LOEFFLER CASE WAS OPENED LAST MONDAY

The case of the State vs. Emil A. Loeffler, charged with the killing of Buck Gardner last August, was called for trial on Monday of this week.

The State was represented by District Attorney George Christian, and the defense by Coke R. Stevenson, M. E. Blackburn, Alfred P. C. Petsch of Fredericksburg, Frank Hartgraves of Menard and Weaver H. Baker of Junction. J. B. Randolph was an attorney for the prosecution.

The special venire of 72 men were exhausted and ten additional men were summoned before a jury was selected. The following constitute the jury in this case: A. J. DeSpain, W. H. Dunk, Will Amaon, Ernest Amaon, W. H. Keen, C. B. Hardeeman, J. F. Gentry, Otto Fisher, F. T. Spence, John Robbins, John Dagen and Taylor Walton.

Many witnesses were examined during the first two days, many of whom were character witnesses, as to the character and reputation of the deceased.

The defendant was placed on the stand shortly after noon Tuesday. His testimony dealt with the events leading up to the killing and of the effort he had made to avoid trouble. A surprise feature of the defendant's testimony came near the end, when on cross examination he told how he had taken the case before the county and district attorneys and the February, 1922 Grand Jury, and had asked them to help him devise some means of avoiding serious trouble which seemed to him to be coming on. He stated that he asked the advice and assistance of the district attorney, who had advised him of his rights under the law to protect himself.

The case was closed Tuesday evening. The court delivered his charge to the jury the following morning, and each side was allowed two and one-half hours for argument.

J. B. Randolph opened for the State, prefacing his remarks by stating that the opposing counsel was composed of Jews, Gentiles and Germans. Only slight reference was made to the evidence and law applicable to the case. He was followed by Attorney Frank Hartgraves, who read the court's charge, and dealt at length with its provisions, later taking up the testimony. Following him, Mr. Petsch spoke for more than an hour, reviewing the testimony and referring to the insinuations and conclusions of the prosecuting attorney. After the speech of Mr. Petsch, the court was recessed until after lunch.

The first speaker of the afternoon was County Judge Weaver H. Baker, who was followed by District Attorney Christian. For about an hour and a quarter he reviewed the evidence in the case and went over the provisions of the court's charge. He asked for a conviction, but did not ask the jury for any particular penalty to be assessed.

The case went to the jury at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon, and as this paper goes to press, no verdict has been reached.

Alfred P. C. Petsch, prominent Gillespie County attorney, and one of the principal stockholders of the Fredericksburg Publishing Co., was here during the week, and was one of the counsels in the Loeffler case.

Miss Bonnie Cooper of London left last week for Eden, where she is a member of the school faculty.

RESUME OF DISTRICT COURT FIRST WEEK.

As stated last week, on account of the fact that no court was held at the regular February term, the docket was very heavy for this term, some seventy-five cases were on file.

The Court, on motion of the District Attorney, or at request of plaintiffs, dismissed sixteen criminal and civil cases, and twenty-four cases were continued by agreement or by operation of law.

The following divorce cases were taken up and divorces granted:

Wm. B. Wilson vs. Lila Mae Baker Wilson; Mabel Busby vs. T. R. Busby; W. J. Docwra vs. Julia E. Docwra; Cora Lula Adams vs. John M. Adams; and L. W. Chadwick vs. Emma Chadwick.

The following cases were heard and judgments given to plaintiffs:

Junction Hardware Co. vs. A. M. Terry et al.; First National Bank of Junction vs. Cornell and Hunt et al.; Junction State Bank vs. J. N. Maddux and Irve Ellis; Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. vs. T. B. Reynolds and L. S. Hoggett; Schreiner-Hodges Co. vs. E. F. Kelley; Junction Hardware Co. vs. T. M. Terry and T. B. Reynolds; Mrs. Virgie Luckie vs. E. M. Burt; Junction State Bank vs. Z. H. Eppler and J. W. Roberts; Commercial Trust Co. vs. F. M. Chase; A. J. DeSpain vs. L. A. G. R. and A. J. Ivy; First National Bank of Junction vs. F. M. Chase; Junction State Bank vs. F. M. Hodges; J. F. Burt vs. R. T. Amberson; Allie and A. J. Ivy vs. R. R. Rivers; I. W. McDonald vs. G. W. Hardesty; Chas. Schreiner Bank vs. S. L. Jeter et al.

The following cases were heard and judgments given to defendants:

J. C. Strubling vs. Hoggett & Wright et al.; Peoples State Bank of Ranger vs. W. R. Richardson et al.

In the case of the State vs. K. D. Richardson, charged with burglary, defendant was given a five-years suspended sentence, and in the case of the State vs. K. D. Richardson, charged with selling intoxicating liquor, the defendant was acquitted. In the first case above mentioned, Dave Jacobs, a State witness failed to appear and the Court assessed a fine of $50 against him.

Jim Reese, charged with transporting intoxicating liquor was given one year in the penitentiary. Jim Turman, charged with transporting intoxicating liquor, was given one year in the penitentiary. Both Turman and Reese were indicted by the Grand Jury last week.

The petition of Miss Stella Whittle, for naturalization as a citizen of the United States, was heard and Miss Whittle was granted citizenship. She is a native of Australia.

FAMILY RE-UNION.

At the Joe Bishop home in the north part of town this week the members of that family enjoyed a reunion. This was the first time all the family have been together in more than twenty years.

The following were present: Ruck Bishop, wife and son, of Carta Valley; Joe Bishop, Jr.; Mrs. J. E. Byrd and children of San Antonio; Mrs. Bart Johnson of Comanche; Mrs. Ed. Fleming and two children of Telegraph; Mrs. R. J. Felps and children; Mrs. Stella Cavaness and son were present and are granddaughter and great grand son of Uncle Joe Bishop.

THE NATION'S BIRTHDAY.

We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

Thus read the preamble of the greatest document of human liberty that the world has ever known—The Constitution of these United States, one and inseparable now and forever. It is the organic law of more than one hundred and ten millions of people. So well did the forefathers understand the needs of America, and so well did they define the rights and privileges of a people, destined to become the greatest nation on earth, only about a score of minor changes have been necessary to meet the growth and development of this nation during its history of one hundred and thirty-six years.

At Independence Hall in Philadelphia, 136 years ago, next Monday, a Convention of delegates from twelve of the original thirteen colonies, adopted the present Constitution. George Washington presided over this memorable Convention, which was in session from the middle of May to the middle of September, 1787.

One of the famous leaders in that long fray, which took the form of a convention held in solemnly-pledged secrecy in the same historic room in Independence Hall where eleven summers before, the Declaration had been signed, remarked to his neighbors as the Constitution was being enrolled that all through the sessions of the convention he had been looking at the picture of a sun painted on the back of the presiding officer's chair. He had wondered whether that sun was rising or setting; so grave was the crisis in his country's affairs that he could not foretell:

"But now, at length, I have the happiness to know that it is a rising, and not a setting sun."

That classic touch of "human interest" came from the convention's oldest deputy, then nearly eighty-two and so feeble that he had to request a colleague to read the brief speech he had prepared for the occasion. The "American Socrates," he had been called—Dr. Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania. The chair to which he referred was that reserved for the president of the convention, a deputy from Virginia, Gen. George Washington. Among other leaders in that fray were Jas. Madison, Alexander Hamilton and Gouverneur Morris in company with so many other eminent "makers of America" that the historian Bancroft rates their invention as the ablest known in American history.

GRAND JURY STILL IN BUSY SESSION.

The Kimble County Grand Jury for the September term of District Court, has been a very busy one and found it necessary to continue their work into this week.

Beginning last Tuesday, they have been working diligently each day and had not adjourned yesterday, as the Eagle went to press.

So far, 10 bills have been found.

A. E. Nauwald of the Luckenbach Hardware Co., of Menard was here this week.

CHRONICLE PRAISES ROAD KERRVILLE TO JUNCTION

The following is an article that recently appeared in the editorial column of the Houston Chronicle, and came to the Eagle as the courtesy of Mr. Marion E. Brock of Houston. Mr. Brock has been spending his vacations here for several years, and writes that he will be here soon to spend another vacation. The Houston Chronicle has been very generous in space allotted to write-ups of this section of the country and Houston probably furnishes more vacationists in this country than any other Texas city—Editor's Note.

"A Triumph of Public Spirit." "The fifty-seven miles of public road from Kerrville in Kerr County to Junction in Kimble County is a triumph of that kind of public spirit and unselfish public service which deserves editorial recognition and commendation."

"Public roads of gravel and clay and rock and macadam are being planned and built in many sections of Texas, and it is a work interest in which extends far beyond local bonds, and the men who built the Kerrville-Junction road have set an example worthy of State-wide imitation."

"Bonds to the amount of $200,000 were voted in 1918, and there were those who advocated their sale at 75 cents in order to hasten the work."

"The county judge and county commissioners stood firm against all appeals for nearly if not quite, four years, and the bonds were sold at par."

"Like every other enterprise in that section of Texas, the name of that grand old man, Charles Schreiner, was honorably and helpfully associated with the building of the road."

"The work presented difficult engineering problems and the procuring of the right of way required time and patience and infinite tact, but it was carried on in a spirit that no obstacles could daunt, and it is today complete, and complete untainted by jobbery or graft, but as a monument to official fidelity to duty and to unofficial citizens who gave unselfishly their services to promote the public convenience, comfort and pleasure."

"The road is well nigh as smooth as a city street, it is marked by graceful curves, with strong railings next to the bluffs, with long graceful declines and easy ascents, with the river on one side and the low range of mountains, clad in vivid green, on the other, and clear purpling, dashing spring-fed streams running under the bridges, or crossing the road, on a level with the wheels of a car where no bridge is necessary."

"The mail car, a large and comfortable one, makes the trip easily in three hours though serving three postoffices and fifty rural mail boxes, and the fare only a trifle more than it would be if the trip were made by rail."

"The men responsible for so valuable a work so well done deserve the thanks of all the people of Texas for their enterprise, public spirit and official fidelity. They have set a lofty standard of service."

Ex-Gov. W. P. Hobby and wife, Judge Bryan and Miss Florence Stratton spent a part of last week at the L. Beasley ranch. Miss Stratton is a niece of Mrs. Beasley.

Mrs. C. Gardner Franks of Rocksprings is the guest of Mrs. Coke R. Stevenson and other friends here this week.

AMERICA'S GREATEST INDUSTRY OPENED.

The greatest industry of this country is about starting up, to run for nine or ten months. It is one in which there is no strikes; it depends upon child labor, but its finished product is good citizenship. That industry in the American school.

The American people, whose motto sometimes seems to be, "Let George do it," have a way of turning over the whole responsibility for this great idealistic and practical enterprise to teachers and school boards. They kick vehemently if the children are not well educated, yet they never ask if the success of this undertaking does not depend in large part on home co-operation.

Teachers and school boards who have to contend with parental indifference, find that their plant turns out only an indifferent product.

The success of school operation can be greatly promoted, and the children can be prepared for more useful and successful futures if the homes will co-operate with school management in these two ways:

1. Urge your children to make their school work their first interest. Do not allow too much party going, late hours, and other distractions.

2. Back up school discipline. When the pupils complain they are not fairly treated, hear the teacher's side before forming an opinion.—Exchange.

STUDENTS WHO LEAVE FOR OTHER SCHOOLS.

The following students left this week, or will leave the first of next week, for the various schools named:

To Howard-Payne at Brownwood, Bill Bissett, Pat Beasley, Kellis Wolf, Shelby Jones, and Felton and Bill Wright, and Misses Fay Taylor and Mattie and Nettie Wright.

To the Schreiner Institute at Kerrville, Sidney Randle, Roccoy Jones, Cip Henderson and Joe Watson.

To C. I. A. at Denton, Misses Joan Wilson and Mary Francis and Aileen Hodges.

To Baylor Female College at Belton, Miss Aesch Baker.

A number of these young people are attending school away from home for the first time and are recent graduates of the Junction High School.

We know they are going to make good and we extend them cordial good wishes in their new work that is to equip them for a life work and good citizenship.

Next week we will discuss the fish hatchery proposition, which we have omitted the past two weeks on account of District Court. Every one should seriously consider the need of a fish hatchery for the streams of this county. It is not a town proposition, but one that every good citizen of the county should be interested in. We have got to get busy and get busy at once, if we are to get a hatchery in operation by December, as this will insure a supply for the rivers and creeks next spring.

We have recently had another letter from Mr. Riley of the San Marcos Fish Hatchery which is very encouraging. It gave some interesting information on the part that the Government will take and the assistance we can expect from that source. This information will be given next week.

Ernest Wilson left Wednesday for Austin after spending a few days in Junction. He will shortly resume his law studies in the University.

OKLAHOMA MAY BE UNDER MARTIAL LAW.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 7.—Martial law for the entire state loomed here today with the declaration of Governor Walton that "if necessity arose for him to put another county under martial law the edict would cover the state."

In the heat of his fight against the klan and mob rule at Tulsa, the Governor declared: "My patience is tried, my determination is unshaken."

The Governor's threat followed an official statement by N. W. Jewett, grand dragon of the klan in Oklahoma, who defied the Governor "to break up the klan." He asserted Walton was "obligated in the klan" by members over the state, but turned down for membership by the Oklahoma City organization.

The Governor has recently threatened martial law in a half dozen counties, and further trouble will bring drastic measures upon the whole state, it was indicated.

EARLY TEXAS RANGERS TELL OF INDIAN FIGHTS

Menard, Texas, Sept. 7.—One of the outstanding figures attending the fourth annual reunion of Texas ex-rangers here is Captain Dan W. Roberts of Llano, who was largely instrumental in freeing the state of Indians during the early days.

Captain Roberts' exploits were so illustrious that Governor Coke prevailed upon the Legislature to appropriate $75,000 for frontier protection and put him in charge of much of the work. The famous Frontier battalion was organized, Captain Roberts was commissioned a lieutenant and soon rose to a captaincy. He was a charter member of the celebrated Company D, stationed in Menard County, and worked in every direction out of here.

Captain Roberts was born in Winston County, Mississippi, October 10, 1841, and moved to Texas with his parents in 1843. From earliest youth he was a citizen of the great outdoors, and early took up weapons against the Indians.

His career as a Texas ranger began in 1873. It began very auspiciously. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phelps had been murdered by Indians near Round Mountain, Blanco County. Many of the young men in the community immediately upon receiving notice of the slaughter, gathered at the home of Captain Roberts' parents. There a compact was formed. From that moment forward Captain Dan W. Roberts was engaged in a war of extermination against the Indians, when the latter became bold and ferocious.

Captain Roberts, with a party of rangers encountered eight Indians near Menard shortly after he became identified with the rangers and in the engagement that followed six of the painted men were brought low and two were captured.

Charles E. Taylor, known as the champion Indian fighter, is among the attendants on the reunion from Brownwood. He joined the regular ranger service in 1873 under Captain Jim Connell. Taylor says that during that year he believes he and his body of men killed more Indians than had ever been killed by any band of rangers in a like period. He said that usually the odds in men were against the rangers in the ratio of 19 to 1, but that in all the combats the Indians were either exterminated or driven off.

Taylor says that he was at Brownwood when the first house was built and when the last one was started. Taylor says that Dick Sullivan, another member of the ex-rangers, probably has killed more Indians than any other ex-ranger at the convention.

Among the Texas rangers who had part in the famous "Lost Valley" fight was W. W. Lewis, an ex-mayor of Menard, who is seeing after the comforts of the grizzled warriors.

He has engaged in a number of running fights with Indians, however, the Indians doing the running. He was born in Kentucky and while a child learned the use of long barreled rifles. He is now engaged in the lumber business here with his son and son-in-law.

At Methodist conference it is usual during one day for the warriors of the pulpit to give their experiences in the fight of the gospel. At the prayer-meetings of this and kindred denominations members are permitted to speak out their religious experiences.

Such was the occasion for the ex-rangers this afternoon and tonight. Around their tin cups of coffee, made of San Saba river water, the rangers told of their experiences, the fights with the Indians, hard rides they made to catch the bad man and how they lived on wolf meat and catfish broiled without bread or salt.

A. T. Richie, adjutant, called the experience meeting. All of the stories were interesting.

OVER 6,000,000 PEOPLE HOMELESS IN JAPAN.

Tokio, Japan, Sept. 8.—Oshima, the volcano of the island of that name, off the coast of Japan, which for centuries has smoked and fumed, exploded and all but blew from the earth two of the proudest cities of the Orient—Yokohama and Tokio.

Then, its fury spent in its last great convulsion, it sank back into the sea whence, centuries ago it had come.

And as it passed beneath the waves, its dying agony was reflected in the great earthquake and tidal wave that swept the gay sea coast.

Fire, death and havoc were the attendants at the funeral of Oshima.

That, summed up, is the story of what appears to have been the greatest disaster in the modern era of the world's history.

Through the ages Japan, scientists knew, has been sitting over a seething furnace. Probably the thinnest place in the earth's crust jutted from the seas. Beneath the interior of the earth was a fiery cauldron. The fires had vent thru Japan's volcanoes.

It was as a nation sitting on a powder box—and the powder exploded thru Oshima.

The volcano's death came at noon last Saturday, but its dying struggles lasted for two days and two nights—a series of countless earthquakes.

Tokio, the capital city and pride of the Orient, is three-fourths destroyed. One bank was left standing; not a department store remains. Two news paper offices of the many in the city are left. How many people are dead can not now be said.

The property loss is incalculable, but it includes practically all the property, foreign and Japanese, in the cities of Tokio and Yokohama and in the great industrial district near them.

The royal family is safe. So is the American Ambassador and his staff. But the death of American Consul Kirjassoff at Yokohama is confirmed.

The great Imperial Hotel, the Far East's most famed hostelry, in the heart of Tokio, was one of the few buildings escaping with but slight damage.

Yet, within sight of it stands the great skeletons of Tokio's modern "skyscraper" district, their frames burned and blackened by fire and twisted by the earthquake.

But the picture of the people—the great masses left homeless and destitute—is a sight which beggars description.

They number somewhere between 6,000,000 and 10,000,000—no one knows how many.

In Tokio they are concentrated in the parks and open spaces, homeless and helpless.

Yet not all the tragedy is even partly over. The family life of Japan is the fabric round which the nation is built; and the disaster has separated families, killing and scattering their members. That is the reason back of the pitiful scenes in the parks and concentration places where men and women mill constantly around, crying the name of their loved ones and hoping against hope for an answer.

CALF CREEK MEN ARE STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Brady Sentinel: Little hope is held out for the recovery of M. C. Bingham, Calf Creek farmer, who with his son, Tom, was struck by lightning at the Reuben Bradshaw home near Calf Creek on Monday shortly after 12 o'clock. The son, who was also struck, but not so badly injured, is reported as doing nicely and will fully recover.

It is stated that Mr. Bingham, his sons, Tom and Calvin, with Reuben Bradshaw and others, were standing in the yard at the Bradshaw home, after returning from a baptizing service in which the elder Bingham was baptised into the church, watching a cloud, when a bolt of lightning shot down striking in the top of a tree, tearing down the tree it leaped to a wire fence and followed it along to near where Mr. Bingham and his son were standing, and it is said looked to have struck the elder Bingham in the top of the head telling him to the ground.

The rest of the party were also knocked down. The fiery stroke followed Mr. Bingham's body, bursting his shoes from his feet and so intense was the heat that his collar button, which was exhibited here Tuesday, was practically melted.

The young man was reported yesterday as all right, but the elder gentleman is still in a very critical condition with a slight chance of recovery.

These beauty contests and bathing suit revues are getting a bit too common. They are getting to be demoralizing. Probably the time has not been long since when they would have been considered demoralizing to the spectators. But since that time there have come changes, one way or another, in the dress of modern-day women and in the thinking, it may be, of modern-day men which leave the frankness of nature but little adorned and the response of the beholder but little moved in displays which would have shocked and possibly outraged former generations. The demoralization nowadays in such displays is to be deplored.

If you doubt it, witness the rivalry that marks the choosing of a Queen of this or that. Mothers and daughters alike lose all sense, apparently, of relative values and throw away all reserve in seeking opportunity to parade before the eyes of boor and beau alike that which womanhood at its most wholesome loveliness withholds from the curious gaze. To the better taste there is a similitude between the beauty show and the livestock show which is not pleasant to think upon.

In the long ago, before it was thought that women had souls, buyers and sellers of slaves had such shows and inspected the physical perfection of those regarded as but beautiful human cattle. To the modern mind the practice is revolting because of the indignities offered to the sanctity of human freedom and of feminine personality. Yet, we have come upon a time when maidenly comeliness submits itself eagerly to an inspection no less callous and calculating. Where have our Vashtis gone that every lass with a lovely form and winsome face is all but distraught to make a show of them before the flippant crowd? Every lass? No, not so; some there are to whom beauty is a sacred gift, a sparkling gem fittingly set only in that companion pricelessness of womanhood—modesty. And in valuing it so they have placed not a lower worth upon it, but a higher.—Dallas News.

SOLD.

While we deny any allusion of egotism, this column must be a very valuable one, there are so many people trying to sell us something to fill it with each week. And they want to charge a lot for it, too.—Mount Pleasant Review.

Don't sell out. Your column is your one legitimate means of letting your readers know what you think about public questions. It is the part of the Times-Review that gives it tone and character and personality. It is amazing how many editors in Texas think that the space directly under the masthead of their papers is a fine roosting place for advertisements of Dosem's Dope for Dropsical Dubs, or canned comment from some editorial sweatshop in New York's business slums. The other day S. P. clipped one of these editorials from an exchange, credited it properly, (as he thought), wrote a little piece under it. The next day he found that the same editorial had been sold to six or seven Texas newspapers, for all of them ran it without anything to show that it was not their very own. As soon as a subscriber finds that the editorials from his own paper are bought like wallpaper or cordwood, he just naturally loses interest. And you can't blame him. You don't go to an encyclopedia for local interest, and why should he go to some hack writer the other side of the Mississippi River for suggestions on life and happiness in Mount Pleasant, Texas? Don't sell out. You are beating the canned syndicate man all hollow.—State Press in Dallas News.

As we have often stated, we get enough "copy" free each week to fill a hundred-page magazine, this matter finding its way into the waste basket. In addition to many concerns that are willing to furnish us with much interesting news matter, free of charge; we get letters and circulars most every week from "expert" editorial writers who are willing to furnish us with ready-made editorials for this little sheet, free of charge.

We admit, without any comment from readers, that we are very weak, editorially, but weak as we are, we feel that we know more about what our people are thinking about and more about what our people want and need than some one in a distant city that wants us to pay them a "nominal sum" for their high-class editorials. It is a custom with some of our exchanges to buy these ready-made editorials or copy the editorials of other papers and then use them as their own. We do not do this. The editorials that appear on this page from time to time, are original, except where proper credit is given for the original source.

Our readers are invited to contribute editorials at any time on any question of general interest to the community, and such contributions will be used with or without the name of the contributor.

JAMES J. HILL Was the Empire builder of the great Northwest. He built thousands of miles of railroad, and developed a great country into a suitable place for a multitude of homes. When some one asked him the secret of success in life, he said:

"If you want to know whether you are destined to be a success you can easily find out; the test is simple; Are You Able to Save Money? If not, drop out; you will lose; you may think not, but you will lose as sure as fate, for the seed of success is not in you."

NOTES OF THE PARENT-TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

"Are you a door mat?" said one Parent-Teachers worker to another.

"Did you know that a certain remark you made to me five years ago led me into the Parent-Teachers' work and has kept me there since?"

"No," said the other P-T. worker. "What was the remark?"

"Well, I made an excuse that my home and children kept me too busy for outside work. You told me you were the mother of nine and knew that feeling; but urged me to get out and identify myself with the work or my children would use me for a door mat. You said the outside inspiration I would receive would be equalled by the added respect accorded me by the children who would be much more proud of a mother keeping abreast of the times, than a mother who could only sweep, cook and darn."

Said the second P-T. worker to the first:

"Have you regretted it?" "Regretted it?" repeated the other. "Never! I have been grateful to you hundreds of times."

Both of these women are types of women holding positions of statewide importance in P-T. work. Their home life is famous for its harmony and usefulness. Their outside work has given them broader understanding as mothers and modern home builders. Their grown-up children are college-bred; their younger ones are moving steadily and healthily along the path of knowledge, and all flock home to mother at the slightest pretext.—Oregon Parent-Teachers'

Is there not a lesson for you chronic stay-at-homes in the experience of these two women? Never let the outside work be an excuse for neglecting in one iota, the home duties, but arrange your work so that you may do your part in the work of building a better school and community.

Start now, and come to the

THE LURE OF THE WEST.

The following is an editorial appearing recently in the Houston Chronicle, and came from the pen of Judge Norman G. Kittrell Sr., who is a brother of Mrs. John S. Durst, and was recently here on a visit. In behalf of the people here, this paper extends to Judge Kittrell and the Chronicle our thanks for this publicity.

From time immemorial the trend of human minds and human footsteps has been westward. Cesar led his legions from Rome into Gaul. The hardy and barbaric dwellers in the forests of Germany poured into the British Isles. Columbus felt the lure of the west; sailed and discovered a new world. Bold adventurers from England landed on Jamestown Peninsula and Plymouth Rock and dared and suffered and achieved to establish a new nation.

In 1849 seekers after gold traversed burning, trackless deserts and endured indescribable suffering to reach California, a land which has been transformed into a realm of well-nigh matchless beauty.

A century ago heroic spirits invaded the then unknown and virgin realms of Texas. They too, heard the call of the wild, and felt the lure of the west, and we of today, are heirs to the glorious heritage which they bequeathed us.

Unfortunately thousands of those who dwell in North, East and South Texas, know nothing of that part of Texas which, beginning at Kerrville, stretches to the far western mountains, and which is as picturesque a realm as ever the Creator gave man for habitation.

All that numbers of Texans pay huge sums to see and enjoy in the far east can be found in the territory referred to.

There are mountains clad in vivid green and perpetual verdure, forests of firs and spruces, rushing, foaming, dashing streams, gushing springs almost innumerable and a climate unexcelled on earth.

The south fork of the Llano is crossed en route to the higher lands beyond ten times in as many miles, and here it rips and rushes and roars and dashes, and yonder it spreads out wide and deep, and as placid as a millpond. Springs gush forth from under its banks or pour in cascades down the sides of the towering cliffs between which it has run since creation's dawn. Nothing more than can be seen in West and Northwest Texas can be seen in the Eastern and Northeastern mountains.

The altitude of Junction is only 200 feet less than that of Asheville, N. C., and points a half day's ride to the west exceed in altitude the average of the Appalachian range.

Slowly but surely the realization has dawned on the minds of the people of Texas that they need not go beyond the limits of their own State to find beautiful streams, stately mountains and delightful temperature.

Since June 1 there has been an almost unbroken caravan of cars from Kerrville by Junction to the west.

The lure of the west has at last taken hold on the dwellers in other parts of Texas, and its hold will strengthen with each passing year.

The road from Kerrville to Junction is equal to most city streets and there is not a more picturesque ride of 57 miles in the entire South. There is not a moment in which the traveler can not see some landscape scene which charms and thrills.

Texas people should see Texas first. Let them yield to the lure of the west. If they do, they will never be able to resist the witchery of its spell.—Norman G. Kittrell Sr., in Houston Chronicle.

JUDGE FREES WOMAN AFTER STIFF LECTURE.

Houston, Sept. 8.—Mrs. Peggy Jordan Griffith, daughter of a former humane officer here, went before Judge C. W. Robinson in Criminal District Court, pleaded guilty to forging the name of Pressley K. Ewing, Houston attorney, to checks totaling $13,000, and received a suspended sentence of five years and one of the stiffest lectures Judge Robinson has ever handed down from the bench.

"Peggy, stand up," the judge began.

"Your conviction was caused by nothing in God's green world but vanity. Your vain desire for silk stockings, short skirts, painted cheeks and painted lips—that combination might destroy any good girl."

Mrs. Griffith, standing with bowed head and with her three-year-old baby tugging at her skirts, began to sob.

"I have known you," the judge continued, "ever since you were a little girl; known your hard-working mother, your sisters and your brothers, and I am pained that you have brought disgrace upon your name. If there is a drop of real womanhood in your body, in your soul, you will go home, be true to yourself, be a true wife to your husband and a true mother to your children."

Mrs. Griffith left the crowded courtroom without saying a word. Mr. Ewing, whose name was forged, was her former employer. The banks defrauded have been paid, it was said.

Weak Back

Mrs. Mildred Pipkin, of R. F. D. 8, Columbia, Tenn., says: "My experience with Cardui has covered a number of years. Nineteen years ago . . . I got down with weak back. I was run-down and so weak and nervous I had to stay in bed. I read of and sent for it. I took only one bottle at that time, and it helped me; seemed to strengthen and build me right up. So that is how I first knew of Cardui. After that, . . . when I began to get weak and 'no account', I sent right for Cardui, and it never failed to help me."

If you are weak and suffering from womanly ailments, Cardui may be just what you need. Take Cardui. It has helped thousands, and ought to help you.

'Announcement Story'

Ford Motor Company DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Detroit, Mich., September 4.—Introduction of a higher radiator, bringing new and improved body lines to all types of Ford Cars, is announced today by the Ford Motor Company.

The changes have just gone into effect and the various types are now in production.

While the larger radiator has been made standard on all types and while it has made possible other betterments in body design, there is no radical departure in construction, but rather a general improvement which has resulted in more graceful lines.

The new radiator sets an inch and a half higher than the former and has an apron at the bottom which joins a similar apron effect of the fender on either side, giving a highly finished appearance to the front of the car. The larger radiator also increases the cooling efficiency.

Most conspicuous among the new types is the Ford Coupe which is of entirely new body design and construction, resulting in a more trim exterior appearance, more comfortable seating arrangement and a better luggage carrying capacity.

From the dash there is a graceful sweep in the cowl to the radiator, bringing a pleasing effect to the front. The doors are wide and open forward, making access and exit easy. They are heavily framed for rigidity and strength. The compartment at the rear has been enlarged to afford increased carrying capacity. The gasoline tank is under the seat with divided cushions, to afford easy filling of the tank from the right side, making it unnecessary for the driver to leave his seat. Ventilator in the cowl and a visor over the windshield add much to the attractiveness of the car. A new rear fender of more sturdy character also is a feature.

Interior fittings are of more choice material and the arrangement of the deeply cushioned seat has been effected so that at the rear there is a small recess shelf for carrying parcels. The rear vision window is much larger and oblong in shape. Door windows have been equipped with revolving type window regulators and door locks are provided. Side windows are equipped with the lever type window lifter.

Marked, too, is the improvement in the Four Door Sedan. Highly popular since its introduction a year ago, because of its low, graceful lines, the new car now presents even much better lines and a sturdier appearance.

This has been brought about by the installation of an entirely new cowl with graceful sweep from the dash blending into the larger hood and radiator. The change also affords an increase in leg room for occupants of the front seat.

In the open types, the touring Car and Runabout, the cowl has been enlarged and flows in a graceful curve to the higher hood.

The result brings a most pleasing effect to the exterior appearance of both types. The improvement in the Touring Car which came when the one man top and slanting windshield were introduced, is greatly enhanced by the larger radiator, the car appearing lower and more attractive than ever. The effect on the Roadster is likewise most appealing, giving it a more rugged and sturdy appearance.

The new radiator also is extended to the Ford truck chassis, affording improved appearance and better cooling to delivery services.

No changes are contemplated in prices.

SUTTON CO. MAKES APPLICATION FOR AID.

Sonora, Sept. 8.—Making application for Federal funds for highway work, the combining of the tick and scab inspectors, the levying of the tax rate and the approving of the county engineer advertising for bids for the construction of a highway to the Edwards County line towards Del Rio, were the high points in a recent commissioners' court of Sutton County held here.

On this extension the county is asking for $116,000 Federal aid. The application specifies that the road will reach 22.69 miles. Five bridges of 20-foot span are to be built on this road. The estimated cost is given as $174,100.50.

It was ordered by the court that the tick and scab inspector for Sutton County be combined beginning September 1, and G. C. Ory was appointed to this position with a salary of $175 per month. He is to furnish car and all expenses. S. L. Merck was formerly scab inspector and Mr. Ory tick inspector.

Further Federal aid was asked to be supplied on Sutton County highways. The sum of $53,271.21 was asked to apply on Highway No. 4 towards the Schleicher County line. The application specifies that the road is to be 9.78 miles long; the total cost of construction is estimated at $106,542.43.

For Highway No. 27 to the Kimble County line, $284,000 is asked. The application specifies that the road is to be 37.1 miles in length. It also calls for seven bridges over 20-foot spans. The total cost of construction is estimated at $430,147.30.

OFFICERS GET CHECKS IN WAR AGAINST CRIME.

Ballinger, Sept. 8.—As a token of appreciation for their untiring efforts in running down criminals and enforcing the law in Runnels County, the Law Enforcement League of Winters presented Sheriff Flint and his four deputies with checks for $25 each.

These checks were accompanied by letters asserting that the citizens were not only ready to support the officers financially, but would back them morally in a campaign against all character of crime in this county.

Bootlegging and liquor-making has about been put out of business in this county.

MANN DISCOURSES ON BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

"Advertising is the greatest sales medium of the present day and without it there can be no real success," Fred P. Mann, wealthy merchant of Devil's Lake, N. D., who does a $600,000 business annually in a town of 5,000, declared in an address before visiting merchants and Dallas business men in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce at Dallas recently.

He is accredited with being one of the outstanding business successes of the United States. He was brought to Dallas by the Dallas Wholesale Merchant's Association to speak daily before the buyers on questions with which he has been confronted in his thirty-one years' experience in the operation of his store at Devil's Lake.

"In the early days I learned two invaluable lessons," he said. "The first was that doing business on a cash basis is one of the soundest principles in America today. The second, and equally important, was that, regardless of what a man has to sell, he must advertise it."

"People are most frugal and more saving when they are buying on a cash basis. You will not lose your trade and will be helping yourself and your patrons by this system."

"Getting back to advertising. The man who figures he is throwing money away when he advertises is missing one of the greatest opportunities and making a serious mistake."

Here he told of the tremendous volume of merchandise handled daily, by the big mail order houses, and attributed the bulk of their sales to their advertising.

"You cannot blame the people for buying mail order goods when you do not advertise at all," he said. "Few establishments, even the largest in the country, pay out more than 2 or 3 per cent of their gross receipts on advertising. But the heaviest advertisers reap the biggest profits."

"Let the people know what you have in stock," he declared. "Ask their support and consideration and you will get it. The silent message of advertising in the newspapers, the solicitations you make to the people through such medium, the information thus divulged, will mean a small or large fortune to you."

"In America today 95 per cent of the grocers do not advertise at all. They do not think it pays. But look at the daily papers at any time and you will find the Piggy-Wiggly stores prominently mentioned in well arranged and attractive ads. It has paid this system handsomely, and you can get the same results."

Touching on the departures from the old methods of business, he spoke of the new methods of placing the goods out where the customers can see them from a close-up view. This is a form of advertising and has proved that the people are becoming more and better educated in buying. The card system of showing prices on the various goods was also heartily commended.

"During my week's stay in Dallas," he said, "I hope to get the manufacturers, jobbers and retailer business men of Dallas all together on one occasion. At this time I shall attempt to counsel with them on the advisability, the necessity, of the closer co-operation."

"The manufacturers and the jobbers are friends to the merchants of the Southwest. When your business goes wrong, and it seems impossible to meet your payments for goods, do not try to put the matter off. Go direct to the credit men of the institutions and tell them your troubles. You will find that they are more than ready and willing to help you."

"In closing, let me emphasize, as I did when I started—advertise and sell on a cash basis."—Dallas News.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which quickly relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health. Sold by druggists for over 40 Years. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

THE CATTLE MARKET

Feeder and stocker steers, good white faces, 6 to 7; good reds, 5 to 6; other kinds 3 to 5. Do you get that? On a 700-pound steer, from $7 to $21 in favor of the white faced steer. With that much difference in one calf, the good Hereford cow is the only cow to own. And the best you can buy is the cheapest. So ship to Kansas City your common cattle, then come to the Cardwell ranch, and when you have seen theirs if you know of no better Herefords, buy a small or large foundation herd. They are offering September to December delivery, 100 choice heifer calves, 60 choice heifer yearlings, 60 choice two year heifers, 130 cows over fives.

These cattle are all Marfa Highland Herefords or their calves. Phone or write The Cardwell Ranch, 173tc. Telegraph, Texas.

PECANS

WE HAVE Been gathering data from all parts of the county and find that we have a fair crop of pecans.

WE URGE Our people to try and gather their own pecans and at the same time pay close attention to the grade, marking good trees as well as non bearers, and inferior quality.

WE ARE Now beginning to realize the value of our pecan industry, which if properly handled, will eventually be one of the leading crops of Kimble County
