Election poll

This year's pre-primary election campaigns have included everything from angry words, accusations and unfounded rumors to, in some people's opinion, simple blatant lies. And reaction to it all has ranged from "that's politics" to the feeling that many candidates went too far this year in their heated battles for votes.

In the campaign for sheriff, interest has been especially high with each candidate having his own following as well as detractors.

Who will be the LEADING VOTE GETTER when all the ballots are tallied Tuesday night?

We'd like your prediction.

Call the Cityline COMMUNITY PULSE to express your opinion. Call 560-2400 and press 7660 when asked for your category. Then choose which of the four candidates you expect to come out on top.

The results of this poll will be published Wednesday morning along with the Reporter-Telegram's complete election coverage.

Early voting

Slightly more than 18 percent of the 48,671 Midlanders who are eligible to cast ballots in Tuesday's Republican Party and Democratic Party primary elections voted in early balloting, which ended at 7 p.m. on Friday.

A total of 8,927 Midlanders have voted since Feb. 19, according to Bettye Calvert, Midland County elections administrator.

More votes — 1,762 — were cast on Friday than in any day throughout the period, Ms. Calvert said. The lowest turnout was on Feb. 21, when 216 Midlanders voted. More than 90 percent of the votes cast were in the Republican Party primary.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday. A complete list of polling places will appear in Sunday's edition of the Reporter-Telegram.

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The United Way of America president who resigned under fire last week is still receiving his $390,000 salary while angry local affiliates have cut back their voluntary dues by 21 percent, officials said Friday. The news of William Aramony's continued compensation came in a teleconference hooking up the charity's headquarters with affiliates nationwide to introduce the interim president, IBM vice president Kenneth W. Dam.

Bangor, Maine, earns Midland spirit award

Mayor Carroll Thomas announces the winner of the Midland Community Spirit Award.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

When U.S. servicemen returned from Operation Desert Storm last year, they were cheerfully greeted at airports across the nation.

Those warm welcome homes were epitomized by one of the most travelled ports of entry for returning soldiers — Bangor, Maine.

"They made a lasting impression on thousands of soldiers," Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas said Friday. As a result, Bangor has received the 1991 Midland Community Spirit Award, Thomas announced Friday.

The annual award honors a community for its residents' ability to pull together to help one another.

"This year's recipient is the community of Bangor, Maine, because of the tremendous effort and wonderful welcome they gave to our troops," Thomas said.

Citizens of that city united to greet 204 flights and about 65,000 troops last year, said Elizabeth Bell, president of the Greater Bangor Chamber of Commerce.

"We got up at 4 o'clock in the morning (on March 8, 1991) when we got the first word that the troops were coming in," Ms. Bell said in a telephone interview Friday.

"Before long the public was involved — thousands," she said.

At one point, about 2,000 people crowded the Bangor International Airport to welcome the soldiers.

"Even at 3 o'clock in the morning, there were at least 200 people," Ms. Bell said.

"Nearly $1 million was contributed by local businesses — everything from soda to chips to gifts," Ms. Bell said.

Private citizens, schools and churches baked cookies and welcomed home the returning troops — who stopped in Bangor for refueling, Ms. Bell said.

"It went on week after week after week. That's what made it so wonderful," Ms. Bell said.

"It was very warm and moving — a lot of tears," she said. "It's difficult to describe. It was very emotional."

Airline plans to re-initiate service here

■ United Express is set to meet with Midland City Council Tuesday about four flights daily.

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

United Express Airlines is ready to bring its Midland-Denver flights back to Midland International, a company vice president said Friday.

The airline, a feeder service for United Airlines, plans to begin two flights daily to Denver, Mike Lewis, vice president for passenger service, confirmed Friday. He is scheduled to speak to the City Council Tuesday about the service, when the company's new lease agreement is up for approval.

"We're going to give our basic presentation, tell everybody interested where we're coming from and where we're going," Lewis said. The council is expected to clear the way for the airline's return.

United Express spent about six months operating Midland-Denver flights, ending the service in April 1987 citing increased competition for the route.

Lewis said the airline, although not owned by United, operates as a marketing agreement between various other companies and the carrier. He works from Mesa Airlines' division of United Express, based in Farmington, N.M.

United Express' service will not compete with American and Southwest Airlines, the two carriers that now serve Midland International, Lewis said.

"We think Midland-Odessa can provide an opportunity for us, and we can provide it with a service that's been missing there," he said. "Now, everything is so focused on Dallas."

Airport advisory board chair Ed Vogler said the airline will be welcome.

"From the point of view of overall operation of the airport, we welcome any carrier that can offer service to us," he said.

In the beginning, Lewis said, United Express will operate with four flights on its route: a morning flight from Midland to Denver, afternoon flights in and out of Midland, and a return flight from Denver in the evening. One plane would remain at Midland International overnight, he said.

Symphony reaches goal

By Georgia Todd Temple

The Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale announced Friday it had raised $125,000, the amount needed to finish its 1991-92 season. The money was raised three days before the March 9 deadline.

"The applause goes to the communities," said K. Michael Conaway, president-elect of the MOSC joint board of directors. "This has been a referendum on what the people of Midland-Odessa and surrounding towns want for themselves and for their children. They want an excellent symphony and chorale and outstanding musicians to teach their children in the schools."

The announcement was made at a press conference at the symphony rehearsal hall at Midland International Airport.

"It has been truly amazing to see that hundreds of people made donations," Conaway said. "People offered their services, musicians offered their music, busi-

Television show catches up with female fugitive

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

A woman who fled Pennsylvania after being convicted of murder and later arrested in Odessa, was in a Midland courtroom Friday — being interviewed for a segment of the television show "America's Most Wanted."

"She was on trial for the murder of her husband... she was convicted but wasn't in the courtroom at the time. She left and became a fugitive," said Lena Nozizwe, an America's Most Wanted correspondent who interviewed the woman in Judge Pat Baskin's 142nd District Court courtroom.

The convicted murderer, Linda Mae Miller, 38, had been profiled on the nationally syndicated television show more than once, Ms. Nozizwe said.

Her next appearance is scheduled for this Friday.

"The theme for the next show is 'dangerous women,'" Ms. Nozizwe said.

Linda Mae Miller was arrested for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on Feb. 14 in Odessa by agents of the Midland branch of the FBI and Odessa police, officials said.

Ms. Miller was arrested for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on Feb. 14 in Odessa by agents of the Midland branch of the FBI and Odessa police, federal officials said.

A companion, Debra Ann Degouw, 29, wanted for aiding a convicted murderer flee from justice, was apprehended at the same time.

The two women appeared before a U.S. Magistrate Feb. 14 and have remained jailed since.

Ms. Miller was convicted May 3, 1991, for the murder of Thomas E. Miller in the small central Pennsylvania town of Lewistown, according to The Sentinel newspaper in Lewistown.

Miller, 38, died from a single-gunshot wound to the head on June 1, 1990. He had been shot as he slept at his home.

Two days later police arrested Ms. Miller. A Remington Model 760 Gamemaster .3006-caliber rifle was recovered from a storage area in the eave of the couple's home, The Sentinel reported.

After fleeing from Lewistown, Ms. Miller and Ms. Degouw were arrested at an apartment in Odessa where one of the women resided, an El Paso FBI agent said.

Their whereabouts were determined through undisclosed investigative leads and a tracking system used by the FBI, the official said.

The two women, now in state custody, will be extradited to Pennsylvania.

Jobless rate, hiring show increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate jumped to 7.3 percent in February, the highest in more than six years, but a surge in hiring by some businesses provided an optimistic counterpoint.

The new rate, up from 7.1 percent in January and the highest since July 1985, came even though payrolls rose by a more-than-expected, seasonally adjusted 164,000 jobs.

The two statistics are derived from separate Labor Department surveys released Friday. The unemployment rate is based on responses from households, while the payroll data comes from businesses.

Both Democratic and Republican politicians reacted gloomily to the higher rate, but economists focused more on the payroll number and were generally cheered.

"This report is consistent with the idea that we're either at the end of the recession or getting pretty close," said economist Robert Brusca of Nikko Securities Co. Inc.

In a way, the higher unemployment rate is a favorable development, at least in part, analysts said. It likely indicates people once too discouraged to look for work are now job hunting.

"People were dropping out of the labor force in droves, so it was absolutely inevitable that once we had signs of life... people would come out looking for jobs," said economist Sandra Shaber of the Futures Group, a Washington-based consulting firm.

Analysts said the report likely strengthens the Federal Reserve's determination not to lower interest rates for now. The last cut in rates came in December and Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan has said he would not push them down again unless the economy weakened unexpectedly.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 8.85 percent this week, up from 8.83 percent last week and the highest rate since Oct. 25.

The increase in non-farm payroll jobs was the strongest since May 1990. In advance, economists were looking for only a modest rise of around 10,000.

But the January payroll number was revised downward. The department said employers laid off 149,000 workers, instead of the previously reported 91,000.

In a positive sign for future employment, the department said the average work week for non-farm, non-supervisory workers increased sharply, by 0.4 hours to 34.7 hours.

As the economy revives, businesses usually ask employees to work longer, waiting for strong signs of better sales before hiring more people.

"Firms can't boost the work week indefinitely — eventually they must add jobs," said economist John M. Albertine, a Washington-based consultant.

The strongest payroll increase, 133,000 jobs, occurred at retail establishments.

William G. Barron Jr., the deputy commissioner of labor statistics, said retail trade probably is improving, but he cautioned that much of the gain may be accounted for by problems in adjusting the numbers to screen out seasonal fluctuations.

Texas unemployment figure declines slightly

DALLAS (AP) — Unemployment in Texas fell to 7.3 percent last month from 7.8 percent in January, the government said Friday.

But the three-month average jobless rate, considered a less volatile measure, continued to climb.

"All the indicators suggest slow at best growth in the first quarter and probably well into the second quarter before we see any kind of recovery," said Nic Santangelo, analyst in the Dallas office of the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. Texas recorded its lowest jobless figure of 1991 in February, just 5.6 percent.

Since then, the monthly jobless figure has seersawed between 5.8 and 7.8 percent. But the quarterly average has climbed steadily from 6.3 percent in the three months that ended February 1991 to 7.4 percent now.

Unemployment nationally rose from 7.1 percent in January to 7.3 percent last month, the highest rate in 6½ years.

There were 9.2 million Americans out of work in February, 2.8 million more than when the recession began in July 1990. It was the highest number of jobless since December 1983.

There were 637,000 Texans looking for work last month, up from 477,000 in February 1991 but down from 686,000 in January this year.

The labor force grew by 198,000 people during the year that ended Feb. 29. But only 38,000 of those people had jobs, meaning most of the increase was seen in the state's unemployment lines.

King's beating had no provocation, officer testifies

N.Y. Times News Service

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. — A police officer acted without provocation and against accepted procedure when he struck Rodney G. King in the head with his baton, a California Highway Patrol officer testified Friday in the trial of four white Los Angeles officers charged with assaulting King, a black motorist.

Under questioning by Terry L. White, a deputy district attorney, Melanie Singer, the highway patrol officer who helped arrest King, said that on March 3, 1991, Officer Laurence M. Powell repeatedly used a "power swing" to the motorist's head. When White asked if the blows were justified, she said, "In my opinion, no, sir, there was no reason for it."

In general, law-enforcement officers are trained not to use their metal batons against the head, groin, spine or sternum, she testified, because of "the deadly force that's used and the damage caused." The Los Angeles Police Department confirmed that that is its policy.

Despite the nature of some of her statements, Officer Singer partly supported the defense's version of the incident. She testified that King led her on a high-speed chase, ignored police orders once he had stopped his car, and resisted arrest.

Officer Singer also said two of the defendants, Sgt. Stacey C. Koon and Officer Theodore J. Briseno, tried to restrain Powell from further beating King.

The incident, captured on videotape by an amateur photographer and shown repeatedly on television, fueled charges that racism was rampant in the Los Angeles Police Department and was a factor in Police Chief Daryl F. Gates' decision to retire.

Officer Singer gave a graphic account of the first minutes of the beating, a period not depicted in the videotape. She testified that during most of the time shown on the tape, when prosecutors say King was being struck with a baton by Officer Timothy E. Wind and kicked by Briseno, she was on the other side of King's car and her view was blocked.

King fell to his knees after Koon shot him with darts from a Taser gun, a device that incapacitates a suspect with an electric shock, Officer Singer testified. She said Powell then approached King with his baton drawn.

"He had it in a power swing and he struck the driver right across the top of the cheekbone, splitting his face from the top of his ear to his chin," she said. "Blood spurt out, poured out."

White, following the witness's instructions, crouched on the courtroom floor to simulate King's posture during the beating while Officer Singer, holding a baton, demonstrated the stroke used by Officer Powell.

After the initial blow, she said, "the driver reached up, both hands, covered his face with both hands." Powell then delivered another "power swing" at King's face, hitting his upraised hands instead, she testified, and "continued to strike the head area approximately five more times."

Koon then shouted, "Stop! Stop! That's enough!" Officer Singer said, and Briseno put his hand on Powell's baton and pushed it back.

Speaking to reporters later, Michael P. Stone, Powell's lawyer, insisted that King was never hit in the head. "I don't think the evidence supports even a deflected blow," Stone said, adding that if the motorist had absorbed the beating described, he would have been unable to carry on the conversation that Officer Singer said she had with him minutes later.

Officer Singer testified that before the Los Angeles Police Department cars joined the chase, she had followed King's car at speeds of up to 110 miles an hour on the Foothill Freeway.

WEATHER SUMMARY

The Accu-Weather® forecast for noon today.

Warm weather continues

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high temperature around 80 degrees, according to the National Weather Service.

Winds today should be from the southwest about 15 to 20 mph and gusty. Tonight, skies are expected to be partly cloudy with a low temperature in the low 50s.

Sunday will be partly cloudy with a high temperature in the low to mid-70s.

The high temperature Friday was 78 degrees, compared with the record high for that date of 90, set in 1946. The low was 39, compared with the record low of 16 degrees, set in 1931.

STATE

Most of Texas was sunny and warm Friday. A few clouds remained over the extreme southeast. Low clouds and fog that plagued coastal areas this morning had moved just offshore into the Gulf of Mexico.

Winds were generally from the west at speeds of 5 to 15 miles an hour with a few gusts in West Texas. Breezes were light to calm in East Texas. High temperatures ranged from the 60s in the Panhandle to 90 degrees in South Texas.

The forecast for North Texas was for continued fair skies today and increasing cloudiness into Sunday. High temperatures were to be in the 70s and 80s with lows in the mid-50s to low 60s.

South Texas was expected to be partly cloudy through today. Highs will be in the 80s with lows in the 40s in the Hill Country to 60s in the South.

NATION

Thunderstorms dumped hail and spawned tornadoes in parts of the Mississippi Valley region Friday, while a Pacific Coast storm produced rain and heavy snow in high elevations of California and Oregon.

Thunderstorms over central Missouri produced golf ball-size hail at Columbia. High winds damaged trees and destroyed a barn near Willow Springs.

In Kentucky, thunderstorms also produced hail north of Louisville, and thunderstorms over central Arkansas dumped baseball-size hail near Amity and Delight.

Thunderstorms along the central coast of Louisiana spawned a tornado near Forked Island at daybreak, while thunderstorms over central Iowa spawned a tornado south of Ogden. No injuries or damages were reported.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Man arrested in stabbing case

Staff Report

Midland Police arrested a 19-year-old man Friday on charges of attempted murder after a stabbing incident late Thursday.

Jerry Lee Flores was being held late Friday on a total of $10,000 bond on two counts of attempted murder, according to jail reports. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

Meanwhile, Roel Ramos, 18, and a 16-year-old female whose name was not released by police were treated and released from Memorial Hospital and Medical Center after suffering stab wounds late Thursday, a nursing supervisor said.

Police reports said Ramos and his companion were traveling in a vehicle in the 1000 block of McDonald Street about 10 p.m. when another vehicle forced their car from the road and into a nearby yard. An occupant of the other vehicle then attacked both Ramos and the female, stabbing him four times and her once, police said.

Louis Beique enters Midland mayor's race

A new candidate has filed to run in the upcoming mayoral race, to be part of municipal, school, college and hospital elections May 2.

Louis Beique, a 38-year resident of Midland who is retired, has filed his intent to run for the office of mayor. He will face At-large Council member J.D. Faircloth, the only other candidate who had filed in that race by late Friday.

FLIGHTS: Airline wants to fly here

(From 1A)

"This would only be the beginning of our service," Lewis said. "If the market does well, we could expand."

United Express shares a ticketing, baggage and reservation system with United to make connections easy, he said. Its planes are of the 30-passenger, twin engine, turbo prop type, and boarding would take place from the terminal, Lewis said.

"We're going to expand the capability of the people in Midland to fly out," Lewis said. "But there will be no direct competition with current carriers. It's going to be a complimentary type of service."

Three cities earn spirit finalist awards

By Debbie Lincecum

Staff Writer

Three communities' dedication to helping others earned them the title of finalist for the 1991 Midland Community Spirit Award.

Representatives from Coffeyville, Kan., the Kansas City area and Calhoun, Tenn., will receive plaques recognizing their achievements to improve their communities through hard work. Their efforts include fund raising for a child with a disability, a citywide cleanup and the assistance of injured and stranded travelers after a natural disaster.

People of Calhoun, Tenn. pitched in when a thick fog descended on their community, sparking a series of traffic accidents on the nearby interstate highway Dec. 11, 1990. The city's emergency services are staffed entirely by volunteers, but the town of 600 nevertheless gave support and medical help to the victims of more than 145 accidents along Interstate 75 between Knoxville and Chattanooga.

"The whole town went into action," said nominator Gael Bernard Stahl, associate editor of Tennessee Town and City newspaper. "It was one of the most stirring stories I ever heard. My eyes filled with tears as I tried to listen to the accounts of people's stories."

In one night, more than 80 vehicles were wrecked, 15 people killed and 50 rushed to emergency rooms with serious injuries, according to reports. Calhoun citizens set up phone banks, gathered medical supplies, food and bedding for the victims, working throughout the night.

One little girl drew the compassion of an entire community in the Kansas City area. Carmen Thomas of Olathe, Kan., was born without arms or legs, stricken with a rare condition called bilateral amelia.

Residents of the surrounding area formed "Reach Out for Carmen," a support group that raised money to help the little girl get prosthetic limbs. More than $250,000 was raised, and the effort is continuing now that Carmen is 2 years old.

"Carmen is one of God's special children," wrote nominator Ronn Piwnicki, director of the support group. "Her story continues to serve as a light to the common love in man. Without ever saying a word, she has transformed the hearts of thousands in this community into loving, caring people more aware of others' needs and of their own graces."

America's Operation Desert Storm inspired residents of Coffeyville, Kan., to start a storm of their own — a major effort to eliminate dilapidated houses, clear vacant lots and beautify the area. They even named their project "Operation Prairie Storm" in honor of the country's victory.

More than 1,000 people volunteered for the work that nominator Linda Lee Harper said made her "swell with pride" for her hometown. Citizens planned fund-raising events for their project, then they scheduled a detailed list of projects.

They mowed lawns, cleaned parks, painted, spruced up buildings and worked side by side for months to give their town a better look and its citizens a source of pride.

SPIRIT: Bangor wins Midland community award

(From 1A)

"I think this is representative of Americans and their spirit," Ms. Bell said.

As for the award to the Bangor community, Ms. Bell said, "Are we excited up here? This is wonderful."

A formal presentation of the award will be made by Brigadier General Lloyd W. Newton, base commander at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M. on April 1 at the Confederate Air Force, American Air Power Museum.

Bangor award marks the third such presentation.

Community spirit in Midland originally inspired the award.

The rescue of 18-month-old Jessica McClure, who fell down a Midland well on Oct. 14, 1987, prompted the award. For the 52 hours the girl was trapped, nationwide attention was focused by volunteers from the area and across the country.

Since then, Dear Abby publishes a letter each year from the mayor about the award.

For the 1991 award, 406 nominations for 148 communities and two foreign countries were submitted.

The 1990 award was given to the community of Yakima, Wash., for an effort by citizens taking to the streets in an effort to clean up a neighborhood plagued with drugs. The 1989 award went to Sioux City, Iowa, for its response to the United Airlines crash there.

fore a grand jury on March 18.

"The charge will likely remain attempted murder for the time being. Rather than go through all of the paperwork, we'll let the grand jury indict him on the murder charge when he appears," Midland Police Sgt. B.G. Johnson said.

A second murder charge in the death of the unborn baby will not be filed in the case, according to district attorney Al Schorre.

"Under Texas law, murder is the death of an individual — or someone who has been born and is alive, not a fetus," Schorre said.

Ms. Fresca was taken to the hospital and rushed into surgery where doctors amputated her right leg to prevent infection. She also suffered wounds to the hand, ear and upper abdomen.

Doctors had originally detected a strong heartbeat from the fetus, but the unborn baby's condition had deteriorated along with Ms. Fresca's.

Authorities captured Rivera approximately 24 hours after the shooting when La Plaza Park apartment resident Johnny Aguirre chased him down after Rivera had asked him for a ride. Aguirre had led him to the apartment of La Plaza Park courtesy officer and sheriff's deputy Terry Cowin before Rivera discovered the plot and tried to escape.

The capture came about an hour after a methodical search of all 124 units of Chaparral Apartments was cancelled.

Rivera remains in custody at the Midland County Jail under a bond of $275,000.

GOAL: Symphony and chorale raises funds

ness people offered their products.

"Even the children have participated," Conway said, referring to the aluminum can drive and poster contest at Midland's Emerson Elementary and a walk-a-thon by Odessa's band and orchestra students.

The Throuven String Quartet raised $400 in one hour-long performance Wednesday at Claydesta, the symphony office said.

Despite the good news, the symphony is not out of trouble.

"Now we have to roll up our sleeves and raise next year's funding in advance, so that we produce a season that we can pay for," said Conway, who is also chairman of the 1992-93 budget committee.

Although symphony supporters have given an additional $79,667 for the 1992-93 season, the organization has pledged to raise a total of $375,000 to underwrite the 1992-93 season. The remaining $295,333 needs to be raised before plans will be finalized for the 1992-93 season.

"What we provide to the communities for next season will be based on what is given or pledged by March 31," said Philip West, general manager of the MOSC.

Thus, the MOSC needs to raise $295,333 in the next 25 days — more than the $204,667 it raised in the past 20 days.

The first public announcement of the organization's financial distress came at its Feb. 15 Pops concert. At that time, Conway announced that the organization was broke and had to raise $125,000 by March 9 to avoid having to abbreviate or cancel the remainder of its 1991-92 season.

The initial $100,000 came from individuals, organizations and businesses in Midland, Odessa, Andrews and Stanton.

During the campaign drive, the MOSC received a challenge grant from an anonymous Midland donor. The grant challenged the organization to raise $100,000 by March 9. In the event the MOSC was successful, the grant would pay $1 for every $4 raised, insuring the final $25,000 would be available.

To help prevent this kind of financial instability in the future, the MOSC has established an endowment account with the Permian Basin Area Foundation. It seeks to raise $2 million by the year 2000.

"It isn't over, but we feel good about our success thus far," Conway said. "To all who have stepped forward to help save our symphony, members of the board, members of the orchestra, members of the chorale and especially members of the communities, we thank you."

Duke makes first appearance on GOP ballot

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The race for the Republican presidential nomination becomes a three-way contest Saturday as former Ku Klux Klansman David Duke makes his debut. But analysts suggest Patrick Buchanan already has stolen his thunder as a conservative alternative to President Bush.

Campaigning through the South, Buchanan has been openly courting Duke supporters while denouncing the former Louisiana state representative himself as "irrelevant" to the GOP race.

To the Bush camp, Duke is a slight headache to the Buchanan migraine.

"Nobody's paying any attention to him at all right now. I just think he's an asterisk," said Bush senior campaign adviser Charles Black. "I'd be surprised if he's in the double digits anywhere."

Duke, who skipped the leadoff New Hampshire primary and was kept off ballots in South Dakota and Georgia, appears for the first time on Saturday's GOP South Carolina ballot.

Three days later, he's on ballots in seven "Super Tuesday" races: Louisiana, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Tennessee and Texas.

Duke sought votes and money in a half-hour campaign television appearance aired on Friday in South Carolina. Duke aides said the commercial — which includes a "900" number appeal for funds — would also be run in Mississippi.

Alone, speaking in quiet, even tones, Duke recited his views and briefly assailed Bush as a president who "bobs up and down" on issues. "I am not a white supremacist," he said. "... I am called a racist every day, but I will not be silenced by an epithet."

Three months after he announced his upstart candidacy, the former Louisiana KKK grand wizard and Nazi sympathizer has done little actual campaigning and has less than $100,000 in his campaign account.

And he has found much of his fire usurped by Buchanan.

"I don't think Duke is going to do very well. Certainly, in South Carolina, there isn't any indication that he will be a factor at all," said Earl Black, a southern politics expert at the University of South Carolina.

"Pat Buchanan has made David Duke superfluous," said Erwin Hargrove, a political science professor at Vanderbilt University. "I think Duke is out of business."

Both analysts agreed that whatever support Duke does muster will come from the Buchanan vote — rather than from the Bush vote as such.

Frank Luntz, Buchanan's pollster, said Buchanan is vacuuming up support that would have gone to Duke.

"If we will be respected by the Republican establishment for one thing in this whole campaign, it will be the ouster of David Duke," Luntz said.

The pollster said he didn't expect Duke "to get more than 5 percent in any state other than Louisiana."

The South Carolina primary should be a good day for Bush. Polls have suggested Bush has more support here — where popular Gov. Carroll Campbell has been active as Bush's state chairman — than in many other states in the region.

A Mason-Dixon Poll this week showed Bush with 78 percent to Buchanan's 15 percent. That poll showed Duke at just 2 percent, with the remaining 5 percent undecided.

Bush won a lackluster 64 to 36 percent victory over Buchanan in the Georgia primary.

Lutke died Friday at a local hospital.

Virus creates more hype than byte bites

By John Markoff
N.Y. Times News Service

The Michelangelo computer virus came to life as scheduled Friday but from all reports the infection caused barely a sneeze among the millions of personal computers worldwide and led instead to an angry exchange about whom to blame for the dire alarms sounded in recent weeks.

There were scattered reports in a number of countries that the virus had destroyed data in some computer systems.

In the United States most experts said the reports they had received about personal computer users losing data could be gauged in the dozens.

The experience of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was probably typical.

The company, which has 250,000 personal computers at various sites around the globe, said that before Friday it had received six possible reports of invasion by the Michelangelo virus, so named because it was designed by an anonymous program to erase data and programs on the artist's 517th birthday.

Three of those reports proved false. Friday, the company said that it had two suspected invasions at sites in New Jersey, but neither of those had been proved to be linked to the virus.

The worst effects of the malicious program appear to have been in South Africa where about 750 personal computers used by the nation's pharmacists were struck.

Some of the South African machines were in Natal Province on the Indian Ocean.

British subpoena ABC for interview records on terror suspects

By Craig R. Whitney
N.Y. Times News Service

LONDON — British anti-terrorist police officers investigating the 1988 bombing of a Pan American World Airways jumbo jet over Lockerbie, Scotland, have demanded that ABC News and its senior European editor, Pierre Salinger, hand over tapes and notes of interviews with the two prime Libyan suspects, Salinger said Friday.

ABC and Salinger said they would resist the demand.

Britain and the United States, backed by the United Nations, have demanded extradition of the two officials, Abdel Basset Ali Megrahi and Lamen Khalifa Fhimah, accusing them of responsibility for planting the bomb that brought down Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie on Dec. 21, 1988. All 259 aboard the plane and 11 people on the ground were killed.

Libya has refused to hand over the two officials. The country's leader, Col. Moammar Gadhafi, has insisted that they could testify or be tried in Libya, U.S. and British officials have dismissed the gesture as a prevarication.

Detectives from the London Metropolitan Police's anti-terrorist branch handed Salinger a subpoena on Wednesday, demanding that he and ABC News produce "audio and video recordings, internal records, statements, photographs or other notes" of interviews he had with the two officials in Tripoli in November.

Salinger said Friday that he had interviewed Megrahi on Nov. 26 and Fhimah on Nov. 27, each for about 40 minutes. The ABC News program "World News Tonight" broadcast brief excerpts on the 27th, Salinger said.

In the interviews, he said, Megrahi and Fhimah denied that they had anything to do with the Lockerbie bombing or any connection with Libyan intelligence.

In the United States, a subpoena for information of that kind could be resisted on the ground that it is protected by the First Amendment, which guards against infringements of freedom of speech or of the press.

But in Britain, where there is no written constitution and no formal safeguards comparable with the First Amendment, the chances that the authorities will get the material they want are greater.

The investigation into the bombing is being conducted by the Scottish authorities, who said Friday that they could not comment on the subpoena or the reason it was issued.

Asked Friday to give a reason, one of the British inspectors who handed Salinger the subpoena said only, "It's called a production order."

"The Libyan government invited both the Scottish police and American investigators to come to Libya and do their own interviews," Salinger, who was press secretary to President John F. Kennedy, said. "My point in resisting the subpoena is that since I did the interviews, why can't they?"

President of Azerbaijan resigns

BAKU, Azerbaijan (AP) — President Ayaz Mutalibov, blamed for the massacre of hundreds of his countrymen in the battle with Armenia over Nagorno-Karabakh, resigned Friday.

Opposition forces who want to escalate the fighting in the Caucasus Mountain enclave held Mutalibov responsible for the deaths of up to 1,000 Azerbaijanis in a Feb. 25-26 attack by Armenia on the Nagorno-Karabakh town of Khodzhal.

Two hundred bodies have been recovered around Khodzhal and scores of others are scattered across nearby ravines and forests, but Armenian snipers have prevented Azerbaijan rescuers from retrieving the victims.

With Mutalibov's departure Friday, and his temporary replacement by parliamentary Chairman Yagub Mamedov, fighting is likely to escalate.

Even as Mutalibov spent his last day in office, Azerbaijan was launching an offensive against Armenian villages in the disputed region 1,100 miles southeast of Moscow. More than two dozen people were reported killed, news services reported.

Since Thursday, thousands of demonstrators have surrounded the parliament building in the capital of this former Soviet republic and demanded the 53-year-old career Communist Party functionary leave office.

"I don't want to shed the blood of my people," Mutalibov told parliament in a quavering voice in announcing his resignation.

Cheers and shouts of "Freedom!" erupted from the crowd of 20,000 people outside parliament when word spread that Mutalibov had stepped down.

"I am bowing to the will of the people," he later told The Associated Press.

Asked about opposition allegations that he was responsible for the deaths at Khodzhal by not acting decisively enough against Armenia, Mutalibov told AP: "The massacre was a grave tragedy with potential dire consequences."

He added: "I've tried hard to prevent this tragedy, but the enemy (Armenia) was too strong."

Armenia does not dispute attacking Khodzhal, but denies 1,000 were killed. It claimed the town was a strategic target because it was used to shell Nagorno-Karabakh's capital, Stepanakert.

The attack on Khodzhal was part of what Baku sees as a campaign by Armenia to drive ethnic Azerbaijanis from Nagorno-Karabakh. The region is populated mostly by Christian Armenians, but has been controlled since 1923 by predominantly Muslim Azerbaijan.

Peacekeepers to be in Croatia by next week, U.N. envoy says

ZAGREB, Croatia (AP) — U.N. special envoy Cyrus Vance said Friday the United Nations' 14,000 peacekeepers would be deployed in Croatia by April 15 to help cement the truce ending the civil war.

In ethnically mixed Bosnia-Herzegovina, where tensions have run high since a weekend independence referendum, a bomb injured 34 people, four of them seriously, Sarajevo radio said.

It said three youths planted the explosive in a bank in the northwestern town of Banja Luka, where Serbs form a majority. The radio said the incident was not politically motivated, and two boys were arrested. It gave no further details on their motive.

Vance spoke Friday after meeting with Croatian President Franjo Tudjman in Zagreb on the final day of a three-day mission to Yugoslavia. He met earlier with leaders of Bosnia's Muslim, Croatian and Serbian communities in Sarajevo, and with Serbian and federal army leaders in Belgrade.

Outlining the timetable for deploying the U.N. force, Vance said the first 200 peacekeepers would arrive in Croatia next week. The rest are to arrive at a rate of 400 troops a day until the full contingent is in place on April 15, Vance said.

The Security Council approved the force to help ensure compliance with the U.N.-brokered truce that ended the civil war in Croatia that has killed thousands of people. Serb irregulars backed by federal army troops seized about a third of Croatia's territory in the fighting that began after Croatia declared independence on June 25.

"The important thing is that by April 15, all forces of occupation belonging to the Yugoslav army will leave Croatian territory and all irregular outlaws troops will be disarmed," Tudjman said Friday. "This will enable the reestablishment of normal life on the entire territory of Croatia."

Under the U.N. plan, all federal forces are to withdraw from Croatia. They have already left Slovenia and Macedonia, which have also declared independence, leaving Bosnia, Serbia and Montenegro as the force's only home. Bosnia also houses key military industry.

Of the six Yugoslav republics, only long-dominant Serbia and tiny Montenegro now want to remain part of the Yugoslav federation. Bosnia, a mountainous republic that is one-third Serb, lies between Croatia and Serbia.

Earlier this week, Bosnia's Muslim President Alija Izetbegovic said he would start negotiating the withdrawal of an estimated 100,000 federal troops from Bosnia after the republic achieves international recognition.

A weekend independence referendum showed Bosnia divided along ethnic lines, with the majority Muslims and Croats supporting independence and the minority Serbs opposed. At least eight people were killed during violent protests after the vote.

■ Brother of prisoners suggests trade

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A Shiite Muslim militant widely thought to have been involved in hostage taking was quoted Friday as saying that two German captives would be freed if Bonn promised to release his two brothers serving prison sentences in Germany for terrorism.

"The Germans want their two hostages freed, and we and the rest of the Hamadi family want our sons released," Abdel Hadi Hamadi was quoted as saying by the pro-Syrian Lebanese magazine Al Shiraa.

"Germany should therefore adopt a humanitarian stand by freeing the two Lebanese in return for the two Germans in Lebanon," Hamadi added.

He said a promise from Bonn to release Mohammed Ali Hamadi and Abbas Hamadi would bring about freedom for the two German hostages, Heinrich Strubig and Thomas Kempfner.

■ Israel offers special prayers for rabbi

KFAR HABAD, Israel — Across this town of rigorously Orthodox Jews, special prayers rose Friday evening for Rabbi Menachem Mendel Schneerson, the Brooklyn-based spiritual leader of the Lubavitch Hasidic movement and a man believed by many followers to be the Messiah.

Schneerson — the Rebbe, to his disciples — suffered what was described as a slight stroke on Monday, leaving him partly paralyzed on his right side but unimpaired mentally.

To pray for his full recovery, thousands of Lubavitch Hasidim streamed into Jerusalem on Thursday, gathering at the Western Wall of the Temple Mount, which is often referred to as the Wailing Wall.

Many were small children, brought there, their elders explained, because their prayers are believed to carry more weight since their youth makes them free of sin.

■ Human rights group concludes meeting

GENEVA — The U.N. Human Rights Commission concluded its annual meeting Friday after assessing conditions in a record 22 countries, but drew fire for failing to condemn China for its rule in Tibet or general human rights abuses.

Commission members include the United States, Russia and 51 other nations.

Reed Brody of the International Commission of Jurists said the U.S. position proved the key to commission actions. He told a reporter the United States put pressure on other countries in close cases when action was taken and did not push for issues that failed, like China.

The United States co-sponsored a resolution condemning China, but Christian Grosse of the International Federation of Human Rights said the U.S. endorsement came at the last minute and only confused the issue further.

U.S. Ambassador J. Kenneth Blackwell said the United States was disappointed that the commission failed to consider the anti-China resolution, but that the issue was left open and would be considered again.

"We lost a resolution, but did not lose the case," he said. Blackwell said the major development during the six-week session was the breakdown in regional solidarity by Latin American and Asian nations, who showed more willingness to condemn their neighbors' violations.

He cited the commission's vote to deplore Cuba's human-rights record. Cuba was the only Latin American country to oppose the resolution.

■ Tanzania lifts ban on elephant hunting

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania — Tanzania has partially lifted a three-year ban on elephant hunting, making it the only East African country to permit killing of the animal inside its borders.

The decision, which will only allow tourists to kill the animals, comes despite an international moratorium on the sale of elephant products.

Abubakar Mgumia, minister for tourism, natural resources and environment, announced the move Thursday and said, "The hunting of a few elephants by tourists will not affect the number of elephants in the country."

Tanzania was one of 101 signatories to the worldwide ban on trade in elephant products imposed in 1989 by the Convention on International Trade of Endangered Species.

Tanzania's elephant population stands at around 55,000, but was more than twice that before widespread poaching in 1980-1989 decimated its herds.

British expect election announcement soon

By Maureen Johnson
Associated Press writer

LONDON — The government on Friday proposed a national lottery to benefit the arts and other causes, and the opposition Labor Party said that might be a good idea. Then they traded insults.

As Britain approaches a national election with the ruling Conservatives and Labor fighting for the political center and running neck-in-neck in polls, squabbling — more than substantive debate — has marked the campaign.

The Labor Party, among many others, expects Prime Minister John Major to announce next week — after months of speculation — that the election will be held April 9.

For the two parties, the big, divisive issues of the 1980s — nuclear weapons, emasculating the labor unions, selling state-owned enterprises — are history.

Major's Conservatives have edged away from the right-wing certitudes of Margaret Thatcher, who was deposed in 1990. The Labor Party, under Neil Kinnock, has abandoned its old leftist fervor.

Now, with Labor within reach of beating the Conservatives for the first time in 13 years, they are fighting angrily — and inconclusively — for the center.

A Gallup poll published Friday showed the Conservatives and Labor each getting 38.5 percent support, with the traditional centrists, the Liberal Democrats, getting 18.5 percent. The margin of error was 1 percent. The poll taken throughout February among 10,405 voters was in line with other surveys.

The Financial Times average of all polls last month showed the Conservatives with 39.45 percent of the electorate, Labor with 39 and the Liberal Democrats with 16. Most of the polls surveyed have a margin of error of about three percent.

To boost their hand, the Conservatives are making maximum political use of power. In the past three weeks, the government has announced nearly $7 billion in state expenditure.

Kinnock calls its bribery.

Beneficiaries included a hard-pressed defense manufacturer, British Aerospace, which got a job-saving, $860 million order for an air-to-air missile program. The northern city of Manchester got $95 million for its bid for the 2000 Olympic Games.

On Tuesday, the Conservative government will present its annual budget, perhaps the last chance to bestow tax cuts, new programs or other favors on the electorate.

Friday's initiative was Home Secretary Kenneth Baker's announcement of the national lottery to raise money for arts and other worthy projects, beginning in 1994.

"The government makes itself ridiculous by announcing, in the dying days of a Parliament, decisions it could have taken years ago," complained Roy Hattersley, deputy Labor leader.

Baker called Hattersley a "party pooper" and a "sour puss," adding for good measure, "There is no event which you attend on which you do not cast a blight."

"This is a serious and scholarly work," said Patten.

Haiti's interim leader refuses to step down

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Interim President Joseph Nerette refused to resign Friday and criticized negotiations envisioning the return to power of ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

Nerette's broadcast declaration seemed certain to prolong world efforts to end the political crisis which has embroiled Haiti for more than five months.

Aristide and Haitian parliamentary leaders signed in Washington last month an accord negotiated by the Organization of American States under which Aristide would return from exile and eventually would be returned to office.

The lawmakers are trying to persuade Nerette to go along, though it means he will have to step down.

"The aim of Nerette's speech was to slow the ratification process down," agreement backer Sen. Firmin Jean-Louis said.

The Chamber of Deputies approved the agreement Feb. 26; Jean-Louis said the Senate would meet by Tuesday to discuss ratification.

Army chief Gen. Raoul Cedras says the military would not take sides in the matter. He led the coup which toppled Aristide after eight months as Haiti's first freely elected president and drove him into exile in Venezuela.

Nerette said, "Some claim I should resign, and I would, wholeheartedly, if it did not mean abandoning my country to unhealthy ambition."

Venezuelan president reverses policies of economic reform plan

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Weakened by a coup attempt last month, President Carlos Andres Perez has abruptly revamped his market-oriented economic reform program for this oil-rich South American nation.

After failing in his attempts to form a coalition government with the two main opposition parties, Perez on Thursday announced sweeping changes to policies he adopted when he took office three years ago.

Perez, 69, in a nationally televised speech, canceled planned increases in gasoline prices and reinstated subsidies for electricity, medicines and basic foods.

The new economic package was devised after a presidential commission met to discuss solutions to Venezuela's pressing problems. Perez had invited leaders of the social Christian COPEI and leftist Movement Toward Socialism parties to join a coalition government, but they refused because of his economic policies.

With 31 percent inflation, 10 percent unemployment and rapidly falling living standards, Venezuelans are uneasy about their future and rapidly turning away from the government.

In the December 1989 gubernatorial and state legislature elections, abstention in some places was 70 percent despite the threat of fines for not voting. Public opinion polls find little support for Perez.

On Thursday, Perez said he was suspending a 4-percent monthly gasoline price increase planned for the next four months. The present price is 34 cents a gallon.

Gasoline in Venezuela, an OPEC member, is among the cheapest in the world. But in a country where nearly 80 percent of workers earn the minimum wage of $120 per month, any price increase hurts.

Raising gasoline prices was an essential part of a 1990 agreement with the International Monetary Fund, which along with the World Bank has committed loans for as much as $6 billion. It was the largest combined financing package the institutions have ever granted to a developing country.

The revenues from higher gasoline prices were earmarked to develop agriculture in Venezuela, which despite fertile soil imports more than 60 percent of its food.

Concern over rising prices for gasoline and other necessities was one reason renegade military officers gave for trying to oust Perez on Feb. 4. More than 1,200 soldiers and 136 officers have been arrested in connection with the botched coup, in which at least 80 people died.

Although loyalist troops put down the rebellion, Perez found a great deal of public sympathy for the rebels, who listed corruption and economic concerns as major reasons for their action.

Perez has promised to act against corruption, but no big fish have been caught. Former officials, including ex-President Jaime Lusinchi, are accused of bilking the government out of nearly $6 billion.

Suicide of politician shakes Germany

ZEPPERNICK, Germany (AP) — The suicide of a man who faced losing his home to a pre-unification owner has shaken Germany, focusing attention on the millions of eastern Germans unsure of whether they may lose their property.

Detlef Dalk, 48, left a passionate letter urging the government to change its position on housing claims, "otherwise I will not be the last."

The German unification treaty enshrines the principle of favoring previous owners of eastern German property, but the government has not put through legislation on how to handle it.

Over 1 million ownership claims have been registered, and some towns around Berlin have as much as 70 percent of the properties claimed by previous owners or their heirs. The claimants range from Jews dispossessed by the Nazis a half-century ago to East Germans who managed to flee to the West shortly before the 1989 revolution.

Dalk, a teacher and town council member, hanged himself Wednesday. His open letter to Chancellor Helmut Kohl drew a stream of reporters Friday to his two-story home on an unpaved street in Zeppernick, a village on the northeast edge of Berlin.

His brother, Wolfgang, said that although he had been upset about the prospect of losing his house, "I think it's a mistake to say that he took his life only because he might have to give back the house."

"The tragedy of his whole life was that after the revolution, his hopes weren't fulfilled," said Wolfgang Dalk.

Dalk's three-page letter recounted his changing political views: from Marxism to "human socialism," to membership in a Lutheran study group, and to dashed hopes that easterners would have their views heard in united Germany.

Friedrich Bohl, Kohl's chief of staff, said in Bonn that Dalk's suicide was a tragedy, but warned that it should not be taken as "symptomatic of the situation in the east" nor used for political purposes.

Zeppernick's mayor, Carsten Bockhardt, said many of the village's 8,000 residents faced property crises, with 1,365 claims by former owners against local properties.

"If only half are realized, we would have 700 or 800 families on the street. I have no way to put up new houses," the mayor said.

The housing uncertainty hits a broad spectrum of the 16 million easterners, many of whom have lost their jobs. Unemployment now stands at 16 percent.

Bockhardt said Dalk's home was claimed by the previous owner who had fled to the West in 1986. Dalk bought the house in 1988 and the land in early 1990, under terms of a law passed by the short-lived reform Communist government permitting people to buy land. In earlier years, East Germans could own houses but the land remained under government ownership.

Sandinistas, Contras team up to take towns

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The army sent helicopter gunships and elite troops on Friday to three northern Nicaraguan towns seized by hundreds of former Sandinistas and Contras. The rebels have taken over at least six towns.

No immediate reports surfaced of fighting or injuries during the armed takeovers, the first time the two former enemies have worked together.

The Contra-Sandinista operation began Thursday, when militants took over Totogalpa, Ocotal and Ducual and blocked traffic on the Pan American Highway, the only direct land route through Central America.

Operating in unison, the former members of the leftist Sandinista army and police force and former Contra rebels on Friday seized at least three more towns in the area — Condega, Jalapa and El Jicaró. Traffic between Honduras and Nicaragua through the border posts of El Espino and Las Manos was paralyzed.

"We are not bandits, we're simply former soldiers who are demanding the government fulfill the accords it signed with us," their leader, who calls himself Jaguar, told an Associated Press reporter in Ocotal.

Jaguar refused to give his real name or be further identified. But he is known to have been cashiered from the army some time ago. He said his troops awaited word from the government and did not want to engage the army or police.

An army communique in Managua acknowledged, "All the takeovers ... have been peaceful. The actions ... are of a political, not military, character."

THE REAL ISSUE FOR DISTRICT JUDGE IS BLACK AND WHITE. CRIME IS GROWING AND WE MUST STOP IT!

And only one candidate for 142nd District Court Judge has the courtroom experience and conviction record in that court to do it.

While all the talk lately seems to be centered around other issues, the critical issue is being overlooked. We need a judge with significant experience in the courtroom to fight the growing battle against crime and drugs. Crime and drugs affects 100% of the citizens of Midland County - you and me!

For the last 7 years Robin Malone Sams, as 142nd District Court Trial Chief and Midland County Chief Narcotics Prosecutor, has been fighting the battle for us.

Let's put her experience to work, winning for us as our Judge.

WHO DO YOU WANT TO BE OUR JUDGE? EXPERIENCE OR EXPECTATIONS.

Administration to ease electric utility regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regulations limiting utilities' use of natural gas to generate electricity will be lifted, the White House announced Friday as President Bush campaigned in Louisiana, where gas oil and gas are a big industries.

Officials said the change should also lower electricity rates.

"We've got a real problem" in the oil and gas industries, Energy Secretary James Watkins told reporters at a Washington briefing late in the day. "The worst thing we could do ... is allow our oil and gas industries to decline the way we have."

Energy industry employment declined more than 40 percent from 1982 to 1990, when spending on exploration and development was about $34 billion, 62 percent lower than in 1981, he said.

Watkins said the initiatives are part of the president's regulatory relief program and were not announced as part of a campaign strategy to win votes in the upcoming Super Tuesday primaries in Louisiana, Texas and other oil- and gas-industry states.

One change, being made by the Environmental Protection Agency, will allow electric utilities to modify existing power plants to use natural gas without a requirement to have them certified as new sources.

"The goal is to get the demand up and allow that flow to be created and move into the marketplace," he said.

The action, he said, will lead to more jobs in the industry and greater use of natural gas.

The change is expected to reduce electricity rates because natural gas is a less costly fuel to burn and produces fewer emissions than coal or oil, the fuels most often used to fire electricity generators.

Another change affects the way the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission regulates the rates of electric utilities and natural gas lines. Officials said the two entities will be permitted to choose "incentive regulation," which will increase consumption of natural gas.

The White House said that "a shift to incentive regulation should ultimately reduce total electricity and natural gas transportation costs by $1 billion to $3 billion a year."

A third change is intended to encourage the use of vehicles powered by natural gas by removing regulatory barriers to the sale of compressed natural gas and proposing emission standards specific to natural gas vehicles.

Lawmakers urge court to reaffirm Roe vs. Wade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court should protect the rights of all American women by reaffirming its 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion, 147 members of Congress told the court Friday.

"For two decades, Roe vs. Wade has been part of the fabric of our national law, permitting all women to live secure in the knowledge that difficult and personal reproductive choices will be theirs to make," the legislators said. "And so it should remain."

The 29 senators and 118 House members joined in a "friend-of-the-court" brief written for them by Duke University law professor Walter Dellinger in a closely watched Pennsylvania abortion case.

The court will hear arguments in the case April 22, and is expected to announce a decision by July.

Activists on both sides of the abortion debate have said they expect the court to use the case to undermine, if not overturn, its Roe vs. Wade ruling.

The current court is far more politically conservative than it was in 1973.

The brief filed Friday warned of the "harsh consequences" of such action. "A myriad of conflicting state and local laws will continuously subject the health and lives of women throughout the country to the vagaries of the political process," it said.

Even if some states decide not to outlaw or severely restrict abortions, the legislators said, "there is nonetheless a compelling need for a national constitutional standard."

"During the 'Jim Crow' era, only a minority of the states imposed (legally required) racial segregation in public schools and other public facilities. This court nonetheless concluded that it was essential that freedom from state-imposed segregation be enjoyed by every American as a basic constitutional right," the legislators said.

"The freedom to make one's own determinations about whether to become pregnant and whether to continue a pregnancy should similarly be a national right secured to every American woman, no matter what state she calls home," they added.

Congress currently is discussing legislation that would prohibit states from restricting abortion rights even if the Supreme Court reverses its 1973 decision.

U.S. moves to tax Canadian lumber

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department, moving to protect U.S. lumber producers, preliminarily ruled Friday that a 14.5 percent import duty would be needed to offset Canadian subsidies on wood shipped to the United States.

The U.S. International Trade Commission had said in December — also in a preliminary ruling — that subsidized lumber from Canada was hurting domestic manufacturers. But the administration had not previously estimated the level of the alleged subsidy.

The Commerce Department and the ITC now will conduct a final review before deciding this summer whether to levy a countervailing duty on lumber imports from all or some of Canada's provinces.

Canadian leaders say there is no subsidy and have indicated they will appeal any duty to a binational panel under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

"The decision is unacceptable and we will vigorously contest it and we fully expect to win," Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney said Friday.

"This whole parade is being led by a segment of the U.S. industry ... that wants to increase the value of its standing timber," added Tom Buell, chairman of the Canadian Forest Industries Council.

Pentagon wants $90 billion for SDI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department plans to spend about $90 billion over the next 15 years on the Strategic Defense Initiative, congressional investigators said Friday.

The General Accounting Office, which based its results on the department's estimates, also found that spending on the program will peak between fiscal 1995 and fiscal 2000 at about $7 billion a year.

The overall costs take into account the Bush administration's scaled-down version of SDI, commonly known as Star Wars, but does not account for the limited defense system Congress and the Pentagon agreed upon last year.

Maj. Mike Doble, a spokesman for the SDI organization, said Friday the department had not seen the GAO report and would have no comment.

Spending on SDI peaks at $6.97 billion in fiscal 2000 with $2.7 billion requested for technology, the report said.

In comparison, the Bush administration has requested $5.4 billion for SDI in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. This year, the SDI budget totals $4.1 billion.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, requested the GAO study that will provide guidance for members of Congress as they work on the Pentagon's defense budget.

The report comes as a senior Defense Department official said the Pentagon will not meet the 1996 target date set by Congress last year for deploying the first non-nuclear defense against long-range ballistic missiles.

Monterey drops Lee, MHS

Midland Lee's Allen Chase (10) and Isaac Lee of Monterey await a call at second base. Lee was called out.

By Bill Price

Staff Writer

Midland High and Midland Lee both had their shots at No. 9 Lubbock Monterey Friday at the Tournament of Champions baseball tournament, and both came away short in their bids for an upset.

The Plainsmen moved their season record to 3-0 with a 10-8 victory over Lee in the first game of the day and a 6-1 win over MHS Friday night.

In other tournament play Friday, El Paso Del Valle defeated Del Rio 6-3 and Lee beat Del Valle 8-5 in a nightcap that lasted beyond midnight.

Today's games will see MHS battle the cross-town rival Lee at 10 a.m. in the losers bracket for the right to face Monterey in the championship. At 12:30 p.m., Del Rio takes on Del Valle in the fourth-place game, with the championship set for a 3 p.m. start. The "if" game of the double-elimination tournament will immediately follow, if necessary.

For the Rebels, their game with the Plainsmen marked a rematch of Tuesday's rainout, when the Rebs and Monterey slugged it out to an 8-8 tie in the fourth inning before the clouds emptied. As expected, the teams punched it out and combined for 22 hits.

But after scoring two runs in the second inning, three in the third and three in the fourth, the Rebels hit a brick wall in the rest of the game, as Monterey's Joey Gonzales moved from behind the plate to the mound for the last four innings.

OC falls to Highlanders

By Jimmy Patterson

Assistant Sports Editor

WACO — The Odessa College Wranglers squandered away a nine-point lead in overtime to lose 87-84 to the McLennan Community College Highlanders in opening round action at the Region V junior college basketball tournament Friday in Waco.

OC, which had come from 10 points down early in the second half, tied the Highlanders at 75-75 on a Robert Shannon put-back with four seconds left to send the game into the extra five minute period.

The Wranglers then ambushed McLennan, hitting their first three field goals and two free throws of OT to jump ahead 84-75 with two minutes gone in the extra period.

As quickly as they turned up the power, the Wranglers shut down, as the Highlanders scored the last 12 points of OT for the three point victory.

MHS, Lee in soccer action

■ The Rebels need one win to clinch at least a share of the District 3 title.

Staff Report

The Midland Lee Rebels can lock up a share of the league championship and the Midland High Bulldogs will be playing their last home game of the season when District 3 soccer action unfolds today.

The Rebels, 9-0 in district, have already clinched a playoff berth thanks to Midland High's win Tuesday over third-place San Angelo (5-4). Lee visits winless Odessa High at 2 p.m., and a victory will assure the Rebels of no worse than a tie for the title with Abilene High (8-2), which is idle today.

The Bulldogs, 5-5, are coming off their second win over defending District 3 champion San Angelo and MHS coach Tom Esikhathi said today's game, and the season finale on Tuesday at Abilene Cooper, will be for the seniors.

"We'll dedicate these last two games to our seniors," Esikhathi said. "These games are for them to enjoy."

Permian is 2-7 in District 3. San Angelo hosts Abilene Cooper (4-5) in today's other loop game.

Lee has scored six shutouts in its nine league games and the Rebels have a 12-0 overall season record. AHS and Lee will battle for the league title when the Rebels host the Eagles in their home finale Tuesday. The Rebels close out the regular season a week from today at San Angelo while AHS caps the against OHS.

District 7-5A meets again

■ An All-Fort Worth Region I basketball final is set for Chaparral Center today when Dunbar takes on O.D. Wyatt for the third time this year.

By Terry Williamson

Sports Editor

You just thought the District 7-5A basketball title was decided and over with.

Friday night at Chaparral Center, O.D. Wyatt and Dunbar, the two playoff teams out of District 7-5A, advanced to today's 11 a.m. finals of the Class 5A Boy's Region I tournament. Those two teams split during regular season, so the third meeting today will send one of them to Austin's Final Four next weekend.

Dunbar, a 55-40 victor over pass-till-you-drop El Paso Coronado Friday, will be seeking its 10th Region I crown and seventh in 12 years the event has been held at Chaparral Center.

Wyatt, a 66-58 winner over Lubbock

Monterey in the other semifinal, is making its first appearance in the Region I finals.

"Can you believe this? We travel 1,000 miles to play O.D. Wyatt in the finals," deadpanned Dunbar coach Robert Hughes as he walked off the court following the victory over Coronado. "We could probably take this game back home and put 5,800 fans in the seats because that's all the place will hold."

Wyatt coach John Tucker wasn't quite as willing to talk about a re-

Abernathy eliminates Stanton in Region I play

Staff Report

ABILENE — Stanton's basketball road ended here at Abilene High School Friday night in a 61-49 loss to Abernathy in the semifinals of the Class 2A Region I tournament.

Stanton was making its first Region I appearance since 1966. Abernathy is the defending state Class 2A champion and will face Hale Center at noon today at Abilene High in a game that will determine if the Antelopes will be able to defend their state title in Austin next weekend.

Stanton ends its season at 25-7 while Abernathy is 23-8.

The Antelopes got a game high 23 points from Larry Norris while Damon Loper added 13 points. Scotty Norris had 10 points.

The Buffaloes of Stanton got 16 points from senior Kenny McCalister while John Wyckoff and Jeremy Stallings had nine points each.

Hale Center, now 24-5 on the year, won a nip-and-tuck 61-60 decision over 29-4 Stamford in the other Region I semifinal to gain the shot today against Abernathy.

Barkley's late basket sinks Mavericks, 88-86

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Barkley scored the decisive basket on a driving layup with 10 seconds left.

NBA

Friday night, lifting the Philadelphia 76ers to an 88-86 victory over Dallas and handing the Mavericks their 17th consecutive road loss.

Barkley, who had 24 points and 15 rebounds, also hit a free throw with 0.3 seconds left as the Mavericks lost for the fourth straight time overall.

Rolando Blackman made two free throws with 49 seconds remaining, putting Dallas ahead 86-84. Armon Gilliam made one of two foul shots for Philadelphia with 38 seconds to go and with 17 seconds left, Barkley tied up Terry Davis, forcing a jump ball.

Barkley tapped the ball to Hersey Hawkins and, after a time out, drove for the go-ahead basket.

Derek Harper's jumper with one second to go missed, and Barkley grabbed the rebound, was fouled and made one free throw.

Dallas, which led by as many as 12 points in the third quarter, was ahead 69-65 at the end of three periods.

A follow shot by Davis gave the Mavericks an 81-74 lead with 5:46 to play, but Gilliam's jumper capped a 10-3 run that tied the score 84-84 with 1:05 to go.

Gilliam finished with 20 points for Philadelphia, while Blackman had 22 and Harper 17 for Dallas.

Dallas had won three straight games in Philadelphia, with the last 76ers home win against the Mavs coming on Dec. 19, 1987.

Bulls 123, Heat 81

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan scored 27 points, Horace Grant 23 and Scottie Pippen 21 in three periods as Chicago dealt the Miami Heat their 14th loss by 20 points or more.

The win was the Bulls eighth in their last 10 games and improved their overall mark to 50-12. At Chicago Stadium, the Bulls are 27-4.

Miami dropped its fifth straight game and fell to 7-25 on the road, including 13 of those 14 20-point defeats. Kevin Edwards led the Heat with 21 points and John Morton had 16.

The Bulls scored the first 10 points of the game and led 15-2 midway through the first quarter, when Miami coach Kevin Loughery pulled his entire first team.

Chicago, led by Pippen's 12 points, was ahead 38-16 at the end of the first quarter. The Bulls shot 65 percent in the period compared to Miami's 27 percent.

Celtics 117, Clippers 100
BOSTON — Larry Bird scored 19 points in limited action and Reggie Lewis had 18 as Boston whipped the Clippers for a third consecutive victory, their longest winning streak in seven weeks.

The Celtics improved their home record to 24-6, including seven victories in a row and 10 in the last 11 games.

The Clippers were led by Danny Manning with 22 points and Ron Harper with 18.

Los Angeles took a 28-26 lead

after one period and hung tough until Rick Fox scored six points and Ed Pinckney four in a 14-4 run that lifted Boston to a 58-52 halftime advantage.

Pacers 115, Hawks 113, OT

ATLANTA — Chuck Person's off-balance 15-foot jumper with 0.4 seconds left in overtime gave Indiana a victory over Atlanta.

Person got seven of his 22 points in the final 2:08 as the Pacers outscored the Hawks 8-2 to end a five-game losing streak at the Omni dating to 1989.

After Maurice Cheeks hit a jumper to give Atlanta a 111-107 lead with 2:24 left, Person hit a 3-pointer, Detlef Schrempf made a free throw and Person scored from the corner, giving the Pacers a 113-111 lead.

Indiana, 3-1 against Atlanta this season, overcame a 15-point deficit with 10 minutes to go in the fourth quarter.

Reggie Miller scored 12 of his 25 points in the final 5:42 of regulation and Michael Williams' two free throws with 21 seconds left tied it 105-105, forcing the overtime.

Pistons 106, Nuggets 91

DENVER — Joe Dumars scored 10 of his 30 points in the decisive third quarter and the Detroit Pistons hit 80 percent of their shots in the period.

Isiah Thomas also scored 10 points and Orlando Woolridge nine in the third quarter for the Pistons, who won the opener of a five-game road trip.

Jazz 117, Nets 96

SALT LAKE CITY — Jeff Malone made 13 of 17 shots and scored 27 points as Utah routed New Jersey.

The Jazz, who extended their NBA-best record at home to 28-3, capitalized on a 13-4 first-quarter run to take a 23-14 lead that the Nets never overcame.

Derrick Coleman led the Nets with 18 points and 10 rebounds, and Sam Bowie scored 17 points.

Karl Malone scored 25 points and John Stockton had 17 points and 16 assists for the Jazz, who shot 63 percent in the first half en route to an 11-point halftime lead.

Bucks 124, Magic 102

MILWAUKEE — Jay Humphries scored 22 points, including 17 in the third quarter, as Milwaukee rolled over Orlando.

Humphries' big third quarter enabled the Bucks to extend a 62-40 halftime lead to 91-64.

Milwaukee led 77-55 with 5:31 left in the period when Humphries, who had only five points in the first half, scored the Bucks' next 14 points.

His technical foul shot with 2:11 left gave Milwaukee its biggest lead of the quarter at 91-63.

Blazers 114, Kings 106

PORTLAND, Ore. — Clyde Drexler scored 13 of his 34 points in the third quarter as Portland rallied for a victory.

The Kings, led by Wayman Tisdale's 23 points, had a 73-61 lead before the Trail Blazers used a 25-4 run to pull ahead 86-77 after three quarters.

Terry Porter added 25 points for Portland, while Lionel Simmons scored 19 and Spud Webb 18 for the Kings.

HOUSTON — Texas coach Tom Penders goes into the final weekend of the Southwest Conference regular season in a sharing mood.

He says he'll be pleased to tie for the SWC title with the Houston Cougars if that's how the standings fall after co-leader Houston's game at Southern Methodist on Saturday and the Longhorns' home final against Texas A&M on Sunday.

Third-place Texas Christian plays at fifth-place Texas Tech in the only other game on the SWC schedule before next weekend's SWC tournament in Dallas.

"Coming into the season I wasn't even thinking about winning a championship," Penders said. "There's not a bonus in my contract for winning the championship."

The Longhorns (20-10, 10-3) may have lost a chance to win their first outright SWC title since 1974 in Thursday night's nationally televised 103-97 loss to the Rice Owls (20-10, 8-6).

If Texas and Houston share the title, Texas retains the top seed in the SWC tournament because of its two victories over the Cougars in regular season.

Penders says he's not concerned about titles. "We're in real good shape if we take care of business," Penders said. "We're one of the youngest teams in the country and in the league and if we tie for the championship we'll be very happy."

Texas could still win the outright crown if SMU beats the Cougars 21-5, 10-3 in Dallas on Saturday and the Longhorns beat the Aggies in Austin, where Texas has won 16 straight SWC games.

Texas sophomore B.J. Tyler scored a career-high 36 points but it wasn't enough to hold off the Owls, determined to avenge an 88-87 loss to the Longhorns on Feb. 3.

"There's no reason to have our heads down," Tyler said. "We'll still be co-champions. All we can do is go into the A&M game and hope Houston loses."

Rice's victory gave the SWC four 20-victory teams for the first time in league history.

Junior Marvin Moore scored a career high 26 points and felt vindicated for a charging call that helped the Longhorns win the first game.

"That's the best I've seen Marvin play since he's been here," Rice center Brent Scott said. "We rose to the level of an upper-level team. Now we've got to get our heads back down and get ready for the tournament."

REGION I: Hughes never tires of winning titles match with Dunbar after a tough win over Monterey.

"The last thing I want to talk about is Dunbar," Tucker said. "The only thing I know is that we will be there in the morning — but I do have to pull for them against Coronado since they are from our district. Then we would be sending one of us to state."

Despite the eight-point margin, Wyatt had trouble putting the Plainsmen away. There was 16 lead changes and six ties in the game before Wyatt took a 46-44 lead on a goal by David Alford with 28 seconds left in the third quarter. It was a lead they never surrendered again.

Wyatt led by as many as nine points, 42-33, in the third period before being whistled for seven fouls. Monterey took its last lead, 44-42, with 1:47 left in the third period.

"We had a run of fouls and there was about five minutes there when something happened to us," Tucker said. "Monterey was trying to say that they weren't going to go away."

The Chaparrals then hit 8-of-8 free throws in the fourth quarter to seal the victory.

"We hit 'em all," Tucker said. "That was a big key."

Monterey's Clint Bryant had a tournament high 27 points, 17 in the first half. Tim Davis led Wyatt with 20 points.

There was little drama in Dunbar's wire-to-wire win over Coronado as the Wildcats built an 11-2 lead early. About the only claim to fame for the T-Birds in the first period was holding the ball on the first possession of the game with 17 passes, one shot and a turnover. Dunbar goes down and scores on a Dayo Holloway layup to start Dunbar's slow, but steady rise.

"We did pretty good overall against Coronado's slower style game with our half court defense," Hughes said. "Still, we missed some layups. We've played 35 games and we're missing layups."

"But it'll be back to our style of game Saturday. Wyatt won't take time to read the small print on the ball, and neither will we."

Coronado outscored Dunbar by an 11-9 margin in the second quarter to stay in the game, but Dunbar went on a quick 7-0 run to open the third period to stay out of harm's way.

Coronado was beaten last year in the Region I semifinals by 21 points.

Dunbar got a game high 19 points from Charles Smith as Coronado held Holloway, averaging 24 points per game, to 17 points.

"I don't mind playing a game like this," Holloway said. "If it works out, it's fun. I don't think you'll see this kind of game Saturday."

Mathew Baskind, who fouled out early in the fourth quarter, led the T-Birds with 13 points.

Hughes, seeking his 10th Region I title, says he never gets tired of winning a championship.

"It's always like being 16 and getting that first kiss. You don't get tired of it," Hughes said.

TofC: Rebels win nightcap over Del Valle, 8-5

(From 1B)

Against the Bulldogs, the Plainsmen jumped out to a 3-0 lead after the first three innings, and settled in with one run in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Despite losing to Monterey, both Midland coaches were philosophical about the outcome.

"Maybe it's a good thing for us, because we needed to play all the games we could get," said Lee head coach Jesse Benavidez, whose squad opened its season with its first officially completed game Friday.

"Overall, I didn't think we played a bad ballgame. They got the key hits and we didn't. But we are improving, and at this point of the season I think that's all you can ask of a team," said MHS head coach Rick Wood.

In the Lee-Monterey game, the Rebels jumped out to a 5-2 lead after three innings, as Jimmy Patton held the potent Plainsmen in check. But then in the fourth, Monterey scored five unearned runs after a critical error with two outs kept Lee from getting out of the inning. Monterey's Isaac Lee ended the game going 3-for-3 from the plate with three runs scored, while David Galvan paced the Rebels with a 3-for-4 effort.

Jason Baker (0-1), Lee's second reliever of the game, was credited with the loss but allowed only one earned run in two innings of work.

MHS' Brian Rounding (1-2) allowed six hits and four earned runs while going the distance against the Plainsmen, as Gonzales went back behind the plate, went 2-for-2 and scored a pair of runs. Michael Davidson (1-0) threw a complete game for Monterey to gain his first win of the season.

Against Del Valle, Lee rode the arm of Julian Urquidez, who struck out 11, and an 11-hit attack.

The Del Rio-Del Valle game may have provided some of the most interesting non-tactics of the tournament, though. Del Valle first baseman Luis Olmos was injured in the first inning as he slid back to first after reaching base on a walk. He was replaced by designated hitter Raul Silva, who was on deck, on the base paths.

That move resulted in an illegal substitution that caused the Conquistadores to bat two men out of order the entire game, but the error was never caught by Del Rio as Del Valle rode a three-run second to victory.

NOTE: The Lee-Monterey doubleheader that was rained out Tuesday will be made up on Thursday, April 23.

Barkley's late basket sinks Mavericks, 88-86

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Barkley scored the decisive basket on a driving layup with 10 seconds left Friday night, lifting the Philadelphia 76ers to an 88-86 victory over Dallas and handing the Mavericks their 17th consecutive road loss.

Barkley, who had 24 points and 15 rebounds, also hit a free throw with 0.3 seconds left as the Mavericks lost for the fourth straight time overall.

Rolando Blackman made two free throws with 49 seconds remaining, putting Dallas ahead 86-84. Armon Gilliam made one of two foul shots for Philadelphia with 38 seconds to go and with 17 seconds left, Barkley tied up Terry Davis, forcing a jump ball.

Barkley tapped the ball to Hersey Hawkins and, after a time out, drove for the go-ahead basket.

Derek Harper's jumper with one second to go missed, and Barkley grabbed the rebound, was fouled and made one free throw.

Dallas, which led by as many as 12 points in the third quarter, was ahead 69-65 at the end of three periods.

A follow shot by Davis gave the Mavericks an 81-74 lead with 5:46 to play, but Gilliam's jumper capped a 10-3 run that tied the score 84-84 with 1:05 to go.

Gilliam finished with 20 points for Philadelphia, while Blackman had 22 and Harper 17 for Dallas.

Dallas had won three straight games in Philadelphia, with the last 76ers home win against the Mavs coming on Dec. 19, 1987.

Bulls 123, Heat 81
CHICAGO — Michael Jordan scored 27 points, Horace Grant 23 and Scottie Pippen 21 in three periods as Chicago dealt the Miami Heat their 14th loss by 20 points or more.

The win was the Bulls eighth in their last 10 games and improved their overall mark to 50-12. At Chicago Stadium, the Bulls are 27-4.

Miami dropped its fifth straight game and fell to 7-25 on the road, including 13 of those 14 20-point defeats. Kevin Edwards led the Heat with 21 points and John Morton had 16.

The Bulls scored the first 10 points of the game and led 15-2 midway through the first quarter, when Miami coach Kevin Loughery pulled his entire first team.

Chicago, led by Pippen's 12 points, was ahead 38-16 at the end of the first quarter. The Bulls shot 65 percent in the period compared to Miami's 27 percent.

Celtics 117, Clippers 100

BOSTON — Larry Bird scored 19 points in limited action and Reggie Lewis had 18 as Boston whipped the Clippers for a third consecutive victory, their longest winning streak in seven weeks.

The Celtics improved their home record to 24-6, including seven victories in a row and 10 in the last 11 games.

The Clippers were led by Danny Manning with 22 points and Ron Harper with 18.

Los Angeles took a 28-26 lead

after one period and hung tough until Rick Fox scored six points and Ed Pinckney four in a 14-4 run that lifted Boston to a 58-52 halftime advantage.

Pacers 115, Hawks 113, OT
ATLANTA — Chuck Person's off-balance 15-foot jumper with 0.4 seconds left in overtime gave Indiana a victory over Atlanta.

Person got seven of his 22 points in the final 5:42 of regulation and the Hawks 8-2 to end a five-game losing streak at the Omni dating to 1989.

After Maurice Cheeks hit a jumper to give Atlanta a 111-107 lead with 2:24 left, Person hit a 3-pointer, Detlef Schrempf made a free throw and Person scored from the corner, giving the Pacers a 113-111 lead.

Indiana, 3-1 against Atlanta this season, overcame a 15-point deficit with 10 minutes to go in the fourth quarter.

Reggie Miller scored 12 of his 25 points in the final 5:42 of regulation and Michael Williams' two free throws with 21 seconds left tied it 105-105, forcing the overtime.

Pistons 106, Nuggets 91
DENVER — Joe Dumars scored 10 of his 30 points in the decisive third quarter and the Detroit Pistons hit 80 percent of their shots in the period.

Isiah Thomas also scored 10 points and Orlando Woolridge nine in the third quarter for the Pistons, who won the opener of a five-game road trip.

Jazz 117, Nets 96
SALT LAKE CITY — Jeff Malone made 13 of 17 shots and scored 27 points as Utah routed New Jersey.

The Jazz, who extended their NBA-best record at home to 28-3, capitalized on a 13-4 first-quarter run to take a 23-14 lead that the Nets never overcame.

Derrick Coleman led the Nets with 18 points and 10 rebounds, and Sam Bowie scored 17 points. Karl Malone scored 25 points and John Stockton had 17 points and 16 assists for the Jazz, who shot 63 percent in the first half en route to an 11-point halftime lead.

Bucks 124, Magic 102
MILWAUKEE — Jay Humphries scored 22 points, including 17 in the third quarter, as Milwaukee rolled over Orlando.

Humphries' big third quarter enabled the Bucks to extend a 62-40 halftime lead to 91-64.

Milwaukee led 77-55 with 5:31 left in the period when Humphries, who had only five points in the first half, scored the Bucks' next 14 points. His technical foul shot with 2:11 left gave Milwaukee its biggest lead of the quarter at 91-63.

Blaizers 114, Kings 106
PORTLAND, Ore. — Clyde Drexler scored 13 of his 34 points in the third quarter as Portland rallied for a victory.

The Kings, led by Wayman Tisdale's 23 points, had a 73-61 lead before the Trail Blazers used a 25-4 run to pull ahead 86-77 after three quarters.

Terry Porter added 25 points for Portland, while Lionel Simmons scored 19 and Spud Webb 18 for the Kings.

Penders ponders possible SWC title

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — Texas coach Tom Penders goes into the final weekend of the Southwest Conference regular season in a sharing mood. He says he'll be pleased to tie for the SWC title with the Houston Cougars if that's how the standings fall after co-leader Houston's game at Southern Methodist on Saturday and the Longhorns' home final against Texas A&M on Sunday.

Third-place Texas Christian plays at fifth-place Texas Tech in the only other game on the SWC schedule before next weekend's SWC tournament in Dallas.

"Coming into the season I wasn't even thinking about winning a championship," Penders said. "There's not a bonus in my contract for winning the championship."

The Longhorns (20-10, 10-3) may have lost a chance to win their first outright SWC title since 1974 in Thursday night's nationally televised 103-97 loss to the Rice Owls (20-10, 8-6).

If Texas and Houston share the title, Texas retains the top seed in the SWC tournament because of its two victories over the Cougars in regular season.

Penders says he's not concerned about titles. "We're in real good shape if we take care of business," Penders said. "We're one of the youngest teams in the country and in the league and if we tie for the championship we'll be very happy."

Texas could still win the outright crown if SMU beats the Cougars 21-5, 10-3 in Dallas on Saturday and the Longhorns beat the Aggies in Austin, where Texas has won 16 straight SWC games.

Texas sophomore B.J. Tyler scored a career-high 36 points but it wasn't enough to hold off the Owls, determined to avenge an 88-87 loss to the Longhorns on Feb. 3.

"There's no reason to have our heads down," Tyler said. "We'll still be co-champions. All we can do is go into the A&M game and hope Houston loses."

Rice's victory gave the SWC four 20-victory teams for the first time in league history. Junior Marvin Moore scored a career high 26 points and felt vindicated for a charging call that helped the Longhorns win the first game.

"That's the best I've seen Marvin play since he's been here," Rice center Brent Scott said. "We rose to the level of an upper-level team. Now we've got to get our heads back down and get ready for the tournament."

match with Dunbar after a tough win over Monterey.

"The last thing I want to talk about is Dunbar," Tucker said. "The only thing I know is that we will be there in the morning — but I do have to pull for them against Coronado since they are from our district. Then we would be sending one of us to state."

Despite the eight-point margin, Wyatt had trouble putting the Plainsmen away. There was 16 lead changes and six ties in the game before Wyatt took a 46-44 lead on a goal by David Alford with 28 seconds left in the third quarter. It was a lead they never surrendered again.

Wyatt led by as many as nine points, 42-33, in the third period before being whistled for seven fouls. Monterey took its last lead, 44-42, with 1:47 left in the third period.

"We had a run of fouls and there was about five minutes there when something happened to us," Tucker said. "Monterey was trying to say that they weren't going to go away."

The Chaparrals then hit 8-of-8 free throws in the fourth quarter to seal the victory.

"We hit 'em all," Tucker said. "That was a big key."

Monterey's Clint Bryant had a tournament high 27 points, 17 in the first half. Tim Davis led Wyatt with 20 points.

There was little drama in Dunbar's wire-to-wire win over Coronado as the Wildcats built an 11-2 lead early. About the only claim to fame for the T-Birds in the first period was holding the ball on the first possession of the game with 17 passes, one shot and a turnover. Dunbar goes down and scores on a Dayo Holloway layup to start Dunbar's slow, but steady rise.

"We did pretty good overall against Coronado's slower style game with our half court defense," Hughes said. "Still, we missed some layups. We've played 35 games and we're missing layups."

"But it'll be back to our style of game Saturday. Wyatt won't take time to read the small print on the ball, and neither will we."

Coronado outscored Dunbar by an 11-9 margin in the second quarter to stay in the game, but Dunbar went on a quick 7-0 run to open the third period to stay out of harm's way.

Coronado was beaten last year in the Region I semifinals by 21 points.

Dunbar got a game high 19 points from Charles Smith as Coronado held Holloway, averaging 24 points per game, to 17 points.

"I don't mind playing a game like this," Holloway said. "If it works out, it's fun. I don't think you'll see this kind of game Saturday."

Mathew Baskind, who fouled out early in the fourth quarter, led the T-Birds with 13 points.

Hughes, seeking his 10th Region I title, says he never gets tired of winning a championship.

"It's always like being 16 and getting that first kiss. You don't get tired of it," Hughes said.

TofC: Rebels win nightcap over Del Valle, 8-5

(From 1B)

Against the Bulldogs, the Plainsmen jumped out to a 3-0 lead after the first three innings, and settled in with one run in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Despite losing to Monterey, both Midland coaches were philosophical about the outcome.

"Maybe it's a good thing for us, because we needed to play all the games we could get," said Lee head coach Jesse Benavidez, whose squad opened its season with its first officially completed game Friday.

"Overall, I didn't think we played a bad ballgame. They got the key hits and we didn't. But we are improving, and at this point of the season I think that's all you can ask of a team," said MHS head coach Rick Wood.

In the Lee-Monterey game, the Rebels jumped out to a 5-2 lead after three innings, as Jimmy Patton held the potent Plainsmen in check. But then in the fourth, Monterey scored five unearned runs after a critical error with two outs kept Lee from getting out of the inning. Monterey's Isaac Lee ended the game going 3-for-3 from the plate with three runs scored, while David Galvan paced the Rebs with a 3-for-4 effort.

Jason Baker (0-1), Lee's second reliever of the game, was credited with the loss but allowed only one earned run in two innings of work.

MHS' Brian Rounding (1-2) allowed six hits and four earned runs while going the distance against the Plainsmen, as Gonzales went back behind the plate, went 2-for-2 and scored a pair of runs. Michael Davidson (1-0) threw a complete game for Monterey to gain his first win of the season.

Against Del Valle, Lee rode the arm of Julian Urquidez, who struck out 11, and an 11-hit attack.

The Del Rio-Del Valle game may have provided some of the most interesting non-tactics of the tournament, though. Del Valle first baseman Luis Olmos was injured in the first inning as he slid back to first after reaching base on a walk. He was replaced by designated hitter Raul Silva, who was on deck, on the base paths.

That move resulted in an illegal substitution that caused the Conquistadores to bat two men out of order the entire game, but the error was never caught by Del Rio as Del Valle rode a three-run second to victory.

NOTE: The Lee-Monterey doubleheader that was rained out Tuesday will be made up on Thursday, April 23.

JUCO: NMJC T-Birds rip Weatherford by 14 points

After a layup by MCC's Dwayne Jones that put the Highlanders up 85-84, OC found itself with the ball at halfcourt with nine seconds left. A Kevin Washington jumper from the top of the circle fell out and the Wranglers were unable to control the rebound. MCC then finished off OC with a length of the court pass and a lay-in by Dwayne Curtis.

"The pressure bothered them (MCC) as much as it bothered us," OC head coach Dennis Helms said. "We had the game won when we had a two-point lead, but we couldn't handle the pressure."

OC's Robert Shannon was brilliant, finishing with 32 points, including six three-pointers. MCC's Shannon Brantley led the Highlanders with 26.

"Robert Shannon's not great," MCC head coach Ken DeWeese said. "He's better than great."

"OC kept playing, but our guys kept their composure."

Had MCC put the game away as it should have in regulation time, the story would've been the Highlanders' domination in the first seven minutes of the second half.

MCC hit six of its first 12 shots in the second half, didn't turn the ball over, and kept OC scoreless for a four-minute stretch. The Highlanders went from trailing OC 37-33 at the 18:00 mark to lead 50-40 with 13 minutes remaining. MCC hit four of its eight three-pointers in the first seven minutes of the final half.

But, as DeWeese put it, the way his team rose from the ashes to win in OT was the reason the Highlanders are able to advance to the second round.

"When you're down by nine in overtime and win it," DeWeese said, "you've got a little something other teams don't have."

OC finishes its season at 23-8. MCC, idle today, will meet the winner of today's Midland College-Temple Junior College game on Sunday. The Chaps and Leopards tip off at 8 p.m. in The Highlands gym.

In other Region V first round action, New Mexico Junior College defeated Weatherford, 86-72. In the Region 14 tournament, also being hosted by MCC, San Jacinto defeated Jacksonville, 72-71, and Lone Morris eliminated Navarro, 78-76.

Braves lose Treadway for three months after surgery

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Atlanta Braves second baseman Jeff Treadway will be out about three months after undergoing surgery Friday to repair a joint in his right hand.

Officials said Treadway is expected to recover fully, but must wear a cast for six to eight weeks before beginning rehabilitation.

Treadway, 29, hit .320 last season, but was limited to 106 games because of the hand injury. He again experienced pain in his hand when he reported to training camp two weeks ago.

Dr. Harold Kleinert of Louisville, Ky., successfully fused a bone from Treadway's hip into a joint in his hand during the operation.

Tony Dorsett takes physical for CFL Riders

Associated Press

DALLAS — After three years out of football, Tony Dorsett has taken a physical for the Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League and apparently is considering a comeback.

"I'd entertain the right situation," Dorsett told the Ottawa Sun. "I can only say that if that situation presents itself, it would be interesting."

Dorsett, pro football's second all-time leading rusher, hasn't played since the 1988 NFL season, but the Rough Riders placed him on their negotiation list last week.

Dan Rambo, general manager of the Rough Riders, told The Dallas Morning News that he met with Dorsett in Dallas on Thursday about the possibility of Dorsett's returning to football.

"I just wanted to meet him and see if Tony wants to do it. So far, he does. It may not work out, but I'm going to look into it. Right now, it's in the infancy stage," Rambo said.

Dorsett, who will be 38 next month, was a Heisman Trophy winner at Pittsburgh and was the Dallas Cowboys' first-round draft pick in 1977.

Luckey leads San Marcos to 5A finals vs. Duncanville

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Patricia Luckey scored 28 points, including a layup between three defenders with 1:25 remaining, as San Marcos fought off Sugar Land Dulles 54-52 Friday in a Class 5A state high school girls basketball semifinal game.

San Marcos (29-4) will play four-time champion Duncanville (38-1) for the state title at 9 a.m. today at the 42nd annual University Interscholastic League tournament.

Both teams were making their state tournament debut. Dulles ends the year at 29-7.

Neither team led by more than four points in the second half that included five ties and eight lead changes.

Dulles tried stalling with a 50-49 edge and 2:30 left in the game. But about a minute later, Luckey's layup put San Marcos in the lead for good.

San Marcos' Lisa Green scored off a layup for 53-50 lead, and followed that with a free throw after another steal.

Class 5A Semifinal Duncanville 51, Plainview 40

AUSTIN — Nikki Sanders' 15 points led Duncanville, which broke a fourth-quarter tie with a 17-6 run over the final 5:27 to down Plainview. Duncanville (38-1) will try for its record-tying fifth Class 5A title today against San Marcos at the UIL tournament.

Plainview (27-8) never led, but mounted an aggressive second-half comeback to tie the game at 34-all on a 3-pointer by Jennifer Jeffress with 5:27 remaining. Her bucket culminated a 13-5 run. But a foul under the basket after the shot gave Duncanville's Christy Lake a pair of free throws, which she sank for a 36-34 lead.

Class 2A Semifinal Panhhandle 57, Lovelady 43

Angie Ogletree scored 21 points, despite 20 missed shots, to lead Panhhandle past Lovelady 57-43 in a Class 2A state high school girls basketball semifinal game.

Panhhandle meets Marion today for the title. Panhhandle, which made the final game in its only other state appearance in 1980, improves to 30-5. Lovelady, in its first trip to the final four, ends the year 32-6.

Ogletree connected on only 5-of-25 shots from the floor, including seven missed 3-point attempts, but she made 11-of-14 free throws.

Class 2A Semifinal Marion 66, Dublin 42

Nater Dunn scored 19 points, despite being plagued by foul trouble, to lead Marion past Dublin for their 23rd consecutive victory.

Marion will face Panhhandle for the state title today. It will mark the second time in four years Marion has played in the championship game.

Panhhandle defeated Lovelady in the other semifinal.

Floyd moves ahead by a stroke at Doral

Associated Press

MIAMI — Ray Floyd, a hometown boy without a home, found a comfort zone on one of his happiest hunting grounds.

PGA

"I'm there," the 49-year-old Floyd said after a 5-under-par 67 put him through 36 holes of the Doral Open at 134 and into the lead by a stroke.

Floyd, whose home at nearby Indian Creek was destroyed by fire two weeks ago, also had a 67 in the opening round. But the two scores were compiled in decidedly different fashions.

The first one came after his poorest ball-striking round of the season. Only a spectacular putting performance — 13 one-putt greens — kept Floyd among the leaders.

The second round, however, was a return to more conventional means. The two-time winner of this title did not make a bogey, really wasn't in danger of making one and "had it around the hole all day," he said.

"I'm much more comfortable with today's round," Floyd said.

But his good friend, protege and Ryder Cup partner Fred Couples was not so comfortable.

"He's intimidating," Couples said after a bogey-free 69 left him one stroke back at 135. "I'm sure he's not worried about me, but I'm worried about him. He's as competitive as anyone.

"He will be very, very tough. I'm sure that if anyone is thinking about winning this golf tournament, they'll have to beat him."

Couples, a winner last week in Los Angeles, shared second with Keith Clearwater, who matched Floyd's 67.

Ben Crenshaw and Hale Irwin were another stroke back at 136. Crenshaw shot a 69 and Irwin, a 46-year-old, 3-time U.S. Open winner, moved up with a 66.

They were followed by Australian Steve Elkington, Howard Twitty, Jeff Sluman and P.H. Horgan at 137. Sluman shot 68, Twitty and Horgan 69 and Elkington 71.

Curtis Strange was within two strokes of the lead until he bounced his second shot off a rock and into the water on the final hole. He took a triple-bogey 7, finished with a 72 and was well back at 139.

He will, however, play on the weekend. Jack Nicklaus, Paul Azinger and British Open champion Ian Baker-Finch will not. All failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Nicklaus and Azinger each shot 75-146 and Baker-Finch was 72-147.

PGA champion John Daly birdied his last three holes to make it at 71-143.

Floyd missed only three greens and I had it close to the hole on those," he said.

Crosby bursts into tie with Dickinson, Mallon

Associated Press

POWAY, Calif. — Elaine Crosby shot a 4-under-par 68 Friday to tie Judy Dickinson and Meg Mallon for the lead at 138 after two rounds of play in the LPGA Inamori Classic at StoneRidge Country Club.

Dickinson shot 69 for the second straight round and Mallon carded a 68.

Dana Lofland and Michelle Mackall were three shots behind the leaders. Lofland shot a second-round 72 and Mackall finished at 67.

Crosby birdied the third hole, and had her only bogey on the seventh. She was penalized one stroke on that hole when she replaced her ball on the green and it moved before she putted — an automatic penalty.

She then birdied the 10th and 13th holes, then finished with consecutive birdies. She came within inches of an eagle on the 17th hole and holed an 18-foot putt on No. 18.

"I played really well," Crosby said. "I bogeyed No. 7 and only missed one other green (in regulation)."

Dickinson, among five leaders after the first round, bogeyed her second hole Friday. She finished even on the front nine after a 15-foot birdie putt on the seventh hole.

She began the back nine with two birdies, including a 45-foot chip shot on No. 11. She also birdied the 13th and 17th holes but suffered a bogey by three-putting No. 16.

"Sometimes, you get to a course and seem to do well every time you play there," said Dickinson, who tied for second in last year's tournament. "Mentally, you just think you can play well again."

Mallon, the defending LPGA and U.S. Women's Open champion, began her round on the back nine with consecutive birdies. She was 3-under for the day after nine holes when she birdied the 15th and 18th holes after a bogey on No. 14.

Mallon also birdied the third and sixth holes but bogeyed No. 5.

"What I did was get all of my putts within 20 feet," Mallon said. "I always had an opportunity."

Rodriguez birdies way to course record

Associated Press

OJAI, Calif. — Defending champion Chi Chi Rodriguez set a course record Friday with an 8-under-par 62 to take a three-shot lead after the first round of the GTE West Classic.

Rodriguez had eight birdies and no bogeys in a near-flawless round over the 6,190-yard, par-70 Ojai Valley Country Club course, which was soaked from heavy rains on Thursday evening.

He broke the 18-hole record of 63 established by Butch Baird in 1989.

Jim Colbert and Don Massengale finished with 65s to share second place, one shot ahead of Baird, Bruce Crampton, Dale Douglass and Al Geiberger.

GTE Seniors

Arnold Palmer endured an erratic round, making seven birdies and four bogeys to finish at 67.

Players were permitted to lift and clean their balls in the fairways because of the damp course. The opening round of the 54-hole tournament was played under cloudy skies.

Rodriguez made a 4-foot birdie putt on No. 18 to claim his record. He briefly stepped away from his putt when a spectator sneezed. Rodriguez smiled and took out a white handkerchief, waving it playfully to the gallery. Then he made the putt.

"Today I concentrated very hard on my putting," Rodriguez said. "After the fifth hole, I was thinking of shooting 59."

A day earlier, Rodriguez shot a 76 in the pro-am and was very concerned about his putting.

But Rodriguez shot a 30 on the front nine, picking up birdies at Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5 and 9. He added birdies at Nos. 12 and 14 before ending his day with the birdie on the 487-yard, par-5 final hole.

"It was a nice day and really fair to play under winter rules because the golf course would have been almost unplayable," Rodriguez said. "We would have been dropping out there and taking an extra 45 minutes."

Massengale had no bogeys en route to his 65.

Sale of Pebble Beach lifts cloud from resort

Associated Press

SAN JOSE, Calif. — A Japanese-owned company announced completion Friday of the acquisition of the Pebble Beach golf resort, a reported $500 million sale that left the previous Japanese owner with a 40-percent loss.

"Completion of the sale lifts the cloud that has hung over Pebble Beach," said Masatsugu Takabayashi, chairman and president of the Lone Cypress Co. "We are extremely pleased and excited to be part of a bright new beginning for Pebble Beach."

The cloud formed when the previous owner, Japanese golf tycoon Minoru Isutani, drew the ire of California state officials and neighbors of the course by proposing a six-figure private membership plan to raise money.

Isutani wanted to sell lifetime memberships for up to $740,000 each in exchange for preferred tee times and reserved hotel rooms at the resort — a plan critics said would limit public play at the popular seaside course. The California Coastal Commission also turned down the plan.

Isutani bought the 5,300-acre coastal resort in September 1990 for $841 million from an investors' group led by Texas oilman Marvin Davis. Most analysts said Isutani overpaid for the property, valued then at about $600 million, although Davis had been asking up to $1.2 billion.

The Lone Cypress Co. refused to release details of the private sale, but the company reportedly picked up Pebble Beach for the bargain-basement price of $500 million.

Elliott grabs pole position with record lap

AP Motorsports Writer

RICHMOND, Va. — Bill Elliott continued his strong performances in NASCAR Winston Cup stock car racing, taking the pole position for the Pontiac Excitement 400 with a record-setting lap Friday at Richmond International Raceway.

Elliott, who started the first two races of the season from the outside of the front row and is coming off a runaway victory in Sunday's race at Rockingham, N.C., left nothing to chance in qualifying.

He posted the two fastest laps on the .75-mile D-shaped oval, taking the his 42nd career pole with a lap of 120.849 mph, then solidifying it at 121.337.

That broke the race record of 120.573 set by Geoff Bodine in March 1989.

"We keep going to the race track and just keep running good," Elliott said.

Davey Allison, who still holds the track record of 122.850 — set in Sept. 1988 — made it an all-Ford Thunderbird front row for Sunday's race with a lap of 120.568.

Allison is almost as hot as Elliott, having started the season with a victory in the Daytona 500, then running second at Rockingham.

Fords, which were so strong at the end of the 1991 season, have begun 1992 in dominating fashion.

They swept the front row at Daytona and finished 1-2-3-4 in the race, took the outside pole at Rockingham and the top two places in the race, and grabbed four of the top five positions in Friday's qualifying session.

Kyle Petty, the Rockingham pole winner in a Pontiac Grand Prix, was third Friday, followed by the T-Birds of Sterling Marlin, Elliott's teammate, and Alan Kulwicki.

"Dale (Earnhardt) and some of the other (General Motors) guys have had a bad start so far, and it seems the stronger teams this season are the Ford teams," Elliott said. "It isn't just the cars. I think in five, six, seven more races into the season we can evaluate that."

Earnhardt, the two-time defending and five-time Winston Cup champion, had another disappointing day, qualifying 29th overall at 117.627.

Only the top 20 positions were locked in Friday, with another round of time trials scheduled Saturday to fill the rest of the 34-car field. The National Weather Service has forecast an 80 percent chance of rain for Saturday, meaning that making the race day lineup may depend entirely on Friday's performance.

Elliott is thoroughly enjoying his first season with team owner Junior Johnson.

"I said it at Rockingham, but everybody on this team is just going in the right direction now," Elliott said. "Luck's gone our way."

It was only the sixth pole for Elliott on a track shorter than one mile, but he said, "Looking at the statistics, Junior's always been good at the short tracks."

John Andretti among latest drivers entered in Indy 500

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Three more drivers, including John Andretti and Tony Bettenhausen, have named to drive entries for the Indianapolis 500 on May 24.

Andretti, 28, is the first of the Andretti drivers named on a 1992 entry. Four Andrettis — Mario, Michael, John and Jeff — started the 1991 Indy.

John Andretti was listed Thursday on three entries by Hall-VDS Racing of Midland. The Indianapolis driver, beginning his second season with the Midland team, will bid for his fifth appearance in the 33-car starting field.

Bettenhausen, 40, of Indianapolis, was nominated for two of three cars from Bettenhausen Motorsports' Indianapolis-based stable. He will bid for his 11th Indy 500 start.

Jim Vasser, 26, of Discover Bay, Calif., was the first rookie entered in this year's race. He will have two cars from the newly formed Hayhoe-Cole Racing of Indian Wells, Calif.

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway has received 22 entries from five teams listing eight drivers for the race. More than 80 entries are expected before the April 1 deadline.

Jack Morris struggles in debut with Toronto Blue Jays

Associated Press

CLEARWATER, Fla. — Jack Morris, last seen pitching one of the most memorable games in World Series history, made a most forgettable debut with the Toronto Blue Jays on Friday.

Morris struggled through three innings, bouncing several of his 61 pitches and putting only 31 of them over the plate against Philadelphia. He gave up two runs — one of them unearned — on two hits, walked four, struck out none and threw a wild pitch. He wound up with a no-decision in Toronto's 6-4 loss.

"It was a typical first outing," Morris said. "It's like I haven't pitched since last October, which was the case. I've had better ones. I guess I've had worse. I threw a lot more pitches than necessary. I just think it's important to realize that it's spring training. That's the reason we're here, to get ready for the start of the season."

Spring Training

Reds 6, Dodgers 4

VERO BEACH, Fla. — Eric Davis was called out on strikes twice against his former team as he played for Los Angeles in Cincinnati's exhibition opener.

"They were marginal," Davis said of the called third strikes by umpire Dutch Rennert. "I didn't get fooled. Let's get them out of the way now."

Solo homers by Barry Larkin and Paul O'Neill off Orel Hershiser in the third put the Reds ahead for good. Hershiser gave up three runs and five hits in three innings.

White Sox 5, Tigers 3

SARASOTA, Fla. — Bo Jackson, who had two hits and drove in two runs Thursday in the White Sox opener, had a single in three at-bats. But it was obvious that Jackson, who injured his left hip while playing football for the Los Angeles Raiders, cannot even walk without pain.

The White Sox have until March 15 to decide what to do about Jackson's 1992 contract. If they keep him, it's a $910,000 deal with an extra $10,000 for each game in which he is available, up to 150 games.

"This isn't about money," Jackson said. "I just happen to love doing what I do. ... It felt the same today as Thursday. Nothing was different."

Dan Pasqua then hit a three-run double that gave the White Sox a 4-2 lead.

Pirates 5, Rangers 3

BRADENTON, Fla. — Jose Lind and Gary Redus each hit two-run homers. Lind's third-inning homer off Floyd Bannister followed Don Slaught's walk and gave Pittsburgh a 2-0 lead. Redus homered in the fifth off Mike Jeffcoat after Brian Dorsett's single for a 4-1 lead.

Royals 7, Astros 4

HAINES CITY, Fla. — Brian McRae hit his second double to start a four-run fifth inning.

Wally Joyner, George Brett and Terry Shumpert all had run-scoring singles off Rob Murphy during the inning, and Mike Macfarlane scored Kevin McReynolds with a sacrifice fly.

Expos 7, Mets 1

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Matt Stairs and Larry Walker each drove in runs in a four-run first off David Cone, who gave up four runs and five hits in two innings.

Dennis Martinez, a 14-game winner last season and the ace of Montreal's staff, pitched three scoreless innings.

Pascual Perez draws one year suspension

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Pitcher Pascual Perez of the New York Yankees, in and out of trouble throughout his career, was suspended for one year by the commissioner's office Friday following two positive tests for cocaine.

Perez agreed in 1989 following rehabilitation that he would be suspended for a year if he again was found to be using drugs. Although Friday's statement did not give any details, sources familiar with baseball's drug-testing program, speaking on the condition they not be identified, told The Associated Press that urine samples from Perez taken Feb. 26 and Feb. 28 tested positive for cocaine.

"The events that have transpired over the past 48 hours are unfortunate for Pascual Perez, the Yankees and major league baseball," Yankees general manager Gene Michael said. "The Yankees will continue to be supportive of Pascual and I can only hope that Pascual and his family will work together to get through this tough period. We sincerely wish him the best in dealing with these problems."

Perez, a 34-year-old right-hander, was said to be at his Florida home and was not talking about the situation, his third incident of drug use in baseball.

Perez, entering the final season of a three-year, $5.7 million contract, will not be paid this year's $1.9 million salary. The pitcher will have to apply for reinstatement from the commissioner's office under terms of the 1989 agreement negotiated by his agent, Tom Reich, with then-commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

"It's a fairly severe sanction," commissioner Fay Vincent said in Sarasota. "It is more severe than just a one-year suspension."

Tony Chircosta, Perez's financial adviser, said the pitcher has not made any decisions about his future.

"He has the option to gut it out again and hope someone gives him a shot in '93 or he can walk away and call it a career," Chircosta said.

Chircosta said Perez asked if there was anything that could be done to allow him to pitch this season.

"He'd love to play," Chircosta said. "If there was anything he could do so he could have the right to pitch this year, he'd do it."

Perez was tested on the first day he arrived at Fort Lauderdale Stadium, and was advised this Wednesday night not to report to Thursday's workout. According to Chircosta, Perez was told Thursday morning of the positive result.

"His main question was the time frame," Chircosta said. "He didn't know why he didn't hear sooner."

Chircosta said that Perez didn't protest his innocence, saying, "It wasn't a blanket denial."

Michael would not say whether the team would be interested in having Perez back in 1993.

"That's too far down the road," Michael said. "I wouldn't look that far ahead."

Yankees manager Buck Showalter said the club was alarmed when Perez reported to camp 12 pounds below his normal playing weight of 175.

"He said he'd had a virus for a long time, he'd been sick for a while," Showalter said.

Melido Perez, who was looking forward to playing with his older brother for the first time in their careers, was shaken.

Longhorns rout TCU, 20-5

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Brooks Kieschnick beat Texas Christian on the mound and at the plate in No. 4 Texas' 20-5 victory over Frogs Friday.

Kieschnick went 2-for-5 and knocked in five runs, three of them on a home run in the eighth.

He also improved to 40 with 62-3 solid innings, scattering 10 hits and walking five. He struck out one.

Kieschnick got plenty of help early on as the Horns mounted a 21-hit attack, led by Dean Haskins' four hits and three RBIs.

The Southwest Conference-leading Longhorns improved to 15-3 overall and 9-1 in league play. TCU dropped to 11-8 and 6-4.

Robert DeLeon's three-run homer highlighted a five-run second inning for the Horns.

TCU battled back to trail 5-4 after three innings, but the Horns scored four times in the fourth and seven times in the sixth, sparked by Mark Prather's two-run homer, for a 16-4 lead.

Glenn Dishman (0-2) took the loss. He gave up 13 runs, nine of them earned, on 12 hits in 5 1-3 innings.

The teams play a double-header Saturday.

Rice 2, Houston 1

HOUSTON — Darrell Richardson threw a one-hitter and Joe Racina squeezed in Kennedy Glasscock in the bottom of the ninth inning, lifting Rice over Houston.

SWC Baseball

The sole hit Richardson (5-2) allowed was Greyson Liles' triple leading off the second inning. He allowed two walks and struck out six.

The gem was the second of Richardson's career. He threw a five-inning one-hitter against Hardin-Simmons last year.

No. 21 Texas A&M 7, Baylor 6 COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Jason Marshall singled home the winning run in the 10th inning as No. 21 Texas A&M edged Baylor.

Marshall's hit to left scored Stephen Claybrook from second base. James Nix (4-2), who relieved starter Jeff Granger in the ninth, earned the victory. Joe Wharton (1-3) took the loss.

Texas A&M improved to 13-5 overall and 5-2 in the Southwest Conference. Baylor fell to 9-9 and 3-7.

Texas Tech 4, New Mexico 0

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech right-hander Mark Brandenburg tossed a four-hitter in shutting out regional rival New Mexico.

The Red Raiders improved to 11-9 with their fifth straight victory. The Lobos fell to 10-9.

Brandenburg improved to 6-1 with his fifth straight complete game. He struck out five and walked one.

Mike Gunderson (2-1) took the loss, giving up a pair of runs in the third and fourth innings.

Facts About The BIBLE

700 LEFTIES!

ALTHOUGH MODERN BASEBALL HAS PRODUCED SOME AMAZING LEFT HANDED PITCHERS WHO THREW WITH EXTREME ACCURACY, SUCH AS LEFTY GORDON, WHITEY FORD, CARL HUBBLE, JOHNNY VANDER MEER, SANDY KOUFAX, IT CAN'T MATCH THE BIBLE'S SEVEN HUNDRED 'LEFTY' SLING SHOOTERS!

THE SLING SHOOTER WAS THE COUNTERPART OF A MODERN ARMY'S RIFLE MAN AND THE TRIBE OF BENJAMIN HAD 'SEVEN HUNDRED CHOSEN MEN LEFT HANDED' (JUDGES 20:16) ALL OF THEM COULD 'SLING STONES AT A HAIR'S BREADTH AND NOT MISS.' ALL THE SHEPHERD BOYS USED SLINGS TO PROTECT THEIR HERDS FROM BEASTS OF PREY AND THIS CONSTANT PRACTICE AS THE YOUTHS GREW UP TO MANHOOD ASSURED ISRAEL OF A CONSTANT SUPPLY OF SHARP-SHOOTERS IN TIME OF WAR.

Motorcyclists mix religion, hobby

ARLINGTON (AP) — Since Marlon Brando played the sneering leader of a fierce biker gang in the 1953 movie "The Wild One," motorcycle groups have worn that outlaw image like the patches on their leather jackets.

Forty years later, the image is still there, but belonging to a motorcycle group has taken on a less hedonistic meaning.

In Arlington, about 600 motorcycle riders have formed the Full Gospel Motorcycle Association International with the mission of traveling the state to help stranded motorists and preach about God.

"The biker portrayed in movies mugs the ladies for his past time. And a lot of the public think a person who rides a motorcycle is associated with that lifestyle. We use our motorcycles to minister."

— Shrader Gant, group member

Members of the group range from their mid-20s through late 40s. Most of their membership is in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, but members are scattered across the state, in Florida, Washington, Australia, New Zealand and Canada, Gant said.

Its oldest member is 69-year-old Bill Mays, who leaves his North Dallas home four hours early on Sunday in case he needs to help someone stalled along his 30-mile trek to services in Arlington. While on the road, Mays listens to Country Western-style Gospel music piped into his helmet. He says it puts him in the "mood for ministering."

Passing drivers and their passengers in cars wave, sometimes before Mays greets them with a smile that reaches the width of his face. "I started doing this after one Sunday, when I was on my way to church, I saw a man about my age on the side of the road with his stalled car," said Mays, who joined the FGMAI two years ago. "I wanted to stop and help him, but was afraid of being late for church. Afterward, I wish I had helped him."

Mays' 1985 Honda Gold Wing motorcycle totes a trailer with tools, gas, car jumper cables, water, cookies and religious tracts. His was one of the most colorful of the group's bikes lined up outside a Grand Prairie diner one Saturday morning, while inside, members at their weekly breakfast exchanged stories of near-death accidents.

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble — Psalm 46:1" is one of several Bible verses ornately painted on Mays' metallic gold motorcycle.

Like Mays, several of the group's members spend a few hours every week riding on Texas highways looking for stranded motorists who need food or water, a jump-start or a ride to get gas.

After the biker helps the stranded motorist, he often leaves behind a religious pamphlet, a coupon for a free dinner at a nearby church or

'The biker portrayed in movies mugs the ladies for his past time. And a lot of the public think a person who rides a motorcycle is associated with that lifestyle. We use our motorcycles to minister.'

A simple message: "God loves you."

Several similar groups exist in Texas, such as Tribe of Judah in Houston and Bikers for Christ in Fort Worth, but the largest and oldest international organization is the Christian Motorcycle Association in Hatfield, Ark., which boasts 37,000 members.

The organization began its motorcycle ministry 15 years ago, said David Edwards, editor of Cycle World magazine based in Newport Beach, Calif.

"It helps fight stereotypes," he said. "And they can combine their hobby with religion." Edwards said such groups are so numerous, he couldn't figure how many there are in the United States.

Many Texas members of the CMA also belong to smaller, locally formed groups, said CMA leader Herbie Shreve, 35, in Hatfield. There may be subtle religious differences between the groups, but they often work together holding rallies, visiting biker bars and trying to recruit outlaw motorcyclists, those who may be involved with drugs or other crimes, Shreve said.

Although state safety officials praise the Texas groups for their efforts, they warn motorists to be wary when stranded on the road. Mike Cox, spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety, said one problem is that motorists needing help can't always distinguish Good Samaritans from evildoers.

"I certainly would urge anybody to exercise caution with whom they're dealing with" on the road, Cox said.

The FGMAI meets weekly for services and holds a religious rally in Arlington every September to recruit outlaw riders and those who belong to non-religious clubs.

"There are people that wouldn't come to church because they don't like to wear ties and dress up, or maybe they wear their hair longer and may have tattoos that they're not embarrassed about, but they don't want to show them off at church," said member John Dalton, 40, of Fort Worth.

Congregations also might feel uncomfortable.

Religious scholars warn of doomsday mentality

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (NYT) — Economic hardship, ecological disaster and the approach of the year 2000 have set the stage for a new wave of American apocalyptic fervor.

That was the warning issued during by the Jesus Seminar, a group of liberal Bible scholars who gathered here to continue their seven-year crusade against "religious illiteracy."

Robert Funk, director of the Westar Institute, a theological think tank that sponsors the Jesus Seminar, called on his fellow scholars to closely monitor the religious rhetoric of the 1990s.

Apocalyptic thinking — visions of a global holocaust in which evil is destroyed and the righteous are resurrected into a new era of cosmic bliss — has fascinated Americans from Puritan times.

Although the New Testament, especially the Book of Revelation, is replete with such visions, some scholars see doomsday theology as a dangerous distortion of Jesus Christ's true message.

Marcus Borg, a professor at Oregon State University and author of "Jesus: A New Vision," said it was the early Christian church — not Jesus himself — that emphasized the second coming of Christ.

Lenten soup suppers to begin

Staff Report

The first of five Lenten soup suppers at St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church will start Wednesday with Canon David L. Veal as featured speaker.

The soup supper starts at 6 p.m. at the Parish Hall, 2900 Princeton and the program will begin at 6:30 p.m. Soup is $1 per person. Child care and a study hall will be available.

Canon Veal will speak on "The Mystical Body Christ."

He has served as Canon to the Ordinary for the Diocese of Northwest Texas since 1987. He previously served as rector of the Church of the Resurrection in San Antonio, Canon to the Ordinary for the Diocese of West Texas, director of campus ministries for the Diocese of West Texas and rector of St. Stephen's Church in Eutaw, Ala.

His educational background includes studies at the University of the South, National Cathedral, Episcopal Theological Seminary, Institute of Religion, St. George's in Jerusalem and Princeton Theological Seminary.

He has authored "Saints Galore" and was a contributor to "Lesser Feasts and Fasts."

Among the ecclesiastical positions he has held are Deputy to the General Convention, member of the Curial Secretariat, member of the Commission on Ministry, Education for Ministry minister and trustee for the University of the South.

The soup suppers will be held each Wednesday at 6 p.m. through April 8. The public is invited.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ St. Mark's begins program

St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 North Main, is beginning a new Sunday morning education program for children ages 2 to 12. This new concept in learning is called St. Mark's Children's College and it provides music skills, Bible study, snacks, and craft activities for children. Children will participate in courses that include: Joyful Noise, Bible Explorers, Methodist Munch and New Beginnings. Visitors are welcome.

■ Attendance crusade to begin

Asbury United Methodist Church of Midland will launch a six week Worship Attendance Crusade beginning tomorrow during the 11 a.m. worship service.

The congregation joins more than 240 United Methodist churches located in the North-west Texas Annual Conference in the area-wide emphasis that culminates on Easter Sunday, April 19.

For the next six Sundays persons throughout the community will be invited to participate in the special activities planned during the Worship Attendance Crusade. A dinner to honor March birthdays will follow the service. A video on Church growth will be shown during the dinner hour in the Fellowship Hall.

In addition to the special emphasis on worship, Sunday school classes will be offered.

Asbury United Methodist Church is located at 106 W. Dakota, corner of W. Dakota and S. Lorraine, across the street, north of South Elementary School.

■ Women Day Services slated

The Midland District Women's Department of the Churches of God in Christ will host the second annual Women Day Services, which will convene Saturday at Wayside Cogie, 1311 Cherry Lane. Host Pastor will be Elder Kenneth Weatherspoon. District Missionary Laverne Smith presiding. Registration will start at 9:30 a.m. A fee of $5 is required. Prayer will begin at 10 a.m. and seminar sessions at 10:30 a.m. High Noon Service is at noon.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Lela Horn of Midland. Seminar teachers are Mrs. Lillie Wright of Midland; Mrs. Emma Johnson, of San Angelo; Mrs. Alma Wright, of Big Springs; and Mrs. Pauleatha Hunter of Odessa.

Dinner will be served immediately after the service.

■ Anniversary to be celebrated

Local members of the Relief Society of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will join with similar congregations around the world March 17 to commemorate the organization's 150th anniversary.

The Relief Society is dedicated to women's education, development and support.

As part of the worldwide celebration, the Midland II ward Relief Society chapter will be participating in the three main focuses of the sesquicentennial celebration.

The Midland II ward Relief Society chapter welcomes women of any denomination to its meeting and activities.

For more information call 687-5200.

■ Appreciation service held

Syria: Israel could have peace for total withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Syria's chief negotiator at the Mideast peace talks said Friday Israel could have peace with the Arabs if it made a commitment to give up all the land it captured in the 1967 Six-Day War.

"We want to end the conflict with Israel," Muwaffak Allaf told reporters.

He said the two sides had reversed positions over the years. Israel, the retired ambassador said, used to complain the Arabs were always saying "no." But now, Allaf said, Israel came to negotiations here not to make peace but "to explain why we are enemies."

The negotiations recessed on Wednesday without agreement on where or when to meet next. Israeli Ambassador Zalman Shoval, at a separate news conference, said his government hoped one or two rounds could be held before the Israeli elections in June.

Shoval also said the Palestinians had hardened their stand on self-rule possibly because the Bush administration had not approved guarantees for $10 billion in housing loans for Israel and sharply opposed West Bank settlements.

"There must be a reason why they start up every meeting with the subject of settlements," Shoval said. He added: "If the Arabs ever believe that Israel is not fully supported policy-wise, beyond this or that misunderstanding, by America the will for peace among the Arabs will weaken."

But, Shoval said, U.S. relations with Israel were strong and stable. He also praised Secretary of State James A. Baker III for getting Arab-Israeli peace talks started. "He's entitled to immense credit," Israel first asked the Bush administration to guarantee the bank loans a year ago. Having the U.S. government as a cosigner would get easy terms for Israel from commercial banks.

Baker has held up action, saying Israel should cease new settlements and that whatever it spends on settlements ought to be deducted from the loans.

"We are very worried about this delay," Shoval said.

Israel would use the money to absorb Jewish refugees from the former Soviet Union, Ethiopia and elsewhere. Some 400,000 Soviet Jews have been taken in over two years and up to 600,000 more are expected to go there out of fear of anti-Semitism and in search of a better life.

Syrian negotiator Allaf, meanwhile, said the Arabs would grant "mutual recognition" to Israel, establish economic ties and make security arrangements provided Israel withdrew totally from the Golan Heights and other lands captured in 1967.

Israel, in exchange for peace with Egypt, gave up the Sinai. It is holding onto the West Bank and Gaza, as well as the Golan Heights, and East Jerusalem was made part of Israel's capital after Jordanian troops were ousted during the war.

Allaf ruled out separate agreements with individual Arab countries. He also rejected holding peace talks in the Middle East, as Israel prefers.

Doctors amputate feet of boy living in bus

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy's frostbitten feet had to be amputated after he and his father were found living in a remote area in an abandoned bus, their only groceries two bottles of ketchup and mustard.

Douglas K. Roupe, 44, was charged with felony child neglect Friday when he was released after treatment at United Hospital Center in Clarksburg, said state police Capt. P.D. Goodman. Roupe was freed on $10,000 bond.

Roupe claimed a state agency refused his request for assistance, other than giving him some food stamps.

His son, Douglas E. Roupe, was in fair condition Friday, said Bill Case, spokesman for Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown. Goodman said the boy's feet had been amputated.

The father and son were found Wednesday in an abandoned school bus and appeared to be suffering from malnutrition, said state Trooper G. L. Clark III.

The bus was parked in a hollow at the end of a nearly impassable road in a remote area of Doddridge County, in northern West Virginia about 150 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

Clark said state police were called after a resident of the area reported seeing the boy and his father near the bus.

"We went inside the bus and found a foam mattress, a bottle of ketchup and a bottle of mustard," Clark said. "That was it. We asked the boy if they had any food. He said he hadn't eaten for a long time."

Troopers had to use a four-wheel-drive vehicle to carry the pair out to an ambulance.

Roupe told authorities that the state Department of Health and Human Resources refused his requests for food. Goodman said Roupe indicated he received $60 in food stamps two months ago from the state.

"He said they sent him on his way and told him they couldn't do anything else for him," Goodman said.

Patty Vincent, a supervisor with the department in nearby Clarksburg, declined to comment. She did say the department can take custody of children pending court action in neglect cases.

Australian syndicate turns over winning lottery ticket

RICHMOND, Va. (NYT) — An Australian syndicate that tried to corner a $27 million Virginia Lottery game handed over on Thursday a pink ticket bearing the winning numbers.

But state officials here say they will not pay the prize until they investigate the ticket's validity.

The Lottery Department said Thursday night that it would rule on the matter by the end of next week.

Kenneth W. Thorson, the lottery director, said that if the prize were not paid to the investment group, the money would go toward a future jackpot.

Dennis P. Shaw, security director for the Virginia State Lottery, said Friday that the ticket appeared to be genuine when he looked at it under a microscope after the group presented it.

"Now we're looking at the method in which it was purchased," said Shaw.

Lottery officials say the International Lotto Fund, based in Melbourne, Australia, bought 5 million of the 7 million possible numerical combinations in the Feb. 15 game.

The game requires a player to pick the six correct numbers between 1 and 44.

Only one ticket was printed with the winning numbers — 8, 11, 13, 15, 19 and 20 — and it was presented on Thursday afternoon by Joseph Franck, a director of Lowe Lippmann Nominees, the fund's accounting firm in Melbourne. Accompanied by two Richmond lawyers, he handed the slip to Shaw.

Presenting that ticket would customarily be all that was required to receive a check for $1,026,000, the first installment of the prize after tax withholding.

Lottery regulations require that each lottery ticket be paid for at the lottery terminal that dispenses it. But the group's claim is in question because the tickets were paid for at the headquarters of Farm Fresh Inc. in Norfolk, and the winning ticket was issued at a store in nearby Chesapeake.

"The perception that this is changing the rules is really a misunderstanding," Thorson said. "The rule was always there."

Paula I. Otto, a Lottery Department spokeswoman, said the department would investigate who bought the ticket and how.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas congressmen used some of the millions of dollars they received in campaign contributions last year to bankroll out-of-state candidates.

The biggest beneficiary of Texas largesse was Rep. Robert Mrazek, the Long Island Democrat who is trying to unseat Republican Sen. Alfonse D'Amato.

Mrazek received $4,500 from Texas congressmen — $2,000 from Rep. Mike Andrews of Houston, $1,000 apiece from Rep. Jack Brooks of Beaumont and Rep. Ron Coleman of El Paso, and $500 from Rep. Albert Bustamante of San Antonio.

Texas Democrats gave $3,500 to Harris Wofford, the Pennsylvania labor secretary who snatched a Senate victory from heavily-favored former U.S. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh.

Wofford's victory was widely viewed as slowing the Republicans' bid to recapture a Senate majority.

Wofford received $1,000 apiece from Bustamante, Brooks and Rep. Solomon Ortiz of Corpus Christi, and $500 from Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, according to records filed with the Federal Election Commission.

Campaign finance reports show

Brooks was the largest contributor to out-of-state campaigns.

Brooks, who chairs the House Judiciary Committee, donated $7,500 of his $242,691 in contributions last year to candidates across the country.

Brooks contributed $1,000 apiece to seven campaigns, including those of Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards, Washington Rep. Les AuCoin, who is running for the Senate, and Rep. Dave Nagle, D-Iowa.

"I am often asked by incumbents, as well as non-incumbents, for assistance with their campaigns; and if I believe the candidate would be a good, constructive member of Congress and if I can, I will contribute to them," Brooks said Friday.

"I like to help new members in particular, who often find it more difficult to obtain campaign contributions when they're just starting out. Sometimes they win, sometimes they don't, but I like to help when I can, remembering what it was like when I was a young man trying to get elected to Congress for the first or second time."

Andrews gave a total of $4,500 from his $312,339 in contributions, including $1,000 to Illinois Rep.

Marty Russo and $1,000 to California Rep. Mel Levine.

Bustamante gave $4,500 of his $162,450 in contributions, including $1,000 apiece to Nagle and Nevada Rep. James Bilbray.

Houston Republican Jack Fields gave $3,000 of his $161,782 in contributions, including $2,000 to Rep. Rod Chandler, who is running for the Washington Senate seat being vacated by Democrat Brock Adams. He also contributed $1,000 to the campaign of Virginia Rep. George Allen.

Ortiz, who spent $2,750 of his $92,904 in contributions on out-of-state campaigns, also gave $1,000 to Georgia Rep. Ben Jones.

Texas congressmen also were the recipients of contributions from out-of-state lawmakers.

Rep. Chet Edwards, D-Waco, received $1,000 from House Majority Whip David Bonior, D-Mich., as did Frost.

Texas congressmen also gave to candidates within the state, with Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and Texas Railroad Commissioner Lena Guerrero receiving large contributions.

Bullock received $1,000 apiece from Brooks and Andrews, while Ms. Guerrero got $1,500 from Andrews and $1,000 from Coleman.

Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, contributed $1,000 to the campaign of San Antonio Mayor Nelson Wolff.

Community groups and political organizations also were recipients of contributions.

Brooks gave $5,000 apiece to the Texas Democratic Party and the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, and $1,000 to the College Democrats of America.

Also giving to the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee were Edwards and Ortiz, who each gave $5,000, and Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, who gave $10,000.

Stenholm also donated $1,000 apiece to the Texas Senate Democratic Campaign, the College Democrats of America and the Texas Democratic Party, and $200 to the Texas Democratic County Chairmen's Association.

Frank Tejada, the San Antonio Democrat running unopposed for the new congressional seat in South Texas, spent $3,954 in contributions to area churches.

Coleman spent $3,265 in support of high school bands, alumni groups, Little League and Hispanic groups, as well as the Texas Coalition of Black Democrats.

Judge extends protective 10-day order for evangelist

AUSTIN — (NYT) U.S. District Judge Sam Sparks has extended for 10 days a temporary restraining order limiting Attorney General Dan Morales' ability to investigate fraud allegations surrounding Robert Tilton's Word of Faith ministry.

In extending the order Thursday, Sparks said that Morales' staff may have acted inappropriately in launching the inquiry. The judge questioned the propriety of legal documents in the case being made available to the news media before they were presented to Tilton and his attorneys.

After a two-day hearing, Sparks said he will rule later this month on Tilton's request for a permanent ban on a state investigation of the church, whose fund-raising practices were assailed by private citizens and a network TV news program.

Tilton, buoyed by the judge's comments about Morales' staff, compared the legal ordeal to a physical examination.

"None of us have anything to hide, but we don't like to get undressed very easily, especially with millions of people watching," Tilton said.

"I think a lot of complaints, allegations, were cleared up in the process of this preliminary hearing," he added.

Sparks indicated that he has strong doubts that Morales is authorized to seek church financial records under the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act.

"I think there is a very substantial question as to whether the act applies to a church," Sparks said.

Even so, the judge said his legal quandary is deciding whether laws applying to non-profit corporations, including Tilton's Word of Faith Outreach Center Church of Farmers Branch near Dallas, permit Morales to seek church records.

"I know of no law that stops the government from its statutorily created authority," Sparks said. Since the Nov. 21 broadcast of a scathing report on Tilton on ABC News' "PrimeTime Live," Morales' office has been making efforts to obtain information about the report's allegations that Tilton didn't fulfill written and verbal promises to donors.

Tilton, citing the First Amendment guarantee of religious freedom, initially declined to provide data to Morales. But during the hearing, Tilton, his wife, Martha, and other witnesses disclosed details about church operations, including its procedures for dealing with prayer requests and donations.

They also revealed that last year the church took in $65 million in donations, but they continue to contend that other information including membership lists are not subject to disclosure.

Tilton said he opened his records to federal tax and postal investigators but balked at the state's request because of the manner in which the state asked for them.

Department issues measles warning

AUSTIN (AP) — A large outbreak of measles in Corpus Christi and other parts of South Texas poses a health threat not only to residents but to people traveling through, the Texas Department of Health warned Friday.

Its warning said unvaccinated young adults and parents with unvaccinated children shouldn't travel to the South Texas area.

Unless a person already has had measles, or has been vaccinated against the illness, he or she is susceptible to the highly contagious disease and should ask a doctor about immunizations, the health department said.

Robert Crider, director of the department's immunization division, said that more than 300 cases of measles have been reported in Corpus Christi and surrounding counties since late 1991.

"Measles, also known as rubeola, red measles or seven-day measles, is a serious illness, especially in infants and adults," he said. "Severe cases can lead to pneumonia, bronchitis, deafness, brain damage and death."

Records show that from 1988 through 1990 in Texas, 11 people 16 years old or older died from complications associated with measles. During the same period, measles caused the deaths of 12 children under the age of four.

The outbreak has particularly affected pre-schoolers, officials said.

To ensure adequate protection from measles, certain age groups already should have received two doses of measles vaccine, administered at least one month apart, the agency said.

Officials also are concerned that unimmunized high school and college students expected to visit the outbreak area may contract the disease and take it back to their campuses.

Man slain after splashing men

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Police on Friday sought two men in their early 20s in connection with the death of a man who was slain after his car splashed mud on two men.

Adrian Marcus Aguirre, 23, was on his way to visit his grandmother Thursday when his car struck a puddle, splashing the two men, who then pelted his car with rocks, police said.

When Aguirre got out of his car to confront the men, they slashed him below the neck with a broken beer bottle, investigating officers were told. Relatives rushed Aguirre to a nearby fire station, but he died at Medical Center Hospital a short time later.

"He didn't deserve this," said Juan Aguirre, 20, the victim's brother. "It is senseless. This never should have happened."

From someone getting their clothes a little wet, it turns into violence."

A cousin of the victim who was in the car at the time of the attack said Aguirre knew his wound was serious.

"He was saying he was dying; he needed help," 14-year-old Guadalupe Rios Jr. said. The two men who killed his cousin had been drinking beer, Rios said.

Judge approves surgical castration for molester

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge Friday approved a child molester's request to be surgically castrated rather than go to prison on a charge of raping a 13-year-old girl last year.

The decision was immediately called barbaric by critics who said it could open the door to similar remedies to other crimes. A rape counselor also said the punishment would not necessarily have the desired effect.

"I think it sets a very bad precedent. I hope it's not permitted," said Dr. Philip Reilly, author of "The Surgical Solution: A History of Involuntary Sterilization in the United States."

"Would you allow an 18-year-old boy who stole a car three times to say, 'Cut my hands off so I won't do it again?'" Reilly said in a telephone from the Shriver Center for Mental Retardation in Waltham, Mass.

State District Judge Mike McSpadden approved the request by Steven Allen Butler, 28, who volunteered for the operation after reading about the judge's support of castration for some sex offenders.

Bill Hawkins, an assistant Harris County prosecutor, said the victim's family, who knows Butler, approved of castration to spare the girl from testifying.

"The mother of the victim is not interested in having her child testify in open court if there is another alternative," Hawkins said.

"It's the first case I know about where it's being tried. I suspect there will be a lot of attention to Mr. Butler's aggression once this occurs."

McSpadden said he will place Butler on a form of probation for 10 years after he undergoes the procedure. If he stays out of trouble during that time, the charge will be dropped.

not divulged.

Butler is charged with the aggravated sexual assault of a child, which carries a penalty of five to 99 years or life in prison and a fine of up to $10,000. Butler, a married father of one, has been in jail without bond since April, when the girl went to police.

The girl, who lives near Butler's grandmother, reported he raped her repeatedly in February 1991. At the time, he was serving 10 years' probation after pleading guilty to indecency with a 7-year-old girl.

McSpadden said he hoped lawmakers are paying attention to the case because the law doesn't deter crime.

The irreversible procedure Butler will undergo is orchiectomy, the surgical removal of one or both testes. When the testes, which produce the male hormone testosterone, are removed, the sexual drive is greatly diminished.

Castration does not necessarily eliminate a man's ability to have an erection.

The judge said when Butler inquired about castration as a punishment, he told defense attorney Clyde Williams that the procedure must be surgical, rather than chemical, so it would be irreversible.

"I told Ms. Williams I would insist upon surgical rather than the chemical because the chemical, after the 10 years on probation, I would have no control on him and I could not guarantee that the injections would be given after that time," McSpadden said.

Hawkins said the punishment probably would be considered cruel if it had been ordered by a judge.

"But it's something he's doing voluntarily," Hawkins said. "It's his decision. It's his body."

Disney protest ends write-in campaign for Mickey Mouse

RAYMONDVILLE (AP) — Mickey Mouse will not be the new district attorney for Willacy County. He's been forced to withdraw from the race.

Paul Whitworth, publisher of the Raymondville Chronicle and Willacy County News, had been touting Mickey as a write-in candidate in a protest campaign against District Attorney Juan Angel Guerra.

The cartoon mouse even had some supporters.

But a letter from Walt Disney Productions has put an end to the campaign, Whitworth said Friday.

"They were real nice about it," he said.

Whitworth began the campaign because he opposed Guerra, who is running unchallenged in Tuesday's Democratic primary.

Guerra took it all in stride.

"If Mickey Mouse does get elected district attorney, I'll be more than happy to work as one of his assistants," Guerra told the San Antonio Express-News before the campaign ended. "We should be able to get along fine."

Whitworth said, however, that his former candidate will probably still show up on a few ballots.

"I think a good deal of people who were going to vote for Mickey Mouse have already voted," he said. "I think Mickey'll get a large number of votes."

PAINTER: "FAMOUS" FOR BAD REASONS

Last Sunday on Channel 13, Sheriff Painter said he is running for re-election "on his record." Then he flippantly asked each of his opponents: "WHAT ARE YOU FAMOUS FOR?"

His 3 opponents admitted they weren't famous, and didn't particularly want to be. Of course, the BEST sheriffs don't become famous. They just quietly do their jobs.

But since Painter likes his "FAME" ... let's look at some FACTS that made him famous.

PAINTER IS FAMOUS FOR HAVING HIS NARCOTICS STOLEN BY BURGLARS ... NOT ONCE, BUT TWICE ... IN JUST 2 YEARS. UNBELIEVABLE!!!

In 1987, Painter's narcotics storage facility was burglarized and his narcotics stolen. A number of cases had to be dismissed for lack of evidence. Again in 1989 more than 200 pounds of his marijuana (over $100,000 worth) was burglarized from another storage facility. Painter has never said (if he knows) who leaked information to dope dealers about where it was stored. The dope was put back on the streets. The Sheriff's office demonstrated negligence at best.

PAINTER IS FAMOUS FOR HIDING PUBLIC RECORDS FROM THE PUBLIC.

In 1990, Painter refused to allow The Dallas Morning News to see some of his public records. The News filed (and won) a lawsuit to make him let them see the records.

PAINTER IS FAMOUS FOR REFUSING TO KEEP RECORDS AS REQUIRED BY LAW.

When The Dallas News sued him, it was learned that he had not been preparing the narcotics records that the law requires. No wonder he was hiding from the newspaper.

PAINTER IS FAMOUS FOR DESTROYING OFFICIAL NARCOTICS RECORDS.

Not only did Painter refuse to prepare all the records that the law demands, he even destroyed some records that he did have. He couldn't explain why. The result is that Painter's records do not show what happened to several tons of his marijuana.

PAINTER IS FAMOUS FOR HUMILIATING INNOCENT PEOPLE ON TELEVISION.

In 1989, Painter took a TV camera crew to a local junior high school during school hours to arrest and handcuff a black school teacher, then parade him through the halls in front of his students and fellow teachers. Although Painter obviously wanted the public to think the teacher was guilty, the 12 jurors found him "NOT GUILTY." But Painter doesn't treat everybody equally. When his old friend, Marfa

Sheriff Rick Thompson, was indicted for smuggling 2400 pounds of cocaine from Mexico, Painter again went on TV but this time, it was to testify that Thompson was innocent. But Thompson admits he's guilty. Painter used the power of his office to maliciously humiliate someone, then turned around and arrogantly used the prestige of his office to influence public opinion in favor of his personal friend.

PAINTER IS FAMOUS FOR DESTROYING AN EXPENSIVE COUNTY HELICOPTER ... ALL FOR A TV PUBLICITY STUNT

In 1988, Painter had to move some cattle. Instead of herding them by usual methods, a deputy used the County's helicopter. While hovering 3 or 4 feet above ground, a cow hooked it with a horn and crashed it. The event did indeed help make him famous: The nationwide supermarket tabloid The World featured the story with a cartoon of the ridiculous incident.

PAINTER IS FAMOUS FOR CHARGING PURCHASES TO MIDLAND COUNTY, THEN ... BREAKING HIS PERSONAL PROMISE TO PAY FOR THEM.

In 1988, Painter took a well-publicized trip to the scene of Hurricane Gilbert in Mexico. Before he left, he bought $6,432.40 worth of food and supplies for the relief effort, and charged it all to Midland County. Of course, Painter had no more authority to charge the County for non-official purchases than any other citizen. When merchants later threatened to sue the County to get paid for the merchandise, Painter promised the County Commissioners that if they would pay the bills, he would reimburse the County. The County Commissioners ... the same people who Painter claims mistreated him ... agreed to go along, and paid the bills. Painter broke his promise. Now, more than 3 years later, he has not repaid a penny of it. (Meanwhile, however, he somehow found enough money to hire a Dallas lawyer to try his case against the Commissioners who were willing to help him out.)

PAINTER IS FAMOUS FOR VIOLATING THE LAW BY TAKING $449,950 OUT OF MIDLAND, DEPRIVING MIDLAND COUNTY OF BENEFITS.

In 1990, one of Painter's deputies seized $449,950 in cash from a drug dealer in a Midland motel room. The law specifies that "sting" money will be forfeited in the "county in which the property is seized." Painter ignored the law, and took the money to Ward County, and turned it over to the Hal Upchurch and Ronald Tucker, who were indicted in January for misappropriating other sting money. As a result, the Midland County District Attorney's Office was deprived of more than $100,000. (Because Painter chose to disregard the law, the visiting District Judge on February 26 entered a special order prohibiting him from wrongfully removing money from Midland County in the future.)

PAINTER IS FAMOUS FOR ATTEMPTING AN "INTERNATIONAL ARMS STING," WHEN HE DIDN'T HAVE THE SLIGHTEST IDEA HOW TO GO ABOUT IT.

In 1987, Painter got the ABC TV network to set up a hidden camera to videotape a foreign citizen in the act of "buying" some stolen American "missile parts" that were said to be in some crates at the "crime scene." When the "buyer" asked to see the parts, Painter's people arrested him. Painter then joined Ted Koppel on NIGHTLINE to tell the nation how he had captured an "international arms dealer" in the act of conspiring to steal American missile parts. The case had to be dismissed. The crates did not contain missile parts at all; they were filled with worthless gravel. Painter had tried to set up a sensational crime, but he didn't know how. No crime was committed. It is not a crime to buy missile parts that don't exist, from a man who doesn't have any. (If Painter had information that the man was an arms dealer, he should have told the FBI. The information might have been useful to the U.S. government. We'll never know. Painter obviously didn't care about that; he was too busy becoming famous.)

PAINTER IS NOT YET FAMOUS FOR THE FOLLOWING, ... BUT MAY BE SOON!!!

1. On January 22, 1990, the Ward County District Court awarded $65,000 to the Midland County Sheriff's Office. All but $18,000 of it was deposited into the Sheriff's Narcotics Account. What happened to the $18,000? Painter has testified under oath that he does not know what happened to it. That's not a good answer. It's his duty to know!!!
2. And still another $8,170.90 is missing without explanation. Between October 1, 1990, and January 13, 1992, Painter had checks totalling $75,400 made payable to himself or one of his deputies, to be cashed and the proceeds used to pay informants and to buy illegal drugs. Painter is required to keep receipts showing exactly what is done with the cash, but he simply cannot account for at least $8,170.90. What happened to the money? Again, Painter "doesn't know," and it doesn't seem to bother him that he doesn't know.
3. Since 1988, Painter has spent $734,000 that he got from his seizure ventures in other counties and states. The State of Texas has filed suit claiming that the money was not Painter's to spend, that under the law that money should have been deposited into the State Treasury. If the State wins, Midland County could have to come up with $734,000 in tax money, and also pay the State $245,000 that Painter collected but has not yet spent.

This ad is sponsored by Citizens of Midland County who believe in strong, effective, honest law enforcement. They are not supporting any one candidate, but include supporters of all the candidates who want a change in the Sheriff's office. Many voted for Sheriff Painter in the past, but feel we now need a new Sheriff as soon as possible.

The sponsors would rather not publicly criticize Sheriff Painter, but they believe it is important that the people who live in Midland County know about some of the unfortunate consequences of his management of the county's main law enforcement agency, so that they may decide whether to allow him to remain in there for 4 more years.

If you wish to help pay for future ads in support of a change in the Sheriff's office, you may send a contribution to the address shown below.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Thanks to wise investments, you will soon be in the money! Try a new approach to romance next month. Travel will bring you and your partner closer together. Family members may demand a lot of your attention in September. Widen your social circle to include people from different walks of life. Parenthood proves especially rewarding as the winter holidays near. Move to another residence early in 1993.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: tennis star Ivan Lendl, auto racer Janet Guthrie, football great Lynn Swann, actor Daniel J. Travanti.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A positive attitude helps you improve your rapport with mate. Excitement builds on the rollercoaster called Romance. Simplify your business dealings and eliminate unnecessary spending.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An unexpected visit from an out-of-towner makes this a memorable day. Artistic projects and handicrafts hold special appeal. Reading will help you keep up to date in your field.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Settle a financial disagreement with a friend or relative. Then, spend the day relaxing with family members. You feel more creative than in the recent past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are a magnet for both luck and love now. Be enthusiastic about cultivating new alliances. Your ESP is right on target where a financial offer is concerned. Protect your resources.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your new perspective on an alliance helps your relationship take a significant step forward. Join forces with someone who can aid your career. Self-improvement activities boost your confidence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are laying an excellent foundation for a strong relationship. You and your partner see eye-to-eye, heart-to-heart. Keep entertainment expenditures down if eager to build savings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your charm is at a record high today. Mix and mingle — you may find the love of your life or an outstanding business contact. You are happiest when with a kindred soul.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Certain relationships threaten to boil over now. Turn down the heat. You will be at your best in a sports competition.

Give visiting VIPs the red-carpet treatment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lend a hand to someone who is falling behind at work. A temporary sacrifice leads to long-lasting rewards. Your associates will hold you in higher esteem. Collect on an old debt.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A business agreement points the way to a brighter future. Welcome a newcomer. Events at a distance sound promising. It is time to make your secret desires known to that special someone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keeping a low profile may be your best course of action today. An associate is in a stormy mood. Egos could clash. Be sure to give credit where it is due. Acknowledge helpful suggestions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A secret wish comes true if you meet privately with someone in a position to help you. Act confident when it comes to romance; doubts can be contagious. Make long-range plans.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are thoughtful, well-mannered and determined to make the world a better place to live. They are appalled by cruelty and will never intentionally hurt someone's feelings. Any vocation devoted to helping others will suit these idealistic Pisces to a T. An evening at home with a few close pals is far more appealing to them than going out on the town. Family and friends will always be a top priority.

Nick Nolte gets nickname of '92's Sexiest Man Alive

NEW YORK — Nick Nolte is People magazine's latest "Sexiest Man Alive."

"Are you sure you didn't make a mistake?" the actor asked. "My personal choice is Walter Cronkite."

Nolte, 51, is in some hunky company. Past honorees went to Mel Gibson, Mark Harmon, Harry Hamlin, John F. Kennedy Jr., Sean Connery, Tom Cruise and Patrick Swayze.

Nolte will be featured in the March 16 issue. His selection was lauded by some pretty boys.

"He's got much more sex appeal than I do," Warren Beatty said.

"I'd pay $7 just to watch him walk down the street," said Luke Perry of television's "Beverly Hills 90210."

Nolte is up for an Academy Award for his portrayal of a Southern football coach in "The Prince of Tides."

NEW YORK — Socialite Brooke Astor got a head start on celebrating her 90th birthday with a bash at an armory.

A Marine band helped entertain 1,500 guests Thursday night at the dinner-dance, though Mrs. Astor's birthday isn't until March 30.

"I never imagined 90," she said. "I used to think people at 40 were old."

A rose-covered gazebo, borrowed chandeliers and thousands of sparkling lights on artificial trees adorned the cavernous armory.

Mayor David Dinkins had the first dance with Mrs. Astor and Walter Cronkite praised her philanthropic contributions to the city. The guest list also included Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Laurence and David Rockefeller.

Mrs. Astor has channeled millions to such institutions as the New York Public Library, the New York Zoological Society, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Pierpont Morgan Library.

The party, staged by the producers of Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, was a benefit for a New York group.

Mrs. Astor's third husband was Vincent Astor. He died in 1959, leaving her in control of his personal foundation.

PHILADELPHIA — Former hostage Joseph Cicippio will throw out the ceremonial first pitch when the Philadelphia Phillies open their baseball season April 7 against the Chicago Cubs.

Cicippio, of nearby Norristown, was held 1,908 days in Lebanon. He was released in December.

It's the Phillies' first daytime home opener since 1984.

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer-composer Christopher Mason, known for biting lyrics about the upper crust, isn't the average entertainment at a party to celebrate the Jewish holiday Purim.

But on Tuesday night, more than 500 guests will gather at the posh Waldorf-Astoria for the masked Purim Ball of the Jewish Museum.

"At our first meeting, the ladies of the committee looked at me curiously over their spectacles," the sprite-like Mason said Thursday.

"I could see they were wondering if I could pull it off. ... I sang the songs for the committee and they were overjoyed. I was greatly relieved."

Mason plans to perform songs about Queen Esther, the Jewish wife of the king of Persia who saved the Jews there from the wicked Haman. Purim, a day-long holiday that celebrates the queen, begins at sundown March 18.

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumer affairs reporter Betty Furness said she has only one regret about NBC dropping her after 16 years on "Today."

"I'm going to lose a title as the oldest reporter working on network television."

Furness is 76. The network said Thursday it will not renew her contract.

She makes her farewell appearance March 18. Furness said NBC told her they wanted to do more investigative consumer reporting.

"I did see it coming," she said. "But, it still came as a surprise. No, I was not shocked, just disappointed."

Furness may return to television for special appearances. She has worked for WNBC, the network's New York City station, for 18 years.

Furness began in movies and gained fame in the 1950s for TV commercials. In 1967, she was appointed President Lyndon Johnson's special assistant for consumer affairs.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mariah Carey, Phil Donahue, Macaulay Culkin and racehorse Black Tie Affair are being honored for their common roots.

Irish America Magazine put them on this year's list of top Irish-Americans.

The magazine named Tony O'Reilly, Heinz chairman and chief executive, its Irish-American of the year. He founded the philanthropic American Ireland Fund.

AIDS patients suffer certain hardships living in suburbs

Eya Navarro
N.Y. Times News Service

When Carmen D. Rivera, who has AIDS, needed a prescription filled recently, she had to wait five days. The drug she wanted, DDI, is commonly used by AIDS patients, but she could not find a pharmacist near her home in Rockland County, N.Y., who carried it. Some had not even heard of it.

Ms. Rivera, 36, also has no doctor to call her own. Few physicians in her area specialize in HIV-related illnesses and even fewer accept Medicaid patients.

Her most consistent care has been on an emergency basis. She has been hospitalized six times in the last 10 months. "Having to tell a new doctor you have AIDS is hard," she said. "You shouldn't have to go through this every time."

Eleven years into the AIDS epidemic, such hardships are still common among people with HIV who are scattered across suburban enclaves and rural areas in the New York region.

Though they are away from the stress and expense of the cities, their communities often remain oblivious to the disease and ill-equipped to offer help. People who live outside the city are less likely to see AIDS as a problem that touches their lives.

A POLL CONDUCTED by The New York Times last November found that 47 percent of those interviewed in New York City saw AIDS as not much of a problem in their communities. In some suburban areas, like Rockland County, 62 percent felt that way.

In the big urban centers with high AIDS case loads and aggressive advocacy, AIDS is still a difficult disease. The needs it creates, from affordable housing to long-term nursing care, have yet to be fully addressed. Some complaints, like a shortage of clinics, insensitive hospital workers and a slow bureaucracy, can still be heard in the cities.

But in rural and suburban areas, coping with AIDS has its own idiosyncrasies.

Chances of misdiagnosis by inexperienced doctors are much higher. There is little or no governmental help for rent or food, and doctors and clinics may be more than an hour's drive away. Access to sophisticated programs, like drug trials, is extremely limited.

ed. And finding emotional support can be a problem.

Daniel Hopper, who is Ms. Rivera's boyfriend and is also infected, said one support group he attended actually left him feeling worse. The fledgling group lacked any professional counseling.

"I TOLD THEM once I was suicidal and they said thank you for sharing," Hopper, 32, said.

Secrecy also remains an important factor. The stigma attached to AIDS is still daunting, keeping many from organizing themselves or using the services that are offered.

Sometimes the dearth of AIDS-related programs reflects the low incidence of HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, in a particular area. Reported AIDS cases as of last December numbered as few as one or two in Hamilton and Wyoming Counties, N.Y., compared with nearly 40,000 in New York City.

But there are also pockets with a high prevalence of HIV where essential services are not there. Part of the problem is a lack of money, state health officials and advocates for people with AIDS say.

But a bigger part, they say, is an unwillingness by suburban and rural residents and local government officials to acknowledge the presence of AIDS.

This has hampered prevention efforts, they say, and local planning to keep AIDS from overwhelming existing services in the future.

THE NEW YORK Times poll found that in the city 42 percent of respondents said they knew someone who had AIDS or who had died from it, while in the region outside the city, 34 percent did. The poll, based on interviews with 2,550 adults, has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus three percentage points.

Transportation is an increasingly daunting problem as people become ill and have difficulty traveling, particularly long distances by bus or train. But more than convenience is at stake.

Stephen B., 33, of Plattsburgh, N.Y., said a local doctor once failed to diagnose a form of pneumonia that is often fatal in AIDS patients, sending him home with some pills instead. When he did not improve, he said, he went to an AIDS clinic 35 miles away in Vermont, and he was hospitalized immediately.

Robert Linder, 48, of Sparta, N.J., told of a local retina specialist who could not come up with a treatment when he started losing vision in his right eye. A specialist in New York City immediately recognized the condition as CMV retinitis, a herpes virus infection, and prescribed the necessary drug.

Linder, who runs a photo processing business and two radio stations, tested positive for AIDS in 1985. He attributes his survival to his ability to get to the city for care.

"A DOCTOR IN the city may be able to catch something earlier than it is not so obvious," he said.

Rockland County, with 200 reported AIDS cases and one of the highest newborn infection rates in the state outside New York City, is considered a high-incidence area for AIDS.

Most cases stem from sex — about 40 percent of the cases are among gay or bisexual men and about 25 percent nearly equally divided between men and women who were infected through heterosexual contact.

But HIV-infected residents in Rockland County have to go to a neighboring county or farther for specialized medical care. The county last month inaugurated its first AIDS outpatient clinic, in Pomona, but it is open only one day a week.

"Under the circumstances, that's really all we can do," said the county's health commissioner, Dr. Marvin Thalenberg, citing a lack of money and staff.

Those private groups and public clinics that do offer AIDS services are, as a result, swamped. One support group in Rockland County says it has been overwhelmed by requests for help.

"At first there was denial that the organization was needed but when it's available now people are pouring in," said Robert J. Olley, executive director of Together, Our Unity Can Heal, a three-year-old group.

Many of those infected blame much of the inaction on a prevailing attitude that AIDS is a disease of homosexual men and intravenous drug users.

In Rockland County, Long Island and other areas, however, heterosexual sex accounts for a third or more of the reported AIDS cases in women.

Hill Country wood choppers make old-fashioned living off land

By Greg Perliski
Associated Press

KERRVILLE (AP) — In today's world of computers and nuclear power, it's hard to imagine anyone earning a living chopping wood.

But it happens in the Texas Hill Country.

Although the small industry has shrunk to a fraction of what it was 20 years ago, there is still a group of men who make money selling wood.

They look for it, cut it, haul it and sell it. And one Ingram man does it 365 days a year.

Charlie Evans, 66, has lived in Ingram for 28 years. In the Hill Country, he's known as a "wood chopper."

"I've been hauling wood I guess since about 1965," Evans says.

On this wintry day, he sits in a comfortable chair, relaxing. Dressed in boots, blue jeans and a lived-in Stetson tipped over his wrinkled brow, Evans conjures traditional images of the Texas cowboy.

But Evans doesn't have every afternoon off. At least twice a week, 52 weeks a year, Evans makes the 150-mile round trip to San Antonio to deliver wood.

His primary customer: Balous Miller, of Bill Miller Bar-B-Que.

The Evans family and the Millers have a generational connection to wood chopping.

"I've been hauling since way back when his daddy started,"

Charlie says, noting that Balous Miller inherited the business from his father, Bill. The Millers have been cooking brisket in San Antonio since the mid-1950s.

Since Balous graduated from college in 1966, he has worked in the family business, watching it grow from one restaurant in San Antonio to 47 in different cities, including Austin, Corpus Christi and Laredo. In that time, he has learned there is only one way to cook barbecue: on a fire fueled by Hill Country live oak.

And that's where Charlie Evans steps in.

Each week, Miller burns ten cords of Charlie's oak.

"That is a hell of a lot of wood," Balous Miller says.

A cord of wood is stacked 4 feet high, 4 feet wide and 8 feet long. So take those measurements and multiply by 20 to find how much wood Charlie hauls to San Antonio in a week.

Charlie gets the wood by clearing land on area ranches. He currently is working on some acreage about 20 miles north of Kerrville on Harper road.

"Out here where I'm at, the owner wants it cleared off to make grass," Charlie says. "You usually leave a tree or two so it will grow back."

Typically, a landowner will stipulate what areas of his property Charlie can cut, but the wood he hauls away is his to sell.

Charlie's wood chopping operation includes his son, Clyde, 26, brother Carl, 58, and Wayne Lee, 46.

After stops for coffee and gasoline, the four men head out to cut around eight or nine o'clock in the morning.

Clyde is the youngest of Charlie's four sons; he has worked with his father since he was 12.

Once they find an area of trees to cut, Charlie and Wayne arm themselves with chainsaws and begin patrolling for "Miller Wood." Balous Miller prefers logs three to four feet in length.

A smell of the oil-rich gasoline mixture penetrating to the back of the throat and a high whine of chainsaws mark the beginning of work.

Charlie and Wayne guide their bulky saws like magic wands. In two to three seconds, a medium-sized live oak is down; in another five seconds half of it is sliced into logs.

While Charlie and Wayne chop and shape trees into logs, Clyde and Carl pile the wood on the flat bed. In about three hours, they've stacked a truckload.

Charlie Evans' skill comes from experience and injury. Two years ago, he nearly sliced his toes off with a chainsaw.

"I cut my foot down back behind my toes. I got it there and there," he said, pointing to spots on his foot. "They had to put it in a cast and everything."

Workers comp case could change present system

AUSTIN — (NYT) It's been years since Bill Robson, an executive with the Luby's Cafeteria chain, felt good about the way workers compensation is administered in Texas.

Robson has seen three years of stable premiums replace the spiraling rates his company paid in the mid-1980s, and he's giving credit for the change to the Workers Compensation Reform Act of 1989.

"Obviously, the cost of doing business is a factor in your company's profits, and workers comp was representing a very large portion of our doing business," he said.

The new system, which took partial effect last year and is scheduled to continue a three-year phase-in, appears to be working as designed — and is winning widespread praise from business and insurance interests that helped push it through the Legislature.

All that could change, however, with a case set for hearing Tuesday in a South Texas appeals court.

A state judge has ruled that benefits awarded under the new system are too arbitrary and that it unfairly limits an injured workers' access to the courts.

Organized labor and plaintiff attorney interests that initiated the lawsuit see the new system as too pro-business and want it thrown out altogether.

"It's one of those things that on the surface seems to give a lot ... but people's rights have been severely diminished under the new law," said Bill Altman of Wichita Falls and Fort Worth, one of the state's leading personal injury attorneys.

The new system was designed to give businesses, insurance companies and workers a more predictable method to calculate benefits. A key goal was to reduce involvement by trial lawyers, personal injury attorneys who sue insurance companies and businesses on behalf of injured workers.

Business and insurance groups claim plaintiff lawyers take advantage of sympathetic juries to win excessive awards.

"We think it is doing just what the Legislature intended to do," said Dick Geiger, a Dallas attorney who represents insurance companies. "It's taken getting accustomed to, but all-in-all the insurers are pleased with the way it is working and hopefully the court will keep it on track."

A recent Texas Department of Insurance study found support for the argument that the system is working as designed. It found that:

— The number of claims being filed statewide stabilized at a rate 1.2 percent lower for the first six months of 1991 than during the same period a year earlier.

— The cost of compensating injured workers dropped 10.9 percent in the same period.

— Attorney involvement dropped from 95 percent of all cases under the old law to 55 percent last year.

The reforms were the first major changes in a law adopted in Texas in 1913. Under that system, an employer's insurance company had to pay an injured worker medical bills and lost wages, but the worker gave up the right to sue the employer for negligence.

By the mid-1980s, workers had begun hiring plaintiff attorneys to represent them in hearings to determine whether damages were owed, and many businesses and insurers began routinely settling cases out of court.

Organized labor and other groups who want the court to overturn the new system, which relies largely on mediation and arbitration rather than litigation agree it is working as planned. In their opinion that's the problem.

"I think it is doing what they intended for it to do," said Emmett Sheppard, legislative director for the Texas AFL-CIO. "They have rates under control, but it's being done on the backs of injured workers."

Nine months ago, a doctor told Brain Talkovic, a 33-year-old truck driver living in Austin, that years of stooping and heavy lifting on the job had wrecked his knees.

Talkovic was forced to temporarily quit work and undergo physical therapy, but his insurance company refused to pay a claim he filed for medical expenses.

During six months of rehabilitation, Talkovic was told he could not collect unemployment; his wife, a state employee, was forced to raid her retirement plan to meet their living expenses; and at one point he was forced to borrow money from his parents.

"I got an attorney and that was what got the ball rolling," The case still is in litigation.

Archeologist discovers bird god

By Charles Petit
N.Y. Times News Service

A UCLA archeologist Thursday revealed the discovery of a huge stone head of a bird god, 34 feet wide and 16 feet high, on a long-buried pyramid in the Guatemalan rain forest, and said its date takes Mayan civilization back earlier than previously believed.

Scholars familiar with the immense carving, dated at prior to 300 B.C., agree that it is not only the oldest but also the largest such decoration ever found on the Mayan ruins that dot tens of thousands of square miles of humid lowlands in Guatemala, Honduras, Belize, and Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula.

It is on the base of a pyramid 150 feet high and 250 feet across that was hacked out of the jungle. Mayan experts said previous carvings had been dated to 150 B.C. at the earliest.

It means, experts say, that Mayan civilization used the same core symbols for at least 1,500 years and perhaps longer, making their civilization one of the longest in history, much longer than other New World cultures such as the Incas or Aztecs.

Although modern-day Mayans maintain parts of their traditional culture and religion, their earlier civilization, with its sophisticated astronomy and mathematics and construction of hundreds of limestone pyramids, had largely collapsed by about A.D. 1200. Reasons for the Mayan decline are obscure, but experts suspect climate change, exhaustion of the soil, warfare, or all three.

Richard Hansen, the leader of the discovery team, said the find and surrounding ruins, largely unexplored, put him in a "race against time" with looters.

Hansen, a research associate at the Isotope and Archaeometry Laboratory at the University of California at Los Angeles, started excavating the site in 1988. Called Nakbe, it is in the Peten region of northern Guatemala.

Starting at least 1,000 years B.C., Hansen said, Nakbe was the center of a thriving, growing culture and may have been near the ancestral source of Mayan culture.

The dig shows that Mayans were building tremendous structures in the jungle by about 600 B.C. and were decorating them in elaborate style by 300 B.C.

The site was spotted from the air in 1930 and was briefly explored in 1962 by Harvard archeologist Ian Graham. Only recently, however, has its age and extent become clear.

"It's a fabulous, enormous architectural site," Hansen said in a telephone interview Thursday from his ranch in Idaho, where he maintains a small lab and from which he commutes to Los Angeles. He said he is returning to Guatemala and Nakbe next week to excavate more.

"The excavation by Hansen provides a spectacular glimpse of the earliest Mayan architectural decoration," said David Freidel, professor of anthropology at Southern Methodist University and an authority on Mayan deities. The discovery is just among the most recent of a series of new finds that makes Mayan archeology "absolutely, incredibly the liveliest it has ever been," Freidel said.

The carving appears to portray a deity called Itzam-Ye, said Freidel. This is a bird-like being associated in Mayan cosmology with the creation of the universe and with the Big Dipper constellation. The name, which he recently derived by analysis of old Mayan carvings and the contemporary Mayan language, means "magic giver." The deity, Freidel said, "is mainstream Maya religion, which means that by 300 B.C., the Maya state religion was well established."

Freidel said that the same basic image is featured on the frieze work at such subsequent ceremonial centers, familiar to tourists, as Chichen Itza in Mexico and Copan in Honduras, both built 1,000 or more years later. It also appears in the few, fragmentary Mayan books that survived destruction at the hands of Spanish Catholic priests in the 1500s.

South Africa's drought spreads

By Jane Perlez
N.Y. Times News Service

NAIROBI, Kenya — As corn stalks lie withered on baked soil and dams show perilously low levels of water, southern Africa is in the grip of its worst drought this century, and meteorologists warn that it is spreading north to engulf the entire eastern side of the continent.

While drought is commonplace in certain regions of Africa, weather and food experts say this year's dry spell is extraordinary for its sweep through food-exporting countries, which normally escape severe drought.

"There is now a major drought from the Cape to Cairo that is really a serious, serious matter," said Harold Norton, the representative of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization in Kenya, who has worked in Africa for the last 25 years. "All the countries from South Africa to East Africa, all the way to Cairo, will be importing grains this year."

With the commitments to the nations of the former Soviet Union making bigger than ever demands on the West's free food supply, Norton and officials of the U.S. Agency for International Development said adjustments would have to be made in the allocations of humanitarian food if the normally self-sufficient African countries are to be helped.

"The United States is beginning to reassess food needs worldwide in order to help southern Africa," Ted Morse, the director of the U.S. Agency for International Development's office in Zimbabwe said.

The failure of rains, accompanied by unusually hot temperatures for the planting seasons in South Africa and Zimbabwe, means that these two food-exporting countries will have to import vast amounts of grain for the first time in memory, food experts said.

In Zimbabwe, the hardest hit of all the countries, acute water shortages are threatening the shutdown of industries centered around the town of Bulawayo, and schools have already started to close.

Farther north, Kenya, its dams at their lowest levels in 50 years but with a population that has burgeoned since then, will have to import grain for the first time in eight years, according to the FAO.

An urgent warning issued by the World Meteorological Organization's drought-monitoring center for eastern and southern Africa says the coming seasonal rains will be weak in Tanzania, Kenya and Ethiopia.

The head of the drought monitoring center, Dr. Workneh Degefu, said poor rains in Ethiopia would affect not only that country but also Egypt because the major source of the Nile River lies in eastern Ethiopia.

Sudan, which from time to time is a grain-exporting country, will be importing food again this year because of drought, Norton said.

Weather experts said the dramatically poor rainfall was because of the meteorological phenomenon known as El Nino.

Ukrainians, Russians dispute embassy claim

By Donald M. Rothberg
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — A dispute over prime Washington real estate is proving as nettlesome for Russia and Ukraine to resolve as command of the Black Sea fleet.

At issue is who controls at least $20 million worth of diplomatic properties once held by the Soviet Union, including the ornate Edwardian embassy that's within walking distance of the White House.

"The Russian position is: 'It's all ours,'" said embassy spokesman Georgy Oganov.

The Ukrainian position might best be described as: "The hell it is."

The Russians are offering the Ukrainians office space, but the Kiev government insists on a cash settlement to set up its own diplomatic shop.

The dispute could widen as other former Soviet republics decide it's time to underline their independence with separate embassies.

The impressive property list includes the red brick mansion, five blocks north of the White House, that serves as the embassy. It also counts a $2 million home in an exclusive residential neighborhood, an apartment building, two condominiums and a parking lot.

The embassy building alone is valued by the District of Columbia at $7.2 million. It was designed in 1910 by Nathan Corwith Wyeth. The year before, Wyeth drew the plans for the Oval Office in the White House.

The tsarist government bought the mansion in 1913, and the Soviets made it their embassy when they finally won U.S. recognition in 1933.

While the embassy is one of the capital's classic buildings, the most valuable property isn't yet fully controlled by the Russians.

Not included on the list obtained from District of Columbia real estate tax records was the $70 million hilltop complex built to provide offices and housing for the sprawling Soviet diplomatic bureaucracy. That complex, however, is tied up by the dispute over the KGB bugging of the new U.S. embassy in Moscow.

Russia quickly received recognition as the successor state to the defunct Soviet Union. The Russians took over the Soviet seat on the U.N. Security Council and have Western backing to take control of the Soviet nuclear arsenal.

But on more down-to-earth matters, the other former Soviet republics insist on displays of their independence.

Recently, President Mircea Snegur of Moldova paid an official visit to Washington. Rather than spend scarce resources on a hotel, he arranged for embassy accommodations — not with the Russians, but with the Romanians.

The dispute with Ukraine over the diplomatic property is part of that mindset.

But a source familiar with the negotiations said the Ukrainian attitude is: "We paid for it with products, production and lives" and deserve a monetary settlement for a fair share of the property.
