Ike Rebuffs Compromise On Defense Dept. Plans

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower let it be known Saturday he will accept no compromise or retreat from the essential provisions of his defense reorganization program.

The President's views were set forth at his vacation headquarters by White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, who pictured Eisenhower as disturbed about news dispatches indicating Secretary of Defense McElroy might be willing to compromise.

Eisenhower's controversial reorganization plans is before Congress, and McElroy has been testifying regarding it before the House Armed Services Committee.

Eisenhower telephoned McElroy in Washington Saturday to discuss the matter. They talked twice for a total of about a half hour. Then Hagerty issued a statement which said:

"Both the President and the secretary are agreed that there can be no compromises on—or retreat from—the essentials of this legislation."

While the statem3nt was issued in Hagerty's name, the press secretary said Eisenhower himself had written that last paragraph in its entirety—and most of the rest of it—which said:

"This morning the President talked by telephone with the secretary of defense. The subject of their conversation was the Defense Reorganization Bill and some news stories implying that the secretary of defense was willing to compromise the objectives sought in the defense modernization bill which the President sent to Congress.

"While the secretary of defense has not insisted on rigid adherence to words and phraseology, he has confirmed to the President that no changes in any feature of the modernization program has been implied in any testimony of his."

Hagerty said McElroy was issuing a similar statement in Washington, saying "the answer is no" to any questions as to whether his testimony before the House committee represents a retreat from Eisenhower's proposals, or a compromise.

The President's decision to phone McElroy seemed to leave no doubt he was angry about what he had read in the newspapers.

Asked specifically whether the President was disturbed about McElroy's testimony, Hagerty replied:

"The President was disturbed about reports we received this morning implying a position by the secretary that the President was quite sure was not correct."

Hagerty added Eisenhower's talks with McElroy confirmed his belief and that the President found "the implications were not correct."

Asked whether Eisenhower was displeased regarding McElroy's testimony, Hagerty said:

"No, he was concerned about the implications of some news stories."

Hagerty declined to specify which news stories.

Jaycees Name Roy Dunlap Top Young Man Of Year In 1957

Roy L. Dunlap, 30-year-old city manager for the city of Snyder, was named Snyder's outstanding young man of the year of 1957 by the Snyder Junior Chamber of Commerce Friday night.

Dr. Robert H. Hargrove, dentist, received the award of Outstanding Jaycee of the year, and several other individual awards were given by the club.

Dunlap was cited as being Snyder's outstanding young man for several reasons by Charley Blakey outgoing president of the club.

He is a graduate of Crosbyton High School and was reared in Crosby County. Following graduation at Crosbyton, he attended Texas Technological College two years then served one year in the U.S. Marine Corps, then went back to Texas Tech, where he received an engineering degree.

After that he went to Levelland, where he was field party chief for Joe E. Ward Construction Co. on a water and sewer installation project in the city of Levelland. He then became a member of the engineering department of the city of Lubbock, where he remained three and one-half years, prior to coming to Snyder as city engineer.

He was city engineer here for 15 months, then went to Hamlin, where he was city coordinator for 13 months.

He then came back to Snyder as city manager here two and one-half years ago.

"Dunlap has done an outstanding job as city manager here, and has been highly active in all phases of community life," Blakey said.

His other activities here include being president of the Rotary Club, a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve, member of the board of Stewards of the First Methodist Church, director of the Civil Defense or-

Like a bolt out of the blue, Snyder had its first case of rabies in several years confirmed the other day. Pet owners, of course, have been admonished to keep a close watch over their animals during the spring and summer season, and in the city steps are being taken toward stricter enforcement of the city's animal ordinance. The rabies was detected in a skunk, which had bitten a dog north of town. If the disease is prevalent among skunks, a serious problem could develop, because there apparently is an abundance of those animals in the area. Consequently, proper control measures and precautions must be taken.

Traffic safety was a popular topic here during the past week. The Chamber of Commerce safety committee started outlining its program for the year, and local officials participated in the kick-off of Gov. Price Daniel's statewide safety program on Wednesday.

Then, on Thursday, Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, paid a brief visit here, during which he gave local officers and several interested citizens a few timely reminders on traffic safety.

Two other community projects which have been "in the mill" for some time are right back at the head of the list on the Chamber of Commerce civic affairs committee's program of work. That group announced that it will continue to work for a new post office building and opening of a Texas Employment Commission office in Snyder. Perhaps perserverence will pay off one of the days.

Judge Joe Greenhill has the distinction of being the first avowed candidate for a state office to visit in Snyder this year. Judge Greenhill, who is seeking an elective term as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, was here Friday renewing acquaintances and meeting more people. He is now serving an unexpired term by appointment, having gone on the bench last Oct. 1.

Ike Again Calls For Water Project Bill

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower Saturday again urged Congress to pass new legislation to authorize $1,363,172,000 worth of "sound" water projects shelved by his April 15 veto.

In vetoing the earlier bill calling for projects totaling $1,704,028,300 the President said he was doing so because he felt some of them—28 out of about 150—would either be a waste of money or would destroy fundamental resources development policies.

The bill provided for navigation, beach erosion, flood control and power projects in various sections of the country. The 28 to which Eisenhower objected carried a cost tag of about 350 million dollars.

The President, in his veto message, said he would be willing to approve what he called the sound projects worth $1,353,172,000 and he urged Congress to lump them in new legislation for speedy enactment.

He sounded that appeal anew and also said he is willing to approve 18 other projects if Congress will make modifications recommended by the administration. The value of those is $204,705,600.

That would leave the few remaining for further study and possible action later, or rejected outright so far as Eisenhower is concerned. That group of projects is valued at about 146 million dollars.

The President set forth his appeal for action in identical letters to Republican congressional leaders, Sen. Knowland of California and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts. The letters were sent from his weekend vacation headquarters at the Augusta National Golf Club.

In the Senate, Eisenhower's April 15 veto message has been referred to the Public Works Committee for hearings next month as a preliminary to a possible attempt to override it. That would take a two-thirds majority of those voting in both the House and Senate.

Senate Refuses To Broaden Labor Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate refused Saturday to broaden an employe welfare-pension fund bill to prohibit labor unions from denying membership because of race, creed or color.

The roll call vote was 53-28.

Rejection of the anti-discrimination amendment marked another setback for Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) in his fight for what he calls "union democracy" measures.

Democratic leaders, with the support of some Republican senators, argued that efforts to write broad labor legislation should await hearings scheduled to start before the Senate Labor Committee on May 5.

The move led by Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, to turn the welfare and pension fund bill into a broad "labor bill of rights" measure was described by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) as "pure political hogwash."

Johnson, the Democratic majority leader, appealed to Republicans to pass the welfare-pension bill first and then work on a general labor program later.

"Let's not shoot from the hip just to get headlines today," he said.

However, Knowland and other Republicans argued that now is the time to get action if there were to be any real hopes of passing broadscale labor legislation at this session of Congress.

The defeat of Knowland's anti-discrimination amendment followed the pattern set Friday night when the Senate rejected four other amendments he proposed to strengthen rank and file control over union affairs.

He has other amendments to call up Monday and so have some other Republican senators. Also awaiting action are 11 amendments offered by Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) to carry out President Eisenhower's labor legislation recommendations.

Man Found Dead Here In Trailer

An elderly Snyder man was found dead just after noon yesterday in his trailer home near the downtown business area.

He was Delbert Roy Baird, 72, a retired cook.

A friend of Baird's found him dead in his trailer, sitting on the floor and leaning against a window.

Cause or time of death had not been determined late yesterday, but it was believed Baird died of natural causes, according to Earl Abercrombie, sheriff, and Wayland Holt, district attorney. No verdict was expected from Peace Justice W. C. Davidson, coroner, until early this week.

Baird's trailer was just north of Twenty-fourth Street and west of Avenue S, behind a recreation hall. He lived alone.

Funeral arrangements were to be made today at Bolger Funeral Home.

Baird was born Oct. 4, 1885, at Fairfield, Ill. He lived in Oklahoma most of his life and moved to Snyder seven or eight years ago.

Survivors include a sister at Council Hill, Okla., Bertha Ellen Harris, and three other sisters.

River Vessels In Collisions

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— Separate marine collisions in the Mississippi River sank a tugboat and ripped a hole in a cargo vessel Saturday. No one was injured.

Three persons were aboard the Big Louie, which rolled over and sank within two minutes after colliding with another barge-towing tug. They were rescued.

The 10,000-ton cargo vessel Lucille Bloomfield collided with the Norwegian motor vessel Janna. The Bloomfield received a large hole in the starboard side. Capt. Harry Rose of Orange, Tex., skipper of the Bloomfield, said damage was negligible.

Capt. T. Bottger of the Janna said his 440-foot ship was slightly damaged but seaworthy. The Janna was headed for England with a 7,225-ton load of grain.

The Bloomfield was en route to a local cotton warehouse wharf. It was carrying cotton, lead and general cargo. Several crewmen were shaken up but not injured.

Camp Stanley Remains Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)— Department of the Army announced Saturday that Camp Stanley will remain in operation.

The ammunition storage depot near San Antonio, which employs 183 civilians, was scheduled for inactivation under an economy order of last August.

But the Army in a release said evaluation of long range logistics requirements have determined that the installation best fills the need to effect certain economies by consolidation of supplies.

Two Snyder Men Enter Race For State Legislature Post

Two Snyder men have announced intention to seek the Democratic nomination for state representative of the 90th State Legislative District.

They are Renal B. Rosson, attorney, and Ray Houpt, insurance agent. The two are the first to announce for the office.

The 90th district is composed of Scurry, Borden, Garza, Kent, and Crosby Counties.

The district is now represented by Robert R. Patterson, Snyder attorney, who is a candidate for the state Senate.

RAY HOUPT

Houpt, 29, was born at Nocona Sept. 3, 1928, the son of Mrs. W. M. Houpt and the late W. M. Houpt.

He is a graduate of Nocona High School, attended Arlington State College, and is a graduate of Don Martin's School of Radio and TV Art and Sciences with a first class FCC license.

Prior to entering the insurance business, Houpt was a staff announcer for Radio Station KSNY in Snyder for 16 months.

In 1952 he married Miss Florence Hurst of Hastings, Nebr. They have two daughters, Cathy, 4, and Karen, 2.

Houpt is associated with Ernest Taylor and J. Elmo Crowder with the United Fidelity Life Insurance Co. He is a member of the board of directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He was head of the Jaycee steering committee for the proposed Scurry County Junior College and was a member of the nine-man Scurry County Citizens Committee promoting the junior college. He is a member of the American Legion and active in the First Methodist Church. He has been active in the Democratic Party affairs and was a delegate from the 24th Senatorial District at the last two state Democratic conventions.

"During the campaign I will state my views on various legislation of which I consider to be extremely important to the people of this district, concerning taxes, insurance reforms needed, schools, water and other matters of interest to all the people of Texas," Houpt said.

He said that he feels his background would help in making right decisions confronting the people of the district, adding that he was born and raised on a stock farm in Montague County and did oilfield and construction work before finishing his schooling, saying that gives him background in the three main industries of the area.

Heavy Rains Flood Dallas, Austin Areas

By The Associated Press

Flood waters chased families from their homes in Atlanta, in Northeast Texas, and in Dallas Saturday as a round of heavy spring thunderstorms pelted the northeast quarter of Texas.

Violent thunderstorms dumped more than an inch of rain on the Austin area in central Texas in about 45 minutes in late afternoon. Hail fell near Austin and at Garland and Richardson, north of Dallas.

The rain at Atlanta started Friday night and by Saturday noon measured 6.2 inches. It was the heaviest rainfall there in 15 years.

The downpour sent little Haw Creek, which crosses Atlanta, out of its banks for a time. Three homes were evacuated in the low lying east portion of town and the overflow blocked three downtown streets.

The creek started to subside by early afternoon, but still flowed through the city fire hall, the chamber of commerce building, an auto firm and several homes.

More than two inches of rain fell at Dallas in less than an hour in late afternoon.

The heavy rain sent White Rock Creek out of its banks flooding heavily damaged during the last evacuated their homes.

Others, like P. A. Glenn, who sent his wife and children to safety, remained behind "just to see what happens."

"There's no sense getting excited, Glenn said. "We did this three times last year."

Residents also left their homes on Copeland, Pine and Lagow streets in South Dallas.

Flash floods closed more than two dozen streets in Dallas and stranded many motorists briefly.

The Weather Bureau said the danger of flash floods would continue through Saturday night and Sunday.

The total rain fall at Dallas for the day was 3.45 inches, but most of it fell between 3 and 6 p.m.

Heavy rains also fell at Fort Worth. In the area near Texas Christian University the rain was measured at 3.60 inches. Carter field, east of Fort Worth, had 2.57 inches. Colleyville had 4 inches.

Some flash flooding was reported late Saturday afternoon at Haltom City, a Fort Worth suburb. Some houses in low lying areas were sandbagged but no water reached into the houses.

RENAL B. ROSSON

Rosson, 38, was born at Breckenridge in Stephens County Dec. 24, 1919, and moved to Scurry County with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Rosson, now of Sweetwater, in 1928. He attended public schools here, graduating from Snyder High School in 1937.

After completion of high school, Rosson enrolled at Texas Technological College, Lubbock, and attended for three and one-half years before entering the Army Air Corps for a four-year tour of duty. He served with the 15th Air Force in Italy, participating in 46 missions during World War II, and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with four oak leaf clusters, and Purple Heart. He is presently a captain in the Air Force Reserves.

After discharge from military duty in 1945, Rosson reentered Texas Tech and received his BBA degree in 1946. That fall he entered the University of Texas Law School at Austin, graduating and receiving his LLB degree in 1949. While at law school he worked as a clerk in both the Senate and House of Representatives.

Rosson and his wife, the former Dorothy Murphree, then returned to Snyder and now reside at 2510 Thirty-first Street. They have one son, Kyle, 2.

Rosson was in private law practice until he became district attorney in October, 1952, and served two terms. He again returned to the private law practice in January, 1957, and has his office at 1824 Twenty-sixth Street.

He is a Baptist, a member of the Downtown Lions Club, and former president of the Scurry County Bar Association, as well as being active in other civic affairs.

Rosson states that he feels his experience in the law practice and general knowledge of this area will enable him to serve in an efficient and able manner if he is elected representative.

Snyder Band Wins Fifth Sweepstakes

For the fifth consecutive year, the Snyder High School concert band has been named a "sweepstakes" winner in Interscholastic League competition.

The 1958 sweepstakes award came Friday when the band, directed by Melvin Montgomery, received a Division I rating in both concert and sight reading competition held in Abilene. It had received a Division I rating in marching contests in December.

A Division I rating is one of superior, or 95 to 100 in grading. Division II is 87 to 95, excellent; while III is 80 to 85, good; IV is 75 to 80, fair; and V is 70 to 75, poor.

The Snyder band was the only Class 3-A band in Region II receiving a sweepstakes award, and there were only three bands in the top three classes reaching the top honors. San Angelo was sweepstakes winner in Class 4-A, Winters in Class 2-A.

The Snyder junior high band, directed by Tim Dennis, took a Division I rating in concert and Division II in sight reading in Class C junior high competition Friday. It had taken a Division II rating in marching in the December contests.

The high school band, as well as the high school a capella choir, is to leave Thursday for Corpus Christi to participate in the Buccaneer Music Festival, set for Thursday through Saturday. A total of 165 students will go.

West German Leaders Cold To Mikoyan

BONN, Germany (AP) — First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, Soviet trade boss, called on Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and other West German leaders Saturday and admittedly drew a blank. But he said their two nations understand each other better now.

Later, however, the so-called Soviet good will man drew a chorus of groans from hundreds of West German newsmen when he slammed the door on any chances of a Soviet agreement to reunify Germany through free elections. He told a news conference the action taken at the 1955 summit conference toward that end now "belongs to the past."

"We must begin anew," he said and added that the best way to start is for West Germany and Communist East Germany to sit down together and negotiate. This both the government and the Socialist opposition in West Germany have steadfastly refused to do.

Summing up his talks with Adenauer and the others, Mikoyan said:

"Our views on many questions were different. But on some points we came closer. At least we now understand one another better. That in itself is an achievement."

Reds Dim Talk Hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia threw prospects of a summit meeting into further uncertainty Saturday by stipulating that Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia should have seats at joint per-summit diplomatic talks.

Word of this stand by the Soviet Union came from reliable sources in Moscow. It raised new doubt whether the Kremlin really wants a summit meeting at any time in the near future; to ease East-West tension.

In Washington, the State Department interpreted the Russian position as a rejection of Western proposals that envoys of the United States, Britain and France meet immediately in Moscow with Foreign Minister Gromyko to help prepare the way for a possible session of top leaders.

An on-the-scene dispatch from Moscow said the West was sure to reject the Soviet condition that if joint preliminary diplomatic talks are held, a couple of Communist nations besides Russia should have seats at the table. However, the State Department made no comment on this point, saying it lacked information on the Soviet stipulation.

The department issued a statement saying: "We have received only a preliminary message from our Embassy in Washington which indicates that the Soviets have rejected our proposal of April 24 designed to facilitate progress toward making adequate preparations for a summit meeting."

Lincoln White, department press officer, said the full text of Gromyko's reply to the April 24 note was just beginning to come in and there would be no further comment until the text had been studied.

The Western Big Three have been proposing that their ambassadors meet jointly with Gromyko. he has been insisting he should meet with them one by one. He added the stipulation Saturday that if joint sessions are upheld, there should be more seats on the Red side of the table, to uphold the "principle of parity."

OIL ROUNDUP

Independents To Review Strategy

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—The nation's independent oil operators in the next three days will review their campaign strategy seeking stricter controls over oil imports.

About 1,500 independents gather in Chicago for the midyear meeting of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA).

The imports fight is familiar to the IPAA. The organization was founded 29 years ago during a similar period of industry turmoil that saw independents clamoring for importers to reduce the amount of foreign oil being processed and sold in the United States.

The current campaign is the fourth major renewal of the imports controversy that, for the most part, finds independent operators debating with major operators who have foreign interests.

Increased domestic demand resulting from severe winters and such national emertencies as the fighting in Korea have halted the earlier IPAA campaigns without congressional action. The 1958 Chicago meeting begins, however, with congressmen from Texas and other oil states pressing for action on an oil imports quota-duty bill.

The author of the bill, Rep. Frank Ikard (D-Tex.), will be among the Chicago speakers.

IPAA's position has been that voluntary oil import action, while helpful, underscores the necessity for Congress to enact legislation to provide a permanent, long-range solution to the problem. IPAA officials contend the voluntary program reaffirmed that oil imports are excessive to the point of endangering national security but continues to delegate to private interests the government's responsibility of maintaining such security. IPAA also objects because the voluntary program does not apply to petroleum products imports.

Texas Tech Draws Censure By AAUP

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP)—Six colleges and anviersities were censured by the American Assn. of University Professors during its 44th annual meeting here, ending Saturday.

Censure voted two years ago was removed from three institutions.

The convention, in a resolution, also expressed the view that refusal of a teacher to supply information to a legislative investigating committee about his political affiliation does not, in itself, constitute misconduct.

The convention, in another resolution, opposed resistance of some governmental bodies and private groups — not listed by name — to elimination of segregated education. It condemned efforts to deny employment or admission to faculty members or students because of race or membership in groups urging non-segregated education.

Bentley Glass of the Johns Hopkins University was announced as the new president. New vice presidents were Warren Taylor of Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, and Glenn Morrow of the University of Pennsylvania.

Institutions censured were the University of Michigan; Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.; Texas Technological College, Lubbock, Tex.; Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.; Livingstone College, Salisbury, N.C.; and Southwestern Louisiana Institute, Lafayette, La.

Removed from censure were the University of California, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J., and Temple University, Philadelphia—the latter upon a contingent basis.

Reports were heard on the University of Vermont, New York University, Reed College of Portland, Ore., the University of Southern California and the University of Kansas City but censure was not asked.

Censure does not have any direct effect upon an institution. It simply places the association on record as opposing the practices which it criticizes. The censure always is directed at the administration of a school.

Rail Rate Hike On Pipe Halted

HOUSTON (AP) — A court order temporarily halting a proposed rail rate decrease on steel and iron pipe shipped into the Southwest area was ordered Friday by Federal Judge Allen Hannay.

The judge issued the order at the request of Allan Dale, representing 11 barge lines.

Dale said a new schedule of rates had been published by the railroads and it was to go into effect Sunday. He said the Interstate Commerce Commission issued an order granting "fourth section" relief to the railroads, permitting them to lower rates on pipe.

HONOLULU (AP) — Texans in Hawaii staged a big Texas barbecue and get-together Saturday night and got so enthusiastic about it they decided to meet three times a year.

About 225 transplanted Texans weating Western garb took part in the late celebration on San Jacinto Day.

The affair was held five days later than the San Jacinto anniversary date to allow more Texans to attend on a Saturday night.

The gathering at the Honolulu Elks Club featured a Texas barbecue and Ken Alford and his Dixie-Cats, who adopted that name for the occasion.

Bob Cole, president of the recently re-organized Hawaii Chapter of the Texas Club, said more Lone Star State gatherings are planned and the club hoped to meet three times a year.

Cole is a sports writer on the Honolulu Star-Bulletin and former sports editor of the Record-News at Wichita Falls, Tex., his home town.

Cole said "We are especially proud of the fact that we were able to commandeer a giant size Texas flag for our get-together."

Not the least interested participant was Riley Allen, editor of the Honulu Star - Bulletin who came to Hawaii from Texas in 1912 and who is president emeritus of the Texas Club here.

Among prominent guests were Samuel Kemp, once of Austin who is a former chief justice of the Territory of Hawaii and a former territorial attorney general; and Brig. Gen. Jack Schwartz, late of Texas, who is the new commanding officer of Tripler Army Hospital here.

Rutgers University was founded in 1766 as Queens College.

Intruder Is Shot Down

HOUSTON (AP)—A young intruder was shot near the heart early Saturday when he burst into a home of a stranger two blocks from his own apartment.

Gaylord Madinn, 26, was in a critical condition after three hours in surgery.

R. L. Collins, 48, a traveling salesman, told police he shot the young man after he barged into the living room of Collins' home at 1 a.m. Collins said he had never seen Madinn before.

Collins told detectives he was asleep on a cot when he was awakened by "someone trying to break down the door."

Collins, whose ailing wife and some visiting relatives were sleeping in the house, said he asked who was knocking.

He opened the door and said a young man "with wild eyes" rushed toward him. Collins said he fired once. Collins was released.

At Arctic Village in the far north section of Alaska is a radio shack used to check radio beams and guide airplane flights. Indian children swarm into the shack to watch movies shown by the radio crew. And their favorite is Hopalong Cassidy because he teaches them "how to speak the English language."

Soviets Revive Titoism; Cool Toward Coexistence

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Moscow's Communists have brought Titoism to life again. In the process they spotlighted doubts about their professed devotion to the peaceful coexistence of communism and capitalism.

Moscow's latest blast at the Yugoslavs also mocks the hope that anything can be accomplished in a summit meeting to ease East-West tensions. It shows the Kremlin still pursues a Stalinist policy which will be satisfied with nothing less than Communist demonation of the world.

All this adds up a tactical blunder in the Kremlin, and for that—along with the sharp setback it implies for Communist plans — somebody eventually must pay. A new political convulsivn may not be far away for Soviet communism's leaders.

Titoism was born 10 years ago this summer. Stalin's Cominform read Tito and his party out of the Communist club because the Yugoslav leader refused to concede the Kremlin's infallible authority in all matters concerning communism. That proved to be a severe blow to the Red timetable. Five years ago, after talin died, the feud was hushed up, and three years ago Nikita Khrushchev made a pilgraimage of apoligy to Belgrade, to beg Tito's pardon for Stalin's excesses.

The Hungarian revolution interrupted this second honeymoon. Tito's example of independent communism had a part in that and in stirrings in Poland and elsewhere among the world's Communists. Khrushchev later made some effort to patch up this rift, but it didn't work. Tito still demanded that the Yugoslav Communist party be treated as an equal with the Soviet party in world Communist affairs.

The new break widened last November. Tito, who took part in the 1917 Bolshevik revolution, stayed away from the 40th anniversary celebration, an occasion for the biggest international Communist meeting in history. He sent a delegation which, in reality, outlined a program for aggressive Communist expansion.

The big blowoff came this month, with publication of a program to be considered at Yugoslavia's seventh Communist party Congress at Ljubljana. In the April issue of Kommunist, Moscow's montly bible of Moscow theory, the Kremlin reacted in wrath.

The anger is revealing. Tito stands accused of hampering the world revolution and weakening world Red Solidarity at a time when Communists should be preparing to seize opportunities for expanding their physical domination.

TEC Case Is Considered

AUSTIN (AP)—Lee Williams' plea that he be rehired by the Texas Employment Commission was under advisement Saturday by the TEC merit System Council.

Williams, TEC employe for 20 years, was fired early this month as chief attorney for the commission. The TEC voted 2-1 to dismiss Williams, claiming only that it had lost confidence in the attorney, who is 50.

Chairman Perry Brown said Williams was fired because of his persistent leaning toward "the labor viewpoint." Commissioner R. F. Newman, who has supported Williams, disagreed.

Until recently, New Mexico was an officially bi-lingual state. And even today voting ballots, road signs and many official documents are printed in both English and Spanish.

Increase In Jobs Looms, TEC Believes

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Employment Commission predicted Saturday the state's employment totals would show a late spring increase despite a recent trend of spreading unemployment.

The TEC report showed total nonfarm employment in Texas dropped 4,100 during March to 2,959,900 while unemployment totals increased by 6,700 to 200,400 jobless in the nonagricultural class.

Farm employment reached 366,900 in March, a gain of 48,500 over the previous month but 10,200 short of the March 1957 figure.

"Construction is expected to supply most of the predicted late spring increase," the report said, "with local and state governments also adding more non-manufacturing workers. Service industries and retail trade will also show a seasonal increase as the vacation and outdoor recreation season approaches.

"Food processing will show some gain because of increased demand for hot weather items."

The TEC said that the state trend since 1950 was for March employment to swing upward an average of 12,700 more jobs than the previous year. This year the total March nonfarm employment was only 1,400 more than in 1957.

The state unemployment ration of 5.8 per cent remained below the national rate of 7.7 per cent.

During the month manufacturing employment dropped 3,000, compared to March 1957, and non-manufacturing employment decreased 1,100.

The TEC said the March farm employment included 98,000 seasonal hands—31,500 in vegetable fields, 26,600 in cotton and 19,600 in livestock and poultry activity.

NEW ODESSA PLANT OF CAMERON IRON WORKS, INC.

Cameron Iron Works Opens Plant To Serve West Texas

Cameron Iron Works, Inc., entertained several thousand members of the oil drilling and producing industry Thursday at the "Big Blowout" opening of their new Odessa plant.

The company took the occasion to introduce and demonstrate several new products and acquaint the industry with the services available at the 15,000 square foot plant, warehouse and office building.

Highlights of the opening included demonstrating the company's new, small lightweight high pressure blowout preventer — the first 7" 15,000 psi working pressure preventer ever made — and a new gate valve for working pressures to 15,000 psi.

In realistic simulated blowout a column of water under high pressure roared several hundred feet in the air. Within seconds the new blowout preventer shut off the "blowout." Old timers present who had encountered actual blowouts were instantly reminded of the hazards before such equipment was available.

The new gate valve also created quite a stir among the visitors as it introduced a new principle of rotating the sealing surfaces slightly each time the valve was opened. This action distributes the wear on these surfaces and gives considerable added life to the valve.

Other new products introduced included five new pieces of production flow control equipment, a new clamp connection, and a new stud bolt and nut design.

Seventeen Cameron sales and service m n work out of the Odessa plant, while six skilled craftsmen are employed to assemble Cameron new equipment and repair Cameron used equipment.

This is one of a series of moves recently announced by the company's vice president, Herbert Allen, "to decentralize repair, assembly, and distribution points. The need for this plant has been indicated for quite a while and," he added, "we certainly want to expand this into a larger operation in the future."

Certainly Cameron's Odessa plant is a modest beginning, but if anything is significant about the company's success, this promises to be one of the leading firms in the West Texas Oil industry.

Through thirty-seven years Cameron has developed an outstanding line of high pressure oil well control equipment. Today, this equipment is designed to work together in an interlocking system. It provides pressure control for every step of drilling producing and completing a well.

Cameron also manufactures composite Christmas Trees which combine Master Valve, Wing Valve, and Flow Tee into one unit. These composite Christmas Trees have been sold and installed in South America on Lake Maracaibo and in the Rio Grande Valley. Cameron also makes a dual composite Tree which has two Master Valves, two Wing Valves, and two Flow Tees in the one boby. They have been developing, testing, and evaluating units like these for the past eighteen months.

In addition to its Houston plant, Cameron has a manufacturing plant in Leeds, England. Plants similar to the one in Odessa are also located in Edmonton, Canada, and Patterson, Louisiana.

Cameron has a large staff of foreign salesmen, agents, representatives and domestic sales and service office throughout the free world.

Cardinal Stritch Stricken In Rome

ROME (AP) — Samuel Cardinal Stritch, archbishop of Chicago, was rushed to a Rome hospital Saturday suffering from thrombosis—occlusion of the right arm, a condition so grave it may require amputation.

Doctors were treating the cardinal in efforts to avert major surgery. Amputation would be necessary if gangrene sets in.

An announcement from the cardinal's personal secretary, Msgr. James Hardiman, said the thrombosis occlusion, a blood clot that stops circulation, is located in the major artery of the right upper arm.

The secretary's statement said doctors had found the cardinal's general condition good but that the condition of the arm is considered grave.

The 70-year-old cardinal was taken to a hospital shortly after his arrival to assume his new post of proprefect of the Vatican's Congregation for Propagation of the Faith—the highest Vatican Curia assignment ever given an American prelate.

Pope Pius XII was to have received Cardinal Stritch in private audience in the next few days. The pontiff sent his blessing and wishes for the cardinal's prompt recovery.

The statement by Cardinal Stritch's secretary said: "What treatment will be required cannot yet be stated with certainty. The cardinal will be under treatment for a week to attempt solution of the circulatory block before his condition can be definitely determined."

Attending the prelate is Dr. Pietro Valdoni, one of Europe's most noted surgeons and a cardiovascular specialist. The cardinal was in Valdoni's Sanatrix Clinic.

Austin Attorney Becomes Fourth In Governor's Race

AUSTIN (AP)— Alvis Vandygriff, 47, Austin attorney who was one of the organizers of the veterans land program, became Saturday the fourth candidate for governor.

"Visits across the state, in cities, counties and in homes, have made me increasingly more aware of the indecisiveness and lack of leadership in our state's highest office," Vandygriff said. "The awareness of this condition in our state government and a desire to effect a remedy causes me to enter the race for governor of Texas."

Vandygriff described himself as a Democrat, "middle-of-the-roader." He said he voted for President Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956 "but I would apologize to the people of Texas for that at this time."

Gov. Price Daniel, 47, said last week he would seek a second term.

This week Joe Irwin, 61, Dallas insurance and real estate man, said he would make the race. Several weeks ago Don Booker, 51, Orange insurance underwriter, who said he was an ex-Republican but would seek the Democratic nomination, announced.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, defeated three times in races for governor, will say Monday night whether he will seek re-election to the Senate or try another gubernatorial contest.

Two other possible candidates, Atty. Gen. Will Wilson and state Sen. Charles Herring, are expected to announce their intentions before the May 5 filing deadline.

Dist. Judge Jim Sewell of Corsicana removed himself as a possible candidate about two weeks ago.

Vandygriff is a native of Ennis. He made his first political campaign at 21 when he was elected clerk of the Ellis County District Court at Waxahachie in 1933. In 1938 he took a job as assistant chief clerk of the General Land Office in Austin and was made chief clerk five months later. From 1942 to 1946 Vandygriff was in the Air Force, leaving with the rank of major. He returned as chief clerk of the Land Office and was named executive secretary of the new Veterans Land Board when it was organized in 1949. Land Commissioner Bascom Giles was chairman of the board.

Vandygriff left state service in 1950 to enter private law practice. From 1950 to 1953 he was general counsel for the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Assn.

Poet Draws Huge Crowd

DALLAS (AP)—T. S. Eliot proved here Friday night that a poet reading his own works can draw a capacity crowd despite adverse weather.

About 7,000 persons jammed the SMU Coliseum to hear the slight, 69-year-old Nobel Prize winner.

A heavy rain beat on the roof got so noisy at one point that he stopped for a while to let the rain have a full solo.

"The competition is considerable," he remarked.

Opening the program, Eliot said with obvious pleasure that he had been made an honorary citizen of Dallas and a deputy sheriff here.

He said he considered it funny that he, a deputy sheriff, should be reciting poetry.

OUR VIEW

The Confusing Time

That annual period of confusion dubbed Daylight Saving Time rears its head again today in some parts of the nation.

If you are a homebody, it probably won't affect you much, but if you happen to travel during the next five months or so, remember to keep your watch and time-table flexible.

Purpose of daylight saving time is to give workers more "daylight" hours at home after business hours during the spring and summer months. This section of the country, which has considerable periods of sunshine both before and after the 8 to 5 routine, does not go in for the confusion. In fact, no close neighbors of ours observe it, but if you venture into some "foreign" territory there's a chance you may meet yourself coming back.

Railroads, bus lines and air lines are caught in the swirl, and in many cases their schedules are literally "shook up." The Wall Street Journal cited an example where one major air line had a schedule calling for departure from the Akron, Ohio, airport at 7:58 a.m., eastern daylight time, and arrival of the same flight at Columbus at 7:39 a.m., eastern standard time. This condition exists because Ohio leaves the daylight saving time business up to local option.

About the most that can be said for it, so far as we are concerned, is that it means big league baseball games will be starting an hour earlier in some cities. Even so, those new West Coast entries in the National League will be hard pressed to complete their night games before our midnight.

ICBM To Present Accuracy Problem

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP)—With today's maps neither the United States nor Russia could hit the broad side of a barn with a 5,000 mile range missile — but they might get close.

In fact, so far as is known publicly, the United States does not know with precision the location of Moscow in relation, say, to the Air Force's intercontinental missile base being built near Cheyenne, Wyo.

For the military tactician and strategist — not to mention the rest of mankind—this lack of knowledge poses fearful problems in event of war.

Do you shoot the so-called "clean" hydrogen bombs and try for a big blast near miss? Or do you aim simply at some vast area with the object of wiping out whole populations by poisoning the land and winds with radioactive fallout?

Pinpoint accuracy was no great problem in World War II. The best artillery usually fired at a maximum range of 25 miles and the results could be observed visually from spotter planes. Bombs were carried over great distances by airplanes and dropped with great accuracy. Again the results could be observed.

Today matters are different. Unless combatants learn to shoot long range missiles with near pinpoint accuracy, substituting blast effect for radioactivity, they could wind up destroying themselves as well as the enemy.

Nobody knows the exact size and shape of the earth. This means that the theoretical center of the globe is unknown—and it is the center which is used as one reference point in projecting great distances.

Even if maps were extremely accurate the missile men still are confronted with problems over which they have no control. Cross winds of 250 miles per hour or more at high altitudes undoubtedly would affect the missile's trajectory.

Further, the pull of gravity varies from place to place over the earth and, despite the altitude at which missiles are flown, this would affect their flight path.

In brief, a long range missile aimed at Detroit, Mich., might well wind up in Chicago or somewhere in Canada.

The United States and Russia do not even agree on the circumference of the earth at the Equator. The Russians use 24,901.83 miles, while the latest U. S. calculation is 24,901.93 miles.

The difference is small, to be sure, but in figuring target distances over extreme ranges, the variation could be vital.

It is worth noting that during World War II, U.S. military men found that only 37 per cent of the earth's surface had been mapped with any degree of accuracy.

Panel Named To Sell Bonds

AUSTIN (AP)—A first step was taken Friday toward selling up to 200 million dollars in state bonds for use in developing Texas' water resources.

The Texas Water Development Board appointed a committee of three on issuance and sale of state bonds. C. Y. Mills of Mission is chairman. Other members are W. E. Tinsley of Austin and Bill Taylor of Longview.

Executive Secty. Joe Carter said the committee's first job is to find a bond attorney for the board by its May 30 meeting. The committee later will go to New York in an attempt to see how the best possible interest rate can be obtained for the state bonds.

The board urged development of all reservoirs to ultimate capacity. It said it would seek to help the Brazos River Authority in its reservoir work.

Cliburn Set Eyes On Goal At Early Age

By WINSTON GARDNER
Editor, Kilgore New-Herald
Written For The Associated Press

KILGORE, Tex. — When Van Cliburn, winner of the Tchaikovsky international piano competition at Moscow, was just a little fellow, tired from practice, his father often asked him if he didn't want to change his career.

His reply usually was: "Daddy, don't talk that way. I want to be a concert pianist."

That in a nutshell describes the determination and dedication to music that has brought the tall, slender Kilgore youth to the "top of the heap" in the concert piano field, with music managers of the United States and Europe clamoring for his services.

Looking back over his son's experiences, Harvey Cliburn said that Van's career would "make a wonderful story for young people—he set his course, stuck to it and never wavered."

Even before the showers of acclaim broke over the gangling youth's head for his Moscow feat, he was a nationally-recognized pianist of high reputation among those who know music best.

He had started babging the piano at the age of three, and in that year made his first public appearance — at Dodd College in Shreveport. When he was eight, he played 15 compositions at the national piano playing auditions in Fort Worth, receiving a "superior" rating on all numbers from the eminent pianist and teacher of New York, Dorothy Kendricks. Before that he had played with the Houston Symphony Orchestra.

He won a statewide contest at 12, studied in the summer at Juilliard at 13, and won another state contest in the same year. He went on to win other and more important contests —The G. B. Dealey Memorial Award in 1952, the Olga Samarov-Stowski Foundation grant in 1953. He has never lost a contest.

He became a full-time Julliard student in 1951. "Before Moscow," he had appeared as soloist at 12 or 15 of the leading symphony orchestras in the nation, and had returned engagements with many.

It was considerable recognition in itself to be chosen for the Moscow competition, by a committee of leading American musicians He was chosen unanimously to be the American representative.

Now widely sought, people are asking: "What kind of boy is this Van Cliburn?"

Almost anyone in Kilgore can tell you.

He's a tall Texan—6-4—genial, with an extroverted, warm type of personality and a sense of humor. His personality is like that of thousands of Texas boys but he is different from most in one major respect — he has a great gift for playing the piano and he has spent practically all of his life doing just that.

When he strides out on a concert stage his poised, friendly and relaxed demeanor nearly always has the audience going his way.

Several years ago while performing with a symphony orchestra at an important concert, one of the foot pedals on the pano fell off. The conductor was horrified and members of the orchestra were ready to flee. While everyone was wondering what to do about the crisis, Van calmly reached down, put the pedal back on and continued playing.

His mother, a teacher of piano, was a pupil of Arthur Friedheim of New York, who was a pupil of Franz Liszt, the composer. She wanted to go on the concert stage and had many offers to do so, but her mother preferred that she enter the teaching field.

His father is a 32-year veteran of Magnolia Petroleum Co. He is crude oil purchases and sales representative for the company in the Eastern Division, which includes part of Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Van Cliburn, in addition to his own dedication to his career, has had careful planning and direction from his parents.

The three have always been very close. While he was growing up his greatest reward for continued hard practice was "eating out" with his parents and going to movies with them.

These were his principal hobbies, his father said. Cliburn recalled that he once bought Van skates and a bicycle, but when they were given away at a later date, they were practically unused.

Van went through high school at Kilgore and was a good student, always planning his educational program to fit in with his musical career.

His background deviated from the usual in that there were no such things as sports—baseball, basketball, football. But otherwise it would be termed "American and solid" — consisting of a warm homelife, devotion to church, school — and music. There was hardly any time of the day when the tinkling of piano music was not heard in the Cliburn home.

And it wasn't all classical, because Van is capable of pounding out a mean boogie-woogie.

Following the example set by his parents, he is a devout church member and a tither. He has given his own church — the Calvary Baptist Church in New York — a Steinway grand piano.

All of his life he has given freely of his talent, performing anywhere, anytime.

As his father says, "he has a great faith in the one who has given him his talent." In April, 1948, after he had presented a concert for the Kilgore Music Club, at the age of 13, his mother said: "The source of his talent is God."

Boating Disasters Claim 15 Lives

AUSTN (AP) — Planners of the governor's conference on boating and firearms safety here May 5 died in Texas boating disasters the last few weeks.

"Certainly we need no more grim reminder of the need for some safety measures than the unfortunated cases which took the lifes of 15 persons even before the major seasonal water sports program got underway," said Ted Scibienski of Corpus Christi, moderator for the May 5 meeting.

Few Attend Hearing On Road Project

No one but city, county, and State Highway Department officials showed up Friday afternoon for a public hearing set for informing the public of details on improvements to State Highway 350 in Snyder.

The hearing was scheduled in compliance with the Federal Highway Act of 1956, to inform the public on location and design of the new improvements planned.

Homer Ray, resident highway engineer here, said the project will probably be set for July contract letting by the State Highway Commission. Most of the engineering work is complete, he said.

The project will include widening of the highway to four lanes from the Deep Creek bridge in Snyder to the curve near Cogdell Memorial Hospital just south of the city limits.

The widened highway will be much similar to the already-widened East Highway in Snyder, with 68-foot width in pavement, the same as the East Highway, and a double stripe with four-foot "no man's land" in the middle.

At the Deep Creek bridge, the highway will narrow down to the 44-foot roadway across the bridge and it will be 52 feet wide to Thirtieth Street, widening out there to 68 feet. At the south end of the widened highway, it will narrow down to the 22-foot two-lane highway width. At Thirty-first Street the sharp curve will be reworked into a long bend.

The four-lane portion of the highway will continue slightly beyond the intersection with streets running to Cogdell Hospital. The present intersection there will be elimated, and the boulevard-type street running from the hospital grounds will be continued northwest to intersect with the highway That will put the intersection higher on the hill at that point and give more sight distance to those turning off the highway into the hospital street.

Ray said that once the contract is let the project will take about 100 working days to complete, which could streteh over about five months of time. That would mean completion about next Christmas or after.

In other highway projects here, Ray said his staff has just begun survey work on U. S. Highway 84, which will be made into a four-lane highway through the county. The survey work will take several weeks, he said, and then the highway Department will be ready to furnish the county information for right-of-way deeds. The county will buy right-of-way for the widening project with half county funds, half state funds, and the state will pay for the widening.

Education Costs Due To Increase

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's costs in public school education and welfare will increase at least 62 million dollars in 1959-61, a Legislative Budget committee reported Friday.

The cost increase in public welfare would come if the people adopted a constitutional amendment in November to provide medical care for the needy. The report said the program would cost nine million dollars annually. Another $85,000 annually will be added to the child welfare services costs.

The program audit committee, headed by Sen. Crawford Martin of Hillsboro, said in its preliminary report that public education costs would show an even larger increase.

It said an expected larger number of school age children indicates an increase of about 44 million dollars for the next biennium in the cost of the minimum school foundation program.

The committee also said it is studying whether new laws should be passed to require consolidation of weak school districts in an effort to cut costs and improve the education system.

Withdrawal Tests Made

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)— The Arkansas Military District, which withdrew troops from Central High School Thursday for the first time since it was integrated Sept. 25, said today there might be further test withdrawals.

Spokesmen said the withdrawals are part of a plan to restore the school to normal conditions as soon as possible.

There were no reported incidents while the troops were absent from the 2,000-pupil school where eight of nine Negroes who entered last fall are still attending classes.

The soldiers were back yesterday.

Federal troops have been at the school since rioting broke out last fall when Negroes tried to enroll.

BUCKIN' THE LINE

EVERY YEAR ALONG ABOUT this time talk circulates about forming a Teen Age baseball league for Snyder.

But, when the time comes for doing something about it, nothing is ever done.

The need for forming a Teen Age league is as great now as it has ever been.

We'd like to see someone take the "bull by the horn" and get get something going towards forming a league for teenagers too old for the Pony League.

There's a big obstacle to hurdle, to be sure, at the start in forming such a league and that is a place to play.

If nothing else can be done, then why not work in the Teen Age League on the nights the City League plays, Tuesday and Saturday nights, on the diamond in the northwest corner at Towle Park.

The Pony League has been playing doubleheaders on Monday, Thursday and Friday nights. The City League, however, has been playing only single games on Tuesday and Saturday nights.

Suggested Solution

So, a Teen Age League game could be added to the Tuesday and Saturday night programs without too much trouble.

It's true that each team, if there's four teams in the league, would play once a week under this arrangement. But then that would beat nothing.

Where there's a will there's a way and we believe this Teen Age League could be worked out if enough people get behind the program.

There's plenty of interest among the Teen Agers in baseball. Tiger coach Speedy Moffett had about 40 boys out for baseball at the start of this season but many of these got discouraged when they didn't get to play.

And since you can only play nine boys at a time, it's impossible to keep all the boys happy.

But a Teen Age League would remedy this situation. Four squads of 15 boys would give a lot of boys a chance to play baseball.

As aforementioned, we hope someone will take the "bull by the horn" and get a Teen Age League going here this summer.

No 'Guts'

Quotable quotes:

Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State football coach, explaining his interest in music while introducing the Notre Dame glee club to an East Lansing audience: "I used to play the violin when I was younger, but one day I broke all the strings and I just didn't have the guts to play it after that."

Jim McCaffery, coach of Xavier University, surprise winner of the NIT basketball tournament, who was hanged in effigy this season after losing a few: "Not all the juvenile delinquents are in the poolrooms. Some are in the classrooms."

Sime Wins 100; Bobby Pulls Out

By ED CORRIGAN

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Villanova became the first team ever to win three events three years in a row when, with the sun sinking behind the huge grandstand, the Wildcats captured the mile relay in 3:11.8 at the Penn Relays Saturday.

To accomplish this "triple-triple," Villanova won the sprint medley relay on the opening day of the giant carnival, then came back to capture the distance medley and mile.

Just to add frosting to the cake, this marked the first time a team has walked off with the mile relay four years in a row.

The crowd of 43,618 at the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin Field, saw meet records fall in seven of the eight major relays on the program, plus more than a half-dozen in assorted field and special events.

After Villanova, the next big winner was Abilene Christian, which, without Bobby Morrow, won both the 440 and 880 relays. Michigan State won the two-mile, St. John's of New York the four-mile and Winston Salem, the shuttle hurdles.

Without Morrow, who suffered a groin injury, the special invitation 100 lost most of its glamor. It was won by Duke's Davie Sime in 9.7 seconds.

As usual, the big redhead got off to a poor start, but came on fast at the end. Bill Woodhouse, Morrow's Abilene Christian mate, was second and Bobby Brown, a Penn State freshman, was third.

For a change Ron Delany was not the big man in Villanova's last two victories. He anchored the sprint medley team, which hit the tape in 3:22.5. This broke the 3:22.7 meet mark set by NYU in 1950. But Ed Collymore, George Syndor and Charlie Stead had given him a fat lead and he had no trouble.

An unknown substitute, George Peterson, stepped into the breach when Morrow had to scratch and did a man - sized job. Abilene Christian won the 440 in 41.3 with Peterson leading off, followed by Wayrand Griggs, Bill Woodhouse and Jim Segrest. They had to fight off North Texas State all the way.

Their half-mile triumph was scored in 1:24.9, a meet record. It was the same quartet except Segrest and Woodhouse changed spots. As it turned out, Woodhouse had to hustle to come from behind. North Texas again was second.

Four More Records Broken At Drake

By JERRY LISKA

DES MOINES (AP)—Four meet records, including a 4:07.9 mile triumph by Oregon's Jim Grelle, brightened an otherwise drab day at the 49th Drake Relays Saturday.

The two-day track and field meet produced a total of two American collegiate and eight Drake marks. The concluding 20-event program was witnessed by 15,000 fans shivering in cloudy 46-degree weather.

Grelle, runner-up in last year's NCAA mile to Ron Delany, ran down surprising Alex Henderson of Arizona State of Tempe in the final lap to win the collegiate mile by 10 yards. The former record was 4:10.7 set by Deacon Jones of Iowa last year.

Henderson, an Australian sophomore at Arizona State, Friday unreeled a superlative two-mile effort of 8:51.3 which bettered the American college record of 8:55.

Honors in the university relays competition were evenly divided with Kansas, Texas, Nebraska and Oklahoma State each taking two races during the two days.

Defending champion Jack Smyth (eq), of the University of Houston broke his own Drake hop, step and jump record with a distance of 49 feet, 9 inches. This topped his former mark of 48-5½ set last year.

The same Tennessee A&I quartet which won the college 440 relay also produced a new college division record in capturing the 880 relay in 1:25.6. The old record of 1:25.8 was fashioned by North Texas State in 1952.

The busy Tennessee A&I foursome included Tom Torian, Vero West, Ed Adams and John Moon. It's 440 relay time was 41.7, four tenths of a second slower than the meet mark.

Another new college division record came as Howard Payne's Stan Owen, Lou Hayes, Don Shepard and Bobby Pullig won the two-mile relay in 7:39.3, a tenth of a second faster than the record set last year by Arizona State of Tempe.

New individual champions included Ira Murchison of Western Michigan with a 9.5 second 100-yard dash, Southern Methodist's Gene Ellis who won the 120 high hurdles in 14.5, and Minnesota's Bob Henry who took the shot put with a 55-9 toss.

The university distance medley brought a brisk scrap between Texas and Oklahoma with the Longhorns riding to a 9:57.6 triumph on Joe Villarreal's steady 4:11.5 anchor mile. Villarreal stood off a closing lap challenge by South African Gail Hodgson of the Sooners.

Cards Hold Off Dodgers For 6-4 Win

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Hal Smith and rookie Dick Schofield unloaded a pair of singles good for four runs in the eighth inning Saturday and gave the St. Louis Cardinals a come from behind 6-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Lindy McDaniel was the winning pitcher, but he had help in the ninth from Billy Muffett.

It was a pitching duel between McDaniel and young Danny McDevitt until the eighth.

The Dodgers made a big try in the ninth, opening with successive singles by Elmer Valo, Gilliam and Pee Wee Reese—good for one run. Duke Snider grounded into a double play and after Schofield's error let in one more run, Gino Cimoli flied out to end the game.

A crowd of 30,795 saw the game.

Peeples Leads TL In Hitting

By The Associated Press

Nat Peeples, the Austin outfielder, leads the Texas League in batting through its first week with a gaudy .625. He also tops in homers with 3.

It gave him a 125-point bulge over Grady Hatton, the San Antonio manager-infielder.

Eight players were batting better than .400 with Peeples and Marv William of Tulsa getting the most hits — 10 each. Williams was slugging .435.

Howie Nunn of Houston and Mike Clark of Austin, winners of their first two games, top the pitchers with 2-0 records while 16 hurlers have 1-0 marks. Winston Brown of Austin leads in strikeouts with 13.

The leader in runs is Don Russell of Victoria with 8. Williams, Bob Nelson of Dallas, Jim Rice of Corpus Christi, Bill Parsons of Victoria, George Mason of Austin and Bill Davis of Victoria are tied for the lead in doubles with 3. Dave Roberts of Austin tops in triples with 2.

In runs-batted-in, it's James Miller of Corpus Christi, who has driven 11.

TWO MAKE ALL-STATE

Tigerettes 2nd In State Tourney

ABILENE, April 26—Phillips defeated Snyder 25-11 for the Class 3A championship in the 4th annual Texas-wide Invitational volleyball tournament at Rose Field House on the Hardin-Simmons campus here Saturday night.

Snyder had gained the finals with a 31-10 semi-finals victory over Graham Friday. Phillips took out San Marcos in the semis to reach the finals.

San Marcos defeated Graham for third place.

Big Spring repeated as the state titlist in the Class 4A bracket, coming from behind late in the game to defeat Pampa, 19-16, in the finals.

Plainview was third in the 4A bracket.

In the other three divisions, Imperial, Goree and Baird finished 1-2-3 in that order in Class B; Waller captured the Class A title with Clyde second and Roby third; and Cyprus-Fairbanks took the Class AA title with Fort Stockton the runnerup and Olney the third place winner.

Snyder, which finished its season with 20 victories and nine losses, placed two on the All-State Tournament team in the 3A division.

Making the all-state tourney team from Snyder were Blenda Stone and Oma Ivison, both named at the "set-up" position. Phillips landed three on the all-tournament team, Misses Dixon, Oates and Armstrong while Miss Fisher of San Marcos rounded out the all-tourney selections.

Twenty-eight teams from all corners of the state competed in the two-day tournament here.

Morgan Wins Lows In Raider Relays

LUBBOCK, April 26—Bud Morgan of the Snyder Tigers sped to a 19.2 performance in the 180-yard low hurdles here Saturday afternoon to tie the record in the Red Raider Relays he set in last year's preliminaries.

Morgan, in winning the lows, defeated the fellow he lost to in the regional meet here last week, Iran King of Abilene. King finished fourth here today.

Mike Loudermilk of Arlington Heights of Fort Worth finished second and Bob Swafford of Abilene third in the lows.

The other member of the Tiger team here, Rex Wilson, finished second in the high hurdles. Wilson was right on the heels of Graham's Bobby Bernard who won the highs in 14.5.

Wilson was clocked at 14.3 for the best time in the preliminaries Saturday morning.

Neither Morgan or Wilson placed in the two field events they entered, the broad jump and high jump.

The Tigers, thus, wound up with 18 points to finish 6th in the meet which attracted 62 teams.

Six new records were set in the meet won by Fort Worth Paschal. Paschal edged Abilene for the title, 53-52.

Reagan Cassaway of Graham turned in the most notable performance of the day with a 1:55.9 in the 880, just .4 of a second off the state record.

Other records were set by Abilene in the mile relay at 3:21.7; Bobby Barrett of Midland in the mile run at 4:23.8; Paschal in the 440-yard relay in 43 flat; Alton Thygerson of Pampa in the 220 in 21.3; and Richard Stafford of Matador in the discus with a heave of 162-7.

Boys Declared Delinquents

DALLAS (AP)—Two boys—11 and 14, years old—held in the drowning of an 8-year-old boy in a West Dallas gravel pit were declared delinquents by a jury here Saturday.

The only questions before the jury, which deliberated overnight, were whether each of the youths —Benedicto Caudillo, 14, and Francisco Moreno, 11, were delinquents. Penalties will be set later by Juvenile Judge Dwight McCormick. The maximum sentence possible at this time is confinement in the state reformatory.

The two youths were taken into custody after Felipe Hernandez, 8, was drowned in the gravel pit March 9.

Neither youth showed any emotion when the verdict was read.

Mays Bats Giants By Cubs, 3-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays, getting his first homer of the season along with two doubles, put on a one-man show before 19,284 fans in Seals Stadium Saturday as the league-leading San Francisco Giants whipped the Chicago Cubs 3-1.

Johnny Antonelli, making his third start, pitched a nifty six-hitter, one of them a 375-foot home run by Cub right fielder Lee Walls.

The victory was the Giants' second in a row over the Cubs, who came to town in first place. Ramon Monzant shut them out 2-0 Friday night.

Mays, who hit 35 home runs last year, got his clout in the sixth inning. It was a 370-foot shot into the left field bleachers.

He doubled into deep right center in the fourth inning and Hank Sauer singled the "Say Hey" kid home.

Broncs Shade Tigers, 5-3

Odessa's Broncs made it four straight over the Tigers yesterday afternoon when they staved off a belated rally by the Bengals to snatch a 5-3 victory at Towle Park.

It was the 20th victory of the season in 22 starts for the Broncs and gave the Hosses a 4-0 edge over the Tigers for the season.

The Broncs took advantage of wildness of starting pitcher Tim Roberts to grab an early lead of which they maintained throughout.

Roberts, who has been plagued with wildness through most of the season, walked the bases loaded in the first inning with two away and then gave up a two-run Texas League single to left fielder Bobby Flanagan.

Odessa made it 3-0 in the second on two infield hits, a walk and one hit-batsman before Norman Gladson came on to put out the fire.

Gladson then held the Broncs to four hits and two runs the remaining distance. Only one of the Bronc runs off Gladson was earned.

Tommy McMorris, who has been the Odessa ace the past few games, stopped the Tigers on five hits.

The Tigers didn't get a hit off McMorris until Jimmy Allen got an infield hit with one away in the fifth.

The Tigers then began to solve McMorris' offerings in the sixth and seventh innings but it was too late.

The Black and Gold broke the scoring ice in the sixth inning when Gary Vice singled and raced all the way home on David Hale's single. Vice reached third on Hale's hit and then proceeded home when the Broncs attempted to catch Hale going to second.

The Tigers staged a threatening rally in the seventh when they scored their final two runs. Coleman John led off the Tiger seventh with a walk and raced to second on Allen's second hit of the game, a single to left.

After pinch-hitter Barry Walker whiffed, Richard Mahan skied out to center, John going to third after the catch. Then Allen and John worked a double steal with John pilfering home. Neil Boyd kept the Tiger rally going with a single to right to score Allen to make it 5-3.

The rally died, however, when Kenny Drake, representing the tying run, grounded out sharply from third to first.

Allen was the only player in the game getting more than one hit, the Tiger first sacker collecting two-for-three.

Odessa backed McMorris with errorless play afield. The Tigers were charged with four miscues but only one figured in the Bronc scoring.

The defeat left the Tigers with a 9-11 season record. The Bengals travel to San Angelo Tuesday to meet the Bobcats in the "rubber game" of a five-game season series.

HOUSTON (AP) — First baseman Jerry Wolff, who bats last in the lineup, Saturday scored both of the SMU runs, as the Ponies took a 2-1 victory over the Rice Owls.

The victory, SMU's first in a three-game series with the Owls, gave the Dallas team a 7-5 record in the Southwest Conference, against Rice's 5-5. It also snapped the locals' four-game winning streak.

All-College Meet On Tap

DENTON (AP) — Top stars from five colleges will compete when the annual All-College Championship track meet is held here Thursday night at North Texas State.

NTSC, Abilene Christian, East Texas State, Howard Payne and Southwest Texas State will battle for the all-college title.

Champions are entered in several events, with sprinters Bobby Morrow and Bill Woodhouse of ACC and Jimmy Weaver of NTSC, hurdler Buddy McKee of ETSC, and pole vaulter Bobby McBride of SWTSC heading the list.

Morrow and Woodhouse will be challenged by sprinters like Weaver and Fred Reuter of NTSC, and Clyde Harris of ETSC. All have turned in 9.5 times or better this season.

North Texas and ACC are expected to battle it out for the relay titles with Abilene favored in the 440-yard baton event. The mile relay could go to either team. East Texas is also a contender for the sprint relay title with a 41.4 time this season.

Froggie 9 Sweeps Series With Ags

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—Texas Christian again hammered Texas A&M's vaunted pitching staff for an 11-6 victory Saturday.

The Horned Frogs got only seven hits to the Aggies' 11, but four were timely doubles and a big 5-run fourth inning put them out of reach.

Right-hander Darrel Read went the route for TCU and was never in serious trouble after the fourth inning until the Aggies threatened in the ninth.

Buhl Hurls Braves Past Phils, 4-2

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves received their world championship rings Saturday and celebrated by downing Philadelphia 4-2 before 15,391 chilled spectators at County Stadium.

Fireball righthander Bob Buhl tossed a five-hitter at the Phils to register his third straight victory of the National League season and his ninth in a row over Philadelphia. The Phillies haven't beaten him since June 12, 1956.

Rookie Ray Semproch was charged with the defeat, making him 1-1 for the year. Dick Farrell relieved him in the eighth when the Braves broke a 2-2 tie with a three-hit, two-run rally, featuring a double steal.

Before the game, Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick presented ruby rings, emblematic of the 1957 world championship, to Manager Fred Haney and 23 members of the Braves.

Hickman Funeral Set In Florida

WASHINGTON (AP)—The body of Herman Hickman, TV personality and former Yale football coach, was shipped by train late Saturday to Jacksonville, Fla., for burial. Members of his family left by car about the same time and funeral arrangements will not be completed until they reach the Florida city.

Hickman, 47, died Friday afternoon, three days after undergoing major surgery.

Tribe Nips Tigers Behind Grant, 4-1

CLEVELAND (AP)—Rookie righthander Jim "Mudcat" Grant gave up only four hits Saturday as he pitched the Cleveland Indians to their fourth straight victory with a 4-1 decision over the Detroit Tigers.

The victory was Grant's second against one defeat. His bid for a shutout was ruined in the fifth inning when Ray Boone led off with a triple to right field for the Tigers' first hit and scored on a sacrifice fly by Charley Maxwell.

The other hits off the 22-year-old rookie were two singles by Harvey Kuenn and a single by Jim Hegan. He struck out five and walked two.

The Indians gave Grant a comfortable lead in the first inning, scoring three runs on singles by Minnie Minoso, Mickey Vernon, Russ Nixon and Chico Carrasquel and a Detroit error.

Pirates Clip Redlegs, 8-4

CINCINNATI (AP) — Home runs by Bill Mazeroski in both the eighth and ninth innings drove in four runs and gave the Pittsburgh Pirates an 8-4 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs Saturday.

Mazeroski, who hadn't homered in any of the Pirates' previous games, got his first one off Charley Rabe to break a 4-4 tie. Then he picked on Johnny Klippstein in the ninth for his next one with R. L. Stevens and Frank Thomas on base.

The game, played in 50-degree temperature and a chill wind, dragged on for 3 hours and 9 minutes as the Redlegs used five pitchers and the Pirates three plus a long list of pinch hitters and pinch runners.

Colonial Invitation To Open Thursday

FORT WORTH (AP)—Pairings for Thursday's first round of the Colonial Country Club's National Invitation Golf Tournament were made Saturday.

The 48-player field features seven threesomes of current champions playing together Thursday.

Two all-time greats of golf, Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson, both members of Colonial, will be in special spots Thursday.

For the sixth straight year, Nelson will hit the first shot of the tournament. Hogan will be featured with the defending champion, Roberto de Vicenzo, and last year's runner-up, Dick Mayer, the current U.S. Open and world's champion.

Playing with Nelson will be Dick Metz and Ernie Vossler.

SILKY SULLIVAN FAVORED

Kentucky Derby To Run Saturday

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — There are four names that stand apart in the 84th running of the famed Kentucky Derby to be decided under the twin spires of historic Churchill Downs next Saturday. They are Silky Sullivan, Tim Tam, Jewel's Reward, Nadir—not necessarily in that order.

When the massed bands play "My Old Kentucky Home," at 4:30 p.m., Central Daylight Time, and the mint julep glasses are set aside momentarily as the horses line up in the gate there's going to be more excitement that this old cavalry post has seen in many a year. The lure of Silky Sullivan, the "Flying Irishman," may bring out a record crowd if the weather is right.

That goes for the whole country, too, as millions line up in front of the television set—CBS, 4:15 to 4:45 p.m. EST—to look in on the great thoroughbred show.

The first big question is the size of the field, which may be 14 to 18 of the finest 3-year-olds in the land. That will be vital for Silky Sullivan, the come-from-last California sensation. A large field will be all the tougher for Silky to maneuver through, and any mishap can cost a Derby.

Silky usually lags behind, then shifts gears and takes after the others as he did when he won the Santa Anita Derby for his co-owners, Tom Ross and Philip Klipstein. He'll meet much stiffer company in this hallowed mile and one quarter battle.

Another question involves Tim Tam, from the Calumet Farm of Mrs. Gene Markey and Jewel's Reward from the Maine Chance Farm of Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham.

Jewel's Reward finished first in the Flamingo at Hialeah last winter, but was disqualified for bumping Tim Tam half a dozen times in the stretch drive. What will the answer be this time?

Nadir, like Silky, is a big horse, and apparently is improving after an illness that knocked him out in December. Nadir won the world's richest race, the $277,150 Garden State Stakes as a 2-year-old last October. He is owned by the Claiborne Famr of A. B. "Bull" Hancock.

Silky Sullivan made his final tuneup in the 7-furlong Sleeping Stone Purse Saturday along with several other Derby colts.

Sens Whip Bosox Again

BOSTON (AP)—Washington defeated the Boston Red Sox for the fifth straight time 7-5 as Clint Courtney and Roy Sievers supplied the Senators' heavy artillery Saturday.

Courtney, the bespectacled catcher, slammed a two - run homer while Sievers collected three singles, drove in a run and scored twice.

Boston's Ted Williams, the defending American League batting champion, got the biggest of five blows off the Washington pitchers when he cracked a two-run homer in the fifth inning. It was Ted's second of the year and landed five rows into the right field bleachers beyond the visitors bullpen.

Truman Clevenger, a former Red Sox player, came on in the ninth to preserve sidearming Dick Hyde's victory.

BEATS ORIOLES, 2-0

Yanks' Turley Hurls 1-Hitter

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — New York Yankee pitcher Bob Turley threw a one-hitter at the Baltimore Orioles Saturday, giving up only a ground single to Al Pilarcik in the 2-0 victory.

It was the second straight shutout for Turley over the Orioles.

Pilarcik stole second after his single in the sixth inning went through the shortstop hole and was the only Oriole to reach that far. Four others languished on first after Turley walked them.

The former twirler for the Orioles struck out five in going the first 18 innings of the 1958 season without giving up a run. The Orioles got only four hits off him on April 20.

The Yankee batters employed long range blows to get Turley the runs he needed against Oriole pitcher Billy Loes.

Gil McDougald's double scored Yogi Berra, who had walked, with the first in the second inning.

Andy Carey's second homer into the left field stands produced the other.

The Yankees scraped only five hits off Loes who was tasting his second setback from them this year. They got two more, including Carey's dule, off George Zuverink who replaced Loes in the ninth, but a double play averted any scoring.

Third baseman Brooks Robinson of the Orioles also put out a Yankee threat with a sensational play in the sixth. With runners on first and third, Robinson lunged to his left to spear Gil McDougald's hard grounder, fell down and got up in time to throw out Berra at home.

Russian Gals Edge American Cagers

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russian girls' basketball team defeated the American girls' team 48-41 Saturday for its second straight victory.

The American girls, playing with greater spirit than in their opener against the Ruqssians Friday night, kept the outcome in the balance throughout both hectic see-saw halves.

The great trotter Greyhound raced at Rockingham for a purse of $400 as a 2-year-old.

Farm Shop Can Save Money

There are many shortcuts which can be used on the farm to save money, and one which takes some investment can mean many savings to the farmer.

That is the use of a farm shop, such as the one completed about three weeks ago by Guy Stoker, who lives just northwest of Snyder.

Actually, three farmers make use of the shop. They are Stoker, his son, Richard Stoker, and his son-in-law, Billy Huddleston, both of whom live nearby.

The shop and its equipment will mean many savings to these three farmers, since they intend to use it not only for maintenance work on their farm equipment but to build labor-saving devices and useful equipment at much less cost than they would be purchased factory-made.

One such piece of equipment is one they are now building, a hay loader with its own motor. The special loader is designed for loading hay onto trucks or trailers and cuts out enough lifting to mean one less man at work in the field during the loading of hay.

Such equipment new, would cost about $400, but Richard Stoker, who started building the loader, said he will not have much more than $100 invested in the loader when it is finished.

It wouldn't take many such items to effect enough savings to pay for a shop and its equipment.

Many savings can be made by a farmer just by his having a handy place for working on his equipment, the three said. With such a shop building as they use, rainy or other bad-weather days can be spent in the shop, which provides protection from the elements, for working on equipment. In that manner a farmer can save much on maintenance of equipment, working on things he would have ordinarily "put off" had he not had a shop.

The Stoker shop building is a metal structure 30 by 32 feet in size with a concrete floor. The three did their own work in building the shop after buying steel beams and other materials. The beams are designed to stand 4,550 pounds, which means they can be used for lifting purposes.

Since many such buildings are too dark for good working, the three installed two plexiglass panels in the roof to let light into the building, and there is a large window on each side of the building.

Along one wall in the building is a workbench, with all the shop's hand tools arranged on hooks in perforated wallboard behind the bench. There is also adequate shelving for bolts, nails, planter boxes, etc.

Inside the shop building there is room to park two tractors, still leaving enough room for working without the men being crowded.

The three have an assortment of power tools for use in their maintenance and equipment construction work in their shop. Included are an arc welder, acetylene welder, air compressor, power emery, battery charger, and two hand power drills. Their next need is a drill press, they said.

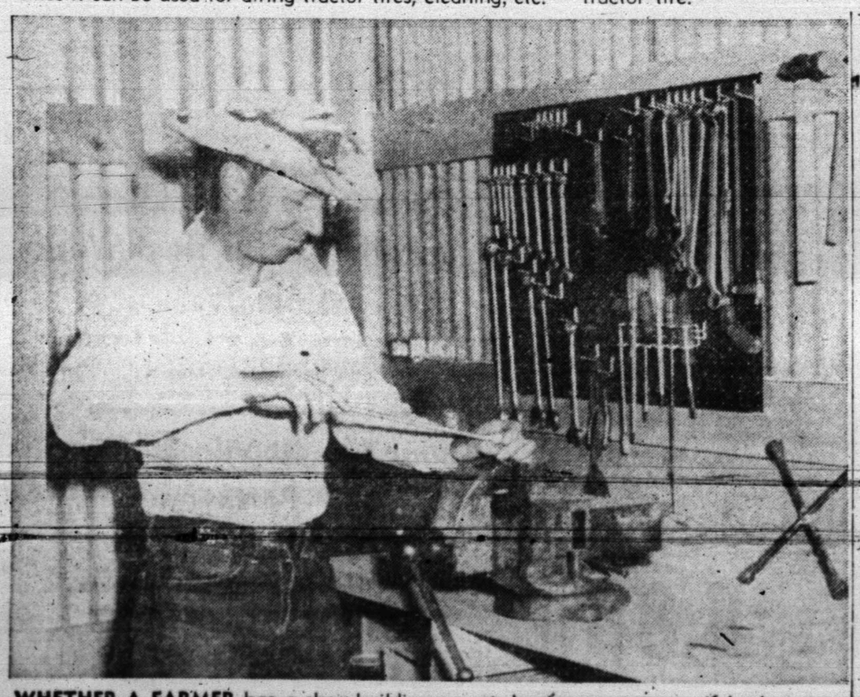
With such equipment, there is no limit to the amount of farm equipment items which could be made, and the saving on maintenance is a sizeable item. Many things which can be used on the farm are easily made in the shop. The air compressor means saving use of a hand pump or a trip to a service station to air up a tractor tire, and it also has many other uses, such as using the air blast for cleaning.

Most farmers have some place on the farm where they can do maintenance work, but many spend money to have things made they could easily make at home on days when they cannot be working in the field.

"Even if you just have a place to store tractors and equipment and get them out of the weather, you have some saving," Richard Stoker said.

SOMETIMES a large amount of money can be saved on one item built in a farm shop, if it is properly-equipped. One such item is the hay loader being built by Richard Stoker. The loader will have its own motor.

AN AIR COMPRESSOR is almost a must in a farm shop, since it can be used for airing tractor tires, cleaning, etc. Here, Richard Stoker, left, and Billy Huddleston air a tractor tire.



WHETHER A FARMER has a shop building or not, he can save money if he has an adequate number of hand tools and time if he has them arranged so he can find them easily, such as is shown here. Billy Huddleston does a minor repair job at the workbench in the Guy Stoker shop building.

THE FARM SHOP building completed recently by Guy Stoker is 30 by 32 feet with a concrete floor. Plexiglass was used in the roof to allow adequate light in the building.

WELDING EQUIPMENT is very handy in a farm shop and can pay for itself quickly and save the farmer money if he uses it enough. In the Stoker shop are an arc welder and acetylene welder. Here, Richard Stoker welds on a piece of metal held by Billy Huddleston.

New Hope For Babies With Heart Disease

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE,M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

ABOUT ONE CHILD in every 200 to 300 is born with a heart that isn't just right. Some of these children have hearts in which there is so little the matter that the defect never interferes with their activities and they may live long and healthy lives. On the other hand some defects of the heart are so serious that a baby may live only a few months or even a few minutes.

In the last ten years there have been great advances in the treatment of some kinds of congenital heart disease. Surgical techniques have been developed by which children with defective hearts can be made normal or nearly so.

There are several different kinds of defects of the heart that may be present at birth.

Patent ductus arteriosus is a defect that can often be treated surgically. This is a condition that exists normally before a baby is born and before he breathes air through his lungs. Before birth very little blood flows through the lungs; instead it goes through a passageway directly into the aorta, the big vessel that carries blood around the body. Normally this passageway closes when the baby takes his first breath and it grows tight shut a few weeks after birth. When it fails to close, as sometimes happens, blood which should stay in the aorta and pass to the whole body slips through this hole and goes to the lung.

In patent ductus too much blood goes to the lung and not enough is left over to nourish the child. As a result the child does not grow well, is thin and lacks energy.

Within the last dozen years surgery for a patent ductus has been perfected so that many children with this defect can be made perfectly well and normal. The best time for this operation is decided for each individual child after a careful study of his particular case.

The blue baby defect (called by doctors Tetralogy of Fallot) is quite the opposite of the patent ductus. In a blue baby an opening inside the heart permits blood that should go to the lungs to get oxygen, to go instead directly into the aorta and to the body as a whole. Not enough blood goes to the lung in a blue baby, so blood with very little oxygen circulates around the body. Blood with too little oxygen has a bluish cast. This is why these babies develop their peculiar color.

The general effect on the child is somewhat similar to that in patent ductus, though the causes are quite different. Although enough blood gets around his body, the blood is lacking in the most important substance, oxygen. Without oxygen the various parts of the child's body cannot grow normally. So the child who stars out as a blue baby does not grow normally and is weak and tired and irritable.

Modern surgery can correct the defect in many blue babies. Unfortunately not all blue babies can be successfully operated on. It depends upon just where and how big the defect in the heart is. Seldom can this very delicate surgery be performed until the child is about two years old.

Another type of congenital heart disease is called coarctation of the aorta. This means the aorta is pinched or narrowed in one place. Symptoms depend upon the severity of the defect. This type of heart defect can also be successfully treated by the experienced heart surgeon.

Surgery on the heart is relatively new. Most large cities have cardiac centers where a child with congenital heart disease can have his defect minutely analyzed and where he can have surgical treatment if such treatment is indicated.

Junior High 4-H Girls Meet

The Junior High girls 4-H Club met in the cafeteria for their regular monthly meeting on Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock. Barbara Floyd, club president, led the members in repeating the 4-H Club motto, pledge, and prayer.

Carol Ann Kimzey was elected secretary, following the resignation of Nancy Lewis. Plans for making electric lamps were discussed and the girls were encouraged to attend the training school on lamp making, held on Saturday in the County Extension office.

Recreation was led by Karen Robinson and Ceres Vandiver presented a talent show in which members participated.

A demonstration on color selection in clothing was given by Miss Ruby Butts, County Home Demonstration Agent. She selected a blonde and a brunette model and tried colors on them. The girls were encouraged to look for changes in complexion tone, hair color and eyes, and to select the colors most flattering to them. Miss Butts told the girls that "Color can help you have sparkling eyes or shiny hair, it can even help you have a nice suntan. So, decide what you would like to look like, and select the colors that help you look that Way!".

Spring cleaning also means keeping cleaning equipment in tip-top condition. Wash synthetic fiber and brsitle brushes in soapsuds. Rinse in clear water and hang up to dry.

Spin The Yarn

Do you ever want to use yarn that has been raveled from another garment and it is full of kinks? Just wrap it around a glass jar as you unravel it and after you have it all on the jar dip glass and all in luke warm water. After it dries you will find the yarn soft and fluffy and free of kinks.

Baked Zucchini

Arrange slices of steamed zucchini in shallow buttered baking dish; sprinkle with salt and pepper, crumbled blue cheese or grated parmesan cheese; broil quickly about 3 inches from flame until cheese is melted.

A woman with bright, clean hair is an adaptable person. She knows that increased activity and the weather determine when she needs her hair to be washed. Therefore, she doesn't wait for a set day to roll around for a shampoo. She shampoos when her hair needs it.

Carol Sue Clark Feted At Tea In Martha Ann Clubhouse

Miss Carol Sue Clark, bride-elect of John Edly Reed, was honored with a Gift Tea Saturday at 4 o'clock, in the Martha Ann Club.

Greeting guests were, Miss Clark, Mrs. G. B. Clark, Jr., mother of the prospective bride, Mrs. H. H. Reed, mother of the groom-to-be, Mrs. G. B. Clark, Sr., and Mrs. W. G. Williams, grandmother of the honoree.

Randals, Mrs. Wilson Connell, Mrs. Wayne Boren, Mrs. Novis Rodgers, Mrs. N. R. Clements, Mrs. Maurice Kelley and Mrs. Bill Teaff.

The service table, laid with an eyelet and organdy cloth, was centered with an arrangement of baby pink and white rose buds with blue Agapanthus in a silver urn, carrying out the honoree's chosen colors of blue and white.

Miss Clark wore a short blue tulle formal with a bouffant skirt. She wore a white rose bud corsage.

Miss Karen Kuhlman, a school mate of Miss Clark's rendered two vocal selections, "Why Do I Love You" and "With A Song In My Heart". Four little nieces of the honoree sang "Sweet Sue". They were Ruby Ann Hirst, Terry Lynn Worley, Rhonda Worley, and Deborah Worley. Mrs. Novis Rodgers accompanied the girls at the piano.

Miss Jane Joyce and Mrs. Herbert Reed presided at the register, with approximately 250 guests present.

Oil Cloth Valance

Do you have windows somewhere in your home, perhaps in the sun parlor, that need no curtains except valances? Try making valances from oil cloth. All you have to do is cut them the desired width and then on the sewing maching hem the top for a curtain rod, then use originality in scalloping the bottom. This is easily and quickly done, just cut by the printed design in the oilcloth. In selecting oilcloth look for the kind that will scallop the prettiest. No hemming is necessary for the bottom. Valances of this type will last for years and to clean one simply wipes them off with a damp cloth.

Broiled Banana

Broiled banas are a delicious treat with the meat course. Split bananas lengthwise, brush with butter, sprinkle with salt, lemon juice or brown sugar; broil several inches from heat until heated through.

New Look In Picnic Fashions

By PEG ZWECKER
Chicago Fashion Authority

It's only a step to a new season but that step in fashion has never been more important.

A youthful air has taken over fashions for all ages and it's all encompassing. Fashion mirrors the temper of the times and her atmosphere may well be derived from space in this satellite and rocket age.

Like the rocket, young people of today are always in motion . . whether it's a day for duty or fun. And because the American way of life is such a holiday-minded one — as soon as the strong and abundant sunshine weather appears, everyone is ready for a picnic. Playmates may gather in the backyard, or be beckoned seaward by the thought of water and sands. Or, a holiday in the woods may be the family picnic plan.

What are the changes in this year's fashionable picnic parade?

SHORTER SKIRTS

Two things are certain — the waistline is by-passed and skirts are shorter, if the picnic goer is chemise-minded. It goes further than that if she's one to go all out for the completely new look of the season. It starts at the top with her looser and forward-brushed hair worn in pretty, studied disarray. Her chemise has a tightened and lean hipline . . . all ending in a short, short skirt to give the provocative young protrait of spring-into-summer, 1958.

Shorter skirts inevitably draw attention to the legs. For balance what the foot wears with the chemise is a shoe with lowered heel.

For patio parties the mid-heels take to a variety of forms. Louis heel, baby Louis, octagonal mid-heel and the Spanish Louis.

In casual shoes, flats are tapered and come in brushed leathers and many wonderful fabrics.

COLORS GALORE

Color, color, color everywhere makes important footnotes. Exotic brights include Caribbean pink, pueblo yellow, petunia, tropical orange, raspberry and shrimp. Bright red is one of the most talked about colors. For the most casual picnic clothes there are white piped red moccasions with white soles. Red flats come in smooth, grained, sueded and patent leathers. The new greens include absinthe, woodruff, dove-blue, and a mellow golden olive.

Prints bloom for summer. Playshoes with both fabric and print matching give one of the prettiest play-clothes coordination that includes shorts, bathing suits, beach shirt and full-skirted sundress. You might pick field flowers or full blown roses scrambled over cotton chiffon blouse and skirt with Jamaica shorts and fun playshoes to match.

The nautical influence is seen in everything from a "salty chemise" — really a cotton knit chemise dress with sailor tie that combines relaxed styling with a whisper to fit — to "French sailor" inspired cotton sunclothes.

Children as well as grown-ups will appear in nautical play mates. Striped-top dresses and over blouse couldn't look jauntier.

To Chemise or Not... is no problem at all for smart Juniors who know the flattery of cotton prints with the look of warp silk. They'll take one of each, please—to make sure they have both these important silhouettes for Summer. Both in sizes 5-15; green, blue and red. The chemise is $12.95 and the bouffant dress $14.95.

SANDSCRIPTS

BY FRANCES-ELIZABETH JONES

By Frances-Elizabeth Jones

"How", inquired my husband depositing 10 pounds of ice in the little yellow ice box, "are six of us, plus five of the Boles family, to camp out of this travel trailer?" To this idle query I omitted a rejoinder because the point of no return had passed. A son pounded up with a forgotten container of hard-boiled eggs which I distributed among the socks in the drawer. The peanut butter jar, it later was discovered, had bunked with the broom. Our small, new 1500-pound trailer willingly followed the family car as we headed for the Big Bend National Park.

The other car which attached to the excursion in Big Spring bore friends who are earnest and experienced campers. Chalmer Boles, the "Eagle Scout" of our band, can pitch a tent that sleeps nine and could carefreely exist for days in the desert with a ration of bully beef and his pocket knife. Helen, his archive-minded wife, is never far behind, armed with a portfolio of maps, guidebooks, histories, and geological data which lend a learned twist to any junket with her, not at all dampening the fun in her sparkling black eyes.

Their David and our Bruce eyed each other warily for a number of hours, to wind up comrades. Their Susan whose angelic disposition is exceeded only her baby-sitting prowess, cast a blessed spell over our Buddy and Annabel, suoduedly trotting at her heels. Their Andy of the abundant freckles met up with and was vanquished by a hedgehog cactus at one point. Our Burke escaped incident with the possible exception of twice knocking his Dad's hat off in the water can.

Full of dill pickles and love of nature, we rolled away from the aged park at Ft. Stockton. Now we covered lonely, desicated miles, the threshold to the Big Bend, whose wild lovliness was set aside by the government in 1944, to class it one of the country's scenic wonders. While riding I sustained my enjoyment with two supports, a holiday spirit and a box of graham crackers to pass out to the young. Grahams forever remain the boon of mothers. Rings out the cry, "Mama, he threw out my crackerjack prize", you deftly jam one of the sweet, crumbly squares into plaintiff's mouth and he subsides into mealy mumbles, forgetting his case by the time he regains speech. Along with a good piccalilli recipe, this technique has come down in my family. My mother employed it in church with me.

Like all efficient campers, we made camp by four o'clock. We took possession of two of several levelled spots to which the government adds tables and fireplaces, not to mention the dramatic backdrop of the chisos Mountains. Running water was furnished by Bruce and David running it in buckets from a hydrant 200 yards distant where a complacent New Mexico couple had parked their trailer.

Helen rummaged in her literature and appraised us that "chisos", translated from Spanish, means ghosts. On the spot where the husbands were laying out the sirloins once trod fierce Mescalero Indians. We discovered we had stopped in a triangular bason, cupped in shadowy mountains, a hideaway where once lurked marauders. Their attacks upon the gold trains passing through baffled and awed the settlers. Because they were ambushed so quickly they thought the bandits ghosts. The Comanche Trail passed over our present camp site. Small wonder we shivered over our coffee as we sat feeling insignificant at the base of Case Grande, proud, and lowering in the dusk. An easy climb to a vantage point afforded us a murky view of the entire desert below, through "The Window" a twelve by forty foot opening in the range. That evening, to the moan of a mountain lion, the shriek of a disturbed bird, we walked, tightly gripping each other's hands up the incline, past the comfort stations, to hear the Ranger lecture.

Clothes counted for nothing among the tired tourists lounged in folding chairs to see the color slides. The three girls from Indiana whose bacon we smelled frying at five o'clock next day, looked like school teachers. But the couple in the Buick station wagon with lisence plates from Utah wore khaki suits as did the Canadian honeymooners. Our somewhat grimy crew leaned toward levis.

We were polishing off a camp delicacy, "tacky potatoes" come morning when up strode Bruce Frazier, the Boles' good firend, identifiable to us as Cosden's Farm Editor for Channel Four, Big Spring. A science prof at Howard County Junior College, he periodically and casually leads a class through Big Bend. The father of seven children of his very own, he piloted 32 geology aspirats this trip. "Take groups all over the world. Once went so far north the sun wouldn't set". He had what I describe as a good, kitchen table face, no pretensions, just a hearty interest in all flora and fauna at which he excells in introducting humans less noticing then he. We unanimously agreed to tag his footsteps that day during our foray into Boquillas Canyon. Meanwhile, his nature-observing charges darted about most fitfully, his light touch of order, however, winning out, and hampers, pots, and army blankets sucked back into the caravan, they drove off, yodelling.

When next we encountered them, they waded waist deep in the Rio Grande urging us on as we forded it. "No, you won't knock a hole in your gas tank" . . . "A little to the right where that current is weaker".

The Mexican village of Boquillas which we visited at noonday is the quintessence of torpor. The bar firmly was closing for siesta time, and a look into the squalid adobe comissary revealed nothing noteworthy except nervous-looking hauraches, fashioned from tires. Frazier said tire tracks consequently turned up in the unlikliest places, such as sharp clifftops. Half-clad tots chased the car shrilly intoning, "Nicklie, nicklie". Some specie of customs official (vague-looking uniform) lay in the doorway of the Port of Entry, sleeping profoundly. The only apparent means of transportation in the whole place was a dissolute-looking burro.

Helen, who remained American side, upon our return met us with two arrowheads she had dug up, and we lunched from picnic hampers beneath a grove of screw bean acacia with yellow blooms. Fragrant catclaw abounded, and Frazier sought out some wild tobacco plants. The tiny grave of a Mexican child stands by the river. Each trip the science pupils place stones on it to protect it from wild animals. Buddy and Annabel, impressed into unnatural silence, added each a rock.

Ere now, this party of explorers, was clutching its T shirts and swiping at its brows, the mercury having coursed upward at least 50 degrees since our drop off into the desert from the Chisos campground. You might know Helen spotted beautiful ocotillo (Devil's Walking Stick) leafed out in these torrid surroundings whereas the rarefied ocotillo residing up the mountains still slumbered leafless in the chill air. The cactus family thrived as far as the eye could see, interesting to gaze at with it rounds and sharps and flamboyant dashes of color. A strange plant which has not been without its uses through the centuries to roving, ravenous nomads who also have quenched their thirst from it roots and have made their clothing from its fibers. A botanist's definition reads that cactus plants are like tough skins filled with watery pulp which absorb rather than perspire.

Acres of wondrous color are to be seen at this, their blossomtime, if you will lug out camp gear and go. Dagger Flats, profusely populated by the Spanish Daggers, would thrill the heart of a garden clubber.

You yield enchanted, to violent changes in this erie, land, changes of climate, of foilage and terrain, and, yes, of mood. You pass miles carpeted with greasewood, here vibrantly green and healthy, not the dingy little growth from passing cars we may know. You search for a peek at a javelina hop, a sturdy little animal thriving alongside flagtail and mule deer, the rare colima warblers and the aplomado falcons. The cactus glamour girl, the Century Plant, which reaches an age of 25 years, will produce in June. Thes long, thin, piston-shaped stalk has been observed growing ten inches in one day. It blooms, withers and then dies.

The precipitous sides of St. Elena Canyon are called by guidebooks "The little Grand Canyon". The Big Bend is just that I the hard-working river when it takes this loop actually has bitten off a huge hunk of Mexico for us, a bend containing three spacious canyons, Boquillas, St. Elena, and Mariscal, accessible only by horse.

Our little blue trailer and the Boles' green tent awaited us set down amidst the snap and tingle of mountain air. Trailer living posed new experiences, only a modicum of adjustment . . . Well, for instance, when you awake in the foam rubber bunk and reach out your hand to the alarm clock, you inadvertantly stick it in the beaten eggs. This is because the kitchen area closely adjoins and you would not know you would crack your funny bone on the table which is cheek by jowl by the clothes closet.

It was with real reluctance what we parted with the campers Boles. If you ail from sciaticia, insomnia, dyspepsia, astigmatism, or plain bog of the mind, the minute school releases, snatch up the kids and go Big Bend, from which you might, as we did, take a peep at the stars through the Davis Mt. Mc Donald Observatory telescope and a dip in Balmorhea State Park pool enroute home.

Actress Did Okay By Waiting On TV

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—When television was born a dozen years ago there were two ways for a movie actress to look at it, says Anne Baxter.

"Either you got in on the ground floor or you decided to wait and see if it grew into something good. I waited, and I'm glad I did, for I feel it's improved greatly."

Although Miss Baxter is not up to her neck in the medium and certainly not over her pretty head in it, she definitely has dipped a small foot into television.

Next Sunday, for example, she will play a young lady of slightly tarnished brassiness in Western stagecoach days on G. E. Theater (CBS-TV). "Stop-over" is, in her own words, loads of fund. A stagecoach breaks down in a desolate part of the west where you roast by day and freeze at night.

"I'm forced to spend a couple of days with some good and simple people. In the course of our stay together I change them somewhat and they change me.

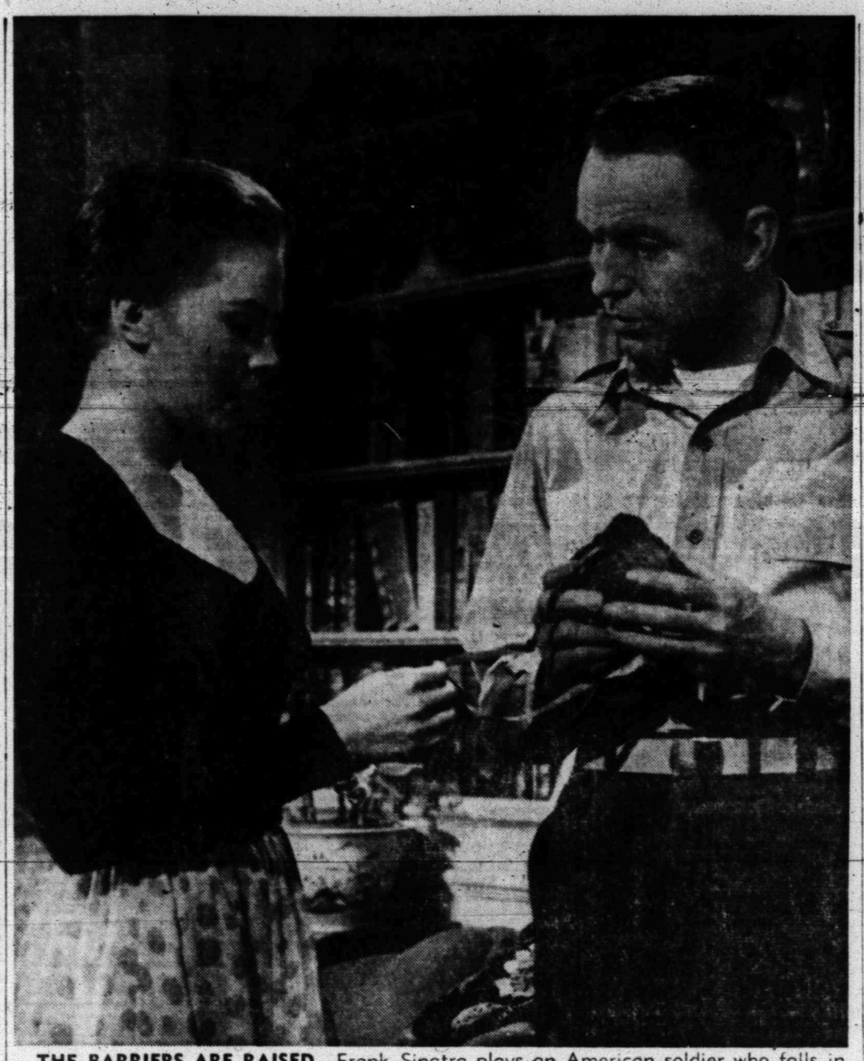
Miss Baxter took the assignment because she believed it was a fine script. And a good script, she says, is essential if an actress would do a good job on the home screen.

"One bad exposure to the millions who make up the audience can do an actress inestimable harm. . . . Yes, it affects her films as much as future television shows. There is only one important investment an actress can make. That is in the role she is playing at the moment.

Before Miss Baxter made her television debut on G. E. Theater a couple of years ago she read about 80 TV scripts over a long period of time—and turned down every one.

"To make a generalization about them, she said, "they either contained too much story or too little. Most of them were written by people who didn't understand the television medium because they felt superior to it.

But times have changed, she says, and the scripts are improving. An example of a good script, she agreed with this department, was seen in her second TV appearance a few weeks ago when she starred in "The Right Hand Man on Playhouse 90 (CBS-TV).



THE BARRIERS ARE RAISED—Frank Sinatra plays an American soldier who falls in love with a beautiful girl in Southern France during World War II. Monique, played by Natalie Wood, has a white mother and a Negro father in "Kings Go Forth."

Dancer Solves Her Dilemma

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeanmaire, Broadway's dancing darling, has solved a delightful dilemma.

It began when fans and critics observed a certain something new in her twinkling performance.

She hadn't the faintest notion what they meant.

"People in France told me the same thing," says the tiny Parisienne ballerina. "They said I had changed and that there was a new dimension in the dancing. I didn't realize what was happening.

"But now I think it must be the marriage."

The transformation, she explains, is mental.

"It is maybe that my mind has opened and expanded, and this has changed my dancing," Jeanmaire says. "But I also have worked very hard to prepare for this return to ballet."

Whatever the cause, the results have won her a bundle of critical bouquets as the stellar excitement of "Les Ballets de Paris." The production goes on nationwide 10-week tour following windup of its Broadway stand in mid-May.

She began preparing for the whirl six months ago.

Jeanmaire last appeared in these parts in 1954 in the musical comedy "The Girl in Pink Tights." She has since made several movies, and most importantly, become involved in the institution of matrimony.

Jeanmaire is the wife of Roland Petit, with whom she began dancing in childhood and who 10 years ago created the Ballets de Paris Company. He choreographs all Zizi's work. (Zizi is the nickname she gave herself years ago).

Petit also is the male star—a situation which promises certain complications.

"When we dance each evening together, we are never pleased with what we do," Jeanmaire says. "But that is normal. Dancers are always wondering and fighting. Always there is something that could be done better. Fortunately the public does not see."

The West Indian island of Trinidad was originally called "La Trinity." It was given the name by Columbus, on his third voyage in 1498, for the three hills around the harbor.

Musicians' Union Quits Negotiations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The beleaguered movie industry now has more trouble on its hands—this time from the horn tooters and violin scrapers.

On Feb. 20, the American Federation of Musicians and the producers broke off negotiations for a new contract. Since then, no musicians have worked in the movie studios.

A survey shows that the musicians strike has hampered but not seriously affected production. Here are the effects:

Paramount recorded the scoring for "Vertigo in London and Vienna before the AFM won agreements with most foreign musician unions not to work on Hollywood films. However, Mexico was not included, and Jerry Lewis scored his "Rockabye My Baby there. Mexican musicians are also scoring the Elvis Presley film. Paramount has been forced to postpone start of the Red Nichols biography starring Danny Kaye.

Twentieth Century - Fox has scored "10 North Frederick" and "A Nice Little Bank That Should Be Robbed" in Mexico. Producer-director Frank Tashlin gave up prearation of a proposed Bing Crosby-Frank Sinatra film because of the strike.

MGM may be stymied in filming a couple of Cyd Charisse dance numbers at the end of "Party Girl," now in production Warners is the only lot shooting a full - scale musical — "Damn Yankees. The company is using records from the play album for numbers which will be recorded later.

Samuel Goldwyn has entered a deal with the AFM to permit work on "Porgy and Bess, with payments to be retroactive when a new contract is signed with producers. United Artists has similar deals in order to score "Separate Tables and "The Big Country here.

Round Table raced 22 times in 1957, winning 15—11 of them in a row.

Notes About Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

It's from "Kwai" to Texas for Oscar winner Sam Spiegel. The producer expects his next picture to be "The Chase," which takes place in the Lone Star State.

No, it's not really a Western, he says. It's a modern story about the haves and have-nots in a Texas oil town. Spiegel, who made "The African Queen" in Africa and "Bridge Over the River Kwai" in Ceylon, expects to make the whole picture in Texas.

Rosalind Russell is gloating over "Auntie Mame" being booked into the Radio City Music Hall before it has been filmed. She says it's a first for the nation's biggest movie house. It will be the Christmas attraction and ought to be a smash. . . .

Harry Belafonte is working on a closed set at MGM for "The End of the World." The reason, says producer George Englund, is that he has two weeks of scenes entirely by himself. He thinks he is the sole survivor of an atomic catastrophe—until he finds Inger Stevens and Mel Ferrer.

Harry told me in the commissary that he has had two more operations on his eye and has been given a clean bill of health. . . .

It was nice to see Linda Darnell at a recent banquet. She tells me she has been leading the quiet life and is completely happy in her marriage to airline pilot Robbie Robertson. But she hasn't given up acting and is planning a TV series about lady cops. . . .

Folks are happy that Judy Garland and Sid Luft patched up their rift. Judy needs a strong hand and Sid was the only one who could handle her. With a little discipline, there's no reason why she couldn't solve her money problems. . . .

Sorbitol, a corn syrup product, is one reason many toothpastes, shaving creams and cosmetics do not dry out when the cap is left off a collapsible tube. Sorbitol is a humectant that helps tubes retain their original moisture.

Fluvanna 4-H Club Meeting Held Thursday

The Fluvanna Girls 4-H Club met at the Fluvanna school on Thursday afternoon. Miss Janice Anderson, vice president, presided, and Gwen Landrum and LaRue Reeder led the recreation.

Plans for making electric lamps were discussed and 12 girls expressed interest in making lamps. Sue Herring and Janie Gleghorn electric leaders, will be assisted by Mrs. Roy Reeder and Mrs. Yayland Mathis in teaching. Lamp kits will be purchased at a reasonable cost by all the girls who wish to make lamps.

New members present were Malinda Cunningham and Shirley Stansell.

Plans were made for a meeting to be held in the home of Malinda Cunningham on May 8, after school.

Miss Ruby Butts, County Home Demonstration Agent, gave a demonstration on selecting colors to wear. "Try on each piece of dress material before you buy it", Miss Butts told the girls. She added "You cannot necessarily wear all blue's because one shade of blue is becoming. With changes of season and the changes in your coloring that come as you grow up, you may not find the same colors becoming this year that were becoming last year".

A number of colors were tired on girls with different coloring, while the girls learned to see that some colors give sparkle to the eyes, a shine to the hair, or a nice tone to the complexion, while others may dull the eyes or hair and reflect unattractive colors in the complexion.

WMU Meeting Held Thursday

About 150 women Thursday attended the quarterly meeting of the Mitchell-Scurry Baptist Association Women's Missionary Union, held at the Green Hill Baptist Church here.

Main speaker was Miss Eula Mae Henderson, executive secretary-treasurer of the WMU of Texas. Her talk was built around the four fundamentals of WMU: mission study, prayer, community missions, and stewardship.

A pantomime, led by Mrs. Bill Murphy, was presented by the WMU of the First Baptist Church here, and a skit was given by the WMU of the Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Seventeen of the 20 WMU organizations in the association were represented at the meeting. A covered dish luncheon was held. Mrs. Roy Womble, associational president, presided at the meeting.

The next quarterly WMU meeting will be July 24 at the Oak Street Baptist Church in Colorado City.

JAMES PEASE

Civic Music Association To Present James Pease, Here Monday Night

Monday night at 8, in the High School auditorium members of the Snyder Civic Music Association will hear one of Americas outstanding bass-baritones.

The career of James Pease has embraced four professions: farming, law, aviation, and music. At one time or another each of these professions has played an important part in the life of this handsome, young American baritone. Music, of course, won out, for today James Pease is considered one of the leading singing actors on the operatic stage and one of the finest concert artists in the field.

A native of Indianapolis, Ind. Mr. Pease was attracted by music as a young boy. He often listened to and mimicked recordings of great singers, especially those of Lawrence Tibbett, but because his father was anxious for his son to study law, Pease attended Northwestern University and later took his law degree at the University of Indiana.

While in college, young Pease was active in various dramatic clubs. When the University decided to present a musical comedy, James Pease was chosen for the leading male role. His dramatic and vocal performance was so successful that the dean of the University advised him to develop his artistic talents further. So, as it happened, on the same day that Pease passed his examination for admittance to the Indiana bar, he learned that he had won a scholarship to the Academy of Vocal Arts in Philadelphia. Plans for a career divided between legal practice and management of his family's 350-acre farm near Indianapolis were immediately discard.

After two years of study at the Academy, Pease made his professional debut with the Philadelphia Opera Company as Mephistopheles in Gounod's "Faust." Newspapers throughout the East report the success of this debut, and Newsweek Magazine chronicled the event with story and pictures and reported: "Top honors went to James Pease!" With the same company, in Philadelphia and Boston, he sang performances as Baron Ochs in "Der Rosenkavalier" (at the time the youngest singer ever to portray that character), Arkel in "Pelleas and Melisande", and Colline in "La Boheme". Subsequently, Deems Taylor chose Pease for one of the principal roles in the American premiere of his opera "Ramuntcho."

Appearances with conductor Howard Barlow over the Columbia Broadcasting System and seven solo engagements with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra were among Pease's triumphs before the young baritone won the 1943 Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air. But his enlistment as a cadet in the Army Air Corps brought his artistic career to a temporary halt. As a pilot in the AAF Training Command, Pease flew a total of 15,000 miles to fulfill Army-authorized engagements at broadcast bond rallies and recitals.

With his return to the music world in 1945, James Pease has followed one triumph after another as a leading member of the New York City Opera Company, and with opera companies in Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Central City, and New Orleans. New Yorkers have enthusiastically applauded his interpretations of the lead roles in "The Marriage of Figaro", "Don Giovanni", "Carmen", "Salome", "Aida", "The Tales of Hoffman", "Die Meistersinger", and Der Rosenkavalier". Of this last, the New York Herald Tribune's Virgil Thomson wrote: "The finest dramatic performance of the evening (also vocally handsome) was the Baron Ochs of James Pease. I do not think I have ever seen the role played more convincingly. Force in the characterization, with no horseplay, no vulgarity of any kind made an unforgettable performance. And the role is not easy; it rarely comes off."

Pease also sang in four contemporary operas — Prokofieff's "The Love of Three Oranges," Menotti's "Amelia Goes to the Ball," Bartok's "Bluebeard's Castle," and Alban Berg's controversial "Wozzeck," in the title role of which he gave a particularly distinguished performance. As a matter of fact, since baritones are often allotted parts secondary to those of tenors in most operas, Pease feels he has established something of a record by performing four title roles — Figaro, Giovanni, Bluebeard, and Wozzeck — all in one season at the New York City Center in the fall of 1952.

Pease is also a popular soloist with symphony orchestras. He has appeared with such leading organizations as the Boston Symphony, Philadelphia Orchestra, Chicago Symphony, the Buffalo, Rochester and Minneapolis Symphonies, and the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra — under conductors Mitropoulos, Stokowski, Ormandy, Sevitzky and the late Serge Koussevitzky. He also performed in Busoni's "Arlecchino" in his debut with the New York Philharmonic under Mitropoulos.

A summer festival favorite, Pease made such an excellent impression with his first engagement in 1942 at the Berkshire Festival, that he has been a frequent Tanglewood soloist since. He has appeared there in the American premiere performance of Benjamin Britten's "Peter Grimes" and "Albert Herring", as soloist in Bach's B Minor Mass and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, and in performances of Tchaikovsky's "Pique Dame". Other prominent American festivals that have engaged Pease as soloist include those of Worcester, Watergate (Washington, D. C.) and Ann Arbor.

Since December 1952, Pease has been under contract to the State Opera in Hamburg, Germany, where he has been acclaimed enthusiastically as a "Wagnerian baritone . . . . . (with) a supple, noble voice . . . astonishingly fine diction and a spiritual penetration. Among his successes in Hamburg have been the role of Orestes in "Elektra", Wotan in "Die Walkuere" and the title roles in "Falstaff" and "Don Giovanni". He has also appeared in the German premiere of Verdi's "Aroldo", and in many engagements with the Hamburg Philharmonic under Keilberth. He has sung the title role of "Don Giovanni" in Dublin six times and in the summer of 1954 sang the same role at the Glyndebourne Festival. In June 1956, Mr. Pease sang Wotan in Wagner's "Ring" operas at Covent Garden, and in July participated in a Mozart Anniversary series. He was heard at "Tanglewood" (Lenox, Mass.) during July and August, rejoined the Hamburg Opera Company in Edinburgh for festival performances, and in January and February 1957, sang the role of Hans Sachs in "Die Meistersinger" at Covent Garden under Kubelik.

In 1957 he was the recipient of two distinguished honors only three days apart. On April 30 he was selected to receive the Poor Richard Award by the Poor Richard Club of Philadelphia, and on May 3rd he was given an honorary Doctor of Music degree by Franklin College (Franklin, Indiana). Flying in from Europe in order to receive the degree in person, Mr. Pease was able to stay only one day. European commitments necessitated his leaving for an appearance on May 5th at the BBC under Kubelik, and a "Walkuere" (Wotan) on the following day under Knappertsbusch in Paris.

A leading recording artist (RCA — Victor), Mr. Pease has also appeared as featured guest on radio and television.

Jaundice Not Proper Name For Hepatitis

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.

INFECTIOUS HEPATITIS, often loosely called jaundice, is a disease we are hearing more and more about. This is not because it is a new disease; it is only that we know more about it. We know now how to recognize it, how to diagnose it for sure with laboratory tests.

Hepatitis is a disease of the liver — the word means inflammation of the liver. One of the functions of the liver is to make bile, a substance which is poured into the intestinal tract and helps with the digestion of fat. In hepatitis the part of the liver that makes bile is inflamed. As a result the bile backs up in the bile ducts and doesn't get into the intestine where it belongs. Bile is the substance that gives bowel movements their brown color, so one of the symptons of this disease is clay-colored stools. When the bile backs up it is absorbed into the blood stream and carried all around the body. The deep brown bile tinges the whole body a yellowish color. This yellow color is called jaundice — hence the popular name of the disease.

SNYPTOMS

There are other diseases which cause jaundice so it's not a very accurate name for this special disease. The first suggestions of the jaundice are seen in the whites of the eyes which develop a yellowish cast. Since there is more bile in the blood than there should be it has to get out of the body somewhere. It is excreted into the urine giving it a deep brown color.

These three signs, clay colored stools, a yellow tinge to the skin and especially to the whites of the eyes and brown urine suggest the disease infectious hepatitis. Along with these signs the patient usually runs a fever, feels nauseated, often has spells of vomiting and in general is sick.

In children the disease if often quite mild, but it is apt to be more severe in adults. When the disease is severe the diagnosis is usually quite clear without the need of laboratory tests. However, when it is very mild one cannot be sure that it isinfections hepatitis without performing a blood test. The blood test makes the diagnosis definite — it is, or it is not, infectious hepatitis.

The disease is infectious —, you get it from some one else, but the incubation period is long, anywhere from 2 to 6 weeks. The virus that causes infectious hepatitis is present in the stool of the patient with the disease and it is transmitted to other people by contamination of food supplies with waste products — the same way typhoid fever and dysentery are transmitted.

The acute symptoms of the disease do not as a rule last very long but it may take a long time for the damage done to the liver to be completely healed. During all this time, sometimes months, the patient is not acutely sick, but he just doesn't feel well. Also he is infectious to other people since he still harbors the virus in his intestinal tract.

No Miracles

While we now know a lot more about this disease than in years past we still have no [illegible] medicine to cure it. The patient must be put to bed until tests show he is free of the virus. He is given a special diet, very low in fat since he doesn't have the normal amount of bile in his intestinal tract to digest fat.

We cannot cure the disease quickly but we can prevent it in exposed members of a family. Injection of gamma globulin, given during the incubation period will protect exposed people for several months.

Like many other infectious diseases infectious hepatitis leaves a lifelong immunity. Second attracks are very rare.

Thickening pot roast gravy: Some cooks like to stir two tablespoons of flour until smooth with one-half cup of water and use this to thicken one cup of the meat liquid.
