Coal Miners' Strike Lands Back in Roosevelt's Lap

WLB Orders Cessation Of Negotiations

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—The War Labor Board checked the coal mine walkout back to President Roosevelt today "for such action as he deems appropriate" and told the disputing parties to stop their contract negotiations.

UMW President John L. Lewis and the operator's representatives had just begun on fresh efforts to settle their dispute, which has resulted in half a million miners staying away from work in the war vital industry.

However, said the board unanimously, "any agreement on the issue by the parties while the workers are on strike" and the negotiators are subject to "strike coercion" and will not be "considered or approved."

The miners and the operators, informed of the board's order, went back into joint session immediately without making any comment. They had suspended meeting briefly while waiting for an expected announcement from the board.

The message was addressed to Lewis, Edward R. Burke, president of the Southern Coal Producing Association; Charles O.Neill, chairman of the operator's negotiating committee of the Appalachian joint conference, and Ezra Van Horn, chairman of the joint negotiating committee.

The May 25 directive ordered resumption of collective bargaining on the major issues, such as portal-to-portal pay, the six-day week charges for equipment used by the miners, and certain contract wording.

The order called for a report to the WLB within 10 days and said "the parties shall continue the uninterrupted production of coal under the contract terms and conditions that existed on and prior to March 31, 1943."

Earlier the producers and Lewis had called another conference in Washington with the expressed intention of going at the problem from the beginning. This was decided on after each side rejected the other's compromise offers yesterday when the second 15-day truce expired and 500,000 coal diggers quit work.

Interior Secretary Ickes termed their action a strike against the government. Urging resumption of

Jap Raid on U. S. Forest Flops

PORT ORFORD, Ore., June 2.—(AP) The public learned today of the enemy's fifth futile attack on the west coast, a sneak incendiary raid by a lone airplane more than eight months ago.

Believed launched from a Japanese submarine last September 28, the plane flew over the Oregon coast in early-morning fog so dense a forest service lookout was unable to see the ship although it droned directly by his tower on a mountain near here.

The lookout, Lauren S. Giebner, followed the sound of the motor as it moved northeastward. He heard a blast and saw a flash.

Giebner reported to forest headquarters and watched sharply for the fire. When the fog lifted two hours later, he spotted it in a heavily timbered canyon three miles away.

A crew of fire fighters brought it under control.

This was the second reported incendiary attempt on the forests of this isolated southwestern corner of Oregon. The army previously announced a small plane flew in from the sea near Brookings last September 9 and dropped two bombs.

The army held up Giebner's story of the Port Orford raid for military reasons until Chief Forester Lyle F. Watts, asking additional funds for protection of the forests, disclosed the attack in testimony before a senate appropriations subcommittee in Washington.

Pampa Field Soldier's Heroic Deed Revealed

Mentioned in Monday's nationwide Army War Diary, Corporal Harold Kissel of Salt Lake City, Utah, who was awarded a Purple Heart medal last year, is a member of the 385th band squadron at Pampa Army Air Field. He is now on detached service at the McClosky General Hospital, Temple, Texas, receiving treatment for a sinus ailment.

The war diary, which appears each day in daily bulletins at all army posts, mentions the number of days that have passed since some heroic act was performed by an American soldier. On Monday, it honored Corporal Kissel's feat of bravery which occurred in the early days of the war. It read as follows: "464 DAYS SINCE . . Cpl. Harold Kissel, Randolph soldier, during action near the Philippines, volunteered as gun crew member of vessel carrying supplies for relief of forces; when ship was sunk by Japs, Cpl. Kissel helped put out fires, remove wounded."

Although Kissel was not available yesterday to comment on his feat, buddies in the Pampa Field

Tokyo Admits Losses During Chinese Fight

By The Associated Press

Imperial Tokyo headquarters tacitly admitted a setback today in fierce battles west of Tungting Lake, where Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies have been fighting to defend China's vital "rice bowl" lands and the route to the war-time capital of Chungking.

The Tokyo command, resorting to its familiar propaganda technique of explaining a reverse, said Japanese troops had "successfully completed operations" in the lake region and had killed or wounded 36,300 Chinese and captured 5,923 prisoners against a Japanese loss of 475 killed in action.

The Japanese also said that a "crushing offensive" had been carried out against 120,000 Chungking defense troops in the sector opposite Ichang, main Japanese base on the Yangtze river front, where the Chinese reported yesterday that five Japanese divisions had been thrown into disorderly retreat.

Chinese headquarters today said the Japanese retreat toward Ichang was continuing, while Chinese bombers operating with strong fighter escort blasted enemy supply routes in the Yangtze valley near Ichang.

Chinese dispatches said Gen. Chiang's armies were pressing violent assaults along the whole upper Yangze front and were tightening traps around Japaaese forces in both Hupeh and Hunan provinces.

Estimates of Japanese casualties in the last few days' fighting ran as high as 30,000.

Chinese roops were reported laying siege to a Japanese-held city only 12 miles from Ichang.

Leslie Howard Lost as Nazis Down Airliner

LONDON, June 2 (AP)—A spokesman for the British Overseas Airways said today that a British passenger airliner "disappeared" yesterday en route to England from Lisbon, and reports from the Portuguese capital said the actor, Leslie Howard, was among the 13 passengers.

A Lisbon dispatch reported that the last word heard from the plane was "enemy plane attacking us."

Kenneth Stonehouse, former chief of bureau at Washington for Reuters news agency who was en route to London to take a new assignment, was said to be aboard the aircraft with Mrs. Stonehouse.

The report from Lisbon said the plane with its Dutch crew was shot down in the stormy Bay of Biscay about half way between Lisbon and England and that concern was felt over weather reports which indicated it would have been difficult for the passengers to take to their rubber boats.

A Berlin broadcast, reporting from Lisbon that the plane was missing, said "it was feared it met with an accident."

Earlier, the German communique reported that Nazi reconnaissance planes had shot down three Allied bombers and "one transport" over the Atlantic.

The BOAC spokesman said the plane was carrying 13 passengers and that one of them was named Howard, He added, however, that only the surnames of the passengers were available in London at present.

The Lisbon account said Alfred Chaenwall, a film director, and three women, each accompanied by a child, also were passengers.

The spokesman said the fate of the plane was not known but that "enemy action" was suspected.

He said that a formal statement would be issued later. The plane left Lisbon yesterday morning and was due in England last evening, he said.

Howard had been in Spain recently canvassing the possibility of producing films there.

He also had been lecturing in Spain and Portubal on how films are made. He had been expected to return home soon to supervise personally the final stages of a new film, "The Lamp Still Burns."

Wheat Transport Problem Expected

KANSAS CITY, June 2 (AP)—Where to put the new wheat crop that'll be harvested out in the southwest the next few weeks isn't going to be so much of a problem as how to get it there.

While there's still a lot of old wheat in storage all over Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, the need for space isn't so urgent as last year when farmers used the living room, or empty houses or abandoned filling stations in which to store grain.

But the pinch is expected to come on railway boxcars, now crammed night and day hauling necessary war supplies.

A year ago the Santa Fe had 10,000 cars available in the southwest to move the crop. Today, officials admit, the line has only a few and prospects aren't too bright for many more between now and harvest—only a week or so away.

Last year, with storage space virtually filled at the start of harvest, Kansas produced a huge crop of 206,000,000 bushels. There just wasn't room for it, even with the railroads hauling it away.

This year, with storage space not quite so tight, the Kansas crop is being estimated at around 150,000,000 bushels or less—which will require 50 to 60 million bushels less space.

French Heads Clash Over Appointments

ALGIERS, June 2 (AP)—Gen. Henri Giraud appointed vice admiral Emile Muselier deputy to himself as commander-in-chief and charged him with maintaining order in Algiers and vicinity today in the midst of confusion and strain attending the birth place of the new French governing body.

This appointment followed a strange exchange of letters in which Marcel Peyrouton, who once signed an order for the arrest of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, submitted his double-barreled resignation to De Gaulle and Giraud from his post as governor general in Algeria in response to De Gaulle's demands for a house-cleaning.

The appointment of Muselier, former member of the fighting French hierarchy who later broke with De Gaulle and is now regarded as his bitter opponent, was expected to add to the increasing tension between the French factions which only Monday came together in a new executive committee for the purpose of giving unified direction to the French war effort.

De Gaulle had Muselier under house arrest in London at one time after Muselier had taken the lead in the fighting French occupation of St. Pierre and Miquelon, islands off the Newfoundland coast. He is now the chief policeman of the district in which De Gaulle lives.

Peyroutch, one of the controversial figures of the north African situation who once served Vichy as minister of interior and then as ambassador in Argentina, offered his resignation yesterday both to De Gaulle and Giraud as joint presidents of the executive committee which is to govern liberated Frenchmen and French territory until France is freed.

He asked both to give him back his old rank of captain in the colonial infantry reserve.

He got a double-barreled reply. De Gaulle accepted the resignation promptly and assined him to Syria. Giraud accepted the resignation but asked him to hold on to his job for the time being.

But De Gaulle got the jump on Giraud in making his reply public. He gave it out to foreign correspondents and it was spread throughout the world. Giraud's reply appeared only in the local press.

De Gaulle's announcement was made a little before midnight last night when major Rene De Bois Lambert of De Gaulle's military entourage, and Gaston Palewski, chief of his civil cabinet, summoned the correspondents and gave out the text of the designation letter and De Gaule's reply.

The correspondents went wearily to bed thinking they had covered the story.

When the morning papers appeared, however, they contained the exchange with Giraud—indicating that Giraud still controls the local press.

Both made Feyrouton a captain, but Giraud asked him to stay in the governor-generalcy "until the executive committee is formed." Two members of that body are yet to be named.

COAST GUARD CUTTER BLOWS SUB TO SURFACE

A Nazi U-boat attempting to break into the center of a huge convoy was blown to the surface by depth charges from U. S. Coast Guard Cutter Spencer, which then engaged and sank the sub. Effect of the Spencer's fire is shown in the above close-up of the U-boat taken as the battle raged in the mid-Atlantic. The Nazi standing by the stanchion amidships disappeared a moment after the picture was taken by a Coast Guard photographer. Below, the Spencer picks up survivors. (U. S. Americans Destroy Nazi U-Boat, Capture 40 Members of Crew

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—Destruction of a German submarine and capture of 40 members of her crew by the Coast Guard Cutter Spencer was reported by the navy today.

With depth charges and roaring guns, the cutter sank the submarine in the Atlantic several weeks ago when the raider was detected lurking in the path of a "large and important convoy making for an Allied port."

Completely submerged and with her periscope down, the submarine was located by Soundman Harold V. Anderson, Kewanee, Ill., and the Spencer, commanded by Commander Harold S. Berdine, 41, Staten Island, made two depth charge runs over it.

Efforts by the submarine to get under the convoy in hope that the noise of the cargo ship's screws would interfere with the Spencer's detection devises failed, and the cutter remained on the raider's trail and dropped a third "basket of eggs."

"The worst threat was now over," the navy related. "Not a 'fish' had been fired, nor had a ship been touched. However, the cutter still continued her pursuit. The Spencer made ready to let go with her fourth attack when a lookout shouted:

"'Conning tower on the port quarter!'"

"Gun crews trained their guns instantly on the submarine, and opened a withering, effective fire. At the same time, the Spencer rang full speed and headed for the U-boat prepared to ram.

"As the damaged sub moved slowly ahead through the calm seas, members of her crew took stations and the bridge and returned the fire of the American ships with the light gun mounted there. The Spencer's lifeboats were riddled, a boat davit was nearly cut in two; bridge flag bags, bulkheads and doors were damaged.

"Round after round was pumped into the undersea raider, and the after part of the conning tower was completely torn away. Then, just as the Spencer was on the point of ramming, the fire from the submarine suddenly ceased, and many members of her crew were observed abandoning ship through the conning tower.

"The cutter turned aside and waited, ready to resume the assault; but the battle was over. The U-boat's propellers stopped, she dropped lower in the water, then

Rationing Starts On Canned Milk

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—Rationing of canned milk began today on short notice.

The purpose, according to the Office of Price Administration, is to reduce all non-essential consumption and to conserve limited supplies for infant feeding and for persons who require canned milk in special diets.

Under the rationing, which started at 12:01 a. m., today, evaporated and condensed milk were added to the meats and fat program, but no additional points were allowed. Sixteen points per person per week are allowed for the purchase of meats and fats, and canned milk now must be included in this allowance.

It will "cost" one red point per pound, and OPA estimated infant formulas will require about 7 points a week.

Only 4 Nips Taken Alive By Our Men

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—More than 1,500 Japanese were killed and four were captured during the first 20 days of fighting on Attu Island, the navy reported today, as operations on the formerly enemy-held island continued in a mopping up phase.

A communique said that from the start of the American invasion of Attu May 11 through midnight of May 30 the enemy casualities were so estimated. A navy spokesman, amplifying, said that the estimate was based on an actual count of bodies and that the total number killed might have been 50 or 100 per cent greater.

It would be impossible, for instance, to estimate the number killed by high explosives naval shells or those buried by their comrades under the snow.

The number of enemy soldiers remaining on Attu could not be estimated therefore, even though the Japanese have reported that there were approximately 3,000 of their force on the island to start with, and also reliable estimates here have ranged around 3,000.

The navy communique said that on May 31st on Attu island, mopping up operations by United States army troops against isolated Japanese groups continued. As of midnight May 30th, the Japanese casualties on Attu were estimated as follows: Killed—1,500. Captured—four.

On May 31st, formations of army liberator heavy bombers, Mitchell medium bombers and Warhawk fighters bombed and started Japanese positions at Kiska. Hits were scored on the runway, north head and Gertrude Cove.

This was the first comprehensive report of enemy casualties given out by American sources. A report on one night's operations which was issued by the navy Tuesday said that 400 of the enemy were slain between dusk and dawn of May 29-30. Another earlier war bulletin disclosed that an entire counter-attacking force had been wiped out in one action at dawn on May 29 but no count was given.

The summary communique today was described as covering both of those specific battles and all other operations from the time of the first landing of American forces on Attu on May 11.

Allied warships have swelled the assault on the Mediterranean island of Pantelleria, it was announced today, bombarding the so-called "Italian Gibraltar" twice within 48 hous in what may be the prelude to a landing attack.

Pantelleria lies 45 miles east of Cap Bon, Tunisia, and about half way across the Sicilian Strait toward Sicily.

In Allied hands, the island would serve as a convenient stepping-stone for invasion of either Sicily or the Italian mainland.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said Allied naval forces shelled the island yesterday afternoon and Sunday night, reinforcing the aerial havoc inflicted on the Italian outpost day after day, virtually non-stop, ever since the fall of Tunisia May 12.

Naval salvos fell on the barrage and artillery batteries, Gen. Eisenhower's command said, and although there was some retaliatory fire from the shore in yesterday's daylight attack, the Allies suffered neither damage nor casualties.

Once again, the double-barreled thrust pointed up Allied control of Mediterranean waters without interference by the shore-bound Italian fleet.

The communique said American warplanes also battered at Pantelleria and returned to the assault on Italy's other chief island strongholds of Sicily and Sardinia, hammering

Mexico Reports Gains In Price Battles

MEXICO CITY, June 2 (AP) — Economy Minister Francisco Javier Gaxiola last night reported victory in the first battle of the government against high prices. He said the price index fell from a peak of 192.7 points last month to 172.4 on May 29, as the result of measures taken by the government.

Ceiling price regulations affecting essential food items in Mexico City will be extended in the Republic, Gaxiola said. In the capital, about a dozen grocers and butchers have been arrested for violations.

On the theory that women are not as likely to resort to racketeering as are men, volunteer women anti-profiteering inspectors will be deputized in every neighborhood. As they do their shopping, they will note any ceiling price violations.

Persons reporting hoarders receive one-fourth of the merchandise.

Persons purchasing new tires will be required to turn in their old ones, the minister said. He added that the rubber situation in Mexico is improving, with 113 tons recently received from the United States and four carloads en route.

Baking Bread Hints Worth Remembering

Enriched Flour

From the standpoint of health, it takes three loaves of bread made from plain white flour to equal the food value of one loaf made from "enriched" flour, says Mrs. Julia Kiene, manager of Westinghouse Home Economics Institute. Only white flour is, or needs to be enriched. That means it contains Vitamin B-1, niacin and iron which are indispensable to the health of a nation at war. Enriched bread or flour costs no more and tastes the same. It also bakes the same in case you go in for "home-made health" and are asking yourself that question.

Measuring Flour

Measuring flour for homemade bread used to be anybody's guess. But in recent years, millers have standardized flour, calling it all-purpose. With the result that you can follow your favorite bread recipe without having to make allowance for variations in quality of flour. The important thing, according to Mrs. Julia Kiene, is to sift the flour first, as you would in baking a cake. Otherwise the dough is too stiff and the bread likely to be a failure. Dip sifted flour into measuring cup using a large spoon and then level it off.

Shortening

Take your choice of either softened butter, lard, or vegetable shortening in making bread at home. But do not melt it, warns Mrs. Julia Kiene. Shortening in liquid form retards action of yeast. What's more, as a solid, it is easier to work it into the dough.

Kneading Dough

To knead dough properly, it takes a good work surface, such as a piece of canvas or a smooth table top. Sprinkle lightly with flour. Knead for about five minutes or until all the flour has been thoroughly worked into the dough. After dough has been put into pan for its first rising, grease the top and cover pan with a cloth. If you don't, Westinghouse home economists say, a hard crust will form, and any attempt to work that into the bread will result in a dark streak which spoils the looks and texture of the finished bread.

Some Necessary Precautions

For best results, home breads should rise at a temperature of 32 degrees. In winter, Mrs. Kiene suggests that you'll have to do either one of these things: turn oven on for one minute, then turn it off and let bread rise in the oven; or heat water to 100 degrees, put it in a large pan and set the pan of dough in the water—a double boiler affect, as it were. Plus that, it is always advisable to warm flour in oven before using it.

Proving Period

The so-called "proving" is essential for good home made bread: after bread has risen a second time, cut into desired number of loaves, make into round circles and let stand for 20 minutes. Then if dough isn't sticky and if you can hear it snap, it is the right consistency to mold into loaves, says Mrs. Kiene. Before putting it in the oven, brush pan and top of each loaf with shortening so crust won't dry out.

The Finished Product

When bread comes out of oven, brush top with softened shortening, remove from pan, cool on a wire cake cooler, bottom side down so as not to crush in the top. Store in bread box, but not until it is thoroughly cool.

Swimming Pool Opens Tomorrow

You can go swimming tomorrow at the municipal pool.

For the past week, the date of the opening of the pool for the 1943 season has been the No. 1 question for lots of youngsters just out of school and anxious to revel in the joys of the modern counterpart of the old swimming hole.

Information had been sought for two weeks from city officials on the exact date when the pool would open, but they cast a wary eye at the "fall-spring" weather and wouldn't set a date.

All that was obtained was "after June 1, if the weather is warm by that time."

The city commission, in session yesterday, decided the time had come so swimmers can now have their fling.

The thing swimmers will have to do this year they didn't do last is to provide their own bathing suits and towels.

W. C. deCordova, city manager, said the city just couldn't get enough towels and suits for the demand, from the few sources available, therefore everyone will have to provide his own, instead of renting suits and towels as in the past.

Once a week, at the least, the pool will be drained, oftener if needed.

"We'll make a check of the water daily and if the pool needs draining two or three times or more a week, we'll have it done," Manager deCordova said.

Prices for admission to the pool were listed by the city manager as follows:

Adults, 30 cents; children, of school age, first grade through high school, 20 cents. These prices include federal tax, and apply to one time in the pool.

For groups (minimum number for groups is 10) the price will be $1.65 each, including tax, which entitles the payer to 15 swims.

Swimming lessons will be taught to groups by Dick Duncan, pool life guard, from 9:30 a. m. to noon. Groups wishing to use the pool are asked to talk with A. L. Jones, pool manager, so that hours can be arranged.

Today on the Home Front

By James Marlow and George Zielke

Washington (AP)—Ever hear of the hearing commissioners? If you're a storekeeper, you probably have. There are 12 of them now. The number is expected to grow.

This is their job.

To hear testimony and pass judgment on alleged violations of the office of price administration.

The commissioners either dismiss the charges or impose a penalty if they think the defendants guilty. That penalty is an order suspending their dealings for a certain time in the item or items in question.

Only rationed items are involved in the hearings. The OPA has other controls on plain price violations of unrationed items. But price violations on rationed goods are in the commissioners' province.

The commissioners' activities are almost entirely with dealers, not consumers.

This is how the hearings work:

Aloysius Marblehead is charged with selling four rationed food items coffee, syrup, butter and cooking oil--one cent above ceiling prices.

If the commissioner finds aloysius guilty, he can forbid his dealing in those items for any length of time even for the war's duration.

Aloysius can accept the ruling, or he can appel to the OPA'S acting hearing administrator in Washington, L.H. Harris. If Harris upholds the commissioner's ruling, Aloysius can accept that as final or appeal to a Federal Court.

The 12 commissioners -- Harris says their number will be increased--operate in the eight regional districts set up under the OPA. They get a case this way:

A violation is reported to the OPA Regional Office which sends out an investigator, who reports his fond-attorney for the region.

The attorney can start criminal proceedings before a commissioner. If he decides to move for a suspension, the trial is set, the enforcement attorney prosecutes, the hearing commissioner listens to the evidence. The defendant can be represented by his own Attorney.

These One-Man court--where the Governement is at one and the same time Prosecutor, Judge and Jury--Have come in for some tart criticism.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph says:

"The real payoff to the legal profession is this paragraph in the OPA rules of procedure for the hearings: The rules of evidence prevailing in the courts of Law or Equity shall not be controlling."

Harris defends the set-up, created March 1, by saying the Hearings are not unlike other Governmental hearings conducted by commissioner.

Pampa Soldier's Poem Spurs Sale Of Victory Bonds

A poem by Staff Sgt. Post, supply sergeant of the 454th Base Headquarters and Air Base squadron at the Pampa Arm Air Field, was credited today with having the stimulus for a sale of $27,500. worth of War bonds in less than five minutes at a New Jersey War Bond Rally.

Sgt. Post, a former resident of New York and Los Angeles, received a letter last week from A.W. Herrman, commander of the Free Sons of Israel Post No. 221, Jewish War Veterans of the United States, of 257 West 93rd St., New York explaining how the poem aided in the war bond sale.

"Some months ago," wrote Mr. Herrmann, "your sister Bertha gave me a poem about the purchase of War Bonds, which you had written. This poem was mimeographed and broadcast with several of our circulars, throughout the country."

"It was my pleasure last night," he continued, "to be at a dinner with the National Commander, Ben Kaufman. His wife told me that as a result of your poem, which was read at a board of Trode meeting in Trenton, N.J., $27,500. worth of bonds was sold within five minutes. The sum mentioned is certainly not large' but it followed a very extensive drive which had benn completed the day before."

"So," concluded, "surely great satisfaction should be yours in this participlar instance, and probably a good many more."

The bond-selling poem of sergeant Post's follows:

WILL YOU COME THROUGH

Our Country's life is now at stake,
Let's keep it strong - let us awake,
Act now before it is too late -
Give all you can - CO-OPERATE;

Axis power is might strong-
Twill take our all to right their wrong,
To win this war without delay,
We must help more from day to day.

If Axis did gain victory
We'd lose our rights and liberty.
They'd take the treasures of our land,
Make us but slaves at their command.

Fighting forces of our nation
Count on your co-operation,
They sacrifice much more than you,
They give their lives - SHOW COURAGE TRUE.
Back our boys with all your treasures,
Do your share - give up some pleasures;
They seek your help from ray to ray.
It's for the sake of U. S. A.

Are you a patriotic man?
Have you given all you can?
Don't hoard the cash that you don't need,
Buy bonds instead - A NOBLE CREED;

The bonds you buy will help assure
Make victory much more secure;
Will furnish weapons that we need
To win this war with greater speed.

For best investment you can make
And safest bet that yau can take:
For greatest good that you can do,
BUY WAR BONDS - WILL YOU COME THROUGH?

Navy Lowers Its Physical Requirements

WASHINGTON, June 2 — (AP) — The navy has announced formally that it had reduced its physical requirements for induction of men through selective service.

"Under the joint induction procedures with the army, substantially lowered standards for general service will go into effect," a statement said.

One effect is to make navy standards coincide with those of the army in most respects. Requirements now are generally as follows:

Vision—the navy requires color vision; the army does not. Otherwise vision standards for army and navy for general service are the same.

Height—maximum for the army is 78 inches; for the navy, 76 inches. Minimum for both services is 60 inches. Formery the navy required a 62-inch minimum height.

Venreal disease the navy will accept men with acute, uncomplicated gonorrhea. The navy will not accept men with cardio-vascular, cerebro-spinal, or visceral syphilis, or active syphilis requiring treatment. Men with adequately treated syphilis, other than the types mentioned, are acceptable. Formerly the navy would not accept individuals with veneral disease.

Extrenreal—previous army regulations governing loss or incapacity of extremities, including loss of either thumb or the right index finger or two entire fingers, will apply for both services, except that the navy will not accept men who have lost more than one phalanx of the right index finger, the terminal and middle phalanges of any two fingers on the right hand or entire loss of any finger except the little finger or either hand or the ring finger of the left.

Teeth—the navy will accept inductees without any teeth provided they possess healthy gums correctible by detentures. Heretofore the navy has required sufficient natural teeth or "suitable replacements" to accomplish the biting function satisfactorily.

Literacy—army standards of literacy have been adopted by the navy.

Tokyo Claims Many Sinkings

By Leif Erickson

An advanced South Pacific Base, May 31-(DELAYED)-(AP)—The Japanese apparently are persisting in an attempt to develope a German-style submarine offensive agaist the long allied shipping routes to the South and Southwest Pacific war theaters, informed sources here believe.

The last week the Japanese broadcast their second report within a month on asserted ship sinkings by their underseas raiders in the South Pacific.

The enemy said it had sunk 13 Allied ships, including five transports, between May 5 and May 24. This was called an exaggeration by a spokesman at South Pacific Headquarters.

The spokesman said the enemy report of sinking five transports was false. He acknowledged, however, that some Allied ships were torpedoed by Japanese U-boats in May.

Acknowledgement of the enemy attacks on allied merchant shipping suggested a significant shift by the Japanese in their use of underseas craft. The Niponese previously had concentrated their submarine almost entirely against warships t this sector.

Although the loss of any Americ an Merchantman adds to the seriot Allied shipping problem in the Sout Pacific, the Headquarters spokesma indicated that the enemy is n succeding in developing the U-boa campaign to a scale of strategic importance.

Informed observers believe tha the lull in fleet action since con clushion of the Guadalcanal cam paign has enabled the Japanese t shift their submarine strength.

CLEAN EQUIPMENT GIVES MORE LIGHT

Accumulation of dust and dirt on lighting equipment cuts down the amount of light it can produce per kilowatt hour of electricity. The cleaning of this equipment restores lighting efficiency.

Therefore, regular cleaning of light bulbs and reflections is important if you are to actually receive the light for which you are paying.

AT THE PLANT

Establish a program of periodic cleaning and inspection of all your lighting equipment. Lamps and reflectors should be thoroughly cleaned with soap and warm water. Dry thoroughly.

IN THE HOME

Pay particular attention to your direct-indirect reading lamps. Take off shade and dust it. Remove reflectors and wash in soapy water. Be sure both are thoroughly dry before replacing on lamp.

IN THE OFFICE

Fixtures used for office lighting collect dust. Wash them from time to time. Wipe bulbs clean. You will notice a definite improvement in the light.

Corporate Profits

PUBLICIST consistently critical of business complain that the big war industries are making unconscionable profits out of their contracts. As evidence, they point to earnings statements. We refer these to the annual report of General Motors, which has the biggest volume of war contracts, and the most diversified production line.

Last year General Motors' sales were half a billion dollars higher than in any year except 1941. Yet its net income was smaller than in any year since 1934, except "recession" year of 1938.

But this, it can be argued, is a single corporation, even though an enormous one. All right, let's take the National Industrial Conference Board's study of 495 of the biggest industrial corporations, whose net sales last year aggregated $37,854,000,000, a gain of 23 per cent over 1941 and 110 per cent over 1939.

After all charges, these corporations earned $1,972,000,000 last year, which was 16 per cent under their 1941 net and 21 per cent above 1939's.

RESERVES to care for contingencies, renegotiation of contracts, post-war needs and for other purposes were twice as high last year as in 1941. Reserves for taxes were half again as high. The tax reserve alone took 60 per cent of every taxable dollar of income.

In one sense renegotiation, contingency and post-war reserves might be considered as profits. But that sense would not be realistic.

Renegotiation is necessary because these industries have suddenly been plunged into making items of which neither they nor anybody else has had mass production experience. They figure costs as intelligently as possible. They know that if their price is too low they can do nothing about it; so they charge what seems adequate, with full knowledge that, if efficiency cuts costs below anticipation, the contract will be renegotiated to take away any excessive profit.

EVERY major war producer has had to convert his plant from civilian goods. After the war he must reconvert. This will require millions of dollars, and will take many months during which nothing will be coming in. Only by accumulating post-war reconversion and contingency funds can any important manufacturer re-enter the civilian production field.

Reserves for such purposes are not truly profits, and do not alter the general fact that big industry is making smaller profits today than at any time since it went to war.

Yoo-Hoo

THE famous Yoo-Hoo incident has been pretty well used up now. It failed to win Senator Clark a single adherent when he tried to stop the promotion of Major-General Ben Lear to a lieutenant-generalcy.

How about forgetting it? There must be a limit to the extent to which such an incident should be held against a first-class general at a time when we need experienced fighting talent as much as we do now.

SWORN OPPONENTS OF A SUPER-STATE

(The Chicago Tribune)

Attention has been called in these columns to the certainty that a world government, a super-government, a Union Now or any other such device for subordinating the United States to a higher authority would destroy the Constitution of the United States. The enumerated powers of the federal government would have to be transferred to the new government. The change could not be made by a few amendments of the Constitution and certainly not by a treaty. The whole document, with all that it guarantees of liberty and progress, would have to be junked.

Congress could no longer have the power to make war, raise an army, regulate commerce, legislate concerning patents, bankruptcy, the currency, and so on. All these spheres of authority and all the administrative responsibilities in connection with them that the President bears would be taken away from our federal government and transferred to the higher one. The Constitution would no longer be the supreme law of the land and that would work a revolution in the judicial branch of government.

It is wishful thinking to pretend that effective world government could leave our Constitution as a living force.

Every public official in the United States from the highest to the lowest is sworn to defend the Constitution. Every one of them is therefore sworn to oppose the schemes of the internationalists. The president, upon entering office, takes his solemn oath "to preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States." That is the very essence of his pledge to the people. If he strives for super-government he violates his oath.

These are not idle words. How much they meant to Lincoln is revealed in his first inaugural address when, speaking to those who were threatening armed rebellion, he said:

"You have no oath registered in heaven to destroy the government while I shall have the most solemn one to 'preserve, protect, and defend it.'"

Every congressman takes an oath which is no less specific. He solemnly swears to "support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic" and to "bear true faith and allegiance to the same." He "takes this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion," and he calls on God to witness his promise.

The same oath is taken by every other official of the government, by every officer of the army and navy, and by every naturalized immigrant. The young men who have entered the army at West Point or the navy at Annapolis swear, in addition to "bear true allegiance to the national government" and "to maintain and defend the sovereignty of the United States paramount to any and all allegiance, sovereignty or fealty I may owe to any state, county or country whatsoever." The naturalized immigrant swears, in addition, to "renounce and abjure all allegiance to any foreign state or sovereignty."

Every civil and military official, every legislator, every judge, is sworn to defend the Constitution of the United States. Every one of these men and women is therefore sworn to oppose the imposition of a super-government on the people of the United States.

HOW TO HAVE PERMANENT PEACE

Here is a columnist who is thinking along the same lines I have been thinking. He believes, as I believe, that the practical way of having permanent peace is to obey the commandments.

It was because I believed this so strongly that I recently sponsored a contest, trying to get people to better understand the first and greatest commandment.

Here is how Erich Brandeis expresses his belief in the importance of our coming to obey these commandments:

"Columns and columns are being written about it.

"The wisest men in the allied countries are thinking about it, talking about it, holding meetings, debating, planning, envisioning.

"How to have a permanent peace. How to put an end to wars. That is the great problem and it seems to be extremely difficult to find the answer.

"Well, gentlemen, I'll save you time and money. I'll save you traveling expenses, reams of paper, gallons of ink.

"For I, no expert in economics, politics, statesmanship, psychology or black magic—I, a simple-minded newspaperman—I have the answer.

"And that answer has been there ever since the twentieth chapter of the Book of Exodus in the Old Testament was written.

"For in that chapter are contained the Ten Commandments. If we will but live up to them there can never be another war.

"Each war, so far conducted, has been caused by the breach of one or more of the ten commandments.

"Hitler created strange gods and took the name of the Lord in vain.

"He killed. He bore false witness against his neighbor.

"He coveted his neighbor's house, his servant, his ox, his ass and everything that was his.

"He showed no mercy, he stole, he honored neither father nor mother.

"And now that he and his accomplices have violated the commandments, there will be eye for eye, tooth for tooth, wound for wound, stripe for stripe.

"Don't you see how easy it is?

"Why go to all the trouble of finding a way, when the way is so clear, the road so well marked, the whole thing written out—for centuries, ready to use?

"This is my plan, a plan I learned from my father and mother who had it handed down to them, generation by generation.

"That's all you need to do, you learned statesmen and scientists.

"Utopia is here—Exodus, Chapter XX.

—Erich Brandeis."

STANDING IN LINE

Americans will have to get used to the Russian policy of standing in line in order to get dwindling supplies if we are to have a government where the production is controlled from Washington, we will have to realize that a great part of our energy and time will be taken up standing in line to get a little portion of the reduced production.

One wonders how much time we will have to waste standing in line to realize that we had better go back to the competitive system, which is the life of trade and increases production rather than to have what is called "social security."

It is time we realized that social security means that people must be treated like children instead of like self-reliant, capable individual citizens with courage and self reliance.

"MISSION TO MOSCOW"

(Los Angeles Examiner By Benjamin de Casseres)

If I were asked to name that which would still further widen the breach between Soviet Russia and the United States I should name "Mission to Moscow," a picturization of former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies' book of the same name. In reviewing that book in this column I pointed out, by extracts from the book, how Mr. Davies was performing the feat of carrying water on one shoulder and vodka on the other. But in the picture not only are Stalin and all the Red commissars perched on both Mr. Davies' shoulders but the Kremlin itself in all its questionable glory is perched on his head.

In a word, "Mission to Moscow" is the most complete propaganda film for Russia and her system of industrial state-slavery and military robotism ever done. It certainly will be the rage of all Russia. Stalin, Litvinoff and Kalinin are so mentally prettified that I expected to see them sprout wings. Only those things are shown to us that naive Joseph Davies and cunning Joseph Stalin think the American public should see, we are never taken "on the other side of the railroad tracks" in Russia.

The impression is thrust down our throats that the U.S.S.R. is greater than the U.S.A. Nowhere is America glorified—except by having a "Russian" (Hollywood) worker say that all the machinery in his factory came from America and that American and British engineers have "made over" Russia. The film even has President Roosevelt say that "we have never understood Russia" (and that was after he had threatened Russia with a severance of all relations unless she stopped plotting on Russian soil against our institutions).

The most impressive scene in this pro-Soviet picture aside from the fine acting of Walter Huston is the treason "Trials," or "Confessions," that startled the world. Here the old Bolsheviks throw the whole blame on a man who is dead and who, therefore, cannot defend himself—Leon Trotsky. This Hollywood-Davies version of the "Trial" still further convinces me that it was a fraud. Radek, Bukharin and the others were either forced to make these "Confessions" under threats of torturing their families or else they were motivated by that form of Muscovite exhibitionistic patriotism that consents readily to the sacrifice of their lives at the shooting-wall to promote the "cause" of Communism.

"Mission to Moscow" is the most inexcusable "historical" imposition ever saddled on us. Coming, too, when Soviet Russia is ordering Poland around and openly announcing her plans to take possession of the Baltic States and parts of Poland and Finland, it will leave a nasty taste in the mouths of all good Americans.

For anybody who may want but little here below, the place to go for it is before a ration board.—Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

"THE WINNAH!"

The National Whirligig

News Behind The News

BOSSES — President Roosevelt's various attempts to placate powerful voting groups convince the leading politicos of both Parties that he intends to seek re-election. His aides have set out deliberately to win back or to hold the numerically strong elements which have been responsible for his three triumphs.

His principal support in the past came from the jobless on WPA and PWA, farmers, workers, liberals, small businessmen and the great city machines as represented by Mayors Frank Hague and Ed Kelly. The erstwhile unemployed may not be so sympathetic in 1944 because most of them are on pay rolls and undoubtedly feel under no obligation to Washington. Many of them have moved away from home, and in certain contests a check-up sugests that they have not bothered to register. Their attitude worries Harry Hopkins and David K. Niles, who are managing F. D. R's campaign from their White House offices.

The agriculturalists are definitely off the reservation, according to 1940 and 142 returns and private polls. Dopsters think i textremely doubtful whether Mr. Roosevelt will carry any of the agarian states. The "little fellows" in trade, irked by price fixing, rationing and shortages, will probably rally to the G. O. P. ticket with sizable majorities. Left-wing oracles are critical of the Administration but they will presumably tag along in preference to following a conservative opponent.

The two blocs on which New Deal planners count most hopefully are organized labor and the ballot-delivering machines in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and New Jersey. With their backing, and even a fair split among other units, the Chief Executive's advisers estimate that he can triumph comfortably. That is why F. D. R. opposes a consolidated union movement dominated by such antis as John L. Lewis and William L. Hutcheson, and why he has treated the municipal bosses so generously.

BALLOTS—The most distinguished casualty in the program to woo rural voters will be Henry A. Wallace, who was chosen as F. D. R.'s 1940 running mate because of his supposed appeal to the growers. It is virtually certain that he will be dropped from the ticket and perhaps given a diplomatic post, possibly in Mexico City.

Prospective candidates for the Number Two place are Speaker Sam Rayburn, Food Administrator Chester C. Davis and Marvin Jones of Texas. Although the man from Garner's state headed the House Committee on Agriculture when it rushed through the original AAA plan, he is recognized as a solid citizen and has many friends in the agrarian bloc.

Mr. Davis's lack of sympathy with the New Deal's general farm policy was demonstrated when he served in the Department of Agriculture. He is responsible for the ousting of such radicals as Rexford Guy Tugwell and Jerome Frank. As a former member of the Federal Reserve Board and now on leave from his position as president of a St. Louis bank, he could be ballyhoed as a financier as well as a man from the great open spaces.

The speaker has not been closely identified with barnyard problems, but he is extremely popular and has a personality expected to make a hit with the electorate beyond the Mississippi and south of the Mason and Dixon's line.

The name of the Vice Presidential nominee will be particularly important next year because it is almost certain that Mr. Roosevelt will not conduct an active contest. He will take the stand that, as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, he cannot spare the time. In fact, emphasis on his military role will be banked on to bring in the ballots.

CRITICS—The Government's almost complete control of industry, agriculture, finance and business in general, including corner stores, through its determination of coupon values and prices, has already had a premonitory effect on the leaders of the nation. It has provided an illuminating preview of the conditions which will exist if the trend toward regimentation continues after the war.

Prominent spokesmen, with only a few exceptions, are afraid to voice their complaints openly. Time and again they have declined to appear before Congressional committees or other forums where their views would be publicized. The heads of one of the country's greatest industries had to be dragooned before a Senate body that was anxious to expose grievances which they had expressed privately.

With Washington agencies buying the products of almost every corporation these days, manufacturers, farmers and bankers are at the mercy of officials here. And some report specific instances in which critics were made to suffer because of their boldness in speaking out or even questioning a decision behind closed doors.

SPECTRUM—The New Deal has run out of colors as well as alphabetical symbols in the vast expansion of Federal controls. When Joel Dean, an OPA official, explained a new plan for fuel rationing to groups of oil dealers a few days ago, they asked him whether the new coupon book would have differently tinted tickets for gasoline and kerosene.

"No," replied the man from Washington, "they will be the same for both commodities. At OPA we have used up all the colors in the spectrum."

Mine Strike Fourth During Present War

Pittsburgh, June 2 (AP)—The importance of coal--vital segment of the steel industry--to the nation's war effort has been brought into sharp focus by work stoppages in the mines four times in the World War II period.

In the fall of 1941, when American industries were beginning to swing into high gear in manufacturing the tools of defense, 400,000 Bituminus Miners walked out in a wage controversy. The strike lasted one week. In that time stockpiles of coal owned by steel companies ran low. Cutailment of operations was necessary.

A few weeks later 53,000 miners employed in captive mines of the steel industry struck, seeking union recognition. About 200,000 miners employed in commercial pits struck in sympathy. Again they were only a few days, but in that time coal stocks were virtually depleted and one steel firm alone was forced to bank 11 furnaces.

The last strike, early in May, lasted but two days in most mines and apparently caused no drop in steel production. The Department of Interior estimated an output of 3,000,000 tons of coal was lost.

This weeks kalkout was the fourth.

On Commercial Flying in Future

By PETER EDSON
Pampa News Washington Correspondent

REALISTIC and free-from-flights of-fancy appraisal of post-war commercial aviation and commercial planes has just been made by Edward Warner, vice chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, in the form of a three-day lecture delivered before the Royal Aeronautical Society in London.

Much of the text of the lectures, as released in Washington, is too deep dish for anyone but an airplane designer to understand. But in between the complex engineering formulae there are whole pages of good flying horse sense which anyone can understand, and these simply stated conclusions, backed up by practical flying experience and mathematics, perform the timely and useful service of bringing back to earth all this uninformed, theoretical and fantastic discussion of post-war flying.

Primarily, it strips down a lot of the fantastic talk of 1000-passenger giant skyliners skyrocketing through the stratosphere at 1000 miles an hour, with the dizzy passenger taking cocktails in California, night cap in Cairo, and pick-me-up in Chicago next morning. This is hard, pay-load, flying-for-profit commerce that Mr. Warner is talking about, and as such it's worth paying attention to.

Mr. Warner first puts this matter of aircraft size in its proper perspective. Most passengers if given a free choice, would prefer 100-passenger planes to 25-passenger planes. But the greater the size the less flexible the service.

MERITS OF SMALL AIRCRAFT

There is a place for the highly flexible, five-passenger family car, and small aircraft will definitely have their places, too. "Non-stop from everywhere to everywhere at 10 minute intervals' 'is the patron's ideal, but that service can be given better with small aircraft than with large. Four 25-passenger planes can give 100 passengers non-stop service to four points, whereas one 100-passenger plane is reduced to being a four-stop local.

Projecting these findings into the post-war period, Mr. Warner foresees as a typical traffic demand, the departure from New York of some 80 planes in an evening rush hour, flying to 40 different cities. Fifteen of those departures might be 40-passenger air craft, the remainder being some 10-passenger planes, but largely 20-passenger planes of the size in common commercial use today. If this conclusion is correct, it spikes the idea that planes like the Douglas DC-2 and 3 are obsolete.

Popular misconceptions about future lengths of flight and speeds are also put in their true economic light by Mr. Warner. The longer the non-stop flight, the greater the cost. A 600-mile flight can be made at an operating cost of 22 per ton mile, whereas a 2000-mile flight costs 30 cents per ton mile and a 3500-mile flight costs 75 cents per ton mile, largely because of the extra fuel load that must be carried.

SPEED, ALTITUDE MODERATE

The same thing applies to speed. The most economical air speed at moderate altitudes is likely to remain below 180 miles per hour—160 against a 40-mile wind, 190 against an 80-mile wind. The question is how much the public is willing to pay for increased speed. Mr. Warner estimates the limits at $10 per hour saved. Thus if a four hour flight from Chicago to New York costs $40, reducing the time to two hous would mean that the flight would have to cost $60. And how many people would pay that difference?

High altitude flying in sealed pressure cabins is another innovation on which too much hope may have been placed, if economy of operation is to be considered. It will increase weight of the plane by 4 per cent and increase cost of maintaning by 5 per cent. An extra 15 minutes of time must be allowed to climb from 10,000 to 30,000 feet.

If these conclusions of Mr. Warner's don't add up to your visionary or revolutionary expectations about the future of flying, they at least have the merit of making sense.

Today's War Analysis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Writer

We perhaps too often think of Uncle Sam's fighting-machine solely in terms of the men who are on actual combat service in the army. The navy and the air-force.

That probably is natural, for they are the ones who risk their lives on the firing line in defense of their country. Still they're only part of the machine.

Other elements of the machine have to equip and maintain the fighting men or the battle front will collapse.

A thousand and one industries fabricate the armaments; farmers produce food; various units transport these essentials to the theater of war by land and sea and air, and still another goes down into the dark caverns of the earth and produces—with arduous labor and great danger—the coal without which much war manufacturing must cease and transport must be disrupted.

Failure of any one of these units may mean stoppage of the whole machine. It may mean defeat!

It would be a damnable tragedy if any quarrel should interfere with essential war production at this critical moment. That's irrespective of the merits of the argument on either side of a controversy.

A general and his staff can't quit because of difficulties with the troops. And the men in the ranks throw down their guns because they don't like the orders of the commander.

In moment of national peril every man, woman and child is in the service of the country.

Stoppage of a single unit for even a few days may react disastrously on the battle front.

General Harold H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, declared yesterday at West Point that the Allies will end the war "and end it soon" by bombing. By ending it quicker "we will cut down the casualties."

Delay in essential production might change the course of the war. It might easily protract the European upheaval, with the consequent delay in undertaking major operations against Japan.

Apart from everything else, this means more casualties among our boys. Every minute counts. Thousands of men can die in the last thirty minutes before the cease fire is given. Even the final sixty seconds take their toll. They did in the last war and will in this.

Bill Cox Now Biggest Trader

CHICAGO, June 2 (AP)—The biggest trader in baseball today? It's young Bill Cox, new owner of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Since purchasing the Phils less than four months ago, the wealthy 33-year-old lumberman has added 12 players, parted with four and disposed of some of his ready cash — all probably behind-the-scenes handiwork of veteran Bucky Harris, new field generalissimo of the Phils and a "boy wonder" in his own time.

Cox's only counterpart today is Branch Rickey, ex-St. Louis Card and present Brooklyn boss. In their one face off, Young Cox walked off with four Dodgers without giving up a player at a time when Master Swapper Rickey had eyes on several Phillies.

And yesterday in a straight swap of outfielders with the St. Louis Cards he obtained three players—Coaker Triplett, Buster Adams and Dain Clay, (who will report from the Cards' Rochester farm) — for his Danny Litwhiler, a hitter whose clouting has fallen off recently, and Earl Naylor.

Willkie May Be Candidate In Spite of Self

OBERLIN, O., June 2. — (AP) — Wendell L. Willkie told a press conference here he hadn's decided whether to enter Ohio's Republican presidential primary, and declared he might get the 1944 G.O.P. nomination "in spite of myself."

Asked whether he had to enter the race for Ohio delegates, Willkie responded:

"I haven't decided whether I will be a candidate and therefore I cannot answer that question."

He went on to relate "Ham Fish is against me, Gerald L. K. Smith is against me, and I understand Landon is against me. If this keeps up, I may be nominated in spite of myself."

After reporters had filed out, Willkie reopened the door and volunteered: "Say, add Col. McCormick of the Chicago Tribune to that list."

The 1940 Republican presidential candidate came to Oberlin to receive a degree of doctor of laws, and stayed to address an alumni luncheon.

In an interview with the Cleveland News, Willkie declared "the Republician party has no chance of electing its man in 1944 unless its platform and its candidate both recognize that the countries of the world are interdependent and the Unted States must play its full part in bringing about cooperation between all nations and also its full part in the preservation of peace and economic stability."

He gave the News this analysis of the 1944 election:

"In spite of all the talk you hear to the contrary, President Roosevelt still holds the solid south.

"Any Republican candidate can be expected to carry the midwestern agricultural states which have no large metropolitan centers.

"The election will be decided in Ohio, Michigan and the eastern states, and possibly by the Pacific coast states."

Cards Climb Within Half Game of Lead

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National League is expected to have a stupendous scramble for the Pennant every fall as a matter of course, but this year the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals are staging a spring show that may very well dwarf anything that can happen later.

Usually at this early date there are several teams that must be regarded as pennant possibilities and skirmishes among the leaders are considered as rehearsals for the main event. This generally could be counted upon to start when the first nip of Autumn in the air caused the players' wives to start looking at fur coats to be paid for out of world series proceeds.

The script has been changed this year, though. The Dodgers and Cardinals know they are the only two teams in the League with any reasonable chance of winning and they are counting the games they play against each other this spring just as crucial as the ones that will come at the close of the campaign.

After dividing a four-game series at Brooklyn last month and a doubleheader in St. Louis Monday, they waded into each other again yesterday like their lives depended on the outcome and at the end of 12 innings of almost unbelieveable baseball the raging Redbirds had an 11-9 victory and were within half of a game of first place.

The two teams made 35 hits, 20 by St. Louis and 15 by Brooklyn, paraded a total of nine pitchers to the mound, and passed the lead back and fourth like a hot tip on the second front.

Finally it was a two-run homer by Harry (Little Dixie) Walker, his first of the season, that decided the game.

But it was a miraculous fielding play by shortstop Marion Martin that won for the Cards as much as Walker's wallop. In the top half of the twelfth the Dodgers loaded the bases with one out and pinch-hitter Dee Moore smashed Harry Brecheen's first pitch to Marion's left. The tall shortstop made a dive and actually stabbed the ball after it had hopped past him. He made a double play out of it. The loss was charged to Rube Melton.

The two rivals are ticketed for the final game of the series tonight and on the result will depend whether the Dodgers or the Cardinals are in first place tomorrow.

Fittsburgh beat the Boston Braves 5-4 in 14 innings and the Cincinnati Reds stopped the New York Giants 3-1 to set up a triple tie for third place between the Reds. Braves and Pirates.

Pittsburgh's victory came as Huck Geary stole home with the bases loaded and one out in the 14th. The Reds won on a five-hit pitching performance by Ray Starr.

The Philadelphia Phillies pounced on the last place Chicago Cubs for their second triumph in three games 7-2 with old Si Johnson pitching seven-hit ball. Afterward the Phillies announced a deal that sent two regular outfields, Dan Litwhiler and Earl Naylor, to the Cardinals for Buster Adams, Coacker Triplett and Dain Clay.

Action in the American League was limited to two night games in which Washington whipped the Cleveland Idians 3-2 in ten innings and the Detroit Tigers came from behind to beat the Philadelphia Athletics 5-3, ending a seven-game winning streak for Jesse Flores.

The Senators' success was made possible by Ellis Clary's run-producing single in the tenth and moved them within a game of the first place New York Yankees. Pinky Higgins' eighth-inning homer was the decisive blow in Detroit's victory.

Nehf, McGraw's World Series Ace Checked Nerves in the Clubhouse

John McGraw gave Art Nehf the tough assignments.

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

Arthur Nehf was far above the average in intelligence and one of the more articulate ball players. The World Series pitcher of the Golden Days of John McGraw and the Giants was a keen student of the game, had many theories, put them into practice.

Art Nehf was on the small side, stood no more than 5 feet 9 or so, weighed 175 pounds, but was so compactly built that he appeared smaller. They called him Little Arthur while he toiled for the club representing his native Terre Haute, and he figures the appellation retarded his progress. Scouts and major league owners and managers prefer big pitchers.

Nehf, one southpaw who was never called Lefty, got 125 per cent out of what he possessed and he had plenty. A curve that made him a typical McGraw pitcher caused his fast ball to be overlooked to some extent. He had a change of pace.

Nehf, a handsome chap as graceful as George Sisler, paid great attention to details, never overlooked a bet. A more skillful fielding pitcher never came down the pike. He was a rousing left-hand hitter.

If Nehf had nerves, he checked them in the clubhouse. He was as cool as a man enjoying his favorite dessert, topping off a home-cooked meal.

That was not the least reason why McGraw paid the Boston Braves $55,000 for Nehf in 1919. McGraw bought the Hoosier for tougher assignments, and he rarely failed him.

Opposing the more formidable pitchers of the Pirates, Cubs, Cardinals, Reds and Dodgers, who had to be beaten off, Nehf won 21 games in '20 and then helped the Polo Grounders to four consecutive pennants and two world championships.

Nehf was particularly effective against Brooklyn, beating the Dodgers a half dozen times in '24, when they finished only a game and a half behind the Giants.

He bagged 20 games in '21, 19 in '22, while his totals were impressive over only a comparatively short length of time, rivals were not precisely crazy about seeing Nehf right up to the end.

IN 10 WORLD SERIES GAMES

Nehf participated in 10 World Series games, was credited with winning four and losing the same number.

He was returned the winner, 1-0, in two games in the big fall production, beating the Yankees by that score in the clincher of '21 and repeating against the same club in the '23 edition. Prior to his polishing off of the Yanks in '21, the Giants got exactly one run for him to two starts—against Carl Mays and Waite Hoyt.

The best the Yanks could do in '22 was obtain a tie before Nehf again finished them by repelling Joe Bush, 5-3.

Nehf shaded Walter Johnson and Washington, 4-3, in 12 innings in the opener of '24, but lost the deciding game of that set—to Tom Zachary, 2-1—as well as the one of the previous autumn—to Herb Pennock, 6-4.

It is noteworthy, however, that Nehf was in there in the clutch for John McGraw right down to the last pitch.

Nehf remained with McGraw until stricken with neuritis in '26, wound up his career with the Reds and Cubs.

MANY ACCOMPLISHMENTS

When illness forced him out of baseball and to Phoenix, where he built a beautiful home for his wife and three children, Nehf met with additional success in the hotel and insurance business. His health restored, he keeps in contact with old cronies.

Nehf was — and is — a man of many accomplishments. He is a fine pipe organist, has a pleasing voice. He is a clever public speaker, spins a yarn better than he knows. He will walk out on an off-color story. He is an admirer of Abraham Lincoln, Bill Nye and Chauncey Depew.

Arthur Nehf, Jr., a navy flyer who leaned toward football at Arizona, brought down six Japanese planes in two engagements in the South Pacific, which is par for the course—and then some.

Art Nehf, Jr., shoots like his old man pitched.

Late Herbie Smith's Little Bud Carries on For Him at A. & M.

COLLEGE STATION, June 2 (AP)—The youngster walked into Coach Homer Norton's office at Texas A. and M. college and went directly to a framed picture of "The Nation's No. 1 Football Team."

"I'd like a shot at wearing jersey No. 29, Mr. Norton," he said.

"That's Herbie Smith's jersey son, and you'll have a lot of football to play to earn it," said the headman of Aggieland sports.

"I'm Herbie Smith's little brother, Mr. Norton," the youngster answered, "and I know I've got a lot of football to play, and a lot of flying to do. But you see, sir, I promised Herb."

And that's how the Aggie coach met Charles Smith of San Angelo, younger brother of A. and M.'s immortal mighty mite.

Lieut. Herbert E. Smith was killed last year on the eve of A. and M.'s first game of the season. Herb crashed his army plane into a telephone pole rather than attempt a forced landing in a street filled with children at Allentown, Pa.

The Aggies didn't dedicate the next day's game to Herbie. They were too shocked and saddened to go in for heroics. They took a drubbing from Louisiana State but were thinking of Herbie Smith who caught a fourth-quarter pass in the Sugar Bowl game against Tulane on Jan. 1, 1940, carried the ball a few yards, then when two Tulane players blocked his path lateraled to John Kimbrough.

But the 146-pound Herbie didn't stop there. He threw a terrific block into the two Greenies and cleared the way to pay dirt for Big John. The touchdown tied the score and Cotton Price added the point to give the Aggies a 14-13 victory.

After leaving the athletic office, Charley Smith went down and signed up for aeronautical engineering. He is only 17, thus is assured one football season at Aggieland.

"I'll stay here and learn as much as I can about airplanes and flying, then I'll go in the air corps," he said. "I promised Herb."

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Comeback record: . . Ernie Lanigan, the International League's historian, figures this probably still sands as record baseball comeback . . . Back in 1888 George Haddock, one-time battery partner of Connie Mack, lost 24 straight games for the Troy, N. Y., club. When the Chicago White Sox blew into Philadelphia recently, the clubhouse attendant chalked the name "Frisch" on Jimmy Dykes' locker. Jimmy promptly exploded. "Take that off of there," he bellowed. County Buys $6000 More in War Bonds

Gray county's total purchase of bonds was increased to a $42,400 when the county commisioners at their regular meeting yesterday authorized County Treasurer W. E. James to buy $6,000 worth of Series G. bonds.

The purchase is credited to the permanent school fund of the county. Interest on this fund is distributed annually to Gray county school districts while the principal remains intact as a permanent trust fund.

Approval of the regular monthly bills and the order noting the payment of $6,391.32 by Bert Self representing interest and principal owed the county on 1,735 acres of Gray county school land located in Gaines county, was the only other business of the commission meeting.

Curfew Law Urged For Juveniles Here

Employment of a juvenile officer and enactment of a curfew law was recommended by a committee, composed of R. B. Saxe and the Rev. Robert Boshen, when the two appeared yesterday before the city commission at its regular meeting.

The proposal is a follow-up of a meeting held Friday night at the chamber of commerce room, attended by representatives of civic clubs when the increase in juvenile delinquency in Pampa was discussed.

Saxe is president of the Pampa Kiwanis club and the Reverend Boshen, pastor of the Presbyterian church, is chairman of the club's youth service committee.

The commission was informed that a Pampa Recreational council had been formed as a means of aiding in halting delinquency.

No action was taken by the commission on the proposal to employ a juvenile officer and to enact a curfew law.

They Call It Pacific

by CLARK LEE

"They've Blasted Hell Out of Pearl Harbor!"

Chapter 3

TWO days before the Coolidge departed a telegram came for me. Before opening it I knew what it was. It said: "Remain Manila until further orders stop regards kenper." Kenper is Kent Cooper, general manager of The Associated Press.

The telegram was disappointing; but it was no great surprise. I had felt guilty about planning to leave the Orient at a time when tension was growing so great that something had to snap soon.

I had been in the Orient three years but this was my first visit to the Philippines, and I was anxious to determine how the attitude of Americans toward the Filipinos contrasted with that of the Britons in Hong Kong and Shanghai toward the Chinese. My first experience was not reassuring.

The night before the Coolidge sailed, a small group of us went to the modern chromium, steel, and glass Jai Alai building and afterwards stopped in at the Manila Hotel taproom for a nightcap. The only other customer was an American woman who had taken about fourteen whiskies beyond her limit.

AFTER 2 A.M., the legal closing time, she demanded another drink. A sergeant of the Philippine Constabulary, who was assigned to the bar to see that the law was obeyed, told her politely that the boys were not allowed to serve her.

She turned on him in blazing fury and poured forth insult after insult. The words were unprintable, but the general tenor was: "We Americans are the ruling race here. You Filipinos are dirt." She struck the sergeant in the face with her clenched fist, and tried to tear the badge from his uniform blouse. We could see him fighting to control himself, and he did. Finally the waiters took the woman to her room.

Roberto Mujica Lainez shook his head sadly. "And you have been telling me, my amigo, that the Chinese in Hong Kong and the natives in Malaya and Burma will not fight for the British when war comes, because the British have mistreated them and have offered them nothing. Now you are aware why Argentina says 'No' when the United States asks for naval bases."

I didn't answer, except to walk over and ask the constabulary-man his name. He told me he was Sergeant Hilario Francisco. I shook hands with him and congratulated him on the way he had conducted himself.

When I walked back Roberto said. "Well, maybe that was an isolated incident and most Americans feel the way you do. I know your country has given the Filipinos schools and hospitals and improved their economic status. Maybe they will be loyal to you and fight for you after all."

NEXT day from my room in the Manila Hotel I watched the Coolidge sail out of the harbor with the tropical afternoon sun shining brightly on the red, white, and blue insignia painted on the sides and funnel of the ship. While the Coolidge grew smaller and smaller in the distances of the bay and finally passed out of sight around Corregidor, I read the headlines in the evening newspapers:

TOJO DECLARES JAPAN "ONE BALL OF FIERY RESOLUTION" AGAINST DEMOCRACIES
U.S. ADMIRAL SAYS NAVY CAN SINK JAP FLEET IN THREE WEEKS
HULL-KURUSU NEGOTIATIONS STILL DEADLOCKED

If there was any hope of avoiding war between the United States and Japan it wasn't evident in the headlines. The Philippines would obviously be one of Japan's first targets, and I set out to learn how well the islands were defended.

A NUMBER of correspondents had been in the Philippines for varying lengths of time and with them I discussed the vulnerability of the islands. The Coolidge had just brought in several thousand American soldiers—its second such trip—and the consensus was that "there are some three divisions of American troops here, about sixty thousand men."

"And what are the Philippine forces?" I asked.

"The Filipino Scouts, who are soldiers of the regular American Army under American officers, probably number ten thousand to fifteen thousand. They are professional soldiers and first-class ones, the best riflemen in the whole U. S. Army, for example. In addition there are some fifty or sixty thousand in the Philippine Army, which consists of youngsters just recently called into service and now being trained."

"How about our air force?"

"There must be five hundred planes, pursuits, and heavy bombers. The Navy has a lot of PBY patrol bombers."

"What else is there in the Navy?"

"Admiral Hart has about thirty-six submarines, of which half are new and the others old 'S' boats. He has about the same number of destroyers and one heavy cruiser, the Houston, and a light cruiser, the Marblehead. And those motor torpedo boats tied up outside the Manila Hotel, those black-hulled babies with four torpedo tubes and .50-caliber machine guns.

"MANILA BAY is mined and no enemy ships can ever get in there under the guns of Corregidor and the other forts guarding the entrance to the bay. Corregidor, itself, of course is impregnable."

Our war strategy, as we worked it out, was for the heavy bombers to attack Formosa and Hainan Island and mess up the enemy transports before they reached Luzon. Admiral Hart's patrol planes would spot the enemy ships, and the subs and destroyers and cruisers would tear into them. If any survived to reach the islands, American forces would mop them up on the beaches and chase them back into the sea. Then the U.S. Fleet would come out and close in behind the Japs in Indo-China, Malaya, and the Dutch East Indies—if they had dared to go that far. There were plenty of planes in Singapore, we thought, and the Dutch had a strong force of American airplanes and a small but capable navy.

With Ray Cronin and Russell Brines I visited various military establishments around Manila. We saw P-40's landing and taking off at Nichols Field and talked to some of the pilots. They told us it was a red-hot airplane with plenty of guns and plenty of speed, but was a little heavy to handle. Being Americans, we agreed that it was undoubtedly the best pursuit ship in the world, certainly better than anything the Japs could hope to have. The defense picture in the Philippines appeared reassuring.

A few days later, making his first public appearance in months, President Quezon told students gathered on the campus of the University of the Philippines, "Bombs may be falling on this campus soon." Some of the students laughed, and Quezon raised his arms over his head and shouted into the microphone, "It can happen, I tell you."

On December 4 we got definite news that Japan was on the march.

AT THE same time most of the warships of the Asiatic Fleet slipped out of the harbor and we knew they were out scouting for signs of a Japanese invasion force headed toward the Philippines.

The next day, December 5, our New York headquarters advised us to inform our staff correspondents throughout the Far East: "Washington says situation critical." As a result of a similar warning, Allied defense forces throughout the Far East were put on the alert.

The following morning General MacArthur and Admiral Hart held separate conferences with local reporters and correspondents. The military commanders conveyed to the newsmen the import of messages from Washington indicating that war was imminent. General MacArthur hoped the attack would not come until after January 1. Both the general and admiral said they were prepared, however, and would fight with all the forces at their command. Hart had sent his ships to sea to scout, and he was optimistic about the striking power of his subs. Sunday night, which was December 7 in Manila but December 6 back in Pearl Harbor, a group of us sat over cool drinks in the spacious, palm-lined lobby of the Manila Hotel. We took a poll of those around the table and found that all but one of us thought war was very close.

On Monday morning December 8, at 2 A.M., Ray Cronin telephoned. "The Japs have blasted hell out of Pearl Harbor."

band squadron were able to shed a little light on his heroic act, about which he very rarely spoke.

Stationed in Australia at the time of the crisis on Bataan, Kissel volunteered to man a machine gun on a ship carrying medical aid and supplies to beleaguered Corrigidor. Attacked by Jap torpedo bombers off the Philippines, his ship was hit and Kissel's gun was put out of commission. He repaired it, but it was hit again, and this time it was unable to be repaired.

Fires soon broke out on the ship, so Kissel helped fight the flames and gave aid to injured crew members. After abandoning ship and seeing that wounded crew members were taken care of, Kissel got into a life boat himself and was later rescued at sea. Details of the actual rescue were lacking, his buddies said, for the corporal seldom talked of his feat. However, it was recognized by army officials as an act of merit and he was awarded the Purple Heart medal some time ago.

He is expected to return to Pampa upon his release from the hospital at Temple.

rapidly plummeted down.

"Circling, the Spencer picked up more than 40 submarine crew members who were floating in the water, supported by rafts and life belts. Locating the U-boat's survivors was not difficult; some were on rafts, the others adrift, but all of them safely supported by their escape lungs which were used as life belts; nevertheless, as they awaited rescue, they acted in a very hysterical manner, shouting and waving arms so frantically that no doubt was left as to their existence and location. No doubt the depth charges and heavy gunfire had unnerved them; several were still hysterical on coming aboard. All prisoners were impressed by the deadliness of the depth charges. Several threw up their hands and exclaimed, 'Wasserbombs; terrible, terrible!'"

And, the navy added, now the men of the Spencer's crew can shave — "they had sworn not to shave until their ship had a positive submarine sinking to her credit."

King Observes Birthday Late

LONDON, June 2. — (AP) — King George VI celebrated his "official" 47th birthday today nearly six months after the actual date — which is Dec. 14—but there was none of the gaiety customary in peacetime and the king worked as usual on state business.

The anniversary is observed in June instead of December because the weather is more suitable for traditional ceremony of "trooping the colors" and other celebrations.

work, he declared Lewis could not escape responsibility for the stoppage.

Lewis said the government appeal to get the mines going again was a matter "to be given consideration."

Ickes estimated that only 49 days supply of coal lies above ground. A spokesman for U. S. Steel at Pittsburgh said production would be "very much curtailed in three or four days."

Other steel men reckoned that many mills would have to cut their output by 25 percent in the first week of the coal shutdown, and drop 50 per cent more if the deadlock continues another week.

The secretary promptly issued an order barring rail deliveries to consumers who have more than a 10-day supply of soft coal or five-day supply of anthracite on hand.

A nationwide dim-out was suggested by War Production Board officials as a means of conserving the 108 days supply of soft coal held by the utility companies.

Te Office of Defense Transportation held out another stop-gap measure as a possibility—a ban on non-essential rail travel and an arbitrary 25 per cent cut in train mileage.
