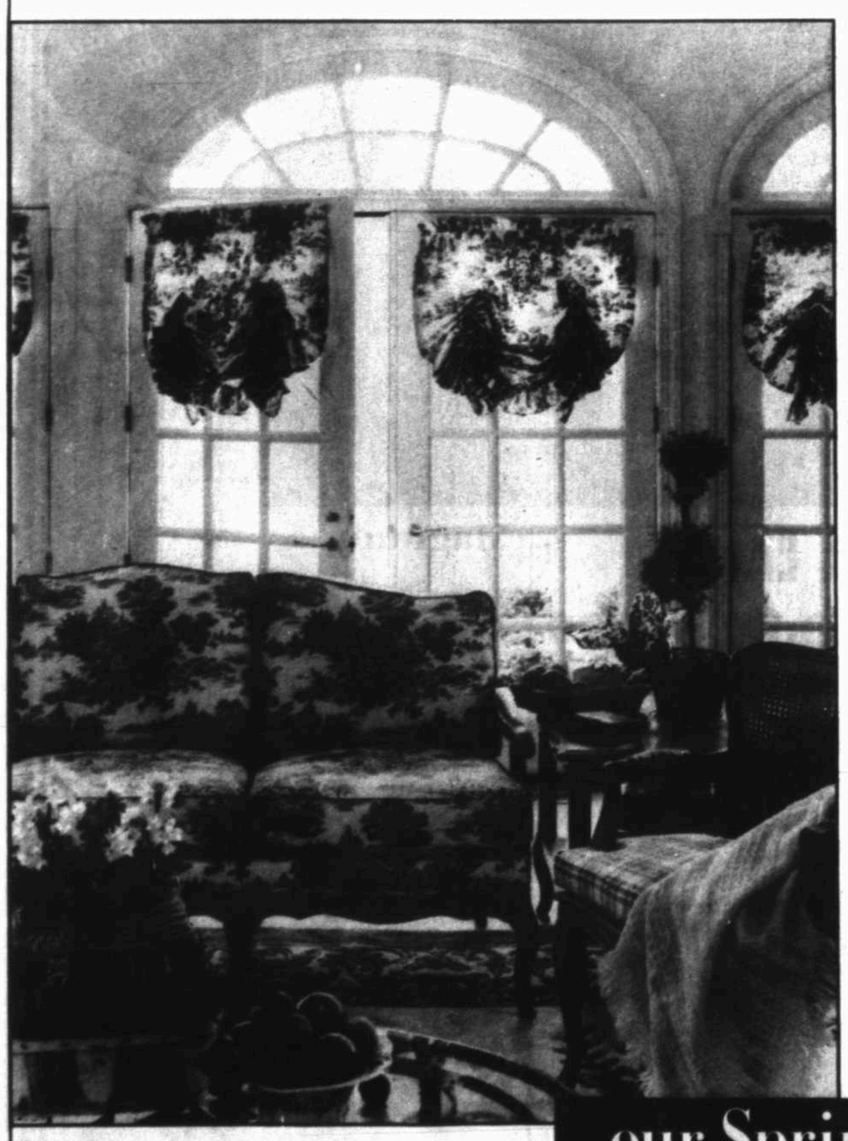

For your purchases at Mid-Tex of Midland, you may use Flex Credit for lower term payments, Visa or MasterCard.

Shop Mid-Tex of Midland Monday—Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturdays from 8 a.m.—4 p.m. For more information, please call 697-2282.

Shop Dunlap's for fine bed, bath coordinates

Dunlap's, in Midland's Dellwood Mall, features beautiful home decorating ideas for the bedroom and bathroom. Be sure to ask to see the coordinated display from F.R. Industries, which includes a shower curtain, towels and basket.

Change up a routine bathroom with the addition of an English Garden shower curtain with a balloon valance. Add Persian green towels with an English Garden embellishment and tie it up with a basket in English Garden fabric.

Dunlap's also carries linens, towels and accessories from Saturday Knight, Creative Bath, Regal Rugs, Fieldcrest and Martex. Check the Reporter-Telegram daily for sales throughout the store each week.

Be sure, also to take advantage of Dunlap's bridal registry, gift wrap service and free in town delivery. Purchases may be charged on such credit cards as Dunlap's, Visa, MasterCard, American Express and Discover. Layaways are welcomed also.

In 1990, Dunlap's celebrated its 100th anniversary serving the Southwest. In 1890, Hilliard G.W. Dunlap arrived in Wagoner Indian Territory, now Oklahoma, to engage in selling merchandise in a general store.

The early stores were general stores which sold dry goods, groceries, hardware, guns and coffins. Later the stores sold only dry goods and staple groceries.

In 1915, the company was joined by Retha R. Martin, who, with Ira Dunlap and Ira Dunlap, Jr., would expand Dunlap's into the largest independently owned and operated department store chain in the Southwest.

With Martin's guidance, beginning in the early 1930s, the company grew into the present 42 store group, with headquarters now being in Ft. Worth.

Dunlap's, located in Dellwood Mall at the corner of Midkiff and Illinois, is open Monday — Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Please call 694-8888 for more information.

Upholstery: Fabric dictates feeling of room

Fabric is the easiest and most effective way to interpret your color ideas and set the style for your home. A combination of prints, textures, solid colors and weaves can dictate the feeling of the room and the style you want to portray. It can even lend an aura of formality, masculinity or femininity to a room.

While fabric selections for draperies and wall coverings are primarily visual decisions, there is more to choosing fabric for upholstered furniture than meets the eye. Unless, you are furnishing a room that is strictly for formal entertainment, you'll want to know how the material will wear in a high-use area, especially if you have children or pets. Even if it's in a room that isn't used for everyday recreational activities, you'll still want to know if it's resistant to red wine stains or fading in sunlight.

Before you make final upholstery decisions, consider your own durability needs and check the quality of the fabric's construction:

■ Examine the tightness of a weave by holding it up to the light and looking for spots of light to show through – the less light, the tighter and more durable the weave.

Mix and match stripes, textures and prints for a room which is rich in visual impact.

■ Pull the fabric swatch diagonally. Yarns should not slip or separate; the backing should not show through.

■ Rub the back of the sample together to make sure the backing remains firmly bonded to the fabric and that no flaking occurs.

■ Test for pilling resistance by rubbing the fabric with a pencil eraser.

■ Keep in mind flammability, too – many of today's top fabric choices are flame-resistant.

■ Make sure the fabric has been treated for stain and soil resistance.

One last piece of advice – if you choose to clean your upholstery yourself, take the fabric care code information to heart. There are four special codes that indicate the correct way of spot cleaning. "W" means to use water-based cleaner only, "S" indicates use of a solvent cleaning agent, "S-W" shows that either method can be used, and "X" means vacuum only.

Note: Consumers can call 1-800-521-HOME for the name of tha closest furniture retailer where they can pick up a free copy of Haven, the Home Furnishing Council's 48-page, full-cover guide to home decorating.

Choosing home decor: Use imagination, forget old rules

Large or small, new or old, a suburban colonial or city apartment, your home is a personal environment. It's truly your little corner of the world.

Whatever the location or cost, it should uniquely reflect your own special needs, interests and tastes. Above all, your home should be physically comfortable, with some squashy seating, handy tables, soft lighting and plenty of places to stow all your treasures.

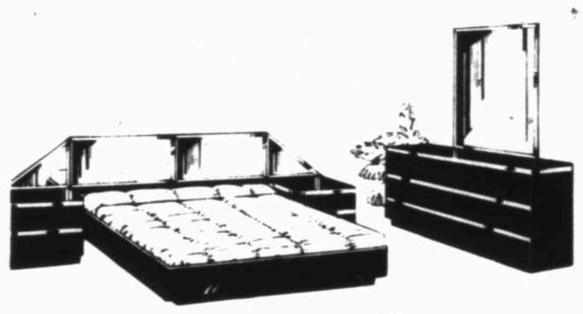

It should be emotionally comfortable, too, relaxing or reviving your spirits as soon as you set foot inside. Sound like someone else's dream house? It can be yours – more easily than you may think!

From choosing the first fabric swatch to placing the last accessory, creating a comfortable home for you and your family can be immensely satisfying. The secret is to take it slowly, room by room — and enjoy it!

There's no mystery to planning your home's furnishings. It's mostly a matter of learning what you like, following some logical steps and applying good common sense. Planning is the key – both for the present and for your future dreams.

Learn what you like. Establish the general look or mood you want in your home. Are you comfortable in a contemporary setting, or do you lean toward a mellow traditional look?

Is a mix of styles more your taste? Begin building a file of things you like by clipping pictures from magazines and making notes on room settings you see in furniture stores and designer show houses.

By browsing local stores, you can become familiar with prices and styles, too. Pay particular attention to why you like a room or piece of furniture. You'll soon see your style preferences emerging.

Give free rein to your imagination. Don't get caught up in trends, but do see what's new in the marketplace. Repeating the same old color scheme or choosing a lackluster carpet may be safe, but it's not the way to the fresh, new look you want.

Forget tired old rules. In these days of free-wheeling decorating, creating your own personal style is what's important. No longer does the headboard have to match a pair of nightstands and a triple dresser.

You can express your individuality, for instance, by combining a brass bed with a pine chest or stately armoire.

Eliminate past mistakes. If you have a still-usable carpet or chair you hate, be ruthless! Planning a new scheme around a misfit only perpetuates the problem and sends good money after bad. Even if you can't replace the item immediately, a bare wood floor or an empty corner is preferable to an "early-marriage" mistake.

Carter's Furniture offers quality, everyday low prices

Shoppers at Carter's Furniture, 501 E. Illinois, can count on the professional sales staff, which includes, from left, Sherron Howland, Rusty Hobbs and Anne Killinen. Carter's has been serving Midlanders since 1951.

Shop Carter's Furniture in Midland for everyday low prices on name brand furnishings, bedding and home decorating accessories. Carter's Furniture, located at 501 E. Illinois, has grown phenomenally since its establishment in 1951 by Mr. and Mrs. James C. Carter.

Carter's Furniture covers more than one-half city block of furniture displays with seven warehouses to make sure your purchase is in stock for immediate delivery.

Tim and Laura Carter, who took over ownership in 1986, and their experienced sales staff of Anne Killinen, Rusty Hubbs, Sherron Howland, Bob Harrison and Nina Anderson, are eager to serve you. A full-time qualified service department is ready to deliver and set up your purchases free of charge.

Carter's Furniture carries living room, dining room, bedroom and outdoor furniture, entertainment centers, lamps and accessories by such well-known makers as Broyhill, Hooker, Brookwood, Universal, Sumter, Vaughn, Bassett, Stanley, Benchcraft, Lyon Shaw, Lexington and Simmons Beautyrest bedding. Carter's also has a beautiful La-Z-Boy Gallery. The Gallery covers more than 3,000 sq. ft. of recliners, occasional chairs, sofas, loveseats and sleepers.

In addition, Carter's carries a good selection of leather sofas.

Carter's caters to the special order customer, and still provides its usual low discounted prices.

Cash customers enjoy a five percent discount, and purchases may be charged on Visa, MasterCard or Discover. A 90-day interest-free financing plan is available from Beneficial.

Said Tim Carter, "At Carter's we don't think of ourselves as just a place to buy furniture. We're your neighbors and proud to be part of this community. We care about what we sell and who we sell it to. Because, to us, you're not just a customer. You're our neighbor."

Carter's Furniture is open Monday — Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Please call 682-2843 for more information.

Develop decorating plan designed for comfort

Admittedly, home furnishings represent an investment – in you and your family. A comfortable home, however, pays dividends for years!

Balance the budget. As you allocate your budget, you'll want to set aside a major portion for things that get heavy use – such as the floor coverings in active areas – or items you want to last a long time, like a sofa, armoire or other special furniture piece. You can save on furnishings that get less wear and tear and by putting off purchases that are not immediately essential.

Use your own skills. Don't forget to factor in any projects you plan to do yourself. Paint and wallpaper, often available at sale prices, can provide a new look at little cost, especially if you can do the work yourself. Fabric bargains, too, can have a big effect for a small cash outlay.

While you're saving for that special sofa, consider slipcovering an old seating piece. Or, in a casual setting, simply wrap and tie a piece of furniture with a pretty fabric. Any of the refinishing, painting, papering or installation you can do yourself frees up more of your budget for higher priority items.

Chart your course. By setting up a master plan, you can confidently furnish one room or the whole house. A plan will keep you on track and help avoid costly mistakes. And you can implement it as the budget allows.

Few people can afford to redo a whole house all at once. Instead of tackling the entire project, choose the area that's most important to you. Although your first impulse may be to star in the public spaces, consider instead where you spend the most time.

As you continue to overhaul the rest of the house, you may be grateful for a cozy den or bedroom that's newly redone.

List your needs. Start by planning your room down to the last detail. List everything you want to change in the room, from quick fix-ups with paint to major furniture purchases.

Include the items you want to keep, refurbish or replace. Next, split your list up into several categories, as the budget dictates. What needs to be done now? What could be phased in stages over, say, the next two years? Three years?

Then establish a realistic budget and timetable for each phase of your plan. If there are inexpensive things that will quickly give the place a fresh look, put them high on your list.

Most of all, keep an open mind to new ideas and stay flexible!

Accessories truly personalize a home

Just as carefully chosen jewelry and a lovely scarf set off a special dress, so accessories add the stamp of personality that makes your home truly yours. No more are accessories chosen to impress or, worse yet, to match the wallpaper or upholstery color. Today, we live with the things we love!

Picking your personal accents. What qualifies as worthy of display? Whatever you like!

Putting your treasures on display. What to do with your finds once you have gathered them together can be a puzzle. The basic rules of scale and balance apply. As you read magazines and check out store displays, study the accessory arrangements. To help develop your eye for good composition, experiment with different groupings of your own. For added interest, try for a mix of shapes and sizes in your arrangements -- square or round, rectangular or triangle-shaped, high and low, large and small.

Organize a random assembly of collectibles by finding a common denominator, such as color, shape, style or material to unify them.

Group smaller finds for impact. When they're scattered around the room, a collection of paperweights or some delicate seashells may get lost in the bigger scheme of things. They will gain importance when you gather them on a tabletop or display them in a curio cabinet.

Unifying a group of unrelated prints is easy. Simply mat them all in the same color and then mount your artwork in matching frames.

City eyes foreign-trade zone change

■ Seventy acres of the present tax-free sanctuary is on Confederate Air Force property.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Foreign-trade zone boundaries in Midland could be modified to include land closer to other modes of transportation besides air travel, a city official said Wednesday.

Midland International Airport spokeswoman Marcy Blauvelt said the city is working with a local foundation to secure alternate property near railroad tracks and Interstate 20.

The city is looking to change the boundaries because 70 acres of foreign-trade zone at Midland International fall on Confederate Air Force soil, Blauvelt said.

The CAF, she said, has no plans to utilize the land as a foreign-trade zone, so the city hopes to set up an FTZ in industrial parks outside the airport area.

Two sites under consideration, one off Loop 250 south of U.S. Highway 80 and the other just south of Midland International, are owned by the Industrial Foundation of Midland.

An FTZ is a tax-free sanctuary for foreign products. Importers can bring foreign products and components into a zone, use them to manufacture products and then ship out the goods without paying duty.

Businesses also can use a zone as a storage area for foreign products, such as vehicles and clothing, and not have to pay duty on the goods until they are moved out.

The U.S. Department of Commerce last June approved creating an FTZ in Midland.

No companies have set up in the zone, a 166-acre site within the airport's 300-acre industrial park, but Ms. Blauvelt said the two alternate spots might create an extra incentive.

One possible site is located in the Midland Industrial Park on the east side of Loop 250 between U.S. Highway 80 and Interstate 20. The spot offers easy access to Interstate 20, Ms. Blauvelt said.

She said the other property, located in the Interstate 20 Terminal Park directly south of the airport between U.S. Highway 80 and the interstate, has railroad access.

Designating the land as FTZ territory would take federal approval, Ms. Blauvelt said, even though it would be a zone boundary change rather than an expansion.

"We're not adding acreage. We're trading acreage," she said.

The tradeoff proposal, she said, is expected to be reviewed by airport board members and the Midland City Council within the next 45 days.

If approved by those bodies, the proposal would be sent to the U.S. Department of Commerce, which should decide on it by this fall, Ms. Blauvelt said.

An application to change boundaries, she said, would receive quicker federal review than a zone expansion proposal.

The two proposed sites, she said, already have utilities hookups as well as warehouse facilities.

Grant Billingsley, Industrial Foundation of Midland president, said the foundation is receptive to allowing the property to be included in the city's FTZ.

"If it will help the foreign-trade zone and make it broader and more far reaching, you bet we're going to work with the city," Billingsley said.

Because the sites have better access to railroad lines and the interstate, he said some companies might find them more lucrative than FTZ land at the airport.

"They offer a broader range of real estate product," Billingsley said.

The land would be leased to companies wanting to locate within the FTZ, he said.

Santa Rita will receive 2 live oaks

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland's "Johnny Appleseed," Ed Vogler, will be lauded on Earth Day Monday when two live oak trees will be planted to replace the "chopped down" oak tree at Santa Rita Elementary School.

Vogler, a Midland consulting geologist, civic leader and advocate of the greening of Midland, has been persistent in encouraging the planting of trees, particularly at Midland International Airport.

Following the recent tree vandalism at the school and the resultant sadness and grief of the children there, Volger expressed his outrage over the person who "perpetuated this heinous crime.

"I want to give a reward for the apprehension and conviction of the dastardly villain that chopped down the tree at Santa Rita," said Vogler. "It's a very dastardly deed when anybody destroys greenery in West Texas."

An anonymous person donated the two oak trees to be planted at Santa Rita in Vogler's honor.

The tree-planting ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. on the Santa Rita school grounds.

Additional trees to be planted on the school grounds are to be donated by Exxon Co. USA and Wal-Mart "due to the outrage of the community over the destruction of the tree," said Sharla Hotchkiss, executive director of Keep Midland Beautiful. Exxon is donating a multi-trunk red oak, and Wal-Mart a live oak.

Santa Rita students were "horrified and shocked that anyone would do this," Dr. William Maurer, Santa Rita principal, said of the chopping down of the oak tree. "We have been working really hard in teaching environmental awareness and environmental concerns" at the school.

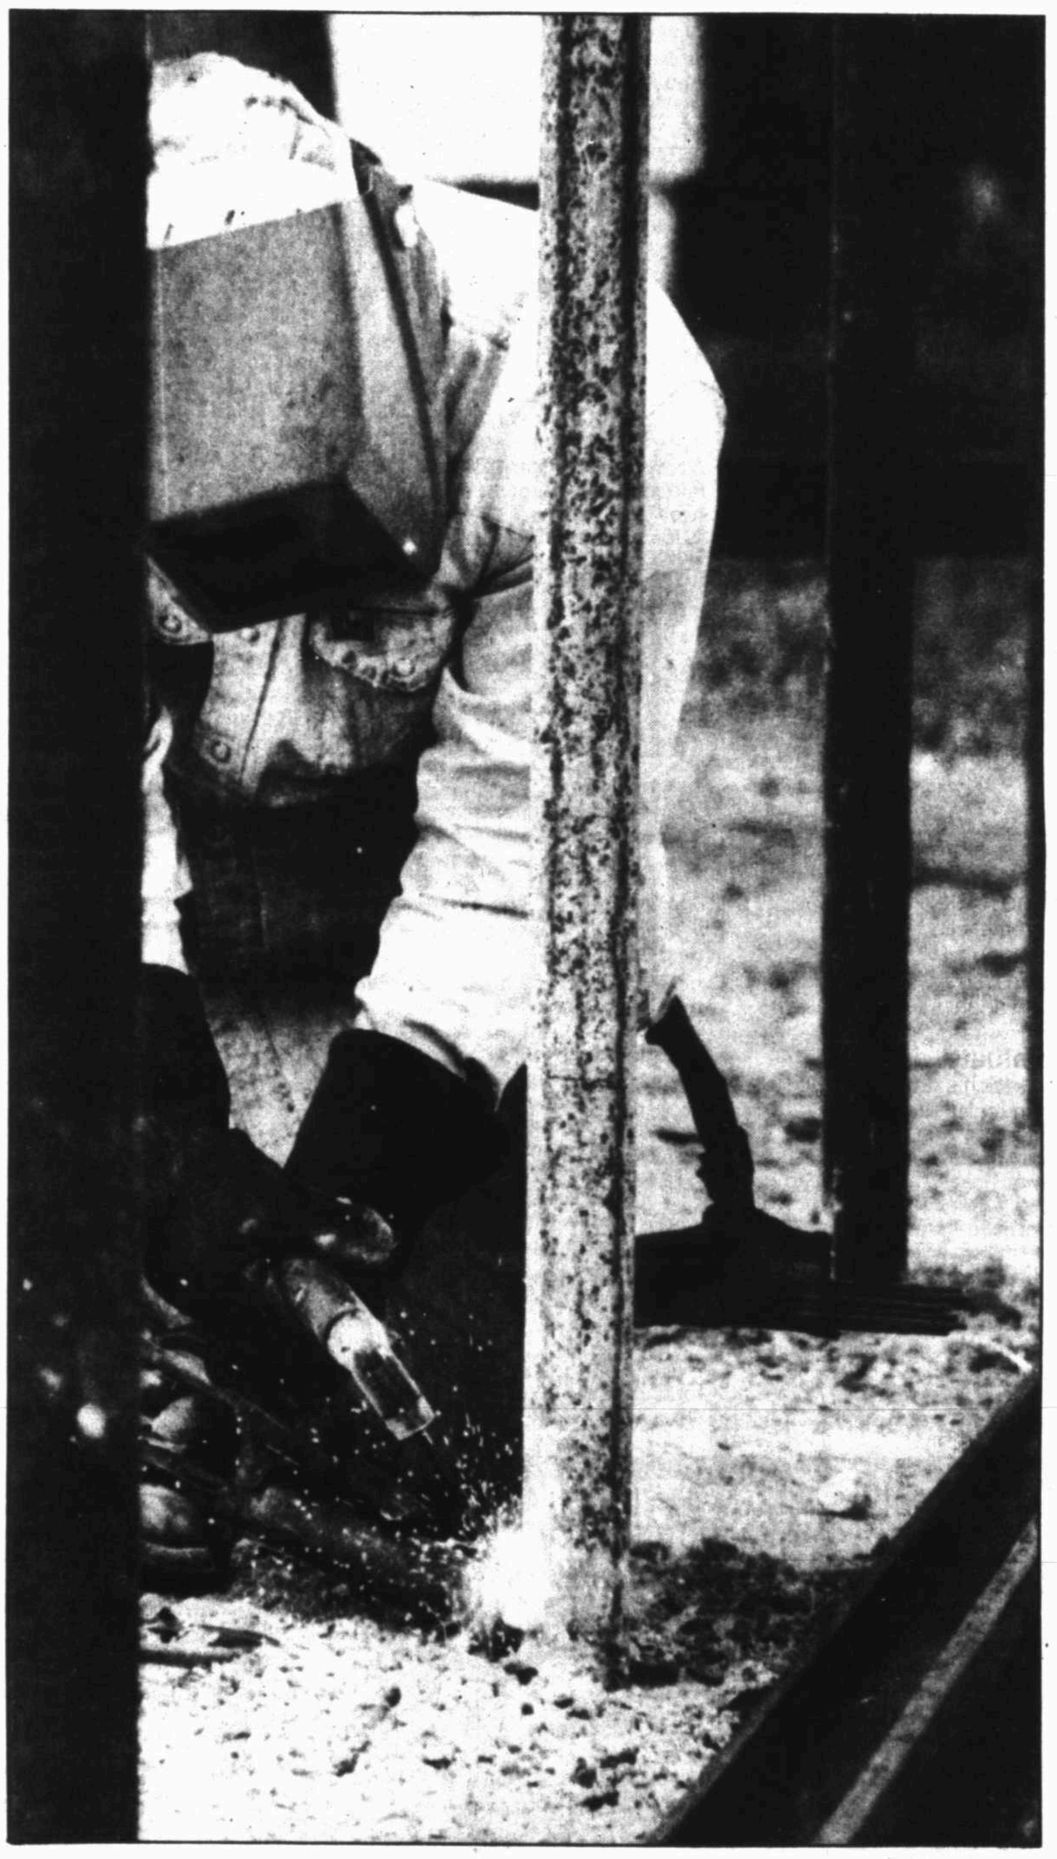

Honoring Volger at the tree-planting is "very befitting," said Ms. Hotchkiss. "Through his leadership, Midland has gained hundreds of trees in making the city a more beautiful and welcoming city."

Vogler, who is chairman of Midland's Airport Advisory Board to the City Council, also has worked in Midland's cultural scenes.

Volger was delighted in the "treeing" of Santa Rita.

"That just shows when you plant a tree, it's contagious," said Vogler, who noted that Midland's atmosphere is conducive to volunteerism.

"If someone sees a job that needs to be done," he said, "the best way to see it brought to fulfillment is to get in there and be a part of it."

Tax rebates up in city, county

By David Morris
Staff Writer

April tax rebates for Midland County have increased by more than 58 percent compared with the same time last year, state comptroller's office figures show. City sales tax rebates also are up.

Statewide, sales tax rebates are up 24 percent compared with last April, the comptroller's office reported.

Midland County received a $448,341 rebate check from Austin this week, a 58.5 percent increase over last year's $282,892.

"That is exceedingly above our expectations," said Midland County Auditor Floyd Jarnigan, who added that he doubted the rebates would continue to grow at such a rate.

He said the increase may be reflective of growing statewide economic strength.

"It's due to increased sales, but I don't know what kind of sales we're talking about," he said. "The state as a whole is recovering from our deep recession of a few years ago."

Compared with the county, the city of Midland posted a modest increase in sales tax receipts. City officials received a $571,246 rebate, a 13.6 percent increase from the $502,931 received in April 1990.

City Manager Fred Poe said the increase is encouraging because it marks the continuation of steady growth in sales tax revenues.

"It indicates that we are still seeing improvement," Poe said.

The rebates reflect taxes collected by businesses in February and reported in late March. Businesses collect both the state's 6¼ percent sales tax and all local sales taxes and send them to the comptroller's office with their tax returns. The state returns its share and returns the remainder to local taxing entities.

The city assesses a 1 cent sales tax, while the county collects half a cent. Texas allows a maximum of 8¼ cents per dollar in sales tax to be levied in a community.

Prescription drug bill gets fast Senate vote

By John Powers
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Senate approved a bill Wednesday that would allow insurance policy holders to buy prescription drugs from their local pharmacies if they choose rather than from companies or mail-order firms designated by insurance companies.

The bill, sponsored in the House by Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, would prohibit insurance companies from requiring policy holders to use specific drug companies or mail-order houses or from charging a higher co-payment for drugs not ordered from the selected company.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, who sponsored Stiles' bill in the Senate, said it would allow insurance companies to set limits on drug coverage, but if another pharmacy was willing to meet that price, the policy could not exclude that pharmacy.

The bill, which was approved unanimously without debate, now goes back to the House. If Stiles concurs with changes in the bill, it can go to Gov. Ann Richards for her signature. The new law would take effect for insurance policies sold or renewed after Dec. 31.

Parker told senators there had been considerable conflict about the bill, but that negotiators reached a compromise "that makes it absolutely clear it does not inhibit the method of delivering services in the plan offered by the teacher retirement system, which had expressed opposition initially."

He also said negotiators agreed with mail-order pharmacy houses and the pharmacist association to let the bill expire under the sunset law after two years, "and then if it proves to be good policy or bad policy, we can react accordingly then."

Opposition to designation of drug companies began four years ago with complaints from local pharmacies and policy holders in Southeast Texas. The House approved a similar bill by Stiles in 1989, but it was reported out of a Senate committee too late for action.

Mail-order and national pharmacy chains said insurance companies can keep costs down by selecting the most cost-effective prescription drug company and dealing in volume.

Supporters of the bill said such savings often are nonexistent, and allowing competition is the best way to keep prescription drug costs low.

Collider may face delay until magnets proven

Department of Energy estimates show costs increase by $400 million every year

■ General Accounting Office issues a new report examining progress on the atom smasher.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Congress should consider delaying construction of a huge underground tunnel for the superconducting super collider until scientists can prove that a key component will work as designed, the General Accounting Office has concluded.

In a new report examining progress on the $8.2 billion atom smasher, being built at Waxahachie, Texas, 35 miles southeast of Fort Worth, the congressional watchdog agency suggests that no work begin on the 54-mile oval tunnel until tests prove that the machine's main energy source, thousands of superconducting magnets, will work.

Superconducting magnets have never been produced on the scale required by the Energy Department's super collider project, the accounting office notes.

A main component of the Superconducting Super Collider is its 8,600 magnets, which are expected to have remarkable efficiency because they conduct energy with very little resistance.

The magnets, estimated to cost $2 billion, are designed to drive beams of protons around the tunnel at nearly the speed of light before the beams collide and fragment into new subatomic particles that now exist only in theory.

A leading collider supporter, Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, whose district takes in the Ellis County site, said early tests have shown that the magnets will work and that the agency's suggestion would mean costly and unnecessary delays.

"The concerns raised in this report are things we've been aware of, and have been working on," he said in an interview Wednesday. "I'm convinced we can pass these technical milestones. I don't see any reason to delay everything else and have (the project) cost another half-billion dollars."

The Department of Energy has estimated that costs grow by $400 million every year the project is delayed.

The General Accounting Office, in a report to Senate Budget Committee, said, "Although DOE has taken some action to reduce the risk, such as delaying the start of magnet production, uncertainties and risks remain.

"The government could therefore limit its risk by not funding the tunnel construction until after the (magnet) test shows that the magnets work as intended."

Advanced testing on the magnets is scheduled to be completed by June. Construction of the first, eight-mile segment of tunnel is scheduled to follow immediately.

The Energy Department is asking Congress to approve $534 million to continue work on the collider this year.

DEATHS

William Neil Sands

Services for William Neil Sands, 85, of Hurst have been set for 1 p.m. Friday at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with Rev. Bill Weir of First United Methodist Church officiating. Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park Cemetery.

Sands

Sands died Tuesday at a Hurst nursing home.

Sands was born March 22, 1906 in Chatfield.

He married Marie Nash on March 18, 1938.

Sands graduated from law school at the University of Texas in Austin in January 1931. He was employed as an attorney in the mortgage loan department of the American National Insurance Co. and in 1932 was appointed legal invetigator in the attorney general's office. He was re-appointed in January 1935 and held until December 1938. He later was employed with the legal department of the Texas Co. (Texaco Inc.) in Fort Worth and in 1959 transferred to their Midland office. He retired from Texaco in April 1971 as the head of the legal department in Midland.

Sands was a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy during World War II and in 1943 was assigned to the Office of Navy Intelligence. He was discharged in November, 1948.

He was a member of the Texas Bar Association and a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Sands was preceded in death by his wife and three brothers.

Survivors include two daughters, Aletha Hamilton of Midland, and Melinda Richardson of Euless; two sisters, Rebecca Smith of Tulsa, Okla. and Dorces Wells of Riverside, Calif.; four grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren and numerous nieces and nephews.

Memorials should be directed to the First United Methodist Church or the Allison Cancer Center.

J.W. Henley

Services for J.W. Henley, 68, are set for 4 p.m. today at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with Glen and Betty McNerlin of the Assembly in Christ Church officiating. Interment will follow at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Henley died Tuesday at his Midland residence.

He was born Oct. 19, 1922, in Goldsboro and was raised in Coleman County. When he was 16, his family moved to Midland.

Henley worked as an auto mechanic and diesel mechanic for several companies in the Midland area. He retired in the early 1970s.

He was a member of the Assembly in Christ Church.

Survivors include: two sons, Mike Henley of Lovetsville, Va., and Ronnie Henley of Austin; two daughters, Patsy Webb of Midland, and Angelica Henley of Midland; one brother, L.P. Henley of Midland; four sisters, Dola (Mrs. E.D.) Fitzgerald, Pearl (Mrs. Jack) Boyce and Betty (Mrs. Glen) McNerlin, all of Midland, and Mrs. Margarette Deel of West Columbia; and six grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Pallbearers will be Terry Minica, Dan McNerlin, Ike Fitzgerald, Ted Smith, Tommy Boiles and Junior Boiles.

'Buster' Johnson

Graveside services for Gervais "Buster" Johnson of Midland are set for 1:30 p.m. today at Sunset Memorial Gardens in Odessa with the Rev. Clark Ford of Memorial Christian Church officiating. Services are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Monday at a local hospital.

Born May 13, 1905, in Denver, Colo., he lived in El Paso, Carlsbad and Eastland before graduating from high school in Greeley, Colo. He attended Colorado State Teachers College in Greeley for two years before returning to Texas to work for Gulf Oil Corp. as a machinist in Breckenridge.

He married Eilene Collins in Breckenridge.

In 1930, the couple moved to Odessa. In 1945, he joined Collins Construction in Midland, where he worked for several years.

He was employed by the Midland YMCA from 1965 until his retirement in 1987.

He had been a resident of Mabee Healthcare Center for two years.

Johnson was preceded in death by his wife and one son, Gervais Johnson.

Survivors include: two sisters, Dorothy (Mrs. Doug) Corley of Nocona and Virginia (Mrs. Glen) Crays of Green Valley, Ariz.; and one grandchild.

Mary Lu C. Nealy

DIVINE — Services for Mary Lu Cowden Nealy, 68, formerly of Midland, are set for 10 a.m. Saturday in the Hurley Funeral Home Chapel here. Burial will follow in Evergreen Cemetery under the direction of Hurley Funeral Home.

She died Tuesday on her ranch near Divine after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Nealy was born on Oct. 28, 1922, in San Antonio.

In Midland, she had worked for the First National Bank of Midland and Standard of Texas. She moved to Divine in 1960.

Survivors include: one daughter, Jennifer Ross of Pearsall; and one brother, Robert Means Cowden of Bandera.

Mildred W. Ross

BRISTOW, Okla. — Former longtime Midlander Mildred Wright Ross, 83, of Bristow died Wednesday at her home here.

Graveside services are set for 10 a.m. Friday in the Bristow City Cemetery under the direction of Schumacher Funeral Home.

She was born April 8, 1908, in Oklahoma. She married John F. Ross on April 21, 1939, in Midland.

Survivors include her husband John F. Ross of Bristow and several nieces and nephews.

Memorials should be directed to the American Cancer Society.

Lewis A. Snodgrass

Services for Lewis A. Snodgrass are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Wednesday at a Fort Worth hospital.

Opponents try to move waste dump east

EL PASO (AP) — Opponents of a West Texas nuclear dump are negotiating in the Legislature to move the waste site further east and may have struck a deal with a lawmaker trying to keep it in far west Texas.

The House Environmental Committee Tuesday considered a bill drafted by Rep. Dan Shelly, R-Crosby. The bill would declare the Fort Hancock site the official site for the nuclear dump, circumventing a state district court judge's ruling in January that site is unsuitable for storing nuclear waste.

El Paso and Hudspeth Counties successfully argued in their lawsuit against the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Authority that the Fort Hancock site is prone to earthquakes and flooding.

The state is facing a Jan. 1, 1992, federal deadline to apply for a license to operate the nuclear dump. Missing the deadline could cost the state $8 million a year in penalties.

El Paso County Assistant Attorney Gayle Garner told the committee Shelly's bill was unconstitutional and cited a 1934 Texas Supreme Court ruling that the Legislature cannot interfere with relief granted to a plaintiff in a specific lawsuit or interfere with the appeals process.

"This bill is designed to nullify our win and interfere with the appellate process," Garner said in a phone interview from Austin Wednesday.

Shelley said he was willing to rewrite his bill if a suitable site can be found east of Sierra Blanca and the state is spared further legal action from El Paso County.

School finance bill will cost $15.9 billion, Bullock reports

AUSTIN (AP) — The new school finance reform law will cost about $15.9 billion more in state and local money over the next five years, according to estimates released Wednesday by Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock.

The plan will result in an average 34 percent increase in local school property taxes over that period, according to figures developed by the Texas Education Agency.

That is about $2 billion more total money, and a 2 percentage point larger property tax increase, than estimated for a previous bill approved by the Senate but rejected by the House.

Ironically, some lawmakers who opposed the earlier measure said they were concerned about its price tag.

Senate Education Committee Chairman Carl Parker criticized some lawmakers in the House who he said refused to put more state money into the plan, thus increasing the burden on local property taxpayers.

"I think they (local property tax payers) are going to be plenty displeased about it," said Parker, D-Port Arthur.

Bullock said, "Education is a state function, and we should be paying for it with state dollars." He has pushed for a state income tax to meet Texas' needs in education and other areas.

Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, an Alice Democrat who heads the House Public Education Committee, questioned the estimates.

Some school districts will have to raise their local property tax rates to meet the new legal minimum, which begins at 72 cents per $100 valuation and rises to $1 in four years, Ms. Glossbrenner said.

The law was passed in response to a Texas Supreme Court order to even out funding to school districts.

Jazz musicians to perform

Staff Report

Trombonist Dan Barrett, tenor saxophonist Ken Peplowski, pianist Ray Sherman, drummer Jake Hanna and bassist Frank Tate perform at 8 p.m. Friday at the Midland Petroleum Club.

The event is sponsored by the West Texas Jazz Society. Ticket price will be $15 for non-members and an additional $10 for reserved seating.

In addition, Barrett and his groups will conduct back-to-back workshops at Midland High School Auditorium Friday for the entire Midland Independent School District fifth grade — 1,500 students. Prior to the workshops, students will have had the opportunity to study jazz history and the biographies of the musicians playing.

SALES TAX: Statewide rebates show increases levies a 1 percent sales tax, received a $508,873 rebate check this week — a 20.5 percent increase over last year's $422,322.

The Ector County Hospital District, which was not assessing a sales tax at this time last year, received a $544,338 check.

The cities of Midland and Odessa have collected more in sales tax since the beginning of 1991 than they did for the same period last year.

Midland has collected about $3 million in sales tax this year, compared with $2.7 million last year, a difference of about 11.8 percent.

"I think we saw a spurt because of the Persian Gulf war," Poe said, explaining that higher oil prices at the beginning of the war might only now be evident in sales tax figures.

Odessa has collected $2.6 million, compared with $2.4 million last year, for an increase of about 9.9 percent.

Midland County, meanwhile, has collected about $1.9 million, compared with $1.5 million last year, a difference of about 26 percent.

"We will receive more this year than we projected in our budget a year ago," Jarnigan said. "Just about anybody's guess is as good as mine how long it will hold up."

The state sent $92.9 million in local sales rebates to Texas taxing entities this month, the comptroller's office reported. That's about 24 percent more than last year's April rebates, which totaled about $74.8 million.

City governments received $82.1 million in rebates, up 23 percent from last year's payments of $67 million.

Checks to county governments totaled $9.2 million, up 31 percent from last April's $7.1 million.

Officials seek clues in death of rare crane

BEND (AP) — Game wardens investigated Wednesday the shooting death of an endangered whooping crane and searched for a second whooping crane they say also may have been shot.

Agents with the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service were conducting the investigation.

One of the large birds was shot and killed Monday and was found buried near the Colorado River in west Lampasas County near the community of Bend, authorities said. The adult bird apparently was shot in the neck with a .22-caliber rifle, officials said.

Texas game warden Jack Reynolds of San Saba, who was tipped about the shooting, said he questioned a man suspected of being involved. No charges have been filed.

"Since whooping cranes are both state and federally protected as endangered species, the decision on where the charges will be filed will be decided later," said Chester Burdett, law enforcement division director with the state wildlife department.

Another whooping crane also may have been shot in this Central Texas area, and wildlife agents were searching for that bird, officials said.

The cranes apparently were part of a small group migrating north from their winter home at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas coast at Austwell, wildlife experts said. The birds spend summers in Canada near the Arctic Circle.

Fewer than 140 whooping cranes are known to exist in the wild. In October, at the beginning of their wintering season, 146 whooping cranes were spotted at the federal wildlife refuge. By the end of the season, only 137 of the birds were counted.

"We've already had a very bad year. We've lost nine birds this season due to unknown causes," said Larry McKinney, resource protection division director with the parks and wildlife department. "It's very serious. Any loss, particularly if the bird is of reproductive age, is serious."

When full grown, the birds stand five-feet and have a wing span of about six feet.

Salvation Army to help Kurds

Staff Report

In response to a request from the Pentagon to help alleviate the unfolding tragedy in northern Iraq, the Salvation Army will supply 100,000 new blankets to the desperate Kurdish refugees seeking refuge from Saddam Hussein's army.

The U.S. Air Force will airdrop the blankets and appeal to their regular suppliers to meet the urgent need for aid to the refugees.

In addition to its efforts on behalf of the Kurdish refugees, the Salvation Army will continue its support services on behalf of the military personnel stationed in the Persian Gulf, their families and dependents, said Maj. Milton W. Wood, commanding officer for the army in Midland.

Odessa man arrested in murder

Staff Report

ODESSA — A 22-year-old Odessa man was arrested Wednesday in Crane for the murder of a man whose body was found in a car at a lounge parking lot Sunday evening, police said.

Horacio Ochoa remained in Odessa city jail Wednesday in lieu of a $100,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Dennis Bright, police said.

Ochoa was arrested on a murder warrant in connection with the death of Demeterio Hernandez, 22, whose body was found in a car at the El Rancho Grande Lounge, 509 W. Clements St.

An autopsy of Hernandez revealed he died of trauma to the head.

Man struck, killed by train

DENTON (AP) — Police were investigating the death of a local pedestrian apparently struck by a train early Wednesday.

Authorities were notified shortly after 7:30 a.m. that there was a male body by the tracks, said Denton police Sgt. L. Flemming.

The train involved in the accident did not stop and the crew apparently was unaware of the accident, Flemming said.

Texas congressman thrives on confrontation

By Nancy Mathis
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — Texas Congressman Tom DeLay, self-proclaimed "right-wing nut," guides his rented Town Car along the construction-cluttered Southwest Freeway, hooting at a conservative radio talk-show host he considers even crazier than he is.

DeLay

On the radio, the host pretends he's shooting little animals, a dig at animal rights activists. In the car, DeLay chuckles at the sophomoric attempt to provoke.

DeLay, a four-term Republican congressman from Sugar Land, Texas, makes provocation a profession and confrontation an art form.

With fellow Texan Dick Armey, DeLay has become a chief conservative flame thrower, picking political street fights not only with Democrats but with silk-stocking Republicans, Texas Sen. Phil Gramm and George Bush's White House.

Yet, though he brands himself as part of the far right — a minority within a minority party in the House — he wants to wheel and deal in the mainstream and sees no contradiction between principles and politics when it comes to certain issues.

FROM HIS post on a House transportation appropriations subcommittee, DeLay helps determine Houston's share of highway money, has become one of the few conservatives who votes for some spending bills, and will be a vote Houston needs to make a rail system a reality.

Both Mayor Kathy Whitmire, rail backer, and former Metro board chairman Bob Lanier, rail basher, vie for his support.

So do the conservative thinkers huddled in Washington, who recently have been questioning the credentials of their president and see their one-time pinup boy Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., on the wane.

"I think right now, if I dare to be audacious, Tom DeLay and Dick Armey are the two strongest voices of conservatism, if not in the whole Congress certainly in the House," Armey said.

It was DeLay — joined ironically enough by liberal Democrats — who helped engineer the embarrassing defeat for the White House and Republican leaders of the tax-raising budget agreement last year. It was DeLay and his cohorts who forced the White House to revive the capital gains tax cut issue this year.

Now, DeLay and his allies have their own budget plan that would drastically reduce taxes for Social Security and capital gains and revive individual retirement accounts. It's a proposal that critics say would drive the deficit to new records, gut services and generally wreak havoc.

THE IDEAS espoused by DeLay and Armey "give voodoo economics a whole new meaning," said Ken Bentsen Jr., Harris County Democratic Party chairman.

However, the battles championed by DeLay rage as much for the Republican Party's soul as against the Democrats.

"We have a small faction, and they are a minority, who believe they are there to govern," DeLay said.

That "small faction" includes most of the GOP leaders in the Congress and the White House and, he hints, just possibly Phil Gramm, who supported the initial Bush-backed budget agreement last year.

"Then there is the majority of us who believe that indeed we are there to govern but more importantly we are there to be an opposition to the Democratic philosophy and the only way to do that is through confrontation," he said.

"I think Gingrich comes from that point of view. I'm not sure Gramm does. At least he did until the budget agreement," DeLay said.

THE BIG WHITE Lincoln eases on down the South Freeway and DeLay, 44, has a little pinch of chewing tobacco between his cheek and gum. He's just talked to some sixth-graders about the Constitution, pulling a palm-size copy of it from his jacket pocket, telling them it was based on the Bible.

He carries it with him all the time, he says.

"I'm a rules person," he explains. DeLay, born in Laredo and raised in South America, always reads the instructions. He's an avid golfer.

He received a chemistry degree from the University of Houston because his father, who tried to outline the profession of all three sons, wanted DeLay to be a doctor. He wanted to be an engineer. He ended up spraying homes for termites instead.

He eventually bought an extermination company, but then the government made him angry. Too many rules. He read a political primer and began as a precinct chairman in Fort Bend County.

Someone suggested he run for the state legislature. He read a how-to book on campaigns. He won his first election in 1978, the first Republican ever elected from Fort Bend County.

In the Texas Legislature, DeLay learned how quickly reputations are set in concrete. "It took me two years to change my reputation from a fire-breathing right-winger to a guy you can work with," he said.

HE WAS DETERMINED not to make the same mistake when he won the 1984 election for the 22nd District post being vacated by the unconventional Rep. Ron Paul, a gold-standard touting libertarian.

He was elected to the Republican Committee on Committees as a freshman, made it to the Appropriations Committee his second term.

An official leadership track was derailed when he opposed Gingrich as whip in 1989. DeLay didn't think Gingrich was suited for the job of counting votes for the moderate leadership.

Counting votes, convincing members to vote with him, is his own speciality, DeLay believes. Recently, he was named chairman of the Republican Study Committee, an internal GOP research group he intends to turn into an activist voice for conservatives.

DeLay sets the air conditioning just above the freezing mark and swings the car onto McHard Road, also known as FM 2234, a little two-lane highway that took him 12 years and service in two governmental bodies to get built.

"It is a legitimate function of federal government to provide infrastructure in terms of interstate commerce. It's not a legitimate function of federal government to provide mass transit funds to provide a rail system," DeLay said.

"JUST BECAUSE we support spending money on projects that we think are legitimate functions of government doesn't make us any less conservative, and we're not hypocritical either," he said.

Contaminated water found at military base

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Kelly Air Force Base employees and residents have been warned that a potentially unsafe bacteria has been detected in the base's water system.

Base officials Tuesday asked employees to bring bottled water to work and residents to boil water at least two minutes before using it.

Environmental engineers were examining miles of pipeline in the water system to find the source of the fecal coliform, a bacteria generally associated with sewage or animal waste.

The warnings were issued in compliance with state law. The Texas Department of Health formally notified Kelly officials Monday that bacteria content in its drinking water system exceeded state standards.

Kelly's water supply system is not connected with the city's water supply. Lt. Col. Ken Talley, Kelly's chief of bioenvironmental engineering, said six wells pump base water directly from the Edwards Aquifer.

The contamination is not believed to be from the aquifer because tests of nearby wells maintained by the Bexar Metropolitan Water District did not reveal the same high levels of bacteria, Talley said.

The first five days of April, engineers routinely collected water samples that contained coliform bacteria, base officials said. One of those samples contained fecal coliform.

Twenty-two repeat samples have been taken, with six testing positive for fecal coliform.

The Texas Department of Health has determined the presence of fecal coliform, or E. coli, generally is not harmful. But its presence in drinking water is serious, Talley said, because it usually is associated with sewage or animal wastes.

Senate approves UT-Brownsville, sends to House

AUSTIN (AP) — The proposed University of Texas at Brownsville could issue its own degrees under a bill approved by the Senate.

The 18-year-old institution currently is an upper-level university, a branch of the University of Texas at Edinburg, which formerly was Pan American University and was brought into the UT system in 1989.

A bill by Sen. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, would rename the University of Texas-Pan American-Brownsville as UT-Brownsville and give it degree-granting authority.

The bill also would allow the institution to join Texas Southmost College, a public junior college which shares a campus, in offering freshman and sophomore courses, Lucio said.

"This is absolutely terrific," Lucio said, after his bill was sent to the House on a voice vote Wednesday.

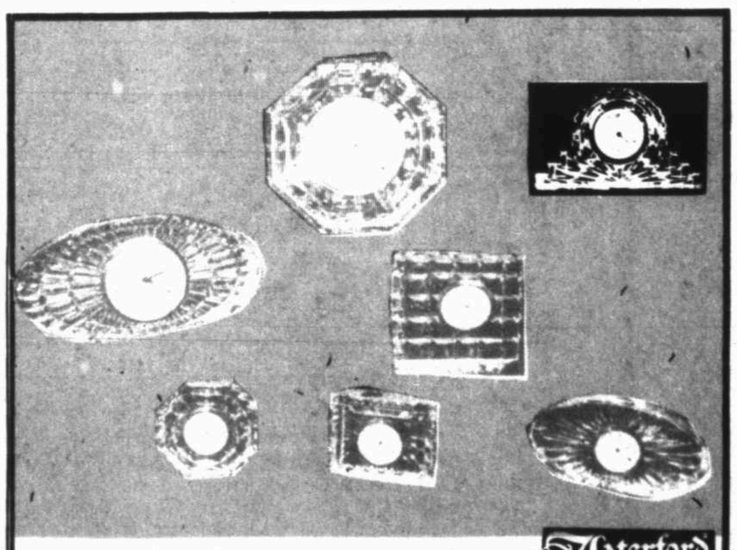

"This status means that the institution can receive direct monies from the federal government and be under the university system. Freestanding status will help us tremendously in generating grant monies and it will enable the university to set up a foundation," Lucio said in a statement.

Court ruling invalidates DPS liability insurance tickets

BRYAN (AP) — A ruling by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has invalidated thousands of Department of Public Safety warrants charging drivers with not having liability insurance, it was reported Wednesday.

Similar warrants issued by other law enforcement agencies also may be invalid, the Bryan-College Station Eagle reported.

The court ruled on April 10 that failure to have insurance and show proof of it is not a crime.

The decision in a 1983 case overturned the conviction of a woman stopped in Travis County who didn't provide proof of financial responsibility to a DPS trooper.

State law requires each driver be able to cover damage claims of at least $55,000 arising from an automobile accident. The court said failure to provide proof of liability insurance wasn't the same as failure to meet the law's requirement of financial responsibility.

"With rare exceptions, courts must apply penal statutes exactly as they read," the court said.

"In the explicit language of (the Texas financial responsibility law), there is no mention of automobile liability insurance, which is simply one method — albeit an obvious one — by which individuals may secure the ability to respond adequately in damages."

The 2-1 ruling also said a DPS trooper's testimony failed to establish guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

In a teletype sent to all DPS offices, Col. Joe Milner said the department had determined that cases filed under the liability insurance law might be defective based on the Court of Criminal Appeals decision.

"Effective immediately and until further notice DPS communications will not confirm any warrants for the offense of failure to maintain financial responsibility and failure to appear on that charge," Milner said.

By late Monday, the Bryan DPS office had pulled about 500 warrants. Many of the warrants are partially valid, because they contain other charges, such as speeding.

College Station Police Chief Michael Strope said he had instructed his officers in new procedures for traffic stops. He said the new procedures are almost the same as those now used by the DPS.

Previously, the trooper asked the driver if he could show proof of financial responsibility. Now, the trooper must ask four specific questions:

—Do you have proof of financial responsibility?

—Do you have a liability insurance policy, insurance card or insurance binder?

—Do you have a certificate of self-insurance?

—Are you able to pay a damage claim arising out of a motor vehicle accident in the minimum amount set forth by the legislature, which is $55,000?

The trooper must receive four "no" answers before issuing a citation.

Senate passes 'potty parity'

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill offering relief to women who now have to wait in long lines to use restrooms cleared the Senate on Wednesday, after its sponsor admonished his colleagues that such delays are no laughing matter.

Barrientos

The measure has been widely publicized as the "potty parity" bill, but senators resisted any temptations to make jokes in sending it to the House.

"I became aware of the need for a measure such as this when I read about a Houston woman who had been arrested during a George Strait concert for using the men's restroom, after she was confronted by a very long line to the women's facility," said bill sponsor Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin.

Houston legal secretary Denise Wells was kicked out of the Houston concert but won in court against a city ordinance prohibiting a person from entering a public restroom of the opposite sex "in a manner calculated to cause a disturbance."

Specifically, the state Board of Health would be required to adopt a rule that at least two women's toilets be provided for every man's commode in "facilities where the public congregates."

After Senate passage, Barrientos said, "The women of Texas thank you, members."

Clemens indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County grand jury on Wednesday indicted Boston Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens and his brother on misdemeanor charges stemming from a January altercation with an off-duty police officer.

Clemens

"It's a step in the right direction, but we've still got a ways to go," said the Clemens' attorney, Mike Ramsey.

Clemens, 29, and his brother, Gary, 39, were arrested Jan. 19 at the Bayou Mama's nightclub on felony aggravated assault charges.

The grand jury, impaneled on Monday, indicted Roger Clemens for hindering an arrest and Gary Clemens for resisting arrest. Ramsey said he believed both charges were Class A misdemeanors, punishable by up to one year in prison and a $2,000 fine.

Paralysis remains

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Hall of Fame jockey Bill Shoemaker is unlikely to recover from nearly total paralysis suffered when he broke his neck and injured his spinal cord in an automobile accident, medical officials said Wednesday.

Shoemaker will be transferred to a hospital in Denver next week, Centinela Hospital Medical Center said in its most detailed statement on the jockey's condition since his vehicle flipped down a freeway embankment on April 8.

Shoemaker, 59, had a blood-alcohol level of .13 at the time of the accident at San Dimas. The legal limit is .08, but a prosecutor indicated earlier that Shoemaker might not be charged with drunken driving because of his condition.

"He suffered a severe fracture dislocation of the cervical spine and a spinal cord injury," the hospital statement said. "The studies show evidence of severe spinal cord disruption. He has no motion or sensation below his upper chest and shoulders."

Diablos still unblemished

■ The El Paso Diablos bring their perfect 5-0 record to Midland for the opening of a five-game set Wednesday night, and promptly improve to 6-0 after a 15-6 shellacking of the Angels.

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

One of the big reasons El Paso entered the opener of its five game stand in Midland with a perfect record was first baseman John Jaha.

In the Diablos' first five games of the season against San Antonio in El Paso, Jaha led the Texas League in batting average and RBI production with a .727 percentage and 14 runs driven in, as El Paso raced to a 5-0 record.

Well, Wednesday night at Angels Stadium Midland pitching offered little resistance to El Paso's offense, as Jaha led a 19-hit Diablo attack with grand slam and solo homers for five RBI and El Paso romped over the Angels 15-6.

While the Diablos' record was upped to 6-0 with the win, Midland's dropped to 2-4.

As Midland starting pitcher Mike Butcher (0-2) struggled with his control much as he did in his season debut, a 9-6 loss to Wichita, El Paso starter Mark Kiefer stayed as unbeaten as his teammates, posting a 2-0 record after seven full innings of perfect control.

Butcher was chased after giving up 10 runs, all earned, on eight hits, four walks and two hit batsmen in 2⅔ innings. Kiefer yielded four hits and three earned runs in his stint.

But it was Jaha and Co. who allowed Kiefer to relax on the mound, offering the 22-year-old righthander five runs in the second inning and six in the third to work with.

And after Butcher had pitched Jaha so carefully he walked the Diablo slugger in each of his first two at-bats, Jaha finally got his chance to swing the bat in the third inning. Already behind 7-0, Butcher was pulled after issuing shortstop Jim Tatum a base on balls to load the bags and set the table for Jaha, who took a 2-2 pitch from Doug Robertson over the right field fence for the grand slam.

"You're always excited when you get up there with guys on base. I just wanted to make sure I didn't swing at any bad pitches," said Jaha, who played 1989 in Class A Stockton, Calif., but sat out last season after undergoing surgery to repair ligament damage in his right knee.

Though he said he really was just trying to win games, Jaha also joked that he had an ulterior motive.

"I had a good year in '89, but some scouts mentioned to people that I couldn't hit AA pitching. I'm just trying to prove I can hit AA pitching," he said after hitting his solo homer in the seventh and earning a base hit in the fifth to go 3-for-4 in the game.

Kiefer also has been a bit awestruck by his team's offensive prowess (El Paso entered the game averaging 11.8 runs a game).

"I just try to keep the other team down to a few runs, then let our hitters take over. In spring training I knew we had some guys at the AAA and AA levels who

Foreman says he'll beef up before fight

Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — George Foreman became the second-heaviest challenger in boxing history Wednesday night, then joked that he was disappointed about being so light.

"I thought I'd be 265," Foreman said after weighing in at 257 pounds for Friday night's heavyweight title fight against champion Evander Holyfield, who weighed 208.

"I've got to eat it up," Foreman said. "I'm going out to have dinner — revenge on the restuarant."

The only heavier challenger was Primo Carnera, who weighed 260½ pounds when he won the title with a six-round knockout of Jack Sharkey in 1933.

Foreman's weight is the fifth-highest ever in a heavyweight title bout. Carnera also weighed 270, 263¼ and 259½ pounds for other championship fights.

The 49-pound weight differential is the sixth-highest ever, but far behind the 86-pound spread. Carnera (270 pounds) had when he beat Tommy Loughran (184) in 1933. The combined weight of 465 pounds was also sixth on the list, topped by the 488¾-pound total when Carnera (259½) beat Paolino Uzcudun (229¼) in 1934.

Before the weigh-in, one reporter complained that the air conditioniong was making the Trump Plaza showroom feel like a meat locker.

"That makes it a perfect place to weigh in George Foreman," another said.

While Foreman could become the oldest man to win a championship in any weight class if he wins the scheduled 12-round bout at the Convention Center, he's still second-best in one category to Archie Moore, his 77-year-old trainer-guru.

Moore will remain the oldest challenger in any weight class. Moore was 42 years, 11 months old — eight months older than Foreman is now — when he was knocked out in the ninth round by Rocky Marciano in their heavyweight title bout in 1955.

Poundage aside, no fighter thumbed his nose at Father Time the way Moore did.

"I didn't retire because of age," Moore said. "It was because the commissions told me I couldn't get a license. I intended to fight until I was 50."

Moore was 49 when he knocked out Mike DiBiase in 1962 in the last fight of a career which began in 1936. His record was 183-22-9, with 129

Arkansas officials change their minds

Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — One-year suspensions given to four Arkansas basketball players involved in a sexual incident on campus were drastically reduced Wednesday by the system president.

Day

Forward Todd Day and three teammates now will be held out only until December, meaning they'll miss a tournament in Hawaii and perhaps some non-conference games, Arkansas system president B. Alan Sugg said.

Coach Nolan Richardson broke his silence on the matter Wednesday, saying he had been prepared to offer his resignation to university chancellor Dan Ferritor over the incident. Ferritor, according to Richardson, said running away wouldn't solve the problem.

Lawyers for the players said they were pleased with the ruling by Sugg.

Sugg said school officials "up and down the line," including Ferritor, Richardson and athletic director Frank Broyles, made a mistake by dragging their feet on the incident. Broyles was urged by Ferritor in February to make sure strong and quick action was taken against the players. Broyles and Richardson rejected the advice.

Day and teammates Darrell Hawkins, Elmer Martin and Roosevelt Wallace were suspended from the basketball team for a year by the All University Judicial Board, highly placed university sources said. They couldn't play or practice under the ruling, which was appealed to Sugg.

'It's a judgment call. To the degree of wrong they did, I think it is a fair disciplinary measure of the actions they took. You have to come down someplace and I had to make a decision.'

— UA president B. Alan Sugg

Hawkins would have been suspended from school under the judicial board ruling, sources said Wednesday.

A 34-year-old Springdale woman told police she was sexually assaulted at the athletic dormitory Feb. 27, and identified the four players. The woman, who police said was drunk, did not press charges and prosecutor Andrew Ziser said evidence wasn't sufficient to file charges. The players conceded they had sex with the woman, but said she consented.

Sugg said his review of the hearing before the judicial board convinced him

Eagles' boss won't lie: Sunday's draft is weak

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia Eagles personnel director Joe Woolley said Wednesday that the 1991 NFL draft is "the weakest one I've seen in 17 years."

"I know they don't want me to say that, but I'm not going to sit here and lie to you. It's weak," said Woolley, who joined new Eagles coach Rich Kotite in a preview of the club's approach to the draft Sunday and Monday.

The Eagles pick 19th among the 27 teams on 10 of the 12 rounds. They will select 17th in the sixth round as result of a trade. They gave away their sixth-round pick in another deal.

"It's erratic I guess is the way to put it. There are some strengths in certain positions," Woolley said of the draft. "I think the thing that makes it so weak is at the top, the first round. That's where it's difficult to find a 27th first-round player."

Kotite agreed with Woolley, saying "certainly it's not the strong draft you would hope would be there. There is more unpredictability when you have a weak draft."

Woolley, who has served in personnel for Houston and New Orleans, said there are some good receivers and defensive backs and middle-round-type players who might help now but mostly would be considered future players.

Kotite, who succeeded the fired Buddy Ryan as Eagles head coach, listed offensive linemen and linebackers as his top two priorities.

"There are specific needs on this football team and one of them is protecting our quarterback," Kotite said. "This is a big need for us. We've got to reduce the sacks and the number of hits that he (quarterback Randall Cunningham) is getting."

Kotite made it clear that while big, strong, durable offensive linemen and linebackers who can do the things needed out of a 3-4 defense were his priorities, he would not "dip down in ability

Cubbies push streak to five

NL Roundup

CHICAGO — George Bell homered and drove in two runs Wednesday as the Chicago Cubs won their fifth straight game and completed a three-game sweep of the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-1.

The Cubs finished their season-opening homestand with a 6-3 record. They play their first road game Thursday night at Pittsburgh.

Shawn Boskie (1-1) went 6 1-3 innings, allowing one run and four hits. He walked four and struck out three before leaving with a two-strike count on Len Dykstra and a runner on first base. Paul Assenmacher got Dykstra on a fly ball to right and struck out pinch-hitter Ricky Jordan. Dave Smith, the third Chicago pitcher, got the last three outs for his fourth save.

Pat Combs (1-1) allowed three runs on six hits in 5 1-3 innings. He also threw two wild pitches, leading to Chicago's second run.

Bell led off the bottom of the second with his second home run in two days, a drive over the left-field fence on a 3-2 pitch. Two outs later, Shawon Dunston doubled to left, went to third on a wild pitch by Combs and scored when Combs threw another wild pitch while intentionally walking Gary Scott.

Dodgers 6, Giants 2

SAN FRANCISCO — Brett Butler broke a dry spell against his former teammates by doubling and scoring the go-ahead run, and Bob Ojeda got his first victory for Los Angeles as the Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants.

Butler, hitless in his previous nine at-bats in the three-game series, reached second after getting a hit off the glove of second baseman Robbie Thompson after reliever Rick Reuschel (0-2) retired the first two Dodgers with the scored tied 2-2 in the seventh inning. Juan Samuel doubled to score Butler, who later added a sacrifice fly.

Butler, signed as a free agent during the offseason, was booed throughout the series.

Ojeda (1-1) acquired in the offseason from the New York Mets, allowed five hits and two runs in six innings. He also got two hits, the second to start the sixth inning, in which the Dodgers tied the score.

Jay Howell, the third Los Angeles pitcher, worked two perfect innings for his second save. The Dodgers, getting two RBIs from hot-hitting Mike Scioscia, took two of three games in the series.

Down 2-0, the Dodgers tied the game as Giants reliever Trevor Wilson walked both batters he faced on eight pitches to force in a run. Reuschel came on and gave up a game-tying single to Scioscia, now hitting .429.

Scioscia drove in his second run of the game in the Dodgers' three-run eighth, singling to score Kal Daniels, aboard with a double. Alfredo Griffin also had an RBI single and Butler added a sacrifice fly.

Pirates 4, Mets 0

PITTSBURGH — John Smiley pitched a one-hitter to continue his domination of the Mets and Jeff King hit a two-run homer to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates over New York.

Smiley (2-0) improved his career record against the Mets to 8-3. After allowing Kevin McReynolds' one-out double in the second, Smiley retired the final 23 Mets in order. Smiley walked none and struck out four in his third major league shutout, his first since beating San Francisco 1-0 on April 28, 1989.

On Friday, in his first 1991 start, Smiley allowed one run and four hits in eight innings against the Chicago Cubs.

Expos 1, Cardinals 0

MONTREAL (AP) — Bill Sampen pitched seven shutout innings and Barry Jones finished the six-hitter Wednesday night as the Montreal Expos beat the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0.

Montreal got the only run in the first when Delino DeShields led off with a single, took second on Marquis Grissom's sacrifice, stole third and scored on catcher Tom Pagnozzi's throwing error.

Astros 4, Braves 3

ATLANTA — Mark Davidson drove in two runs in a three-run Houston first inning and the Astros held on for a victory over the Atlanta Braves, who continued to stumble at home.

The Braves (3-4) have lost four of five at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium. Their only victory was 10-4 Tuesday night over the Astros.

Houston took a 3-0 lead in the first off Steve Avery (1-1). Rafael Ramirez walked, Craig Biggio singled to extend his hitting streak to eight, Ken Caminiti hit an RBI single and Davidson added his two-run single.

Biggio, who had three hits, leads the Natiional League in hitting with a .438 average.

Reds 5, Padres 1

SAN DIEGO — Rookie Chris Hammond gained his first major-league victory by allowing five hits in six innings and the Cincinnati Reds beat the San Diego Padres.

Hammond (1-0) made his first start of the season and just the fourth of his career. He struck out two and walked one.

AL Roundup

NEW YORK — Chicago lost its first game this season as Chuck Cary made the New York Yankees' six-run second stand up with eight strong innings to beat the White Sox 10-1 Wednesday.

The White Sox (6-1) return home Thursday to open the new Comiskey Park with an afternoon game against the Detroit Tigers. Jack McDowell, who won Chicago's last game at old Comiskey, is scheduled to start for the White Sox.

Cary (1-1) gave up three hits, struck out five and walked two. In his first start, last Friday at Kansas City, Cary gave up eight earned runs in 3 1-3 innings. Eric Plunk pitched the ninth.

Steve Sax, Don Mattingly, Roberto Kelly and Mel Hall drove in two runs apiece for the Yankees, who won for only the third time in nine games.

The Yankees sent 11 batters to the plate in the second as Alex Fernandez failed to get an out and saw his earned-run average go from 1.23 to 7.78.

Kevin Maas started the inning with a bunt single and Hall followed with a run-scoring double to tie the game 1-1. Fernandez, Chicago's No. 1 pick in the 1990 June draft, then unraveled and lost his location.

Matt Nokes put the Yankees ahead with an RBI single and Alvaro Espinoza added a single with the bases loaded to make it 3-1.

Steve Sax drove in a run with a single and Mattingly walked with the bases loaded to chase Fernandez (1-1). It was Mattingly's first RBI of the season in his 40th plate appearance. Kelly capped the inning with a sacrifice fly.

Maas followed with a pop fly single for his second hit of the inning, but reliever Wayne Edwards finally got out of it with a double play.

New York added three runs in the sixth off Edwards on RBI singles by Sax, Mattingly and Kelly.

Red Sox 6, Royals 2

BOSTON — Jack Clark, benched for a game after going 0-for-9 with eight strikeouts, celebrated his return with a two-run homer and a double as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Kansas City Royals.

Tom Bolton, making his first start of the season, pitched seven innings, scattering six hits, walking one and striking out one as the Red Sox beat the Royals for the second game in a row after losing five of six.

Clark, who ended his drought a second-inning double, broke a 2-2 tie with his second homer, a drive into the screen in left in the fourth off Storm Davis, 1-1.

Mike Greenwell hit his first homer in the eighth and Tom Brunansky, who had a sacrifice fly earlier, added an insurance run with an RBI single.

The Royals jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first on Danny Tartabull's double scoring Kevin Seitzer from third with two outs.

Clark doubled in the second an eventually scored on Brunansky's sacrifice fly to tie it. Boston went ahead 2-1 in the third on singles by Tony Pena and Luis Rivera and Wade Boggs' grounder to short.

Kansas City tied it again in the fourth when Tartabull singled, took second on a wild pitch and scored on Russ Morman's two-out single.

Jeff Gray replaced Bolton at the start of the eighth and earned his first save.

Tigers 5, Blue Jays 4

DETROIT — Milt Cuyler's speed and mistakes by Toronto catcher Pat Borders acounted for the winning run in the 10th inning as the Detroit Tigers — getting a game-tying pinch homer from Lou Whitaker — beat the Blue Jays.

With two outs, Pete Incaviglia reached on an infield single and Cuyler ran for him. With a 2-0 count on Dave Bergman, Cuyler stole second and took third when Borders' throw went into center field for an error. Bergman was then intentionally walked and reliever Duane Ward's first pitch to Travis Fryman got by Borders for a passed ball, allowing Cuyler to score.

Ward (0-1) gave up four runs on five hits, including Whitaker's three-run homer with two out in the ninth. Ward struck out five in the 2 2-3 innings in relief of rookie Denis Boucher, who pitched the first seven innings for the Blue Jays.

Mike Henneman (1-0) pitched one inning to pick up the victory for Detroit.

Ward struck out the first two batters to start the ninth before Mickey Tettleton hit a pinch single to right and John Shelby reached on an infield single that second baseman Roberto Alomar had trouble handling. Whitaker, pinch hitting for Tony Phillips, hit the first pitch into the upper deck in right field to tie the game.

Henneman started the 10th for the Tigers. He relieved Dan Petry who went 6 1-3 innings, the longest Tiger relief stint since 1989.

Brewers 7, Orioles 3

MILWAUKEE — Paul Molitor doubled to cap a two-out, four-run rally in the fourth inning and Gary Sheffield homered as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Baltimore Orioles.

Darryl Hamilton worked Dave Johnson for a two-out walk in the fourth and Jim Gantner, B.J. Surhoff and Billy Spiers followed with singles for a 3-2 lead. Surhoff was 1-for-22 before his run-scoring single.

Molitor got in an 0-2 hole, worked Johnson to a full count and then lined a two-run double into the left-field corner. Sheffield led off the bottom of the fifth with his first homer, finishing Johnson (1-1).

DIABLOS: EP leads league in offense could hit, and it just so happens the right guys went to the AAA team and the AA team," Kiefer said of Milwaukee's farm teams in Denver and El Paso. "I've never been on a team with this much offensive force."

Other big hitters for the Diablos Wednesday were designated hitter Shon Ashley (3-for-6) and third baseman John Byington (3-for-5). For the Angels, third baseman Kevin Davis went 2-for-4, while second baseman Kevin Flora jacked his first homer of the year with a two-run shot to center field.

Surprise, surprise: Mavs beat Timberwolves

Associated Press

DALLAS — Derek Harper's 20-footer with 24 seconds to play gave Dallas the lead, and he clinched the 102-100 victory over Minnesota with two free throws Wednesday night, snapping the Mavericks' eight-game losing streak.

After Harper gave the Mavericks a 100-98 lead, Tyrone Corbin missed a 12-footer for the Timberwolves with 12 seconds left. Harper was fouled after Dallas got the rebounds, and his two free throws with 10 seconds remaining gave the Mavericks a four-point margin.

Tony Campbell's uncontested basket with five seconds left pulled Minnesota within two, but the Timberwolves failed in their bid for a 5-0 season sweep of the Mavericks.

Randy White and Derek Harper scored 17 each to lead Dallas. Campbell scored 27 points for the Timberwolves, who had won four of their previous five.

The Mavericks pulled into a 98-98 tie with 57 seconds to play on Rodney McCray's 18-footer, just beating the 24-second buzzer.

Dallas held a 92-88 lead with 5:48 remaining on James Donaldson's two free throws. Campbell scored four consecutive points to tie the game at 92-92, then Pooh Richardson's jumper gave the Timberwolves a 94-92 edge with 4:13 to play.

Dallas trailed 62-53 early in the third period, but outscored Minnesota 25-11 over the rest of the quarter for a 78-73 advantage entering the final period. Harper scored 11 in the period and White tallied six consecutive points in a span of 1:22 to put Dallas ahead 76-71.

Minnesota built leads of as many as 10 in the second quarter before Dallas put on a late rush to reduce the Timberwolves' halftime lead to 52-49.

Corbin scored 15 first-half points to pace the Timberwolves.

NBA Roundup

Bulls 111, Heat 101

MIAMI — Scottie Pippen's pivotal buzzer-beater at the end of the third quarter helped the Chicago Bulls beat Miami and clinch homecourt advantage throughout the Eastern Conference playoffs.

Pippen hit a 3-point shot with seven-tenths of a second left in the third period to put the Bulls ahead to stay, 88-86. He added four more baskets in the first six minutes of the fourth quarter as Chicago pulled away to a 102-91 lead.

Miami was held without a field goal in the fourth quarter until Sherman Douglas scored with 3:48 left.

Pippen finished with 21 points and 11 rebounds, and Michael Jordan scored 26 points.

Rony Seikaly had 24 points and 12 rebounds for Miami, which suffered its fourth consecutive loss. The third-year franchise fell to 0-10 against Chicago.

The Bulls, 57-23 with two games left, are assured of no worse than a tie with Boston for the best record in the Eastern Conference.

Cavaliers 112, Magic 102

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Gerald Paddio, who didn't play in the first three quarters, scored 12 points in the fourth period as the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Orlando Magic.

Cleveland fell behind 91-90 when Jeff Turner hit a layup for the Magic with 7:58 to play. The Cavaliers, however, held Orlando scoreless for the next 4:35 and ran off 10 straight points, beginning with Paddio's 22-foot jumper, for a 100-91 lead.

Hornets 123, Hawks 111

ATLANTA — Kelly Tripucka scored nine of his 18 points in the fourth quarter as the Charlotte Hornets continued their mastery over the Atlanta Hawks.

It was the third straight win for Charlotte and the second consecutive loss for the Hawks, who fell 1½ games behind Philadelphia in the race for fifth place in the NBA's Eastern Conference.

Del Curry led the Hornets with 20 points. Dominique Wilkins scored 20 points and Kevin Willis, Spud Webb and Moses Malone had 18 each for Atlanta.

UA: University reverses earlier decision on athletes that the woman consented. He declined to comment on the board's decision, but indicated that the issue of consent was the main point of difference between Sugg and the board.

"I do believe that Todd, Roosevelt, Darrell and Elmer broke a university student conduct regulation by participating in a degrading act by engaging in serial consentual sexual intercourse. I consider this conduct simply wrong and insensitive to an appropriate code of conduct on the university campus," Sugg said, reading from a prepared statement.

He said the students:

■ Will be on personal conduct probation effective immediately and extending though the end of the 1991 fall semester, which ends in December.

■ Can practice but can't play with the team until the end of November.

■ Will be required to participate in a non-credit weekly educational seminar on issues "which relate directly or indirectly to this incident."

"It's a judgment call. To the degree of wrong they did, I think it is a fair disciplinary measure of the actions they took," Sugg said. "You have to come down someplace and I had to make a decision."

He said students weren't treated differently because they were athletes.

The players could appeal the decision to the board of trustees, but that didn't appear likely.

The woman's lawyer, Doug Norwood of Rogers, wasn't available for comment. He has threatened civil action against the players and school officials.

"When I met with those players, they were deeply apologetic. They have great remorse. They're very sorry about what they did," Sugg said.

Sugg suggested he "made a bad mistake and I think everybody up and down the line — between the coaches, the athletic director and the president — we made a mistake in not taking immediate action," Sugg said.

"It looked like we were not in control of the situation. It looked like that we're not concerned about it. It looked like we were not concerned about the proper conduct of athletes. It sent a terrible message to the state of Arkansas and, actually, the nation."

"They understand that they have made a mistake," Eddie Christian Sr., Day's lawyer, said of the players. "They understand they have exercised poor judgment."

Christian said he didn't know whether the ruling or the publicity over the case might push Day, a junior, into making himself available for the NBA draft.

Jim Rose, Martin's lawyer, said the "magnitude of the situation, warranted or not, brought on by the excessive, sometimes sensationalized and sometimes inaccurate media coverage, had become a major, if not the major factor, to be dealt with."

FIGHT: Moore a good teacher for Foreman

knockouts.

Moore won the light heavyweight title from Joey Maxim on Dec. 17, 1952, four days after his 39th birthday, and won all nine defenses, the last at age 48.

His record after his 42nd birthday was 38-3-2. The three defeats were knockout losses to Marciano and Floyd Patterson in heavyweight title fights and to a young Muhammad Ali.

Moore means it when he says, "I know George is in the vintage of his life."

Moore, who was in Foreman's corner when he lost the title to Ali in 1974, was reunited with Foreman for the 20th fight of his comeback — a second-round knockout of Gerry Cooney Jan. 15, 1990.

"We sit and talk," Foreman said. "I never argue with Archie. He's an inspiration and really the only teacher."

Moore considers Foreman a good pupil.

"He remembers like an elephant," Moore said.

Some listeners laughed, obviously thinking Foreman also resembles an elephant.

Prices recover

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices rallied Wednesday on news that the nation's supply of gasoline had fallen to its lowest level in nearly 16 years.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in May settled at $21.71 per barrel, up 7 cents.

The gasoline stockpile dipped below the threshold of 205 million barrels, considered by the government to be the minimum operating level, and stood at 204.2 million barrels at the end of last week, the leading industry group said in a report issued Tuesday night.

Although the American Petroleum Institute predicted there will be adequate supplies of gasoline for the summer, the report was enough to send gasoline futures sharply higher at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The gasoline stockpile had not been so low since July 4, 1975, around the midpoint of the Gerald Ford administration, when it totaled 203 million barrels.

Analysts say the nation has enough crude oil and refining capacity to quickly erase any shortfalls that could occur, assuming petroleum imports keep flowing at a normal rate.

Natural gas was mostly higher, with contracts for delivery in May closing at $1.378, up .2 cent per 1,000 cubic feet.

AT&T stumped

CHICAGO (AP) — AT&T Chairman Robert E. Allen said the phone company's earnings have weathered the recession so far, but that he is frustrated by his inability to complete a takeover of NCR Corp.

Allen told reporters before the phone company's annual meeting here Wednesday that he remains committed to buying the computer maker, but repeated his stance that NCR's offering price is too steep.

Dollar rises

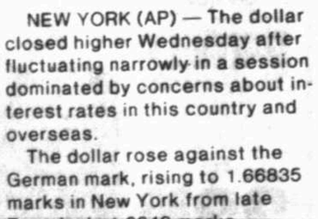

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar closed higher Wednesday after fluctuating narrowly in a session dominated by concerns about interest rates in this country and overseas.

The dollar rose against the German mark, rising to 1.66835 marks in New York from late Tuesday's 1.6648 marks.

The British pound fell against the dollar, closing at $1.7865 in New York, down from $1.7905 late Tuesday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Tuesday's quotes, included: 1.4225 Swiss francs, up from 1.4170; 5.6430 French francs, up from 5.6265; 1,237.00 Italian lire, up from 1,234.00; and 1.15025 Canadian dollars, up from 1.14905.

Dow sets record, breaks 3,000

Predictions of healthier economy initiate broad-based rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Predictions of a healthier economy and a steady investor zeal for stocks sent the Dow Jones industrial average soaring Wednesday to close at an all-time high.

The Dow average of 30 industrial stocks closed at 3,004.46, up 17.58 points, breaking the previous record of 2,999.75 on July 16 and 17, 1990.

Other indexes that track the wider market, such as the Standard & Poor's 500 and Nasdaq composite index, have closed in record territory in recent weeks.

"Every other market has been making new highs for close to two weeks," said Peter Vandenberg, market analyst for Lehman Brothers Inc. "The Dow has been lagging the market for quite awhile."

The new record for the Dow came on heavy volume. On the New York Stock Exchange floor, 246.93 million shares traded hands, up from 214.48 million in the previous session.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 300.47 million shares.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 9-to-5 in nationwide trading of NYSE-listed stocks, with 1,032 up, 576 down and 501 unchanged.

Market analysts said a confluence of events pushed the Dow to finish above 3,000 for the first time.

Key elements were low interest rates, heavy investments in stocks and optimism the economy either has bottomed out or soon will hit a trough. The rally is seen as a continuation of a bullish trend favoring equities since January, analysts said.

Another positive sign was the stock market's ability to absorb losses to key stocks such as IBM and Apple Computers Inc. — both of which turned in disappointing first-quarter earnings.

Also lifting the market was a series of strong earnings reports, which encouraged investors.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said its first-quarter earnings rose $712 million, or 65 cents per share — a 6.6 percent increase from a year ago despite the recession and flat revenues in its long-distance telephone network. AT&T's stock rose 5/8 to 37 7/8.

Shares for the Illinois-based Waste Management Inc. rose 1 7/8 to 40 3/8 after reporting earnings of $1.74 billion for the first quarter, compared with $1.21 billion a year earlier.

Other blue chips were higher. Ford Motor gained 3/8 to 32 1/2; Boeing rose 1/2 to 47; and IBM was up 5/8 to 109 7/8.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market gained $27.94 billion, or 0.75 percent, in value.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 1.50 to 213.21.

Standard & Poor's industrial index rose 3.25 to 463.12, and S&P's 500-stock composite index rose 2.83 at 390.45. Both figures were new records, traders said.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market gained 4.56 to 511.31. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed up 2.47 at 372.46.

Group would delay Exxon settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of native Alaskans has asked a federal judge to delay a $1 billion settlement in the Exxon Valdez oil spill, saying the agreement harms their right to seek their own damages.

The five native Alaskan villages said they don't want to "upset the settlements between the United States, Alaska and Exxon," but rather are trying to protect their right to live off the natural resources of their ancestral lands.

The villages asked that the settlement be delayed for 90 days, until it can be amended to protect their claim.

In papers filed in U.S. District Court on Tuesday and released Wednesday, they also asked that they be given a share of the settlement fund.

Exxon agreed March 13 to pay a record $100 million criminal fine and to spend an additional $900 million to finish cleaning up the Alaska coastline.

The oil company already has spent $2.5 billion to clean up the spill that occurred when the Exxon Valdez tanker ran aground in Prince William Sound on March 24, 1989.

The criminal fine involved one misdemeanor charge against Exxon and three others against its Exxon Shipping Co. subsidiary.

On Tuesday, Exxon and the government urged U.S. District Judge H. Russel Holland in Anchorage to approve the settlement, saying it would "send a strong message that companies that violate environmental statutes face serious punishment."

American drops $195.6 million in 1st quarter

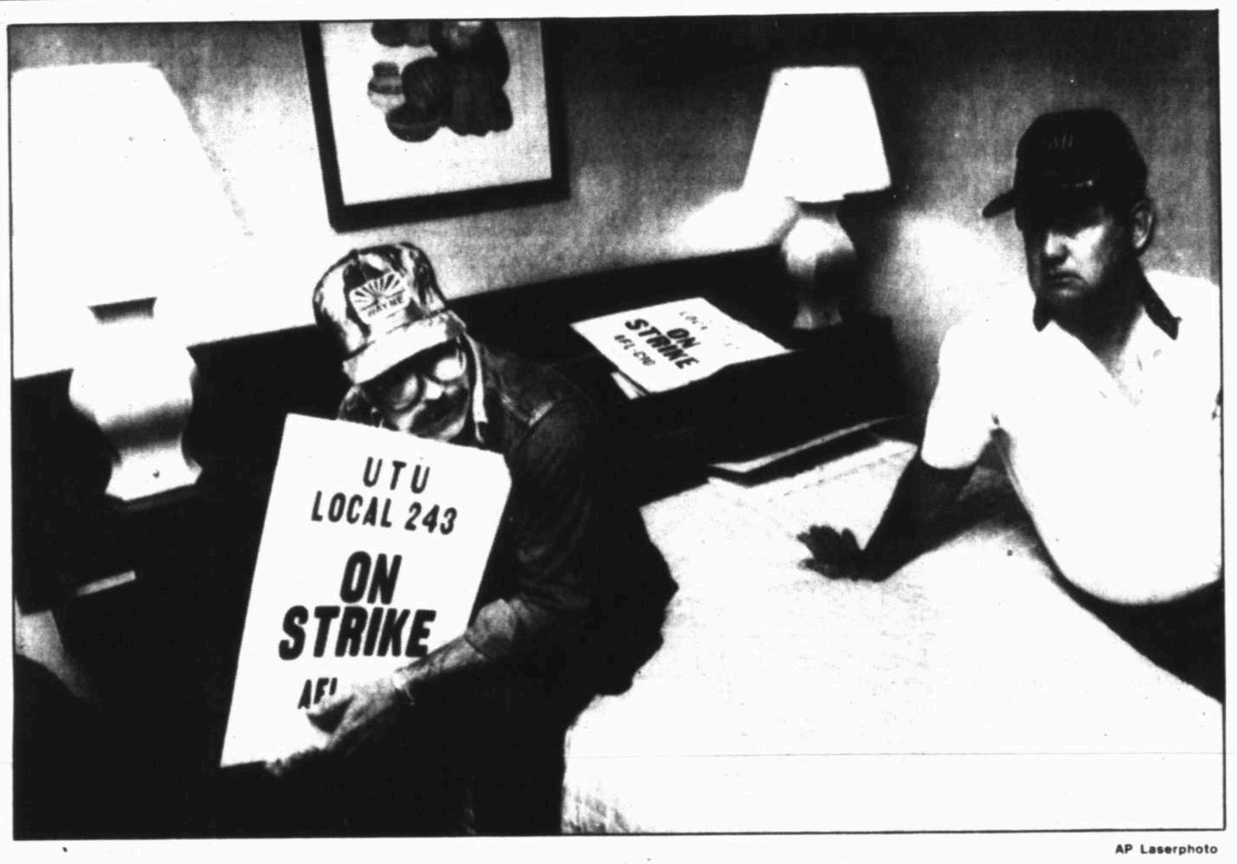

FORT WORTH (AP) — War-fed increases in fuel costs and declines in traffic aggravated a traditionally slow travel time and sent AMR Corp. to its worst first quarter loss in 11 years, the company reported Wednesday.

Fort Worth-based AMR, parent company of American Airlines Inc., said it lost $195.6 million, or $2.96 per share, in the first three months of the year. That compares to a loss of $19.3 million, or 31 cents, in the same period last year.

Revenues increased 3 percent from $2.69 billion to $2.77 billion.

The results were the worst first quarter numbers for AMR since 1980 when the carrier lost $41.9 million. It also comes on the heels of a $215.1 million loss in the last three months of 1990, the

Texas industries, workers fear economic catastrophe from nationwide rail strike

Associated Press

Railway-dependent industries in Texas were "hoping and praying" Wednesday that a nationwide strike by railroad workers would be short-lived to avoid an economic catastrophe.

"All of our grain is brought in by rail. The strike is a total shutdown for us," said Clint Shelton, whose father owns Shelton Grain Co. in Bowie, about 60 miles northwest of Fort Worth.

The grain company sells about $20,000 worth of Midwestern corn to area dairy farmers each day. But the strike has cut off all services, Shelton said. "We go from being in business to not," he said.

Railway workers across the state hit the picket lines early Wednesday, carrying signs and chanting slogans in effort to land better wages, work rules and health care costs.

Unions of major freight carriers have been arguing over better conditions for nearly three years.

"Nobody wants a strike, but we've had nothing but mock negotiations in the last few days," said Randy Haughton, a Union Pacific engineer and general chairman of the United Transportation Union's office in Fort Worth.

Railroads carried more than 5 million carloads — 308 million tons — of cargo through Texas in 1988, the last year for which statistics are available, the Texas Railroad Commission said.

Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific have the most extensive rail systems in Texas.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said Wednesday that Congress was trying to soften the strike's impact.

"Congress is working to enact legislation that will get the railroads running again without taking sides in the dispute which caused the strike," Bentsen said. "It is important to Texas that we act quickly."

An extended rail strike would knock out production at chemical plants across the state, costing Texas' chemical industry $70 million daily, said Monte Janssen, a spokesman for the Texas Chemical Council.

Nearly one-fifth of the total tonnage carried by rail through Texas is related to the petrochemical industry, the Railroad Commission said.

At the Port of Houston, 28 percent of the arriving cargo is moved out by rail.

"After a certain period of time, we will probably run out of places to store materials," Thomas Kornegay, managing director of the Port of Houston, said Wednesday.

"We are hoping and praying for a short work stoppage," said Jim Erickson, a spokesman for Oklahoma-based Union Equity Cooperative Exchange, one of the largest exporters of grain in the Southwest. Union Equity shipped roughly 280 million bushels of grain on rails last year, mostly to Texas gulf ports.

"If this goes on for awhile, we are going to feel the crunch," Erickson said. "Our volume is too big to be moved by trucks. We will just have to sit and wait."

In Austin, Gov. Ann Richards said Wednesday she hoped Congress would move swiftly to resolve the walkout.

"I know only what I saw that the Congress is now preparing a bill, so ... I would assume that the rail strike would not last all that long," she said.

In San Antonio, about 500 Southern Pacific workers and about 350 Union Pacific employees and hundreds more from both companies throughout South Texas were off the job because of the railroad strike.

NCNB reports 1st-quarter net income down from '90

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NCNB Corporation said Wednesday its net income for the first three months of the year was down $11.7 million from its net income for the same quarter a year ago.

But it said earnings were up significantly over the previous quarter.

The Charlotte-based company reported a net income of $128.4 million for the first quarter of 1991. That compared with a net income of $140.1 million and $31.2 million for the first and fourth quarters of 1990 respectively.

Earnings were $1.20 a common share compared with first quarter 1990 earnings of $1.33 a common share. Fourth-quarter 1990 earnings were 26 cents a share.

First quarter return on common shareholders' equity was 16.78 percent compared with 19.95 percent for the same quarter a year ago.

"Earnings rose from the previous quarter even as we responded to the weak economic conditions and resultant rise in problem loans by adding another $70.7 million to our allowance for credit losses," said NCNB chairman Hugh McColl.

First City ends quarter with $71.2 million loss

HOUSTON (AP) — First City Bancorporation of Texas said it lost $71.2 million, or $4.16 a share, in the quarter that ended March 31.

For the same period a year ago, First City earned $90.1 million, or $4.46 per share.

First City, the state's third-largest bank holding company, said Tuesday that it made a $74.9 million provision for bad loans during the quarter.

In the fourth quarter of 1990, First City lost $166.3 million after setting aside $150.3 million for loan losses.

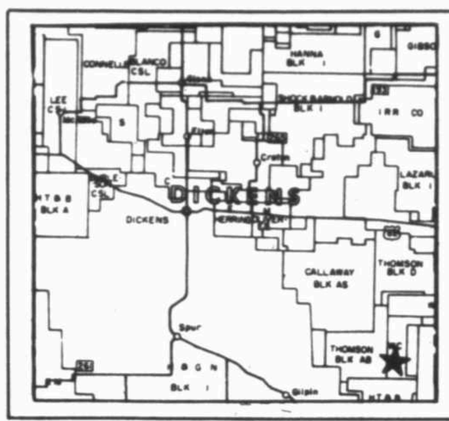

The company said last month it was anticipating a first-quarter loss of about $50 million to $75 million.

Interest income during the quarter was $91 million compared to $118.1 million in the same three months last year. Non-interest income was $44.6 million compared to $184.6 million a year ago.

First City has been working to tighten its belt, including trimming its staff and seeking new investment, said C. Ivan Wilson, who became chief executive officer last month following the ouster of A. Robert Abboud.

"First City is preparing a three-year capital plan to add at least $200 million in new capital and to take other actions that, over time, are

Dickens discovery pumps 20 barrels

Staff Report

SAUDER MANAGEMENT CO., Wichita Falls, has completed a Tannehill Lime discovery in Dickens County, north of the MBA field.

The No. 1-7-B Beggs was tested to pump 20 barrels of 40 gravity crude and 25 barrels of water from perforations 3,868 to 3,958 ft.

Permitted as a 4,500 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 4,004 ft. with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 3,993 ft.

The well topped the Coleman Junction at 3,370 ft., Tannehill Lime at 3,991, and Saddle Creek at 3,991 ft. Pay was topped at 3,956 ft.

Location is 1,330 ft. from south and 1,543 ft. from west lines of Section 7, T&NO survey, 17 miles southeast of Spur.

Eddy yields Morrow gas discovery

A Morrow gas discovery has been completed in Eddy County, N.M., west of the Rustler Bluff field.

NEARBURG PRODUCING CO. tested the No. 1 Amethyst to flow 700 Mcfd on a 24/64 inch choke from perforations 13,022 to 13,028 ft. Flowing tubing pressure was 210 psi and the interval was acidized with 2,000 gallons of acid.

Drilled to 13,491 ft., the well was plugged back to 13,220 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,903.3 ft., include the Base Salt at 6,545 ft., Wolfcamp at 9,738, Canyon at 11,458, Strawn at 11,846, Atoka at 12,174, and Morrow at 12,662 ft. Pay was topped at 13,022 ft.

Location is 1,880 ft. from north and 990 ft. from west lines of Section 32, T24s, R29e,

Tulsa oilman wants incentives for independents

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A Tulsa oilman says he and other independent oil producers want assurances that the "little guy" will not be forgotten when the national energy policy is adopted.

Dewey Bartlett Jr., a Tulsa city councilor and partner in Keener Oil Co., and two associates from an industry advocacy group were in Washington, D.C., have tried to distinguish the independent oil producers from the major oil companies.

Bartlett said he was speaking on behalf of 4,000 independent Oklahoma producers and others around the country.

"We are small businesses and we are usually portrayed as the J.R. Ewings of the world," Bartlett told The Tulsa Tribune's Washington bureau. "That is not true."

By definition, independent oil producers are limited to producing oil. They do not have refineries, marketing or international operations, which are hallmarks of the major oil companies, he said.

Bartlett said the unique problems that independent producers face often are overlooked, and he says they have been forgotten to a large degree in President Bush's National Energy Strategy.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks continued to rally today on optimism the recession may have bottomed out, sending the Dow Jones industrial average into record territory.

Traders viewed the market's strong performance as a continuation of a bullish trend that has favored equities since January. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 20.30 at 3,007.18. The Dow crossed above the 3,000 mark shortly before noon, retreated, and pulled ahead again about 12:30 p.m. for an even stronger gain.

The closely watched index has never closed above 3,000 but has crossed that barrier a handful of times during intra-day trading.

Volume on th Big Board was heavy, with 177.70 million shares changing hands as of 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

Advancing issues outstripped declines by a ratio of about 5-to-3 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 917 up, 557 down and 548 unchanged.

Analysts said no particular economic development was inspiring the Dow's rise.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said today its first-quarter earnings rose $712 million, or 65 cents per share — a 6.6 percent increase from a year ago despite the recession and flat revenues in its long-distance telephone network.

AT&T's stock rose ⅞ at 38⅛ following the news. Illinois-based Waste Management Inc. saw its stock rise 2 at 40½ after it reported earnings of $1.74 billion for the first quarter, compared with $1.21 billion a year earlier.

Other blue chips were higher. Ford Motor rose ⅛ at 32¼; Boeing rose 1⅛ at 47⅝; and IBM gained 1⅜ at 110⅝.

Today's rally was spread across all industry sectors, reflected by the NYSE's composite index, which gained 1.57 at 213.28. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 2.01 at 372.00.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Share basis changes when stock splits

By Bill Doyle

Q. In 1978, I bought 500 shares of stock. Over the years, that stock has split a number of times and I now have 3,252 shares. I would like to take out my original investment. Can I sell the first 500 shares, or do I have to average the cost on all my shares?

Doyle

A. You can sell the first 500 shares you acquired or any other number of the 3,252 shares you own. They are yours to do with as you please.

However, you will have to adjust your per share basis — cost for tax purposes — in order to calculate your profit or loss on the sale and report it correctly as a capital gain or capital loss when you file your income tax return.

Let's say you purchased the 500 shares at $10 a share. That made your total basis $5,000 and your original basis per share $10. The subsequent stock splits did not alter your total basis, which remained at $5,000.

But the stock splits did change your per share basis. You arrive at that number by dividing your total basis by the number of shares you own — all of which result from your purchase and the subsequent stock splits.

In this example, your $5,000 total basis divided by your 3,252 shares produces a per share basis of $1.54. If you sell 500 shares, your basis on those shares will be $770. The difference between $770 and your proceeds from the sale will be your capital gain or capital, which you are required to report on Schedule D of the Form 1040 federal income tax return you file for the year of the sale.

Q. My late husband and I owned several stocks, as joint tenants with right of survivorship. How can I have the dividends and reinvestment of dividends on these stocks changed from his Social Security number to mine? Is this something I can handle myself?

A. You can make it a do-it-yourself project through each stock's transfer agent and dividend reinvestment plan agent. In many cases, both agents are the same — often a large bank.

It's obvious you have been participating in dividend reinvestment plans. So you can get the addresses of the agents for those plans from the confirmation statements you receive every time you reinvest dividends to buy additional shares.

The address of each transfer agent, as well as each dividend reinvestment plan agent, is listed in each company's annual report.

Social Security numbers are used as taxpayer identification numbers. You should change the joint ownership of each stock to your name alone. In that process, the change will be made in the SS number.

You will have to fill out and sign the assignment form on each certificate and have your signature guaranteed by a commercial bank, trust company or brokerage firm. Send each certificate to the transfer agent, along with a certified copy of your appointment as executrix or administrator of his estate, a notarized affidavit of domicile attesting to where your husband lived and, if required in your state, an inheritance tax waiver.

Send the certificates by registered mail, return receipt requested.

Q. When sending stock and/or bond certificates by registered mail, should they be insured for their par value or their market value?

A. Neither. Insure the mailing for 3 percent of the market value of the securities. That will cover the cost of the surety bond you will have to buy in the unlikely event the certificates get lost in the mail.

In order to obtain a replacement for a lost stock or bond certificate, it is necessary to provide a lost security affidavit and post that surety bond.

AMERICAN: Fuel costs, decline in traffic contribute worst quarterly loss ever for the airline.

American, the nation's largest carrier, is the first to report its results for a quarter that was devastating to the industry. Analysts have predicted that the airlines will report losses of about $1.5 billion for the quarter ended March 31, following record losses in 1990.

"A weak economy and the concern generated by the war in the Middle East combined to drive passengers away in disturbing numbers, particularly on European routes," AMR Chairman Robert Crandall said. "At the same time, fuel prices remained very high until mid-February, driving up costs in the face of weak revenues."

AMR said its fuel costs rose 11 percent to $476.4 million in the quarter. Wages also grew 12.3 percent to $1.03 billion.

"American also was effected by the uncertainty created by ongoing labor relations," Crandall said.

As the year began, American was negotiating with pilots over a new contract, and accused the pilots of a work slowdown. American responded by cutting schedules.

Crandall said the airline also had to cut back because 450 pilots were called to serve in the Persian Gulf war.

"The net effect of all this was to make our first quarter uniquely unhappy," Crandall said.

However, Crandall said the airline already is seeing improvement, as fuel prices are lower and passenger sales higher.

LOSS: First City made provision for bad loans intended to enable the company to meet new risk-based capital guidelines," Wilson said.

First City also said that its Houston, Austin and San Antonio subsidiaries had formalized agreements with the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas to conduct management studies and devise three-year capital and business plans.

Abboud led a recapitalization of First City in 1988, the largest investor-led bailout in U.S. history. But after eight straight profitable quarters, things began to sour for First City in mid-1990 as second-quarter earnings fell 30 percent below those of the previous year.

In the past year, First City has trimmed its staff from 6,698 to 6,253. In addition, the company closed offices outside of Texas, leaving 20 banks operating in 82 locations across the state.

RAIL: Strike could shake up maquiladora industry reluctant to discuss the matter.

All Amtrak passenger trains into and out of San Antonio stopped running Wednesday morning.

The strike could greatly shake up the maquiladora industry just inside the Mexico border, said John Moore, a member of the Maquila Association.

Maquiladoras, twin plants along the U.S.-Mexico border, rely on rail to ship American raw material for use in assembly plants in Mexico. The finished products are sent back out by rail by many of the plants.

"We are intricately tied together. We're all one industry," Moore said. "Most of us have sister operations in the United States. If they cannot operate, we won't be able to either."

The strike shut down freight operations of Burlington Northern Inc., the only major rail company based in Texas, said company spokesman Roger Campbell.

"We're in the process of clearing our tracks and moving trains that are out on the rails to their nearest terminal, and we should complete our shutdown by midday today," Campbell said Wednesday.

Burlington Northern, which ships about 840,000 tons of goods daily, operates the nation's largest track system, with more than 25,000 miles in 25 states and two Canadian provinces.

About 30,000 of its 33,000 workers belong to unions involved in the dispute.

Some companies solely-dependent on rail to move goods have been stockpiling products in anticipation of the strike.

The Lower Colorado River Authority, which serves about 800,000 people and 42,000 businesses in Central Texas, has amassed a 70-75 day supply of coal. Normally a 60-day supply is maintained.

"The additional coal ... put us in pretty good shape for this situation," said Mark Rose, LCRA general manager.

In Longview, Texas Eastman Co. estimated that it could lose 80 percent of its shipping capacity because of a strike.

The company has made some alternate shipping plans for the short term. But spokesman Jack Goodwyn said a strike would "have a very serious impact after five, seven or 10 days."

"We will have no more room to store products which will result in severe cutbacks in our operations. Maybe after, or concurrently with that, it will have an impact on our people needs too," he said.

In Arlington, where the General Motors Corp. operates an assembly plant with about 3,700 workers, officials said they weren't sure how the strike would affect their production.

FORMULA FOR THE FUTURE

Vision + Planning + Effort = Success

I see Midland as a city on the grow, with plenty of good jobs for anyone who wants to work. This won't happen overnight, but with planning, strong leadership, and efficient, business-like management of our city's resources, it will happen in time.

A first class city deserves a first class airport. I believe expanding airport facilities, attracting new airlines, and extending control tower operations to 24 hours a day crucial to improving our economic future.

We need strong leadership to hasten an economic turn-around, leadership with vision. I would deeply appreciate your vote on May 4th.

New products help cure makeup fadeout

By Deborah Blumenthal
N.Y. Times News Service

Women who suffer from makeup fade-out may find a cure among the latest crop of cosmetics. More and more lipsticks, eye shadows, foundations, eye pencils, blushers and even mascaras have a common theme: longevity. They are intended to be applied and stay put.

Their aim is to help women overcome the problem of lipsticks that are licked or eaten off in an hour; foundations, blushers and eye shadows that quickly sink into the skin; pencils that fade or smear within minutes of mingling with tears or skin oils.

The demand for the new products, some cosmetics company executives say, came from women who work.

"The general inclination toward more and more long wear has come from women being busier and having less and less time for the pampering stuff during the day," said Annette Golden, executive vice president of creative marketing for Revlon.

"It was something that started with the consumer earlier in the 80s, but part of the ability to achieve it came from some new technologies."

ADVERTISEMENTS FOR longer-wearing cosmetics promise marathon staying power.

Lipsticks like Lancome's Rouge Superbe, Max Factor's New Definition LipColor; Revlon's Velvet Touch, and L'Oreal's Colour Supreme Long Wearable Lipstick variously promise to cling from four to six hours.

Revlon's Overtime Shadow claims "crease-proof" wear on the eyes from 9 to 5.

Max Factor's Splish Splash mascara is made to stay on up to three hours under water.

Maybelline's Finish Matte makeup foundation contains oil-absorbing ingredients and promises a long-wearing matte patina.

Do the claims hold up? Ultimately it depends upon the wearer and how she uses a product.

It is tougher for cosmetics to stay true on oily skin than on dry. And women who lick their lips more frequently, touch their skin more often or apply a product more sparingly will not get as much wear as those who do not.

The new lipsticks cling because the technology of dispersing colorants has become more sophisticated and the bases, which are made of waxes and oils, are made to stay on the lips longer, industry officials say.

Even then, lipsticks in tones like pale pink and brown will not stay on as long as reds and oranges, said John Penicnak, senior vice president of the corporate scientific department at Lancome.

EFFORTS TO prevent makeup fade-out date to the 1950s, when lipsticks left indelible orange or bluish-purple stains even after the original color had worn off — stains that could be removed only by scrubbing with soap and water.

Those products, made with heavy doses of colorants known as bromo acids, were also responsible for extreme drying of the lips, irritation and allergic reactions.

While the new lipsticks still use some of the same staining dyes, they use much smaller quantities of them, so users generally do not encounter the same reactions caused by earlier products.

"The newer dyes in lipsticks seem to be quite safe," said Dr. Alexander A. Fisher, a New York City dermatologist who specializes in contact dermatitis. "So far we haven't had any problems with them."

When it comes to eye shadows, improvements in longevity are attributed to the use of different binders to hold the powder together and different pigment treatments to make them cling better to the eyelid, Ms. Golden said.

The demand for more makeup bases with a matte or natural finish has led to a reduction in the oil content, so the makeup also wears longer, she said.

STILL, WHEN it comes to lipsticks at least, it is sometimes hard to believe the claims of staying power. A lipstick that will stay on through a meal? Maybe — if the wearer sips through a straw.

Expert offers makeup advice

N.Y. Times News Service

Women can maximize the staying power of regular cosmetics by following these tips from Gary Phillips, a makeup artist with the Pitino Buccheri Salon in New York City.

■ Foundation: Apply a light coat of moisturizer. Let the skin absorb it and then apply foundation. Use a makeup appropriate to your skin type. Set it with a light dusting of powder.

■ Blusher: If your skin tends to absorb blusher quickly, use a cream blusher and then on top of it a dusting of powder blusher in a complementary shade.

■ Eye shadow: Cover the eyelids with a cream-based concealing cream one or two shades lighter than your skin tone. Apply a neutral shade of powder on top of it, and then eye color.

■ Lipstick: Outline the lips and then fill them in with a lip pencil. Apply a thin coat of lipstick, but donUt cover the outline. Blot. Set it with a light dusting of powder, and then apply a sheer coating of lipstick.

■ Mascara: Apply two coats.

'Clown suit' not suitable attire for women

By Holly Hanson
N.Y. Times News Service

A Chicago columnist once pondered this perplexing fashion question:

Why, she wondered, do so many grown women dress themselves in the most girlish things imaginable: pinafores, puffed sleeves, floral prints, lace-trimmed collars and long, ruffled skirts?

The answer, she decided, was that so many 10-year-old girls were pining away for the pint-sized strapless dresses designed by Victor Costa. Things sort of balanced out.

As we've reported previously, Victor Costa has discontinued his collection for young girls, including the strapless numbers. With that in mind, we'd like to propose an even exchange: Let's get rid of clown suits.

Clown suits are the radical right of the sweet, girlish look. Clown suits are one-piece garments with legs and sleeves, usually made of floral print cotton.

The style is often baggy. The details are aggressively feminine, running the gamut from puffed sleeves and dropped waists to ruffles, appliques and rickrack. Often, there's a wide sailor collar that extends well past the shoulders, complete with a big floppy bow that ties under the chin.

Perhaps you know these clown suits as rompers — a term, we rush to point out, that also has a decidedly childish cast.

But that doesn't seem to stop grown women from wearing them. We've seen them at the grocery store. We've seen them at the mall. We've seen them at church. We've even seen them in the halls of this newspaper, worn by fortysomethings who certainly should know better.

We understand that clown suits are comfortable. But so is a terry cloth bath towel, and you wouldn't wear that to the grocery store, would you?

We'd also like to make it clear that we have nothing against one-piece garments. A trim, tailored jumpsuit is a practical and stylish addition to most every wardrobe. And we don't mind a bit when a cute young girl toddles around in a ruffle-trimmed romper.

Our teeth begin to ache, however, when we catch a glimpse of a woman who hit puberty at least two decades ago, but who dresses as if her teen-age years were still to come.

When the subject is clown suits, the rules are clear. If you count your age with more than one digit, you are too old to dress like Bozo.

Everything comes out in the wash

By Erma Bombeck

The other day I pulled out a basket of hand-washables I had set aside. There was the usual assortment of pantyhose, delicates, wools and silks, plus a doggie sweater.

Bombeck

I snatched the sweater from the pile and confronted my husband with it. "This is not funny. It is also not subtle."

"I don't know what you're talking about," he said.

He knows very good and well what I'm talking about. We have not had a dog in nine years. This is his way of pointing out my reluctance to do laundry. He's done it before. Once he planted a pair of baby booties at the bottom of the pile. (The baby was 26 at the time.) On another occasion, he pasted a sign on the basket that read, "Last Stop Before Obscurity."

Doing laundry or not doing laundry is possibly the only thing I have ever agreed with my kids on. None of them is "into suds." They don't worship at the Shrine of Perpetual Whiteness. They don't yearn for a kinder and gentler spin cycle. To them, static electricity is a turn-on.

I don't know where detergent commercials find these kids who call home from college to find out whether or not they should wash their clothes in hot water with a cold rinse or cold water and warm rinse. I know in my heart if I see one of my kids wearing a new pink madras shirt made in India, it is only a matter of weeks before he is sleeping on faded sheets, wearing pink underwear and sporting an entire pink wardrobe. They don't care.

I cannot remember the exact day when doing laundry was canceled due to lack of interest, but with each generation, watching a washing machine pulsate has become less of a religious experience. My hand-washables have become the Siberia of the utility room. Each week I sift through them, handing down a major decision on which one gets washed and which ones get thrown back on the heap.

My husband's chartreuse running shorts that glow in the dark and fade in the wash can wait. He still has two pairs clean.

The 10 pairs of pantyhose can be put off for another week. I'm not going anywhere. The hand-painted T-shirt that requires special handling can be put on hold. I look rotten in it anyway. The silk jumpsuit can wait forever. It has been on this stack for so long, I've outgrown it.

My kids are right. The most beautiful three words in the English language are "Dry Clean Only."

New hair look: Long and loose

By Carrie Donovan
N.Y. Times News Service

Now that long hair is back in style, let's discuss where it's going. At first, the trend seemed to be to pile it up in a loose beehive, as Ivana Trump did last year. But judging from the models at the fall fashion shows in New York, the movement is now reversed. For sure, long hair is the way to go, but the direction is down.

One model after another breezed down the runway with luxurious locks tumbling and bouncing well below their shoulders. Sometimes the hair was straight and smooth. More often, it flowed in a soft way, with wisps and tendrils all about.

Straight or wavy, the coiffure always has a definite side part. And that is what takes it from the old familiar tossed-about look to a more stylish one.

What is interesting is how well a long mane goes with day as well as evening clothes. The new tweed suits, with their softer pleated or twirly skirts, look particularly fresh topped with this tumbleweed coif.

Some things to keep in mind: long hair must always be sparkling clean and look as though it has just been brushed. Sunglasses are a good accessory, adding another dollop of glamour. And this coiffure is best for the young and handsome.

From gold to diamonds, fine jewelry can be cleaned at home

Associated Press

Jewelry, like the clothes you wear, needs cleaning and polishing to restore its natural sparkle.

Most stones and their settings can be cleaned with liquid jewelry cleaner available in jewelry or department stores. Or you can clean them just as well and with less expense using the following homemade formulas.

A word of warning: If you clean jewelry in the sink, be sure to keep the drain tightly closed and covered with a washcloth. ■ Amber: Put two drops linseed oil on a cotton ball and rub it into the amber. Remove oily residue.

■ Diamonds: Mix one cup hot water with one-quarter cup ammonia and one tablespoon mild liquid detergent. Soak the diamonds in this mixture for 20 minutes. Scrub slowly but firmly with an old toothbrush. Rinse in hot water, then dip in rubbing alcohol and air-dry or dry with a lint-free cloth. (Don't rinse off the alcohol. Allow the diamonds to cool to room temperature; don't plunge them into cold water.)

■ Opals: Clean with a mild detergent (not soap) and water. Handle carefully since opals are very fragile. When not worn, opals should be stored in a special humidor or water.

■ Pearls: Soak pearls in a mild soap and water solution. Rinse and buff with a flannel cloth. Don't soak a string of pearls; clean each one individually. For greater luster, wear pearls often so they can absorb natural skin oils. For the same effect, rub a little olive oil over pearls and wipe dry wth a chamois cloth. Store pearls in a bin of rice.

■ Lapis, malachite, turquoise: Use a mild detergent (not soap) in cool (never hot) water. Clean with a soft brush.

■ Amethysts, aquamarines, emeralds, garnets, jades, sapphires, rubies; topaz, tourmaline: Add one tablespoon of ammonia to one-half cup warm water. Immerse jewelry and scrub with a soft toothbrush. Rinse in clear water and dry with a lint-free cloth.

■ Ivory: Rub with denatured alcohol. Then, for an extra shine, rub with a drop of lemon oil.

■ Gold: Mix one cup warm water with one-half cup ammonia. Soak jewelry for 10 to 15 minutes. Gently scrub with a soft toothbrush, then rinse in warm water. Let dry on an absorbent towel.

■ Silver: Rub with silver polish, toothpaste or a dry cloth dipped with baking soda. Use a toothbrush to get into holes or crevices. Then rinse and towel-dry. For a quick clean, rub dry ashes over silver.

In providing regular care for jewelry:

■ When giving jewelry a final rinse, use the jet spray on your oral-hygiene appliance.

■ Don't swim in a chlorinated pool while wearing gold jewelry — chlorine can eat away at gold.

■ To keep track of your pierced earrings, fasten them through the holes of buttons. Or line a section of your jewelry box with foam rubber and stick the earring posts into it.

■ Apply makeup and cologne before putting on your jewelry.

■ To avoid getting the green residue from tarnished costume jewelry on your skin, clean the jewelry thoroughly. Then apply a coat of clear nail polish to the part of the jewelry that comes in contact with your skin.

Q. I need to lose 30 pounds and tend to eat a lot at night? How can I control this?

A. Weight gain is a consequence of input larger than output. In most cases, excessive calories in are a result primarily of what is eaten, and less of when it is eaten. How and when people choose to eat is an individual difference that should not lead to a weight problem if the foods eaten are low fat/low-calorie, volume-controlled choices.

For instance, if your evening consists of 1 1/2 cups premium ice cream (900 calories) and 5 homemade cookies (500 calories), this 1400 calorie "snack" is the total daily caloric need of a 127 lb. female. Conversely, 1 1/2 cups of nonfat frozen yogurt (270 calories), and 5 vanilla wafers (100 calories) is a 370 calorie snack that is caloric - affordable and nutritious as well. Focus on what you eat first!

Ophthalmology

Q. A child that I am babysitting has "pink eye". What is "pink eye" and is it contagious?

A. "Pink eye" is the common term for conjunctivitis, which is an inflammation of the conjunctival surface of the eye. The conjunctiva is a thin membrane that covers the surface of the eye and contains many fine blood vessels. When it becomes irritated, the blood vessels enlarge and give the eye a red appearance. This irritation may be caused by many sources such as infections, allergies and environmental irritants.

Infectious causes may include bacteria and virus. The bacterial infections cause a red eye and is usually associated with considerable amounts of pus. If the amount of discharge is great, an acute infection is likely. Some bacterial infections are more chronic and may produce little or no discharge except for mild crusting of the eyelashes. Viruses are also common causes of conjunctivitis. Some viruses produce the familiar red eyes, sore throat, and runny nose of common cold. A viral conjunctivitis usually has a watery discharge and last one to two weeks. Infectious conjunctivitis can be quite contagious, whether it is bacterial or viral and contact with the patient's tears should be avoided. This would include handwashing after contact with the patient and not using towels, handkerchiefs or make-up that has been in contact with the patient.

Allergies also cause of type of conjunctivitis that produces a discharge. Hay fever may make the eyes itchy as well as producing the chronic redness. Environmental irritants such as fumes and smoke may cause conjunctivitis. There are several eye diseases that may also produce a red eye that may lead to blindness unless treated. Therefore, to avoid confusing them with conjunctivitis, it is important to see an ophthalmologist for evaluation.

Cosmetic & Reconstructive Surgery?

Q. What Is Reconstructive Surgery?

A. Until the end of the nineteenth century, plastic surgery was essentially reconstructive. With the perfection of techniques, the correction of minor defects that are congenital in nature or secondary to aging came to be practiced. This corrective or esthetic surgery in contradistinction to reconstructive surgery provided another challenge for the plastic surgeon. Although no clear distinction between the two types of plastic surgery is required, there being an esthetic aspect in reconstructive surgery and often a reconstructive aspect in esthetic surgery, the terms reconstructive and esthetic are convenient only to differentiate between the surgery of major and minor defects.

Most define reconstructive surgery as an attempt to restore the individual to the normal; esthetic surgery attempts to surpass the normal. The relief of facial disfigurement, the restoration of function, the closure of defects--these are easily understood goals and imperative surgical procedures. But what is the "normal"? Esthetic concepts have changed from century to century, from decade to decade, and from culture to culture.

Cosmetic & Reconstructive Surgery

Q. What Is The Scope Of Plastic Surgery?

A. It is true that plastic surgery is a specialty that is difficult to define and that all the other surgical specialties with the exception of pediatric surgery have a regional character which is anatomically defined. The plastic surgeon extends his surgical activities not only to the skin and its adnexa but also to certain subjacent tissues in locations as diverse as the face and hands, the neck and abdominal wall, the extremities and the genitourinary apparatus, the breasts and scalp. To the term plastic surgery is added the adjective "reconstructive" which implies an extension of the plastic surgeon's activities to the most diverse reconstructive procedures such as vascular and microvascular surgery, peripheral nerve surgery, transplantation of muscles and tendons and arthroplasties thus overlapping all other surgical specialties.

Family Dentistry

Q. My child is only six years old and already has crooked teeth. Can anything be done now to keep this condition from getting worse?

A. Yes. For many years the accepted practice, for most patients, was to wait until all the baby teeth were replaced by permanent teeth before doing anything about the crowding. With new advances in dentistry, children are being treated at a much younger age; many times after losing only one baby tooth. In most cases the child will not need to wear braces when he or she gets older.

These new techniques have many advantages: (1) they are more comfortable than braces, (2) the treatment time is greatly reduced, and (3) the cost is from 1/3 to 1/2 that of braces.

Shoes sole of spring trends

By Mike Dale
Copley News Service

Healthy feet are comfortable feet. And comfortable feet will walk a mile for the spring/summer shoe lines hitting stores nationwide.

The National Shoe Fair, the industry's largest footwear show, recently presented the trends for the season.

The watchword is "eclectic."

Look for a touch of feminine influence, a dash of comfort, and the slant toward ecology in the use of colors and fabrics.

Designers have been dabbling in open-up silhouettes for the past two season, according to Margaret Pennes of the National Shoe Fair. But for this season they really take off.

Banded sandals, multibanded effects and fisherman and barefoot children's designs keep the silhouettes to a bare minimum but maximize fashion with lots of detailing, says Pennes.

Mesh, weaving, wovens, reptile, perfing and vinyl will keep shoes in their classic modes. Yet the use of metal ornaments — including charms and studs — will let the sparks fly.

Golds and bronzes pop up in subdued, matte tones, while "aluminum" seems to be the shining star, which should complement an overall, cooled-down palette.

Soft leathers are winning favor. They're being woven or textured on flats and wide-banded sandals in deep, burnish brown.

ANOTHER TREND that fits into the comfort-fashion mood is elasticizing, says Pennes. Stretch elastic is becoming part of the overall design, not just on flats but high heels, as well.

Natural materials and colors were on everyone's mind at the National Shoe Fair.

Fabrics such as cotton, linen, silk and luxe festooned in metallic or brocade trim will lead the shoe hit parade.

And natural fabrics are giving way to natural colors. Pale, celadon green in No. 1, followed by sand and beige tones, greiges, ivories and taupes. If you do see bright shoes, they will most likely be of the yellow and orange variety.

How about black, the perennial shoe du jour of nihilists everywhere?

It's on the decline, says Pennes. When black is featured, it's usually paired with white this season.

For women, specifically, high heels will be de-fanged a tad.

Opened-up pumps, fashion slings, wraparound halters, bronze T-straps, flats — especially ballets — and comfort casuals with a lighter look and feel dominate the spring/summer lineup.

Shoe accessories, meanwhile, continue to jazz up foot dress.

There's a wide range of shoe toppers, from gold-plated ornaments to polka dot and striped combinations. The bow, of all things, tops them all as a favorite shoe clip-on.

For the guys, like the ladies, sandals and "open looks" predominate.

Camp mocs and boat shoes come in softer fabrics and more colors. Stitch-out and stitch-and-turn patterns festoon casual comforts. And dress shoes boast the colors russet and navy as well as the usual black-brown-burgundy triumvirate.

THE GIRLS' FOOTWEAR checklist includes ballerina flats, opened-up designs, sandals in all categories, mocs of all types, canvas and skimmer casuals, and unconstructed shoes galore with fit.

Boys' trends mimic Dad's but with new constructions (softness). Look for wing tips and kiltie mocs like Pop's dress shoes, heavier wedges, narrow toes, and patent and printed leathers.

And the infants?

Try loafers in fabric and leather, more attention to socks, more and better Velcro, snip toes, waterproof and washable leathers, bows, elastic and glitter, colorful nubucks and ecologically "green" color palettes.

Overall, the retro 1960s look makes a return (has it ever disappeared?). Funky '60s footwear styles include the return of Beatle boots, chunk heels, square toes, flower power and peace signs, as well as macrame and big-bottomed sandals and wedges.

Now it's time to sock-it-to-ya'.

In the 1960s socks were considered gauche. These days they're high-fashion accessories and provide high-tech comfort.

According to Prevention magazine, natural fibers like cotton and wool used to be preferred material for socks because they were breathable and absorbed perspiration.

But that was before the development of synthetics like Orlon, polypropylene and Coolmax. Synthetic fibers, notes the magazine, tend to release the moisture that cotton absorbs.

TOPPING PREVENTION'S list of walk-tested socks are: Double-Lay-R; ASICS Walking Sock; Thor-Lo PADDS; Easy Spirit's Performing Sock; the Rockport Walking Sock, and NaturalSport.

DEAR ABBY

Man's way of handling dinner fork correctly sticks in friend's throat

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a close friend about his age (late 30s) who has a lot going for him. He's smart, college-educated, has a lovely wife (also college-educated), is very well-mannered and has a great personality.

Van Buren

So what's the problem? You won't believe this — but the man does not know how to hold a dinner fork correctly! He "makes a fist" and holds the fork in this fist — like a 3-year-old child. His wife holds her fork correctly. Why she hasn't corrected her husband, I'll never know!

If you use this in your column, I will clip it and mail it to him anonymously. I haven't the heart — or courage — to tell him face to face, but a man who is going up the corporate ladder, as he is, should know how to hold a dinner fork. — FRIEND IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR FRIEND: I doubt if the way a man holds his dinner fork will impede his ascension up the corporate ladder. Nor would it disqualify him from memberships in the ultra-exclusive Bohemian Club, or Mensa, an international organization for people with IQs in the top 2 percent of the general population. But here's your letter for clipping and mailing.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for eight years. My husband is a very good man. He is 38 years old; I am 30. We both knew at the time of our marraige that I was unable to have children. Now that I have turned 30, my desire for a family is very strong and I would like to look into adoption. I have spoken to my husband about this numerous times, and he does not want to adopt. He was married once before and has two children from that marriage. (They are now 18 and 20.) He says we can't afford children, which is not true.

Abby, I am considering divorce so I can begin looking for someone who wants the same things I do. I don't know what else to do. I really want to work things out, but I don't want to push him into something he doesn't want.

I need help. What should I do? — BABIES OR BUST

DEAR BABIES OR BUST: Your chances for "busting" are better than your chances for adopting a child with this man. You knew when you married him that he did not want children. See a marriage counselor to make sure it's children you really want and not a happier marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I received the enclosed message along with a wedding invitation. It did not set well with me, and I would like your thoughts on this matter:

"As we join our households together, our gift needs are few. If you wish to give us a wedding present, please consider a monetary gift that we can use for our wedding and honeymoon. Thank you! John and Mary" (Not their real names.) — ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: If you had asked "John and Mary" what they wanted for their wedding gift, the above message would have been appropriate, but a blatant request for money is in very poor taste.

By popular request, Abby shares more of her favorite prize-winning, easy-to-prepare recipes. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: More Favorite Recipes by Dear Abby, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

YOUR FOOD PHARMACY

All the best things in life — red wine, chocolate, MSG — can trigger migraine attacks

By Jean Carper

Carper

If you suffer from migraine headaches, you've probably heard that foods like chocolate, wine, alcohol, MSG and aspartame can trigger attacks. But, in fact, which foods are common culprits is still mysterious, according to Dr. Cynthia Radnitz, assistant professor of psychology, Fairleigh Dickinson University. She recently reviewed 19 major studies on the problem.

Here's what she concluded:

It seems sure that red wine is a primary trigger of migraine. But studies do not agree that alcohol per se brings on migraine. In fact, the weight of evidence suggests it does not.

Most doctors warn migraine sufferers against chocolate, but the evidence that chocolate stimulates migraines is inconclusive. It may depend on how much you eat, thinks Dr. Radnitz.

Supposedly, MSG (monosodium glutamate), nitrite and the artificial sweetener aspartame trigger migraines, but the evidence is conflicting. Migraine-inducing amounts of aspartame, for example, may slowly build up in the body over time, she suggests.

Still, she notes that many people (up to 85 percent in some studies) avoid migraines by avoiding certain foods. Which particular food is to blame appears to be highly individual.

Sleepy-time cereal

Giving babies a little cereal at bedtime helps them snooze through the night. "That's what mothers told me their mothers told them," says Dr. Michael Macknin, at the Cleveland Clinic Foundation. Supposedly solid food in infants' tummies stifles hunger that could wake them up.

The folk remedy is so widespread that Dr. Macknin decided to test it out. Alas, the cereal made no difference. Babies fed bedtime cereal at an early age slept no longer without waking.

In the study, 54 babies were given 1 ounce of rice cereal per 1 ounce of formula or breast milk in a bottle at bedtime, starting at five weeks of age. Another 52 infants were given the same amount of cereal starting at four months of age. The infants had essentially the same sleep patterns regardless of the cereal. By 12 weeks they usually slept for six hours without waking; by 20 weeks, they slept eight hours.

Sleeping through the night depends primarily on the development of an infant's nervous system, says Dr. Macknin. He advises waiting until infants are 4 to 6 months old before starting them on solid food.

New food for thought

Evidence is ever-increasing that certain foods, like onions, garlic, broccoli, seafood, nuts and fruits, possess compounds that can help ward off and alleviate specific diseases.

Yet, readers often ask: How can I work more of these pharmacological foods into my diet? Do you have recipes to lower cholesterol and blood pressure, help ward off cancer and help control arthritis and blood sugar?

The answer is now yes. My new book "The Food Pharmacy Guide to Good Eating" contains new and little-known facts and tips from respected scientists on the pharmacological powers of food, as well as more than 200 specifically designed health-protective recipes. Some examples: Dr. Duke's Anti-Cancer Slaw, Dr. Jenkins Greek Bean Stew, Dr. Rosenthal's Blues Fighting Muffins, Dr. Ziment's Chicken Soup for Colds and Coughs.

With rare exceptions the recipes can be whipped up in a jiffy, and, of course, are low in fat, cholesterol, sodium and calories. Published by Bantam Books this month, the book is available in bookstores at $21.50 in the U.S. and is a selection of the Book of the Month Club.

Woman's genes make her a marvel

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Helen Boley simply wanted to get her cholesterol checked when she went for a free screening two years ago.

But what that test showed about her genetic makeup has made her a subject of scientific fascination.

The 5-foot, 98-pound woman's blood had one of the highest levels of "good" cholesterol ever recorded. That substance is the high-density lipoprotein, or HDL, form of cholesterol, associated with long life because it seems to prevent arterial clogging and heart attacks.

Some have called the 62-year-old woman's secret a sort of Methuselah factor, after the Biblical figure said to have lived more than 900 years.

"I don't think scientists would call it that, but it does mean she probably won't have a heart attack or stroke, which kill more people than anything else," said Dr. William Harris, director of the lipid laboratory at the University of Kansas Medical Center, where Mrs. Boley's unusual cholesterol was first detected and is being studied.

A desirable level of HDL cholesterol is anything above 40 milligrams per deciliter of blood, scientists say. Mrs. Boley's latest reading was 230.

Not only that, but she has a family history of living to age 90 and beyond.

"Her HDL cholesterol is just outstandingly, remarkably, outlandishly high," Harris said. "We've never heard of levels like this, and neither has the National Institutes of Health. It's a genetic condition where something's gone nuts."

A high HDL reading doesn't guarantee a long life, Harris cautioned.

But its apparent role in preventing heart attacks makes the research on Mrs. Boley especially compelling.

"If we can understand from her what makes her produce so much HDL, perhaps the pharmaceutical industry or researchers can develop genetics or a drug that can mimic her condition," Harris said.

Mrs. Boley has her blood drawn at the medical center each week, and the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute in Bethesda, Md., is doing the more sophisticated genetic investigation.

All available relatives, including Mrs. Boley's 85-year-old mother, are being tested, and her mother has also been found to have a higher-than-normal HDL level.

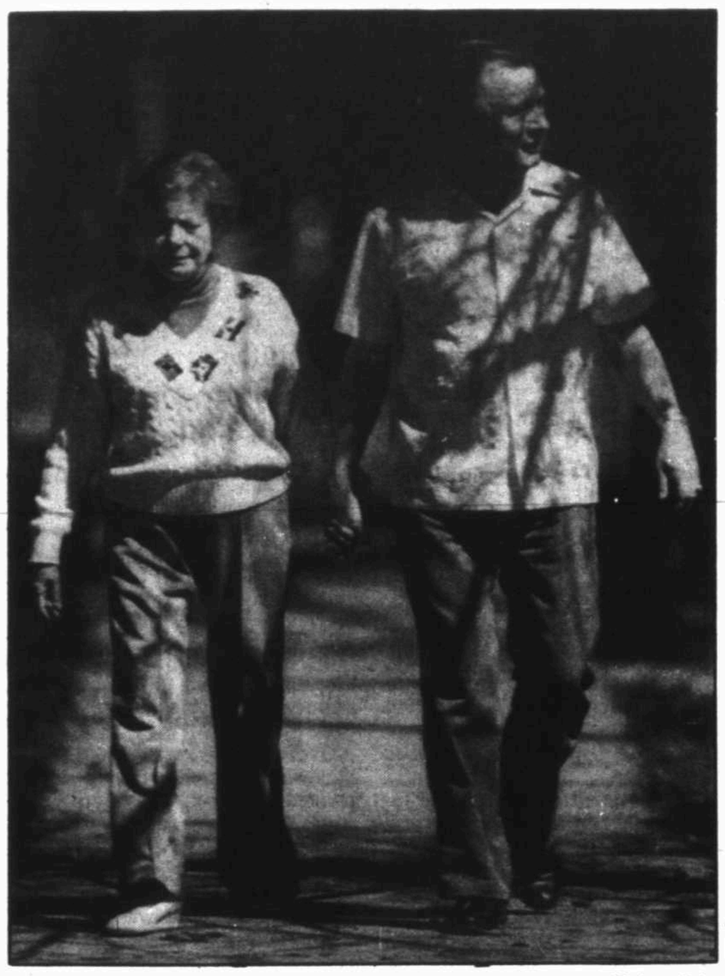

One early theory, that Mrs. Boley was simply storing too much HDL, was ruled out when the "apo A-1" gene associated with HDL production was found to be normal, Harris said.

That finding separates her from a family in Japan that competes for the world's highest HDL readings, he said. In that family, the HDL is not carried out of the blood as it should be.

"So we really don't know exactly what we're looking for," Harris said.

For her part, Mrs. Boley is "shocked, just shocked" to have become a genetic star. But she says she's happy to participate in the research.

"It's a good feeling, knowing that I may be able to advance medical science," she said. As to whether she could really turn out to be a latter-day Methuselah and live, as one researcher said hyperbolically, to age 150, Mrs. Boley is emphatic: "I wouldn't want to. No, I wouldn't."

Company plans to mass-produce genes

HOUSTON (HNS) — Genosys Biotechnologies is betting on a new method of making synthetic genes that could be used to treat heart disease, cancer or AIDS, company officials say.

The small, 4-year-old firm has bought the exclusive rights to the method. Genosys hopes to sell genes to pharmaceutical companies, universities and biotechnology firms.

"We're trying to do to the assembly of genes what Henry Ford did to the assembly of automobiles," said Tim McGrath, Genosys vice president of marketing for the 20-employee firm.

"Before Ford, making a car required craftsmen, and they did them one at a time. We're trying to make gene synthesis a reliable, reproducible technique any technician can perform."

But instead of selling the technique, Genosys, like Ford, plans to sell assembled genes to customers, McGrath said.

"We'll sell the service. We'll design the gene," he said.

The new method was developed over three years by Kenneth L. Beattie, an associate professor of biochemistry and molecular genetics at Baylor College of Medicine.

Genosys previously had developed a low-cost technique of producing batches of synthetic DNA segments — the units assembled through the new process.

The new technology shortens the time needed to make synthetic genes by shortening the time it takes to assemble strands of DNA. To make a synthetic gene, DNA is first assembled. Then its sequence is verified to see if it is correct. But getting the correct sequence can take up to six months, McGrath said.

Synthetic genes are used in the manufacture of a new drug for heart attack victims, McGrath said.

Sociologist questions misuse of genetics

SAN FRANCISCO (HNS) — The standard-bearers of the new genetics, despite their good intentions, are marching backward toward regressive social and political policies, argues sociologist Troy Duster.

Duster, professor of sociology and director of the Institute for the Study of Social Change at the University of California at Berkeley, has studied the development of genetic technology in the context of social and political concerns. His research has converted him into one of the more pessimistic onlookers to the genetic revolution.

"What's happened in the past 20 years is we've begun to rethink — in the most subterranean way — what we mean by health problems and who's responsible (for them), without any public debate or consciousness," Duster says. "There's a tilt that's moved away from the social, the political, the economic (solution) — and toward the biological, the genetic."

Duster doesn't have any quarrels with the molecular biologists unraveling the letters of human DNA. But he does question the psychologists, sociologists and philosophers who are using genetics to explain mental illness, racial differences, even crime. As their interpretations take hold, he says, social and economic solutions fall by the wayside, and the blame for problems ranging from infant mortality to workplace hazards lands squarely on the individual.

Tests being developed to measure genetic susceptibility provide the underpinnings to the shift in attitude, Duster argues. He says they provide the means and the argument for indicting the individual.

Duster isn't the only sociologist wary of genetic tests. Responding to such concerns, the Industrial Biotechnology Association defended genetic prediction in an issue paper released this week. The trade group contends that genetic testing can lead to better health, lower national health care costs and cheaper insurance.

On the job, genetic information can enhance safety for both workers and the public, the organization continued.

"One's genetic makeup will reveal information that will help avoid placing one in a work environment that could lead to serious illness or death," the IBA writes. "Doing so should not be wrongly labeled as discrimination."

But such reassurances chill Duster. He uses alcoholism as a simple example to explain his argument. During the early days of this century, the temperance movement did battle with "demon rum." By the time Prohibition was repealed, society viewed irresponsible use of alcohol — many times triggered by despair or poverty — as the concern. Now, some scientists have triumphantly reported a genetic link to alcoholism (though many dispute their claim) and dumped the problem right into the alcoholic's own lap.

Cigarettes, cancer-causing substances, even malnutrition also are becoming problems of individual susceptibility, not social or corporate responsibility, Duster argues.

And because many genetic diseases concentrate within racial or ethnic groupings, genetic screens invite racism, Duster says. He points to airline policies instituted in the 1970s that barred men from flying planes if they carried sickle-cell trait — a condition, primarily affecting blacks, that can trigger sudden painful seizures.

Ultimately, Duster contends, the health-giving powers of genetics grant new legitimacy to old, regressive attitudes. The genetic argument will be used to revive the same old question, he says: "Why people on the bottom are on the bottom. It's the siren's call: the crime gene, the poverty gene."

Indeed, geneticists are uncovering genes they say contribute to schizophrenia, violent behavior and criminality. Lawyer and University of Maryland research scholar David Wasserman is organizing a 1992 conference on such discoveries.

"The prediction and explanation (of criminality) ... will provide some valuable insight, but there is also tremendous potential for abuse," Wasserman says.

■ Mother found innocent in son's alcohol death

AUSTIN (AP) — Jurors acquitted a North Texas woman Wednesday in the death of her child who was given a lethal dose of bourbon during a party.

A Travis County jury took 10 hours over two days in finding Patricia Ann Griffin innocent of felony injury to a child in the Feb. 23, 1990, death of her 5-year-old son, Tinky.

When she heard she had been acquitted, Mrs. Griffin, 33, fell back into her chair and wept. She later said, "That was my baby and I loved him very much."

Mrs. Griffin had faced up to 99 years in prison and a $10,000 fine if convicted of not seeking medical attention for the boy.

In January, a Tarrant County jury convicted 22-year-old Anthony Darron Jimerson guilty of murder for giving Tinky the alcohol during a party. He was sentenced to 10 years' probation.

■ State park fee increase tentatively approved

AUSTIN (AP) — Summer picnics could be more costly under a bill tentatively approved Wednesday by the Texas House that would require people who use state parks to buy an annual permit.

"We're trying to come up with new and innovative ideas to maintain the state parks and build some new state parks," said Rep. Edmund Kuempel, R-Seguin, who sponsored the bill.

The measure was given preliminary approval with a 77-57 vote. If approved again by the House, it goes to the Senate for consideration.

The permit fee would be set by the state Parks and Wildlife Commission and could not exceed that for a combination hunting and fishing license, currently $15.

Backers said the new fee would be $10. That would raise $17.8 million annually to buy, lease, develop or operate state lands, according to a bill analysis.

■ Female lawmakers give doll to colleague

AUSTIN (AP) — State Rep. Edmund Kuempel says he'll keep on greeting his female colleagues with a kiss, although they jokingly banded together to present him with an inflatable doll.

"Edmund, Edmund! You're my man. Kiss my hand like no man can. Edmund, Edmund! You're so fine. Pop my bra strap anytime. Edmund, Edmund! You're no louse. I'll be your main squeeze in the House," said a note attached to the doll, dubbed Edwina.

Kuempel, R-Seguin, said he took the gift in good humor.

"I try to shake every gentleman's hand and kiss every lady on the cheek every morning. I've done it for 10 years, and I don't plan on stopping now," he said.

But Kuempel added, "If it offends some lady, I won't do it. I'll shake her hand and go about my business."

Schwarzkopf may consider top A&M post

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, who returns to the United States from the Persian Gulf on Sunday, reportedly is considering some lucrative book deals, speaking engagements, Army posts and the top spot at Texas A&M University to fill his retirement days.

Bill Clayton, regent and vice chairman of the regents' chancellor search committee, told the Bryan-College Station Eagle Tuesday that the university has offered the job to the retiring general, who headed the multinational force that won the Persian Gulf War with Iraq earlier this year.

The Houston Post reported Sunday that Schwarzkopf would be meeting with A&M officials in Rome this week. Former chancellor Perry Adkisson, who retired Jan. 1, is in Rome on university business, and sources told The Post he and other A&M officials would meet with the general there to discuss his candidacy.

A&M officials on Wednesday declined to elaborate on the reports.

Ed Hiler, deputy chancellor for academic program planning and research, has filled in as interim chancellor since Jan. 1.

Schwarzkopf, 56, and the majority of his staff at the U.S. Central Command in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, are leaving Saturday, the office announced on Wednesday. They are scheduled to arrive at Tampa, Fla., the Central Command's headquarters in the United States, on Sunday morning.

Related editorial/8A

Schwarzkopf, who became a household name while commanding the Persian Gulf troops, already has been besieged by hundreds of letters of praise, requests to speak or participate in parades and job offers since the general announced plans to retire in the next few months.

Officials have said the job of Army chief of staff was his for the asking, but Schwarzkopf showed no interest in it. He also has been mentioned as a potential political candidate for a high office.

For now, Schwarzkopf will continue to command the diminishing U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf from his headquarters in Tampa.

Texas A&M Board Chairman Ross Margraves Jr. of Houston was preparing a "counter offer" for Schwarzkopf, Clayton said.

Hispanic caucus intervenes in Pizza Hut dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Congressional Hispanic Caucus has intervened in the fight between PepsiCo Inc. and a Cuban refugee who turned his first Pizza Hut restaurant in Del Rio into one of the country's largest Latino-owned businesses.

The chairman of the caucus, Rep. Solomon Ortiz, has written PepsiCo to question efforts by its subsidiary, Pizza Hut Inc., to strip San Antonio businessman Arturo Torres of his 228 pizza franchises.

"We would like to know whether other than economic motives are involved in this action and the impact of these actions on your civic and social obligations," Ortiz wrote Wayne Calloway, PepsiCo chairman and chief executive officer.

"We cannot comprehend why any American corporation would initiate actions with the intent of totally eliminating a major minority enterprise," the Corpus Christi Democrat wrote last week.

But Pizza Hut spokesman Roger Rydell said Wednesday that the matter has "absolutely nothing" to do with Torres' ethic background. Rydell said it was Torres who started the fight by trying to sell shares in his company, Pizza Management Inc., in violation of his franchise agreement with Pizza Hut.

"We're not the ones who changed his franchise agreement," Rydell said from Pizza Hut headquarters in Wichita, Kan. "What he's trying to do now is turn the issue into one of ethnic bias."

Torres' San Antonio company employs nearly 5,000 workers in the United States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Spain. He has 137 Pizza Huts in Texas, which employ 2,700 workers, half of whom are Hispanic, said his spokesman, Jim Grossman in New York.

Torres' fight with Pizza Hut and PepsiCo began when he sought to take Pizza Hut Management public in 1986.

When Pizza Hut and PepsiCo refused his request, Torres filed suit in federal court in Wichita, Kan., alleging breach of contract and seeking $100 million.

Pizza Hut countersued, seeking rulings entitling it to terminate all of PMI's pizza franchise agreements.

The district court in Wichita ruled against PMI.

INFORMATION REQUEST FOR SUPPLY OF POWER TO TU ELECTRIC

TU Electric invites potential suppliers of long-term firm capacity and energy to participate in responding to an Information Request. The Information Request is designed to allow TU Electric to evaluate alternative power sources from Qualifying Cogenerators, Qualifying Small Power Producers and Electric Public Utilities in connection with electric generating facilities that TU Electric is contemplating constructing for commercial operation in 1997 (a 620 MW combined-cycle combustion turbine plant), 1998 (a 620 MW combined-cycle combustion turbine plant) and in 2000 (a 650 MW pulverized coal unit and 272 MW of simple-cycle combustion turbines).

If you have an interest in participation so that your project may be considered by TU Electric as an alternative to any or all of these electric generating facilities, you should request a copy of the Information Request by calling the TU Electric Information Request Coordinator at (214) 812-1275 or by writing to: Information Request Coordinator, TU Electric, 400 North Olive Street, Suite 3100, Lock Box 81, Dallas, Texas 75201.

Such request by TU Electric is not an offer to purchase but may lead to negotiations for the purchase of firm capacity and energy or the purchase of an existing generating plant. TU Electric requires an initial indication of a supplier's intent to respond by May 15, 1991.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Guard against getting so involved in a pet project that you neglect your business affairs this summer. Step back occasionally to get the overall picture! Sound investments in September will guarantee future financial security. Traveling for business in December could turn to pleasure. Happy romance lies ahead. Changing your lifestyle in January 1992 will improve your health while boosting your self-esteem.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Hayley Mills, actor James Woods, basketball's Nate Archibald, actress Barbara Hale.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look forward to improved domestic conditions. A real estate transaction brings record financial gains. Take a rosier view and a romantic relationship will blossom before your eyes!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The emphasis today is on practicing moderation in everything you do. New prestige and success are part of the picture. Deal directly with an attractive member of the opposite sex.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A work overload could be sapping your strength. Get better organized and delegate more responsibility. Heated exchanges should be avoided at all costs. Keep your friends' secrets.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take the long-range view and rise above petty squabbles. Your financial affairs may be linked to those of a family member with whom you have little influence. It is time to conquer an old fear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid direct confrontations today and you could receive a special break! The new support you get from your loved ones is reason to rejoice. Give romance a second chance. Trust pays off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep your ideas under wraps until all your research is completed. Consolidating resources will help you achieve better results. Choose a healthier lifestyle with mate's encouragement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Someone assumes that what is good for him will also be good for you. Set the record straight before you find yourself painted into a corner. Listen to mate's sensible suggestion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Spend time with those who will fall in with your mood. Domestic relations may deteriorate if you do not find out what is troubling a loved one. Ask probing but sympathetic questions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Involvement in a romantic triangle could cause great embarrassment. Be smart! Keep your personal and professional life strictly separate. A neighbor's pet may be a nuisance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You find it easier to communicate with your co-workers now. Good news could arrive by mail or phone. Express your feelings openly and romance will become more rewarding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Concentrate on projects you can handle alone. An older relative may need some advice. Be prepared for last-minute changes. Complete old projects before embarking on new ones.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You can make up the ground you lost by getting an early start today. A promise of financial support arrives from an unusual source. A romantic relationship becomes more meaningful.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are practical, thrifty and kind. Bright and righteous, they demand a logical explanation for every rule they are told to follow. Affectionate guidance will accomplish much more with these children than scoldings. Wise parents will teach these Aries that their stubbornness can be an asset at times. Puzzles and mechanical toys delight these curious youngsters. Many architects, engineers and inventors were born on April 18.

South devised a reasonable line of play for the five-diamond contract. See if you can find a better one.

South might have been wiser to have cue-bid two hearts on the second round rather than vault directly to five diamonds. As you can see, that would have led to a contract of three no trump, which would have been impervious to any distribution of the cards. Five diamonds was not, and declarer did not have the skill to match his bidding ambitions.

Declarer won the first trick in dummy and drew trumps in two rounds. Next, declarer led a club toward dummy, intending to duck if West produced the queen. When West followed low, declarer rose with the table's king, ruffed a heart and led another club, intending to pursue the same plan. After winning the ace, declarer tried to throw West in with a club. Unfortunately, East won and the marked spade shift netted the defenders two more tricks for a one-trick set.

Declarer's line was pretty good. It would have succeeded had West held the queen of clubs guarded no more than twice, or if East held the queen of spades (the ace was certainly marked with West in light of the overcall). But as is often the case, declarer made his mistake at the very first trick. South should have let West's king win despite holding a singleton in the suit!

Now declarer can win the heart continuation (no shift is any better), discarding a club from hand. After drawing trumps, declarer cashes the ace and king of clubs. If both defenders follow, declarer ruffs a club and gets back to dummy with a trump to take two spade discards on the good clubs. Should the clubs turn out to be 4-1, declarer must fall back on a finesse of the jack of spades as the best chance for the contract.

Willis, Moore exchange blows but it's all for their new movie

LOS ANGELES — Actor Bruce Willis savagely beats his real-life wife Demi Moore in a scene from the new thriller "Mortal Thoughts" that left both performers shaken, Miss Moore says.

Moore

"It was a pretty intense scene for both of us, but I knew it was worse for him," Miss Moore said. "It's a very frightening thing, to experience that kind of violence, even in a movie."

Willis plays Moore's abusive husband in the film, which is the first time the actors have teamed up.

Miss Moore said she and Willis usually go out of their way to avoid working together. But Willis asked to play her on-screen husband after reading the script.

"Frankly, I was surprised, but Bruce ... really responded to this guy," the actress said of the character. "He knows these people. He's from these neighborhoods. He could have been this guy. He could have stayed working at Dupont, got involved in an unhappy relationship and never grown up."

The wife-beating scene was surprisingly emotional for both of them, said Miss Moore, who also co-produced the film.

"I don't know where it came from, but all of a sudden, this kind of heaving, or crying, came out of me," she said. "It even shocked me."

LOS ANGELES — Actor Adam Rich was arrested for investigation of shoplifting one day after he was charged with breaking into a pharmacy, police said.

Rich, 22, who as a child played Nicholas, the youngest child on "Eight is Enough," was arrested Tuesday at a Bullock's store in suburban Northridge, 25 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles.

Security guards said they found $29.75 worth of socks and sunglasses on Rich and he had no receipt, said Los Angeles police Sgt. Paul Haberman.

He was released to his father after posting $250 bail, said Sgt. Jim Darling.

Rich, who is on probation for drunken driving, was charged Monday with breaking into a suburban pharmacy April 6 to obtain drugs, said Deputy District Attorney Andrew Diamond. Rich told police he needed medication for pain from shoulder surgery.

He is scheduled to be arraigned May 1 on felony burglary charges. He was released on $5,000 bail posted by Dick Van Patten, Rich's screen father on "Eight Is Enough."

TUPELO, Miss. — Author Alex Haley said listening to his grandmother and her sisters tell stories of their lives and an 1870 census inspired him to write the best seller "Roots," which became a television miniseries.

Haley, guest speaker Tuesday at the Lee County Library, told an audience of 500 that he would listen crouched behind his grandmother's chair in her home in Henning, Tenn.

• • •

TRENTON, N.J. — A woman is suing author Stephen King claiming the horror novelist plagiarized from her writings and based a character in "Misery" on her.

King

Anne Hiltner also claims King burglarized her home and stole manuscripts, including ones for his best-selling novel, "Misery." King's attorney angrily denied the allegations.

Ms. Hiltner, of Princeton, is seeking damages, a share in book profits, and its removal from store shelves.

She claims King stole in 1986 or 1987 eight copyrighted manuscripts written either by her or her brother, James Hiltner.

Ms. Hiltner charges the author incorporated parts of her unpublished works into "Misery." The movie based on the book earned actress Kathy Bates an Academy Award for best actress.

King's attorney, Arthur Green, said this week that he had not been served with the lawsuit but added he was "well aware" of Ms. Hiltner. He said she has been writing to King for the past decade.

"Nothing about what she does surprises me," Green said. "We've been dealing with her for a long time."

Ms. Hiltner filed the lawsuit on her own behalf in March in U.S. District Court in Trenton.

"Misery" relates the fictional story of a novelist who is tortured by a lunatic fan named Annie Wilkes into writing a novel with a plot she approves.

Ms. Hiltner claims King based the Wilkes character on her.

No court date has been set.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The mother of Lynn Anderson says the country singer's two children would be best served by continuing to live with their father rather than suffer another disruption in their lives.

Liz Anderson testified Tuesday in the Circuit Court custody case between Lynn Anderson and ex-husband Harold Stream III that she would not oppose giving primary custody to the father so long as her daughter can keep substantial visitation rights.

Henson sues Disney over misuse of Kermit and pals

NEW YORK (AP) — First they broke off the wedding. Now Miss Piggy is accusing Mickey Mouse of carrying on as if they were married.

What was once one of America's more tender courtships soured into a court feud Wednesday as the owner of Piggy, Kermit and other Muppets sued Walt Disney for alleged misuse of the famous characters.

The lawsuit, filed by Henson Associates Inc. in federal court in Manhattan, charges that The Walt Disney Co. used images of Muppets without a license in television commercials, movies, books, brochures, T-shirts and other merchandise — and in Disney's 1990 annual report.

The legal action stems from a dispute over whether Disney has the right to show the Muppets after protracted merger talks with Henson Associates broke down in late December.

It also marks a low in a relationship that once was hailed as an aptly touching epilogue for Jim Henson, the Muppet father and company founder who died unexpectedly in May 1990 at 53 from pneumonia. Supporters of the proposed merger said the puppeteer's elfin vision was guaranteed to endure when combined with Disney's marketing magic.

The 90-page lawsuit accuses Disney of "outright theft of Jim Henson's legacy," thus terminating any apparent affection between Disney and the company Henson founded.

The lawsuit accuses Disney of illegally showing Muppet characters in television commercials, "fostering the unmistakable impression that the Muppet characters are part of Disney Inc.'s profit-making machine."

Henson is trying to bar Disney "from performing, advertising, merchandising and acting in any way that suggests Disney owns or has any rights to the Muppets."

Henson also is trying to prevent Disney from its upcoming springtime opening of "Kermit the Frog Presents: Muppet Vision 3-D," a theatrical production scheduled for Disney World in Orlando, Fla., that the lawsuit contends was Henson's last major work.

It also seeks compensatory and punitive damages from Disney. No amount was specified.

Disney, known in the industry as a tough negotiator, is no stranger to legal struggles over the licensing of characters. A judge on Tuesday ordered Disney to pay singer Peggy Lee $2.3 million in her lawsuit against Disney over videocassette profits from "Lady and the Tramp," but Disney said it would appeal.

The Burbank, Calif.-based entertainment giant blasted the Henson lawsuit as "outrageous" and "an enormous distortion of the facts and an unfortunate break with the legacy of a fine relationship with Disney that Jim Henson left behind."

Disney spokesman Edwin Okun said an agreement signed with the Muppet maker in the summer of 1989 gave Disney "implied license" to show the characters. Okun also said Disney had paid money to both Jim Henson and his company, but he declined to be more specific.

In the agreement, the Walt Disney empire purchased rights to blend Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy and other animal characters created by Henson into its theme parks, movies, TV shows and retail merchandising products.

But the deal had not been made final when Henson died. Subsequent merger talks broke down after disagreement over the price paid to acquire Henson Company.

The proposed deal to acquire Henson Associates was valued at $100 million to $150 million.

At the time the Henson family, which has owned Henson Associates since the puppeteer's death, said current projects with Disney would not be affected by the termination of talks.

The lawsuit said the two parties negotiated over copyrights and trademarks up until the eve of the lawsuit's filing, when talks fell apart.

At Disney's annual meeting with shareholders this year, Disney told stockholders that while the company did not have exclusive rights to the Muppet characters, it hoped to continue using them on a case-by-case basis.

But several analysts said the lawsuit casts a cloud over current and future projects between the two companies.
