County Wheat Harvest Almost Over; Elevators Receive 45,981 Bushels

Hall County's wheat harvest is nearing its end this week with a total yield so far of 45,981 bushels reported by the three elevators in the county.

The Omer Hill Elevator, Cook Grain & Storage, both in Memphis, and the Setliff Elevator at Turkey reported a total wheat poultage of 2,758,850. By Thursday, there were several fields, especially in the Lakeview area, that have not been cut due to the wet weather the past few weeks.

The ASCS office in Memphis reported a total acreage of wheat grown for harvest as 6,054, Lynn McKown, office manager, said.

So far, this would give a total acreage yield of slightly over seven bushels.

The total of 45,981 bushels of wheat is not an accurate figure for Hall County's production because a number of bushels from Childress, Donley and Collingsworth, plus Motley and Briscoe, are brought into Hall County for storage. Some county wheat is also carried out of the county for storage.

A total yield of 6,230 pounds of rye was reported by the three elevators.

Rains, necessary to the cotton farmer, were hard on wheat. So, many farmers had mixed emotions about the rain.

The wheat market here remains unchanged since the opening of harvest, with the grain still bringing $1.85 per bushel. Since this is about 15 cents per bushel above the government loan, after deductions, all of this year's crop has gone on the open market.

New ZIP Code Numbers Are Given For 3 Towns

The Memphis, Estelline and Lakeview Post Offices announced their five-digit ZIP code numbers this week.

The Memphis ZIP code number is 79245 it was announced for Lakeview the number is 79239, Lee M. Robertson, postmaster said.

Estelline's ZIP code number is 79233 Billy Bob Holland, postmaster stated.

"Everyone in Memphis, Estelline and Lakeview will use this ZIP Code on all their correspondence to speed mail deliveries and reduce the chance of mis-sent mail," those making the announcements said.

The men stressed the importance of all citizens learning their city's ZIP code and using it in their return address on all correspondence. In answering mail they said, ZIP codes taken from return addresses on incoming mail should be used.

"The ZIP code is literally the last word in mailing addressing," they said. "It should follow the city and state in addresses," the post office department announced.

An example of the proper use of ZIP code follows:

John Doe

Box 000

Memphis, Texas, 79245

The new ZIP code plan, the department announced, for the first time will permit the Post Office Department to short-cut repeated address reading.

The address on mail must often be read as many as eight or ten times by postal employees, to get it to the proper destination, it was announced. Each handling slows the process of mail dispatch and adds to the opportunity for human error.

With ZIP code, a clerk needs only to glance at the code to know immediately to what national area state and post office the letter is destined, and to speed it on its way, cutting up to 24 hours off the time between deposit and delivery.

When the ZIP code is in full swing, the United States will have "the most modern system of mail distribution and delivery in existence," the department said.

EDITORIAL

Weekly Newspaper Publishing!

Television and movies have helped to create a slightly false picture of newspapering and journalism, which is recognized by most people of this area. The public has seen and heard too much which is fiction, and does not portray the facts of life as they are lived by those who are devoting their time to publishing daily and home-town weeklies in this nation.

Perhaps we in the publishing business are at fault. Due to the pressure of getting out "another edition," we have not taken the time to explain the facts of publishing a newspaper, and the problems and ethics of this profession.

Probably we have "taken for granted" too much understanding on the part of the general public about the problems which we in the publishing business are faced with every day. But our contacts with men and women, month after month, are forcing us to the conclusion that we need to explain some of the whys and wherefores of our business.

First of all, we in the weekly field, need to have our news and advertising copy in our office as early as possible. This gives trained personnel—both in the composing room and the editorial department—the time needed to give our utmost attention to facts and details. As the deadline approaches for "going to press," the pressure builds up. Late-breaking news stories must be condensed—and sometimes omitted altogether from the edition. Those advertisers who turn in their copy late are considered in this pressure. They want their message presented with the next edition. But with the threat of more overtime, it works out that slight shortcuts must be used, sometimes with a presentation that is not up to standard.

Sometimes we are accused of favoring a particular few in news reporting. We admit that those who turn in their news early, whether it be general, governmental, farming or society, always get preferential treatment. These news stories are handled early without pressure. They appear in the pages of the early runs of weekly newspapers and are complete.

We like to get reports from those persons who are not shy about having their names in print. People make news. Those who report to us about their news early, always get complete coverage.

Newspapers also find another type of person with whom they must deal with, fairly, even-temperedly and graciously as they can. That's the person who insists on telling us how to write a news story. They even sometimes tell us where to print the story—generally on the front page. This type of person does not realize that newspapers have rules and regulations they attempt to follow. Also there are the style sheets and operational procedures which are followed by all fair-minded newspapers.

Those of us in the weekly publishing field do not have enough personnel to do everything our readers want—or we would like to do. Each employee must be versatile in order that we publish each edition on time.

We would like to be able to "cover" every news event personally as it happens. Also, we have three photographers whom we would like to be available when news-worthy events occur. But this is impossible, sometimes due to the pressure of details of publishing a weekly newspaper. Therefore, we are dependent upon different citizens to give reports to us, answering such questions as what, where, when, why, how, etc.

All in all, it takes an understanding community to help the publishers produce a first class newspaper.

We Need Level Heads!

Editorial writers, columnists, news reporters, along with many thinking leaders in all phases of our society have over the past three to five years, pleaded for citizens and politicians alike to use some common sense and a level head in considering the problems facing our society.

Walter R. Humphrey, executive editor of the Fort Worth Press, in his "The Home Town," stated recently, "The time has come in this country for level heads to take over. I mean, level heads of all people, of all parties . . . and of all races."

He went on to say "The ferment which is obvious throughout the land has explosive possibilities. Our country can be torn asunder."

"What we need is a recognition of the rights of all men, to begin with, and a recognition of the importance of making change with deliberate and careful planning. We must move with caution in the areas where great changes are being made or contemplated," he said.

Humphrey explained these statements by saying that it is important that the gains previously made in the field of civil rights should not be destroyed by precipitous action and by trying to complete the job in one swoop. Those who are honestly concerned with equal opportunity for all need to be concerned also, with consolidating gains as they are made and with proceeding with good judgement.

Good will must be preserved as we go along and that no action be taken to inflame deliberately, nor to cause those who are willing to compromise, to withdraw their hand extended in good will.

It is obvious to all that a social revolution is taking place in this nation. It can be a violent one if politicians attempt to exploit it for personal gain. Also violence will result if all sides do not conduct themselves with dignity, and with concern to preserve the unity of our people.

No rabble-rousers are needed, or wanted. The stakes are too great.

Everywhere, leadership must encourage our people to keep level heads, to be patient.

Those of the colored race in the United States celebrated their freedom proclamation Wednesday, June 19. On that date almost 100 years ago slavery was abolished in this nation. Much has been done in the 100 years. This nation cannot withstand another violent uprising. We need level headed thinkers.

Financial Troubles Face City

Financial troubles face our nation's capital, and that is something about which all of us should be concerned since its treasured memorials are a part of our country's history.

Despite what many Americans mistakenly believe, the federal government does not finance the entire budget for the Capital City and residents there do pay taxes. The truth is that the bulk of the City's budget comes from taxes on residents of the District of Columbia.

We seldom wander so far from home in our editorial columns, but since our nation's Capital City does belong to all of us, we feel we are justified in this instance.

In addition to the problems which most cities have, Washington, D. C., has numerous problems which are unique because of its status as a federal city.

Real estate taxes form an important part of every city or county tax base, but the federal government which pays no taxes, and other tax-exempt establishments such as embassies, occupy 50 per cent of the city's land.

Also, the federal government is the city's number one employer and most of the city's government employees live in the suburbs and pay no income tax to the city. Skyrocketing the cost of providing municipal services to these non-residents has been the tremendous expansion in federal employment.

Since Americans want their Capital to be beautiful, Congress requires wide, tree-lined and costly streets. All municipal construction must conform to rigid federal esthetic standards which are also costly. The height of private buildings is limited so federal buildings will not be overshadowed and this limits the tax yield from real estate.

Dwindling income and increasing costs will mean deterioration of our Capital City, which otherwise could be made the showplace of the world.

In the beginning, Congress financed half of the city's budget but this was later changed and since then lump sums have ranged from a high of 39.5 per cent in 1924 to a low of 8.5 per cent in 1954. In fiscal 1963, it represents only 12.7 per cent of the city's operating budget.

Support of a plan for more equitable financial treatment for the district of Columbia should be urged on the members of Congress.

As a member of the House District of Columbia Committee, our own Congressman, George H. Mahon, plays a key role in this matter. We hope he and his colleagues will recognize the fairness in restoring a balance between local taxes paid by Washingtonians and the costs shouldered by the federal government.

The Nation's Capital belongs not to the local residents, but to all Americans.

Capital Punishment

The punk who murdered Patrolman Kenneth Harrison at Gainesville a few days ago provided a powerful argument, if any is needed, in favor of capital punishment.

Kenneth Harrison, who had served as state highway patrolman with the Perryton district for seven years before transferring a few months ago to Gainesville, was, to many of us who knew him well, not only a fine officer but a fine man, a proud father, and a good citizen.

He wore his uniform with pride, and represented his service with distinction. His loss is a real one to his friends, his fellow of-

Penney's Fall Coat Caravan To Be Here For 10 Days Beginning Friday

Penney's will feature a touch of desert life starting next week when it welcomes a caravan to town.

The caravan will arrive Friday, June 21, in the form of Penney's traveling Fall Coat Caravan, according to Les Sims, store manager.

Caravan will be at the store for about 10 days, offering fashion-conscious women an opportunity to choose from a wide selection of fall coats.

"Penney's 1963 version of a caravan will give women here a chance to choose fall coat wardrobes from as complete and economical a selection as any shown in larger fashion centers," Mr. Sims said.

Most of the coats will feature fur-trimmed collars of natural mink, natural blue fox, dyed squirrel, natural raccoon, bleached wolf or dyed fox. Most popular fall colors are expected to be brown and wild rice along with ever popular black. Red is making a strong bid for favor this season. Coats will come in misses, junior and junior petite sizes. Coats are replenished from town to town so that each store offers a broad assortment. The caravan will remain here until July 2 before moving on.

The Penney manager pointed out that all coats in the caravan may be purchased on convenient credit or layaway plans.

Tom and Debbie Dortch of Irving are visiting here this week with their grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Thompson. Mrs. Thompson, who suffered a heart upset two weeks ago, is now home and doing nicely.

TWICE AS MUCH COOLING

With the patented features of Paramount Coolers

Yes! This famous Paramount 1000 c.f.m. evaporative cooler gives you up to twice as much cooling because of these patented features:
— Many coolers lose as much as 70% of cooling efficiency because dust, dirt and salts clog the filters. Patented
No-Clog Sta-Fresh Filters are guaranteed clog-proof, assuring 100% cooling efficiency all summer long.
— Filters saturated with water become heavy and often sag and settle from the top, drawing hot, unfiltered, uncooled air into the cooler which may create as much as a 70% cooling loss. Patented Grip-Lock Filter Holders are guaranteed to prevent sagging and settling of filters assuring 100% cool, clean, filtered air.
— Without correct water trough adjustment, sections of the filter remain dry, resulting in substantial cooling loss and costly service expense. Patented Free-Flo Visible Water Troughs with external adjustment assure 100% saturation, and 100% cooling for the entire life of the cooler.
— Added feature — Patented Window Closing Attachment lets you close and lock your window. Eliminates entry of dust, rain and drafts into your home.

Hall County Soil Conservation District News

By RICHARD MYERS
Range Conservationist

Soil Conservation is easy if you do it with a plan, one step at a time. Work is always easier when we enjoy doing it, when we treat it as a challenge, and when we break big jobs into little jobs. That's the way it is with soil and water conservation.

It's easy to become a successful conservation farmer. You don't have to upset your entire operation. Take it one step at a time. In fact it's better to do it that way provided you work toward the goal of a conservation plan that is best for you and for the land.

A man learns to crawl before he learns to walk and learns to walk before he learns to run. The same is true in soil and water conservation. We can reach our goal by taking one step at a time if we know the best place to start and what really pays off, if we adopt practices that need doing first and that will fit right into a good conservation plan and if we don't fool ourselves into thinking we are doing a complete job of conservation after we've adopted a few conservation practices.

There are several steps in obtaining a complete soil and water conservation plan. First of all, show your interest where it counts. If you really want to conserve your soil, you have all it takes to make a start. Contact the supervisors of your soil conservation district. Call one of them on the phone right now and tell him what's on your mind. He'll welcome your call and will explain how you can become a district cooperator. (If it's more convenient, stop at the local office of the Soil Conservation Service. The people there give technical help to the district and they can help you meet one of the supervisors.)

Second, get your application in. Show your district supervisors your intentions by signing a simple conservation agreement to work toward the kind of conservation program your land needs and establish the practices that are practical for you.

Build up your conservation know-how. Become well informed on conservation and give your local soil conservationist a chance to help you. Pick out one or two practices you'd like to start with and begin your plan toward complete soil and water conservation.

Get the help you need to do the practice right. It's good to get a head start with your conservation farming. But you will want to be safe by avoiding mistakes that could bother you later on. So get the help you need from the Soil Conservation Service. As a district cooperator you are entitled to personal assistance right on your own land. Think about other things you'd like to do to make your farm safe and productive. Make a plan so you can do first things first. Get the plan on the land—one step at a time.

Get help from your SCS men when you have waterways to make or terraces to build, or anything else to do you aren't familiar with. See your county agent, too, about fertilizer recommendations, insect control, adopted crop varieties. Check with the county ASC committee to see what cost-sharing arrangements are provided if you need help with your new conservation practices. There may be others like the State Conservation Department and the Farmers Home Administration. All these people will be eager to help you get that plan of yours on the land.

Guests in the G. D. Stephens home on Father's Day were Mr. and Mrs. Billy Thompson, Billy Ed, Carol and Matt, and the Stephens' grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ryan, of Chicago, Ill., and Miss Janice Rowley of Terra Haute, Ind.

Right Lures For White Bass

There always will be controversy over what lure to use, and when. With white bass, however, the choice is pretty clear. Deep running, light colored lures, such as yellow or white, consistently bring in the whites.

However, of all the lures, the silver or gold spoons top the heap.

The League of Nations was established on June 28, 1919, and dissolved April, 1946.

Avery Reports On Rotary Conv. Last Week

Rev. Richard Avery reported to the Memphis Rotary Club Tuesday on 54th Rotary International Convention held in Saint Louis, Mo., last week.

He said the theme for the 54th annual convention was "Unity in Diversity." The leader was President Nittish C. Laharry, who composed the theme, who developed it with grace and depth, who performed with light and sure thought and who brought it to a stirring climax in the presence of 10,779 Rotarians and their families in St. Louis.

From 59 diverse countries they came—these Rotarians by bus, train, plane, and automobile to enjoy the hospitality of their hosts and to give purpose and focus to the fellowship of an international convention.

"I came to this convention mostly to get acquainted with people from other countries," one Rotarian said after arriving Sunday. An Argentine delegate said, "I came all the way from Argentina to this convention, and I intend to do more than go to the zoo, fine as it is."

The convention was opened Sunday by Richard Evans, convention chairman, of Salt Lake City, Utah. Also President Laharry gave the welcome address and the 59-country flags were presented.

At the convention, the following nominations were made: Charles W. Pettengill, Greenwich, Conn., was the nominee for president for 1964-65, and Lloyd Hollister of Wilmette, Ill., as treasurer.

Rev. Avery told the local club, "one of the most enjoyable parts of the convention for my wife and I was the Fellowship Dinner on Tuesday night. Attending were Rotarians from Africa and the Great Plains.

The first speaker Wednesday morning was the Governing Mayor of Berlin, Willy Brandt. Speaking from a standpoint of vantage which he called the "dividing line between East and West," he said: "My experience is this: When people of good will work together for a cause they hold dear, and if they have the strength to live with uncertainty, there is hardly any obstacle that cannot be overcome."

Incoming President Carl Miller, of Los Angeles, Calif., stated in his final address, "Let us hope that men will come to see more clearly, not that which divides them, but that which unites them."

Rev. Avery thanked the club for making the trip possible for himself and his wife.

Connally Names CTC President To Ed. Comm.

E. H. Danner, president of General Telephone Company, has been named by Texas Governor John Connally as one of the 25 persons to serve on the "Committee on Education Beyond the High School."

Danner, who has been active in local, area, and state civic affairs, is currently serving as president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, is a director of the Texas Telephone Assn., a director of the Texas Research League, vice chairman of the Board of Trustees of Austin College at Sherman, and a member of the Admissions and Budget Committee of the Texas United Fund.

Danner was president of Texas Telephone Company in Sherman until its merger with General Telephone System. In 1956 he became operating vice president of the Southwest Company and was named president in 1957.

Clue To Good Fishing

Cut open the first fish you catch and find out what it has been feeding on.

This one clue may mean the difference between a full stringer or an empty one.

If artificial bait is being used, match the lure as nearly as possible with the contents of the fish's stomach.

This procedure will pay off in bigger catches.

Pencils for Fly Fishermen

A smart fly fisherman will carry a pencil stub in his tackle box at all times.

Then, should a ferrule on his fly rod prove balky and tend to stick, he will rub the male part of the ferrule with his pencil to lubricate the joint with carbon, and so prevent such future trouble.

Frank B. Foxhall Receives Citation From Health Dept.

An official State Health Department citation for job competency has been awarded to Frank B. Foxhall of Memphis, manager of the Donkey County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1.

The impressive document, signed by the state health commissioner and officers of the Texas Water and Sewerage Works Association, was presented to Foxhall after he demonstrated his skill in water plant management and an understanding of the importance of the work to the health of Memphis and Donkey County residents.

Under the State Health Department's operator certification program, operators of city utility plants are carefully examined on their technical know-how and their knowledge of their work's influence on community health. Each must pass a stiff written examination to qualify for certification.

State law requires that at least one certified operator be on duty during each shift at a city water or waste water treatment plant.

Wesleyan Guild Meets For Study Monday Night

The Wesleyan Service Guild of the First Methodist Church met Monday night, June 17, in the church annex with Lucille Burnett as program leader.

Brunetta Morris gave the opening prayer and the meditation. The program topic was "Spofford Home, a Ministry to Children with Special Needs."

Muffet Merrell, vice president,

Rains Continue To Add Moisture

Rainfall during the past week here in Memphis has totaled 1.10 inches, according to John J. Mickin, official weather observer.

Friday .20 of an inch was recorded, Saturday .42 and then .48 was measured Tuesday. Over the weekend the rainfall was heavier toward Estelline with 1.50 inches reported there, plus showers since that time.

Turkey has a total of about 1.50 inches for the week, as has Lakeview.

The rainfall Friday night was heavier to the north as 3.30 inches was reported on the Fred Bourland place northwest of Quail. They also recorded .30 Saturday and .40 Tuesday for a total of 4.11 for the week.

Crops over the area are in good condition as a whole, however, some areas still remain to be planted or replanted.

Catching Crickets

It's easy to catch crickets for bait if you will turn a bucket upside down in the grass just before turning in at night.

Prop the edge of the bucket off the ground with a couple of sticks.

During the night the crickets will creep inside the bucket. They will be ready for harvesting first thing in the morning.

Three successive Presidents occupied the White House within 30 days. They were: Presidents Martin Van Buren, William Henry Harrison and John Tyler.

Members present were: Mildred Gidden, Hattie Linville, Mazine Phillips, Betty Johnson, Lucille Burnett, Viola Morris, Muffet Merrell and hostesses, Mildred Spicer and Brunetta Morris.

By Vern Sanford

Fishermen are a peculiar lot! They are individualists, to say the least. Get a half-dozen of them together and they will give you six different views on the same subject — if it's fishing.

The following ideas, opinions, habits, procedures, rules — whatever you want to call them, came from a tape recording of a discussion between three of Central Texas' top-notch, black bass fishermen.

Jim Roddie, former head of the TIPS Fishing Club (better known as the Texas Invertebrate Piscatorial Sportsmen), has one very definite belief. He feels that hooks play a far more important part than most fishermen realize. Especially when it comes to landing big, lunkering-size bass.

Jim is a stickler for French Crown or Eagle Claw Hooks. He maintains that they are the sharpest, by far. Because of their brown or bluish color they are not visible to the fish as are the silvery hooks. Jim keeps dozens of these hooks on hand and even substitutes them for the treble hooks on brand new baits. Always he adds larger hooks. He likes 'em big!

As for lures . . . if Jim had to use but one lure, day in and day out, year in and year out, his choice would be the quarter-ounce Pico-type Jig, which he makes himself. It has a big hook, at least 4/0 and no weedguard. Color black.

Attached to it he'll add a pork rind or a 5-inch eel. Sometimes a 3-inch or a 9-inch eel cut in half. Prefers to use the tail section. A gain, black is his choice of color.

A plain black jig alone is real good, says Jim. "But the addition of an eel or a pork rind gives it more lifelike action, and I believe attracts the larger fish."

Two points to bear in mind, according to this Austin angler, are to:

- (1) Keep the jig on the bottom, where the lunkers lie, and
- (2) Remember that the bass hit the tail of the jig.

So — jig off the bottom and give him time to run with it. Then when the big black stops (to roll the bait over in his mouth, preparatory to swallowing it head first) . . . set the hook, and set it hard.

As for top-water lures, Jim says they more often than not, catch the smaller fish. He repeats: "Nine times out of ten, you'll find the big ones down deep."

Kinda hard to argue the point with a guy who lands them in the four to eight pound class rather consistently.

But there are chugger-poppers who'll challenge him. One is Roddie's own fishing buddy, Clyde Graham, present head of TIPS.

Clyde prefers light colored bait. His favorite top-water lure is the pure white, transparent plastic Heddon Spook chugger. For a bucktail he'll take yellow.

Early in the morning, however, Clyde will try the black baits first. Then he'll switch to his transparent Spook, which, incidentally, looks more like an unfinished bait.

If no luck, then Graham's next choice is the same kind of clear plastic lure which he has added some touches of green paint. Sometimes he paints the head of the bait red.

All this doesn't mean that Graham doesn't use the jig and eel. In fact, he makes his own weedless jigs as well as the bottom-bouncing spinner-type. Clyde will tell you frankly that he prefers the top-water lure mainly because he likes to see the fish rise out of the water to take the bait.

But let Jim Roddie latch onto a four pounder and watch how quick Graham switches to a black jig and eel.

Meanwhile, Gordon Wallace, another TIPS'er, will have been fishing the jig and eel all along.

He prefers the pork rind to the artificial worm. That's why you'll always find an ice pick in Gordon's tackle box . . . to punch the hole in the fat side of a split-tailed pork rind.

Another Wallace favorite is the black Spring Lizard. This he casts on top of the moss, without any weight added. If he uses a weight, it will be nothing heavier than a very small split shot.

Gordon likes to fish with the outboard motor running in reverse. Backing up slows the speed of the boat and makes it possible to fish the area more thoroughly. He prefers to fish ahead of the boat, in water not yet disturbed by the prop of the motor.

In Gordon's opinion, far more fish are caught on jig and eel than most fishermen realize. Lots of fishermen just don't have the feel — therefore, the fish gets off the hook before the angler realizes he has had a strike.

Wallace is another angler who stresses the importance of good, sharp hooks.

Bring up the topic of fishing in the sun and you'll get a variety of opinions.

Most fishermen seem to think it best to fish facing the sun, so your shadow will not be cast on the the sun shining on his left cheek. That means the shadow is away from the spot you're fishing.

All three of these top-notch anglers agree that fish have the ability to smell. Body odors do make a difference! So tie on your lures with clean hands, they admonish. Keep oil off the lures, too, for the same reason.

Roddie, the most cautious of the trio, takes along two rods. And to be sure there is no fish smell on the lures, he baits them up the night before.

School building, Thursday thru Sunday afternoon, July 11-14, Barney Bevers of Lakeview announced this week.

Anyone interested in entering should see or write Barney Bevers, Rt. 1, Lakeview, Texas, 79239, or see David Duncan in Memphis.

There will be three divisions: Open, High School, and Grade School. In the open division there will be men and women singles and mixed doubles. If there are enough teams entering the High School mixed doubles, there will be a bracket set up.

First place winners will receive trophies, other places will receive medals.

Entry fees are $1 per event. Deadline is noon, July 10.

By 1980 approximately half the senior citizens in the nation will be veterans or their wives or widows, the Veterans Administration estimates.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS

Representative, 18th

Congressional District

Congress Must Retain Its Powers

Congress is to the government what a board of directors is to a large corporation. Congress guides the actions of our government by passing laws and by determining whether or not they are properly administered. In a similar way, boards of directors set the policies of corporations and check to see that their decisions are executed by management.

In both government and business, policy-makers must be extremely careful lest they delegate to people on the managerial level powers that should have been retained at the top. This, as I pointed out in last week's newsletter, has occurred too often in the Congress with the result that the authority of Congress, the direct voice of the people in their government, has been sapped. Just as stockholders in a corporation would object if the directors they elected shunned their responsibilities by passing too much power to appointed management so American citizens are protesting that Congress has let too much power slip away to bureaucrats who man departments of the government's administrative branch.

Now before the Senate is a bill that, I am convinced, would further strengthen the power of the administrative branch in overseeing the functions and practices of the quasi-judicial regulatory agencies of government. The bill, S. 1664, would establish what some have termed a "super agency." It would have watchdog authority over the efficiency, adequacy and fairness of administrative procedures followed by the regulatory agencies. The Administrative Conference of the United States, as this "super agency" would be called, would be headed by a full-time chairman appointed by the President (with the advice and consent of the Senate) and include an 11-member Council, including agency heads and lawyers, and a larger Assembly consisting of other government officials and citizen specialists.

This is a well-intentioned bill. I applaud its purpose—which is to see that unfair and capricious treatment of citizens is prevented as they deal with these agencies, whose power is in part legislative and in part judicial, and to provide for appeals procedures where none now exist.

I object, however, to the philosophy of government lying behind the proposal—that watchdog authority over these agencies is not properly a function of the Congress, that it belongs in the bureaucracy. It certainly is incumbent upon the departments and agencies to administer the authority given to them in a responsible way, but the ultimate responsibility as to whether or not this is being done rests with Congress. In my view, Congress should set to work to restore to itself authority passed along over the years to the regulatory agencies. Instead of laying down the broad forms of legislation that have characterized past delegations of authority to the administrative branch, Congress should be more specific in enacting policies these agencies are to follow.

In the past few years a number of bills have been introduced in the Congress delegating to government agencies measures of authority which taken singly seem insignificant. Some of these bills have been enacted, some have been defeated but the cumulative effect of those that have passed has been a massive grant of administrative power to the quasi-judicial agencies. In some instances, these grants of power have had the effect of binding the Congress to expenditures not specifically authorized in appropriations bills. In other instances laws have permitted members of the executive branch in these agencies to draft what constitute criminal laws, which then must be enforced by the judicial branch. Under these grants of combined legislative and judicial power, the agency is able to make the rules, the violations of which make the offender subject to penalty by U. S. courts.

I'm in support of every step Congress can take to wrest this sort of authority away from the agencies and return it to where it belongs. By enacting specific legislation delegating less-sweeping administrative authority, placing enforcement of laws in the judicial branch by repealing enforcement powers now held by bureaucrats, by enacting laws to provide for better appeals machinery, by conducting a thorough inquiry into the vast realm of agency-exercised powers—these things would help. Also helpful would be a re-examination by the Congress of its own role in government, a study that might go far to restore the emphasis of Congressional activity to legislative business.

Pamela Lindsey Elected Officer At Girls State

Pamela Jean Lindsey, a citizen of the American Legion Auxiliary Bluebonnet Girls State now in progress in Austin, was elected as city tax assessor in elections held early this week. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lindsey and is being sponsored by the local American Legion.

Girls State was organized as a National Americanism activity in 1937 by the American Legion Auxiliary. Non-partisan and non-political, the purpose of the Girls State program is to provide citizenship training for girls of high school age, to afford them an opportunity to live together as a self-governing group and to inform them of the duties, privileges, rights and responsibilities which they will assume when they become adults.

Climaxing the session will be the selection of two outstanding citizens of 1963, who will be sent to Girls Nation in Washington, D. C., by the American Legion Auxiliary, where the two young representatives will continue their study in the responsibilities of the republic.

"If we continue to disregard and break traffic laws and continue to behave in a careless manner in traffic, then certainly we are not good citizens in the true sense of the word, even though we apparently are living within the letter of every other law."

Delta Kappa Members Attend State Meeting

The Alpha State Convention of Delta Kappa Gamma Society met in San Antonio June 7-9. The theme of the convention was "Progress in Perspective."

Delta Kappa Gamma is an International Society composed of key women teachers throughout the country, with a present membership of over 83,000. Texas has 174 chapters with approximately 10,000 members.

Dr. Dorothy Johnson, Member-at-Large, Administrative Board, presently serving as principal of an elementary school in the District of Columbia, gave the inspiring address, "The Beyond of What We Are," at the dinner honoring the chapter presidents on Friday evening. Mrs. L. C. Sweat, president of Gamma Kappa Chapter, was an honoree in this special event.

Saturday noon the convention celebrated the thirty-fourth birthday of the society with a luncheon. The poem, "A Birthday Wish" and two musical selections composed by Miss Esta McElreath of Gamma Kappa, were used in the birthday ceremony conducted by Mrs. Velma Weaver. Miss McElreath was given special recognition for this contribution.

The principal speaker for the Founder's Dinner Saturday night was Miss Madge Rudd, International Executive Secretary from Austin. She challenged those present to "Spiral Upward Out of Circles," in our rapidly changing world of the space age.

Music for the entire convention was under the direction of Mrs. Velma Weaver, State Chairman of the Committee on Music. Mrs. Weaver was honored with the presentation of the distinguished State Achievement Award, a key guard of a diamond studded, Texas-shaped pin. She gained this award through the recommendations of members of the many chapters of Alpha State, for her untiring efforts in the field of music.

Miss Inez Blankenship of Gamma Kappa served as recorder of the Program and Music Committee, one of ten special interest breakfasts of the convention.

The convention was climaxed on Sunday morning with a Necrology tribute honoring 62 deceased members of Alpha State. Miss Maudie Coffee and Mrs. L. C. Sweat of Wellington, Miss Esta McElreath of Memphis, Mrs. Velma Weaver of Clarendon and Miss Inez Blankenship of Goodnight, Gamma Kappa members, were among the over 800 persons who attended the Alpha State Convention.

Mrs. Sweat and Miss Blankenship sang in the All-State Chorus directed by Mrs. Weaver, State Music Chairman.

Banking
HAS COME A LONG WAY SINCE 1863

In 1863, pen-and-ink records —today, automation.

In 1863, Abraham Lincoln signed into law a bill which has proved indeed meaningful to the Nation... the National Currency Act. It established a national currency; and Federally-chartered banks, to take their place beside the existing state-chartered banks.

If Lincoln had been able to look ahead 100 years and see the far-reaching results, this is what he would have seen:

The U.S. public receiving more than $450 billion per year in personal income; its communities with over 100,000 schools; its citizens owning more than 70 million automobiles. This flourishing state of affairs owes much to the standardization of the currency.

And he would have seen one commercial bank office for every 7,000 persons; 90% of all payments made with bank checks; individual commercial bank savings of about $70 billion; commercial banks having some $130 billion in loans outstanding. A vastly different type of bank building and equipment. Instead of pen-and-ink records—automation. New concepts... new and expanded banking services that keep pace with the needs of a forward-looking nation—all these developed because the dual banking system of 1863 sparked a growing era of competition in the banking field.

The evolution of this picture through years of work and study emphasizes commercial banking's unremitting drive to better its best... to provide the fullest measure of complete banking service.

GENERAL TELEPHONE TOWNS ON THE MOVE

How Community Spirit Built Perryton

Population figures more than double... 30 new industries added... all since 1950! That is the miraculous record of Perryton in the Texas Panhandle wheat growing area.

When oil was discovered in the early 50's, an aggressive, long-range program was launched by the Chamber of Commerce. An 84-acre industrial tract was secured and plotted; its streets were paved and a railroad spur was built.

So successful was this community development that today a second industrial tract has been acquired and plotted. Perryton, former population 4417, is now known as The Oil Center of the Anadarko Basin, with 9400 citizens. It is another reason we say big things are happening in General Telephone towns.

These towns are on the move. Community improvements are under way, local resources are being developed, new businesses, new industries are coming in. If your town seeks additional information about expansion perhaps we can help. Just write our Community Development Department, Box 1001, San Angelo, Texas.
