Austin.—Two bitter fights in the January regular session of the legislature, involving attempts to repeal the horse race betting law, and to obtain ratification of the federal child labor constitutional amendment, are presaged by the platform adopted by the Democratic party of Texas at its Fort Worth session.

Race betting repeal, advocated consistently by Gov. Allred since its adoption, will bring on a bitter struggle, because the governor or doubtless will be able to muster sufficient strength in the house of representatives to pass the repeal measure. It is doubtful, however, if the senate will vote repeal. The race betting situation has become complicated by the injection of the dog-racing issue, upon which the supreme court is scheduled to render a decision within the next few weeks. Various appeals courts have handed down conflicting opinions, some holding dog-racing legal, others holding the opposite. There has been an unfavorable reaction, following the first enthusiastic acclaim of legalized racing in Texas. The racing interests will pour plenty of money into Austin to fight repeal, as they did to pass the original bill.

CHILD LABOR

The other battle, which will also center in the senate, will be over ratification of the child labor amendment. The house has passed the ratification measure on several occasions in the past, but the senate has rejected it. At the Democratic convention this issue furnished about the only fireworks, with Sen. Tom DeBerry of Bogata, firm friend of the administration, and selected by Allred to head the important resolutions committee, opposing the governor's view and defeating the resolution favoring ratification in the committee. The resolution was brought out on a minority report, and decisively adopted on the floor. DeBerry will not be in the senate next year, having voluntarily retired. But Tom Holbrook, the Galveston reactionary, will be there to lead the fight, and he will have sufficient help, observers here believe, to defeat ratification.

Many organizations, including the Texas Press association, are on record as opposing the amendment, as an invasion of state's rights. The effect of the law has been considerably exaggerated by supporters of both sides. Actually, it probably would make little difference to Texas, which is not an industrial state. Proponents of the amendment, backed by many leading club women, are better organized this time than last session.

TRAFFIC TOLL

Fifty-seven children were killed on streets and highways of Texas from Feb. 14 to Aug. 1, a statistical report issued here shows. Fifteen were passengers in motor cars, seven were riding bicycles or scooters, while 34 were pedestrians. Forty-two counties shared the death toll. The figures are published as part of an appeal to motorists and parents, now that thousands of children are re-entering school this month, to exercise care. One of his most effective safety measures yet discovered are the schoolboy patrols, who guard children at dangerous crossings near schools. The system has been highly developed in Dallas and several other cities.

TAX FIGHT LOOMS

The special session, called for Sept. 28 (as exclusively foretold in this column a month ago), will consider only revenue for old age pensions as its first business, under Gov. Allred's call. Estimates now are that 120,000 pensioners will eventually be on the rolls. Requiring nearly $1,000,000 a month from the state, to pay the

Baptist Pastor Resigns Here

Rev. A. C. Hardin, pastor of the Baptist Church, has tendered his resignation after having been pastor for the past six years. He will preach here for the last time next Sunday morning and night. He has been called to the church at Wilson and also at Post and will accept one of the pastorates this week.

During his pastorate here Rev. Mr. Hardin and his family have endeared themselves to the people of this community. They are loved not alone by Baptist people but by those of all denominations. We all regret to see them leave but wish them great success in their new field.

J. W. Roberts returned the first of the week from Alabama where he had been visiting for several days. He reported that crops all the way from here to Alabama were spotted, in some places they are good and in others very sorry. Crops in Alabama are good.

average pension of a little less than $16, with the federal government matching state funds. The governor's policy, not yet submitted in detail, will likely be to recommend increase in existing tax rates, spreading the burden to as many industries as possible, so as not to burden any one unduly and at the same time to prevent future extravagant liberalization of the pension law, by making as many individuals conscious of the tax burden as possible. The backbone of the new tax program probably will be increased levies on oil, gas, sulphur, public utilities, pipe lines and possibly some luxuries that were included in the ill-fated omnibus tax bill last session. The sales tax issue, certain to be brought up, is regarded as dead, in view of the voters' endorsement of Gov. Allred's unyielding opposition to it.

RED-HEADED RIVALS?

Political observers in Austin are watching with increasing interest a political drama of 1938 now in the making—the potential race between two red-heads, Atty. Gen. William McCraw of Dallas and Railroad Commission Chairman Ernest O. Thompson of Amarillo, for governor of Texas. Neither has committed himself as a candidate, but friends of both men are keeping the matter very much alive in political circles.

McCraw and Thompson furnished a high spot on the program of the Democratic convention at Fort Worth last week, where each spoke. Thompson, speaking first, was given an enthusiastic welcome, which increased in volume as he pledged himself to continued protection of "the rights of the little man" generally, and specifically declared for a public utility law that would result in lower light and telephone rates, just as the commission, under his leadership, has slashed natural gas rates in many cities. McCraw, too, was given a rousing greeting, but his applause dissolved into laughter as he spoke facetiously of himself and his ability, and wise-cracked cleverly.

CHECKMATE

But whatever their political rivalry may amount to, Thompson and McCraw joined hands to end what the attorney general described as a "conspiracy" to move over half a million barrels of alleged illegal oil when he obtained an injunction in an Austin district court. The state charges Elmer Pope, pugnacious legislator from Corpus Christi, entered into a conspiracy with the owners of the oil to transfer ownership to Pope, and that the U. S. internal revenue collector then levied up on the oil, selling it at auction, to satisfy an income tax claim against Pope. The state contends the oil belongs to the state, being unlawful oil, and subject to seizure as a nuisance. The court enjoin Pope, Frank Scofield, revenue collector, and others from moving the oil.

Girls Try Target Shooting

With eyes well trained on the target, these three girls fired the first shots that opened the rifle range at Texas State College for Women (CIA). Misses Bernice Pass, Denton; Gwendolyn Stoeppelman, Silabee; and Marguerite Keltz, Whiteflat, join the ranks of target shooters as the new sport is added to the college curriculum.

TRAIL OF LONESOME PINE TO SHOW HERE

You have probably read the story "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and sung the song now you will have an opportunity to see and hear the story enacted on the screen at the Rialto Theatre in Loraine, on Monday and Tuesday, September 28 and 29. If you have read the story you will surely want to see the picture. But whether you have read the story or not it is one of the greatest pictures that will ever be shown here. The picture is shown in technicolor and features Fred McMurtry and Henry Fonda.

MEXICANS CELEBRATE INDEPENDENCE FROM SPAIN

Mexican citizens throughout this section are celebrating the anniversary of Mexico's independence from Spain. The baseball park is decorated and fixed up like a carnival and the carnival spirit prevails. A dance platform has been built and dancers each night swing to the music of a Mexican band. Monday night was set aside for the entertainment of white friends.

After using his trench silo for four consecutive years, Herman Mittendorf, farmer from the Watson community in Comal County, is of the opinion that the trench silo is the best thing a farmer can have according to a report of George B. Ehlinger county agricultural agent.

Mittendorf constructed the first trench silo in Comal County four years ago after an inspection of one at the Luling Foundation Farm.

This Comal County Farmer finds that silage is valuable not only for his cattle but for his horses and mules. He uses some cottonseed meal in addition to the silage in feeding his work stock.

HARLEY SADLER CIRCUS IN ROSCOE AND COLORADO

Residents of Loraine and community will have the opportunity of seeing the Harley Sadler Circus in Roscoe on Monday, September 21, at Colorado Tuesday, September 22. Harley Sadler this season has forsaken his dramatic tent theatre and is with his all new circus. He has assembled this season a circus of standard attractions, featuring performers from many, many countries. All equipment is new, and many new and novel ideas are being carried into effect.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO MEET THURSDAY NITE

Thursday night of this week will be regular meeting time for the Loraine Chamber of Commerce. President O. I. Griffin is calling the meeting for eight o'clock at the chamber of commerce room. Important business is to come before the body.

Mrs. A. O. Fain and Mrs. Bill Smith of Waco visited in the A. Callahan home last Wednesday night.

LIGHT RAINS FALL TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

Slow drizzly rains fell throughout this section Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, amounting to approximately an inch. Although not enough to do the most good the light rain will help late feed and possibly will help some cotton to mature bolls. More rain is needed to wet the ground for fall plowing and grain sowing. Pasture land also needs a good soaking to make grass for winter grazing.

Points to the south and east of us reported much heavier rains. San Angelo had a 12-inch rain which sent the Concho rivers on a rampage to do considerable damage. Blackwell, in Nolan County, reported three inches. Abilene nearly an inch and a half. Every weather reporting station in Texas reported some rain Tuesday except Amarillo and El Paso.

DISTRICT MEETING FOR FARMERS ANNOUNCED

Farmers of this area are much interested in the meeting to be held at San Angelo Friday September 18 and 19. All farmers are invited to attend the meetings both days as all sessions are open to farmers and farm women.

Dr. R. H. Montgomery former farm boy of San Saba County, will be the chief speaker on Saturday September 19th. Other speakers include R. R. Bush Extension Service R. R. Darrow A. A. representative of Washington D. C. and H. G. Lucas President of Texas Agricultural Association.

Delegates from as far west as El Paso will attend this meeting. A Delegation will attend from Mitchell County as well as all counties of this area.

WEEKLY COTTON GRADE AND STAPLE REPORT

The grades of Texas cotton this week were much lower than those of the previous week. Strict Middling and higher grades decreased sharply this week to 43 percent from about 59 percent; whereas Middling increased to nearly 33 percent from 28 percent last week. Small increases were shown in the lower grades, Strict Low Middling, to nearly 11 percent. Strict Middling and Good Middling Spotted increased materially representing 8 percent for the week against less than 3 percent last week. Middling Spotted likewise increased from less than 2 percent to about 5 percent.

Staple lengths reported this week averaged shorter for the State than last week. Cotton shorter than 7-8 inch increased to 7 percent with a marked increase shown in the proportion of 7-8 inch staple to 34 percent from 22 percent last week. Smaller proportions were reported in all other lengths over the preceding week. Inch staple decreased materially from 24 percent last week to 14 percent this week.

Mrs. W. A. Taylor of the Pleasant Valley community visited Mrs. A. Callahan Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. O. P. Blair Buried Monday

Roberta Annlee Bennett Blair, 48, who died shortly after 3 o'clock Sunday morning, were conducted from the Methodist tabernacle at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, Rev. Hamilton Wright, pastor, and Rev. Sam H. Young, presiding elder, officiating. Interment was in the Loraine cemetery. A large concourse of relatives and friends attended.

Mrs. Blair had been in failing health many months, following an operation last year.

She was born near Hico, Erath County, Texas, January 24, 1888, married to Oran Paschall Blair Dec. 10, 1905, and came to Mitchell County in 1906. She was converted and united with the Methodist Church in 1903 and had lived a consistent Christian life.

Pallbearers were Cline Taylor, Carmie Groom, Homer Mease, Everett Henderson, Dee Finch, and Edd Preston. Flower girls were Helen Bennett, Margaret Bennett, Barbara Bennett, Nina Pearl Groom, Amelia Darden, and Orene Piper.

Besides her husband she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Nancy Bennett, seven children Mrs. Thelma Richardson, Bennett Blair, T. J. Blair, Melvin Blair, Oita, Dual and Ouida and five brothers, as follows: T. R., Joe, Alva, James and Virgil Bennett, as well as four grand children.

CHURCH FEATURE IS PREPARED BY CAPABLE WRITER

Constant contact with young people in church work for many years has made a capable instructor of Harold L. Lundquist, dean of the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago and author of the "Sunday School Lesson" which is a regular feature of The Mitchell County News.

REV. LUNDQUIST

Because of this ever present demand for instruction on the part of youth, Dean Lundquist has learned to express himself in the simplest terms. Thousands of Sunday school teachers refer to this syndicated article each week for their texts and explanations. Seldom has any newspaper feature reached such heights of popularity.

Dean Lundquist is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, a member of the bar, a former army man and a churchman. These varied experiences enable him to understand human nature much better than the average person. He was schooled at the Princeton (N. J.) Theological seminary and was graduated with the first class completing the pastors' course at the Moody Institute.

But formal training does not account for Dean Lundquist's popularity as a speaker before young people's conventions, on anniversary occasions and at men's Bible classes. His wide experiences have kept him abreast of the times, a requisite for popularity among youth today.

Leon Crutcher left last Thursday for Lubbock where he will re-enter Texas Tech for this winter.

Bulldogs Tryout At Post Friday

Coach Newby Pratt has been putting his charges through stiff practice this week in preparation for the game at Post Friday night. Most of this week has been used in developing offensive plays and polishing off the rough spots. Coach Pratt is well pleased with the progress his team has made and although he is expecting Post to be tough he thinks his boys will give a good account of themselves. As yet he has not determined who will start in the game at Post so many of the boys are showing up so well that it is almost a tossup as to who will get the assignments. Most of them will probably see service in the game.

The game Friday night will be the first of the season for the Bulldogs and one of two practice games before they have to go into conference play. Coahoma is to be here Friday afternoon, September 25, and the first conference game is to be with Colorado on October 2.

The Bulldogs have an unusually hard schedule this year and are expected to be the underdogs all through the season because they have had less experience than any other team in the district. Coach Pratt is far from optimistic about the outlook but he believes he has a team that is going to make every team he plays hustle.

P. T. A. TO SPONSOR SHOWER

The first meeting of the P. T. A. was held at the High School Auditorium last Thursday afternoon. A goodly number were present.

We are hoping for a most successful year, and that can only be accomplished by full cooperation from every one. We want to thank those who so wholeheartedly gave their assistance last year.

We are going to begin a membership campaign right away. The dues will be the same as last year (50c). We have decided due to the distressed financial condition of our district to retain all dues in the local treasury. The P. T. A. is going to finance all public entertainments this year. The most important item on our present program is a "shower" to be sponsored by The P. T. A. for the purpose of equipping our Home-Economic Room with the necessary utensils for doing their work. The shower is to be September 22 at 8:00 P. M. at the High School Auditorium. There is to be a good musical entertainment as well as the shower. Mrs. W. R. Martin is the chairman of the entertainment committee. A list of articles to be purchased for the shower will be given in the paper at some other place, place read carefully and be ruled accordingly.

Don't forget the public is cordially invited, and urged to attend. High School Auditorium Tuesday September 22, 8:00 p. m. Reporter.

Things needed for the home economics department include:

8 paring knives, 8 spatulas, 4 sets measuring spoons, 8 small wooden spoons, 4 rotary egg beaters, 4 egg whips, 8 biscuit cutters, 8 glass and 8 aluminum measuring cups, 4 sifters, 4 nest of bowls (mixing bowls), 4 rolling pins (medium size), 8 aluminum salt and pepper shakers, 16 ovenware cups (earthenware or glass), 4 pie tins (9x1 1/2 in.), 3 muffin tins (8 holes), 4 oven thermometers, 4 1 1/4 qt. enamel or aluminum double boilers, 4 2 qt. sauce pans with lid and handle, 4 6 in. or 7 in. steel skillets, 2 water glasses (like we have), 8 dish pans (white enamel), 1 soap dish, 1 scissors, 1 bread knife, 1 food chopper, 1 grater, 1 lemon squeezer, 1 can opener and cork screw, 1 qt. glass measure, 1 3/4 qt. sauce pan with cover, 1 1 1/2 qt. enamel or aluminum double boiler, 1 wire basket for frying (to fit 3 qt. sauce pan, 3 layer cake pans, 1 qt. ovenware baking dish, 1 cake cooler, 1 broom, 1 angel food cake pan.

Our Huge Gold Pile

The great fighters in Asia and Europe in the days of Frederick the

Arthur Brisbane

Great and Napoleon had little idea of war's future. But marvelous things, some of the greatest, Napoleon especially, might have done with today's inventions.

Frederick the Great's father selected the tallest men he could find for his guard, probably kept them away from the firing line. In battle they would have been killed first, hit by the bullets that go over the heads of shorter men.

The wholesale killers of the old days prepared their killings by marching men up and down, drilling them, encouraging them with titles, brass bands to lead them, fancy uniforms. All that means little now.

About 100 miles from Berlin there is a station called Leuna. There most useful work is done, in theory and through study of the manufacture of synthetic petroleum; and there most important, learned men with big heads, spectacles and an amount of education that would make you dizzy if you could imagine it, concentrate their brains on the preparation of better, more efficient poison gases and high explosives.

Every country has its similar death laboratory; men perhaps as efficient as those of Germany, though Germany is the kingdom of chemistry, the teacher of other nations.

Henry Irving, on the stage of his theater in London, prepared an impressive presentation of the witches in "Macbeth," old, toothless hags, preparing their hell-broth, with power to summon spirits from the dead and make them foretell the future.

Far more efficient are those solemn German chemists, physicists and other professors, preparing the real hell-broth of poison gas, upon which the future of civilization and the domination of the earth may depend for many centuries.

We had our periods of universal barbarism and cannibalism, our ages of flint, bronze and iron, our many interesting forms of rulership, planned to give one or a few control over all the others. We had the age of military feudalism, and many think that we are now seeing the end of "industrial feudalism."

There may be in the centuries ahead of us a period of airplane-poison gas rule, which will make the peoples of the world as completely subject to a single dictatorship as were the ancient galley-slaves, swinging their oars under the lash.

There are a good many things we haven't seen and many to which we devote too little thought, including perhaps the fact that it is dangerous to be too rich if you are not prepared to defend yourself against burglars.

Those thousands of millions in gold that we are hiding away in a hole in the ground, as ingeniously as any squirrel hiding his hickory nuts, may bring us trouble some day.

The thought of those ten thousand millions' worth of gold bars and dollars, hidden not very far below the surface, might cause some ingenious Asiatic or European to say to himself:

"For one or two billions I could prepare the necessary machinery, flying ships and poison gas included, to conquer the necessary areas of the United States and frighten the others into submission. Having laid down my layer of gas, I would descend and take the ten thousand millions and go home with a clean profit of eight billions in gold."

Mussolini races his big Italian built automobile, the engine burning alcohol, made of Italian farm products—no gasoline. Some law-makers in America suggest compelling the use of 10 per cent alcohol in all fuel for American automobiles. Fuel alcohol can be made from corn, and the law, it is said, would give work to 2,000,000 men on 30,000,000 acres of farm land.

It seems impossible to believe the hideous accounts of the maltreatment and cruel deaths inflicted upon women in the civil war now raging in Spain.

That men should fight and murder each other is to be expected, since they are at best "half tiger, half monkey," and often the monkey gives way to the tiger. But that they should inflict shameful ill treatment and hideous deaths on defenseless women seems utterly unbelievable, even when you know what men are, in a mob.

Hitler Demands Return of German Colonies--American Fleet to Maneuver in North Pacific--Discord in World Power Conference.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

HUNDREDS of thousands of Nazis, attending the party convention in Nuremberg, were roused to great enthusiasm by a proclamation from Reichsfuehrer Hitler to the effect that Germany, having renounced and scrapped most of the Versailles treaty, was ready to press its demand for restoration of its pre-war colonies. This, he asserted, was necessary to the economic independence of Germany and would be achieved within the next four years. Said the chancellor:

"It is regrettable that the rest of the world fails to understand the nature and greatness of our task. If a certain British politician declares Germany needs no colonies as she may buy her raw materials, then this remark is about as bright as that of the Bourbon princess who, when she saw a mob crying for bread, wondered why—if the people had no bread—they did not eat cake."

"If Germany had not, for fifteen years, been squeezed dry and cheated of her entire international savings; if she had not lost her entire foreign holdings; if, above all, she still possessed her colonies, we could much more easily master the difficulties."

Then, addressing the convention directly, the fuhrer launched a new campaign against bolshevism and the Jews.

"Bolshevism seeks to exterminate governments based on a community of race and blood and replace them by non-Aryan Jewish element of no race," Hitler warned. "Sooner or later sovietistic authority states will end in anarchy, since Jewish elements possess only despotic faculties, never organizing constructive ones."

"The rock of foundation of the state is an authoritarian will. Unlimited individual liberty leads to anarchy. All states have experienced the destructive effects of democracy."

FOLLOWING closely upon the visit to France of Gen. Rydz-Smigly of Poland, France and Poland signed a military treaty of friendship. It was reported, too, that France had agreed to lend 600,000,000 francs for completion of Poland's new railroad linking the Silesian coal fields with the port of Gdynia, rival of the Free City of Danzig.

Josef Beck, Polish foreign minister, told Berlin the Franco-Polish accord would have no effect on friendly relations with Germany; but nevertheless there was considerable anxiety in Warsaw concerning Germany's reaction.

BACK at his desk after an illness of six months, Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson immediately made an announcement that will be of deep interest to Japan.

The annual fleet maneuvers, which last May were shifted to the Canal Zone as a conciliatory gesture to Japan, will be held next year in North Pacific and Hawaiian waters, and probably the Tokyo press will yelp again. With the announcement Sec. Swanson asserted Japanese plans to retain overage submarines and destroyers involve a "violation" of the London and Washington naval treaties, which are to expire December 31 by Japanese abrogation. He followed up his charge with the statement that the United States has completed plans for two new battle ships and is prepared to begin construction "at a moment's notice."

The fleet maneuvers, officially designated as "fleet problem No. 18," will be held during late May and early June. The area of operations, it was indicated, will be the triangle between the Aleutian Islands, Hawaii, and Seattle, where the fleet problem of 1935 was conducted. Vessels and planes probably will work as far west as the Wake Islands.

Armament of the new battleships is at present limited to 14 inch guns, but Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, said frankly that if Japan does not agree to this limitation by next April, "the sky is the limit."

AMERICAN dairymen are protesting vainly to Secretary of State Hull against the reciprocal trade treaty with Brazil which, they assert, is seriously injuring the industry by encouragement of the manufacture of imitative butter. Under the treaty, Brazilian babassu oil, unknown in United States markets prior to 1935, now is being used at the rate of more than a million pounds a month for manufacture of a butter substitute.

Mr. Hull referred the protests to Assistant Secretary Sayre, who pointed out that the provision for free importation of the nut and oil was authorized by congress in the trade agreement act of 1934. He added that the success of the program was of vital interest to the American dairy farmer, "who has more to gain from the re-establishment of prosperous domestic markets for his products through the restoration of an abundant foreign trade than by a policy of excluding even the most remotely competitive products."

THERE was glee in government circles when it was announced that the United States treasury offering of $914,000,000 in 20 to 23-year two and three fourths per cent bonds dated September 15 was oversubscribed nine times. Of course those who are informed know that the reason is the banks, insurance companies and other investment institutions are glutted with money for which they have been seeking profitable employment.

Of the treasury's latest offering $400,000,000 of bonds is to raise new cash and $514,000,000 is to provide for the exchange of 1.5 per cent notes maturing September 15.

HUNDREDS of delegates, from many nations, were present when the third World Power conference opened in Washington, with President Julius Dornmueller in the chair. Prospects were good for a useful discussion of the problems connected with the industry, but discord crept in early in the proceedings. At a round table debate on public regulation and ownership of utilities, M. P. Davidson, representing Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York, said the only way to reduce electric rates is by threatening public ownership. Three prominent private utility men promptly "took a walk," and John C. Dalton, manager of the County of London Electric Supply, criticized Davidson's talk as a "tirade."

The discussion started in connection with a paper by John E. Zimmerman, president of the United Gas Improvement company, who held that power "yardsticks" such as the TVA and Boulder Dam cannot be compared with private utilities unless operating conditions are similar. Such yardsticks, he said, will lead to competitive methods already proved "wasteful and unsatisfactory."

In papers taking the opposite view, Prof. William E. Mosher of Syracuse university, and James C. Bonright of the New York State Power Authority, held that public competition with private companies is "indisputable evidence" of declining faith in regulation.

ACCORDING to the New York Times, whose dispatches from Washington are usually most reliable, President Roosevelt is considering for submission to congress, in event of his re-election, a far-reaching plan of governmental reorganization. The plan possibly would involve the Times stated, the consolidation or abolition of some of the major departments and bureaus.

"Whatever the President finally proposes," the Times said, "one may hear in informed quarters now that the regular cabinet posts might be decreased."

A possibility, the Times stated, would be consolidation of the army, navy and air corps in a department of national defense.

"The administration proposes to follow a definite policy of curtailing or dismantling emergency units that have outrun their usefulness," the paper continued.

FRANCE's government has decided that conditions in Europe are so threatening that it must spend a huge sum for national defense. So it adopted a program, for increasing the efficiency of the army which will cost $930,000,000 in the next four years. The proposal was made by Edouard Daladier, minister of defense. The first installment of $280,000,000 will be disbursed in 1937.

The program calls for an intensive increase of mechanized units and also for rearmament. Furthermore, it provides an increase in the size of the professional army and the creation of a specialized group of long service noncommissioned officers such as already exist in the French navy.

The program also provides for strengthening the frontier fortifications. But the chief improvement will be made in the air force which will be increased by 2,000 planes.

Thinking Men Oppose Change

Prefer Security of Roosevelt's Sound Foreign Policy; Seeking Farm Vote

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON. — We ought to be proud of the fact that the diplomats and rulers of the world look on Franklin Roosevelt as a master hand in the art of minding America's business in such a way that we are now about as free from entangling foreign alliances as we have ever been. This is important to the people of America because there is no doubt that in the eventual next world war the powers will endeavor to bring us into the scrap—as before.

Because of Roosevelt's strong position and his keen grasp of international affairs, plus the grave danger of the wrong man in the White House in a time of international stress, thinking men are talking against any idea of a change of administration. Landon has not, at this writing, given any inkling of what his views may be on these international matters; and for all I know he hasn't any—but it is well to remember that the series of little wars we inflicted on our small southern neighbors for years were the outcome of the so-called "dollar diplomacy" of the Wall Street investors who used to run the state department.

We had an idea once that there was a manifest destiny which sent this country into every South American and West Indian cane brake and jungle to see whether or not we couldn't make a little money in some of these foreign enterprises. Then, to back up the American enterprises in these regions, we used to have a part of our navy and marine corps down there acting as policemen. This used to irritate these South American and West Indian countries beyond description and was the reason for the eternal ill feeling those folks used to bear toward us. There never was any reason for us to be backing up this type of dollar diplomacy which kept us on the verge of small warfare in Cuba, Nicaragua, Mexico and other neighboring lands. There may have been reason for us now and then to act the part of an armed arbiter in some hot-headed island where the natives were running wild—but by and large the wisest thing this country ever did was to drop all ideas of the big stick in other people's countries and start on the Roosevelt idea of being a good neighbor to everybody.

We are working up trade agreements that are showing up the old selfish high tariff policies; we have certainly gained a great foothold in Canada that way; also in several other countries. We are about to stage a great western-world conference in South America which ought to lead to the establishment of a solid North American bloc of countries to stand together, mind their own business, and resist European and Asiatic influences. It may be a world against the future, and we can start right now to get ready.

Roosevelt sees a long way ahead in these world matters; it would be a shameful thing to sidetrack him now just as he is getting the United States in a leading international position as a peace maker.

Roosevelt has been keeping his weather eye open on European affairs for a long time past; and the country should realize that it has been far seeing statesmanship which has placed us right now in a strong neutral position with respect to every one of the European snarls—including the Spanish horror. Otherwise you would have seen us gradually edging our way into a European war through the device of moneys loaned or munitions sold to one side or the other. But Roosevelt's neutrality policies, backed up by congress, have made it clear to the world that we will have none of Europe's dirty mess.

COURTING FARM VOTES. The farm vote is the exciting prize in this campaign; and it is interesting to know that the Roosevelt campaign in the Middle West farm belt is to be conducted educationally by a non partisan, or possible omni-partisan committee of farm leaders who have been hammering on New Deal principles for years past. Headed by William Settle of the Indiana farm bureau federation, this committee is now being organized throughout several states and has some well known names connected with it at this writing. There is Frank Murphy of Minneapolis, attorney for several large farm organizations, and remembered for the fact that although he was a delegate to the G. O. P. convention which nominated Hoover, he bolted that outfit and led 5,000 farmers to Houston demanding a farm plank that meant something.

Another well known Mid-West farm leader on this committee is Homer Hush of Iowa, who makes the plain statement that "the farmer who deserts Roosevelt is a sucker." Others are Paul Weis of Wisconsin, a Progressive; Sam Fishman, Kansas Republican read out of that party by Chairman John Hamilton of the G. O. P. national committee of the founders of the nonpartisan league.

This committee will have its headquarters in Chicago; you will see the result of its efforts in the way of booklets, pamphlets, cartoons and exhibits. One of the Republican efforts it is now engaged in combating is the G. O. P. hatred of the reciprocal trade treaties. As I have told you in this column, there is a grave danger in farmers being beguiled into believing the reciprocal trade treaties are a menace to agriculture—and vote for the Landon administration without realizing they are voting to build a tariff wall which will bring back all the old evils that pestered and ruined them before. A Republican tariff has always worked wonders for the industrialists who put up the prices of everything they sold to farmers—while the farmers got nothing at all out of it.

NO WASTE HERE.

It is a sad commentary on the selfish political tactics of the New Deal's enemies that they continually refer to the "waste" of the Public Works program and never yet have given credit for such enormously helpful things as the 4,115 schools which have been built this past two and a half years with Public Works money. Thus providing facilities for 1,200,000 children who otherwise would have either not been provided for or who would have been crowded into completely inadequate rooms or buildings.

There is no wastefulness in such a program. It was an employment creating drive, which not only gave jobs, spread millions of dollars where they were needed, but provided a great investment in American citizenship.

These schools, which range from one-room buildings to whole new high schools, are scattered over half the 3,071 American counties in all the states. These buildings represent 70 per cent of all the new school buildings in the country in the past two and a half years. This 70 per cent cost $462,000,000, of which the federal government gives more than half. Some of the money, about $90,000,000, was loaned to the communities by the government and will be repaid. The rest was raised by the taxpayers in the communities benefited. There is no waste and no local kick; why then does a man who knows as much as Frank Knox go roaring around the country belaboring Roosevelt for a program that has done as much as the PWA school building program? It reflects on a man's intellectual honor to make charges like Knox makes.

The figures I have reported here have just come from Secretary Ickes; they do not include $30,000,000 spent by the federal government on federal schools among the Indians and at the military and naval academies.

In addition, the government has loaned nearly $80,000,000 to universities which have built new gymnasiums, cafeterias for students, much needed dormitories, etc. The actual expenditures so far (there being a lot yet to come) total $200,000,000 and have provided 800,000 months of work for laboring men at the local sites, and 4,000,000 months of labor per man at various factories. PWA, thus far, has done a tremendous job in resuscitating the school-world from the low level it had fallen into during the depression years, especially the period 1930 to 1933.

ANOTHER QUESTION.

That old question "what is the Constitution between friends" gives way now to the question "what is the Supreme Court among the governors of drouth-stricken states?" That is a local matter, and as the result of this there was a great deal of political hot air blown this way and that by various gentlemen seeking to oust Mr. Roosevelt from the White House. They declared he was violating states' rights and what not—but I notice that the minute he and the responsible officials of the drouth-stricken communities got down to brass tacks, they had no other idea about solving agriculture's drouth problem than on a national basis; not a state basis; and mainly with federal and not with state funds.

In that way of course the President has injected the Constitution into the campaign. He did not do so in any political argument on his trip through the drouth area; and his trip was entirely official and not political. Yet the consequences must have a bearing on politics and on the campaign. It strikes me the situation is a complete practical answer to the legalistic and I think the erroneous conclusions of the Supreme Court.

The President's general program for agriculture and federal spending to aid the distressed millions, therefore, seems to have everybody's approval; and that means Gov. Alf Landon, too. I don't see how the Republicans can make an issue of federal spending, or how anyone can split hairs on whether or not agriculture is a local or a national matter.

Curiously enough, the Landon managers are hoping to make a great vote getting impression among the crowded millions of the eastern cities; and one of their arguments with the city folks is that the New Deal's agricultural policies have raised food prices and thus increased the living costs of the city dwellers.

CROWN OF THORNS

DOUBTS of the identity of the leading presidential candidates, so thoroughly dispelled early in 1936, sometimes have held on to the midst of the conventions.

So it was that the Democratic gathering of 1896 provided a tremendous upset, giving the party William Jennings Bryan, a leader who literally was to wear a "crown of thorns" through three unsuccessful campaigns.

No less than 13 candidates for the Democratic nomination were regarded seriously in 1896 and the usual stable of dark horses was present.

"Pitchfork Ben" Tillman of South Carolina, whose hat was definitely in the ring, prodded the delegates unmercifully and the wordy battles from the platform spread to one fist fight after another on the floor. Then Bryan was recognized.

"We are fighting in defense of our homes, our families, and posterity," he declaimed. "We have petitioned and our petitions have been scorned. We have entreated and our entreaties have been disregarded. We have begged and they have mocked us when our calamity came. We beg no more, we entreat no longer, we petition no more—we defy them!"

His remarks were on the financial plank of the Democratic platform and Bryan fired them directly at the delegation from New York. Then he closed with the defiance which still rings down the corridors of time: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold!"

He "stopped the show." The delegates went wild. When the business of the convention could be resumed the day following, Bryan was nominated.

His defeat by McKinley, two succeeding failures for the presidency, in truth settled a crown of thorns upon the brow of Bryan which he was doomed to wear until the last public act of his life—participation in the famous "monkey" trial down in Dayton, Tennessee. He held, and he swayed, multitudes with the power of his oratory, but on election day he could not mark their ballots for them.

THE FIRST PLATFORM

ONE of the essentials of a modern political convention is the adoption of a "platform" upon which the Presidential nominee is to "take his stand" during the campaign. Whether or not he stays on it is quite another matter but few candidates would think of going before the "peepul" without one.

The first platform appeared during the campaign of 1840. In that year the Democrats, holding their convention in Baltimore, set forth what they considered the fundamental principles of their party. Asserting that the federal government was one of strictly limited powers and that all grants not expressly made to it were reserved to the states, this platform

Declared against the assumption of state debts, contracted for local improvements, by the federal government.

Denied the power of the federal government to foster one industry, or section, to the detriment of another.

Asserted that the federal government exceeded its authority when it raised more revenue than was required to defray the ordinary expenses of administration.

Denied the power of congress to interfere with or control the institution of slavery.

Declared against the handling of public funds by private banks. Denounced restrictions upon the privileges of citizenship and of ownership of land with respect to foreign immigrants.

They then unanimously renominated Martin Van Buren for the presidency and got ready to fight the battle of ballots along the lines of policy they had laid down. But if they expected their opponents to meet them on that ground they were grievously disappointed. The Whigs not only failed to adopt a platform but they failed to put forth any statement of principles for the very good reason that they didn't have any. They disregarded issues entirely and launched their whirlwind "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!" campaign.

The bewildered Democrats stood firm on their platform and watched the procession go past—a triumph procession for the Whigs!

Secretary of the Treasury

In 1789 congress enacted a law providing that the secretary of the treasury may not engage in trade or business, own steamships or otherwise be active in profit-making enterprises during his incumbency. He is liable, on conviction, to a $3,000 fine, dismissal and may never thereafter hold office under the federal government. The same provisions apply to the treasurer of the United States and the register of the treasury.

"Yes," said Agnes, losing breath. "Can you do something?" She caught his sleeve. "I don't know whom to turn to. Father can do no more just now; and Jeb—Mr. Braddon—Davis would be frantic if he helped him. But you can't put up money for him."

"I can't," admitted Cathal, "not to any amount such as he will need. But that's not all there is to do."

"He got his capital by borrowing on his life insurance. I don't know how one does that; do you?"

"Yes—when's his birthday?"

"October 29. Why?"

"It was just something I wanted to know," said Cathal, and held out his hand. Hers was in his; he held it; and then he let go.

Cathal drove away with a calendar superimposed over the other excitement in his mind. Today was the twenty-fifth of May. So Davis Ayreforth's birthday was four days and five months away. That meant that in all probability he must make his heavy payments of life insurance premiums within four days. For life insurance practice fixes the date upon which a man's age "changes" an even half-year—six months—before his birthday. Davis Ayreforth's age "changed," therefore, on the twenty-ninth of April; and on that date, undoubtedly, most of his insurance policies were written, and the premiums each year were due. But the companies, by common practice, extended date of payment by a month's "grace." So the final day for payment would be May 29—just four days off.

Cathal drove to the city that night lost only at times in the delights of his dreams of her; with these, he was haunted by desperate eyes and men's bitten lips—Linsdale's and Ayreforth's.

Cathal did not forget Davis. He received on the twenty-eighth the full special reports which he had ordered from the commercial agencies, and further, a verbal report from his own investigator; and on the forenoon of the twenty-ninth, Cathal went to Davis' office.

Davis, after a time, sent out word he could not see Mr. O'Mara.

Cathal, standing, stared past the secretary who brought this message; he strode past her, then, and tried to turn the knob of Mr. Ayreforth's door. It did not turn. It was locked.

Perhaps, during his wait, Cathal unconsciously had prepared the plan which immediately he adopted. He had not expected exactly this situation; but he did not delay an instant. He went to the window of the outer office which adjoined the partition wall. It was open, and he stepped out upon the sill. A twin window, also open, was on the other side of the partition, with a step between their sills. Cathal caught the sash and made the step—and he was in Davis' office.

Only after he had entered did Davis seem to have heard him. Davis was sitting at his desk with pen in his hand over paper. He had been trying to write something.

He jerked about, dropping his pen. He saw O'Mara, and started to rise but he did not. His hand darted to an open drawer beside him, and came up with a pistol, which he lifted, not toward Cathal, but toward his own head.

Cathal caught him; and they fought for the pistol.

It was like grappling a madman. Cathal blocked his arm so that the hand with the pistol pointed off, but Cathal could not get the pistol away. Then suddenly the pistol dropped. It was on the floor; and for the moment, Cathal was outwitted. He thought he had won; and he let Davis go.

Davis fell back from him, and Cathal stooped for the pistol. And he had it safe, and had snapped the cartridges out, when he realized Davis was at the window—12 floors above the street.

There must be for a man still sane, mostly, a second's halt before self-destruction, and so again Cathal caught him.

He clutched him with both arms from behind, and bracing his feet below the window, he pulled Davis back into the room; and then Cathal took no more chances. He let go and regained his feet first; and as Davis stood up, Cathal swung with all his weight in the blow upon Davis' chin.

Davis dropped to the floor on his face.

The office people were pounding at the locked door and shouting for admittance.

"Is Mr. Remble there?" Cathal called through; and when the partner answered: "You come in; keep everybody else out," he unlocked the door, swung it enough to let Remble in, and bolted it once more.

Ken Remble stood gaping, his partner at his feet. The cartridges which Cathal had ejected were scattered on the floor.

"He shot himself!" Ken Remble whispered.

"No," said Cathal. "I took the gun away from him. He's knocked out; that's all."

"Who are you?"

"O'Mara. I'm a lawyer."

"Lawyer?"

"I came here as his friend."

"Oh... What's our move now?"

"Yours," said Cathal, "is to quiet your people. Tell them anything you please; and tell me later. I'll stay with him."

He was alone with Davis again behind the locked door.

Davis sat up dizzily. "What time is it?"

"Time?" said Cathal; and before he brought the desk clock into Davis' sight, he turned the hands. "It's after twelve, Ayreforth," he said. "It's two minutes after noon. Your insurance has expired."

"I didn't do it!" he broke down utterly. "I didn't do it—for her."

Cathal remained with him, in the office, until two o'clock, when he was able to communicate with Robert Glenelth in his office; and Glenelth came for the Dark One's husband and took him home.

That evening, when he arrived at the Linsdales', Cathal received a message to call Miss Glenelth. She would wait for him, Agnes told him, no matter how late it might be before he could come to the house.

It was Agnes who opened the door; and they were alone in the hall.

She spoke to Cathal so quietly that he asked: "He's all right?"

Agnes glanced toward the silent stairs. "Bee's trying to get him to sleep. He wanted to do it—for her."

She caught his hand. "What can I say to you?"

"Nothing," said Cathal, his hand burning from her touch. He wanted to turn his hand and clasp hers; he wanted—how he wanted to draw her to him! But he did not.

"But for you," she whispered, "but for you—" She closed her eyes, and could not finish. Then she looked up at him again. "We've shared some terrible things, you and I, Cathal O'Mara," she said.

"May we share more?"

The burning that had been in his hand was throughout his body. "Not more troubles, I mean!" he said. "Yet, may I have my part in putting them from you, if they are to come?"

Her hand was gone from him, but she was leading him out onto the terrace, where the lights from the house dimly shone. "Do you remember—the lightning?" timidly he asked.

"I remember everything we've done together," she replied with her honest-ness that excited him through.

He was keeping himself from her; carefully, he kept to himself; and she wanted him closer. When he did not move, she did.

CHAPTER XIII

Bee, not yet undressed, lay on the bed beside her husband. He had worn himself out; and the bromide which she had brought him had made him sleepy at last; but she could not sleep.

A car drove away; and Bee crept from the room, closed the door carefully behind her, and waited at the top of the stairs. Agnes did not appear; and there was no sound below. "Agnes! Agnes!" Bee called cautiously; and for a moment she had the fear that her sister had driven away with O'Mara. "Agnes!"

Agnes turned from the door where she had stood since he left her. She heard Bee at last, and looked up and saw her.

She went slowly, almost as if with difficulty; and indeed, difficulties assailed her, but she did not feel them as her own. For herself, she felt no doubt at all. She was defiantly, exultingly sure—of herself, and of him.

"Agnes, what have you done?"

"Done!" said Agnes breathlessly. "What I'll never, never undo—what-ever anybody says. Bee, I've told Cathal O'Mara I'll marry him."

Her sister seized her. "What? . . . Agnes!"

"Yes," whispered Agnes. "I told him. That's what I did. But he fears I don't know what I mean. That's why he's gone away."

"What are you talking about? Come into my room," begged Bee, before she remembered Davis just beyond her door. "No; yours," said said to her sister; and Agnes followed her into her own room.

"Now, tell me," the Dark One commanded.

"For two weeks," said Agnes confusedly, "he means to stay away. We're not to see each other; he won't come here. He won't even call me."

"Why?"

"So I'll have the time to myself to be sure."

"Do you need to be sure?" Bee asked. "Look at me, Agnes! . . . Oh, damn it, you've got it! You've got it! . . . And I never had! And I've my third child within me."

"I've got him yet. I'm glad of that, you know. Don't you? . . . He knows. I've made him know! . . . He tried to kill himself—for me. . . . But you, Agnes, you go ahead! To hell with everything else! Be happy—happy! Happy, I tell you!"

Daylight laid upon Agnes no dismay. Though hours after Bee had returned to Davis, Agnes lay awake; but she had slept at last, to rouse to objects that showed again their sharp edges, to glares and to shadows.

She shut her eyes again and curled to relieve the enjoyment of his arms about her for the moment before he had put her away from him—when, though he held her and she clung to him, his own faith had failed him. For he knew that it must be—it was, in some degree at least, the world of others that they must live in; and no desperate denials of his own, even though she joined in them, could screen that world away.

Jeb called up. And it was strange to talk to him and never to Cathal. Stranger still that he, and never Cathal, came to the house. But she kept herself from Jeb's hands.

Her father was involved again in Davis' affairs; and Jeb again—unknown to Davis, Agnes hoped—was helping him salvage something.

Every other day, it seemed, Cathal's name was in the papers; and always accorded the new respect; for he spoke of men accused, or about to be put on trial, who too recently had ruled.

Queerly and pleasantly, on unsummoned occasions through these long, listless days, she recollected everything he had said to her, from the very first, and with a clarity and completeness as if, at the time, she had memorized it. So on one day—it was the ninth of the ordeal of the fourteen—she recalled how he had told her that his grandfather had died in the Cold Storage fire in the Fair of '93.

It had meant nothing to her; but now she inquired of it; and the next afternoon she was in the Tribune tower, asking to see the files of the paper for July, 1893. So there, upon the brittle and yellowed page, she read his name—Cathal Martin O'Mara; and she read what that Cathal O'Mara, nearly forty years ago, had dared and done, and how he had died. And his wife, who had been young then, had had to look on.

Winnie, that was, Winnie, who had been at the trial!

Agnes went out to a taxi.

"Winnie, on this afternoon, was home alone, as she often was, and especially on the afternoons of Tuesday and Friday, for then she baked. Bread, first, and next cakes.

She timed this baking to the school-bells which, at half-past three, would ring their release to the little girls and boys.

She stirred a great bowl of smooth golden batter, did Winnie, and she poured a scant half of it into the big round tin for the family cake. The bigger half, by far, Winnie turned into her tins of dozens of little cupcakes for the boys and girls. And for them, when they came, she had plenty of milk in the icebox.

She had quarts of it today—quarts beyond the family need. For these were bitter times for them about here, as well as for the rich, or them that had been rich.

So Winnie sat with her huge bowl in her aproned lap, stirring the batter smooth with her big wooden spoon, to be ready once more for the children—boys and girls; and was it strange that it was the little, bold, hungry boys in patched trousers and scuffed shoes who most caught at her heart?

"Go-to-School" Knits and Prints

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

DING-DONG goes the bell that sounds the knell of vacation as it rings in "first day of school."

And again doting mothers are confronted with the problem of planning practical and as attractive as practical school wardrobes for the children of the household, for as every mother knows much of the poise and happiness of little girls in the classroom depend upon the feeling of self confidence which a pretty frock inspires.

To help in this matter of appareling little daughter to a nicely here are two suggestions we have to offer—knits and prints. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say crochets as well as knits for as much crocheting is being done these days as knitting. Simply a matter of choice. To emphasize the vogue for crochets and prints we are showing three as cunning classroom outfits as ever a fond mother might hope to include in a little girl's clothes collection.

See little Miss Twelve posing to the left in the picture arrayed in an ensemble that couldn't be prettier if it tried. It is crocheted in two shades of blue knit-cro-shreen. For the encouragement of would-be crocheters who feel the urge to copy this most attractive outfit we are telling you that the stitch is very simple and goes like lightning when once you get started. The skirt has gores of the lighter blue and the blouse hidden by the scarf is in matching light blue. It has a stylish high neck that closes with a drawstring. There are crocheted buttons to add glamor to the occasion. The cutey-cute bag, the scarf and the hat are crocheted to match.

In a many-piece crocheted outfit as just described, the practical side of the question is self-evident. The blouse, the skirt and the jacket may be worn separately, which means that any number of changes are possible, being just what is a most needful virtue for school togs.

The simplicity and practicality of the blouse-and-skirt two-piece to the right is a big argument in its favor. This crocheted suit for the grammar school Miss is a real find when it comes to appropriate dress for play or for classroom.

The blouse contrasts the dark skirt which is in keeping with the present style trend to bring out striking color effects. The wide sailor collar provides a nautical touch. The gay tassel tie gives a final flourish to this most attractive back-to-school dress which is so easily crocheted of mercerized knitting and crocheted cotton. We almost forgot to mention the crowning glory of these crocheted garments—they wash perfectly and with as little trouble as a gingham, a pique or any wash fabric.

Picture for yourself little daughter clad in a cunning print such as the little girl centered in the picture is wearing. The grand thing about dresses made of the new prints this season is that it is perfectly safe to buy the correct size for no longer does one have to allow for shrinkage. That is, if the fabric is one of the newer prints that are sanforized shrunk. It means a great deal to know that little daughter's gay print frock will not shrink out of fit in tubbing.

In the washgoods sections one finds the cunningest classroom prints imaginable such as fashions the little girl's dress pictured.

FASHION NOTES

Heavy fur trimming is due to appear again on autumn coats and suits.

A heavy-sheer crepe frock in black has a long coat of the same material.

Shadow patterns in blocks, checks and plaids will be popular this fall.

IS LORRAINE DOOMED?

Is Lorraine doomed to become a jerk-water town? Are the Lorraine stores doomed to close their doors and move to a larger town? We do not think anything like that will happen, in fact we know it will not if Lorraine merchants will put forth more effort to keep the business coming here. But we were talking to a Lorraine man recently who is very prominent in Lorraine affairs, who says that very thing is going to happen to Lorraine.

Why a man who holds a very prominent place in our town should want to hang erepe in any such way we do not know. If he thinks in those terms he should keep his mouth shut, fold his tent and quietly steal away to a larger town and turn his positions over to someone who will at least try to assist in making our small town a better one in which to live and prosper. Men who think and talk in these terms are a hindrance to any town.

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. As evidence of good faith inquiries must give their names and addresses, but only their initials will be printed. Address inquiries to Will H. Mays, Austin, Texas.

KANSAS WOMAN ASKS FOR A COMPARISON OF VALUES

"I see that the people of Goodland gave a parade in honor of the Landon nomination," said Mrs. Brack of Onaga in a communication published in the Clay Center (Kansas) Economist. "I am wondering when your people are going to give a 'blow-out' to the man who has kept the town of Goodland (and many other towns) on the map for the last three and a half years."

"Don't think I don't know whereof I speak. I was (note the was) a Republican all my life. I voted for Hoover."

"During the last Republican administration we hauled our wheat to your Cannon Grain Co. in Goodland and your other elevators for the magnificent sum of 22 to 28 cents a bushel—delivered. How do you suppose we met expenses? You are right. We didn't."

"When we drove across our State at that time our highways were so filled with hitch-hikers and bums that one could hardly venture with safety on the road. Then Franklin D. Roosevelt took the helm of our floundering ship and brought us a new dawn. He took the bank situation in hand three hours after he was inaugurated. What was Landon doing three hours after he became our governor—and since?"

"It was Roosevelt who saw to it that prompt help was provided for the farmers. Wheat checks, corn and hog checks kept us from giving up and going under. "While you boost for the honor of a 'native son,' let's not forget to boost for the man who did things."

WEEKLY HEALTH LETTER

Austin, September 14—One of the outstanding benefits of the allocation of Social Security funds to the State Department of Health, as pointed out recently by Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, is the possibility of broadening the program of County Health Units. Although there had previously been established and maintained only seven county health units within the State, the results of their work have proved the value of the organizations and disclosed the need for health units in other Texas counties.

The first county health unit in the nation was established in 1911 in Yakima County, Washington, following an epidemic of typhoid fever that attracted the attention of the United States Public Health Service. Recommendations were made for the establishment of a health organization, with a full time physician in charge, and with a public health nurse, and a sanitary inspector. The Rockefeller Sanitary Commission, in its campaign for hookworm control at the same time, became interested and found that permanent county organizations were needed to carry on the work. The Commission made temporary grants to certain counties for development of county health units, and later the Public Health Service received appropriations for extending the benefits of this plan of service to counties.

Under the plan of the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation funds were allotted to Texas in 1917, combined with State funds, and a program administered through the State Department of Health. Five field units were formed at that time and they have done excellent work in promoting community health, Dr. Brown said.

Under the provisions of the Social Security Act it is possible to form new health units in Texas through the State Department of Health with counties furnishing a portion of funds necessary, and State and Federal governments completing the sum.

Goodbye, Mr. Gloom!

... We're a jolly bunch of renegades ... our sole purpose in life is to give Old Man Gloom the gate and usher in Mr. Sunshine by way of a million laughs. Turn to the Funny Page in every issue and let us help dispel those troubles!

• No man can really live by bread alone. Yes, we admit he'll EXIST, but there will be heavy lines of care running down his face, he'll forget how to smile.

• Verily, we humans need a few hearty guffaws now and then to chase away those wrinkles of care and give our spirits a lift. That's why this newspaper runs a collection of laugh-provoking comic strips on the Funny Page. Amid the depressing news of floods and earthquakes, crime and war, economic troubles and a host of other maladjustments on the face of Mr. World, it's a pleasant relaxation to shut your eyes on the day's bad tidings.

• You can get a joyful lift in spirits from the comics. We invite our readers to take a big swallow of this bottled sunshine. Turn to the Funny Page right now and forget your troubles!

• Our comic characters are a versatile lot, as you'll notice by glancing down the accompanying panel. If you want to chuckle over real troubles, turn to C. M. Payne's strip "S'Matter Pop," and see what a whale of an order he has to keep those boys of his under control ... Or glance at the adventures of the intellectual Adamson, as drawn by O. Jacobson.

• Something that will truly draw tears—of laughter—are Gluyas Williams' mischievous but lovable youngsters, Junior and the Baby ... Then there's "Finney of the Force," by Ted O'Loughlin, as comical and as true-to-life as an Irishman as ever slipped a night stick ... Life out in Cactus Center, as described in S. L. Huntley's "Mescal Ike," has its exciting moments when its rip-roaring citizens are on the loose ... And when it comes to "The Featherheads," by Osborne, they speak for themselves. In fact, that's the best thing they do!

• Let these bearers of fun whittle your blues down to size. Toss trouble right out the window and get a new lease on life through the comic page—turn to it right now!

COMMUNITY SUNDAY SCHOOL

J. M. Neely, teacher of the mission Sunday School class at the home of J. W. Burrier, reports that fifteen were present for the opening of the school last Sunday. He reports a good service and is inviting all who are not attending any church school to attend the class. Mr. Neely says he is teaching no doctrine and urges anyone with any or no church affiliation to come to his class. He is to lecture next Sunday on the importance of Sunday School.

A "round-up" meeting of preachers and laymen of the Sweetwater district, held at Colorado Monday, was well attended. Rev. Sam H. Young, presiding elder, acted as president. Reports of preachers indicated that finances were unusually well for a drouth year.

At noon a luncheon was served in the basement of the First Church, Colorado, by women of the church.

SEVENTY PERCENT OF TEXAS CROP LAND SIGNED UP IN NEW PROGRAM

College Station—Seventy per cent of all crop land in Texas is accounted for in the 243,000 work sheets covering about 355,000 of the 501,000 Texas farms and ranches, according to H. H. Williamson, director of the Extension Service, in a summary of the Soil Conservation work of the Extension Service, presented at a meeting of the staff September 4. These figures represent approximately 2,000,000 acres of the 35,000,000 acres of crop land in the State.

These work sheets include a statement of previous land use on the farms and ranches covered by them as well as plans for shifting land out of soil-erosive crops into soil-conserving crops and practices. Tabulation of the work sheet figures indicates that at least 3,800,000 acres on Texas farms and ranches are now being devoted to soil rebuilding.

This is the first time in the history of Texas, Williamson stated, that farmers and ranchmen have made such a full analysis of the land use practices prevailing in the State. As a result many farmers and ranchmen are shifting to plans which definitely include soil building. The conservation program offers a chance to make the needed changes with aid from the Government in recognition that soil loss is a national problem.

According to estimates made by workers in the agricultural program there are indications that terracing, contouring, strip cropping, and other such practices to prevent soil losses will be applied to about 3,000,000 acres of Texas crop land in 1936.

Figures taken from annual reports of the Service from 1916, including 1935, show a total of 9,065,857 acres of Texas land terraced or contoured, Williamson said.

In addition to that 1,703,740 acres of land have lately been contoured listed in the wind erosion area of Northwest Texas. In this work the Extension Service had the cooperation of the Soil Conservation Service, the Resettlement Administration, and other agencies, Williamson stated.

Admirers Shower Major With Gifts

Major Bowes of amateur fame and part of his famous collection of "range bonnets," gifts from his Texas admirers.

Hand made, hand engraved gongs are only part of the unique collection of gifts from admiring friends that have poured in to Major Edward Bowes, America's Number One honored citizen.

During the past two years, as radio listeners know, every Bowes broadcast has resulted in the Major being made an honorary something or other. He is the police chief and the fire marshal of more towns than probably any other man in the country. In Texas he is captain of the Texas Rangers besides being an honorary member of the Governor's staff, a member of the Texas Centennial and the possessor of an unusually fine collection of ten gallon Stetsons or range bonnets as they are called in the Lone Star State.

In fact it has become such a steady practice for the Texas admirers of the Major to express their admiration with a gift of a typical Texas hat, and so many orders were sent in to the Stetson factory in Philadelphia from dealers for "special hats for the Major" that the manufacturer sent a representative to New York with a head measuring machine, to insure a perfect fit for the ten gallon chapeaux intended to grace the Bowes' brow.

A Westerner himself Major Bowes knows his "John B's" and while they are too conspicuous for Broadway appearances, he keeps them carefully wrapped in cellophane at the top of his trophy cabinet in his New York office, against the time when he can head West and rough it out in the country he knows and loves so well.

Secretary-treasurer-reporter; and Mrs. Ida McCollum was elected as assistant teacher to "Mocking Bird" Miles. The business meeting was then closed with a benediction by Mr. Miles.

Immediately following the class meeting the class gathered for a social hour. Mocking Bird Miles and son, W. A. gave several special song numbers that were especially enjoyable, then numerous games were played that created much fun and excitement. Jokes, ghost stories and yarns told also proved to be very interesting. Mrs. Ida McCollum, our former teacher, was known to be the best yarn teller and was presented with a box of beautiful and useful gifts as a prize. Mrs. McCollum has been a good and faithful teacher of the class several years and she greatly appreciated the gift shower that was given as a token of love and appreciation.

Following the social hour those present were served refreshments of iced tea and spiced cookies. After each one expressed what a wonderful time they had had, the jolly group disbanded until the regular time for another class social.

Reporter.

The local Methodist church is winding up the conference year. The pastor leaves for conference at Houston Nov. 3 and assignment of pastors for another year will be made Nov. 8.

"It is hoped that we may have a good report on that occasion," said the pastor, Rev. Hamilton Wright. "Our finances are considerably behind, but with every Methodist doing his part, we should be able to render a good report at the body."

All persons desiring to bring the budget up should leave their offerings with T. K. Bennett, secretary.

UNIVERSALLY POPULAR

The "Sunday School Lesson" published each week in this newspaper has been adopted by thousands of church instructors throughout the United States as a regular part of their weekly work.

It is a review and exposition of the international lesson for each week, prepared by Dean Harold L. Lundquist of the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago, a recognized leader in the nation's church work. Dean Lundquist has been active in teaching youthful groups for years, thereby acquiring an insight into the needs of these people for understandable explanations of Bible passages.

In view of his accomplishments in church work, it is not surprising that Dean Lundquist's exposition of the weekly Sunday School lesson is being used in almost every community of the nation. As teacher or student you will find it extremely helpful.

Caveman Style

A woman who was having a house built detected one of the bricklayers halving the bricks with his trowel. With a triumphant gleam in her eyes she approached him swiftly and said: "Isn't that rather a primitive way of cutting a brick in half?" The man looked up, smiled and said: "Lor' bless yer dear heart, lidy, there's a far more primitive way than this, believe me." "Really, and what's that?" she inquired. "Biting it, lidy, biting it."

Cards Tumble Sign Possibly Gang Has Underrated Rivals

HAS the same sad fate which overtook our own Polo Grounds front runners for a pair of seasons caught up with the once proud Gas House Gangsters?

Definitely—for all that they were well aware of their pitching frailties—the Cards all along have been vocally confident they were the class of the circuit. When, now and then, they labored through an unfortunate series it did not seem to distress them. They merely shouted that this could be charged up to what Dizzy Dean terms "sperminin" and then moved on to the next address.

In quieter moments all of them—manager and batboy—confided that they looked forward to the waning days of the season. Then, when experimenting had gone quite far enough, they expected to turn on so much heat that even Manhattan clients would be panicked into grudging applause.

They spoke with such great—and apparently quite honest—unconcern about the future that there is little wonder even the Giants believed them early in July. Even now—as one who picked them at the start and has abode with them in happy confidence ever since—I cannot believe they were up to some of their old sly tricks on a faithful follower.

Now that they have undoubtedly fulfilled the letter of their prophecies by turning on the heat and causing previously timid men and maids of Manhattan to indulge in ecstatic patty-cakings, I cannot believe that such miracle-working mortals were guilty of double-talking all the while.

So far as I am concerned they could scarcely have known that their boisterous antics would so sorely enrage the Boston and Pittsburgh peasants that the heat would come from such directions. Neither could they have had any inkling that the Manhattan merriment could be partly occasioned by the support they recently have been giving to one of the most amazing teams of recent seasons.

Instead, it seems that Frankie Frisch and his followers under-rated their adversaries. In spite of the fact that several St. Louis pennants have been won by mad drives down the home stretch, they seemed to feel that they never could be so sadly overtaken, as were the Giants and Cubs of other too recent seasons. So they were caught improperly arrayed for meeting visitors who sneaked upon them just as upon the Giants of a season back.

There are several reasons why the Cards still may be fortunate in the pennant chase. One of them is that the Giants started their spurt early and from very far back and so may be halted by the law of averages. Another is that there are men, especially pitchers, who can quickly be brought in from the farms, if Braden and Rickey decide to risk a minor league pennant for the sake of a big-time success. The third, and probably best, reason is that the Cards are a set of husky, hard-bitten athletes. Only the Yankees, formed out of a very similar mold, have previously seemed able to recover as quickly from adversity. That ability to rise above defeat is most important in a flag chase. In fact, no team without this quality ever won a pennant.

Success in baseball often is almost entirely a matter of spirit. When the Braves came from the bottom to accomplish their 1914 miracle, they scarcely believed what was happening until almost at the finish. Then, when the going might have been tough, they were sustained by the conviction that, no matter how good opponents might seem to be, their own luck was considerably better. So they felt they had nothing to worry about and devoted their best efforts to playing baseball.

Somewhat the same thing happened to the Cubs last fall and to the Cards in 1934, although in both cases the short space of remaining time and utter collapse of a rival had much to do with the result. Indeed, several Cub stars quite frankly admitted that all along they felt it merely was a beautiful dream and only woke up when they found the Tigers whaling the merry blue blues out of them in the World Series.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

MRS. JOHNNY COONEY sings in the same high-class manner that her husband snags those line drives in the Brooklyn outfield. Pat Malone says that Tony Lazzeri is the smartest player with whom he ever has teamed. Johnny Evers once stole third base with a broken leg. He doubled to left, slid into the bag and came up limping. After that he went down to third and shortly thereafter discovered that a bone had been broken in his ankle.

What with salaries, the track's cut, etc., it costs the average ring book $1,200 a week to operate on New York courses. Because they pay higher salaries, the clubhouse nobles have a nut of close to $350 a day while the field hands need $63 for expenses each afternoon. Practically the only big fight Arthur Donovan has missed refereeing in New York during the past 30 months was the Baer-Braddock upset. Baer's advance squawk kept him out of that one. When viewed from a few yards away Elmer Voight, pro at Sunningdale, is almost a ringer for Paul Runyan. All of which helps explain the almost hopeless confusion of galleries at the recent Westchester amateur tourney. While playing in the same foursome, Runyan, who usually wears a hat, went bareheaded and Voight wore the type of hat Runyan usually affects.

Schmeling First Trained for Advertising Career

Max Schmeling put in three years learning the advertising business in Germany before he

Max Schmeling average bank roll of $5,000 to $7,500, if they operate in the main ring. Since the law does not permit bonding gamblers, the satchel slingers do not have to be annoyed by red tape. They go into action as soon as some responsible person has okayed them with the authorities. The picture of a celebrated tennis star is displayed on an equally celebrated transatlantic liner with the caption, "Hellen Mills Mody."

Would anybody like to bet about where you get the big news first? Six months ago (and at least four times between that date and the Schmeling-Braddock postponement) this writer definitely advised readers there would be no heavyweight championship bout this year. Secretary of State (N. Y.) Eddie Flynn and Mike Jacobs, the pugilistic impresario, have one habit in common. When they make notes and then slip the papers into the sweat lands of their hats you know there is no chance of their forgetting. There is very little wonder that the ambitious Dick Bartell loses so many of those diamond spats. Even when sparring in the dugout the Giants' mite forgets the first fight principle and leads with his right.

Bullet Berkholtz, Ohio State soph, is being tabbed as the new star of the Big Ten football firmament. They say he is a triple threat ace and one of the best ball carriers in years. Black Hat McCarty, the turf historian, once ran a buck bet up into a $25,000 score in 10 racing days. The U. S. Football association plans to be well fixed for soccer players when the 1940 Olympics come along.

In spite of the advance furor concerning Bill Lynch, Princeton's soph fullback, teammates claim that Larry Taylor, his sub, will be the real Tiger star. They say Lynch is weak on pass defense and other such items even though he is a whale at lugging the ball. Horse players are not the only persons who get the old oil from owners. Many trainers feed olive oil to their gee-gees.

Jim Braddock is not the only member of the firm of Braddock and Gould to pull up lame. Gould is nursing a sore left knee as the result of unwisely sliding into second base while trying to achieve greater glory for good old Evans Lock Sheldrake. Four major league ball clubs are planning to do their spring training outside the United States. The Athletics will establish their base at Mexico City, the Cincinnati Reds in Porto Rico, and the Cardinals and Giants in Havana. The last thoroughbred George Phillips saddled recently before he was indefinitely ruled off the turf at Saratoga was named Go Home. Jerry Conroy, member of Jimmy Braddock's publicity staff, is said to be the best baseball player in the fight business. Jerry is a southpaw, plays first base and can hit a Babe Ruth. Pop Ryan, who used to manage fighters more than a decade ago, owns a restaurant and grill on Eighth avenue in the fifties. Billy Hogan, Gus Wilson's lightweight protegee, isn't going to rely on his ring earnings in the future. Billy opened a beer pub in Sparkill, N. Y., and is doing a bit of all right. Irish Eddie Brink, Scranton battler, is an orchestra leader-crooner in his home town when there are no fights to be had—Crooning is an easier way to make a living. Eddie.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for September 20

CHRISTIAN LIVING

LESSON TEXT—Romans 12:1-3, 9-12. GOLDEN TEXT—Christ liveth in me. —Galatians 2:20. PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus Wants His Friends to Act. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Explains How to Act. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What is Christian Living? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Live as a Christian.

As a fitting conclusion to a three-month study of the Spread of Christianity to the gentile peoples of Western Asia, we consider the teaching of the great apostle to the Gentiles concerning "Christian Living."

The early chapters of Paul's epistle to the Romans present the greatest exposition of profound Christian doctrine ever written. But even as it is true that the fruit of Christian living can grow only on the tree of Christian doctrine, it is equally true that the knowledge of Christian truth should result in Christian living. "Faith without works is dead."

Our lesson pointedly presents the true Christian life as being

I. A Life Yielded to God (Rom. 12:1-3).

A recognition and deep appreciation of the mercies of God leads to a yielding of body and mind in living sacrifice to God. If we are Christians our bodies are the temples of the Holy Spirit. We must not lend our bodies to activities which destroy their usefulness or hinder our service for God but rather yield the body with all its abilities to God.

But after all "it is the inside of a man that counts." The presenting of the body in living sacrifice is possible only when there has been the inner transformation by the renewing of the mind. One cannot live physically without being born; it is equally impossible to live a Christian life without having been born again.

The Christian life is yielded to God not only for its own peace and satisfaction, but it is to be

II. A Life of Service (vv. 9-15). We are not saved by serving but we are saved to serve.

In the first place the Christian serves the Lord. He abhors evil, but his life is not merely negative, for he cleaves to that which is good. He is not lazy, but diligent. His spirit is aglow with zeal for God and his cause. He is full of joy and hope, patient under trials, a man of steadfastness in prayer.

Such a man will not fail to serve his fellow-man. He will really love the brethren, not merely make a hypocritical show of loving them. He will seek the honor of others rather than his own glory. He will be given to the almost lost art of hospitality. He will be ready to stand by his brother, in the day of joy or of sorrow. He will go even further, for he will bless those that persecute him.

The measure is not yet full for we note next that the Christian lives—

III. A Life of Humility (v. 16). In these days when we are urged to assert ourselves, to demand our rights, to "succeed" at any cost, and when men are measured by their worldly achievements, it sounds rather old-fashioned to talk about humility, about condescending to lowly things, of not being "wise in our own conceits."

But humility is still the crowning grace of a truly Christian life. Those who follow the lowly Jesus, in fact as well as in profession, are still strongest when they are weak, and mightiest for God when they are humble.

Note also that we follow a victorious Christ who calls us to

IV. A Life of Victory (vv. 17-21). It is possible to talk much about the victorious life—to discuss it at length as a theological question—and have little real victory.

Paul speaks plainly. The Christian is honorable in all things. He meets every obligation. He is a man of peace. He is not concerned with avenging himself upon one who has done him wrong. Spite fences, boundary disputes, family quarrels, are not for him. Evil is not to overcome him. God gives the victory.

A great lesson, and one that we cannot study without some disquieting thought. Christian, how does your life and mine appear as they are held up to the mirror of God's Word? Let us make a covenant that by God's grace and power we shall go forward in real "Christian living."

A Human Being There cannot be a more glorious object in creation than a human being, replete with benevolence, meditating in what manner he might render himself more acceptable to his Creator by doing most good to his creatures.—Fielding.

Visions of Better Life It is well to have visions of a better life than that of every day, but it is the life of every day from which elements of a better life must come.—Maeterlinck.

Shirtwaister for School Girl

Here is the frock for juniors to make for school days. A combination of rhythm in its hemline, rhyme in its color scheme and racy in its style. For late summer wear, try tub silk, linen, cotton or shantung with long or short sleeves. For autumn and winter—"tweedy" silk crepe or broadcloth.

The waist, gathered slightly to the shoulder yoke front and back, has a center pleat and pockets for trimming. Buttons—a matter of choice. A small collar, tie, and belt complete this most effective frock. By way of suggestion, make the collar and cuffs in contrast, and detachable to be readily removed for laundering.

Supreme Court Justices

Congress may, by statute, change the number of Justices on the Supreme Court and if that number is enlarged the President could appoint new members, with the consent of the Senate. But without such authority the President has no power to appoint members unless there is a vacancy caused by death, resignation, or retirement of one of the present members of the Court.

BAUMAN HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

"Honey as an Energy Food"
Honey may be used in place of sugar in fruit breads and candies as was demonstrated by Miss Emma Gunter, Mitchell Co. home demonstration agent, to the Bauman Home Demonstration Club members which met with Mrs. Ernest Meadows September 9 at 2:30 p. m.

Honey adds a delicious flavor to foods and since it is almost 100 per cent carbohydrates, it provides energy and is easily digested. Farmers should be able to provide enough honey for home use at little expense and dispose of the surplus at a profit. Honey, banana nut bread was made and served to the club members. Fruit breads are very suitable for school lunches and provide energy for growing children. Mrs. Jim Lee was appointed as honey cookery demonstrator.

A demonstration was given on table setting and table manners. Nine club members and Miss Gunter were present. Mrs. Burdett Lee was a new member.

The club will meet September 23 at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Jesse Lee. Club members will work on bath mats. Visitors and new members are cordially invited. Reporter

History in the MAKING

That is what is covered in our Weekly News Review feature each week. It is an interpretation of the events of each week that are making the history of the nation and the world. It is prepared by Edward W. Pickard, one of the highly trained newspaper observers of the nation, and syndicated to a limited number of newspapers in the different states. It is the best feature of this character that goes to American readers from any source. You can make it the foundation of your discussion of world events with friends.
