Midland Reporter-Telegram

Daily 35¢, Sunday $1 — THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1986 — Vol. 61 No. 110

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

A Midland firefighter hoses down the inside of motor home that caught fire Wednesday as Mr. and Mrs. Preston McCoy of Atlanta, Ga., were returning home from a vacation. McCoy suffered minor burns.

Affirmative action ruling called 'defeat'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is conceding defeat — at least for now — in its five-year crusade to break the Supreme Court's embrace of an expansive view of affirmative action.

"There is no question that the court did not agree with the position advanced by the administration...that they ruled against us in both of these cases," Attorney General Edwin Meese said after the court announced two decisions Wednesday that gave the civil rights movement its most sweeping victory of the 1980s.

The justices said preferential treatment of blacks and other minorities in the American work place does not have to be limited — as the administration urged — to actual victims of discrimination.

The rulings also can be applied to affirmative action programs for women.

Julius Levonne Chambers, chief lawyer for the Legal Defense and Educational Fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the court "has given new faith to minorities and other disadvantaged groups. Blacks, other minorities and women can take heart."

Meese's remarks Wednesday contrasted sharply with earlier claims by administration officials that the high court was retreating from its approval of on-the-job preferences.

In 1984, the court threw out a Memphis, Tenn., plan protecting the city fire department jobs of minorities and women at the expense of white men with more seniority.

Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division, called the 1984 ruling "an exhilarating decision."

Rex Lee, the government's former chief courtroom lawyer, said then the Memphis case ruling was a "slam dunk...one of the greatest victories of all time."

But the administration had trouble convincing lower courts the 1984 ruling was everything government lawyers said it was.

Last May, the Supreme Court overturned a Jackson, Mich., plan that protected black public school teachers from layoffs at the expense of whites with more seniority.

Charles Fried, Lee's successor as solicitor general, said that decision showed the court "rather firmly embraced" the administration's position.

And Reynolds said the May decision bolstered his effort to persuade President Reagan to narrow substantially a 21-year-old executive order that requires affirmative action by government contractors.

But after Wednesday's twin rulings, it seems apparent the court will uphold many broad affirmative action plans as long as they do not mean white males with more seniority are thrown out of work.

The justices drew sharp distinctions between preferential treatment in laying off workers and in hiring and promoting them.

Justice William J. Brennan, in the court's main opinion, said broad preferences are appropriate "where an employer or a labor union has engaged in persistent or egregious discrimination, or where necessary to dissipate the lingering effects of pervasive discrimination."

He added: "The purpose of affirmative action is not to make identified victims whole, but rather to dismantle prior patterns of employment discrimination and to prevent discrimination in the future."

Traveler injured in motor home fire

By PATRICK CRIMMINS

The vacation of an Atlanta couple was abruptly interrupted Wednesday when their motor home caught fire while they were driving on Interstate 20, fire officials said.

Preston McCoy, 51, of Atlanta, Ga., was treated for minor burns on his left arm after he and his wife Bettye, who was uninjured, escaped the blaze about 11 a.m. Wednesday.

The fire, which began in the engine compartment and quickly spread, destroyed the motor home.

The blaze also clogged I-20 traffic for several minutes as officials closed both eastbound lanes until the fire was under control.

The couple, who had been vacationing in Arizona and California, were driving eastbound near the Garden City exit on I-20 when Mrs. McCoy said she smelled smoke.

"We smelled some smoke and pulled over," said Mrs. McCoy. "We jumped out and by that time everything was in flames."

Three units and 10 firefighters from Midland were dispatched to the 28-foot vehicle parked just off the shoulder of I-20 about a mile west of the Garden City exit.

"I noticed the smoke, and my wife said it probably was an oil smell or something, but I stopped and got out, and when I looked at the engine and saw the smoke and fire I went back in and got the fire extinguisher, McCoy said.

"Then two gentlemen stopped and one of them had a fire extinguisher, and I think one of them almost had the thing contained, but then it just went."

Bill Lang of Odessa was traveling behind McCoy, saw the smoke and tried to reach him on his citizens band radio.

Basin ranked as critical ground water area

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission Wednesday named most of Midland County and a portion of Ector County as one of 17 critical ground water areas in the state.

Designation of the critical areas is the first official action taken by the commission's new Ground Water Conservation Section. Within the next few months, the agency will conduct public hearings in all 17 areas named Wednesday.

Those hearings are designed to create awareness of ground water problems, as well as solicit input from interested citizens, said Max Woodfin, environmental coordinator for the commission.

"We'll find out whether they (local residents) agree with the boundaries we've created and whether they agree that there is a problem," he said.

In the Midland area, cities and industries have overpumped ground water supplies, Woodfin said, adding that there is also "a potential for contamination from oil field activities in the area."

Woodfin said the commission has already begun programs to protect the state's ground water, including regulation of underground injection wells, the registration of underground storage tanks and an oversight of mining shafts that pierce aquifers.

Other areas in the state that the commission has designated as critical for groundwater include: most of the High Plains, Houston, Orange County, the Edwards Limestone Reservoir area, the Winter Garden area, the Lufkin, Nacogdoches, Tyler and Kilgore area, parts of the Pecos, Reeves, Ward, Loving and Winkler counties, parts of the El Paso area, the Bandera, Boerne, Dripping Springs and Florence area, the Kingsville area, rice irrigation areas in Jackson and Wharton counties, Haskell and Knox counties, Schleicher County, the Van Horn area and the Dell City area.

Apology pleases teachers

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Local educators believe Gov. Mark White took a step in the right direction when he publicly apologized for the stress caused by the teacher competency test, but say he'll have to do more to gain their support before the General Election this fall.

White last week said he was sorry so many teachers had to agonize over the controversial competency test, but an aide told the Associated Press Wednesday that the governor still believes the test was needed.

White's highly publicized apology last week doesn't mean White is backing off from support of the test he has staunchly defended since pushing it and other school reforms through the Legislature in 1984, said Mark McKinnon, White's campaign press secretary.

White, speaking before the State Democratic Convention, said teachers had to go further than most professionals by taking the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers. Making teachers take a test to keep their jobs may have been going too far, he said, and for that he apologized.

More than 202,000 public school educators this year were required to take the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers. Those who failed face loss of their jobs.

About 97 percent passed the first exam in March, while some 6,500 who failed got a second chance last Saturday. Results of that test won't be available for three to four weeks.

Kerry Davis, past president of Classroom Teachers Association of Midland, said he believes the governor's apology is an effort to mend fences, but noted White "needs to talk about a lot more things than the TECAT and the stress it caused."

Red, white and wow! events to torch Liberty celebration

NEW YORK (AP) — America has carried a torch for Lady Liberty for a century and tonight — with the presidents of the United States and France at hand, and millions watching worldwide — that torch will be set ablaze once again.

With the four-year campaign to restore the statue over, President Reagan will push a switch that shoots a laser beam across New York Harbor to set off a 1.4-million-watt light show to illuminate the Lady.

But it is just the start of a four-day celebration of immigrant dreams and American accomplishments, four days of tall ships and warships, street fairs and exotic fare, skyrockets and superstars.

It's all wrapped in red, white and blue, and organizers make no apologies to critics who say it is too much Hollywood and too little history.

"I'm not going to solve the world's problems in the four days," said David Wolper, producer of Liberty Weekend, who turned aside criticism that the statue's birthday has been commercialized and overproduced.

"I never mind a review after the show is over," he said. "I resent a review before the show has begun.

"What I will do and what I hope that people do is...have a good time and they feel good about themselves and about the country. That's all my goal is. Just loosen up, have a nice four days, enjoy yourself."

Officials say as many as 13 million people will take part in some aspect of the weekend festivities. Millions more will watch on television in the United States and in 33 other countries.

Churches around the nation said they would ring their bells for 100 seconds at noon today after a service at St. Patrick's Cathedral featuring patriotic songs and prayer and a videotaped message from Pope John Paul II.

Then, at 8:30 p.m., Reagan and French President Francois Mitterrand preside over the opening ceremonies and the relighting of the statue.

Reagan will present Medals of Liberty to 12 foreign-born Americans, including Bob Hope and composer Irving Berlin. Chief Justice Warren Burger will administer the citizenship oath by satellite to thousands of new Americans around the country.

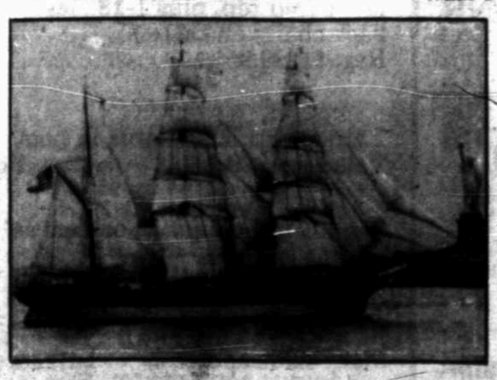

Performances by such entertainers as Neil Diamond and Debbie Allen will be intercut with segments on the histories of the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island. In the end, there will be fireworks, and the statue's torch will shine once again.

Six years have passed since the National Park Service first received reports that the statue, a gift from France, needed restoration after nearly a century in New York Harbor. Reagan appointed a commission to restore the statue and Ellis Island in 1982, and put Lee Iacocca in charge.

Iacocca raised $277 million for the job and after two years of work, Lady Liberty is "good for another 100 years at least," he says.

Iacocca also hired Wolper to produce the Liberty Weekend festivities. On a $30 million budget — raised from tickets to events, as well as $10 million paid by ABC for exclusive television rights — Wolper orchestrated these events:

Elissa sails past the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor.

Texas' Elissa has date with history

By DAVID MCLEMORE

ABOARD THE ELISSA (AP) — Slightly after midnight, wisps of cloud chase across the moon as it rises above Chesapeake Bay. A light wind, smelling of land, swirls fog along the waterline. The Elissa sways gently, sails and rigging glowing in the moonlight.

A crew moves along the main deck, taking the midnight watch. Second mate Rex McKeever turns away from the dull glow of the compass to stare into the night sky. "Look at those stars," he says. "It's like every one ever made is out tonight."

The cry of a foghorn announces that a tanker is passing to one side, her bulk eclipsing the moon. "Well, let's get to work," McKeever says. "We've still got some sailing to do."

Indeed. At age 108, the Elissa, an iron-hulled, three-masted bark, is at sea again, moving at a leisurely pace toward New York harbor and a date with history.

As part of the Operation Sail '86 salute to the Statue of Liberty, the Elissa left her home port of Galveston, Texas, May 26 with a crew of 30 under the command of Capt. Jay Bolton.

Before reaching New York Wednesday, the Elissa will have made ports of call at Miami; Charleston, S.C.; Baltimore; Annapolis, Md.; Washington, D.C.; and Norfolk, Va. It is her first sea voyage under her own power since her restoration began in the late '70s.

People reach out to touch Pope John Paul II as he enters the Campin Stadium in Bogota, Colombia, Wednesday. The pope later met with Catholic educators and Latin American bishops.

Pope appeals to youth to reject 'sorry vices'

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Pope John Paul II appealed to Colombian youth to withstand the temptations of drugs, sex, alcohol and other "sorry vices," and to reject guerrilla violence as a solution to social ills.

"As Christians, you can and you must surpass the test," the white-robed pontiff Wednesday told a chanting, swaying crowd of about 65,000 Roman Catholic youths who packed the city's main soccer stadium on a starlit, chilly evening.

John Paul II was on the second day of a weeklong tour of this predominantly Catholic South American nation, long troubled by guerrilla activity and drug trafficking.

He planned today to visit Chiquinquira, a farming town 65 miles north of the capital where, according to church annals, the Virgin Mary descended from an oil painting before devout peasants 400 years ago.

At Bogota's Campin Stadium, the pope made an impassioned address in fluent Spanish to the youth rally, calling for Catholic stoicism in the face of temptation.

"There exists here the attraction of easy and fast enrichment, by means that are contrary to the law and to Christian morals, the temptation of escapism that can submerge you in the alienation of drugs, alcoholism, sex and other sorry vices," he warned.

"There are those who try to seduce you with certain attitudes of conformism, passive indifference and skepticism, stripping youth of the most noble human and Christian ideals," he said.

"And there is no lack of those who proclaim, as a desperate and last solution, the armed violence of the guerrilla, in which have fallen a good number of your companions, some against their own will and others clouded by ideologies inspired by the principle of violence as the only cure for social ills," the pope said.

"In many cases it has reached the absurdity of brother fighting brother, youth against youth, gripped by that blind violence that respects neither the law of God nor the basic principles of human coexistence," the pontiff said.

Colombia has been plagued since the 1950s by leftist guerrillas, who rely heavily on students to fill their ranks of combatants. Reporters have seen some fighters as young as 12 years old, carrying rifles nearly as long as they are tall.

Trafficking in cocaine and marijuana is a $3 billion a year industry in the country, involving many young people seeking quick wealth. Many youths end up using drugs that are easily purchased on the streets at low prices.

A recent poll showed that 25 percent of the nation's young had tried cocaine at least once, while many now are smoking it in a concentrated, dangerously potent form called "crack" or "rock."

"Your youth is growing up in a period of accelerated and profound change that has brought indisputable progress in many areas but which also has brought upheavals and imbalances resulting in painful conflicts," the pontiff said.

Korean officials may boycott celebration

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Friday's July 4 celebration at the U.S. Embassy will offer more than hot dogs and beer. The menu also includes a possible boycott by South Korean leaders, a dissident's embassy debut and a bumpy new phase in U.S.-Korean relations.

Ambassador Richard L. Walker's reception began to look like something other than the customary Independence Day bash when opposition leader Kim Dae-jung received an express-mail invitation last week requesting "the honor of your company" at the gathering.

It was the first time that Kim, officially proscribed from political activities in South Korea, had been asked to meet the American envoy since the outspoken Korean dissident returned from U.S. exile 17 months ago.

An embassy spokesman later insisted to a reporter that the invitation represented no change in U.S. policy. But South Korea's authoritarian government obviously thought otherwise.

A knowledgable source within the ruling Democratic Justice Party said Wednesday that Prime Minister Lho Shin-yong and Foreign Minister Lee Won-kyung would boycott the reception as a show of official anger over the unprecedented invitation, although lesser South Korean officials would attend.

Sources in the prime minister's office and Foreign Ministry today would say only that the two ministers had not yet decided whether to take part in Friday's embassy event.

All of the sources spoke on condition of anonymity, and no word of the dispute has filtered into the officially guided South Korean press — all indicative of the sensitivity of the issue, which touches the heart of South Korea's unsettled political situation.

A senior South Korean official summed up the government's point of view: "The invitation to Kim will encourage his radical followers to believe the United States has determined that Kim should play a role in the process."

The "process" is the unfolding dialogue between the 6-year-old military-dominated government of President Chun Doo-hwan, a former general, and the opposition New Korea Democratic Party, a dialogue aimed at "democratizing" South Korea's constitution by sometime next year.

After a series of anti-government rallies and student demonstrations earlier this year — and after the U.S. administration privately put pressure on the Seoul government — Chun agreed to establish a National Assembly committee for constitutional reform.

But the government has sought to exclude Kim, who leads a main faction in the opposition group, from the discussions, citing the fact that he is under a suspended 20-year prison sentence for a sedition conviction in connection with a 1980 student uprising.

The opposition has demanded the lifting of the political ban on Kim, who now can neither hold a party position nor run for office.

Chilean rulers file charges against opposition leaders

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The military rulers filed charges against 17 civic leaders, banned opposition radio newscasts, and kept hundreds of soldiers on street patrol today to try to break an anti-government strike in which at least three people died.

Police reported that in addition to the three slumdwellers killed by gunfire Wednesday, 15 people were wounded and more than 200 demonstrators were arrested at the start of a two-day work stoppage by tens of thousands of shopkeepers, truckers and busdrivers.

Communist guerrillas claimed responsibility for bomb attacks that toppled three rural pylons after sundown Wednesday, darkening Santiago and parts of other cities in a 620-mile strip of central Chile from La Serena to Concepcion. About half the country's 12 million people were affected, some for more than an hour.

The military issued a decree limiting newscasts on five opposition radio networks to government statements.

Two young men and a 13-year-old girl who was walking to buy bread for her mother died in separate slum neighborhoods patrolled by the army.

The government news agency ORBE said all three were killed by gunfire from unidentified vans. But the mother of the girl and a priest who tended to one of the victims said both were killed by soldiers.

The Interior Ministry charged President Juan Luis Gonzalez and 16 other directors of the Civic Assembly, which called the strike, with violating the national security code by calling illegal meetings, inciting disorder, paralyzing economic activity and plotting against the government.

A government suit asked a judge to investigate the charges and order the 17 opposition leaders arrested. Each faces up to 25 years in prison if convicted.

It was one of the most disruptive protests in 13 years of authoritarian rule by the army commander and president, Augusto Pinochet. Strike leaders called it a successful first move in their battle to drive Pinochet from office he seized from Marxist Salvador Allende in a bloody September 1973 coup.

Pinochet fashioned a constitution in 1980 that keeps him in power until 1989, and allows him to seek another eight-year term in a voter referendum.

Like three previous general strikes since mid-1983, the walkout failed to shut factories, mines, ports, banks, petroleum production or government offices. It directly affected only small independent businesses.

Even so, the strike forced thousands of commuters to stay home or walk to work, halted home deliveries of milk and heating gas, and suspended most of the country's overland cargo.

The 2-month-old Civic Assembly, formed by union and professional groups, represents nearly 3 million Chileans.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Bomb explodes outside Cape Town police station

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A bomb believed to have been planted in a flower box exploded today at a police station in Cape Town, damaging the building and injuring two police officers, authorities said.

It was the 11th bombing in South Africa since a state of emergency was declared June 12, and the first to strike a security force target. Three people have been killed and about 100 injured in the blasts.

The Bureau for Information described the damage to the police station as minor and said the two officers were only slightly hurt.

The bureau also reported that the burned bodies of three black men had been found, raising the official unrest death toll since June 12 to 97. Fourteen other unrest deaths have been reported by authorities in two homelands.

Police said four suspected African National Congress guerrillas have been arrested in connection with two attacks last month near Pretoria.

Under the state of emergency, the information bureau is the main source of official information. Emergency restrictions prohibit the media from reporting statements the government considers subversive and bar reporting on the activities of security forces. The regulations also prevent detainees from being identified by name.

Duarte seeks private talks

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The government insists on private meetings with leftist rebels before formal peace negotiations and rejects the guerrillas' demand for a coalition government, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Roberto Edmundo Viera said in an interview that President Jose Napoleon Duarte feels private preliminary talks "are necessary in order to get down to fundamentals."

The Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, a coalition of five guerrilla groups, and its Democratic Revolutionary Front political arm, have said negotiations should be public to avoid talking "behind the backs of the people."

Duarte offered on June 1 to resume negotiations with the leftists, who have fought his and previous governments for 6½ years, and meetings are expected in late July or August.

Two meetings between Duarte and rebel leaders in October and November 1984 ended in deadlock. Those were held without prior discussions.

Refugees topic of talks

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Guatemalan President Vinicio Cerezo arrived here Wednesday for a three-day official visit in which the major topic will be the 46,000 refugees from his country living in camps in southern Mexico.

The visit also is expected to improve relations between Mexico and its southern neighbor, strained while conservative military or military-dominated governments held sway there for the past three decades.

The Jan. 14 inauguration of Cerezo, who is of the centrist Christian Democratic Party, marked a return to elected civilian rule.

Information released by Mexico' Foreign Ministry said Cerezo would meet twice with President Miguel de la Madrid to discuss the situation in Central America and the efforts of the Contadora group to draft a peace treaty for the troubled region.

TWC study indentifies unsafe dams

Associated Press

The Barefoot Lake Dam in the Liberty County community of Rye — washed away by Hurricane Bonnie — was one of 237 privately owned dams in Texas called unsafe in a 5-year-old survey.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Texas Water Commission survey said 213 of the 237 dams remain unsafe because they will not hold enough water during heavy rains and flooding.

They are called "high-hazard dams," meaning loss of human life is possible if they are destroyed in heavy rains.

About 200 families in Big Thicket Estates were stranded for two days after the Barefoot Lake Dam washed away June 26.

In a letter to then-Gov. Bill Clements dated Dec. 4, 1980, Col. Donald J. Palladino of the Fort Worth office of the U.S. Corps of Engineers said inspectors found that Barefoot Lake Dam was structurally sound but that the dam would not accommodate maximum flooding in severe weather conditions.

The dam will hold back only 40 percent of the water experts predict could fill the lake during the most severe flooding considered possible at the site, the letter said.

Ray Reily, president of Reily Land Co., which owns Barefoot Lake Dam at Big Thicket Estates, said he knew the dam had been determined unsafe and said he spent $20,000 in 1985 to correct various structural problems.

"That (filling cracks in the dam) corrected some, but course, it wasn't all of the deficiencies," Reily said. "The reason we didn't do anything else is we would've had to rip it out and start all over. It would have taken about half a million dollars."

The dam now will be redesigned and rebuilt in compliance with state regulations, Reily said.

The remaining 213 are unable to hold enough water during maximum flooding, officials said. Exact locations of those dams could not be obtained Wednesday.

The owners of all 237 dams were notified by letter of the inspectors' findings after the survey. However, no time frame was set for them to come into compliance with the rules.

It would cost up to $100 million to upgrade or rebuild all unsafe dams in the state, said John Wise, chief of the Corps of Engineers' Dam Safety Unit.

The survey — the first of its kind in Texas — was conducted between 1977 and 1981 using criteria that regulates federal dams in the state.

The water commission inspects the state's high-hazard dams — now totaling 703 — about once every five years. And although the water commission has adopted tougher inspection criteria, officials said the inspections aren't frequent enough.

"If I were living right below the dam, I wouldn't feel safe with that," Wise said.

Reagan ready to relight nation's 'beacon of hope

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, calling the Statue of Liberty "a beacon of hope for all mankind," heads for New York to relight the restored monument's famous torch and kick off its 100th anniversary celebration.

Reagan and his wife Nancy were scheduled to leave Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington this afternoon, trading in their usual Boeing 707 for a twin-engine executive jet for the flight to Westchester County Airport.

The White House announced that the smaller C-20A aircraft was being put into service as Air Force One because Reagan's larger plane is too big to land at the suburban airport located near the estate where the couple is staying.

In comments prepared for Liberty Weekend, Reagan said America's story of liberty is found in the struggle of the comman man for freedom and opportunity.

"A struggle to attain our ideal: the maximum degree of freedom consistent with an orderly society is in so many ways the story of America," Reagan said in comments recorded for the AP Radio Network.

Insurance issue settled

NEW YORK (AP) — Insurance companies and the planners of the Statue of Liberty centennial celebration have agreed on liability coverage for the huge fireworks display planned for the Fourth of July.

Planners of the Liberty Weekend celebration said the fireworks display, from 9:45 p.m. to 10:15 p.m. Friday in New York Harbor, will be the largest ever offered in the United States, with 40,000 shells fired from barges.

Fourth to reflect Texas-sized style

By DOUG CRICHTON
Associated Press Writer

From wailin' Willies to fireworks frenzies, a human chair and the end of the Wagon Train trail, the Lone Star State will celebrate the nation's 210th birthday in Texas-sized style.

More than 80 performers and 30,000 fans will descend on Austin Friday for Willie Nelson's mobile Farm Aid II concert, an 18-hour marathon that after two moves has settled at Manor Downs east of the city.

Besides Nelson, Boxcar Willie and a host of other performers, unsuccessful presidential contender Jesse Jackson will take the stage Friday night to make a plea for the nation's farmers.

In Fort Worth, meanwhile, the Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon train has rumbled into town on the last leg of its 3,000-mile journey that began six months ago in Sulphur Springs.

"This trip is not only to remember the Alamo or Goliad or San Jacinto, but to remember Texas, America and our forefathers," said Donna Neal Stepp of Fort Worth, who is chronicling her experiences for a book.

The wagon train camped at its city stockyards terminus along with Texas' answer to the Statue of Liberty — the Goddess of Liberty, which perched atop the Austin Capitol dome for nearly a century until ill health forced her down.

Texans will also be celebrating the rejuvenated Miss Liberty's 100th birthday with tea parties, Lady Liberty look-alike contests and musical salutes to America, said Marne Friess, Texas regional director of the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation.

In Dallas, a joint celebration of the Texas Sesquicentennial and Independence Day includes a 15-minute laser light show Thursday night and live television coverage of New York Harbor festivities on a giant screen in City Hall Plaza.

In Houston, more than 10,000 people are expected to gather in Sam Houston Park in their attempt to set a world record for the largest human chair. Participants will form a giant circle, each sitting on the lap of the person behind him, in their effort to out-sit the current record of 10,323 as listed in the "Guinness Book of World Records."

As with dozens of other celebrations, that event accompanies an Independence Day picnic and fireworks display.

Soaring liability insurance rates, however, have fizzled fireworks shows in some Texas cities such as Hereford and Abilene. They even threatened the annual spectacular at Dallas' Fair Park, but officials there say the show will go on and join more than 50 in the Dallas area.

Fireworks will also follow a "Salute To America and the Challenger Crew" at Fort Worth's Burnett Park, as well as the Houston Symphony Orchestra's "Celebrate America" performance at the Miller Theater.

More than 500 immigrants will join in the celebration and the nation at naturalization ceremonies in San Antonio and Dallas that are timed to coincide with the re-dedication of the Statue of Liberty.

On the grim side of the festivities, the Department of Public Safety's holiday highway death toll runs from 6 p.m. Thursday to midnight Sunday, and the agency predicts that as many as 45 people will die.

"Preliminary figures indicated the number of traffic deaths statewide was down 1.6 percent in the first quarter of this year compared to 1985," DPS Director Jim Adams said.

LIBERTY

FRIDAY: An international naval review with 33 warships from 14 countries, followed by a parade of 22 tall ships and 250 other vessels, with as many as 60,000 boats sharing the harbor. The start of the three-day Harbor Festival — 50 square blocks of entertainment, food and crafts in lower Manhattan. An Americana music concert, featuring the Boston Pops, Barry Manilow, Johnny Cash and Whitney Houston. And a 40,000-shell fireworks show in the harbor, the largest ever staged in the United States.

SATURDAY: The statue is opened to the public. Boat races, a parade of ocean liners, the start of a two-day colloquium on issues of freedom. And a massive classical music concert in Central Park.

SUNDAY: A triathlon, a sports salute to the statue, and a finale at Giants Stadium that has boggled many minds — 300 Jazzercise women, 200 Elvis Presley look-alikes, 5,000 homing pigeons and much, much more.

"We're throwing the world's biggest party," said Mayor Edward I. Koch. And for those who would wreck that party, the city organized its largest security operation ever.

There have been some naysayers, some who have criticized the weekend as overblown and underwhelming. The Rev. Jesse Jackson complained that poor people were being excluded, as tickets for the opening ceremonies went for a tax-deductible $10,000 a pair.

"This should not be a party just for the affluent and the very rich," he said. "The statue was designed to welcome the poor and the huddled masses who yearn to breathe free. They are not just the past tense.... A celebration of liberty without justice is incomplete."

Word limit difficult

NEW YORK (AP) — The 11-year-old Vietnamese refugee picked to read to the nation her essay about the Statue of Liberty tonight says she had trouble keeping under the 200-word limit because she has so much to say about what the statue means to her.

Hue Cao, a resident of Waipahu, Hawaii, will read the essay as part of a ceremony tonight in which her mother, Lien Ma, will be sworn in as a U.S. citizen at Ellis Island.

ELISSA

On July 4, slightly after 10:30 a.m., another tall ship, the Coast Guard square-rigged bark Eagle, will pass before Governor's Island toward the Hudson River.

Thus will begin OpSail's spectacular parade of more than 250 sailing ships from 30 nations in salute to Lady Liberty. Of the two dozen Class A sailing vessels left in the world, 22 will be in the OpSail parade. (Class A ships, including the Elissa, are 175 feet or longer.)

From their berths in New Jersey and Brooklyn, the ships will sail into New York Harbor under the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge, then up the Hudson River beyond the George Washington Bridge, where they will turn around and return to anchor in the harbor.

"It will be quite a sight to see, all the ships converging on New York," said Jonathan Ogle, 26, a ships officer aboard a tanker who's serving as mate aboard the Elissa. "If the weather holds, it's a good day, the Coast Guard can keep the lanes open and everyone does what they're supposed to, things should go smoothly. Otherwise, it'll be a very interesting day."

The Elissa will be the grand old lady of the parade. When she last visited New York, it was 1884, two years before Lady Liberty raised her torch above the harbor.

Built in 1877, the Elissa is the only restored 19th-century square-rigger in the parade, a reminder of the age of sail.

For this voyage, the Elissa added a 20th-century innovation — a 120-horsepower engine — as a safety precaution. But she truly comes alive when the wind picks up, filling her 12,000 square feet of sail. Capt. Bolton lets out the sail at every possible opportunity.

Throughout her voyage, at sea or in port, the Elissa has captured attention. Vessels of every size, from small pleasure boats to the mammoth aircraft carrier USS John F. Kennedy, have been drawn to her like a magnet, as the Elissa passes by like a prom queen on parade.

In port, visitors stream aboard to walk the fir decks, touch the original teak and mahogony finishings in the officers cabin below or gaze silently upward at the masts towering 100 feet above.

Only Washington, D.C., has proved immune to Elissa's charms. "We informed the Washington Post that she was in port, and they suggested we take out an ad if we wanted coverage," Bolton said.

The Elissa left Washington June 25, on a clear, sunny morning. The Texas and U.S. flags snapped in a cool breeze, and the sound of traffic began rising from the city. Soon, the Elissa was awash in the organized chaos of getting a 200-foot ship away under sail.

The mates barked orders. Some crew members climbed into the rigging to release the sails. Others began hauling at the jumble of ropes that reach upward to each mast like spider webs. The Elissa jumped to life as the sails groaned and filled with wind. Soon, Washington faded to a smoky blur in the north. Next stop, Norfolk.

During the 190-mile trek down the Potomac River and Chesapeake Bay, work settled into routine tasks of scraping and painting metal, oiling wood, scrubbing decks and tending sail.

But there was always time to look out over the ever-changing waters as the sun set or the moon rose, to watch porpoises play, to listen to the wind sweep through the rigging.

"There are so many intangibles at work here," Bolton said. "It's pretty heady stuff to sail a square-rigger. Not many people can say they've done that."

The crew is a mixed bag. Only a third are experienced square-riggers. The rest are volunteers, drawn by love for the Elissa.

Ages range from Don Van Der Linder, 16, of Houston, who has two years sailing experience, to Harry Camper, 60, a retired businessman on his first voyage. Most come from the Galveston area, but England, France, California, Connecticut and New York also are represented.

About half of the crew members are women — the chores of climbing rigging, hauling rope and wrestling with sail are strictly equal opportunity. "We're all just crew — which is sea talk for slaves," said Mary Elizabeth Conralvo of Galveston. "There's enough work to go around."

Bolton, a 20-year professional seaman, normally commands a 90,000-ton supertanker in the Alaska oil trade. He has taken a year off in order to sail the Elissa to New York. Second mate McKeever is an orthopedic surgeon in Galveston. Mike Williams, a graduate engineer from Manchester, England, gave that up to go to sea. Four months ago, he became the Elissa's bosun, a combination work foreman and personnel manager.

"I blame it all on model ships and Errol Flynn movies," said Bart Hamiter, 25, of Port Arthur, Texas. "They make it seem so romantic, so adventurous. It's all that and a lot of hard work."

Hamiter came to the Elissa during her restoration in Galveston in 1981. He's now part of her full-time staff. "Square-riggers are like looking into a black hole. Once you get sucked into them, you never get out. They always call you back. It's a little like magic, I guess."

The Elissa began life on Oct. 27, 1877, in an Aberdeen, Scotland, shipyard. She worked for 20 years as a British merchant ship, carrying lumber, coal, sugar and cotton. She later sailed under Norwegian, Finnish and Greek flags, ending up in 1969 as a rusty smuggling ship in a remote corner of the harbor in Piraeus, Greece.

Marine archaeologist Peter Throckmorton recognized the mutilated hulk of the Elissa as a classic three-masted bark. He bought the ship from her Greek owners and sold her five years later to the Galveston Historical Foundation for complete restoration.

The initial repairs were made in Greece. About one-third of her iron hull was replaced, and the bow was returned to the original shape. She left Piraeus for Galveston, towed by another ship across the Atlantic.

The Elissa arrived in Galveston on July 20, 1979. Her last visit to the island had been in 1886.

The historical foundation has raised $4.5 million to restore the Elissa to her 19th-century splendor. Most of the work was done by volunteers. On July 4, 1982, she was opened as a floating museum to tell the story of sailing ships and life at sea.

Capt. Bolton sees the Elissa's resurrection as a sailing vessel as a windfall of good will for Texas. "She doesn't have to stay at anchor," he said. "She can be a living museum while sailing to various ports as (an) ambassador of the state.

"I would think she'd be a major boost to tourism. Besides, it would be a crime to not keep this ship sailing."

On a hot, humid morning, two and a half days out of Washington, the Elissa sailed for a while in the Atlantic, flying with the wind on slate-gray waters.

As she neared Norfolk Harbor under full sail, the crew of the Colombian naval training ship Gloria, another vintage square-rigger bound for New York, climbed onto the rigging of Gloria's three masts and stood at attention.

For a moment, the only sound aboard the Elissa was the creak of rope and a rich hiss of a bow slicing through water.

APOLOGY

Davis, a Midland High School teacher, said teachers not only were offended by the law requiring they pass a test to prove they're literate. Teachers also "thought it was money thrown away."

"If he (White) wants to get teachers' loyalty, he's going to have to be realistic about the other things that House Bill 72 did," he said.

Dr. Lamar Hebert, assistant superintendent with Midland public schools, said he believes the governor's apology resulted after he suddenly realized that the things he was hearing were more than from a few disenchanted people.

"It's an effort to mend those fences, I'm sure," said Hebert.

Teacher groups have complained about the test and filed lawsuits challenging it. While campaigning across the state, teachers consistently protested White for making them take the test.

Earlier this year, angry educators from across West Texas including Midland, Odessa, Fort Stockton, Alpine, Pecos, Abilene and Monahans protested White for his support of the TECAT as he arrived here to address the Permian Basin Petroleum Association at its annual meeting.

Later that evening, White met with teachers and explained how the literacy test was offered to the Legislature as a compromise in exchange for the tax increase needed to raise teacher salaries.

"There's no way the public would have gone along with a tax increase without the test," he said.

Since White's victory in the May 3 primary, he has sent his wife, Linda Gale, across the state to meet with teachers and to hear their complaints.

He promised to maintain a better channel of communication with teachers and teacher organizations.

FIRE

"I saw it and at first thought a belt had broken and the engine had overheated. I tried to call him on the CB but I think he had it turned off," said Lang, who was on his way to Sterling City.

"When we opened the front, there was dark brown smoke coming from it, flames around the dashboard and it looked like some of the insulation was catching.

"A boy in a truck stopped in front of us, and he had a fire extinguisher about three times bigger, but we couldn't do anything with it."

Mrs. McCoy said the couple was returning home after a month's vacation spent traveling and visiting relatives in Arizona and California.

Nothing was salvaged in the fire except a blanket and a few items of jewelry.

Minutes after the fire, the motorhome was towed to a service road and debris was cleared from the highway.

Planners of Liberty TV special say oath goes on despite woes

NATION

NEW YORK (AP) — The oath must go on, say planners of the Statue of Liberty television special, and over the objection of several federal judges, it will.

Judges in Washington, D.C., and St. Louis had questioned the dignity of plans to televise the swearing-in of thousands of new citizens across the country during tonight's show, and said they would not participate.

"Our usual dignified naturalization court is being turned into a pageant over which I have no control," U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell of Washington told the Immigration and Naturalization Service in a letter.

He said he was concerned about commercial interruptions and would not turn his ceremony over to TV producers.

But Producer David Wolper on Wednesday said the event never really involved the actual swearing-in ceremony in cities other than New York, but a special re-enactment for the cameras.

As planned, Chief Justice Warren Burger will swear in 300 petitioners on Ellis Island, he said.

At the same time, new citizens in St. Louis, Washington, Miami and San Francisco will be shown repeating the oath for a second time, after taking the official oath from federal judges in non-televised ceremonies.

"That's what it was originally planned," Wolper said. But Gesell's clerk, Mike Tankersley, said that as INS first presented the plan, "the 9 o'clock ceremony was to be the original and formal swearing-in ceremony."

Wolper, at a news conference, called the problem a misunderstanding that was corrected by the INS.

U.S. District Judge John Nangle of St. Louis also had said he would not participate for fear of encouraging a spectacle.

Wednesday, Tankersley confirmed that Gesell would complete his ceremony in time for the 200 new citizens to go to the Jefferson Memorial and participate in the television program if they wished. Nangle said he should end his St. Louis ceremony in time for those 300 new citizens to join the show at 9 p.m.

"It's a symbolic thing and we're happy to do it," Nangle said. "I will not have anything to do with it. I'll be done with my portion."

Earlier in June, judges in Los Angeles said they would not participate, and San Francisco was substituted. Halperin said that disagreement was about a site for the ceremony.

One thousand new citizens are expected to gather in San Francisco, and 14,000 are expected at the Orange Bowl in Miami, organizers said. After they say the oath, the new citizens are to sing, "This is My Country."

Combined military strength shows rare yearly decline, officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The combined active-duty strength of the nation's military services is below year-earlier levels for the first time since President Reagan assumed office.

The four services had a combined active-duty strength of 2,143,955 as of May 31, or a drop of 11,560 from the previous month. More significantly, however, the new total represents a decline of 5,188 compared with the total of 2,149,143 reported by the services on May 31, 1985.

The decreases were disclosed Wednesday in the Pentagon's monthly "Military Strength" report.

Officials attributed the dip to the effects of the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law, which forced the services to offer "early outs" to several thousand military personnel to hold down fiscal 1986 spending.

It is not unusual for the nation's military strength to rise and fall during the course of any given year because of an uneven flow of recruits. For example, active-duty strength normally dips to some extent during the course of the regular school year.

For the last six years, however, even with those cyclical swings, the total military strength reported each month has always exceeded that of the year-earlier period.

Although a complete review was not possible Wednesday, Pentagon records suggest the last time an overall decline was reported compared with the previous year was on Dec. 31, 1979, when the active-duty strength totaled 2,020,239. That compared with 2,040,753 reported on Dec. 31, 1978.

Lt. Col. Pete Wyro, a Pentagon spokesman, said the May decline "can be attributed almost entirely to the liberalized-release actions taken by the services in response to Gramm-Rudman."

"The Army alone had 5,700 soldiers leave on early out in May," Wyro continued. "The recruiting pattern of people coming in has not matched that increase of people going out."

Head of largest teacher union requests support for national standards board

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The head of the nation's largest teacher union says she will ask members to support a national standards board proposed by a recent report as a way of boosting the prestige of the teaching profession.

Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the 1.8 million-member National Education Association, said at a news conference Wednesday that such a non-governmental "National Board of Professional Teaching Standards" could help put teaching on a par with other professions like law or medicine.

In her keynote address set for delivery today at the opening session of the NEA's annual convention, she was expected to ask more than 7,000 delegates to endorse a scheme whereby a new national board would work in tandem with existing state boards to set high standards for teaching.

Futrell, who served on the 14-member Carnegie Task Force on Education and the Economy that issued the report, differed somewhat from others on that panel in stressing that state certification boards should continue to exist and set standards for teachers.

American Federation of Teachers president Albert Shanker, who also served on the Carnegie panel, has criticized Futrell because he contends that state boards have failed to prop up the sagging status of teachers.

Shanker scheduled a news conference today in Chicago, where 3,000 AFT delegates were gathering for their biannual convention that begins Friday.

He was to release an AFT report endorsing the Carnegie report in many respects. The report, which AFT delegates will vote on Sunday, calls for radical changes to attract bright teachers, bolster students' "mediocre" performance and avert "a backlash against public education."

The NEA today also released a Gallup poll which found 54 percent of Americans favor raising teacher salaries even if it means higher taxes. That is up from 52 percent in 1985 and 45 percent in a similar 1983 poll.

The public also ranked teachers ahead of accountants, airplane pilots, computer analysts, bus drivers, hospital workers, newspaper editors, engineers and pharmacists in terms of the good each does for society.

Thirty-eight percent said they thought beginning teachers today are more qualified than those who started 10 years ago, while 26 percent thought they were less qualified. The rest said they were equally qualified, or had no opinion.

NATION IN BRIEF

Serial killers Bundy, Stano receive indefinite reprieve

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Serial killers Theodore R. Bundy, a law school dropout convicted of a sorority attack, and Gerald Stano, who gave authorities details of 41 womens' slayings, both have won indefinite stays within hours of their scheduled executions.

"Bundy was obviously relieved, although he didn't seem overly excited" when the stay of execution was ordered Wednesday, said Vernon Bradford, Florida Department of Corrections spokesman. Bundy was allowed to call his wife "to share the good news."

Stano, 34, who also had been scheduled to die today, collapsed after being taken from his "death watch" cell when the Florida Supreme Court's stay was announced, Bradford said. Stano quickly regained consciousness but was taken to the prison hospital, where he was in stable condition late Wednesday.

"He could have just fainted from the ordeal. We don't know," he said.

Bundy, 39, whose case was the topic of a TV miniseries in May, won a stay from the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta after rejections in the Miami trial court, state Supreme Court and U.S. District Court.

Philly strike on third day

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — July Fourth festivities expected to draw more than a half-million people to the birthplace of independence will proceed as planned despite a 3-day-old strike by 15,000 city workers, officials said.

The walkout by two districts of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers has had a major impact on the city, Mayor W. Wilson Goode acknowledged Wednesday as trash continued to pile up in the streets.

No new talks were scheduled despite Goode's plea for round-the-clock negotiations. A source close to the talks said negotiations won't resume until after the weekend "unless somebody decides to surrender."

However, labor leaders and city officials signed a consent order prohibiting strikers from interfering with people or vehicles at the sites of city operations or city-sponsored events.

The consent order also limits pickets to within eight to 10 feet of entrances to city buildings.

"No one has the right to interfere with the freedom of expression by others," Goode said. "No one has the right to prevent the people of this city from going through with a celebration they want to have."

Woman kills whole family

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A woman shot and killed her ex-husband and their two children during a five-minute rampage in which her 6-year-old son pleaded, "Mommy, don't do it," police and witnesses said today.

Un Hye Sharpe, 31, was overpowered Wednesday by a SWAT team that rushed her eight hours after she killed her family and barricaded herself in an apartment, said police Chief Jim Wetherington. The victims were identified as Dennis Sharpe, 29; Kevin Sharpe, 6, and Kathy Sharpe, about 4 months, he said.

A neighbor, Hanni Hale, told police she heard Kevin scream, "Mommy, don't do it, no, no," an instant before four shots that killed the children were heard from inside Sharpe's two-story apartment.

Sharpe, of the Tampa, Fla., area, was an Army sergeant assigned to nearby Fort Benning. Mrs. Sharpe, who is Korean, speaks only broken English, Wetherington said.

Reagan pushes new will

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan submitted to the Senate on Wednesday a treaty providing for a new international form of will that could be used regardless of where a person or his property was located at the time the person died.

In a message, Reagan said the countries agreeing to the new form of will would have to pass legislation to permit it to be used. He also said the states of the United States would have to pass legislation, and four have done so.

"With the increasing mobility of persons and goods, there has been a growing awareness of the need for a form of will that will be widely accepted, regardless of where the testator may be domiciled or residing or where his property may be located at the time of his death," the president said.

Pair's death may be suicide

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — A man and woman who died when their pickup truck plummeted 1,000 feet from a cliff into the Grand Canyon were accused of child molestation in California and may have committed suicide, authorities said.

Warrants had been issued Friday for Richard McMillan, 50, and Laura Allen, 30, who died Sunday, said Los Angeles County sheriff's Detective Alex Sandoval.

The California residents, accused in the warrants of sexually molesting two children, disappeared shortly after authorities began an investigation in late June.

Oil, farm states' public television stations see rough times

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer

When the oil industry hurts, public television yells "ouch!"

It's not so much the national programming that has suffered, however, but the stations in states where oil once was king.

The rapid drop in world oil prices has cut into state revenues in Alaska, Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, and many public TV stations will be living with tighter budgets as their new fiscal year begins this week.

Farm problems have hurt stations in Idaho, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas.

"We're in the oil and gas business and we just didn't know it," said Terrell L. Cass, president and general manager of KEDT in Corpus Christi, Texas, where more than half the staff has been laid off since January.

Donations to KUHT in Houston fell $500,000 during the past fiscal year, or nearly 30 percent, and its budget is being cut 11 percent for the new year.

"We are reflecting what is happening in the oil industry, and it looks like it is going to be trouble," said general manager James L. Bauer.

In Dallas, however, KERA will spend $12.5 million in the new fiscal year, compared with $9.9 million last year. More than half the increase is for production of national programming, including the fall series "The West of the Imagination," and the new productions are fully underwritten by corporate and foundation grants, said Richard Meyer, the station's president.

Nationally, Mobil is continuing to support "Masterpiece Theater" and Chevron is not cutting its support for the National Geographic specials, but Exxon will phase out its support for "Great Performances."

Exxon will contribute $3.6 million for "Great Performances" again this fiscal year, but that will fall to $1.2 million in the next year and nothing the year after. However, Exxon is committed to $1.2 million per year for "Live from Lincoln Center" through the 1989-90 fiscal year, said communications manager Ken Kansas.

"In three years, we'll look at it again," Kansas said.

"From all indications, it looks as though corporate funding has remained steady," said Peggy Hubble, director of public relations for the Public Broadcasting Service. "Some of the stations are in very good shape, others are having problems."

Among the major producers, WNET in New York has cut its budget and staff for the new year, but WGBH in Boston, KERA in Dallas, WTTW in Chicago, WQED in Pittsburgh and KCET in Los Angeles will be spending more than last year.

"I don't think there is a general cutback in public broadcasting," said Henry Becton, WGBH president and general manager. Being a major producer, he said, "brings with it swings in producing activity as projects come and go, and that happens here, too. Two years ago, our budget was $62 million." This year, it will be $60.5 million; last year it was $57 million.

It's a different story in the oil belt.

Alaska's public broadcasters get up to 90 percent of their funds from the state, which in turn gets 85 percent of its money from North Slope oil revenues.

Serial killers Bundy, Stano receive indefinite reprieve

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Serial killers Theodore R. Bundy, a law school dropout convicted of a sorority attack, and Gerald Stano, who gave authorities details of 41 womens' slayings, both have won indefinite stays within hours of their scheduled executions.

"Bundy was obviously relieved, although he didn't seem overly excited" when the stay of execution was ordered Wednesday, said Vernon Bradford, Florida Department of Corrections spokesman. Bundy was allowed to call his wife "to share the good news."

Stano, 34, who also had been scheduled to die today, collapsed after being taken from his "death watch" cell when the Florida Supreme Court's stay was announced, Bradford said. Stano quickly regained consciousness but was taken to the prison hospital, where he was in stable condition late Wednesday.

"He could have just fainted from the ordeal. We don't know," he said.

Bundy, 39, whose case was the topic of a TV miniseries in May, won a stay from the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta after rejections in the Miami trial court, state Supreme Court and U.S. District Court.

Philly strike on third day

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — July Fourth festivities expected to draw more than a half-million people to the birthplace of independence will proceed as planned despite a 3-day-old strike by 15,000 city workers, officials said.

The walkout by two districts of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers has had a major impact on the city, Mayor W. Wilson Goode acknowledged Wednesday as trash continued to pile up in the streets.

No new talks were scheduled despite Goode's plea for round-the-clock negotiations. A source close to the talks said negotiations won't resume until after the weekend "unless somebody decides to surrender."

However, labor leaders and city officials signed a consent order prohibiting strikers from interfering with people or vehicles at the sites of city operations or city-sponsored events.

The consent order also limits pickets to within eight to 10 feet of entrances to city buildings.

"No one has the right to interfere with the freedom of expression by others," Goode said. "No one has the right to prevent the people of this city from going through with a celebration they want to have."

Woman kills whole family

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A woman shot and killed her ex-husband and their two children during a five-minute rampage in which her 6-year-old son pleaded, "Mommy, don't do it," police and witnesses said today.

Un Hye Sharpe, 31, was overpowered Wednesday by a SWAT team that rushed her eight hours after she killed her family and barricaded herself in an apartment, said police Chief Jim Wetherington. The victims were identified as Dennis Sharpe, 29; Kevin Sharpe, 6, and Kathy Sharpe, about 4 months, he said.

A neighbor, Hanni Hale, told police she heard Kevin scream, "Mommy, don't do it, no, no," an instant before four shots that killed the children were heard from inside Sharpe's two-story apartment.

Sharpe, of the Tampa, Fla., area, was an Army sergeant assigned to nearby Fort Benning. Mrs. Sharpe, who is Korean, speaks only broken English, Wetherington said.

Reagan pushes new will

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan submitted to the Senate on Wednesday a treaty providing for a new international form of will that could be used regardless of where a person or his property was located at the time the person died.

In a message, Reagan said the countries agreeing to the new form of will would have to pass legislation to permit it to be used. He also said the states of the United States would have to pass legislation, and four have done so.

"With the increasing mobility of persons and goods, there has been a growing awareness of the need for a form of will that will be widely accepted, regardless of where the testator may be domiciled or residing or where his property may be located at the time of his death," the president said.

Pair's death may be suicide

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — A man and woman who died when their pickup truck plummeted 1,000 feet from a cliff into the Grand Canyon were accused of child molestation in California and may have committed suicide, authorities said.

Warrants had been issued Friday for Richard McMillan, 50, and Laura Allen, 30, who died Sunday, said Los Angeles County sheriff's Detective Alex Sandoval.

The California residents, accused in the warrants of sexually molesting two children, disappeared shortly after authorities began an investigation in late June.

Oil, farm states' public television stations see rough times

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer

When the oil industry hurts, public television yells "ouch!"

It's not so much the national programming that has suffered, however, but the stations in states where oil once was king.

The rapid drop in world oil prices has cut into state revenues in Alaska, Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, and many public TV stations will be living with tighter budgets as their new fiscal year begins this week.

Farm problems have hurt stations in Idaho, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas.

"We're in the oil and gas business and we just didn't know it," said Terrell L. Cass, president and general manager of KEDT in Corpus Christi, Texas, where more than half the staff has been laid off since January.

Donations to KUHT in Houston fell $500,000 during the past fiscal year, or nearly 30 percent, and its budget is being cut 11 percent for the new year.

"We are reflecting what is happening in the oil industry, and it looks like it is going to be trouble," said general manager James L. Bauer.

In Dallas, however, KERA will spend $12.5 million in the new fiscal year, compared with $9.9 million last year. More than half the increase is for production of national programming, including the fall series "The West of the Imagination," and the new productions are fully underwritten by corporate and foundation grants, said Richard Meyer, the station's president.

Nationally, Mobil is continuing to support "Masterpiece Theater" and Chevron is not cutting its support for the National Geographic specials, but Exxon will phase out its support for "Great Performances."

Exxon will contribute $3.6 million for "Great Performances" again this fiscal year, but that will fall to $1.2 million in the next year and nothing the year after. However, Exxon is committed to $1.2 million per year for "Live from Lincoln Center" through the 1989-90 fiscal year, said communications manager Ken Kansas.

"In three years, we'll look at it again," Kansas said.

"From all indications, it looks as though corporate funding has remained steady," said Peggy Hubble, director of public relations for the Public Broadcasting Service. "Some of the stations are in very good shape, others are having problems."

Among the major producers, WNET in New York has cut its budget and staff for the new year, but WGBH in Boston, KERA in Dallas, WTTW in Chicago, WQED in Pittsburgh and KCET in Los Angeles will be spending more than last year.

"I don't think there is a general cutback in public broadcasting," said Henry Becton, WGBH president and general manager. Being a major producer, he said, "brings with it swings in producing activity as projects come and go, and that happens here, too. Two years ago, our budget was $62 million." This year, it will be $60.5 million; last year it was $57 million.

It's a different story in the oil belt.

Alaska's public broadcasters get up to 90 percent of their funds from the state, which in turn gets 85 percent of its money from North Slope oil revenues.

Celebrate safely

This year's Independence Day observance is being billed variously as "memorable," "spectacular" — even a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

A number of factors have combined to bring about these laudatory predictions:

— Economic conditions in the United States and fear of terrorism abroad are keeping Americans at home this summer.

— Abundant gasoline supplies have resulted in the cheapest gasoline prices in years, encouraging millions more Americans to take to the nation's highways for July Fourth outings.

— The refurbishing and rededication of the Statue of Liberty is drawing millions of Americans and foreigners to New York City for the gala festivities.

— Resurgence of the American spirit is causing many Americans to display exceptional pride in the beauty and diversity of this country. Folklife festivals across the nation are drawing large gatherings as a result of this renewed "Americanism".

— Texas' celebration of its Sesquicentennial or 150th year since declaring its independence from Mexico is being observed this year.

Those reasons and more all point to what may go down in the record books as the most crowded, most commercialized, most patriotically rowdy Fourth of July celebration in memory.

That's good, of course. Americans are rightfully proud of their nation. Texans are proud of their state. And the people of this country should have the opportunity to celebrate their roots in any way they choose, but always with gusto and plenty of fun. Fireworks will be exploded. Food and family ties will be enjoyed. The flags of state and nation will be waved and proudly saluted.

But as Midlanders embark on their holiday outings they should keep in mind that all the facts cited above mean the nation's highways will be crowded with Independence Day motorists hurrying to their destinations. The possibility of automobile collisions will be greatly increased.

Death and destruction may make a holiday memorable, but that certainly isn't the way most people want to remember this Independence Day.

Motorists who slow down and drive defensively will have a better chance of getting to their destinations — and back home — safely. In so doing, they'll help make Friday's Independence Day celebration truly one to remember fondly.

Get out of bedrooms

Justice Blackmun has it right. In dissenting from Monday's Supreme Court decision upholding the Georgia sodomy statute, he takes issue with the majority's characterization of the central issue before the court. "This case," he writes, "is no more about 'a fundamental right to engage in homosexual sodomy,' as the Court purports to declare, than (others were) about a fundamental right to watch obscene movies ... or a fundamental right to place interstate bets from a telephone booth." Rather, say the dissenters quoting Justice Brandeis in an earlier case, it is about "the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men": the right to be let alone.

Until 1961, every state had a law making sodomy a criminal offense. Now only 24 states and the District of Columbia have these statutes on the books. The Georgia law, which was the subject of this court challenge, is not limited to homosexual conduct and seeks to penalize private, consentual behavior even between married couples. According to the state's attorney general, who argued the case, no one has been prosecuted for this violation in the last 40 or 50 years.

In the intervening years, the Supreme Court has handed down a series of opinions involving the right of privacy. These cases limited the authority of states to interfere in personal choices involving marriage, contraception and abortion. The court's reasoning was based on the belief that certain decisions about an individual's personal life are properly made by that individual, and that activities conducted in certain places — in one's own home, for example — are entitled to privacy protection without regard to the nature of the activity itself. Both standards are relevant in the Georgia case, which involved homosexual activity by two consenting adults in their own bedroom. What possible interest can the state have in prohibiting this victimless intimate conduct?

What now? Can we expect an army of police to be assigned to peeping patrol, instructed to barge into bedrooms and arrest anyone who deviates from the most conventional sexual practice? That's preposterous. Surely law enforcement authorities and courts are burdened enough with murderers, rapists and violent thugs, and certainly citizens would be revolted by that kind of harassment. The sodomy laws are an anachronism and an embarrassment, and if the courts won't strike them down, the legislatures must.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, July 3, the 184th day of 1986. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 3, 1863, the three-day Civil War Battle of Gettysburg, Penn., ended in a major victory for the North with the retreat of the Confederate troops. President Abraham Lincoln dedicated a national cemetery on the battlefield the following November.

On this date:

In 1608, the city of Quebec was founded by Samuel de Champlain.

In 1775, General George Washington took command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, Mass.

In 1890, Idaho became the 43rd state of the Union.

In 1898, the U.S. Navy defeated a Spanish fleet in the harbor at Santiago, Cuba, during the Spanish-American War.

In 1950, American and North Korean forces clashed for the first time in the Korean War.

In 1962, Algeria became independent after 132 years of French rule.

In 1984, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the Jaycees may be forced by state laws to admit women as full members with the same status as men.

Ten years ago: A commando team left Israel for a 2,500-mile secret mission to rescue about 100 Jewish passengers and Air France crew members who were being held at Entebbe Airport in Uganda by pro-Palestinian hijackers.

Five years ago: American Chris Evert Lloyd defeated Czechoslovakia's Hana Mandlikova 6-2, 6-2, to win her third straight women's singles tennis title at the All-England Club in Wimbledon.

One year ago: CBS Inc. announced it would buy back 21 percent of its own stock for nearly $1 billion to thwart a takeover bid by Ted Turner.

Today's birthdays: Jazz musician Pete Fountain is 56. Playwright Tom Stoppard is 49. TV personality Geraldo Rivera is 43. Actress Betty Buckley is 39. Singer Laura Branigan is 29.

Thought for today: "Many would be Cowards if they had Courage enough." — Thomas Fuller, English historian and biographer (1608-1661).

Doubts, problems delaying embassy

WASHINGTON — The six-year, multimillion-dollar effort to build a new American Embassy in Cairo is a near-perfect symbol of the United States' on-again, off-again Middle East policy: hagridden by doubts, beset by fear of offending, hopelessly hesitant.

Jack Anderson

Like U.S. policy, the embassy project began with the best of intentions. It was originally to be a gleaming 20-story tower — modest by the standards of Chicago's or Manhattan's modern-day pyramid builders, but certainly impressive in the low, drab skyline of Cairo.

There was no doubt of the need for a new and larger embassy. In the aftermath of the Camp David accords — and the billions in U.S. aid that were the price of the agreement — the U.S. mission in Cairo quickly grew to more than 1,000 people, one of the biggest American outposts in the world. Embassy employees scattered in smaller buildings all over Cairo would be brought together in a single, efficient office building.

But second thoughts soon came into Foggy Bottom on little cat feet, following attacks on American embassies in Tehran, Islamabad and Tripoli, and the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in 1981.

The doubters wondered if an imposing high-rise embassy would 1) present too tempting a target for terrorists, and 2) offend sensitive Egyptians. A senior diplomat in the Cairo embassy wrote a memo to Washington titled: "Why I Oppose the Proposed Chancery Plan." The anguished memo read in part:

"An 18- to 20-story tower... (is) inappropriate to a low profile U.S. government official presence in Egypt. Following the assassination of President Sadat, it is especially important to be discreet. We must be especially sensitive not to appear to be 'pulling the strings' on a puppet government in Egypt."

The 20-story tower "would be a visible symbol of an overwhelming U.S. presence," the diplomat continued. "It could be at best a subject of public comment and ridicule ... and at worst a potential lightning rod for demonstrations or more serious problems."

The bureaucrats in Washington chewed their nails for a while and decided the embassy man was right: The building should be lower. They decided that 16 stories would be compatible with the desired low profile, and bids were invited.

An Egyptian contractor was chosen in 1982. The embassy would cost about $27 million, and be finished by January 1986.

It soon became obvious that the contractor wasn't up to the task. State Department and General Accounting Office documents obtained by our associate Lucette Lagnado listed the "classic signs" of trouble: subcontractors and workers complaining of not being paid, a halt to the contractor's contributions to Egyptian social security, and a noticeable slowdown in actual construction.

By the time the State Department finally fired the contractor, in January 1985, there was only a three- to four-story shell of a building. A department official explained that it had taken a long time to gather the documentation needed to cancel the contract without a legal battle.

Even while the search for a new contractor was going on, the old argument over height was revived. A few high-rise buildings had been erected in Cairo, including the 21-story Ramses Hilton, which would make a taller embassy less conspicuous. And the number of embassy employees had grown.

In the end, though, the department decided to stick with the 16-story plan, with perhaps a makeshift 17th floor added. A Japanese/American consortium got the contract, and work is proceeding apace. But the price tag is now $40 million.

UNDER THE DOME: Congressional Democrats are quietly gloating over President Reagan's decision to scrap the unratified SALT II treaty. It's not that they agree with his view; they believe it's a serious mistake. But they're convinced that it was a serious political gaffe that could cost the Republicans dearly at the polls this fall. The public supports adherence to SALT II provisions, as do most members of Congress — including Republicans. Hoping to add salt to Reagan's self-inflicted wound, the Democrats plan to introduce legislation to force a White House reversal, which could compound the embarrassment.

• • •

CHANGING TIMES: How stunned were Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos when the Reagan administration finally withdrew its support? They're not saying, but their feelings of disappointment can be imagined after reading this cable from the Manila embassy in late 1980: "(Imelda Marcos) met with the Reagan transition team 'at the highest levels' and ... conveyed to them the government of the Philippines' goals and priorities."

GEORGE F. WILL

Court's sodomy ruling more right-making

WASHINGTON — A mystery that foils inquiry is: By what principle does Justice Blackmun limit the sweep of the constitutional "privacy right" that is his intense preoccupation? And are his colleagues, among whom he found himself in a minority in a recent case, any less arbitrary regarding privacy?

George F. Will

The Supreme Court has affirmed (5-4) the constitutionality of a Georgia statute that criminalizes consensual sodomy, as the statute applies to homosexual sodomy. Justice White, joined by Burger, Powell, Rehnquist and O'Connor, said none of the cases in which the Court invented and elaborated a "privacy right" allows the use of that right as a constitutional scythe to mow down anti-sodomy laws. Why not? White did not really say.

He said sodomy is not like other activities protected by various permutations of the Court-manufactured privacy right. That is self-evidently true. What is neither self-evident nor explained by White is this: What principle, derived from the "language and design" of the Constitution (White's ostensible criteria), requires the Court to identify so many activities as fundamental rights enjoying constitutional protection under the privacy right, but requires the Court, as a matter of principle, to exclude consensual sodomy from that protection?

The "privacy" right, which the Framers of the Constitution neglected to mention, has recently been given the status as a fundamental right in cases striking down laws that limited freedom of choice regarding child rearing and education (for example, the right to send a child to private school), marriage (the right to inter-racial marriage), contraception (the right to use or distribute contraceptives), abortion. These various manifestations of the privacy right have been identified variously as rights "implicit in the concept of ordered liberty" or rights such that "neither liberty nor justice would exist if (they) were sacrificed" or rights "deeply rooted in this nation's history and tradition."

Regarding sodomy, White and the majority clearly have the Court's criteria on their side. Sodomy was considered a crime in all 13 states that ratified the Bill of Rights. In 1868, when the Fourteenth Amendment was ratified, 32 of 37 states had criminal sodomy laws. Until 1961, all 50 states did; 25 still do. As White says, it is "at best, facetious" to call a right to consensual sodomy a deeply rooted tradition, or implicit in the concept of ordered liberty, or something without which liberty and justice would vanish.

But by those standards, how, precisely, has the Court concluded that deeply rooted traditions, ordered liberty and justice are incompatible with, say, a law restricting the sale of contraceptives? A law restricting abortion? A law restricting freedom of choice of a marriage partner? Such laws may be unwise or unjust or both. But what is White's principle that explains why the Constitution — that is what he is interpreting — says such laws must fall but anti-sodomy laws may stand?

Blackmun, dissenting in company with Brennan, Marshall and Stevens, rests his even ricketier argument on words Justice Brandeis used in a dissent — words Blackmun brandishes as though they are a constitutional principle. Blackmun says that what is at issue here (and, one must assume, almost everywhere) is "the most comprehensive of rights," namely "the right to be let alone."

Well, now. That right sure can be comprehensive. Let's see: a right to be let alone by the IRS, the police, the draft board, the law, government generally....

The "right to be let alone" is less a constitutional principle than a rhetorical flourish of the sort that often enlivens dissents. Blackmun thinks anti-sodomy laws are morally mistaken. White rightly says the Court is required to say not if laws are "wise and desirable," but only if they are proscribed by the Constitution's "language or design." And White is right that it would be arbitrary to wring from the Court's various "privacy right" criteria a right to constitutional protection for consensual homosexual sodomy.

But White is wrong to think the Court has made a principled distinction between that right and all the other privacy rights that the Court has recently discovered loitering in the "penumbra" of various constitutional provisions.

The Court has been skiing down a slippery slope of judicial legislation, manufacturing privacy rights lickety-split. Now White and four others want to stop. That desire is prudent, but it is not noticeably more principled than the desire of the other four justices to ski on.

This decision was just another vote in the Court sitting as a nine-person legislature. The vote revealed the inner impulses of the justices, but not the inner logic of the Constitution.

ART BUCHWALD

It wouldn't be Fourth without commercials!

It was one of those hot summer days so typical of Philadelphia. The old gang was hanging around the big hall with nothing to do. John Adams said, "Hey, guys, let's write a Declaration of Independence."

Art Buchwald

"Neat idea," said John Hancock. "What's a Declaration of Independence?"

"It's a document declaring our independence from Crazy George," John said.

"What do we want to do that for?" Benjamin Harrison asked.

"So we have something to celebrate on the Fourth of July, stupid," Adams said.

"It sounds okay to me," Oliver Wolcott said, "as long as it isn't going to cause anybody any harm. Who should we get to write it?"

"How about 'Too Tall' Tommy Jefferson? He got an 'A' in Treason last term."

"Aw heck, fellows. I've never written a Declaration of Independence. I wouldn't know where to start," Jefferson said.

Bobby Morris said, "How about 'Call me Ishmael'?"

"That's good," said Adams. "Write it down."

Tommy sat on the Independence Hall steps and began writing. Sammy Adams said, as he looked over Jefferson's shoulder, "Work in something about holding these truths to be self-evident."

Jefferson got flushed. "If you want me to write the Declaration, I'll write it. But don't everyone keep yelling at me."

"Can you add something about Coca-Cola?" Button Gwinnett said.

"Why Coca-Cola?" Tommy asked.

"If we write a Declaration of Independence on the Fourth of July someone is going to have to pay for the fireworks."

"We could get American Express to do a 'Do-you-know-me?' ad campaign with everyone who signs the Declaration," Roger Sherman said.

John Adams slammed down his fist, "The Fourth of July is not for sale."

Sherman said, "You tell that to the Minute Maid orange juice people. They're willing to give us $50,000 if we just mention that funds for the document were provided by Minute Maid, the only frozen juice that tastes like real orange juice."

Jefferson said, "It's starting to get too commercial. I believe it would be a mistake to sell space in the Declaration, particularly if we want to keep it to one page."

"At the same time Independence Declarations cost money," Button Gwinnett said. "Instead of selling space on the document itself, why don't we offer seats through Ticketron to the signing for $10,000 each?"

"Do you think anyone in the Colonies would pay that much to witness me putting my John Hancock on the Declaration?" John Hancock asked.

"Sure, they will," said Sam Adams. "If we throw in a show. I can get the Boston Tea Party Rock Band to come down."

Benjamin Franklin, who hadn't said much, finally spoke, "If you are going to sell seats for the signing, you will have to jazz up the document with a lot of treasonous stuff about Old George."

Thomas Jefferson was getting tired of everyone leaning on him, and he said, "Look, either I write the Declaration of Independence myself, or someone else does it."

They all shut up and Tommy's hand flew across the page. When he was finished, he read it to the crowd which applauded.

"Perfecto," said Button Gwinnett. "Now if you could just insert a few nice words in there about McDonald's, they'll pay all our expenses in Philadelphia."

Dollar plunges

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar plunged against the Japanese yen in a wave of speculative dollar-selling today, and later was down against European currencies. Gold was little changed.

In Europe, dealers said trading was slow with the approach of the long U.S. holiday weekend. But in Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, heavy dollar-selling by speculators brought the U.S. currency down 2.20 yen to a closing 161.70. Later, in London, the dollar was quoted at 161.80 yen.

The dollar's week-long slide in Tokyo had been interrupted on Wednesday when the currency gained 0.25 yen.

The dollar has fallen 7.50 yen since June 23. Thursday's closing was the lowest since 160.95 yen on May 13, one day after the dollar hit a post-World War II record low closing of 160.20 yen. In between, it climbed as high as a 176.30 yen closing on June 2.

On Wednesday, Bank of Japan Governor Satoshi Sumita attributed the dollar's recent downturn to falling U.S. interest rates and a perception in the market that U.S. economic growth is sluggish.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Wednesday:

—2.172 West German marks, down from 2.18

—1.7665 Swiss francs, down from 1.778

—6.9345 French francs, down from 6.9675

—2.4457 Dutch guilders, down from 2.4565

—1,491.50 Italian lire, down from 1,498.75

—1.3783 Canadian dollars, down from 1.379

In London, the British pound was quoted at $1.545, compared with $1.539 Wednesday.

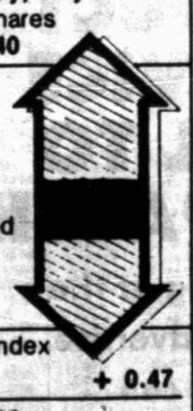

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $343.80 a troy ounce, compared with late Wednesday's $343. At midmorning the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $343.50.

In Zurich, the bid price was $343.50, up from $343.25 late Wednesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell 24 cents to close at a bid $343.20.

Low oil prices could foster economic woes

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — A host of economic problems will result from the current drop in oil prices unless the United States develops new national energy policies, said the 29-member Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

"While the recent drop in crude oil prices has created a certain euphoria among consumers of gasoline and other liquid fuels, this short-term bonanza will result in serious long-term effects," said the group of 29 oil-producing states.

Low oil prices have caused bank failures, job losses, mortgage foreclosures, endangered national security, aggravated the U.S. trade imbalance, and pushed the active drilling rig count to its lowest level since 1943, they said in a report titled, "A Nation in Need of Energy Security."

The report was sent to members of Congress in June and released during a three-day IOCC meeting in Anchorage that ended Wednesday.

While sidestepping a resolution blaming OPEC for dumping oil on the international market, the IOCC called for new national energy policies to "mitigate the impact that other nations can have on (the American) economy and security."

Foreign oil supplies one-third of U.S. petroleum needs, but that could rise to 50 percent if prices stay low, B. Jim Porter, Louisiana Secretary of Natural Resources, said.

"Imports could become over half, yet nobody seems worried about it," Harold Heinze, ARCO Alaska president, told the IOCC.

"The United States freedom of action could be severely compromised should it become further dependent upon foreign oil," the IOCC report said. "With the current oil glut, and no threat of an embargo, the U.S. was free to pursue a decisive course of action against Libya. Had the market been tight and the threat of an embargo real, this country might not have been able to take any action for fear of reprisals reminiscent of 1973."

Oil imports cost $1 billion weekly and "future increases in imports will further increase the deficit and further degrade our security," the IOCC said.

Crude prices go lower

NEW YORK (UPI) — Crude oil prices closed sharply lower on New York's Mercantile Exchange Wednesday as speculators continued a selling spree fueled by OPEC's failure to reach an agreement on the world's oil glut.

Traders on the Merc said oil futures came under "continued selling pressure" for the third consecutive day as the price for West Texas intermediate crude, the most widely traded U.S. oil, fell below the $12-a-barrel level.

The selling came despite Tuesday's American Petroleum Institute report that showed the first gasoline supply decline in seven weeks. The build-up had been counter to the normal seasonal trend of declining stocks during the summer driving season.

At the close of New York trading, crude oil for spot delivery during the current contract month of August fell by 39 cents a barrel to $11.99. The September contract closed at $11.96, 30 cents below Tuesday's close.

On the cash markets, West Texas intermediate fell to $12.30 from $12.35. Regular leaded gasoline dropped to 37.75 cents from 38 cents. and No. 2 Heating oil closed at 32.50 cents a gallon from 33.50 cents.

Traders on the Merc said "sharper sell-offs are likely after trading resumes next week."

The market will be closed Thursday because of the July 4th Liberty Weekend Celebration in New York City.

FERC commissioner to participate in seminar

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association (PBPA) will host C.M. (Mike) Naeve, commissioner of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, on July 17.

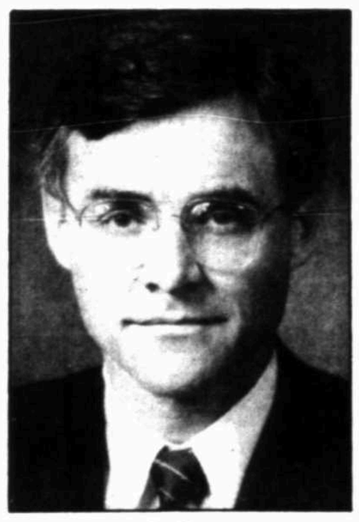

At the invitation of the PBPA's executive committee, Naeve will meet with the committee and board of directors at their noon meeting at the Odessa Country Club, and then participate in a seminar on natural gas issues and developments in Midland.

Naeve, Gene Hammons, director of gas contracts management for El Paso Natural Gas, and John R. Hays, Jr., an attorney from Austin, will participate in the seminar. Naeve will deal with the topic "Natural Gas Developments, Questions and Answers,"; Hammons will speak on "Interstate Pipeline Reactions to FERC Rules," and Hays will address "Energy & Utility Law Questions and Answers."

The program will be held at the Midland Center from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m., with a reception following. The seminar is open to the public without charge, but reservations should be made with the PBPA before July 14.

A native Texan, Naeve received his degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Texas, a masters degree from the LBJ School of Public Affairs, and his Juris Doctor degree from George Washington University. He was appointed to the FERC by President Reagan.

Hammons is a graduate of New Mexico State Universigy and worked for ESSO Research and Development before joining El Paso Natural Gas in 1971. He is responsible for gas purchases, contract renegotiations and providing a direct interface with 6,000 producers and suppliers.

C.M. Naeve

Hays specializes in federal and state energy laws, especially as it relates to oil and gas production and gas pipeline operations. He received his law degree from the University of Texas in 1974.

The seminar is presented by the PBPA, and is sponsored by United Bank, the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Colony Energy, Smart & Kuss gas consultants, and the Odessa-American.

Firm touts VSP in Basin

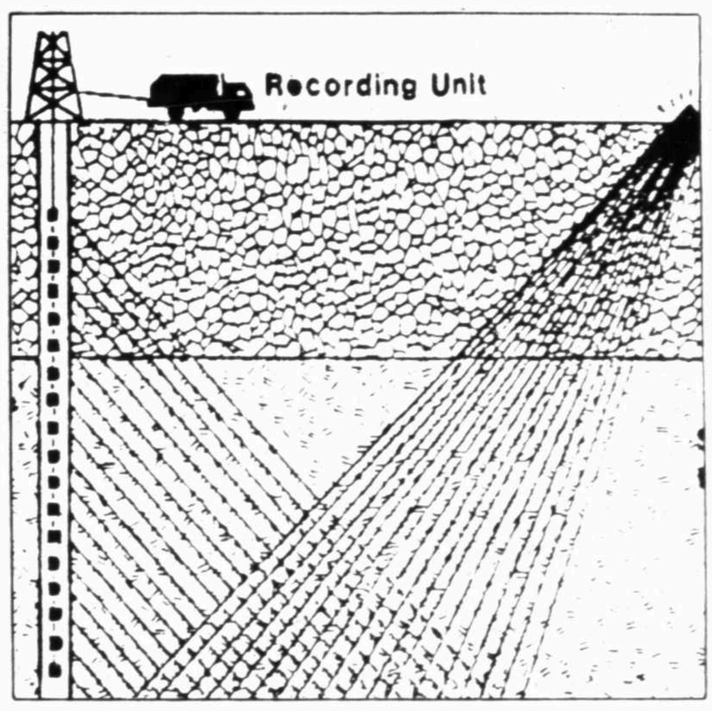

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

Independents in the Permian Basin need to become better acquainted with vertical seismic profiling. That was the message presented Tuesday and Wednesday at a presentation explaining the hybrid oilfield science which combines surface seismic and openhold well logging techniques.

In making the presentation, which involved the use of two of Dresser Atlas VSP logging units, Sid E. Struss, senior well log analyst for Dresser Atlas, said that more and more independents are now using VSP, as opposed to the late seventies when only the majors could afford the downhole profiles.

Richard Anderson, senior sales engineer for Dresser Atlas in Midland, says the technique which utilizes downhole geophones and a surface seismic source, is extremely useful in mature producing areas such as the Permian Basin because of its ability to define small sand bodies, smaller faults and reefs. He said the Dresser Atlas system offered a high resolution or image of the area around the borehole and on site processing capabilities.

Please see VSP, page 4B

State unemployment continues rise

DALLAS (AP) — The effects of collapsing oil and gas prices threw record numbers of Texans into the unemployment line in June when the state's jobless rate hit a recent high of 10.5 percent, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

The June rate marked an increase of 0.9 percent from May and was almost 3½ points above the 7.1 percent rate for June 1985.

The unemployment rate is the highest recorded in Texas since the government began the present system of recording joblessness in 1970.

Bryan Richie, regional commissioner for the bureau, said the increase was the result of a huge increase in the number of Texans unable to find jobs, as well as a drop in the state's total employment.

Richie said falling oil and gas prices would continue to drag down the Texas economy.

"Clearly, the decline in business activity, especially since the first of this year has been linked to the rapid and significant reduction in oil and gas prices. They fell again yesterday," he said.

Richie said a record 846,000 people were unemployed last month in Texas — almost 200,000 more than the previous high in February 1983, during the last statewide recession.

The number of Texans holding jobs dipped by 30,000 to 7,230,000, marking the first decline in total employment in the last 12 months, Richie said.

Problems facing the moribund oil and gas industry have now spread to other portions of the Texas economy, Richie said.

"Almost every sector of the state's economy is showing signs of weakness because there is this rippling effect," Richie said.

Austin bank 11th to fail in 1986

AUSTIN (AP) — The National Bank of Texas in Austin, with 2,900 depositors, has become the 11th bank to fail in the state this year.

The 12-year-old bank was declared insolvent Wednesday by the comptroller of the currency and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was appointed as receiver, federal officials said.

U.S. Deputy Comptroller of the Currency Robert J. Herrmann, who issued the closure order at 3 p.m., EDT, said the failure was due primarily to loan practices.

"The bank's failure was primarily the result of substantial loan growth during 1984 and 1985, combined with liberal commercial lending practices and inadequate board oversight," Herrmann said.

"The bank was unable to remedy its problems and losses finally exhausted the bank's capital funds, resulting in its insolvency," he said.

The FDIC, which placed the bank's assets at $32.6 million, said from Washington that its board of directors approved paying off insured depositors after no bids were received for the failed bank.

Deposits in the bank amounted to about $30.6 million in 2,900 accounts. The FDIC estimated that all but about $1.3 million of the deposits in 162 accounts are within the federal insurance limits of $100,000 or are otherwise secured.

Owners of such uninsured deposits will share proportionately with the FDIC in the proceeds realized from liquidation of the bank's assets, the FDIC said.

FDIC directors also voted to make a prompt advance payment to uninsured depositors, based on the estimated present value of assets to be liquidated, equal to 40 percent of the uninsured claims.

Marketing to kids can be a slimy business

While the great national Slime debate rages, local toy retailers say that Midland parents have had few complaints about a Mattel Toys promotion touting the neon-green goop as the latest accessory for the seemingly endless series of Masters of the Universe figures.

Slime isn't a new product. In the late '70s, Mattel sold 10 million cans of it as a novelty. The company brought the glop back from retirement this January for inclusion in its Masters series — a line started with six-inch He-Man figures in 1982 and now in nearly 70 percent of American homes with 4- to 10-year-old boys.

Until the recent promotion program ended in June, kids who used up the can that came with their Masters' Slime Pit couldn't buy more. They could only get another can as a "free" gift when they purchased two $6 Masters figures, or, of course, another Slime Pit.

Children are a unique market, and so are the ploys used to encourage the kiddos to put the screws to their folks to shell out the needed bucks to keep up with the newest and neatest toy craze.

"CHILDREN ARE distinct consumers — not just short grownups," says Rita Weisskoff, director of the Children's Advertising Review Unit of the Council of Better Business Bureaus in New York. "They're not as prepared to make judicious decisions."

The advent of television advertising revolutionized the toy business and gave birth to a host of dreaded phrases — each item sold separately; batteries not included; and, some assembly may be required.

Mattel's innovative Slime marketing gambit had parents around the country muttering for months. Even for a kids' promotion, it seemed unusual: "They positioned it as a bonus, which clouded the issue," says Michael Kamins, assistant professor of marketing at the University of Southern California, "It's not really a bonus, and as a strategy, it's manipulative. All you need is a can of Slime and you had to buy two figures to get it."

Today, children are the toy industry's primary salesmen, bombarded by video images directly tied to in-store displays making them instantly recognizable. Kids don't have any money so pressure must be put on the parent.

Years ago, parents fought back, organizing against war toys, sexist toys and unsafe toys. In 1968, Action for Children's Television formed to fight against hard-sell advertising on children's TV which they contended was unfair, and even protested the content of kid-oriented shows.

But consumer agitation isn't "in" this decade, the Federal Trade Commission is less active, and there are problems more important than children's toys, and certainly more than Slime. There are only occasional complaints about marketing to children and very little public discussion of what is being sold to children or how.

ONE RESULT of the Slime job was profiteering: In spite of the "Not for Sale" label, some retailers sold their free cans at prices running from $2.99 to almost $10.

"It should be easy to make refills available at a nominal cost," grumbled one father. Another was more annoyed that the Slime Pit package said nothing about the availability of refills: "When you buy your Slime Pit," he says, "you expect to be able to get more Slime."

The whole discussion surprises Mattel, which only wanted "to build momentum on Masters figures," says a company spokesman. "We didn't think the two-figure purchase burdensome, having originally talked about making it three or four." Besides, he adds: "It was such a short-term promotion."

Superficially, the debate seems unimportant — these are, after all, only kids and the product in question only Slime. But it calls up interesting questions — questions asked less often now than in the consumerist 1970s — of how things should be sold, particularly to children, which really means promoted to children and bought by their parents, often under pressure.

The Slime Pit and its Slime are like the age-old razor-and-razor-blades principle: Sell the razor and make the consumer buy blades forever. But with Slime, a twist was added: Suddenly the owner couldn't get new "blades" without making another $12 purchase.

However, the bonus product may be "the one you really want," says Brooke Warrick, a consultant at SRI (formerly Stanford Research Institute). What's more, he says, the Slime is not incidental but integral to the Slime Pit: "They usually don't make you buy something only to get an item you need to complete something else."

As a former child myself, I vividly remember trying to select breakfast cereal solely on the merits of the prize inside regardless of the cereal's taste.

NL mulls alternative methods of deterring hostile acquisition

By ALAN KRAUSS
UPI Business Writer

NL Industries Inc. said it is considering spinning off its chemicals or its oil-services businesses to shareholders in its battle to stave off a hostile $15-a-share acquisition bid by Dallas investor Harold C. Simmons.

NL also said Simmons' announcement Monday that he owns 20.4 percent of NL's common stock has triggered the provisions under a "share purchase rights" plan — designed to make a hostile takeover prohibitively expensive — adopted in April.

The plan entitles the holder of each NL share to purchase from the company for $50 one one-hundredth of a share of a new series of preferred stock. If NL is subsequently involved in a merger, the plan will be modified to entitle the holder to buy an amount of stock in the acquiring company with a market value of twice the $50 exercise price.

Simmons was traveling and unavailable for comment.

"What the plan really does is make an acquisition that much more expensive for an acquirer," said Joseph M. Garrison, NL director of investor relations. "For every $50 that the stockholder paid (for NL stock), he can buy $100 worth of the acquiring company."

NL said the distribution date for the special rights, which will be separately traded, will be July 10.

Simmons has filed a lawsuit challenging the legality of the plan.

Garrison said NL also is considering offering shareholders the right to redeem shares for cash at an as-yet-unspecified price in the event of an acquisition.

NL said it may spin off to shareholders either its chemicals business or its oil services business in a one-for-one distribution of a share in a new company for each share of NL.

Garrison said the purpose of the spin-off would be "to enhance shareholder value."

"We would do that if in our opinion the two shares of different companies would be more valuable than a single share of NL," he said.

NL last week said it believes current economic conditions would make it impossible to realize the full value of its component businesses if the company were broken up. At the same time, however, it announced plans to sell 20 percent of its wholly owned chemicals subsidiary, NL Chemicals Inc., through a public offering.

Pengo moves forward with restructuring

Wireline, well service divisions to be sold

FORT WORTH (SWN) — Pengo Industries, Inc., of Fort Worth, announced execution of a permanent debt restructure agreement with its secured lenders that will, upon closing this summer, permanently restructure approximately $144 million of secured debt.

The permanent agreement will replace the interim debt restructure agreement between Pengo and its secured lenders. Pengo has been working under the interim agreements since their effective dates of Jan. 1, 1984. Pengo is being advised in its debt restructure plan by the firm of Copeland, Wickersham, Wiley & Co. of New York and Houston.

Pengo stated that in summary the permanent debt restructure agreement provides for the following:

■ An exchange of debt for equity between Pengo and its secured lenders whereby the lenders will receive common and preferred stock and certain warrants of Pengo in exchange for approximately $72 million of the debt;

■ Of the remaining $72 million in restructured debt, $25.7 million will be a seven-year term note requiring interest only during the first two years and $46.5 million will be a seven-year convertible note with interest payable in warrants;

■ An exchange of Pengo equity instruments and warrants for guaranteed debt and other obligations of two subsidiaries totaling approximately $8 million;

■ All Pengo redeemable convertible preferred stock issued to the company's secured lenders pursuant to the standstill agreements between Pengo and these lenders will be cancelled; and,

■ The divestiture of the Pengo Oil Tool, Pengo Wireline Products Manufacturing and the Pengo Well Workover Divisions and certain real estate. Proceeds from the sale of these operations and real estate will be used, in part, to pay down the $46.5 million seven-year convertible note.

Closing of the permanent debt restructure agreement is conditioned upon the following:

■ approval by the Pengo shareholders, at a meeting which is presently being planned for August, of certain aspects of the debt restructure plan including the authorization of new issues of senior and junior preferred stock, additional common stock and a one-for-10 reverse split of the presently authorized and outstanding common stock;

■ a successful exchange by Pengo Finance N.V., a finance subsidiary, of its $19.5 million of outstanding Eurobonds for equity instruments and warrants of Pengo; and,

■ a resolution of the respective defaults on certain industrial revenue bonds by two Pengo subsidiaries — NDT Systems, Inc. and Power Span, Inc.

Pengo stated that as a result of the proposed debt restructure a significant amount of common stock and securities convertible into common stock will be issued with Pengo's secured lenders becoming its primary shareholders.

Pengo stated that execution of the permanent debt restructure agreement is a significant step toward the stabilization of the company's financial condition and accomplishes the basic objectives established by management when discussions began almost three years ago.

Pengo's secured lenders include Smith-VasiTiou Special Situations Fund, L.P.; F.D.I.C. by and through the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago; InterFirst Bank Fort Worth, N.A.; InterFirst Bank Dallas, N.A.; The Royal Bank of Canada; Teachers Insurance & Annuity Association of America; Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc.; and Morgan Guaranty & Trust Co., as Trustee.

Western Co. closes office in Wyoming district

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Officials for the Western Co. of North America announced the Gillette, Wyoming, district of the company's onshore division has been closed.

"This action is part of the continuing effort by the company to reorganize and restructure its onshore operations in order to provide more effective and cost-efficient services to our customers," said Robert E. Wilder, president of the company's onshore division.

HL&P accused of earning 'windfall profits'

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — The state's consumer lobbyist said that evidence from rate hearings before the Public Utility Commission indicates that Houston Lighting & Power Co. is earning excess profits.

Jim Boyle, director of the Office of Public Utility Counsel, said he based his claim on the testimony by HL&P comptroller David McClanahan.

McClanahan, testifying in evidentiary hearings on the Houston utility's $343 million rate hike request, said the company earned a 17.4 percent rate of return on equity during 1985.

Boyle said that amount "greatly exceeded" the 16.3 percent rate of return on equity authorized by the PUC in HL&P's 1985 rate case. He said each percentage point of equity return costs ratepayers about $45 million.

McClanahan's testimony, Boyle said, "shows that this company is earning a windfall at the expense of its many residential ratepayers, some of whom are unemployed, as well as its business customers, many of who face slumping sales."

Boyle, who has requested that HL&P's base rates be reduced by $69.6 million, said the excessive profits "clearly show that base rates should be reduced."

"There is no need for a ratepayer bail out of this company," Boyle said. "If anything, HL&P is in a position to bail out the depressed economy in its service area."

Bills left unpaid by Sunshine o&g subsidiaries

DALLAS (UPI) — Sunshine Mining Co. announced that its oil and gas subsidiaries will not make quarterly principal payments of approximately $8 million to their creditor banks which were due this week.

Sunshine stated that although cash was available to make the payments, negotiations with the banks have failed to produce a mutually satisfactory revised credit arrangement.

Sunshine advised that it expects to continue negotiations toward an arrangement with the banks on terms which more realistically reflect today's economic conditions in the oil and gas industry. The company also said that it would make no further payments until an arrangement meeting Sunshine's needs had been negotiated.

Kelley Partners announce July distribution

HOUSTON (SWN) — Kelley Oil & Gas Partners, Ltd. declared a second quarter distribution of $.35 per unit payable on July 15, to unitholders of record on July 11.

Pipeline curtailment during the quarter continue to affect the Partnership's oil and gas volumes and revenues. Current production levels, however, are significantly higher than the average rate of sales for the first two quarters of the year, indicating that the summer marketing period of July through September, a time of traditionally heavy seasonal air-conditioning demand, should be much improved over the first six months.

Valero delays $2 million preferred stock offer

SAN ANTONIO (SWN) — Valero Energy Corp. announced that it is delaying the sale of 2 million shares of the company's convertible exchangeable serial preference stock, Series B because of recent weakness in Valero's common stock price. Valero said it had filed an amendment to its earlier registration statement, which converts the filing to a shelf registration which Valero intends to offer when an acceptable conversion price can be assured.

Bill Greehey, Valero's chairman and CEO said, "the purpose of this offering is to reduce debt and increase equity in the company. The timing of the offering is not critical since the company earlier in the year restructured its bank debt through 1991 and has adequate credit availability. In addition, the company has already reduced debt nearly $90 million this year in keeping with our prime objective of debt reduction. Consequently, we plan to defer an offering of convertible securities until more appropriate conversion levels can be achieved."

Noble Drilling replaces district managers

TULSA (SWN) — Noble Drilling Corp. announced the retirement of Johnnie W. Hoffman as vice president and Gulf Coast Division manager and of Eddie Paul as Rocky Mountain Division manager. Both men will remained as consultants, and Hoffman will continue as a member of the company's board of directors.

Hoffman, who ends 39 years of service, will be succeeded by Max D. Smith, former assistant division manager of Noble Drilling's New Orleans based Gulf Coast operations. Paul, a 33 year veteran, will be replaced by Clemens Reiger, formerly Rocky Mountain assistant division manager in Denver. Both Smith and Reiger have been with the company for approximately 26 years. Each started as a floorman and worked his way up through the ranks.

Hoffman joined the company in 1947 as a roughneck and after a series of promotions was named vice president and division manager in 1982. He was elected to the board of directors in 1985.

The company also announced the retirement of Gus Androes, division drilling superintendent in its Gulf Coast Division. Androes will be replaced by Leonard Jones.

Tenneco offers notes to meet short-term debts

NEW YORK (SWN) — Morgan Stanely & Co. Inc. and Merrill Lynch Capital Markets, as managers of a nationwide underwriting group, announce a public offering of $250 million Tenneco Inc. nine percent notes due January 15, 1997, at a price of 99.60 percent.

The notes are not redeemable prior to maturity.

The net proceeds from the sale of the notes will be utilized to reduce short-term indebtedness.

FOCUS ON BUSINESS

Hefty banking business

The best performing bank in the U.S. is the First National Bank of Hebronville, Texas, according to a recent report issued by Bank Financial Quarterly, a national reporting service which ranks the financial ratios of the nation's FDIC—insured banks.

The Hebronville bank received the highest ranking of 280 by the publication, which ranked the nation's 11,051 banks for the fourth quarter of 1985.

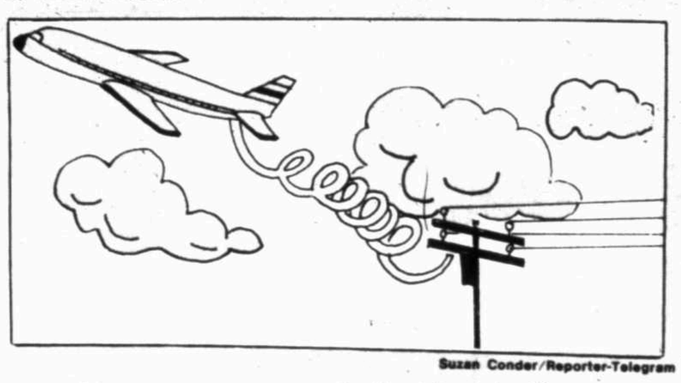

Suzan Conder/Reporter-Telegram

Looking at the results of all U.S. banks, the nation's best performing banks grew at an annual rate of between 12 and 20 percent, according to the reporting service. "While the high quality banks in the country expanded at a 3 to 5 percent rate in the fourth quarter of 1985, the banks with lower performance ratios reported limited to negative growth," said John E. Rickmeier, CFA and president of IDC Financial Publishing, Inc. which publishes Bank Financial Quarterly.

"On a national level, the oil-related slowdown in the Southwest, and particularly in Texas, has put heavy stress on the state's banks. An example of this is in the Dallas area, where bank borrowings from the Federal Reserve have risen to nearly 24 percent of total borrowings, compared with only 7 percent the year before.

For the First National Bank of Hebronville to be operating in this environment and yet show the strongest financial ratios of all U.S. banks, is a testimony to their sound management and superior performance," said Rickmeier.

Coffee, tea or telephone?

Texans can now do their business in the air! TranStar Airlines Corp. has announced that its entire fleet of aircraft will be fitted with "Airfone" air-to-ground radio telephones by mid-summer.

"While some carriers are installing the phones in only certain types of aircraft, we are installing them in all of our planes," said TranStar vice president of sales and marketing, Ron Thornton. "Passenger acceptance to the convenience of phones on the airplanes has been very favorable. With the Airfones, the cusomer is no longer out of touch; he or she can conduct business or arrange to be met at the airport upon arrival."

The McDonnell Douglas Super 80 fleet is already fitted with Airfones and the Super 50 fleet installations will be complete by mid-July, Thornton added.

The phones are credit card activated, accepting Visa, Mastercard of American Express. Passengers may call anywhere in the continental U.S., Alaska and Puerto Rico no matter where they may be flying. There is a charge of $7.50 for the first three minutes; each additonal minute is $1.25.

"The collapse of oil prices may signal an upheaval in the banking system. Many loans made to oil exploration companies were based upon the value of their crude oil reserves."

There have been 30 recent bank failures in Texas and Oklahoma, the IOCC said.

Among the other IOCC findings:

— Some 400,000 people in the petroleum industry have lost their jobs.

— Mortgage foreclosures will increase.

— Royalty owners will suffer heavy losses, especially farmers who depend on royalty income to offset depressed agricultural commodity prices.

— U.S. refining capacity is dwindling.

— The U.S. treasury may lose $30 billion in oil-based taxes.

— Stripper wells — marginal wells that produce less than 10 barrels per day — will be abandoned. In 1984, stripper wells accounted for 15 percent of U.S. production and accounted for 70 percent of the total number of wells in the country. States with more than 10,000 stripper wells include the recognized oil states of Texas, California, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Kansas and Louisiana, but also Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and West Virginia.

— Low oil prices have caused the number of active rotary rigs to drop to the lowest figure since 1943.

VSP

"This was not so much a sales presentation as an educational presentation," said Anderson. "We wanted local operators and geologists to know that we had a viable tool."

While 80 percent of all offshore wells use VSP, only about 25 percent of the wells onshore utilize the technique.

Approximately 60 individuals attended the presentation at the Holiday Inn Country Villa.

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Stock prices reached record levels for the third day in a row Wednesday, but the advance lacked the conviction that Wall Street might have liked.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.49, to a new peak of 1,909.03. On Tuesday it closed above 1,900 for the first time ever.

"The stock market is reacting positively to sluggish economic news," said Harold A. Mackinney, chairman of the investment policy committee of the Fleet Financial Group in Providence, R.I. "A plodding economy helps to contain inflation and reduces interest rates." He said that investors were anticipating another cut by the Federal Reserve in the discount rate.

On Tuesday the Commerce Department reported that its index of leading economic indicators increased a scant 0.2 percent in May.

Indicators besides the Dow also rose Wednesday. The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.66, to 252.70. The even broader-based New York Stock Exchange composite index was up 0.47, to 145.15. Trading volume rose to 150 million shares, from 147.7 million on Tuesday.

Advances on the New York Stock Exchange outnumbered declines by 846 to 735.

Robert Walsh, an analyst at Jenswold, King & Associates Inc. in Houston, said he continued to be impressed with the underlying strength that the market has displayed.

"Despite Wall Street's prevailing cautious attitude, the market remains locked in a firm up trend," Walsh said. "Today's price action is best described as a catch-up day, where stocks that lagged in June came to life."

He said, for example, that brokerage stocks and select high-technology stocks were strong. For example, Merrill Lynch rose ⅞, to 35¼; E. F. Hutton, ¾, to 34½, and Paine Webber, ¾, to 36⅝.

Among high-tech issues, Burroughs climbed 5⅛, to 67½; Hewlett-Packard, 1⅝, to 42¼; Digital Equipment, 1, to 89½, and the bellwether IBM, ⅞, to 149½.

Walsh said the market still has room to climb. He said that some signs that it had reached a true peak and was ready to decline would be IBM attaining a new high — it would have to reach 162; new issues no longer going to premiums; a day or two of trading volume of 200 million shares or better with no net price movement, and the market's leadership shifting from consumer-related stocks, such as drugs and foods.

"A meaningful stock market rally is imminent and is likely to be started by another decline in interest rates," said Ben Niedermeyer, senior vice president of Janus Capital, a Denver investment counseling firm. Niedermeyer added that rate-sensitive stocks and bonds should do well over the next few months.

Among individual issues on the Big Board, American Can climbed 5, to 81⅜. The healthy gain was attributed in part to speculation that the company might sell assets and take other steps to improve its profitability.

Coca-Cola climbed 1⅛, to 43⅞, in active trading.

Lendl, Becker remain on collision course

Europeans own top four spots

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and Boris Becker of West Germany are still gunning for each other at Wimbledon, where the quest for the 100th men's championship has developed into a battle of serve and nerve.

Nine days of sunshine have honed the grass courts into a serve-and-volley player's dream, with the result that the semifinal lineup features the top-seeded Lendl against 6-foot-5 Yugoslav Slobodan Zivojinovic and Becker, the defending champion, against Frenchman Henri Leconte.

It is the first time this century that four Europeans have contested the Wimbledon men's semifinals.

By contrast, the women's semifinals today were expected to set up an all-American final between Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert-Lloyd.

Navratilova, the No. 1 seed who is going for her fifth straight title, faced No. 10-seed Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina while the second-seeded Lloyd, who won the French title last month, meets U.S. Open champion and No. 3 seed Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia.

LENDL WAS taken to the limit Wednesday by No. 10 seed Tim Mayotte, who was finally put away when, on match point, he missed a drop shot after 3⅓ hours of slam-bang serves and volleys.

Lendl triumphed 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 9-7 as Mayotte became the last American to tumble out of the tournament.

Becker, who has dropped only one set in four matches in defense of his title, reached the semifinals with a 6-4, 6-2, 7-6 triumph over seed-slayer Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia, who earlier knocked out No. 5 Stefan Edberg of Sweden and No. 12 Brad Gilbert of the United States.

In a clash of two unseeded players, the big-serving Zivojinovic beat India's stylish but lightweight Ramesh Krishnan 6-2, 7-6, 4-6, 6-3.

Leconte, the No. 7 seed, came from a set down to beat Australian Pat Cash, a wild-card entry rated by many fellow professionals as the top hope among the non-seeds.

After three hours of pulsating play, the Frenchman triumphed 4-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-3 over a player who had an appendix operation only three weeks before the tournament started.

LENDL SAID before he faced Mayotte that he knew how the match would go, and he wasn't disappointed.

"He was very solid. He did what I expected him to do," Lendl said.

What came as a surprise was a service break in the opening game of the match. "But then I didn't break him for another 2⅓ sets," Lendl said.

It was tense tennis all the way with one break in each set. Lendl yielded the second on a double fault and the fourth after losing his temper over a warning about wasting time.

The fifth set contained the best tennis of the match with Lendl producing screaming returns off Mayotte's powerful serves.

The American said later he always felt behind in the match, because Lendl had the ability to win the first two points of each game.

Both players agreed that Mayotte panicked when he played the drop shot that cost him the match.

"I just got stuck," Mayotte said. "It was just so tight," Lendl said. "Your eyes are tired, your feet are tired, your hand is tired and you're nervous."

BECKER, WHOSE thundering aces and acrobatics helped him become the youngest and first unseeded player to win the title last year, attributes his successes this year to improved concentration.

Wimbledon

A rash of double-faults in his third-round match against Australian Paul McNamee cast doubts on his ability to maintain his high standard of serves.

Even against Mecir, he admitted that he struggled on the first serve. But he felt it was getting back to its best and he was delighted with his second serve.

"I don't remember having such a good second serve," he said.

Zivojinovic became the first Yugoslav to reach the Wimbledon semifinals since Nikki Pilic lost to John Newcombe in 1967.

"This is the biggest thing in my life," Zivojinovic said. "My big advantage was that I was hitting hard and I did not let him play. He is one of the best touch players, but today I was going for everything."

Leconte felt confident of beating Cash even after surrendering the first set.

"I won because I played the big points of the tie-breaks better than he did," the Frenchman said.

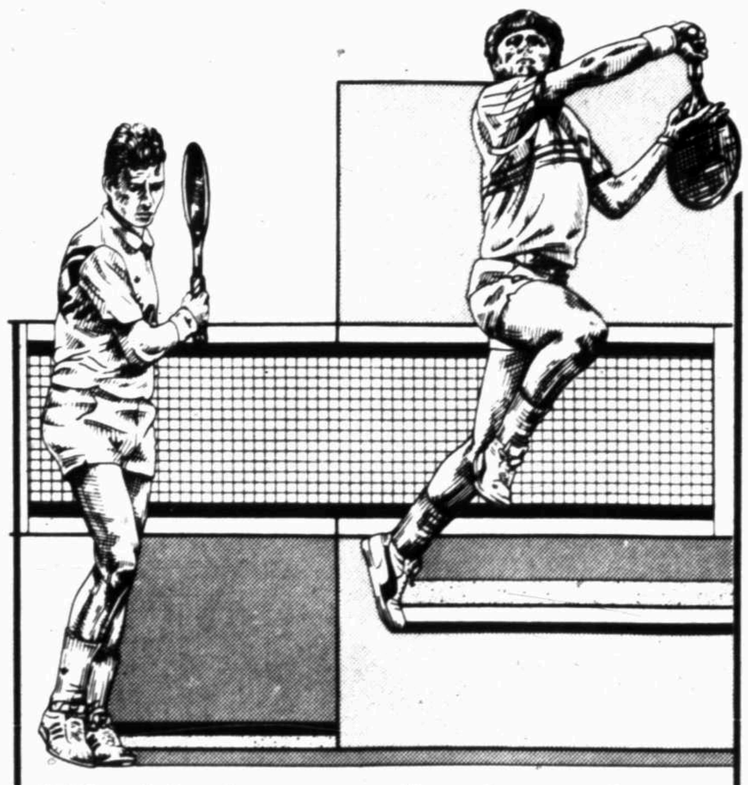

Cash agreed, bu added that tiredness following Monday's four-set triumph over No. 2-seed Mats Wilander began to creep over him.

"I was hoping that something like this wouldn't happen, but I knew it was coming on," said the Australian, who nearly didn't enter the tournament because of his operation.

In the women's semifinals, Sabatini had her first meeting with Navratilova, while Lloyd took a 19-5 advantage into the match against Mandlikova.

Navratilova blasted West German Bettina Bunge off court 6-1, 6-3 in the quarterfinal while Sabatini beat unseeded Italian Raffaella Reggi 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

Lloyd struggled past No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia 7-6, 4-6, 6-4, while Mandlikova beat Canada's No. 11 seed, Carling Bassett, 6-4, 7-6.

Navratilova ousts Sabatini to gain finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova moved within one step of her fifth consecutive Wimbledon women's tennis championship, taking 53 minutes Thursday to beat teen-ager Gabriela Sabatini 6-2, 6-2.

On Saturday, the top seed from the United States will play for the title against the winner of the second semifinal between No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd and No. 3 Hana Mandlikova.

If Navratilova wins on Saturday, she will become just the second woman to win Wimbledon five straight years, tying the record of Suzanne Lenglen, who won from 1919 to 1923.

Navratilova and Sabatini, a 16-year-old from Argentina who was the youngest women's semifinalist ever at Wimbledon, had not met previously.

Off Thursday's performance, Sabatini may not be eager for a second meeting.

Navratilova took her apart, easily handling the Argentine's strong first service and dropping her own serve in just one game, the sixth of the second set.

Navratilova broke back, then won the match, punctuating the victory with a pump of her right fist to the Centre Court crowd.

Never a runner-up at Wimbledon, Navratilova has won the tournament each time she has reached the finals — in 1978, 1979 and the last four years.

Angels drop third straight

Dodgers bring home winner in 11th, 4-3

From Staff and Wire Reports

SAN ANTONIO — The San Antonio Dodgers knocked the Midland Angels out of first place in the Texas League's second half standings Wednesday night with a 4-3 victory in 11 innings.

The loss dropped the Angels to 7-6 on the year while El Paso, a 7-4 winner over Beaumont, improved to 8-5.

In a game filled with missed opportunites to score — a total of 25 men were left on base — victory boiled down to Mike Ramsey's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the 11th, bringing Ken Harvey home from third base.

Harvey had tripled and scored when the throw by Midland leftfielder Al Romero was high at home plate.

The Angels and Dodgers traded runs early with Midland scoring two in the top of the first and one in the second. San Antonio tallied solo runs in the first, second and sixth innings to tie the game before scoring the winner in the 11th.

The loss is the third straight for the Angels.

ELSEWHERE AROUND the league, Shreveport blanked Arkansas, 3-0; El Paso defeated Beaumont, 7-4; and Jackson downded Tulsa, 5-2.

Shreveport Captains pitcher Jeff Brantley got within two outs of a no-hitter, had to settle for a one-hitter when Marty Pevey doubled to centerfield and eventually held on for the victory.

After Pevey's double fell safely just out of the reach of centerfielder Everett Graham, Brantley bounced back to get the next two batters out with a strikeout and a fly ball to center.

Brantley struck out seven batters and contributed to a two-run outburst in the third inning that gave the Captains all the runs they needed.

Angel Escobar doubled, moved to third on a sacrifice bunt by Brantley and scored on a single by Graham. Graham then stole a base and scored on an Arkansas error. The other run came in the sixth when Mike Rubel doubled and came home on a double by Charlie Haynes.

Brantley is now 5-6. The losing pitcher was Ernie Carrasco, 6-7.

Randy Milligan slugged a three-run homer in the third inning to lead the Jackson Mets to a 5-2 victory over the Tulsa Drillers.

Tom Edens, 9-4, was the winning pitcher while reliever Jeff Innis picked up his 12th save. Curt Killingsworth, 5-3, was the losing pitcher.

Phil Torres, who pitched three hitless innings in relief, was the winning pitcher. He is 7-7. DeWayne Buice was the losing pitcher.

The El Paso Diablos scored seven runs on four doubles and a homer in the first two innings enroute to a 7-4 victory over the Beaumont Golden Gators.

Chiles agrees to sell Rangers

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Rangers majority owner Eddie Chiles has agreed to sell controlling interest in the American League club to Edward L. Gaylord, head of an Oklahoma-based communications company, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

The newspaper said its report was based upon several sources close to the team. The purchase price for Chiles' majority interest was not disclosed, The News said.

"It's news to me," said Gaylord, contacted at his Oklahoma City office today. He declined to comment further.

Chiles, who purchased the Rangers in 1980 from Brad Corbett, refused comment late Wednesday.

"I have absolutely no comment to make," Chiles told the newspaper when reached at his home in Fort Worth. "First of all, you have no business calling me at this time of night."

Vince Coleman, leading the major leagues with 50 stolen bases, was successful on all 14 of his attempts against the New York Mets through Tuesday.

STREAKS

San Diego's Garry Templeton drove in 19 runs in his last 19 games through Tuesday. Templeton had only five RBI prior to the streak.

Blue Jays snap Clemens' winning streak at 14, 4-2

Associated Press

For seven innings, Roger Clemens had the Toronto Blue Jays in the palm of his hand. Then he lost his grip, and for the first time this year came up empty-handed.

"Sure, I'm a little disappointed, but things just didn't work out," the Boston right-hander said Wednesday night after the Blue Jays ended his 14-game winning streak with a 4-2 victory over the Red Sox. "I felt strong, felt pretty good in the cool (57-degree) weather and did exactly what I wanted, but came up short."

The loss ended Clemens' bid to tie an American League record for most victories at the start of the season. The AL record of 15 was set by Cleveland's Johnny Allen in 1937 and equaled by Baltimore's Dave McNally in 1969. Rube Marquard set the major league record with 19 straight victories in 1912 for the New York Giants.

"I had a good fastball, good stuff and didn't really struggle," Clemens said. "Winning 14 of 14, though, I'll take it. It's not fun to see it end, but I'll start over the next time out there."

The Blue Jays, held to one hit for seven innings, scored three runs in the eighth to pull it out.

Clemens struck out eight and walked two, both in the seventh inning. The only hit off him to that point was George Bell's 15th homer in the fourth.

Then, with a 2-1 lead on Marty Barrett's two-run homer in the fifth, the big right-hander faltered. Rance Mulliniks doubled to score the tying run and reliever Bob Stanley later gave up an RBI single to George Bell and a sacrifice fly to Jesse Barfield.

Winner Jimmy Key, 7-5, scattered eight hits in 7 2-3 innings. His fourth straight victory snapped Boston's six-game winning streak and gave the Blue Jays their first victory in nine games in Boston, dating back to the 1984 season.

Mulliniks, who struck out twice before delivering his big double off Clemens, called the Boston right-hander "outstanding. He's a great pitcher. He battled us all the way and pitched well enough to win. Any time you beat a pitcher like Roger Clemens you know you've done a good job."

Minnesota second baseman Steve Lombardozzi (4) can't come up with a pickoff throw from pitcher Mike Smithson as Texas Ranger Oddibe McDowell dives back safely to the bag Wednesday.

Rangers 10, Twins 2

Mike Mason pitched six innings of two-hit ball and Oddibe McDowell and Larry Parrish each drove in three runs to lead Texas over Minnesota. Mason, 5-2, held the Twins to one run in his six innings, on an RBI double by Gary Gaetti.

By that time, the Rangers had built a 6-0 lead, five of the runs coming in the second off Mike Smithson, 7-7. McDowell drove in two runs with a double and the other big blow was Parrish's two-run homer, his 12th of the season.

Tigers 8, Yankees 3

Alan Trammell and Darrell Evans drove in two runs apiece as Detroit handed New York's Ron Guidry his seventh straight loss. Larry Herndon rapped three singles during Detroit's season-high 16-hit attack against four Yankee pitchers.

Guidry, 4-8, continued the longest losing streak of his career. He hasn't won in 10 starts since May 10. The left-hander pitched seven innings and gave up three runs on 10 hits. He left the game after the seventh, when Lance Parrish's liner struck him on the pitching hand.

Dave LaPoint, 3-6, struggled through five innings for the victory, allowing five hits and five walks but only one run. Reliever Bill Campbell gave up a two-run single to Willie Randolph in the eighth, and Willie Hernandez got the last four outs for his 16th save.

Brewers 1, Orioles 0

Rookie left-hander Juan Nieves scattered five hits and made an unearned run stand up in pitching visiting Milwaukee over Baltimore.

The 21-year-old Nieves, 7-2, struck out eight and walked four in posting his second major league shutout. Only one Baltimore runner advanced as far as third base. Juan Bonilla, who opened the first with a single, moved up on two long fly balls, but was left at third.

Baltimore starter Ken Dixon, 6-7, pitched almost as well as Nieves, giving up four hits, but suffered his fourth consecutive defeat.

The game's lone run came in the fourth, when an error by Baltimore first baseman Eddie Murray allowed Rick Manning to reach. He advanced to third on Jim Gantner's single and scored on Rick Cerone's sacrifice fly.

Indians 7, A's 3

Andre Thornton hit his sixth career grand slam in the first inning as Cleveland completed a three-game sweep in Oakland. It was the fifth consecutive loss for the A's.

Thornton's 12th homer of the year with none out in the first inning gave Cleveland a 4-0 lead.

The A's have lost all six games against the Indians this season and 23 of their past 28 games.

"All I was trying to do was get the ball in the outfield, just put the ball in play and get the run in," Thornton said of his grand slam. "I wasn't looking for a home run. When you hit a home run, all you're hitting is a pitcher's mistake."

Mariners 5, Royals 3

Ken Phelps and Scott Bradley hit solo homers as Seattle defeated Kansas City and handed the Royals their sixth straight loss. The three-game sweep dropped the third-place Royals, last year's world champions, five games behind the AL West-leading Texas Rangers.

Mike Morgan, 6-7, scattered nine hits, walked none and struck out three in eight innings before Matt Young came on for his sixth save. Scott Bankhead, 3-2, was the loser.

Phelps hit his 12th homer of the season leading off the second and Bradley, a rookie catcher, hit his first major league homer in the fourth. Bradley's home run gave the Mariners a 3-0 lead.

Angels 4, White Sox 3

Reggie Jackson's first triple in almost two years drove home three runs in a four-run first inning for California. The victory — in a game in which all the runs were scored in the opening inning — halted a four-game winning streak by the White Sox. Chicago is 7-3 since Jim Fregosi replaced the fired Tony LaRussa as manager.

The California victory, which also dealt Chicago's Neil Allen his first loss in five decisions this season, kept the Angels within one-half game of Texas in the AL West race.

Jackson's triple rallied the Angels from behind, as Greg Walker's three run homer off Mike Witt, his 10th, staked the White Sox to a quick 3-0 lead. After hitting his first triple in 245 games dating back to August, 1984. Jackson scored the winning run on Doug DeCinces' sacrifice fly.

Mets claim 4-3 win over Cards

No, Mets' pitching not perfect, fifth starter shaky

Associated Press

The New York Mets have a problem shared by every other team in the major leagues — they can't find five good starting pitchers.

What they don't have in common with other teams is that the first four are doing just fine.

Dwight Gooden, Sid Fernandez, Bob Ojeda and Ron Darling are a combined 36-9. But the Mets' other starters are 3-5.

One of those extra starters, Rick Aguilera, had another shaky outing Wednesday night, giving up eight hits and three runs in 4⅔ innings. But that was no solace to the rest of the National League East as the Mets improved their record to 52-21 with a 4-3 victory over St. Louis, giving them an 11½-game lead over second-place Montreal.

"I had (only) one pitch," Aguilera said after his no-decision against the Cardinals. "I don't care how good a pitcher you are, you aren't going to go through nine innings that way. I had the good fastball, but I didn't have a breaking ball to go with it."

Doug Sisk, 2-1, a much-maligned reliever, picked up the victory with 2⅔ innings of three-hit pitching and Jesse Orosco got the last five outs for his 12th save.

"You're not ever sure when they're going to use you, so it's tough," said Sisk, who saw his first action in 11 days. "Somebody had to win. It might as well be my name for once. You just have to make the most of it."

Gary Carter had a sacrifice fly and a run-scoring single for the Mets, giving him an NL-best 56 RBI. The sacrifice fly gave him 11 for the season, one more than the previous Met mark of 10 set by Keith Hernandez last year.

"After about 300 at-bats (last year) I had only about 40 RBI," said Carter, who finished with 100 RBI in 1985.

Astros 8, Padres 1

Houston's Denny Walling had the best day of his eight-year major-league career as he knocked in six runs with two homers and a pair of singles against San Diego, helping the Astros recapture first place in the NL West.

"I haven't had a day like that in my career," said Walling, who tied a Houston club record for RBI in a game. "I've never hit two home runs in a game and never had more than three RBI."

The victory, combined with San Francisco's loss to Atlanta, gave the Astros a half-game lead over the Giants. It was the fourth time since June 21 that the two teams have swapped first and second place.

Walling hit a three-run homer in the third inning, giving the Astros a 3-1 lead against San Diego right-hander Andy Hawkins, 5-5. Walling added a solo homer in the fifth to make it 4-1 and he capped Houston's three-run eighth with a two-run single.

Astros right-hander Mike Scott, 8-5, pitched a six-hitter and struck out three to increase his major-league lead to 151.

place for the first time since April 26, taking advantage of an error by Los Angeles shortstop Bill Russell to win on Tony Perez's two-run double in the bottom of the 10th.

The Dodgers, who haven't been in last place this late in a season since 1979, took a 3-2 lead in the top of the 10th on an RBI single by Ken Landreaux, who had tied the game 2-2 in the eighth with another run-scoring single.

With one out in the bottom of the 10th, Russell booted Tracy Jones' potential double-play grounder that could have ended the game, but instead loaded the bases.

Perez, pinch-hitting for Pete Rose, doubled to right-center, giving the victory to Reds reliever John Franco, 2-4, who pitched 2 2-3 innings.

Cubs 1, Expos 0, suspended game
Cubs 5, Expos 4, regular game

Davey Lopes acknowledged he was going for a home run after his solo shot in the bottom of the ninth inning gave Chicago a sweep of Montreal.

"I was trying to drive a pitch out of the park, and I was lucky because I guessed right on a changeup," Lopes said of his homer off Bob McClure, 0-1. "I was definitely trying to hit the ball out, but it was the count (1-0) that dictated my desire."

Jody Davis hit a two-out, run-scoring single in the eighth to snap a 0-0 tie in the game suspended because of darkness on Tuesday.

Lopes, who was on base all five times in the regular game, hit his sixth homer. Lee Smith, 5-6, who pitched the last two innings, was the winner.

Pirates 4, Phillies 3

Tony Pena hit a two-out, run-scoring single in the bottom of the ninth and Rick Rhoden went 3-for-4 and pitched a six-hitter for his third straight complete-game victory as Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia.

Rhoden, 9-4, started the Pirates' winning rally in the ninth with a leadoff single off Philadelphia reliever Don Carman, 3-2. Pinch-runner Rick Reuschel went to second on a wild pitch and to third on a fly ball before Pena's single to right field.

Mike Diaz and Jim Morrison homered for the Pirates and Glenn Wilson for the Phillies.

Braves 7, Giants 4

Atlanta knocked San Francisco out of first place as Omar Moreno hit a three-run homer and pitcher Zane Smith collected a two-run single in a six-run fourth inning that broke open a 1-1 game.

Smith, 7-8, held the Giants to eight hits and struck out nine in pitching his third complete game of the season.

All of the Braves' runs in the fourth came after two were out as Scott Garrelts, 6-7, walked Glenn Hubbard with the bases loaded before Smith, hitting .073, blooped a broken-bat hit to right. Moreno then cleared the bases with his second homer.

"The thing that really hurt us was the hit that Smith got," Giants Manager Roger Craig said. "We had two outs and figured to get out of the inning only one run down."

A's convince LaRussa to put family vacation aside

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — It took a lot of convincing, but former Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa finally agreed to give up a visit to Mount Rushmore with his family to take over as manager of the Oakland A's.

The A's haven't been nearly as exciting this season as the famous mountain in South Dakota, and LaRussa's decision was a tough one.

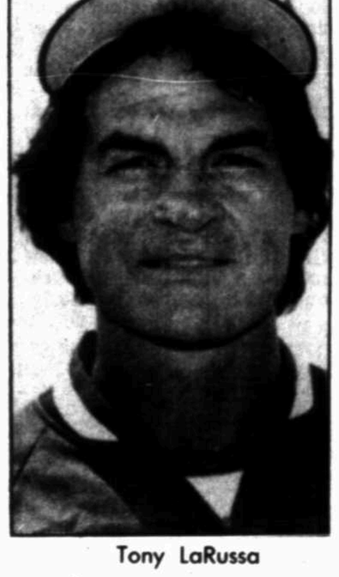

"My first priority is my family," he said after arriving in San Francisco Wednesday night.

His reluctance to give up the time with his family was overcome by the lure of a mountainous challenge: trying to end the season-long slide of the injury-riddled A's.

"We're a down club, because nobody likes to get beat," he said. "We've got to try to turn that cycle around."

The former White Sox manager said he has no plans for immediate changes, but: "I'm going to watch them, evaluate what I see and try to get them competitive right away. Getting healthy would be a step in the right direction."

The A's are off today and begin a three-game series in Milwaukee Friday. LaRussa is in Oakland to hold a news conference and get his wife and two young children settled in a new home.

Tony LaRussa

LaRussa's new bosses realize there's no urgency about rescuing this last-place team, so they have agreed to let him join up with the club in Boston after the weekend in Milwaukee.

SWC Drug Testing

DALLAS (AP) — The drug-testing programs at Southwest Conference schools, according to SWC administrators and athletic trainers:

— ARKANSAS: Two major tests, one in August and one in the spring, with random testing throughout the year. When an athlete tests positive, he will be tested until it turns up negative. If, after three weeks, he still tests positive, the athlete will be advised to seek counseling.

— BAYLOR: One major pre-season test, followed by random testing throughout the year. The testing primarily has been for football players the last four years, but is being expanded to include all sports this fall. Other details still being worked out.

— HOUSTON: One major pre-season test, followed by random testing throughout the year. Testing will be more extensive, organized and have better controls this fall, officials say. Details still being worked out.

— RICE: No organized drug-testing program. Former football coach Watson Brown had some random testing, but that will be expanded this year to include testing of all athletes, as well as a drug education program, an official said.

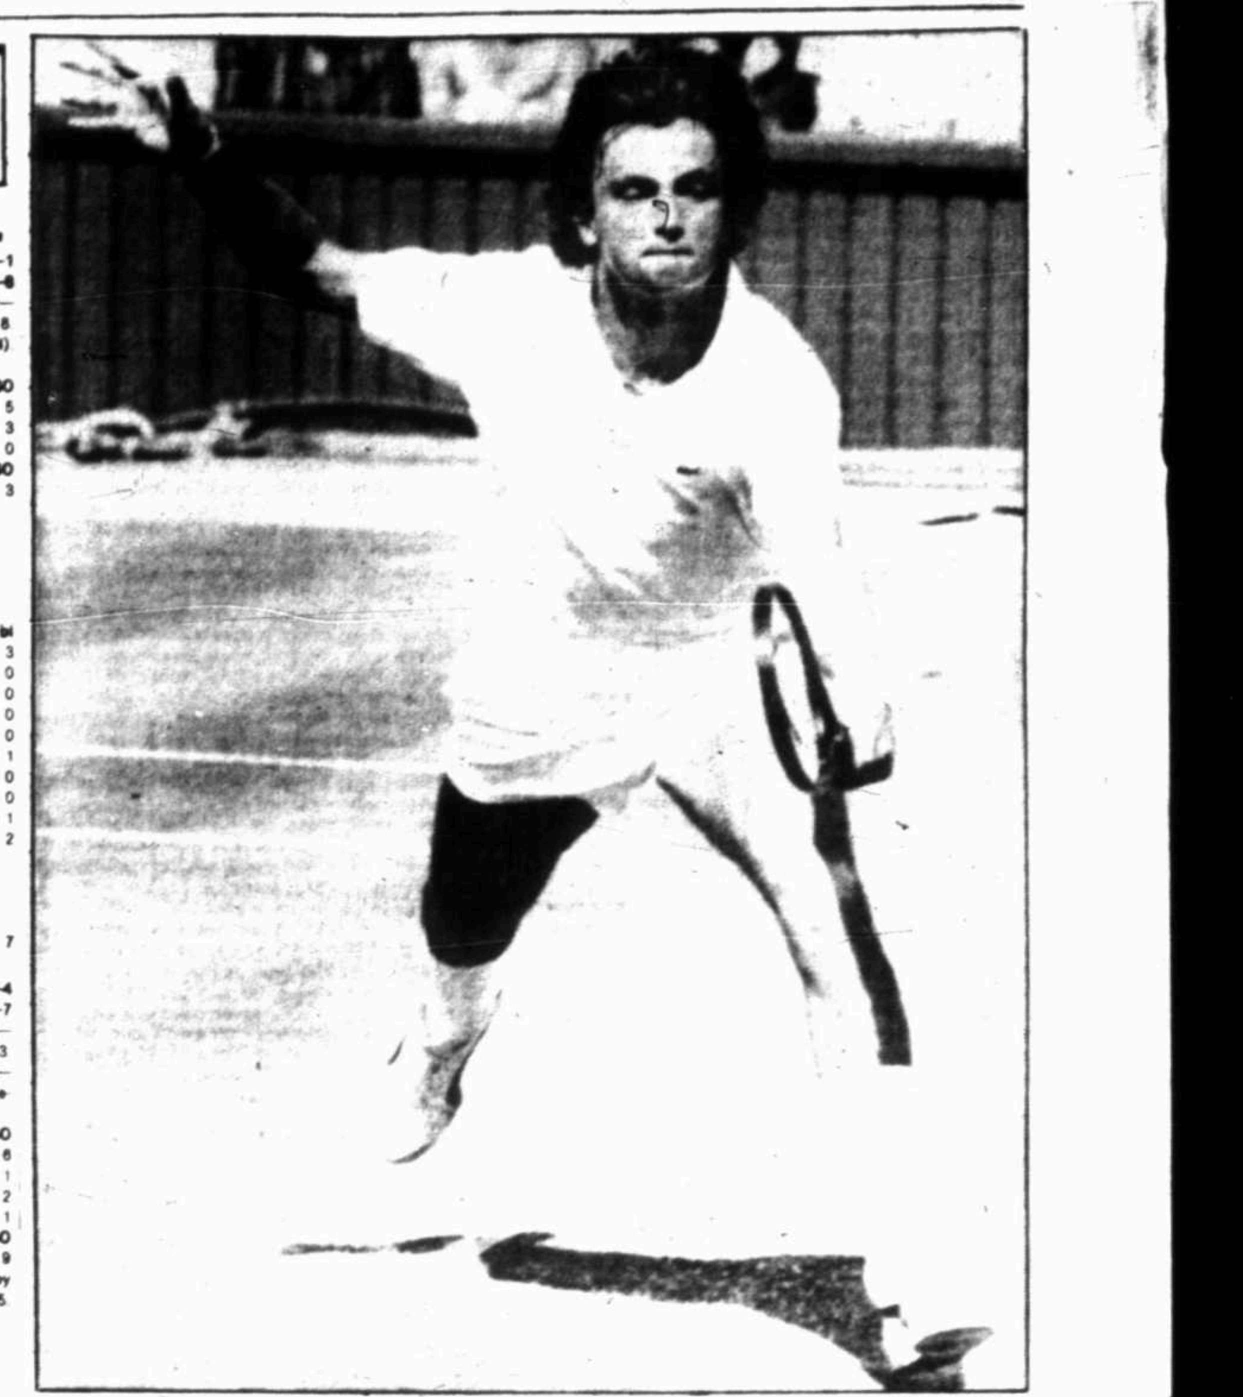

— SOUTHERN METHODIST: Two major tests, one in pre-season and one unannounced in the spring. Also, random testing during the year. Any athlete who tests positive on the first test is called back for another, 7-10 days later. A second positive test will result in a school-sponsored drug rehabilitation program. A third positive test likely would result in suspension, officials say.

— TEXAS: No major pre-season test. Random testing of all athletes is conducted by an outside company. If an athlete tests positive the first time, he is placed in a school-sponsored counseling program. If he tests positive a third or fourth time, he is subject to dismissal upon the review of the athletic director, coach and doctor.

— TEXAS A&M: One major pre-season test, then weekly random testing the rest of the year. If an athlete tests positive, he is required to seek school-sponsored drug counseling and is tested weekly. A second positive test will result in suspension, a requirement to seek more counseling and testing on a weekly basis. A third positive test is grounds for dismissal.

— TEXAS CHRISTIAN: One major pre-season test, then random testing the rest of the year at coaches' discretion. If an athlete tests positive, his results are sent to a laboratory in Dallas for confirmation, and the athlete is required to seek counseling. A second positive test will result in more counseling and possible suspension.

— TEXAS TECH: One major pre-season test, followed by random testing the rest of the year. If an athlete tests positive, he is required to seek school-sponsored counseling. A second positive test will result in suspension and more extensive counseling.

Pokes love new training facility

By LORI BLOCK
Dallas Times Herald

IRVING (AP) — Ed "Too Tall" Jones talks like a man whose contract has just been extended, and Dr Bob Ward acts like a kid with a new toy, all because of one thing: the Dallas Cowboys' new training facility at Valley Ranch.

"I just walk on Cloud Nine," said Ward, the Cowboys' conditioning coach. "There's no doubt in my mind that we'll set the pace (with this facility), not only in the country — in the NFL — but in the world."

What excites Ward is a facility that features some of the most sophisticated equipment, surrounding the area's two (soon to be three) football fields. There is a 10,000 square foot outdoor weight area housing Universal weights of all shapes and sizes designed to exercise every part of the body, plus rowing machines, exercycles, and a martial arts area.

There are machines designed to make players run faster than they would normally be capable of and machines that increase their strength.

There's a jungle gym and exercise stations, and a sand pit for running and jumping in. There's a sprint track, jogging track and an incline-decline track all made of an elastic-type material that decreases the shock on legs.

"It saves them from stress and gives them endurance," Jones said. "That's my concern at this point. I want to save my legs."

Jones said he still is trying to figure out all of the equipment and its capabilities. But he does know it's all designed to turn the Cowboys into the fittest athletes they can be.

"The facility can have us in the best shape ever, and it will increase our playing time," said Jones, who at 35 is concerned about his longevity.

Highlights of the facility include:

— The Sprint Master, a towing machine based on the idea that if you can force an athlete to run faster than normally possible, his muscles will remember the action and repeat it while running unassisted. The Sprint Master forces the athlete to increase his stride length and frequency, translating into faster times.

After a few weeks of training on the Sprint Master, most athletes can reduce their 40-yard dash times as much as four-tenths of a second, one fitness authority said. In football, that is a significant improvement.

— The Diagnostic Power Trainer, which operates on the opposite principal of the Sprint Master. The athlete wears a heavy leather belt, which is connected by a line to a machine with gears, similar to those found on a bicycle. Once hooked up, the player must overcome a heavy force, and apply some force of his own, to go forward.

The machine also plots a graph that shows when the athlete is putting out any force and when he is "taking a vacation," as the machine's inventor, Larry Brown, would say.

The purpose is to reduce errors in the athlete's form and increase his muscular and cardiovascular development while working under load. The exercise is especially useful because it can be adjusted to suit the individual athlete and his needs.

Thomas tells Tigers he'll probably quit

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Former Seattle slugger Gorman Thomas says he's 90 percent sure he'll retire from baseball, despite an offer to play from the Detroit Tigers.

The 35-year-old Thomas was released last week by the Seattle Mariners, and was contacted by the Tigers on Monday afternoon when he cleared waivers.

But last season's American League comeback player of the year said Tuesday it was doubtful he would accept the offer.

"I'm 90 percent sure I'll just pack it in," Thomas said from his suburban Milwaukee home. "I have told Detroit that much."

Midland College schedules hunter education courses

From Staff Reports

Two complete courses in hunter education have been scheduled at Midland College in August. One course meets on Mondays and Wednesdays from Aug. 4-13 and the other on Tuesdays and Thursdays from Aug. 5-14. Both will meet from 7-10 p.m.

Offered through the college's Continuing Education Department, the fee is $5 for registration and materials. Persons interested should register in the Continuing Education Department, Administration Building, between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Duane Ervin, a certified hunter education instructor, will teach the course.

"This course is open to adults and includes instructions in rifle, shotgun, and bowhunting handling and safety, outdoor ethics, laws and regulations, conservation, hunting traditions, wildlife identification, field care of game, and wilderness first aid and survival," Ervin said.

Students successfully completing the course are issued a hunter safety card from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"Even though the course is not mandatory in Texas, more than 100,00 Texans have been certified through the course," Ervin said. "In 34 states, including Colorado, the course is mandatory before a hunting license can be purchased."

Camping fine respite from life's daily grind

OUTDOORS

By ROLLA WILLIAMS
Copley News Service

It is inexplicable but incontrovertible that we work shorter hours than our parents did, yet seem to have less free time.

My dad regularly worked a 48-hour week at his regular job while running an insurance business on the side. He kept books for his lodge, played in the town band and on the church baseball team. He was involved in many civic affairs.

Yet he ate lunch at home every day. How was this possible?

Big cities vs. small-town living is one reason. Distance from work is another. So is TV, which eats up the after-dark hours.

Of course, we had "Amos 'n Andy" on radio in those days, dominating a field that even Garrison Keillor's "Prairie Home Companion" on Saturdays can't challenge nowadays. I remember walking toward the movie house when Andy and Madam Queen were getting married. Never missed a beat of the narrative as it drifted through open doors and windows to me, on the street.

Well, there's always camping to provide the opportunity for escaping the workaday world and welding the family into a unit.

New campers say, "Wait'll my kids get a little older. ..." Wrong. Go camping now. Kids love camping more than anybody.

Camping is an adventure. Ever roast a hotdog on a green stick? Never worry about the rigors of campouts, kids are remarkably resilient, despite what most protective parents believe.

It's fun to sit out under the stars. Food cooked on a Coleman stove is twice as delicious as a gourmet dinner downtown. Even the gnawing of insects, when it happens, and the eruptions of poison oak are minor considerations. How are the kids going to learn these essential things otherwise?

Modern camping is a cinch compared to the kind I knew as a West Virginia kid. Heavy canvas, timber for tent poles, kerosene stoves, dirt-floor tents, blankets instead of down sleeping bags, no insect repellent — that was camping in the early 1930s. It was better than Boy Scout overnighters, but not by much.

So what memories does a kid carry home from a trip like that? Seining the bait out of a creek. Setting trout lines. Cleaning and eating catfish. Picking blackberries. A blue racer running around camp. The grandeur of the backcountry. The adventure.

As the late C.B. Colby wrote in Outdoor Life, "Most children take to tent camping like puppies to a closet of shoes."

The modern camping conveniences, propane stoves and reflector ovens, lightweight poplin tents with sealed-in floors, zippered doors and aluminum frames, Ensolite pads, Qualofill sleeping bags, boots with Gore-tex linings that shed water, freeze-dried gourmet food, solidly sealed ice chests, camp lanterns — they take the uncertainty out of camp life.

If the cavemen only knew.

In the old days, when we were cold, we added another jacket. Nowadays, we know that we should put on a wool cap or pull up a parka hood. It's the uncovered head that's wasting our body heat. We didn't know about windproof garments and constricting muscles to increase metabolism (and warmth).

Campgrounds used to be just reasonably level spaces in a meadow, a brook for water, a dig-your-own toilet. We made do. We had a ball. I remember one time, in the Virginia mountains: wild trout as long as your arm ... but that's another story.

Nowadays, there are Laudromats, general stores, snack bars and restaurants. There are plug-ins for electric blankets and electric lights, individual water connections, sump dumps.

Maybe we've gone too far. Kids are better off taking walks in the woods than pushing quarters into electronic games at a recreation center, as such places are called. They are electronic baby-sitters, in truth. Better to pitch horseshoes, start a fire with flint and steel, learn how to use a compass.

Camping is a family experience, and everyone should participate.

Harold Boneschans, who sells Sun Lite trailers for Big Way Marketing in Irvine, Calif., was talking along these lines at a recent parking lot show.

He started camping in a Sears tent, but quickly he, his wife and three daughters moved up into a 15-foot Cardinal trailer.

"We had a Coleman stove, an ice-box, a Porta-potti, not much else," he remembers. Who needs more? The Boneschans had fun. They got acquainted. They fished and hiked the wilderness.

Next, the family was into a 21-foot Terry trailer for a few years and after open-heart surgery, Harold moved to a Born Free camper, a 20-footer on a 6-ton pickup.

"I bought two, one to rent out," he says.

He was consumed by the camping bug. He became West Coast manager and vice president of Dodgen Industries, a travel-trailer company based in Humboldt, Iowa. He opened a trailer business in Irvine.

NMFS sets quota on Gulf red drum

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department says a federal emergency quota on the commercial harvest of redfish in the Gulf of Mexico protects commercial fishing interests but threatens to damage the fishery.

According to the department, the National Marine Fisheries Service, effective June 26, set an emergency quota of one million pounds per quarter for red drum — redfish — taken in federal waters by purse seines.

"This quota is inconsistent with state red drum management programs in which seines are prohibited for taking food fish in the waters of all the Gulf states," said Dr. Gary Matlock, department director of coastal fisheries.

The federal quota affects waters from nine to 15 nautical miles from shore. State regulations apply to waters out to nine miles.

Matlock said the popularity of the Cajun dish "blackened redfish" apparently had fueled the increased taking of redfish.

Texas plans coast cleanup

AUSTIN (AP) — The Center for Environmental Education has announced plans for a massive Texas coastal cleanup on Sept. 20 on selected beaches. The theme of the cleanup, according to the Parks and Wildlife Department, is "Be a Beach Buddy."

Public dove hunts proposed

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has proposed public hunts for white-winged doves on certain departmental lands on the weekends of Sept. 6-7 and Sept. 13-14.

The hunts are proposed for the Penitas Unit in Hidalgo County, Resaca de la Palma Unit in Cameron County and Ocotillo Unit in Presidio County.

Hagler still hasn't decided if he'll fight Leonard

Retirement an option undisputed champ is considering

AP Laserphoto

Undisputed world middleweight champion Marvin Hagler wipes his brow during a press conference Wednesday to announce he is considering retirement.

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — It is hard for Marvelous Marvin Hagler to turn his back on the sport that made him rich and famous. But how much longer, he wonders, can he keep turning his back on his wife and children?

His two loves — boxing and family — clashed Wednesday. Hagler, a fearless fighter who hasn't lost in 10 years, reportedly began to weep as he wrestled with the choice.

Moments before appearing at a news conference, Hagler met with those close to him. He then stunned reporters by saying he was seriously considering retiring rather than defending his undisputed middleweight title against Sugar Ray Leonard.

"We were in the back room with Marvin," Pat Petronelli, Hagler's co-manager, said. "He sat down and we all had a drink together. We had a toast and he had tears in his eyes.

"He said, 'I never felt so bad in all my life even thinking about this.' But he said, 'just give me the time.' "

Feeling pressured by Leonard's statement that he would come out of retirement if he could fight Hagler this year, Hagler gave himself that time Wednesday.

GOODY PETRONELLI, Hagler's other co-manager, said he hoped a final decision would be made in a month. But Hagler, speaking somberly at the news conference, sounded ready to step away from the ring.

"It really hasn't gotten right to that point," he said, "but it's coming and I do need a little bit more time."

His wife, Bertha, his mother and grandmother all have been eager for him to retire while healthy, he said. He is 32 and boxing has deprived him of time with his five children and his wife.

"As long as he's fighting, they (Hagler and his wife) are not hitting it off too well," Pat Petronelli said. "He's been away an awful lot. He's not around watching his kids grow up."

"I have a lot of influence on him," Bertha Hagler said. "I think it's time for him to retire."

"You really have to be a fighter to understand what I go through and also what the family goes through, seeing your brother or some member of your family or your loved one in there battling," Hagler said.

REPORTERS HAD expected Hagler to say whether he would meet Leonard or Thomas Hearns in his next fight. The reporters weren't alone in being surprised. Mike Trainer, Leonard's attorney, was stunned by Hagler's thoughts of retirement.

Trainer said that he and Leonard, the former welterweight champion, discussed the possible options "and that's one we never talked about."

"But, of course, he never really said he was retiring," Trainer added. "So we are back where we were 60 days ago, when Leonard said he wanted to fight him."

Leonard's reaction to the announcement will be not be made public until next week, a statement issued by Trainer said.

Hearns' manager, Emanuel Steward, said his fighter "is so frustrated, he doesn't even know what to say."

But, Steward said, "Thomas' reaction was disbelief. He's always felt Marvelous Marvin Hagler didn't want to fight him again, but he doesn't feel Marvin is ready to quit boxing."

"I know Marvin Hagler doesn't want to fight Thomas Hearns, for a fact. He took a lot of physical punishment the last time they fought," when Hagler knocked out Hearns in the third round.

BOB ARUM, Hagler's promoter, expects Hagler's current record of 62-2-2 with 52 knockouts to be his final professional mark.

Arum said he learned of Hagler's decision 10 minutes before he made it public at the news conference.

"I believe that he was about to say he'd actually announce his retirement and then decided that he would leave the door open in case he has second thoughts," Arum said. "But right now I really believe that he's going to retire."

Don King, Arum's rival promoter, said Hagler would be smart to retire.

"He is one of the great fighters but I think he has to follow his feelings. It's a wise fighter who knows when to hang up the gloves."

If he does, he will be two victories short of the record he had sought — Carlos Monzon's 14 successful middleweight title defenses. Hagler has fought off 12 challenges since taking the crown from Alan Minter on Sept. 27, 1980.

Hagler knocked out Hearns on April 15, 1985 and stopped John Mugabi in the 11th round in his last title defense March 10. On June 23, Hearns kept his World Boxing Council super welterweight title with a technical knockout of Mark Medal in the eighth round.

LEONARD HAS fought just once in the past 52 months, scoring a ninth-round TKO over Kevin Howard in Worcester on May 12, 1984. He said at the post-fight news conference, "I do not have the concentration it takes to be a champion" and announced his retirement.

Pat Petronelli said the only person Hagler would fight is Leonard. But Hagler said Leonard has some work to do first.

"I'd like to see Leonard fight Mugabi or Hearns or (Donald) Curry before he comes talking about fighting me," Hagler said. "Hearns really doesn't deserve a return match. I shut him out cleanly."

Sikma happy to be with NBA team that can win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Center Jack Sikma had trouble explaining the decline of the Seattle SuperSonics, attributing it partly to some trades and draft choices that didn't work out.

He was asked Wednesday if he might be another of those bad trades.

"It could be. I really don't care if it works for Seattle," he said. "I'm concentrating on how it works out for the (Milwaukee) Bucks. I feel real confident I can do the job."

The Bucks agree, even going so far as to compare the acquisition of Sikma to the 1980 trade that brought center Bob Lanier from Detroit.

The Bucks, who have had a center problem ever since Lanier retired in 1984, think they've solved it with Sikma. And Sikma has got his wish to be with a contender.

"The Bucks were right on top of the list," the 6-foot-11 center said at a news conference in a downtown hotel. "I wanted to smell the roses again."

NEW YORK — Houston Astros right fielder Kevin Bass, who hit .378 with seven home runs and 15 RBI in June, and Pittsburgh Pirates right hander Rick Rhoden were named the National League's Player and Pitcher of the Month, the league announced.

Bass was 37-for-98 last month with five doubles, five stolen bases and 20 runs scored. Rhoden was 5-1 with a 1.99 earned run average in June. He completed three of six starts and allowed 10 earned runs on 33 hits in 45 1-3 innings. He walked 13 and struck out 35.

CLEVELAND — Two Cleveland-area brothers who built their wealth developing shopping malls have acquired an exclusive option to buy a controlling interest in the troubled Cleveland Indians baseball franchise, the team said.

UTEP hopes to learn from mistakes made in track

EL PASO (AP) — A former University of Texas-El Paso track coach, whose payments of about $62,150 to team members led to a three-year NCAA probation, said such payments aren't unusual in college athletics.

"I certainly had a very miserable experience by the whole thing itself," Larry Heidebrecht told the El Paso Times in a telephone interview from Williamsburg, Va. "But anyone who knows anything about track knows that these things have been going on since 1970. Draw your own conclusion."

National Collegiate Athletic Association officials announced Wednesday that UTEP's women's and men's track teams are prohibited from taking part in NCAA championship competitions during the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years.

The penalties also mean UTEP will have to forfeit its 1983 National Collegiate Division I Men's Cross Country championship. It was the first time UTEP has been penalized.

"The findings and statement of the NCAA provide us with a picture of how our system of intercollegiate athletics should work," said UTEP President Haskell Monroe in a written statement. "If you are wrong, you must take your medicine. We will take our medicine and proceed with our program, looking back only for the lessons we have learned."

THE NCAA report listed amounts of money allegedly paid to students from Janurary, 1983 through May, 1984.

UTEP officials handed out copies of the NCAA report, but the names of the former head track coach and the students allegedly involved in the infractions were blacked out.

However, a UTEP official who asked he not be identified confirmed that the coach involved was Heidebrecht, who was hired in August, 1982 and resigned on April 6, 1984, when the University started an investigation.

Heidebrecht, who refused to elaborate on his comments or talk about the violations, is now working for a private marketing firm obtaining sponsorships and television commercials for athletes.

"On numerous occassions ... the then head cross country-track coach negotiated with event directors for appearance fees for individual student-athletes," said an NCAA news release.

"Further, a substantial portion of these fees were later paid to individual student-athletes through an arrangement by the coach with a track club," the release said.

PAYMENTS TO students as high as $8,000 were drawn on track club funds for a student's personal use, according to the release. The NCAA report refers to the El Paso Track Club, "which is defunct and had no identifiable membership," Bill Cords, UTEP athletics director, said during a news conference.

The penalties were reduced because of cooperation from UTEP, which started its own internal investigation after receiving an anonymous tip and reported its findings to the NCAA, Cords said.

"I firmly believe that we will recover from all this and I sincerely hope that this regretable situation will assist the NCAA, other athletic directors, coaches and students to solve similar problems which may face collegiate track and field in the future," Cords said.

OTHER PENALTIES include:

— For the school years 1986-87 and 1987-88, UTEP's track and field team is banned from taking part in any meet unless it is promoted and managed by a collegiate entity.

— Individual team members won't be able to take part in non-collegiate events except during vacation periods, when UTEP will be required to submit written reports of expenses received by students to participate in those events.

— The university's team records in any NCAA event in which the students involved in the payoffs took part will be deleted and awards won during such events will have to be returned.

Yarborough wins pole for Firecracker

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough always has had a lead foot.

Winning pole positions in stock car races is nothing new to the three-time Winston Cup champion. But somehow he had lost his touch — until Wednesday.

Yarborough earned the pole position for Friday's Pepsi Firecracker 400 with a race qualifying record of 203.523 mph, breaking the mark of 201.523 set a year ago by Bill Elliott.

The 46-year-old Yarborough, now a part-time performer on NASCAR's premier circuit, will start on the inside of the front row for the 70th time in his career, but the first time in 29 races, dating back to the Talladega 500 in July 1984.

"We've just been on a dry streak," Yarborough said. "I hope that what happened today will turn it around for the rest of the year. I believe it will."

The pole is his eighth in the Firecracker and 12th overall at Daytona. It also is the ninth for his team manager and engine builder Waddell Wilson, who is leaving Harry Ranier's team at the end of the season to join a new team headed by Rick Hendrick and with three-time Winston Cup champion Darrell Waltrip as driver.

"We're going to miss Waddell, but we've still got half a season left and I don't think this (situation) is going to hinder us whatsoever for the rest of the year," Yarborough said. "We're going to try to do out best this year and then, next year, I'll try to beat his brains out."

ELLIOTT, WHO still owns the overall Daytona International Speedway record of 205.411 mph, set in February 1985, was a close second Wednesday at 203.436. However, his string of three straight Daytona poles was ended by Yarborough.

"The pole would have been nice," Elliott said. "But we want to be able to run well all day long."

The two Fords were quite a bit faster than anything else, but four other drivers did break Elliott's race qualifying record.

Buddy Baker had a fast lap of 202.584, followed by Benny Parsons at 202.475, Dale Earnhardt at 202.129 and Bobby Allison at 201.162.

Earnhardt, leading the Winston Cup point standings, said, "I'm ready to race. Let's go. I can run that fast all day. My car felt real good. I'm not far off the race setup. I think I would have had a shot at the pole if I hadn't run so late (in the session). The hotter it gets, the slower you get."

Temperatures were in the mid 80s when qualifying began at 10 a.m. EDT, and had soared over 90, with high humidity, by the time it ended nearly two hours later.

"That's the time of the day we race here," Parsons said. "So that (qualifying) tells you a little about how fast this race is going to be. Speeds will be down from qualifying, but it's still going to be very fast and very, very competitive."

THE RACE is scheduled to start Friday at 10 a.m. It will be televised Saturday as part of ABC's "Wide World of Sports."

The top 20 positions for the 40-car field were set Wednesday, with the rest of the grid to be determined in further time trials today.

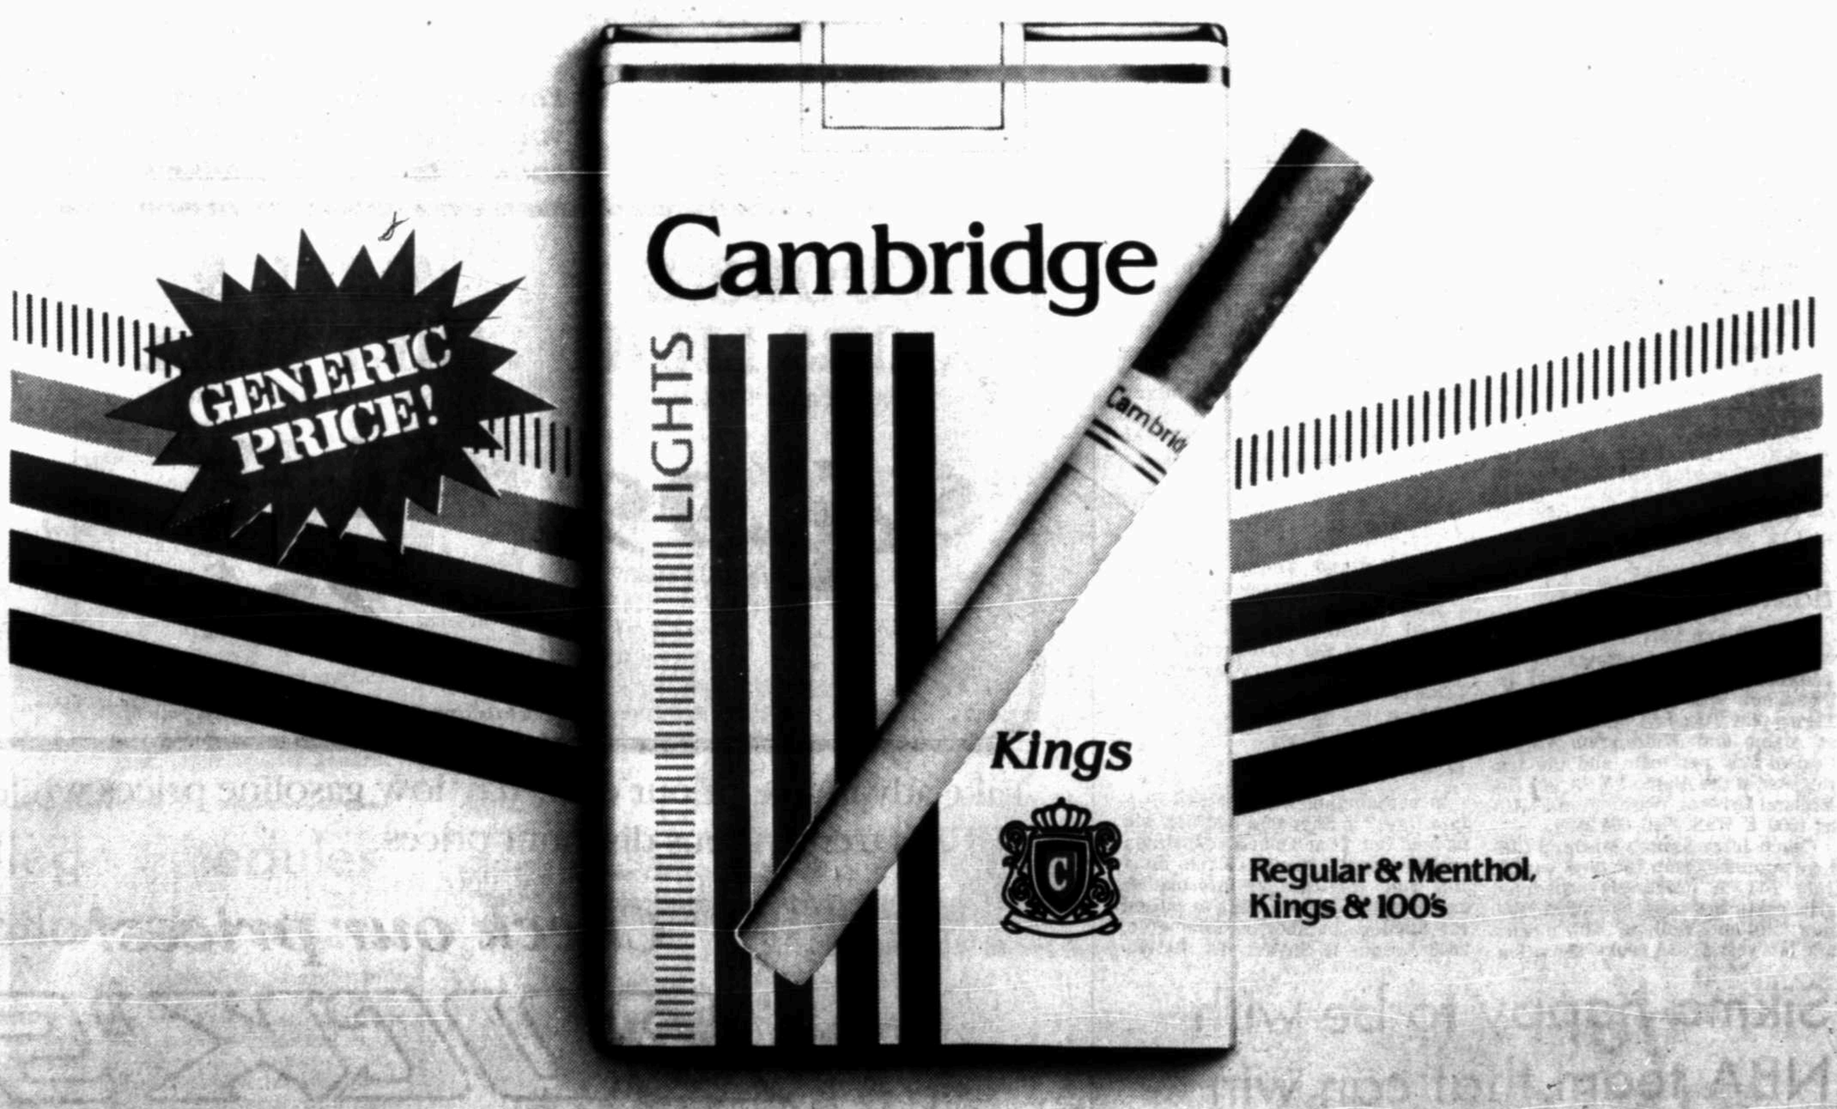

Among the drivers who trying to nail down positions today was Waltrip, who was far off the pace in the first session after blowing an engine in practice.

Also qualifying today was defending Firecracker champion Greg Sacks, who has had little success since his shocking 1985 victory, the only one of his NASCAR career.

Sitting in eighth position in his Buick LeSabre is Midland's Bobby Hillin Jr.

Tape's erasure causes dismissal of case

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Apparent failure of the Ector County Sheriff's Office to safeguard evidence in a pending case Wednesday forced a judge to dismiss a murder charge against a man accused of the brutal 1984 murder of a 28-year-old pregnant woman.

Henry Lee Hill, 35, who had spent nearly two years in jail for the Aug. 21, 1984, stabbing death of Janet Gregston, walked out of the Ector County Courthouse around 5 p.m..

Hill was freed after 70th District Court Judge Gene Ater dismissed the murder charge.

The 70th District Court judge's action came after he learned from Hill's attorney, Jim Bobo, that a videotape recorded hypnotic interview with the prosecution's only eyewitness apparently had been inadvertently erased.

Since this interview was conducted by sheriff's investigators prior to a composite drawing of the suspect being made and before any other statement was given, Bobo said it would be impossible to determine if the sheriff's investigator had made any suggestions to the witness, James Michael Puga, during the hypnotic session.

District Attorney Eric Augesen said he only recently discovered the videotape recorded evidence had been erased while viewing another videotape for use in an aggravated sexual assault of a child case.

Augesen said when the video interview with a 13-year-old rape victim ended, there was a short blank space and then the final two minutes of the interview with Puga came on.

Investigation revealed the interview with Puga had been erased as the interview with the girl was recorded.

Without Puga's videotaped interview, the district attorney told the judge it would be impossible to lay the groundwork necessary to introduce an alleged confession to the murder made by Hill.

In addition to the lost evidence, Bobo said, Augesen told him about evidence that raised reasonable doubt about Hill's involvement in the killing of Mrs. Gregston.

Bobo submitted a photocopy of a Department of Public Safety Criminal Alert System Bulletin, dated Feb. 13, 1986, in which Ector County Sheriff's Lt. Jerry Davis sought "any information" concerning "the subject" sought in connection with the murder of Mrs. Gregston.

The CAS bulletin also contained a composite picture of the suspect in the crime.

Since publication of this bulletin occurred more than a year and a half after his client, Henry Hill, had been indicted, Bobo said, it indicated there was doubt in the minds of sheriff's investigators about the guilt of his client.

The CAS bulletin stated that "On Aug. 21, 1984, the body of a 29-year-old female was observed lying on the side of the roadway approximately 5 miles north of Odessa, Texas. She was eight months pregnant and had been stabbed 20 times in the neck, stomach, breasts, arms and had defensive wounds on her hands. Her throat had also been slashed."

The bulletin went on to say "a witness driving by observed a subject and the murder in progress and the subject threatened the witness with the weapon, which was a large knife."

According to Augesen, the witness, Puga, left the scene, but returned to find Mrs. Gregston's body and began chasing the car he had seen. He lost the vehicle in the vicinity of Tanglewood and East University Boulevard.

The vehicle, registered in the name of Mrs. Gregston, was later found abandoned in a residential area not far from where Puga lost sight of it.

Davis was not available Wednesday to comment on why the bulletin seeking information concerning the murder of Mrs. Gregston was transmitted to the DPS for publication in February 1986, since Hill had been indicted and the investigation was technically closed.

Chief Deputy Bob Eaton, who said information sent to DPS would have had to have been sent by Davis, since the bulletin bore Davis' name, but said he had no idea why it was done.

Eaton said, however, he intended to find out.

Sheriff Bob Brookshire has indicated an investigation will be conducted to determine how the critical interview with a key witness was destroyed.

After the charge against Hill was dismissed, Bobo said the key prosecution witness, Puga, had advised officers "that a mistake in identity had been made," but "no followup work was done."

"I think the trail has gotten cold in this particular case," Bobo said, "and that for a year and three-quarters Henry Hill has been incarcerated on a mistaken I.D."

Augesen said he talked to Mrs. Gregston's husband following dismissal of the murder charge against Hill.

The district attorney described him as "very upset, very distraught.

"How do you tell a man that the man who killed his wife can't be tried for for her murder?"

He described the dismissal as "a result of a number of mistakes, a fiasco, that occurred in this case."

Augesen said, "Since Hill walked out I would like to think he is innocent."

Local lawyer hones skills for 50 years

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

W.B. "Bill" Browder Jr., the Midland trial lawyer, has been honing up his courtroom skills for 50 years. This is despite his alleged claim that he, like comedian Jack Benny, is ageless at age 39 year after year after year.

"He's a trial lawyer," said his law partner, Tom Sealy. "He's one of the best in the business — anywhere."

Sealy, a founding partner in the law firm of Stubbeman, McRae, Sealy, Laughlin & Browder, joined a crowd of lawyers, judges and other well-wishers in celebrating Browder's 50th year in practicing law. The occasion also marked the 50th anniversary of the law firm, Midland's largest with a staff of 45 lawyers. Sealy, Frank Stubbeman and Hamilton McRae founded the firm in Midland in 1936.

Sealy said he first ran into Browder in the early 1950s in Snyder where both were trying cases. Browder then was working for the Houston law firm of Vinson & Elkins.

"I was up there and saw him in operation, and I hired him," Sealy said. Browder became the mainstay in the trial section of the law firm, which already was rooted in oil-and-gas law.

Browder joined the firm in 1952 — 16 years after he had graduated from the Southern Methodist University Law School in 1936 at the age of 13 or 17 — depending on Browder's mood and sense of humor. Clovis Chappell, 74, one of Browder's SMU classmates, said that Browder was "at the top of the class. And I was at the bottom. I had to go to summer school," Chappell jested, "not because of bad grades but because of dirty politics."

W.B. 'Bill' Browder

Browder, the son of a Texas district court judge, grew up in the rural community of Cut 'n Shoot in East Texas.

"It's been good," he said of his legal practice in Midland. "I've enjoyed it. I've had a good time."

Fellow lawyer Reagan Legg said Browder "is one of the best lawyers in the world. The only trouble with Browder is that he always has trouble remembering names."

Midland Center studies non-profit status

By DOUG DRUMMOND
Assistant City Editor

A preliminary study into making Midland Center a non-profit corporation is under way, an official said today.

Such a move would allow the center to operate its own food and beverage license, which, in turn, would bring in more money for the center.

The idea of the study was prompted because of the city's economic condition, skyrocketing liability insurance and strong competition from some of Midland's hotels.

"We want to do the research and evaluate," said Mitch Clark, director of the Midland Center. "We want to see if it would work for us."

Clark said he hopes to present a formal presentation to the Midland Center Advisory Board later this month.

The board would then decide if the move is feasible. If so, it would require final approval by the City Council, Clark said.

The center is now managed by the Chamber of Commerce and owned by the city.

If the center became a non-profit corporation, it would have a board of directors and be responsible for its own management.

"The move may help the center make more money," said Steve Hardin, acting director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. "It might also help the city."

Earlier this week, City Council members tentatively agreed to give $220,000 to the center's budget next year.

Clark cited three reasons for the study.

"The No. 1 reason is money," he said. "We want to find a way to streamline the center."

Clark said the center currently does not own and operate its own food and beverage service.

Instead, the center contracts the service out.

"Having our own service would make us much more competitive," said Clark, noting the Hilton and Holiday Inn hotels are the center's primary competitors.

The final reason, Clark said, is a sharp increase in liability insurance.

The center requires groups renting the facility to take out a $1 million policy. Premiums have doubled and even tripled in some cases since last year, Clark said.

"In the last year, the rates have just skyrocketed," Clark said. "It is a problem in the hospitality business."

Clark said the increased rates have meant less business for the center. By forming a non-profit corporation, the center would buy the insurance.

"I've noticed a decline," Clark said. "The insurance rates are especially high when liquor is being served or if minors are present."

Clark said the study includes looking at other West Texas non-profit civic centers such as the one in Lubbock.

"We've been talking about it for years," Clark said. "And we've been operating the way we are now. We just want to see if this might help."

Plane's wreckage found; Local CAP cancels search

From Staff and Wire Reports

FORT SMITH, Ark. — A crew from the Midland squadron of the Civil Air Patrol canceled plans to assist in a search here after the charred wreckage of a small plane carrying a Winnsboro, Texas, tire dealer, his wife, his mother and his stepfather was found atop Poteau Mountain at the northern edge of the Ouachita National Forest.

The crash site was seen by a Civil Air Patrol pilot on Wednesday, working on a tip from a resident of the southern Sebastian County area where the plane was found. Searchers climbed to the top of the mountain eight miles from Hartford, Ark., near the Oklahoma border, where they found the plane, four bodies, and identification papers of three of the passengers.

Richard Kolas, the commander of the Midland CAP group, said today he had been told of the discovery about 7 p.m. Wednesday when he called the CAP mission headquarters at Pounds Field in Tyler. He had been contacted late Tuesday by Lt. Tom Todd of Odessa, the Texas Wing Commander of the CAP, and had planned a Friday morning flight to Tyler.

The plane had been missing since Saturday morning, when Billy Michael Chaffin of Winnsboro, his wife, Pamela, his mother, Betty Cameron, and his stepfather, William Edward Cameron, both of Ferris, Texas, left Winnsboro in the Cessna 182 bound for Branson, Mo. The plane never made it to Missouri.

Speaker can't find backing for tax hike

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — House Speaker Gib Lewis said Wednesday he cannot find support in the House of Representatives for a tax increase and predicted members will make deep cuts instead of raising revenue.

Lewis said he, like most House members, does not endorse a tax bill. Because any tax bill must originate in the House, Lewis doubts one will pass during the special session Gov. Mark White is expected to call in August.

The speaker said the House Appropriations Committee will find about $1.5 billion to cut from the state's two-year budget, although some Senators think cuts that deep will endanger essential state services.

One Appropriations Committee member, Democratic Rep. Paul Colbert of Houston, said Texans supported the 1984 tax increase for education and highways and would oppose attempts to cut back in those areas.

Sen. Ray Farabee, Senate State Affairs Committee chairman, said Texas politicians have traditionally been elected on a platform of no new taxes. But when deep cuts begin to affect the services people receive, Texans will agree to pay higher taxes.

If friend gives up vice, will life lose its 'lust-er'?

A fellow absolutely confounded his friends the other day when he declared: "I have given up lust."

They thought he was outright lying or just joking.

He seemed serious.

His friends were incredulous. They could see no semblance of a tease in this middle-aged bachelor with a droll sense of humor.

I was shocked.

For starters, I wouldn't know how not to lust. But I was willing to listen.

Short of swearing, he declared it was quite so; his resolve was firm.

Lusting was too frustrating, too time consuming, totally non-productive, without reward and merit, invariably led to a dead end, and invited the other deadly sins: Pride, Avarice, Anger, Gluttony, Envy and Sloth. From time to time, I have mastered all of the Seven Deadly Sins, including Lust. And that mastery does not make me or my friend exceptional. I fear it is all too common to brag about.

My friend said he was tired of riding the merry-go-round to nowhere. Lust, he said, certainly wasn't an idle adventure which left him lusty, which is quite a different matter. In fact, conscious lusting left him somewhat strained, ill-tempered, hungry, covetous, lazy, depressed, and extremely greedy for flesh — insatiable lust.

"I tried it for awhile just for entertainment, a pastime," he said of lusting. "But the pizzazz was no longer there. It dissipated. I was unnerved. I got nowhere. I was spitting into the wind."

He seemed so lonely.

"I've been divorced several years," he said, "and when she left, I felt free to roam without guilt."

And he did, at least in his imagination.

"Well," said a lady who was keyed to his monologue, "the Bible says if you've lusted in your heart, you might as well have committed adultery."

My friend took notice. So did her husband.

"You can lust for me," said her husband. Physical sex might be important to some folks, he said. However, he would stick to trivia if sex were so important.

"That's right," my friend said of the lady's scriptural inspiration. "See what I mean? Why bother? I don't want to burn here, like the Apostle Paul talked about, and burn again in The Inferno after my death warrant has been delivered. I hope I'm a 105 and feeling good when it comes."

My friend said he was firm in his resolve not to lust willfully and consciously. If he caught himself drifting into lust, he'd immediately recant and give himself seven lashes.

"Good luck," I thought, and wondered how.

Then, I wondered, is this Mr. Purity, this Mr. Chastity whom I had held in esteem as a connoisseur of fine women, really reformed? Will he go and lust no more?

I started getting resentful. How could he betray his own kind?

Well, I reasoned, if he's really intent on purging himself of lust, then surely this rascal will go overboard and easily double his Sinful Pride. Then, he'll be just another commoner, albeit sans lust.

My thinking was wrong.

Now, it occurs to me that my friend certainly is no fool. He hasn't given up God-given pleasures, which the Devil often claims as his own. I learned that in Bible-Belt revivals.

Assuredly, my friend through sight and sense appreciates life's wonders.

It appears that he decided to add a measure of temperance, discipline and discretion to his heretofore limited virtues. Certainly, I hope those virtues won't run amuck and turn into Righteous Pride or get derailed and wind up spoiled.

"I am just not lusting anymore," he said. "It's too much trouble. Besides, those wenches never pay me enough attention. They hardly notice me."

Court rules hike in court fees unconstitutional

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court handed state lawmakers another dose of bad news Wednesday when it ruled that a recently enacted increase in civil court fees is unconstitutional.

As a result of that ruling, the state will lose $24 million in general revenue that would have come from a $50-increase in filing fees legislators approved in 1985. Lawmakers raised the filing fee for civil lawsuits from $25 to $75 — along with increases in several other fees — to help balance the current budget.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock told members of the powerful Legislative Budget Board last week that they could expect at least a $2.3 billion deficit by the end of the 1986-87 biennium. In response to Bullock's projection, Gov. Mark White directed key lawmakers to eliminate the projected shortfall. White said he would then call a special session of the Legislature to amend the appropriations bill.

Bullock said Wednesday's court ruling will not increase the anticipated deficit because he removed expected revenue from the filing fees from his budget estimates. He said his office will soon refund about $5.5 million that has been collected since the new fees went into effect Sept. 1.

"The $24 million that the state will lose isn't the whole budget ball game," Bullock said, "but it's darn sure going to be tagged as an error in the fight for a balanced budget."

In the majority opinion, Supreme Court Justice Franklin Spears wrote that a caption on the bill raising court filing fees did not adequately express the bill's contents. In part, the caption of that bill reads that "state and local agencies" shall collect the fees to help them perform their functions. Out of the $75 filing fee, $40 would have gone to general revenue.

"'Agencies' simply does not fairly inform the reader that the bill affects the judiciary, which is a separate branch of government," Spears wrote. "The bill's caption is invalid."

A majority of the court also ruled that the increase in filing fees violates the constitutional right to access to the courts.

"The open courts provision specifically guarantees all litigants the right to redress grievances — to use a popular and correct phrase — the right to their day in court," Spears wrote. "Because a substantial right is involved, the Legislature cannot arbitrarily or unreasonably interfere with a litigant's right to access to the courts."

In his closing remarks, Spears said the court would have ruled as it did, regardless of the size of the court fee, because "such a filing fee is unconstitutional for filing fees cannot go for non-court-related purposes."

Ector County still awaiting notification of ruling

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Ector County District Court Clerk Jackie Barnes said Wednesday she had received no word concerning a Texas Supreme Court ruling that an increase in court filing fees implemented in September 1985 was unconstitutional.

The Legislature approved increasing court filing fees from $25 to $75, with $10 of the $50 fee increase to be retained by the district clerk's office. The remaining $40 was earmarked for the state's general fund.

Mrs. Barnes said she wasn't surprised at the high court's ruling. She said the fee increase has been questioned ever since it was approved by the Texas Legislature.

The question in her mind, she said, is if the fees already collected will have to be refunded. Records in the district clerk's office indicate the Ector County office has been forwarding an average of about $10,000 a month to the state for the past 10 months.

The district clerk said if the fees are to be refunded it will be very difficult, perhaps impossible, to do so, especially where lawsuits were filed by individuals acting as their own attorneys.

"Many of these people are probably no longer in the area and there won't be any forwarding addresses," she said.

District Court Judge Gene Ater said he wasn't unhappy about the ruling.

Ater noted many judges throughout the state had favored increasing fees when they thought the additional revenue would be used to fund district court operations, but most opposed using the increased fee revenue for state general fund purposes.

Mrs. Barnes said she had never favored increasing the fees as much as the Legislature did because it meant a lot of people were denied access to justice simply because they couldn't afford the filing fees, which can exceed $250 depending on what legal action is involved.

New EPA discharge rules draw oil industry criticism

DALLAS (AP) — New, stricter Environmental Protection Agency discharge regulations for the Gulf of Mexico are already drawing criticism in the oil and gas industry.

For the first time, the EPA has issued enforceable toxicity limits for all drilling fluid discharges in the Gulf, including mixtures of water, clays, minerals, oil and special chemicals.

About 2,000 sites in the Gulf — spanning an area beginning three miles from the shoreline and extending up to 200 miles offshore — are covered by the new general permit that went into effect Wednesday, EPA spokesman Roger Meacham said.

"We can see some problems already, and we haven't even finished digesting it," said Bobby Hall, oil production director for the American Petroleum Institute. "We're not sure exactly what some of the limits mean."

Phillip Clark, vice president of the Washington-based National Ocean Industries Association, echoed Hall's sentiments.

"We have a lot of problems with it," he said. "The companies we represent are very upset with it. And although our assessments are still ongoing, at least one company has indicated it will seek judicial relief."

Technically, all companies operating in the Gulf now comply with the permit, Meacham said.

School financing cuts must be 'equitable,' Kirby says

AUSTIN (AP) — School budget writers have warned that any change in the state and local financing of public schools must be made carefully.

"If we make cuts, we must be very sure they are equitable," Commissioner William Kirby told the State Board of Education's committee on finance on Wednesday.

The committee will meet again July 10 to vote on what it will recommend to the full 15-member board on July 11 and 12.

Kirby warned committee members several times that an expected special legislative session in August could change their propsals.

"I would like for this committee to sign off on something by next week," said Kirby. "Then if there is a special session in August and we have to change something we can do it in October."

The committee is studying four plans for levels of state aid for public education, as recommended by the staff of the Texas Education Agency.

One is a "wish" list calling for an increase over current spending of $1.5 billion. Another would continue the current level of operations, which would cost $1.3 million more in 1988-89. The other two call for variations of 10 percent and 20 percent reductions from current budgets, which could save up to $2 billion.

Bottle rockets can cause serious injuries to eyes

From Staff Reports

Fireworks inflicted nearly 700 serious eye injuries last Fourth of July, with one-third resulting in permanent eye damage, according to a survey conducted by the American Academy of Ophthalmology, the world's largest organization of eye physicians and surgeons.

Bottle rockets — the small explosive rocket launched from a bottle — responsible for more than one third of the injuries, were the major cause of serious ocular trauma.

Innocent bystanders rather than those setting off fireworks were victims in one quarter of the accidents reported, the survey revealed.

Throughout 1986, fireworks will be responsible for an estimated 15,000 bodily injuries in America alone, the survey said. Eye experts warn that approximately 5,000 of these will involve the eye. Children, especially boys, are the most likely victims.

"Every year ophthalmologists see needless suffering and blindness caused by fireworks," said R. Sloan Wilson, MD, professor of ophthalmology at the University of Arkansas. "One way to cut down on these injuries is to avoid using bottle rockets, except under the strictest parental supervision," he added.

The academy is particularly concerned this year, Dr. Wilson said, because many locally sponsored fireworks displays may be threatened with cancellation due to skyrocketing liability insurance costs. This would encourage more than the usual number of individuals staging their own fireworks activities.

Ophthalmologists recommend that anyone handling fireworks observe these basic safety guidelines:

1. Never allow children to handle or ignite explosive fireworks. Supervise their use of relatively safe fireworks such as sparklers.
2. Don't put firecrackers in bottles or tin cans or under clay pots, since these objects can shatter and propel fragments into the eye.
3. Always wear glasses or safety goggles when setting fireworks.
4. In case of an eye injury, do not press, rub or touch the eye. Seek immediate care at a hospital emergency room.

Four burglaries reported to police

From Staff Reports

The Midland Police Department Thursday reported at least $2,000 worth of items were burglarized in four separate incidents.

Clyde White of #3 Bentley Ct. told police an air conditioner/heater window unit valued at $300 and an electric stove valued at $250 were taken from a residence at 1503½ W. Holloway.

Eddie Woods of 300 South Lee reported a pair of lizard skin boots valued at $500 and a 19-inch color television set valued at $300 were taken from his residence. Reports said the items were taken between 5 a.m. and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Police Roundup

In other reports, several items of undetermined value were reported stolen from a residence at 2003 E. Front. Lineal Jauregauri told police a .32 caliber pistol, a .32 caliber rifle, a 16-inch television and a camera were taken.

James Gardner told police a spare tire valued at $200 and a radar detector valued at $180 were stolen from his vehicle that was parked at the Fairmont Park Lanes, 5320 N. Loop 250. The burglary apparently occurred between 10:30 p.m. Wednesday and 3 a.m. today.

PLANE

Deputy Larry Kennon of the Sebastian County Sheriff's Department said a checkbook bearing the names William Edward and Betty Cameron and a wallet with Chaffin's name in it were found in the wreckage. No identification was found for Mrs. Chaffin. Chaffin was thought to be the pilot.

Local officials said Wednesday that the bodies would not be removed from the plane until Federal Aviation Administration officials arrived today to try to determine why the plane crashed.

Late Wednesday, a bulldozer operator was smoothing the steep, rocky path up the mountain so vehicles could be brought to the site to remove the bodies.

Sebastian County Coroner Jack Sloan said the bodies, which were burned and mutilated, would be sent to Little Rock for an autopsy by the state medical examiner.

The plane wreckage was located on the north slope of the mountain several hundred yards from the top of a ridge running east and west. The plane crashed nearly three miles from the nearest road.

The planes from Fort Smith and many in Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri had been searching for the plane since Monday.

Civil Air Patrol Lt. R.J. Nicotra at Pounds Field in Tyler, Texas, said the Chaffins and Camerons took off from Winnsboro Municipal Airport at about 7 a.m. Saturday for Branson, a trip Nicotra said Chaffin had made before. However, he said, Chaffin never filed a flight plan and didn't know if he ever received a weather briefing before leaving.

TAX

Comptroller Bob Bullock, who in Feburary predicted a $1.3 billion budget shortfall, recently increased his estimate to $2.3 billion, prompting Gov. Mark White to change his mind about a special session. White, before Bullock's revised estimate had repeatedly said a special session was unnecessary, announced Friday he would call the Legislature to Austin after lawmakers devised a plan to ease the budget crucnch.

Bullock has said lawmakers will have no choice but to raise taxes — either in the special session or during the regular session in January.

LAWYER

Said lawyer Maurice Bullock, who has been involved in cases with Browder for more than 30 years: "It's more enjoyable being on the same side with him than opposing him."

"He's got to be the greatest," said Judge Barbara Culver of Midland's 318th Texas State District Court, "because he went to that great law school, SMU." Judge Culver, too, is an SMU graduate.

Rodney Satterwhite, the Stubbeman firm's managing partner, slipped Browder a barb. "Browder attended law school at The University of Texas for a year, at the University of Arizona for a year and finally graduated from SMU. He claims he learned everything they could teach him at each school in a year."

Midland County Judge Bill Ahders said Browder is an "outstanding" attorney.

"I have the highest respect for his honesty, integrity, diligence," Ahders said.

Banker-lawyer David Lindemood, 33, said quality lawyers like Browder "set the standard for people like me to live up to." He said Midland is blessed with not only "technically good" lawyers but lawyers who are "good, honest people."

Judge Pat Baskin of Midland's 142nd Texas State District Court said Browder "is a magnificent trial lawyer with the teeth and tenacity of a bulldog. He is a highly ethical and aggressive trial lawyer."

Jad Davis, a Baylor University Law School graduate, said he elected to train under Browder because he is "one of the top four or five trial lawyers in the state. He had a brilliant career, and he's still a great lawyer."

FarmAid organizers urge fans to use shuttle buses, car pools

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — Organizers of FarmAid II and city officials urged the thousands of fans expected for the 18-hour concert to use a shuttle bus service or car pools to get to Friday's event.

"We've seen stories in the paper about the possibility of real traffic congestion out there. I hope people would see this as a good way to go," said Cynthia Darwin, spokeswoman for the Capital Metropolitan Transportation Authority.

FarmAid II concert, being staged to raise funds for family farmers, will be held at Manor Downs, a horse racing and training facility 11 miles east of Austin.

FarmAid ticket manager Bob Fuller said more than 30,000 tickets had been sold for the event that is scheduled to begin shortly after 7 a.m.

Ms. Darwin said Capital Metro will provide 15 buses that will run from northeast Austin's Reagan High School to Manor Downs every 30 minutes. Service will begin at 6 a.m. Friday, with return trips continuing until 2 a.m. Saturday, she said. Tickets are $3.

"Our feeling is that people may prefer this (to driving)," she said.

The Texas Department of Agriculture organized a media tour today to a cotton gin and several family farms, offering what the TDA called "a last chance to interview farm families and farm crisis workers about the economic problems confronting American agriculture."

More than 75 acts will perform during the concert, although Farm Aid officials said Wednesday they still didn't have a scheduled for each.

The concert is being organized by singer Willie Nelson, who also organized the initial FarmAid concert at Champaign, Ill., last September.

Nelson said the first concert raised about $9 million and that he hopes this event will do that well or better.

So far, some $4.3 million has been used for rural relief efforts in nearly 40 states, funding such projects as telephone hot lines for farmers, legal services, food pantries and purchases of seed for farmers who otherwise wouldn't have been able to make this year's crop.

The concert will be carried live on the cable television channel VH-1.

Non-alcoholic beer brewed

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. What is the process for making non-alcoholic beer? I drink non-alcoholic beverages and would like the question answered because sometimes the cure is worse than the problem. The beers I drink are Moussy and Elan, which are Swiss, and Wurzburger and Clausthaler, which are German. — Richard Benkum, Wolcott, Conn.

A. Harold Broderick, technical director of the Master Brewers Association of the Americas, explains that the so-called "non-alcoholic" beers are brewed with the same materials as regular beers, that is, barley malt, cereal grains and hops.

The proportions vary, but no additives are needed. By controlling the temperatures in the brewing and fermenting process, the alcohol formed is limited. More alcohol is then removed by low temperature distillation under a vacuum or by reverse osmosis.

Although these beers are called "non-alcoholic," it should be pointed out that from a strict scientific standpoint that some of these products may still contain a very small trace of alcohol.

Q. My grandmother, who used to raise her own chickens, always included chicken feet when cooking chicken soup. She said it wouldn't be chicken soup without them. What quality would the feet impart to the soup? Are they still sold anywhere in stores?

A. "From a nutritional point of view," states Stephen Pretanik, director of science and technology at the National Broiler Council, "I am not aware of any special quality or benefit to be derived from the use of chicken feet in chicken soup."

Although chicken feet may be high in collagen, which is a low-grade protein found in connective tissue and bone, it is of minimum nutritional value. Collagen, however, when boiled will produce gelatin which may help to impart more body to the soup.

Some chicken feet are exported to Asian countries from the U.S., but most of them are turned into animal feed. Anyone wanting to purchase chickens with the feet still intact may possibly find them in small markets that cater to ethnic neighborhoods.

Q. Recently I came across a delicious new vegetable called jicama. I've heard it referred to as a Mexican potato. Please tell me more about it, including nutritional and caloric values. Try it. It's really tasty. — Mrs. E.A. Glover, Naugatuck,Conn.

A. The jicama (pronounced HEEK-ama), known also as the yam bean, is a major product of Mexico and it is becoming increasingly popular in the U.S. You can find this root in many supermarkets today in the ethnic food section of the produce department. It looks something like a giant water chestnut and varies in size from that of a lemon to that of a softball.

Jicama is peeled and often eaten raw. Sliced very thin with lemon or lime juice squeezed over the slices and chili powder sprinkled on top, it makes a refreshing salad or may be used as an hors d'oeuvre. Jicama may also be braised or stir fried with Chinese vegetables as a substitute for water chestnuts. One pound equals four servings

One cup of sliced raw jicama contains 49 calories, some protein, carbohydrates, fiber and ash, and about 24 mg of vitamin C. It has practically no fat.

Low-cal frozen dinners gourmet

By LINDA ANDERSON

Forget "frozen TV dinners," forget cardboard chopped meats and school-glue potatoes. Forget tasteless turkey and yucky yams.

Today's frozen meals have gone gourmet!

Foods with Italian, English, German, Spanish and French names overflow supermarket freezers. There's even a line of frozen Cajun foods.

The best part is not only can you find frozen gourmet foods, but you can even purchase frozen gourmet low-calorie foods. What more could anyone ask?

These sound perfect for someone who likes to eat but doesn't want to get fat and who doesn't have the energy after work to cook. In other words, these sound perfect for someone like me.

Because I am the main appreciator of quick, easy food in my house (because I am the one who does most of the cooking), I checked out some frozen low-calorie-but-still-gourmet dinners for taste, price and advertising accuracy. The kids got bites if they said "Please" and were good.

The least-expensive dinners I could find that fell into this category were The Budget Gourmet Slim Line, which are available in several flavors — and none that I found cost more than $2 each.

I tried linguini with scallops and clams (I've always wanted to try linguini and never have before, and scallops are my most favorite food, so this one was irresistible), French recipe chicken and vegetables (which appealed to me because I like frozen meals without a bunch of rice or noodles, in spite of wanting to try linguini), and chicken au gratin (because anything topped with cheese sounds terrific).

All three dinners cost between $1.63 and $1.79 each. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

None of the dinners were very large; they weighed 9.1 ounces, 9.5 ounces and 10 ounces each.

Label advertising sounded suspiciously similar on all three boxes: "Large pieces of chicken breast ... delicious sauce ... fresh butter, half and half, sauteed vegetables and wine," "... elegant dish ... tender scallops, whole baby clams ... rich sauce ... butter, half and half, and chablis wine ...," and " ... delicious version of the traditional, Country-French chicken in Burgundy sauce ... whole baby carrots, pearl onions, peas and mushrooms ... skin-on potato wedges." All a tad flowery, and about what you'd expect on the box of a new product.

The French chicken dish contains about 270 calories per serving. The linguini with scallops and clams and the chicken au gratin each contain about 280 calories per serving, according to nutrition labels.

In the taste-test, they were all delicious — for frozen dinners. While from-scratch foods or restaurant meals might be of higher quality, the frozen variety were exactly the right size, the right food combinations and the right price to give me a tasty, inexpensive meal and make me feel slightly pampered at the same time. I mean, someone else prepared fancy — yet low-calorie — foods just for me!

I would not hesitate to buy them — or any other appealing flavors in the same line — again. In fact, spaghetti might taste good for supper tonight. Or maybe ...

BETTER BUSINESS

Health fraud becoming major cause of concern

By JOHN K. SCHMIDT

Although health care may well be the number-one interest in the country today, health fraud has also become a major cause for concern. Billions of consumer dollars are wasted on useless remedies and devices. Even worse, consumers with medical problems may waste valuable time before getting proper treatment. That delay may do serious harm and endanger lives.

There are ways to tell which health-related products are legitimate and which are not. The FTC has put out a brochure which tells you how to spot worthless claims and explains how the fraud business works. It describes some typical areas where health fraud flourishes and suggests what you can do to help stop the problem.

Being well-informed enables you to spot health fraud. Learn to recognize worthless products by the typical phrases often used to promote them:

- Does the ad promise "a quick and easy cure"?
- Is the product advertised as effective for a wide range of ailments or for undiagnosed pain?
- Does the promoter use key words such as "miraculous," "exclusive," "secret" or "ancient"?
- Is the product advertised as available from only one source, requiring payment in advance?
- Does the promoter use undocumented case histories that sound too good to be true?

In addition, don't rely on promises of a "money-back guarantee." Be aware that many fly-by-night operators will never be there to respond to a refund request.

Health fraud, or quackery, is a business that sells false hope. It preys on persons who are victims of diseases that have no complete medical cures, such as arthritis, multiple sclerosis and certain forms of cancer. It also thrives on the wishful thinking of those who want shortcuts to weight loss or improvements to personal appearance. It makes enormous profits because it claims to offer quick cures and easy solutions to better health and personal attractiveness.

Serious debt danger signals listed

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Seriously in debt? If the answer is yes, you are not alone.

Professional debt counselors say that many more middle-income families are seeking help now than in the past, according to Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

"Whatever the cause, it's important to recognize the danger signals early, swallow your pride and take immediate steps to get back on solid financial footing," according to an article in the magazine.

The warning signs: dipping into savings to pay old bills; paying the minimum on credit card balances; applying new loans to old bills, and when monthly non-mortgage loans consistently total 20 percent or more of your take-home pay.

Some of the suggested steps to correct the situation are: set spending priorities for the months ahead; try to cut expenses; reformat your budget; raise some extra income, if possible — and put your credit cards aside. If none of that works, consider seeing a professional debt counselor. The National Foundation for Consumer Credit, headquartered in Silver Spring, Md., is a nonprofit network of credit counselors.

The magazine warns: "Don't confuse nonprofit-credit councils with debt managers who are in the business for profit. Many are perfectly legitimate, but they may charge 12 percent or so of your total debt just to handle your loan payments."

Home canning may not be 'worth' time, cost

By MARIAN FARR

Early summer is good to us in Texas. Garden-fresh vegetables and fruits are widely available and because of their abundance, their prices are low. Home gardens are doing nicely, too, so lots of folks are starting to preserve surplus food for later use.

But is home food preservation "worth it"? An economic analysis says, "Sometimes."

First, consider the direct costs of food preservation: the cost of the product itself, other ingredients needed to put up the food, the containers and equipment and the gas or electrical energy for processing and freezing food.

Then there are the indirect costs, such as the time it takes to preserve food. This cost depends on the value you place on your time. Plan to spend close to three hours in the kitchen for every seven quarts of tomatoes or peaches you can.

Another indirect cost is whether the food you preserve will actually be eaten. If you can green beans and the family won't eat them, the cost will be high.

Researchers have shown a real cost advantage in canning peaches and tomatoes, especially if you either raise the produce or get it free, and if you already own canning jars and equipment.

It might cost you as little as 5 cents a quart to can your tomatoes; in the store you may pay over a dollar a quart. Home-canned peaches can cost as little as 11 cents a quart and more than $1.50 in the supermarket. If you have to buy both the peaches and the canning jars, the cost goes up to about 94 cents a quart.

Freezing produce gives good results but can be costly. Energy costs may represent half the total cost of freezing green beans, for example. If your freezer isn't very energy efficient and your electrical rate is high, the cost of running it might wipe out any savings from gardening and preserving food.

If you just enjoy preserving food, this economic analysis probably won't make much difference to you. You don't care what the cost — you just know that come next winter you'll want to eat some garden-fresh, home-grown produce from your own pantry.

Job sharing increases

NEW YORK (UPI) — The use of flexible work hours and job sharing by American business is increasing, according to a survey conducted by the Administrative Management Society in Willow Grove, Pa.

Flextime is a two-part work schedule, consisting of a "core time" during which all employees are at work and a flexible period at when workers can choose their time.

Job sharing, where two employees share one full-time job, is reportedly used by 17 percent of the companies.

Eye-level taillight in rear-window reduces accidents

Copley News Service

Taillights. You head down the freeway and that's all you see.

Blinking, flashing, glowing, red, amber, white — a thousand different shapes and forms, shining up the day and blitzing the night.

This year a new glimmer is radically changing the way we conceive of taillighting. It is the "brake light," a brilliant red luminescense being mounted in rear windows.

In California, rear-window brake lights are compulsory accessories in any automobile manufactured after Jan. 1, 1986, except light-duty trucks. They also are being installed by many drivers in older vehicles as a safety feature at costs of about $30.

A spokesman for the California Highway Patrol says that the rear-window brake light was introduced after several studies (including one undertaken with New York taxis) indicated it greatly reduced accidents.

"It has to do with everyday vision horizon," the spokesman says. "Taillights are down low and you don't always see them. But if you put a light in the middle of a guy's vision it's more surely to be spotted."

Already there are brake-light variations. One innovation is a 2-foot-long "night rider" light, which sends out a directional signal from one end to the other. Placed in rear windows, the effect is the same as the computer signal lights used on billboards and in bank advertising.

"The look of taillights is changing constantly," says Doug Wilson, designer at Nissan Design International. "But one obvious trend in the '80s has been to make them bigger. You see a lot of them stretching over the entire back of the car for more illumination, unlike in the '60s and part of the '70s when they were sort of tiny and kind of fussily decorated jewelry. Now ordinary taillights are more functional and devoid of chrome and filigree."

According to Chris Carroll of Antique Automotive, the first taillamps actually were just that — little lamps that were mounted onto the left rear of the horseless carriage. (The concept of two taillamps or lights did not come about until much later.) They had nothing to do with stopping or turning and had almost as much to do with decoration as function.

The 1910 Model T Ford, for example, had a fancy taillamp made of brass and beveled red glass with a green jewel embedded within. The Ford letters were engraved in the brass at the top. The lamp dangled from the left rear fender, merrily bouncing its red and green light along. On the running board of the driver's side was another handsome brass fixture, this one to carry the extra kerosene for when the lamp's supply was exhausted.

Taillamps kept this design through the first two decades of the century. With the introduction of electric lights, stop- and turn-signal functions were incorporated.

CNS Grahpic

The automobile industry had to do a lot of hard thinking about stop signals. If you simply put a bright red light at the rear of the car, would anyone recognize it as a warning? No, the industry decided. Therefore, the early electric taillights usually incorporated the word "stop" within the light. A little less literal approach was taken to turn signaling: Lighted arrows pointed in directions of right or left.

The late '20s and early '30s were a time of experiment in taillight design. The 1929 Ford, for instance, had a single red light mounted from the left fender. It looked like a teacup sitting on its side. A year later, Fords had red and amber lights. In 1931, Ford went back to all red. The same year the manufacturers added a second light on the right side of the vehicle for the first time — but only on deluxe models. Plainer models continued to be sold with only one light on the left. Your social status, obviously, was spelled out in taillights.

Some taillight designs of the '20s and '30s were inspired by Art Nouveau and Art Deco. The 1938 Packard and Chrysler Imperial reach the haute of Deco. The 1936 Ford Phaeton was extraordinary for the way the taillights were mounted — like huge upside down shower heads on either fender. The 1935 500 K Mercedes Special Roadster also had some extremely striking taillights elaborately incorporating the Mercedes star ornament.

But the taillight design that caught the most attention, was widely copied (namely in early Volkswagens) and continues in popularity was the 1939 Ford teardrop.

In the '40s, lights were set into the sleeker design of fenders. In the '50s, they were placed in giant fins.

The peak of the taillight-in-fin movement occurred in the 1959 Cadillac: Towering, jagged-shaped fins carrying dual "moon rocket"-style taillights. This monument to excess has never quite been duplicated.

Since the '60s, taillights have been evolving gradually as a band of light that occupies either side of the vehicle and wraps around to form a sidelight. One of the first cars to feature the taillight band was the Shelby Mustang of 1968.

What automobile manufacturers can do with taillights is limited by federal standards and state regulations.

One interesting aspect of taillight regulations concerns imported cars. The Federal Motor Safety Standard of 1968 specifies that all vehicles in the United States must have red sidemarker lights and reflectors. But a number of European models have amber lights, making them illegal in this country.

What is today's hottest-looking taillight? Ferrari, hands down.

Both the current 328 GTS and Mondial have doughnut-shaped taillights placed under slight hoods and brake lights blended into the trunk lines. Slick, no rear band stuff here.

DEAR ABBY

Ring causes woman heartache

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My mother died last year and left me her Eastern Star ring, which she had proudly worn for over 45 years. Although I am not an Eastern Star, I loved wearing it. One day while shopping, I ran into a friend of Mother's in a shopping mall. We chatted a while, then she noticed my ring and asked if it was my mother's. When I told her it was, she asked me to take it off so she could get a better look at it. I obliged. She proceeded to rant and rave about how I was blaspheming the Eastern Stars by wearing their ring when I was not a member. She said my mother should have been buried with that ring, and I had no right to wear it, and she was going to see that I was called before the council. Then she stomped off with my ring! I was stunned.

I went to the police and asked if this was a case of theft. They said, "Most definitely," and advised me to swear out a warrant if I wanted the ring. I did as they advised and finally got the ring back, but now I'm on the Eastern Star's blacklist and many of my mother's friends refuse to speak to me.

Now each time I look in my jewelry box my heart aches because I know my dear mother would have wanted me to wear the ring, but I'm afraid to do so.

What do you think about this? — NO EASTERN STAR

DEAR NO STAR: I spoke with Mrs. Norma Gordon, the Worthy Matron of the Eastern Star in Santa Monica and Pacific Palisades, Calif., and she was outraged that a member of that fine organization would behave as your mother's friend did. She said there is no rule stating that a woman must be a member of the Eastern Star in order to wear the ring; neither is there a ruling stating that the ring must be buried with the member who owned it. Now you have it from an official, so take your mother's ring out of the jewelry box, put it back on your finger and wear it in the best of health.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to put in my 22 cents (inflation, you know) about people who break their necks running to answer the phone, and just when they pick it up, the caller hangs up!

I would not even think of rushing to answer a telephone. There are times when I wish the caller would let the phone ring only three or four times — during my nap, when I'm in the shower, or just walking in the door.

If it's important, they'll call back. — LEARNING TO RELAX (age 29)

DEAR LEARNING: More readers said they prefer that the caller let the phone ring a few more times before hanging up, but there were some (surprisingly enough) who were annoyed by too many rings. The mail is running 10-to-1 in favor of the ding-a-lings.

DEAR ABBY: Here's one for the Milwaukee lady who found her husband's teeth-picking in public repulsive.

I was recently at a dinner party where corn on the cob was served. After the meal, the hostess offered dental floss to the guests. Three people began flossing their teeth at the dinner table while conversing!

Have you ever? — APPALLED IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR APPALLED: No. And I hope I never do.

Subcompact cars fail crash tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only nine of 23 subcompact cars escaped damage in a simple 5 mph crash test, and the Yugoslavian-made Yugo had the worst showing, the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety reports.

The institute, a non-profit organization supported by insurance companies, said all 23 subcompact cars were damaged in other 5 mph tests.

The greatest total damage, $2,197 worth, was sustained by the Yugo GV, the report said.

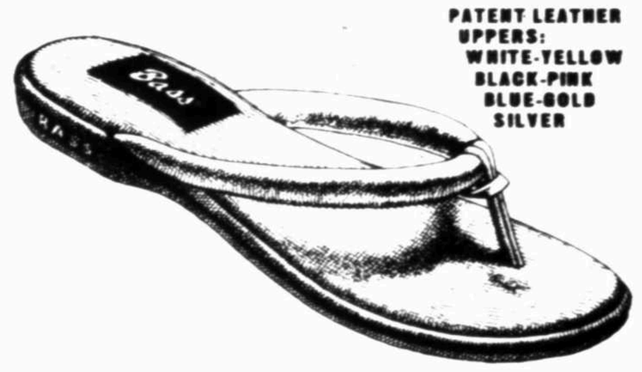

The Yugo, manufactured in Yugoslavia, has a base sticker price of $3,990, and is the least expensive new car sold in the United States.

The cars that did not sustain damage when slammed into front and rear flat barriers were the Ford Escort, Mazda 323, Toyota Celica, Plymouth Colt, Chevrolet Chevette, Toyota Tercel, Toyota Corolla, Renault Alliance and Nissan 200SX.

But the institute reported that even these automobiles, which did the best in the group, were damaged when subjected to other 5 mph crashes that included different crash angles.

The federal government now requires that cars sustain no metal damage in a 2.5 mph crash, a minor parking lot-type accident. The standard was relaxed from the 5 mph requirement when President Reagan took office.

"What's all this fuss about the difference between rubber bridge and duplicate?" writes a reader from San Francisco. "Either you can play the game or you can't. It's as simple as that."

Would that that were the case. Unfortunately, the difference in scoring makes for a completely different game. But here's a case where the line between the two is blurred.

Regardless of what game you are playing, you reach three no trump on a simple auction. West leads a heart and dummy's ten wins. How would you play the hand?

The contract is simple if East can be kept off lead. That is impossible if East holds the queen of clubs twice guarded. Since you need only four tricks from that suit, you can guard against the possibility of a doubleton queen by cashing the ace-king of clubs. If the lady doesn't drop, you play a third round of the suit and hope that it is West who turns up with the queen. As the cards lie, you will make an overtrick.

At duplicate it is another story. Since it makes no difference what you do if West has the queen, the key situations occur when East holds the doubleton queen. If you take the finesse, you will make eight tricks if it fails, ten if it wins; if you play for the drop, you make either nine or ten. So it is a close decision, and we would tend to finesse.

Now let's suppose this hand comes up late in a session where you feel you need a few good results if you are to finish in the money. This time it is correct to go against what you would normally do; in this case, you would play the same way as you would in rubber bridge. If you do drop the queen offside, you can expect a fine matchpoint score.

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

Ventriloquist Paul Winchell wins Metromedia verdict

(AP) — Ventriloquist Paul Winchell won a $17.8 million verdict Wednesday in a decade-long fight against Metromedia Inc., which he claims destroyed the only remaining tapes of his popular "Winchell Mahoney Time" children's television series in a dispute over syndication rights.

Winchell, known to millions of children in the 1950s and '60s as the father of the lovable Jerry Mahoney and Knucklehead Smiff dummies, called the verdict "a vindication" and a message to the entertainment industry that its irreplaceable film resources must be preserved.

"These valuable shows of the past are being destroyed in the judgment of current executives, and then you find years later they suddenly have great value," he said.

A Superior Court jury deliberated three days before awarding Winchell $3.8 million for the value of the tapes and $14 million in punitive damages against Metromedia, which produced the half-hour children's variety shows from 1964 to 1968.

However, Winchell and his attorney, Lawrence P. Grassini, said the loss to today's television viewers cannot really be measured.

"The 'Winchell Mahoney Time' tapes were very good children's shows. They were done with the idea of instilling some principles in kids and instilling some moral values, not like some of the junk that's on TV now," Grassini said.

"Winchell came out there with the idea of not talking down to children but being able through his dummies to do away with some of the fears they might have — fears of the dark, fears of strange noises, fears of going to school....

"They not only hurt Mr. Winchell, they hurt the TV viewing public, because the kids of today will never have the opportunity to see those shows," he said.

Winchell, now 64, who in recent years has provided the voice for cartoon characters such as Winnie the Pooh's "Tigger," said he never believed Metromedia would carry out its threat. He filed suit for breach of contract in 1974.

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Nobel laureate Mother Teresa has arrived on this Caribbean island to visit the Missionaries of Charity community she founded here a year ago.

A spokesman for Bishop Sydney Charles said Wednesday the 76-year-old nun, from Calcutta, India, would spend two days in Grenada before heading to Puerto Rico for a visit to the Missionaries of Charity community in the south-coast city of Ponce and to receive an honorary doctorate from Catholic University.

The degree was awarded to Mother Teresa in 1981, but she was unable to go to receive it. She was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979 for her work with the poor.

"I'm not here as a singer tonight," Rogers told about 140 residents of Lanai Island during a public hearing Tuesday night. He said he supported resort plans and would pay to set up a junior tennis program for island youngsters.

"I care about you," Rogers said, shaking hands and signing autographs.

The island, known as "Pineapple Island," is owned by the Dole Co.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Sarah Ferguson, the fiancee of Prince Andrew, was among a packed Centre Court crowd for the men's quarterfinals at Wimbledon, although she had to make a dash for it.

Ferguson and a friend were traveling by limousine Wednesday to the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club when the car got stuck in traffic. She and Carolyn Beckwith-Smith, her former roommate, left the limo and dashed for the club entrance, weaving past jammed cars.

The crowd gave Ferguson a round of applause as she entered the Royal Box.

Louis' Versailles receives costly design renovations

By MARILYN AUGUST

VERSAILLES, France (AP) — The glittering, chandelier-lined Hall of Mirrors and the lavish royal apartments overlooking vast formal gardens are vivid reminders of the grandeur and pomp of royal life in the sumptuous palace built by France's King Louis XIV.

But now, after nearly eight years of costly renovations and historical research resembling detective work, the public will get a look at "the other side of life at Versailles."

The 64 rooms that constituted the 38 ground-floor apartments decorated by Louis XV for his children — the Dauphin (the future Louis XVI with his wife, Marie-Antoinette) and his two daughters, Adelaide and Victoire — were inaugurated in early June by French Minister of Culture Francois Leotard.

He was accompanied by Versailles chief curator Pierre Lemoine, a scholar who tracked down and purchased original palace furniture and decorative objects to make the apartments as authentic as possible.

"We were very lucky to find most of the wood paneling and the chimneys in the palace's storerooms," Lemoine said in a radio interview. "But whenever I didn't have an exact document, I won't invent."

Versailles, which draws more than 3 million visitors yearly, is one of France's most popular tourist attractions. The current restorations, which cost around 100 million francs (about $14 million), required the talent of 41 French companies specializing in the restoration of antique furniture, tapestry, mirrors and glasswork, rare woods, marble, bronze, oil paintings and watercolors.

"What's so important about these restorations is that the craftsmen had to rediscover the techniques used in the 18th century," explained Genevieve Ravaux, chief curator of the Musees Nationaux de France. "In some cases, they modified their methods, but they had to do considerable research and testing to get things just right."

The magnificent silk-lined boudoirs, gilded alcoves and cozy sitting rooms where the ladies took their afternoon tea were the invention of Louis XV, starting around 1747.

Destined for the Dauphin and Louis XV's daughters, they were regarded as the chateau's richest and most elegant apartments. Protocol was of the utmost importance at Versailles, and each room had a special function.

Courtesans and demoiselles chatted in the mirrored "antechambre" and they danced and dined in the "grand cabinet." The "petit cabinet" was reserved for family and intimates, and few saw the interior of "la chambre" (the bedroom).

And at a time when some 5,000 members of the nobility lived in the palace's private apartments, they symbolized the latest trend in decoration and design.
