Clock runs out; no budget deal

■ Late-night talks fail to break impasse. Government skids toward almost-certain shutdown.

President Clinton signs his veto of a temporary borrowing bill in the Oval Office Monday. He accused the GOP of prompting the budget impasse.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government skidded toward a shutdown that would send 800,000 federal workers home after President Clinton and Republican leaders failed to reach a budget deal in late-night talks Monday.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry said it was virtually certain the government would begin closing this morning. As much as 40 percent of the federal work force could be idled in the first government shutdown in five years.

"There's no continuing resolution and no funding authority to keep the United States government operating," he said. He dismissed any suggestion that Republicans could rush a bill through early in the day to avert a shutdown. "There's no basis to believe that's going to happen."

In the effort to avoid a shutdown, Clinton met with lawmakers for an hour and 40 minutes Monday night in the Cabinet Room at the request of GOP leaders. Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole said they "went around and around but we don't have an agreement."

Dole said the talks would continue this morning, with White House chief of staff Leon Panetta meeting with House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich and his Senate counter-

Who's essential

Up to 800,000 federal workers would stay home in a government shutdown. Those deemed "essential" would work, but would be paid only after a spending bill passes. What Americans can expect:

Essential	Non-essential
In the air Air-traffic controllers will be on the job as usual.	Good luck getting off the ground: Passport offices will only accept emergency cases.
In the kitchen Meat and poultry inspectors will be working.	You might not be able to stock the kitchen if you're relying on government aid. New food stamp recipients won't be accepted.
For veterans Hospitals will remain staffed.	No veterans will be added to the compensation rolls.
Justice for all? Criminal investigations will continue.	Most civil cases will be postponed.
Passing time Federal prison guards remain on the job.	Recreation grounds to a halt: national parks, monuments won't be staffed. And no White House tours.
To your health The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention will run health inspections of cruise ships that dock in U.S. ports.	But the group's system for tracking flu cases will shut down.

Some federal workers in basin may face unplanned furloughs

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

With President Clinton locked in an arm wrestling match with the Republican-controlled Congress, some Midland federal workers face time off without pay.

Without the passage and signing of a budget bill, or stopgap bill to provide funding in the short term, much of the federal government was unable to continue operations by the start of business this morning.

Rhetoric was plentiful in Washington Monday, but as the day's debate neared its close, no federal spending bill was to be found.

In the absence of such a bill, some local federal office personnel are home on an unplanned and unpaid vacation.

"We won't be here," said an employee with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service in Midland. "They have told us to watch TV.... They told us not to report for duty (if a spending bill is not

U.S. could lose money, not save it, by keeping employees home

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 800,000 workers stay home. No one answers the IRS hot line or gives White House tours. Even garbage collection pauses in the nation's capital. Sounds like a government shutdown would save the United States some money.

No, it would probably cost millions. Even hundreds of millions.

Shutting down the elephantine U.S. government isn't cheap or easy. For one thing, many jobs — from manning military bases to cooking for the president — are considered too important to suspend. So 60 percent of the 2.1 million civilians in the federal work force would remain on the job.

Employees whose work isn't considered essential, including those who answer calls to the IRS and Social Security hot lines and staff museums and monuments, would be sent home. But traditionally, Congress has awarded them back pay for time

As anxiety replaces anger, GOP bears brunt, poll finds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The voter anger that spurred the Republican revolution is turning to anxiety, splitting the new GOP coalition and energizing Democrats, according to a broad new study of American opinion.

Discontented Americans pin much of the blame for their worries on Congress and little on President Clinton, the Times Mirror Center for The People & The Press found in a survey released Monday.

"Congress has become the focal point of people's complaints, even among Republicans," said poll director Andrew Kohut. "As for Bill Clinton, the buck isn't stopping there."

Fears about major expenses including health care, college tuition, housing and retirement have risen significantly across the political spectrum in the past 18 months, according to the telephone survey of 2,000 adults nationwide conducted

Police seize huge marijuana cache

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

A routine traffic stop Saturday resulted in uncovering — literally — 2,000 pounds of marijuana in a dump truck, according to a Department of Public Safety official.

"Marijuana was located underneath the dirt being transported in the dump truck," said DPS Trooper Sally Arredondo.

Charged with possession of the drug were the two occupants of the vehicle: Alexander Rodriguez, 25, and Guillermo Mendoza Jr., 27, both of Odessa, DPS officials said. Both posted $20,000 bonds Sunday and were released from jail, according to Midland County jail officials.

The two men were stopped while driving a 1980 Ford dump truck northbound on Highway 349 about five miles south of Midland just before 5 p.m. Saturday, DPS officials said.

The stop was for a routine Department of Transportation (DOT) inspection by a DPS trooper with the license and weight

6th annual Thanksgiving fete is set for Chap Center

From Staff Reports

Best-selling author and lecturer Steve Farrar is scheduled to be the keynote speaker at the sixth annual Community Thanksgiving Celebration 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Midland College's Chaparral Center.

The event, a program of prayer and praise, is an ecumenical outreach of the Golf Course Road Church of Christ.

"We are extremely pleased to have Dr. Farrar with us, especially since he will be conducting his Men's Leadership Conference on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 17 and 18, at our church building," said Randy Fenter, the church's pulpit minister.

"The record attendance for last year's address by Peter Marshall confirms that the seating capacity at Chaparral Center will be necessary to accommodate what promises to be an even larger audience this year," Fenter said.

Farrar, president of Men's Leadership Ministries in Dallas, holds graduate degrees from California State University at Fullerton and Western Seminary in Portland, Ore., and earned a doctorate from Dallas Theological Seminary.

His men's conferences are based on material found in two highly acclaimed books, "Point Man: How a Man can Lead his Family," and "Standing Tall: How a Man Can Protect His Family."

WACO, Ky. — A smooth-talking drifter suspected of strangling or stabbing at least four women in a cross-country killing spree was captured Monday after leading police on a 100-mph chase. Peres vows to press for peace; PLO takes over Jenin

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel handed over the West Bank town of Jenin to PLO rule a week early Monday, in a sign of Prime Minister Shimon Peres' determination to pursue and even accelerate his slain predecessor's peace policies.

Peres met with his main right-wing rival Monday and the two promised to restore "restraint and civility" to the bitter political debate that cost Yitzhak Rabin his life.

Thousands of Palestinians lined the streets of Jenin to welcome arriving busloads of PLO troops as Israel's army pulled out under the autonomy accord that Rabin signed with Yasser Arafat in September at the White House.

The move indicated Peres may press even more vigorously than Rabin toward a final Palestinian settlement and peace with Syria. That could require Israel to give up the strategic Golan Heights, captured in a 1967 war.

"We must continue with the peace process. This is what Yitzhak wanted," Peres told the Knesset, Israel's parliament, at a special session to honor Rabin. "We will make a deep, truthful decision."

Addressing a plenum that was full except for Rabin's empty seat, Peres said: "Only a difficult choice for our generation will (enable) a democratic and Jewish Israel for the next."

"There is no peace for free."

A unanimous vote by more than 1,000 members of the ruling Labor Party's central committee gave Peres the go-ahead Monday evening to form a new government.

Finance Minister Avraham Shohat said Peres, widely seen as the true architect of peace with the Palestinians, is "the best qualified person the Labor Party has."

Peres was likely to promote Interior Minister Ehud Barak to foreign minister, the No. 2 position in the Cabinet, party sources said. Barak, a popular and articulate former army chief who is Israel's most-decorated soldier, would give the Peres Cabinet the kind of security credentials that enabled Rabin — who led Israel's army to victory in 1967 — to take risks for peace.

Peres has strong political support for his return to the position he held in 1984-1986. Even the Likud opposition has pledged tacit consent when he presents his government to the Knesset.

Rabin's slaying sparked an outpouring of national grief and, according to polls, at least temporarily galvanized public support for the peace process and the government.

On Sunday night, about 250,000 Israelis gathered in the newly-renamed Yitzhak Rabin Square in Tel Aviv, where he was gunned down at a rally Nov. 4, to sing peace songs and honor the warrior-turned-peacemaker.

Right-wing leaders had branded Rabin a traitor and oppressor for trading land for peace, leading to charges they inspired his assassin. After the killing, they took pains to tone down the rhetoric.

"This debate must continue for the sake of Israeli democracy, but ... within the bounds of restraint and civility," Likud head Benjamin Netanyahu said Monday after meeting with Peres in Jerusalem.

Netanyahu said extremists like confessed assassin Yigal Amir have "nothing to do with the mainstream political parties in Israel."

Amir will be charged with first-degree murder within 10 days, Israel television reported Monday.

Amir insists he acted alone when he killed Rabin. But police suspect he was part of a group that plotted the assassination for more than a year. At least six suspects in addition to Amir, all religious men in their 20s, are under arrest.

On Monday, a Tel Aviv judge ordered 23-year-old Ohad Skornick, a friend of Amir, held for three more days.

U.S.-backed pact to boost Bosnia's federation so far a one-way street

TRAVNIK, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The U.S.-backed agreement to strengthen Bosnia's federation of Muslim and Croats, in part by allowing refugees to return home, is so far a one-way street.

Niko Rajic, an ethnic Croat, says he feels "born again" after returning home to this central Bosnian town of mosques and minarets after two years as a refugee.

The homecoming was less than joyous for Rahima Omerbegovic, a Muslim refugee who now has to vacate Rajic's house. She is on the move again, but not homeward to Croat-held Jajce, where authorities are still keeping Muslims out.

Under last week's accord strengthening the Muslim-Croat federation, 300 Muslim families are supposed to return to Croat-controlled Jajce and Stolac while 300 Croat families move back to Bugojno and Travnik, towns controlled by the Muslim-led Bosnian government.

The federation is a cornerstone of U.S. peace efforts, and U.S. diplomats say the return of refugees is a litmus test of its ability to function.

Bosnian officials in Travnik say 122 families have registered to return home, and the town hall lobby was packed Monday with more applicants. So far, local authorities say, 35 Croat families have either moved back to their old homes or are about to move in.

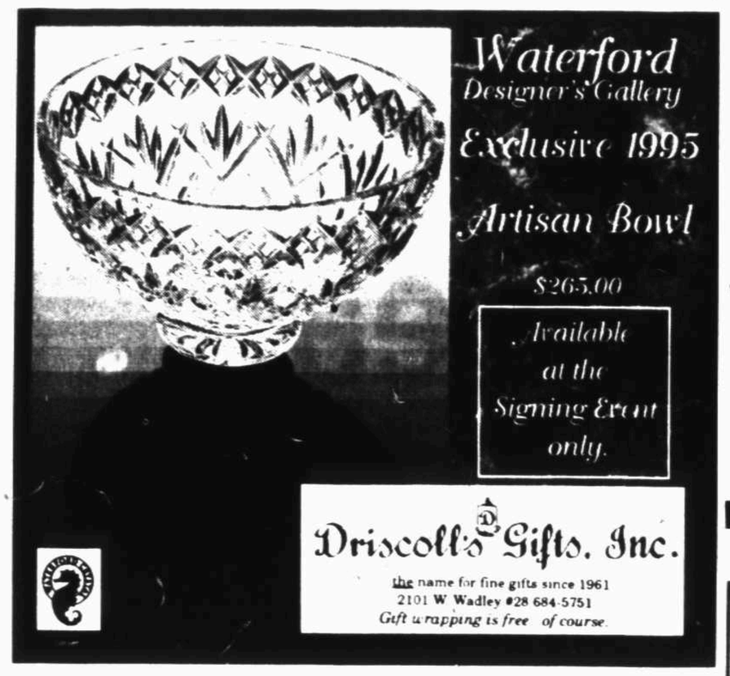

Bosnian officials in Bugojno have also taken the first steps to allow Croats back, though more hesitantly.

Croats, however, are not acting in kind.

Bosnia's Croats and Muslims fought for a year, even as each battled the Serbs, before joining in a federation in March 1994. Expulsions of civilians from other ethnic groups were a hallmark of their war as they have been throughout Bosnia.

The federation foundered for a year on mutual distrust. And despite last week's accord in Dayton, Ohio, much tension remains.

In Croat-controlled Jajce, for example, Muslims are still being kept out of town, in suburbs that amount to ghettos.

Mr. Weather sees sun, high in mid-60s

Staff Report

Today's forecast is mostly sunny with a high in the mid-60s, and winds south 5-15 mph, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight's forecast is fair with a low near 40, the NWS said.

Wednesday's forecast is mostly sunny and warmer with a high near 70.

After an overnight low of 48, yesterday's high was 77, compared to the record high of 84, set in 1989. The record low for today's date is 15, set in 1976.

STATE

A weak cool front pushed across Texas on Monday, shifting winds from the south to the north. Skies were sunny to partly cloudy statewide.

Temperatures ahead of the front warmed into the 80s but remained cool in the Panhandle. At 3 p.m., readings ranged from 57 degrees at Dalhart to 89 near Del Rio.

Winds were northerly at 10 to 20 mph behind the front and from the southwest at 5 to 10 mph ahead of it.

The North Texas forecast is for continued fair skies and cool to mild temperatures. Highs today should be from 58 to 64 with overnight lows of 38 to 46.

South Texas is expected to be sunny and cooler. Highs will be in the 60s and 70s with lows in the 40s and 50s.

Forecasters said West Texas will be clear and cool through Wednesday. Highs today in the 60s in the Panhandle to mid-80s in the Big Bend. Lows mainly in the 30s and 40s.

NATION

Cold air rushed across the eastern third of the nation Monday and a new round of stormy weather took aim at the East Coast.

Monday morning temperatures fell to the freezing mark as far south as Georgia and Alabama.

Along the East Coast, Atlantic City, N.J., tied its record for the date with a low of 22 degrees, and a scattering of snow flakes flew in the afternoon in the New York City area.

At the heart of the cold air mass, International Falls, Minn., tied its record with a low of 12 below zero.

The cold wave was expected to continue for several days across most of the East with freezing temperatures possible as far south as the Florida Panhandle on Wednesday.

A weather system that produced scattered showers Monday over parts of the Tennessee Valley was expected to intensify, carrying widespread rain and snow showers from the Southeast to New England.

OFF: Repayment to workers is not guaranteed

(From 1A)

passed)," she said.

It is unclear whether all Internal Revenue Service workers will be sent home, but officials have said that telephones will not be answered at IRS offices if funding is halted.

Without a spending bill, Social Security offices and most government assistance and information lines will be out of service, but other government services regarded as essential will remain open. In addition, Soicial Security checks will be delivered, though new recipients won't be signed up during the shutdown period.

"We will be coming in regardless if they have any money for us or not," said a spokesman for the National Weather Service in Midland.

Being part of the military, local recruiting offices likely will remain open. "Obviously the military guys can't go home," said U.S. Army spokesman Gene Allen in Dallas. "They might miss two or three days pay until they work this thing out," he said.

Federal officers also are considered essential, so local FBI, Secret Service and U.S. Marshals will be on the job today.

Federal courts and court personnel also are considered essential and will be conducting business even in the absence of funding.

Being essentially a separate entity, the U.S. Postal Service will be conducting business as usual today, according to Dan Formen, supervisor of customer service at the Midland Post Office.

The Postal Service is not funded through the federal budget, Formen explained. "As far as I can tell, this won't affect us in any way," he said.

The Department of Veteran Affairs, including the Vietnam Veterans Counseling Outreach Center in Midland, "is considered direct care," according to a spokesman at the local office. "We'll be here," he said.

In the past, Congress decided to repay those workers caught in the middle of budget battles. However, with this shutdown expected to cost hundreds of millions of dollars more than the normal running of the government, this repayment is not guaranteed.

POLL: Voter concerns cost Republicans support

(From 1A)

Oct. 25-30.

And those concerns appear to be costing Republicans support among independents, a swing voting bloc that helped vault the GOP to control of Congress in 1994.

Clinton, meanwhile, gets stronger support in the new poll from all kinds of Democrats than GOP congressional leaders do from all but the most fiscally conservative Republicans.

Other recent national polls also have found public sentiment shifting away from the Republican Congress and rising approval ratings for Clinton amid sharp debate over Medicare and other elements of the GOP's balanced-budget proposals.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich says GOP leaders haven't paid much attention to the polls because the results are skewed by the Democrats' "totally false" charges about Republicans' budget ideas.

"When people learn the facts, they are overwhelmingly for our budget, and we're convinced that over the next six or eight months, they'll learn the facts," Gingrich said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Overall, 42 percent of respondents rated Congress favorably and 55 percent unfavorably. That's almost an exact reversal from the ratings given in a Times Mirror poll in July 1994, when Democrats still controlled Congress.

Republican congressional leaders' ratings have plunged especially sharply since August, now standing at 36 percent approval and 51 percent disapproval. Clinton does somewhat better, with 48 percent of Americans approving of his job performance and 42 percent disapproving.

The poll also found a shift in voter preference toward Democratic House candidates.

When registered voters were asked if they were likely to vote for a Republican or Democratic House candidate in 1996, Times Mirror found a tie at 48 percent at the end of October. In August, Republicans led 50 percent to 43 percent.

Seventy-three percent of Americans say that all in all, they're dissatisfied with "the way things are going" in the United States today. That's little changed since early in Clinton's presidency.

The most frequently cited reasons for that discontent were the health-care system, economic factors, crime, the political system and high taxes.

Asked who's to blame for the worst problem, only 7 percent said Clinton while 35 percent said Congress and 27 percent blamed "the people themselves."

Among Republicans, 30 percent of dissatisfied respondents blamed Congress and an equal percentage blamed the people. Just 9 percent of Republicans blamed Clinton.

The poll's margin of sampling error is plus or minus 2 percentage points.

From replies about party affiliation, political participation and personal values and attitudes, the Times Mirror Center classifies voters into various Republican, Democratic and centrist groups.

Clinton's approval ratings ranged from 72 percent to 78 percent among the Democratic groups. Among GOP groups, approval of Republican policies and proposals ranged from 79 percent to 56 percent.

In the middle, independents may be quitting their courtship with the GOP.

Exit polls in the 1994 elections found that independents reversed a long-term trend and voted for GOP House candidates by 58 percent to 42 percent.

In the Times Mirror survey, roughly half of centrist voters approved of Clinton's performance and only about one in five approved of the GOP leaders' work.

LOSE: Government workers make last-minute plans

(From 1A)

missed through no fault of their own.

That means taxpayers pay for work that wasn't done.

The government also loses money it would have made from uncollected fees and fines, gift shop sales at museums, camping fees at national parks and other sources. And there are late charges if the government fails to pay its bills on time.

So when Congress and the president deadlock over how to spend tax dollars, they end up spending even more.

"It is stupid. It is unnecessary," White House budget chief Alice Rivlin told reporters. She blames the Republicans; they blame President Clinton.

The last time budget wrangling caused a federal shutdown, in 1990, it cost the government almost $3.4 million in lost work and revenue, according to the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress.

That's nothing.

A shutdown beginning today will cost hundreds of millions of dollars, GAO estimates suggest.

The 1990 shutdown fell on the long Columbus Day holiday weekend, when most offices were closed anyway. A similar shutdown on three weekdays would cost $240 million to more than $600 million, the GAO estimated in 1991, counting only the toll on the government's 22 largest agencies.

"The costs would likely be considerably higher today," said John Tavares, an analyst who worked on the 1991 report.

How much? No one knows. There's just not enough information to guess, Tavares said: "Nobody's crazy enough to try it."

Shutdowns occur when Congress and the president can't agree on legislation to extend the spending authority of government agencies. For most federal agencies, that spending power was set to expire at midnight.

It's happened on a sweeping scale four times since 1980, when a U.S. attorney general's opinion made clear that the agencies couldn't keep spending money without official permission. The 1990 shutdown was the only one not resolved within one day. But this time, the disagreement is especially bitter.

Several people who braved a cold drizzle Monday to see the museums and monuments along the National Mall weren't happy with the impasse between Clinton and congressional Republicans.

"It's ridiculous and very childish," said Janice Morse of Lake Worth, Fla., who arrived Sunday night and was angry that the shutdown might spoil her four-day visit.

"I'm trying to see all I can today," said Morse, who had raced through three Smithsonian museums and was headed to a fourth by midday.

As the deadline for compromise drew nearer, museum volunteer Estelle Keren told tourist after tourist that she didn't know whether the Smithsonian would be open Tuesday.

"I think it's a bunch of politics," Keren said from behind the information desk at the Museum of Natural History. "Sickening politics."

Anxious would-be travelers packed passport offices Monday.

"I've planned on spending the whole day here," said Dianna Castro of Culver City as she waited in a passport-application line that stretched outside and around a corner at the federal building in downtown Los Angeles.

Applicants at the passport office in San Francisco faced delays of up to three hours. "There's a certain desperation that you can feel in the air," said Robert Schmidt of Pleasanton, who needed a passport for his honeymoon.

Nationwide, government workers were making last-minute plans for the shutdown. Most were told to come to worktoday as usual, even though they might be sent home. Their bosses couldn't tell them whether they would be furloughed, or how long it would last.

"We're reading the papers and looking at the television just everybody else," said Paula Foster-Pierce, who manages Social Security offices in the District of Columbia.

CLOCK: Federal shutdown now 'virtual certainty'

(From 1A)

part, Pete Domenici.

Democratic leaders emerging from the White House meeting were pessimistic that a short-term extension of spending and borrowing authority could be worked out in less than 24 hours. "There was no progress at all," said Senate Democratic Leader Tom Daschle.

Even so, Dole said, "The fact we're going to meet tomorrow is progress." House Speaker Newt Gingrich said, "We laid out in a pretty candid way where we feel different in terms of principle."

The White House meeting came after Clinton vetoed twin spending and borrowing bills, insisting that Republicans drop provisions that would raise Medicare premiums and cut education and environmental spending. Republicans urgently requested to see Clinton, and went to the White House at 10 p.m.

"I think we've got some tough problems to solve," House Democratic Leader Dick Gephardt said after the White House meeting.

"This could last for awhile," Gephardt said, adding that Republicans had rejected the idea of extending for 48 hours the spending authority that expired at midnight.

"... A lot of innocent people will be hurt," he added. "We should not be facing this kind of blackmail."

The key stumbling remained GOP insistence on Medicare premium increase. "This cannot be resolved as long as Medicare is on the table," Gephardt said.

Clinton argued that Medicare increases were not necessary to meet Republican demands for a balanced budget.

"If America must close down access to quality education, a clean environment and affordable health care for our seniors in order to keep the government open, then that price is too high," he said in vetoing a temporary spending bill.

Alice Rivlin, director of the Office of Management and Budget, told heads of federal agencies to have their employees report for work as usual this morning. If it looked like a temporary budget measure acceptable to the president could clear Congress today, agencies will operate normally, she said.

In any case, air traffic controllers, prison guards and others with crucial jobs would keep working, as would military personnel, the Postal Service. But national museums and monuments and the IRS and Social Security hotlines would be among the federal operations closed.

Both bills contained provisions Clinton opposes, such as higher Medicare costs for the elderly and restrictions on future anti-pollution rules. The president pledged to block those items, despite the havoc it would wreak on federal services and borrowing plans.

"Ordinary Americans don't like pressure tactics, and I would be wrong to permit these kind of pressure tactics to dramatically change the course of American life," Clinton said as he vetoed the borrowing legislation. "I cannot do it and I will not do it."

For their part, Republicans sought to portray themselves as responsibly doing Congress' job of completing needed legislation and of being willing to seek compromise.

"We hope at some point the president will decide to talk with us and have a discussion about how to get this solved," said House Speaker Gingrich.

Prospects for avoiding a shutdown seemed so bleak that Senate Chaplain Dr. Lloyd Ogilvie appealed to higher authorities in his morning prayer on the Senate floor.

Clinton has objected to the GOP-added provision to the spending bill that would boost monthly Medicare premiums in January to $53.50, rather than letting them fall to $42.50 as scheduled. Domenici proposed locking in the current $46.10 premium for several months.

"It's an interesting idea, but it has nothing to do with resolving the current crisis," commented White House spokesman Mike McCurry.

Besides the Medicare premium increase, the administration objected to another part of the spending bill that would limit some agencies to 60 percent of their 1995 budgets.

"That's unacceptable," McCurry said.

"They're opposed to cutting spending by the federal government," Gingrich said. "Our goal is to balance the budget and keep the government operating simultaneously."

through the chaos of American culture is like leading a small patrol through enemy territory," Farrar said.

He is convinced that men need strategies to successfully lead and protect their families. An estimated 1,000 men will attend the two-day multimedia event. After the conference they will be equipped with biblically based strategies for spiritual leadership, he said.

Farrar said he believes the Bible provides a blueprint for how the family is to function.

"It is the responsibility of the parents, and ultimately the father, to make sure children grow up in an environment that will enable them to one day become competent, responsible parents in their own right," Farrar said.

The Sunday citywide celebration is free to the public.

Registration cost is $50 for Farrar's Men's Leadership Conference, scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

Bomb in Saudi Arabia kills 6, including 4 Americans

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A powerful bomb ripped through a building filled with American and Saudi military personnel on Monday, tearing off the facade and engulfing the wreckage in flames. Six people were killed, including four Americans.

It was not clear whether the attack was aimed at the Saudis, the Americans, or both. At least 60 people were wounded, more than 30 of them Americans.

King Fahd convened his Cabinet, which "expressed its condemnation of this criminal act, which is foreign to our society, beliefs and religion," the Saudi Press Agency reported.

In Washington, President Clinton pledged to "devote an enormous effort" to bring those responsible to justice, calling it "a hideous act" of terrorism. A dozen FBI agents and evidence specialists were being sent to Saudi Arabia to help with the investigation.

Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest oil exporter, has been a close ally of the United States for decades and the two countries have extensive military ties. Some Muslim fundamentalists oppose the presence of the U.S. military and other Western forces in Saudi Arabia, home to Islam's holiest shrines.

While open opposition to the ruling al-Saud family is not permitted, some underground groups have threatened to strike against the deeply conservative Saudi leadership and the Western forces.

Two groups claimed responsibility for the attack, but neither could be verified, said Raymond Mabus, U.S. ambassador to Saudi Arabia.

One group was the little-known Islamic Change Movement, which demanded last spring that Western forces leave Saudi Arabia or it would "exert all available means to evict these forces." The second group was the previously unknown Tigers of the Gulf.

Mabus said the blast was caused by "an explosive device."

"We are outraged by this act," he said.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Jeff Thomas said late Monday the death toll among Americans stood at four: three civilian personnel and one military. He said earlier embassy figures of five American dead had been revised downward.

A Pentagon official in Washington, speaking on condition of anonymity, said 34 Americans were injured and some were taken to hospitals.

The blast occurred outside a modern, three-story building that serves as the headquarters for a 22-year-old U.S. Army program which provides American military and civilian advisers to modernize the Saudi National Guard.

The multibillion-dollar program, run by the Army Materiel Command, aims to improve Saudi defenses so the kingdom can protect itself from Iraq or other potential enemies. The program was intensified after the 1991 Gulf War.

Americans are also helping the Saudis develop combat medical teams and recently gave Saudi troops a three-month course in counter-terrorism techniques.

U.S. officials said some 200 people — half of them Americans — were inside the building at 11:30 a.m. when the bomb went off.

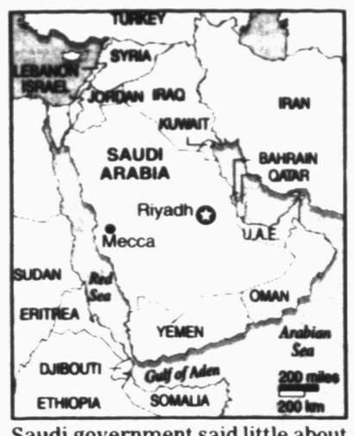

The Americans live in the same complex, behind the damaged building. Their homes were not destroyed, but windows were blown out in nearby buildings.

It was unclear whether the explosives had been packed inside a car as early reports suggested. There had been reports of a second blast, but it has not been confirmed.

Saudi police cordoned off the street and confiscated the film of photographers trying to capture the scene. The kingdom's state-run television showed a parking lot full of badly damaged cars, with twisted frames and blown-out windows. Some cars appeared charred.

The U.S. Embassy urged Americans in the kingdom to be "extremely cautious and vigilant." Thomas said thousands of Americans were there, but he had no breakdown between civilians and military personnel.

As expected, the publicity-shy

Saudi government said little about the attack in the normally quiet and orderly capital.

Speed on Texas, it's just that way

Do speed limits matter — really? That appears to be exactly what a majority of Texans keep asking themselves and, from all indications, most believe that keeping the speed limit at 65 miles per hour on rural interstates would be wise. In fact, although most Texans oppose raising the speed limits, 55 percent of us admit to driving between 65 and 74 miles per hour. Another 9 percent admit to driving between 75 and 85, and 1 percent said they clip along most times in excess of 85 mph. Perhaps it's a matter of lying to ourselves — just a little.

A casual observer can readily agree with the results of the recent telephone poll conducted by the University of Texas' Office of Survey Research for Harte-Hanks Communications. In fact, a driver on Interstate 20 who pokes along at a mere 65 mph — the fastest legal speed — will typically be left far behind by other motorists, driving an assortment of vehicles ranging from 18-wheelers to farm pickups. And any slowpoke, moving at only 55 miles per hour, will quickly be classified as a traffic hazard.

There is no doubt that the majority of motorists in Texas believe the 65 mph speed limit is not only unrealistic, but downright detrimental to their transportation needs in this fast-paced society. At the same time, most Texans probably realize that increasing the speed at which they drive also results in an increased risk of being involved in a fatal traffic accident.

So why do Texans typically drive faster than the 65 mph limit, yet hold out against the government raising the speed limit above that mark?

George King, head of traffic safety enforcement for the Texas Department of Public Safety, probably hit the nail on the head when he recently told the Austin American-Statesman, "I think that's just the way life is in Texas."

Death of Israel's Rabin should not alter path

Does the assassination of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin sound the death knell for peace in the Middle East?

The assassination has raised that specter.

Rabin wasn't assassinated by an Arab terrorist. No, the terrorism that killed him was of the home-grown variety.

It is the variety which says "if it isn't my way, there will be no way." It mirrors the same terrorism we have witnessed here in the United States in the bombing of the federal building in Oklahoma City.

The process of peace wasn't an easy road for Rabin. He had to put aside his own feelings and work toward what he believed was the best for the people who had chosen him to lead.

That process is dividing a paranoid country which believes, with some justification, the world is out to get it. Especially the Arab world.

Now Israel is even more divided. The suspect, a 27-year-old with links to the Jewish extremist fringe, told interrogators he wanted to stop Rabin's peace policies. It seems it is better to live in a constant state of war than to try to work through ancient differences and begin a new world.

Brokering peace between two factions that hate each other is never easy. Rabin, PLO Leader Yasser Arafat and others have learned to work together. The leaders of Bosnia, now working on a peace plan for their country, can learn from these men.

It is to be hoped the moderates will continue to rule in Israel, that Arab and Jewish extremists can learn there is more to life than hatred and war.

Rabin showed there was. It is too bad one of his own decided they didn't like a new path.

Powell's nonentry means defeat for GOP

Colin Powell's non-entry into the presidential race and the baffling of some Republican hopes in the Nov. 8 elections — what do they mean? They mean — aha! — a kick in the shins for the Republican right. Such is the view cascading down on us now. The right is seen as a baleful force (albeit not the only force) in dissuading Powell (supposedly the only Republican capable of beating Bill Clinton) from running.

Murchison

Meanwhile, in state elections, the Republicans did less well than they had hoped, splitting the gubernatorial races (Mississippi and Kentucky) and losing crucial legislative races in Maine, Mississippi and Virginia.

Of the GOP's post-Powell prospects, The New York Times declared, wrinkling its editorial nose as though passing a sewage treatment plant: "His idea for a new birth of moderation within the Republican Party would have invigorated the GOP. In our view, it would also have elevated it. The tough guys currently strutting on the Republican stage have made the party seem meaner than its mainstream membership really feels."

You follow all this, of course? The Grand Old Party's hard-line conservatives are riding the elephant into a swamp.

Well, it's too early in the day for an attack of indignation. How about a big yawn instead, and a few words of — I hope — perspective?

The standard take on Powell is that — why, just look at the polls — he could have bounced Clinton: in part by rejecting that "panicked sectarian phenomenon" (Maureen Dowd's words in the Times) called the Christian right. He would have made the party appealingly broader. But the right wouldn't hear of it.

The "right" is, understandably, the left's bogeyman (bogeyperson?). But it is more than that: The right, religious or secular, is the engine of political change, presently chewing up significant portions of the New Deal-Great Society heritage. The right has to be stopped, or if not stopped, slowed down: which, as various Powell backers or well-wishers saw it, was the general's mission. By failing to enter the race, he disappoints.

Powell might indeed have achieved this, by driving away social conservatives. But this possibility omits mention of the fact that Powell himself is broadly conservative. At his press conference, he declared himself "very impressed by what the Republican Party is trying to do right now: trying to put the nation on a better fiscal balance, trying to bring government under control and make government smaller, trying to put more money back into the pocket of individual taxpayers." Hardly a thumb in the eye to Newt Gingrich!

It is worth noting, in conjunction with the above testimonial, that the winning Democrat in the Kentucky governor's race blasted liberal policies up and down the line.

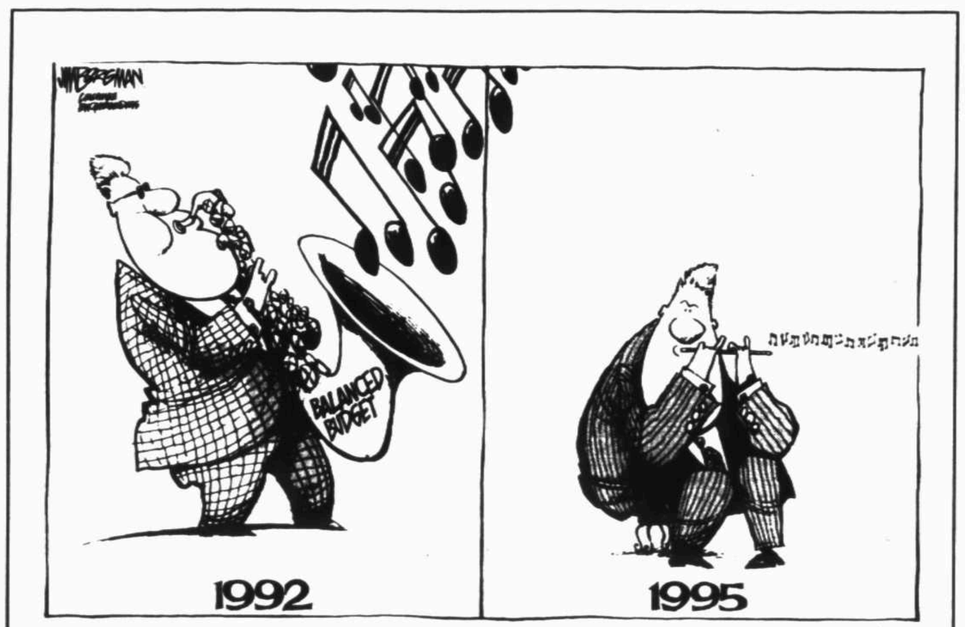

Will "moderation" — meaning Rockefeller Republicanism — alone save the GOP? Not in the face of easily discernible social and political trends. If the voters in 1992 had wanted to be led by a stand-patter, George Bush would now be president.

The political waters are choppy and full of riptides. For the "radicals" driving Republican policy, I counsel the Farragut Strategy. Yankee Admiral David Farragut, at the Battle of Mobile Bay in 1864, was warned of Confederate torpedoes aimed at his warships. "Damn the torpedoes!" replied Farragut. "Full speed ahead." Farragut prevailed.

As may congressional Republicans, provided they steadily pursue their goals of national reinvigoration. This means implementing the Contract With America; it means ignoring admonitions to port their helm.

Veterans Day is thanks to Korean War fighters

Veterans Day (Nov. 11) was Armistice Day until 1954 when Congress changed it. I don't know why Congress did, and the reason it gave publicly is not worth looking up.

Congress probably did it because the Korean War, like the Vietnam War later, ended rather ignominiously with a cease-fire in July 1953. A cease-fire purchased at the price of 47,000 dead Americans and which left the aggressor government, North Korea, intact and in possession of its original territory is hardly worth celebrating.

Reese

Technically, a state of war still exists between the United Nations and North Korea. Americans stationed in South Korea are under United Nations command.

In other words, changing Armistice Day was probably the politicians' backhanded way of saying thanks to Korean War veterans. These were the first U.S. forces to go to war and be prevented by the politicians from gaining a victory. These were the first to fight under U.N. command. These were the first to fight in a war the politicians back home were pleased not to call a war, but rather "a police action."

These were the first Americans to go to war without the full backing of their government and the American people, which can come only with a declaration of war by Congress. Unfortunately, they were not the last.

In a real sense, Korea marked a turning point in American history. Over 100,000 Americans would lose their lives during the Cold War. Americans would be shot down, executed and imprisoned by foreign powers, and there would be no retaliation.

America's economic and military power, the greatest the world had ever seen in 1945, would be squandered by politicians so that by the 1990s, George Bush had to buy allies and beg money from foreigners just to defeat the expeditionary force of a Third World country.

It's no wonder there is such an effort not to educate American children about their country's history, culture and traditions. If they knew the past, they would know how bad the present is. If they knew what once was, they would know what has been lost. If they knew the principles and traditions of America, they would realize how they are daily violated by current politicians. If they knew how free Americans once were, they would know how unfree they are today.

What happened is that American government remained on a war footing after 1945, with all that implies in terms of vastly expanding the power of government.

As you can see, if you pay attention, the U.S. government today is desperately seeking a new enemy. That's because the Cold War so corrupted some Americans that many do not believe the country can be governed without an enemy. Certainly, without an enemy, the enormous centralization of power cannot be rationalized.

Organization gives needed assistance

The United Way campaign ends Nov. 16. While most of us know the United Way provides important health and human services to individuals and families, I thought I would highlight another important aspect of the United Way's work.

With their 16 member agencies, the United Way provides a critical link between employers, associates and services in the community. A volunteer staff representative of the United Way met with our management team Oct. 19 to review their services and to offer help any time we found an associate needing assistance. We value our associates and appreciated the United Way's offer to help.

In less than two weeks, we found ourselves in the position of needing assistance. One of our associates unexpectedly required quick support for a personal problem. We remembered the United Way's offer to help and called them. We found the United Way to be responsive, professional and able to deliver quality services in a timely manner.

We appreciate the United Way's support of the community, and in particular, our workplace and associates. We consider its work to be an important support to our human resource function, helping to ensure a healthy, happy and productive workforce.

As the end of the United Way's campaign nears, we ask all associates and companies to consider the value of the United Way's network of services and its support of our workplaces. Please make a contribution to the United Way.

United Way has big impact on Midland

The United Way campaign ends Nov. 16. This important community endeavor has so much impact on the vitality of the Midland community that all people and companies should do their best to support it 100 percent.

Midland is presently on a positive roll. Its economy is strong. We are witnessing the diversification of the workforce along with other positive activities such as the boom along the loop.

When companies consider moving to Midland, they look at a wide variety of factors before making their decisions. Does it have the workforce skills they need? Is the tax structure one that will support their business? Does it have the natural resources they will require? Is the transportation system adequate to meet their needs?

One additional factor also influences their decision. Is the overall feel for the community a good one? Are social-service systems in place that will support their company's and workforce's needs?

Midland is strong in all of the above categories. It is a great place to live and do business. The United Way plays a vital role in our community, supporting the needs of employees, businesses and people in general. I urge all Midland people and companies to help the United Way reach their campaign goal. Their success directly contributes to the success of our community.

To make a pledge, call the United Way at 682-4358.

Agencies need funds to serve many people

The United Way of Midland is a helping hand in the lives of many people in Midland who utilize the services of its member agencies. Those who confront various obstacles are counting on these agencies to help them over some difficult hurdle in the coming year.

The recent fire has significantly affected the 1995-96 campaign. Although the United Way building and records were destroyed the "needs" remain. There are several facts that still remain. There are children who need the day-care and after-school programs provided by agencies such as the Salvation Army and the YMCA. The Scouting and Campfire programs, with their outreach to youth in an attempt to build good character and wholesome lives, need their shares of the United Way campaign dollar. There are the multitude of programs provided through Casa de Amigos that reach out to all segments of the Midland community which need the benefit of those dollars to continue a good work. There are the services provided to Midland's senior population by Community and Senior Services. They are helping hands that make life better for the elderly and their families on a daily basis.

There are so many people counting on the United Way of Midland and the count to make their lives better and brighter is DOWN!

Midlanders we have always been a community that pulls together in the midst of all sort of circumstances. Someone is counting on us!

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 14, the 318th day of 1995. There are 47 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 14, 1889, inspired by Jules Verne, New York World reporter Nellie Bly (Elizabeth Cochrane) set out to travel around the world in fewer than 80 days. She succeeded, making the trip in 72 days.

On this date:

In 1851, Herman Melville's novel "Moby Dick" was first published in the United States.

In 1881, Charles J. Guiteau went on trial for assassinating President Garfield. Guiteau was convicted and hanged the following year.

In 1922, the British Broadcasting Corporation began its domestic radio service.

In 1935, President Roosevelt proclaimed the Philippine Islands a free commonwealth.

In 1940, during World War II, German planes destroyed most of the English town of Coventry.

In 1943, an American torpedo was mistakenly fired at the U.S. battleship Iowa, which was carrying President Roosevelt and his joint chiefs to the Tehran conference; the torpedo exploded harmlessly in the Iowa's wake.

In 1944, Tommy Dorsey and Orchestra recorded "Opus No. 1" for RCA Victor.

In 1968, Yale University announced it was going coeducational.

Police capture suspect in cross-country killings

WACO, Ky. (AP) — A smooth-talking drifter suspected of strangling or stabbing at least four women in a cross-country killing spree was captured Monday after leading police on a 100 mph chase.

Glen Rogers, 33, was forced off the road by more than a half-dozen police cruisers after the 15-mile chase near rural Waco. During the pursuit, police tried to shoot out Rogers' tires.

He was taken to a state police station in Richmond, Ky., to be interrogated.

"He is cooperating to some degree," Capt. Charles Bowman of the state police told reporters at an evening news conference.

Rogers is wanted in the slayings of at least four women — three of whom had reddish hair — in California, Louisiana, Mississippi and Florida in the past two months.

Authorities believe he may have committed three other killings in California. Rogers also is wanted for questioning in the death of a 73-year-old Ohio man he briefly lived with. The man's decomposed body was found last year tied to a chair in an abandoned cabin that Rogers' family owns near Beattyville, Ky.

No weapons were found in the car but "there are some things in there that we feel may be evidence," said state Trooper Ed Robinson.

The FBI, which also is questioning Rogers, said he fits the description of a man who robbed a bank at gunpoint Thursday in nearby Booneville. Authorities won't say how much money was taken.

Police said he made little effort to conceal himself during the crime spree, boasting to friends about at least one killing and driving a victim's car after another.

Rogers grew up in Hamilton, Ohio, where he had a long arrest record on charges that include assault and arson. He is believed to have moved to California in 1993.

He was said to be able to talk a person into anything: a ride home from the bar, a place to crash for a few a days or weeks, a woman's affections.

"Oh, he's smooth," said Detective Dan Pratt in Hamilton. "Glen is very personable."

He is wanted for the following deaths:

■ Sandra Gallagher, 34, a barmaid in Van Nuys, Calif., who was found raped and strangled in her burning pickup Sept. 29. Rogers had allegedly met her in a bar the night before.

■ Linda Price, 34, of Jackson, Miss., who was found stabbed to death in her bathtub on Nov. 3. Rogers had lived with Price for a few weeks in October.

■ Tina Marie Cribbs, 34, a motel maid who was found stabbed Nov. 7 in a motel where Rogers stayed in Tampa, Fla.

■ Andy Jiles Sutton, 37, whose slashed body was found Thursday on a punctured waterbed in her apartment in Bossier City, La. Rogers also knew Sutton.

Courage, martial arts work on bullies, psychologist says

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — For the child who lives in terror of the schoolyard bully — the taunts and threats, the sticks and stones — psychologist Terrence Webster-Doyle has this advice:

Don't get mad. But don't get even, either. Instead, use courage and compassion to avoid conflict altogether.

"If you can see through the roles and games that people play, no one will be able to control you, or get you to do things you don't want to do," Webster-Doyle said in his illustrated text, "Why is Everybody Always Picking on Me?" for bullies and the bullied alike. "You will be able to relate in healthier and more intelligent ways."

And if that doesn't work, there's always martial arts.

"It doesn't mean that one's a doormat, of course not," said Webster-Doyle, a karate instructor for 30 years. "If it escalates to the physical level, the young person has the trained skills to prevent harm, to hold another person humanely."

Dealing with conflict is best done holistically, Webster-Doyle said. His method has three components. Alone, they cannot prevail over aggressors. Together, they can do so without a brawl.

First, you avoid the confrontation in the first place — if you can.

"A fight takes two people," Webster-Doyle said. "If you refuse to fight, this can stop the bully from hurting you."

Failing that, try using humor to defuse the tension or making friends with your tormentor; agreeing with them; or ignoring them ("This is an alternative that requires caution," Webster-Doyle writes).

And if that doesn't work, karate can come in handy. A combination of understanding, reasoning, and physical force should be enough to forestall a fight. At least, Webster-Doyle said, it will save the small kid on the playground from getting a black eye.

"It really works. This can help kids. It can save lives," he said.

Bullying can cause long-lasting damage, agrees Maryjane Cipcik, health and welfare chairwoman for the National PTA. The group includes "Why is Everybody Always Picking on Me?" in its publication, "Safeguarding your Children."

"Little things can truly lead into a lot of emotional despair for the children," said Cipcik, an administrative assistant at Prairieview Elementary School in Battle Creek, Mich. "A lot of times, the verbal confrontation can do just as much damage emotionally as the physical abuse."

Webster-Doyle says his methods work for adults, too.

Look what we're up to.

It took 33,000 employees working hard, and listening even harder. But in a short time, we've managed to travel all the way up to the number one spot, domestically, with the lowest rate of mishandled bags among the 10 largest U.S. airlines. Continental also ranked second among the 10 largest U.S. airlines for domestic on-time performance. This during one of the year's heaviest travel periods. Yet despite these rapid ascents we've been making, you can bet we'll still be listening and looking for other ways to stay on top of things. Mother brings son home from hospital after 11-year battle, $6 million settlement

N.Y. Times News Service

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Nearly 11 years after Justin Bates was carried into the emergency room at the Broward General Medical Center, he was met in the lobby on Monday by his mother and stepfather, Cynthia and Matthew Mendat, as he left a second-floor room that has been his home since he was 16 months old.

More than a dozen relatives and friends and as many reporters joined the parents to greet Justin, who can barely see or hear. He cannot talk or eat without the help of tubes and machinery. Originally brought to the hospital for treatment of an asthma attack, he is in what doctors call a vegetative state because of a series of errors by the hospital's staff that caused irreversible brain damage.

The family won $6.2 million in a 1990 lawsuit, but Justin's parents could not afford to take him home because the hospital refused to pay the award, even though it admitted fault in what began as a malpractice suit. The hospital claimed protection under a state law that limits liability against a government entity to $200,000. Some version of the law, known as sovereign immunity, exists in many states, an effort to protect public agencies from frivolous or outrageously large lawsuits.

Last June, the Florida Legislature passed a special claims bill to provide a monthly stipend of $20,000 for Justin's care and a lump sum of about $1.4 million, in part to pay lawyers' fees of at least $500,000. The money also provided the family with a new, $330,000 house that includes a resting place for nurses who will work 12-hour shifts, ramps for Justine's new wheelchair, special plumbing fixtures, a backup generator, and a therapy room.

On Monday, three medical technicians moved Justin, his breathing and feeding apparatus, and supplies from the ambulance into his new bedroom, which is decorated with dozens of balloons, Miami Dolphins paraphernalia, and Disney decals.

"You're home now," Mrs. Mendat said as she rubbed Justin's contorted hands. Justin responded by arching his back up and opening his mouth. She said he was more relaxed on Monday than she had ever seen him.

The hospital said in a statement: "During the past 10 years, Justin Bates has received compassionate care, and our nurses and staff have become close to the child. Many of our staff members have brought gifts and personal items for Justin over the years. We wish Justin continued good health in his new environment."

At home, Mrs. Mendat leaned over the chrome rail of Justin's bed and gave one of his new nurses her first duty: "Take his wrist band off." The nurse, Joan Watson, brought over a pair of scissors and clipped the blue plastic band from his pale and twisted arm.

"We don't need this anymore," Mrs. Mendat said. "We know your name. We're going to burn this and never see it on your arms again."

Supreme Court to decide on TV smut-fighting law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide whether Congress' first venture into fighting smut on cable television violates free-speech rights. The battleground is public-access channels and those leased by cable systems to local groups.

Opponents of a 1992 cable law that aims to restrict indecent programs on such channels say it will encourage censorship in violation of the Constitution's First Amendment.

A decision upholding the measure could spur Congress to impose further restrictions on indecency, perhaps on commercial cable television channels or on-line computer services, said I. Michael Greenberger, lawyer for local program producers and viewers challenging the 1992 law.

Congress enacted the measure proposed by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., following complaints about lewd programs on some leased-access channels.

Police Department clears officer

■ Cpl. Jim White was justified in using deadly force to apprehend a burglar in an Oct. 25 incident at Midland Park Mall, the Administrative Review Board reports.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

A Midland police officer acted in compliance of state law when he shot and killed a man allegedly wielding a crowbar during what police have labeled a bungled Oct. 25 burglary, according to the Administrative Review Board.

The Midland Police Department announced Monday that Cpl. Jim White was found to have acted in compliance with state law and departmental procedure when he shot Marco Antonio Sanchez, 26, outside of a Midland Park Mall store.

"Cpl. White's actions were reflective of the training he has received and no further action will be taken," said Midland Police spokesman Sgt. David Garcia.

Garcia said the Administrative Review Board met Thursday and investigated the incident where Sanchez, and two juveniles, attempted to pry open a door to Beall's department store. White responded to a silent alarm and interrupted the burglary, according to polcie reports. White handcuffed a 16-year-old Hispanic male when another juvenile and Sanchez came out of a utility room, reports stated. Sanchez struck White from behind in the left shoulder with a crowbar.

White was reported to have turned around, drawn his gun and asked Sanchez to drop the crowbar. The officer said Sanchez advanced on him and he shot him once with his Sig Sauer .45-caliber semi-automatic. The bullet entered Sanchez' left shoulder area and traveled through his upper torso. He was transported to the hospital where he died.

White suffered a bruised shoulder and had his arm in a sling. Garcia said White has been undergoing physical therapy for his injuries and is not yet "physically fit for duty."

"His medical records will be added to his file and forwarded to the District Attorney's office for review," Garcia said.

The file will be presented to a Midland County Grand Jury at a later date as part of standard procedure.

White remains on administrative leave while he undergoes physical therapy.

The mall shooting was the third incident in three years where a Midland police officer has had to use deadly force. The previous incidents were subsequently determined to be justifiable.

TUESDAY DAY WATCH

Mutilation trial

EL PASO — After fielding questions about insanity defenses and domestic violence, eight men and four women were culled from 150 prospective jurors Monday to decide the fate of a man accused of shooting and mutilating his wife.

Opening arguments were scheduled for 9 a.m. CST today in the murder trial of James Patrick Bradley, who police say chopped up Suzy Gae Hahn Bradley's body with an ax, then scattered the severed pieces across the city.

Defense attorney Louis Lopez said Bradley, who appeared to listen attentively from his wheelchair as prospective jurors were questioned, was in good spirits.

"We're confident in our defense," said Lopez. "We've been waiting to get this on the road."

Bradley's lead attorney, Gary Hill, said their strategies may include either an insanity or a battered-spouse defense. Defense attorneys also may try to persuade jurors that Bradley acted in self-defense.

District Attorney Jaime Esparza has declined to comment on his case.

A candle-lighting ceremony will honor loved ones who have died or who are living with HIV and AIDS.

Midland will join 199 countries around the world in observing World AIDS Day. Communities throughout the United States will dim lights as a visual demonstration of the commitment to the fight against AIDS. In Washington, D.C., the White House lights will be dimmed from 7:45 to 8 p.m.

The World Health Organization (WHO) has themed this World AIDS Day as "Shared Rights, Shared Responsibilities." The theme focuses on the responsibility that each person has to avoid infection, and the rights to receive care if infected and to be given respect and personal freedom while living with the infection.

As of June 1995, WHO estimated that 20 million men, women and children worldwide had been infected with HIV and that approximately 4.5 million had developed AIDS, a 20 percent increase from the year before. As of Dec. 31, 1994, in the United States, 441,528 people have been diagnosed with AIDS. Of that number, 270,870 have died.

Sergeant bridges gap between law enforcers, media

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

When a woman jogger was slain, an airplane crashed into a house, and a rash of burglaries plagued a neighborhood in Midland, the public turned to the media.

And the media turned to Sgt. David Garcia, public information officer with the Midland Police Department.

News reporters seek him at major crime scenes and page him during off-hours for information. And dispatchers summon him to police investigations night and day to face questions and cameras.

"During this day and age, it's important for law enforcement agencies to have positive media relations," Garcia said. "The philosophy we work under is that the police department belongs to the citizens of Midland and my job is to inform the public through the media."

That includes giving out information that's factual, doesn't create a public panic, doesn't hinder police investigations, and maintains the dignity of any victims and their families, he said.

And when the media comes knocking, Garcia tries to be there. "When you're in police work, major things aren't always going to happen between 8 and 5," he said.

If a spokesperson isn't accessible, the police, the public and the media may suffer, Garcia said. "I'd rather they (the media) get the right information than put something out that's wrong," he added.

And as Midland grows so does the crime rate, along with media inquiries. Meanwhile, the public's want-to-know is at a high — in Midland

Most of us won't feel effects of government shutdown

Ott

More rambling thoughts ...

— Somehow I get the feeling that most of us will not feel the effects of a so-called "government shutdown," especially since the mail will continue to be delivered and, as a result, all of those "you have been pre-approved for (such and such) credit card" will continue to overflow our home mailboxes.

— Speaking of such, where were all of those generous people when I needed a credit card; indeed back when I would have gladly given my left arm for such a credit card?

— One good thing about the possible government shutdown, however, is that we are not referring to those who will be furloughed as "non-essential" workers.

— No one should be labeled "non-essential," though that is exactly how I feel when I return from a vacation and realize the newspaper managed to get published daily without my presence.

— A truly gross experience: Waking up first thing in the morning to the sound of your pet licking himself. "Hey, dude," you want to say. "You're more than welcome to sleep with me, but take your bath elsewhere."

— There is nothing uglier than a botched plastic surgery operation.

— I don't enjoy watching westerns on TV, even if they are based on Larry McMurtry novels.

— It is beginning to get a tad old of late, but I still think the Bud Lite commercial in which the son tries to con a beer off his father by whining, "I LOVE you, man," is one of the best in years.

— You know pro football has become nothing more than a greedy big business venture when a city like Cleveland loses its team, despite traditionally drawing 80,000 fans to home games. It seems the owner there got a better deal, including a free stadium, from the city of Baltimore. So he is taking his team and off they will go to Baltimore.

— Does the word "loyalty" mean anything to anyone any longer?

— Graffiti is a horrible thing, of course, but you can't help but read it when you're in a bathroom stall.

— Overheard: "The two times, past and future, how can they be, since the past is no more and the future is not yet?"

— It sounds rather trite, I suppose, but being nice to others really does make you feel better about yourself.

— An occasional old-fashioned West Texas dust storm makes you proud to be from a place blessed with its own unique weather phenomenon.

— Of course, about twice a year is all the reminding you need of that blessing.

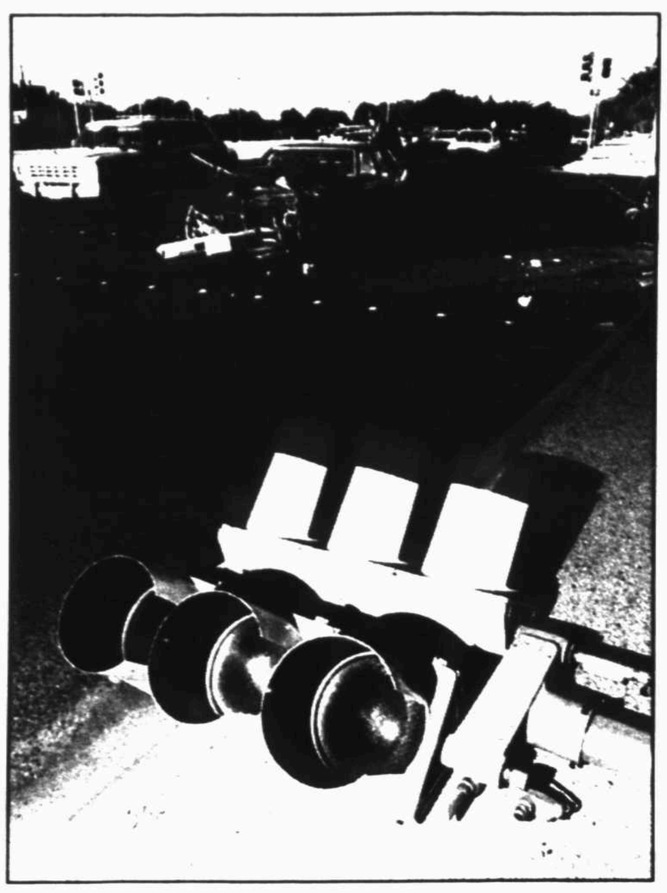

— And today's final quote comes from Mary Catherine Weir of Campbell, Calif., who once wrote, "The November snow was thin and slushy — almost as if the angels in heaven were brushing their teeth and dribbling toothpaste over the earth."

Say what?

Powell reaffirms his decision to stay out of presidential race

HOUSTON (AP) — Retired Gen. Colin Powell, surfacing in public Monday for the first time since announcing last week he would not seek the Republican nomination for president, reaffirmed his decision to stay out of politics.

"I'm just going to stay in private life," Powell told reporters after accepting an award for public service from former Secretary of State James Baker III, whose institute at Rice University was sponsoring a symposium where Powell was a speaker.

"I think I made my position clear last Wednesday," Powell said. "I'm not starting any new campaign."

Powell rejected any talk about a vice presidential nod and also refused to speculate on whom he might endorse for president, saying it was far too early in the campaign.

"I think it's premature to talk about endorsements," he said. "I'm going to watch the poltical landscape unfold in the months ahead."

The former Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman received a standing ovation from more than 800 people attending the university conference on foreign policy challenges at the end of the 20th century. The two-day conference featured among its panelists some three dozen former diplomats, ex-government officials and scholars.

"Colin Powell's life with its now-famous rise from modest beginnings to vast public acclaim embodies I think the essence of the American dream," Baker said. "I believe the public's affection is a tribute not only to Colin Powell but also to the American people, who know a real hero when they see one."

"I speak for millions around the country in saying we deeply regret you decided you did not have the passion, at least not this time, to run for the presidency of the United States," added Kenneth Lay, chairman of Houston-based Enron Corp., the energy conglomerate that sponsored the public service award.

BRIDGE: Officer keeps media, public informed and across the country.

"The public is interested in police work more so now with these high-profile cases like the O.J. trial, the Susan Smith trial and the Selena case," Garcia said.

Locally, stories such as an airplane crash into a house, the murder of a former New York Jets football player, an accident victim rumored to be the liver donor to Mickey Mantle and a paramedic accidentally shot in a police practice have garnered state and/or national attention — and subsequent media inquiries to Garcia. And the story of a juvenile girl running off with a youth minister led to Garcia's appearance on America's Most Wanted.

Whether it's an incident that results in media calls from New York or local inquiries about a drive-by shooting or a string of vandalisms, Garcia talks with the experience of a seasoned police officer. Garcia, 40, has been with the Midland Police Department since 1983 — and has been a patrol officer, a patrol sergeant, a detective and an undercover narcotics officer.

The five years previous, he was a member of the Midland County Sheriff's Office and the three years prior was a military policeman in the U.S. Army. Garcia said he happened upon his police career in the Army when there wasn't an opening for a financial clerk.

"I got involved in it and really liked it," he said. "Something about being out there and people depending on you to enforce the law is really satisfying."

Just over two years ago, he assumed the job of public information officer. In addition to media contact, Garcia oversees the department's community relations/crime prevention unit and the telephone response unit.

The community relations/crime prevention unit acts as a liaison to the general public. The division makes presentations to organizations and groups, teaches women's self-defense classes, coordinates the citizens police academy, offers home and business security surveys, works with neighborhood watches, and holds various safety programs for youngsters.

The telephone response unit takes minor police reports over the telephone, answers questions from the public and assists in the release of information to the media. The telephone response unit, by taking reports and inquiries, helps free patrol officers for more important calls, Garcia said.

State loses its fingernail hold on KFC case, drops charges

Associated Press

The state's case against a man accused of killing five people who had been abducted from a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant in Kilgore 12 years ago was dropped Monday after further examination of the key piece of evidence.

A second test of a fingernail supposedly linking James Earl Mankins Jr. to the crime did not match up, leading prosecutors to ask State District Judge Larry Gist of Beaumont to drop the charges. Gist immediately accepted the motion on Monday.

"We view this as just a postponement of the case," said Rusk County District Attorney Kyle Freeman. "It's taken a long time to get where we're at now. We're disappointed, but it just strengthens our resolve that we can solve this case.

"It'll probably take a broader focus, but it does not rule out anybody," he said.

A previous examination of the fingernail, which had been found on a victim's body during an autopsy, was enough for a grand jury to indict Mankins on April 27.

Mankins, the 42-year-old son of a former state representative, had been in the Rusk County Jail in Henderson on $2.5 million bond and prosecutors were seeking the death penalty. His trial originally scheduled for July 24 had been delayed and moved to Beaumont because of heavy media coverage.

The suspect's 24-year-old son, Jimmy, said there would be no comment Monday. He said he expected his father to hold a news conference soon.

"We're just having a celebration now," Jimmy Mankins said, a party evident in the background at the Kilgore home of James Mankins Sr. "We just want to say we knew he was innocent."

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales ordered the second test of the fingernail "just as an extra precaution to make sure we were proceeding in the right direction," spokesman Ward Tisdale said. "If the second test has a higher standard of reliability, it only strengthens the case."

Tisdale said there's no standard method for handling cases involving DNA evidence because "it's a rare case for us to do."

Once the attorney general's office had conflicting reports about the quality of evidence, it filed the motion to dismiss in Beaumont. The decision was announced in Tyler.

News of the decision shocked both sides of the legal fight.

Defense attorney R. Daryll Bennett had no idea about the judge's decision. A worker at his Longview office said Bennett was notified less than two hours before the decision was announced. Bennett was out of the office at the time and couldn't make it to the courthouse in time to hear the news.

Soon after he heard, Bennett exalted the findings.

"It didn't match Jimmy's, so it's not Jimmy's," Bennett said. "It's finally put to rest on that nail."

Also caught by surprise was William Brown, the investigator handling the case for the Rusk County district attorney's office. "I'm waiting for someone to explain it to me," Brown said. "I'm anxious to find out."

Investigators now must continue searching for the killer or killers of Opie Ann Hughes, 39; Joey Johnson, 20; Mary Tyler, 37; David Maxwell, 20; and Monte Landers, 19, who were abducted during a $2,000 robbery near closing time at the restaurant on Sept. 23, 1983.

Texas Baptists adopt 1996 budget, elect new officers

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Baptist General Convention of Texas approved a $42.6 million state budget Monday that includes money to help start 200 new churches next year.

In move that sparked some controversy, the convention earmarked 2.5 percent more of its total budget to Texas missionary work than last year. Thirty-three percent of the $63.7 million total budget for 1996, or $21 million, is allocated for worldwide causes.

More than 6,000 messengers, or delegates, attending the 110th annual meeting also elected the Rev. Charles Wade of First Baptist Church in Arlington as their new president.

Wade, considered a moderate, garnered 61.4 percent of the 6,256 ballots cast. He defeated the more conservative Rev. Gary Miller of Sagamore Hill Baptist Church in Fort Worth, who received 38.6 percent of the vote.

Russell H. Dilday, interim dean of the George W. Truett Seminary at Baylor University, nominated Wade, calling him a Texas Baptist who "looks beyond petty politics. He has a proven record of cooperation."

Wade will succeed outgoing president Jerold McBride of San Angelo, who completed the traditional two one-year terms.

The budget debate commenced after several speeches and a video warned delegates that Texas should step up its missionary work inside the state to avoid losing its "mission base" and becoming a "mission field."

Midland Muffler offers new choice for R.V. and big truck repair

Large, industrial-type trucks and R.V.s seem to be more popular in the Permian Basin than in other areas of comparable size, either because of the relationship to oil and other industries, or due to the fact that many Midlanders like to travel. Since these trucks require special lifts and extra-high ceilings to be serviced, owners have had little choice of garages that can completely service these vehicles. Not any more.

Midland Muffler recently opened a 6,000 square-foot facility with eight work bays and an 18-foot ceiling that can accommodate motorhomes and big trucks. With its special 25,000 pound lift, it now offers complete brake and exhaust service and repair work for these vehicles, in addition to its existing services for smaller vehicles.

"Our new shop gives us the ability to put any big truck on the rack to do exhaust work. We can also do brake work on trucks up to two tons," said Mike Murray, owner.

To check for brake or exhaust problems on large trucks or regular cars, the mechanics put the vehicle on the rack and do a visual inspection for worn parts (such as brake pads or shoes), and also for hydraulic problems in the brake system.

With winter and harsh weather fast approaching, it is important to bring in any type of vehicle to check the brakes and exhaust system and make sure the truck or car is in good shape when roads start to get bad.

"Luckily our weather doesn't get too bad here, but it's always a good idea to check a vehicle's brake system because we do get some ice and snow, and people travel on long trips for the holiday," said Murray.

"Maybe even more important is getting your vehicle's exhaust system checked for carbon monoxide leakage, because when you run your heater, you don't want any carbon monoxide getting inside the car."

In the month that Midland Muffler has been in its new location, it has already increased efficiency for its customers by reducing the "wait" involved with mechanics sharing work bays. Since it has eight bays, the employees can use the "down time" involved with repairs on one car to work on another vehicle in a different bay.

"Most exhaust work can be done in 30 to 45 minutes," said Murray.

With the holidays approaching, potential travelers from the Permian Basin can take advantage of Midland Muffler's free exhaust, brake and front-end inspection. The brake work includes alignments (for vehicles up to one ton), pad and shoe replacement, and CV-and U-joint work. The exhaust service includes mufflers, catalytic converters and exhaust pipes.

They carry a large inventory of quality parts, such as Walker exhaust products, Raybestos brake equipment, and Moog parts for suspension and linkage. These parts all come with a lifetime guarantee.

The new Midland Muffler at 3200 Front is directly across the street from the old location at 3201 Front. Its waiting room alone has almost 400 square feet, with an attractive gray tile flooring and wall decor. It also is very handy for the physically challenged, with special parking by the front door and, less than 20 feet away, two bathroom facilities equipped with handrails.

Midland Muffler and Brake offers complete brake service and alignment on all domestic and foreign models. They also service shocks and mufflers. Their new address is 3201 W. Front, across the street from their old location. Hours are 7:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 7:30 a.m. to noon Saturday. The phone number is 699-7924.

Lee Thompson's Aire Serv helps small businesses increase profits

Every small business owner in the Permian Basin is after basically the same goal: to offer superior products/service to clients and a pleasant work environment for employees while earning a decent revenue. One local heating and air conditioning company is helping local small business owners reach that goal.

Lee Thompson's Aire Serv offers a special Comfort Protection Plan to small businesses that covers the year-round maintenance of their heating and cooling systems, while helping them save up to 25% on their utility bills.

"Our Comfort Protection Plan uses a 37 point checklist (18 points in the fall and winter for heating, and 19 points in the spring and summer for cooling) that technicians go over to keep units in efficient working order," said Diane Hart, office manager.

A recent Louisiana State University study found that regular maintenance on a heating and cooling system can save up to 25% of the system's operating cost. Aire Serv offers their plan for an investment of just 27 cents a day per unit, which can more than pay for itself by the savings local small business owners will realize on their utility bills.

As with any motorized or electrical equipment, regular maintenance on office heating and cooling units extends the life of the equipment. In addition, it offers the customers and the employees of small business owners a pleasant environment in which to spend time, and can even increase productivity.

An important point for heating and cooling unit owners to keep in mind is that, in the wintertime, it's important to have the heat exchanger checked for cracks that can leak carbon monoxide. All systems should be checked, but it's especially important for units over five years old.

Dust mites are another big problem to systems in West Texas, as are dirt and bacterial contaminants. In fact, the smell given off when running a heater for the first time is dirt burning off the heat exchanger.

"Dirt in a system clogs up the filter and gets on the heat exchanger, making the unit work harder to heat the building, causing utility bills to go up. Signing up for regular maintenance on systems should be looked at as an investment and not an expense, because owners come out ahead in the long run," said Hart.

Next year, stricter OSHA guidelines governing work environments will be announced, and Lee Thompson's Aire Serv is working on a plan to do air quality audits to help local business owners comply with the new guidelines.

Lee Thompson has operated his own heating and cooling business for ten years, and encourages anyone deciding on an air service company to contact the Better Business Bureau.

Aire Serv is locally owned and operated by Lee Thompson, who has been in the heating and air conditioning business in West Texas for 23 years, ten of those with his own business. The company sells Carrier and other units and offers complete service on all brands. The phone number is 570-7405.

Well-stocked trucks mean Aire Serv technicians can complete 90 percent of all repairs without a trip to the warehouse, meaning customers get back to comfort faster.

Aire Serv welcomes loyal Fitzgerald Co. clients

Aire Serv is proud to welcome the former clients of Fitzgerald Company. Fitzgerald Co. recently announced they were closing their business, effective November 1, 1995. Billye Fitzgerald agreed to let Lee Thompson take over their valued clients.

This agreement includes honoring all outstanding warranties, and, to make the transition easier, Lee Thompson has made arrangements to take over the phone number used by Fitzgerald Co. Aire Serv looks forward to providing outstanding service to Fitzgerald clients.

Quick, quality service saves you time and money at Freedom Lube and Gas

Offering a quick and convenient lube center, Freedom Lube and Gas is located about five minutes from downtown at 2410 North Big Spring at Neely.

Downtown workers now have the opportunity to get a full-service oil change and chassis lube on their way to work, on their lunch hour or on their way home. And they can save money in the process.

In addition to changing the oil and filter, Freedom Lube and Gas performs a 20 point check, all in 15 minutes or less on most cars.

Although they feature Pennzoil, Freedom offers approximately 10 choices of motor oils. Manager Travis Bushman said they can get in just about any kind a customer wants the same day, if it is not already available.

The price for the full service oil change and lube is $23.95. With the $2.00 coupon below on this page, full service is just $21.95. For just an oil and filter change, the cost is $19.95, and other options are available.

Another way to save at Freedom is with the discounted price on self-service major brand gasoline. Bushman said they'll keep discounting the gasoline prices as long as possible.

They also perform state inspections and are an oil recycling center.

Owner Blaine Bushman, Travis's father, said they used the name "Freedom" because their quick service offers customers more freedom to do other things.

"By the time you go buy the oil and filter, jack up the car, drain and refill the oil, it's already taken much longer than 15 minutes. And you haven't yet figured out how to dispose of the old oil and filter," said Blaine Bushman.

With Freedom's 20 point check not only does the experienced staff take care of the oil, filter and chassis lube in 15 minutes, they check fluid levels, vacuum the vehicle, check tire levels, belts, hoses and other do routine services car owners often forget.

Customers can also take advantage of the snacks and drinks for sale at Freedom's convenience store while their vehicles are being serviced.

"Freedom Lube and Gas cares about your car," said Blaine Bushman. "We're open not only to offer a service everyone needs, but to do it in a way that will save customers time and money. We promise to always give you the best service we can."

Freedom Lube and Gas is open for oil changes from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. six days a week. Gasoline is available from 7 a.m. till 10 p.m. and the Datafleet pumps are open 24 hours a day. They accept all major credit cards including Datafleet and ARI. Freedom Lube and Gas is located at 2410 North Big Spring, at the intersection with Neely.

Travis Bushman, manager of Freedom Lube & Gas, prepares to change a vehicle's oil. The full service oil change and chassis lube includes a 20-point service check. Freedom Lube and Gas is located at 2410 North Big Spring, about five minutes from downtown.

Orphans, their families hope to retrace lineage along country's rails

By George Morris
Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La. — When Betty Obee was a teen-ager, her family traveled every year to New York City. She was 37 years old before she learned these journeys were not merely vacations.

Rather, Ms. Obee's mother made the trip from New Orleans to ask life's most fundamental question: Who am I?

She never got an answer.

Ms. Obee's mother, Mae Kornbacher DePaoli, was an orphan train rider. From 1854 to 1929, about 150,000 east coast children — orphaned, abandoned or given up by destitute parents — were sent by rail to families in the South and West. Many were too young to remember the experience.

Virtually all, however, grew up knowing that the adults raising them were not their real parents. For many, that was a void that had to be filled.

Thus, the DePaoli family made its annual sojourn to the New York Foundling Hospital, which had placed Ms. Obee's mother with a family in New Orleans. The hospital held the keys to her past, but would not let them go.

"My father had begged them for years to tell my mother who her parents were, and they always ran into a brick wall," Ms. Obee said. "They would say, 'You don't want to know' or 'You don't need to know' or 'We don't have the information.'"

DePaoli died in 1990 not knowing her ancestry.

Since then, Ms. Obee and others say, the Foundling Hospital has relaxed its grip on records. A hospital official finally told Ms. Obee her mother's birth name, Mary Burns, and the names of her maternal grandparents.

Similarly, orphan train rider Aloysius Inhern Sr. of Opelousas, La. began seeking information on his parents in 1927. His daughter-in-law, Flo, continued the pursuit. Finally, on the day he died in 1986, a letter arrived revealing his mother's name.

"He was unconscious, but the last thing that people lose when they are dying is their hearing," Flo Inhern said. "My sister-in-law told him, and she said, 'I know you can't answer me, but if you understand squeeze my hand or something.'

"He didn't do that, but two tears ran down his cheek, so I guess he heard. We hope he did."

When immigrants began pouring into port cities like New York, Boston and Philadelphia in the 19th century, many were jobless and homeless. And epidemics of smallpox and tuberculosis created many orphans.

The primary forms of public assistance were poorhouses, with dreadful living conditions, and orphanages, which were overwhelmed by the number of children. In 1850, when New York City's population was 500,000, about 10,000 children lived on the streets.

Appalled by the situation, the Rev. Charles Loring Brace founded the Children's Aid Society in 1853. He taught children trades, but there was not enough work for them in the city. So, Brace began looking to place them in nearby communities, then farther away.

In 1854, he sent 46 boys on the first orphan train to southwestern Michigan. Brace knew many farmers needed extra hands to work. The CAS began relocating children by the thousands, and other such efforts sprang up.

> 'They are forever wondering who they are. They don't fit. They are loved, and they love, but they do not fit.'
> — Flo Inhern, daughter-in-law of orphan train rider

One of them was the New York Foundling Hospital, run by the Sisters of Charity. According to "The Orphan Trains" by Annette R. Fry, the Foundling made appeals for homes through the Catholic church. Families who were approved would wait at the train depots to pick their child from the group. Siblings often were separated, never to see each other again.

When the orphan train pulled into Opelousas in 1907, Mantorde Dupre was waiting. He was there to pick up Agnes Thompson and her brother, George. Each child had a name tag. Dupre found Alice, and found a 'George', but it was the wrong one.

"She could speak no French, and the people that took her could speak no English," said Henrietta Perry of Krotz Springs, La. She is Agnes Thompson's daughter. "So, when she tried to tell them, they didn't listen to her...They (the children) didn't put up much of a fuss because they were scared."

Her brother went to another family and grew up a few miles away. Only 3 years old when he arrived, George soon forgot his sister. Agnes, 5 at the time, did not forget.

"We have no proof of it outside of her," said Harold Dupre of Opelousas, George's son. "She was very firm in her thoughts."

Agnes never forgot her brother. They lived within 25 miles of each other as adults, and she made point to find out about him. One of Agnes' sons worked with George for a while.

In 1970, Harold Dupre arranged for them to get together. They kept a close relationship until George Dupre's death in 1980.

In the past few years, said Mary Ellen Johnson, executive director of the Orphan Train Heritage Society in Springdale, Ark., the Foundling Hospital has relaxed its grip on the parental information. She tells those who have not sought information in several years to write again. However, if the Foundling did not know an orphan's parentage, it would assign the child a nationality and a name accordingly, Ms. Johnson said.

Recently, Ms. Obee visited the house where her grandmother, Katherine Burns, worked as a maid in Larchmont, N.Y. Obee is trying to find out if Burns had other children. "A lot of us are really closing in on the trail," Ms. Obee said. "It's really exciting for us."

The emotions are considerably different for others who have not been so lucky.

"They are forever wondering who they are," Ms. Inhern said. "They don't fit. They are loved, and they love, but they do not fit.

"We had one man who talked at the reunion this year and said, 'I didn't now who I was then, and I still don't know who I am.' That breaks your heart."

Bessie stands guard over her twin calves at the Bredewater Ranch near Cibilo on Wednesday.

Cow gives birth to ninth set of twin calves

By Marty Sabota
San Antonio Express-News

According to San Antonio Livestock Exhibition chair professor Bill Turner, about 1 of every 200 births is twins.

SAN ANTONIO — Lois and Arnold Bredewater are in steer heaven since their cow Bessie delivered her ninth set of twins.

Mom and calves, who made their appearance recently at the Bredewater Ranch in Guadalupe County, seemed oblivious to the moo-haha they've caused.

They shied away from reporter and photographer, although Bredewater said the tan, 1,400-pound critter is gentle "except when strangers are around. She'll eat range cubes (vegetarian protein supplements) out of my hand."

After all, Bredewater raised Bessie, a Chianina crossbred beef cow, from a calf.

Bessie's first birth in 1985 was a single. From then on, as Bart Simpson would say, it was Cowabunga!

"When she had two sets of twins, we thought, 'This is neat,' " said Mrs. Bredewater, 62. "And then she had three. And then she had four.

"Pretty soon, people were gambling on it."

According to San Antonio Livestock Exhibition chair professor Bill Turner, about 1 of every 200 births is twins. Once a cow has twins, odds are it will have more.

But when the twins are different genders, the female calf usually is sterile. Eight of Bessie's nine sets have been a heifer and a bull calf, so they were destined from birth for the butcher.

Turner said another problem is the twins' mother often can't make enough milk. In Bessie's case, that has not been a problem, Mrs. Bredewater said as she watched the threesome cavort in a pen.

"She's a good mama," the smiling rancher's wife said.

Bessie, it seems, is just following in the family tradition. Her owner, a retired Air Force colonel, is an identical twin. And the Bredewater boys married twins.

Bredewater has been raising cattle since his retirement from Randolph Air Force Base in 1969. Except for Bessie, his herd, which once averaged 100 head but now stands at 20, has produced only two other sets of twins.

The rancher has no scrapbook of Bessie's accomplishments, since he never expected the twins streak to continue.

"Each year I'd thought she's never going to have another set and then sure enough," said the spry, 78-year-old rancher. "If we'd have had any idea, we'd have taken movies."

WWII squadron raises funds to replace church windows broken in raid

By Frank Perkins
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

FORT WORTH — Aging survivors of World War II's 383rd Fighter Squadron are on one last mission: raising $200,000 to replace 700-year-old stained glass church windows they destroyed on a raid to Remy, France, in 1944.

They began their efforts Saturday with ceremonies in Remy, north of Paris, said Roy Blaha, 74, of Homestead, Fla., the squadron's spokesman and friend of the only American lost on that mission, 1st Lt. Houston Lee Braly of Brady.

In the Aug. 2, 1944, raid, four of the squadron's eight P-51 Mustangs destroyed an 18-car German munitions train parked in the Remy yards, Blaha said.

The train exploded and the blast fragmented the windows in the town's 13th-century church, blew the roofs off houses and killed 400 Germans, one Remy citizen and Braly.

The explosion also damaged Blaha's plane, and blew the wings and tail off Braly's Mustang, sending the fuselage sliding past a crossroads, through a wall and into a farmyard about a mile away.

Maria Terese Schouppe ran to the burning wreckage and pulled Braly's body from it, according to his sister, Alice Braly Gibson, a former Fort Worth resident who moved to Houston last year.

"She wrote the family that she and a young boy carried the body to the village cemetery where it was buried with dignity and honor," Gibson said. "This year, she wrote me again and in the letter, she said, 'After 50 years, I still have memories of your brother's burned body.' "

The burial created a crisis between the town's 2,000 residents and the German administration over the flowers the villagers put on Braly's grave.

The Germans removed the flowers and vowed to take hostages if they reappeared. That night, four times as many flowers were taken to the grave, according to village records.

The Germans took no reprisals, and when Remy was liberated by American troops two months later, Braly's grave was still covered with fresh flowers. At its head was a blade from his plane's propeller, polished and bearing his name.

The blade was lost after the war when his body was moved to an American military cemetery. He was finally buried in the family plot in Brady in 1948, Gibson said.

The idea of replacing the windows surfaced after Blaha and other squadron members visited Remy during and after the war, and military historian Stephen L. Lea Vell visited Remy during this year's 50th anniversary celebrations of the end of World War II.

Lea Vell discovered that some of the stained glass windows still needed to be replaced, but that the city had run out of money for the project.

After the squadron's 50th reunion, the old airmen decided to form the nonprofit Windows for Remy Foundation and raise an estimated $200,000 to replace the windows to repay Remy in honor of Braly and to honor Lea Vell for his efforts to assemble their unit history.

Besides Blaha and other members of the 383rd attending Saturday's ceremonies in France were Gibson and Braly's two brothers, Walter E. and Dudley Braly.

The ceremonies included speeches from the Bralys and a flyby of Air Force jets from England in the traditional missing man formation.

In addition, the city of Remy named the crossroads where Braly's P-51 crashed "Rue de Houston Lee Braly" and dedicated a plaque bearing his name on the reconstructed version of the wall that his plane punctured 51 years ago.

Boy passes 13th birthday, loses battle with AIDS

DALLAS (AP) — Matthew Allen knew what he was up against. He knew you can't beat AIDS forever.

But he was determined to beat it for a little while — at least long enough to reach his 13th birthday.

He made it.

Matt Allen died Friday from complications of AIDS, a little more than a month after he became a teen-ager.

"His goal was to get to his 13th birthday, and he made that," said his grandfather, the Rev. Jimmy Allen, a former San Antonio minister and past president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Until last December, Matt attended classes at Lakewood Elementary School in Dallas. From kindergarten until fourth grade, only a small number of people at the school knew of his illness.

Lydia Allen, Matt's mother, and his younger brother, Bryan, also died of AIDS. Bryan died as an infant in 1986; Mrs. Allen in 1992. All three contracted it from a tainted transfusion Mrs. Allen received hours before Matt's birth.

Her husband, Scott Allen, wasn't infected, but was dismissed as youth minister of a Christian church in Colorado Springs, Colo.

DEAR ABBY

Mom who doesn't 'work' wants play time

DEAR ABBY: I feel compelled to write to the stay-at-home mom who felt overworked, underappreciated and suffocated. I know how she feels. I have four small children under 5 years old, and I haven't had a "day off" since the first one was born.

Van Buren

Many people think I'm lucky because I don't "have to work." Staying at home with children IS work. My husband looks forward to the weekends, when he doesn't have to work, and just when I think I'll have him around to help, he decides to go golfing, because he needs to relax after working all week.

My sisters have commented that I used to be fun and funny. It's hard to be quick-witted when you're up all night with a new baby, then up again at dawn with the other kids.

As a single-income family, we can't afford to hire help or baby sitters. But your column helped me. After I wrote you this letter, I showed it (and the letter in your column) to my husband. He agreed I needed a "sanity day," and he's planning to stay home with the kids one day next week. I'm going to dress up and go to lunch with my sisters. Thanks, Abby, for my first day off! — STRESSED AT HOME IN PA.

DEAR STRESSED: I'm glad to help. I hope you and your husband make your "sanity day" a regular occurrence. Read on for another letter with a different take:

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Not OK Kaye," the stay-at-home mom who said her only relief from full-time motherhood is her part-time job.

My problem is exactly the opposite. I HAVE to work outside the home. I wish I could be home more often with my two young children. I feel like they are being raised by day care. I hate dragging them out of the house when it's barely light and not seeing them until it is dark again.

My house goes unattended all week, so my weekends are spent doing laundry, vacuuming and errands — a week's worth of housework in two days.

I'd do anything to be home more and watch my children play and grow. I wish I were in Kaye's shoes. — HOMEMAKER WANNABE

DEAR HOMEMAKER WANNABE: In today's economy, with the need for two incomes, many families share your plight. Fortunately, employers are becoming more sympathetic to working parents.

In order to allow employees to spend more time with their families, some employers offer "flex-time." Perhaps your company would consider such a plan.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter to you, "Another Texan" said, "A man once wrote that if he owned Hell and Texas, he would rent out Texas and live in Hell."

The man who said it was Gen. Philip Henry Sheridan (1831-88), in a speech at Fort Clark, Texas, in 1855.

While Texans may not want to remember Gen. Sheridan, we Chicagoans have memorialized him in the names of (among others) Fort Sheridan, Sheridan Road and Philip H. Sheridan School. A statue of Sheridan on his horse stands just off Lake Shore Drive at Belmont Avenue near the south end of Sheridan Road. — CHICAGO READER

AT WIT'S END

Whirlpool gives us chance to come clean

I'm one of those women who clean the house before the cleaning woman comes. No one is going to catch me with my toilet seat up and my plants down.

Bombeck

Assuming you are a woman who would postpone her own funeral to clean her oven so it wouldn't set off the smoke alarm, mark this on your calendar: Nov. 15 (tomorrow!) is Whirlpool Clean Your Refrigerator Day. I know, I should have told you last August, but the truth is I just found out myself.

This is a holiday far more important than Dance With a Dustball (June 13) or National Bury the Fruitcake Month (celebrated the third week of October).

If you question whether or not your refrigerator needs cleaning, ask yourself, under "Missing" on your milk carton is there a picture of Jimmy Hoffa? Would you let your mother open the door without a 911 crew standing by?

Don't be embarrassed by what you find. According to the appliance company survey, it has recorded seeing gym shoes, one frosty set of false teeth and bat guano. Or it could have been fuzzy green cheese.

Why Nov. 15? It's because never have you had more leftovers from last year and a need to store this year's Thanksgiving food. See that 25-pound turkey? Pitch it. It's left over from last August, and you have a new bird moving in.

Leftover food is terminal. A turkey can gasp for breath for about two days and then you give it to your kids, whose refrigerators have nothing in them. Cranberry sauce will struggle to maintain life for seven days; then it will look like the dark side of a crater. Pumpkin pie hangs in there for seven days. But by that time the crust is liquid and even the dog refuses to lap up the filling.

Every year, my mother struggles over the Thanksgiving dinner. At least three dozen dishes vie for space in her refrigerator. "Where's the butter?" someone asks. She says, "Behind the vegetable plate and the whipping cream, the Jell-O mold and under the vegetable medley."

Every year, she forgets to serve the dressing, the shrimp cocktail or the biscuits.

This holiday will not cure your habit for clutter, but for a day or so you will have space for your necessities.

As for the fruitcake, it will look the same this year as it will next year. It won't turn white, brown or green. It won't mildew, stagnate or harden like a rock. It'll take more than a national holiday to get rid of it.

Playoff mirror image produces some major differences

■ This time Midland Lee is ranked and unbeaten while Amarillo High is 6-3 for Friday's bi-district football clash at Memorial Stadium.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Friday's 7:30 p.m. Class 5A Small School bi-district playoff clash at Memorial Stadium between Amarillo High and Midland Lee would look like a mirror image of last year's bi-district meeting if things weren't so different.

The more things appear to be the same, the more they are changed. For instance, Lee was 6-3 a year ago while Amarillo High was 9-0 and ranked No. 10 in the state. This year Lee is 8-0-1 and ranked No. 8 while the Golden Sandies are 6-3.

And the favorite again has the home field edge as Lee is the host team and Amarillo High is the visitor, the opposite of last year.

But one area where Lee doesn't want a change from last year is in the overall outcome. Lee rallied from a 21-7 deficit to tie the ranked Sandies, 21-21, on foreign soil a year ago and advanced to the area playoff round with a 4-3 edge in penetrations.

Lee held the edge over the Sandies with a little over 10 minutes left in the game, but had to survive two field goal tries by Bryan Kennedy. Kennedy, who had seven field goals and 35 extra points a year ago, returns to the Sandies this year, but his production is down with only three field goals and 20 extra points.

All three of Amarillo High's losses have come to playoff teams this year. The Sandies lost to Odessa Permian, Lubbock Monterey and Lubbock Coronado.

But if you feel that the Sandies are not up to the task of pulling an upset against Lee this week, you only have to look at Amarillo's loss to Odessa Permian.

Amarillo High held old Mojo to a meager 149 total yards with only 89 yards rushing. In fact, the Sandies came close to pulling off a comeback after getting down to Permian 14-0 in the first half and ended up losing by only a 14-11 margin.

The Sandies, however, appear to be a little weaker offensively this year than a year ago, but their defense keeps them in games. The Sandies had only 111 total yards against Permian, with a meager 33 yards rushing.

When the Amarillo High offense clicks, it is behind

DALLAS COWBOYS: THE FALL

Cowboys outsmarted

■ "Dumfounded" Cowboys at least get some good news from quarterback Troy Aikman.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys needed some good news and they got it Monday when quarterback Troy Aikman's knee injury was diagnosed only as a bruised tendon.

He could play in Sunday's game at Oakland.

"There is swelling and soreness but there is a good chance Troy could be ready this week," said team trainer Kevin O'Neill. "We're very excited about it. This is a great result."

Aikman suffered the injury in the first quarter of the 38-20 loss to San Francisco. He underwent an MRI late Monday afternoon.

"Troy was lucky," O'Neill said. "He bruised a tendon that's part of the hamstring muscle. It's not a very common injury. We're treating it with ice."

Defensive tackle Chad Hennings suffered a sprained right knee and may not be able to play against the Raiders. The knee was in a brace and Hennings was listed as questionable.

Battered physically and psychologically, the Cowboys were still in shock trying to figure out how they let the San Francisco 49ers outwit and outplay them for the third consecutive game.

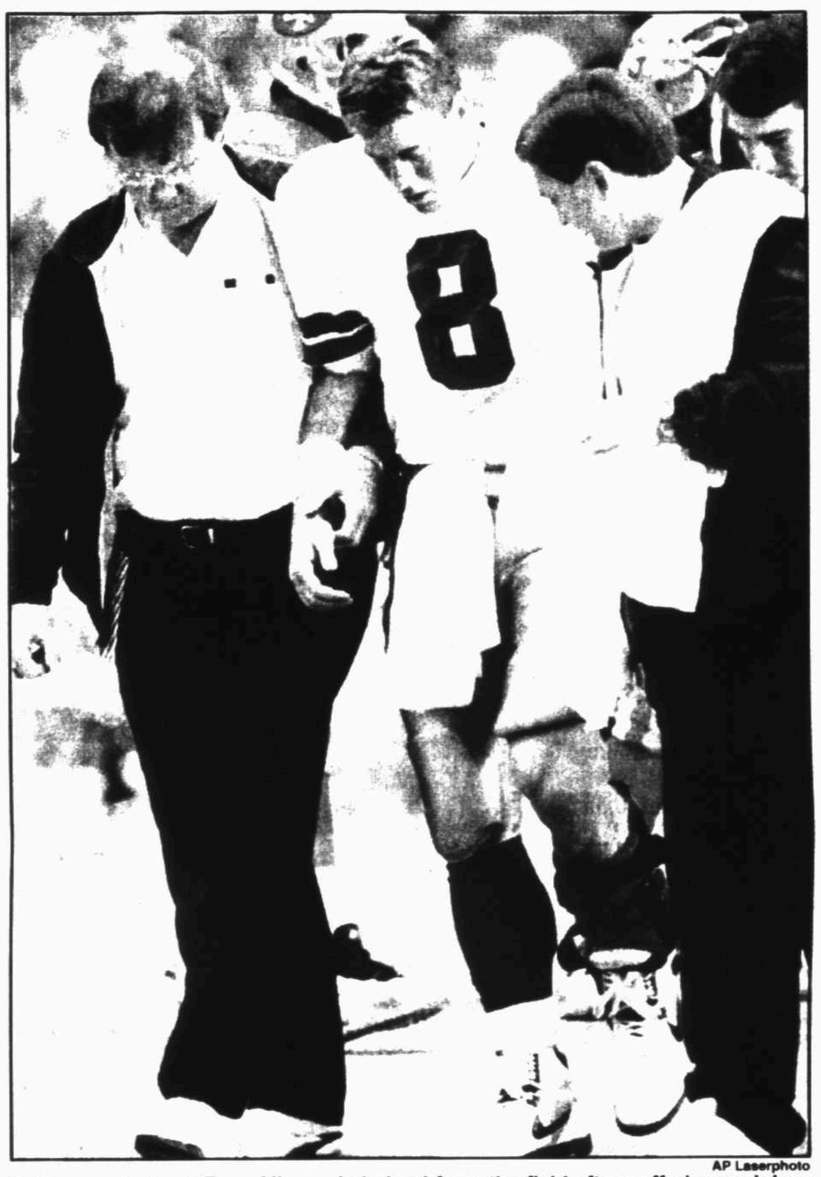

"Dumbfounded," was the way Dallas coach Barry Switzer described his mood after the 38-20 win by the 49ers over his 14-point favorites.

"I have no explanation how it could happen to us again," said Switzer. "We'll never beat San Francisco if we do what we've done the last three games. The turnover rate is 12-to-1."

Dallas lost to San Francisco 21-14 during the regular season last year and fell 38-28 in the NFC championship game.

Switzer took full responsibility for the whipping in which the 49ers baffled the Cowboys with the simple move of putting wide receiver Jerry Rice into the slot position. Dallas tried to cover Rice

Rebels hold No. 8 in poll

Associated Press

DALLAS — Midland Lee ended up as the No. 8 ranked Class 5A team in the state in the final Associated Press high school football poll Monday.

Odessa Permian, a team that Lee defeated, 14-7, during regular season play ended ranked No. 6 with a 9-1 record. Lee finished regular season play with a 8-0-1 mark. Also, Dallas Carter, another 9-1 team which lost to Permian, finishes in the No. 5 slot.

Tyler John Tyler (10-0) was the No. 1 ranked team in Class 5A from beginning to end. Defending state champion John Tyler was followed by the 10-0 teams of Austin Westlake, Richardson Lake Highlands and Flower Mound Marcus. Arlington Lamar (9-0-1) and Lee were the only other unbeaten teams in the Top 10.

It took an entire regular season to crown a new No. 1 in any of the five classes, and it couldn't have come at a worse time for Alto coach Lucky Gamble.

The Lady Dawgs used a stifling full-court press to cause 20 Lady Buffalo miscues in the first half alone as coach Jim Raughton's squad pulled away from Stanton by outscoring it 46-10 in the second and third quarters.

Atlanta Braves' pitcher Greg Maddux ...National League Cy Young Award winner

Maddux 'perfect' for Cy Young

By Ronald Blum
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — For Greg Maddux, winning the Cy Young Award — even unanimously — is just another part of his routine.

"We might have a little party tomorrow night or something," he said Monday after capturing his fourth consecutive NL Cy Young, his second straight by a shutout vote. "After winning the World Series, we're pretty much partied out."

Maddux, at 29 perhaps not even halfway through his career, continued to put up numbers that can be compared only with baseball's greats.

Steve Carlton is the only other pitcher to win four Cy Youngs. He did it for Philadelphia in 1972, 1977, 1980 and 1982.

Sandy Koufax is the only other pitcher to win the award unanimously in consecutive years — in 1965-66 for the Dodgers.

"It's really hard for me to talk about the history of the game because my history goes back 10 years," Maddux said during a telephone news conference from his home in Las Vegas.

"When I heard comparisons about people who pitched in the '50s or '60s or '70s, I can't really relate to it. I didn't really watch baseball a whole lot back then. I really wasn't the fan then I am now. I just take it as a nice compliment on move on."

Maddux, who led the Atlanta Braves to their first World Series title, received 140 points in balloting announced by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Maddux led the NL in wins with a 19-2 record, and was tops in the league in ERA (1.63) and complete games (10). He became the first major leaguer since Walter Johnson in 1918-19 to have an ERA under 1.80 in consecutive seasons.

Cincinnati's Pete Schourek was second in the voting with 55 points, followed by Braves teammate Tom Glavine with 30. Los Angeles rookie Hideo Nomo was fourth with 19.

AMY WOLFENBARGER

Try out local basketball before Christmas

Well, I won't come down on the citizens of Midland too much since I realize it is a crime (misdemeanor) in Midland to attend local basketball games until after the football playoffs are over. Actually, it's more like after the Christmas holidays.

Wolfenbarger

But I will say this: If you haven't been to Chaparral Center since last March you're missing out on a lot of fun.

And judging from the attendance figures, there must have been a lot of more important and exciting things going on in the Tall City because, frankly, the numbers are pretty sickening.

When the Lady Chaparrals began the season with a three-game home stint, 5,000-seat Chaparral Center only averaged about 400 fans a night. Of course, that was the same weekend as the annual big football battle between Midland Lee and Odessa Permian.

When the men hit town last weekend, the attendance was better at about 1,000 fans for the two-day Chaparral Classic, in which the Lady Chaps also played. But the event included six other teams in the tournament, namely the Howard College men and the South Plains women which probably added a good number of fans from outside Midland.

Make no mistake, I'm a big football fan. It's only when it starts getting cold outside (about November) that my thoughts start turning to the gym.

Lucky for me and the rest of the five basketball fans out there (that doesn't count the coaches' spouses and children, players' parents, etc.) the first few games of the season have not been boring.

The Midland College teams have been in action for more than a week and there's already been some interesting developments.

The Lady Chaparrals are 6-0 and averging just under 100 points a game, having scored 115 and 107 in two games this season. Looks like Ron Jones has put together another fun and exciting team this year. They look pretty darn good, too.

The Chaparrals, however, are struggling at 1-3. But they have more than their share of setbacks in this short season.

And ankle injury sidelined freshman forward Ceedric Goodwyn in the season opener and coach Pat Rafferty was expecting him to provide some consistent scoring and take some of the defensive heat off preseason All-American D'Juan Baker, who scored a career-high 39 Saturday night.

Baker, as expected, has had to carry most of the scoring load since then. Luckily for Rafferty, Goodwyn was back on Saturday and scored 15 points while playing in pain. But he says he's in the lineup to stay. And freshman Lamont Young has come through with some big performances early, including 16 points in the loss to Mesa.

To steal a line from Midland Lee boys coach Jon House, Midland is rapidly turning into a basketball town. Last year, both MC teams made the playoffs as well as both girls and boys teams from Midland High and Midland Lee. Two years ago, there were four teams in the playoffs. Only the Lee girls stayed home and, of course, the Lady Chaparrals were not in existence yet.

And this year should be no different. The Midland High girls opened the season last night and the Lady Rebels begin tonight. Both boys get into action this weekend and all four teams are expecting no less than return trips to the playoffs.

So now that you've been let in on the best-kept secret in Midland, I expect to see the gyms full from now until March. Don't wait for Christmas to get one of the best gifts this town has to offer.

Texas Longhorns leery of of Top 10 poll accolades

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas is in the Top 10 for the first time since 1990 and for only the second time in the past 12 years. But the No. 10 Longhorns aren't talking big or walking with a new swagger.

If anything, they are leery of the accolades, refusing to let anything alter the focus that has helped them reach a 7-1-1 record with Texas Christian, Baylor and Texas A&M still to play.

"You can't say, 'We're a Top 10 team. We're great. We're back.' You can't say that," linebacker Kyle Richardson said Monday. "I don't think the team is even paying attention to it. We can't get caught up in it."

Another reason Texas, the only undefeated team in the Southwest Conference at 4-0, isn't doing high-fives over its national standing is because players have seen their season jolted by upset losses each of the past three years.

In 1992, Texas reached No. 20 before losing to TCU for the first time since 1967.

In 1993, the Longhorns were upset by Texas Tech, and last year they reached No. 12 before being knocked off by Rice for the first time in 29 years.

"We've been ranked high before and let it slip away," said free safety Chris Carter. "We remember how bad that felt, and we don't want to let it slip away again."

With lopsided victories over Texas Tech (48-7) and Houston (52-20) in the past two weeks, the Longhorns' confidence is surging. Against the Cougars on Saturday, Texas was trailing 20-10 in the first half, but players said no one was worried.

"This team is playing with a great deal of confidence, and that was evidenced by the Houston game," said noseguard Chris Akins. "Last year, we would get behind and the team would panic a little bit.

"But on Saturday, the coaches were calm, the players were calm and we just took a deep breath and got our composure back. That's what a championship team does. The big difference this year is we are more unified."

Texas coach John Mackovic calls this year's squad a "veteran team" despite starting only seven seniors.

"We got behind (against Houston) and we didn't have to yell and scream at them," Mackovic said. "We have done that in the past, but I can't remember doing that this year."

The last time Texas was in the Top 10 was 1990, when the Longhorns went 8-0 in the SWC and reached No. 3 before losing 46-3 to Miami in the Cotton Bowl and finishing the year 10-2.

With the exception of 1966, the Longhorns had made an appearance in the Top 10 every year from 1958 until 1984. From 1984 to 1990, the highest ranking Texas could muster was No. 16.

"I like us being up in the rankings and getting some attention," said sophomore quarterback James Brown, who threw for four touchdowns against Houston and ran for another score. "This is what I expected when I came here."

Utah Jazz rap Rapters

■ NBA Roundup

TORONTO (AP) — John Stockton had 29 points and 12 assists, including a key feed to Adam Keefe with with five seconds left Monday night, helping the Utah Jazz beat the Toronto Raptors 103-100.

The Jazz won on the road for the first time this season. The Raptors lost their sixth in a row following an opening-night victory.

Karl Malone, who had 22 points and 11 rebounds for the Jazz, fouled Alvin Robertson with 45 seconds left, but the Toronto guard hit only one free throw to cut Utah's lead to 101-100.

Malone missed from short range, but Chris Morris got an offensive rebound. Stockton then passed to Keefe, whose jumper as the 24-second clock ran out put Utah ahead by three points.

Tracy Murray missed a 3-pointer at the buzzer.

The Jazz dominated in the third quarter, outscoring the Raptors 37-22, including 13 straight points. Stockton scored 15 and Malone 13 in the period.

The Raptors got off to a quick start in the fourth quarter, outscoring the Jazz 14-2 to start the period.

Willie Anderson, despite fouling out with more than five minutes to play, and Roberston, each scored 22 for the Raptors. Toronto rookie Damon Stoudamire missed a free throw after making 28 straight to start his NBA career.

A crowd of 18,351 watched at SkyDome.

The Dallas Mavericks played the expansion Vancouver Grizzlies in a late game Monday night in Vancouver. Dallas was seeking its fifth victory in six outings. Vancouver entered the game with a 2-4 mark.

San Antonio plays Milwaukee today in a road game. The Spurs are 4-1.

Tarleton State fires Roemisch

STEPHENVILLE, Texas (AP) — Tarleton State University coach Ronnie Roemisch was fired Monday for going 1-10 in the school's first season back in the Division II Lone Star Conference.

He had spent the last 20 years in NAIA.

Roemisch went 9-21-1 in three seasons at Tarleton State, his alma mater. He spent the previous four years as the team's defensive coordinator.

"We are committed to having a competitive football program on the NCAA II level and within the Lone Star Conference," athletic director Lonn Reisman said. "The performance on the field indicated a change in leadership was needed."

Tarleton's only victory this season was against Prairie View A&M.

Lee girls open against Big Spring

Staff Report

The Midland Lee girls varsity basketball team kicks off its 1995-96 season tonight as the Lady Rebels take on Class 4A Big Spring at the Lee High gym at 8 p.m.

"I think the kids are finally ready to get the season going and play someone other than themselves," Lee coach Elise Kail said. "We've had four pretty good scrimmages and a lot of practice but it will be good to get on the court for real."

The Lady Rebs are coming off a playoff season in 1994-95 which saw them beat Lubbock Coronado in a bi-district playoff match before losing to El Paso Hanks in the area round, its first playoff appearance since the 1991-92 season.

The Lady Rebels lost all-district post Krissy Woodard to graduation (she's now at Northwestern State) but have two returning starters in junior Jamie Rhodes and senior point guard Claire Wright.

"We've got the two starters coming back and a couple of other girls who got a lot of playing time last year," Kail said, "but we've also got a few kids who have never played on the varsity before."

Rhodes was the team's second leading scorer last year as a sophomore behind Woodard and Wright gives the offense some punch with a good three-point shot.

Lee has made the playoffs seven times since the UIL went to the two-team playoff format. The Lady Rebels were also District 4-5A champs the first three years of its existence from 1978-80.

The Lady Rebels open district play Dec. 12 at home against Abilene Cooper.

Browns not going anywhere in standings

■ NFL Monday Night

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Art Modell was wrong. The Cleveland Browns aren't going anywhere — at least not in the standings, and probably not with rookie Eric Zeier at quarterback.

Modell was missing, and so was the Browns' offense in probably their last visit to Pittsburgh as the Steelers seized a two-game lead in the AFC Central Division with a 20-3 victory Monday night.

The Steelers' revived Blitzburgh defense harassed Zeier into a succession of incompletions, fumbles and too-hurried throws, and their own rookie quarterback, Kordell Stewart, upstaged him by throwing for a touchdown on his first NFL pass.

Stewart ran nearly the width of the field and back again to hit Ernie Mills on a disputed 2-yard go-ahead touchdown pass in the second quarter, finishing off a 75-yard drive kept alive by Stewart's own 11-yard third-down catch on a third-and-11 play.

The touchdown shouldn't have counted, as TV replays showed Mills going out of bounds in the right corner of the end zone before making the pivotal catch.

But the controversy didn't diminish the impact of Stewart, who became the fourth Steelers quarterback to throw a touchdown pass this season, or the revived Pittsburgh running game.

Stewart was on the field for fewer than a dozen plays, yet clearly outplayed Zeier.

POLL: Alto takes over as top 2A team

(From 1C)

Gamble's Yellowjackets became the top-ranked team in Class 2A on Monday for the season's final Associated Press high school football poll, moving up from No. 2 following a loss by previously top-ranked Celina.

"Put Pilot Point up there. They beat Celina," Gamble begged. "Why not just leave us around eight or nine?"

Coaches often are divided about whether they want to be highly ranked. Put Gamble on the thanks-but-no-thanks side.

"I hope it's not the kiss of death," Gamble said.

Gamble must not have been paying attention to the way the poll has gone. The teams ranked atop the other four classes in the preseason were still there when the season ended, each sporting 10-0 records.

Others are: La Marque in 4A, Sealy in 3A and Thorndale in 1A. All but La Marque also are defending state champions.

The only minor difference from the preseason was in 4A where two-time defending champion Stephenville began tied with La Marque and finished the year ranked fifth.

By losing 13-9 to then-No. 7 Pilot Point, Celina lost its grip on the 2A lead. Celina fell to seventh and Pilot Point moved up to fourth.

And then there's Alto, which began the season ranked third.

The Yellowjackets are making their third straight postseason appearance in as many seasons under Gamble. The first team went 12-1 and lost to eventual state runner-up Omaha Paul Pewitt in the regional round. Last year's team went 10-2, falling in the area round.

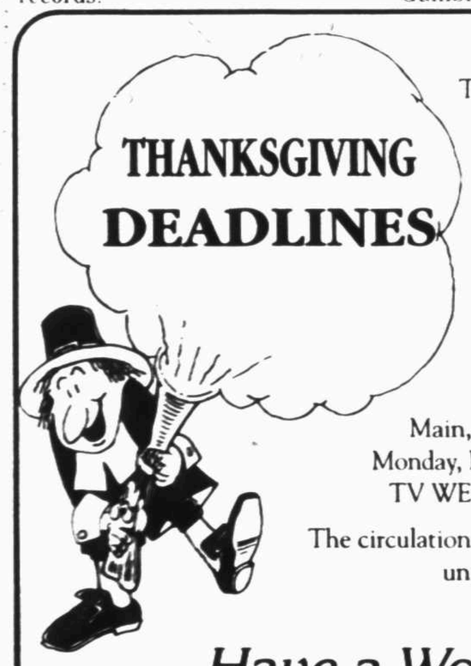

Gamble sees things coming together this year. He has 10 seniors, all of whom were on those two playoff teams. He also sees a chemistry unlike the other two squads.

"In the past couple of years, we had a couple of really outstanding players who carried the team," Gamble said. "This year, we have a bunch of good players. Other than (receiver) Fred Hackney and (defensive end) Michael Hackett, everyone else is pretty equal.

"We don't fall off when we take a kid out and put another in. They're all about the same."

Alto's playoff experience could pay off right away in the first-round game against East Chambers.

"They've got a lot of speed, like us," Gamble said. "But probably the biggest difference is they haven't been to the playoffs in 23 years."

49ers lose Young for another month

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Steve Young, puzzled by persistent soreness in his passing shoulder, underwent arthroscopic surgery Monday and could be lost to the San Francisco 49ers for another month.

Young, MVP of the regular season and Super Bowl last season, has been sidelined since an Oct. 15 loss at Indianapolis in which he sustained a sprain and bone bruise in his passing shoulder.

Club president Carmen Policy said Young's recovery stalled in the last two weeks and Young, along with team physician Dr. Michael Dillingham, decided a more aggressive approach was necessary. During the plane ride home from Sunday's 38-20 victory at Dallas, the decision was made to go forward with the surgery.

"The 'scoping was necessary to facilitate and accelerate the healing process," Policy said. "Steve was probably the biggest advocate of this decision. He talked about it before the Dallas game and when he sensed he would not be able to participate, the frustration level grew tremendously.

"I also feel he wanted to be certain that when he does proceed with his rehab that he was going to be able to make the kind of effort necessary to prove that he can not only play, but play effectively. And he didn't want to worry that he was dealing with some unknown more serious injury that could perhaps complicate his future."

Elvis Grbac, who has started the past four games in place of Young and threw for 305 yards and two scores in the win at Dallas, will remain San Francisco's starter until Young can return.

Young underwent the outpatient surgery in the morning and was at the 49ers headquarters in the afternoon to renew his rehabilitation. He said he was relieved.

MHS: Merritt leads Lady Dawgs with 15

(From 1C)

filled in the void left by the loss of starters Alcala, Jamie Rand and Veronica Poage.

Returning starter Ogonna Merritt and returning letterwinner Laura Childress pumped in 15 and 10 points respectively to lead a balanced scoring attack for the Lady Dawgs as they beat Stanton, one of the best Class 2A teams in the state, by double digits for the second year in a row. All but two of the Lady Dawgs scored in the game.

"We struggled a little bit," said Raughton, pointing out MHS' 21 turnovers in the somewhat sloppy first game of the season, "but we're going to get better. When everyone gets a feel for one another, there won't be as much confusion out there on offense."

But the hard-to-please Raughton added, "I'd hate to be in midseason form right now, though, because we wouldn't have anything to improve on."

It's still early to tell how much effect Alcala's loss will have on the three-time district champion Lady Dawgs. But Stanton coach Frank Riney knows graduation severely hurt his Lady Buffaloes.

Only two of the Lady Buffs returned off a team that made the playoffs the last two seasons only to meet the eventual state champion Jim Ned both times in the early rounds. Before the game, Riney said his young squad was nervous just being on the court for the first time this season.

"We're struggling to find consistency and the games ahead are real important," said Riney, who likes having the tough MHS squad on his preseason schedule. "And if the kids will keep things in perspective, we should be in there for the district race, which is our goal.

"We've got a tough non-district schedule, but I would rather play somebody like Midland and get something out of it than play somebody we could beat by 40 points," added Riney.

Stanton stayed with the Lady Dawgs 13-12 at the end of the first quarter behind six points from Michelle DeLeon and by shooting 50 percent from the field while Midland was struggling with six-of-20 shooting.

But the Lady Dawg defense held Stanton to 7 points as they pulled away for a 36-19 halftime lead.

The MHS press started to wear on the young Lady Buffs.

"It wasn't so much the conditioning," said Riney, whose team seemed to slow down in the second quarter. "But a good full court press begins to wear on you after a while. At first, you go down there and face it and it's not so bad. But when you have to fight against it every time you go down the court, it eventually makes a big difference."

In junior varsity action, Casey Fore scored 16 points to lead MHS to a 62-26 victory over Stanton. Four other players for MHS had eight points each.

The MHS sophomores also got a victory, 65-45, in the first game of the night. Misty Calhoun led with 14 while Brandi Johnson added 12 and Erin Rogers and Tierra Barber each put up 10 points.

Midland High stays home this weekend when it plays in the Tall City Invitational.

Kentucky draws nod as year's first No. 1 cage team

Kentucky was voted No. 1 in the preseason college basketball poll for the first time Monday, and big conferences again dominated the Top 25, with the Big East having three of the top six teams.

The Wildcats, who reached the round of eight in last year's NCAA tournament and return three starters, received 34 first-place votes and 1,550 points from the national media panel.

Kansas was just two points behind after receiving 24 No. 1 votes. The Jayhawks have four starters back from the team that lost in the regional semifinals last season.

Then came the Big East — No. 3 Villanova followed by defending champion UCLA of the Pac-10, Georgetown and Connecticut.

Villanova, which had 1,369 points, and UCLA were the only other schools to receive first-place votes with two and four, respectively.

The Top 10 was completed by Massachusetts, Iowa, Mississippi State and Utah.

The next 10 spots went to Wake Forest, Louisville, Memphis, Missouri, Maryland, Arkansas, Michigan, Stanford, Virginia and North Carolina.

The last of the preseason ranked teams were Cincinnati, Virginia Tech, Indiana, Purdue and California.

Kentucky becomes the second straight Southeastern Conference team to be selected the preseason No. 1. Arkansas, then the defending champion, had that distinction and reached the title game last April.

The Wildcats lost two starters from last season — Rodrick Rhodes and Andre Riddick — and have added consensus national prep player of the year Ron Mercer and Ohio State transfer Derek Anderson.

"We think we have a good basketball team, and if we do the right things defensively, maybe we can develop into a great team," Kentucky coach Rick Pitino said.

The Wildcats will find out a lot right away as they open the season with neutral-site games against Maryland and Massachusetts, then play at Indiana.

"I don't feel a lot of pressure when you have the basketball team we have," Pitino said. "Pressure is when you don't have a bench, you don't have much quickness, you're short and slow."

The previous 14 preseason No. 1s have gone on to considerable success. None has ever finished out of the Top Ten in the final regular-season poll and each has made to at least the second round of the NCAA tournament with eight getting to the Final Four, including national champions North Carolina in 1982, UNLV in 1990 and Duke in 1992.

The Big Ten and the Atlantic Coast Conference led in the preseason poll with four representatives each — Iowa, Michigan, Indiana and Purdue of the Big Ten and Wake Forest, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina of the ACC. Four leagues had three teams each — the SEC, Big East, Pac-10 and Conference USA, which starts its inaugural season with Louisville, Memphis and Cincinnati.

DALLAS: Switzer says he is to blame for loss

(From 1C)

with linebackers until the third quarter and the results were disastrous.

"You can blame me 100 percent," said Switzer, who is 0-3 against the 49ers.

Switzer said the Cowboys might have put Deion Sanders man-to-man on Rice "if Deion hadn't missed practice all week. Rice in the slot was no surprise. Maybe we should have played more zone. But we couldn't get Deion on Jerry all the time because he hadn't practiced it. It meant our linebackers had to be part of the scheme."

Rice caught an 81-yard touchdown pass from Elvis Grbac with linebacker Darrin Smith chasing in vain and the rout was on.

"It was the same coverage we've played all year but Rice took advantage of it," Smith said. "Until we made adjustments we were just sitting ducks back there. It was a chess game and they won. Jerry is usually outside. Our big problem was execution of our scheme."

The Cowboys waited until the third quarter before they brought up safety Darren Woodson to shadow Rice.

When Woodson saw Rice come out in the slot, he said his first thoughts were "Oh, no. It was almost impossible for us to stop Rice with a linebacker. Nobody in their right mind figured Rice would be in the slot all day."

Woodson said he hopes he gets another crack at Rice and the 49ers.

"I guarantee you I'll be in the slot with him the whole game next time if he's in there," Woodson said. "Still, we didn't execute. You can't blame the coaches."

Woodson said the loss "made me sick to my stomach. I didn't sleep. This could be on my mind the rest of the season."

Second-string quarterback Wade Wilson suffered injuries to both hands. He needed stitches for cuts on his left hand and had contusions on his right thumb.

Jason Garrett will get additional snaps this week in case Aikman and Wilson have trouble getting ready for Oakland.

Biggio turns down Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — All-Star second baseman Craig Biggio became available to negotiate with other teams Monday after choosing not to sign a four-year, $20 million offer from the Houston Astros.

"Craig has been an invaluable part of this organization and we're just very disappointed that we weren't able to get it done," Astros vice president Bob McClaren said.

McClaren said it's possible Biggio could get the offer back, "but we're going to have to start making plans ourselves to address other needs on the team.

"We can't wait until this whole matter is resolved to look to better our team for 1996."

McClaren said Astros officials wanted to sign Biggio on Friday, when the second baseman met with team owner Drayton McLane Jr. and president Tal Smith to work on a deal.

"We were hoping to try to wrap this matter up on Friday or this weekend in hopes of avoiding entering into this unrestricted free agency climate, and we weren't able to do that," McClaren said.

The team took the offer off the table after the Sunday night deadline passed without Biggio signing.

Smith told KRIV-TV that Biggio won't have the contract to use as a bargaining chip with other clubs.

"It doesn't make much sense for us to give (Biggio) a $20 million safety valve while he's out there talking to other people," Smith said.

Smith added he's worried about the team's marketing efforts since McLane has said he could be forced to sell the club.

The Houston Chronicle has reported that Biggio was seeking a new contract in the range of $5 million a year. First baseman Jeff Bagwell, 1993's National League MVP, has asked to be traded if the Astros didn't re-sign Biggio, who made $4.5 million last season.

Prices steady

Oil futures were steady Monday on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

West Texas Intermediate for December delivery slipped 3 cents to $17.80 a barrel.

Natural gas for December delivery was up 1.1 cent to $1.912 per thousand cubic feet.

AOSC meeting

The Permian Basin chapter, Association of Oilwell Servicing Contractors, will meet Thursday at the Odessa Country Club. Contractors will meet at 11 a.m. followed by the chapter meeting at noon.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar ended mixed Monday after strengthening for most of the day after the Clinton administration took steps to avoid a default on the government's debt.

In late New York trading, the dollar fetched 101.90 yen, up from 100.93 yen Friday. The dollar also fetched 1.4175 marks, down from 1.4180.

Other dollar rates in New York vs. late Friday: 1.1433 Swiss francs, up from 1.1395; 1.3512 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3500; 4.8880 French francs, down from 4.8890; and 1,597 Italian lire, down from 1,599.

The British pound fell to $1.5538, from $1.5665.

Bank bid

LOS ANGELES — Wells Fargo & Co. raised its hostile bid for First Interstate Bancorp by nearly 8 percent to $10.9 billion and said it would launch a proxy battle to win over shareholders.

The San Francisco bank's moves marked an aggressive pressure tactic directed at its Los Angeles rival, which agreed to a merger with Minneapolis' First Bank System Inc. last week to escape a hostile marriage with Wells Fargo.

First Bank, whose offer is currently valued at $10.46 billion, vowed to proceed with its plans, but did not raise its price in response to the new bid.

Sony computers

NEW YORK — Sony Corp. said it would begin selling its own personal computers next fall, a decision that may erase the difference many consumers still perceive between home electronics and high technology.

The company said Monday it will join its Japanese rivals Matsushita Electric, NEC Corp., Sharp Corp. and Toshiba Corp. as a maker of personal computers as well as stereos, phones and TVs.

Markets gain

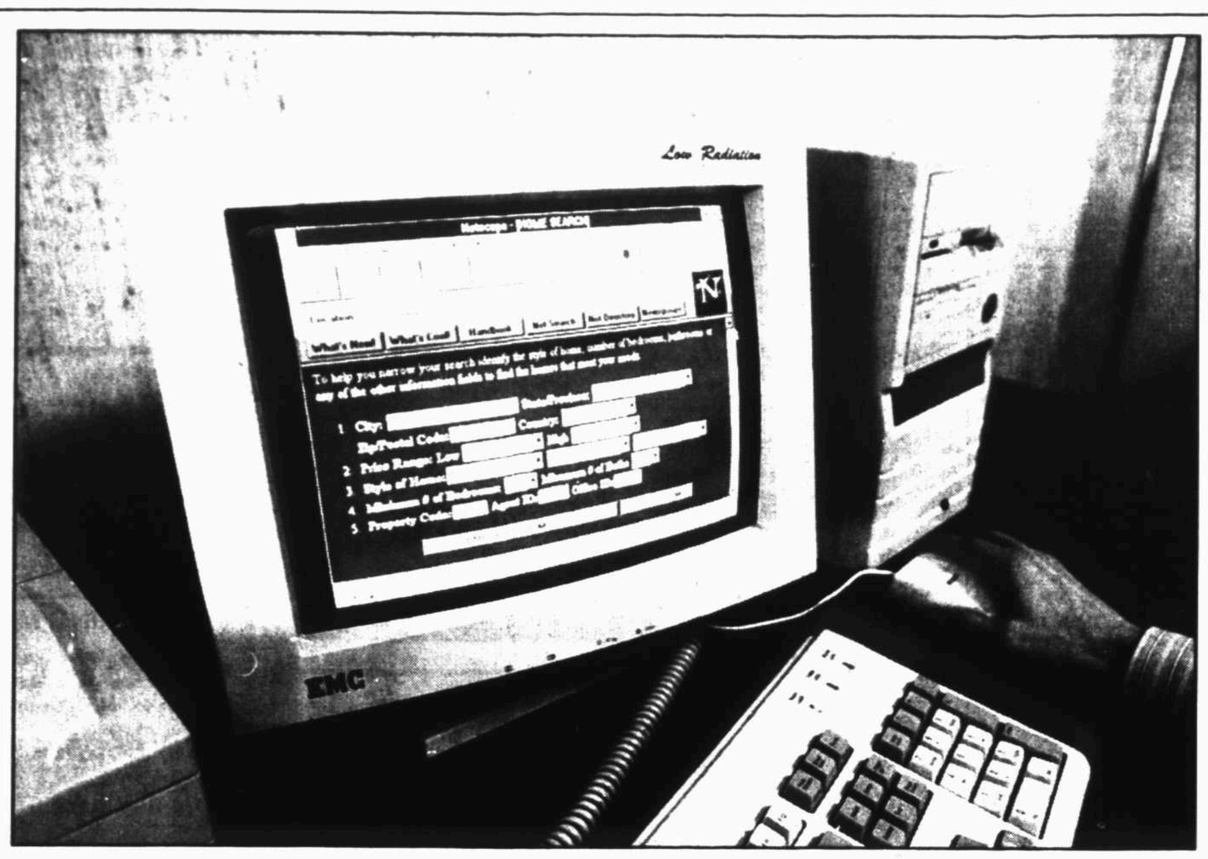

NEW YORK — Stock prices inched into record territory, following a rally in the bond market on faded fears that the government would default on the nation's debt.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 2.53 to 4,872.90.

The NYSE's composite index fell 0.15 to 315.63. The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.54 to 592.72. The Nasdaq composite index fell 6.12 to 1,057.75.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 0.57 to 530.43.

Midland Realtor jumps on the Internet

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

House-hunting is going high-tech. At one Midland real estate company, at least.

The Carriage Co. Realtors is in the process of listing its inventory on the Internet, a process that is expected to be completed next week.

"For the last two years, our office has made a concerted effort to bring itself up to the standards of the current technological era," explained John Muldrow, resource director with Carriage Co. "The Internet seemed the next logical step."

Pointing out that 40 percent of the company's business is serving out-of-town residents looking to move to Midland, Muldrow added, "This drove our desire to reach the out-of-towners and expose our properties to our clients."

The company's properties are listed on Home Web, accessed at www.us-digital.com, an Internet home page that currently has in excess of 53,000 properties listed and 27,000 inquiries daily.

Home Web, Muldrow said, has been in the relocation industry for 15 years and saw the need to generate a multi-state listing service. With its Internet page, home shoppers can specify a city, state or country and narrow their housing choices to a specific price range, architectural style and number of bedrooms and/or bathrooms or even undeveloped property.

Carriage Company's service is two-pronged, according to Muldrow:

First, it serves out-of-town residents looking to move to Midland. Secondly, it is available to Midland residents looking to relocate out of the Tall City. This service is available to the public, not just Carriage Company clients, Muldrow stressed.

The cost of listing a client's property on the Internet will be part of the company's normal fees.

He said the company is in the process of dedicating an area in the office where visitors can, in comfort, research properties in their future home. All staff members are, or will be, adept at the Internet and willing to spend time with the visitor. Staff members will also be able to access other areas of the Internet to provide detailed information on such topics as tax rates, restaurants, shopping, schools and mortgage products.

Other technology the company uses is a real-time hookup to the Midland Central Appraisal District for information on a property's taxes, ownership history and layout and a computer program containing a purchase contract that Muldrow plans to set up so it can be projected on a wall so the client can watch as the Realtor fills it out and discusses each section.

Wind power project to be dedicated

Staff Reports

The state's first commercial wind power project will be formally dedicated today in Van Horn.

The ceremony is the first in a series of events, workshops and exhibits that the General Land Office will participate in highlighting Clean Energy Week in Texas. Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said he will emphasize the message that if Texas is to continue as an economic leader nationally and internationally, it must develop sustainable energy sources.

Dedication and a tour of the Culberson County wind power project will begin at 11:45 a.m. at a ceremony hosted by Mauro, General Manager of the Lower Colorado River Authority Mark Rose and Culberson County officials.

The ceremony will mark the successful transmission of wind-generated electricity from 112 wind turbines through a new 28-mile transmission line into the Texas energy grid from a 35 megawatt wind power project in the Delaware Mountains. The turbines are located on land dedicated to the Permanent School Fund and leased to the LCRA. Mauro and Rose will pull a switch, lighting a darkened room and symbolizing the start of using the plentiful West Texas winds for large-scale electrical transmission in the state.

"The PSF, which helps finance public education in Texas, will benefit by receiving millions of dollars in lease money from this project. And that will help ease the burden on property taxpayers," Mauro said. "I hope to see more wind power projects on state lands dedicated to the public schools."

He added that "The success of this venture marks a historic step in our efforts to diminish our state's traditional reliance on fossil fuels for its energy needs. Texas is now a net-energy importer. That, combined with our explosive population growth, means we are faced with some hard choices.

"We can accept our status as a net-energy importer and watch the cost of housing, gasoline and utilities skyrocket and the problems caused by urban sprawl worsen. Or we can face the challenge head on and serve as a model to others by embracing new ideas such as wind power and solar energy - ideas that will make Texas the leader in renewable energy development, energy-efficient building techniques, job creation and environmental health."

Following a 12:30 luncheon at the Van Horn convention center, attendees, including state and local officials, area ranchers, business persons and news media representatives, will depart for a 3:30 p.m. tour of the turbine site. The $40 million project was designed and built by the Kenetech Corp., a California-based company with a turbine manufacturing plant in Waco.

The turbines began generating electricity in late August. They will generate 35 megawatts of power - enough to light 10,000 to 12,000 homes for customers in Austin and other Central Texas communities served by the LCRA. The city of Austin, which will be represented at the dedication by councilman Max Nofziger, has agreed to buy 30 percent of the power.

The ceremony will be the first in a series of events, workshops and exhibits that the General Land Office will participate in highlighting Clean Energy Week in Texas.

Fat hits the fan over commercials selling potato chips

DALLAS (AP) — Snack makers know that the fat in their chips can land on our hips, so the competition for the healthier end of the market has heated up.

Recent ads airing in Jacksonville, Fla., and Des Moines, Iowa, comparing newer, lower-fat chips have resulted in a lawsuit filed by Frito-Lay, Inc., against Procter & Gamble.

Frito-Lay claims that the commercials, which were pulled off the air this month, falsely portray Pringles RightCrisps as nutritionally superior to Frito-Lay's Baked Lay's Potato Chips and Lay's and Ruffles Potato Chips. The lawsuit was filed Nov. 1 in U.S. District Court in Sherman.

Frito-Lay introduced Baked Lay's around the beginning of the year in Des Moines and planned a national launch for the end of the year.

In its lawsuit, Frito-Lay is asking for the "false side-by-side product comparisons" to be stopped, money to produce "corrective" advertising and damages.

Frito-Lay says the Procter & Gamble commercial gives misleading fat-count figures. Frito-Lay says Pringles RightCrisps has 7 grams of fat per 1 ounce serving to Baked Lay's 1.5 grams per serving. Frito-Lay also says that the Baked Lay's package is altered in the commercial to obscure a "low fat" logo and that the commercial says Baked Lays contain more sodium than they actually do.

"We're simply asking Procter & Gamble to act responsibly with regards to their advertising and to stop pretending that their Pringles' products contain healthier or more nutritional benefits which they clearly do not possess," said Brock Leach, Frito-Lay's senior vice president of marketing.

"This is an obvious case of mistruthful advertising by Procter & Gamble," he said.

Judy Ellis, a spokeswoman for Cincinnati-based Procter & Gamble, said the lawsuit is without merit.

The commercial discussed the "less-greasy feel" of Pringles and didn't make comparison of fat levels, she said.

"We know that the feel of chips is of consumer interest. We're not making a fat claim," she said.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Husband, wife each right on capital gains question

By Bill Doyle

Q: My husband gets a capital gains report from his mutual fund every year, even though he has not sold any of his fund's shares. He never sells anything.

But he reports the capital gains on our income tax return and pays tax on it. He says he must do so because the fund also sends this information to the Internal Revenue Service.

Doyle

I say capital gains must be reported and tax paid only if stocks, etc., are sold.

Who is correct?

A: I'll try to soothe this family disagreement by saying you both are — sort of.

You are quite right about the requirement to report — on Schedule D of federal income tax return Form 1040 — when securities and other capital assets are sold at a profit. That profit is taxable as a capital gain.

And a loss on the sale of a capital asset is reported on that schedule as a capital loss, which can be used to offset capital gains and, to some degree, ordinary income.

Your husband is also correct in reporting and paying tax on the capital gains "distribution" declared on the mutual fund shares he owns.

The typical mutual fund manages an investment portfolio composed of many different stocks, bonds or both. It frequently sells some of those securities and buys others, hopefully at a profit.

When those portfolio transactions result in a net profit, the mutual fund passes that money along to fund shareholders as capital gains distributions.

Each year, your husband receives a capital gains distribution in proportion to the number of fund shares he owns. Come January, the mutual fund sends him a Form 1099 listing his capital gains distributions and dividends for the previous year.

Along with other information returns, copies of 1099s go to the IRS in "machine readable" form and are fed into computers to catch people who "forget" to include taxable items on their returns.

Q: I do not understand why I should be forced to pay tax on mutual fund dividends and capital gains distributions I never receive and, instead, reinvest.

What is the rational behind this?

A: It's quite simple. You have your choice of either taking the dividends and capital gains distributions by check or of using them to purchase additional shares.

By reinvesting, you chose the second course. But, as far as the IRS is concerned, that's the same as taking the dividends and distributions by check and using that money to buy additional shares.

Under present tax rules, dividends are taxable as ordinary income, and capital gains distributions as capital gains. That could change if a flat tax becomes law.

Q: In previous columns, you have discussed the methods for determining the basis — cost for tax purposes — of mutual fund shares, so that the fund investor who sells shares can report his profit accurately and pay the correct capital gains tax.

I have mutual fund shares in my individual retirement account and am under the impression that the distributions I will take in future years will be reported and taxed as ordinary income.

Am I correct?

A: Of course, assuming the contributions you made to your IRA were all tax-deductible. In that case, you didn't pay income tax on any of the money you put into the IRA and you will have to pay full tax on all the money you take out.

The rule applies to mutual fund shares and all other securities held in tax-deferred retirement accounts such as IRAs, Keogh plans and 401(k)s.

The sound of trumpeters' horns greeted guests as the Junior League of Midland rolled out the red carpet for the more than 550 guests at the 45th annual Charity Ball Friday at Midland Center. The ball was a part of the festivities of the second annual Festival of Trees, a three-day event themed "Holiday Kingdom" which the League hopes will raise over $90,000.

Proceeds from the three days of activities will benefit the League's Community Projects and Beneficiaries.

The "Holiday" black tie ball was touted as "A Knight to Remember," featuring dinner, dancing, a raffle and a silent bid auction of beautiful Christmas trees and wreaths and gingerbread houses.

The foyer of Midland Center offered guests a hint of what awaited them inside. Miniature trees and gingerbread houses — many decorated and donated by League members — were displayed, featuring traditional Christmas themes, as well as some not so traditional themes such as Barbie, Power Rangers, Texas, even a Western Santa tree. The gingerbread houses were created with imagination, using gum for roof tiles and sugar cubes for brick chimneys. These miniatures set the perfect mood for the "Magic Kingdom" inside.

A Winter Wonderland with 10 full-sized trees and about 25 wreaths lined the walls of Midland Center. Miniature lights wrapping the trees and votive candles on the tables offered a warm glow to the Center, as guests mingled and viewed the trees and wreaths, which also were available for silent bid. Some of the decorated trees and wreaths followed traditional Christmas decor with Santas, poinsettias, angels, cherubs, toys and teddy bears; while others sported imaginative items including magnolias, hand-painted artwork and seashells. One elegantly decorated "tree" formed the silhouette of a woman wearing a picture hat. Another looked good enough to eat, and it was because it was decorated with cookies. Still another was "for the birds," literally, with all natural decorations including seeds, dried flowers and fruit on a live tree.

Guests helped themselves to a "King's Feast" buffet dinner that featured roast loin of pork, steamship round of beef, smoked turkey and planked salmon accompanied by rosemary and garlic potatoes, rice with wheat berries, butternut squash, green beans, whole-grain rolls and an assortment of desserts fit for a king. The dinner was catered by Midland Hilton and Towers.

MUSIC FOR the evening was presented by "The Big Time," produced by Wemus Entertainment. By the time most guests completed their feasts, the band's music had them on their feet, dancing to such familiar hits as "Love Shack," "Shout," "Heard It Through the Grapevine," and "Brick House," as well as some softer, slower tunes such as Elvis' "Falling in Love with You" and the Righteous Brothers' "You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling."

Tickets for a raffle drawing of "King's Treasures" were available, with the drawing Saturday. Among the "treasurers" donated for the raffle were two round-trip tickets from Southwest Airlines. Other donors included The Sustainers of the Junior League, the Steve Burleson family, The Chameleon Collection, The Cookie Bouquet, Forever Green, Kent Kwik Convenience Stores, Black-eyed Pea, Golden China, Jazz — A Louisiana Kitchen, Jib's Family Dining, Johnny's Bar-B-Que, Luigi's Italian Food, Michael's Charcoal Grill, Peyton's Bikes and Ruben's Studio Photography.

As a reminder of the Festival of Trees events, guests were treated to a program book that also serves as an engagement calendar through mid-November 1996.

Proceeds from the events will benefit the Junior League's Community Projects including Bedside Buddies, Casa de Amigos Dental Clinic, Community Training and Facilitation Committee, funds for Community Assistance, Nita Stewart Haley Memorial Library, Hearthstone, Kids on the Block, KidZone, Next-to-New Shop, Opportunity Knocks, Prime Time Partners, Rainbows/Spectrum, Senior Craft Fair, Teen Court, Texas Scholars and Fredda Turner Durham Children's Museum.

Weekend event sponsors were Abell-Hanger Foundation, Frances and Jack Brown and Lissa and Cy Wagner.

Charity Ball's major sponsors were ClayDesta Corporation, Parker & Parsley Petroleum USA, Inc., Westwood Medical Center, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton W. Williams Jr., and a "Special Contributor." Almost 40 other sponsors contributed to the benefit, along with numerous community volunteers and supporters.

Trees were designed, decorated and donated by Ann Mitchell, Marium Roden and Melissa M. Rogers; Chesapeake Interiors; Classical Greenery; Cookie Bouquet; Creative Schoolhouse; DFI Contract Design; Keep Midland Beautiful; Miss Cayce's Christmas Store and Permian Basin Girl Scout Troop #269. Live trees were donated by DeShaw's Landscaping and delivery by Marlin Movers.

Festival of Trees committee included Kris Thagard, FOT chairman; Elizabeth Burleson, Charity Ball chairman; Denise Burns, assistant FOT chairman; Medora Beecherl, Amber Bretches and Allyson Groner, Charity Ball Operations; DeLayne Wellen, computer representative; Stephanie Feagan and Janie Hofer, decorations; Missie Rogers, designer, assisted by Anne McKinnon; Sharon Michie, family night; Karen David, gift shop; Kay Sirgo, invitations; Kim Hatchett merchants; Cindi Mladenka, program; Judy Bazile, public relations; Sue Courtney, recorder; Jami Haest, Saturday events; Marion Goudeau and Linda Kalish, sponsors; Ladon Patterson, treasurer; Melinda Lea, volunteers assisted by Jane Kauffman; Barbra Grafa, Charity Ball sustaining advisor; and Penny Angelo and Terry Atkin, FOT sustaining advisors.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Be more discriminating in choosing your companions. Friends you make at Christmastime could open your eyes to a whole new world. Ration private and jointly owned resources. Stick to conventional business methods. Money-making opportunities will abound next spring. May of '96 brings happy romance. Be true to your high ideals; avoid all forms of deception. Estranged siblings decide to bury the hatchet once and for all.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: actress Laura San Giacomo, composer Aaron Copland, author William Steig, painter Claude Monet.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Rely on your first impressions regarding people and events. A legal obstacle can be overcome if you show perseverance. Romance with a younger partner could be terrific.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You enjoy a new feeling of freedom now. Follow your heart. You will soon be a position to obtain the things you want and need. Refuse to get entangled in other people's domestic squabbles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid subjects that could ignite a hostile dialogue. Delve into a business, financial or real estate matter. Aiming for the stars is great if you do not trample on others' rights.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A secret assignment or business merger could bring new financial gains. Take steps to provide for your future by accumulating savings. Follow both intuitive promptings and friends' suggestions when seeking a solution to domestic worries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Go slow on expressing an opinion until certain facts and figures have been verified. The future holds wonderful surprises. Your chances for gaining public recognition, while boosting profits, increase.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make the best possible use of your resourcefulness and creativity. It is much too soon to make a financial commitment. Seek additional data. You need to be selective when joining social clubs and making friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not give in to a dissatisfied mood if duty keeps you pinned to your desk. Afternoon hours bring unexpected perks. Send out resumes if seeking a new job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A confusing situation requires further investigation. Your work will be rewarded in tangible ways. Sharing your private thoughts will help you build stronger rapport with mate or offspring.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Excellent organizational skills are your strongest asset. Take decisive action to advance progress. Others will follow your lead. Sitting on the fence is for the birds.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good day to take direct action in career and business matters. Learn how silence can help you serve people who are in need. Be a good listener. Something you hear turns a situation around.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get your relations with co-workers back on track. A family talk or private business discussion helps you launch a pet project. ESP or a period of reflection will guide you to a wise decision.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Use common sense and good humor to neutralize conflicts. Investment proposals merit careful scrutiny. Postpone making a firm commitment. A candid chat helps banish secret worries.

An Omar Sharif film festival aboard Cunard's m.s. Sagafjord afforded your columnists the rare opportunity of playing some duplicate bridge together. This was one of the deals.

After North opened one no trump, South used the Gerber Convention to discover that North held two aces and two kings. Since that gave South 12 tricks while accounting for only 14 points in the North hand, and any queen in the right suit would produce a 13th, South opted for the grand slam in clubs.

West led the top of a spade sequence, and dummy produced the 'wrong' queen — had the lady been in either major, or clustered with the ace-king of diamonds, there would have been 13 tricks on top. As it was, a successful finesse in either red suit would produce the fulfilling trick. The fact that the heart finesse could be taken either way was an added complication.

Careful study revealed, however, that a finesse might not be necessary. Declarer won the first trick in dummy, drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and nine, then cashed the remaining high spade for a heart discard from hand. Next came the ace and king of hearts, followed by a heart ruff. Had this failed to fell the queen of hearts, declarer would have had to rely on the diamond finesse to land the grand slam. As it was, her majesty came tumbling down, so declarer was able to return to the table with the jack of clubs to take a diamond discard on the good heart. Since no other pair bid the grand slam, making 13 tricks was a top score — going down one would have been a bottom.

LOS ANGELES — Former Playboy centerfold Anna Nicole Smith, hospitalized seven days after mixing prescription drugs, was recovering Monday at an undisclosed location, her spokesman said.

"Ms. Smith began feeling much better over the weekend and her doctor released her late Sunday," said Tony Angellotti. "She has not returned to her home. She will, instead, be convalescing at a private location."

Angellotti wouldn't elaborate.

Ms. Smith, 27, was hospitalized on Nov. 6 due to an adverse reaction to prescription medication, apparently drugs used to combat severe headaches, Angellotti and her attorney said earlier.

Her publicist dismissed a report that she was hospitalized for a drug overdose.

"Ms. Smith has recently been suffering from a medical problem for which she had been taking a prescription medication," Angellotti said.
