On septic tanks

County holds hearing

A public hearing on a proposed septic tank order drew a small crowd of county residents to Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court on Monday at the courthouse in Hereford.

While the commissioners took no action on the septic tank order, they did award bids for office supplies, accepted a cafeteria benefits plan for employees and denied a request to allow longer operating hours for private clubs in the county.

Michael Baker and Glenn Morris both of the Texas Department of Health office located in Canyon, advised commissioners that Sept. 1989 is the date the state has set to begin inspecting septic systems. "At that time all new individual sewage disposal systems will be required to have a permit," Morris said. "The county may choose to begin the permit process or the state will do it for you and send you the bill."

Anyone installing septic systems after the September '89 deadline will be required to be certified through a TDH training program and the requirements for septic systems will increase, according to Morris.

New standards will require one acre of land if the resident uses a domestic well, no matter the water level, and a septic system, he said. If the resident uses a public water system and has a septic tank, one-half acre of land will be required. "This makes quite a difference when compared to current standards of 20,000 square-feet for a septic system and domestic well and 15,000 square-feet for a public water system and septic tank' Morris said.

When questioned about the practical matter of policing the new regulations Morris responded, "If we don't see it, we don't see it, but if we do, you're fair game."

In other business, commissioners awarded a $6,173.64 bid for office supplies for the county to First Printing of Hereford and chose Jeryl Baker of the Lone Star Agency to contract a cafeteria benefits plan for county employees.

Roy and Caroline Steward requested the court approve a plan to allow private clubs in the county to remain open an hour later each night. The couple told commissioners that they felt longer hours would make them more competitive with clubs in Amarillo.

The clubs currently close at 12:15

Schools begin WATCH program to help students

A new program to help Hereford school students who have chemical dependencies, WATCH, has begun, with teachers, parents, administrators and community leaders ready to lend aid to students with problems.

We Are The Caring Helpers (WATCH), a training program conducted by the Adolescent Care Unit of St. Anthony's Hospital's IMPACT program, has started with the training of 30 teachers and administrators in identification, intervention and referral of students who are exhibiting out-of-normal behavior, according to Hereford school curriculum director Alice Lockmiller, who is serving as the at-risk coordinator for WATCH.

The skills learned are also used to help students who are experiencing other problems that effect their school performance.

"Drug abuse and alcohol abuse frequently accompany adolescent behavioral problems," Lockmiller said. "Often the abuse of the chemical is described simply as one of a multitude of behavioral problems. Drug abuse is kept within the privacy of the peer group or the immediate family until there is trouble in school, work adjustment, or legal problems."

Lockmiller explained that students who exhibit abnormal behaviors are referred to the HHS WATCH team. The student's teachers are asked to indicate behavioral changes they've noticed, and, if the WATCH team feels it's warranted, a group of trained professionals will intervene with the student–talk about problems, and help the student choose and follow through on a plan of action.

"The WATCH team has already intervened with several students," Lockmiller said. "After the initial referral, some students do not exhibit serious problems. Other students are involved in active intervention. the team may refer students for assessment by the unit in Amarillo or other facilities if a serious problem exists."

Persons who would like to become involved in the program may contact Lockmiller at the HISD administration building or Terry Russell or Marylin Leasure at HHS.

Walcott board makes offer

An offer of $4,216.16 for 15.39 acres on which the Walcott school rests has been made to Mrs. N.A. Brown and Sons by the Walcott Independent School District board of trustees.

The offer, for $144 an acre for 15.39 acres, plus $2,000 for appraisal fees, was made by the board Friday at its regular December meeting. The Brown family was given until 12 noon next Jan. 15 to accept the offer.

The offer was made by the board to the Browns in an effort to end a dispute over the land on which the school sits, northwest of Hereford. The school rests on Brown-owned land, but the deed says the land may be used by the Walcott ISD for as long as the school remains in use. Should the school ever close, according to the present deed, the land would revert back to the Browns.

The Browns, however, objected to WISD plans to dig a landfill pit on the property, and also pointed to some of the school properties extending past the borders of the deeded acreage.

School board vice president Dan Hall said Monday that if the Browns reject or do not accept the board's offer, the board could attempt to acquire the land through eminent domain, which would give the Brown family $2,216.16, or the appraised market value as set by an independent appraiser.

The motion to make the offer to the Browns passed 4-2, with board members Jack White and Dennis Brown voting against the offer.

Reading program is tougher

Hereford public school students from four-year-old Kindergarteners to sixth graders will have a tougher time reading, and a tougher time passing, with more emphasis being placed on a child's reading ability by the Hereford Independent School District.

The HISD, and its board of trustees, has implemented new guidelines for promotion and retention for the current school year. Each child must "read at a specific level or above in order to be promoted to the next grade," explained Curriculum director Alice Lockmiller.

While exceptions are made for mitigating factors, students are expected to successfully complete the top series to be promoted to the next grade. In some cases, a student may be required to attend summer school in order to be promoted--and will be retained if they don't attend summer school if they didn't finish the prescribed level during the regular year.

Students having a tougher time, who are still in the grade's basal reader, will be retained even though they attend summer school.

The guidelines are slightly tougher for primary students than for intermediate students. Primary students are expected to be able to read at least at their grade level, while intermediate students, in Grades 4-6, will be expected to be not more than one grade level behind in order to be promoted.

In any event, no student will be retained more than once in Grades 1-4 or more than once in Grades 5-8.

'We have adopted a new basal reading series," Lockmiller explained. "The new textbooks are published by Houghton Mifflin. Students who have read in the former series published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich have found these new basal readers more difficult.

"These books are more difficult because the vocabulary and method of instruction have changed. Students in the first grade, for instance, may not progress as quickly as first graders in the past because of the new readers, and more students may be retained under these guidelines."

Lockmiller said copies of the promotion-retention guidelines were sent with report cards for students in Grades K-3. Students in Grades 4-6 will receive these with their report cards at the end of the third six weeks.

"We encourage parents to read these guidelines very carefully and visit with their child's teacher if they have any questions," Lockmiller said.

Busy Lockmiller

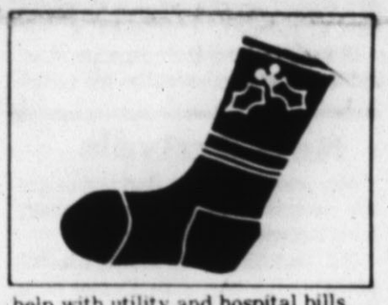

Hereford school curriculum director Alice Lockmiller is busy implementing new promotion-retention guidelines for young Hereford students, and helping coordinate the WATCH program in the schools.

CSF shatters record

Contributions for Hereford's Christmas Stocking Fund surpassed the $11,000-mark Monday, setting a new record for the holiday-sharing project for less-fortunate families in the community.

The Hereford Brand, which serves as the fund-raising arm for the program, will continue to accept donations through Thursday morning. The newspaper office is located at 313 N. Lee, or contributions can be mailed to Box 673.

Distribution of Christmas baskets for the needy will be made Wednesday. As additional funding is provided before or after Christmas Day, assistance to the needy will be extended as it is available. Most of the aid will be in the form of food and vouchers for clothing, and some will help with utility and hospital bills.

"It's been a gratifying experience to witness what's happened in Hereford this Christmas season with the project," said a CSF spokesman. "Even with a depressed economy, we've seen our community come together out of concern for the less-fortunate residents who are having a difficult time and the giving is more than last year."

He added that the "generosity of individual donors and the unselfish cooperation of local merchants who have assisted our efforts has been great!"

The non-profit CSF organization, comprised of anonymous volunteer workers, was reorganized last year and the contributions reached a new high of $10,646 in 1986.

Did you hear about the Hereford retailer whose young daughter asked for a baby brother for Christmas?

The quick-thinking merchant responded; "There's not enough shopping days left!"

"It's that time of year when sharing and giving is in the minds of most. A story about a long-winded preacher in Snyder caught our attention.

The minister announced to his congregation that he had a three-point sermon. "The first point I want to make is there are two million Americans starving at this very minute."

Members yawned and repositoned themselves in their pews as they waited for the barrage of words to follow on charity.

"The second point I'll make today is that you don't give a damn!"

Deacons sat straight up; mouths were covered in shock; eyes opened wide, and a low rumble of whispers were heard across the sanctuary.

"The third point I'll make and leave you with today is that most of you are more shocked that I said 'damn' than you are that two million Americans are starving."

Sometimes we do have to be shocked into thinking of others.

We attended the Hereford Kiwanis Club Christmas party last week and heard president Harley Daniel give a report on the club's sale of Christmas trees. The club netted more than $1,000 on the project, and Daniel expressed appreciation to non-member Butch White for providing a lot of the tree sales.

In addition, pointed out Daniel, club members gave up when only five trees were left. But White called up Daniel, informed him that he sold the five trees and inquired if the club had any more to sell. That's what we'd call support above and beyond the call of duty!

City makes appointments

Appointments to the Plumbing, Electrical and Juvenile boards and the adoption of ordinances relating to a traffic signal and to flood damage prevention comprised the action taken in the regular meeting of Hereford City Commission Monday night. Commissioner Bud Eades was absent from the meeting.

City Building Inspector Marvin Gaddy was appointed to replace retired-inspector Bill Phipps on the electrical and plumbing boards. City Manager Darwin McGill was appointed to replace former City Manager Dudley Barne on the plumbing board. Mayor Wes Fisher was re-appointed for a two-year term on the Juvenile Board.

An agreement between the city and the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation was approved. The agreement is a formal step in the process city commissioners have engaged in to get the state to install and maintain a traffic signal at the intersection of Fifteenth Street and U.S. 385. The state is expected to begin installation of the signal in the early summer.

An ordinance which to amends a previous action concerning flood prevention was passed. The adoption of the ordinance will provide residents in flood-risk areas the opportunity to obtain flood insurance.

In other business the commissioners viewed pictures Gaddy provided of a building at 231 Catalpa. The structure was subsequently condemned and the inspector was authorized to begin demolition.

Police arrest four

Hereford police arrested four persons over the last three days on alcohol-related charges, while also investigating four minor accidents and issuing 18 citations.

The arrests included three men, ages 28, 32, and 35, for public intoxication, and a man, 35, for driving while intoxicated.

Incident reports included two thefts of Christmas lights and decorations; an assault in the 100 block of Ave. C; burglary of vehicles in the 800 block of E. Third and W. U.S. 60; a motorcycle, valued at $3,475, taken from Wheels and Things; theft of gas at two local convenience stores; a dog bite in the 1200 block of Grand; several cases of criminal mischief; and theft of beer in the 800 block of W. Park.

AFDC checks could be late

Checks to recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) could be several days late in January, according to the Texas Department of Human Services.

TDHS said Monday the funds for the checks will not be available until Jan. 4, and it's conceivable the checks will not arrive until Jan. 11.

TDHS is concerned that some families, dependent upon the checks, will not be able to make rent or utility payments on time, and say there will not be enough other funds available for emergency assistance.

TDHS is asking utilities, landlords, and others to take the delay into consideration and allow additional time for payments.

Cold front coming

Temperatures will begin cooling off again Wednesday as a new cold front enters the region, bringing a chance for a white Christmas to the area.

Tonight will be fair with a low of 28. Southwest wind will be 5 to 15 mph.

Wednesday will see increasing cloudiness and cooler temperatures with a high of 45. North-northeast wind will be 10 to 20 mph.

Christmas Day will be cloudy, with a chance of snow, and highs in the lower 30s.

This morning's low at KPAN was 26 after a high Monday of 50.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

Christmas is a time when we're all supposed to be so cheery, so happy, so looking-forward to the good things coming, and, hopefully, remember that Christmas is when we celebrate the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ.

There's something of an empty spot for me this time of year, though. Six years ago, one of my very best friends found out she had acute leukemia. She learned it was incurable. She learned she would die.

April was a pretty good journalist. Some people never gave her full credit because she didn't kiss up, play office politics, or drive the middle of the road. She was far too honest for that. If you asked her opinion, she told you exactly where she stood. If you disagreed, too bad.

Many of you probably saw some of her work. She covered the "Stone Trial" in Plainview several years back, where a Dimmitt woman, a professed member of the Church of Wicca, was tried for the murder of a Dimmitt teenager on Halloween night.

April wrote dozens of other stories, from the tedious stuff you endure daily in this business, to those that, to get your hands on, you would gratefully sell your children.

April rode into Dimmitt in the mid-70s with two teenage daughters, a fairly new husband, and lots of hard work ready to come from her mind.

She pursued those boring government meetings, what-design-was-the-lace wedding stories, car wrecks and witch trials with equal vigor, but felt that may be her work wasn't being appreciated (it wasn't).

April and I kinda knew each other, since we covered many of the same beats, she for the paper and me for the radio station, and had lunch together one day.

She told me about her unhappiness with her job, and, shoot, I was ready to look around some, too.

We came over and talked to Speedy Nieman about going to work here, but decided not to. She didn't want to drive 40 miles every day, and I really didn't want to take the offer for whatever reason.

How would April like to work at the radio station, I asked?

Well, it would be alright with her, if she didn't have to "talk" on the radio.

She had a voice that was made for newspaper work. It wasn't bad. It just didn't sound good. It sounded like you didn't have the dial quite on the station. It sounded that way even if you were listening to the station monitor.

It became known as "The Melodious Voice of April Guy." Why she even had her own show, for about 90 minutes every day.

She had her own show because she was able to kid about herself to others–even on the air.

That ability would come in handy.

April had always been so full of life. That's why it was such a shock when she finally went to the doctor after she hadn't felt well in a while. She went to a family doctor in Muleshoe. He took a blood sample ran it through his lab real quick, and told her to get to Lubbock–fast. He was pretty sure she had leukemia.

They went to Lubbock, where they did a few things, including a spinal, then loaded her up in an ambulance and sped her to Amarillo, where they said more good could be done.

This was just before Christmas in 1981.

The doctors first felt she might not see 1982. Those doctors, though, especially Dr. Philip Periman, didn't know how good they were, and they didn't know how much resolve April had.

She saw three more Christmases.

Oh, times were tough. Sometimes others would feel sorry for her, sometimes April would feel sorry for herself.

It was tough on everyone. April had to endure the baldness, the nausea, the hell of chemotherapy. Visitors, doctors, nurses all had to scrub up and wear a surgical mask–one little infection and it was all over. You couldn't be too careful when you saw April.

Then one day she called.

"Guess where I am?" asked the melodious voice. I had no clue–I figured on the tenth floor of High Plains Baptist Hospital.

"At home."

That was a victory in itself.

The next two years were physical and emotional see-saws. She'd be in remission, then, just as quickly, her white blood cell count would zoom out of control. There was an empty possibility of a bone marrow transplant, there were experiments that would succeed, and others that would fail. One day she'd want to run the Boston Marathon, the next she'd not be able to get out of bed.

April would kid about all of it.

"I needed to vacuum today, but the dirt won the argument."

She'd have splotches all over her body from IV's and shots. "I have more tubes outside my body than I have unused veins inside."

"I've had more experiments run on me than all the guinea pigs in history," she said, laughing.

She was able to kid about her way of life, her predicament, her challenge to just maneuver herself to use the bedpan, much less the energy to get up and use the bathroom.

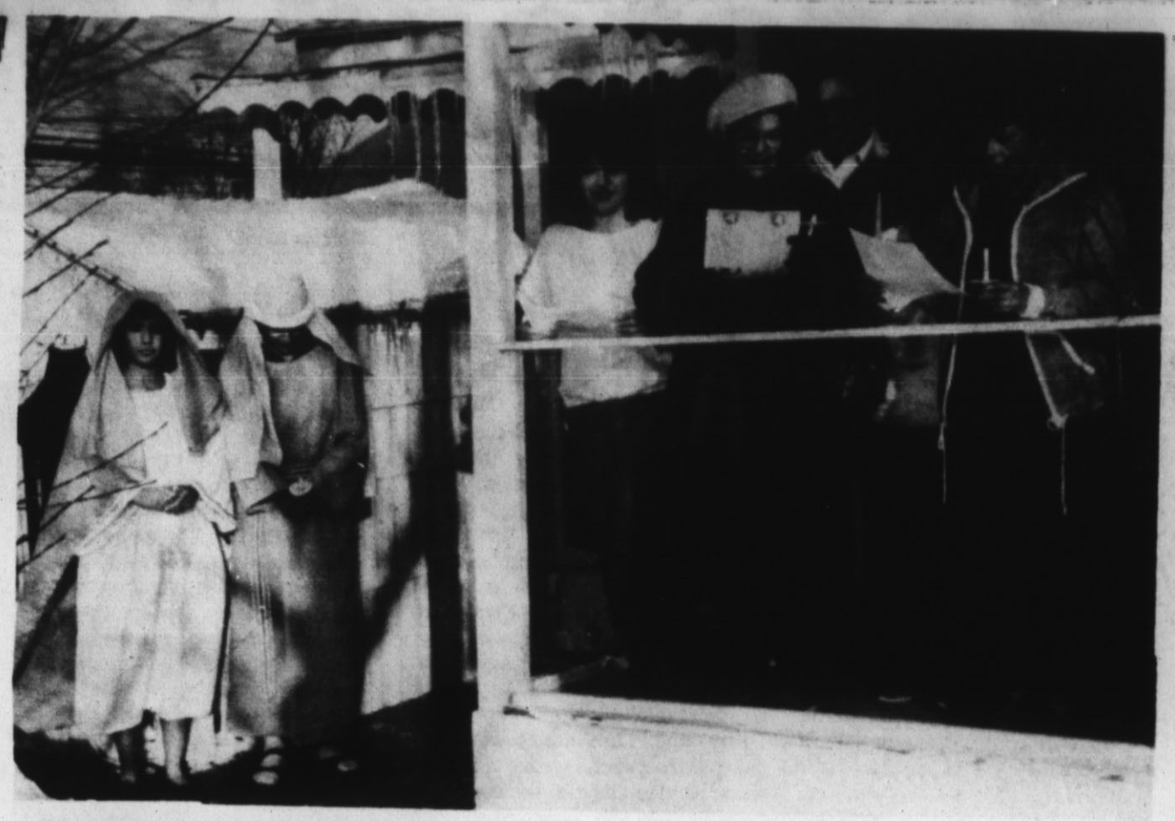

Then, it all began to fall apart. She was staying in the hospital longer and longer, and felt less and less well all the time. Finally, she went to St. Anthony's hospice facility, where she was so very well cared for in her final days.

April's life wasn't wasted. Some of the discoveries they made on her have helped others afflicted with leukemia and other cancers.

And she touched so many lives. I still get cards and letters from people who also had the chance to know April, who were glad to have her friendship for a while.

For all of us, April is still with us. We don't think about the bad parts, only the good. April was like the month–the promise of freshness, the hope of spring when all is new and golden and full of life.

For each of us, the song may have ended, but the melody lingers on.

Pilgrimage

Members of San Jose Catholic Church are participating in Las Posadas, a nine-day event where Mary and Joseph, represeneted at left, go from house to house seeking lodging. They are denied lodging until their final stop Christmas Eve, at mass at San Jose Catholic Church at 7 p.m. Las Posadas is a long-standing tradition.

Heavy traffic predicted

Because Christmas Day is falling on a Friday, the Texas Department of Public Safety is predicting more traffic than usual for the holiday weekend.

"To help combat this situation, troopers will be out in force watching for traffic violators, especially drunk drivers and speeder, which are the two major causes of traffic fatalities," said Maj. V.J. Cawthon, region commander of the DPS. "Along with trying to make your Christmas holiday safe, DPS troopers will be out on the roadways to assist motorists with any problems they may have."

Cawthon said that Texas motorists can also help this Christmas by insuring that, if you have to travel, you get plenty of rest before you start the trip. Once on the roadway, you need to drive defensively, always watching for the other driver's mistakes.

"One of your best defenses against the other driver is to insure that you and all of your passengers are wearing safety belts," Cawthon said. "Also remember that drinking and driving leads to tragedy, so this Christmas, if you are going to drink, please don't drive."

Deficit-reduction bill clears Congress, passes House by one vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress today sent a deficit-reduction package to President Reagan for his expected signature, a pair of spending and tax measures forged after Wall Street's Black Monday by lawmakers and a president who fought over its contents to the end.

Shortly before 1 a.m., the Senate voted 61-28 to approve a $17.6 billion parcel of taxes, benefit reductions and other savings. The House had passed the measure late Monday, 237-181.

At about 2:30 a.m. thwe House approved, 209-208, a record-setting $600 billion spending bill that would keep federal agencies functioning for fiscal 1988 and contained $7.6 billion in reductions from expected levels of growth.

At about 3:30 a.m., the Senate passed the spending measure, 59-30, and sent it to the White House.

"I'm convinced that time will tell us this is a major victory for the American people and the nation's economy," Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, told his colleagues.

But others were less certain that the bills showed investors that the government could get its financial house in order.

Opponents' criticisms ranged from opposition to the $23 billion in new taxes, including $9 billion this year, to accusations that the deficit reduction did not go far enough.

Combined, the two bills would slash more than $32 billion from the projected deficit in fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1. That would more than satisfy the budget accord reached Nov. 20 between Reagan and congressional leaders, which called for a $76 billion reduction over two years, including $30.2 billion this year.

As the legislators debated into the early morning today, a temporary measure providing money for agencies to operate expired at 12:01 a.m., leaving the government technically out of business.

Government officials said federal employees should report to work as usual. Lawmakers said they might pass another short-term spending bill to keep the government operating while Reagan studies the legislation.

Congress' late night of business was fueled by another factor: knowledge that once both measures were enacted, lawmakers would be leaving for a Christmas recess that would keep them at home until late January. Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., came to work Monday wearing a bright red vest and a blue tie with large red and white stars, which he referred to as his "adjournment" outfit.

A final potential stumbling block was cleared away Monday evening when House lawmakers agreed to remove a provision from the spending bill that would have enacted the fairness doctrine for broadcasters into law. Reagan had threatened to veto the entire measure if it included the doctrine, which required radio and television stations to air all sides of contentious issues until the government stopped enforcing the regulation this year.

Another fight ended Sunday when congressional and White House negotiators agreed to an $8.1 million package of non-weapons aid to the Contra rebels of Nicaragua. The president had promised to reject the bill without the assistance, but liberal Democrats were bitterly opposed to the money.

The spending bill is an amalgam of the 13 appropriations bills Congress is supposed to pass annually before each fiscal year, a habit lawmakers have abandoned.

It would allow the resumption of aid to Pakistan, despite its reluctance to allow visits to its nuclear weapons development facilities, and the sale of about 70 Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to the Persian Gulf nation of Bahrain.

It also bans smoking on airline flights of two hours or less.

Bilingual Santa visits INS center

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) - A bilingual Santa Claus made a stop at the Immigration and Naturalization Service's legalization center and handed out candy and a few residency cards.

"I don't know if it will help business, but it sure is helping the morale of the people here who are waiting," Charlie Perez, the center's chief legalization officer, said Monday. He said Santa also would be there today.

"Hi," 6-year-old Nancy Campos said for about the fourth time to Santa, who some people said reminded them of INS amnesty adjudicator Bobby Martinez. The girl was with her parents having their legalization papers processed.

"This is one of my repeat customers," the man in the Santa suit said.

The legalization center for the lower Rio Grande Valley opened in May as part of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986. Under the law's amnesty provisions, people who can prove they lived in the United States illegally for five years are eligible for legal residency, and eventually citizenship.

Agricultural workers must prove they were here as farm employees for 90 days during the one-year period ending May 1, 1986.

"What do you want for Christmas," Santa asked Nancy in English.

"No se (I don't know). Barbie," she replied.

The feds said they had checked into old St. Nick's background. Pinned to his red suit was an official, laminated INS "Employment Authorization" photo card, listing his name as "Claus, Santa" and country of birth as "No. Pole."

Santa Claus, his Christmas tree and a tape of holiday music are part of an effort to make aliens feel at ease at the center, said INS spokeswoman Virginia Kice.

Some immigration attorneys and immigrant rights groups have criticized the agency and accused it of putting up unnecessary barriers to amnesty applicants. Traditional mistrust of the agency that seeks out illegals for deportation also is believed to keep some potential amnesty applicants away.

The INS originally estimated that 40,000 aliens in the lower Rio Grande Valley would apply for amnesty during the one-year period for non-agricultural workers, but has revised that estimate down to 27,000.

COUNTY

on week nights and 1:15 on weekends. County Judge Tom Simons explained that, according to Alcoholic Beverage Commission regulations, the county has the power to extend private club hours to 1:15 on week nights and 2:15 on weekends, but he cautioned commissioners that the policy would also give package stores the ability to stay open later. The request was denied.

In matters related to the Sheriff's office, commissioners gave formal approval for a computer terminal to be installed, approved payment of worker's compensation insurance for the sheriff reserves, and agreed to the reserves' decision to no longer work as security for dances held in the Bull Barn. County policy will still require certified peace officers be hired by those renting the facility for dances for dances and will be amended to require proof of certification at the time deposit is made.

Sheriff Joe Brown discussed an inquiry on the possibility of Deaf Smith county Jail housing prisoners for the Randall County Jail during Canyon's renovations and construction. Commissioners also discussed hiring additional jailers to comply with jail standards. No action was taken, pending further information on the number of jailers required for the jail populace.

Commissioners also deferred action on sectioning off a portion of the hallway, in the third floor of the courthouse, for use as conference rooms. It was decided to table any action on the plan, presented by District Judge Wes Gulley, pending a check with Fire Marshal Jay Spain regarding fire codes for evacuating the courtroom.

Eight set and two floating holidays for the 1988 calendar year were agreed on by the commissioners. County employees will have two floating holidays as well as set holidays on Jan. 1, Feb. 15, and May 30, July 4, Sept. 5, Nov. 24 and 25 and Dec. 26.

In other business commissioners:

-Heard the second reading of the Emergency Management plan and approved the document.

-Accepted the State Auditor's suggestion that they transfer $1,500 of county money from a no-longer-used fund. Had the commissioners not acted on the matter the money would have gone to the state.

-Approved payment of $1,090 dues to renew membership in the Texas Association of Counties.

-Agreed to pay $600 to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce for installing and maintaining Christmas lights.

-Approved hiring of a deputy clerk in the County Clerk's office to fill a vacancy.

-Appointed David Alvarado to a two year term on the Juvenile Board.

-Discussed establishing a contingency fund and some long-range planning for replacement of county equipment.

-Met with elected officials and department heads to iron out kinks in the county purchasing policy which was initiated on Oct. 1.

Cut crystal has colorful history

The making of American cut crystal began little more than 200 years ago when artisans first poured their skills — gleaned in European factories — into products made from molten glass.

Americans perfected their craft, developing their own designs while creating a greater demand for crystal than had ever been seen in Europe. At the same time, laying a beautiful table and sideboard was itself becoming an appreciated art form. According to Country Home magazine, an ordered method for setting a dining table was developed in the 18th century, with specific pieces designed and used for serving and eating particular courses. By the 19th century, housewives were exhibiting their design skill as they displayed their tableware.

Piees of cut crystal were inherent elements in artistic table settings. The late 19th and early 20th centuries gave birth to nearly limitless variety. There were plates, trays, bowls, compotes, salt dishes, cruets, knife rests and napkin rings. There were punch bowls, carafes, decanters and drinking vessels of all description. This sparkling tableware lent itself well to elegant at-home celebrations.

For entertaining, serving and eating, pieces were every bit as important as the foods served. An 1890s book of etiquette, "How to Behave and How to Amuse," emphasizes this: "There is no pleasanter sight than an artistically set dinner table just before the guests are seated."

Crystal's fragility confined its use to infrequent occasions, but entertaining, particularly at the holidays, required the display of every treasure. As the design of American crystal evolved, so did American celebrations.

In colonial times, for example, crystal inspired by old-world design was used to serve foods influenced by old-world recipes, such as German Christmas cookies. The development of a distinct American style of crystal came in the early 1800s and coincided with the creation of truly American recipes with such new-world ingredients as cranberries.

Also in the early 1800s, when metal oxides were used to add color to crystal, bourbon-filled blue, red or green decanters and tumblers adorned fireside tables, ready for holiday revelers. Andrew Jackson, the first president to invite the public to Christmas parties at the White House, helped spread this custom. He enjoyed bourbon and served guests one of his favorites, a nut cake spiked with the liquor.

The turn of this century, crystal's so-called brilliant period, was marked by opulent, lavish life-styles. Well-to-do men and women sipped champagne and spooned caviar from ornate, intricately cut crystal.

"Crystal" generally refers to highly transparent, quality glass products with a high percentage of lead oxide. Both the artist's skill and the purity of materials used are reflected in the value. Simple glass is a mixture of sand and potash melted and fused in a furnace. The addition of other ingredients results in higher quality. Lead, for example, is used to give glass the toughness it needs to withstand cutting.

Cutting is done by hand with the use of rotating wheels that are actually grindstones with small metal disks in varying sizes. Wheels vary in thickness, diameter and edge dimension. A crystal artist uses a dozen or more wheels to create one design. Early artisans used wheels turned by a treadle mechanism. Later, water spun the wheels; today, electricity provides the power.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It's 4:40 a.m. and I have not slept more than two hours. The problem is bulimia.

Unfortunately, I am unable to admit this to anyone. This letter is to warn your readers who might be thinking about an "easy" way to get thin.

I am 17 and have been stuffing myself and vomiting for over a year. I am told daily that I have a model's figure. Whenever I hear this kind of talk it makes me want to lose more weight because I think the more I lose, the better I will look.

It started out innocently. I hated being heavy and decided to starve myself. In 20 days I lost 33 pounds. I got loads of compliments and was thrilled. I kept on losing. Mom told me I was getting too skinny. Now she watches me at mealtimes to see if I eat. I pick at my food and take smallportions. At night when I'm alone I pig out like you wouldn't believe. Then force myself to throw up.

My tonsils bleed from my fingernails. I have difficulty afterward with swallowing and breathing. I have had several panic attacks. I lose clumps of hair after each washing and/or brushing because I'm not getting proper nourishment. My skin is white and flaky. Worst of all my stomach aches so bad at night I can't sleep. I take four laxatives and eight diuretics every day. I also go on a liquid diet three days a week.

My life is a nightmare. I've tried to stop but I can't. I'm sure this crazy habit will kill me. I see no way out. Please print my letter as a warning to others.–Hopeless in L.A.

DEAR FRIEND: In spite of what you may think, your situation is not hopeless. There are many organizations and trained professionals around the country that deal with eating disorders.

Self-help groups are extremely effective. People who share the same problem are nonjudgmental and sympathetic because they have trudged in the same moccasins.

Write to ANAD (National Association of Anorexia Nervosa and Associated Disorders), P.O. Box 7, Highland Park, Ill. 60035, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with 39 cents return postage. Or you can call the national hotline number at (312)831-3438.

Get some help now and get back into the mainstream of life. I know you can do it. Thousands of others have.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Who the heck invented those damn food coupons that shoppers redeem to save a few pennies?

Here is what always happens to me: I get in an express line (what a joke) to save time when I have only one or two items.

The woman in front of me (it's always a woman), after having her groceries checked out, hands the overworked, underpaid cashier a fistful of coupons while I stand there and feel my blood pressure going through the roof.

Why don't the stores reduce their prices and save the cashierse a lot of work and save me (a non-coupon user) a lot of time and frustrations?—Upstate New Yorker

DEAR UPS: Coupons make people think they are getting a terrific break. Who doesn't enjoy a bargain? And the richer they are, the more than love to save 50 cents.

I'm more concerned about you, however. Ask yourself if such a petty annoyance is worth risking a stroke.

What are the signs of alcoholism? How can you tell if someone you love is an alcoholic? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. To receive a copy, send $2.50 and a No. 10, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers P.O. Box 11562 Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Sorority chapter members attend Christmas party

Eighteen members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met Thursday evening for a Christmas party in the home of Ruby Sanders.

Presdient Connie Matthews presided over the business meeting in which several upcoming events were announced. Sanders will present the next program Jan. 5, 1988, with Holly Bixler serving as hostess and Kay Williams, co-hostess. The City Council meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. today in the home of Ailene Tindal. The sweetheart brunch will be held either Jan. 23 or 30, 1988.

For the program, each member told of a favorite Christmas or of family traditions during the holidays by exhibiting photos. Holiday refreshments were served and happy birthday wishes were extended to Susan Shaw before members stood for the closing ritual.

Those present included Marge Bell, Holly Bixler, Sharon Bodner, Susan Cardinal, Peggy Hyer, Connie Matthews, Jimmie Middleton, Teresa Pieffer, Susan Shaw, Ruby Sanders, Melinda White, Kay Williams, Denise Hafliger, Deann Harris, Linda Arellano, Gaye Reily, Pene Coplen and Barbara Cochran.

Appreciation extended by organization

The Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 4818 recently had a free calf fry supper and a very successful arts and crafts auction sale. Special thanks was extended to Larry Noland who served as auctioneer.

Many local businesses and individuals helped with the sale by donating merchandise and gift certificates. Thanks was given to KPAN Radio Stations, Janitorial Supply, Gebo's, Sirloin Stockade, Helen's, Radio Shack, Stagner-Orsborn, Park Avenue Flora, Flowers West, Little's, Ranchhouse, Caryn's, Whiteface Ford, Jack and Jill, Taylor and Sons, Carl McCaslin's, Beavers Machine, Herefaord Frame and Axle, Arrowhead Mills, David Hutchins, Dick and Marie Rogers and Ted and Sylvia Stubblefield from Dimmitt.

VFW members also were recognized for their supper preparations.

The first public schools for girls in Saudi Arabia weren't approved by the government until 1960.

One Hereford family found a unique way to exhibit Christmas cards for everyone's enjoyment. Windows in their garage door are covered with the colorful yuletide greeting cards as Christmas soon approaches.

Ginn, Odom serve as hostesses

Wyche Extension Club members held their annual Chritmas party recently in the home of Marcie Ginn with Carol Odom serving as cohostess.

The opening prayer was given by program chairman Argen Draper and Christmas songs were sung by members. Also, Sue Curtis was recognized as a visitor.

Clara Trowbridge read Christmas stories, "A String of Blue Beads" and "The Empty Room," and a poem, "Squeaky the Mouse."

Members also played several games.

Beverly Brooke installed officers for 1988. She gave each officer a different colored rose representing each office and as she installed an officer, they placed their rose in the vase to make a bouquet. Serving as president was Audrey Rusher; vice-president, Louise Packard; secretary-treasurer, Coreen Odom; reporter, Clara Trowbridge; and council delegate, Marcia Ginn.

Numbers were drawn and gifts were exchanged. Refreshments of holiday goodies were served to those already mentioned and to Ethel Logan, pet Ott and Virgie Duncan.

The first meeting of the new year will be held at 2:30 p.m. Jan. 7, 1988, in the home of Pet Ott, 120 Northwest Drive. Yearbooks will be filled out.

Women Ask Dr. Lamb

Osteoporosis
BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: In one of your columns you mentioned that young women who had bone loss from osteoporosis could regain their bone by following a proper diet. As I recall, these were all women athletes who had gotten too thin. Would losing weight cause women to have osteoporosis when they go through the menopause? If so, would being a little heavier help protect women from this problem? If the exercise caused these young women to develop osteoporosis, why do doctors recommend exercise to prevent osteoporosis in middle-aged women?

DEAR READER: There is a little more to the story than that. Young women athletes who become thin may stop menstruating. They do so because of basic changes in control of their hormone balance. When that happens, they become deficient in estrogen. The estrogen deficiency in these young women has the same effects as an estrogen deficiency in women going through the menopause. They tend to lose calcium and bone. They may even have fractures of their vertebrae.

In a study of six women who had this problem, stopped exercising and increased their calcium intake, they did gain weight, resumed menstruating and started regaining the lost bone. See THE HEALTH LETTER 28-05. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER, Dept. 28-05, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Young women who starve themselves, as with anorexia nervosa, also may develop osteoporosis even though they don't exercise. The young women athletes who lose bone do not consume enough calories for their level of exercise to avoid getting too thin. Many of them have not gotten enough calcium either. It is not the exercise, but not enough calories and calcium for their level of energy use that is the major problem.

Body fat helps form an active type of estrogen, even in the postmenopausal woman. Women who do have more body fat are less likely to develop osteoporosis. If you maintain your weight and exercise, the exercise does help prevent bone loss. But if you are skinny because of not getting enough calories to support you needs, you may indeed have an increased loss of calcium — whether you exercise or not. Being thin may be in, but it may not be good for most women at any age.

DEAR DR. LAMB: What are the symptoms of breast cancer? Can teenagers get it? Why does a person get breast cancer?

DEAR READER: Let me put your mind at ease by telling you that it would be most unusual for a teenager to get breast cancer. Breast cancer is rare below age 30. To give you some idea of how uncommon it is, even in young women, in 1983 in the United States there were 37,979 deaths from breast cancer, but only 676 of these were in women below the age of 35.

Early breast cancer usually does not cause symptoms. A lump is usually the earliest indication. But lumpy breasts in young women are more likely to be fibrocystic disease, not cancer.

The cause of most cancers is unknown, and breast cancer is no exception. There are certain factors that increase your risk of having breast cancer, such as being over 40, having your first full-term pregnancy after 30, and having a family history of breast cancer.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am one of those women who gained weight when I reached 40. I'm 44 now. But I didn't just gain a few pounds. I am at least 50 pounds overweight. I'm the classic example of a thin person inside a fat body who wants out. I simply cannot lose weight. I have dieted until I am weak. I have exercised until I'm exhausted. Nothing works.

I'm considering having a stomach stapling operation. I have read about people who had this done and they lost weight and kept it off. It would be wonderful to be slim again. Is the stapling operation better than having a balloon in your stomach? Which is best?

DEAR READER: Your question should be which is the least harmful. There was a lot of initial enthusiasm about the balloon. The method was to put the balloon inside the stomach, then inflate it. This space-occupying balloon caused a person to feel full after eating a small amount. That caused a person to consume fewer calories.

When you eat less, you weigh less. There is no magic here, just another way to decrease calorie intake. Some patients had serious complications from the balloon. It is not an innocuous procedure. It has caused perforations and ulcerations of the stomach, intestinal blockage and even death.

The various stomach stapling procedures are helpful to some patients. The initial methods left a lot to be desired and frequently did not work. The concept is to staple off the top part of the stomach into a separate compartment. It becomes the initial food storage pouch. This small stomach pouch fills with very small amounts of solid foods and again decreases the calorie consumption. The newer methods that literally bypass the big lower part of the stomach are reported to be very successful in many patients. But it is not without its complications either.

I would prefer that you have your doctor or a nutritionist help you with a diet that limits your calorie intake, rather than have a surgical procedure to accomplish the same results. In other words, you could do it without an operation.

Holiday guide to chocolate presented

Here's a quick review of chocolate information to help you prepare for holiday baking and candy making.

WHAT'S ON THE SHELF

— Unsweetened cocoa powder is pure chocolate with most of the cocoa butter removed. Choose it for a rich chocolate flavor without the fat of chocolate. Store cocoa in a tightly closed container in a cool, dry place to retain color and prevent lumping.

— Unsweetened chocolate has no sugar or flavorings added. It's sometimes called baking or bitter chocolate and comes in packages of 1-ounce squares.

— Semisweet chocolate contains extra cocoa butter and sugar. Buy it in the form of chocolate pieces or in packages of 1-ounce squares.

— German sweet baking chocolate is sweeter than semisweet chocolate because it is made with more sugar and extra cocoa butter. Sold in 4-ounce bars, it's primarily used in baking.

Store chocolate in a cool, dry place or tightly wrapped in the refrigerator. Let chocolate stand tightly wrapped at room temperature before using.

— Confectioner's coating, sometimes called white chocolate, almond bark or summer coating, is not chocolate, has no chocolate flavor, and may not have the same melting properties as chocolate.

In this product, most of the cocoa butter is replaced by other fats and sugar and vanilla or other flavorings are added; it may be tinted with vegetable coloring. You'll find it in blocks, round disks or bars where candy-making supplies are sold. It's a good choice for candy dipping because it doesn't need tempering.

— Premelted unsweetened chocolate product is made of cocoa powder and vegetable oil. It's semiliquid so you don't have to melt it. Substitute a 1-ounce envelope for a 1-ounce square of unsweetened chocolate in baking.

MELTING MOMENTS

— Be sure the equipment you use for melting chocolate is completely dry. Any moisture may cause the chocolate to stiffen and no amount of heat or stirring will make it smooth again.

— Speed melting block chocolate by chopping, not by turning up the heat; chocolate scorches easily.

— Unsweetened chocolate liquefies when it melts; semisweet, sweet and milk chocolates hold their shape when they melt and should be stirred until smooth.

— To melt chocolate over direct heat, use a heavy saucepan over low heat. Stir constantly until the chocolate starts to melt; remove the chocolate from the heat and stir until smooth.

— If you prefer a double boiler for melting chocolate, be sure the water in the lower pan doesn't boil. You can improvise a double boiler for a small amount of chocolate. Place the chocolate in a custard cup or small bowl; carefully set it in a pan of hot (not boiling) water over low heat. Stir constantly until the chocolate is just melted; remove from water and stir smooth.

— To melt chocolate in the microwave oven, place the chocolate in a glass measure or custard cup. Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) until chocolate is almost melted. Remove from the oven and stir until melted and smooth. Allow 1½ to 2 minutes for 1 cup of chocolate pieces or two 1-ounce squares of chocolate.

GALA GARNISHES

— Chocolate leaves: With a small paintbrush, brush melted chocolate on the underside of a fresh leaf, building up several layers. Place on a waxed paper-lined baking sheet; chill until hardened. Just before using, peel fresh leaf away from chocolate leaf.

— Chocolate cutouts: Melt together one 6-ounce package semisweet chocolate pieces and 1 tablespoon margarine; cool. Pour onto a waxed paper-lined baking sheet, spreading ¼ to ⅛-inch thick. Chill until almost set. Firmly press hors d'oeuvre or cookie cutters into chocolate. Chill. Before serving, lift cutouts from baking sheet.

— Chocolate ribbons: Prepare and chill chocolate mixture as for cutouts. Using a fluted pastry wheel or knife, cut chocolate into strips.

HUMAN SYMPATHY

"The mightiest force which God can employ in the world for its redemption is human sympathy. Human sympathy, sanctified by divine grace, is the mightiest power in this world to its redemption. With what dignity does that invest human life! To be a man! To have human sympathies and human infirmities, strengthened and uplifted by divine grace! To know that I am something and mean something in the great economy of God for the carrying out of his highest efforts!"

The future is Sunday for some Cowboys' players

By BERNIE WILSON
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' "players of the future" say the future is Sunday.

Quarterback Steve Pelluer and running back Herschel Walker aren't giving up on this season, which marks the first time in 23 years the the Cowboys have had consecutive losing seasons.

Pelluer was widely praised Monday night after leading the Cowboys to a 29-21 victory over the Los Angeles Rams. Even by the man he could eventually replace, veteran Danny White, thought Pelluer was outstanding.

But Pelluer, a fourth-year player out of Washington, says he isn't looking beyond next Sunday's home game against St. Louis.

"We're building on lots of young players, especially on defense," Pelluer said. "That's important for us. I haven't given up on this year.

"The coaches are always evaluating. My attitude is to go out and play as hard as I can. I hope I can be the quarterback of the future for the Cowboys, but I'll just go out and perform.

"It takes more than just words to take that kind of responsibility."

Pelluer completed 15 of 30 passes for 183 yards and a 27-yard touchdown to tight end Doug Cosbie.

"It always help to win," Coach Tom Landry said after Dallas upped its record to 6-8 and ended the Rams' playoff hopes.

"We've just got to keep working with (Pelluer). I don't know what the future is.

"He has to prove himself along the way. Steve's making progress — he made progress today."

Landry's been talking about a three-year plan to get Dallas back to "America's Team" status.

"This was a very disruptive year," Landry said. "What we did along the way was have a lot of injuries and have young people play. That was one of the pluses."

Landry lumped Pelluer in with the positives.

"We had a chance to start him a couple of times, and of course against Atlanta, he hurt his knee. This was his first real chance and he handled himself fine."

Pelluer thinks his performance might have earned him a start against St. Louis.

Landry said Dallas has other quarterbacks to look at, Paul McDonald and Kevin Sweeney.

But then he said, "It's such a critical game for St. Louis. I hate to not start our best."

White, the 12-year veteran who has a bad throwing wrist, gave a hearty tip of the hat to Pelluer.

"I thought he was perfect," White said. "He was conservative, which you have to be against the Rams. He tucked the ball away, settled for field goals and made a hero out of Ruzek, and won the game."

Roger Ruzek kicked a team-record five field goals.

White said he thinks he can play a couple of more seasons. But he couldn't be happier if it's Pelluer who finally replaces him.

"I don't think there's much of a question in Coach Landry's mind," White said. "He's seen enough of what he (Pelluer) can do."

White says he likes Pelluer's attitude.

"He's been thrown into tough situations in the past and he'll respond positively. After going through last season and the criticism he got, a lesser man would have been destroyed.

"I'm as happy for him as anybody."

Walker thinks the future is bright, but he's not looking past Sunday either.

"If we as a team can believe in the future, I think we can believe in the present, which is important," Walker said.

'Our team is very unusual," Walker added. "We have a very old team and a very young team. There are no in-betweens. The young guys have been thrown to the lions early, which is tough. And the old guys are helping the young guys.

"We have to build this team up to where it should be."

Walker, the Cowboys' leading rusher and receiver, had a 1-yard touchdown run on Dallas' first possession. He finished with 108 yards on 23 carries and caught six passes for 54 yards.

Junior varsity boys beat Eagles, 60-42

Whitefaces fall to Canyon, 72-68

A Hereford Whiteface field goal attempt failed with 20 seconds left in the game Tuesday at Canyon, and the Whitefaces suffered their third straight District 1-4A defeat, 72-68.

The HHS varsity boys are now 4-9 for the season and will play in the Clovis holiday tournament on Dec. 28-30.

Hereford High School posted a 60-42 victory in Monday's junior varsity game. The HHS junior varsity has a 7-3 season record and plays its next game on Saturday, Jan. 2, at home versus Pampa at 4:30 p.m.

The Hereford-Canyon varsity battle was close all the way. Hereford led 9-8 at the end of the first quarter, and the score was tied 29-29 at halftime. The Whitefaces went into the fourth quarter with a 50-48 lead.

Clint Cotten led Hereford with 18 points, including 15 in the second half. Pat Mercer was also in double figures with 15 points, and Rodney McCracken had 10 points.

Cotten and Mercer each scored a three-point goal. Other HHS scorers included Marcus Brown with eight points and Bobby Robbins with six points.

McCracken led in rebounds with seven, and Cotten and Mercer each had six rebounds.

Hereford was 23-for-58 from the field and 20-for-24 from the free throw line. Canyon made five three-point goals, including three by Dawson who scored 15 points in the fourth quarter.

Six Hereford junior varsity players each scored at least six points in the 60-42 win over Canyon. Keith Brown led the way with 13 points, and others in double figures were Jason Scott with 12 points and Stuart Mitts with 10 points.

Todd Schroeder added eight points, Roger McCracken scored seven points, and Darren Nikkel totaled six points.

Hereford held a 24-21 lead at halftime, but built up a 38-24 lead in the third quarter. In the fourth quarter, Brown scored seven points, Mitts six points and Schroeder five points as the Whitefaces maintained more than a 10-point margin.

Rebound leaders for Hereford were McCracken with 13 and Scott with six. Kelvin Brown led in steals with four.

Lady Whitefaces lose 50-20, remain winless in district

A strong Canyon team kept the Hereford Lady Whitefaces winless in District 1-4A games Monday by defeating Hereford 50-20.

The loss dropped Hereford to 0-5 in the district and 5-12 overall.

"We played a lot better than we have the last few weeks, but we were playing a very good team. We hustled well," Hereford Coach Frank Belcher said.

In the other girls' basketball game on Monday, the Hereford junior varsity fell to Canyon 54-30. The HHS junior varsity is now 2-8 for the season.

On Tuesday, Dec. 29, the Lady Whiteface teams will play at home against Clovis. Game times are 6:30 p.m. for the junior varsity and 8 p.m. for the varsity, at the La Plata gym.

Carmen Brockman had 10 rebounds and five points for the Lady Whiteface varsity on Monday, and Stacy White scored seven points. Cande Robbins had five rebounds and four points, and Kathy Banner had three assists.

For the Hereford junior varsity, Shea McGinty had eight points and seven rebounds, Poppy Richardson had six points and six assists, Jessica Dearing grabbed seven rebounds, and Nikki Self had four assists.

Whiteface varsity boys suffer overtime loss 59-53

Hereford's Clint Cotten hit two free throws with four seconds left in regulation to tie the game, but the Whiteface varsity boys were outscored by Dumas 11-5 in the overtime period and lost the game 59-53.

Cotten's free throws, which were a one-and-one, tied the game at 48-48. Brad Smith hit a shot to give the Whitefaces a quick 50-48 lead in the overtime, but Dumas scored nine straight points.

"I thought we played real well, playing without three players who have started for us," Hereford Coach Mike Fields said. He noted that Rodney McCracken missed his second straight game because of a viral infection, that Kevin Hansen is still out of the lineup because of a hairline fracture in his arm, and also that Pat Mercer did not participate in Saturday's game because of a death in the family.

"We could have won the game, but we lost in overtime – on the road. It really put our backs against the wall to start out with two losses in district," Fields continues.

"Our timing was real bad with Hansen, McCracken and Mercer out, with three district games in four days, all of them on the road," he adds.

Hereford held a 29-28 halftime lead, and Dumas led 39-37 after three quarters of play.

Cotten led the Whitefaces with 15 points each, and Smith scored 13 points. Marcus Brown scored eight points, and Chad Clements had six points.

Cotten and Brown each scored a pair of three-points goals, and Ross Torres hit one three-point shot. Smith led in rebounds with nine, and Cotten was the leader in steals with six.

Hereford hit 21 of 54 shots from the field. Dumas made 28 field goals, including three three-pointers

In the other boys' game at Dumas, the Hereford sophomore team lost to the Dumas junior varsity, 48-42. Hereford led at halftime, 22-19, and Dumas gained the lead, 32-31, in the third quarter.

Russell Backus was high scorer for Hereford with 13 points, including two three-point goals. Tate Smith scored seven points, Anthony Tijerina had six points, and Chad Schroeder added five points.

Tijerina grabbed seven rebounds, and Schroeder scored a three-point goal.

HHS varsity girls lose, JV team wins, at Dumas

Hereford High School split a pair of girls' basketball games at Dumas Saturday, losing the varsity game, 49-31, and winning the junior varsity game, 37-29.

Hereford fell behind 22-8 in the first half of the varsity game. The Lady Whitefaces nearly equaled Dumas in scoring in the second half, but the first half lead of Dumas was too much.

Scorers for Hereford included Carmen Brockman with 12 points and Cande Robbins with five points. Brockman also led in rebounds with eight, and Amy Coneway had seven rebounds.

The Lady Whiteface hit only 11 of 36 shots from the field, and nine of 17 free throws.

In the junior varsity game, Hereford led 20-16 at halftime and 26-23 after three quarters of play in defeating Dumas 37-29.

Poppy Richardson led Hereford with nine points, and Jill West and Shea McGinty added six points. McGinty grabbed 11 rebounds, West had seven rebounds and Richardson had seven rebounds.

Last Friday, the HHS junior varsity defeated Frenship, 55-35, powered by a 22-point effort by Chandra Brown. Brown also had 13 rebounds, McGinty scored 10 points, and Brienna Townsend had five assists.

Frenship held a 24-17 lead at halftime, but Hereford moved into the lead, 34-32, in the third quarter. Hereford then outscored Frenship 21-3 in the final period.

In Bovina tournament, 54-51, over Vega varsity

Herd junior varsity wins consolation

Hereford High School's junior varsity boys' basketball team won the consolation game of the Bovina tournament on Saturday by outscoring the Vega varsity, 54-51.

Todd Schroeder, who led Hereford with 17 points, scored 12 points in the first half, but Vega held the halftime lead, 26-19. Hereford then scored 35 points in the second, compared to Vega's 25 points, for the 54-51 win.

Jason Scott, named to the all-tournament team, scored three three-point goals and was also in double figures with 11 points. Keith Brown added nine points. Brown and Schroeder each hit one three-point shot.

In the first round of the tournament on Thursday, Hereford was edged out by Boys Ranch 74-71. Boys Ranch held a 39-20 halftime lead. Hereford scored 51 points in the second half, but it was not enough to overtake Boys Ranch.

Seven Hereford players each scored at least seven points – Schroeder, 14 points; Kyle Andrews, 13 points; Brown, 10 points; Roger McCracken, nine points; Adolfo Martinez and Darren Nikkel, eight points each; and Scott, seven points.

In the fourth quarter, Martinez scored eight points, Schroeder seven points, and Andrews five points. Hereford had five three-point goals in the game – two by Martinez and one each by Schroeder, Andrews and Brown.

On Friday, Hereford scored a 53-46 victory over Hart, with Jason Scott leading the way with 19 points. Schroeder scored 11 points, and Andrews added eight points.

Scott fired in 14 points in the second half as Hereford maintained the lead. Schroeder had nine of his points in the first half, in which Hereford outscored Hart 31-26.

About Oilers' alleged tactics

Steelers' coach complains

By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In their Super Bowl days, Pittsburgh Steelers such as Jack Lambert, Joe Greene and Ernie Holmes did their intimidating on the field.

Now, with the Steelers all but out of the playoffs for the third straight season, a frustrated Coach Chuck Noll finds himself practicing the art of intimidation on the sidelines.

Noll, angered by what he said was Houston's overly aggressive play in Sunday's 24-16 loss to the Oilers, said Monday that — for the second time this season — he will file a report about the Oilers' tactics.

"I don't approve of that kind of football ... It will come back to haunt them. It may be a short-term thing ... it won't be long term, I guarantee," Noll said.

Noll first confronted Houston Coach Jerry Glanville during their postgame handshake Sunday, saying, "Your ... guys coming over, jumping people like that, are going to get ... you in trouble. Just know that. I'm serious."

"He was a perfect gentleman when they were beating us every year," Glanville said Monday. "Last year they beat us twice, and (Noll) said I was doing a great coaching job. When you get beat, different frustrations come into place. He's a very intense coach."

Noll refused to discuss his postgame lecture to Glanville, saying, "Anything I have to say about it I'll say to the league. It's not going to help ebating it right now ... but sometimes you're forced to police your own game."

Noll, who is 55 and played seven years as an offensive guard for the Cleveland Browns, told Oilers' cornerback Steve Brown during the game, "Tell your coach to meet me in the middle of the field. ... Who do you think would win?"

"You would, coach," Brown reportedly said.

Noll also complained to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle that Oilers' nose tackle Charles Martin speared running back Earnest Jackson during Houston's 23-3 victory at Pittsburgh Nov. 15. Jackson suffered a bruised back and wound up missing nearly four weeks of play.

The New Orleans Saints accused the Oilers of sending a player directly at star kicker Morten Andersen during kickoffs. And Oilers cornerback Patrick Allen said last week he was fined $5,000 for leveling Indianapolis Colts kicker Dean Biasucci with a forearm.

"They're notorious for that, climbing over piles, hitting people, pushing them in the back," Steelers running back Walter Abercrombie said.

Glanville said the Steelers employed similar tactics, but Noll said, "That's usually the defense — point the finger at the other guy."

That angered Glanville, who displayed film to reporters showing the Steelers operating outside the rules. Steelers' cornerback Delton Hall was shown belting guard Bruce Matthews while a play was being run on the other side of the field.

"I was here under a different regime where if someone punched you in the mouth, you turned around and walked away," said Glanville, a defensive coordinator under former Oilers Coach Hugh Campbell. "We don't allow that to happen anymore."

The Steelers, swept by Houston in their season series for the first time since the NFL began division play in 1970, now have only an outside chance of making the playoffs.

Pittsburgh, 8-6, could make the playoffs if they beat Cleveland, 9-5, Saturday at Three Rivers Stadium and if Seattle, 9-5, loses to Kansas City, 3-11. The Steelers also would make the playoffs if they beat Cleveland; Cincinnati, 4-10, upsets Houston, 8-6, and one of three other teams — Denver, Indianapolis and Miami — also loses.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN – This will be our last report to you for 1987, and we find it unfortunate that we have to end the year on such an ominous note. But, trouble may be coming to the Texas economy, and we would be wrong to ignore its presence.

Members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) once again appear unable to reach an agreement on how much oil OPEC should produce. At week's end, their meeting in Vienna, Austria had been suspended so that various oil ministers could counsel with their respective governments.

If no firm agreement on production is reached quickly, OPEC will find it impossible to support its official price of $18 per barrel. Several countries, especially Iraq, already are being allowed to overproduce and charge less than the official $18 price. OPEC production is beginning to exceed demand for the product, and all indications are that demend for OPEC oil will continue to decrease during the first quarter of 1988.

The bottom line is that OPEC is on the brink of leading the world into another oil glut and that will mean slumping oil prices everywhere. Right now, the major grade of U.S. crude already has tumbled below $16 on the cash and future markets. Analysts all agree that price will drop further if there is another glut, possibly to as low as $12 per barrel.

Economically, Texas cannot tolerate such a dramatic decline. Twelve dollar oil would mark a return to the economic crunch of 1986, when we had double-digit unemployment, a severe contraction in all economic activity and a state deficit of more than $3 billion.

And, frankly, Texas shouldn't have to tolerate such a price decline. In fact, we in Texas should not have to hang on the every move of a bunch of foreign monopolists. OPEC is controlling Texas' economy just as it controlled the entire nation's in the 1970's.

If the United States had a national energy policy, though, what OPEC did would mean little to the average American. A sound national energy policy would lead to increased domestic oil production, an increased domestic oil supply and – because it would put the United States in a position to compete in a level world market – more stable petroleum-product prices for consumers.

But that's just one of the reasons there is bi-partisan agreement in the Texas Legislature that we need a national energy policy. Another reason is that such a policy makes sound national security sense.

OPEC once again has become the dominant player in the world oil market, and the United States once again is increasing its dependence on foreign oil. We are leaving ourselves open to a situation that could make the energy crises of 1974 and 1979 look mild by comparison.

It's a terrible shame this country doesn't already have an energy policy in place. We've lived with the dangers of dependence on foreign oil for more than a decade; it would seem the wisdom of such a policy would be self-evident by now. After all, we've already seen the national effort to conserve fuel but pay huge dividends. How else could you explain the reduction in world demand for petroleum products?

We need to utilize the same initiative that made energy conservation pay off and apply it to the formulation of a national energy policy. We must make our leaders in Congress recognize that an energy policy needs to be one of this country's top priorities.

If we don't, a former Saudi Arabian oil minister's prediction is sure to come true. Several years back, the minister said, "The 1970's were not the golden age of Arab oil. The golden age of Arab oil will come in the 1990's."

It doesn't have to be that way. This season, above all else, is one of hope. Let's end the year with the hope that, for the short term, OPEC can keep oil prices stable and that in the long run what OPEC does is of no consequence to us.

'HE THAT DOETH GOOD

"He that doeth good is of God.' (John 3:11.) Goodness is a streming of the divine life into this enigmatic world for a purpose. ... In all the universe nought is to be taken for granted, everything is for the crucible of experience. ...

"The goodness of time is not only experimental, but illuminative. ... Let us ask: What is the ultimate form of goodness? Is it not love? Without love, goodness is not goodness. ... The fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, temporal goodness and the universal family are interdependent thoughts. But we have a unifying principle. ...

"Revelation becomes a necessary thought. Mutual communion is the law of the family. Revelation will come first in vital forms. The heroic deeds, the prayers, the lyric raptures, the righteous thoughts of goodness, will be the primary revelations.

"Inspiration has a necessary relation to character. 'He that doeth good is of God.' The good, who are nearest to God and enjoy most of His spirit, have the brightest horizon. ... As the impulse of goodness, the life of God in the world, is benevolent and pitiful, revelation will develop more and more in the form of redemptive love, and will find its climax in some transcendent life."

—Charles M. Shepherd, Dallas Morning News, Jan. 19, 1896.

The first British Broadcasting Corp. TV broadcast took place in London in 1929.

Suggestions for tree selection given

—— By EARL ARONSON AP

CHRISTMAS TREES

It's time to buy your Christmas tree. Do you know what to look for when you're making your selection?

Here are a few tips:

— Bounce the stump of the tree on the ground. If the needles fall off, don't buy the tree, it's dried out.

— Bend the needles. If they break, don't buy the tree, it's not fresh.

— Check the tree's cut stump. If the stump is not sticky and moist, pick another tree. A tree with a dry stump is too old.

When you get the tree home, you can help retain its needles and freshness by cutting an inch from the stump and standing the tree in water or damp sand. Add a pint of water or more every day the tree is indoors to keep it fresh.

FOR A SAFER HOLIDAY

Saving Christmas tree decorations and using them year after year is traditional. But this practice can be dangerous.

When you unpack the tree decorations, check them thoroughly. Inspect bulbs to make sure they operate. If a fuse or a circuit breaker blows when you connect the lights, it means something is wrong electrically. Don't use that string of lights until you check for the problem. If in doubt, discard the set.

If the lights do operate, remove the plug from the socket and scrutinize the wires. If you find cracked insulation, bare wires or cracked sockets, discard the lights. They could be a hazard.

Also make sure the connections are good. All strings of light are not the same. Lights may be wired in a series or in a parallel circuit.

If a bulb goes out on a series circuit, all the lights go off. If a bulb goes out on a two-wire parallel set, the rest of the lights will continue to burn, even with a burned-out bulb.

However, if you don't replace burned-out bulbs on a parallel set, the lights will be subjected to increased electrical power, shortened life — and could possibly become a fire hazard.

When you put in new bulbs, be sure to use bulbs with the proper voltage size. Large lamp sets should not be connected through miniature lamp sets. And indoor lights should not be used outdoors.

Always turn off the lights when you go to bed and when you leave home.

TREE FOLKLORE

The tradition of Christmas trees in America began when Hessian soldiers, who fought for the British in the American Revolutionary War, introduced the holiday tree to the colonists. The Hessians used wild forest pines to remind them of their homes in Germany.

Franklin Pierce was the first U.S. president to set up a Christmas tree.

And President Calvin Coolidge began the national Christmas tree-lighting ceremony at the White House in 1923.

MAKING WREATHS

If you don't have evergreen cuttings to make Christmas wreaths, you can use straw or grapevines. Wind the straw or vines around a wire hoop, fasten them with pliable wire and add bows for color.

Wild grapevines, which are reddish brown in color, can be found along roadsides, usually on fences or poles. Grapevines are easy to use, but some may need to be soaked in warm water to make them pliable.

Pine cones also make nice wreath decorations. Put cones on a cookie sheet and dry them in an oven at a low temperature for one hour. This procedure will help cones open up. When the pine cones are cool, spray them with shellac, varnish or spray paint.

Just remember that dried arrangements need special care. Dust them gently with a soft, dry brush. To store for another season, place them in plastic bags and seal.

Create fresh holiday wreath

—— From MIDWEST LIVING A Meredith Magazine

Deck the halls with a homemade wreath.

According to Midwest Living, wreath makers say pfitzer, Japanese yew, Scotch pine, and arborvitae sprigs are easiest to work with. Spruce and fir cuttings don't hold up well indoors and are stiff to handle. Cut greenery stays fresh for six weeks if stored outdoors in a closed plastic garbage bag.

To make fresh holiday wreaths at home, find or purchase a wire coat hanger, black friction tape. No. 28-gauge craft wire on a spool, and cut greenery.

Shape the wire hanger into a circle, leaving only the hook on top intact.

Wrap the wire hanger circle with black friction tape.

Cut tips of the greenery into pieces that vary from three to six inches in length.

Starting at the base of the hook, wrap No. 28 craft wire around the hanger several times, leaving a three-inch tail for anchoring the end of the wire when the wreath is complete. Starting at the base of the hook and working counterclockwise around the hanger frame, wire the bottom one-half inch of three clippings of varying lengths of greenery to the frame, passing the spool and wire around the stems and frame at least twice. Pull wire snugly because the stems will shink slightly as they dry.

Continue adding and overlapping bunches of two or three clippings, wiring each bunch. Place the longer clippings on the outside and the shorter ones on the inside of the circle to create a wreath that is four inches greater in diameter than the frame.

When the frame is covered with greenery, cut the wire from the spool. Behind the hook of the hanger, twist the end of the wire together with the tail at the other end of the wire.

Decorate the wreath with cones, berries, ribbons, or other ornaments.

"Happiness is a perfume that one cannot shed over others without a few drops falling on oneself."

—Punch, London, Oct. 11, 1856.

THE OIL OF GLADNESS

"Love is the oil of gladness poured into the wounded heart. It is the sweet perfume that sweetens the whole life. We would love our fellowmen more if we understood our fellowmen better. If we understand their trials, temptations and heartaches, we would love our fellowmen more."

—W. Marshall Craig, Dallas Morning News, June 13, 1927.

ADDRESS: 313 N. LEE

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 14' cents a word for first insertion ($2.80 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN.
1 day per word	.14	2.80
2 days per word	.24	4.80
3 days per word	.34	6.80
4 days per word	.44	8.80

5th day FREE

Ten days (2 free) is $15.80 minimum; 15 days (3 free) is $23.80 minimum; one month is $31.80 minimum.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines–those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $3.95 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Legal Notices

NOTICE BY PUBLICATION
STATE OF TEXAS
TO: RAMIRO GAMEZ
GREETINGS:

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear and answer before the Honorable 222nd Judicial District Court, Deaf Smith County, Texas, at the courthouse of said county in Hereford, Texas, at or before 10:00 o'clock a.m. of the Monday next after the expiration of 20 days from the date of service of this citation, then and there to answer the petition of Texas Department of Human Services Petitioner, filed in said Court on the 15 day of December 1987 against Mary Vargas and Ramiro Gamez Respondents, and said suit being numbered DR-87L-179 (File A) on the docket of said Court, and entitled In The Interest Of: Jessica Lee Vargas, a Child the nature of which suit is a request for temporary orders in suit affecting the parent-child relationship. Said child was born the 20 day of August, 1985, in Hereford, Deaf Smith County, Texas.

The Court has the authority in this suit to enter any judgment or decree in the child, interest which will be binding upon you including but not necessarily limited to, the termination of the parent-child relationship, the determination of paternity, and the appointment of a conservator with authority to consent to the child's adoption.

Issued and given under my hand and seal of said Court at Hereford, Texas, this 18 day of December 1987.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR FRIENDS:

I travel extensively and would like to share my favorite travel hints. I always take along instant soup, coffee or tea (in individual serving sizes) for a quick pick-me-up. If I can't find the small size, I just put several tablespoons of instant coffee, low-fat powdered milk and even artificial sweetener in resealable plastic bags. They are ideal for my first cup of coffee or tea, while dressing, before facing a hectic, jam-packed day. Try it, you'll like it. And it'll save you money too! — Heloise

SAVING CLIPPINGS

Dear Heloise: I am forever clipping recipes and hints from newspapers and magazines.

As a young mother of three preschool children, I really don't have the time to rewrite them on file cards, so I took an inexpensive photo album (with the lift-up plastic film on each page) and used it to hold, file and protect all my clippings.

Now they are easy to find, always in good shape and I don't have to recopy anything. Your column is great! — C. Carpenter, Forsyth, Mont.

You might also want to buy index tabs (found at variety stores and drugstores), the kind that students use, to divide your clippings into categories or have several albums with the category pasted or written on the front of each one. — Heloise

FREEZING MEAT FOR ONE

Dear Heloise: When I buy meat such as pork chops, small steaks or individual pieces of chicken, I spread the individual pieces on a cookie sheet, cover the sheet with some plastic wrap and place it in the freezer until they are frozen a little bit.

Then I take them out of the freezer and place each piece in a self-sealing plastic bag and freeze them thoroughly.

Now, when I want just one piece of meat, I don't need to thaw out the entire package. It is a lot easier to handle and saves me tons of time. — Joey, Anchorage, Alaska

SHOELACES

Dear Heloise: I have a tip for people who have a hard time keeping their shoelaces tied. After you tie your shoes, wet the knots with water and pull them tightly and they stay tied all day.

This would work on children's shoes as well. I hope this hint helps someone. — Geneva Wood, Vintan, Va.

I'm sure it will help little ones who are learning to tie their shoes. — Heloise

LETTER CODING

Dear Heloise: This hint has been very helpful to me, so I want to pass it on.

I keep the letters I receive (until I can answer them) on my desk at home. On the back of the envelope, I jot down one word relating to something I know will interest them — such as graduation, party, trip, visitors.

Newspaper clippings, snapshots and poems are safely tucked into that same envelope. No last-minute searching! — B. Miller, Manchester, N.H.

SELF-SEALING PLASTIC BAGS

Dear Heloise: I use the large self-sealing plastic bags for storing all those loose plastic lids. I put them in different bags according to size and shape.

I find this to be a time-saver because it cuts out looking for a particular lid and the cabinets are not quite as cluttered. — Agnes, Baltimore, Md.

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is my system for remembering birthdays. Make a 3x5 index card for each month and write the dates down. Write each person's name after the date of his or her birthday and couple's names after their anniversary date. Depote "A" for anniversary and "B" for birthday after each name. I record the year (just so I remember how old a child is and also how long a couple has been married).

At the end of each month, take the next month's index card out and purchase greeting cards. When you've gotten them, post the index card on your bulletin board as a reminder to send them early! You'll never forget again! — Carolyn Higgins, Fayetteville, N.Y.

A clever system! We all need reminders of important dates, so we don't forget. — Heloise

PLANT LOVER

Dear Heloise: I am an avid plant lover and want to pass on this important tip.

Always wash out any planter with hot soapy water before reusing it.

Then soak the planter in the following mixture: three-quarters cup liquid chlorine bleach and one gallon of warm water. Rinse it well after allowing it to soak. This solution will disinfect the planter and prevent the spread of mold or diseases. — Linda, Elko, Nev.

SCRAPBOOK

Dear Heloise: I cut out the puzzle pages and riddles which appear regularly in our local paper. Then I paste them in a scrapbook in readiness for the visits of my grandchildren.

Each time, they are eager to see the new pages which I have added. — Mrs. Howard Griffith, Fayetteville, Ark.

The British tested their first atomic bomb off the coast of Australia in 1952.

The number of employed women increased from 2 1/2 million in 1880 to 5 1/3 million by 1900.

INDIFFERENCE

"Christian love is the only antidote to selfish indifference. Any man might like and seek to help others, but unless a man has the light and love of Jesus Christ in his soul, he will not love and seek to reach and help all within the radius of his life. ...

"The closer we are to God and the clearer His truth is to us, the better we will know how to touch them. Spirituality is both plan and power in the worker. ... The Holy Spirit is the great touching personal power who will use the worker if he is willing to be used. ...

"If we are indifferent to the call of duty through this open door of magnetic opportunity, our hearts are not right with God, we have not the spirit of our master, Christ. ... The Holy Spirit is responsible and stands pledged for the unlimited and unconditioned assuring promise of James 1:5: 'If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him.'

"If we want to reach them and know how to do it, and yet do not do it, we are guilty before God of a waste of influence, an abuse of privilege and a loss of opportunity infinite in value and eternal in results. James 4:17: 'Therefore to him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin.'"

Navy starts stamping out harassment

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The navy is mounting a new campaign to stamp out sexual harassment in the ranks while simultaneously increasing the number of sea-going and aviation jobs open to women, the Navy's top official says.

"During the past 15 years there has been steady and significant progress in managing the rapid introduction of large numbers of women" into the service, Navy Secretary James H. Webb said Monday.

"Notwithstanding this progress...more remains to be done."

Citing an internal study that found widespread complaints of sexual harassment among Navywomen, Webb said he was ordering more frequent and better focused training sessions for male sailors and issuing strong directives to commanders attempting to sensitize them to the problem.

The secretary said he also was ordering the Navy's inspector general to pay more attention to reviewing the problem during base inspections; requiring base commanders to appoint a qualified counselor to help deal with harassment complaints, and directing a new publicity campaign to let female sailors know they could lodge harassment complaints through the Fraud. Waste and Abuse Hotline if local commanders didn't address their grievances.

And in a bid to improve the career prospects for female sailors and officers, Webb said the Navy would soon begin expanding the number of combat support jobs open to them. While it will take "several years" to implement, the new policy will almost triple the number of sea-going jobs open to women, to a new total of almost 15,000, he said.

The new career policy will have as its foundation what Webb called the first clear, concise definition of "combat missions" within his service. Unless a ship or aircraft has as its primary objective the goal "to seek out, reconnoiter and engage the enemy," the jobs on that ship or aircraft should be open to women, Webb said.

"I would say that this represents to me, in naval terms, as far as you can go" unless Congress removes legal restrictions on women serving in combat jobs, the secretary added.

Webb announced the new initiatives after releasing an internal study he ordered last September in the wake of a scathing report by an outside advisory group.

The official Navy study concluded the service's personnel management system for enlisted females "severely limits women's access to ratings (jobs) available to them"; that career-enhancing assignments for both enlisted women and female officers are limited, breeding serious frustration; and "sexual harassment exists in the Navy and is exacerbated by inadequacies in leadership and educational systems."

"Over half of the 1,400 Navy women interviewed in 10 worldwide locations indicated they had been victims of some form of sexual harassment in the Navy; nearly all those interviewed reported observing some form of sexual harassment," the study added.

Virtually all of the harassment reported in the study was verbal in nature, Webb said.

There are currently about 54,000 women on active-duty in the Navy, or about 9 percent of the force.
