MISD takes 1st step toward bond election

■ Saving time, money motivates board to ask consultant to look into details of holding future bond election for renovation of 17 schools.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

An aging film-projector screen at a Lamar Elementary School classroom fell on teacher Blake Hightower last year and broke his arm. Other Lamar teachers have complained of leaking and deteriorating ceilings.

Hightower's misfortune may be an extreme example of safety hazards some of the older school buildings present. But 17 campuses are scheduled for renovations to get their buildings up to par with some of the newer schools in the Midland Independent School district.

Midland school board trustees voted Tuesday night to ask a financial consultant to look into the logistics of a bond election — estimated to be in the $32 million range — to renovate the 17 buildings.

"This is not saying we are going to have a bond elec-

Restructuring of Exxon USA is profitable, speaker says

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil Editor

Exxon has a six-decade history in Midland and a strong presence in West Texas, but restructuring and downsizing will continue, Harry J. Longwell, president of Exxon USA, said Wednesday.

In his keynote speech at the Midland Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting and in an interview following the luncheon, Longwell discussed restructuring and other energy issues and compared Midland and Exxon to two old friends.

He said the key to restructuring was profitability — Exxon divested properties or kept them on the basis of how profitable they were.

"We see restructuring as a continuous process of trying to stay ahead of the curve and not get caught with an excessive number of employees," said Longwell, a 1963 graduate of Louisiana State University.

Exxon had major cutbacks in 1986 and 1992 and in June of this year cut 140 jobs and downsized the Midland office from a division office to a production office.

"It's not about the quality of life it's about the cost savings of centralization and getting the unit price of producing a barrel of oil down," Longwell said.

"Midland has more than its share of quality of life. It's easy to get people to move here and hard to get them to leave."

Despite recent restructuring in the Permian Basin, Exxon has 30 percent of its lower-48 reserves in the Permian Basin and the basin's 700

Chamber official touts Midland-Odessa cooperation

Business/Oil Editor

Helping establish a new era of cooperation with the Odessa Chamber of Commerce was an achievement Nadine Craddick said she was most proud of as she ended her term Wednesday as chairwoman of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Speaking to a full house at the chamber's annual meeting at Midland Center, Mrs. Craddick said Midland and Odessa were in agreement on extending I-27 south through Midland-Odessa, building a four-lane highway to Garden City and beyond and on bringing increased trade to the Permian Basin from Mexico.

"Both chambers can speak with one voice on many issues, including agriculture, transportation, trade and oil and gas," she said.

Kyle Womack, who is to be chairman for 1994-95, said the executive committees of both the Midland and Odessa chambers were already meeting on a regular basis and would continue to do so.

He said his policies would be essentially a continuation of the goals set during Mrs. Craddick's term.

Those goals include supporting achievement in primary

Council to hold final meeting to vote on curfew

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

When the City Council meets again Oct. 11, the representatives will either adopt a juvenile curfew and decide the restrictions, back a suggested alternative program or deny any change.

The possibilities have been discussed at three town-hall gatherings, various council meetings and, most recently, at Tuesday's council meeting.

The proposed curfew is one fashioned — essentially identical — to the curfew imposed in Dallas.

The five-page draft for a curfew ordinance requires minors — those under 17 years old — to be home between the hours of 11 p.m. to 6 a.m., Sunday through Thursday, and from midnight to 6 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

'It's a tool that would help us to some extent but we don't want to paint all the kids as bad. It would be a good tool to take care of that less than one-half of 1 percent.'

—Richard Czech

Several exceptions — such as traveling to and from work, school and church, emergencies, being with a parent or guardian and being married — are included in the curfew ordinance.

Midland's curfew proposal was prompted by a recommendation by a special Midland County grand jury in February 1993, following a nine-month investigation into juvenile crime.

The Police Department favors a curfew, Chief Richard Czech told the council on Tuesday.

Czech's only reservation was that he didn't want to send the message that all youngsters are delinquents.

"It's a tool that would help us to some extent but we don't want to paint all the kids as bad," he said.

"It would be a good tool to take care of that less than one-half of 1 percent" of youngsters who commit crimes, he said.

District Attorney Al Schorre also voiced his support for a curfew — which he views as a "protection issue rather than a juvenile crime issue" — but suggested some revisions to the proposed ordinance.

More than 800 people die when ferry sinks amid 35-foot waves

TURKU, Finland (AP) — Frigid waters and raging winds turned the Baltic into a sea of death for more than 800 people when a ferry suddenly listed and sank in a storm early Wednesday. Authorities said 141 others survived.

In one of the world's worst maritime disasters in recent years, helicopters and ships searched for survivors and bodies off Finland's southwestern coast. They checked dozens of black-and-orange rafts from the ferry Estonia bobbing in the surging waters, but many were empty.

■ Related story/7A

Officials said it was too early to say what caused the ferry to sink shortly after midnight about 25 miles from Uto island.

A surviving crew member said water started pouring through the Estonia's front cargo door and the ship rolled over and sank quickly.

Silence of Haiti's bishops drown Aristide cheers

By Larry Rohter
N.Y. Times News Service

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Barely a day goes by without Haitians taking to the streets to cheer the impending return of their elected president. But from the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy that educated and ordained the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide, there has come no word or gesture of rejoicing or support — only silence.

To the president's many supporters within the church, it is clear that the mere thought of Aristide back in power is nearly as alarming to Haiti's Roman Catholic bishops as to the Haitian military.

In the past, the church hierarchy has tried to prevent Aristide from running for office, condemned his presidency before he was even sworn in, supported the military leaders who overthrew him and opposed American efforts to restore him to power.

"Most of the bishops have sold their souls to the devil" and now fear that retribution, either at the hands of their flock or Aristide, is on the way, said the Rev. Gerard Jean-Juste, a priest who is an enthusiastic Aristide supporter. "People don't forget, and that's why the bishops are scared."

Just last month, Haiti's 11 bishops issued a statement saying any military intervention by the United States to restore Aristide was "scandalous and immoral" and "makes us tremble with indignation."

Several of them then joined Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras and other military leaders at a Mass intended for "prayer and reflection" on the U.N. sanctions designed to force the military to step down.

More recently, resentment of the hierarchy's unwillingness to speak out on behalf of Aristide and democracy has been running especially high because of the death of the Rev. Jean-Marie Vincent, a close friend and ally of Aristide who was shot to death late last month, apparently by government gunmen.

When Bishop Joseph Lafontant, the apostolic administrator of the Port-au-Prince diocese, showed up at Vincent's funeral, he quickly found his presence was not welcome.

"Why are you here?" one mourner hissed at Lafontant as he approached Vincent's body, according to a priest who witnessed the scene. "You are one of the killers."

For his own part, Aristide has often been no less suspicious and critical of his church superiors. In his autobiography, published in 1992, he called Francois-Wolff Ligonde, the archbishop of Port-au-Prince, "a zealous servant of Macoutism," referring to the Tontons Macoute who terrorized civilians in the Duvalier era, and said that others were equally guilty, exempting only Bishop Willy Romelus, his sole ally in the hierarchy.

In the 33 years of the Duvalier family dictatorship, Aristide wrote, "bishops and Macoutes walked arm in arm, defending the same causes, but using a different vocabulary to mask their collusion for the benefit of the oligarchy." And in an apparent reference to Haiti's current military-backed government, he added that any time a bishop "supports generals who murder liberty, he commits a crime."

Three of Port-au-Prince's Roman Catholic bishops were approached for comment about Aristide and his relations with the church, and none responded. The bishops' conference has made no comment about events here since its message in August criticizing American policy in Haiti, which came after more than a year of silence.

Nevertheless, Aristide's supporters within the church suggest, there is enough of a record to demonstrate that the church hierarchy is hostile to him for both ecclesiastical and political reasons.

From the moment in 1982 that he was ordained a member of the Salesians, who are dedicated to education of youth and priestly and parochial ministry, Aristide's zeal to defend and fight for the country's poor, the same people who would eventually elect him to office, convinced his superiors that he was both a radical and an undisciplined priest.

The Vatican, the only body in the world that has established diplomatic relations with the military government headed by President Emile Jonassaint, has also expressed doubts about Aristide through the papal nuncio here.

Tensions have run so high that early in 1991, after a failed coup attempt, a crowd of Haitians, believing that the Vatican had a hand in the effort to prevent Aristide from taking office, chased an assistant to the nuncio and ripped his clothes off.

"He is a problem for them, but not for the Haitian people," said Necker Dessales, executive secretary of the Commission for Justice and Peace, the human rights wing of the Roman Catholic Church. "Questions of obedience and canon law are perhaps primary to the bishops, but secondary to believers."

Russia's ruble takes steepest dive in months

MOSCOW (AP) — Even as President Boris Yeltsin was in Washington touting Russia as a safe place for investors on Wednesday, the ruble took its steepest and most unsettling dive in months.

"This summer there was some stability," said Larisa Petrova, who sells American soft drinks outside a downtown bank that posts the ruble-dollar exchange rate in six inch-high digits in the window.

"Now we're hoping it won't be a roller coaster again. You get tired, not knowing what will happen tomorrow."

The ruble fell to 2,631 to the dollar Wednesday, from 2,476 a day earlier, the steepest one-day plunge since January and the second sharp drop this week.

The currency has lost 20 percent of its value this month, prompting speculation over the Central Bank's refusal, or inability, to continue its practice of propping up the ruble with hard-currency reserves.

Although the ruble rate has dropped steadily against the dollar over the past few years, for most of this year the decline was slower than inflation. That means the real value of the Russian currency was rising.

For Russians, this made imported goods — like Petrova's soft drinks — more affordable, and confidence in the ruble appeared to rise a bit this summer.

Polls indicate people have begun putting more money in savings instead of spending it immediately. And some people who used to rush to exchange their ruble earnings for dollars are now holding onto the rubles instead.

But much of the ruble's recent stability has been subsidized by Central Bank reserves, and this month the bank balked. It has spent about $2 billion since August to slow the ruble's slide.

Haitians in isolated seacoast town seize control as police flee posts

By Fred Bayles
Associated Press

LE BORGNE, Haiti — It's hard to put a label on what happened in Le Borgne. There was bloodshed. There was also a grudging restraint, and an unspoken sense of doing what was necessary, what was right.

In three momentous days, the 4,000 people of the isolated seacoast town saw their oppressors flee. They killed one, then took another into a casual custody. They regained control.

What happened in Le Borgne is, at least so far, a hopeful sign for Haiti, belying fears that the sudden collapse of authority in the country's northern region could lead to anarchy.

For Alfonso Bertrand, one of the townspeople who took charge, there was no questioning of their actions. There was little sign of fear.

"None of the attaches (police-backed civilian strongmen) fight with us, because he knows any of us can grab him now," he said.

Le Borgne is an imperfect mirror for the events following Saturday night's firefight in Cap-Haitien between Marines and Haitian military police. Ten Haitians were killed in the fight.

'In the eyes of these people the authority is gone. Our biggest fear is the breakdown of public order.'

— Sgt. Bill Miatke

Within a day, the power structure in the region was gone. Police abandoned their posts, leaving behind weapons and uniforms. In Cap-Haitien, as in dozens of small towns nearby, people collected the hated symbols of authority.

Where they could, they piled them at the feet of Marines. In the countryside they sat at the roadside, waiting for someone to collect them.

In Calderon Grande, a crowd chewed sugar cane as they searched the mayor's home for weapons. They were led by a man with an empty M-1 rifle. Another held a coat hanger twisted into the shape of an assault rifle.

In Port Margot, the three-man police station sat empty, its gun rack bare. Two spent rum bottles were the only sign of human habitation.

Where were the police? a man was asked. He made a wiping motion with his hands.

"We are free," he beamed.

But there was an edgy nervousness. Attaches were still in the town. The man asked when the Americans would come.

In Limbe, a group of Green Berets dropped into the city by helicopter Monday broke a siege of the district police station. A crowd exchanged salvos of rocks with police and soldiers inside.

Sgt. Bill Miatke said his unit was trying to turn the shaken Haitian soldiers into a professional police force.

"In the eyes of these people the authority is gone," he said. "Our biggest fear is the breakdown of public order."

In Le Borgne, townspeople did their best to keep order after the 10-man police force fled Sunday night.

On Monday, they went looking for weapons and attaches. They found one hiding in a shack. When they tried to take him into custody, he fought back with a machete, Bertrand said. Quico Bengo displayed hands swathed in bloody bandages, injuries he received in the fight.

WEATHER WATCH

More of the same: sunny, 90s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high in the mid-90s and south winds at 10-15 mph. Tonight should be mostly clear with a low in the upper 50s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Friday should be mostly sunny with a high near 90.

After an overnight low of 58, Wednesday's high reached 97, compared to the record high for that date of 100 set in 1977. The record low was 41 set in 1945.

STATE

It felt like summer again across the South Plains on Wednesday.

Lubbock's high of 97 degrees at 3 p.m. was the hottest reading ever for the date, breaking a mark of 96 set on Sept. 28, 1977.

High pressure aloft continued across the region, resulting in sunny skies and warm readings.

Temperatures at late afternoon were mostly in the 90s over all areas, ranging from 84 at Guadaiupe Pass and 85 at Marfa to 99 at Childress and Reese Air Force Base just west of Lubbock.

Winds across West Texas continued to be mostly light and variable with speeds generally 10 mph or less.

Highs today are expected to be in the 90s again across West Texas, with lows in the 50s and 60s.

Elsewhere in Texas, highs were generally in the upper 80s along the Texas coast and in the lower to middle 90s elsewhere. Winds were 5 to 15 mph from the southeast to south.

In North Texas, highs Wednesday ranged from 87 at Fort Worth to 97 at Wichita Falls. In South Texas, temperatures varied from 85 at Corpus Christi to 94 at Cotulla.

NATION

A storm system pushing ashore from the Pacific spread locally heavy rain over parts of the West Coast on Wednesday, and heavy rain also fell across the Great Lakes and upper Ohio Valley.

A low pressure system located over the eastern Pacific scattered thunderstorms from central California to southern Oregon, soaking some areas that have been dry for months, the National Weather Service said.

Along the California coast, 1 to 2 inches of rain had fallen by midday in the mountains of northern San Luis Obispo County, with up to 1 inch at lower elevations. Some of the rain fell on burned areas that could be subject to mud slides, the weather service said.

Also Wednesday morning, light rain fell at Sexton Summit. Ore., and hail the diameter of quarters fell near Chiloquin, Ore., the weather service said.

The storm's moisture combined with colder air spreading over the region. Snow was forecast during the night at elevations down to 7,000 feet along the Oregon-California state line, and to 9,000 feet in the Sierra Nevada.

To the east, unsettled weather extended from the upper Ohio Valley into New England, with showers and thunderstorms scattered across western New York and western Pennsylvania during the afternoon.

Wind picking up moisture from the warm surface of Lake Erie generated locally heavy rain in western New York, with more than 2 inches during the night around Buffalo, the weather service said. Wind gusted to 51 mph during a thunderstorm at Buffalo.

Over the 24 hours up to 8 a.m. EDT, Brunswick, Maine, got 1.16 inches of rain. During six-hour periods, 0.95 of an inch fell at Bangor, Maine; and 0.64 of an inch fell at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

SINK: More than 800 die in ferry disaster

(From 1A)

Swedish safety inspectors had criticized the seals on the door before the ferry left Tallinn, Estonia, on Tuesday evening for the 230-mile trip to Stockholm, Sweden. But they said they did not spot anything dangerous.

"We saw nothing that gave us a hint that something would go wrong," one of the inspectors, Ake Sjoblom, told Swedish television. "If we had, we would have sounded the alarm immediately.'

Raimo Tiilikainen, the Finnish coast guard commodore coordinating the search, said four ships would remain in the area Wednesday night but he held out no hope more survivors would be found.

Finnish police counted 141 survivors of the 964 people aboard, leaving 823 people missing and presumed dead.

It was not immediately known whether the ferry's captain survived.

Tiilikainen said the Estonia carried 776 passengers and 188 crew members. It was less than half-full.

Seventy civilian police workers, 21 teenagers from a bible school, 56 retirees and a man who delivered clothes to needy Estonians with his truck were aboard.

More than half the passengers came from Sweden, and the nation of 8.5 million people was in mourning Wednesday.

Crowds gathered on the docks in Tallinn, including a bereaved woman clutching a teddy bear.

"My husband and son were on their way to Sweden. My son left his teddy bear behind," she sobbed, too shattered to say more.

The first word of the ferry's trouble came shortly after midnight, after it radioed Estonian authorities: "We are sinking! . . . The engines have stopped!"

Survivors described scenes of panic as the ferry listed and started sinking in pitch darkness amid 35-foot waves. The water was 54 degrees and winds were blowing around 55 mph.

Some news reports said the ship went down in five minutes, while others put the time at closer to 30 minutes.

Ship's engineer Henrik Sillaste, 24, said that the bow door was not properly closed and that water started pouring in.

"There was something wrong," he told reporters in Turku, the Finnish city where rescue efforts were coordinated and many survivors were flown for medical treatment. "The water reached my knees."

The two Swedish inspectors visited the ship in Tallinn as part of a visit to Estonia to teach ferry safety techniques, said Johan Franson, deputy director of the Swedish Maritime Authority.

"They formed the opinion that the Estonia was, on the whole, a well-kept ship," Franson told AP Network News. "Some of the deficiencies were noted . . . One of the deficiencies was a deficiency to the seal of the bow door. . ."But our judgment is that the deficiency in the seal could not cause the ship to capsize and sink. Something else should have happened."

The seals, on the edges of the cargo doors, are designed to keep water from entering the ship in rough seas. But Franson said that even if there was a leak, there are drains on the deck to allow water to run off.

The Estonia had four or five bars, bands for dancing, three restaurants, gambling machines, a sauna and swimming pool, and shops. Many Estonians took the ship on pleasure trips to Sweden, but the bad weather Tuesday night forced an early end to the partying, survivors said.

"I was sleeping, and suddenly everything was falling off the table," said Margus Kermet, an Estonian truck driver who was flown to a Finnish hospital. He said he rushed from his cabin and fought his way through panicky passengers to get to an outside deck.

MISD: Board considers bond election for renovations

(From 1A)

tion. This is just the first step in considering it," Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. said

He said the district would not be hiring a financial consultant. The fees to pay a consultant "will come only if a bond issue is presented and passed," Baressi said.

The district has been attempting to cull $2 million dollars annually from the operations budget to renovate one building a year.

State Comptroller John Sharp recommended — following a a recent audit — that the district should hold a bond election to save money and get the buildings renovated in five years, rather than 17 years.

"Our analyses indicate that MISD could save approximately $5.4 million by borrowing the funds and renovating the schools in five years," Sharp said in his report. "And that savings excludes inflation."

Baressi said saving time and money motivated the board to ask a financial consultant to look into details of holding a future bond election.

School board trustee Michael Dobey said some schools need repair and others just need to be brought up to par with other schools in the district.

"I know some of the older schools need some major repair. Lamar, Crockett and Pease are in line for some work. We would like all of the schools to look like South or better," he said.

Dobey said South Elementary School was renovated a few months ago. "It was one of the oldest schools in the system, and was one of the original four buildings. It was completely gutted in some areas and now looks like a brand new building."

School board trustee Jack Hightower said giving students quality facilities is one of his priorities.

Without the bond election, renovations will crawl at a snail's pace. For example, Emerson Elementary School isn't scheduled to be renovated until the year 2011.

Trustees were hesitant to comment on public reaction to a bond election, but several said their spirits were bolstered by a recent Reporter-Telegram Cityline poll that indicated many callers thought school renovations should come before a bond election to build a football stadium.

At the same time, taxpayers resist anything that would raise taxes one cent, even if bond elections result in improvements in Midland facilities.

Sharp's report said, essentially, the district could pay for renovations now or pay more later. "In spite of annual repair, the costs of renovation would increase approximately 2 percent each year due to the continuing aging, deterioration and use of the buildings, while inflation will increase the costs of renovation by 3 percent each year," the report said.

"Unspent bond funds, however, could be invested at 4 percent per year," he said.

Without a bond election, the current 17-year renovation schedule — assuming MISD will be able to continue to cull money from operations each year — follows:

- 1995 — Lamar Elementary School.
- 1996 — Travis Elementary School,
- 1997 — Crockett Elementary School,
- 1998 — Carver Cultural Center,
- 1999 — Bunche Early Childhood Center,
- 2000 — Pease Elementary School,
- 2001 — West Early Childhood Center,
- 2002 — Fannin Elementary School,
- 2003 — Burnet Elementary School,
- 2004 — Bowie Elementary School,
- 2005 — Bonham Elementary School,
- 2006 — Milam Elementary School,
- 2007 — Long Elementary School,
- 2008 — Henderson Elementary School,
- 2009 — Rusk Elementary School,
- 2010 — Jones Elementary School and
- 2011 — Emerson Elementary School.

SPEAK: President touts Exxon's standing in Midland

(From 1A)

employees represent 20 percent of its production work force, Longwell said.

"And we are still one of the largest employers in the U.S."

Longwell said all roads in the oil and gas industry lead to Houston because "the U.S. is the center of the international oil industry and Houston is the center of the U.S. oil and gas industry.

"There is a cost savings to having smaller and centralized work groups. We will still have technical people on the spot who can respond to local problems, but our people who plan for the long term will be in Houston."

He said Houston was the headquarters for Exxon USA, Exxon Chemicals, Exxon Coal and Minerals and other units of the company and that centralization made it easier to move executives from one subsidiary to another.

Asked if current oil prices were too low to maintain a viable domestic industry, he said it was hard to say because it depended a lot on the size of reserves and the cost of extracting them.

"Obviously a price in the teens will not allow Exxon to go after the deep water prospects, enhanced oil recovery or some marginal production."

He said he was not aware of claims by members of the Reagan administration that former President Reagan and the Saudis had engineered the oil-price crash of 1986 and imposed an arrangement to keep the price of oil under $20.

Longwell said supply and demand and excess oil in the market were the reasons for lower oil prices.

He acknowledged that all majors were going overseas to look for oil and that they may very well find major new reserves — perhaps even equivalent to Saudi Arabia. But he feels growing demand could keep oil prices from crashing.

"Whenever you increase world energy demand by 2 percent, it requires another 1 million barrels of oil per day. We need to continue to explore overseas to be able to meet that demand."

The United States now imports approximately 50 percent of its crude oil. Longwell did not have a firm answer about how much imported oil was too much.

He said the country operated in a global economy and depended on imports for many other vital needs.

Longwell, who has spent his entire career with Exxon, said the major oil company is neither for nor against compressed natural gas (CNG) and other alternative fuels.

"We are the second largest producer of natural gas in the U.S., producing over 2 billion cubic feet per day. If CNG made economic sense we would be right in the middle of it, but it doesn't make economic sense now, because there was not enough natural gas reserves and no alternative fuel had the range of gasoline."

He said Exxon was opposed to legislation that offered mandates and was not fuel-neutral.

"The consumer should be the one to decide what fuel is best. The consumer always makes the right choice."

He said Exxon and others supported the Texas Clean Fuels Initiative calling for fuel-neutral legislation.

VOTE: Council to decide for or against curfew

(From 1A)

Schorre suggested:

- A standardization of the curfew hours, such as 1 a.m. every night, year-round.
- Delete from the proposed ordinance the responsibility for business owners to turn in youths out after curfew.
- Implement the curfew on a one-year trial basis.
- Keep track of who, when and where youths are picked up to counter any criticism of unfair bias against a specific group or section of the city.
- Make mandatory that a youngster picked up for curfew violation is turned over to his or her parent on first offense and given a verbal warning. A second offense would warrant a written warning, and a third time would lead to charges being filed.

Schorre said he has heard little opposition to a curfew and most arguments against it are philosophical rather than practical — whether a curfew will work.

There has been some opposition though, including that from Mark Kimble, who leads a citizens' group that advocates a curfew alternative: Young Adult Safety Zones.

Kimble told the council that a curfew — which he likened to the welfare system — teaches youngsters not to make decisions.

Furthermore, Kimble said, most youngsters out after hours — based on an informal poll — are not minors, and some police departments in other cities — based on telephone inquiries — are not enforcing their juvenile curfews.

"It's not going to reduce juvenile crime, so what's the point of discussing it?" he told the council.

Kimble apparently would rather discuss his group's alternative plan.

Although specific details for Young Adult Safety Zones have not been drawn up, the zones would essentially be designated areas where entertainment and refreshments would be provided to youngsters.

Specifics would be decided by a community committee. Community service organizations would implement the program and funding would come from the private sector, Kimble has said.

Kimble and others will have another chance to convince the council of their views before a final decision is made.

"I would urge anyone interested in the curfew one way or another to tell friends that we will be taking action on it Oct. 11th," said City Council representative Claudia Egan.

MEET: Chambers cooperate to meet goals and secondary grades, enhancing the strength and stability of Midland through retention, expansion and attraction of new companies and promoting Midland's visitor industry.

Other goals include improved communication by providing networking opportunities, educational programs and timely communications to members and providing quality information about Midland for newcomers and the media.

"The momentum built over the past few years will continue," Womack said.

He said the chamber would also work closely with the City of Midland to develop downtown and would work to develop a proactive plan to mitigate the effect of major oil company restructuring.

Mrs. Craddick said Midland's visitor industry was on the increase and would get stronger. She said that in the past 12 months the Convention and Visitor Bureau has booked 42 conventions, an 8 percent increase; had serviced 86 conventions, a 54 percent increase; and had brought 25,050 delegates to town resulting in a direct economic impact of $5.7 million.

The chamber also had increases in membership, according to Mrs. Craddick. She said total membership now stood at 1,410 members; 169 had been added in the past year.

She singled out Terry Phillips of the Midlander, for a special honor for selling 69 memberships.

Other special awards honored Odessa chamber chairwoman Betsy Triplett for her cooperation and assistance in bringing Midland and Odessa together as a single voice on several issues and chamber member Joe Bush for his work in improving the quality of education in Midland.

Stan Garrison, who was interim president of the chamber, was recognized for his "stabilizing and tranquilizing" effect during the nearly one year the chamber searched for a new president.

The search ended in the hiring of Marvin Wynn, who Mrs. Craddick said, "allowed the Midland chamber to move on with its programs."

Plague cases sweep across India's slums

Associated Press

NEW DELHI, India — As plague cases swept through other states of India on Wednesday, Mohammad Yasim sat on a string cot outside his hut in a New Delhi slum, watching rats leap over mounds of rotten vegetables and dung.

"They say there's some new type of disease that kills people in two or three days," he said, drawing smoke from a hookah water pipe.

"We heard on TV last night that we should go to the hospital if we have a sore throat or fever. If so, half this colony should be in the hospital," he said, then let out a roar of laughter.

A dozen buffaloes tied to nearby trees swished their tails to drive away fleas. Children dressed in rags scurried back and forth across planks of wood over a 10-foot-wide open drain choked with plastic bags, car tires, empty aerosol cans and garbage.

Pneumonic plague, spread by fleas from infected rats or by coughs and sneezes from sick people, broke out eight days ago in the western city of Surat, where it has killed at least 54 people. Since then it has swept through many areas of India, especially city slums.

At the National Institute of Communicable Diseases, the tally of suspected cases in 10 states rose Wednesday to 1,400, including about 500 in Bombay and other areas in Maharashtra state.

And the number of confirmed plague cases rose from two to 18 at Delhi's Infectious Disease Hospital, just miles from Yasim's home in Rajiv Nagar, a slum where 50,000 families live in mud-and-brick shanties.

Although highly contagious, pneumonic plague can be cured with antibiotics such as tetracycline. Fear of the disease has spread across India and outside its borders. Around the world, many countries checked airline passengers arriving from India, including Mother Teresa in Rome. In the Persian Gulf, Saudi Arabia and Qatar banned all Indian flights.

Word of the contagious disease also spread Wednesday in Rajiv Nagar, where there is no electric power, sewers or running water.

SOWELL ON CRIME WITHOUT PUNISHMENT

Those who believe that punishment does not deter crime are pointing triumphantly to statistics showing that our prisons are bulging with inmates, while our crime rates remain at very high levels. Of course punishment does not deter crime if the punishment is delayed long enough, watered down enough and applied only in a small percentage of the cases in which it is applicable. Food will not deter starvation if it arrives after the person is dead.

Now you can hear Dr. Sowell as he takes the podium in College of the Southwest's Distinguished Lecture Series, Tues., Oct. 4, 7:30 p.m., in Tydings Auditorium.

Frigid sea swallows ship too fast for hundreds

By Frank Bajak
Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Thirty minutes after the sea began pouring into the ferry Estonia, it was all over. For most of the 964 people aboard, there was no chance to save themselves before the ship was swallowed by the frigid, raging Baltic.

"Mayday ... Estonia," the ship's radioman called. "We have listed 20 degrees to 30 degrees and have blacked out."

Six minutes later, the ship disappeared off Swedish radar screens.

From survivors' accounts and news reports, the final minutes of Scandanavia's worst maritime disaster, in which more than 800 people died:

The German-built ferry leaves the dock in Tallinn, the Estonian capital, at 7 p.m. (noon CDT) Tuesday bound for Stockholm.

At about 8:30 p.m., the ferry runs into heavy weather. The band stops playing, because the ship is swaying too heavily in nearly 20-foot waves.

Many of the passengers retire, some to cabins nine decks below the bridge, to sleep out the rest of the 230-mile journey.

Sometime after midnight, engineer Henrik Sillaste, watching via closed-circuit television, notices water coming in from the front bow door. Thinking it's rain water, he and the other engine room workers turn on the ship's bilge pumps.

Elsewhere on the ship, some passengers hear a loud crashing sound.

Fifteen minutes later, the Estonia's pumps are overwhelmed. The 28 trucks, two buses and several cars in the hold are inundated. The ferry begins listing to port from the weight of the water.

In the engine room, the water reaches Sillaste's knees.

At 1:24 a.m., from his post on shore, Finnish Coast Guard Lt. Ilkka Karppala hears the Estonia radioman's Mayday call.

A second ship responds, asking for the ferry's location.

"I don't know, because we had this blackout," the radioman says. After a few seconds of silence, he comes back and gives coordinates.

Just after 1:30 a.m., the ship disappears off radar.

Gunman kills official, rocks Mexico anew

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A young man assassinated a key official of Mexico's ruling party Wednesday, rocking a country already buffeted by a turbulent year of violence and rebellion.

Jose Francisco Ruiz Massieu, secretary-general of the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), was shot in the neck after getting into his car following a breakfast at a downtown hotel. Shattered glass from the passenger side window was strewn on the busy Paseo de la Reforma boulevard.

A bank guard tackled the gunman and turned him over to police. Officials did not immediately identify the dark-haired man or give a motive for what President Carlos Salinas de Gortari described as "a hideous crime."

"This is a day of mourning for PRIistas. This is a day of mourning for all Mexicans," said President-elect Ernesto Zedillo.

The killing shocked officials still recovering from the March 23 assassination of PRI presidential candidate Luis Donaldo Colosio, shot at a Tijuana campaign rally. Zedillo, his successor, won the Aug. 21 presidential election and takes power Dec. 1.

Both Zedillo and Salinas were at the Hospital Espanol where Ruiz Massieu, his shirt ripped open and soaked with blood, was rushed after the shooting. Doctors said Ruiz Massieu had no pulse on arrival and was pronounced dead at 10:30 a.m., an hour after the shooting.

Mexico had been shaken this year not only by Colosio's killing and the New Year's uprising by rebels in southern Mexico but a wave of kidnappings of businessmen and narcotics-related violence.

Climate of fear halts Rwandans

KIGALI, Rwanda (AP) — The United Nations called off its program to return thousands of refugees to their homes in Rwanda on Wednesday, as U.N. investigators began looking into allegations of revenge killings by the new government's army.

Officials said they would also investigate how much the United Nation's own refugee agency helped create a new climate of fear in Rwanda.

The United Nations suspended convoys that were to have taken up to 4,000 refugees a day, mostly Hutus, from camps in southwest Rwanda back to their homes in other parts of the country. Officials said there were not enough people willing to go in the convoys.

"We had many indications people were waiting for transport and we thought we wouldn't be able to cope, but something has obviously happened," said Maj. Jean-Guy Plante, the U.N. military spokesman in Kigali. "I think it comes from being scared."

Time is running out for certain citizens

Time is running out for all those people who plan to cast ballots in the Nov. 8th General Election but for one reason or another will not be eligible to do so unless they register to vote.

Those individuals may have moved since the last election, but failed to notify the voting registrar of their address change. Or they may be new to Midland County and in the rush of getting moved, have not had time to register to vote here. There are many other reasons, too, that could render them ineligible to vote.

Earlier this week, Secretary of State Ronald Kirk was in Midland urging residents to register to vote. This week — Sept. 24 to Oct. 1 — has been designated Voter Registration Week by Gov. Ann Richards and Kirk is traveling throughout Texas urging citizens to register by the Oct. 9 deadline so they will be eligible to vote Nov. 8 or during the period designated for early voting. Early voting begins on Wednesday, Oct. 19, and continues until 7 p.m. Nov. 4.

"There's no excuse for people not to register," noted Kirk, adding "it is not true that one individual vote doesn't count."

We agree wholeheartedly with Kirk's comment and join him in encouraging all residents of Midland to either register to vote by Oct. 9 or to make certain that their name has not been purged from the voter registration rolls for one reason or another.

Voting is the most precious right Americans possess, but you can't exercise that right if you are not registered to vote. So make certain that you're registered and plan to vote in the Nov. 8th election.

Gramm works hard for success in '96

WASHINGTON — Sen. Phil Gramm, the Texas Republican, is agreeably free of cloying coyness: "I made up my mind a long time ago to run for president." His wife Wendy, an Asian-American who served in the Reagan and Bush administrations, is on the board of visitors of the University of Iowa college of business administration and the board of directors of Iowa Beef Products, the largest employer in the state that begins the delegate selection process. "This," says Gramm of the coming campaign, "is something we have been working at a long time."

Will

From 1982 through this fall's elections he will have spent 286 days on the road away from Washington and Texas. In the last 100 days of this autumn's campaign he will do events in 34 states. His computerized data base on people he has met since 1991 is at 164,454 names and expanding. Everyone on the list gets correspondence from him. This list includes 62,000 Iowans.

In 1988, 108,000 Iowans attended the Republican caucuses, which Bob Dole won with 34,000 votes. The CD-ROM data displaying the Gramm campaign's progress, needs and timetable fills the screen 11 times just listing the sites in Iowa and New Hampshire he has visited since 1991.

Gramm says he failed third, seventh and ninth grades because of problems with reading and arithmetic. Today he is one of three senators with Ph.D.s (Pat Moynihan and Paul Wellstone are the others). He came to politics from the economics department at Texas A & M, where he met Wendy, another Ph.D., who also was teaching economics there. He has meticulously studied the arithmetic of presidential campaigning and brings astonishing zest to the economics of presidential campaigning. "I love raising money. I believe in what I'm doing and don't mind asking for help."

He has a donor list of 68,000 names. Two million other people have contributed $109 million to the Republican Party in response of letters he has signed as chairman of the Republican Senate Campaign Committee.

He believes the "money filter" in 1995 will winnow the field of serious candidates. To be serious, he says, a candidate will need to have upward of $25 million before Iowa. Dole can raise the early money. Many professionals doubt that Lamar Alexander, Dick Cheney or Dan Quayle can, or that Jack Kemp will want to.

Washington wisdom holds that Gramm's slightly academic and grumpy demeanor and Southwestern twang are nearly insuperable obstacles to a successful candidacy. But to a growing number of conservatives, who chose Republican nominees, he sounds melodious because of what he says.

Congress' late-session legislative calendar imparted momentum to Gramm's courtship of the Republican nominating electorate. He was prominent in the fight over the crime bill ("If social spending stopped crime, this would be the safest country on earth") and was among the most important impediments to Clintonism in health care. No rival for the nomination is apt to match Gramm's rhetorical gift for assuring Republicans they need not fear from him another nightmare like the Bush administration.

A successful candidacy requires money, ideas and luck. Gramm probably will be the best financed and most conservative candidate in the Republican race. If luck really is the residue of design, Gramm is poised for a run of luck.

OTHER VIEWS

Judicial reform is needed despite fund-raising limits

Texas voters can be forgiven the general impression that political candidates never stop running for office — or raising money.

A tentative ruling by the Texas Supreme Court to limit judicial fund-raising should help shorten this dollar-seeking political marathon, at least for most judges. By a 6-3 vote, the court has issued an administrative order limiting fund-raising to a "political season" of 21 months.

This period would begin seven months before the filing deadline for state elections and extend to four months after the general election. The order, which would be enforceable under the state judicial code, would go into effect in the next election cycle.

Imposing such a time clock on the fund-raising process should help to lift at least some of the whiff of impropriety — the lingering "justice for sale" stereotype — off judicial fund-raising in this state. If it also cuts down the overall volume of contributors' dollars, so much the better.

The changes are, by Chief Justice Tom Phillips' own reckoning, quite modest. They do not begin to match the strictures placed on judges in most other states. Obviously, they are not the last word.

The argument is made by some opponents that limiting the time for fund-raising would be unfair to first-time and minority candidates because they need more time to raise money in the smaller denominations they traditionally get.

That does not seem to be supported by the facts. If anything, time limits would seem to have the most effect on the heavy-hitters such as political action committees and wealthy individuals who build up good will with their candidates through a steady flow of dollars.

In all, this seems to be an entirely reasonable restriction on fund-raising. But by no means does it complete the job of judicial reform in Texas.

Baseball may survive strike, but game won't be like it was

Could this be the end of baseball as we know it? It's still too early to say. But with the World Series now officially called off for the first time in 90 years, it's none too soon to speculate on the possibility that Organized Baseball, built around the National and American Leagues, has set itself on a course toward self-destruction. . . .

Fear not for baseball as a game. If it can survive artificial turf, domed stadiums, the designated hitter rule and, at some levels, aluminum bats, it can survive this too. But fans — and even more so, players and team owners — should not assume that all will be as they left it when play resumes.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Sept. 29, the 272nd day of 1994. There are 93 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 29, 1789, the U.S. War Department established a regular army with a strength of several hundred men.

On this date:

In 1758, English Admiral Horatio Nelson was born in Burnham Thorpe.

In 1829, London's re-organized police force, which became known as Scotland Yard, went on duty.

In 1902, impresario David Belasco opened his first Broadway theater.

In 1918, Allied forces scored a decisive breakthrough of the Hindenburg Line during World War I.

In 1943, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Italian Marshal Pietro Badoglio signed an armistice aboard the British ship Nelson off Malta.

MIKE ROYKO

What happened to child-killing Haitian junta?

"So, what happened to those dirty scum bags?" Slats Grobnik asked.

"Those rotten murderers, rapists, child killers, thieves and enemies of everything good and decent and democratic?"

To what vile scum bags are you referring?

Royko

"The military bullies who have been running Haiti. The murdering bums we was going to throw out because they're so evil. You remember — either they get out or we invade and shoot our way in and throw them out. Wasn't that the deal?"

Oh, you mean way back when?

"Whattaya mean way back when? It was only last weekend."

Ah, but in the fast-paced World of Clinton, last weekend is long, long ago. Yes, that was our position then, as I vaguely recall, but times change.

"You mean they ain't rotten scum bags no more? They ain't murderers, rapists, child killers, thieves and enemies of everything good and decent and democratic? Have they reformed?"

Sort of. Yes, they have become reasonable, likable, decent chaps.

"Jeez, that's really something. What did they do, take Prozac?"

No, what they did was to kindly allow us not to kill them.

"Say what?"

Yes. Last week, the situation was this: They were vile dictators, guilty of terrible crimes against democracy and their people.

"That's what I been saying."

And you were right. Last week, that is. So President Clinton vowed to send in our troops to throw the villains out. And if they didn't get out, it is assumed we would either capture them or let them shoot it out to the death.

"Yeah, I was kind of looking forward to it. When was the last time we really zapped some rats?"

Ah, but you were in the minority.

"Whattaya mean, minority? I happen to be a middle-aged white guy, which makes me a majority louse."

Yes, but your views were in conflict with the polls. Most Americans, with the possible exception of black congressmen, did not care a hoot about Haiti, a miserable dogpatch of a country with no vital interest to the United States.

"But what about restoring democracy?"

You are a real kidder. Most Americans are not that enthusiastic about democracy in Haiti or anywhere else. Given a choice, they would like to see military martial law imposed on New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and other unruly city states. The first American president to send the troops into Detroit or Chicago's West Side will be re-elected by a landslide.

"You're right. I'll pin a medal on Gen. Shillally's chest if he shoots a member of the Insane Idiots. I mean, one over 21. Being a liberal, I don't believe in shooting 11-year-olds."

Of course not. So there we were, the most powerful nation in the history of the world, sending our troops toward dinky little Haiti, prepared to kill all the evil, murdering, raping, child-killing, profiteering, anti-democratic military dictators.

"Yeah, I loved it. But what happened?"

The polls. The reality is, even if we won, we would lose. See, there are fewer Haitian troops than there are Chicago cops. In fact, Haiti has about the same number of people as Chicago and its suburbs. But it has far fewer military people than we have cops. So the big question about Haiti is this: Why didn't the Haitian people rise up and overthrow a rather dinky military force?

"So why didn't they?"

Good question, but no answer. Maybe they don't give a hoot. Or lack spunk. Whatever the reason, we have 7 million people oppressed by 7,000 troops. That's 1,000 citizens for each oppressive rat. You would think they could easily squash them.

New machines increase health-care costs

Here's what they don't tell you about health-care costs. Every day someone invents a machine to save people's lives. Once it comes onto the market doctors are obligated to use it. If they don't, some nasty lawyer will accuse them of malpractice. So the more the invention is used, the higher the cost of medical care.

Buchwald

For example, let's look at the Dingerscope, a new nuclear camera that permits the physician to examine every part of the human body from a crouching position.

This allows medical personnel to tell whether a patient is lying on his stomach or his back. Once this has been established by the machine, doctors are able to use the 50 other machines at their disposal to treat patients.

The cost of using the Dingerscope is $14,000, which does not include a 15 percent tip for the technician.

Here's an example of what we're talking about:

Stephanie Stefanini is brought into the hospital for possible acid indigestion. The doctor is prepared to prescribe medicine, costing $1.50, when Kristi Fischer, one of the residents, tells him that the Dingerscope has arrived. She suggests that they use it to establish if there is any gas associated with the stomachache or not.

"That's a good idea," the doctor says. "How long will it take to prepare the patient for the machine?"

"Two days," the resident tells him. "It's just a question of availability. There is quite a line ahead of us as this is a new machine and everyone has fallen in love with it."

"How much will it be?" Stephanie asks.

The doctor responds, "Please be quiet or you'll only aggravate your indigestion when you find out how much it costs."

Then the doctor turns to the resident and says, "Dr. Chris Spurney is in charge of the Dingerscope. Call him and ask him when we can come down."

"Dr. Spurney is playing golf because it's Wednesday. Dr. Jon Swerdloff is doing the Ding today, but there is a surcharge because the insurance company says that he's not qualified."

Meanwhile, Stephanie is becoming more and more uncomfortable and begs for fast relief.

The doctor instructs the nurse to hold her down.

"Mrs. Stefanini, my job as a physician is to use every piece of equipment in this hospital. Before the Ding appeared, you would been out of here in 20 minutes. But since we have the machine it would be a betrayal of my Hippocratic Oath if I didn't put you under it."

"I appreciate that, Doctor, but one Ding procedure and I will have blown my entire health-insurance allowance for the next six years. Is there any occasion where a doctor can treat a patient without sending him down to the nuclear smasher department?"

The doctor says, "I have been practicing medicine for 30 years and I have never known the hospital buy a machine and not use it day and night."

The resident announced that the Ding was ready, and Stephanie was wheeled down into the lead-lined basement.

Her head was inserted into an opening, her shoulders were strapped to a trolley, and her legs were placed around the soft drink machine.

A technician entered the room and rubbed some ointment on Stephanie's stomach. Then he signaled his assistant to pull the lever. Out of the side of the machine came a piece of microfilm and a stick of bubble gum. The doctor read it and then handed Stephanie an Alka Seltzer. Her final bill was $25,000.

Attorneys hope to weed out potential fame-seeking jurors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's too late for lawyers and the judge to avoid celebrity generated by the O.J. Simpson murder case. Now their job is weeding out jurors intent on seeking their own fame and fortune.

"This case is so extraordinary," said Michael Metnick, a Springfield, Ill., defense attorney. "There are so many commercial opportunities in this case. For jurors, this case could be a lottery ticket."

People winning one of the 18 spots on the jury could find themselves being dazzled by lucrative television, magazine and book deals.

"You don't want the jury deciding the case based on what's in it for me," Metnick said.

Within two hours of the verdicts in the second Rodney King trial, a juror appeared on television in disguise, discussing the case in detail. A juror in the Erik and Lyle Menendez murder trial received $5,000 from "Inside Edition" for his story.

California has taken steps to keep jurors from cashing in on their service. Gov. Pete Wilson signed two bills earlier this week that make it a misdemeanor for jurors to sell their stories before a trial and for 90 days thereafter.

■ SIMPSON UPDATE: Call Cityline, 560-2400, enter 6202.

But the Simpson case likely will still offer appeal for fame-seeking jurors.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito said Wednesday that 311 people survived the first phase of jury selection. They will return next month for questioning on their backgrounds and personal beliefs.

Ito, who also presided over the high-profile Charles Keating case, was surprised by the pace of the first phase of selection and the large number of jurors willing to endure the lengthy trial, even though they might by sequestered.

"It could be the hoopla factor. It goes up in direct ratio to the number of microwave dishes outside," Ito speculated Tuesday, referring to the array of television equipment around the courthouse.

Prominent Los Angeles defense attorney Harland Braun said jurors driven by fame and fortune could make a decision based on how much money a particular verdict might make them.

"That's a calculation of personal self interest as opposed to public participation. He's asking the question 'Would I get more money if it were a guilty or not guilty verdict?'" Braun said.

Lawyers can learn much about a juror's motives by asking about his background, Metnick said.

"The things I would ask about would be background, occupation. I would want to know what you do in leisure time, what books what magazines you read," he said.

Jury consultant Martin Buncher of Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., said he might ask potential jurors how they would react to an offer of money from reporters after the trial.

In the end, even the most subtle questions can never fully reveal a juror's motives.

"We can't yet read into the deepest crevices of one's mind to learn their motives in doing or not doing something," Metnick said. "This is why experience and instinct are so important."

Attorneys screening a high-visibility jury also should seek to exclude people who may have hidden agendas and try to sabotage the panel's verdict, said Stacy Schreiber-Lopez, a jury consultant.

City confronts one of its citizens who represents many crises

By Mike Feinsilber
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Day after day last week, Washington sat down to an uneasy breakfast with Rosa Lee Cunningham, and learned about her half century of blighted life in blighted neighborhoods.

On the front page of The Washington Post, the city read how Rosa Lee taught a grandson, 10, to steal a winter jacket from a thrift shop: "Just walk on out the door. It's your coat."

How she would sell her urine, when it was clean, to other clients of a methadone clinic when they feared their samples would show traces of drugs.

How, to pay off her daughter's drug debts, she sold crack herself one Saturday, but gave so many free samples to the daughter and a son that she didn't recover her costs.

And how she engaged in prostitution, and one night acquiesced when a customer asked for sex with her daughter, 11. The daughter became a prostitute.

The Post played "Rosa Lee's Story" big, shoving aside other news to make room for it on page one for eight days. The stories ran 30,000 to 35,000 words, enough to fill a 175-page book.

A city used to crisis was jarred by one close to home.

In journalism so intimate a reader might want to avert his eyes, reporter Leon Dash told Washington perhaps more than it wanted to know about Rosa Lee Cunningham, 58, who has gone to jail 12 times and is an ex-drug addict and a carrier of the HIV virus that causes AIDS.

Rosa Lee had her first child as a teenager, just like her mother and just like her daughter. Six of her children became addicted to drugs but two sons, with the help of mentors, went middle-class straight, with homes, families, jobs.

Rosa Lee had to go to bed at night with a wad of money in a sock to keep her addicted children from stealing it. And — one of her more shocking transgressions — she introduced heroin to the girlfriend of one of the straight sons, the mother of her grandson.

Confronted by her biographer with the ruin of her life, she offered — over and over — a single explanation: "I'm just trying to survive."

The part of Washington that writes the laws and conducts the symposiums that try to deal with the Rosa Lees of this country could not help but see its policy failures in her story.

Dash, who grew up in Harlem and the Bronx and started at the paper as a copy boy while attending Howard University, spent four years interviewing her.

Many readers — and some colleagues on the Post — asked him why, if he wanted to write about people in the chaos of poverty, he did not select a poor family successfully struggling to make good.

"Those stories have a place, but those families are not part of this crisis," Dash said. He added, "Thinking people, I hope, will understand that all these problems are tangled in one knot."

The Post has gotten more than 4,400 calls, a sizeable number of them disapproving, said Dash's editor, Steve Luxenberg.

He said readers wanted the Post to offer solutions. "They want the Post to do something. They want a happy ending."

Many of the approving calls, he said, came from social workers, court workers, police and psychologists, saying the region did not understand the extent of the problem and the series would help.

But many dismayed readers, both black and white, complained that the stories, intentionally or not, perpetuated stereotypes.

"It's degrading to black women," said Deborah Martinez, 37, who grew up in Washington, daughter of a keypunch operator at the Census Bureau. "Drugs were around when I was in school, but I'm not a drug addict. You choose your lifestyle."

"She said she wanted her story to be told," said another black woman, Eleanor Murrell, an editor at Howard University. "To what end did she want it to be told? She never said, 'Don't do what I did.'"

Post ombudsman Joann Byrd, who receives reader complaints, said the most common question from readers was the one Murrell asked: Why was the Post running these stories?

She said Leonard Downie, the paper's executive editor, anticipating critics, stacked up 11 positive stories about black people the Post had published over a six-week period, six of them on the front page.

Child molester's return outrages his neighborhood

DUNDALK, Md. (AP) — When Mary Jo Taylor saw the young man walking up the sidewalk next door, she started screaming.

Nineteen-year-old Joseph Ray Driskell, accused of molesting Mrs. Taylor's 6-year-old son, was coming home after serving about a year in prison for sexual assault.

Now the Taylors' row house in a working-class Baltimore suburb is plastered with handwritten signs alerting neighbors that a child molester lives among them.

"We're upset over the fact that he got released without us being notified, as well as the fact that nobody in the neighborhood knew what happened in the first place," Anthony Taylor said Wednesday. "I know it's an embarrassing thing, but when you have little children in the neighborhood and then someone doing this, I think it should come to light."

Driskell's mother, Marilyn Driskell, said her son is no longer living with her "so these signs are now false."

"They're not true now and they should come down," she said.

Corrections Department spokesman Leonard Sipes said the teenager had entered a residential treatment program, but that he didn't know how long he was expected to stay. Sipes also didn't know when or if Driskell would move back into the neighborhood.

Driskell was charged in August 1993 with 10 counts of sex-related crimes involving two neighborhood children, the Taylors' son and a 3-year-old boy who lives on the same block. Both told police he fondled them.

Since he had no previous convictions, Driskell was allowed to plead guilty to one count of sexual assault.

Driskell was sentenced to six years in prison, with all but 18 months suspended, Sipes said. Under terms of his probation, he must seek professional counseling and stay away from children.

Leaders make nuclear pledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a bargain between ever-closer friends, President Clinton and Boris Yeltsin pledged Wednesday to sharply accelerate the dismantling of thousands of nuclear weapons. The Russian president also promised not to sign new arms deals with Iran.

"We're succeeding in tackling some hard challenges," Clinton said at an upbeat East Room news conference with Yeltsin.

The Russian leader was in feisty form, teasing reporters and exuberantly reciting a lengthy list of foreign policy and economic subjects that he discussed with Clinton. He said they agreed, "practically on every single one of these issues."

Indeed, there were agreements on American investment in Russia, space collaboration, customs cooperation and joint efforts to combat crime. In all, deals were signed for up to $1 billion in ventures in Russia.

However, the most important accord concerned nuclear arms.

The United States and Russia agreed to speed up nuclear cutbacks under the START II agreement once it is ratified by both countries. Clinton said the move would shave several years from the timetable: Yeltsin said perhaps seven years or more.

Jury finds Blair guilty of murder

Speed of verdict stuns defense team, inspires prosecutors

■ Jurors to begin punishment phase today that could lead to Michael Blair's execution for killing 7-year-old girl in Dallas.

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

It took a Midland jury about 30 minutes Wednesday to find Michael Blair, 24, guilty of capital murder in the abduction and strangulation of Ashley Nicole Estell, 7.

The short deliberation time — following more than two weeks of testimony — surprised both prosecutors and defense attorneys in the case, which was moved to Midland from Plano because of the intense publicity.

The prosecution spent a week building a case against Blair, referred to as a "troll" by one prosecutor. Eyewitness testimony placed Blair at the park where Ashley was abducted on Sept. 4, 1993 and near where her body was discovered. Also, there was hair and fiber evidence from the victim in Blair's car.

"(The state's case against Blair) is like a puzzle," said Collin County assistant District Attorney Bryan Clayton. "No one piece stands out as a deciding factor."

"This is the most innocent victim you could ever have imagined," Clayton said as a possible factor in the expedited verdict.

An alternate juror said the hair, with racial characteristics of Blair's Asian/American derivation, was a deciding factor for her.

Both Clayton and District Attorney Tom O'Connell said they did not anticipate the short deliberation time, but were greatly pleased with the verdict.

"We have served notice that this type of proceeding is available for anyone else out there who engages in this type of activity," O'Connell said.

"How can you evaluate a two-week case in 27 minutes?" said defense attorney Don McDermitt, who was upset by the speed with which the jury reached a guilty verdict.

McDermitt said Blair — who has maintained his innocence for the past year — was surprised by the quick decision.

"Obviously, he's stunned and disappointed," McDer-

10 city scholars shine on national test

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Midland public school teachers and administrators are busting their buttons with pride over the district's 10 top achievers on the 1995 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude (PSAT) test.

Nine students are National Merit Scholar semifinalists and one is an honoree in the National Hispanic Scholar Recognition Program. Midland and Lee high schools each have five honorees.

Midland honorees are among 15,000 semifinalists selected nationwide by the National Merit Scholarship Corp.

"We are extremely proud of our students and we want to congratulate them and their parents," said Joseph Baressi Jr., superintendent of Midland Independent School District.

"We know it takes hard work and family support to achieve academically. We also feel the number of merit scholars produced in our district reflects well on the quality of our college preparatory program, especially when you compare us to districts of comparable size."

Initially, it was announced that MISD had seven semifinalists named top national academic achievers. But on Tuesday, the National Merit Scholarship Corp. — which announces minority scholars separately

LHS parade gets city's green light

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

All systems are go for Lee High School's homecoming parade. On Tuesday, parade organizers were dealt a blow when the City Council denied granting the school district a waiver from maintaining $1 million worth of liability insurance.

Several Midland Independent School District officials said they were not aware the City Council had voted back in February to strictly enforce insurance requirements. LHS was left with 48 hours to get $370 together and acquire the necessary insurance.

On Wednesday morning, however, according to MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr., the city offered the school district an indemnifying agreement, which would waive the insurance and exempt the city from any liability.

Baressi said it appeared the district would still have to pay the liability insurance for one day, but later learned that the school district, being a state agency, has sovereign immunity.

LHS Principal George Cooper said the school had an "approved parade permit" in hand Wednesday afternoon. He said, if LHS had needed to raise the $370, there were Few preventive steps can reduce women's risk of cervical cancer

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Due to diagnostic advances over the past 50 years, preventing cancer of the cervix has become "one of medical sciences' cancer-success stories," according to Dr. William McIntosh.

And that success is "not so much because we've gotten so good at treating it but because we've gotten so good at preventing it in the first place," said McIntosh, who is director of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center's Colposcopy Clinic.

And the colposcope — a binocular-like magnifying device used in diagnostic examinations of the cervix — is a tool to examine the cervix if Pap-smear tests suggest an abnormality of cell tissue.

The cervix, which is the narrow end or neck of the uterus leading to the vagina, is vulnerable to bacteria and viruses, including sexually transmitted diseases, McIntosh said.

"If we can save a woman from cancer before she ever gets it in the first place, that's the cheap, easy, safe way to do

Treasurer wants end to treasury

By Katherine Poteet
Staff Writer

State Treasurer Martha Whitehead hopes to do away with her job if she successfully fends off Republican candidate David Hartman in November.

"I want to be the last state treasurer," she said Wednesday, after speaking to a group of Midland TexPool members. "I simply want to do away with the Texas Treasury."

Ms. Whitehead made the campaign stop to not only bring her message of downsizing government but to re-emphasize her support of TexPool, the state treasury's investment fund.

"My opponent has attacked TexPool," she said, in reference to Hartman's statements of TexPool's losses to mismanagement.

"But, since 1989, the TexPool has grown to 13,070 members. And, interest has gone up 20 percent since last year. It is making money for the taxpayers."

TexPool is designed to let local entities — such as the city and school district — put money in a state pool. The total amount of money from entities

State Fair of Texas kicks off Friday in Dallas

By Stefani G. Kopenec
Associated Press

DALLAS — The Super Xyklon isn't quite so super yet.

With the State Fair of Texas set to open Friday, pieces of gold roller coaster track still lay on the ground Wednesday waiting to be assembled.

But David Nixon, head of concessions for the State Fair, says there is nothing to worry about.

"Oh, yes. It'll be ready," he said of one of the fair's biggest attractions.

"Appearances are deceiving. They really are," added a reassuring Jerry Callahan, vice president-general manager of Suncoast Fun. "It goes quick. It goes quick."

Fair Park was its usual late-September beehive of activity as workers completed final preparations for the fair.

Big Tex is ready to go, Nixon said.

A 25-ton hydraulic crane helped erect the 52-foot-tall, newly outfitted cowboy at his accustomed spot near the mouth of the Midway, where he'll greet an estimated 3 million-plus visitors during the fair's 24-day run.

Although workers were scurrying to assemble rides and exhibits, fair spokeswoman Nancy Wiley sat in her office with an air of confidence that comes from her many years with the event.

"Generally speaking, I think everything's moving along pretty much on time," she said.

When all is in place, the fair will feature shows and exhibits ranging from nightly fireworks to the Dallas Cowboys' four Super Bowl trophies to animals, Mars and cars.

Gates open at 10 a.m. Friday. Former President Bush will cut the ribbon at opening ceremonies for the 1994 "Lone Star Celebration" at 5 p.m., Ms. Wiley said.

Country singer Randy Travis is scheduled to perform at a free concert at 8:30 p.m.

Other big-name musicians scheduled to perform before the event's Oct. 23 close include The Pointer Sisters, The Charlie Daniels Band, Tim McGraw, Sawyer Brown and Billy Ray Cyrus.

The return of fireworks nightly at 8 p.m. is expected to be a crowd-pleaser, Ms. Wiley said. The display replaces the laser show that fair officials began in 1987.

"I think this is something that responds to a very clearly voiced wish as far as fair-goers are concerned," she said.

The State Fair of Texas opened in 1886 and has been held every year since, except some wartime years when the 227-acre Fair Park was used as an Army camp.

General admission is $8, with special $4 tickets for children under 48 inches and senior citizens.

RISK: Condom may eliminate some cancer

it," McIntosh said.

"Once you have a cancer, the chances of curing it have dropped drastically because you practically have to half-kill the patient to get the cancer out."

Cancer — a group of erratic cells — "is the most aggressively growing part of the body," he said.

Once the leading cause of cancer deaths in women, cervical cancer as a cause of death has dropped dramatically in the United States, according to the American Cancer Society.

Analysis of the Pap smear — developed by American anatomist George Papanicolaou in the 1940s — tells the physician if the woman may have a problem with abnormal cells.

"You sort of scrape off some of the outer cells (of the cervix) and smear them on a slide and look at the slide and see if there is a problem there," McIntosh said. "While that's good for picking up problems early, it doesn't give you a precise diagnosis."

Colposcopy does. But it is an "expensive and time-consuming" procedure that can be painful. It involves taking a biopsy.

The colposcopy was developed in Germany in the 1930s before the development of the Pap test, but its use decreased due to the expense and time elements.

The procedure was "good at diagnosing the problem, but (it put) a lot of women through a lot of torment for nothing," McIntosh said.

"Most women are healthy; they don't need this."

And "that's where the Papanicolaou stain (test) comes in," McIntosh said.

It is efficient in detecting cervical problems. If problems are detected, then the colposcopy comes into play.

Of the women who undergo Pap smears at the clinic, about 10 to 15 percent of those "have some abnormality." Of those, only a "tiny, tiny number . . . ever turn out to be anything significant," he said.

McIntosh said "probably only about 60 to 65 percent of women who should have Pap smears actually do have them on a regular basis."

Women who ought to get yearly Pap tests include "sexually active" women and "any woman who is over the age of 18 even if she is not sexually active," McIntosh said.

"Cervical cancer is considered to be the only known sexually transmitted cancer," McIntosh said.

"The causes of cervical cancer are believed to have at least some of their origins in sexual activity" due to the introduction of foreign particles, such as bacteria and viruses, to the vagina. Another cause may be "just the trauma to the cervix from intercourse."

McIntosh noted the gravity of possible problems.

"Bacteria can go right up this (vaginal) canal, right into the uterus, right out the Fallopian tubes, and right out into the abdominal cavity" and possibly elsewhere.

"That's why sexually transmitted diseases can cause women such horrible problems," McIntosh said. "And they cause men horrible problems, too, but they seem to be dramatically worse in women more frequently."

McIntosh said "Condoms cannot only protect you from things like AIDS and herpes but can protect you from cervical cancer as well.

"You should practice safe sex not just for those things but for a whole host of critters."

Among women, cervical cancer is the ninth leading cause of death by cancer, research indicates. The leading cancer killers in women are lung and breast cancers.

McIntosh recommended that women visit their gynecologists each year for Pap smears.

"And if there is something wrong with the Pap smear, remember it is designed to pick up things early, early, early, early before there are big problems, so you can get them fixed easy."

McIntosh said women getting Pap smears is exactly like men getting their prostate glands checked and colposcopy in women is exactly like men having their prostates subjected to a biopsy.

If patients already have cervical cancer, "we've failed," McIntosh lamented.

"We try to find it when they have pre-invasive disease, so that we can cure them right here in the office and they can walk out of here cured as opposed to having to have a huge surgery and radiation and chemotherapy.

"The fewer invasive cancers we find, the better we've done our job in getting the people to come in here when they need to."

TRIAL: 'Mind that is not right' is focus mitt said.

Some of Ashley's family were emotionally overcome when Judge Nathan White dispassionately read the jury's guilty verdict.

Later, the victim's father, Dick Estell, publicly thanked those involved with the prosecution and others who have supported the family.

"I want to thank the district attorney's office and the Plano police for all their help," he said.

Estell said the conviction does not ease the family's pain, but that it "brings another point of closure."

The 2½-week trial has forced the family to relive many painful times from the past year, Estell said. "It's been really hard."

In closing arguments earlier Wednesday, McDermitt reiterated evidence he presented, in an attempt to show that another suspect could have committed the crime.

Holding up a large picture of Blair as he looked at the time of the crime — with longer unruly hair and a scruffier appearance — McDermitt said, "Could a man who looks like that, walk on to a soccer field and walk off with a little girl?"

McDermitt also reminded jurors of Blair's cooperativeness. He served on the large search operation that found the girl's body on Sept. 5.

O'Connell said in his closing remarks, that to understand the evidence of this case, one had to understand the workings of a "mind that is not right."

In coming to understand such an horrendous case, the logical person will first understand that "whoever did it is not right (in their mind), and has not been right for a long time," O'Connell said.

Blair's past offenses certainly put him in this category of offender, O'Connell said.

His two charges of indecency with a child "tells me a lot," O'Connell said. And Blair's history of raping his sister when she was only 5 or 6 years old — "That tells me more than I ever wanted to know about him," he said.

The newspaper clippings about Ashley's disappearance and death that were found in the back of Blair's car were clear evidence of a "not right" mind," O'Connell said.

"It's the workings of that mind," he said. "It's not your mind and it's not my mind," he said.

"This is the type of person he is and he'll never change," O'Connell said.

The seven-woman, five-man jury will begin hearing evidence at 9 a.m. today in the punishment phase of the trial. Attorneys estimate that it will be about two days before the jury begins deliberations to decide whether Blair will receive life imprisonment or the death sentence.

SAVINGS: Whitehead is campaigning around the state is then invested, yielding a higher interest.

Ms. Whitehead's main campaign focus is the elimination of the treasury, an agency she said is costing the taxpayers more money through duplication of functions.

"The treasury office has several functions that cannot be done away with, like the comptroller's office, warrant processing and cash management," she said. "But, those functions can be merged somewhere else. Things such as speechwriters, press secretaries, those can be done away with."

Ms. Whitehead, who believes most Texans will be behind eliminating the agency, criticized her opponent for what she called his "desire to inflate government."

"Our citizens are demanding that leaders be more responsive and reduce spending," she said.

"By eliminating the treasury, we will save millions of dollars in taxpayer money. People are expecting government officials to act differently than in the past and to downsize government.

"My opponent is for making the treasury bigger," she said.

"He wants a huge, mega-agency that will be even more of a burden on the taxpayer."

Ms. Whitehead said her proposal will have to go through the state Legislature's 1995 session. A two-thirds vote in both the Senate and House is necessary to pass the proposal.

"We're looking at, maybe, early 1996 for this to become law," she said. "It requires a constitutional amendment. But, I think legislators will be thrilled to pass this."

PERMIT: MISD signs agreements with city

plenty of people willing to contribute.

"Kent Oil called first thing in the morning and we've had numerous other calls offering to make contributions," Cooper said. "One way or another, we are going to have this parade. It's a done deal. And we have the community support to see it's taken care of without our kids having to pick up (any liability insurance fees). We're ready to go."

City Attorney Keith Stretcher said MISD elected to sign agreements to indemnify the city "for both (homecoming parade) events," instead of adding the city as an insurer.

LHS' parade kicks off at 6 p.m. today from Fairmont Church of Christ, 3813 N. Midland Drive.

The parade will travel south down Midland Drive to Neely Avenue. It will move east down Neely until it reaches the campus vocational building.

Following the parade, a bonfire will be lit.

The homecoming football game is scheduled for Friday night and a dance is set for Saturday night at the Lee Youth Center. Tickets to the dance — to be from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. — are $20 per couple in advance and $30 a couple at the door.

SCHOLARS: Students go to top

(From 1B)

— said MISD has three minority scholars who also made the cut as top scorers on the PSAT.

Honorees were named from three programs. The National Merit Scholar Corp. named Midland High School students Christopher Allmon, Michael Grandy, and Sarah McCullough.

Lee High School merit finalists are Eric Blake, Jacob Clifton, Kyndall Esslinger, and Alena Oetting.

The National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students named Daryl Lewis and Tamika Standifer — both of MHS — as top national achievers and the National Hispanic Scholar Recognition Program named Tony Valadez of LHS as a top scholar.

Elaine S. Deweiler, public information officer for both the national corporation and the scholarship program for African American students, said the outstanding Negro scholars program was founded in 1965 to offer students an additional opportunity.

"All the students take the same tests, but the Outstanding Negro scholars program is funded separately and black students compete in both merit scholar competitions," Ms. Deweiler said.

"Back in 1965, we were approached by the Ford Foundation to conduct a compensatory program for black students, and we did."

She said the National College Board operates the National Hispanic Scholar Recognition Program. But all students took the same tests and were in the top percentage of scorers.

On Tuesday night, Midland school board trustees honored all of the district's semifinalists individually at the beginning of the school board meeting.

"I felt like I did pretty well on the PSAT and knew I had a chance to be a semifinalist," said Sarah McCullough of MHS. "Still I'm honored to be a semifinalist."

Miss McCullough said she is studious and isn't afraid to admit it. She said there doesn't seem to be a stigma of being an "egghead" any more.

She credited MHS' honor courses and "some wonderful teachers, especially my English teachers" with preparing her to become a top national achiever.

"Midland High School is an excellent school, especially at the honors level," Miss McCullough said. Not being one to settle for less than the best, Miss McCullough has set her sights on attending Rice or Yale universities.

Fellow MHS merit semifinalist Tamika Standifer also applauded her school. "When it comes to education, Midland High School is the best," she said, allowing that her high school years have been "nothing but work."

"I didn't think I was going to be a semifinalist. There are so many smart people out there," Miss Standifer said.

One of those smart people, LHS semifinalist Jacob Clifton, did not go the usual route in becoming a recognized top achiever. Clifton, shy of the limelight, said he isn't much of a joiner. He co-edited LHS' literary magazine, and has an affinity for creative writing.

"I've had some good teachers and I like writing," he said.

He said he "had a good feeling" about his PSAT performance.

"But I don't have a whole list of credits to go after my name," he said.

The Midland honorees are among 15,000 semifinalists selected nationwide by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. The number selected from each state is based on the percentage of each state's graduating seniors.

The top 15,000 semifinalists were culled from more than 1 million taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. The highest scorers in each state were designated semifinalists. Semifinalists must now advance to the finalist level of the competition in order to be considered Merit Scholars.

"About 90 percent of the semifinalists are expected to become finalists," Ms. Detweiler said.

Semifinalists will compete for 2,000 National Merit $2,000 Scholarships. Corporate, and college and university scholarships will also be offered to finalists.

As for being named to the National Hispanic Scholar Recognition Program, Valadez said, "This is all pretty new. I just found out Saturday."

Chamber volunteers to 'blitz' businesses in Midland area

Staff Report

Midland Chamber of Commerce volunteers are to visit several local businesses Friday as part of the chamber's "retention/expansion" program.

The "blitz" visits are part of the program to "retain these businesses we already have in Midland and doing everything we can to help them expand their operations," said Marvin Wynn, president and chief executive officer of the chamber.

The visits by volunteers — including Mayor Bobby Burns, City Manager Mike McGregor and incoming chamber chairman Kyle Womack — will include plant tours and question and answer sessions.

The visits are set for between 9:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m., followed by a 12:30 p.m. luncheon.

The following plants will be visited: Duo-Delites, Hirschfield Steel Co., Agri-Empressa, Automotive Industries, Harrison Laboratories, Don-nan Machine & Mfg., Jacobs Electronics, Linco-Electromatic Inc., TomCat USA, The Midland Certified Reagent Co. and Oil Dynamics Inc.

UTPB to host SAT workshop for local educators today

Staff Report

ODESSA — A "Test Prep" workshop on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) for secondary school educators is set for today at the Devonian Room of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

The half-day workshop is scheduled for 9 a.m. until noon. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m.

The workshop will inform educators and school counselors about the factors influencing test scores, and what "recentering" the scores will mean on the revised SAT test. Other topics of discussion will include how the revised SAT will be scored, empowering students to perform their best and when changes on the SAT will take place.

The university is hosting the staff development workshop, which is being conducted by the College Examination Board of the Southwestern Region.

Vickie Gomez, UTPB director of admissions, said 50 educators have already signed up to attend.

"This is the largest workshop of its type we have ever had."

She said changes in the SAT are probably a contributing factor to the increased interest in preparing students for the test.

Trial begins for woman accused of killing prominent McAllen lawyer

EDINBURG (AP) — A woman who claims she didn't know her gun was loaded went on trial Wednesday in the killing of a prominent McAllen attorney.

Looming over the trial of 22-year-old Rachel Ann Phillips are about 40 hours of videotapes featuring sex and drug binges at the residence of the victim, George Almaraz.

The defense contends that Almaraz tried to rape Ms. Phillips before she pulled what she mistakenly believed to be an unloaded gun. Prosecutors argue that Ms. Phillips deliberately shot the attorney in his McAllen condominium on Nov. 17, 1993.

Assistant District Attorney Jane Alonzo said in opening statements that Almaraz was killed by a 9mm gunshot wound to the back of the neck.

Defense attorneys Juan Gonzalez and Joe Martinez reserved their opening statement until after the prosecution rests its case.

Ms. Alonzo made no mention of the videotapes recovered from Almaraz's condo. State District Judge Fernando Mancias will rule during the trial whether the jury should see all or part of the tapes, attorneys said.

Ms. Phillips has said in television and newspaper interviews that she and Almaraz were using cocaine to celebrate his 42nd birthday when he tried to sexually assault her.

She said she pointed her gun at Almaraz and demanded that he let her leave the condo. She said he laughed because he also believed the gun was empty.

"I pulled the trigger. I was expecting a click, but instead it was like a pop. I freaked out. There wasn't supposed to be any bullets in it," Ms. Phillips wrote in a letter to The Monitor.

She said she fled in Almaraz's pickup.

FAIR: Event has fun, food, rides

(From 1B)

On Tuesdays, anyone bringing a specially marked Dr Pepper can receives $1 admission to the fair, $1 parking within the fairgrounds and $1 rides on the Midway.

On Wednesdays, fair-goers can enter the fair for the price of three cans of food, while seniors get in free on Thursdays.

Exhibits are open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

While the fair's auto show remains a popular draw, more than 20 classic cars will be displayed in a special anniversary event: "Mustang: A Legend Turns 30."

The bullet-riddled 1934 Ford in which Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker met their demise will be a $2 attraction on the Midway, which features more than 60 rides.

Also featured will be exhibits on dinosaurs, the planet Mars, sacred art of Ethiopia, and an ice revue and freestyle ski display.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Projects involving inventions or travel will have great success now. Start or expand a business in December. Friends or relatives may offer to provide financial backing; get promises in writing. Certain legal documents may need revision early in 1995. Use overseas business contacts judiciously. A change of residence or employment is likely next spring. A timely real estate purchase could put you on easy street.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Anita Ekberg, "Today" show co-host Bryant Gumbel, rocker Jerry Lee Lewis, actress Madeline Kahn.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Old friends prove to be your most loyal allies in business. Trust them with your future. Romance enters an entirely new phase. Keep a tight rein on your temper. Be open to new ideas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Getting involved in a power struggle would be a mistake. Be firm if others ask you to take sides. You need some pampering tonight. Make sure a romantic relationship is on a two-way street.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some confusion over details could slow progress. Do not be afraid to ask personal questions. Secret transactions will not help your cause. Romance blossoms when you and mate take time to smell the flowers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Friendship and romance are in the spotlight. Correct a wrong impression by being more discreet. You would be wise to take greater interest in your future financial security. It pays to play a waiting game.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Welcome news arrives from someone at a distance. Working at home is especially productive for writers or artists. A personal relationship is sorely tested.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Romance and a new career venture could be closely linked. Be careful not to go overboard when entertaining strangers. Save your generosity for your family.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Domestic affairs could take precedence over business today. Ask loved ones to keep expenses down. An unexpected development will make the evening both happy and memorable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A wonderful day to launch new projects. Rely on your own efforts to carry you through. Distant affairs are more lucrative than in the recent past. Leave the evening free for reading or a hobby.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A special friend may be trying to tell you something. Become a better listener. This pal could hold the key to your future success. Show more devotion to those closest to your heart. Love conquers all!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A financial problem is easier to solve than anticipated. A confusing domestic situation will require extra caution. Nip self-doubt in the bud. Catch up on minor household repairs this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accept new responsibilities with good grace and you will be considered for a promotion. Your wonderful manners help you quickly win allies in new social situations. Continue to be discreet about previous romantic involvements.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Inquire about the cost of taking a technical course. Additional skills will make you a more valuable employee. Be patient with a friend who may be going through hard times. Participate in a charity or community event.

If you like testing your skill playing and defending, you could do a lot worse than get a copy of On the Other Hand: A Bridge from East to West, by Martin Hoffman and Kathie Wei-Sender (C & T Bridge Supplies, 188pp., paperback. Available from The Bridge World, 39 W. 94th St., New York, N.Y., 10025. $11.95 including postage and handling.) The 64 hands will test most players. Here's an example.

We would clearly prefer a rebid of one no trump by North, but that would not alter the final contract and a diamond lead would be unlikely, so declarer would be facing the same problem. South receives the lead of the jack of spades. Would you rather play or defend three no trump?

It might seem that the contract is easy. Win the spade in hand, cash the king of clubs and continue the suit. When West produces the queen, allow it to win. With the king of diamonds safe from attack, you are assured of three spade tricks, two hearts and four clubs.

However, West can jettison the queen of clubs under the king, and now there's no way to nine tricks without letting East gain the lead for a diamond lead through the king. Down one.

There is a counter. Declarer can win the first trick in dummy and lead a club, inserting the eight when East plays low. Is this the best line? We'll let the mathematicians debate the exact percentages, but it does deliver the contract on the actual lie of the cards.

A pretty collection of hands, nicely presented.

Pfeiffer, Wright up for starring role in film about Jessica Savitch's life

PHILADELPHIA — Michelle Pfeiffer and Robin Wright are said to be in the running for the starring role in a movie based loosely on the short and troubled life of NBC anchorwoman Jessica Savitch.

Robert Redford will star in "Up Close and Personal," set to start filming in Philadelphia next spring, The Philadelphia Inquirer reported Wednesday.

Some significant story changes have been made, with the main character being a plucky reporter who does not meet Savitch's fate — drowning at age 36 when the car in she was in plunged into a canal outside Philadelphia in 1983.

The script also makes no reference to other aspects of her life: her alleged cocaine use and bisexuality, a short first marriage and the suicide of her second husband five months after their wedding.

"Her life was very, very sad. Do you want to go see that?," Ed Hookstratten, the film's executive producer, asked Entertainment Weekly. He was Savitch's agent.

The film will be directed by Jon Avnet, who directed "Fried Green Tomatoes."

ALBANY, N.Y. — New York state's top court rejected an appeal of a ruling awarding custody of Woody Allen's three children to Mia Farrow.

Court rejects Woody Allen's appeal of custody ruling.

A judge last year gave Farrow custody of the couple's two adopted children, Dylan and Moses, and their biological son, Satchel.

Allen contended on appeal that the custody decision was meant to punish him for his affair with Farrow's adopted daughter Soon-Yi Previn.

On Tuesday, the Court of Appeals dismissed the case on the grounds the matter is not final.

Allen's lawyer, Elkan Abramowitz, said that is because the lower court ordered that Allen pay Farrow's legal fees and the fees have not yet been set.

Once they have been set, the appeal will be refiled, Abramowitz said.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — Noah Beery Jr., who played Jim Garner's father on "The Rockford Files," is recovering from brain surgery.

The 79-year-old Beery underwent the operation Sept. 18 and was sent to a rehabilitation center four days later. He was in fair condition Wednesday.

Doctors said Beery suffered bleeding in the brain, but were unsure what caused it.

Beery was nominated for two Emmy Awards for his work on "The Rockford Files." His film credits include the 1940 version of "Of Mice and Men" and "Inherit the Wind."

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — Madonna's brother has been in jail on the drunken driving charges for the past 11 weeks, unable to post $2,500 bail.

Madonna's brother's in jail on drunken driving charges.

Martin Ciccone, 37, was arrested July 9 after a traffic accident.

"As far as we know, he doesn't have the money," said Michael Salhaney, an assistant Oakland County prosecutor.

Madonna's spokeswoman, Liz Rosenberg, said the star had no comment. "It's personal. It's family," Rosenberg said.

"Maybe she's concerned about him and thinks the best place for him is in the pokey," Salhaney said.

NEW YORK — The Donald definitely won't be invited.

Ivana Trump announced her engagement Tuesday to Italian businessman Riccardo Mazzucchelli, who sealed his proposal with a ring boasting a flawless oval Burmese sapphire flanked by heart-shaped diamonds.

The 45-year-old Czech-born Trump said wedding arrangements aren't final but they plan a March marriage in Palm Beach, Fla., with a second reception to follow in London for their European friends.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Prince Michael of Kent toured the fashionable Geary's boutique, known for its prestigious tabletop accessories, and walked away with a practical Southern California memento.

Instead of Lalique crystal, Baccarat, Waterford or Wedgwood china, Geary's president gave Queen Elizabeth II's first cousin a container of the store's best-selling item — Quake Wax.

The sticky substance is used to secure precious breakables when earthquakes strike. Quake Wax saved many of Geary's collectibles during the Los Angeles earthquake last January.

White House regroups for Round 2 on selling health-insurance reform

By Michael Wines
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — With funeral rites barely over for the year's effort to overhaul health insurance, Hillary Rodham Clinton and other White House officials are talking inside and outside the administration about why they failed and how a pared-back proposal might be sold next year.

How much it would be pared back and how it might be sold, will not be decided until November, after elections determine how many Democrats will be in Washington next year to offer support.

A senior White House official who insisted on anonymity called the discussions strictly informal: Even the most basic issues, including whether the Clintons should put their names on a new plan, will not be resolved until after Congress goes home and serious work on the 1996 federal budget begins early this winter.

Still, Mrs. Clinton is already meeting with the private groups that were the administration's strongest backers in this summer's crusade for health care legislation, telling them not to despair and asking their advice for a future effort.

White House and congressional officials said in interviews that they are in agreement on two points: If they do not try again next year to overhaul the health insurance system, many voters who expect Clinton to make good on his campaign promise will exact revenge at the polls. And if a health-care overhaul does not become law, the federal deficits that Clinton has bragged of cutting will begin to grow again.

"Health-care reform is going to remain not only a social imperative, but a fiscal imperative as well," said Gene Sperling, a senior official of the National Economic Council. "It is still the most logical, the most sound way to bring down the rising costs of federal health care spending."

How much plan will be pared back, how it might be sold will not be decided until November.

Experts say the explosive growth of the Medicare and Medicaid programs, which offer heavily subsidized health care to the elderly and the poor, are most responsible for the annual deficit.

But with top officials consumed by Congress' last gasps and the midterm election campaign, neither the White House nor Democratic lawmakers have made much effort yet to prepare a health-care strategy. "Presumably, this will stay high on the agenda," said a senior White House official.

He and others said no one has examined the potential scope of legislation, whether it would be written in the White House or Congress, how it would be marketed to voters and lawmakers, or even whether the Clintons would place their personal stamp on it, as they did this year.

Mrs. Clinton and White House chief of staff Leon Panetta met last week with other high-ranking aides to discuss their failed legislative campaign and the odds facing a renewed effort next year, officials said, but no decisions were made.

And Mrs. Clinton has been making the rounds of the private groups that lobbied on behalf of the administration's health care package this summer, offering sympathy and soliciting advice.

Dr. Irwin Redlener, president of the New York-based Children's Health Fund, said Tuesday that he told Mrs. Clinton in a meeting earlier this month that his group plans to support "Kids First" legislation next year that would extend health insurance coverage to all children.

At a meeting a year ago, Mrs. Clinton argued to him that the best way to help children was to enact universal insurance coverage, Redlener said.

He said of his recent meeting with Mrs. Clinton: "What I found was a person who was still incredibly committed to the big goals of fixing the health care system and getting to the point where she can again begin talking about universal coverage and access guaranteed to everybody. But she did say to me that the idea of getting children covered first was a very acceptable first step."

Redlener added that Mrs. Clinton "was frustrated and disappointed, certainly, but nowhere near giving up on this."

There is no shortage of advice on what to do next.

Moderate Democrats say the urgency of the deficit problem — and the strong prospect that the next Congress will be more conservative and pinchpenny — offers the Clintons an opportunity to cast an overhaul of the health care system as a budget issue rather than a new government social program.

White House officials call that one of several options, and said the domestic agenda to be presented to the next Congress may well include other programs — welfare overhaul, deficit reduction and so-called investments in the national infrastructure — that would dovetail with an attempt to control health care costs.

But some say that tack would only put the administration at odds with groups that supported this year's health-care crusade, like the American Association of Retired Persons.

Family sues, says carpet sickened all

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Linda Sands and her family say their health took a sharp turn for the worse when new carpet was installed nine years ago.

Now they're suing, in a case being watched closely by both sides in the national debate over so-called indoor air pollution and its causes.

The family contends their troubles began in March 1985, when 130 yards of carpeting was installed in their renovated home.

Mrs. Sands testified twice before congressional committees, claiming symptoms including shortness of breath, headaches, loss of sleep, immune system disorders and burning eyes, nose and throat.

A new round of testimony began Tuesday in Superior Court in Washington County, where the family is suing carpet maker Dorsett Mills of Dalton, Ga.; a company that made the carpet backing; and the Vermont installation company.

Stephen Sands Jr., 24, testified Tuesday that since the new carpet first made them ill, his mother has frequent problems with shortness of breath when exposed to a variety of substances.

House to vote on less favorable bill to end labor dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee on Wednesday took the first step to removing baseball's antitrust exemption, approving a limited bill that deals only with labor matters.

The bill, scheduled for a vote today by the House Judiciary Committee, would give baseball players the same legal status as athletes in other sports if owners unilaterally impose work rules, such as a salary cap. Baseball owners have been exempt from antitrust laws since a 1922 U.S. Supreme Court decision.

"This is an historic day. For the first time in the history of Congress, a subcommittee — and tomorrow a committee — has voted to remove an exemption that has existed for over 50 years," said Rep. Mike Synar, the Oklahoma Democrat who sponsored the bill.

Rep. Jack Brooks, the Texas Democrat who chairs the House Judiciary Committee, said baseball was "on the verge of being destroyed or worse — written off by the American public."

"The barons of the game appear to have forgotten the fiduciary respect of a public trust," he said.

However, two key provisions the union wanted were deleted before Wednesday's vote by the Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on economic and commercial law.

The first eliminated what amounted to an automatic injunction against a salary cap until any lawsuits are decided. The second left it up to the courts to determine whether the union would have to decertify before

Hurley testifies

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Bobby Hurley of the Sacramento Kings testified Wednesday that he remembers only "bits and pieces" of the collision that almost killed him last December. Hurley, the Kings' first-round draft choice last year, blamed the other motorist. He said he saw no traffic when he pulled onto a dark road near Arco Arena after a game last Dec. 12. "As I was through the midst of the intersection, in a split second, I noticed maybe a taillight, but definitely not headlights, and I knew I was going to be struck then," Hurley said in Sacramento County Superior Court. "It was a very quick thing, I didn't have much time to react. It was right on top of me."

Daniel Wieland's station wagon was traveling at about 55 mph when Hurley's four-wheel drive vehicle turned into Wieland's path, attorneys said. Wieland, 38, is charged with reckless driving causing injury. He could face up to six months if convicted of the misdemeanor. Police claimed Wieland was driving without headlights.

Sanders injured

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — Cornerback Deion Sanders twisted his left ankle during a San Francisco 49ers workout on Wednesday, going down in a heap during a pass coverage drill. Sanders, who returned an interception 74 yards for a touchdown in Sunday's 24-13 victory over New Orleans, was taken off the field in a cart and began treatment for the injury. "I've got a little lump in my stomach right now, or my throat or whatever. I can't overreact to it right now because I don't know how bad it is," San Francisco coach George Seifert said.

Ace of clubs

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — No wonder why Harold McLaren likes the eighth hole at Tanner Valley Golf Club. While most golfers play all their lives without a hole-in-one, the 60-year-old McLaren recently came up with his fourth career ace on Tanner Valley's par-3, 125-yard No. 8. "It's my favorite hole now," McLaren said. The first time he accomplished the feat was on Aug. 15, 1989, using an 8-iron. On May 30 of this year, he did it again with an 8-iron. On Sept. 20, McLaren used a 9-iron for the ace. One day later, he made his fourth. McLaren said he has made six career aces, five of them at Tanner Valley, where he has been a member since 1971.

Norv invades Valley Ranch

■ Redskins' coach Norv Turner gets a crack at his former offense Sunday and the Cowboys are nervous.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys are nervous about someone who knows them better than they know themselves.

He knows their signals. He knows their calls. He knows their tendencies.

The spy isn't at Valley Ranch this week as the Cowboys prepare for the Washington Redskins. But he might as well be.

"Norv knows us. He knows our weaknesses and he knows our strengths," said quarterback Troy Aikman. "We're running his offense aren't we?"

Indeed. Norv Turner, the Washington coach, fashioned the Cowboys offense into a defense-killing machine.

Dallas players are wearing two Super Bowl rings courtesy of the way Turner's offense handled the Buffalo Bills' respected defense in the past two world championships. Aikman and Emmitt Smith, the three-time defending NFL rushing champion, blossomed under Turner's play-calling.

Ernie Zampese, the current offensive coordinator for the Cowboys, taught Turner everything he knows when both were with the Los Angeles Rams.

"It's kind of a strange situation going against Norv," Zampese said. "Maybe we can think up something new he hasn't seen."

Wide receiver Michael Irvin said he hates the idea of matching wits with Turner.

"It's going to be tough coming out of our slump against someone who coached us a few years," Irvin said.

Smith added: "We have a great respect for Norv. He helped make us what we are."

Coach Barry Switzer said the Cowboys are going to change their signals. Dallas doesn't use the radio helmets because Aikman doesn't like them.

"Send a message to Norv and tell him we're not going to use the same system, particularly during the two-minute drill," Switzer said. "There are some situations in our red-ball (two-minute) offense when Norv would know what our calls are. We've already changed them.

"You look at the tapes of the Washington games and you see the Cowboys, but you also see plays we don't run because Norv fits things for his own personnel," Switzer said. "I'm sure he'll run some surprises at us."

The award for hardest of the hard-luck football teams this season goes to the Rankin Red Devils, who have lost every quarterback in their Class 1A high school to injury.

And you think you suffered an unfortunate roll of the dice in your fantasy football draft.

"It is (unbelievable) but it's happened to us," said Rankin coach Raul Sanchez, who had to make a mid-season switch to the single wing offense to accommodate his quarterback-less team. "We're looking for bye weeks this year and we don't have them. I've never known of anybody to Houston's Lorenzo White (44) runs against Cincinnati last week chased by Bengals' Steve Tovar (51). White will start this week in place of Gary Brown.

Oilers turn to White

HOUSTON (AP) — An injury cost Houston running back Lorenzo White a chance to play last season, and now an injury is giving him back that chance.

The twisted ankle suffered by starter Gary Brown in Sunday's game against Cincinnati puts White back in the starting lineup for Monday night's game against Pittsburgh.

"Opportunity is what this game is about," White said Wednesday. "It was unfortunate that I was injured last year, but now it's great that I have an opportunity to start and help the team."

White rushed for 1,224 yards two seasons ago and was the starter last year until a hamstring injury gave Brown a chance. Brown responded with a 1,000-yard season.

Could this be another fortunate turn in White's up-and-down career?

"Any time I can get on the field, it's good for me," White said. "I have to go out there and play for the team and for Lorenzo."

White became a free agent at the end of last season and tried to sign elsewhere. To his surprise, there were no takers.

If White is looking to show teams what they missed on national television, he won't say so.

"I feel I can go help the team anywhere," White said. "As far as trying to prove a point to some other teams, that would be selfish on my part. I don't have anything to prove. Under cer-

New allegations mire Baylor basketball program

WACO (AP) — For the Baylor Bears basketball program, scandal has been followed by tragedy. Then more scandal.

A Southwest Conference investigation this summer found 28 unspecified NCAA rules violations. One SWC source called what was going on in the program "pure sleaze."

Now the NCAA is investigating, and Baylor president Herb Reynolds says the Bears should get an official inquiry letter sometime between the middle of October and the first of November.

But things keep getting delayed as new allegations continue to arise.

This week former Baylor guard Jason Ervin told the Houston Chronicle that two former assistant coaches helped him cheat on a correspondence course test.

Ervin, who transferred to Baylor from State Fair Community College in Sedalia, Mo., said former coaches Gary Thomas and Troy Drummond gave him answers to an extra credit exam offered by Southeastern College of the Assemblies of God in Lakeland, Fla.

'Horns stand on brink of return to big time

The University of Texas Saturday's game with Colorado is the biggest game of the decade for the Longhorns.

Petitt

Texas, which is 4-0 for the first time since 1983 when the 'Horns went 11-0 only to let Georgia take a national championship out of their hands with a 10-9 Cotton Bowl win, has a prime opportunity to return to college football's elite with a win.

Colorado comes into Austin as the hottest team in the country. The Buffs are what Dockers were to the thirtysomething crowd in the early 1990's — they're the fad, a must have.

The Buffaloes dismantled a Wisconsin team in front of an ESPN crowd two weeks ago and last week used the Kordell Stewart-Michael Westbrook to stun a national television crowd for a 27-26 last minute win over Michigan.

The timing is ripe for an upset. Is it possible for CU to be fired up for a third straight week against a ranked team ?

A win by Texas would give the school a brief return to the era of Darrell Royal and Earl Campbell while the Southwest Conference could pull off the paper bags.

Colorado 30, Texas 22: This could look like a road-runner-Wiley Coyote cartoon before the day is over. The Buffs have speed at all positions. Texas' loss of Mike Adams coupled with Lovell Pinkney's slow return after a suspension makes it too much for Texas to overcome.

Texas A&M 23, Texas Tech 9: The Aggies, better known as the "Home Boys", have the nation's longest collegiate win streak at 22 games, but which SWC team has the best percentage at College Station ? — Texas Tech. The Red Raiders have won seven on 17 games at Kyle Field, but have lost it's last four games in Aggieland. Make it five straight.

TCU 31, Baylor 24: TCU has recaptured the town of Fort Worth with catchy marketing and a football team that has an explosive offense with quarterback Max Knake and running back Andre Davis. Davis is 13th nationally in rushing with 121.7 yards per game and Knake is 13th in the nation in total offense.

Although Baylor has had the better teams the past decade, the series is only 6-4 in Baylor's favor. This year the Frogs have the talent to play with the Bears while Baylor is still smarting from a physical 10-point loss to Southern Cal last week. Give TCU the nod playing at home.

North Carolina 42, SMU 14: The Tarheels have already defeated one metroplex team this year, a season-opening win over TCU. Now they have a recruiting quiniela with a win at Ownby Stadium. Injuries have depleted the Ponies stable of players. Two starters are lost for the year after a 35-7 loss to Tech last week.

Last week 6-0, overall 22-5.

Bill Petitt is a sports writer for the Reporter-Telegram.

The Houston Rockets and guard-forward Mario Elie reached agreement Wednesday on a new contract. BILL: Fehr says significant step a suit could be heard — a tactic forced on NFL players when they sued after their 1987 strike.

Union head Donald Fehr, testifying before the subcommittee last week, promised that if the original bill by Synar became law, players would end the strike, which began Aug. 12.

"I think this evidences a growing recognition on behalf of the Congress that there are significant abnormalities here that need to be corrected or you're going to continue to have strikes and lockout all the time," Fehr said Wednesday after his meeting with players in Phoenix.

Fehr wouldn't say if the amended bill, if enacted, would lead players to end the strike.

"Even though it's short, bills of this type take some scrutiny," he said. "But I think it's safe to say it's a significant step in the right direction."

Acting commissioner Bud Selig also said he would reserve judgment.

"Certainly this is what the chairman said he was going to do last week," Selig said.

Another House panel, the Education and Labor subcommittee on labor-management relations, is to hold a hearing today on a bill by Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., that would impose binding arbitration if players and owners don't agree on a deal by Feb. 1. The arbitrator, much in the manner of a salary arbitrator, would select the final offer of one side. His decision would be issued by March 15.

"This is precedent-setting for this committee and an indication of the crisis in baseball," Williams said. "I'm not giving up on trying to pass it."

Among those scheduled to testify today are Orza, Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Orel Hershiser, New York Yankees outfielder Bernie Williams, owners' negotiator Richard Ravitch, management lawyer Chuck O'Connor, economist Henry Aaron and law professor Gary Roberts.

On the other side of the Capitol, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said he would introduce language similar to the Synar bill as an amendment to a spending bill for the District of Columbia.

"I think the American people want to see baseball played," Metzenbaum told the Senate on Wednesday. "I don't think we can have a World Series anymore this year, but I think there's a worry players won't go to spring training."

Metzenbaum at first was going to offer the amendment to the appropriations bill for the Labor and Health and Human Services departments but changed his mind after opposition from his colleagues.

"There's a lot of maneuvering behind the scenes," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah., who is supporting Metzenbaum's effort.

Wednesday's subcommittee meeting was attended by just one player, Carlos Baerga of the Cleveland Indians. After Synar introduced his substitute bill, the subcommittee approved the bill in a voice vote and sent it on the full Judiciary Committee.

"My substitute amendment answers all the criticisms owners have told me of the original bill," Synar said. "This amendment truly creates a level playing field."

Fehr has said the exemption partly has caused baseball's eight work stoppages since 1972. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1922 that baseball wasn't interstate commerce and was exempt from antitrust law, a decision last reaffirmed in 1972, when the High Court said it was up to Congress to remove the exemption.

Only one congressman, Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York, the Judiciary Committee's ranking Republican, voiced opposition during the subcommittee meeting.

"What is Congress doing interfering in a labor dispute when there is no national security interest involved?" Fish said.

Tagliabue approves Sanders' deal

■ NFL meeting yields plan for stocking expansion teams Carolina and Jacksonville.

IRVING (AP) — NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue emphatically approved Deion Sanders' contract Wednesday, saying despite protests from other teams the San Francisco 49ers met every salary-cap obligation.

Tagliabue gave his endorsement during a meeting in which the NFL completed plans for stocking the expansion Carolina Panthers and Jacksonville Jaguars.

They will be allowed to pick from a pool of six players from each of the 28 teams and get one extra draft pick per round in the next two years, giving them a total of 14 to seven for each of the existing teams.

But that was of less interest than the latest saga in the 49ers' latest sally into salary-cap manipulation — the outright approval of Sanders' contract.

He signed two weeks ago, returned an interception for a touchdown against New Orleans last Sunday and was named NFC defensive player of the week on Wednesday.

Sanders' contract had been challenged most vociferously by the Saints, the player's latest victim last Sunday. Tagliabue said he had been assured Sanders was not receiving supplemental money from Nike, with whom he has an endorsement contract.

There had been reports Sanders' deal with the shoe company was tied to his signing with the 49ers, a high-profile team with a winning history.

"I have written representation from the 49ers that go beyond the normal representations of a player's contract," Tagliabue said when asked if he had explored a connection between the endorsement deal and Sanders' contract with the 49ers, which contains an option deal in which the club can pay Sanders $5 million next February to keep him.

"There is an absence of any linkage with any such organization," he said in a reference to Nike.

Tagliabue also announced that the owners had approved the move of the Washington Redskins from RFK Stadium in Washington to a new 78,600-seat facility in Laurel, Md., outside the city limits. But he said the move will have no impact on any franchise bid by Baltimore, 60 miles away.

As for the expansion stocking, the owners preferred to give the expansion teams more for the future than for their first year by doubling the number of draft picks.

Next year, for example, they will get the first two picks in the draft, then two between the first and second rounds, then the first and second in the second round. Overall, they will get 14 picks in each of the two years compared to the normal seven for established teams.

However, many of the established teams will get compensatory picks for players lost to free agency sandwiched between rounds.

The stocking draft will be held in mid-February, but isn't likely to produce much. Teams will be permitted to put into the pool only players under contract for 1995, but are likely to accomplish that by signing marginal players to new deals, then exposing them.

Of the six players exposed, only one can have can have more than 10 years' experience and only one can come off the injured reserve list. No kickers or punters can be included, and a team can pull back a player once one has been chosen.

The expansion teams must choose at least 30 players and can take as many as 42.

"I think it's an extremely fair and generous stocking plan," said Carl Peterson, Kansas City's general manager. "I think both expansion teams should be very happy."

The expansion teams didn't necessarily think so.

"The teams in the league are very competitive," said Jerry Richardson, Carolina's owner. "They want the least disruption to their own teams. It's just part of the process of playing in the NFL."

The meetings adjourned without action on realignment, although six plans were examined. If there is no consensus on a plan, Tagliabue will have the power to insert the two expansion teams into existing four-team divisions — Carolina in the NFC West and Jacksonville in the AFC Central.

NORV: Former guru of Cowboy offense returns

(From 1C)

Turner might have been hired as head coach when Jimmy Johnson quit if he hadn't already signed a contract with Washington.

"There's no question in my mind he could have worked well in this organization," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said, although he won't say whether he would have offered the job to Turner.

Jones said he is worried about Sunday's meeting in RFK Stadium.

"I'm a little nervous going against him," he said. "I know how hard he prepares for games. He knows our schemes and that's quite an advantage. I guess we'll just have to live with it. We're concerned."

OILERS: White gets 2nd chance with starting nod

tain circumstances, I got hurt and lost my job."

Now that he's in line to play, White's answers are diplomatic. He felt differently in the summer when he visited Green Bay, Miami and Cincinnati and talked with the Raiders, but got no offers.

He eventually signed a one-year contract with the Oilers.

"I was mad and I was hurt," White said. "I look back on it, I can catch, block and run, that's been proven. It was like I didn't know what they were looking for. I don't know why no one signed me."

White will do his best to put on a good show against the Steelers.

"Every game I go out, I'm trying to do that, play my best," White said. "You never know who is watching. It's just a chance to show that I'm a quality running back and one of the best in the league."

Players reject latest NHL labor contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Players rejected the National Hockey League's latest proposal for a labor contract Wednesday, and the season's start seemed doomed to be postponed before the weekend.

With no negotiations scheduled, NHL commissioner Gary Bettman is expected to brief league governors on the stalled negotiations in a conference call Thursday.

Barring a last-minute breakthrough, it appears Saturday's season start and 12 opening games were all but certain to be called off. Bettman has said the season would not open without a new collective bargaining agreement.

If so, hockey would join baseball as the second sport to be disrupted by labor strife this season. Baseball players have been on strike since Aug. 12, and the rest of the season, including the playoffs and World Series, have been called off.

"They have rejected a plan that represents considerable movement on our part toward making a deal," NHL spokesman Arthur Pincus said.

Bob Goodenow, executive director of the NHL Players Association, said:

"The same objections we had with their proposal previous to this revision still remain ... . There is no question that there are serious problems."

Accused shooter of football players to stand trial

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — A man accused of shooting two California University football players on campus the first day of classes was ordered Wednesday to stand trial in one of the shootings.

After a preliminary hearing, a judge ordered Victor Musgrove of Wilkinsburg, Pa., to stand trial on charges of attempted homicide and aggravated assault in the Aug. 31 shooting of quarterback John Mattress.

Mattress was released from the hospital the night of the shooting and is playing football again.

LPGA stars set for local Pro-Am

ODESSA — The LPGA is coming to Odessa.

The Club at Mission Dorado will host the Permian Basin Oil Show Golf Pro-Am on Monday, Oct. 17, with 19 former and current members of the LPGA committed to play.

The tournament will cost $1,000 per player to enter and proceeds will benefit children's charities. The entry fee is tax dedeductible. The first 72 entries will be accepted.

The tournament has attracted a nice list of LPGA members, including Midland's Judy Rankin, who was the first woman to ever win $100,000 on the LPGA tour in a single season.

Kathy Whitworth, an LPGA Hall of Fame star, is also on the list. Whitworth once played golf at Odessa College and her family still lives in Jal, N.M.

Sandra Palmer, who won the Women's West Texas Open three times, is another LPGA star with local ties.

Other LPGA players expected to compete are Jan Stephenson, Pat Bradley, Amy Alcott, Alice Ritzman, Robin Hood, Missie McGeorge, Hollis Stacy, Alicia Dibos, Judy Dickinson, Amy Alcott, Lynn Connelly, Marlene Floyd, Christi Albers, Sally Little, Pearl Sinn, Shirley Furlong and Jane Geddes.

Western Auto to display racers

Two of racing's top cars will be on public display on Wednesday, Oct. 5, from 4-8 p.m. at Midland's Western Auto store, 3200 Andrews Highway.

Darrell Waltrip's Western Auto Chevrolet Lumina NASCAR entry and Al Hofmann's 5,000-horsepower Western Auto/Slick 50 NHRA Nitro Funny Car can both be viewed on the show date.

Waltrip, the three-time NASCAR Winston Cup champion, drove this car during the 1991 season. The Western Auto stocker is capable of a top speed of more than 200 miles per hour and has logged more than 400 miles on NASCAR road courses.

At Watkins Glen International, Waltrip drove the 700-plus horsepower race car to a sixth-place finish. Waltrip is NASCAR's winningest active driver with 84 victories and has twice been awarded the National Motorsports Press Association's Most Popular Driver award.

Hofmann's 2,055-pound dragster is capable of covering a quarter-mile at more than 300 miles per hour in just five seconds, or travel the length of a football field in less than one second.

During acceleration, Hofmann experiences 5.5 G's or 5.5 times the force of gravity pushing him into his seat. Astronauts only experience 3.0 G's during liftoff.

Angels receive two TL awards

The Midland Angels have received two end-of-the-season awards for Best League Hotel (Midland Hilton & Towers) and Best Visiting Clubhouse, Western Division, in voting conducted by Texas League managers, coaches and players.

This is the first time for Midland to receive either award and illustrates the team's increasing commitment to offer the best accommodations to visiting teams in the league.

The Angels signed a two-year contract with the Midland Hilton & Towers prior to last season, making the hotel the official provider of host accommodations and ground trasportation to all viciting Texas League teams.

The Best Clubhouse award comes one year after the Angels received the Most Improved Clubhouse Award, which recognized the team for building a completely new visiting clubhouse during the 1992-93 offseason.

Other Texas League award winners included the Tulsa Drillers (Best Visiting Clubhouse, Eastern Division and Groundskeeper of the Year) and the San Antonio Missions (Most Improved Clubhouse).

Lee Gray tops frosh volleyball

Lee Gray improved to 3-0 in district play Wednesday with a win over Odessa Crockett in freshman volleyball action. Gray, led by Jennifer Lynde and Maressa Underwood, rallied to stay on top of the district standings with a 5-15, 15-11, 15-3 win. Gray improved to 8-9 overall and will play Odessa Bonham at the Lee freshman gym at 10 a.m. Saturday.

In other action, Odessa Nimitz defeated Lee Maroon 15-6, 15-9. Maroon fell to 2-1 in district play and 15-3 overall. They will play Odessa Ector at 10 a.m. Saturday in Odessa.

SJ sweeps 8th volleyball action

San Jacinto White defeated Alamo Red 15-2, 6-15, 16-14 Wednesday night to improve to a 3-0 district mark in eighth grade volleyball action. White was led from the service line by Lacey Eberly. Red, which fell to 2-4 in district, was led by Jamie Rhon and Kristi West with seven points each from the service line and Andi Cannon and Brandy McGowen on defense.

San Jacinto Green beat Alamo Gray 15-2, 15-12 in other eighth grade action. Ashanti Gildon had nine points on service for San Jacinto while Michelle Acosta and Jenny Crawford were two of the offensive leaders. Offensively for Alamo, Amy Stipanovich and Emily Buchanan led the team.

NCAA allows relief in SAT marks to some

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — The NCAA Presidents Commission, hoping to avoid a second showdown with the Black Coaches Association, voted Wednesday to let schools in some cases choose between their own SAT freshmen requirements and the NCAA's.

Given full authority to set their own test score standards, schools could, in theory, do away with those requirements altogether for a few athletes who don't qualify to compete as freshmen. They still couldn't compete, but they could get scholarship aid and practice.

However, the commission also amended its earlier plan to let athletes who don't meet freshmen eligibility requirements earn a fourth year of eligibility through academic achievement.

"Those who don't meet the standards are very small in number," Judith Albino, chairwoman of the commission, said at a news conference. "We also recognize the differences among our schools and the need for institutional autonomy when it comes to working with students who are at risk academically."

Based on data from earlier years, the NCAA estimated there could be roughly 2,000 partial qualifiers, or about 8 percent of the total 25,000 scholarship athletes in Division I. About 1,400 of the partial qualifiers would be black, the NCAA estimated.

The commission's proposal will go to a vote of the nearly 300 Division I schools at their convention in January.

Houston Davis sees light after streak-ending season

■ After ending national record losing streak in 1993 Houston Davis moved up to Class 5A, where the Panthers are talking possible playoffs.

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

Houston Davis coach Chuck Arnold laughs when he says being in Class 5A has its benefits because three teams per district make the playoffs instead of the two in 4A.

But the fact he's even talking about the postseason is a sign that Davis is finally headed in the right direction after ending the nation's all-time longest losing streak at 80 late last season.

The biggest sign of the Panthers' turnaround came Friday night with a 32-0 homecoming victory over Houston Reagan in their fourth game at the higher classification.

"We can all see where we're going now," Arnold said Wednesday. "It was kind of far away before, but now they can see where we're trying to go. I hope it gives them a sense of accomplishment, something they can build on."

One of the most important reasons for the change has been the first dose of stability since Arnold arrived in 1991 to find only 35 players in the program.

He's still fighting academic problems, the necessity for many students to get jobs to support their families and the fear his better players will use loose transfer rules to switch to more successful schools.

But enough of a nucleus has remained to get some continuity going. Players learn how to play with each other and together they gain the experience necessary to be successful.

"We've been able to keep the kids for three years, where in the past they've given up by this point," Arnold said. "We finally have seniors and juniors on the team instead of just sophomores."

The team also is being better received by the community and the student body. More people are trying out for the team and attendance at games is up.

"We're starting to get numbers in the program: 90 to 100. That's not great for 5A, but it's a tremendous improvement from the 35 or so we started with," he said.

The excitement of last season's record-ending victory cooled off in February when biennial realignment forced Davis to leave Class 4A for 5A, where it was when the losing streak began.

So far, though, Arnold says the jump back to 5A hasn't been too bad.

"I haven't really seen that anybody is down about it," he said. "I think we've handled it OK. One good thing is that percentage-wise you have a better chance of making playoffs."

This season began with losses to Houston Wheatley, which Davis beat to end the streak, and Houston Jones.

Then the Panthers were leading Houston Worthing 14-7 with about seven minutes to play when disaster struck. Four straight turnovers led to four touchdowns and a 41-14 loss.

Next up was Reagan, a team many say has replaced Davis as the worst in town.

"They (Davis players) saw Reagan on tape and felt they could win," Arnold said.

The confidence carried into the game. Davis made no turnovers and easily held on for the shutout victory.

But Arnold feels that confidence may be waning. What should be an upbeat week as Davis goes for a two-game winning streak is instead lacking any emotion as they prepare to face Houston Milby.

"I don't know if it's because it's a Saturday ballgame and there's that extra day, or if it's because grades are due and everybody is worried about passing," Arnold said.

"But this has not been the best attitude week we've had. You'd think it would be.

"I hope we don't sit back and say we've got our win for the season and we can enjoy it now," he said. "I want them to say, 'Let's go for another,' and then go in that direction."

BAYLOR: Bears reeling

(From 1C)

In addition, Ervin told The Dallas Morning News in Wednesday's editions that he was provided a rent-free apartment in Waco in the summer of 1993 and that head coach Darrel Johnson knew about it.

Ervin told SWC investigators about the apartment after receiving immunity from eligibility sanctions.

The allegations follow on the heels of Baylor forward Jerome Lambert revealing in April that he told conference investigators about getting a term paper from Drummond for a course at an Arkansas junior college in the spring of 1993.

Lambert has since transferred to Oklahoma State.

This summer in Waco, a federal grand jury heard testimony from former players about possible wire and mail fraud charges related to the correspondence courses.

And on Aug. 25, talented forward Jerode Banks of Temple, the Southwest Conference freshman of the year, was killed in an automobile accident near Eddy, Texas, throwing the program another jolting setback.

With Banks' death, Johnson lost all seven members of his 1993 recruiting class. Shannon Brantley, Tyrone Davis, Marcus Thompson, Ervin and Lambert, who led the nation in rebounding last season, have transferred. Guard Ralph Malone's scholarship was not renewed.

Brantley, Davis, Thompson and Ervin never played a game for the Bears because their correspondence courses were under investigation.

In addition to the players' departures, Johnson's entire coaching staff left.

Johnson has denied any direct involvement in NCAA infractions, but he won't comment specifically on the various investigations or his job future.

Reynolds said recently that Johnson's leadership of the program would be determined later, adding, "I am determined to take whatever public criticism may exist in order to handle this just as fairly as I know how."

"I'm not going to be stampeded by the public or the media or anyone else to act in any way that I consider to be premature," Reynolds told the Waco Tribune-Herald. "There's just too much at stake."

What's at stake is the life of the proud Baylor basketball program on the eve of its departure to the Big 12 Conference after the 1995 season.

A chronology of recent troubles for the Baylor men's basketball program:

September 1993: Baylor begins an in-house investigation into the men's basketball program after women's basketball coach Pam Bowers submitted memos alleging NCAA rule violations.

Nov. 2: Baylor coach Darrel Johnson says an in-house investigation found minor violations.

Nov. 19: Junior college transfers Jason Ervin, Marcus Thompson, Shannon Brantley and Tyrone Davis are suspended as the Southwest Conference officially enters the investigation.

Nov. 20: Johnson boycotts an exhibition game in protest of the suspensions. The NCAA enters the investigation as an "unofficial observer."

December: Attorney Michael Glazier, a former NCAA enforcement staff member, is hired by the SWC to coordinate its investigation. It is revealed that the investigation concerns questions of academic irregularity in the four players' summer school correspondence work.

March 28, 1994: Bowers receives notification that she will be fired as of May 31.

April 6: Bowers files a $4 million lawsuit against the university.

April 16: Player Jerome Lambert says he was given a theme paper in April 1993 by assistant coach Troy Drummond and that he turned it over to SWC investigators. Assistant Gary Thomas' name is on the paper as recipient in the Baylor basketball office.

April 18: Drummond resigns.

May 5: Lambert tells the Houston Chronicle that Thomas arranged for Lambert's apartment at a reduced rate during the summer of '93 and helped Lambert negotiate the purchase of a car.

June 1: Baylor president Herbert H. Reynolds announces a 544-page report by SWC investigators containing 28 unspecified NCAA rules violations.

June 6: Johnson declines an offer to run the Oklahoma City Cavalry of the Continental Basketball Association.

July 3: The FBI subpoenas documents obtained by the SWC during its investigation of the Baylor program, the Houston Chronicle reported.

Aug. 20: It is reported that federal authorities convened a grand jury that heard testimony from at least one former Baylor recruit regarding the validity of correspondence course credits.

Aug. 25: Forward Jerode Banks of Temple is killed in an automobile accident near Eddy, Texas.

Sept. 25: Ervin tells the Chronicle that former Bears' assistant coaches Thomas and Drummond provided him with the answers to test questions in a correspondence course in 1993.

Sept. 28: Ervin says coach Johnson was aware of a rent-free apartment deal he received during the summer of 1993, according to The Dallas Morning News.

Azinger makes putts, resumes tour

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. — When Paul Azinger finally started making some putts at his own pro am to raise money for cancer research, he decided it might be time to resume his comeback on the PGA Tour.

"The reason I'm here is because I started to hole some putts," Azinger said Wednesday on the eve of the $800,000 Buick Southern Open.

It will be his third tournament since undergoing cancer surgery last December. He missed the cut in the other two primarily because he was having trouble lining up his putts.

"I'm thrilled to be here," he said. "I'm a little tired. I haven't walked 18 holes a whole lot."

Azinger said he shot some outstanding scores at his home in Bradenton, Fla., last week after spending a day with his teacher, John Redman. After a solid round last Thursday, he told his wife Toni that if he felt no pain in his shoulder on Friday, he was going to commit to playing in the Southern Open.

"I'm going to be grinding for the Ryder Cup next year," Azinger said. "I finally have some real goals out here."

Azinger had the most lucrative year of his career in 1993, winning the PGA championship and two other tournaments on his way to a second-place finish on the money list with $1,458,456. His scoring average of 69.75 was the fifth best on the tour.

More Sports/ 10C

The future looked bright.

Then lymphoma was discovered in his right shoulder blade last November. After undergoing surgery in December, he was determined to be on hand to defend his PGA crown.

Azinger entered the Buick Open in Michigan the week before the PGA and missed the cut. He had the same fate a week later at Southern Hills in Tulsa, site of the last major championship of the season.

He spent the next five weeks rehabilitating his shoulder and notified Southern officials last Friday that he would enter.

Prices rebound

NEW YORK — Prices for unleaded gasoline and home heating oil futures headed higher Wednesday in reponse to an industry report showing a decline in domestic inventories of both fuels.

Their strength gave a lift to crude oil prices, even though the American Petroleum Institute inventory report showed a relatively large crude buildup last week.

West Texas Intermediate for November delivery rose 13 cents per barrel to $17.68 on the New York Merc.

Gregory Dreis, assistant vice president for Merrill Lynch Energy Futures in New York, attributed the price increases mainly to the API report, which said unleaded gasoline stocks declined 1.5 million barrels to 209.58 million barrels for the week ended Sept. 23, and that distillate fuel stocks fell about 400,000 barrels to 142.09 million barrels.

Hospitals merge

HOUSTON — The Methodist Hospital System and St. Luke's Hospital, the two major players in Houston's Texas Medical Center, are merging, officials announced Wednesday.

According to a letter of intent signed by both hospitals' boards of directors, the two hospitals will combine to form an integrated health care system known as The Methodist/Episcopal Health Care System.

The proposed system will include a flagship hospital and affiliated properties and organizations — Diagnostic Center Hospital, Scurlock, Smith and St. Luke's Medical Towers at the Texas Medical Center, San Jacinto Methodist Hospital in east Harris County and the Visiting Nurse Association.

The current chief executive officers of both hospitals will serve as vice chairmen of the system for an agreed-upon period of time. A new chief executive officer for the combined system will be recruited.

A joint committee from the two organizations will develop a final merger agreement by the end of this year.

The formal pact still requires the approval of the Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church, the Diocese of Texas of the Episcopal Church and various governmental bodies.

Stocks rally

NEW YORK — Stocks rallied Wednesday amid continued relief that the Federal Reserve did not raise interest rates.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 15.14 to 3,878.18, posting its third consecutive increase.

Unlike the market rallies posted on Monday and Tuesday, which were led by blue chip issues, Wednesday's increases were broad-based. Advancing issues outnumbering decliners by nearly 7 to 4 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big-Board volume totaled 329.65 million shares, up from 290.33 million Tuesday.

■ Durable-goods orders take biggest advance in nearly two years.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Durable-goods orders zoomed in August as demand for 1995 model cars and trucks helped propel orders for big-ticket items to their biggest advance in nearly two years.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday that orders to U.S. factories for long-lasting goods, everything from tanks to washing machines, soared 6 percent in August and more than wiped out a 4 percent decline in July.

While analysts marveled at the continued strength of the economy's manufacturing sector, financial markets appeared to welcome the news. Some analysts said the glow on Wall Street was due more to the Federal Reserve's decision Tuesday not to boost interest rates for the sixth time this year.

Much of the gain in durable-goods demand came from sharp increases in volatile orders for cars and aircraft. Still, the advance was broad-based and covered all major categories — electronic and other electrical equipment, primary metals and industrial machinery.

"I don't know if remarkable is the word, but we're having one hell of a year," said Michael Evans, head of an economic forecasting firm in Boca Raton, Fla. "If we were looking for any sign of a slowdown, we didn't see it in this report. We'll have to wait for 1995 for a slowdown."

Economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch & Co. insisted there are no signs of overheating.

"The industrial sector is healthy, but not accelerating as the August durables report might suggest," he said. Excluding cars and aircraft, he said, the pace of demand is sustainable without an inflationary burst.

Analysts said they are sticking to predictions the Federal Reserve will wait until after the November elections to increase interest rates again — unless a sharp drop in unemployment is announced Oct. 7 or fresh signs of inflation.

Analysts expected durable-goods orders to rebound, but the size of the increase was startling. The August advance was the largest since orders skyrocketed 9.1 percent in December 1992.

In July, durable-goods orders plunged as auto assembly plants shut down for two weeks to retool for the new model year.

With Wednesday's report, orders for items expected to last more than three years are at an all-time high and have risen in 11 of the last 13 months.

The Clinton administration said the increase should not generate inflation fears.

"Investment continues to play a leading role in the ongoing economic expansion," said Commerce Secretary Ron Brown, calling it "a positive sign both for productivity growth prospects and for sustained moderation in inflation."

Financial markets rose. The benchmark 30-year Treasury bond was up, pushing its yield down to 7.79 percent. The dollar was higher and the Dow Jones industrial average gained 15 points.

Digital assistant

Sony Corp. introduced the "Magic Link," a $1,000, one-pound computer in New York, Wednesday. The newest so-called personal communicator or digital assistant, a product category that has encountered trouble finding a market, is the first product to be based on software developed by General Magic Inc., which is aiming to make its influence felt in a number of products.

Strike effects spread slowly to other plants

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. slowed the spreading effects of a strike at a key parts-making complex Wednesday by changing the mix of cars and trucks it builds at other assembly plants.

By evening, parts shortages caused by a strike by 11,500 workers at the Buick City complex in Flint, Mich., had closed only two other GM operations. A third assembly plant was scheduled to close Saturday.

The Buick City plants assemble Buick Park Avenue and LeSabre models and Oldsmobile Eighty-Eights. But they also make V-6 engines, and transmission and suspension parts that go into other GM cars and trucks.

If the strike continues, shortages of those components are expected to shut most of GM's North American operations.

About 6,550 workers at two assembly plants in Lansing, 50 miles southwest of Flint, were laid off late Tuesday, hours after the strike began. They ran out of parts for Buick Skylark, Oldsmobile Achieva and Pontiac Grand Am models.

Southwest Airlines unveils 'Fun Fare' discounts

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Airlines has made the latest move in the air fare chess game.

The airline announced Wednesday that it is offering one-day advance purchases on most of its flights with discounts of at least 50 percent. It is also reviving its "Fun Fare" 21-day advance purchase fare discounts.

Under the one-day advance purchase program, tickets must be purchased before Oct. 13 and used by Dec. 15.

Tickets would be nonrefundable under both programs. However, tickets sold under the "Fun Fare" program could be exchanged for passage on another flight, subject to the 21-day restriction, Southwest spokesman Ed Stewart said.

For example, one-day fares between Houston and West Coast cities would be $99 and from San Antonio to Houston would be $25.

"Southwest has earned the reputation of having the lowest fares in the short-haul market. We also want to be the first call customers make when looking for value on longer routes," said Dave Ridley, Southwest vice president-marketing and sales.

The moves come amid Southwest's ongoing fight for market share among larger carriers.

American Airlines will match the Southwest fare "as we always do in our competitive markets," American Airlines spokesman Tim Smith said.

"Where we compete head to head with them, certainly on the nonstop flights, we will match their fare," Smith said. "We will also be matching on selected nonstop flights — Oklahoma City to Los Angeles, for example."

Also, Lufthansa came out with a half-price companion ticket on their European fares. The companion tickets are available from any of the ten U.S. cities Lufthansa serves to destinations in 19 European countries, including Vienna, Rome, Moscow, Prague, Warsaw, Budapest, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Frankfurt and 13 other German cities.

The fares are good for midweek travel from Nov. 1 to Dec. 14, and Dec. 25 to March 25. Prices for weekend departures are $50 higher. Tickets are non-refundable and must be purchased by Oct. 7, 1994.

Sides square-off over auto rates

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards says that the benchmark automobile insurance rate shouldn't be raised and criticized insurance companies for seeking an increase.

A public hearing on the rate continued Wednesday with consumers and insurance companies on opposite sides.

The Office of Public Insurance Counsel wants a 5.7 percent decrease in the benchmark auto rate, while insurers have asked for increases ranging from 9.8 percent to 15.7 percent.

Richards said that the OPIC recommendation is "closer to the mark than those prepared by the insurance companies."

She noted that insurers were seeking an increase when she took office. "They didn't deserve it then and they don't deserve it now," she said.

The hearing, which started Tuesday, is expected to last several days. The hearing examiners will make a recommendation to Insurance Commissioner Robert Hunter.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Arbitration referees broker-customer disputes

By Bill Doyle

Q: Some time ago, we bought what a broker told us were "Ginnie Maes," fully backed by the U.S. government. After receiving the prospectus too late to change the transaction, we learned what we purchased were not Ginnie Maes.

What recourse does an investor have when a securities broker has given him wrong information?

Doyle

A: About the only recourse left to an investor who feels he or she was wronged by a broker is to take the case to arbitration. The typical agreement a customer signs when opening a brokerage account specifies that any broker-customer disputes will be settled through arbitration.

All stock exchanges and the National Association of Securities Dealers have arbitration procedures, as do several organizations not affiliated with brokerages. It might surprise some people to learn that both the industry-affiliated and non-industry panels get high marks for being evenhanded.

If you are convinced the broker lied to you, my advice is to write the New York Stock Exchange, 11 Wall St., New York, NY 10006; or NASD's arbitration unit, 33 Whitehall St., New York, NY 10004.

If you have a hang-up about going before a brokerage-affiliated panel, try the American Arbitration Association, 140 W. 51st St., New York, NY 10020-4000; Securities Arbitration Specialists, 5070 Highway AIA, Suite 214B, Vero Beach, FL 32963; or Investors Arbitration Services, 20700 Ventura Blvd., Suite 134, Woodland Hills, CA 91364.

From the number of outfits getting into it, you can see this is a growing business.

Q: I am certain a broker who is with a big "wire house" cheated me and my wife. His firm's home office is in New York City. If we take this to arbitration, will we have to go there for hearings?

A: No. Arbitration hearings can be held anywhere in the United States or abroad. The American Arbitration Association has 35 offices and attempts to schedule hearings that are convenient for both sides.

Q: Although I never attended law school and am not a member of any bar association, I have represented myself successfully in small-claims court twice and in traffic court four times.

Can you think of any reasons I shouldn't do the same thing in the arbitration hearing against my smarty-pants broker and his firm, scheduled for next month?

A: The biggest reason is you would be outgunned.

You can be sure the brokerage will show up at the arbitration session represented by one or more attorneys well-versed in securities laws and procedures. If the situation calls for it, the broker and his firm also might trot out accountants and other professionals as expert witnesses.

No matter how strong your case might be, you could lose out on a technicality.

Arbitration procedures are good methods for settling clashes between customers and brokerages. But those hearings do not guarantee customers will come away satisfied.

Here is another thing to keep in mind: Brokerages sometimes win at arbitration -- meaning customers lose. The reason is often that the customers were dead wrong and brought claims hoping to pocket fast profits.

It should come as no surprise to you to hear that some people are "professional litigants." Even though customer-broker disputes are handled in arbitration hearings -- and not in court -- they represent a tempting target for con artists bent on fleecing brokers.

How to use StockQuote Hotline:

1. Call CITYLINE at 560-2400. When prompted, enter Category 9991.

2. At a second prompt, press 2.

3. THEN, for Stocks, press 1. For Mutual Funds, press 2. For Money Markets, press 3. For Market Indices, press 4.

3. When prompted, enter the numerical code of your ticker symbol (i.e., for IBM, enter 43-22-61) followed by the star (*) key. Ticker symbols can be found in Standard & Poor's Ticker Guide, or by calling your broker. Refer to the Alphabet Code listings at left for instructions on converting the ticker symbol into its numerical code. (Quotes are current, delayed by 15 minutes.)

4. To exit the StockQuote Hotline and request another CITYLINE category, press the pound (#) key.

Stock quotes are from the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx and OTC, and are available 24 hours a day.

AREA: Rangers' line grinds out yardage in win over Alpine lose this many quarterbacks (four) in this short a time."

The Red Devils (1-3) have already lost more games in one season than they have since moving to Class 1A in 1987, when they finished 6-4. They scrapped their veer offense, a scheme that took them to the Region I final last year, in favor of a variation of the single wing because their present "quarterback" has never played the position.

Rankin starter Jo'El Armendarez, the team's most promising player, went down in the season's first game with a torn anterior cruciate ligament. Junior varsity starter Heath Lofton then broke an arm in two places against McCamey's JV. And varsity second-teamer Jerry Jackson went down with knee cartilage damage in the McCamey varsity game.

The Red Devils went to the single wing against Garden City last week and third-string junior Tim Watson ran 60 yards for a touchdown on a "quarterback sweep." The next time he ran the play he picked up eight yards and separated his shoulder.

"We're all taking it pretty hard ... but (the players) haven't given up on the season," Sanchez said. "Somehow if we can learn this new offense and keep the glue, keep the team together, you never know what can happen in district."

Junior John Evridge now takes the ball from center. That or the ball is snapped directly to the tailback Juan Bautista.

"Basically it's just a shotgun — snap it back and see what we can do from there," Sanchez said. "(Evridge) is really a running back but he has the best hands on the team."

Rankin's passing game has disappeared with their healthy quarterbacks. The Red Devils have completed only one pass in the last two games. And in the 10-7 loss to Garden City, the Bearkats put eight or nine men on the line of scrimmage to shut down the Red Devils' rushing attack.

Sanchez said his team needs to at least throw the ball, if not actually complete passes, in this week's homecoming game against 0-4 Sanderson.

"We need to throw it at least ten times where we can get people playing back rather than just playing the run-support defense," Sanchez said.

The new offense has pushed the Rankin coaching staff to its limit.

"We keep things basic and give a handout (instruction sheet) a day," Sanchez said. "We're continuing to teach and usually you do all that in two-a-days and the off season. It cuts down on the time you can spend with repetitions."

Rankin's district season is more than a week away. And Sanchez hopes his team can still make its mark in league play. Jackson had arthroscopic surgery and will be back in two weeks.

If the Red Devils can cut down on turnovers, Sanchez may stay with the single wing, even after Jackson returns.

"If we can execute it this week and not fumble the ball, we'll stay in it because we spent so much time teaching it," Sanchez said.

They may be the only team in Texas running the outdated formation.

"If the single wing was a super offense, everybody would be running it," Sanchez said.

For now the little-used formation has found a home on hard luck Rankin's chalkboard.

There's no hard luck in GREENWOOD (3-1), where the Rangers wishbone continues to pile up yardage and wins. Greenwood has rushed for 356.7 yards per game and much of that is due to a offensive line that averages 217 pounds.

Guards Rusty Purser and Eric Pierce both made all-district last year. And center Andy Watzl and tackles Shawn Fietz and Cody Stroud have come through this season.

"All five are real strong kids," Greenwood coach Bob Purser said. "Stronger than we've ever had here."

The Rangers ability to make big plays has also been a key this year, Purser said. In their 48-34 win over Alpine last week, Carlos Lopez knocked down two passes in the end zone and Bucky Smith (11 carries, 150 yards) turned what looked like a loss into Greenwood's final touchdown with a 46-yard run.

The Rangers have a bye week before opening district at home against Reagan County and its 14-game league winning streak Oct. 7.

The only worry in STANTON this week might be whether the Buffaloes (4-0) will be battle tested enough by the time they start district play. The four varsity teams they have beaten are a combined 3-8-1. The Buffs get their best test to date with this week's homecoming game against Iraan (2-2). Stanton running back Jerele Lee has scored nine touchdowns while rushing for 605 yards.

BIG SPRING (2-2) plays at Levelland (3-1). The Steers' Quinton Dickson is second among 4-4A rushers with 535 yards on 106 carries for a 6.0 average.

ANDREWS (0-4) has lost its first four games of the season for the first time since 1975 when the Mustangs went 2-8. The team's last losing season was in '87 when it went 3-6-1. The Mustangs host Lubbock Monterrey (2-2) this week.

LAMESA (2-2) has already improved over last season's winless record, partly because its offense has been much more productive. The Golden Tornadoes totaled 69 points last season and have already scored 105 in four games this year. They host 3A Littlefield (3-1) this week.

GARDEN CITY (1-2-1) hosts Christoval, which is 3-1 in its first season in 11-man after dominating six-man play for years. The two Midland six-man TAPPS teams are on the road. MIDLAND CHRISTIAN (2-2) is at Grandfalls (0-4) and TRINTIY is at Marathon (2-2). Midland Christian held its TAPPS six-man No. 2 ranking this week while Trinity fell from No. 7 to No. 8 after its 33-30 loss to Union.

Midland Christian will play Amarillo Christian at home Oct. 7 on a week which was originally scheduled for a bye.

Whitewing doves spotted outside Rio Grande Valley

FORT WORTH (AP) — Ed Moshek got a big surprise when his retriever, Bullett, brought back a dove he had downed over an Alvarado field — a shock many other hunters in northern Texas might experience this season.

"When my dog brought the bird back to me, I noticed right off that it was a little larger than a mourning dove," Moshek said. "It was a white-winged dove, and it was a juvenile bird at that."

Once found only in the Rio Grande Valley of far southwest Texas, and in eastern Mexico where dense vegetation and irrigated grain fields harbor North America's major whitewing population, the bird is learning to live elsewhere and right alongside the mourning dove, the primary target for most Texas dove hunters.

Waif out of fashion; Glamour back in style

By Amy M. Spindler
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — If Cathy, the comic-strip that's a litmus test of working women's views, is any indication, someone in fashion has some explaining to do.

For two weeks, Cathy's been whining to sadistic retail sales clerks about the new glamour, with the clerks gloating, "It's over! Comfy is out!" and "Out with last year's bare-faced waifs!"

Cathy tracks fashion as if there is an industry conspiracy. Usually, she's wrong.

There is no Yalta summit of fashion's heads of state. Considering what a big business fashion is, and how much money can be wasted when things go wrong, the industry is frighteningly haphazard. That's why so few fashion houses can successfully go public.

Fashion, with its meandering course and dependence on fickle customers with fluctuating bank accounts, doesn't tolerate the sort of business plans that make other industries more predictable and bankable.

BUT A YEAR ago, a frail, washed-out creature called the waif almost did fashion in. And in what may give conspiracy theorists a sense of satisfaction, magazine editors, certain designers and retailers joined forces like characters in an Agatha Christie novel to deal a death blow to the waif look, which most magazine readers and store customers had firmly rejected.

This is the story of the conspiracy last March to haul fashion away from a look that wasn't selling clothes or makeup. In its place is glamour, which has been interpreted as everything from 1940s Marlene Dietrich to 1970s Bianca Jagger.

It explains why the model Kate Moss, in her usual position reigning over Times Square in a Calvin Klein jeans billboard, suddenly looks a lot less like last year's waif and a lot more like Brooke Shields circa 1976.

The September issues of fashion magazines, the business's manifestos for fall, were normally peppy, inspirational roundups of designer notions intended to send readers straight to the mall for a wardrobe update. Not this time.

SEPTEMBER'S ISSUES were a back-of-the-limousine ride to Studio 54, with Helmut Newton, the photographer of that era's most sexually charged photos, as chauffeur. Even Mirabella, which usually offers shelter in a storm of fashion change, showed off leopard prints, fishnet hose, stilettos, fake fur and sequins.

The effect has less to do with designers' runway visions than the way the look was styled. Any woman waving her page from, for instance, Allure magazine's "Dressed to Kill" layout would have a hard time tracking down the Junko Shimada snakeskin jacket that opened the spread (available at Junko Shimada in Paris), or the Kitty Boots patent leather skirt (there was only a phone number listed).

"The 70s revival, the whole Helmut Newton thing, is across five different magazines this month," observed Richard Martin, the curator of the Costume Institute at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

"I can't think of another fashion-magazine moment not seeking differentiation but agreeing on this, which is a New York stylist's take on the world. Why would there be so much consensus about something reaching beyond the fashion per se?"

THE ANSWER lies mostly in the fact that when magazine editors began asking for glamour — particularly the 1970s variety — the collections for fall were already designed. Now stores and designers are playing catchup with their publicity machines, the magazines.

The glamour campaign began during the March fashion shows, when Anna Wintour, editor in chief of Vogue magazine, met with the fashion directors of department stores to spread the word. Vogue, she said, believed in one thing: glamour.

"She first brought it up," said Joan Kaner, the senior vice president and fashion director of Neiman Marcus.

LATER, MS. KANER saw the collection of John Galliano, a designer whom Vogue helped get back on the runway, from finding backing to securing accessories.

"When I saw John Galliano, that was the beginning of it all," Ms. Kaner said. "Having been in this business a long time, you can be told something and you have to respond to it."

Neiman Marcus did respond. Its fall catalogue, timed to the release of the fallr magazines, has elegant script declaring: "Glamour circa 1994."

The next manifestation, the 1970s version of glamour, was epitomized by Marc Jacobs's fall collection, which was photographed lavishly in almost every major fashion magazine.

A-line slip dress is catching on

By Anne-Marie Schiro
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — For years, designers tried to get women back into dresses, but women resisted until they found something they liked: the A-line slip. So now that they have rediscovered dresses, women are likely to move into more covered-up styles for fall.

Calvin Klein has several knee-length bias-cut black styles to choose from, including a wool jersey empire ($550), a sleeveless empire with a pleated skirt ($750), and a long-sleeved wool gauze ($800). Barneys New York has them.

Bergdorf Goodman has A-line jumper dresses by Tocca that might be worn over a turtleneck or under a cardigan. They come in tiny checks or big plaids ($145) and in solid camel, navy or cocoa brown ($165). A gray wool A-line dress with long ribbed sleeves by Jussara Lee is $180, and a sleeveless shift with metallic threads by Impasse is $185.

Henri Bendel has a long-sleeved turtleneck sweater dress in black or gray by Kim & Kelly ($280), a short-sleeved A-line sweater dress in pink or aqua by Case & Co. ($260), and a long-sleeved wool jersey A-line dress in black, red or charcoal by Cathy Hardwick ($300).

Style helps men skirt fashion issue

By Kathryn Bonn

MIAMI (AP) — Will there come a day when a man's three-piece suit includes a kilt instead of a vest? Maybe, if you ask top designers such as Jean-Paul Gaultier, John Bartlett and Donna Karan who regularly send men in skirts down fashion's runways.

In fact, they'd like to see the rules relaxed to the point where cross-dressing is socially acceptable — stylish, even. After all, women already wear pants, so why not a man in a kilt, pareo or sarong?

There's no doubt that in warm weather, bare legs feel great, but to date most American men scoff at the concept of wearing a skirt — except, perhaps, in relaxed settings.

"A sarong or pareo belongs in a certain environment. It's not for all climates, all occasions and all places," says Larry Hotz of Donna Karan, whose menswear collections usually include a skirt or two. "It's for someone with a sort of beach existence, whether they're going away for the weekend or live in that environment."

In Miami's South Beach, where beach and club cultures commingle, men wear sarongs near the water and minis on the dance floor. A mostly gay clientele buys Velcro-closing kilts from Zoo 14, according to store owner Maria Contessa.

Androgyny is in among the club kids who spawned grunge and tied shirts around the waist in a pseudo-skirt look. Now, at Gothic gatherings, long black skirts are the style. Anya, a sales associate at Betsey Johnson's boutique in South Beach — Johnson, by the way, uses male models to show women's wear — says her boyfriend often wears a skirt.

"It's not for the supermarket," she admits, "but lots of guys wear skirts and dresses in alternative clubs and on Gothic nights. Why not? Guys look great in skirts."

Such open-mindedness may be lost on traditionalists, but clothes, like sex roles, aren't as clear-cut as they used to be.

"There has been a loosening of gender distinctions, at least among younger men," says Valerie Steele, who teaches graduate fashion history at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York. "You see a willingness to consider skirts among club kids, kids on New York's Lower East Side, especially the kilt, which is really a male skirt, especially with a heavy boot and other male signifiers."

But pants have been a man's wardrobe staple since the 15th century, when military wear began to include doublet and tights. Defined legs on men replaced genderless long robes, and men have worn some form of leg cover ever since. And, Steele points out, it took 100 years for women to be accepted in pants — a potent symbol of authority men may be reluctant to shed in favor of a mere skirt.

"Pants have all the prestige," Steele says. "Pants equal power. There won't be a groundswell of support for men adopting an item of clothing associated with femininity."

European designers such as Gaultier have experimented with the male skirt for decades, but the idea has never gone mainstream. In high-fashion cities such as New York and Paris, celebrities such as Boy George, Axl Rose and Jaye Davidson of "The Crying Game" have been sporting skirts. But they're not average Joes.

"Most men are terrified of fashion. The idea of wearing anything that exposes them to ridicule is completely opposite from the way they think of clothing," says Hal Rubenstein, men's style editor for The New York Times. "It's hard enough to get men to accept casual Fridays, or wearing a T-shirt under a suit."

Men may not be the only ones resisting. Women who like the idea of baring men's legs might not welcome gender-bending in their own back yard. Even the most open-minded may not want a date wearing a skirt to the company cocktail party.

"This is still crawl time in pushing the boundaries of men's fashion," Rubenstein says. "We're not even into baby steps yet."

Bermuda shorts and Scottish kilts long have given men reprieve from pants. Now for those who have a special flair for fashion, there are men's skirts. This natural tweed sarong is from DKNY's fall line. The natural melange rollneck sweater is also from DKNY.

Coats 'hot' this year

By Linda Gillan Griffin
N.Y. Times News Service

In short, this is the year for long coats. Tales from the coat rack include classic thrillers — long greatcoats that swish around the ankles, much in the manner of something a gendarme might wear.

Do not, however, take this to mean you'll be tied into the new longer hemlines. Designers showed great coats over every length from micro-miniskirts to heel-swishing trousers. One of the key looks was matching a long coat to a jacket or vest, skirt and tights.

And while anything goes in the color department, neutrals have been the most popular with store buyers. If you're hankering for a fuchsia coat, however, treat it as a neutral and wear it with everything.

Camel's hair and camel-colored coats and jackets are a popular choice. Buy it long or jacket length and wear it over everything, from tartan walking shorts to gold lam evening gowns.

Camel combines with many other colors — brown, gray, black, cream, red and even navy, not to mention plaids, patterns and eye-popping colors, the latter for a more modern touch.

Shearling is the coat choice for the truly trendy this winter, possibly one with ragged edges. An ultra-warm material, shearling is the tanned hide of a recently shorn sheep or lamb and traditionally is considered a street version of fur.

You'll find mostly brown, black and gray shearlings, and probably more vests and jackets than full-length coats.

An alternative to shearling, and packing almost as much fashion power, is the leather jacket or coat in brown, black, saddle-tan, smooth leather, suede or pigskin.

Some leather jackets are reversible this year, lined in matching fleece with antique-look toggle closures.

The parka look lives. Hanging on from the last couple of winters, quilted coats, jackets and vests have become mainstream, and the puffier, the better.

Bright, pastel, puffy silk jackets topped menswear patterned pantsuits on the runways. And bright, emergency-colored parkas gang up with sportswear and even evening clothes.

More subtly colored silks, in rich, solid tones or Oriental brocades, lend themselves to ethnic dressing but once again can double as evening wear.

Patent leathers and shiny vinyls are as high-fashion as shearling for winter but definitely more of a trend statement.

Styles don't stop at just black or white. Bright reds, pastels and metallic gold and silver can be found on the coat racks.

Reading like a Little Red Riding Hood story, the cape returns — romantic, long or short and playful. Capes are particularly effective evening dressing — or anytime you wander onto the moors.

DEAR ABBY

Blood donors are good for countless reasons

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: You may be one of the lucky ones who have never been rushed to a hospital following an accident that required a blood transfusion. However, there are countless people who were not that lucky. In any case, if you've never thought of being a blood donor, please consider this:

Van Buren

WHAT GOOD IS A BLOOD DONOR?

A blood donor is good for people who go through windshields and red lights. For somebody with leukemia. For people being operated on. For barefoot kids who aren't careful. For people who are into feudin' and fightin'. For hemophiliacs and daredevils. For people undergoing dialysis while waiting for a kidney transplant. For people who fool around with guns. For little kids who manage to uncap a bottle of something poisonous.

A blood donor is good for people who have been badly burned. For new mothers who need transfusions. For new babies who need a complete change of blood supply. For people having open-heart surgery. For cancer patients. For people with severe hepatitis and anemia. For kids who fall out of trees or whatever. For anybody at any age with bleeding ulcers. For people who were in the wrong place at the wrong time.

A blood donor is good for life!

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it is ethical for a physician's wife to work as a receptionist in her husband's office?

I go to two doctors whom I like very much, but I don't want their wives to know my medical history or the status of my bills. Some wives are even worse than regular receptionists when it comes to protecting the boss from patients' calls and messages.

Do you think they should work in the office? — NO NAME, SMALL TOWN

DEAR NO NAME: Many young physicians, when they first go into private practice, hire their wives (some of whom are nurses) to assist them in the office. The wives of physicians are intelligent enough to realize that their husbands' practice would suffer should it become known that someone in the office blabbed about a patient's medical history or credit.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married on May 2, 1992. Since then, we have been invited to 13 weddings. The last one wasn't in our budget, so instead of buying a wedding gift, I found a lovely gift (still in its original gift box) we had received for our own wedding.

I rewrapped it carefully, and sent it to the bride and groom. (The groom was a relative of my husband who lived in an adjoining state, and we rarely saw them.)

Two weeks after the wedding, we received a telephone call. The bride and groom wanted to know if my husband and I had given them a wedding gift, because they couldn't seem to find one from us and feared it had been lost. Finally, they asked what we had given them, and, after we told them, they responded, "Oh, yes, we received that gift, but the card inside said 'Jane Doe.'"

I almost fell to the floor. 'Jane Doe' is the friend who gave that gift to us!

I'm sure my husband and I aren't the first couple to have recycled a gift, but it was quite embarrassing.

P.S. The bride and groom sent us a nice thank-you; inside, it read: "And please thank Jane for us, too."

Abby, if you use this letter, sign it ... CHECK THE BOX BEFORE YOU WRAP

No-makeup makeup put to test

By Emily Prager
N.Y. Times News Service

The minute my friends and I read about the new Norma Kamali no-makeup makeup, we had to try it.

Naturalism was promised, ease, a healthful glow. For some reason, this idea struck a chord. It had something to do with living in the mid-90s, a certain premillennial exhaustion with artifice perhaps.

Or possibly it's just that it was new. A new makeup concept that would — what? What would it do? Make us more "bee-yoo-tee-ful" as Stimpy might say in one of his cartoons? Well, ah, yes. That's part of it.

But it was the no-makeup aspect that really got us. It reminded me of the time, in the 80s, when Max Factor first came out with colorless or invisible mascara. I had to try some right away, and as I left the store, I thought, "Great, I've just bought the emperor's new mascara." I immediately imagined a line of cosmetics for people like me: Soft Touch — for the woman who will buy anything.

But the colorless mascara turned out to be useful. It accented your eyelashes without leaving raccoon rings under your eyes. And it did signal the beginning of an entirely new type of techno cosmetics, appearing around the time that beauty regimens became beauty systems and every cosmetic suddenly had a purpose besides adornment.

Where once cosmetics softened and soothed, now they protect and hydrate.

But of course, whether women really need makeup at all is another matter entirely. Feminist theorists like Susan Faludi and Naomi Wolf contend that women are more or less browbeaten into wearing it, and certainly there is truth in that.

"It's just so much fun playing with all the stuff," said my friend Hilary Mills, a writer. "This reminds me of those fake makeup sets we used to get when we were little."

I agreed. We had just received our Norma Kamali makeup kits — available by mail order from Norma Kamali Beauty at (800)452-6254 — and examining the different products was remarkably thrilling.

Inside the box was a Day Oil-Free Moisturizer, a Night Oil-Free Replenisher and something called the Self-Enhancer. These were the skin creams. The cosmetics included the Tone Shaper and Blush Toner, mascara, eyebrow fixative, a lip outliner pencil, a two-color eyeliner pencil, three lipsticks and a lip gloss. Also included was a bushy little applicator brush and a video, which explained how the system worked.

You use the day and night creams every day and the Self-Enhancer, a kind of skin-dye-cum-moisturizer, every other night. The creams contain pentavitin, which Ms. Kamali calls a "moisture magnet" and "moisture reservoir," and A.P.T., a substance derived from red Hawaiian algae, which Ms. Kamali describes as "promoting the benefits of retin A and alpha hydroxy without the irritation." Oddly, there is no cleanser. You simply use a washcloth and warm water.

The cosmetics were equally streamlined. After the day moisturizer, you brush the Tone Shaper, a beige powder, over your face, followed by the blusher. Unlike conventional cosmetics, there is no foundation and no concealer, because the creams are meant to leave your skin so flawless and rosy that the heavier stuff is not needed.

What is fascinating about the Kamali system is that there is one set of creams and makeup colors for everyone, no matter the complexion.

A month later, my friend Gully Wells, a writer and editor; Hilary, and I got together to compare findings. We all loved the creams. They performed exactly as promised, making our different skin types dewy and toned, noticeably so. And they were nice to wear. We all liked the Self-Enhancer skin colorer, though we did wonder what it would look like in the dead of winter when we would all be fish-belly white.

We loved the makeup as well, though Gully and Hilary missed wearing foundation and cheated by wearing a little. We found the powder and blush to be very successful, and when we were all dolled up, we did look so soft and natural that I suggested we apply to Ralph Lauren to be models. But my friends wished to remain in publishing.

AT WIT'S END

Fond memories fueled by fat

By Erma Bombeck

The story about the woman who drove a 1984 Chevy van called the Lard Car across the country, fueled by used french fry oil, stirred all kinds of memories within me.

Bombeck

Before they discovered that lard clogged your arteries, I thought it was the most flavorful shortening around. Pie crust made from it was light and flaky, and my week wasn't complete as a kid until we drove out to the processing plant and got cracklings wrapped in newspaper soaking with grease. (Don't gasp and pass out; they were the forerunner of George Bush's pork rinds.)

During World War II, we were asked to save our oil (including bacon fat) and turn it in to the government. I have no idea what the government did with it — maybe fed it to the enemy — but we all did it to win the war.

Today, lard is a four-letter word that is not used in front of the children — or even on television. I have a friend who still saves bacon grease to make popcorn, and it's the best stuff you ever put in your mouth. Native Americans use it to fry bread. You don't even think about it. It tastes so good, you just spread honey over it and experience nirvana.

It is not the first time vegetable or animal fat has been poured into fuel tanks. It's just that this is the first cross-country demonstration of recycled cooking-oil fuel. It figures that it would be something I like. Why not broccoli or rhubarb juice?

But what I really remember when I hear the word "lard" is my grandfather, who was probably one of the first to drive a Lardmobile. It was during the Depression years. He and my grandmother owned a small red coupe and bought gas for it 50 cents at a time. Grandma was a proud lady who hated to ride in a dusty car, so she told him to clean it up for a ride they were taking that afternoon.

Not having the money for a can of car wax, my grandfather substituted lard. The car shone like a silver dollar. As they were headed out to the country, the late afternoon sun melted the lard, making it smell like a meat-processing plant. The lard slid slowly down the fenders and eased down the windshield from the roof. As Grandma's elbow slid off the door, she snapped, "What did you use on this car?" When she discovered it was lard, she couldn't believe what she had married. No one noticed the lard when they reached their destination, as the dust of the road clung to the car like a magnet.

If Grandma were alive today and read about the Lard Car, she would say, "If the fool had put it in the tank instead of on the fenders, he'd have died rich!"

NOVENA PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT. Holy spirit you who make me see everything and shows me the way to teach my ideas, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones your perpetual glory. AMEN Than you for your love towards me and my loved one. E.S.
